Schools to request summer taxes

By Marilyn Trumper

Despite November's advisory ballot against bi-annual tax collection, the Clarkston School Board at its Jan. 10 meeting voted unanimously to request summer taxes be levied in Independence, Springfield, White Lake and Waterford townships.

The move follows adoption of a new state law allowing school districts to mandate school tax collection in June. In the past schools could make the request and be denied by local government.

According to Superintendent Milford Mason, collecting half the taxes in June will save the district hundreds of thousands in interest, paid when the schools are forced to borrow money to meet operating expenses. Last year the Clarkston School District borrowed $4.2 million and paid approximately $215,000 in interest. In addition the schools are bracing for a $400,000 cut from the state in February, a cut that will drain the fund balance even more.

"As one who will lose interest in the prospect and one who has a student in the schools, I urge you to adopt it," said the Rev. Robert Walters of Church Street, Independence Township.

Robert Olsen of Langle Drive agreed.

"I have to say that while there was an advisory vote against it, things have changed since then. We're expected to lose money from the state and according to tonight's reports, we may not even get our February payment. We need to do this.

"If it will reduce the cost of borrowing money, I'm in favor of it."

Keith Humbert of Snowapple Drive argued against the summer tax.

"This went to an advisory vote and the people of this township turned it down. I'm wondering if there's even any need for discussion. It appears each one of you has made up your mind."

Charles Miracle agreed.

"I've already paid my taxes. I'm on a fixed income. I don't see why the schools can't do what I do—go from week to week," he said.

Board President Janet Thomas stressed the law provides for hardship cases.

"But it's up to those people to educate themselves about that," Thomas said.

If Independence Township refuses to collect the summer tax the schools are expected to make that request of the county. Oakland County is on record agreeing to the collection for a 1 percent fee, a fee that will be paid by taxpayers.

By law, the school district must make the township a second offer if it refuses the first time. And if both governments refuse, the schools can collect the tax itself.

Mason has also been directed to negotiate a collection fee with the township.

Breaking the ice

Bundled against the chill, Tony Porritt and Anne-Marie Avetta begin carving their way through the Mill Pond's ice. Last summer's bluegill fishing proved good so the pair returned this past weekend from their Flint homes for a second try at the local water.

Mediator expected to give verdict in 30 days

By Marilyn Trumper

It will be at least 30 days before the mediator makes a recommendation to the Clarkston School Board on the teachers' request for a 7.5 percent raise, following seven hours of intense factfinding behind closed doors Friday.

President of the Clarkston Education Association Allen Bartlett, refused to speculate on the mediator's recommendation, adding the Feb. 11 deadline for both sides to submit final briefs "was a little later than we had wanted."

Teachers in the Clarkston School District have worked without a contract since last August and after narrowing the issues to salary in October, agreed with the school board to advisory factfinding in an effort to resolve the dispute without a strike.

The school district is on record refusing raises, saying there is no money and entered negotiations with that position.

Bartlett continues to disagree.

"I say that's not true. Anyone who looks at the audit will see the $1.17 million in fund equity. The teachers are getting very upset.

"We were looking at a multi-year contract with no increase the first year but a percentage increase in the second year. Brandon negotiated no increase other than increments and five percent the next year. Holly one percent this year, 6 1/4 in the second year and 6 percent in the third. Oxford is zero this year and 6 percent next year."

"Our position is we cannot accept a one-year contract and that's what the board wants. Our board won't consider any more than that. When the mediator makes his recommendation we'll look at that impact in terms of settlement and strategy. In

Public meeting set for federal flood insurance

By Marilyn Trumper

Did stories of Louisiana's recent rising flood waters find you caulking the rowboat?

Are you fearful the depths of Sashabaw Creek will rise this year, or the Mill Pond will overflow its banks?

Then mark Tuesday, Jan. 25, on your calendar and write 7:30 p.m. in red. That's the day and time the Independence Township Board has set aside for a public hearing on the federal government's flood insurance program.

Unless Independence Township agrees to take part in the program, its 102 residents living in the 100-year flood plain may find resale and remortgaging of their homes unacceptable to banks and other lending institutions because of "the non-insurable exposure" of those homes to flood damage, according to Supervisor James B. Smith.

Flood insurance is virtually impossible to acquire through private companies and costly if it is received, he said.

Joining the program qualifies those in the flood plain to receive federal emergency disaster relief if there is a flood, aid that would otherwise be unavailable, and allows the Veterans Administration and Federal Housing Authority to finance homes.

Each of the 102 families living in the 100-year flood plain stand one chance in 100 each year of being flooded.

The meeting is to be held at Independence Township Hall Annex, 90 N. Main, Clarkston.

Symons to stay in mainstream

By Marilyn Trumper

Disillusioned when the village council revoked the controversial historic ordinance which she helped draft, president of the Clarkston Community Historical Society Denise Symons used the holidays to weigh how involved she'll remain in local preservation and historical education.

Symons is sticking around.

scheduled for Jan. 25 explores Romeo's struggle to preserve its historic district.

Just three weeks ago, Symons indicated she would abandon involvement with the society and lobbying in local government, feeling the council's revocation of the law "threw out the window" all of the society's work.

"But I can't do that," she said.

The first slide/lecture series is free. It's planned Tuesday, Jan. 25, at 7:30 p.m. in Clarkston Village Hall, 375 Depot, Clarkston. The public is invited.

Jeff Jones, a Romeo resident who has served on that village council, planning commission and Historic District Ordinance Committee, is to talk about the achievements and roadblocks Romeo has encountered in its struggle to preserve historic architecture.

For more information, phone Symons at 625-8823.

'... (historical education) is worth continuing with'

"Most of us felt discouraged, but (education) is worth continuing with. I'll still take stock in the village," she said. "There are too many things that are too important to drop. The programs in the schools, the architectural walking tours, cable TV and we've microfiched township records."

Symons is organizing the first of three historical lecture series sponsored by the society. The first

Post office to install vandal-proof mailboxes

By Marilyn Trumper

Tired of repeated vandalism and theft of grouped rural route mailboxes, at least two Independence Township subdivisions have requested the U.S. Post Office install Neighborhood Delivery Collection Box Units (NDCBU) to thwart attacks.

Purchased for $250 apiece not including installation, the boxes are to be mounted on a cement foundation at subdivision entrances and each homeowner is to be issued a key for security purposes much like an apartment mailbox, according to James Toth, supervisor of mail delivery at the Clarkston Post Office.

Sophie Sutton of Cramlane Drive opposes installation of cluster mailboxes even though vandals knocked her mailbox off its post, forcing the 63-year-old woman to pick up mail at the post office.

"I think (cluster mailboxes are) ridiculous. Wouldn't it be better to start delivering mail to the door rather than going to all this expense?"

"With the job situation what it is and so many people out of work, we don't need stamps to go up. We need people working. We need jobs out there. You can make a living as a mail carrier. More people would say put more people to work and forget those expensive mailboxes," she said.

Sutton points to the cost of maintaining the boxes and says persons hired to walk door-to-door to deliver mail would save wear on vehicles.

Toth disagrees. "Hiring people to do that is not as cost-effective as the clustered boxes," he said. "It's a one-time investment in neighborhood boxes. You'd have to continue to pay a door-to-door carrier's salary. The post office incurs all the cost and is responsible to maintain the boxes. The public pays nothing."

The national program has been in effect two years, yet only two communities in Oakland County, Southfield and Farmington, have installed the cluster boxes.

Thendara Park Subdivision and a second on the corner of East Washington and Roselawn near Clarkston Junior High have requested the cluster boxes, according to Toth.

"We're going to put one on Roselawn and East Washington probably next month, as soon as the bids to pour the concrete for the foundation are let and awarded. The mailboxes there are vandalized three and four times a year, we think because it's so close to the junior high," Toth said.

"We'll still deliver registered letters and insured packages right to the homes," he said.

