Basinger opts not to run for village council

By Marilyn Trumper

After a year in retirement, former Clarkston Village President Fontie ApMadoc has plans for a return to the political arena with her eye on a trustee seat, and after 10 years on the council Trustee Ruth Basinger will not seek re-election.

ApMadoc sent her petition via mail to meet Tuesday's 4 p.m. filing deadline, and could not be reached for comment.

Basinger, a key figure in the recent historical ordinance controversy, said indifference over local preservation influenced her decision to retire.

"I'm not running again because to contribute my best to the village I must work with a council that recognizes the need for community cooperation, a sharing of responsibility and a caring for the legacy of the state and the nation," she said.

Asked if she was referring to repeal of the historic district ordinance Basinger answered, "That, and the way in which it was done."

Incumbent trustees David Raup, James Schultz and Clerk Norma Goyette will run unopposed to fill their two-year terms. Carol Eberhardt, appointed in September to fill a trustee vacancy, will run unopposed to fill the last year of the two-year term. ApMadoc and John Bisha of 89 N. Holcomb will battle it out for the remaining seat, with ApMadoc running on the Republican ticket and Bisha on the Democratic.

There will be no primary.

The general election is scheduled March 14.

Financial woes cited anew

Board rejects elementary phys-ed

By Kathy Greenfield

Most Clarkston schools board of education members agree on the importance of physical education for elementary school pupils, but they all agree there is not enough money to fund a program.

And the bottom line of a report by the physical education committee at last week's school board meeting was that the present parent-volunteer physical education programs underway at Bailey Lake and Clarkston elementaries have to stop because of possible liability pupils were injured.

"We are not anti-parent volunteers. I want to make that perfectly clear," said committee member Leonard Loveless. "All members on the committee were adamant they were for parent-volunteers under the supervision of a trained professional."

The committee suggested two possible programs—the first would be to hire a physical education teacher for each elementary school building at a cost of $89,330 the first year for salaries and to set up programs; the second would cost $53,598 to hire three certified physical education teachers and set up the programs. The teachers could work with the existing buildings despite their lack of gyms, he said.

After the meeting, Superintendent Milford

Mason commented on the present parent-volunteer programs.

"We would hope the people will be able to continue it throughout this year," he said, noting that Carol Zorka, co-coordinator of the Bailey Lake program, indicated it would run out of steam as volunteers move away or tire of the activity.

Zorka asked for comments from all board members about their feelings on the importance of physical education for elementary pupils.

"I'm all for a physical education program. I'm very pleased with the parent volunteers," said board member Addison Hubbard. "My only hang up right now is the money...I will continue to vote every new money request down, but I feel this is the first program that should be brought in when money is available."

Board member C. Vincent Luzi said he was a strong supporter of a physical education program.

"I think it's something the board should certainly discuss the next time it sits down to discuss priorities," he said.

Board Secretary Mary Jane Chaustowich agreed physical education is needed to meet the total curriculum needs of elementary pupils and praised other programs recently added to meet needs—the gifted education program and community education.

"The biggest problem with implementing new ideas and programs, of course, is the financial aspect," she said.

The report was good, said board Treasurer Fernando Sanchez, but his stand on physical education would continue as in the past.

"I still feel parents can do as much as the schools can do if they take the time...It would help them socially and do everything they're saying the schools could do," he said.

Board Vice President Stephen Werner said he considered elementary physical education a desirable program, but he pointed to fiscal realities.

"I feel we are going to lose programs before we can add programs and we're going to have to do that first," he said, adding that elementary physical education was not necessarily his highest priority.

Member Carolyn Place said she considers physical education to be as important as reading and mathematics.

"For all these long years, we have been short-

School board rejects Pine Knob Road paving

By Kathy Greenfield

School board members gave the cold shoulder to Independence Township's request to pay for a portion of paving Pine Knob Road from Clarkston-Orion Road to Bailey Lake Elementary School.

A vote was not taken at last week's school board meeting, but board members who spoke rejected the plan.

Phys-ed under heavy debate

changing the kids in this district," she said. "I think it needs to be a top priority.

"If we truly believe physical education is a part of a kid's education and we owe the kids that, I'm sure we'd come up with the money. We come up with the money for other programs."

Physical education for elementary pupils has always been a desirable program, said board President Janet Thomas, noting that financial restrictions have kept it out of the elementary schools.

Zorka again noted the importance of serious planning to begin a program.

"If you people do not say let's work for it, just like in a household budget, you're never going to," she said. "If you don't, it's not going to happen."

She asked Superintendent Mason to express his viewpoints.

Within the first few months after he became superintendent in 1977, the elementary physical education issue was put to a vote of the people with a request for money to build multi-purpose rooms and begin a program, Mason said, noting that it was soundly defeated.

He said he has always wanted an elementary physical education program but the people of the community have not been willing to support one.

"Most of the (surrounding school) districts have cut elementary physical education programs," he said. "That seems to be the first thing to go when economic problems (occur)."

When the physical education committee worked on the report, they were met with astonishment by professionals at two universities when it was learned there are no gyms in the elementary schools in Clarkston, said William Neff, director of elementary education in the district.

The experts also agreed the district is "kind of backwards" with physical education programs in the junior high and high school levels and nothing in the elementary schools, Neff said.

"Physical education should not be used to develop students in competitive sports, but to develop skills that could be used in changing life-styles," he said, noting that physical fitness should be a life-long objective.

When Loveless gave the committee's report, he talked about the importance of "educating the total child."

But he stressed that the committee understood the financial difficulties presently facing the district.

"A program of physical education should not be implemented at the expense of existing programs," he said. "We feel the programs that exist here are important and we feel it would be a travesty to eliminate one important program for another important program."

"People pay school taxes to educate kids, not to pave roads," said board Vice President Stephen Werner. "I think it would be improper for us now, or ever, to pay for road paving."

Township Clerk Christopher Rose brought the proposal before the school board.

The cost of paving would be about $78,000, he said, and the township would be willing to pay about $50,000 of the cost. The Oakland County Road Commission would also pay a portion of the expenses, leaving a total of $22,500 which he requested be paid by the school district.

Rose pointed to wear and tear on school buses which costs the district money. During summer months, the township parks and recreation department uses the Bailey Lake School grounds for its soccer program, he said.

"Our request is merely because you are the prinicipal user," Rose said.

"It's a very bad road and it needs some action and we came to see if there was any way you could work something in," he added, noting that the timing for the money request couldn't have been worse because the board had just rejected an elementary school physical education program for lack of money and the next agenda item was a closed session to discuss the teachers' contract negotiations still ongoing because the district says it cannot afford to give teachers a salary increase.

Pine Knob Road residents talked about the hazards resulting from heavy dust and poor vision for drivers as children cross the road to get to school.

"Personally at this time I don't see how we can commit $22,000 to improve a road," said board President Janet Thomas. "It just is a sizable amount of money that we do not have at this time."

Battle begins for cable studio in high school

By Marilyn Trumper

Bill Genshaw's locked in a tug-o-war to get Independence Township's cable TV studio located at Clarkston High School and he's gearing up for full force lobby before local officials.

Genshaw, the high school's media productions teacher, says a school studio will benefit everyone including the public and he dismisses arguments students will monopolize the site.

