Resident blasts historic commission

By Marilyn Trumper

A very "disillusioned" Gary Sutton made a plea to the Clarkston Village Council Monday night to take another look at power of the Historic District Commission.

Sutton's application to aluminum side and insulate his 80-year-old home on Holcomb Road was denied by the commission last week. Two weeks earlier that same commission approved a duplicate plan for a Miller Road residence. Both homes are located in the historic district, where all construction and repairs are regulated by an ordinance.

"I would like you to take action in regards to procedure and decisions," Sutton told the council. "They have no guidelines to work by. The five people sitting on the commission make the decisions."

"I feel they have not handled (cases) in the best interest of the community. I feel personally you have created a monster. I'd like to trade places with the (homeowners in the village, outside the historic district) that are not affected," he said.

"What's more, if I want to improve my home—I have to take it to court."

"I can paint it up like a kaleidoscope and they can't do anything. I can let it sit there and rot, and they can't do anything about it. But they have the power to tell me I can't fix it up."

Council President Jackson Byers moved to appoint a committee of council members and one representative of the historic commission to review procedure, look at guidelines and recommend changes in the ordinance.

"We recognize the problems and right now we don't want to alienate anyone. It appears the ordinance has divided our people," Byers said, moving that Trustee Ethel Sinclair act as chairperson, joined by trustees Gary Symons and David Raup, and commission member Tom Hunter.

"We need to strengthen the ordinance in its regulations to cope with the situation, and try to establish guidelines. We thought we did, but apparently we missed the boat," Byers said.

parently we missed the boat," Byers said.

"What left me so disillusioned," Sutton said, "was the fact that two members of the commission live outside the historic district and three of them live in aluminum-sided homes. They tell me I can't do it, that my home is going to rot."

"Not only that, but after denying me, tomorrow they can turn around and do the same thing to their homes."

After the meeting, Sutton said he did not know if he would appeal the commission's decision through the courts.

The newly appointed committee is expected to make a report in the coming month.

School talks stand still

Progress called 'frustrating' by negotiators

By Kathy Greenfield

"Frustrating" and "bleak" are words now used as contract negotiations have all but stopped between the Clarkston Community School District and the Clarkston Education Association (CEA).

The negotiating teams met for only about one hour last week and the next meeting is scheduled Oct. 7.

"My hands are tied. I've exhausted the (school) board's guidelines. I don't have any money to give them for wage increases and that's where we are," said Conrad Bruce, chief negotiator for the school district. "It's kind of frustrating. Your goal is to come to closure in some reasonable period of time and right now I don't know what it's going to take to bring this thing to closure."

"I have no idea when we're going to settle this thing," he added.

The CEA requested copies of the district's preliminary audit and "Form B" from the state which gives a breakdown of the district's financial picture. Bruce gave the CEA the data Monday.

"The reason why this is so important is we're looking for monies that could be available to settle the issue," said Allen Bartlett, CEA spokesperson.

"This is good from the standpoint it will tell us where we are now. We're talking about where we are now versus where they speculate we'll be one year from now, two years from now, three years from now," he said.

Bruce said the district now shows a fund equity of about $1 million, but $429,000 of the money was used last year and in the 1982-83 school year, an additional $300,000 to $400,000 of the surplus funds will be needed to keep the district going.

"As the (CEA) knows, there's very little money there now and next year it's going to be worse," he said. "The association would probably agree to...nothing for the first year if we could give them something for the second, but we can't."

An agreement has been made to negotiate for a one-year contract for the 270 teachers in the district. The former three-year contract ended in August, and it has been extended while negotiations are ongoing.

"I think they would like to see us go into more than a one-year agreement, but the board would not like to do this, because there's not enough revenue in Independence Township fire fighters are everywhere to be seen as they work to douse a house fire Sept. 23 at 6227 Clarkston-Orion. The blaze began in an upstairs bedroom. It was out in 20 minutes, said Capt. Dale Bailey, who estimated damages were about $5,000. The call came in at 8:27 a.m., after the occupants of the house tried to put out the fire but couldn't.

Telephone sales won't help deputies

The phone rings in a Clarkston home. "Hello, I'm calling in regards to sheriff's deputies. Would you be interested in donating to help us..."

Don't, warns the Oakland County Sheriff's Department (OCSD) if you believe your donation is going to help that department.

The OCSD rarely solicits over the phone and is warning residents of Independence and Springfield townships to be wary of telephone solicitors seeking funds for various organizations.

"We've gotten a complaint from a woman in Clarkston," said Deputy Kenneth Hurst. "She received a phone call from someone who said they were with the sheriff's department and were selling books for $19."

"This department has not sanctioned any telephone solicitations. If we did we would hold a press conference and announce it."

Persons with questions should contact the OCSD at 858-5007 or 858-5025.

Get your junk car licensed or else

The tall grass, shrubs and trees are thinning with the coming of fall, and the roving eyes of an Independence Township official can easily spot those junk cars nestled up against the garage and hidden behind fences.

Better get 'em licensed or move 'em out, warns Director of Building and Planning Kenneth Delbridge, who'll be out ticketing violators of the township ordinance.

The law says all cars must be licensed and operational.

Violators will be ticketed and must appear at the district court where the judge will determine the fine, Delbridge said.

Contract talks slow to trickle

the district," Bruce said. "I don't know what we're going to do next year, because the revenue picture is pretty bleak."

While there are no plans for the district to seek an increase in taxes, Bartlett said he believes it has to happen.

"If we can't get the money, I think we'll be in the same position as Waterford and Orion next year," he said. "We are in dire need of additional revenues. I'm not just talking about teachers' salaries. If we believe what (Superintendent) Milford Mason tells us is true, we're going to gain more money or not have as good a school district."

Bartlett listed cuts already made—no field trips for the past three years, a reduced reading program this year, the demise of the building trades program, fewer offerings in foreign language, the drop from nine industrial arts teachers to six at Clarkston High School—and the increase in class sizes throughout the district and more split classes in the elementary schools.

And he talked about the need to keep good teachers in the district, and how more of them are talking about looking for work in different fields.

"The issue is that we have a community. We have good schools and we intend to maintain them," he said. "The teachers in this district are not about to work three years without a raise."

"The reason we're not out on strike now, very simply, is we're trying to find a way," he added and again turned his thoughts to the need for seeking more taxes from residents. "If we're told, 'We don't care about the kids,' it would be a bitter pill to swallow."

Bartlett said he wears a button that expresses his philosophy: "If you think education is expensive, try ignorance."

On target: Clarkston Community Schools' 1982-83 goals look toward future

By Kathy Greenfield

What will Clarkston schools pupils study five to 10 years from now? Will computer courses take over and will classes like physics die for lack of student participation?

The answers to questions like these is one of two goals chosen by the Clarkston school district for the 1982-83 year. The board of education unanimously approved the goals at the Sept. 13 meeting.

"Instead of bringing up the rear, we're going to try to look forward," said Superintendent Milford Mason.

The committee responsible for reviewing, developing and recommending the future curriculum for Clarkston schools will have two cochairpersons, both school administrators, and several subcommittees with membership running the gamut from parents, non-parents and students to teachers, administrators and school board members.

The goal is a carry-over from last year, because the committee studying curriculum possibilities "identified more questions than answers," Mason said.

"When they got to regional services and facility utilization, they came to the decision they had to know what the curriculum is going to be in the future," he said.

The second goal for 1982-83 is to design a plan for the introduction of cable television in the school system.

"I have no way of knowing what Independence Township will do, but the company that was recommended to the township and the village would like to put a studio in Clarkston High School," Mason said, adding that the company promises 100 percent of the township will be covered and says the cable system would be completed one year after township board approval.

Four people will make up the cable TV committee.

"Since we seem to be on the threshold in the community of having cable TV, I have got to put together a committee of some staff members to plan how we can best use it," Mason said.

The school board also approved continuing work on three other target goals named last year.

A microcomputer program is underway, and when North Sashabaw and Clarkston Elementary receive computers they have budgeted for, all eight schools in the district will have some on site.

Upper elementary pupils are to be taught basic computer skills. Additional knowledge with computer programming is to be offered to junior high school pupils, mostly in after-school programs. On the high school level, computer programming will be available to students who have completed a mathematics requirement.

Better communication with all residents in the district is the second goal from last year moving toward realization. Oakland Schools, which offers support services for the districts in Oakland County, is writing a communications plan for 20 of the 28 school systems, Mason said.

An annual survey asking district residents their opinions about education is to begin in late spring, a district-wide newsletter is a possibility and a parent volunteer program is now underway in each school. There will also be parent committees for food service and special services.

The final communications package is to be considered for the 1983-84 budget.

Affective education is another goal carried over from last year. A core group of teachers will have training in the methods and, over a three-year period, Mason said he hopes all teachers in the district will have received special training using federal funds.

He defines affective education this way: "To acquire knowledge, skills, attitude and moral values to operate effectively in a democracy. Quite frankly, it's sort of basic to our way of life."

Understanding one's self and others is an important part of affective education, he added.

Intern takes close-up look at local government

By Marilyn Trumper

Franklin LeForce has selected Independence Township as his stomping ground to learn the ins and outs of local government at the grass roots level.

The 22-year-old Eastern Michigan University senior lives in Belleville and travels to Clarkston Monday, Wednesday and Friday to his public administration internship, a job that lasts through December.

It pays.

Means a 60-mile commute one-way.

And lots of hard work.

But the job suits his aims.

Franklin's set his sites on a township or city manager's position and says the internship is the best way to see how the wheels of local government go round.

"Basically I hope to learn how to perform in a true working environment," he said, choosing each word carefully and speaking slowly. "I've been going to school for four years now. I want to learn how it really is and learn about myself. See if this is the career choice for me."

To date the would-be public servant's been "accumulating data for a central reference library for OCATS (Oakland County Association of Township Supervisors) to try and collect contractual data so that when contract negotiations arise, there will be a reference point from which to begin negotiations."

Heady stuff.

"But I enjoy it," he smiles.

Franklin is impressed with government officials inside township hall.

"They impress me because of their professional attitude. I like their openness and their personalities. One of the biggest misnomers is that public officials are non-professionals. That's just not true."

Understanding that a life in the public's eye means being a servant to their whims, complaints and gripes, Franklin's ready.

"I know that when a guy's garbage is picked up the government doesn't get a call with the guy saying 'thanks.' You get the call when the garbage is not picked up."

"I'd consider I'd be doing a good job when the phone doesn't ring."

Supervisor James B. Smith says Franklin "...appears to be very bright young man, and came highly recommended to the township."

In the future Franklin sees law school or perhaps his master's degree.

