Pink-slip ax falls on 28 teachers

By Kathy Greenfield

Over 100 teachers stood solemnly when the names were read of 28 Clarkston teachers to be laid off for the 1983-84 school year.

They remained standing when the school board voted unanimously to pink-slip the number, which represents nearly 10 percent of the teaching staff of about 290 in the district.

The teachers did not remain silent, however. Several objected to the number of layoffs in comments before and after the vote.

Over 150 people packed the meeting, with the overflow spilling into the hallways surrounding the board of education meeting room Monday night.

Superintendent Milford Mason cited several reasons for the layoffs: anticipated continued decrease in district enrollment, program cuts made for this school year with more planned next year and anticipated reductions in state aid funding.

The list includes elementary school teachers Patricia Andrus, Carolyn Young, Carol Schuette, Joette Kuse, Dalana Hunt, Susan Banworth, Anne DiPaolo, Bernice Rynders, Leonard Loveless, Deborah Licata, Bonnie Valuet, Linda Spannaus and Mary Madden.

Special education teachers pink-slipped are Ervin Thomas Smith, Patricia Moore-Schulte and Laurel Rightler.

Secondary teachers receiving layoff notices are Deborah Shotwell, Vincent Licata, David Smith, Lawrence Mahrie, Darrell Marsh, Michael Taylor, Nancy Dion, Walter Wyniemko, Michael Kaul, Hannalore Rupprecht, Laura Schaefer and Linda Robenault.

Clarkston Education Association President Allen Bartlett, a Clarkston High School teacher, noted that the teacher reduction based solely the expected enrollment decline of 260 pupils was stated earlier to be 10.5 positions.

He noted that no reductions in administration staff were planned.

With the cuts in teaching staff, there would be one person in charge of the five elementary school libraries, an art instructor and a vocal music instructor would have to be shared between CHS and Clarkston Junior High School, a business teacher would be required to teach mathematics with fewer business courses available and only one chemistry teacher and one social studies teacher would be on staff in the high school.

"We feel that for this board to even consider 19 more staff reductions...that is totally the beginning of the erosion of a good school district," he said.

"It is not fair to these children to erode the district to that level. It's unnecessary and we don't think it's correct."

Bartlett was one of six teachers who wore a large knitted upside-down bright red apple on his lapel, the enlarged symbol of a campaign underway by the district to improve community relations.

Instead, the upside-down apple has become the symbol of discontent of teachers over not having a contract since the end of August.

Some parents expressed concern over the future of the Clarkston Academically Talented (CAT) program for elementary school pupils and the extension of the program at the junior high school level.

Both of the present CAT teachers are to be laid off.

Board President Janet Thomas said the teachers could not be retained, because the teachers' association refused to grant them seniority for their skills.

Thomas Brown, representing the CEA, said there were no state requirements for teachers in gifted programs, so they had to be treated on seniority basis.

He also said other teachers in the district were qualified to teach in the CAT program.

Among teachers who spoke was Grayce Warren, the vocal music department director at CHS.

With the layoffs, she will now be required to teach at CHS and Clarkston Junior High School, she said, and there will have to be about 100 fewer students taking music courses.

"Are we talking about money or are we talking about total education for all children?" she asked, noting that those students will probably have to take academic courses they may not be suited for and that musical and art interests will be neglected for many.

School board members said it is not easy to lay off teachers, but they were forced to do so by the financial condition of the district.

On the shores of Sashabaw Creek

Sashabaw Creek is more than just a clear, running stream. Late in the spring when the water warms up, people come out by the dozens to fish. Here at the I-75 overpass near Clintonville and Pine Knob roads, Al Klug finds a perfect spot to fish. Flanked by his nephew Bill (background) and his niece Karen, the Lingor Street, Independence Township resident gets a jump on the competition by doing a little perch fishing. "Oh it's too early for suckers now," he said. "This is just some fun for the kids. The only way the fish are good to eat is if you smoke them." Bill and Karen were getting their fill of fishing, but their younger brother Mike didn't seem very interested. Instead, he threw stones into the creek and off the cement walls. "They're from Lake Orion and I usually bring them here to do some fishing," Klug said. "They seem to like it here. It's just fun."

