Teachers to present their side

By Kathy Greenfield

Clarkston school district teachers want to present their side of the contract negotiation struggle.

They've set up Parents' Night on Wednesday, April 13, at Clarkston High School.

Beginning at 7 p.m., questions will be answered by a panel of representatives from the elementary, junior and senior high schools with a moderator.

"There's an awful lot of misinformation that we feel is coming out," said Tom Brown, Clarkston Education Association (CEA) spokesperson.

"It is our hope we can deal with the issues up front and get clarification of our positions on these issues.

"Our hope is that we might provide enough information that people will talk to board members."

The 290 teachers represented by the CEA have worked without a contract since August when the three-year contract expired.

Among issues the CEA is prepared to discuss are the proposed increase in class size, the elimination of 29.5 teaching positions including 19 for financial reasons and the board of education's stance that a fund equity must be maintained.

"My personal concern is we're jeopardizing the educational program here," Brown said. "When the teaching staff is angry as they are here it's bound to affect education."

CEA plans also include having some impact on the June school board election and working toward success of the 5-mill school tax renewal on the June ballot, Brown said.

Parents try to give their children the general idea of what to do at the Sashabaw United Presbyterian Church annual Easter egg hunt on Saturday. This year, there were 250 children ranging in ages from 1 to 14 years old. Last year the event drew over 300.

PK gears for 'creative' sale

By Marilyn Trumper

Pine Knob Investment Co.'s hammered out a creative mode of financing to sidestep complete bankruptcy.

It plans to sell the successful music theater to Comerica Inc. for a $1.6-million loan. The bank in turn will lease the theater back to Pine Knob.

The plan, yet to approved by the Federal Bankruptcy Court and creditors, then calls for selling the theater back to partners Joseph Locricchio and Gary Francell for what their attorney George Cartos calls "...a nominal fee, like $1, $10 or $100" when the loan is repaid.

According to Cartos, Comerica and the Borg-Warner Corp. are the two largest secured creditors in Pine Knob's listed $12 million in outstanding debts. Each company is owed approximately $3 million.

"It is an unusual way to finance," said Cartos. "But the bank wants to secure its investment and this is one way to do that."

Pine Knob has been operating under Chapter 11 of the United States Bankruptcy Code for the past two years.

Village investigates 'malpractice' insurance

By Marilyn Trumper

A multi-million dollar lawsuit against the City of Troy for alleged police misconduct spurred the Clarkston Village Council to investigate the need for "malpractice" insurance.

At last week's meeting, the council listened to Richard Huttenlocher of Huttenloch's Kerns Norvell Inc. of Pontiac offer the following premiums for what he called "malpractice insurance."

•$1 million worth of coverage costs $1,276 annually with $500 deductible.

•$2 million worth of coverage costs $1,786 annually.

•$3 million worth of coverage costs $2,042 annually.

•$5 million worth of coverage costs $2,361 annually.

"This is protection for wrongful judgments like discrimination and improper appropriation of funds," Huttenlocher said. "It covers the council, planning commission, zoning board, committees and volunteers—all employees. And, it's the broadest of any form that's out.

"And for a village this size I would recommend the $1 million policy."

The council made no decision, opting instead to study the proposal further.

"We're not covered right now," President Jackson Byers said after the meeting. "And after this I don't know whether we'll take it or not. That's a steep bill, especially for a village this size.

"But you never know what you might need it for. This is the day and age of lawsuits."

Historic district law nears completion

With less than a month of work under their belts, the seven-member committee drafting a new historic district ordinance reports it's almost done.

At the March 28 meeting of the Clarkston Village Council, committee chairperson Carol Eberhardt offered an update.

"We're winding down and it's been very productive," Eberhardt said. "We've made all the major decisions as far as anything controversial and we're scheduled to have another meeting in a couple of weeks.

"Everybody's working hard."

Village President Jackson Byers appointed the committee in early March.

The directive was to redraft the controversial Historic District Ordinance regulating construction and repair of the 174 homes in the historic district.

The council repealed the ordinance and disbanded the five-member Historic District Commission last fall after it approved aluminum siding for one home and denied a similar plan for another.

A bow from office

After a 10-year stint on the Village of Clarkston's Planning Commission, Chairman Edward (Ted) Thomson is not seeking reappointment.

Thomson, a 32-year village resident, said he's leaving the commission for personal reasons and declined to comment further.

At the March 28 council meeting, President Jackson Byers said he would miss Thomson's involvement in local government.

"I tried and tried to get him to reconsider, but without luck. We're going to miss him," Byers said.

The Main Street resident also served on the zoning board.

Unemployment better than the reports show

By Kathy Greenfield

Local unemployment probably isn't nearly as bad as previously reported, according to the latest estimates from the Michigan Employment Security Commission.

Now that the 1980 Census data is in place and the formula has changed, the February statistics say this:

- Independence Township—14.9 percent, or 1,375 unemployed out of a labor force of 9,250.

- Springfield Township—17.9 percent, or 600 jobless out of a labor force of 3,350.

The figures were virtually the same in January, according to Norman Isotalo, commission spokesperson.

In December, the commission reported 23.1 percent unemployment in Independence and 25.3 percent in Springfield.

But in December, data from the 1970 Census was used, and that's the main reason there's such a difference, although employment did increase in most major areas in the state, Isotalo said.

For the entire state, unemployment in February was estimated at 16.5, or 699,000 jobless. Oakland County was the same and the Flint area was 22.8 percent.