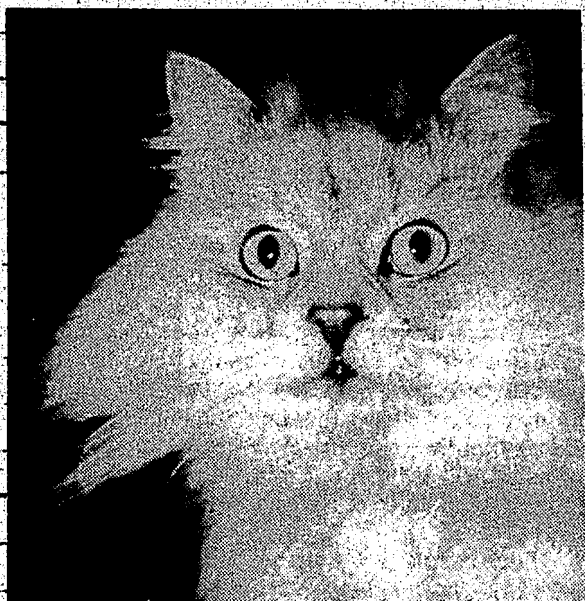

There'll be no political career. He wants to be a hired official, not an elected official.

In the meantime, during his tenure with Independence Township, there'll be salvation from five-hour board meetings that have become routine.

"I go to school on Tuesdays," he laughed.

Franklin LeForce, 22, a senior at EMU in Ypsilanti, is serving a public administration internship at Independence Township Hall.

2 faces of B'wee

Stick a camera in B'wee's face and the Shaded Silver Persian shows just how he feels about such an affront. After a few words of encouragement, however, the 3-year-old, 15-pound cat puts forth his best face. Theresa Bellant, the owner of B'wee, took these photos in February, and she was so pleased with them, and with her feline friend, that she brought them into The Clarkston News. "He's different than any ordinary cat," she says. "Persians have a personality of their own. He's stuck-up and likes to be by himself, but he likes to be watched. He's my loner. He likes me." The cat reigns at the Bellant home on Tappan Court in Independence Township. Don't, by the way, expect to see B'wee wandering about the neighborhood. "He's trained to stay in the backyard—he'll stay right in the backyard for four or five hours and not go outside the fence," Bellant says.

Township hall repairs on tap

Springfield Township Hall will have a fresh look in the near future.

The township board, at its monthly meeting Sept. 8, approved two separate bids to do repair work on both the interior and exterior of the hall.

Lumberjack Resources' bid of $2,976 was accepted by the board to repair the hall's interior, according to Collin Walls, township supervisor. Work on the building is to include putting in six new windows, refinishing the wooden floor, rehanging several doors, tearing down paneling on two different walls to insulate and replacing the paneling.

Estimated completion time given by Lumberjack Resources is three days. The Lumberjack bid was one of four the board chose from.

A $3,800 bid was accepted from Wyatt Veatch to complete masonry work on the older portion of the hall's exterior, said Walls.

A date for work to begin on the building has not been established, but Walls said the objective is to have the facelift completed this fall "before it gets too cold."

Letters to editor

'Are we preserving history or denying rights?'

For some time I have been quiet on an issue for several of the wrong reasons. I have some concerns regarding our Historical Ordinance, but unfortunately didn't speak out at the appropriate time.

History is that which happened in the life of a people, country, etc. One hundred years ago, the people did not face restrictions on the homes they built or changed here in Clarkston.

Perhaps that is the reason for our unique homes and colorful past. Some of these homes probably caused quite a stir when they were built and it's doubtful that everyone gave their approbation.

Thankfully, it was not left to a panel of non-professionals to judge. If that had been the case back then, we could possibly find ourselves living amidst a village with the uniqueness of a subdivision filled with row houses.

Who has the right to dictate restrictions on the freedom of personal preference? Are we preserving history or denying rights? There must be an equitable point at which we can reasonably maintain our history without severe infringements of individual freedom.

I am sure many fences, porches, windows, additions, etc., have come and gone over the years. Is the original historical, or are all the changes the history of the home?

We have homes that have been characterized as quaint and lovely New England-style homes. These probably began as primitive cottages. The look of these homes today was probably the farthest thing from the original builders' minds.

Do you suppose Main Street was ever as colorful as it is now? How many gazebos do you think could have been found at the turn of the century?

We are creating an admirable illusion, not preserving history. We cannot make things old. Only time can do that.

Our village is a mixture of many people, varied tastes and different needs. Now add 150 years of blending these ingredients and stand back to admire the results.

We have elaborate Victorians, stately colonials, a rustic ranch Village Hall, a topless bandshell and a two-story garage on our Main Street. We even have a resident who appears to infringe on another's property to achieve a certain look. All in all, we are fortunate to have a very interesting and unique community, one abundant with local color.

If there are very definite things we don't want here then let's state them clearly. Clarity would help eliminate harsh feelings prevalent in our community. We need to know where we stand and we need to regain the right to make the final decision concerning our property.

Maybe then history can continue to add chapters to a very enlightening book.

Kathryn Raup

Great section!

On behalf of the board of the Clarkston Community Historical Society, allow me to congratulate Kathy Greenfield and The Clarkston News staff on the four special sections honoring Clarkston's Sesquicentennial.

These articles were not only interesting and informative, but helped the community appreciate just what Clarkston has to celebrate: its 150-year-old history, its beautiful architecture and landmarks, but most of all, its community members.

Congratulations on a job well done.

Jenny Goddard holds "Foxy," one of an entire litter of puppies she recently found abandoned. Foxy is a bright, affectionate puppy that loves kids and needs a nice home to adopt her.

Photo commentary

Homeless and helpless pets

Puppies and kittens are much like human infants—they need love and help to survive. Yet each day, a large number of animals are left abandoned to fend for themselves.

With today's economy the way it is, many people can no longer afford pets. But there are other ways to treat an unwanted animal than abandoning it.

Ten days ago, Jenny Goddard, 11, came across a litter of 11 or 12 puppies left abandoned near Oak Hill and Allen Roads. The dogs were scared, and lost.

Jenny brought one of the dogs home with her and hid the animal in a barn for several days until she told her parents about what happened. The dog had found a home, temporarily, but the question remains about the other members of the litter and the hundreds of other animals abandoned.

"People abandon their animals out in the country and expect them to find homes. But we can't afford to just keep anything that people dump off," said Sylvia Goddard, Jenny's mother.

Foxy, as Jenny named the puppy, is a bright and very affectionate animal that loves children. The Goddards are looking for a nice home to adopt her. If anyone is interested, they may call 625-4793 for more information.

Endurance contest

Hazel and I join seven other couples on balmy summer Friday eve to wind down at Oxford Hills golf course from the week's work.

The way we play it, you wind down from the work week by diverting the stresses to another area of our nerve centers.

Those who are completely successful at giving equal application of stress to our systems also have complete breakdowns instead of partial collapse.

This season ended without achieving total frustration, so a plan was laid to assemble all the league at our three-family (with shared lower level) dwelling in Engadine.

Following the invite, we just stepped aside as our guests tossed clothes, clubs, cans and bottles into various assortments of luggage, and started their vehicles north for five hours, then turn west over the bridge.

To avoid chaos and confusion in camp, an itinerary was prepared. It was also distributed prior to departure so a 7:56 a.m. breakfast would not come as a surprise to potential late sleepers.

We didn't bother telling the guests that golf tee times were on courses that didn't take tee times. Or, that when the call was made to St. Ignace golf course, the high school golf coach answered because, "The pro is teaching at the high school."

We recommend a timed-schedule. And, we recommend adhering to it. Don't let weather deter you. Never mind if you get caught in three rain squalls the first nine holes you play.

cabin . . . go to the outdoor picnic site and have your hot dog roast. And, don't be surprised, as we were, to find two other couples on site, doing exactly what you planned.

Strange people the UP'ers. But, join them, as we did, and enjoy (share) the miseries together.

The great joy of the hosts comes on the third morning, when breakfast is scheduled for 7:58. By now it's an endurance contest. By now, also, enough weaknesses have been learned of the other folks to know vulnerable spots to toss jibes.

The "joy" I speak of on the last morning comes not from seeing how steps have slowed, and greetings slackened, or spirits weakened.

Just the opposite. The bright-eyed, bushy-tailed, middle-agers seemed to be just getting started. Most encouraging.

Mysterious geranium planter

I want to thank everyone for the help they have given me to beautify our village.

The business people have done a great job of keeping up their barrels of flowers; however, we don't won't put spikes next year, because they were too tempting to grab as people went by.

The one thing I love, and has fascinated me all summer, is some kind person planted a geranium in the bed next to Main Street in front of the parking lot. This same person has obviously been taking care of it and I have never seen him or her.

All I can say is "thank you" and I hope this is the beginning of more people doing the same. It has been a colorful little spot for me to look at every day.

My thanks to the village council for the planters in the park and their continuing efforts. I understand that the Clarkston Farm and Garden Club will be planting around the gazebo. Marvelous.

Now, my pet project, the hill in the park. I have the funds to plant three more trees. Hurray. Would love to plant more. Will you help? This year I spent funds cleaning it up and mulching because it is quite a job to keep it watered.

Again, my sincere thanks.

The Clarkston News staff has done a super job on the anniversary issues.

At least for us oldsters, it stirred up a lot of memories.

Until the bank went through recent remodeling, one could still see in the vault the two chipped plaster

That really is a vivid memory!

Square dance is termed successful

Recently the Clarkston Community Women's Club held a fund raiser square dance in which over $500 was raised to be used for community projects. When the local businesses were solicited for door prizes, there was an overwhelming response.

On behalf of the club, I would like to say thank you to the following businesses: The Clarkston Cafe, Foxy's, Deer Lake Racquet Club, Clarkston Big Boy, Foodtown, A & P, Koop's Disposal Service, Waterfall Jewelers, Alexander's, Pontiac State Bank, Pacesetter Bank, Rudy's, Clarkston Roofing, Tierra Arts & Design, Coach's Corner, Country Cords, Village Sampler, Country Greens, Daisy Chain, Hair Scene, Village Book Store, The Quiltery Inc., Village Bake Shop, Patti's New Image, Hallman's Apothecary, Drop'd Stitch, Spring Lake Golf Course, Quiltworks, Captain Dick's Seafood Market, The Essence Boutique, Dunkin' Donuts, Dave & Sons Fire Extinguishers, Mr. Deli, Pine Knob Warehouse, Clarkston Cinema, Cecile's, Speedy Print and The Flower Adventure.

How gratifying it is (especially with our economy) that local businesses continue to help the community.

I urge everyone to buy locally and support our local businesses.

Helpful people

The library staff wishes to thank all those hard-working volunteers who boxed books and dismantled shelving Sept. 10, 11 and 12, and those who helped put it all back together again Sept. 17, 18 and 19.