More fees OK'd for engineering

Another safety path receives consideration

By Marilyn Trumper

The Independence Township Board has almost crossed the priority White Lake safety path off its list.

Instead, an alternate route is under consideration: Clarkston-Orion Road from Clintonville Park to Sashabaw Road.

The alternate was proposed at the April 5 meeting following the Clarkston Village Council's refusal two weeks earlier to pay for a connector path on White Lake Road.

The village path was designed to link with the township's proposed priority path for White Lake Road from Mustang Drive to the village limits at Deer Lake.

The village council had tabled the issue, deciding that $41,500 to pave 1,400 feet would be too expensive. The township's share for paving 5,400 feet was estimated at $67,000, not including engineering costs, inspections and soil investigations.

After discussion, the township board voted 6-1 to have the engineers draft specs for the alternate route at a cost of $6,000.

Trustee Dale Stuart was the lone dissenter.

"I don't think it's right we spend $6,000 to $7,000 on a path no one will use anyway. That's an unpopulated area along there," he said.

According to Building and Planning Director Kenneth Delbridge, the amended zoning ordinance says developers will be required to provide safety paths in areas where they're included in the master plan.

Stuart pointed out that land along that section of Clarkston-Orion Road is undeveloped, and that the township's $118,000 from the safety path millage could be better used in areas already developed.

For the past few months, the board has been selecting the next 3.4 miles of safety paths to be built from the annual .5 mill levy.

The millage, approved by voters in 1980, will be collected for 10 years and is expected to net $1 million. One-half mill is 50 cents for each $1,000 of assessed property valuation.

Other routes selected by the board include:

- Eston Road from Clarkston-Orion to Algonquin Road.

- Maybee Road from Winell to Sashabaw roads.

- Snowapple Road to the Independence Township Library along Clarkston-Orion Road.

Debate's on over hiring two more firefighters

By Marilyn Trumper

Treasurer Frederick Ritter wants two more firefighters added to the Independence Township Fire Department, but he faces some opposition from the board.

At the March 5 meeting, Ritter proposed hiring two swing men to fill shifts and "virtually eliminate" all overtime pay, per Fire Chief Frank Ronk's suggestion.

The salaries have been figured into the department's $744,000 budget, which was underspent by $100,000 last year, Ronk said.

He had no figures on overtime paid last year, but said the salary for a first-year man is $16,000.

"If people voted the millage, we should levy it and accumulate the money for future capital expenditures," Ritter said. "We're chumping (the public). They aren't getting what they're paying for and I think we need to address the question of hiring these two people."

Trustee Dale Stuart disagreed.

"I don't feel the people of the township have been treated as chumps. I think we have worked to see that a budget in poor condition when we took office is now liquid. With what the chief has to spent, we're doing the best job we can.

"The money we're spending, we're not spending poorly," Stuart said.

Supervisor James B. Smith agreed.

"That millage was voted in to get Station 2 open again, to enlarge Station 3 and buy the tanker, which we're getting this week.

"The fire budget is now liquid. I'd hate to see us spend our money on salaries and not have that millage re-voted in 1988.

"Then we have a department top-heavy with help and no money to make the capital investments," Smith said, stressing the importance of a strong volunteer force to make up the difference.

"I would almost be willing to vote for one man now, because I think we need one. This is not a stall, but I want to be sure we're spending the money in the best interest," Smith said.

After discussion, the board voted 5-2 to table the matter until Smith reviews the fire budget with Ronk.

Ritter and Trustee Larence Kozma voted "no."

"We're chumping (the public). They aren't getting what they're paying for..." — Frederick Ritter

"I don't feel the people of the township have been treated as chumps." — Dale Stuart

"I don't think we should table it. We should do it tonight. Let's talk about it," Ritter said.

Voter approval of 1 mill in 1980 allowed the fire department to pay off a $140,000 debt to the general fund.

