First grade asks Reagan for peace

By Marilyn Trumper

"I want the president to come over to my house, 6637 Northview, and we'll sit down and talk about this. I'll tell him I don't want anymore war."

Accept that invitation if you will Ronald Reagan and take on 7-year-old Jeff Conklin. He'll make Yuri V. Andropov look like Bugs Bunny.

Jeff's in the first-grade class of Clarkston Elementary's Rosemary Lewis.

He and fellow students have spent the last month studying "friendship" and what can be done to promote it among worlds.

The class members put their definite ideas into a multi-colored felt poster that shows the Europe joined by a rainbow to North America, a tape of the class singing "I'd Like to Teach the World to Sing" and a yellow poster with personally penned messages from each member of the class. The collection is destined to head for the White House.

"Can you talk about disagreements?" asks Gabrielle, 6.

"Don't fight," demands Jeremy, 6.

"I want the world to be quiet," says 6-year-old Brian.

Pressed to talk about world love and peace, the first-graders readily elaborate.

"I want to ask him if he could come to our school and tell us how he does his business," 7-year-old Janis Kornacki said.

"I'd like President Reagan to not be mean," said Theresa Hooper, 6.

And Amanda VanKlaveren, 6, thinks the class' gift is slated for bigger things than just the oval office.

"I think when he goes on TV he'll hold those up and read the letter."

In this Christmas season where peace on earth, good will toward men hangs heavy in the air, Rosemary Lewis' kids have cornered the market.

The first-grade class of Rosemary Lewis is huddled behind a poster destined for President Ronald Reagan. The multi-colored, felt-trimmed message calls for friendship between the U.S. and the U.S.S.R., and each one of the kids has a personal opinion on the subject.

Two teachers fight for job opening

By Kathy Greenfield

A matter of minutes, a sign of the times, both play a part in the dispute underway to determine if Mike Kaul should keep the Clarkston High School teaching post he was recalled to last month or if the job should go to Barbara Markwood.

Both teachers were hired by the Clarkston school district on July 27, 1979. Both were laid off and recalled last year. But this year, the line has been drawn at their names and Kaul was hired to fill the job vacated by Leigh Bonner at CHS in November when he retired.

The case, a grievance filed by Markwood through the Clarkston Education Association (CEA) because she contends the job should be hers, was presented before the Clarkston schools board of education last week.

The board voted 4-3 to deny the grievance and keep Kaul on the job. Unhappy with the decision, Markwood and the CEA have requested a hearing before an arbitrator whose decision could overturn that of the school board.

In testimony given before the school board, Markwood said she could remember seeing Kaul at the administration office after she signed her contract. They knew each other, said hello, and Kaul said he was on his way into the office to sign his teaching contract, Markwood said.

Administrative assistant Conrad Bruce presented documentation of appointments on two July 27, 1979 calendar pages—Assistant Superintendent Mel Vaara's and the receptionist's. Both indicated Kaul's appointment was at 9 a.m. and Markwood's at 9:30 a.m.

Because time had been used in the past to differentiate, it was used again in this case, and Kaul was hired for the teaching job, Bruce said.

"We found a time of hire," Bruce said. "We found a document recording when Mike Kaul was scheduled and, as far as we know, he came in at 9 o'clock."

Although Kaul said he could remember talking with Markwood he could not remember details of the conversation. When asked whether he was the first to sign, he responded, "I don't know."

When asked if the appointments were kept as scheduled, Vaara responded, "I cannot recall."

Representing the CEA and Markwood was Edward Meissner of the Michigan Education Association.

"The strongest evidence, I think, remains Mrs. Markwood's recollections and not calendar pages. That's the problem with relying on calendar pages. Events don't always occur as they're scheduled," he said. "I think Mrs. Markwood's recollections are very strong. That recollection has not been substantially challenged by anyone else coming forth and saying, 'That's not what happened.'"

Before they voted, some board members commented on the case.

"I think we have been show very clearly what may be on a calendar may not necessarily be what transpired," said Stephen Werner, who voted to accept Markwood's position.

"Any of us who keep calendars have made changes without always making notations on the calendar. The only evidence I can weigh at all is Mrs. Markwood's testimony," said C. Vincent Luzi, who also voted in her favor.

"I would like to think we still hold a person's word as honorable," said Carolyn Place, who also voted for Markwood.

"Professional people seem to keep appointments that they have set up," said Fernando Sanchez, who voted to deny the grievance.

"I can believe that Mrs. Markwood remembers signing the contract...that's no real evidence," said Mary Jane Chaustowich, who voted to deny.

Addison Hubbard and Janet Thomas, who also voted to deny, did not comment.

Steps were underway Monday to select an arbitrator and set up a time for the hearing. When the decision would be made would depend on the ar-

We're looking for memories or current events that tell the holiday story. These may consist of Christmas decorating ideas, family customs and stories of past and present generations.

You may want to share why you are especially thankful. Others may have a holiday recipe, special hobbies with a Christmas touch or ideas for photographs.

The process is easy. Just call us at 625-3370 during normal business hours weekdays, stop by our office, or jot down your story and mail it to The Clarkston News, 5 S. Main, Clarkston 48016. Include your telephone number in case we need to contact you.

bitrator's schedule, and it could take months, said Meissner, who added he did not expect a decision until some time in 1983.

After the hearing, Superintendent Milford Mason commented on the case.

"This kind of thing is part and parcel of the kinds of things you run into when you're making reductions in staffing," he said.

"Both the individuals are quality people and it's unfortunate these kinds of things have to come up."

Meissner, whose job entails working with five northern county school districts, said he's seen several similar cases in the past couple of years as staffs have been cut.

"People have families, homes, friends and relatives in a community. It's hard for them to pick up and move," he said. "When a job opens up, there is a scramble."

Some left the meeting in tears

The repercussions run deep

By Marilyn Trumper

When Trustee Carol Eberhardt cast the deciding vote to repeal the historic district ordinance, gasps reverberated through the Clarkston Village Council meeting.

While elected officials and village residents continue to debate the pros and cons of revoking the controversial ordinance and five-member volunteer commission, they agree all the aftershocks have yet to be felt.

"I think it was the hardest thing I've ever had to do, and believe me, I didn't sleep well last night," Eberhardt said the day after the Nov. 22 meeting.

"It was a terrible position to be in. I sat in on the committee meetings and followed their recommendation closely. After weighing the facts I understand the anger and empathize with the way (historical proponents) feel. I would be very depressed to find all my work had been chucked down the drain. But it's time to brainstorm and develop a new ordinance."