Because of their efforts, the library was able to re-open on Saturday, Sept. 20.

Independence Township residents are urged to come in and see the fine results of all this hard work.

'If it Fitz. . .

Recession is coming or going

by Jim Fitzgerald

President Reagan said Sept. 9, in a Kansas speech, that the economic recession's "long night is ending." Immediately, I began preparing for prosperity to dawn on me.

But a few days later, when talking to a group of White House visitors, the president said babies born after only three months of pregnancy "have lived, the record shows, to grow up and be normal." He was mistaken.

A White House aide later acknowledged the error, saying Reagan actually was referring to a case in which a 4½-month-old fetus survived. "He knew, but he said three instead of 4½," the aide explained to the Associated Press.

Also, around the same time Reagan was mistaken about surviving fetuses, he was mistaken about his budget being busted. When Congress overrode his veto of a money bill, the president called it a "budget buster." But the bill was $2 billion less than Reagan's own budget proposals.

"The claim that this bill is over the budget is as phony as a three-dollar bill," said House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Tex.

SO, IN VIEW OF Reagan's recent proclivity to be mistaken, I wondered whether the recession's long night was really ending. Maybe he meant to say something else. Maybe he meant to say the long night was just beginning.

Before exciting my friends in the unemployment line by telling them they'd soon be done waiting for the sunrise, I figured it would be a good idea to ask a White House aide for any possible corrections in the president's Kansas speech. I'd been wanting to talk to the White House about another important matter anyhow.

The most recent letter I received from President Reagan had a 5.9-cent stamp on it. As usual, the letter asked me to contribute money to help elect Republicans to Congress and make it possible for Reagan to "do everything in my power to help lead America away from the critical dangers that threaten the nation." I wanted to ask a White House aide why it costs me 20 cents to mail a letter first class, but it costs the president only 5.9 cents. Also, I wondered how a person pays for one 5.9 cents stamp.

BUT THERE WERE no aides in when I phoned the White House. They were probably all out looking for three-month-old kindergartners. So I took my postage question to the local post office, where a clerk said it was legal for President Reagan to put a 5.9-cent stamp on his personal correspondence to me because he was soliciting money on behalf of the 1982 GOP Victory Fund, which is a non-profit organization.

As long as an organization doesn't make money by getting people elected to Congress, but merely leads America away from critical dangers, it can use a 5.9-cent stamp. And it must buy the stamp in quantity because no one at the post office knows how to give 4.1 cents change when a 5.9-cent purchase is made with a dime.

Fortunately for the average taxpayer, it costs the postal service about as much to deliver a 5.9-cent letter as it does to deliver a 20-cent letter. That allows each of you, even if you don't receive a personal letter from President Reagan, to subsidize the 1982 GOP Victory Fund and gain the personal satisfaction of helping lead our nation away from critical dangers. Only in America.

Unfortunately, no one at the post office could tell me whether Reagan really meant to say the recession's long night is ending. I guess only White House aides know that kind of stuff. I will keep trying to contact one in hopes of getting a definitive interpretation of the president's Kansas speech. In the meantime, to prepare for an early dawn of prosperity is to risk getting out of bed long before it's time to go to work.

It would be nice to believe President Reagan knows dawn when he sees it, but maybe he heard a horn honking outside the White House and thought it was a rooster crowing. Maybe it isn't even night at all, but noon, and anyone who believes the recession is ending is out to lunch.

CVP stage 'Romantic Comedy'

Seven play dates begin Friday in Depot Theatre

The Clarkston Village Players open their 21st season Oct. 1 with "Romantic Comedy" by Bernard Slade, author of "Same Time Next Year."

Play dates are Oct. 1, 2, 7, 8, 9, 15 and 16 at Depot Theatre.

The light, sensitive comedy is the story of theatrical partners who become more than close friends despite certain setbacks resulting from their personality differences and their spouses.

Appearing in the lead roles are Norman E. Davis as Jason Carmichael and Suellen Fausel as Phoebe Craddock.

Cheri Broome's role is Kate Mallory, an actress in one of their plays. An uncomfortable situation arises involving her and changes the direction of the story to impending disaster.

As in most romantic comedies, however, things can change again for the better and many will be pleased with the delightful ending.

Other players cast in the production are Judy Rood, Lee Ann Woolcox and Denny LaLone. Larry McGee is the director and Chuck Haskins the producer.

Curtain time for all productions is 8:30 p.m. Tickets are $4. They may be purchased at Tierra Arts & Design, 20 S. Main, Clarkston, or they may be reserved by calling Marlene Sewick at 363-0188.

The theater is located at 4861 White Lake Rd., Independence Township.

CHS cagers pound Mott, 59-35

By Greg Nelson

They're no longer unbeaten, but the Clarkston High School women's varsity basketball team is still rolling along.

The Wolves beat Waterford Mott, 59-35, Thursday night to raise their record to 5-1 after losing to Waterford Township, 45-41, on Sept. 21.

The outcome against Mott was never in question as CHS used a full-court, pressing defense to open up a big first-half lead. That allowed CHS Coach Dave McDonald to substitute freely the rest of the game.

"It was a fun game, everyone got to play," said McDonald.

We played a little cleaner tonight, not so many turnovers and fouls," he added.

The key to the early lead for Clarkston was the Wolves' pressing defense and McDonald had high praise for the girl's aggressiveness. It was the first time Clarkston had used the press this season.

"We've been working on the press during practice. It looked very good tonight," said McDonald.

Point guard Lori Martin led the Wolves with 16 points, mostly on long jumpers and free throws.

Annette Ulasich scored 11 points while Sue Ketvirtis had 10 points and 14 rebounds. Lin Klinger and Julie Beamer combined for 18 rebounds.

Clarkston led, 10-6, after one quarter of action but the Wolves scored eight unanswered points to start the second quarter and the rout was on. CHS added to the lead the remainder of the half and led, 33-15, at the intermission.

McDonald had his troops end the full-court pressure in the second half and Mott took advantage of this to narrow the deficit to a more respectable margin.

"We took the press off and we were dead," explained McDonald.

Mott trailed by 13 points, 35-22, with 6:01 to play in the third quarter. But that was as close as the Wolves would allow them to get before Clarkston pulled away again and coasted to victory.

Clarkston plays at home Thursday night with a game against Rochester.

Annette Ulasich (13) of Clarkston hits a short jumper in the Wolves' win over Waterford Mott.

Sandy Sausser (30) of Mott and Sue Ketvirtis (21) of Clarkston look for a rebound.

CHS netters undefeated

A pair of convincing victories over Romeo and Brandon last week kept the CHS women's varsity tennis team undefeated with a 3-0 record.

Clarkston claimed an 8-0 shutout victory against Romeo and then topped Brandon on Thursday, 6-1, to keep its record unblemished. The Wolves were rained out of their match against Rochester. It is to be made up on Oct. 4.

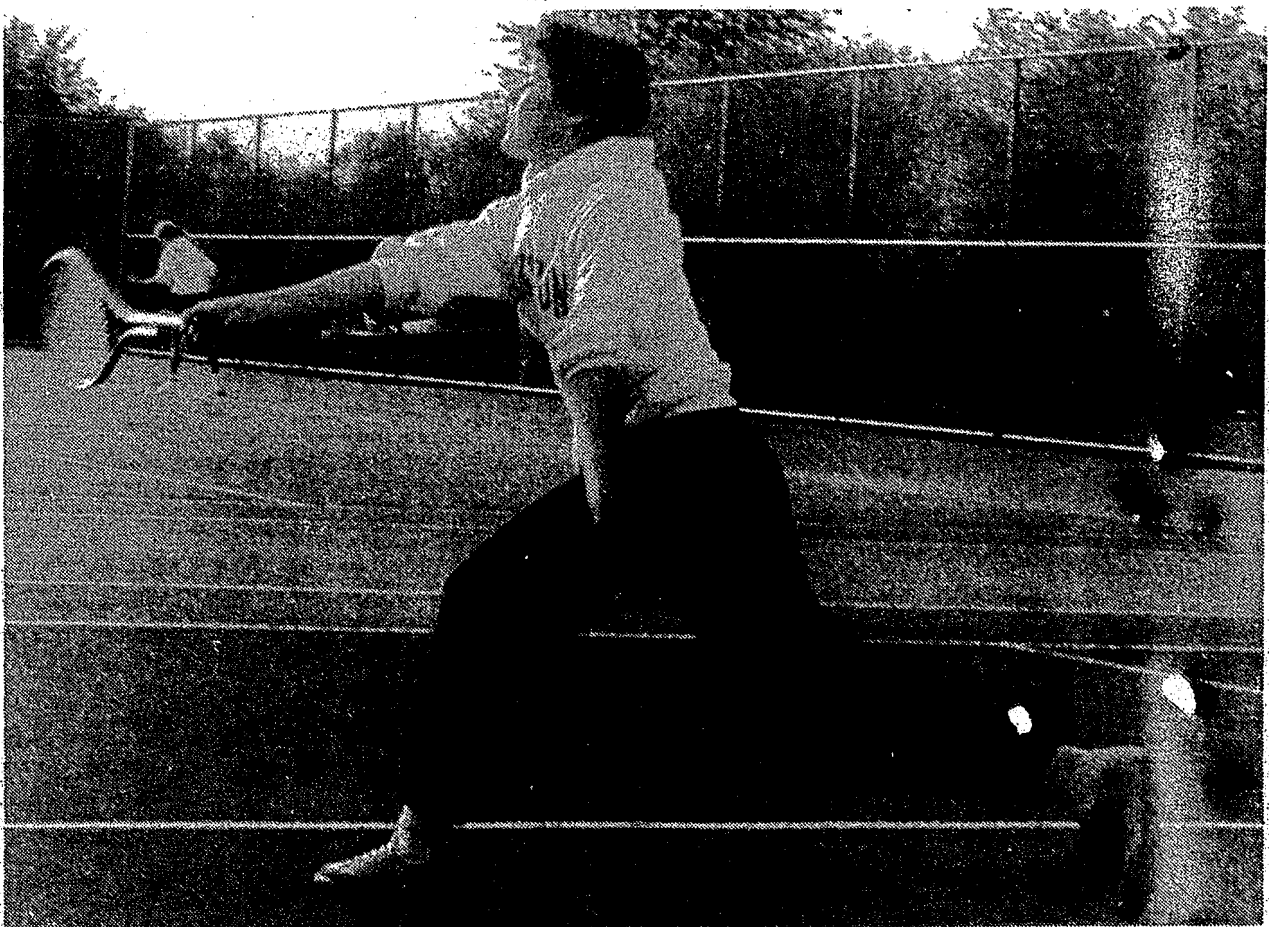

"This is the best team I've seen at Clarkston," said CHS Coach Becky Craig.

