Teacher talks back into full-swing

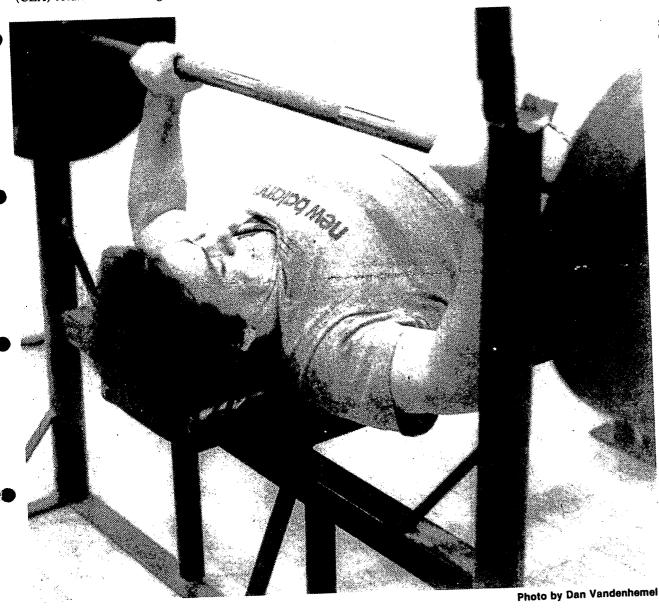

By Kathy Greenfield

Vol. 54 - No. 32 Wed., March 23, 1983

Meetings are beginning to stack up as teacher contract negotiations between the Clarkston school district and the Clarkston Education Association (CEA) return to full-swing.

On Friday, about half of the 290 teachers attended a general membership meeting of the CEA.

'I find that the staff, at least the people that were there, are very, very upset," said CEA president Allen Bartlett. "And I don't blame them.

Giving his all

Pushing his way to a new school record, Kirk Charboneau completes his lift of 325 pounds in thon. Fifty-five weightlifters raised $3,500 in pledges to improve the school's weight room. The story's on Page 14.

"They feel the board has been just putting us off and putting us off and putting us off. They feel they're going to continue to do it and they figure they've given enough and worked long enough without a contract.

"It makes the potential of a strike even greater,"

he added. "The potential is there."

The teachers have worked without a contract since August when the existing three-year agreement

The CEA's position is that the advisory factfinder's report received by the board of education last week should be enacted.

The report recommended a 3.5-percent salary hike for teachers plus step increases for longevity.

The present average teachers' salary in the district is $25,000 plus medical, dental and optical benefits that include a portion of prescriptions and doctors' office visits.

The range is from $12,866 for a teacher with a bachelor's degree and no experience to $32,639 with 20 years' experience and a education specialist's degree.

On Wednesday, the board of education is to meet

Superintendent of schools Milford Mason has said if the teachers receive the 3.5-percent raise, the district's estimated $694,928 surplus at the end of the school year would be practically gone, resulting in more cuts to programs and staff.

If the raise was granted, it would cost $404,200 in salaries and step increases, Mason said. Higher retirement costs would be another $20,200 and benefits would add $2,000 more.

Then the other employe groups in the district would seek similar raises and the total cost would be nearly $500,000, Mason said. The school board's executive session planned

Wednesday is to look at a series of cost projections and decide what the board feels it can do, he said. On Thursday, a meeting with a mediator and the negotiating teams from the district and the CEA is planned at 4:30 p.m. The teams will be in separate rooms at the district's administration building with the mediator acting as a go-between, Bartlett said.

The mediator can then call the groups together if an agreement appears possible.

We are at a potentially volatile time. There are a lot of frayed tempers and frayed feelings," Bartlett said. "It will be beneficial to have somebody there who's there to monitor.

'Don't get me wrong. We're not going to get into a fistfight with the board," he added. "As Dean Haber (the advisory fact finder) said, he's very impressed with the civility.

Independence withdraws from Social Security

By Marilyn Trumper

Facing a congressional deadline to opt out of the Social Security program or remain a part of the system forever, Independence Township is opting out.

On March 14, the board voted 6-1 to divorce itself from the federal government's system by 1985, but can rescind the move anytime between then and now, according to Supervisor James B. Smith.

"Basically the bill, if it passes the senate, will prohibit us from dropping Social Security if we want to. So we'll do it now, and then if we opt to rejoin later, we can," Smith said after the meeting.

"In retrospect Social Security has proven to be a poor return for the money. During negotiations the fire department expressed interest about opting out of it and starting their own retirement plan.

Trustee Larence Kozma was the lone dissenter, and after the meeting explained his vote.

"There was no information given to us. It was just a sudden move to get us out (of the system). The word 'apparently' was used when it was explained we could 'apparently' get back into the system. I need more than that.

"And," Kozma finished, "I wanted to hear what the employes have to say and how they feel about it."

Firefighter Gordon Mason, one of three union negotiators with the Independence Township Fire Department, was pleased the township is looking into withdrawal from Social Security.