While hammering out specifics in contract agreements with the two bidding companies, township officials have said they will make the question of site location a separate issue to be decided later.

In the interim Genshaw says he'll strike with lightning force.

"We can offer things for a community this size because we're not situated in an area like East Lansing where a lot of (university) students would use the facility," Genshaw said. "First of all we can't monopolize it. I have only 17 kids that are part of the (media productions class) now."

"Our students will be trained to use the equipment and direct shows, they'll have the expertise and skill developed it takes to put on a decent production. It won't be "Hill Street Blues," but it won't be this blue sky stuff either."

"The best way to teach is through experience—to let these kids get right in there and learn what it's all about," he said.

Since beginning the program in 1975, 11 of Genshaw's students have gone on to professional media jobs, numbers he hopes will swell with the studio addition.

He envisions situations where community groups like the Clarkston Community Historical Society will want to produce a "how-to" series on stripping hardwood floors or eliminating 50 years of wallpaper buildup.

According to Genshaw, society members could film the show with high school students operating cameras, lights, sound and production staging.

"I know it's written in the franchise contract that the company will provide a full-time person to help operate the studio, but we can be there too," he said. "Let's face it, one person can't be there all the time."

Superintendent of Schools Milford Mason has indicated he will sign agreements restricting students' time in the studio.

"So that won't be a problem, and I don't see how (government officials) feel it will be," Genshaw said, outlining what he sees as the positives in his plan.

•Using the studio and equipment as part of the adult education program, for theater arts, the music department and athletic events.

•There's public access to the high school, a building that's open every day.

•There's an already paved, lit parking.

•Clarkston High School's a relatively centrally located site in the township.

•A working alarm system already functions.

•Maintenance would be at a minimum.

•Currently students are adept at repairs and did

$1,000 worth of work to faulty equipment last year alone saving outside professional charges.

"We just need to appeal to reason," Genshaw said. "It's common sense. Personally I feel a lot of people would like to see the business and the schools work closer together and get a good feel for what these kids can handle."

"I'd like to be able to offer these kids the skill and knowledge they can use when they go out and look for a job, and with this studio I can."

Drunk patrol

Drunk drivers, take this as fair warning.

This holiday season, the Oakland County Sheriff's Department is beefing up road patrol to nab those who drink and drive.

Now through the end of December, Alcohol Enforcement Team (AET) deputies will be out in unannounced areas of the county on evening patrols.

"We want everyone to enjoy the season. But if you over-indulge and drive and our cars stop you, you will go to jail," said Sheriff Johannes Spreen.

Since April 1980 when AET began patrols, 2,100 drunk driving arrests have been made in 10 "target areas" throughout the county, marking a 110 percent increase in drunk driving arrests over previous years.

Thanks, with sugar on top

Secrets, especially those that involve making a special gift for someone, are part of what Christmas is all about. The pupils in Pat Andrus' class at Andersonville Elementary School are busy putting together such a present in the form of a gingerbread house for their aide Pam Schoff, a University of Michigan student, of Holcomb Street, Clarkston. Putting an assortment of sweets on the roof are Matt Tretheway (left) and Steven Hunkele.

The kids made smaller versions of the gingerbread houses to take home. Stacy Carr says her favorite gingerbread house sweet is the candy-coated gum.

Brian Guber's favorite part on his gingerbread house are the chewy candy doors.

Cub Scout's act leads to Medal of Merit tribute

By Kathy Greenfield

Anthony's coolheaded action saved his mother and exemplified the Cub Scout motto, 'Do Your Best.'

—From the Medal of Merit certificate received by Tony Morrow

Like most heroes, Tony Morrow was pushed into action by the unexpected.

On April 7, 1982, his mother had a severe reaction to medication. She lost consciousness. Tony quickly called the telephone operator, tried to assist his mom and calmed his 5-year-old sister Gina until medical help arrived at their home on Warbler Lane, Independence Township.

Tony's proud he helped his mom, but he admits the memories are troubling at times.

"I still have dreams about it and stuff," said the Our Lady of the Lakes Elementary School fourth-grader.

With characteristic attention to detail, he remembered the surprise of learning he had won the Boy Scout of America's Medal of Merit for the good deed.

"I was sitting down on the bench with all my friends at the Cub Scout Pack meeting," he said. "All of a sudden, they said something happened in April they were really excited about. They said, 'Tony Morrow, come up.'"

"I couldn't get the smile off my face when I was up there," he added. "I was happy and excited I got this."

Tony's parents, Pat and Michael, were there. They had been told Tony would win the award, but Tony wasn't let in on the surprise. Pat planned to take photographs of the tribute to her son for saving her life.

"It was a nice Christmas present," she said. "I had a camera there and got so shook up...I didn't get any pictures!"

Tony's Cub Scout Den Mother Chris Angott submitted his name for the honor.

It seemed like something that should be recognized," she said.

Papers she had to provide included a form, an affidavit signed by two members of the Cub Scout Pack and her version of the story.

Bob Poole, director of support services for the Clinton Valley Council of Boy Scouts of America, had high praise for the way Tony handled what must have been a frightening situation.

"We've got a council of 14,000 to 15,000 boys. I would say on an average, life saving awards of any type, there are probably four or five given a year," he said.

To offer a comparison, the relatively uncommon Eagle Award goes to about 125 boys a year.

"So it is rare, especially for such a young boy," he said. "It was quite an exceptional thing. It's a great honor for him and his family as well as the church (Our Lady of the Lakes) that sponsors the group."

Tony Morrow still can't stop smiling as he shows his Medal of Merit awarded for saving his mom's life. In addition to the medal, Tony received an arm patch and a certificate.

Two seats open

Two positions on the Springfield Township Construction Board of Appeals will be open by the end of December.

Township Supervisor Collin Walls said the contracts of Frank Quinlan and Dale Angel will not be renewed for the following year.

"We are hoping to have the positions filled by our first meeting in January," Walls said. "The board meets only once or twice a year."

Returning to the Board will be Al Lopez, Marv Menzies and Ed Salter.

Letters to editor

Emergency help is the best

I would like to take a moment to express my sincere appreciation to the Independence Township Fire Department Emergency Services crew and Riverside Ambulance in their handling of the medical emergency at our building last week.

Thankfully the student was only bruised and not seriously injured. Dr. James O'Neill indicated that an excellent job was done in attending to our student right from the beginning.

We, in Independence Township, are very fortunate to have men of this caliber on call. Again, thank you.

Sen. Kammer bids us adieu

On leaving the Michigan State Senate, I would be remiss if I did not thank the many thousands of you who have been such good friends and supporters of Carole and myself.

The opportunity you have afforded me, to represent you in the Michigan Senate, has been the most exciting, rewarding opportunity an individual could possibly ever have.

We had some successes—the Kammer Land Trust Fund Act, Michigan's Budget and Economic Stabilization Act, the Wetlands Protection Act, the widening of M-59 and a fair number of others.

And there were times when many of you disagreed with me and my positions. But I hope you know that, through it all, I did my best to represent you and the people of this state in every way.

Michigan can be a good place to live and the task to accomplish the economic revitalization of this state is one that faces—not just legislators—but every one of us. In my own way, I hope to be a part of it.

During this Holiday Season, let Carole and I wish for you a most meaningful Christmas and the promise of a prosperous New Year. You will probably never understand the great, great honor you have given us. Our deepest, deepest thanks.