We haven't had much competition yet. Rochester would have been a good test. But the girls are playing a lot better than they did in the first match," she added.

Against Brandon, Clarkston got singles victories from Mary Smith, 6-0, 6-0; Kelly Craig, 6-0, 6-0; and Shellie VanKeuren, 6-1, 6-0.

In doubles play, Jenny Kithil and Sam Mallett combined for a 6-2, 6-1 victory while Audrey Campe and Tonya Cook won 6-1, 6-3. In the other doubles match, Krista Pilditch and Kristin Tiahrt claimed a 6-2, 6-3 victory.

The Wolves swept every match against Romeo. Smith, Craig, VanKeuren and Anja Holler won singles matches while Kithil-Mallett, Walker-Campe, Pilditch-Tiahrt and Tonya Cook-Lynn House all combined for doubles wins.

Jenny Kithil of Clarkston goes all out in returning this shot in a CHS varsity tennis match Thursday. Kithil combined with Sam Mallett for a 6-2, 6-1 doubles team victory over Brandon. The Wolves also won the match 6-1 to improve their record to 3-0 this season.

Golfers win

A lack of experience and losses in the first two matches this season hasn't fazed the members of the Clarkston High School varsity golf team.

Since dropping matches against Waterford Kettering and Township, the Wolves have reeled off four consecutive victories including a 165-169 upset of Rochester Thursday.

"The players have to set their own goals. They have that youthful exuberance to try to make par when they should make bogey," CHS Coach Jim Chamberlain said earlier this season.

And so far that exuberance has paid off for the Wolves. Thursday's win gave CHS a 4-2 record overall and the loss for Rochester was its first in league play.

Rick Wiley was the medalist against Rochester, carding a 40 at the Spring Lake Country Club course. Rick Lay, Dave Huttenlocher and John Klockow also turned in strong performances for Clarkston.

"We have no clearly defined No. 1 and 2 men," said Chamberlain of his squad which includes two sophomores and no juniors.

Five different players have earned medalist honors in a match this season.

Huttenlocher, Ken Sussex and sophomore, Chris Hunter tied for medalist honors at Oxford while Klockow took the honors against Milford. Mike Suran led the Wolves in their win over Waterford Mott.

Chamberlain has been pleasantly surprised with the play of his sophomores, Hunter and Lay.

"I knew they had the ability but I can't believe they've come along as fast as they have," said Chamberlain.

JVs win sixth

Six straight victories and still counting. That's the story of the Clarkston High School women's junior varsity basketball team this season.

The Wolves extended their unbeaten streak to six games Thursday with a 43-32 win over Waterford Mott.

Clarkston relies on an aggressive defense and a fast-breaking offense and both were clicking against Mott.

"They're really aggressive. Most teams don't have girls as aggressive as the ones here," said CHS Coach Larry Sherrill.

The Wolves' hustling defense forced numerous Mott turnovers as CHS jumped out to a 28-11 halftime lead and Clarkston was never seriously threatened in the game.

Kim Ottman scored 10 points for Clarkston while Bridget Kilcline and Denise Giroux had nine apiece. Kilcline added eight rebounds.

Defense keys Wolves, 13-0

Defense was the name of the game for the Clarkston High School varsity football team Friday night as the Wolves beat Waterford Township, 13-0, in a Greater Oakland Activities League game.

The road win moved Clarkston's record to 2-1 overall and 1-0 in the GOAL. Township dropped to 0-3 with the loss.

"We feel we're getting better. Our team defense did a good job. We've gotten tougher and tougher in holding teams down," said CHS Head Coach Walt Wyniemo.

Clarkston's defense was tough all night, yielding only 71 yards rushing and 28 yards passing in handing the Skippers their third straight shutout loss of the season.

The Clarkston offense picked up 188 yards rushing and quarterback Craig Kulaszewski completed seven of 16 passes for 77 yards.

But again penalties proved costly to the Wolves in spoiling scoring drives as Clarkston committed seven infractions for 45 yards.

"Mental errors cost us a little bit. We're still a young football team. But we regrouped and were better offensively in the second half," said Wyniemo.

The game was scoreless until late in the first half when a Skipper fumble cost Township possession of the ball at its own 43-yard line.

Rob Mortimore, who picked up 65 yards rushing in the game, capped the Wolves' short touchdown drive by scoring from one yard out to give Clarkston the only points it would need.

A pass for the two-point conversion failed and Clarkston led, 6-0, with only 15 seconds to play before halftime.

The Wolves added an insurance touchdown with just 12 seconds left in the game as Mortimore scored on an 18-yard run. Willie Williams kicked the extra point to close out the scoring.

Runners win

Inexperience is a key word for the CHS men's and women's cross country teams this season.

Despite an abundance of first-year runners, both teams have fared well thus far. The teams ran two dual meets last week with the women picking up two victories and the men posting one.

The men beat Pontiac Northern, 27-30, in the first conference meet Sept. 16. The women also won, routing Northern by taking eight of the first nine spots in the race.

Scott Banks finished second for the Wolves in a time of 17:33. Paul Burch led most of the race, but a wrong turn at the three-mile mark dropped him to third place.

Guy Chandler was fifth for CHS while Jeff Richardson and Al Wall were eighth and ninth, respectively.

The girls were led by Pam Stoecklin in a time of 21:16. Kris Baert was right behind in 21:21 as both girls broke the Northern course record established in 1977.

Monte LaPorte, Amy Stark, Trisha Johnson, Caroline Wamphler and Traci Sherman also finished high for Clarkston.

The women beat Royal Oak Dondero Sept. 14, as Stoecklin and Baert finished 1-2 with times of 21:28 and 21:31.

Oh, to be a cop for one day!

By the Editors of Popular Mechanics Magazine

Take a drive down any Interstate in the country and you'll see the usual shenanigans: people backing up for missed exits; people coming to a full stop in the acceleration lane, then pulling out into the path of oncoming traffic at a 45 degree angle; people pulling homemade trailers that handle about as well as a paper cup in a typhoon.

Naturally, the only troopers you see are manning their radar units, ready to give tickets to vacationers,

'Here are the folks
we would bust. See if you agree.'

businessmen, truckers and other law-abiding citizens who are driving attentively, but slightly over the speed limit. It might lead you to wonder: If I were a traffic cop for a day, who'd get the tickets and who'd get off?

It's a fact of life that a police officer cannot ticket every law breaker he sees—if he did, he'd never get more than a half mile from the station house!

So he must pick and choose from a garden blooming with violations, ticketing those that are especially dangerous, or are easy to make stick in court, or are his pet peeves, or—in many cases—are the target of a special campaign against speeding.

Here are the folks we would bust. See if you agree.

THINGS WE'D GIVE TICKETS FOR:

Failure to dim bright lights—Hey! Give us a break. This guy drives us nuts! It's usually a suburban cowboy in a pickup and he's running with enough auxiliary halogens to light up Chicago.

Not only does he want to see the road, but every blade of grass on the shoulder as well. In the process, he gives everybody in front of him severe radiation burn.

These superbright lights have their purpose. But they're not for a detailed examination of your retinas. We'd write him up in a second. It's not only a nuisance, but a serious menace on the road.

Driving with snow on the car—Do you know anybody who's guilty of this? You usually see this squid early in the morning. He looks like he just drove through a snowbank. He's cleared a tiny section of the windshield and let the rest of the snow cling to the car.

The idea here is that he'll let the wind blow the car clean, not realizing that there are icy chunks along with that fluffy white stuff blowing away behind him. And, the icy stuff decides to fly off just when he cuts you off. And, he doesn't even know he's cut you off because of all the now on the windows.

Nice guy. See you in traffic court, buddy. You're dangerous!

Driving without lights after dusk—This is one which an I.Q. test, given along with the eyesight test down at the Motor Vehicle Bureau, might solve. If it's too dark to read the instruments, you'd think a person would be able to figure out that it was time to turn on the lights.

Operating an unsafe vehicle—This includes all the rambling wrecks with bald, underinflated tires, wobbly wheels, nonexistent brakes, dragging exhaust, missing or badly aimed headlights, and so on.

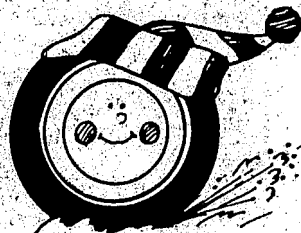

Backing up on expressways—These people have

Stop icy skids

Fret no more over running out of salt or sand to take care of spinning wheels on ice and snow.

Large bags of clay filler cat litter may be your answer. Just pop one or two in the trunk to add weight so your car will handle better on slick streets.

If your car gets stuck because the tires won't take hold, the cat litter is just the thing to toss under the wheels to absorb moisture and provide better traction.

Also, a partially covered container filled with the cat litter under the seat of the car will keep it smelling clean and fresh.

There's one more bonus—the cat litter can be used to clean up grease and oil spots in the basement, garage and driveway. Spread it a quarter-inch deep on new spots. For older stains, treat the spot first with a solvent, then rub in a little cat litter and sweep it up and save it—you can use it until it's saturated.

How to get more for used cars

Take care of your investment

Are you looking to trade-in "Old Betsy" and buy a brand new automobile? If so, there's plenty you can do to get top trade-in value for your used car.

The most important things cost little or no money. But these simple ideas can mean the difference in hundreds of dollars when your car is appraised.

"Every car that starts, shifts and stops has a value," said Kevin Yzquierdo of Hahn Chrysler-Plymouth.

If you spend $15 to make a car look good, it could be worth an extra couple hundred dollars," he said.

When your car is appraised, it is done in a matter of minutes. So, its general appearance can have a tremendous psychological effect.

"The outside appearance is number one," said Scott Dreisbach of Dreisbach & Sons Buick Inc.

Dreisbach looks for clean, shiny paint; a good, well-kept interior; and a clean trunk, among other things.

"A car that is dirty so that I can't see the paint underneath usually means the paint is chipped or the car hasn't been well taken care of. That may mean I'll subtract maybe $100 off of the car's value. We have to assume the worst on a lot of things," said Yzquierdo.

Other things to give a better impression of your car include clean the windows, change the oil, leave some gas in the car and give it a tune-up.

You want to make sure your car gives the impression you are trying to sell it.

But there is more to your car's value than its appearance. Another important factor in determining a car's worth is mileage.

"You can repair the body work and the interior but there's nothing you can do about miles," said Randy Hosler of Hosler Pontiac.

A well-kept 1980 auto should have about 30,000 miles. So if a 1980 car has 60,000 miles on it, I may subtract $1,000 from its value," said Hosler.

A car's trade-in value also depends on how much has to be done before it can be sold again, said Al Aznavorian of Arrants Ford.