Subdivisions interested in installing the cluster boxes can contact the Clarkston Post Office at 625-2323.

According to Brian Thorpe, supervisor of addresses at the Royal Oak Regional Post Office, the boxes are put through rigorous tests to meet high standards, and he cites a 50-hour salt spray test for corrosion.

"They're much better than regular mailboxes. First of all they're locked so no one can take the mail. They're designed to withstand extreme pointed penetration. They'll be on posts 48 inches into the ground. If someone hits this box, it'll do a lot of damage to the car."

"And, one of the biggest problems on the rural route boxes are M-80s (large firecrackers). You can't get an M-80 in a cluster box."

E.T. glows for Trinity Lutheran's congregation

Karen, E.T. and the creator Kathy Parkinson pose with their arms around the out-of-this-world character. Kathy made the papier-mache E.T. for her kids' Halloween, and used him for a Christmas tree at St. Trinity Lutheran Church. Where he'll go now is anyone's guess if he can just withstand all the attention from loving kids.

E.T.'s glowing papier-mache's torefinger is as bright as his heart, and lights the corner of the Parkinson living room in Clarkston Lakes Mobile Home Estates.

Made by the hands of Kathy Parkinson, 28, the pink and gray life-size figure's blue eyes seem alive, but they don't fool her 3-year-old daughter Karen.

She knows E.T.'s not real. But wishes it were and thrusts her arms lovingly around his neck.

That's the way character stole the heart of the nation in '82 and captured the heart of the congregation at St. Trinity Lutheran Church over the holiday.

"Instead of a Christmas tree, we used E.T.," laughed Kathy. "We put poinsettias in his hand and a red ribbon around his neck. The kids just loved him."

"I do too. He's been repaired so many times because they always want to reach out and grab him? I thought about donating him to the church, but I don't think he'd last very long."

Kathy made E.T. for her two children's Halloween, Karen, and Jodi, 6.

"It took me three and a half weeks to finish and then it rained on Halloween. I said, 'There's no way I'm going to put him outside and let him melt in the rain.' He's just too cute."

She and husband Joe have seen the film just once.

"And I loved it. I guess because I'm an artist and like fantasy. I could see the effect E.T. has on the kids and everyone in the theater."

Committee can't agree

Race track negotiations veer way off course

By Marilyn Trumper

The only agreement among the three parties negotiating the Waterford Hills '83 racing season is that there is no agreement.

At the Jan. 4 meeting of the Independence Township Board, township attorney Gerald Fisher offered a brief report on the status of the two-month-old negotiations while two residents of the track's neighboring subdivision complained of slow progress.

"I know I went into negotiations figuring (the Hill) would compromise. That's not happening and I would rather see the township enforce its ordinance to the fullest than go back to the table. We're not getting anything done," said Robert Vargo, one of two negotiators for residents neighboring the track on Waterford Road.

No representatives from the track were present, but after the meeting counsel for the Hill, Jeffery Heldt, said he saw no problem with the talks.

"But I did think the purpose of negotiations was to attempt to reach a reasonable and desirable method of regulating noise," Heldt said. "So far we have no common understanding of what's to be discussed."

Fisher disagreed with charges of slow progress saying, "There's a general move toward cooperation."

After the meeting he elaborated. "We haven't gotten down to in-depth negotiations yet, and while (the Hill) is objecting to (some of the items on the list of complaint) they're not refusing to discuss them."

"The only real problem we're having is the racing season schedule which they say they can't provide because they don't yet know what it is."

Among the list of complaints members of the Hill, the township and residents are discussing; track noise, safety, upkeep of the grounds, racing schedules, traffic from the fans, dust control and gawkers who gather along the track's property line.

The group is expected to continue meeting thru February when it will make its final report.

Board Trustee Dale Stuart, a member of the township's negotiating team, said "...From all I've seen cooperation levels are not very high on behalf principally of the Hill. We need to stress a conclusion before granting a license and I don't intend to vote for any new license unless we have something worked out."

In November the township board approved the tri-party negotiating team to reach an arbitrary decibel limit acceptable to everyone.

Since 1964 the track at the Oakland County Sportsmen's Club has generated persistent complaints from neighbors tired of noise and back-to-back weekends.

Last year's track license was approved by Independence Township on a piecemeal basis, something board member indicated would not take place this year.

Township ordinance restricts sound to 55 decibels, a level the board has indicated would be difficult to defend as "reasonable" if challenged in court.

Don't miss this chance

Nobody showed up last week when the Independence Township Board held a public hearing for ideas on how to spend $198,000.

Somewhere out there, there must be several somebodies with great ideas.

The money to be spent includes $85,000 in Community Development Block Grants and $113,500 in Federal Revenue Sharing funds.

In most cases, our tax dollars are spent after elected officials and department heads get together and decide, pretty much among themselves, what's good for the people.

While that's not necessarily bad, when the opportunity rolls around to give ideas and the residents fail to take advantage of it, we deserve everything that happens next.

We ask: What ever happened to the people who were pushing for a community center? Where are those who desperately need financial assistance to care for roads? What about the physical fitness fans who may want to see more money spent on safety paths so they actually lead to something in the near future? And how about money toward a local history room for the township library?

The ideas could go on, but unless there are some personal lobbying efforts many of them will be overlooked.

Letter to the editor

Recent events called shocking

As a resident of Independence Township interested in historical preservation, I have been shocked and saddened with each edition of The Clarkston News.

I am concerned that: the village-historical ordinance was repealed without a backup ordinance ready to put in place; the hardworking, dedicated people on the committee are no longer going to take an active interest; and that the people who have held to their values in the civic area are also now discouraged and quitting.

It is a sad commentary on the state of affairs of a beautiful little village which has everything going for it in the past few years because of its historical significance, when dedicated people who have given

People who feel their ideas are probably not as good as those sitting on the township board should consider this: So far, the board has discussed spending the money to boost the police protection fund, on dust control for dirt roads and to do a township-wide drainage study.

If you think the township officials would prefer not to be bothered, you're wrong. "It's a chance for the people to let us know a particular project they want to see us complete," says Clerk Christopher Rose. "We're always looking for ideas. The spring cleanup was an idea from the public."

The door is wide open. It's a chance to be creative, to solve immediate problems or plan for the future.

The last hearing is planned the same night the decision is to be made, on Tuesday, Jan. 18, beginning at 7:30 p.m. in the Independence Township Hall Annex.

If you cannot attend or can make a more eloquent plea in writing, another option is available. Written requests may be mailed or delivered to the clerk's office in Independence Township Hall, 90 N. Main, Clarkston.

350 days

by Kathy Greenfield

We think our cat is suffering from post-holiday depression.

Felicia's been sneaking outside despite the cold weather and snow and throwing herself behind the bushes. We think she's also visiting her old summer hangout—a flea-infested space under a nearby historic garage.

It's hard, I know, to imagine a cat that likes Christmas. We did get her a present this year, but our children couldn't wait and gave her the catnip-stuffed creature about a week early, so there weren't presents for her to unwrap. My son's special gift to her—an array of cat toys—was also presented early. Maybe she noticed.

But we really think it's the loss of her tree. We thought she'd forgotten the fun she had nestled under the branches last year, safe to peer out from her cosy spot and watch all the unfolding events.

This year, the minute the bright red cloth we use for a tree skirt came out, she claimed it as her own. She knew, it seemed, that the tree was coming next.

Her wish became reality and she settled in immediately, venturing forth to bat around lights as they were being strung around her tree and staging attacks on moving strings of cranberries and popcorn as they were being put together.

When we told her to back off, that the strings were for her tree, she looked us straight in the eye and seemed to understand.

Her horizons expanded when she found out there was even more to do. After all the people were nestled snug in their beds each night, she removed ornaments. But she did no damage, leaving them nearby her tree to be rehung in the morning.

Everything went along fine for those few weeks until the tree was stripped of its Christmas finery and carted out the door.

Now the only place she can find evergreen branches is outside. So she darts out into the cold and returns shivering.