Personally I love it. I want to get out. I can invest that money much better than the government and be sure I'll get it back.

"We did talk about it during negotiations as an alternative to the pension plan we have now."

Fact finder defends error in school report

By Kathy Greenfield

The advisory fact finder's report received by the Clarkston schools board of education last week has been defended by the author.

The report was the result of a meeting in January between the district, with fact finder William Haber and the Clarkston Education Association.

The fact-finder's opinion was the most recent attempt to settle the teachers' contract which expired in August last year.

When the report was presented, Superintendent Milford Mason noted it was based on a "gross error" and that the report said the district's surplus was $1,750,000 three times.

That the figure should have been $1,177,750 was not disputed by either side, but when the CEA tried to contact Haber before the meeting they found he was out of town.

On Tuesday, Haber penned his reaction to the error, noting that the $1,750,000 figure was incorrect.

"I have reread my report and looked at the data again," he concluded, "and I write to assure you that the statistical error would definitely not have affected my recommendations.

59 th joye 1 11. 43234

"I very much regret the error, but you may be assured that it had no influence upon my conclusion."

Haber was hired by the district and the CEA. He is a professor of economics and the former chairman of the department of economics at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor.

His report recommended a 3.5-percent salary increase for the teachers plus the retention of step increases for longevity.

The district's stance was that no raises or step increases be granted. The CEA had asked for 7.5-percent raises plus the step increases.

CEA president Allen Bartlett said the letter stated what he believed was the case all along.

"I've never seen a fact-finding report or arbitration that didn't have a flaw of one kind or another," he said. "He clearly established it was an oversight in recording and it wouldn't make any bearing on his conclusion."

Superintendent Mason's reaction was the opposite.

"In effect (Haber's) saying $600,000 has no influence on his decision," he said. "I find that very difficult to believe."

Garbage clean-up: May 14 and 15

Get ready to pull the defunct refrigerator from the garage and push it out to the trailer.

Independence's townshipwide clean-up is scheduled Saturday and Sunday, May 14 and 15, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Department of Public Works building, 6050 Flemings Lake Road.

Proof of township residency will be required for dumping.

"It's controlled disaster," described George Anderson, DPW director. "It's no big deal. There's nothing I can do about it."

Anderson will be monitoring the dumping.

The township is picking up tab, and set aside

Budget frozen at last year's level

By Marilyn Trumper

A rumble went through the Independence Township Board March 14 when Supervisor James B. Smith proposed freezing budget totals at last year's levels.

The move, designed to prepare for an expected $127,000 cut in state shared revenue, did not sit well with Trustee Larence Kozma who opposed the plan and branded it "artificial freezing."

But after discussion the board voted 5-2 to submit last year's buget totals at the annual meeting, set for Saturday, March 25 at 1 p.m.-

Kozma and Treasurer Frederick Ritter dissented, and after the meeting Kozma explained his

"We weren't presented with a reasonable expectation of what revenue we would lose. This freezing is artificial and not based on a reasonable forecast," he

"Why freeze the fire department when we know what they will receive? They operate off a millage and are not affected by shared revenue. It's the same with the sewer and all the other departments that operate off a millage.

"Why penalize the fire department? They went without for a long time to get their budget in order."

In addition, Kozma said he fears budget freezing could generate layoffs in the township, something he wants to avoid.

Ritter agreed and explained after the meeting.

"In my mind there's not been ample time to discuss this. I felt the board should have further discussion on the matter. Only the general fund will be affected by state cuts."

After the meeting Smith defended his position.

"Under the circumstances I think we need to be conservative," he said. "We're anticipating a $127,000 shortfall in this year's budget. Under the circumstances it seemed prudent not to go the route of other townships and run with a deficit.

"And it's the only way to prevent layoffs."

The township will meet all contractual obligations within departments too, he stressed.

"Freezing the fire department budget there will be no substantial changes. They're expecting a 1- or 2-percent increase this year, that's $21,000. Not a lot compared to a $765,000 budget," Smith said.

The budgets can be reviewed again in the second or third quarter of the year if they need to be changed," Smith said. "It just seemed best to be cautious now.

'Dumped' dog bears pups along roadside

By Kathy Greenfield

She had Betty Davis eyes, this little black dog protecting her newborn puppies under the overturned, discarded couch.

Since the birth of her seven babies the day before, on March 16, two had died.

She was still protecting one of the dead puppies, keeping it closeby under her right forepaw.

Rick Powers first saw her while running down Clement Road in Independence Township.

Obviously pregnant, she was scratching away at an old mattress someone had dumped along the side of the road, preparing for the birth of her babes.

Another man in a truck stopped and turned over the couch, and the men helped prepare a nest.

When Jennifer Fauss first saw her, the small dog looked lost, wandering around the narrow, country road.

"She seemed to be pretty friendly," Jennifer said. "She came right up to me and I started petting her."

The friendliness was gone. Now she watched every movement of the people checking on her.

If they got too close, she growled.