'A dirty car can mean
$100 off its resale value'

"People are driving their cars longer these days," he said.

Because of that, it's important to take good care of your car and its parts while you are driving it.

As Hosler said, it costs less money to take care of your car than it does to ignore its needs.

The cost of correcting any problems before a car can be resold will be taken off the trade-in value, not charged to the next buyer.

Some simple things you can do to maintain your car include changing the oil regularly and keeping tires balanced and rotated to reduce tire wear. Tune-ups and regular checks of the brakes and steering system are also a good idea.

Appraisers have a number of "little things" they look for when determining a car's worth. One thing that tells a lot about a car but doesn't seem like much is a trailer hitch.

"You may want to take a trailer hitch off your car before you bring it in," said Dreisbach. A car that has pulled a trailer generally has a weaker transmission."

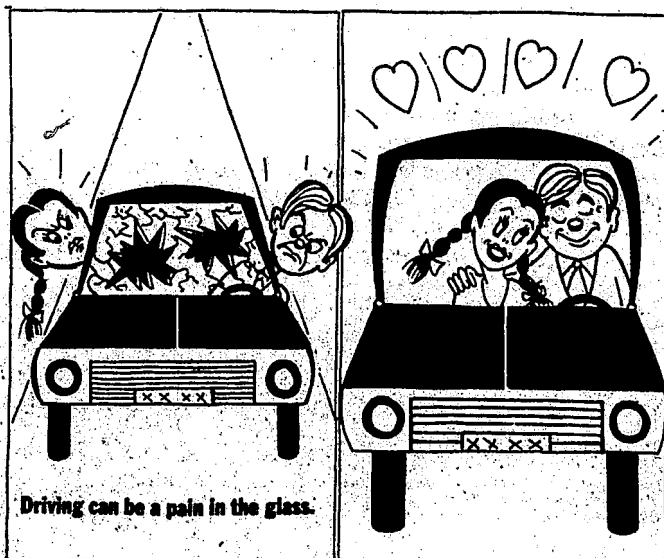

A sharp looking, well-running used car will put you a lot closer to owning that brand new car you are dreaming about. Take good care of your car now and the trade-in value you get in the future will be well worth the effort.

Oh, to be a traffic officer for one grand day!

got to be out to lunch. How can anybody be so ignorant as to risk a massive pile-up by backing up to a missed exit? This should be a capital offense. It often is for the other guy.

Opening doors into traffic—Another suicide mission that can involve innocent passersby.

How to keep wipers ice-free

Wiper blades may become clogged with ice in snow and freezing rain.

The best way to clean the blades is to lift the wiper arm several inches off the windshield and let it snap back against the glass.

Do this several times to fully clear the blade.

If your blades fall into a recess below the windshield, clear all snow out from that area.

Spraying a de-icer along the length of the blade may keep the ice from accumulating.

Take salt off

It's a good idea to rinse under the fenders, behind bumpers and generally underneath your car after driving on roads that were salted during a snowstorm.

The salt can eat through the car's metal and destroy the vehicle. The salt has an even quicker damaging effect on those areas with any nicks or dents.

Driving too fast for conditions—Even Mario Andretti has to slow down for rain, snow, fog and ice. So why not everyone else?

Kids standing up in a car—This one is very dangerous, and the cops don't even bother with it. We've seen cars loaded to the roof with a half dozen kids pass by a police car, and the cop doesn't even give them a second glance. It's an accident waiting to happen.

We'd have no qualms about giving this offender a very stiff fine and putting points on the license, too.

Driving too slow for conditions—This just makes other drivers nuts and causes them to do crazy things. You're always safer when you go with the flow, neither too fast nor too slow for driving conditions.

Driving under the influence—The local police or the highway patrol—even the CHiPs—can't spot every driver whose erratic lane changing, speeding up and slowing down indicate that they are driving under the influence of alcohol or drugs.

The wisest course of action is to pull off the road at the first opportunity and call the local police emergency number. Give the description, license number, location and direction the car is traveling.

Way(s) to save money

1. Deal only with firms whose dependability can be established by intelligent inquiry.
2. Be sure the sales man represents the company he claims to represent.
3. Don't sign papers before you understand the terms and conditions of the sale.
4. Before you sign, be sure the name and address of the firm is printed on the contract.
5. If premises are made verbally, be sure that they are represented in substance in the contract.
6. Retain a copy of the contract.

Forty-year-old Joseph Locricchio, co-owner of Pine Knob, stands on the controversial cement road built into the slope of the ski hill and surveys his complex. In an exclusive interview with The Clarkston News, Locricchio told his story and talked about strangling government intervention and its effects on his development and on his will to survive.

Ringside with Joseph Locricchio

Pine Knob development is worth fighting for, says local entrepreneur

Rising up, straight to the top/Got the guts, got the glory/Went the distance now I'm back on my feet/Just a man and his will to survive.

—Survivor/Theme song from Rocky III

By Marilyn Trumper

The modern day verse of a victorious prize fighter who rallies from beating after beating sums up the image of the man Joseph Locricchio.

The 40-year-old entrepreneur of Sicilian heritage worked his way up the Horatio Alger ropes from pushing wheelbarrows to developing, building then commanding the kingdom of Pine Knob—the only development of its kind in the world. And he won't—or can't—let anyone forget it.

Abruptly, the small and powerfully built Locricchio, a free spirit, says, "No man could run me."

And neither, it appears, can government.

After 12 years at the helm of Pine Knob, Locricchio has set his sails to windward. Despite attempts from government to issue stop-work-orders, enact carefully aimed zoning restrictions and threats of lawsuits, he'll not drop the sails without a battle.

Government involvement from the state, county and local municipality have frustrated the builder beyond anger.

Battles in the courtroom have become a way of life, be it the quest for a hotel, to erect a ski ramp or depose zoning board members.

He seeks to end the government's dabbling in private enterprise: the county with its golf courses, state funded music theaters and arenas and the state highway construction that creates five-mile traffic jams that hinder his business.

"I have learned that the courts are the equalizer of this community," he said. "All I ask is that I be judged by the unbiased and unselfish men who would judge me and my development on the basis of how it affects the health, safety and welfare, how it will benefit the community and make their decisions accordingly."

"The powers that be, the city fathers, don't have the betterment of the community at heart. Have I ever done anything here the community couldn't be proud of? No," Locricchio said.

Sitting in the afternoon quiet of the Hamburger Mansion before a pot of hot coffee, the veteran fighter continues.

"When I started here I had 60 employees. Now I have 670. I've probably hired every young person in the community who's asked for a job."

"When the youth of Clarkston grow up I will have a rapport with the community, and the onslaught of jealous, vindictive people will be over with. Men will say I worked for Joe Locricchio. I know Joe Locricchio. I know how he works. I know he does what he says he'll do. And I know what Pine Knob is all about."

"Then the street rumors will fade and the people will realize that this is one of the greatest developments in the country."

The latest rift between local government and Pine Knob officials erupted when the township pressed to monitor a 2.5-cement road network, 24-feet wide, designed to end hill erosion and connect the ski lodge with the music theater, golf course, and the restaurants, La Veranda and the Hamburger Mansion.

Locricchio said the road will end unsightly erosion and he points to green grass seedlings growing on the northwest slope.

"For the first time in Pine Knob history grass is growing on this slope. Soon the hill will all be green. This is not a race track," Locricchio said, dismissing rumors the road will be used for grand prix exhibitions. "I will hold foot races, and bicycle races and a car race maybe once a year. I don't know yet what kind."

"I will have shuttle buses to take people from one place to the other. The public will not drive on this road."

Locricchio stands atop the hill's peak now spiraled with the bleached white road, and looks down on his 400-acre kingdom.

"You can see for 60 miles up here. Thirty miles in that direction and 30 miles in that direction," he said, pointing to the north and south.

With its steep grade the road serves as an "open storm sewer," funneling the runoff down the cement instead of down the dirt hill, and into three stepped leaching ponds, he said.

"The road's going to be lined with old world stone and lamps. It will look like a magic kingdom," he said.

The township's push to monitor construction without given authority angered the developer, who said the earth moving was designed to end spring washouts that annually cost him $75,000 to repair the silt-clogged Sashabaw Creek, Pine Knob Road and the pumphouses.

Clarkston News

SECTION TWO

The Clarkston (Mich.) News Wed., Sept. 29, 1982 21

"I investigated how to hold the hill. Sheet piling was one way to stabilize it, but it cost more to do that. And that was by no means beautiful. I did (the network) for my own benefit. To maintain my own property."

"Did I hurt anybody? No. It has beautified the blight. It is an exceptional piece of work."

In two years the plan for Pine Knob will be basically structured, according to Locricchio.

Fervor against the proposed 20-story, ski-run-roof hotel, cut Locricchio deeply.

He lost backers and buyers.

The bottom of the economy fell out and attacks continued at the local level.

"I thought about selling this place to the county and getting out of it. I asked myself, 'Joe, what are you doing this to yourself for. Is it worth it?' Then I decided it was."

"I am afraid. But my desire to maintain my rights overcomes my fears. My desire to do what my grandfather did...to do what men who built this country did."

Locricchio asks a waitress to hunt down a cigarette, admits he's stopped smoking but still wants one or two a day, and continues.

While in the courts he fights for the right to build the radical ski-run-roof hotel, last year Locricchio informally introduced plans to build a five-story French provincial hotel with rich, decorative facade, and targeted its development for the eastern slope of Pine Knob, up the hill from a proposed apartment complex site.

Reid Southby: Super downhill skier at age 3

Three-year-old Reid Southby awaits the year's first snowfall so he can get back on the ski slopes. Reid was recently ranked among the Top 25 skiers nationally in the 4-and-under age category by Ski Magazine.

By Greg Nelson

Many skiers train a lifetime to become the very best. But Reid Southby, 3, is already making a name for himself.

Reid was recently ranked among the top 25 skiers nationally in the 4-and-under age group by Ski Magazine.

The rankings included more than 100,000 skiers in all age groups that competed in at least two Pepsi Challenge Junior NASTAR races.

The son of Linda and Dick Southby Michigamme Road, Independence Township, Reid has been skiing on his own since he was 2 years old. Prior to that, Reid went down the hills in a backpack carried by his father.

The Southby family is filled with ski enthusiasts and Reid learned to ski at Pine Knob. Skiing several times a week, he quickly mastered the hills and he isn't fazed by any mountain.

"I don't get scared. When you fall down it's like you're in the air. It's so soft," said Reid. "I love to go down so I can eat the snow."

Southby entered his first NASTAR race on a family trip to Colorado last March. He raced at both Keystone and Copper Mountain while out West and earned his ranking through his performance in those races.