The first year's collection did that, and subsequent years financed hiring of two firefighters to staff, reopen and repair Station 2 and purchase the $115,000 tanker.

Voters have approved 3 mills for the fire department.

But because of the Headlee rollback factor last year, the township levied 2.954 mills to finance three fire stations and 10 full-time firefighters, not including the captain and chief.

There are 34 firefighters on the volunteer staff.

LaPiazza wins tavern license

By Marilyn Trumper

An hour of board parley ended a year-long debate and netted Allie Assad a tavern license to sell beer and wine at his Italian restaurant, LaPiazza.

While a half-dozen neighbors of the restaurant at Clarkston-Orion and Eston roads continued to oppose granting a license, two favored the move and controversy extended to the board.

Trustee Larence Kozma was the lone dissenter in the 6-1 vote at the April 5 meeting.

"It was originally zoned convenience center, like pizza take-out, and he got a variance to expand to the restaurant," Kozma said.

"A majority of the residents don't want it and I don't think it should be compounded with a (liquor) license. Therefore, I oppose it."

Trustee Dale Stuart disagreed and pointed to Assad's good-faith landscaping efforts, erection of a masonry wall and expansion to a full-service restaurant on a trial basis in hopes of landing the license.

"He's bent over backwards to meet our requirements and requests. In this kind of economic climate, for Mr. Assad to be successful a liquor license is to his advantage," Stuart said.

"And it's in his best interest to see as little congregating outside goes on as possible.

"Gangs of kids hanging around outside will only serve as a detriment to his business."

Neighbors repeatedly opposed granting the license, fearing the restaurant will expand to a bar and compound traffic problems at a corner flanked by two stores that already sell beer and wine.

"Last time we had a petition signed by 68 people against this. I can get them here if you table this," said one resident.

"I've got children that play around there. I don't feel it's a place for booze. Let 'em go out on Dixie Highway and drink," said a Monterey Road resident.

John Christensen of Thendara Park wanted the license granted.

"Mr. Assad has proven to be a positive influence in that shopping center. I'm aware of the physical changes he's made. His presence alone has made it a more stable area and I urge the board to approve his request," he said.

Supervisor James B. Smith reminded residents that board approval is needed before Assad could alter the restaurant to a bar.

"You keep insisting it could be a bar, and that because people stop and buy beer at the two stores there that (Assad) will be a problem.

"I can't bridge the gap," Smith said.

Two liquor licenses for would-be bar owners and restaurateurs are still available in Independence Township.

The latest allocation from the 1980 Census gave Independence Township three licenses.

Months later, an established bar owner forfeited the license for his Dixie Highway business bringing the total to four.

Last fall, Waterford Hill Courts was granted one of the four licenses and last week restaurateur Allie Assad landed a tavern license for LaPiazza, an Italian restaurant on Clarkston-Orion Road.

Including the two latest allocations, there are 11 establishments in Independence Township serving alcoholic beverages: the Waterford Sportsmen's Lounge, Deer Lake Racquet Club, Sam's Town, Alexander's Restaurant, Howe's Lanes, Oakland County Sportsmen's Club, Nickelodeon Country Tavern, and Pine Knob, which holds a Class C and hotel license.

The deadline for filing income tax forms is April 15. When did you send in yours?

"Feb. 25. My husband and I got our W-4's then. We get a return so we like to get it back quickly." — Sharon Staup, restaurant manager, Ely Road, Springfield Township.

"Ours was in the end of February. That's typical for us. We have our returns back already." — Hannah Reglec, housewife, Ortonville.

"We sent ours in two weeks ago. We had some information that came back then. Usually we get it in earlier in the year." — Mary Daniels, housewife, Eston Road, Independence Township.

Teacher contract talks begin anew

Contract negotiations are underway again between the Clarkston school district and the 290-member Clarkston Education Association.

At the end of the school board meeting Monday night, it was announced that the two negotiating teams planned to meet Tuesday afternoon.

The teachers have worked without a contract since August.

The issue came to a head again during the board meeting when layoff notices were issued for 28 teachers.