Another man tried to take her home the day before. As he reached to pick her up, she snapped.

Powers kept visiting her and he kept worrying.
"If I didn't have two dogs and wasn't raising rabbits and had a small lot, I'd take her," he said.

The dog knew Powers, and she'd let him pet her if she was away from the puppies and no one else was

He and his wife Susan found a piece of plastic and put it over the top of the couch to protect the brood from rain and the chill of night.

He took food, a mixture of cottage cheese and hamburger, two or three times a day.

Other people also noticed her plight.

"I've met about 10 other people who have stopped by that I didn't know who live in the neighborhood," Powers said.

He called an animal shelter. They didn't have room. He called the Oakland County Animal Control Division. If he brought her in, they'd take her.

That would mean almost certain death.

Last year, 9,900 of the 12,000 animals taken to the county Animal Care Center were killed.

"It's sad in the sense that I think she's been dropped off," Powers said. "She sure looks like she was a house dog. She's really clean. Her nails are trimmed."

Powers had decided to take the dog and her pups if the temperature dipped and to keep feeding them in the meantime.

He took food Thursday night and they were gone. Someone must have given them a home, he said, and he was glad.

Further checking brought the unwelcome news: The dog and her puppies were picked up by the Oakland County Animal Control and euthanized Thursday.

An animal control spokesperson said puppies do'not fare well in the center. They catch diseases and eventually get sick and end up being put to sleep despite attempts to save them.

It was the most humane thing to do, she said. The small, black dog wore a brown leather collar. She had Betty Davis eyes.

School best for cable

It's time for the Clarkston school district and the Independence Township Board to put aside reasons for disharmony.

They should, we believe, forget about the school board's refusal to pay to pave part of Pine Knob Road and put to rest their disagreements involving summer tax collection.

The next issue they're both involved in concerns the placement of the cable TV studio.

We think there's only one place in Independence Township it belongs.

And that's inside Clarkston High School.

We've talked with two township officials, two school district officials and two people from Multi-Cablevision, the firm bringing cable TV to the township.

There are some potential problems associated with a studio in the high school, and they should be recognized so they can be avoided.

We know about the possibility that the students would monopolize the studio.

But it's workable. High school hours are 7:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. and public use of the studio for public access channels is traditionally in late afternoon and evening hours.

There's a core group of high school students who know how to work studio equipment and who, we're told, will enthusiastically take on student internships while they help others put together programs.

That way the government channel, school channel and public access channels can all be us-

Another argument involves the tax issue. If the studio is built on a site purchased by the cable firm, property taxes will be paid.

As it stands now, the cable firm will most likely locate its business office in the village and

The plus about having it at the high school is that it will cut down on expenses, and should help hold rates for the cable hookups down.

Not to be overlooked is the need to keep high school students' education in pace with the times. There are careers to be had in the field and exposure for the curious is another plus.

That's what education is all about.

Then, too, the high school studio could serve to bring members of the community and students

The more a community can do to encourage such interaction, the better for all.

At Tuesday night's township board meeting, the franchise agreement between the township, village and cable firm was expected to be signed.

The next step is choosing a site. It's possible a committee has been named to help with the decision that the township, village and cable firm have agreed to agree upon.

They have only one choice.

Shocking info

A shocking bit of information from the Association of Home Appliance Manufactureres and nderwriters Laboratories bears repeating.

Question: If an electrical product accidently falls in the water, is it safe to reach for it if the switch is "off" but the appliance is still plugged in?

Answer: No. The electricity is still there as long as the product is plugged in. Always unplug any electrical product as soon as you've finished using it. If you establish the habit, you may prevent a needless tragedy. This practice is especially important if you have small children in the household. A family meeting is suggested to discuss the matter.

Tree quandary

As soon as Independence Township makes two decisions, what kind of tree it wants and where to plant it, Bordine's Better Blooms of Clarkston will make the donation.

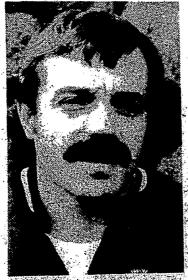

The tree comes from the Springfield Township company in honor of Arbor Day.

Board members hailed the donation at the March 14 meeting.

'We'll be delighted to have the tree," Supervisor James B. Smith said, opting to wait before targeting a site.

But everytime she describes something strange the daughter did, I top her with the latest chapter in Nerd's never-ending struggle to attend every college in Michigan without fraduating of getting of his bicycle. Tiblication and constitution and an entitle

As frolicsome fate would have it, Nerd and the daughter are friendly cousins. She rides on his shoulders while he pumps his bike into a Coney Island restaurant in downtown Detroit at 4 o'clock in the morning. I do not make these things up.

THE BIKE IS omnipresent. Sometimes Nerd rides it to towns 60 or 100 miles away, but doesn't start pumping until beyond the Detroit city limits. He rides a bus the first few miles.

How does he get his bike on the bus? He packs a wrench. He takes the bike apart and carries it the way other passengers carry packages from Sears.