CHS seniors place high in contest

Clarkston High School seniors Carolin Chenoweth and Sandra Rice placed among the top 5 percent of the participants in the nationwide competition sponsored by National Merit Scholarship Corp.

Clarkston High School announced the honor last week.

Letters of Commendation from the National Merit Scholarship Program will be presented to the two girls, who ranked among the top 50,000 performers in the competition that included over 1 million participants.

"We sincerely hope that the academically able young men and women who are commended in the Merit Program will diligently pursue their higher education opportunities and career goals. The nation will benefit by the full development of their talents," said a National Merit Program spokesperson.

The students entered the competition by taking a qualifying test in 1981.

Blagg's semifinalist in competition

Clarkston High School senior Jeff Blagg has been named a semifinalist in the National Merit Scholarship competition.

About 15,000 semifinalists in competition for some 5,000 Merit Scholarships were announced by the National Merit Scholarship Corp. The scholarships are to be awarded in the spring of 1983. The young men and women named represent the top half of 1 percent of each state's high school senior class.

Over one million students attending approximately 18,000 secondary schools in the United States entered the competition by taking the PSAT/NMSQT in 1981 when most of them were juniors.

Those designated as semifinalists received the highest scores in their respective states. Their names are being sent to colleges and universities to increase educational opportunities for the academically able young students.

PLENTY OF FREE PARKING

Joseph Locricchio talks about his Pine Knob

"Pine Knob is now coming to fruition. It has established itself as a landmark and needs the assets of a hotel to make it complete.

"After years of coming to fruition, I need to pick my cherry. I need that hotel now.

"(Opposition) aids and abets my character," he said. "I've gotten to the point where I know I can survive in spite of all this. They need me, people like myself, to say, 'I can be an entrepreneur, a private individual.'"

It is the threat of losing that American heritage, the right to be a magnate, the chance to try, that seems to frustrate Locricchio above anything else.

The day when local bankers wooed favor from businesses for the chance to be their lending institution is long gone.

It is this Locricchio mourns.

"There's a passive attitude about the loss of free enterprise today. We're isolated. The Horatio Algiers are gone. I made it in under the wire and my message to would-be entrepreneurs is this: 'Fight government officials who try to take your livelihood away. People don't need protection to the point of being choked.'"

Locricchio criticizes the county for being in the golf course business, and the state for being in the concert business with Meadow Brook Music Theatre, Joe Louis Arena and Cobo Hall.

"They're using my taxes to compete against me and I can't win. They have endless pockets. They don't have to be good entrepreneurs. They can always loose money because they never run out."

He's critical of the state's summer construction at Joslyn Road and I-75, the on-off ramp for the new GM complex.

"Why didn't they build me an on-off ramp? I had to pay for my own. Not only that but the construction has hurt me. No one wants to wait in a five-mile traffic jam to come up here from Detroit and have dinner or see a show. It really hurt my business."

Locricchio's two recent victories in the higher courts that allow him to question members of the zoning board on their review and denial of the proposed ski-run-roof hotel, and the other which allows him to apply for a building permit to erect a free-standing ski ramp, bring him closer each day to a solid victory over the township.

"Right now I envision building the (French provincial) hotel," he said. "But I want the right to build the other.

"Today looks better than a year ago. I have a positive attitude about what's going to happen.

"No matter how bad the economy, Pine Knob always seems to hang on."

Back to farm for harvest fest

If your children are beginning to think vegetables grow in stores, or you miss the smell of freshly turned soil, the Fall Harvest Festival and Old-Time Ploughing Demonstration is for you.

Admission is free to the event planned Saturday, Oct. 9, at the Vergin Farm, 12561 Scott Lake Rd., behind Springfield Oaks County Park in Springfield Township.

In addition to the ploughing of 10 acres and other farm demonstrations like grinding and threshing wheat, participants can purchase pancakes to eat or dine from a lunch menu.

The pancake sales begin at 9 a.m. and the festival and ploughing demonstrations run from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The event is sponsored by the Davisburg Boy Scout Troop, a local food Co-op and the Oakland Antique Engine and Tractor Club.

Radiology clinic opens in Professional Plaza

When Lawrence Wayburn, M.D., takes visitors on a walk through his new radiology clinic, his pride shows.

"I'm relieved and excited," he says about his newly opened North Oakland Radiology clinic inside the Clarkston Professional Plaza, 5825 M-15, Independence Township.

"I'm on my own. Everything fell into place without any holdup—the equipment came in on time, the suite was ready on time, and the doctors in the area are very supportive about us coming out here."

Decked out in soothing tones of beige and brown with natural wood and green plants, the clinic's atmosphere of comfort is set. Wayburn, a radiologist,

Screens for X-ray viewing are located in the office of Dr. Lawrence Rayburn's newly opened radiology clinic in the Clarkston Professional Plaza on M-15.

Doing business

drew the primary design for the offices before working with architects, and he and his wife Andrea put together the contemporary decor.

Atmosphere aside, the real work of the clinic is found inside four separate rooms.

One holds a diagnostic tool called Ultrasound, a means viewing structures with soundwaves and without radiation. It works with something called "real time" which means the screen watched by the person monitoring the test allows a look at blood vessels actually pulsating.

Another room holds CAT scan (computerized axial tomography) equipment. The machine is used as a diagnostic tool for tumors, strokes and heart trauma. "There is radiation involved, but there's very little," said Wayburn, offering the example of a brain scan that would result in no more radiation than one regular skull X-ray.

The GI or gastrointestinal room is for looking at problems involving the upper or lower digestive tracts.

A fourth room contains Radiographic-Tomogram equipment. Similar to a CAT scan, the equipment allows a look at specific internal portions of the body, in layers, so that one organ doesn't block the viewing of another.

Practically all patients at the radiology clinic are referred there by their doctors, Wayburn said, noting that the closest similar facility is about 15 miles away and people might have to wait hours for tests and then wait for their doctors to receive results.

That won't be the case in his clinic, he said.

"By my being here all the time, as soon as the film's ready, I will look at them and give the doctor a call immediately," he said. "(Patients) will get quality X-ray services and it will be convenient for them, and they won't mind coming back here if they have to for something else."

Wayburn graduated from Wayne State University, Detroit, Medical School in 1976. He served his radiology residency at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, Pontiac, from 1976 until 1979, and stayed there until 1980 with a fellowship in CAT scan procedures. In 1980 he joined a radiology group practice and joined the St. Joseph Mercy staff.

His staff of six at the new clinic are people he worked with in other places. "They all have a general concern for the patient. They do things properly and get them out as quickly and efficiently as possible," Wayburn said.

The Wayburns and their three children, 6-year-old Binay, 3-year-old Brent and 2-year-old Kimberly presently live in Oak Park.

"As soon as possible, we'll probably move out to Clarkston," he said.

Date change for the annual Walk for SCAMP

There's been a change in the date for the annual Walk for SCAMP.

Those who hike three miles or 10 miles to benefit the five-week summer camp program for children who may have special needs can mark Sunday, Oct. 17, on their calendars.

Now in its eighth year, Walk for SCAMP is traditionally the largest money maker for the program that is paid for through fund raisers and private contributions.

"We've always had tremendous support in the past and this is going to make us or break us," said Pat Loveless, assistant director of the SCAMP program. "We are really hoping to raise $30,000 this year and we think we can do it."

The program, which served about 212 youngsters this summer, is expected to cost just under $60,000 in 1983. Last year, pledges for the Walk for SCAMP totaled about $20,000.

The walkers gather promises from their families, friends and neighbors to pay an amount for each mile they walk.

For their efforts, the walkers are treated to a lunch of hot dogs and free soft drinks when they return to the Clarkston Village Park, and those who gather $100 or more in pledges receive a T-shirt. The pledge sheets will be distributed beginning

Oct. 1 at the Clarkston school district's elementary, junior and senior high schools.

SCAMP is also looking for organizations willing to gather a group to walk together.

Call 674-1344 for more information.

Wanted: Jr. Misses

High school senior girls may still join the Clarkston Junior Miss scholarship program.

Applications may be picked up at the Clarkston High School office through the week of Oct. 4, the final deadline.

Applicants need only be in their senior year in high school and live in the Clarkston school district; they need not attend CHS.

For more information, call Chairperson Barbara Hamaker at 625-4041.

It's time to reserve CHS Madrigals for events

Clarkston High School's 16-voice Madrigal Singers are ready to lend their voices to holiday cheer and now's the time to schedule their appearance.

"It's not too early to put in a reservation for the holiday season," said Grayce Warren, CHS director of vocal music. "If they wait until November or December, they can't get us."

The singers appear in floor-length rose-colored gowns and gray slacks, black jackets and ruffled shirts. They offer a variety of music. Performances must be at least 20 minutes long and the group accepts a donation to help cover expenses, Warren said.

In the past, the CHS Madrigal Singers have performed at club meetings; in malls including Somerset, Winchester and Meadowbrook; at rest homes; and at private parties. They have also sung the national anthem at Tiger Stadium and performed at Gov. William Milliken's inauguration.

"The object of Madrigal Singers is performing," Warren said.

In addition to the singers, a piano accompanist is provided. They can also sing without a piano, and smaller groups are available.

For more information or to schedule a performance, call Warren at CHS at 625-0900.

Colombiere adds two to retreat team

Shannon Barnes and Sister Peggy Schmidt have joined the programming and retreat team at Colombiere Center in Springfield Township.

Barnes was appointed coordinator of the team, said the Rev. John Dister, director of Colombiere Center.

A single parent, Barnes is the mother of five children. The former coordinator of Spiritual Direction and Liturgy for the Focus on Leadership Program and the Denver Archdiocesan Spiritual Direction Program, she has a master's degree in Liturgy from St. Thomas Seminary, Denver.

Sister Schmidt recently participated in the Spiritual Integration Program in Toronto, Canada.

She has a master's degree in religious education from The Catholic University of America, Washington, D.C.

The women, working with the Rev. Joseph Sommer and the Rev. Salvino Briffa, plan to offer a number of programs which will enhance the on-going development of lay spirituality.

Big Rock Point Nuclear Plant "A good friend and neighbor"

Since the years when Indians inhabited the wilds of northern Michigan the Big Rock—they called it Kitchi-ossining—has been an important landmark.

Then, it was the gathering place for spring and fall meetings of Chippewa Indians from all over northern Michigan. Several hundred years later, near the rock—Kitchi-ossining is still there—sits the electric generating plant that pioneered Michigan's nuclear era.