Editorial: Support local stores

Let's not forget what happened to Hudson's in Detroit as we wrap up our Christmas shopping this week.

If the people of the city continued to support a store they had come to rely on now and then rather than rushing off to shopping malls, it would have continued to provide needed services.

It seems to be a case where people believed the department store would always be there, whenever they needed it, despite their decisions to shop elsewhere.

That's certainly not the case and it will also not be the case in Clarkston, Davisburg, Ortonville and Waterford.

We all have our favorite shops. We all know where we'll be greeted with a friendly hello and be treated like a person rather than a hunk of money or a bother.

The local shops continue to be an oasis.

They continue to be some of the few places left where the people who own the shops work in them, where they care about customer satisfaction on a one-to-one level and where they know the stock well enough to offer suggestions in times of desperation.

There's only one way to keep the existing spirit alive and that's to shop in local stores.

Don't forget they need you, too.

Otherwise, we're going to end up with empty space—sort of like a Hudson's, only spread out up and down our streets.

A Christmas pageant

By Jim Sherman

When Lauren Baldwin asked me to come to her Sunday School's Christmas pageant in her barn I knew right away I was going to go.

I think if there had been a schedule conflict I would have broken it.

"We're going to have Mary come in on a pony, and there will be sheep . . ." and say no more Lauren, I'm sold.

Indeed it was my most memorable Christmas pageant, and this business has taken me to a few dozen such re-enactments of the Christ Child's birth.

The Baldwin's barn is not huge, but it is a farm barn. The heat is from the sheep. The seating was from bales of straw. The manger was a not very well-built—(sorry, Art) saw buck with a box for Baby Jesus.

Over 100 people crowded into the half of the barn not used for sheep, etc. Bundled babies were held by bundled mothers, and when Lauren suggested everyone "cuddle up" as the play started, she had good reason. Temperature was in the teens.

And the play was an absolute delight. With adults reading the story, angels appeared. They really were angels Sunday night. Dressed in sheets with cardboard wings covered in aluminum foil and laced with tinsel.

Later in the evening one angel got her tinsel too close to a goat that was fenced in the background, with the proper results. He started eating the tinsel.

Right from the beginning it was real. Don Francis was introduced to give a blessing, and just as he opened his mouth a sheep blatted.

Such was the setting. Warm, natural and wholesome.

And the shepherds came in, some in burlap, some in robes, several with rope belts around waist and head. Home made and honest.

Then the goat started eating some binder twine that was hung too close.

Enter the three wisemen, intersperse some singing by Tom and Chris Hoard, accordion playing by Lois Davisson, and some wonderful singing of old favorite Christmas carols and you have a complete evening.

"Joy to the World, the Lord is come."

"Christ the Savior is born, Christ the Savior is born."

Merry Christmas—and thanks to the Thomas Methodist Church Sunday School for helping make it merry.

The
hurrier
I go . . .

by Kathy Greenfield

The brownies were raw. The rice was hard. I was late for a concert through no fault of my own. My daughter called for a ride to buy film for a class project. I went to the wrong house, honked the horn several times and stomped up to the door.

"Will you tell Corey I'm waiting?"

"She's not here."

"Where is she?"

"I think she's at Kim's."

The day went on.

At 10:30 p.m., I was frantically reading cook books, looking for a recipe for vegetable dip that included ingredients I had on hand. Next year (grumble, grumble) I'll volunteer to bring pretzels and potato chips to the office holiday luncheon, I thought.

At 11:30 I was addressing Christmas cards to friends who live in California.

All feelings of having things sort of under control went dashing through the snow with me scrambling way behind Sunday.

Still, as the day ended, I had managed to make it through a day packed with too many things to do. At least some parts were good.

My son's choral concert was absolutely great. Seeing so many young people I've known for about six years looking so mature and sounding so good was a highlight of 1982.

For the first time I can remember, I enjoyed Christmas caroling during our annual neighborhood gathering because I didn't freeze. It was a little misty, but better frizzy than frozen.

We celebrated my husband's father's 74th birthday and it was a happy occasion. He's been seriously ill this year and it was just good to have him at our home to share the beginning of a new (and hopefully better) year.

Ready to begin a new day Monday, I arrived at work.

Karmen Smith, who's on the advertising staff of the News, greeted us all with the events of her morning.

She ran out of gas, spilled cereal down the front of her outfit, burned the quiche (for the office party) and put her thumb through a pair of panty hose.

Don't you just love her?

'If it Fitz. . .

Grandpa's not modest

by Jim Fitzgerald

According to current expert opinion, it is important for a person to know where he or she is at. That is why Emily walks sideways.

At 14 months, Emily is the youngest of my four grandchildren. Emily stayed home when I took her three cousins to see "Peter Pan." They are still young enough to get in for children's prices, indicating that if the best things in life aren't free, they are at least cheaper.

Because of my late father, I always feel a speck of guilt when I write about my grandchildren. When I was a teenager living in Port Huron, the editor-publisher of the local newspaper wrote a weekly column called "For Grandparents Only," informing readers that his grandchildren were the smartest, best-looking kids ever born. My father thought that was outrageous.

"He shouldn't bore people with that silly stuff," Dad often said. "Every grandfather is goofy about his grandchildren. That's not news. There are a lot more important things to put in the newspaper."

MY FATHER was right, of course. That's why I keep my guilt specked-sized by never putting my grandchildren in the newspaper unless their presence is required to help me make a universally relevant and newsworthy point that, in the best interest of an informed readership, far transcends the minor, yet indisputable fact that my grandchildren are the smartest, best-looking kids ever born.

For instance, I ordinarily wouldn't mention that Emily began walking at 13 months. I realize many babies start walking much earlier. But all those kids probably walk forward, or backward. They know where they're coming from, man, and where they're headed for. Which is all right in the ordinary scheme of things, I suppose.

But what's the sense in knowing where you've been or where you're going, if you don't know where you're at? By walking sideways, Emily can always see exactly where she's at.

My universally relevant, newsworthy point: Certainly there is value in recalling the past, and in contemplating the future, but either concept is valid only in relation to the present which is where you'll land if you fall down and have to be picked up and kissed.

There is no grandfatherly pride involved in this report. It is mere coincidence that the extreme importance of people knowing where they're at dawned on me while I was watching a crab, even though crabs have 10 legs and it takes a lot of crust to brag about a crustacean being able to walk sideways.

ANOTHER THING I ordinarily wouldn't mention is the way Emily plays pool. It is not easy to put the numbered balls in the pockets by using the standard method of hitting them with a white ball that must be rolled with the tiny tip of a skinny stick. So Emily has figured out an easier method. She crawls around on top of the table and uses her hands to drop the balls into the pockets from a distance of one inch.

She never misses. And I ignore adults who suggest it might be better for Emily, not to mention my pool table, if she were taught early that the game isn't that easy. My universally relevant, newsworthy point: There should be no hurry about teaching little kids that life can be tough; they'll find out soon enough.

"Not bad, uh? And at "Peter Pan," Emily's cousins—Michele, Melissa and John—were as beautifully behaved as usual, which I ordinarily wouldn't mention, except for the youngster who sat in front of us. He cried a couple of times, something that can happen to any little kid in a big theater, despite the magic of Tinker Bell and Capt. Hook. At a children's matinee, a few tears should be expected and understood.