I am grateful to Nerd. Before he was born, I never got the best of Terrible Jean, But when it comes to begetting strange children, I finally have her beat.

For the first time. Terrible Jean's superior. strength and many, many more years of experience don't automatically make her triumphant.

So it is no half-true boast to say that when Nerd leaves home the first time any day, his mother and I never say goodby because we know he'll be back to get whatever he forgot,

And by timing how long it takes him to return, we can accurately measure hom many of the 26 floors he descended before someone got on the elevator while he was sitting on the floor, putting on his socks (I swear to God), and asked him why he was wearing no

BUT NERD ISN'T the only one who forgets he's just better at it than anyone else. Which brings us back to Emily, my 17-month-old granddaughter.

While she and her parents were visiting last weekend, we left Emily with a new babysitter. Naturally, she yelped and carried on something awful when we went out the door.

It seemed like a terrible thing to do to her and the babysitter, but we assuaged our gunt with knowledge that Emily always cheers up after only a few minutes of bawling.

When we reached our car, my wife remembered she forgot a birthday present we had to deliver, Someone had to go back up and get it. And when that someone left again, Emily would start crying again, only five minutes after the babysitter had finally got her to shut up.

Oh woe.

"You go get:it." my wife ordered me, "You're the least-likely one to make Emily cry by leaying her!

Well, I couldn't deny it. Grandfathers are OK. but babies always love their parents best, and grandmothers next best. Everyone knows that.

But Emily laughed when I came back, and she cried when I left. I stood outside the door and listened. She hollered her head off. An awful noise.

Wow. Someday I'll tell her how great it sounded

Safety path link too costly says village council

By Marilyn Trumper

Spending $41,500 to pave 1,400 feet of safety path is out of the question, says the Clarkston Village Council.

'We just don't have that kind of money, and I don't see how in the world we can justify it to the taxpayers," said Trustee James Schultz at the council's March 15 meeting.

Acting on Independence Township's request, the council priced connection of the village safety path on White Lake Road to Independence Township's priority path from Mustang Drive, north to village limits.

The township's cost for paving 5,400 feet: $67,500, not including engineering costs, inspections and soil investigations.

"I'm really surprised at the high cost," said President Jackson Byers. "Especially since there the village will benefit minimally from the path. It will be (used) more (as) a convenience to use the beach. I really don't think many people will use it to get to the business district."

Trustee David Raup pointed to the impossibility of budgeting over $40,000 for the path.

"I'm all for acting in the spirit of cooperation, but we don't have that kind of money to budget," Raup said. "I'd sure like to see something happen, but it has to be cost possible."

Trustee Ruth Basinger hedged, saying village residents would benefit from a plan to extend the path from the village limits along Clarkston-Orion Road to the township library, and the township and village need to cooperate.

But after discussion, the council voted unanimously to table the current proposal.

The issue followed the Independence Township's 3.4 miles of five safety path routes recently targeted for construction at a cost of $118,000.

Board members have indicated the White Lake Road project will be the next path constructed.

By Marilyn Trumper

Living with a flat construction market the inobtrusive Economic Development Corporation (EDC) remains silent-but will do so with one new member.

The Independence Township Board voted 4-3 March 14 to appoint former building director Timothy Palulian to the nine-member EDC.

Palulian fills the last year of James Gardner's term. Gardner resigned last year.

The three-year-old EDC is designed to help existing and future businesses get lower interest rates via tax-free bonds, and was responsible for financing development of Dr. Charles Munk's Clarkston Professional Plaza on M-15, south of Clarkston.

The innovative medical complex offers the services of eight doctors and dentists, including an oral surgeon, bone specialist and ear, nose and throat doc-

Supervisor James B. Smith, Clerk Christopher Rose and Trustee William Vandermark dissented in the vote. Treasurer Frederick Ritter and trustees Larence Kozma, Dale Stuart and Daniel Travis, voted

"Weighing the options I felt one of the names Smith suggested would have been better," Rose said. Smith proposed the appointment of Michael.

Spillum who served on the Cable TV Task Force. Ritter, who proposed Palulian fill the vacant seat explained his position after the meeting.

"(Palulian) has demonstrated an interest in serving the township and has the experience and know how to do so because of his past position," he said.

The EDC met only once in 1982, for its annual meeting, as required by law.

Give citations for beautiful lawns and gardens and make Independence Township more appealing to

That's the proposal from David Katz of Waterford Road, newly appointed to the planning commis-

On March 14, the township board reviewed Katz's proposal to appoint a Beautification Commission to recognize stores and offices that give special attention to their property.

'It would be based on the reward system," Katz explained after the meeting. "The basic concept is to enhance businesses and improve them. The commission would be responsible to give them a citation thanking them for their work.

The board unanimously endorsed the plan and directed Supervisor James B. Smith to get more information and talk to interest groups like the Clarkston Farm and Garden Club.

Gaskell named village trustee

By Marilyn Trumper

Attorney Jon Gaskell's persistence paid off.