If, however, the unemployment figures were in the 4- to 6-percent range, that would be considered full-employment, Isotalo said.

"They're still pretty bad," he said. "Certainly rates in the area of 17 percent are nothing to shout about."

The state and county figures are determined using Census data as well as information from unemployment offices.

For specific communities, percentages are determined from the number of people unemployed during the 1980 Census.

While the method is not totally accurate, it is the same one used throughout the United States and, as a means of comparison, it's the most practical, said Ron McGraw, departmental analyst for the commission.

"It would cost so much money. You'd have to do a complete census each month," he said. "They just have to go with the best methodology they have."

The latest figures put Independence and Springfield in a better position than surrounding communities.

According to the commission statistics, February unemployment in Oxford was 23.9 percent, Brandon was 22.2 percent, White Lake was 19.5 percent, Waterford was 19.4 percent and Orion was 18 percent.

"Certainly in comparison with these other communities, especially Independence seems to be doing much better," Isotalo said.

PK theatre might sell alcohol

By Marilyn Trumper

It looks like Pine Knob Music Theatre patrons will not be allowed to bring alcohol to concerts this '83 season, which opens May 27 with the Beach Boys.

Pine Knob partners Joseph Locricchio and Gary Francell's year-old request to extend the liquor license to include the pavillion is still on hold before the state's Liquor Control Commission (LCC), according to investigator Norman Zielinski.

But the partners' attorney, Norman Farhat, predicts approval within the next 30 to 45 days.

"It's my personal opinion that the commission will move favorably within that time. Hopefully, (Pine Knob) will have beer and wine this year. I don't expect anything less than that," Farhat said.

"It's hard to get the state to commit to anything," he added.

Expansion of the license would make it illegal for fans to bring alcohol to concerts.

Pine Knob has indicated it will have concessions selling beer and wine.

Last October, the LCC filed a formal complaint with the attorney general's office charging Locricchio and Francell with a violation for transferring stock in ownership prior to making the official application to transfer the Hamburger Mansion's liquor license in December 1980.

According to Zielinski, a majority transference of stock can mean a transfer of ownership and it's this that raised eyebrows with the original request to transfer the mansion's license.

Locricchio, co-owner of Pine Knob, could not be reached for comment.

Steve Finkel, theater manager, said the subject's not been discussed with him since last November.

Township, village finalize cable

After more than a year at the negotiating table, Independence Township and the Village of Clarkston have unanimously adopted the cable TV franchise agreement.

The 60-page document hammers out the specific agreement between Multi-Cablevision and the governmental units.

Gil Clark, representative for Multi-Cablevision, says he's relieved it's over.

"I thought it was kind of ironic that we started this one year and two weeks ago, and it took seven minutes to act on it," Clark said.

The franchise agreement spells out rates, provisions for regulation of the company, a franchise fee and application for renewal of the 15-year franchise.

Construction of the $2.5-million system is still targeted for completion by next December, Clark said.

The Clarkston Village Council approved the agreement at its March 28 meeting, and the Independence Township Board followed suit March 29.

How would you like to see the Clarkston teachers' contract settled?

"I think they have a real right to strike. The school board has waited too long. It's not fun being in the position, I know the feeling."—Carol Jones, school teacher for the Pontiac school district, of Miller Road, Springfield Township.

"I hope they settle it fast. I don't really think they should walk out, though."—Erna Cooper, housewife, of Ascension Road, Independence Township.

"I would like to see it settled. They must have a contract. I don't want them to strike, but they need security."—Ana Silva, Clarkston High School exchange student from Brazil living with Carolyn Rose of Fawn Valley Drive, Independence Township.

Salary freeze

For the fifth year running the Village of Clarkston's part-time council has turned down a raise.

At its March 28 meeting the council agreed to freeze salaries at the same levels they've been since 1977.

- President's: $50 per meeting.
- Clerk's: $4,400 annually.
- Treasurer's: $5,128 annually.
- Assessor's: $300 annually.
- Trustees': $20 per meeting.

"The consensus was that this is a labor of love, that we do it out of a sense of public service than for remuneration," said President Jackson Byers.

Burn with caution

Watch out that your trash or leaf fire doesn't ignite the front lawn and turn the yard into a blazing inferno.

The warning comes from Springfield Township Fire Chief Marlan Hillman, reporting on the annual increase of spring grass fires.

"There wasn't a lot of snow this year and the grass is like tinder. It's dry," Hillman said. "People should be careful to burn only in approved containers and be careful of the wind."

News was wrong

It is the responsibility of a newspaper as widely read as The Clarkston News to report events accurately and fairly.

At the Independence Township annual meeting on Saturday, March 26, I did not make the motion to increase the trustees' salaries by 30 percent.

I would also like to point out that I was the only person present to oppose the 10-percent raise for the full-time officials.

Thank you for the opportunity to set the record straight.

My father has always spent a portion of each evening reading the newspaper.

And when his children became old enough to be interested in reading the paper, we quickly learned we'd better have it back in sequence when darkness fell and it was his time to catch up on the news.

That's why the best April Fool's joke ever pulled on him was one my mother read about and copied a few years ago.

She saved an April 1 edition of his favorite newspaper for one year and put it in the regular spot on the end table in place of the actual paper of the day.

In their re-telling of the trick, we always laugh, because my father didn't realize the paper was a year old until he'd read it for a while.

I'm not sure what that says about newspapers, but anything so harmless plotted for so long that comes off without a hitch is fun.

We went to see the movie "The Outsiders" last week.