We pat her on the head and tell her there are only 350 or so days until Christmas. Is it possible to purr and cry at the same time?

Laundry logic

By Jim Sherman

I got a neighbor (a neighbor is anyone living within 5 miles of wherever I am) who just spent over $3,000 to get his son to do the laundry.

He did not intend to spend that much, nor was the result the intended goal. It just turned out that way.

For years this neighbor had supported the local laundromats to the tune of about $10 a week. With business slowed he had a chance to review the expenditure and consider the inconvenience, time, and wear and tear on his auto.

Running that through his computer-type, logical mind, he decided it was time to put an automatic washer and dryer in his home.

He called Sears Catalog, and got a 3-week delivery promise. Then his computer logic told him if he was going to do home laundry he should have a water softener.

While discussing the softener with the plumber, the septic system came into the conversation. Together they concluded it wasn't adequate, and oh, by the way, you do want gas instead of electric, don't you.

Now the bachelor neighbor's computer/logical mind was spinning dollar bills, turning savings and checking accounts into deficit accounts.

But, he'd read all about Reagonomics, deficit spending to prosperity, and trickling. Thus he ordered a backhoe to assure proper trickle, new gas lines to assure the deficit, and vowed to vote Democrat from now on.

In the meantime, Sears called to say his order had been lost, perhaps missent to Wards. They'd get another washer and dryer in the mail. It took 2 months.

This call prompted my neighbor to wonder about where he was going to put the appliances once they were dropped off the tailgate.

Alas, the only logical place for the laundry room twins was in an area that had to have a new foundation. Call the cement truck.

By now my never-to-be-defeated neighbor was out $3,000 and still the washer and dryer were lost, and he had to spend another $10 at the laundry.

Last week I learned the now-smiling neighbor believes all the money was well spent. His computer/logical mind has convinced him it was worth it all just to see his teen-age son do the laundry once.

"You have to realize," he said, "my son changes underwear at least twice a day and I won't have to wash it all the time."

Check your computer/logical mind, neighbor.

An unknown lands job singing in Greektown

Real American dream story unfolds for Gina Roselli, 21

By Kathy Greenfield

Gina Roselli's story about how she came to be the American songstress at Mykonos Supper Club in Greektown is enough to make one a believer.

Whoever or whatever it is that goes around sprinkling stardust must have wafted through Independence Township a couple of months ago.

A receptionist at David Daniels Hair Design salon, Gina got her break in show business in an unexpected way.

Before, Gina Roselli only allowed herself to dream about a career in singing. Now she appears Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings at Mykonos Supper Club in Greektown.

"The whole thing started because I sang at my best girlfriend's wedding," says the petite 21-year-old who graduated from Clarkston High School in 1979.

It was just before Thanksgiving. The band leader invited Gina to sing some songs during the wedding reception and from there came the plan to go to the band's talent agency, videotape some performances with some bands and get jobs at similar events.

The result was disappointment. Gina had allowed herself to dream. But the bands were not ones she wanted to sing with, and while the suggestion was made that she tape songs without a band to be hired separately, she was never contacted.

Her background was admittedly limited. She sang in the junior high honors chorus.

"When I got into high school, I wanted to be a cheerleader," she says, and she had to forego singing groups and high school musicals.

She was runner-up in the Clarkston Junior Miss Program in 1979 where her talent was singing, but that was about it. She can't read music and she doesn't play a musical instrument. Mainly she sang along with the radio.

"Singing is something I always wanted to do. I just never thought I'd get the opportunity," she says.

At work she talked about her dreams. And from there they came true with the help of hair stylist Cathy Fiordellisi.

Cathy's sister Angelina used to sing at Mykonos Supper Club. She left to work in New York City, toured with the "Annie" troupe and is to appear in Detroit in February in "Zorba."

"Angelina was down there Thanksgiving and talked to her old boss and they told them they knew somebody who wanted to sing and wanted a job," says Gina.

Gina went down to the supper club.

"It was almost like that night I was hired," she says, even though she didn't sing. She was told, instead, to bring in tapes so the band could learn the music.

There were fleeting moments of fear.

"I thought, 'He's going to hear me sing and say I don't have the job.' But when he heard the tapes, he said, 'You sing very well—you have a good voice.'"

She was originally hired to sing Saturday and Sunday evenings. She followed the Greek band, two Greek singers, two bellie dancers and a person who plays a Greek guitar-like instrument.

Gina's family and friends rallied around and about 25 of them were there for her debut Dec. 17 to hear her "cheek-to-cheek" songs designed for dancing—tunes like "Gloria," "Come in from the Rain," "Theme from Ice Castles" and "Out Here on My Own."

Cheering with the toss of coins and dollar bills is a common practice in Greek establishments, Gina says, but she was taken back that first night.

"When I was walking on stage, this man introduced himself as Joe, told me I was a pretty girl and asked me what I was going to sing," says Gina, and when she started to sing, he handed her a bouquet of flowers and tossed a handful of dollar bills into the air.

"So I was standing there singing with my mouth open!" she says.

There was another surprise when she said good night to Nick, her boss.

"I said, 'Nick, I'm leaving' and I said, 'I'll see you tomorrow night.'"

"He said, 'Sunday, too.'"

"I said, 'You mean I should work Sunday, too?'"

"He said, 'Yeah.'"

Since then, Gina's been busy. She works about 32 hours a week as a receptionist at David Daniels. On Thursdays, she rehearses with the band for one hour. On Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays, she puts on her singing duds and appears at Mykonos.

She's tasting success.

One night, she finished her set and walked past the restaurant's maitre d'.

"He had this big grin on his face and he said, 'You did so good! That makes you feel good.'"

Her performances have been switched from following the Greek acts to starting them, and she now sings at 9 p.m. and 11:30 p.m.

She's working on expanding her repertoire and fighting stage jitters.

"I don't get nervous to the point where I don't want to do it," she says. "But this is nerve wracking, because it's different for me. But I like it, and I get up there and start singing and I have fun."

She smiles and there's stardust in her eyes as she talks about the future.

"I didn't ever think this would happen so I don't know what's going to happen from here," she says.

'If it Fitz. . .'

A blow for predictability

by Jim Fitzgerald

"You didn't blow your nose," my wife said. "You always blow your nose right after you let the water out of the sink. Go back and blow your nose."

I was coming out of the bathroom after shaving with Noxzema shaving cream. My wife was still in bed, waiting for the regular signal to get up and begin another day. The signal is the sound of me blowing my nose.

"You aren't supposed to make sarcastic remarks about what a predictable person I am," I said. "Remember that Noxzema commercial we saw on TV last night?"

THE COMMERCIAL shows a husky man shaving. He is bare all the way to the bottom of a 24-inch screen, and he is frowning. A lovely woman leans through the bathroom doorway. She is wearing a robe that would fit a husky man. She asks him whether he's in a bad mood. He says no, he just doesn't like to talk in the morning. She asks him what kind of shaving cream he uses, and he says Noxzema because it makes his skin feel soft. She feels his soft skin with her mouth and says she doesn't like to talk in the morning either.

It is obvious, even to Mary Poppins, that those two people spent the night together. So how come she doesn't know he doesn't like to talk in the morning? How come she doesn't know he uses Noxzema? How come her robe is so big for her?

They seem to be practically strangers, meeting for only the second time, in his bathroom. Noxzema is surely saying that the first time the couple met was just the night before, and the introduction was formalized in bed. My goodness.

"That commercial is an insult to viewers. Noxzema wouldn't have made it 10 years ago," my wife said. "They'd have been afraid that good people everywhere would boycott the Noxzema company for being depraved enough to suggest that instant sex was so socially acceptable it could be used to sell shaving cream in living rooms all over America."

"You're right," I conceded. "Ten years ago the woman was in the next apartment and she knew darn well he used Noxzema because she couldn't help seeing it everytime she entered his bathroom by climbing through his medicine cabinet. TV commercials were a lot better before they started insulting us."