Ending months of debate at its March 15 meeting, the Clarkston Village Council voted 4-1 and appointed Gaskell to fill the last year of a vacant trustee seat.

Since January, Gaskell has vied for the open seat against council President Jackson Byer's candidate, John Bisha.

Bisha was defeated in his bid for a trustee seat in the March 14 village election garnering only 33 votes from 102 ballots.

"Great," Gaskell said, describing the appointment after the meeting. "I'm looking forward to it. As I've said all along, I want to be involved in government.

"I talked with some of the members about committee appointments, so a lot of what I'll become invovled with depends on that. The Levy matter with the DNR and corps of engineers is of some concern though."

Trustee Ruth Basinger, who did not seek reelection and is approaching her last week on the council, was the lone dissenter in the appointment.

Because Gaskell "...showed little or no interest in the village problem of crumbling facades on the building owned by Jerome Barry, with whose law firm he worked," Basinger said in her written explanation.

"I really don't know what she means by that, or what I could have done about it," Gaskell said in defense. "I had nothing to do with the building. I don't know what I could have done."

Gaskell and his wife Michelle have their own law practices on M-15, south of Clarkston. They live on Middle Lake Road.

-Sports Wolves ambushed by Indians

By Dan Vandenhemel

Clarkston's basketball season came to an end with a 81-45 pounding by Flint Central in the opening game of the regional tournament Wednesday.

Winners of the Class A state title the past two years, Central showed why they are a good team.

After a close first quarter with the Wolves trailing by only three points, 16-13, the Indians opened up a 10-point lead at the half.

The major factor in Central's win was they shot 63 percent from the floor.

"I've never seen a team shoot like that before," Wolves' coach Dan Fife said. "I don't know what they do to shoot that well. Once they get rolling, it's hard to stop them."

Clarkston started the game shooting poorly.

They were able to stay with the quicker Indians in the first quarter but weren't able to use their height advantage.

"Central's a good team and this was tough to sit there and swallow" -Dan Fife

"We came into the game not wanting a running game," Fife said. "They did a nice job to force us outside, they shut us off inside and if we could have hit from the outside we were all right, we just couldn't get the ball to go in."

Mike McCormick led the Wolves with 15 points and Ray Kubani added 12 in the loss. Central's Darryl Johnson led all scorers with 25 points.

"Johnson is a tough player," said Fife. "We'd be right with him and then he'd hang and he'd just wait until we came down.'

The Wolves finished the season with a 21-3 record, but Fife said the team needs experience with more difficult teams to prepare for tournament play.

"Our league schedule is tough because there are a lot of rivalries," he said. "Our non-league opponents will have to be tougher if we are to compete with the Flint and the Detroit schools.

"Central's a good team and this was tough to sit there and swallow," he said.

"I can't really remember what our record was," Swartout said. "We were around .500 I know. The coaches that remember their record either had a great season or they didn't win any."

Swartout, entering his fifth year as coach, believes West Bloomfield and Rochester should be the top teams in the league.

"They have more opportunities to be club players there," he said. "They get more practice time. It's tough to get the time because club fees are so expensive.

"With so little time, I'm not one to say that the sport is the most important. I'm satisfied if all the players improve during the season," he said.

The coach added many of the players out for the tennis team don t play other sports in school,

"You don't find anyone from football, basketball or wrestling out here," he said: "You don't need the strength of those sports to play tennis. Coordination and quickness are very important.

Lifters pump iron for CHS

The 1983 Clarkston High School lift-a-thon produced six new records along with $3,656.85 in pledges to improve the high school weight room.

Students from Clarkston and Sashabaw junior highs joined high school students and alumni in the third annual event.

Sashabaw football coach Steve Pearson received the most pledges with over $800. That broke Tim Brennan's 1981 record of $442.75.

The other five records were all lifting marks.

Alumnus Dave Fulcher set the record for that class with a lift of 340 pounds. His younger brother, Steve, bench pressed 275 pounds for the record in the 144 weight class.

Kirk Charboneau lifted 325 pounds to set the record for the 189 weight class and tie the record for the most lifted by a student, set by Dave Fulcher last

John Robenault pushed 300 pounds for the record in the 179 class and Doug Hughes lifted 195 pounds for a new mark in the 129 class.

Other division winner were: at 115 pounds, Lynn Grabowski with a 110-pound lift; at 159 pounds, Rusty Bennett with a 245-pound lift; 204 class, Greg Seddon with a 245-pound lift; and Willie Williams at 205 with a lift of 260.

"This was very successful," said organizer Walt Wyneimko. "All the lifters and the money was great. The crowd was fantastic there were a lot of families and friends here to watch."

Salute to Wolves

By Dan Vandenhemel

Even though the Clarkston Wolves lost badly to Flint Central last Wednesday, they have nothing to

During the season the Wolves won 14 straight games, won the Greater Oakland Activities League title, won the district championship.

They won 21 games, lost only three and had a winning percentage of .700.