It was a "must see" because the novel, written by S.E. Hinton, was one my son read in school last year.

He liked it so much the rest of us in the family read it too.

Placed in the mid-1960s, it's about greasers and soshes. The old haves and have-nots story told with a few messages worth thinking and talking about.

The two movie reviews I read about the story were totally different.

One called it the best movie of the week, and possibly one of the best of the year.

The other said it was a movie 14-year-olds would love, but adults might find less than entertaining.

My 14-year-old son said the book was better than the movie, but if he hadn't read the book the movie would have been really good.

I agreed, and it made way for some discussion about the differences in the mediums.

There were things, too, you could have fun with.

"Look at how short their pants are," my son whispered during the movie. "You can see their socks."

"Ah, but that style was so practical," I answered. "If you grew fast, you could keep wearing your pants."

This from a parent who's faced with drawers and closets full of like-new clothes that fit a much shorter son three months ago.

Golf and fishing

By Jim Sherman

It's time to start thinking of golf and fishing. So, I subscribed to a golfing magazine and asked for some bass fishing literature from Arkansas.

That kind of thinking prompts other springtime thoughts. The first is the garden. I've planted tomatoes for years. I love 'em. Trouble is I don't really know how to grow them.

When I put them within the range of the sprinkler, they don't mature the way I think they should... big, round, and meaty.

When I put them outside the water-range the plants wither. Then, too, they all get ripe at the same time. I get a bushel of tomatoes one week a year.

My other garden vegetables have been: pumpkins, zucchini, sweet corn, radishes, lettuce, carrots.

Pumpkins were dropped when the last child left home. I forgot to plant zucchini last year. But, my neighbor planned zucchini so I'll look to that source again.

Rabbits got to the balance of the crop before I did. I suppose I could try planting marigolds around the garden to discourage rabbits, since I'm in a no-shooting area and can't use that approach.

Instead of planting I think I'll just extend the lawn. I bought a 7-ft. cut lawn mower late last year through one of our result-getting ads, and a couple swipes over the previously cultivated lawn could result in hours more time at golf and fishing.

Maybe not a lot of hours because I never did spend the necessary amount of time weeding, thinning, and scaring rabbits in the garden.

A note in my new golf magazine may reverse my spring thinking. Golfing great Jack Nicholas talks about his 8th grade son, Gary. He's a scratch golfer on his school team. In the 8th grade the kid shoots par golf.

Of course, golf magazines don't have stories about bogey shooters.

For those who asked, Why bass fishing in Arkansas? I'll tell you. I've fished several places in Michigan and some in Canada for many species of fish. I've been shut out at walleye lakes in both countries. Trout have eluded my hook equally often.

Pike, perch, blue gills, muskies, and crappies have avoided my frying pan. But, I've never been shut out bass fishing. And, it's more fun being shut out 700 miles from home.

Power play's too costly

One of the Clarkston teachers involved in contract negotiations between the school district and the teachers' union put it this way: "It's a test of power."

As we watch things go from bad to worse, as we watch morale of teachers slump to an all-time low, as we listen to children expressing concern over a contract for their teachers we know one thing for sure.

There will be no winners.

The best thing that could happen would be a rapid settlement of the contract for Clarkston schools' 290 teachers.

Negotiations have been underway nearly one year—since May. And the teachers have worked without a contract since August when the former three-year contract expired.

We don't think their willingness to accept a 3½ percent raise, as recommended by the fact finder last month, should have been ignored by the board of education.

But members of the school board also appear to be sincere in their efforts to keep the district solvent while faced with serious financial difficulties.

And we admit it's easy to sit back and say, "Why don't you do something to settle this?"

But that's what we're saying.

It is vital to the community for the district to continue with the fine educational system it has built a reputation for.

The monster that's lurking is very destructive, for we can think of no other part of a community that has such a strong effect on such practical things as property values.

Power plays are too costly. It's time for compromise.

'If it Fitz. . .

A thorn bird in hand . . .

by Jim Fitzgerald

According to legend, a thorn bird lives long enough to sing only one song before being either fried or broiled to death in a fast-food restaurant.

Whether a broiled or fried thorn bird tastes better is currently the subject of an advertising war between Burger King and McDonald's. Ironically, some of that advertising was televised during "The Thorn Birds," a four-part series which, according to my favorite TV critic, contained "one of television history's truly steamy love scenes."

McDonald's reportedly advised its franchise holders not to advertise during "The Thorn Birds" unless the ads aired before the steamy love scene. Some veteran observers of fast food believe McDonald's took that stand because steam fogs windows and encourages customer graffiti. No McDonald's franchise wants "Ronald McDonald Is No Celibate" lettered on its front window.

However, a McDonald's spokesman said the company had nothing against steam in itself, but only against the steam generated when a Catholic priest broke his vow of celibacy in "The Thorn Birds." Such steam is not suitable for family viewing, the spokesman said.

And he added that McDonald's prefers its cooking process to be called grilling, not frying. It is believed the only difference is that a grilled thorn bird is questioned about its chastity; if the answers aren't family oriented, the bird isn't fried, it is shooed down the street to a Burger King.

According to my monitoring, my local ABC-TV station didn't air any McDonald's ads before the steamy love scene. Sponsors of "The Thorn Birds" on Detroit Channel 7 included Burger King, Denny's restaurants, Renault cars, Jeep Scramblers, Commodore computers, Gallo wine, E.F. Hutton, Oil of Olay, Blue Cross-Blue Shield, Maybelline lipstick, American Greeting Easter cards, Calvin Klein jeans, Prell shampoo, Scope mouthwash, Toyotas, Lady's Choice deodorant, Jell-O, American Airlines, Tampax, Permalens contact lenses, Sunoco and Independent Insurance Agents.