But the child's mother hissed irritably. "He's bored. So am I. This show is too long."

My universally relevant, newsworthy point: Peter Pan was right in believing childhood can't last too long. And some adults deserve to pay the adult price.

Clarkston plans crackdown on crumbling building facades

By Marilyn Trumper

Clarkston's Village Council is gearing up to crack down on deteriorating Main Street facades.

Spurred on by Director of Building and Planning Kenneth Delbridge's warnings of falling mortar and brick, the council at its Dec. 13 meeting authorized Delbridge to inspect 12, 14 and 16 S. Main.

"We've been fooling around with this long enough," said President Jackson Byers. "I think something has to be done."

Delbridge notified the council of what he calls a "...situation that's dangerous as hell," and recommended the village attorney take immediate action forcing the landlord to make repairs.

"I've inspected it and inspected it. This goes back years," Delbridge said after the meeting. "But the problem has now become critical enough to do something in a hurry. I can't do anymore. I can't get the township's money involved. This is the village's problem. It's in their attorney's hands now."

If repairs aren't begun immediately, Delbridge said, he proposes cording off the sidewalk and closing down the building fronts to preserve the public's health, safety and welfare.

Dave McNeven, building owner, denies the facade's condition has deteriorated that far.

"We've looked into it, gotten bids (for repairs), but we're going to let it go until spring. No one's going to work on it now," he said.

Village lowers boom on gasoline station hoist

By Marilyn Trumper

What goes up must come down. And we're talking hoists, not Sir Isaac Newton's apples.

Operators of Clarkston's downtown Sunoco Service Station have a second car hoist and the village council wants it removed, alleging it's against the law.

At the Dec. 13 meeting, council members agreed to ask station owners Mark Maupin and J. William Brooks to remove the hoist, installed last month by contractors hired by Sunoco.

According to Kenneth Delbridge, director of the building and planning department, Sunoco's contractor failed to get a building permit before beginning work, a permit that would have been denied because the addition of the second hoist violates the station's non-conforming status.

Via letter, Delbridge gave the partners 15 days to remove the hoist or face prosecution from the village.

Before adding the hoist, the oil company should have received a variance from the zoning board of appeals, Delbridge said.

After being ordered by the village to remove the hoist, Maupin says he in turn notified Sunoco and dropped the problem back in their lap.

"I don't want any problems and I told (Sunoco) to get (the hoist) out. I have to live and work here. I don't want any problems," he said.

The non-conforming station, located on the corner of M-15 and Clarkston-Orion Road, was re-zoned residential several years ago and would have reverted back to single family had it remained vacant one year.

Sunoco opened shop this fall after the Union 76 station closed and left the station vacant for the summer.

"This is an unpleasant situation," said village attorney Thomas Gruich at the Dec. 13 meeting. "The addition of the second hoist allows them to do a greater volume of business and therefore changes the business. When you're a non-conforming use you can't make things bigger, you can't change your hours, you can't add hoists. You can only do what you've done in the past.

"It may be a closed question whether the addition of one hoist is going to make that much of a difference (in their business volume)," Gruich added.

President Jackson Byers pointed to the absence of a building permit saying, "I feel we ought to come down on them if only for that."

Second partridge breaks glass

If the Reene family had one wish for 1983, it probably would be that the partridges stay in the pear trees.

When they returned to their home on South Eston Road in Independence Township Dec. 12, Bonnie and Don Reene's son Mark spotted a broken window in the breezeway and thought vandals had struck. Looking for a rock, he found the culprit—a partridge.

"That's when it really startled him, that it would happen twice," said Bonnie. "It's just hard to believe, but in October of 1981 we had a partridge come through our living room window."

The latest partridge weighed only about 1 1/2 pounds.

"It came with such force that we had glass all over the room," she said.

The Reenes live across the street from an open field and birds frequently hit their windows, are dazed a bit and fly away. The only time they've even seen partridges have been the two times they broke windows and were killed in the crashes.

"We don't know why they picked our house. Nobody in the neighborhood has these problems that we know of," Bonnie said. "When (the other partridge) hit in October, my husband, being a hunter, had heard they may get into berries that are overripe and cause them to get drunk."

That theory has to be set aside because of the cold weather, she said. In any event, she wishes the partridges would stay away from their windows.

"It's getting a little expensive," she said.

Sunshine vacation

Residents can make plans now to provide warm thoughts to make it through the coming cold months.

A two-week trip to the Sunshine State from April 2-15 is offered through the Independence Township Parks and Recreation Department.

The ticket price includes round trip bus transportation, hotel/motel accommodations, baggage handling, sight seeing enroute, and admission to the Everglades Airboat ride, John F. Kennedy Space Center, Disney World and the Epcot Center.

For more information, call the parks and recreation department at 625-8223.

Flock of good books for Christmas gifting

If you have any last-minute shopping or need a gift for someone who has everything, there is a spectacular flock of good books for bird and animal lovers.

One of the best this season is "Lords of the Arctic" by Richard Davis, an unparalleled journey among the magnificent polar bears. The 64 pages of color photographs are full of life and motion, and are communicative of the personalities of these great beasts. The book is $29.95.

"The Falcons of the World" by Tom Cade and Cornell University Press presents these noble birds in all of their glory. There are 39 color plates and some double spreads, making this book a thing of beauty. It is $38.50.

The British TV series "Nature" has a book out called "The Flight of the Condor" by producer Michael Andrews. Much of the book is photographed in the remote Tierra del Fuego in the Andean Mountains. The story outlines the high adventure hardships and dangers involved in tracking these birds.

Publisher is Little Brown and it is $24.95.

"Animals Who's Who" by R. Remain is a witty, entertaining collection of biographical features on animals of myth and legend, literature and popular culture. The book brims with fun and fact and the famous in the animal world. It is $17.95.

Animal behavior is gaining popularity as citizens demand better accommodations for zoo animals and better treatment of theater and film objects. Another in the British "Nature" series is "The Discovery of Animal Behavior" which examines the latest research in animal, bird and insect behavior along with putting history in perspective to mythology, etc. It is a Little, Brown book, also at $24.95.

"Animal Artisans" by Michael Allaley goes from detailing behavior from beaver dams to birds' nests, aphids and water spiders. It is fascinating!

The Sierra Club has its brand of animal behavior in a book called "An Almanac of Animal Courtship and Parenting" by Lorus and Marjory Milne. The book is organized by months of the year and tells who does what each month. It is very good popular zoology.

"Winter of the White Seal" by Marie Herert is reminiscent of Jack London's struggle against the elements. The scene is Georgia Island in the Falklands. Her hero is a member of the British seal hunting trade who finds himself abandoned on an island. In his harrowing efforts at survival, he befriends a white seal. It is a wonderful book for young and old alike.

Stay off lakes

The ice on area lakes is not safe, warns Independence Township Fire Chief Frank Ronk.

"It's soft ice and you can't trust it. I echo what the state police and Oakland County Sheriff's Department say. Wait until it's five inches thick before you take a snowmobile out and two to four inches before you fish or skate on it."

Ronk warns against treading ice near river and stream inlets and outlets and over springs where a steady flow of water keeps the ice surface thin.