Four players were selected to the all-league team: Mike McCormick, Ray Kubani, Dave Jokisch and Eric Kline.

But the final loss was frustrating for both the players and the fans.

Central was confident and ready before the game. They were the defending class A champions the last two years. They know how to win.

But Clarkston also knows how to win as their record shows. But before the game, the Wolves seemed tense and uncertain.

Kubani said the backboards and the nets seemed strange but couldn't put his finger on what was dif-

It wasn't that the Wolves didn't play well, but how well the Indians played.

Two plays both involving Kubani typified the whole game for Clarkston.

In the third quarter, Central's Darryl Johnson was driving toward the basket and was in the air when Kubani went up to block the shot.

As Johnson went up he saw Kubani in the way and went around him, still in mid-air. At that point the Indians were leading by 16 points.

How can you guard a team that defies the law of

Later in the game, the 6-foot-7 Kubani went up for a dunk but missed. As he hung on the rim, you could see the frustration on his face along with his

They weren't upset that he missed the dunk as much as they were frustrated about entire game.

The over 1,000 Clarkston fans brought posters and signs and flags proclaiming Clarkston No. 1. But they had little to cheer about.

They sat in disbelief during the final three quarters as Central dominated the game in the Flint IMA Sports Arena.

They quietly cheered when Clarkston scored. then shook their heads when Central scored.

In a final show of support for the team, one Clarkston High School student grabbed a flag and ran alongside the court near the seats.

The entire section cheered louder then than any other time in the game.

Golfers taught self-discipline

By Dan Vandenhemel

With only four girls returning to the Clarkston golf team, coach Jim Chamberlain looks for an interesting season.

"All I want is to have the girls have a great appreciation for golf," Chamberlain said. "The object is not to become a champion as a team but to build character, integrity and self-discipline."

The four returning players are senior Stacey Wasik and juniors Lisa Burkemo, Katrina Lussier and Debbie Spillum.

The majority of the team has not played golf before and Chamberlain plans to do a lot of teaching

"The girls are split into three groups right now," he said. "One group is the returning players. They practice on their own for now. Another group is the girls who have played before, but not a lot, and the last group is those who haven't played before.

"I can get around to and give them the fundamentals," Chamberlain said. "The returning players don't have the same problems as the new kids would, they need more specific help.'

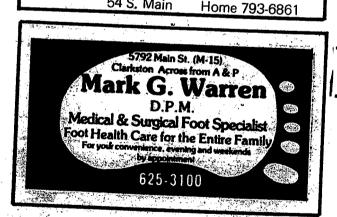

Last year, the Wolves finished with a record of 5-3-1. Not all schools in the Greater Oakland Activities League have a girls' golf program so there isn't a league.

"We were one of the first schools in the area to have girls' golf," said Chamberlain. "We'd play a lot, of northern schools. Now we have a full schedule against teams like West Bloomfield, Rochester, Grand Blanc and Davison.

"If we can get four girls to average around 50, we'll be above average. If a girl is in the 40s that's a bonus. If we can have that, we be competitive," he said.

Honorary ball girl has a ball with Pistons

By Dan Vandenhemel

Christine Serb had a ball serving as honorary ball girl for the Detroit Pistons.

The 11-year-old Clarkston Elementary pupil was in Florida when her mother enter her in the contest sponsored by the Pontiac Mall.

"At first I didn't know anything about it," Christine said. "I thought it would be fun, but I didn't know what I would do.'

The game on March 5 at the Silverdome between the Pistons and the Los Angeles Lakers was more than Christine could hope for.

"I knew Magic (Ervin Johnson) and Kareem

(Abdul-Jabbar)," she said. "But I really like Isiah (Thomas) and Kelly (Tripucka).

As part of her prize, Christine was able to meet her favorite Piston, Isiah.

"I met him just before the game started," she said. "He didn't say much. A lot of the Lakers and Pistons were talking and I couldn't hear too well. I wished him luck and I thought he would shake my hand.

"But he gave me a kiss."

The game started at 8 p.m. and Christine was ready to go by 6.

Russell, a Pontiac Central High School graduate. And Christine received an autographed basketball.

"I was supposed to be there at 6:30, but got there at 6," she said. "I got the ball and the picture right away and just sat around watching some high school game until the game started."

Throughout the Pistons' game, Christine had to sweep the court near one of the baskets during timeouts and at halftime.

With 25,000 people in the Silverdome, Christine was a little tense but got over that in a hurry.

"I felt kinda nervous. I didn't know what would happen, but it became fun after a while," she said.

"It was pretty funny on the court because Mom was taking pictures. I was cracking up."

Christine, who stands 4-foot-10, said it felt strange being surrounded by players who were almost two feet taller than she is.

"I felt so small there," she said. "But the players were all real nice. It was exciting.'

Clarkston man designs Panthers' logo

By Dan Vandenhemel

Since the Michigan Panthers opened their season a few weeks ago, the team's logo has been seen from coast to coast.