THAT LAST sponsor doesn't surprise me. My friend Howard Bon Vivant is an independent insurance agent and I always suspected he wasn't suitable for family viewing. But what about all those other advertisers? Is the public to believe Blue Cross-Blue Shield and E.F. Hutton approved of a Catholic priest and a married woman getting steamy during prime time?

What about American Greeting Easter cards? Along with McDonald's, the United States Catholic Conference and many members of the clergy publicly objected to "The Thorn Birds," especially to its timing—it began on Palm Sunday and runs deep into Holy Week. If McDonald's wouldn't use the adulterous conduct of a priest to sell fast food, how could American Greeting use it to sell cards celebrating the resurrection of Jesus Christ?

But that is an unimportant question. Probably those advertisers think it's silly to require celibacy of a priest, not to mention Ronald McDonald, so why worry about sponsoring a soap opera in which Richard Chamberlain acts more like Dr. Kildare than Pope Paul.

THE IMPORTANT QUESTION concerns the comparative advertising used by Burger King during "The Thorn Birds." It claimed a recent taste test revealed that people prefer broiled burgers to fried burgers, not to mention thorn birds. When Burger King used similar advertising last year, McDonald's filed a lawsuit, which wasn't dropped until Burger King reportedly agreed to stop the ads. But now Burger King is back at it again, and God knows what will happen next.

How about a taste test to discover which is worse—people's taste in TV shows or their taste in fast food?

Also, McDonald's should admit the only reason it shooes an occasional bird down the street to a Burger King is that the lyrics to some thorn birds' love song are too kinky for family hearing: "Give yourself a beak today."

Reward offered in fire at Rademacher Chevy

Unable to break into a safe at Rademacher Chevy Inc., thieves set fire to two inner offices and caused an unknown amount of smoke damage to a showroom filled with new cars.

Janitors discovered the fires at the dealership shortly after 8 a.m. Saturday, April 2.

They found two acetylene torches burning in the offices and a showroom filled with dense, black smoke, according to arson investigator David Pement of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department (OCSD).

The janitors used extinguishers to put out the flames, and phoned the fire department.

Pement speculates the thieves entered the dealership at M-15 and Dixie Highway in Independence Township through a back window.

A severed electrical cord stopped the wall clock at 7:15 a.m.

"We don't know how many (thieves) there were, or how long they were in there," Pement said. "We do know they got the acetylene torches from the body shop and started the fire to cover up the theft."

Pement did not know what was in the safe or if anything was taken in the burglary.

Owner Tom Rademacher could not be reached for comment.

The Michigan Arson Control is offering up to a $2,000 reward for the arrest and/or conviction of the person or persons responsible for the break-in and fire.

Phone the OCSD at 858-4950 or call the Michigan Arson Control collect at 517-322-0469.

Springfield ups cop protection

By Dan Vandenhemel

Residents of Springfield Township will have more police protection this year.

The township board signed a contract with the Oakland County Sheriff Department for two full-time deputies on patrol for the next fiscal year ending March 31, 1984.

The contract calls for $96,000 for the deputies. The cost includes salaries, equipment and expenses.

"Their salary will be determined on their normal pay scale," said supervisor Collin Walls. "Typically, they will be (paid) around half of that figure."

The contract is an increase from one-and-one-third deputies on duty. Previously, Springfield was together with Holly and Rose townships in sharing one deputy.

"We have those two deputies all to ourselves," Walls said.

"Holly and Rose decided to use the state police instead because they felt the cost of the sheriff was too high. We switched to this contract because we felt the geographical area was too large for the deputies to cover. We'll have more patrol time with the contract."

Road repair ahead for 1983

Independence and Springfield townships are scheduled to reap the benefits of Oakland County's Tri-Party Road Agreement.

As part of the county's $3 million funding for road repair to 18 townships, Independence is scheduled to see approaches paved on Flemings Lake Road at Clarkston-Orion Road; Rattalee Lake Road at M-15 and the paving of Pine Knob Road from Clarkston-Orion Road to Bailey Lake Elementary School. The cost of the three projects: $130,000.

Springfield Township is expected to see installation of flashers on school zone signs at Springfield Christian Academy on Dixie Highway and improved drainage on Ellis Road. The projects' cost: $28,750.

Work done under the Tri-Party Road Agreement is financed with the Oakland County Road Commission paying a third, the Oakland County Board of Commissioners paying a third and local government matching the final third.

Construction of the Independence and Springfield projects are expected to begin following county board approval, according to Dennis Pajot, county road commission spokesperson.

'Ramm it inn' places 2nd in state

By Dan Vandenhemel

They may not be members of the University of Houston's Phi Slamma Jamma, but the "Ramm it inn" basketball team finished second in the state championships March 26.

The Independence Parks and Recreation Department Senior Boys' basketball team lost to Saginaw 90-60 in the Michigan Recreation and Park Association (MRPA) tournament for boys 15 to 18 years old.

In the finals played in Plymouth, Shawn Mosele led the team with 30 points. In the quarter-final game, Mosele scored 41 points to lead Ramm it inn past Oak Park 60-43.

"We have never had a team go that far in the tournament before," said recreation supervisor Sheryl Stickley. "They did better than anyone expected. It was a nice surprise."