Eberhardt says she'll volunteer for the job and take a strong hand in developing a new ordinance.

"Because of the (historical) commission and the way it functioned before, there were very strong negative feelings for the ordinance. For community spirit we need to start over with a fresh presentation to the community."

Denise Symons and Susan Basinger left the meeting in tears after seeing their years of work and study erased with one vote.

Symons, president of the Clarkston Community Historical Society, has been active in educating the public and a key figure in drafting the original legislation.

"As a member of the historical society I'm very concerned. We agreed we needed amendments to the ordinance and that more education was needed. Now I'm going to call a special (historical society board meeting) after the holidays to decide what we're going to do about the plans we had for educating the public.

"The historical society was created to educate the public. Now we have no ordinance."

Personally, Symons says she's "disillusioned and frustrated" over repeal of the law that regulated construction in the 174-home historic district.

"I guess you could say I'm very disheartened. I'll take time over the holidays to re-evaluate how much the community cares.

"People need to show up at these meetings and voice their opinions. I personally feel tremendously frustrated and feel we've jumped in the wrong direction. We needed more time. The planning commission, historic commission and council agreed to take the time over the winter to talk as adults.

"I put a lot of work into this, too much to have it thrown out the window like that. I believe it's out there. I believe people out there want (the district and to preserve it). I just have to convince myself of that. I can't believe they don't want it protected," she said.

Basinger, past president of the historical society and prominent preservationist, agreed.

"I was shocked at the decision," Basinger said, pointing to her great-great-grandfather, the first settler in Oakland County, and others who followed as some of the first Clarkston residents.

"I haven't lived here all of my life. My family wasn't fortunate enough to stay here. But I don't feel I've been given the right to see it stay.

"Clarkston needs an ordinance with teeth in it."

With Basinger, as with other members of the historical society, there's question if they'll continue to take a hand in local preservation.

"I don't think my input would be welcome," she said.

Radcliff ponders historic commission's demise

By Marilyn Trumper

With repeal of the restrictive historic district ordinance came the demise of the five-member Historic District Commission, the controversial volunteer team that approved all construction in Clarkston's 174-home historic district.

Commission Chairperson Jeniffer Radcliff, a key figure who lobbied to have Clarkston admitted to the National Register of Historic Places and prominent local preservationist, can step down from that seat of controversy.

With repeal of the ordinance, she's out of a job. "People ask me, 'Jeniffer, why do you care about these old houses? You don't even live in one.'

"I guess it's the same thing I feel when I see a dog locked up in a hot car on Main Street. He's hot, miserable, he needs attention. I care about that dog, just like I care about the houses.

"I walk up and down the street, look at the houses and say, 'I can't afford to own you all. You weren't available when I moved here. But I worry about you.' They need a lobby group."

The 10-year village resident has become philosophical about the rejection of commission and ordinance.

"I've come to terms with it. There's a lack of understanding of basic preservation and the survivability principle. (The village doesn't) view survival as important as appearance.

"This community doesn't feel it's applicable to them. The threat of losing a building doesn't apply to them. Potential damage doesn't apply to them. The benefits don't apply to them.

"Tomorrow Clarkston's not going to fall apart. But we're not unique. Everywhere else that's had something like this without protection is gone. It may not happen this year, or next year, maybe not for 10 years. But it will."

In retrospect, there are no regrets for Radcliff.

'Everywhere else that's had something like this is gone. It may not happen this year, or next year, maybe not for 10 years. But it will.'

"At first when this controversy began I went through a period where I said, 'This isn't fair. I feel lousy and I don't deserve to.'

"Then I asked myself, 'Did I do anything wrong?'"

"No.

"Did I go against the best advice I could get?"

"No.

"Did I keep good records or slow down the process at all?"

"No.

"The whole principle is based on a misunderstanding. Too many people wanted to make it personal and you can't make it personal. They just don't understand the concept of giving in order to get."

Education will stop too, she said.

Before discussion of the ordinance began at the Nov. 22 meeting, Radcliff offered the village council an outline for educating the public. The commission and historical society were prepared to spring into action.

"We no longer have a forum in which to do that," she said. "I don't know what the historical society will do, but (the commission) no longer will have funds available to pay the printing costs, publication costs and mailing costs."

It appears her personal future on the preservation scene will be limited too.

"I don't think it would be helpful," Radcliff said.

"The feeling expressed by the council is that the current ordinance and the thought processes that went into it were not valuable to the village. That's where my input was."

Dress rehearsal

Amanda Yarber's eyes get bigger and bigger as she watches Santa get ready for the dress rehearsal. She watches him don his white beard, wig and bushy eyebrows and top it all off with a red cap. It's magic! For when the Jolly Old Elf asks what she wants for Christmas, Amanda knows he's just the person to tell. Santa and his elves—Deanna Gwisdalla (left) and Shirley Lund—are to appear at the Lunch with Santa sponsored by the Clarkston Community Women's Club Saturday, Dec. 4. All 250 tickets for the event were sold out shortly after notices were sent home with Clarkston school district elementary pupils.

Weather havoc

Sunday morning's freezing rain wreaked havoc on Independence Township's expressway overpasses.

In less than an hour, from 9:25 to 10:30 a.m., the fire department aided five stranded motorists on the M-15 and Sashabaw road overpasses, according to Capt. Dale Bailey.

No serious injuries were reported, although some drivers were taken to the hospital, and most of the cars sustained bent fenders, he said.

Santa's coming

Santa Claus rides again Sunday, Dec. 5, as he appears atop an antique fire truck to greet all the good little boys and girls.

The time is 1 p.m.; the place, in front of the Photography by Winship studio just north of the intersection of Maybee and Sashabaw roads.

On hand to present Santa with a key to the hearts of the children of Independence Township is to be Fire Chief Frank Ronk.

And there'll be music thanks to the Clarkston High School Jazz Band.

File for office

So, you're not happy with the way things are being run down at Clarkston Village Hall.

You think you can do a better job.

It's time to file your intent to join the race.

The two-year terms of trustees Ruth Basinger, David Raup, James Schultz, Clerk Norma Goyette and the one-year term of Carol Eberhardt are up for re-election. The 15-signature petitions announcing candidacy must be in by Dec. 21.

Challengers can pick up petitions at the Clarkston Village Hall, 375 Depot, Clarkston, on Wednesdays from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Eberhardt, appointed in September to fill the remainder of Jerry Powell's term when he resigned, says she will run to fill the remaining year of the two-year term.