BUT SERIOUSLY. There is no denying that moral values have changed, and actions that once were shocking don't lift an eyebrow today. For instance, when I was in the fifth grade, the teacher sent me home with a note telling my parents not to allow me to bring bubble gum to school because the bursting bubbles disturbed the students. Last month, Detroit school kids were sent home with a note asking parents not to allow their children to bring guns to school because students were getting shot.

The modern note assumed that guns are a common appliance in the average home and Mom or Pop should inventory the arsenal and frisk Junior every morning before he leaves for classes. If my parents had ever received such a note they would have sued the school board for defamation of character. Whatever happened to spitballs?

OR HOW about Michigan State University? When I was a student there, I could have been expelled for merely allowing a girl inside my dormitory room. But a few weeks ago, seven MSU male students "entertained" a female student in a dormitory room. She later accused them of raping her, but a judge, in all his wisdom, ruled that she must have been a willing participant in a romantic menage a huit because she didn't beat up on the seven guys and they didn't sell her into bondage across a state line.

The seven young men didn't even get expelled from college, let alone go to prison, and their parents must be proud to have judicial proof of their sons' splendid innocence. Whatever happened to stealing a kiss from a coed under Beaumont Tower on the MSU campus?

This column isn't ending as light-heartedly as it began, indicating I'm not as predictable as my wife claims. Also, I didn't go back and blow my nose, and she is still in bed.

Annual county park passes are now on sale

Now on sale are annual passes that permit unlimited entry to the three day-use parks operated by the Oakland County Parks and Recreation Commission.

Available at Independence Oaks, 9501 Sashabaw, Independence Township, the windshield stickers cost $15 for Oakland County residents and $20 for non-residents.

Without an annual sticker, daily entrance fees are $2.50 a vehicle for county residents and $4 for non-residents. The following parks require passes:

•Independence Oaks offers cross-country ski trails, hiking, nature interpretive programs, swimming and fishing on Crooked Lake.

•Addison Oaks on West Romeo Road in Oxford provides 13 miles of snowmobile trails and ice skating. Summer activities include camping, fishing, hiking and picnicking in the 700-acre park.

•Groveland Oaks includes 600 sites for recreational vehicles and tents. Located on Grange Hall Road in Holly, the 200-acre site has modern and primitive camping facilities. Three islands may be reserved for picnics.

The parks and recreation commission also operates five sites that do not require park entrance fees. Waterford Oaks in Pontiac contains the Wave-Action pool, water slide and bicycle moto-cross track; and there are four golf courses—Glen Oaks in Farmington Hills, Springfield Oaks in Davisburg, White Lake Oaks in Pontiac and Red Oaks in Madison Heights.

A ninth park, Orion Oaks, is yet to be developed. For more information, call 858-0906.

Teachers wait for a decision strategy, there's always the potential of a strike."

Superintendent of Clarkston Schools Milford Mason, disagrees there's a $1.17 million surplus.

"That's what we started the year with. That's not what we'll finish with.

"We're projected to spend in deficit almost $483,000 not including any settlement that might come.

"I also think it's significant to note a number of school districts comparable to us agreed to freeze salaries for the coming school year," Mason finished.

The teachers' last contract, negotiated for three years in 1979, came about after a three-day strike and outlined a 30-percent pay raise at approximately 10 percent each year.

The mediator has until the beginning of March to make his recommendation, but according to Bartlett, he indicated an answer could be expected sooner.

Because the factfinder's recommendation is not binding, the school board can refuse the findings and has the final decision.

CHS beats Mott 47-41

By Dan Vandenhemel

A game that starts as a blowout and ends going down to the final seconds before a winner is decided can be frustrating—and is for Clarkston's coach Dan Fife.

The Clarkston High School basketball team beat Waterford Mott 47-41 Jan. 7 but made the game interesting in its closing minutes.

The Wolves were leading 16-3 at the end of the first quarter and led 28-17 at halftime before Mott slowed the game down in the second half and pulled within two points with less than 30 seconds remaining. Mott fouled Mike McCormick in the closing seconds with hope of getting the ball back.

"I couldn't think of a better guy to foul for us than Mike," coach Dan Fife said. "He is one of our better free throw shooters. We let Mott get inside the second half. We were tentative and they shot real well in the second half."

With 18 seconds left in the game and Clarkston with the ball and up by two points, Fife called a time-out instead of holding on to the ball and letting time run out.

"I called the time-out at the worst possible time," Fife said. "I called it because I wasn't sure what they (Wolves) would do and I didn't know what the hell I would do."

Clarkston Junior Varsity coach Tim Kaul couldn't believe the time-out was called.

"I jumped up and yelled 'Who called that time-out?' And when Dan said he did, I just let him talk to the kids. But everytime we get up on a good team, we let them come back."

Despite scoring 19 points in the second half, the Wolves got steady play from both McCormick and Ray Kubani. McCormick led all scorers with 16 points and had 12 rebounds. Kubani scored eight and added 12 rebounds and Dave Jokisch hit 12 points for the Wolves. John Sykes led Mott with 11 points.

"Mott played with a lot of heart and a lot of senior character," Fife said. "They are well coached and kept coming back at us. We can't be successful playing only half a game. We have to learn how to put a team away once we get up on them."

SJH victory, first of year

By Dan Vandenhemel

When a coach records his first career win, it is always a gratifying moment for him and the team.

The Sashabaw Junior High Wrestling team won its first meet of the year and the first for new coach Greg Alessi when the Cougars defeated Rochester VanHoosen 48-33 Jan. 5.