The team of Mosele, Scott Banks, Kevin Brown, Bob Barnes, Tom Williams, Eric Dieball, Mike Clem, Bob Ruelle and Mark Jordan survived the eight-team, double-elimination league playoffs to advance to the state tournament.

They beat Waterford 52-48 in the district finals. To go on and meet Saginaw for the title, the team won by forfeit over Dearborn.

"Dearborn had some trouble getting an open date so they just forfeited the game to us," Stickley said.

"They play seven regular season games before the tournament," she said. "This is a pretty good league, but there is a big range in playing ability. That's why this was a nice surprise."

Wolverines short of performers, not talent

By Dan Vandenhemel

Ninth-grade sports are the toughest to coach, says Clarkston Junior High track coach Mike Taylor.

"Ninth-grade is an odd grade to coach because every year one has a new team," he said. "Unlike at the high schools where a coach will have a kid for three years, here everybody has a completely new team."

Taylor is beginning his sixth year as track coach at the junior high.

He started as the girls' coach then shifted to the boys' coach and this year, he is in charge of both teams.

"There are about 30 out for the teams this year," he said. "Really 40 people are needed for a real good team. The average good team carries about 20 on each."

"We are not the only team down this year. Waterford Crary and Pierce junior highs dropped their ninth-grade track programs because of a lack of interest. They just built two new tracks for the schools three years ago."

Taylor believes the Wolverines' strength this year will be in the middle running distances and the field events.

"Todd Edmunds and Rod Parke are our fastest runners," he said. "John Luvera should bring us some points in the long jump and Dave Bliss and Chris Johnson will be our best distance runners."

"For the girls, Shivonne DeBoer is the best all-around athlete on the team. Andrea Zanotti is real quick and Beth Weber will help in the field events."

The Wolverines started practicing March 1. With their first meet April 19 against Rochester VanHoesen, Taylor only had only seven weeks to ready the team for the season.

"At the start of the the year, I sit down and look at the schedule, then I work backwards from the opening date," he said. "The last two weeks before the first meet, I want the kids working on specific events."

"The three weeks before that, I have them running time trials to see where they fit in. The first two weeks is all conditioning."

In his five years as a coach, Taylor's teams have finished right around .500.

"I don't really set a goal of how many wins we should have," he said. "If we finish near .500, I'll know this kids have worked hard to get there."

Mike Taylor (background) takes a close look at the ninth-grader's technique.

Rod Parke practices his long jumping for the Wolverines. Coach Taylor is counting on Parke for a strong season.

Wrestlers compete in finals

By Dan Vandenhemel

Ten-year-old Tony Miller couldn't be happier or more surprised.

Along with nine other members of the Clarkston Wrestling Club, Tony finished in the top four places of their state finals tournament.

In the 9- to 10-year-old heavyweight division, Tony was the only member of the club to bring home a first-place medal.

"I was kind of lucky to win it," he said. "One kid I had to wrestle weighed 178 pounds—he outweighed me by over 20 pounds. I'm just so happy, this has never happened to me before."

This was the first year of wrestling for the Bailey Lake Elementary fourth-grader.

Tony said he plans to wrestle a lot longer and get a lot better.

The wrestlers in the free-style club range in age from 5 to 14 years old and are divided into age and weight divisions.

Behind Tony were second-place finishers, Ruben DelosRios and Bucky Simons in the 8-and-under division and Brent Gwisdala in the 13-14 age group.

Third-place finishers were, Jeremy Valenzuela in the 8-and-under group, Jerry Lawrence in the 9-10 division, Jason Campbell in the 11-12 division, and Rob Lund and Todd Edmunds in the 13-14 age group.

Placing fourth in the state was Robbie Sample in the 11-12 age division.

The finals were held March 26 at Troy High School. Seventeen club members qualified for the finals by placing in the regionals-March 19 at Brablec High School in Roseville.

Penny Valenzuela, a past officer still active in the club, said there were close to 500 wrestlers at the state meet and that would probably be a low estimate.

"The club has only been in existence for three years," she said. "We have 41 wrestlers in the club and to have 17 go to the state finals is great."

10-year old Tony Miller plans to keep wrestling after his state title

Up My Alley The mind's eye

By Dan Vandenhemel

Those ancient Chinese artists had the right idea. Their beautiful landscape murals and scrolls were not what they actually saw but bits and pieces of what they saw in their mind's eye.

The artists would go to the country and maybe take notes, but never did they paint there.

They would remember everything they saw and go back to the studio to do the work.

They saw misty mountain tops, winding streams and cascading waterfalls, trees in full bloom and small paths that led the viewer into the painting.

About this time every year, I wish I had some artistic talent because right in my mind's eye is the Manistee River near Grayling, Mich.

Every summer since 1973, our family has vacationed in a small campground there to relax and, for my father, brother and myself, to do a little trout fishing.

I know how the Chinese artists must have felt when they were painting in their studios, because every time I think of The Manistee I feel sadness, peace and anticipation.

A slight feeling of sadness because all the tall pine trees, the twisting river, the sandy roads seem so far away.

A peaceful feeling comes over me as the sight of the river comes into focus.

Quiet, picturesque, the stream invites you to just sit with it all day and enjoy the beauty.

During the earlier evenings on the river, sitting on a log or in a shallow marsh, you can almost fall asleep watching the sun set beyond the forest.

Peaceful because an occasional deer will cross the river or a family of ducks will come up and investigate you.

Anticipation is felt as the sight of the Grayling exit from I-75 comes into view.

You start to drive faster knowing that you won't have to visualize the stream anymore, you can live with it.