Basinger, a 10-year veteran of the village council could not be reached to announce whether she'll run again.

Raup was elected to a two-year term in 1981 and could not be reached for comment if he'll seek a second term.

Schultz, a 10-year council veteran was also unavailable for comment.

Goyette says she remains undecided.

Knob's ski lodge suffers fire

There's no word from Pine Knob officials whether the ski lodge will be ready for the 1982 season opening, but crews are expected to work around the clock to repair the lodge's electrical system destroyed by fire Friday afternoon.

Cause of the fire remains under investigation, according to Capt. Dale Bailey of the Independence Township Fire Department. The fire was confined to the basement of the ski lodge as fire fighters worked two hours to extinguish the flames, he added.

According to Bailey, damage is estimated at $35,000.

"There's not much smoke or water damage, it's basically confined to the electrical panels," he said. "I'm not sure if the electricians were working on the panels or not. But I did hear one of them say, 'I should have listened to my instruments.'"

Pine Knob officials could not be reached for comment.

Clarkston's sign law nears completion

Overhanging and projecting signs could well be legal in Clarkston village beginning in 1983.

At the Nov. 22 meeting, the village attorney received the latest draft of the proposed sign ordinance and is expected to make final comments at the next meeting on Dec. 13 at Village Hall, 375 Depot.

Before it becomes law, a public hearing must be held on the revised ordinance.

The law, under draft for two years, has met the approval of the village council and business owners and allows overhanging and projected signs, long considered less than aesthetic by the historical core of Clarkston.

Ronald Galley, co-owner of The Flower Adventure, put off requesting a variance to erect an overhanging sign, expecting the council to approve the law that night, and expressed concern over the delay.

"How much longer are we going to have to wait with this? We've been at our new location two months now and we really want a sign," he said. "Now it will be another month until we can put our sign up."

Council President Jackson Byers stressed the need for attorney review.

"I'm sorry you're caught in the middle and that's really a predicament for you," he said. "But, in the interest of having a workable ordinance we really should have the attorney review it."

Dan Schulte plotted his surprise. He made the 64-foot sign and hid it in his basement. On Friday, three days before his daughter's 16th birthday, he stretched the wooden pieces in front of his house on Clarkston-Orion Road so Kim would see it when she got off the school bus. "Kim's going to be driving, so I'm saying get off the road," he interpreted. "She says, 'Dad's a trip!'" When the time arrived, that wasn't exactly what the almost-16-year-old said. This was her message: "Dad, I'm going to get you for this!" But things settled down, and father and daughter talked about the birthday surprise. "It's her 16th birthday and it's something she'll remember. I thought it would be a little different," said Schulte. "I didn't think he'd tell the whole Clarkston about it," said Kim. It's not the first time Schulte has posted messages for passersby to ponder. The last time was when his other daughter, Jennifer, turned 13 and the sign welcomed her into the world of teenagers. That prompted Kim to say: "I wasn't expecting it this year—maybe on Monday, but not today." Monday, Nov. 29, Kim's actual birthdate was already filled with plans. Because she was too young to take driver's training through the school district this summer, she took lessons with a private firm. So she was prepared for the ride over to the Secretary of State's Office and home again, her driver's license in hand. Ah, sweet 16.

Hit and miss

By Jim Sherman

Here's a hit and miss column. The world famous Mayo Clinic reports their study shows people are no more likely to have a heart attack on the job than they are on the weekends.

I hope that didn't come as a surprise to them. Name one person who works harder on their job than they do on any weekend.

Weekends are made for partying, climbing ladders, ironing clothes, moving furniture, tossing footballs, washing windows, and all that good healthy stuff that taxes all the parts of your body you don't use on the job.

The Rochester, Minn. clinic studied 1,054 fatal heart attacks for 25 years, 1950 to 1975, and drew no conclusions from that study. It's been eight years since the study ended, during which time, I suppose, the doctors tried to conclude something.

Since there was no conclusion, obviously there was no need for the study.

President Reagan would like to have the MX missiles bunched in a 3 mile by 12 mile area of Wyoming. The theory is that the electronically controlled missiles of the Russians, programmed to seek out U.S. missiles, would attract each other like a magnet and destroy themselves.

Mr. Reagan is undoubtedly hoping the Russians feel the same way and bunch their missiles in Siberia, thus we have a standoff and peace.

It's a little like a high stakes poker game in an old western movie, between two players, neither trusting each other, and both very quick on the draw.

In the movie I got to see the ending:

— O —

Dave Rood, one of the sages of the Upper asks, "Want to know the difference between dedication and commitment? When it comes to ham and eggs, the chicken represents dedication, while the pig represents total commitment."

— O —

The average age of a passenger on a Caribbean cruise ship is 54 years old. I can't even be average at that any more.

— O —

And, the first of this country's natural resources, to be completely exhausted will probably be the taxpayer.

Exercise with CHS teacher

She's more than a chalkboard and book instructor

The irritating scrape of desk legs across a tiled floor filters out of a classroom at Clarkston High School.

A space cleared, a young woman dressed in blue warm-up pants pushes a mop across the floor, collecting dust balls and slivers of paper.

Looking serious with few smiles, eight young women led by teacher Patty Moore-Schulte flip on the tape recorder to the dictating voice of Jane Fonda.

"Put your arms out to your side, palms out. Now turn, turn, turn."

The song of Michael Jackson flows from the tiny speaker as they step around rag rugs, out of the way of each others' flailing arms, and begin exercising.

There are grunts, groans and a few "oh no's." Twice a week, every Monday and Wednesday, the "club" meets to workout together.

Teachers are good for more than just teaching, says Patty.

They need to get involved.

"I started exercising this summer and really enjoyed it," the 25-year-old said. "It's something I want to do, and something I want to encourage other people to do. So I formed this kind of club."

Since exercising, Patty has "...a lot more energy—and muscles in places I never knew I had muscles."

During school she teaches in the Learning Resources Center. Now, "...I have a chance to get with the general education students and see what they like to do. I get a broader spectrum of the student body."

The kids like her.