According to state law, teachers' pink slips for the following school year must be issued at least 60 days before the present school year ends.

Debate again centered around whether or not there is enough money to give salary increases to the teachers.

Also questioned was the need to lay off 28 teachers when enrollment is expected to drop by about 260 pupils, a figure that would indicate 10.5 fewer teachers would be needed.

Board member Steven Werner noted that of the four or five districts in northern Oakland County, the Clarkston school district has laid off the least number of teachers so far.

"Teacher layoffs are indeed painful, but I don't see an alternative at this point," he said.

Board member Thomas Azoni called for a meeting between the two groups.

"My suggestion is that we negotiate quickly and I would recommend that if a negotiating session has not been set, let's do it tomorrow. Let's get it over with," he said.

Board member Carolyn Place agreed.

"I would hope that you on your side and us on this side of the room are in total agreement—we would like to get these two sets of individuals working tomorrow," she said.

Board member Vincent Luzi objected to "negotiating everything in public."

"I think we ought to go back to the bargaining table," he said.

Place pushed for a meeting between administration chief negotiator Conrad Bruce and teachers' association chief negotiator Thomas Brown.

The two met during a brief recess at the end of the school board meeting and announced that the teams would meet the next afternoon.

Sewer payment to come from county

Independence Township wants Oakland County to pick up its $480,000 sewer bond payment using a portion of the $1.2 million from the excess sewer construction fund.

On April 5, board members voted unanimously to have the treasurer request county officials pay the bill from that fund.

The county has agreed verbally to pay the township's bill, according to Treasurer Frederick Ritter, which would continue local control of the $480,000 in the township fund.

Oakland County has paid the last four bi-annual sewer payments.

Spend the tax money

We've listened to many people say government should be conducted like a business.

While we tend to agree with that philosophy on the whole, there's one area of the run-it-like-a-business debate presently under scrutiny in the Clarkston school district and in Independence Township where we have our doubts.

The question that keeps surfacing has to do with equity, or surplus funds.

And it boils down to this: Should tax money be spent when it comes in or should a large chunk of it be saved?

The debate underway between Independence Township Board members on whether or not to spend the the majority of tax money coming in for the township fire department illustrates the differences in philosophy.

Some board members say the money should be spent. The people voted to increase their taxes to provide more in the way of fire department services, they say, and that's exactly what should be done with people and equipment.

Other board members say money needs to be saved in case the people decide not to renew a millage at a later date.

The same kind of debate is going on within the school district.

While income problems are obvious, the administration has taken the stance that no raises should be given to teachers this year and cut-backs in programs and services have been amplified so there'll be some money leftover.

There's a fine line between keeping some money and keeping more than is necessary.

But we have always believed most of the money should be spent if the voters have agreed to increased taxes.

If, in the future, voters decide to go against millage renewals, then let the ax swiftly fall on existing programs and staffs.

Bouquet

Ultimate in field trips

We wish to extend a "bouquet of orchids" to Clarkston High School's French teacher Carol Arend and her husband, Bob, for their interest, time and work in arranging and going to Paris, France, with high school students and interested adults.

Their commendable attitude, taking the responsibility for students, and organizing the ultimate in field trips—a trip to Europe—is deeply appreciated.

Thank you, Carol and Bob Arend.

Your efforts in giving others an opportunity to "try out their French" and visit historical landmarks will always be remembered by those of us who were fortunate to experience this educational trip.

Jim's Jottings

Conserving water?

by Jim Sherman

Some day industry and people, probably in that order, will be drawn to Michigan. Fresh water will be the catalyst.

The mountains can supply just so much water to the deserts of the southwest. Arizonians, for instance, are using about three times as much water as wells can supply.

Concerned people are putting pressure on Arizona developers to make the wisest possible use of water. Developers, with golf courses as their main attraction, are under particular pressure.

People see water sprayed to make grass green for someone with a bent stick to hit a little round ball on and they complain loudly of the 'waste'.