It's famous. But most people don't know the logo's the work of Clarkston resident Jim Russell.

Russell created the aggressive royal plum panther on a champagne background with blue highlights as part of his job as a graphic illustrator at Xenoworks in Birmingham.

Russell said the team owners had first gone to another studio for a design but they weren't satisfied.

'They wanted a symbol that was graphic enough and symbolic enough for the team," he said.

Starting with the shape of the helmet, Russell and fellow designer Mike Kirk tossed around ideas of using the full profile of the cat.

We decided to concentrate on the head and facial expressions," Russell said. "The problem with the helmet shape was not using the body of the cat. We still wanted to use a cat with a very aggressive attitude. The cat is almost coiled up with its back to

It took Russell a week to develop the design, but the concept was accepted earlier.

The team owners were running behind and needed to see something quickly," he said. "I was handed the project at 2 p.m. and they wanted to see something the next morning. The club was after an insignia that is recognizable as the Panther logo.

'They liked it immediately."

Russell is enjoying all the attention the logo is

"It was pretty rewarding to work on it," he said. "The first piece shown was a rendering of the helmet at a press conference.

'I was watching the news and when they threw back the sheet on a covered easel, there was my rendering. It's exciting to follow the coverage of the whole thing.'

Six hours of study brought the win

By Kathy Greenfield

He was busy. There were chores at home. So Tim Banfield didn't start studying the spelling list until Sunday night.

On Wednesday he outspelled 24 fellow fifth- and sixth-graders to win the Clarkston School District Spelling Bee.

In all, Tim figured he put in six hours studying

"I really didn't think about it. We were cutting wood," he said. "We cut a lot of wood every week."

Calling his spelling skills "not great," he did say he gets good grades at Andersonville Elementary School where he's in the sixth grade.

In addition to his prize of a Roget's Thesaurus, Tim said he learned a lot of new words.

He won the contest by spelling the word runnerup Steve Doolittle of North Sashabaw Elementary missed-waldmeister-and then grinning when he heard "logistician," the word he spelled to win.

The top five spellers from each elementary school plus alternates were called back to the front of the room to receive certificates of achievement and group photos bound in folders.

"There were no losers," said William Neff, the district's coordinator of elementary education.

Three years ago when the same list of words was used, Neff said he marked where the spelling bee ended at word number 141.

"We were up to 336 today," he said. "That's quite a difference.'

Passing out awards was school board secretary Mary Jane Chaustowich.

"I've never seen a spelldown like this. I'm just exhausted," she said as she presented Tim with his Roget's Thesaurus.

"I can't imagine what he's going to do with this. He seems to know every word."

For Amanda Hertler, working at the State Capitol meant following in the family footsteps.

The granddaughter of the late Francis Crowley of Clarkston, she completed her term as capitol page March 11.

For Amanda Hertler: a capital experience.

Crowley was a state lawmaker who served in the Michigan House as 61st District Representative from 1965-66.

"I remember coming to the Capitol as a child with my grandfather," said Amanda. 'Because of those early visits with him, I always hoped I could work down here someday. The page program offered me a chance to achieve this goal.'

The 22-year-old Michigan State University, East Lansing, senior began serving as a page in October.

Her sponsor was State Rep. Mat Dunaskiss (R-Lake Orion). Amanda also worked as an intern in Dunaskiss' office from September through December

She recommends the experience to others her age.

"I've met so many people and learned so much during my months here," she said. "The contacts you make are amazing. I've suggested it to several of my friends that they work down here. It's a great job for a

Six CHS students at Outreach forum

Among more than 250 students expected at the second annual Oakland County Project Outreach Student Forum on Monday were six from Clarkston High Chris Baert, Julie Beamer, Greg Molzon and Glen Schreitmueller were to participate with Sandy Rice serving as group leader and Tara Thomas as recorder.

The forum at the Oakland County Intermediate School District building in Pontiac was designed to give student leaders an opportunity to discuss and debate crucial educational issues.

The panel of educational and political leaders was to include Dr. Eugene Paslov, deputy state superintendent; State Sen. Philip Mastin; Dr. Rebecca Rankin, principal of Waterford Mott High School; Betty Campion, board member for the Walled Lake school district and the Oakland Intermediate School District; John Hackett, president of the Birmingham Education Association; and Barbara Roberts Mason, secretary of the State Board of Education.

The purpose of Project Outreach is to increase public support for schools. It is sponsored by the intermediate school district.

SJHS nets first in second year running

The first-division rating the second year in a row was music to the ears of Sashabaw Junior High School's Wind Ensemble.

"In the 15 years that I've been here, no other bands to my knowledge have received a first division rating two years in a row," said band director Douglas Doty.

"I'm very proud of all my students at Sashabaw. They are special people to me. They work hard, practice on a regular basis and accept criticism with respect and determination to come back the next day and play it right for me.

"And they sure played it right Saturday."

The District Band Festival was held last weekend at Bloomfield Hills Andover High School. The event, conducted in March each year, was sponsored by the Michigan State Band and Orchestra Association.