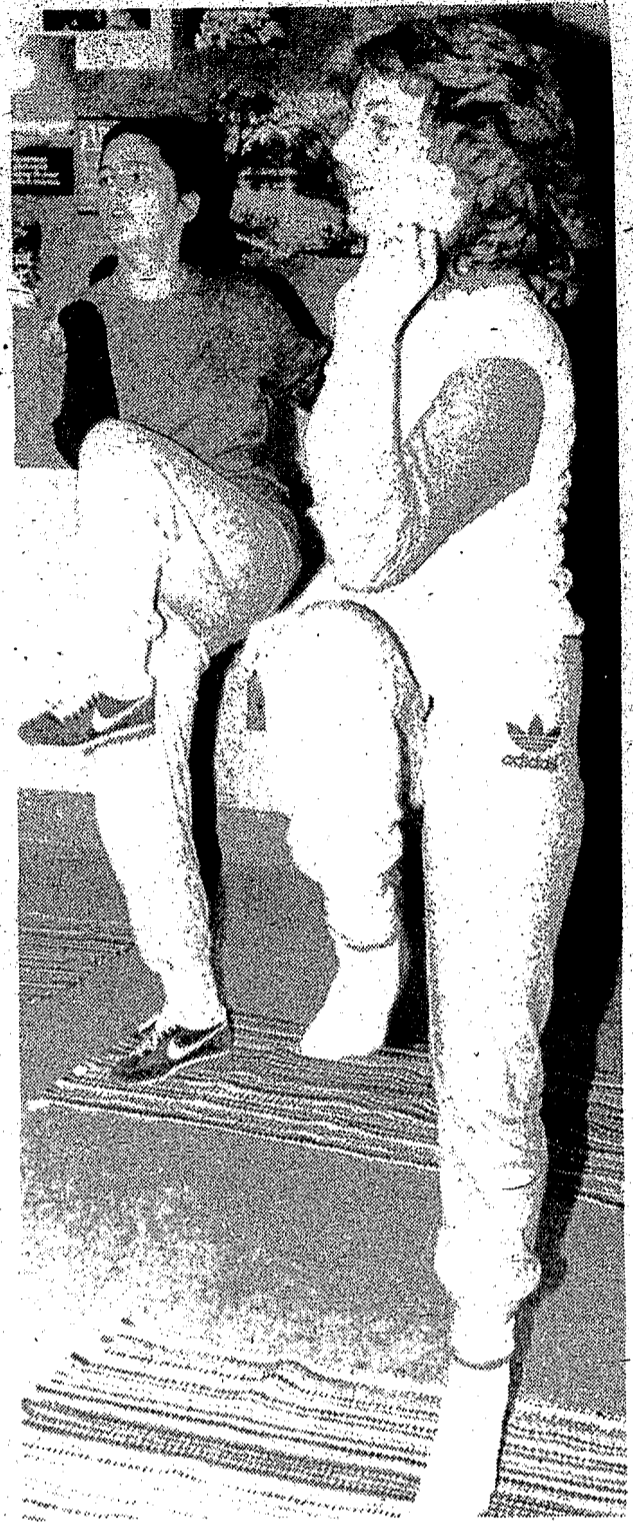

"I think it's really nice she wants to do this with us," said one.

"I just like her," said another.

"And I'm just here because I want to get in shape," commented a third.

Whatever it is, Patty Moore-Schulte's found a new teaching avenue to explore, and the kids are traveling right beside her all the way.

—Marilyn Trumper

Hopping from one foot to the other, touching knees to elbows, two members of the Monday and Wednesday class work at becoming out of breath and into shape.

Clarkston High School's Patty Moore-Schulte stretches her arm over her head and calls encouragement to the other members of the after-school exercise club. Wanting to show that teachers can be more than instructors, the 25-year-old brainstormed, combining exercise and socializing with students.

One murder per lifetime

by Jim Fitzgerald

In Detroit, a former prize-winning newspaper reporter who quit to write a book but didn't write it was recently found guilty of shooting his live-in lover to death because she told him to live out. The judge gave him probation on the murder count and apologized for being forced to lock him up for a few months because of a state law requiring imprisonment for anyone convicted of using a gun while committing a felony.

The judge explained the lenient sentence by pointing out that the middle-aged ex-reporter had lived a worthwhile life preceding the murder and would most likely resume being worthwhile in the future if he didn't have to spend too much of it in jail.

I read newspaper accounts of the case out loud so my wife could hear me. I once won a prize for reporting and I constantly dream of quitting newspapering to write a book I wouldn't write. I would hang around home all day, giving my live-in lover added opportunity to irritate me. So I wanted her to know that if I kill her, she won't have the satisfaction of knowing I'll be punished by the law, because judges recognize that middle-aged, prize-winning ex-reporters are worthwhile citizens who most likely won't commit more than one murder per lifetime. It wouldn't be as though I were a worthless factory worker with a bad traffic record, or someone dangerous like that.

That's not all. Another newspaper report that I read aloud concerned the court case of Michael Morgenstern of New York who is slightly famous for writing a book called "How to Make Love to a Woman." He recently pleaded guilty to punching his girlfriend in the face. The judge fined him only $40, another fine example of tempering justice with the realization that writers deserve soft handling.

I WANTED MY wife to realize that if she ever irritates me into punching her in the face, it won't give her much satisfaction to call the cops. Even a book writer who never writes books could borrow the $40 from the sentencing judge, who would be grateful to become a patron of the arts.

You may wonder what my wife or live-in lover could do to irritate me into shooting or punching her. She could put Triskets in my Ritz cracker box, that's what.

I like to nibble absentmindedly on Ritz crackers while reading books I didn't write. I don't like any type of cracker except Ritz. I especially don't like those health-store crackers made out of Easter baskets that my wife usually buys because she likes them and doesn't care about me.

The other evening, before I could stop myself, I ate an entire Trisket pulled blindly out of a Ritz box.

That same day my son poured a dead spider out of a pop bottle. (I swear to God I don't make these things up.) Even though I'd drank from that bottle, I was a lot madder about the Trisket than I was about the spider.

It's a matter of deviousness. I used to work in a soft-drink bottling plant so I know an honest effort is usually made to keep insects outside the bottles. On the other hand, my wife puts Triskets in the Ritz box on purpose. She hopes I will be so interested in a book I didn't write that I won't notice she forgot to buy Ritz crackers again. That's dishonest.

NATURALLY, IT is terribly irritating to be married to a live-in lover who doesn't love me enough to buy the only kind of crackers I like. She has probably been stuffing the same old Ritz box for years. There may even have been days when I was so engrossed in reading that I didn't realize what I was eating, which would explain the Easter eggs in my hair.

I'm not saying I would punch or shoot a woman for sneaking Triskets into my diet. That would be outrageous. But it is comforting to know that the writer of "How to Make Love to a Woman" punched his girlfriend for only $40, and an ex-reporter who didn't write a book got probation and an apology for murdering his live-in lover. Speaking of outrageous.