Dave Ritchy, president of the Rio Verde golf community, said at least two new golf courses are being constructed in Scottsdale with water conservancy in mind. Of course, the fairways will be lined with dwellings making them either golf resorts or golf communities. They will have their own sewage disposal systems.

Ritchy said these golf courses will have less fairways than conventional courses. Less 'green' fairway that is. Grass will not be planted where golf balls are not supposed to be hit.

Say that again? Let's take a par 4 hole. The tee will be watered. The next 150 yards will be left desert. Then there will be a watered fairway of maybe 100 yards, then desert to the green, which will be watered.

Par 3's will be desert from tee to green. Par 5 holes will have two so-called landing areas.

To conserve even more water, or rather to use even less water, the golf course will be 'watered' with effluent from the disposal system servicing the surrounding dwellings.

The treated effluent will be pumped through spraying nozzles throughout the course.

This system is not unlike the spray irrigation disposal system engineered for the village of Oxford about 15 years ago. At that time residents rejected the idea based primarily on an image of the nose.

Oxford's system was to be located west of the town, thus prevailing winds entered the nose picture, too. Money was not the concern, though it was half the price present sewers are costing.

Private money is putting the same system amongst settlements of $100,000 homes. They know what Oxford wouldn't believe... there is no smell in the spray irrigation system.

Accolades from afar

by Kathy Greenfield

Inspiration for this column about a column about columns came to me on the night of April Fools Day.

I was catching up on reading the newspapers I receive from people around the United States and Canada that I met while attending an American Press Institute seminar for weekly newspaper editors in January.

The source was a column called "Off the Editor's Wall" by Les Walters, editor of The Hamilton (Alabama) Progress.

To know Les is to love him.

You'll know why he deserves such praise as you read on.

But I have an aside:

There's one thing I'll never forget about Les and that involves my favorite quotation from him: "Don't y'all have a gun?"

I'll quickly try to put it into context. We were talking as a group about life-threatening things that had happened to some of us.

Les' solution was to carry a gun like he does.

He was not left unchallenged, but he explained that in his part of the country practically everyone keeps a gun handy in case of an emergency.

The gun is rather a radical example of what people tend to forget when they live for years in the same community.

What may sound strange to us here in Clarkston can be perfectly OK in other parts of the country.

So, I was reading this column by Les on column writers.

He talked about a man who writes about such things as putting peanuts in his Coca-Cola and eating and drinking at the same time.

He called Ann Landers "too off the wall" and the people who write to her "dinkheads."

Then my name popped up.

He said my column has "a loving quality."

Isn't he nice?

No comment on the significance of the discovery of this tribute on April 1.

Hair today and tomorrow

by Jim Fitzgerald

A few months ago, it was reported here that although I was then using Suave shampoo, people never called me an old smoothie. Despite regular applications of Suave, the shampoo for people who desire smooth relationships, my life was still bumpy. I couldn't understand it.

So, in an effort to strike up smooth relationships with people who bumped me, I switched to Head and Shoulders shampoo. According to TV commercials, persons who don't use Head and Shoulders continually scratch their heads, which offends people who bump into them and causes these people to turn around and run away. So I figured if I used Head and Shoulders, I would be able to keep my fingers out of my hair, and people who bumped me would stick around out of curiosity to see what I did instead of scratch my head when I'm perplexed, which is often.

One thing perplexing me is President Reagan's hair. No matter how old he gets, his hair stays exactly the same. I saw him twice on TV the other night, 72 years old in the 11 o'clock news and 53 in a midnight movie called "The Killers." In 19 years, his perfectly trained pompadour didn't gray, thin or muss even slightly. I don't think Reagan has to comb his hair. He commands it, like a pet dog.

On the other hand, Reagan's 1964 co-star was Angie Dickinson and not only has her hair changed through the years, so has her nose. It has shrunk considerably. So one person loses part of a nose in 19 years while another person doesn't lose even one strand of hair trained to fetch newspapers. If that's not perplexing, it's at least politics.

Anyway, I'm no longer perplexed by why Suave shampoo didn't make me smooth, or Head and Shoulders didn't make me stop scratching my head when I see President Reagan's hair sit up. I discovered my wife was watering my shampoo.