Each judge rated the Sashabaw band excellent and gave them first-division ratings.

The band then went into sight reading where the students had to perform two unrehearsed selections. The judge rated the ensemble's performance excellent, again a first-division rating.

"Putting these all together gives Sashabaw's Wind Ensemble straight firsts," Doty said.

Surplus cheese, butter available

Surplus cheese and butter are to be distributed to the needy this month around the fourth week of March by the Oakland Livingston Human Service Agency.

Those receiving the free food will have to complete a surplus food registration card.

Information required includes name, address, family size and source of income.

Clients must show a driver's license or personal I.D. along with proof of income-a pay stub, unemployment card or a food stamp card are examples.

THE AND THE PROPERTY OF THE PR

To promote the image of teachers, members of a Clarkston Education Association committee have prepared stories on teachers to appear bi-weekly in "An Apple for the Teacher." This week's column was written by Sally Molnar, a special education teacher at Sashabaw Junior High School.

Bernie Wright teaches social studies at Sashabaw Junior High.

He grew up in Pontiac where he graduated from high school. He completed college at Nyack College, Nyack, New York, just north of New York City.

For two years after college, Bernie had his own First Alliance Church in Uvalde, Texas.

Following a year studying French at the University of Geneva. Switzerland, he spent the next four as a missionary in Guinea, W. Africa.

Bernie's teaching career in Clarkston began in 1967.

He has taught at both elementary and high school levels but has been at Sashabaw Junior High for the past 14 years.

Bernie Wright

He has a master's degree in social studies from Eastern Michigan University, Ypsilanti.

He is presently attending workshops on Instrumental Enrichment, a program designed to improve thinking skills, and is incorporating some of these principles into his classes.

Bernie remains very involved with his church, singing in the choir and teaching Sunday school as well as home study groups.

He was the narrator this past year for the Christmas cantata.

He jogs three to four miles every weekday.

The Wrights have three children, two sons at Lawrence Institute of Technology and a daughter in junior high school.

Bernie's well-rounded background and warm personality allow him to have so much to offer

He says: "I have a like for young people and am personally interested in them. I also try to apply the subject to real life and the world in order to make it more meaningful.'

We are glad Bernie is in Clarkston!

Den Filarski (left), president of the Riverside Medical Explorers, and Vicki, Terry and Michael Bruns gather around the ambulance's open doors as Riverside paramedic Leon Grundy inspects equipment. Vicki and Michael are active members of the scouting program and routinely assist paramedics on runs. Terry, who's in training now, will soon follow in their steps.

Scouts learn firsthand first aid

Soon it will be three Bruns kids riding shotgun with Riverside Ambulance paramedics as part of the Explorer Scout program

By Marilyn Trumper

Michael Bruns responded with Riverside Ambulance paramedics when a 25-year-old runner collapsed of a heart attack in Independence Oaks County Park last spring.

Since joining the Riverside Medical Explorer's post two years ago, the 16-year-old has been on over 200 runs.

That Sunday morning in the park was the most memorable.

'I don't question any one of their abilities'

-Leon Grundy

"I used to deliver papers to him," Michael recalls. "I saw him there, and knew he looked familiar. But I couldn't place him. I just did my job and quit a thinking about it then.

"I remembered later."

The runner died and the story made the newspapers.

Michael's sister, Vicki, 15, has been an Explorer Scout for a year. Their brother Terry, 14, is learning the ropes right now.

On weekends and nights they spend time in the Riverside Ambulance station on M-15, in the basement of the Clarkston Professional Building.

The six active members of the Independence Township post have been trained in Advanced First Aid and Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation (CPR).

They ride in the ambulance and assist the paramedics, setting up IV's, adjusting the oxygen, monitoring vital signs, setting up the EKG monitor and administering CPR.

Leon Grundy, a 10-year veteran paramedic, has only praise for the Explorers.

Inside the paramedics' small living quarters in the clinic basement, the group squeezes through a thin aisle between bunk beds and small kitchenette, dropping down into chairs around the table.

"I don't question any one of their abilities," Grundy said, looking at the group. "I've never had any problems. But I know what each one of them is capable of doing. What they can and can't do, their limitations.

"This is a large responsibility, and because of that these kids seem to grow up so much faster than those their own age. They learn self-confidence and how to work under pressure."

After an intense run the teens head back to the clinic and talk with a veteran paramedic. Or phone another Explorer.

"You can tell it's bothering them," said the kids' dad, Terry. "They won't discuss it with me, but they'll talk with one another until they get it out of their system, or talk to a paramedic."

The Riverside Explorer Scouts want to increase their numbers and are hosting a "First-Nighter" to learn Advanced First Aid and CPR on Tuesday, March 29, at 7 p.m at Sashabaw Junior High School, 5565 Pine Knob, Independence Township.

Explorer Scouts are comprised of men and women up to age 21.

A $5.50 fee is charged to join. The 12- to 16-week course is free for Explorers.