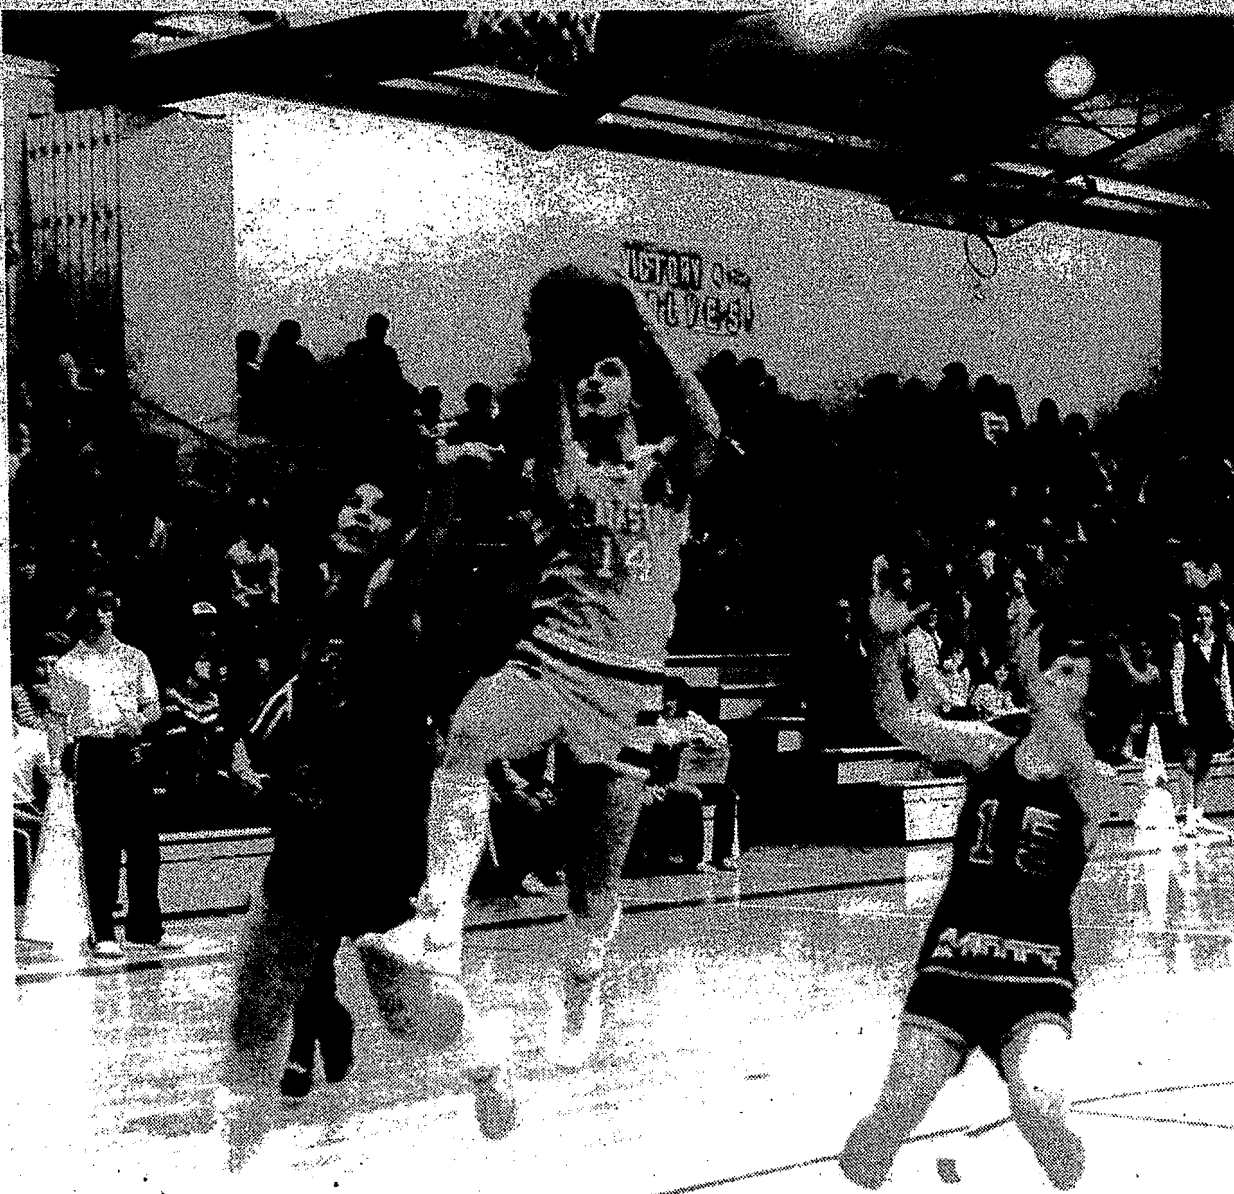

"I'm really happy to get the first win," Alessi said. "The team really looked good. We've improved a lot since our opening loss to East Hills."

The Cougars evened their record to 1-1 by having seven of their nine victories coming on pins. They were by Jeff Funck at 84 pounds; Mike Grable at 105 pounds; Tom King at 126 pounds; Mike Jasso at 145 pounds; Bill Hartley at 155 pounds; Rich Davis at 167 pounds and Jeff McDonald at 178.

Craig Rosenberger at 112 pounds and Walt Svenkenson at 132 pounds also won by decisions.

At one point in the match, the Cougars were down 27-18.

"We got a couple of quick pins and took the lead," Alessi said. "The match was decided with just two matches to go."

Clarkston's Chris Bruce drives to the basket between Mott's Jeff Conlon (No. 13) and Mike Zittle. The Wolves won 47-41 over Waterford

Mott Jan. 7. Clarkston led 16-3 at the end of the first quarter, but Mott outscored the Wolves in every other quarter of the game.

Clarkston races past Lahser

By Dan Vandenhemel

The Clarkston High School Ski team started the year off right as both the girls and the boys team won it's season opener against Bloomfield Hills Lahser Jan. 6.

Coach Don Balzarini was happy with both teams' performances.

"They did very well," he said. "The girls were especially suprising, not suprising but it was more than I hoped for. All the kids did better than I expected."

Lisa Burkemo won the girls' race with a time of 39:51 by almost two seconds over teammate Stephanie Brown. Kari Ruddy finished third for Lahser. Lynne Howse was fourth for Clarkston and Amy Spaven was fifth and Jennifer Hodges was sixth.

Andy Balzarini won the boys' race with a time of 35:72. Kurt Gschwind and Magnus Gyllensten finished second and third for Lahser. Clarkston's Craig McCloud was fourth followed by Mark Southby in fifth, Mike Roeser in sixth and Dave Huttenlocher in seventh.

"The whole team in general raced well," the coach said. "It's like an individual sport but really it's a team sport. Everyone has to do well for a team to win."

Wrestlers record two wins

CJH defeats Bloomfield and Rochester Reuther

After blowing out Bloomfield 77-6 Jan. 3, the Clarkston Junior High Wrestling team edged Rochester Reuther 43-30 Jan. 5.

"Bloomfield helped us out by giving us 24 points on forfeits," coach Dave Stobbe said. "Everybody else wrestled good for us."

The match with Rochester was decided with two matches remaining. The Wolverines jumped out to an early lead but Reuther came back in the upper-middle weights.

"The gym here was full," Stobbe said. "It was a very exciting match. I knew Reuther was going to be tough. This showed the team how good they really are."

Clarkston's 121 pound Scott Luzi recorded the fastest pin against Bloomfield with a 20-second victory. Three other Wolverines had pins in under one minute; Brent Gwisdalla at 114 pounds in 54 seconds; Travis Teirnan at 107 pounds in 46 seconds and Todd Edmunds at 147 pounds in 44 seconds.

Against Reuther, Pat Cassin at 180 pounds pinned his opponent in 16 seconds for the fastest pin so far in the season. Rod Lund at 100 pounds recorded a pin in 38 seconds.

"Everybody is getting out to a good start this season," Stobbe said. "We still have a lot of work yet to be done before we're real good."

Sashabaw loses 61-44 to West Bloomfield

By Dan Vandenhemel

Sashabaw Junior High Basketball coach Lance Baylis thought the Cougars would have to have 71 shots at the basket if they were to beat West Bloomfield Jan. 6.

The Cougars got 72 shots but what Baylis didn't count on was the team making only 21 percent of them in their 61-44 loss.

"I figured with our percentage and we needed 71 shots," he said. "Our shot selection was horrible. We looked better than we have earlier but the ball just didn't fall."

Sashabaw fell to 1-3 and West Bloomfield raised its record to 4-2.

Dave Baran and Mike Peterson combined for half of the Cougars points with 13 and nine points each. Baran added 12 rebounds and four blocked shots.

West Bloomfield jumped out to a 20-5 lead at the end of the first quarter and held a 33-16 halftime advantage.

Baylis says the team looks good in practice but just can't get going during a game.

"It's like we have stage fright," he said. "They have trouble playing in front of a crowd. The day after

"We played even with them the rest of the game," Baylis said. "The first quarter in ninth-grade can determine the rest of the game. We had to change defense after the first quarter and never caught up."

a game we play well, we shoot well. In a game, we don't concentrate enough. When you look at them in practice, you wouldn't believe they were the same team. The shot selection during the game was terrible but the rest of our game is coming along fine."

Rebounds hurt Wolverines

Losses to Waterford Mason and Lakeland

By Dan Vandenhemel

During the Clarkston Junior High Basketball teams' losses to Waterford Mason and Lakeland last week, the early season trouble of rebounding returned to give coach Dave Smith something to think about.

The Wolverines lost to Mason 64-56 Jan. 4 and to Lakeland by two points 52-50 on Jan. 6.

"Against Mason, our leading rebounder only had four," Smith said. "As a team we only had 29 rebounds and we only had 36 against Lakeland. We were giving up too many second and third shots and we weren't getting any of them."

In each game Clarkston jumped out to a first quarter lead only to lose it in the second half.

"We led Mason by 10 in the first quarter and by six at the half," Smith said. "And with Lakeland we were up by eight at halftime. Each game, it was close going into the final quarter."