"If someone goes through, the first thing to do is call (the fire department) and police, in that order. Get someone locally on the scene right away," he said.

"Have a ladder or rope or something handy to push across the ice or throw to the person who's gone through so they can hold onto it. They're only going to last a few minutes in that cold water so you have to get something to them right away."

McTeer, The Clarkston News advertising manager, and Greenfield, editor, were particularly impressed with the detail work on the angel's wings, the gift wrapping and Joey's pleasing combination of bright, cheerful colors.

Winning the $10 first prize in the 8-10 age group was Joanie Downs, 10, of Kropf Avenue, Springfield Township.

Joanie's use of gold glitter to offset her carefully crayoned picture was something no one else did. Also unique to the contest were her branches of red for the rabbits' Christmas tree and her choice of red, gray, black and white for the picture of elves building a boat.

Honorable mention—and a candy cane—go to all others who entered the News coloring contest. Winners of the Christmas treat can stop by the News office, 5 S. Main, Clarkston, weekdays between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. to claim their reward for jobs well done.

LaPiazza now seats 50 diners

By Marilyn Trumper

With his sites aimed at landing a liquor license after 12 months of successful operation, Allie Assad has opened his full-service restaurant, LaPiazza Family Dining, at Clarkston-Orion and Eston roads.

There's seating for 50 inside the lattice and stucco walls surrounded by an old world Italian motif, black leather-like brass studded chairs and plenty of plant greenery.

Assad opened Dec. 10, and says he's enjoyed brisk business.

An extensive menu offers four veal dishes, chicken cacciatore and scaloppine, cod filets, clam strips, barbecued chicken and ribs.

There's pasta galore with spaghetti, ravioli, lasagna, gnocchi and rigatoni; and in the sandwich line there's steak, ham and cheese, pizza and vegetarian subs.

There's also a salad selection, pizza and soups. "We feel great to get (the) ordeal (of opening) over and concentrate on the business end of it," Assad said. "I feel good about the restaurant, especially with the prices we have on the menu and the specials, and we're going to try and run a daily special too."

Last July the Independence Township Board agreed to consider awarding Assad a Tavern License after expansion of the take-out pizza restaurant and donut shop, and 12 months of "successful" operation.

LaPiazza Family Dining is open from 4 to 10 p.m. Monday thru Thursday, and Friday and Saturday until midnight.

The pizza take-out is open every day from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m.

Views from the balcony

by Scott Embrey

Editor's note: Scott Embrey and his wife Sandra moved to Lima, Peru, in July when he took position teaching English and American history to seventh- and eighth-graders at Instituto Educacional Franklin Delano Roosevelt. Embrey's parents, Bruce and Lucy, moved to the Clarkston area when he was 3. He graduated from Clarkston High School and Oakland University, Rochester.

The cathedral bells begin ringing at 8 a.m. each Sunday, as they have for over 450 years, and slowly, very slowly, the sprawling city of Lima, Peru, starts to stir and face a new day.

From the streets below, noises that have become commonplace to us by now begin to filter through our windows and open balcony doors.

The squeeze bicycle horn of the of the pan-man (bread vendor), the cry of the bottle-man calling out "botea" as he pedals through his neighborhoods seeking empty bottles, or the ring of the D'onofrio ice cream cart, all signal a new day.

Orchestrated amid the barking of dogs, the crowing of backyard chickens and the cooing of Lima's large dove population, we put on the coffee and begin another exciting weekend in Lima, capitol city of Peru.

My wife Sandy and I have been in Lima since July 16, 1982. The series of events that placed us here foreshadowed the life-style we will no doubt continue to lead during our two-year stay, a rapid tempo full of surprises.

On May 14, 1982, Dale Swall, superintendent of Colegio Franklin D. Roosevelt, the American School of Lima, phoned me directly in California and asked if I was still interested in a teaching position.

I had nearly given up hope, as my application and resume sent five months earlier had been answered, saying there were no current openings.

Now I had them on the line and the hook was set!

Was I still interested? Is the sky blue?! Have camera, will travel.

Hours of my youth had been spent "seeing" the world via National Geographic. Now I could actually climb over Machu Picchu, catch rainbow trout on Lake Titicaca and float down the Amazon, all within Peru's borders.

I said yes to Mr. Swall's offer.

My first priority, indeed my most important, was to phone my parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Embrey, 30-year residents of Clarkston, and inform them of my decision.

They have for years given acceptance to my travels, while quietly holding in their reservations about it. Of course they wished I would have remained in Michigan after graduating from college. Instead I preferred Northern California. Now South America!

I know it was difficult for them to accept, but they wished us the best. From their letters and phone calls, I can tell their Spanish is coming along beautifully. We are excited, for they plan on visiting us during 1983.

Upon arriving in Lima at the Jorge Chavez Aeropuerto, our 700 pounds of luggage was whisked through customs without a hitch.

Deciding what to take abroad for two years is no easy task. After magically maneuvering all our "wordly" possessions into a storage garage in Northern California, we then began to plan our Lima list.

"I'll trade you one pair of running shoes for your three cookie sheets."

Our wits and patience were as taut as the cables on the Golden Gate Bridge.

Now, however, the cookie sheets have a place in the kitchen, the running shoes are well used and the original five pounds of salt that Sandy smuggled in must soon be replenished.

"Every country in the world must have a salt supply, what did you bring salt for?"

"I wasn't sure," came her reply.

Why argue, we were here!

And what a city Lima is! Summer is just around the corner. It will be well-established by Christmas. The many parks are full of flowers in bloom, with colors and fragrances that make Sunday walks a rewarding experience.

The bull-fighting season, which attracts the best matadors in the world, has just ended. Lima boasts the oldest bull ring in the New World and the second oldest ring in the world, the Plaza de Acho. Only Seville, Spain, can claim one with a longer heritage.

It would be unfair to compare a bull fight to any of the spectator sports we support in the United States. One notices a deep sense of pride and tradition on the faces of young and old alike. The custom and pageantry are without equal. It is not cruel and unfair. Slaughterhouses are cruel and unfair.

Every so often a magical combination, a bond full of energy and excitement exists between the matador and his 1,200 pound, 4-year-old adversary, that only your respect and admiration can be paid to them. Certainly not your disgust. I will buy season tickets for next year's card.

We spent Thanksgiving in the small town of Huaraz in the Andes. Huaraz has long been a haven for mountain climbers and fishermen. We did both.

I think my biggest thrill of one-and-one-half years of marriage was watching Sandy land a spunky 12-inch rainbow. What a thrill! We camped out that night at 15,000 feet, under stars you swear you can reach out and touch. It was a part of the Peru I came to see.

In January and February, "summer" south of the equator, we will continue our travels. More planes, more buses, more trains, more campsites, more trout. February will find us touring the tiny but colorful country of Ecuador.

I will write again of our travels in the months ahead. Until then, Feliz Navidad everyone!

Wolves win two record now 4-1

By Dan Vandenhemel

Two more games, two more wins for the Clarkston High School varsity basketball team.

After an exciting 56-54 overtime win against Davison on Dec. 14, the Wolves walked over Waterford Township 60-39 Friday to raise their record to 4-1.

"I'm always pleased with a win," Wolves coach Dan Fife said. "I didn't think we should have gone into overtime. There were some player- and coaching mistakes. We're still young and inexperienced and are not working together well yet."