Students look at varied job opportunities

By Dan Vandenhemel

The ninth-graders at both Sashabaw and Clarkston Junior High are getting a closer look at some different types of careers.

The Clarkston Rotary Club and the Clinton Valley Scouting Explorers organized the project of bringing professionals into the schools to tell the students about their jobs.

Students at each junior high took a survey, with the top 10 occupations to be presented.

There will be one session each month in each junior high. There are 430 ninth-graders in the program.

Exploring Executive Therese Cody said there could be 150 students in a session with only 20 of them interested in what is being said.

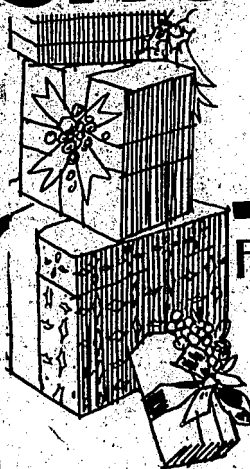

"The program is broadening their views of the job market," Cody said. "This tells them what each job does relating to a career so they are not in a fog when they graduate from high school."

"The Rotary Club donated $500 to the launch of the program," Jim Smith, Independence Township Supervisor and Rotary Club said. "The Explorers are expected to pick up the balance this year. In the future, there will be a $2 charge per student."

Sashabaw Junior High Principal Gus Birtsas says the idea is to expose the students to as many careers and tell them what it takes to get into those careers.

"The Explorer Scouts actually increase the students' awareness," Birtsas said. "We're really indebted to the Rotary Club for doing this too."

Clarkston kids hold course with MEAP scores

By Kathy Greenfield

Clarkston school pupils are holding steady in results from the Michigan Educational Assessment Program (MEAP) tests despite recent budget cuts that total over $1.5 million, and school officials are pleased.

Results from the tests taken by all fourth-, seventh- and 10th-graders were received last week by the district.

"We're very pleased that we again have good, positive, high results," said William Potvin, who is in charge of testing for Clarkston Community Schools. "This is a little bit on the bragging side—when you're up in the 80s and 90s, it is tough to make improvement there, but we're staying there and that's important."

The MEAP tests assess basic knowledge in mathematics and reading. The scores reflect the percentage of pupils who answered at least 75 percent of the questions correctly.

The results follow:

•Fourth-graders—math 85.6 percent, reading 87.2 percent.

•Seventh-graders—math 71.5 percent, reading 93 percent.

•Tenth-graders—math 71.3 percent, reading 90 percent.

While Potvin says the test results have limited use—"Without exception, we never find anybody we did not know was already (in need of remedial help)."—there are advantages to the test required of all public schools in Michigan by the State Department of Education.

For Clarkston schools, the biggest advantage this year is the knowledge that teaching of the basics appears to be holding firm.

"We made $600,000 worth of cuts in our schools last year and the cuts haven't affected appreciably what's going on in the classrooms," Potvin said. "I really think that's a credit to the teachers and school administrators."

"We're competing with some school systems that have two and three and four times the revenues we do. We have always been the kind of district that pays attention to basics," he added.

Potvin's reactions are shared by district Superintendent Milford Mason.

"I'm also very pleased with the results of the MEAP testing, particularly in view of the reductions we've made over the past three years," he said. "We've reduced our operation in excess of one-half-million dollars each of the three years."

Potvin is expected to report on the MEAP results and what they mean at the Dec. 13 board of education meeting.

Then, when results from the Otis-Lennon Ability Test and the Metropolitan Achievement Test are in, another report to the board is to be made at the Jan. 10 meeting. Those results match a pupil's ability with his or her achievement and are a much better guide of how well the district is teaching individuals, Potvin said.

The board meets in the Administrative Office Building, 6389 Clarkston-Orion, Independence Township, beginning at 8 p.m.

Darling resigns school job for Lansing post

By Kathy Greenfield

The long drive between his home near Lansing and his job with the Clarkston school district is almost a thing of the past for Business Manager Stan Darling.

Darling accepted a new post with the Lansing School District and submitted his resignation to Clarkston schools Monday.

"Particularly now that I'm living over there, it's been tough," said Darling who resides in the East

'It's been a good school system and I'm proud to have been a part of it'

Lansing suburb of Holt with Anne, his wife since May 22.

The long drive was the main reason he started looking for a new job several months ago, and he's pleased with the one he found.

"It's going to be quite interesting. It's kind of invigorating and I think I'll really get into it and get excited," he said. "It will be enough different to get the old adrenaline going.

"I've had three or four jobs over the years and change is good for me," he added.

Darling's last day on the job in Clarkston is to be Jan. 2, with Jan. 3 his starting day in Lansing. The changes will be considerable.

The Lansing School District has about four times more pupils than Clarkston and the income is about five times greater.

"With a $72 million budget, (Lansing's) in good shape and I think they'll stay that way," he said.

The new job is a bit different than the one he held in Clarkston. The title is Special Projects Accountant and it includes general accounting and other projects requested by the superintendent of schools. In six months to a one-and-one-half years, he expects to be promoted to the business manager slot in Lansing when some people on the staff there retire.

Darling has worked for the Clarkston school district for seven-and-one-half years.

"It's been fun," he said. "You get all upset now and then when millages don't pass and we do the best we can to stretch the dollars. It's been a good school system and I'm proud to have been a part of it.

"The people have basically been behind the school district and I hope they stay behind it. It's a good group of people and they're trying," he added.

The process is now underway to hire a new business manager for the Clarkston district, said Superintendent Milford Mason.

"Stan's been a very dedicated employe through his seven-and-one-half years with the district. I'm sorry to see him go, but I'm also happy he's secured what appears to be an excellent position in the same field of work and much nearer his home," Mason said. "We wish him well."

Vegas gambler wins big at home

Lady Luck moves in mysterious ways.

Here's the scenario: Lowell Thomas and family were in Las Vegas Thanksgiving Day taking chances on winning big in the city that never sleeps.

They put in a phone call to their home on Chickadee Drive in Independence Township.

The news? Thomas had won $400 in the raffle put on by the Clarkston High School Pom Pon Girls to raise money for uniform costs.

"He was laughing," said his wife Cathy about her husband's reaction. "It was a nice surprise, especially this time of year."

She admitted he did considerably better in Clarkston than he did in Las Vegas.

Wolves ready for season's home opener

By Dan Vandenhemel

The Clarkston Junior High Basketball team is working hard for the start of the season against Waterford Cray Nov. 30.