Leading scorers for the Wolverines against Mason were Scott Riganon with 12 points and Mike Walters with 10. Against Lakeland, Walters led with 12 and Riganon added 11.

The losses dropped Clarkston record to 1-5 and Smith believes with a little luck they could be 4-2.

"I feel we are the best 1-5 team in Oakland County," he said. "If we got a couple of good breaks we could be at 4-2 instead of 1-5. The kids still have good attitudes and I've seen a 150 percent improvement since the start of the year. We're not going to give up yet. There are still a lot of games left in the season."

Public ignores meeting for spending $198,000

Public opinion was absent at the Jan. 4 meeting of the Independence Township Board when elected officials asked for suggestions to spend $85,000 in Community Development Block Grants and $113,050 in Federal Revenue Sharing.

Trustee William Vandermark proposed targeting some funds to upgrade roads and for a townshipwide drainage study.

Clerk Christopher Rose proposed money be spent to supplement the ailing police fund and Trustee Daniel Travis suggested portions be used to pay for road chloriding.

Township librarian James Hibler requested $15,000 for books and materials, a plan Vandermark agreed with.

"It's exactly that kind of capital expenditure federal revenue sharing should be spent on, not on expanding departments and salaries so that when the money disappears the township's in trouble," he said.

At its Jan. 18 meeting, the board is expected to adopt block grant and revenue sharing budgets for 1983-84 following a public hearing. Meeting time is 7:30 p.m. in the Independence Township Hall Annex, 90 N. Main, Clarkston.

Block grant use is no longer limited to Census Tract 3, the southeast section of the township with the highest concentration of middle- to low-income households.

Students' ideas sought for park name

Of all the students in Clarkston schools, it appears just seven have name ideas for Independence Township's 15-acre park off Maybee Road.

That's the number who've responded to Parks and Recreation Director Timothy Doyle's request to name the "neighborhood" park near the junction of Sashabaw Road.

Recently fenced, the park boasts a master plan for ball diamonds, soccer fields and a picnic area and is designed to accommodate citizens from neighboring subdivisions.

Independence Township is offering a $25 savings bond to the person whose entry is selected to name the park. The contest deadline of Jan. 1 has been extended, according to Doyle, who says he'll be back trying to drum up interest in the schools.

"I'd like to have at least 40 entries to choose from," Doyle said.

The contest is open to all Clarkston school district students.

Send entries to the Independence Township Parks and Recreation Department, 90 N. Main, Clarkston, MI 48016.

The Clarkston Elementary PTO wants to thank the community for all their efforts in our very successful paper drive.

We made slightly less than $700 and are planning to have another one next fall, so save your papers!

Seniors enjoyed students' feast

Lynn Mead, food service instructor at the Northwest Oakland Vocational Education Center, invited the seniors who normally come to the senior center on Clarkston Road and those from Ortonville to a Christmas lunch at the Vocational Center.

The students had decorated the room beautifully and served over 100 seniors, who thoroughly enjoyed their lunch.

The food program is funded through the Oakland Livingston Human Services Agency. Lunch normally is served each weekday at noon—a donation toward the cost is always welcome.

All you seniors out there, why not join us some time? We could even try to arrange transportation. Call the center for more particulars—625-8231.

Family thanks caring friends

We would like to thank our family and friends from Big Lake and the Clarkston-area for their gifts of flowers and contributions. Your presence helped us through the recent loss of Otto Batchelder. Words can't really say 'thank you' enough.

Popularity's all in the shoe at CJH

By Marilyn Trumper

Feet clad in a pair of bright purple Nikes, a 13-year-old with silver braces on her teeth bounds into the lunchroom at Clarkston Junior High and sends a carton of chocolate milk skittering down the long table like a bowling ball flying down a lane.

Friends parked on either side of the table are sent scurrying for cover and offer in exchange a full sampling of street vernacular over the sound of clattering chairs.

It is in this atmosphere the fads are created.

The clothing, the jewelry, the haircuts.

A world of high, constant energy where no one walks, everyone runs, junior high students who want to be different and struggle to keep that individuality end up looking, dressing and acting the same.

Take tennis shoes, for example.

All the kids wear Nike, Puma, Adidas or New Balance made of nylon, suede and leather in deep hues of blues, greens and purple—a rainbow of color.

To be different, to stand out just that much from the next guy while bending to peer pressure to wear the same, kids are dolling-up their sneakers with decorative laces covered in unicorns, ice cream cones and writings like "I HATE SCHOOL" and "I LOVE E.T."

Adding a twist to the laces, one girl who received several pair for Christmas couldn't decide which to insert in her white Nikes, so she put a different lace through the eyelets on each shoe.

Others will lace their shoes in bizarre ways, upside down and sideways.

And those wearing high-top Nikes refuse to lace them at all, tripping and stepping all over the tails at their feet.

Some because it's the "cool" thing to do, others because they're lazy.

"I don't think a lot of them know how to lace their shoes," uttered a disgusted red-haired wrestler.

The latest fad to craze the schools are friendship beads. Small pearls and little plastic beads like the kind Cub Scouts use to make key chains, slipped through a safety pin and fastened to the top of a shoe.

"Someone popular starts to wear them and the other kids do too," said Kara Kurz, offering a look at hers. A silver bell hooked to her shoes tinkles. That's a personal touch.

"I just wanted to be different." She smiles.

None of the kids remember who wore what first or how it caught on.

But all those asked agree it's the way to be.

And that it's done to be different.

And that they all look the same.

It's a vicious circle broken only for a brief time by intrepid individuals.

Lynn Clemo knows.

The 13-year-old broke the barrier today when came to school in a purple sweat shirt, her chest covered with 25 decorative penguin and gymnastic pins.

By tomorrow a half-dozen kids will be copycats. Next week anyone who's not so decorated will not be "cool."

Say you read it in The Clarkston News.

Lettered beads like those worn around a new baby's wrist work as great friendship pins.

Tinkling silver bells and multi-colored friendship beads pinned to the top of this Nike are what's "in"

at Clarkston Junior High for individuals striving to be different.

Why lace a shoe average when you can lace it avant-garde? That's the motto for this Nike fan as he bran-dishes the everyday footwear that walks the school halls.

Don't hesitate to ask for pharmacist's advice

By Marilyn Trumper

Tom Lufkin, a 20-year veteran pharmacist, says people should choose their druggists as carefully as their doctors.

"If (drug) price is the most important thing to you, if it's the all-important factor, then you'll end up shopping in a chain discount drugstore where you never get the chance to talk to the pharmacist," said Lufkin, president of the Oakland County Pharmacists Association and Brandon Township resident. "On the other hand if you use the smaller pharmacy that's privately owned with the owner working behind the counter, the prices may be a little higher but this individual feels differently about his relationships with his customers."

Lufkin dispels the public's image of a pharmacist who does no more than count out 12 pills and slip them in to an envelope.

"Many people come into a physician's office ignorant of a prescription. Unless they grab him by the coat tail and ask, 'Why are you giving this to me? What is it?' you're not going to know."

"These are questions you can ask your pharmacist: When do I take it? How long? How often? What is it? What does it do?" Lufkin said. "Don't be afraid to ask your pharmacist at the time, not later when you're at a party and wonder if you can have a cocktail."

Lufkin offers the example of a pregnant woman suffering a bladder infection who's prescribed one capsule four times a day.

The pharmacist can inform her the drug may cause nausea, and should be taken only on a full stomach; or the drug works best when taken with a lot of water, that she should drink more; and that all the capsules must be taken, even if the symptoms have disappeared.

"Sometimes the doctor doesn't tell his patient all of these things, and the pharmacist can," said Lufkin.

In addition, pharmacists can substitute the less expensive generic drugs when a substitute is available, or aid in the selection of over-the-counter drugs, he said.