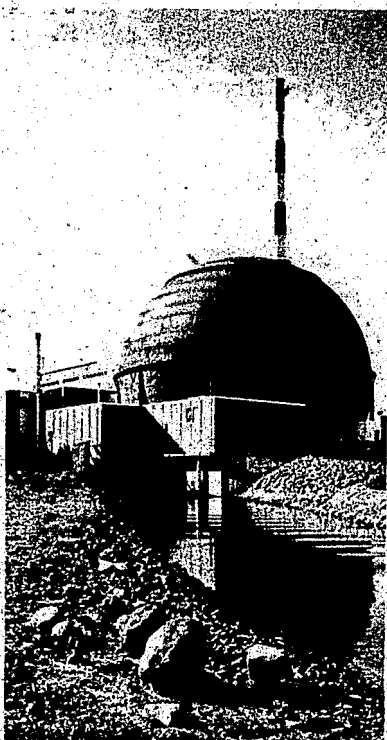

Big Rock Point Nuclear Plant, owned and operated by Consumers Power Company, is celebrating its 20th anniversary this month.

Built on the threshold of a new technology, Big Rock Point was Michigan's first, and the nation's fifth, commercial nuclear power plant. Construction started in 1960, and finished 2½ years later at a cost of nearly $27 million—a bargain by today's standards for any type of generating plant.

In the 20 years that have followed, scientists have watched the nuclear plant with interest. So, too, have the local residents in nearby Charlevoix and Petoskey, many of whom call it a "good friend and neighbor." The plant generates enough electricity to serve 100,000 people annually.

"We like Big Rock," says Josh Barnes, president of Lexalite Corporation, which is located 1,200 yards from the nuclear plant. "If Big Rock were not to operate, we would not be competitive in our marketplace."

The plant has become valuable to local residents in other ways, too. It provides a big boost to the local economy—at least $5 million in 1981 alone through things like payroll, purchases, taxes and lodging. The plant employs about 160 people; many of them are involved in area religious, civic and governmental activities.

The plant also has been important scientifically. As only the nation's fifth commercial nuclear plant, its operations have been studied closely. In fact, Consumers Power, General Electric and the former Atomic Energy Commission conducted a research and development program at the plant. The successful program was designed to achieve increased fuel economy and greater electric generating capacity from nuclear power.

In 1977, the nuclear plant set a world record for boiling water reactors by operating 343 consecutive days. Last year, the plant fell five days short of breaking its own record. It generated electricity 91 percent of the time in 1981.

Although 20 years old, Big Rock Point is only halfway through its design lifetime.

This advertisement is paid for by the shareholders of Consumers Power Company.

Lined up with victory signs, fists of victory and thumbs up are members of the Clarkston 15 and a smattering of independent runners. All are to take part in The Detroit Free Press International Marathon Sunday. From left are Herschel (Roy) Fry, Debbie Moran-Rohr, Jim Dieck, Dr. Frank Jones, Elaine Bass, Dick

Parker, Carole Dieck, Daniel Schulte, Dick Greenfield, Jill and Fred Jones and Pat Portenga.

Marathoners ready for the big run

By Marilyn Trumper

They are the mini-heroes of the day. Punishing body and mind to the limit and beyond, refusing to bend to blisters, chaffing, seized muscles and worn soles.

And this Sunday at 9 a.m. in a field of 5,000 runners, the "Clarkston 15" and a handful of area independents will run The Detroit Free Press International Marathon: 26 miles, 385 yards of gut-wrenching, mind-boggling, muscle-aching distance.

And they're running to finish.

Especially 40-year-old Dick Greenfield. An independent contractor who lives on Robertson Court, Clarkston.

Greenfield is a charter member of the Clarkston 15 whose numbers swelled by six from last year.

He plodded across the line last year after his "legs turned to stone" at the 17-mile mark.

"I'm going to finish strong. That's my goal," Greenfield predicts of his third Free Press marathon. Elaine Bass, 36, has been running for almost two years.

"I know I'll get there (to the finish line). It's the getting there that scares me," she said. "I know I'll cry when I do."

Bass, who lives on Perry Lake Road, Independence Township, calls herself the "caboose" of the Clarkston 15's practice runs.

"I take credit for that," she laughed. "Every week I'm the caboose, at the end of the line."

Next is Herschel (Roy) Fry, a four-time marathoner who's become blasé about it all.

"I'm not nervous anymore. I get excited, and get the butterflies, but that's all."

"As soon as the gun goes off I'll settle right down."

Fry, 49, lives on Paramus Road, Independence Township.

New members of the Clarkston 15 are Jim and Carole Dieck, 40, and 39, respectively.

"I enjoy the benefits of running, not necessarily the running," laughs Jim, a principal of William Austin Burt Elementary School in his home township of Waterford.

"My biggest fear is that something will happen to me before the race that won't allow me to run, especially after all those months of preparation."

This is the second marathon for 44-year-old Pat Portenga, another member of the Clarkston 15.

Dr. Frank Jones, 35, of Oak Hill, Independence Township, is another member of the famed Clarkston group.

'I know I'll get to the finish line. It's the getting there that scares me.' —Elaine Bass

He's responsible for setting out half-frozen jugs of water along the group's Allen Road run. Refreshment for the thirsty.

Debbie Moran-Rohr is the youngest of the group at 30.

The Waterford Township resident has run "seriously" for the past year.

"Getting ready for this marathon is like being at the end of your pregnancy," she laughed, biting her finger. "Now you have to go through labor."

"But when you're in labor," interjects Jim Dieck, "you can't always say I'm going to stop and walk."

Jill and Fred Jones, the second husband and wife running team, hail from Sunnysdale Road, Independence Township.

"I'm hoping I don't hit the wall like I did last year," said Fred, 43. "It was at the 20, or 22 mile mark. My legs turned to lead and I was running 11-minute miles."

"Jill's next to me bouncing up and down and I was in such pain. I started looking at her with hate in my eyes."

Jill says she's not up for her second marathon like she was the first.

"I don't feel as well trained. Last year I was really motivated. This year I'll be glad to get it over with."

Others in the Clarkston 15 include: Dick Portenga, husband of Pat; Don Johnston of Curtis Lane, Independence Township, who wants to thank his mother and father; John Schupe of Shoreline Drive, Independence Township; the husband and wife running team of Jane and Gordie Bovee Englewood Road, Springfield Township; Don Moore of Milford; Bruce Olson of Washington Street, Clarkston; Barney Pankner of Waterford Township and Dick Selvala of Rattalee Lake Road, Independence Township.

The independents include Daniel Schulte, 43, of Clarkston-Orion Road. This is his first marathon.

There's 37-year-old Dick Parker of Indianwood Road, Independence Township.

"I don't fear not being able to finish," he said.

Others are Paul Rasmussen of Rattalee Lake Road, Independence Township; Dr. Arnold Berman of Ellis Road, Springfield Township; and Lee Freel of Snowapple Road.

Carolyn Bielak, 31, of Parke Trail and David Gallo, 48, of Wellesley Terrace, both of Independence Township, are partners in this, their first marathon.

"When you make a commitment like this it has a large effect on your family," Carolyn said. "Their support is very important because the training is so time-consuming."

Gallo agreed.

"I didn't know if I could get ready to run 26 miles physically and psychologically," he said. "One day you've made the 18-mile-run limit and say, 'OK, today I run 18 miles.' And you do it. The next time it's 10 miles and you wonder how you ran the 18."

"It's interesting how you psyche yourself up."

This year's marathon will be televised on Channel 4 beginning at 8:30 a.m., with updates through noon.

The race begins in Windsor's Jackson's Park at 9 a.m., where runners will go through the downtown sector, through the tunnel under the Detroit River, through Greek Town, circle back to Kirby, west on Kercheval and Jefferson to the MacArthur Bridge with a finish at the Belle Isle Casino.

Watch for members of the Clarkston 15, clad in matching blue jerseys with their name and hometown, donated by Runnin' Gear of Waterford Township.

Cheer them on.

Call them by name.

Tell them they look good.

That, seasoned marathoners agree, is the fuel that feeds the fire.

They are the modern mini-heroes and for this day, this hour, each one that crosses the line is a victor.

Wedding traditions:

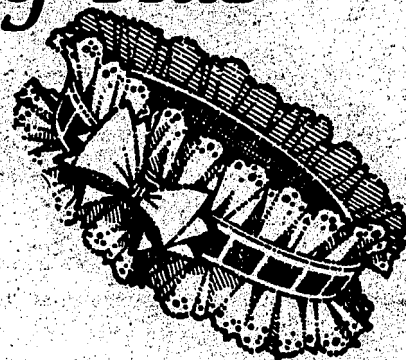

Some of their roots go back a long way

The bridal shower, rings, bouquet, something blue, the bride's veil, rice to toss, the toast to the bride and bridegroom, and old shoes tied to the car's bumper—all make up treasured parts of the traditional wedding.

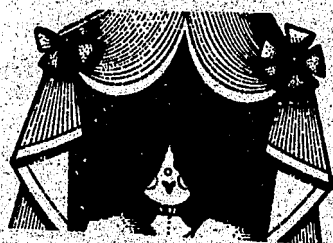

As with many traditions, these are rites one just does. But where did they come from? Here are the answers:

Something blue

The wearing of blue by modern brides comes from ancient Israel when brides of the times wore a blue ribbon to symbolize their fidelity. Today, that something blue is sometimes a garter.

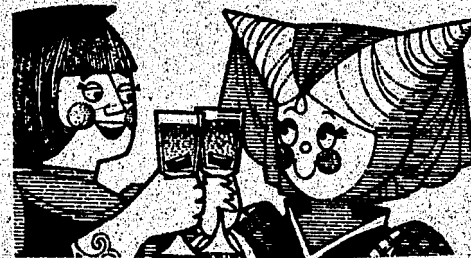

The bride's veil

The beautiful wedding veil worn by today's bride evolved from the days of old when the bride stood beneath a canopy to signify she would be forever under her groom's protection.

The wedding toast

This quaint tradition stems from the old French custom of placing bread in the bottom of the glass. The drink was then drained to get to the "toast." Legend has it that whoever finishes first, bride or bridegroom, will rule.

Wedding Bouquet

In olden days, wedding bouquets were made of strong herbs like thyme and garlic to frighten away evil spirits. Even the groom wore a few sprigs of the pungent stuff.

With this ring...

The symbol of eternal love originated in Egypt. Gold rings were used as currency. A groom showed he trusted his bride with his money by placing a ring on her third finger. It was believed love traveled from there to the heart.

The old shoes

Throwing old shoes after the bride meant transfer of authority from the bride's father to her new husband. This tradition has been kept alive by the tying of old shoes to the back of the newlyweds' car.

Tossing the rice

Believing newlyweds brought good luck, early people showered them with nuts and grain to ensure a bountiful harvest and many children to work the land. Now, the grain most commonly used is rice, although some churches ask that bird seed be used to make cleanup easy—no sweeping except by appreciative winged creatures.