I USED TO MARVEL at how long a bottle of shampoo lasted for me. Shampoo isn't like razor blades; you can't keep using the last drop over and over until you remember to buy a new bottle. But I always thought it was remarkable how very seldom I had to buy shampoo. I was reminded of the Bible story where Jesus blessed the wine bottles so they kept pouring and never emptied, which impressed me more than unlimited loaves and fishes.

However, it also seemed remarkable that my shampoo changed its texture inside the bottle all by itself, without being touched by human beings. At first, the shampoo was globby and easy to pour onto my hand and rub into my skull. But later it got thinner and much of it trickled between my fingers. And later yet, the shampoo became so thin, I had to purse my hand to hold it and swoop it swiftly onto my head before it evaporated from sheer lack of substance.

And all during this startling metamorphosis, the miraculous bottle remained almost full while the shampoo produced less and less suds. I finally asked my wife what was going on and she said she read in a magazine that a good way to save money was to extend the life of shampoo by adding water.

A QUICK INVESTIGATION revealed that she didn't add water to her shampoo, which is different from mine because it's for golden, lustrous hair. Mine is for dirty, greasy hair. She explained she didn't water her shampoo because she didn't want to save too much money for fear it would pile up around the house and block the passageway used by visitors who come to get a sunburn from sitting near her hair.

So now I understand why no one called me an old smoothie and I scratched my head when I saw Ronald Reagan's pompadour roll over for Angie Dickinson. My hair appeal was terminally diluted by my wife.

Life was a lot simpler before I got so clean. When I was a boy, the only reason I played school sports was so I could tell my mother I took a shower in the locker room. And I told my teammates I showered at home. I thought that was suave.

Clarkston officials take oaths

By Dan Vandenhemel

It's official.

Clarkston Village Council President Jackson Byers swore in the two newly elected members and three re-elected officials of the governing body April 11.

New trustees Fontie ApMadoc and Carol Eberhardt along with returning trustees David Raup and James Schultz and Clerk Norma Goyette took the oath of office at the meeting.

The village council election was held March 8. Eberhardt was elected to the position after replacing Jerry Powell who resigned after just two months of his two-year term. Her term expires March 31, 1984.

ApMadoc was elected to fill the position vacated by Ruth Basinger. Basinger did not run for re-election after 10 years as a village official.

Raup and Schultz were re-elected to their posts. Their terms and ApMadoc's term end March 31, 1985.

Goyette was elected to a one-year term ending March 31, 1984.

The term in office for trustees Jon Gaskell and Ethel Sinclair will end March 31, 1984.

Safe boating class

Thoughts turn to warm weather and lake activities.

And the Oakland County Sheriff's Department Marine Division has scheduled Boating Safety classes for 12- to 16-year-olds.

Upon completion of the six-hour course, students will be awarded Boating Safety Certificates which will allow them to operate a boat without adult supervision.

Locally, a class is scheduled April 26 and 28 at Sashabaw Junior High School from 6 to 9 p.m. both nights. Phone 625-8223 to register.

The class is free.

Other classes are available throughout Oakland County on different dates. For some there is a charge of $1 or $2, depending on the location.

In addition, if any group of 20 students wants to be certified a class can be scheduled.

For more information, call Deputy John Graham of the marine division at 858-4993 from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. weekdays.

Waterford Hills Race Track sues Independence

By Marilyn Trumper

After two years in the boxing ring with Independence Township, Waterford Hills Race Track has filed a lawsuit to force the township to issue a license for the 1983 racing season.

The suit, filed March 7 in Oakland County Circuit Court, charges the township zoning ordinance is "unconstitutional" as it relates to operation of the 1.5-mile track off Pelton Road.

"I don't know what to say more, except that we don't feel we have any choice. The lawsuit speaks for itself," said track attorney Jeffery Heldt.

Independence Township Supervisor James B. Smith reacted with surprise.