Mike McCormick led Clarkston in scoring both nights with 21 against Davison and 18 against Waterford. Ray Kubani added 13 and 16 points.

McCormick made a three-point play late in the overtime period against the Cardinals to put the Wolves up by one, 55-54, and seal the victory.

"We got careless late in the game and made some mistakes," Fife said. "We turned the ball over too often and too easily."

Against Waterford, Clarkston held only an eight-point lead at halftime, then outscored Waterford 18-6 in the third quarter.

"They were small," Fife said. "Their tallest player was only around 6-foot-3 or 6-foot-4. They couldn't get in our zone. McCormick shot real well from the outside, which helped."

"Over Christmas break we'll be able to work on our ball handling and how well we move the ball up and down the floor," he added. "The break is important because you can work on all the things that need work. We can solidify our offense and our defense."

Clarkston-Davison basketball game.

Ray Kubani goes up for two of his 16 points against Davison. The Wolves beat the Cardinals in overtime, 56-54.

Wrestlers finish 14th in Oakland tourney

By Dan Vandenhemel

The Clarkston High School wrestling team stayed undefeated in dual meets but fell short in the Oakland County Tournament on Dec. 17 and 18, placing 14th out of 43 teams.

"We lost some real close matches the first day of the tournament," Wolves' coach Rick Detkowski said. "We lost three on criteria after the matches finished in a tie. After that we weren't in contention anymore."

Clarkston placed only three of their wrestlers in the second day of the tournament with Greg Ellis being the only champion. Jeff Lawrance at 132 pounds finished third and 112-pound Al Wall placed fifth. Ellis, wrestling at 105 pounds, raised his season record to 12-0.

"He did an great job throughout the tournament," Detkowski said. "He won the final match 13-3, he totally destroyed his opponents."

Dean Buchanan at 119 pounds won two matches on Friday but needed a third win to advance to Saturday's matches. Winning once on Friday were Denny Lankton at 126 pounds, Brian Dennison at 155 pounds, Brad Moshier at 185 and Keith Edwards at 198 pounds.

In a dual meet against Waterford Township on Thursday, Dec. 16, the Wolves won 47-24.

"The match was closer than the score shows," Detkowski said. "They could have beaten us if they won the last three matches."

Winning for Clarkston were Rocky Tucker at 98 pounds, Ellis at 105 pounds, Wall at 112 pounds, Lawrance at 138 pounds, Dennison at 155 pounds, Mike Wandorf at 167 pounds, Edwards at 198 pounds and heavyweight Willie Williams.

"They're coming around," Detkowski said. "They see they have the potential, but are still learning. We still have a long way to go this season. There are still a lot of improvements that we need to do. But we'll improve."

Rochester West beats CJH

The Clarkston Junior High basketball team dropped its record to 0-3 with a 62-39 loss to Rochester West Junior High last week.

The Wolverines were down 14-9 at the end of the first quarter and trailed 27-17 at the half.

"We had totally too many turnovers," coach Dave Smith said. "Our rebounding was just average. We gave up a lot of second and third shots."

Joe Nephler led Clarkston with eight points and Mike Walters had eight rebounds.

"Rod Parke did a good job of coming off of the bench to score seven points," Smith said. "He only played about six minutes of the game."

"We didn't score for the first four minutes of the game," he added. "We put ourselves in a hole early. We tried to pick up the pace on defense. This was our worst game of the first three. I felt we were a better team than the last two teams we played. We should be 2-1 instead of 0-3. Waterford-Crary is the only team that should have beaten us. This was a total disaster."

Dale Traver (No. 54) of Sashabaw Junior High goes up for a tip-off against Scott Kreutzers of Walled Lake Central. The Cougars beat Walled Lake for their first win of the year.

Sashabaw wins first game

Walled Lake Central first victim

Despite starting the game with five technical fouls, the Sashabaw Junior High Basketball team beat Walled Lake Central Junior High 53-47 Dec 13.

"We could have started the game behind 7-0 if they would have made all five technicals and made the next basket," Cougar coach Lance Baylis said. "We got those technicals because we had the wrong player numbers in the official scorebook."

Mike Peterson led the Cougars with 22 points and Dale Traver and Dave Baran each had eight rebounds.

"Jim Ruelle played fantastic defense," Baylis said. "He caused a lot of turnovers. Steve Weidemann ran our offense real well. He is still learning to play the point guard position and still played well.

"We still made a lot of mistakes but we are making fewer mistakes," he said. "We were only down by one at the half and down by three going into the fourth quarter.

"We were less uptight during this game that we were in the first game," he said.

The Cougars are now 1-1 for the season with this win the first victory for Baylis as a coach.

"I felt great, I was all smiles after the win," he added.

CJH Wrestlers start season with mix-up

Because of a scheduling mix-up, the opening meet of the season for the Clarkston Junior High wrestling team against Bloomfield Hills Junior High on Dec. 15 turned into a scrimmage.

"Just as we were pulling into their junior high, they were just getting ready to leave," Wolverine coach Dave Stobbe said. "Both schools had the meet scheduled as an away meet. There wasn't enough time to find an official in such short notice so we just had a scrimmage with our assistant coach Craig DeLowe as the official. The meet has been rescheduled for Jan. 3 at Bloomfield."

If points were kept, Clarkston would have won the scrimmage 65-15. CJH won 11 out of the 15 matches, seven were by pins. Pat Cassin at 178 pounds recorded the fastest pin in 46 seconds. Dan Stuk at 84 pounds and Todd Edmunds at 138 pounds each had pins in under one minute. Stuk pinned his opponent in 49 seconds and Edmunds won in 56 seconds.

Others winning on pins were: Rob Lund at 98 pounds, Brent Gwisdala at 105 pounds, Scott Emery at 112 pounds and Jeff Valenzuela at 126 pounds. Pete Sans at 132 pounds won by a superior decision 16-3. Winning by forfeit were Jason Valenzuela at 76 pounds, Rick Keetch at 155 pounds and Garrett Bass at 167 pounds.

"I was surprised that they (Bloomfield) only had 15 wrestlers on the team," Stobbe said. "But with a small team, you can teach them a lot more than when you have a large team. You can get more done in the practices. On the other hand a large team can give the varsity wrestlers a workout during the practice."

A presentation of "Twas the Night Before Christmas" wouldn't be complete without kids asleep while "visions of sugar plums danced in their heads." That's the role of Becky Gully.

Holiday variety show

"Santa's New Look" is the story of a Santa who went on a diet and was kicked out of a house for being an imposter. He ate and ate and ate and returned looking more like his jolly old self. Playing the skinny Santa is Todd Breadon.

Members of the kindergarten class at Andersonville Elementary watch with interest the rehearsal of a play put on by pupils in Sherril Bailey's class. The sixth-graders performed their Holiday Variety Show Friday night for their parents and families.

Mr. and Mrs. Glen Milner

Milner, Roy exchange vows

Traci Roy and Glenn Milner's wedding date hinged on when her husband-to-be would be granted leave time from the United States Air Force, so when the call came through Nov. 21 only 13 days remained to make all the plans.

They made it! Traci and Glen were married Dec. 4 at 2 p.m. at Calvary Lutheran Church on Bluegrass Drive in Independence Township.