New coach Dave Smith thinks the Wolverines have enough talent to have a good year.

"Our strong point will be our aggressiveness. We'll have a good offense and defense, but the aggressiveness is the key."

Last year the team finished around .500 under Larry Sherrill who has moved up to the girls' junior varsity position at Clarkston High School.

Smith, who coached the boys' junior varsity at Clarkston last year, has been involved in coaching for 10 years. He teaches science and geography at CJHS.

There are 15 ninth-graders on the team this year and Smith said this will give the team more depth.

"With 15 on the team, we won't be depending on one or two kids to carry the team. Our success depends on how the kids adjust to ninth-grade ball. All they had last year was seventh- and eighth-grade intramural programs. I want to teach them enough to be competitive."

There is no league for the freshman team but they play cross-town rivals Sashabaw Junior High twice in the team's 15 game schedule.

Coach Dave Smith (right) runs with the Clarkston Junior High Basketball team during one of its practices. The Wolves open the season Dec. 7 against Waterford Cray at home.

11-1 record in GOAL

JV girls end season at 19-1

By Dan Vandenhemel

The Girls' Junior Varsity Basketball team finished the season with some pretty impressive numbers.

The record of 19-1 overall and 11-1 in the Greater Oakland Activities League (GOAL) was good enough for first place. The team's only loss was to second-place Rochester, 35-24.

Coach Larry Sherrill is in his first year with the girls' team, and he was satisfied with the season.

"They played real well all year—most of the games were blowouts," he said.

The Wolves averaged just under 45 points a game while holding their opponents to an average of just 29 points a game.

"Our strong point was our defense," Sherrill said. "We scored a lot of points but the defense was the big factor."

The leading scorers for Clarkston were Kim Ottman with 12 points a game. Next in scoring were Denise Giroux and Laura Hurren, each with 8.4 points a game. Carol Hunter and Bridget Kilcline averaged just under six points a game.

Kilcline was the team's leading rebounder with a total of 163 rebounds for an average of 8.6 a game. Giroux and Hunter each pulled down an average of 7.6 and 6.4 rebounds.

With the good team this year, Sherrill plans to have a good team again next year too.

"We keep getting good players from the two junior highs in the area," he said. "Sashabaw and Clarkston have a real good nucleus of players that they keep sending us."

Sherrill was the coach of the Clarkston Junior High boys' team the last 10 years and has a career record of 111-47.

Bud McGrath to be honored

The late Bud McGrath, a former coach, teacher and counselor, will be honored at halftime of the Clarkston High School Boys' Varsity Basketball game on Friday, Dec. 10.

"The game is to recognize his family," CHS Athletic Director Paul Tungate said. "We are also asking any of his former players to show up for the game so they can be recognized. There will be a reception after the game, too."

The game, against Waterford Kettering, is the Wolves' first home game of the season.

Coming off of 2 knee operations

McCormick looks toward upcoming year

By Dan Vandenhemel

Six feet, 11 inches and still growing.

Tim McCormick of the University of Michigan basketball team is now just a shade under seven feet tall. When he graduated from Clarkston High School in 1980, he went straight onto the U of M team.

Two knee operations later, McCormick says he is ready for the basketball season.

"My knees are doing well, during the practices I don't feel any pain at all."

The practices started Sept. 15 and lasted between two and three hours. Now, as the season approaches, the workouts have been cut down to one-and-a-half hours.

"Last year I was red-shirted but I still went to all of the practices and most of the games," McCormick said. "I worked out most of this summer to get ready for this year."

In the team's exhibition game against Windsor,

McCormick scored 10 points and pulled down seven rebounds.

"I played well but I know that I'll play better. The coach did a lot of switching to get everyone into the game so the stats aren't too impressive."

He still has three years of basketball left at Michigan but after minor surgery on both knees last year, McCormick has to take one game at a time.

"It's been 18 months since I played in a game. I'm really just looking at my college career right now and not looking toward the pros yet. The pros could be down the line sometime but I'm not looking that far yet."

Last year the Wolverines had a dismal season as they finished with a 7-20 record and were in seventh place in the Big Ten.

"We had a good recruiting year this year and we have a strong nucleus of returning players," McCormick said. "If we blend together as a team, there will be no question on our improving over last year. This is a learning year for us, we'll learn how to win this year."

In McCormick's senior year at Clarkston, the Wolves went all the way to the state semifinals against Highland Park only to lose by one point.

A standout high school player can sometimes find it hard to adjust to the level of competition in the college ranks. But McCormick has been able to make that adjustment.

"The Big Ten is a great deal stronger in competition than high school was," he said. "Either you improve or you don't play. It makes you stronger, quicker and just a better player."

The Wolverines open their Big Ten season at Northwestern on Jan. 3. McCormick says he hopes he can reach his peak about that time.

"I hope I'll be starting. I'll do the best job I can. Some days I'll play like I can, others I won't. Overall I want to be more consistent and lead this team to a great year."

Our Lady of the Lakes finishes up fourth

Area players reflect on winning football season

By Dan Vandenhemel

The football season may be over for the high schools, but the players on the Our Lady of the Lakes (OLOL) football team are not going to forget the season too quickly.

The team finished with a 9-2 record and came within one game of playing in the finals for the Class D championship.

After winning its first eight games, OLOL played in the Silverdome for the Prep Bowl. Pontiac Catholic won 26-0. In the first round of the state finals, OLOL edged Grass Lake 3-2 then lost 33-14 to the eventual state champions, Mendon.

Some of the players had different opinions about playing in the Silverdome.

"I thought it was lousy," senior defensive tackle Bob Spicuzza of Independence Township said. "The artificial turf was terrible. When you can go out to the 40-yard line and pick up a hunk of turf something is wrong. The Silverdome turf is in sad-shape."

"I didn't like the surface either," junior defensive back Jim Barresi of Independence Township said. "A lot of people blamed the surface and the fact of being in the Silverdome for our losing. But Pontiac Catholic had never been to the Dome before and were playing on the same surface as we were. They are just a good team."

Larry Orlando, a junior split end from Independence Township, thought it was great being in the Silverdome.

"I couldn't play in the Dome because I pulled some legiments in my ankle in the game just before the Dome," he said.

In the state quarter finals against Grass Lake, OLOL was very confident.

"It was a pretty close game," Barresi said. "We had a lot of drives that we didn't score on but our defense did a better job than Grass Lakes'."

"We were sort of lucky in that game," Orlando said. "We had a lot of people hurt for that game and in the game against Mendon."