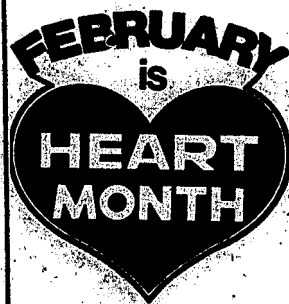

The Oakland County Pharmacists Association provides speakers to groups on such subjects as accidental poisoning, generic drugs and drugs for the elderly. Phone 858-3050.

Handicapped 18-year-old's life-style improves

Phil Batchelor's apartment is specifically designed to care for his physical and medical needs

By Kathy Greenfield

He was 16 when the truck he was driving rolled over, resulting in injuries so severe he'll never be able to walk again.

Phil Batchelor, now 18, remembers well those first few weeks in the hospital.

"When I first went in, I thought I was going to be in bed the rest of my life," he says.

As the months went by, Phil was able to discover all he could do despite confinement to a wheelchair. He now has an apartment attached to his parents' Independence Township home, plays basketball and volleyball and drives his own van.

Phil says he never realized all the aids that exist for handicapped people, items that have greatly improved his life-style, but he's frank about his opinion of the discovery.

"I wish," he says, "I wouldn't have found out about it."

After the accident, he spent 16 days in the hospital, five months in the rehabilitation unit at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Pontiac and three months in the rehabilitation unit at Craig Institute, Colorado.

Then Phil lived for about a year in the other part of his parents' home. Ramps had been added, doors widened and the family room had been raised to eliminate step-down stairs, but he still felt confined and it was extremely difficult for his family to tend to his medical needs.

Construction on his apartment was completed in June, and the large, open room has provided profound changes.

"In the other part of the house, my mom and dad had to lift me on a bench to get in the bathtub and I couldn't get to a sink to brush my teeth or anything. Now I can," he says.

"The room's made a lot of difference. When I was in the other room, I couldn't do a lot for myself. I thought I'd have to be totally dependent on somebody 24 hours a day for all my needs."

Phil calls the family cat and pats his knee and the cat leaps up for some pets and hellos. Phil's the only person in the family the cat will do that for, says his mother, Jane.

The room has given Phil greater independence, even though he has a nurse three days a week to assist with medical needs and showering, and at all other times a member of his family trained to care for him has to be nearby.

Phil's apartment was constructed by Wright & Filippis Inc. of Waterford Township.

"Each room that we do is designed for the needs unique to the particular person who is going to use it," says Stan Haack, department head for barrier-free engineering for the firm. "We tried to determine what kinds of things were going to be appropriate to allow him to function with greater independence in his home."

In the planning stages, meetings were held with Phil and his family, doctors and therapists.

From the outside, Phil's apartment blends into the white frame ranch home so well it is impossible to tell it was designed to accommodate a person with handicaps.

The inside, as well, holds few obvious clues to all the functions and services it provides.

Done in blue and beige, the room includes a large wall mural of an outdoor lake scene.

The carpeting has a tight nap for ease of wheelchair movement.

At one end sits the electric bed with an overhanging bar to allow Phil to lift himself when getting up.

There are built-ins—a wall unit with drawers and enough space to hold medical supplies, a table for eating set at the right height to accommodate a wheelchair and the kitchen cupboards placed low enough for wheelchair access. All plugs are high enough to be reached from the chair. The windows have hand cranks.

Opposite the bed at the other end of the room is a mat table for exercise therapy. Hanging at its end is a peg board with weights that fit around Phil's arms.

A covered patio offers protection from sunlight which he cannot tolerate for any sustained period, and the entrances and exits to his apartment have non-

With assistance from his Stand Aid, Phil stands in front of the kitchen section of his apartment.

All appliances have controls placed so they can be reached from a wheelchair.

Good health, self-confidence

Dual benefits derive from exercise program, says TV's Mr. No Nonsense

By Dan Vandenhemel

Aerobic dance exercising started up just a short time ago and already is increasing in popularity. According to Charly Heavenrich, television's Mr. No Nonsense, it's the music that makes the difference.

"Music is so important to the exercises," he explains. "It's a distracter for the people. It makes the work seem lighter, easier. If people think they will have a good time, they will exercise."

Heavenrich, who hales from the Clarkston area, got started in aerobics about five years ago when he promised himself to stay healthy the rest of his life.

"I've been active all my life and have played baseball most of my life," he said. "One day I pulled a muscle and thought aerobics would help."

Television came along last year after he opened his own studio, Body Language in Waterford Township.

May 18 was the first taping of the show and Heavenrich said it wasn't as bad as he expected.

"My past experiences have given me good self-confidence," he said. "But I could tell I was nervous because my palms were sweaty."

Exercising may be hard work but, according to Heavenrich, it can only help.

"The benefit of exercising is that it is something you can do to improve yourself," he said. "Some people might be turned off by the hard work, but people need something they can work hard at to enjoy. At Body Language we can do something serious but don't take it seriously. It's hard work but not exhausting."

A class in aerobics lasts about an hour. The hour starts with some simple stretching then goes to constant movement to improve muscle tone and the cardio-vascular system.

positive outlet for stress.'

Heavenrich estimates 70 million people in the United States exercise regularly, and that leaves about 150 million who don't.

Entering his second year as an instructor, Charly Heavenrich believes the music is what makes aerobics so popular. The benefits include muscle tone and cardio-vascular improvement.

Fishhook tally captures doc's fancy

By Marilyn Trumper

Broken arms and legs.

Cuts, bruises, a twisted ankle and torn muscles.

They're routine repair at Pontiac General Hospital's Ambulatory Center at M-59 and Williams Lake Road.

It's the patient with the creative ailment that breaks the monotony for Dr. Paul Treusch—and adds a little humor to his bedside manner.

Like a fishhook lodged in someone's seat.

Or heel.

Or shin.

While he's yet to tackle a hooked derriere, Treusch has removed several of the others and has a collection to prove it.

'Fishing is a hazardous sport.'

Dressed in a bulky white sweater and light blue knee-length lab coat, Treusch stares through a pair of tortoiseshell glasses at his lunch piled on a corner of the beige desk.

A white foam cup half filled with yellow chicken noodle soup, a baggie of chocolate chip cookies, Milky Way candy bar and a large Coke from McDonald's.

At 30, Treusch says he'll go after middle-aged smokers before preaching nutrition, then laughs.

A five-and-ten store sign, "THIS IS A HIGH CLASS PLACE, ACT DESPICABLE," caps a bulletin board covered with papers. Pinned to the cork are fishhooks and lures tagged with the date and part of the anatomy from which they were removed.

"Fishing," laughs Treusch, "is a hazardous sport."

"These we collected from last summer. It's just a partial collection. Some we throw away. Some people want them back. Last year we had a guy in here with a hook in his forearm. He wanted to keep it. He said, 'I caught three bass this morning and I've got to get back out there. They're biting on this lure.'"

And that's no fish story.

For those Treusch offers his own.

"My youngest brother is Mr. Michigan Outdoors. I hate to fish so out of my frustration I wrote a tongue-in-cheek piece about the dangers of fishing."

"Fishermen get up at 4 o'clock in the morning when the weather is lousy, when there's rain and fog, to impale worms and bugs on hooks."

"They spend hundreds of thousands of dollars on equipment to outsmart an animal that hasn't evolved in 1,000 years."

"Then they gut them and scale them, an act of pure barbarism, and calling them 'fresh' sit down and eat the fish filled with PBB."

"They'd be better off to pay $2 a pound for fish in the grocery store or buy a Whopper," he finished.

Treusch says he'll mount and frame '82's fishhook collection and begin collecting anew the first of the year.

The list of foreign substances removed from bodies extends beyond the humble fishhook—a crayon lodged in the nose, spitballs stuck in the ear, wooden splinters from hands and glass from the face.

And then there's the legendary rectal potato removal outlined in the latest edition of a medical journal.

"An Idaho potato has a tendency to take on water and swell. It's a real bear to get 'em out," Treusch laughs. "I've never done that, but I am waiting for someone to sit on a fishhook the wrong way."