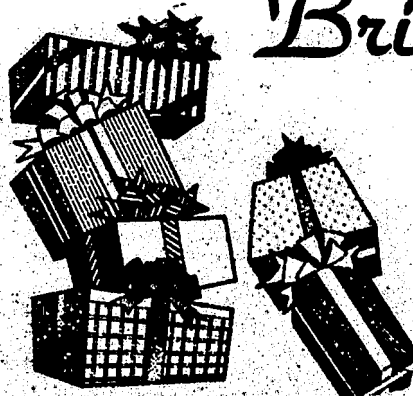

The wedding cake

Magnificent tiered creations come from the Elizabethan stack of cakes, over which newlyweds tried to kiss without toppling it. One day a baker iced a stack and the traditional wedding cake evolved.

Bridal shower

The tradition originated in the days when marriages were arranged. A poor Dutchman fell in love with a girl whose father refused her a dowry. So their friends showered her with enough gifts to start housekeeping.

1 MILE NORTH OF I-75

Weddings are milestones. Time, thought and much preparation go into them. Everyone's usually a little nervous.

And sometimes things unexpected occur.

Two local ministers, the Rev. James Balfour of Clarkston United Methodist Church and the Rev. Charles Cushing of St. Daniel Church, agreed to share some of the downright funny and frustrating things that happened during weddings they or people they know performed.

Balfour has conducted wedding ceremonies for about 37 years. He has been the minister at the Clarkston United Methodist Church nearly seven years.

Going way back, there was the time the wedding started without the bride or her attendants.

The church was arranged so that Balfour had to enter the church from a door on the side. He couldn't see if everyone was ready and instead had to rely on a musical cue.

"It came time for the wedding. The organist began to play the 'Wedding March.' I came in and the men came in. There were no women.

"It was a summer day. I looked outside. The women were just getting out of a car. They walked right up the steps into the church and down the aisle."

In that case, they didn't get to the church on time because of a flat tire.

Every large wedding party includes little ones as flower girls, ring bearers and sometimes junior bridesmaids.

"I find children do all sorts of interesting things," Balfour said, and his best story involves a little girl who just couldn't accept the tradition of flower petals cast all over the carpeting.

"She thought that didn't look right, so she went back and picked them all up and walked down the aisle, not dropping any petals."

Adults, too, run into problems.

There was the bridegroom who attended the rehearsal in great shape and then went out that night, jumped over a culvert and broke his leg.

"Here he came down the aisle in a wheelchair with his leg hanging straight out," Balfour said. "It was humorous, but tragic."

Nerves strike people of all shapes and sizes. Although fainting isn't all that common, Balfour will never forget the time a 6-foot-4 member of the wedding party crashed.

"We were continuing with the ceremony, not noticing at all, and all of a sudden, plunk. The ceremony went on and people came and carried him out."

Balfour will never forget one particularly busy afternoon in the first church where he served as a minister. He had three funerals and three weddings scheduled.

"I hadn't a chance to get a sip of water in between. I came to the last ceremony..."

It was nearly over, and Balfour was pronouncing the couple husband and wife. He said the traditional words that end the wedding rites.

"Those whom God has joined together let no man put asunder." He knew right away that instead of asunder, he had said, "Athunder! My tongue was so dry."

All was quiet in the church. Maybe, he thought, no one noticed.

"Boy did they laugh," he said. "They didn't laugh right away, but people at the reception said, 'Athunder, eh?'"

Cushing has been a priest 27 years. He has been at St. Daniel Church five years.

While most weddings proceed as planned, he said, there were a few over the years that had a things go awry.

He will always remember the bride who was late for her own wedding.

"The wedding was at 12. The bride came in at 12:05 with her

Two ministers recall memorable moments during wedding ceremonies wedding gown over one arm and her hair up in curlers. We didn't start the wedding until 12:30."

Members of the wedding party aren't the only ones who can make mistakes. One of Cushing's favorite stories involves a priest he knows who totally forgot he had a wedding to perform.

He had been out playing golf. When he returned and saw all the cars parked outside the church, he went inside, still carrying his golf clubs, to see what was going on.

"The people were waiting for a wedding. They'd been waiting for about one-half hour," Cushing said.

Once, Cushing remembers, the bridegroom was so nervous he forgot the name of the bride.

And one bride was so nervous she forgot heed Cushing's warnings to remember to let go of her father's arm and lift her long gown as she climbed some steps that led to the aisle.

"The bride fell flat on her face," he said.

Most ring bearers carry pillows without the real wedding rings. But, in one case, the couple insisted the real rings be used, and they were put firmly in place so they couldn't be lost.

"They couldn't get the rings off," Cushing said. "The best man and maid of honor lent them their rings."

Stories of wedding blunders aside, both ministers stress the importance of wedding vows, and turn to a more serious note.

"I consider weddings very important. I view them as a spiritual service," said Balfour. "I don't think of myself as marrying people—they make a commitment to God."

"My statement is, 'All weddings are beautiful,' said Cushing. "It's an important part of my work."

Who pays for what

There aren't absolute rules on who pays for what. Traditionally, wedding expenses have been borne primarily by the bride's family, with the groom responsible for the rings and honeymoon.

While tradition is still an honored part of our heritage, financial obligations must often give way to everyday realities and compromise. The following list indicates the traditional assumption of expenses.

However, the final arbiter of who pays for what in a wedding should rest upon those most willing and able to pay.

The Bride

1. Wedding ring for the groom (if it's a double ring ceremony).
2. A wedding gift for the groom.
3. Presents for the bridal attendants.
4. Personal stationery.
5. Accommodations for her out-of-town attendants.
6. Physical examination and blood test.

The Groom

1. The bride's rings.
2. Wedding gift for the bride.
3. The marriage license.
4. Gifts for best man and ushers.
5. Flowers: bride's bouquet and going-away corsage; corsages for mothers; boutonnieres for men in wedding party.
6. Accommodations for out-of-town ushers or best man.
7. His blood test.
8. Gloves, ties, or ascots for the men in the wedding party.
9. Fee for the clergyman.
10. The honeymoon.
11. Optional: Bachelor dinner.

The Bride's Family

1. The entire case of the reception: rental of hall, if reception is not held at home; caterer; food (including wedding cake); beverages; gratuities for bartenders, waiters; decorations; music; flowers.
2. A wedding gift for the newlyweds.
3. The bride's wedding attire and personal trousseau.
4. The wedding invitations, announcements, and mailing costs.
5. The fee for engagement and wedding photographs.
6. Ceremony: rental of sanctuary; fees for organist, soloist, or choir, and sexton (often included in charge for premises but if this is free, these people have set fees); aisle carpets and/or canopy; and any other additional costs for decorations.
7. Bridesmaid's bouquets.
8. Gratuities to policemen directing traffic and/or parking.
9. Transportation for bridal party from the bride's house to the wedding ceremony and from ceremony to the reception.
10. Bridesmaids' luncheon.
11. Optional: Rehearsal dinner.
12. Optional: Household furnishings for bride and groom from linens, china, silver flatware, and crystal to furniture.

The Groom's Family

1. Clothes for the wedding.
2. Any traveling expenses and hotel bills they incur.
3. Wedding gift for the bride and groom.
4. Optional: The rehearsal dinner or any other expenses they elect to assume.

The Attendants

1. Their wedding clothes.
2. Any traveling expenses they incur.
3. Wedding gift for the couple.

The Guests

1. Any traveling expenses and hotel bills for themselves.
2. Wedding gift for the couple.

Editor's note: At the time the wedding is being planned, both sets of parents—along with the engaged couple—may wish to meet to discuss the financial arrangements. It is wise for each party to make any financial limits absolutely clear—to prevent misunderstandings or hard feelings at a later date after definite plans have been made.

If the parents of the groom are financially willing and able, they may offer at any time to pay part, half, or all of the wedding expenses.

Two weddings in two months!

Frantic.
Hectic.
Busy.

For John and Margaret Priebe those three words describe the last few weeks of May and the first couple weeks in June when they married off a son and daughter.

"I'm just glad I don't have two daughters," said John over and over. "That was one heck of a four weeks."

The Priebe's daughter Sally married Scot Elliott May 15 at Clarkston United Methodist Church with a Sally Priebe and Scot Elliott were wed May 15 at Clarkston United Methodist Church.

Two hundred guests filled Springfield Oaks for the reception following the ceremony.

Scot is the son of Mrs. Vera Mae Elliot of Burgundy Road, Independence Township, and the late Charles Elliot.

Sally is the daughter of John and Margaret Priebe of Paramus Drive, Independence Township. The couple reside in the Lake Orion area.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Priebe

Daniel Priebe and Lisa Lobstein were wed June 5 at Grace United Methodist Church in Denver, Colo.

The bridegroom is the son of John and Margaret Priebe of Paramus Drive, Independence Township. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Lobstein of Imlay City.

reception at Springfield Oaks. Both hail from Independence Township and now live in the Lake Orion area.

For the June 5th wedding of their son Daniel and his bride Lisa Lobstein of Imlay City, the Priebe's traveled to Denver, Colo.

"I always wanted Sally to wear my wedding dress," Margaret said. "It made me very happy when Sally came to me and said, 'Mom, where's your wedding dress?' She's really taller than me, but when she wore flat shoes, well with the scalloped hem, she just looked beautiful."

"John and I have been married 27 years and the dress held up real well until after the reception—then the sleeves were falling out," Margaret laughed.

John reviewed the financing. "Out in Denver they'd pretty much taken care of everything and we didn't have to get too involved. I have to admit both the kids took over and handled a lot of it themselves."

"In Denver, we really didn't have much to do except show up."

Relatives funneled into their home on Paramus Drive from all over the United States for Sally's wedding.

"I was lucky I was working," laughed Margaret. "The house was a hotel. Everyone had to fend for themselves."

"We had a mobile home in the backyard," said

John. "All the bedrooms were filled and so was the basement. We even had extra animals."

While they sit behind their desks at Oakland Office Machines Inc., their business since 1974, John and Margaret laugh.

"I really am glad we didn't have two daughters to go through this with."

Why white?

The traditional color for the bride to wear is white...meaning purity...the color of ceremony and joy.

Through the centuries bridal beauty has been framed in white, but today ivory or champagne off-white wedding gowns are just as popular.

If you're wondering what color to wear, here are some old rules you might follow:

- Married in white, you have chosen alright;
- Married in red, you'd be better dead;
- Married in yellow, ashamed of the fellow;
- Married in blue, your love is true;
- Married in green, ashamed to be seen;
- Married in black, you'll ride in a hack;
- Married in pearl, you'll live in a whirl;
- Married in pink, your spirits will sink;
- Married in brown, you'll live out of town.