The bride wore her Aunt Linda Kath's wedding gown which had a floor-length veil.

Bridesmaids were the bride's sister, Robyn Roy, and the bridegroom's sister, Dorothy Milner. Both wore burgandy floor-length gowns.

Serving as the bridegroom's attendants were Greg Duda and the bride's brother, Greg Roy.

The bride's parents are Richard Roy of Westview Drive, Independence Township, and Kay Kelley of Clintonville Road, Independence Township.

The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Don Milner of Kingfisher Lane, Independence Township.

Traci and Glen will be residing at Offitt Air Force Base, Nebraska.

Club notes

Veterans of World War I of Clinton Valley Barracks 2803 and Auxilians enjoyed their Christmas dinner and party at the Springfield Township Hall, Davisburg, Saturday, Dec. 11.

A goodly number were present, many making a special effort at this time of year to come and join in the festivities.

No business meeting was held, just a plain, old-fashioned Christmas party which ended up with all playing bingo.

New arrival

Sue Dayton called from Naples, Fla., to share the news of the birth of her and her husband Dennis' first child, Kathlene Marie.

Kathlene was born Nov. 24. She weighed 7 pounds 9 ounces and measured 19½ inches long.

Grandparents are former Clarkston residents Mr. and Mrs. John Sackrider Sr. of Naples; and Mr. and Mrs. F.P. Dayton Sr., also of Naples.

Great-grandparents are Mrs. E.C. Sackrider and Mr. and Mrs. C.E. Arnold, all of East Lansing.

Christmas in Clarkston

It's Christmas time in Clarkston,
You can feel the joy abound!
It's Christmas time in Clarkston
When townsmen gather round,
To share a special feeling,
From this quaint and sleepy town.
With Main Street's stately houses
Adorned with holiday cheer,
And store fronts gayly saying
St. Nick's arrival is near.

It's Christmas time in Clarkston,
You can hear the church bells ring!
It's Christmas time in Clarkston
When men lift their heads and sing,
Of "Peace on Earth," "Good will" to all,

A mighty shout for this town so small.
And yet amid all the holiday rush,
There's a tranquillity that seems to prevail,
Of family ties and years of friendships
In which the cherished streets enveil.

It's Christmas time in Clarkston,
Excitement fills the air!
It's Christmas time in Clarkston,
Craft bazaars seen everywhere,
As friends exchange a laugh or two,
While purchasing gifts so rare.
And when families gather together,
Where joy and love is found,
I hope they'll give a word of thanks,
To share Christmas in this peaceful town.
Jeanne (Shoots) Simonson

Thank you just for being here

I came to the village of Clarkston one day looking for shelter, a place to stay.
Here I found some friendly folk who gave me a kind invite to rent a small apartment, much to my delight.
I moved myself into the room and shortly bid good-bye to gloom
'Cause Clarkston is a place, you see,
that's almost living fantasy.
Christmas time was coming soon,
and here's what happened outside my room,
Holiday spirits walked the streets giving out kindness to all they'd greet.

Smiles floated gaily by and everyone of them said, "hi!"
Seeds of love some would sew,
and most of them would surely grow.
There were packages of poetry,
there were bundles of romance.
A lady opened one of them,
and she began to dance.
Snow was falling softly
and danced with much delight
As it dusted the magical Mill Pond
just up and to the right.
So fantasy or reality—
which was really there
When Clarkston shook my hand with tenderness and care?
'Cause poetry and romance, too live right here 'mongst me and you.
So in this place of fantasy,
a page right out of poetry
Dreams really do come true—
I see it in the face of you!
I want each of you to hear a thank you whispered in the village ear,
Thank you just for being here,
And a happy, happy New Year!

Recipe file

By Lorna Bickerstaff

This time of year, many homemakers are using nuts in the shell. To make the job of removing the shells easier, here are a few suggestions from Ann Farrington, home economist from the Oakland County Cooperative Extension Service.

Pecans

Soak 6-8 hours in cold water solution—½ cup salt to 3 pints water. Drain and crack.

Walnuts

Hold the nut so it stands on the flat end. Strike the pointed end with a sharp blow with a hammer.

Brazil Nuts

After 24 hours in the freezer, shells become so brittle they will yield to gentle cracking. Another method is to cover with cold water, bring to a boil, boil 3 minutes and drain. Cover with cold water. Let stand one minute. Drain and crack.

Chestnuts

With a sharp knife, cut across on the flat side of each chestnut. Spread the chestnuts in a shallow pan (15½ inch by 10½ inch). Add ¼ cup water and bake in a very hot oven (450 degrees) 15 minutes or until the shells are open. Peel with a sharp knife while still hot. The inner brown skin is bitter and must be pulled off while still warm. Thirty-five to 40 large chestnuts make 2½ cups peeled. Do not substitute horse chestnuts or buckeyes; they are inedible.

It is sometimes necessary to blanch the nuts after shelling to remove the inner brown skin, as will almonds and Brazil nuts. To blanch, cover the shelled nuts with cold water. Bring to a boil. Simmer 2-3 minutes. Drain. Add cold water. Drain. Pinch each nut to slip off skin.

Christmas spirit

"What Christmas Means to Me" and poems about Christmas are the creations of fifth- and sixth-grade pupils in Duane Proctor's Bailey Lake Elementary School class.

Christmas is a time for giving gifts to people. On Christmas Jesus Christ was born. Christmas is a time of rejoicing. Christmas is a time of being kind and showing love to one another. Christmas is a time of sharing things and giving food to needy people. That's what Christmas means to me.

E. Marie Novak

Christmas means the Jesus was born. It means happiness and joy and kindness and love and joy.

Renata Srugis

Christmas is the time for giving, sharing and having fun, the fun of sharing and giving, fun and joy, but the best of all is giving presents, presents, presents.

Pat Eschker

I like Christmas because we go to grandma's and I like presents and the school vacation.

Steve Christensen

Christmas toys and more toys. Seeing relatives and cousins. And parties and no work to do on Christmas. But also Jesus was born on Christmas day. And we're supposed to be good.

Joey Rayner

Christmas is where you eat turkey and open presents and you meet relatives and it's very fun.

Diann Peloquin

Christmas time is the holiday I like best, not because of receiving gifts but because everyone always seems so happy. I love decorating my Christmas tree, and I love the lights people put on their houses. When I come home from school and my mother has been decorating I get all excited. I hope the lake freezes before x-mas vacation so I can x-country ski and skate. We always have a big dinner on x-mas, with ham and potatoes and pie. And then two days after x-mas is my birthday.

Alicia Nyberg

Christmas is a time for joy and love, where you exchange presents and put up a beautiful Christmas tree. You make cookies and candy, and little children dream about Santa Claus. Lights flash, icicles sparkle. Oh, isn't Christmas beautiful!

Jessica Smith

Christmas means to me happiness, caring, loving and giving. I like Christmas a lot because I like to give, care and love people.

Michele Covault

Christmas is near,
A time for joy, a time for cheer.
The carolers sing their song,
Happily we sing along.
When night time comes the day is done,
Everyone dreams of the morning sun.
When we awake and look under the tree,
What should we see but presents for me.
Tammy Clark

To give out presents and receive presents from other people. To sing songs and to be very happy. To be thankful for everything and everyone. To be very thankful to Jesus and everything He has done for us. It is very joyful to me with Christmas trees, lights, songs and carols. Everything is so nice with snowmen and people playing. But when it's over, everything is back to normal.