Having a sense of humor in medicine is mandatory and Dr. Paul Treusch boasts one of the best. Each year, the 30-year-old physician makes a collection of the fishhooks removed from various parts of the anatomies of hooked-on-fishing patients.

Teen's future may include computers

skid surfaces so snow, ice and rain do not create problems.

There's room for the extra wheelchairs—the sports wheelchair weighs only 25 pounds, compared to 40 pounds for his regular chair. The bathroom is open so a commode chair can roll into the hand held shower and his attendant can assist him with bathing.

A device called a Stand Aid includes a motor to lift Phil from a sitting position to standing, braces to hold him upright and hand controls so he can move around the room.

Phil says he's supposed to stand for a while each day as well as maintain an exercise routine using the equipment in his apartment.

His favorite method of exercise, however, is found in gymnasiums.

"Playing basketball's what I like most," Phil says, and he's a member of the OHA Wheelers. OHA stands for Oakland Handicapped Association.

For recreation, he also plays volleyball each week, attends OHA meetings and drives to places like shopping malls.

"I got me a beautiful van," he says, and smiles about the vehicle that became his in March. It has a lift for his wheelchair and special adaptations throughout that allow him to drive.

"It gave me back some independence," he says. Still, at times it gets boring, Phil says, and he's thinking of what to do next with his life.

One interest is small engine repair. His tool box tucked under the exercise mat table includes straps that can be used to hold the tools onto his hands, for his fingers have some paralysis.

Another option, Haack says, is work with a computer. Wright and Filippis is beginning work on teaching vocational skills. With computers, architecture and engineering don't require pencils and rulers for all the lines can be drawn and rearranged by giving the machine instructions.

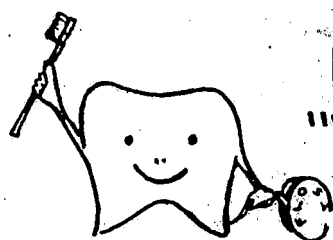

The specialized equipment that has made Phil's life better was expensive.

The apartment cost in excess of $50,000, Haack says, noting that it is similar to a small house and includes an attached garage with an extra-wide door and a lift to move Phil from house level to ground level and back.

If Phil had been injured in a fall from a tree or diving into shallow water, the health insurance probably wouldn't have covered the expenses needed for his present life-style, Haack says, but because it happened in a truck accident, Michigan's no-fault insurance paid most of the costs.

Because people like Phil and his family are able to lead better lives with assistance from modern technology, Haack says he's a strong supporter of the no-fault law.

"It makes me happy to see the kinds of things we were able to do for Phil Batchelor," he says.

Life could be better for everyone if they exercised, he says, for there are benefits that go far beyond physical improvements.

"I'd like to encourage people to live a fuller life by improving their self-esteem and their social interaction. They'll be able to do the things they want to do. People need a positive outlet for stress, both positive and negative. The more you do for yourself, the better you feel, it elevates your self-esteem."

"If you have a successful experience, you will gain a permanent self-esteem. You can maintain a healthy weight level or you can lose weight, it's a source of a gratifying experience."

For someone to go on a diet and not exercise is just a waste of time, according to Heavenrich.

"A diet lets you lose weight but it's in fat and protein," he says. "When you start eating again and gaining weight back, most of the weight turns to fat if you don't exercise. If you take just 100 calories off of your diet, which isn't hard at all, and do some simple exercising like walking, you can change your metabolic (fat and protein) balance. Walking has to be the most underrated form of exercise there is."

Home for older women stresses independence

By Marilyn Trumper

A silver-haired senior citizen wakes up to an empty house and shuffles into the kitchen. Routinely she turns on the blue gas jets of fire to heat water for coffee and pops two pieces of bread into the toaster.

A long day of being alone lies ahead.

Lunch for one.

Maybe she'll skip lunch.

Today, like every other day there's no conversation, only the drone of a TV and radio.

Then dinner alone and more TV.

What she needs is people, motivation, someone to talk to, share meals and socialize with.

Rollene Girdley and Sheri Allingham have the solution for elderly women with such problems.

In the coming months, the partners hope to select six senior women to fill the Girdleys' 2,700-square-foot home on 3.2 acres at the Rat-talee Lake and Ellis Road junction in Independence Township.

State licensing of the home is expected this week, according to Rollene.

"We wanted to offer something for the people who are 65, 80, even 90 years old who need help planning meals, who need the motivation to get up and exercise, who need companionship.

"Unlike an institution, they can have their own furniture in their rooms—the bed, chairs and dresser, pictures on the wall that they're familiar with to make them feel more at home. But if they want the furnishing to be provided, it will be."

The partners will share the cooking, cleaning and general housekeeping on a daily basis in the four-bedroom, four-bathroom house.

"But of course if one of the women wants to do something they can. Sometimes work is what gives (the elderly) a sense of accomplishment. I work for a man who's suffered a stroke. Just mixing the dog food for his Bouviers is important to him," Sheri said.

A monthly fee of $1,150 covers the senior's entertainment—like movies, plays and concerts—and food and incidentals including shampoo and toothpaste.

"I don't know of any other home operating like that," Rollene said. "We already have a 93-year-old Clarkston woman who's going to move in and she's already asking about the trips."

Families will be allowed to visit and share meals with the residents, she added.

"We have a basement rec-room where their grandchildren or children can play, and when the weather breaks, we're going to build a shuffleboard court outside," Rollene said.

"I feel good about this. These women need a place to go, a place to feel comfortable in. We only want people who can care for themselves, that's important. But maybe they need help bathing, or washing their hair. That's what we'll be here for."

For more information, phone Sheri at 625-5513 or Rollene at 625-9173.

Talking About...

Control of Bleeding

Severe bleeding may be stopped by one of three distinct techniques. A fourth technique, the use of a tourniquet, may be used after all other methods have failed.

1. DIRECT PRESSURE - Press with the palm of the hand over the wound using a thick pad of sterile gauze or a soft clean cloth. The compress can be secured by a pressure bandage. To do this, keep the center of the bandage directly over the pad on the wound, pull steadily to keep the pad in place as you wrap the ends around the body part. Tie a knot directly over the pad. Important: continue application of pressure for 20 to 30 minutes.

2. ELEVATION - If no evidence of fracture, a severely bleeding open wound on the head, neck, arm or leg should be elevated - raised above the level of the victim's heart. However, direct pressure on a thick pad over the wound must be continued.

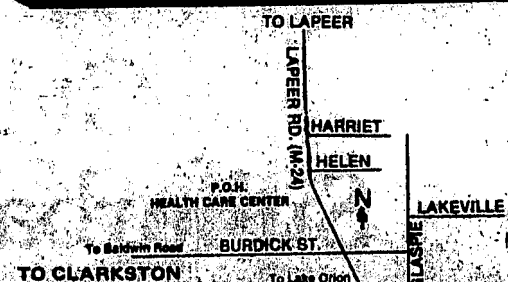

3. PRESSURE POINT - If the preceding two techniques do not stop severe bleeding on an arm or leg, the pressure point technique may be required. This involves applying pressure at a specific point of temporarily compress the main artery that is supplying blood to the limb. There is one recommended pressure point on each arm and leg. (Should not be used unless absolutely necessary to help stop severe bleeding.)

4. TOURNIQUET - This technique is rarely needed and should not be used except in a critical emergency when direct pressure on the pressure point fails to stop bleeding. Once a tourniquet is applied, care by a physician is imperative.

WARNING - The use of a tourniquet can create stoppage of blood flow and cause loss of limb by tissue death.

Note: severe bleeding and other traumatic injuries can cause a person to go into shock, which can be life threatening. It's important to give treatment for shock whether symptoms are apparent or not.

SHOCK - To treat for shock, keep the victim lightly covered and lying down with feet raised higher than the body (if no head or chest injury). Give no fluid if unconscious or complaining of abdominal pain. Light drinking of warm water, if no stomach wound, is permissible. Call immediately for medical help.