Anticipation because you want to see if anything has changed, for the good or bad.

You drive into the camp and, before the car comes to a complete stop, you rush down to the river and take a long look.

You notice a new tree has fallen into the river creating a different hole for the fish to hide.

You notice the wild purple flowers that line the bank are still there.

You notice a small brook trout playing in the backwater.

You want to look at everything as long as possible so it can sink in.

The Chinese artists must have spent days, even weeks gazing at the landscapes.

They knew, as I do, you will have to leave soon and see the stream only in your mind's eye.

Recording duo find Independence inspiration

By Marilyn Trumper

The wailing harmonica in "Waiting for a Train" immortalizes the plight of an Independence Township builder who's lost the bank's faith.

Unable to forge financial recovery, the builder leaves town.

The A-side of the 45rpm, "Florida Bound," reflects spring break south of the Mason-Dixon line.

For lyricist Mike Robinson, 24, and singer/musician Robert Nomowicz, 32, the black disc pressed on a Spirit Record label rings of fame.

For five years the two have collaborated on music, using locals from their Independence Township stomping grounds as the focus of many songs.

"We met digging ditches," Robert laughs.

"I remember Mike looked over from the other side of the ditch and said, 'Do you know anyone who plays music? I have some ideas.' I laughed then too, and said, 'No.'"

Billed as Rob 'N Robinson, the men hire studio musicians to perform the body of their music.

Robert and Mike pooled $1,200 to finance their first endeavor—and bought 1,000 copies of the record.

Outside of work, neither man socializes with the other.

"The Mills Brothers never did either," said Robert. "There was a purpose then to what they did. We find this works for us too."

"Thursday nights have been good for us. That, and riding around in a car. Mike will sing something over and over again until I get the feel for what he's trying to do, or feel what the person in the song is feeling, then I work on the music."

"We've got a long way to go. But I feel all the stuff we've done is worthy of playing."

Then Robert laughs and adds, "We're going to win that Grammy."

Copies of Rob 'N Robinson's record are available at Waterfall Plaza's Record Bin for $1.68.

Mike Robinson (left), a veteran Pine Knob Music Theatre employe, writes lyrics for partner Robert Nomowicz, singer/musician. Robert is an out-of-work laborer. The two bill themselves as Rob 'N Robinson and just cut a 45 rpm for sale in local record stores.

Village gives $399 van assist

A $2.50 fee tacked onto the cost of license plates has added up and means $399 to the Village of Clarkston.

On March 28 council members voted unanimously to donate those funds to the Independence Township Senior Citizen Center for van maintenance.

"A fee of $2.50 was added onto the cost of license plates in the tri-county area, and then there was some question as to whether it was legal," President

Jackson Byers explained after the meeting.

"The money was put into an escrow account and now communities are getting it back. It has to be spent on transportation in one way or another."

Editor's note: To promote the image of teachers, members of a Clarkston Education Association committee have prepared stories to appear bi-weekly in The Clarkston News. Author Mary Ann Oshler works as a speech therapist in the school district.

A familiar face at Clarkston Junior High for the past 11 years, Charles "Chuck" Keegan is an educator well-liked and respected by his students.

This 32-year-old, single math and science teacher hails from Northville.

He earned a bachelor's degree in education at Central Michigan University, Mt. Pleasant, where he majored in mathematics with a minor in biology.

He also obtained a master's degree in environmental science education at Michigan State University, East Lansing.

As a result of his background, he previously team taught an environmental science class at the junior high.

Chuck Keegan

Keegan is active in several professional organizations.

He belongs to the Michigan Science Teacher's Association, the Michigan Track Coach's Association and the Professional Ski Instructors of America.

For the past two summers, he worked at Oakland Schools, developing the MEAD Science Curriculum.

An avid outdoorsman who owns a lakeside home, Chuck enjoys skiing, running and traveling.

He takes many of his own slides while traveling and often shares these pictures in the classroom.

He likes to join personal interests with professional ones which he has done by sponsoring the CJHS ski club, coaching track and supervising the ninth-grade camp.

Chuck is also a ski instructor at Ron Brown's Pine Knob Ski School.

Chuck tries to give students his belief that "the value of one's life is the sum total of all one's experiences."

Final day near for school nominations

Monday, April 11, is the final day nominations can be made for this year's Clarkston school board election.

Three board members are to be elected in June. Two seats are for four-year terms and one for the remaining year in the four-year term of a board member who resigned.

There are seven seats on the board.

Candidates must indicate on the nominating petitions if they seek election for four years or for one year.

The petitions are available at the school district administration office, 6389 Clarkston-Orion, Independence Township.

Twenty valid signatures of registered voters in the school district are required, and they must be turned in by 4 p.m. April 11.

Fernando Sanchez and Janet Thomas, who presently hold the four-year terms up for election, have indicated they plan to run for re-election.

Thomas Azoni, who was appointed in March to fill the vacated board seat until the election, has also said he plans to participate.

Motocross safety

Clarkston bicycle motocross pro rider Ed Burnette is ready to roll with free programs for schools and youth groups.

Sponsored by the Oakland County Parks and Recreation Department, the presentation includes a talk on safety, an action video tape of last year's national race held at Waterford Oaks, and equipment, clothing and information displays.

The program is designed for elementary- to high-school-age boys and girls and their parents.

The motocross season begins the first Saturday in May at the track located at Waterford Oaks.

Call recreation supervisor Dan Stencil at 858-4946 for more information or to schedule a program.