Being in the state playoffs was a first for the OLOL team. They finished fourth in the state for Class D.

"We had a very good team this year," junior tight end Doug Schiete of Independence Township said. "We should have beat Mendon, we had a couple of mistakes early in the game. We were down to the 5-yard line twice and didn't score."

Next year, the team should be a little better according to Barresi and Orlando.

"At the beginning of the season, we weren't thinking of the state playoffs," Barresi said. "Next year we'll be better. I think we can be state champs. Our defense was our strong point for the year. Pontiac and Mendon were the only teams to score a lot of points against us."

"Next year we should be just as good maybe a little better," Orlando added. "There are a lot of juniors coming back. We'll be losing some good seniors, but I'm sure we'll be better."

League forming

The Independence Township Parks and Recreation Men's Winter Basketball league is accepting registrations for this season.

The games are played Sunday afternoons and Wednesday evenings starting Dec. 5 for Class C. The Pony league starts Jan. 9 and the 30-and-over league starts Jan. 12.

For more information, contact the parks and recreation department at 625-8223.

Youth sign-up

The Clarkston Schools Athletic Department is sponsoring a little league basketball program for grades three through six.

There'll be two clinics—on Dec. 11, and Dec. 18. The season is to start Jan. 8 and run until March 5.

Registrations should be mailed to Clarkston High School, 6595 Middle Lake, Clarkston 48016, in care of Athletic Director Paul Tungate.

Someone needs you

Someone needs you,
Someone who's down,
Someone who's crying
Or wearing a frown.

Someone needs you
To help find their way
Through a storm
Or a rainy day.

How can you help,
You ask with a smile?
You've been down too
For a good long while?

Life has struck you
A blow in the face?
There's nothing left
But shame and disgrace?

Now listen to me
If my words you can catch;
Your life can compare
To that of a match.

So pay attention,
There's a lesson to learn
From the little fellow
Who always gets burned.

He's kept in a pocket
Until he's struck down
And then he's broken
And thrown on the ground.

There he lies cold
Without a doubt,
His life is over,
His fire is out.

Your life is the same
As that of a match,
Whose pride was hurt,
Whose face was scratched.

Even though he
Was struck in the face
He didn't give up
In shame and disgrace.

With his last effort,
His last desire
He reached out
And lit a fire.

You may be down
But there's no doubt
Your heart's still warm
Your fire's not out.

Maybe now
The time is right
For someone else
To see your light.

A match's problems
Are hard to handle
But a little match
Can light a candle.

4-H'ers ready for village stroll

Spread out all over the living room floor, Garlen Decker is stringing horse marionettes this snowy Friday morning.

Kim Decker, Wendy and Lorie Clark are busy at the kitchen table, glueing eyeballs on horse tree ornaments.

Craft teacher Karen Clark and co-leader Sharon Decker watch from the sidelines.

The immense undertaking is in preparation for the 4-H group the Hoofbeat's fund-raiser booth in the upcoming Christmas Village Stroll in Davisburg Saturday and Sunday, Dec. 4 and 5.

All year long the 20-member group of 4-H'ers have cut, sanded, glued, stained and manipulated yarn to make horse marionettes, ornaments, coasters, bottle covers, Kleenex box covers and other crafts to sell.

"This is our big fund raiser, hopefully the only one we'll need," Sharon said. "We started right after last year's show and we're finishing up now. Before we began making the marionettes, we had 24 orders. They're real popular."

Look for the Hoofbeat's booth at the Springfield Oaks Activities Center, 12450 Andersonville, as the building's transformed into a replica 1800s village complete with storefronts and streets.

The Christmas Village Stroll will be offering handmade gifts and crafts, plants, gift wrapping and live entertainment with a live nativity and demonstrations of blacksmithing, photography, weaving, tinsmithing, wood carving, apple craft and soft sculpture.

Santa Claus is expected to be on hand. There'll be food booths, homemade desserts, pony and hay rides.

The Christmas Village Stroll will be open from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 4, and Sunday, Dec. 5.

Pat Peterson covers her lap with a "Puffy Quilt," carefully cut and sewn by her hands. The Rose Township woman will be manning a booth at the upcoming Christmas Village Stroll.

Wares for sale

A stack of empty boxes indicate just how many crafts Pat Peterson's spent the last year making.

A multi-blue-tone "puffy quilt," crocheted afghans, puppets, girls' purses, wreaths, door decorations, barrette ropes for kids, scented ropes and more.

"There are so many hours into it, this is really a labor of love," Pat said. "You can't calculate how long it took to make this or that. I really enjoy it."

Pat's work will be for sale at the upcoming Christmas Village Stroll in Davisburg Dec. 4 and 5 as she joins dozens of other crafters at the Springfield Oaks Activities Center, 12450 Andersonville.

"Most people at the show are so open and friendly. They want to know about you, how long it took to make this, what it's made of and how it's made. It's not at all like Hudson's," she laughed.

"And just about all of the profit goes back into the making of more crafts."

Skip the Christmas crush at the malls.

Drop the mail-order catalog and touch the items before you buy.

Head out to Davisburg's Christmas Village Stroll for personal, quality handmade gifts.

4-H Hoofbeat members Wendy Clark, Kim Decker and Lorie Clark fight for space behind a row of handmade horse marionettes slated for sale at Davisburg's Christmas Village Stroll.

Footprint news

Footprints are the topic of a Junior Audobon Society meeting open to all children ages 7-14 on Saturday, Dec. 11.

Independence Oaks County Park is the site for the meeting. Park naturalist Kathleen Dougherty is to lead the discussion aimed at footprints and what they say: whether the animal is large or small, if it hops or jumps, and whether it spends the majority of its time in water or on land. Plaster casts are to be made.

Membership in the Junior Audobon Society is free, as are programs offered, because the organization is sponsored by the Oakland Audobon Society as a community service.

The program at Independence Oaks is to be held mostly outdoors, so children should dress for the weather. Hours are 10 a.m. to noon. The park is located 2 1/2 miles north of I-75 on Sashabaw Road and the program is to be begin in the park boathouse.

For more information, contact Byron Babbish, 2043 Evaline, Hamtramck 48212, 365-8775.

Seasonal changes

The Independence Township Senior Citizens are busy changing their schedule of programs in preparation for the cold weather.

Indoor activities will take the place of summer outdoor activities. Although the weather is changing, the fun, friendship and laughter at the Senior Citizen Activity Center continues.