Jeff Forbes

Christmas is a time to be jolly, with mistletoe and Christmas holly, with sleigh rides and all aglow Christmas trees that little children jump around with glee. But! Beware of the mistletoe, people always say, their faces all aglow. Boys and girls should never go directly under the mistletoe. Christmas time, my friends is a time for joy and happiness.

A. Cumming

When we hear reindeer,
We have fear
To go near.
But when they're gone, it seems so
Long before Christmas comes again.

Stacie Roland

On Christmas day we came down the stairs
And we saw the sparkles,
We didn't know what it was—
So we ran down the stairs to see
It was a beautiful Christmas tree
With tinsel, garlands, bulbs, lights and gifts.
Scott Weaver

Christmas is a time for caring,
For giving, loving and sharing.
And outside the snow is white.
And kids are having a snowball fight.
Christmas is almost here.
So let out a big cheer.
Rhonda Tokisch

Christmas is a time for joy
Christmas will bring a toy
Christmas is snow white
Christmas is full of bright
Christmas is for everyone
Christmas is to have fun
Christmas is to give
Christmas is to live
So Christmas is for love

Just for you

Larry
 Christmas is approaching and I know it's going to be a very special holiday for you and me
 Three years ago on New Year's Eve we met little did I know that was a night
 I would never forget
 It was cold and dark and I was so alone
 I hurt inside so desperately, little did I know that my life
 would change that night
 I was sitting at my table
 remembering past years
 Then upon my cheeks
 came some tears
 Then I thought to myself, life has been good to me
 I have beautiful children who are out this eve
 and I have good health
 But still there was something missing
 I needed a hug and some tender kissing
 I needed a love I had never known and then came a ring from the telephone Little did I know sitting there alone that at last Pince Charming had come along
 It was a fairy tale romance and courting too
 Then we were wed
 both dressed in blue
 It was a fine church service
 our kids were there too
 You have made my life
 whole and complete
 This I have written for you, my husband, best friend and constant companion
 My love for you grows with every day and night
 I am—because of you!
 I love you and need you
 and just wanted to say
 Happy Anniversary to you on our special day!

Country Classic: Timeless look

The business card reads: "Fashion of timeless tradition."
 And that's exactly what hangs on the racks and fills the sweater nooks at Country Classic in the Village of Ortonville.

Owner/manager Diane Purdy has carefully

Diane Purdy's new shop, Country Classic, in the Village of Ortonville is filled with stylish, traditional clothes, everything from pants to sweaters, blazers to blouses and belts. Diane and partner/mother Burlett Purdy opened the business Nov. 1 on Mill Street.

selected moderately priced, quality classic slacks, sweaters, blouses, skirts and blazers to fit the clothing needs of any woman independent of today's pull to high-energy fashion frenzy.

"Garland," "Hang Ten" and "Ship'n Shore" are just a sampling of the brand names available.

Since its Nov. 1 opening, Country Classic's enjoyed what Diane describes as a "nice, consistent and growing" business.

"We're already thinking spring and I'm still into winter with the sweaters and everything," Diane said. "Spring fashion will be bright colors, very cheerful, stripes, lots of pinks and greens."

Open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday and Friday until 8 p.m., Country Classic is located at 331 Mill. There's parking in the rear.

Bowling at times can be fun

By Dan Vandenhemel

The Clarkston (Mich.) News, Wed., Dec. 22, 1982, 27

Bowling used to be so much fun. I can remember, when I was just starting to bowl in a youth league, how much fun it was being with my friends, meeting new friends but, most importantly, I was bowling.

I had dreams and expectations of becoming a pro bowler. Watching Earl Anthony and Dick Weber throwing all of those strikes made it look so easy. Besides bowling every Saturday morning in the league, I bugged my parents to take me bowling all the other days of the week too.

Sunday afternoons quickly became the family bowling outing. My brother also liked to bowl which made for a great rivalry. We would root against each other and jump for joy when the other missed.

Our parents were a big help in the fundamentals of the game. At home, they taught us how to walk straight to the foul line and have a straight arm-swing. This was fine, but we liked to get on the lanes and try to outscore each other.

One fateful day seven years ago when I was 15, I got my first 200 game. I felt great, I couldn't believe that I threw a 200 game. At the time my average was around 140 and I was thinking to myself that this was the best sport in the world.

A year later, our team, called Herb's Gin Mill, ran into a good stretch of luck. We finished first in the league, then we entered the state team tournament. We finished first in the regionals and went on to the state finals. In the last squad of the last day of the finals, we out-bowled everyone for the title.

That's when bowling was fun.

Soon I would be too old for the fun youth leagues and it was time to join the men's leagues. I couldn't believe a person could have fun and make money at the same time.

I loved the game so much, I got a job in a bowling center. For four years I had all the bowling I wanted and then some. The first couple of years I practiced about 100 games a week. This did a lot to improve my game, but it also gave me the idea to keep working on it and maybe turn pro.

I came back to reality when I started college and still held down the job at the bowling center. Practice time was almost non-existent, but there was still time for a couple of leagues.

A friend, who has since turned professional, was coaching me with my bowling. He told me about an organization that is like the pro tour but is for the 190-average-and-under bowlers. There were five games of qualifying, then the top 48 bowl head-to-head until one bowler has gone undefeated for the championship.

In my first Mid-State Masters tournament, I made the top 48 cut and won my first match. My second match was against the friend who told me about it and he rolled a 299 to my 180. I averaged just over 200 for the seven games and that was the best I had every done in a sanctioned event.

That was two years ago, when I got my first taste of winning money at the game that I loved. Now in my third year, I finally won my first tournament, bringing home a huge four-foot trophy.

But something is missing. I still love the game. I still have some fun bowling, but something is missing. Those Saturday mornings, when the score really didn't matter as long as you had fun, are gone.

Now I bowl in high average senior house league, but I worry too much about the score and about how much money could be won instead of just having fun. If a bowler has a bad night, he feels like he let the team down. If he bowls badly in a tournament, he can't blame anyone else but himself.

I wish I could bring back those great Saturday mornings when the most important thing was just having fun.

Nicole Tressel likes all of the decorations around the house at Christmas time. "I like putting them up, but not so much when we have to take them down."

MERRY
XMAS

Old-fashioned building blocks say it all in a holiday message to visitors.

Stuffed animals give the house a friendly, personal touch during the season.

An old-fashioned Christmas

There is nothing better than an old-fashioned Christmas says Diane Tressel of Independence Township.

"An old-fashioned Christmas is really nice, especially in Clarkston," she said. "Main Street in Clarkston is beautiful during Christmas."

It takes the Tressel family two weeks to set up and take down their holiday decorations.

"I think the family is more appreciative of the homemade and handmade ornaments," Diane said.

—Dan Vandenhemel

Ornaments made out of bread dough and hair decorate the shelves around the house.

As she holds the family cat, maybe Nicole is wondering what Santa Claus will bring.

One of two Christmas trees brightens the upper level of the tri-level home.

Nicole looks at an old-fashioned cradle that sits in front of the downstairs Christmas tree.

Some of the antiques date back to the 1870s and most are handmade.