Art grant: $814

The Urban Arts Grant Award is relatively small—only $814.

But William Neff, director of elementary education for Clarkston schools, says he hopes the grant trend will continue.

"In terms of the national budget, it's nothing much," he said. "But for us, it's a help, and it's the first of a number (of grants) we've applied for."

The plan is to develop ways to expose kindergarten through 12th-graders to the fine arts while coping with budget cutbacks, he said.

The Urban Arts Grant is to be used for teacher and principal workshops. The topic: ways to bring fine arts into the schools through community resources.

Fine arts include art forms like painting and sculpturing as well as dance, and instrumental and vocal music.

Out of five grant applications, the district has been turned down for one, has received the Urban Arts Grant and is waiting to hear from the remaining three, Neff said.

South is rising just as promised

Note: Hazel and I are amateur travelers. We do little pre-planning or reading, and have few things we "have to see in this life". Everything is new, most of it interesting. Our travel companions, Jerry and Marsha Olrich of Oxford, have much more travel experience and Marsha is an avid reader and planner. They had toured much of the area we were to see, and knew better than us what we wanted to see and write about. We think they were right. JAS.

BY JIM SHERMAN

Publisher of The Clarkston News

Except for the 300 miles to and from Oxford, MI very few of our 6,240 miles van trip was on expressways. Most of the roads we drove would have been main roads before the "I" ribbon highways wrapped our country.

So, instead of seeing backs of farms and signs denoting a town was a mile away, we saw downtown and front yard America.

We did it via a new, upholstered, GMC van complete with telephone, CB, stereo, and tape deck. A fine way to travel.

Our general route was: Memphis, Dallas, Houston, San Antonio, El Paso, Tucson, Phoenix, Grand Canyon, and Aspen. As a travelogue narrator would say, "Come, travel with us."

Enroute to Memphis, drive through downtown Indianapolis. See if the number of insurance company and banking buildings doesn't surprise you.

Indianapolis is a town with plans, as we were to find, are Dallas, Denver, Houston, Phoenix and the ski resorts of Colorado.

Indianapolis has a convention center and is building an adjacent dome, similar to the Silverdome in Pontiac, MI, close-in downtown.

Memphis is a town with hints of romance, country music, jazz, and exciting renewal.

Blues is reportedly born a block from the Mississippi river where W.C. Handy wrote "Beale Street Blues." Elvis Presley is worshipped in a hawk's arena in Memphis.

But The River, romantic and commercial, is making Memphis, probably as it should. The riverfront and Beale Street are fun and exciting. One huge warehouse has been transformed into several shops and a restaurant.

Another warehouse houses the Pier 1 restaurant, a fine place to eat. This 7 story building was for cotton, as most of them were, and some of the machinery and much of the structure has been cleaned for public absorption.

Planners from Detroit would do well to copy some of the imagination used in converting obsolescence into magnetic attractions.

A hint of how much confidence business people have in Memphis we noted in a news item. Merchants were asked to pledge $365,000 for promoting the May Festival in Memphis.

They pledged $465,000.

On to Dallas, noting the lack of building of any kind between Memphis and Big D.

The National Home Center convention, where 12,000 people gathered during the week, was our first goal. The city's convention planners did the welcome up right, complete with red carpet, lots of colorful flags, and sunshine.

We spent a full day on the floors (3 of them) touring hundreds of booths, seeing what's available for homeowners. One item we can expect to see a lot more of is burglar-proof storm doors and windows. Telephones are big, as are plastic eaves troughs, home computers, and everything for baths.

Hazel and I spent the morning of the next day "doing" downtown Dallas on foot. Much of it seemed under construction (roads torn up and several construction cranes lifting material that takes them ever higher).

Dallas is our 7th largest city with 904,078 residents. It's among the 3 lowest cities in the U.S. in cost of living, first in housing starts, 2nd high in number of films being shot, and 3rd in the U.S. in number of million dollar companies.

I think one of the reasons Dallas and other parts of Texas are growing so much is the state has no personal or corporate income tax. That's a big plus.

Though Nieman-Marcus Dept. Store and Union Station aren't new in Dallas, most of the rest of town seems to be, especially in banking and hotels.

Our walk took us through the John F. Kennedy Memorial. It's the designated spot where the President was slain during the Nov. 22, 1963 motorcade. Actually, the shooting was 2 blocks away.

Dallas city fathers must have really ached over how to memorialize JFK. In the end they did it simply. They built four walls of granite without a roof, put doors on the north and south sides and have only the president's name inscribed inside. No dates. No story. Just "John Fitzgerald Kennedy".

You can see the president's route and the Texas School Book Depository, where Lee Harvey Oswald shot the president from the 6th floor, from the revolving dining room atop Reunion Tower.

We could see forever when we had lunch there. The Dallas Cowboy's football stadium (the only one in the U.S. built by a team owner), a new jail, the huge convention center, new sprawling post office and miles and miles of buildings . . . both up and out.

You can go up the tower for $1.50 and just look around, but we recommend a $4.50 sandwich at 50 stories up.

See Houston, San Antonio, and maybe El Paso and Juarez with us in a week or so.

Looking north along the Mississippi river front in Memphis. The island under the bridge is Mud Island where a new amphitheater and museum are being built for $63 million. Urban renewal has cleared warehouses at the right and in the distance are some of the new office buildings and convention center.

Left center (square building) is the Library where Oswald shot President Kennedy from the 6th floor. The motorcade was in the curving street below. The JFK memorial is to the right of the cathedral, out of the picture. All of Dynamic Dallas can be seen from the vantage point of this picture . . . atop Reunion Tower.