Programs scheduled on a weekly basis include bowling, crafts, shuffleboard, cards, library, humanities, a weight control support group, exercise, bingo, swimming, ceramics and more.

Monthly activities include pot luck dinner, blood pressure testing, Oakland County Picture I.D. cards, day trips and extended trips, referral services, counseling, advisory board meetings and bake sales.

The center also hosts a daily lunch program sponsored by the Oakland-Livingston Human Services Agency and catered by the Northwest Oakland Vocational Education Center.

Senior citizens, age 60 and over, may participate in the lunch program. Serving time is noon daily and meals are provided on a first-come, first-served basis. Participants are urged to come early to assure adequate time to sign in. A 61-cent donation is requested.

Transportation services are also available to area senior citizens. Persons in need of a ride to the doctor, grocery store, hair dresser, senior center, or elsewhere, should call the center at 625-8231 at least 24 hours in advance. Transportation services extend to the boundaries of Independence Township.

For a free newsletter with a complete listing of monthly activities, call 625-8231.

For $3.35 a week, you can reach 15,000 people in over 4000 homes every week with an advertising message on this page. Call 625-3370 and place your message today!

God rest ye merry, gentlemen

God Rest Ye Merry, Gentlemen is another of the traditional carols for which no author is known. It has been a favorite of carolers from the times of the minstrels of old England until present day. Since neither the words nor music can be traced to an individual it is surmised that many have added their own flair to the song throughout the centuries.

The First Noël

The First Noël is one of the oldest and most mysterious of our carols. No record is known of its origin. Sir John Stainer harmonized this version from the many renditions of his day. The song is not in keeping with scripture: the shepherds didn't see the star. But the music and words of this old song remind us all of the wonder of the season.

What Child Is This?

The words What Child Is This are sung to the old English tune "Greensleeves" which was popular before the time of Queen Elizabeth. It was one of the best-liked tunes of its day and Shakespeare mentions it twice in "The Merry Wives of Windsor." The present words about the Christ Child were written by William C. Dix during the reign of Queen Victoria.

Deck the halls

Deck The Halls originated in Wales where the tradition of bringing greenery inside for Christmas was always part of the festivities. The song is now sung all over the world and 'boughs of holly' are shipped from the special places where they do grow to far away places and big cities so that we all may still Deck The Halls.

The Twelve Days of Christmas lie between December 25 and Epiphany, January 6. It was on January 6 that the Three Magi brought gifts to the Christ Child in the manger — the first Christmas gifts! It was common folk belief that on the eve of January 6 animals were given the power to speak.

This song has often been attributed to Martin Luther, although it is not confirmed that he did write it. But it does come down to us from that era, sung to the tune of a German Folk-song. It has been a favorite all these years of little children everywhere with a tune that is easy to sing and a lullaby message enjoyed by all ages.

It came upon the midnight clear

This is another of our American born carols. A Unitarian minister from Boston, Edmund H. Sears wrote the poem which was later set to music by his friend, Richard S. Willis. The real Christmas message rings out to ages in this beautiful carol written in 1849: "Peace on earth, good will toward men."

HARK! THE HERALD ANGELS SING

Written in 1730, the words to this song were inspired by the pealing of the church bells on Christmas morning. Charles Wesley was to become one of the most famous protestant hymn writers. However it was not set to music until 1840 when Dr. Cummings of Waltham Abbey fitted it to this tune by Mendelssohn. It was published as such in 1856.

Good King Wenceslas

This is a song about a king who was really a duke. Duke Wenceslas, the Holy, ruler of Bohemia was known widely for his good deeds and kindness to the poor and for his liberality at the Feast of St. Stephen celebrated on December 26. This is another of the carols whose author remains a mystery, but the Duke dates back to the 10th century, so we know at least that the song has been around for centuries.

We Three Kings is an American original. The carol has been with us over one hundred years and has become one of the most well known of all carols. Written in 1857 by John Hopkins, We Three Kings tells the story of The Three Wise Men of the Orient. These are the gifts they brought to the Christ Child, each having its special meaning.

We Three Kings is an American original. The carol has been with us over one hundred years and has become one of the most well known of all carols. Written in 1857 by John Hopkins, We Three Kings tells the story of The Three Wise Men of the Orient. These are the gifts they brought to the Christ Child, each having its special meaning.

Oh Little Town of Bethlehem

Inspired by his visit to the Holy Land, Phillips Brooks wrote this hymn for his Sunday School Class in 1868. He was rector of the Church of the Holy Trinity in Philadelphia at the time and asked the organist, Lewis Redner to set it to music. Redner says the melody came to him in a dream on Christmas Eve and that he barely had time to finish the music for the services the next day.

Joy to the World

Joy to the World was first sung in England where the father of hymns, Isaac Watts, wrote the words. The music it was originally sung to was written by Edward Hodges. But later, an American musician, Lowell Mason, revamped the old carol and put it to the music here by the composer, Handel. Joy to the World dates back to 1719 when it was first published.

I Heard the Bells on Christmas Day

Written in 1864 by Henry W. Longfellow, these words were later set to this tune by J. Baptiste Calkin. The last four bars come from an old "amen." Samuel Longfellow was better known than his brother as a writer of religious poetry, but this carol, one of the most famous, is attributed to Henry.

Angels, from the Realms of Glory

Angels, from the Realms of Glory dates back to December 24, 1816. It is attributed to James Montgomery and first appeared in a paper he edited. It was included in one of the Church of England's first hymnbooks and has been widely known in both England and America. It was formerly sung to the tune of an old French carol but is more widely known at present with the music which accompanies it here.

The Old, Old Carols

Carols have been written for all seasons of the year, but those sung at Christmas time have become so well known that generally, when we speak of carols, we mean Christmas carols. Many of our oldest carols have no known history. Even before the Christian Era, songs of this type were sung. They are the expressions of happiness of some forgotten person. Saint Francis of Assisi is said to be one of the first to make the singing of Christmas carols popular by having the story of the first Christmas enacted and accompanied by a sermon and singing.

Christmas songs became even better known through the mystery plays which dramatized scenes from the Bible. At first the songs were sung between acts, and later were woven into the plays themselves.

For many years a part of the holiday season was the singing of Christmas carols by groups of people going about from house to house. The stern Puritans forbade the singing of these happy songs, but anything so loved by the people could not die. The carols were remembered and taught to the children. In the nineteenth century carols became popular again, and the custom of community singing of Christmas carols has grown in popularity. Many fine new carols have been written, but the best loved are those that have come down to us through the centuries.