John Fitzgerald Kennedy memorial in the foreground, and the 50-story Reunion Tower in the background. Hazel is looking at a map of downtown Dallas . . . nothing of the assassination is written at the monument.

SECTION TWO

The Clarkston (Mich.) News Wed., April 6, 1983 21

Optimists of the day are Tim Warner (left) and Jim Simonson whose sacks aren't full. But the Clarkston-Orion Road, Independence Township, neighbors eagerly point out they managed to get some of their favorite kinds of candy in the scramble.

This candy hunting is serious business. Just ask Jeffery Ginn of Flemings Lake Road, Independence Township, at the Clarkston Area Jaycees' Easter egg hunt at Clintonwood Park.

Show and tell

One proud egg hunter takes a break from the scrambling at the Sashabaw United Presbyterian Church Easter egg hunt and holds his basket up to show his parents how many he's collected.

Two waitresses stand at attention at the table of four Clarkston Preschool social debutants. The group of 4-year-olds completed the school's seven-week Good Manners Class and for graduation were treated to the restaurant's famous pastries.

Preschoolers display elegance

Seven-week session of Clarkston Good Manners class comes to an end

By Marilyn Trumper

Two couples trailing ribboned boutonnières from their lapels enter the quiet, dimly lit alcove of Foxys at the Mills, one of the exclusive Machus Restaurants.

Impatiently stepping from foot to foot, Jackie Lietz answers in a loud voice that there will be five dining today, and thrusts a hand forward waving his fingers in illustration.

Dressed meticulously in a gray, pinstriped suit, crisp white shirt and wine-colored tie, his black patent leather shoes lead the way to a table overlooking the restaurant's picturesque bridge and winding stream.

Jackie's joined by Pamela Yaeger dolled up in a frilly pink dress trimmed in lace.

To her left is Cory O'Dea in a preppy striped T-shirt followed by Lynn Hooper in a green corduroy jumper.

They ignore the wine list—they're too young to drink—dismiss menus they can't read and in a furor of clamor mount the beige booster-chairs surrounding the table.

This is the first graduation class from the Clarkston School of Good Manners.

Under teacher Jean Williams' direction, the outgoing 4-year-olds have spent 10 weeks learning what is, and is not, socially acceptable on the telephone, when visiting friends, at quiet places like the show, church, library and at special events like weddings and parties.

This is the grand finale.

A veteran waitress balancing a round tray lifts glasses of water filled with ice cubes and delivers them to the socialites.

In turn, under teacher Jean's direction, Jackie, Pamela, Lynn and Cory shake out their pumpkin-colored linen napkins and drop them in their laps.

The waitress reappears carrying a tray laden with chocolate cream tortes, apple pie and chocolate mousse—and the corner resounds with a clamour of "I'll have" and "I want."

The waitress disappears.

"You forgot to tell her thank you," said teacher Jean. "Be sure and tell her when she comes back."

Dining conversation evolves around E.T.

Plots from Good Manner movies they've seen.

And Jackie's Thanksgiving suit.

The waitress reappears and deftly delivers the rich, sweet pastries before each graduate and teacher Jean.

"Thank you," they say one-by-one.

Pamela begins first—and is the last to finish, relishing each silver forkful of chocolate torte.

Lynn's not far behind with the mousse, but takes time out to retrieve a multi-colored bracelet she dropped to the floor.

Brushing the bangs from her face, she reappears from beneath the table brandishing the trophy.

Jackie finishes in record time.

Cory slips a spoon into his glass and clinks the cubes against the side.

Seconds later his fingers splash the water.

"What did we say we were going to do? We were going to leave the ice in our glasses," says patient teacher Jean, as Cory relinquishes the cubes clasped in his hand.

Looking over the tops of his eyes he dejectedly pulls his elbows off the table.

Scraping the last forkful of apple pie from the brown earthen plate, Cory wipes his mouth with the pumpkin napkin, sits back in the booster-chair, and accidentally burps.

"Excuse me," he says.

The table's cleared and the brief graduation ceremony begins.

The boys receive red bow ties and the girls, white gloves, and all are presented with gold-starred diplomas.

Teacher explains philosophy

The philosophy behind the Good Manners Class is explained by teacher Jean Williams.

For 10 weeks the four 4-year-olds have worked with her to learn manners for home, at the table, on the telephone, when traveling, and at places like the show, church, library, parties and weddings.

The class includes field trips, stories, film strips, games, songs and acting out simulated situations.

"Studies have shown that this is tied directly to success," Williams said. "It has a lot to do with self-esteem and social confidence, and the earlier they're exposed to it, the better.

"We took a trip to the park and learned about litterbugs. That was a new world to them. They visited my home. Part of the class is that we do that—be a guest in someone's home.

"We've learned not to tell someone on the phone exactly where mom is, or that we're home alone. We visited the Dairy Queen, and the library.

"And I did find that these kids have pretty good manners to start with."

It's most important to remember they are 4 years old, Williams said.

"We never expected them to finish the class like adults. They are kids and it's important to remember that.

"What we want to do is make them aware of manners. They'll learn as they grow up and be exposed to these things over and over again."

The class costs $50 and meets once a week at the Clarkston Child Care Center, 5300 Maybee, Independence Township. Preschoolers meet from 3:45 to 4:45 and kindergarten through grade 3 from 5 to 6 p.m., usually on Tuesdays. Phone 674-1515 for more information.