"I'm most disappointed," he said. "It seems to me great effort was put forth by the township to arrive at an acceptable agreement. This might find the courts declaring (the track) a nuisance and put it out of business."

The eight-page document charges the township with spot zoning of the 25-year-old track on the grounds of the Oakland County Sportsman's Club in southern Independence Township.

In addition, the suit attacks the ordinance language as "ambiguous...and overbroad," says the limitations outlined in the law are "arbitrary" and that the law is "unenforceable."

No hearing has been scheduled, according to Heldt.

The turning point in the track's negotiations followed the township's latest amendment to the zoning ordinance which limits sound decibels to 70, a figure Heldt has repeatedly said "...is one we cannot live with."

Paper nameplates to crumple

No more will paper nameplates adorn the table when Village of Clarkston officials meet.

The village council voted April 11 to buy name plates for the officials from one of the area trophy dealers.

The council had been using nameplates printed on white paper by Trustee Jim Schultz.

President Jackson Byers quoted a price of around $12 a piece for the aluminum plates.

There are five trustees on the village council plus the president, clerk and treasurer.

"The paper plates were not too adequate," Byers said. "They are a little hard to read and the new ones will be nicer looking."

Schultz said there was no need for the added expense.

"With so many people moving in and out of the positions here, it will be too hard to keep up with it," he said.

"Besides we usually don't have anybody come to the meetings. Look, we have two here and that's a big crowd."

Nevertheless, with Schultz' objection, the motioned passed and the council will have new nameplates.

Schools borrow $1.9 million

Favorable interest rates and the planned receipt of state aid in June have made the Clarkston school district's tax anticipation loan of $1,920,000 more attractive, says business manager William Jackson.
In a unanimous vote, the board of education decided Monday night to borrow the money at 6.45-percent interest from Manufacturers Bank of Detroit.
With the state aid payment, not as much money would have had to be borrowed, Jackson said, but it was decided to go ahead with the full loan because of the low interest rates.
Concern over payless paydays in May and June prompted the application for the short-term loan, from May 2 through April 3.
The district expects to receive $1,698,000 of the money owed in state aid payments by June 30, leaving a shortfall of $186,844.

"We can take that state aid and stick it in the bank at 8 1/2 percent," said Jackson. "The rates I got Friday were 8.68 percent for the short-term."
"We'll make out all right. It's a good business deal."
Of the money due in state aid, the district could lose $81,434 from an executive cut approved by the state legislature, said Superintendent Milford Mason, but he's not sure which payment it will be subtracted from.
The remainder of the state aid for the 1982-83 school year is to be paid by the end of September.

From Australia to Clarkston

Tennis pro left her country 20 years ago, now works at Deer Lake

By Dan Vandenhemel

Michigan is much different than her native Australia, but Trish Faulkner has a long list of accomplishments made on the way here.

The 38-year-old from Sydney is now living in West Bloomfield. She left her native country in 1962 to play professional tennis.

Now she is the director of racquet sports at the Deer Lake Racquet Club in Independence Township.

"My ex-husband was transferred into this area and I've been at Deer Lake almost two years now. I'm an outdoor person and I like people. Michigan is full of lakes and I love it here," she said.

Besides her title of director at Deer Lake, Faulkner is also the tour director for the Women's Tennis Association (WTA).

"Oh, it's fun," she said with her Australian accent.

"I help arrange the tournaments and get to fly all over the world for them. I'm the one that writes the checks for $55,000 for a week's work and says, 'Nice job.'"

Faulkner's background is impressive.

She was the Australian tennis champion and the Australian Junior squash champion. Her experiences include playing in tennis tournaments in Wimbledon, England.

"I played there six times," she said. "Wimbledon is very special. It has a magical charisma. The ivy on the center court walls and the courts themselves are special.

"People camp overnight for seats there. The English dress up for it because it is a major sporting event in England. It's the Indianapolis 500 of tennis."

She played there four straight years, from 1963 to '66, then returned in 1970-71 after giving birth to her two sons. The farthest Faulkner advanced was the third round.

"I won three matches one year, but I think I'm a better doubles player," she said.

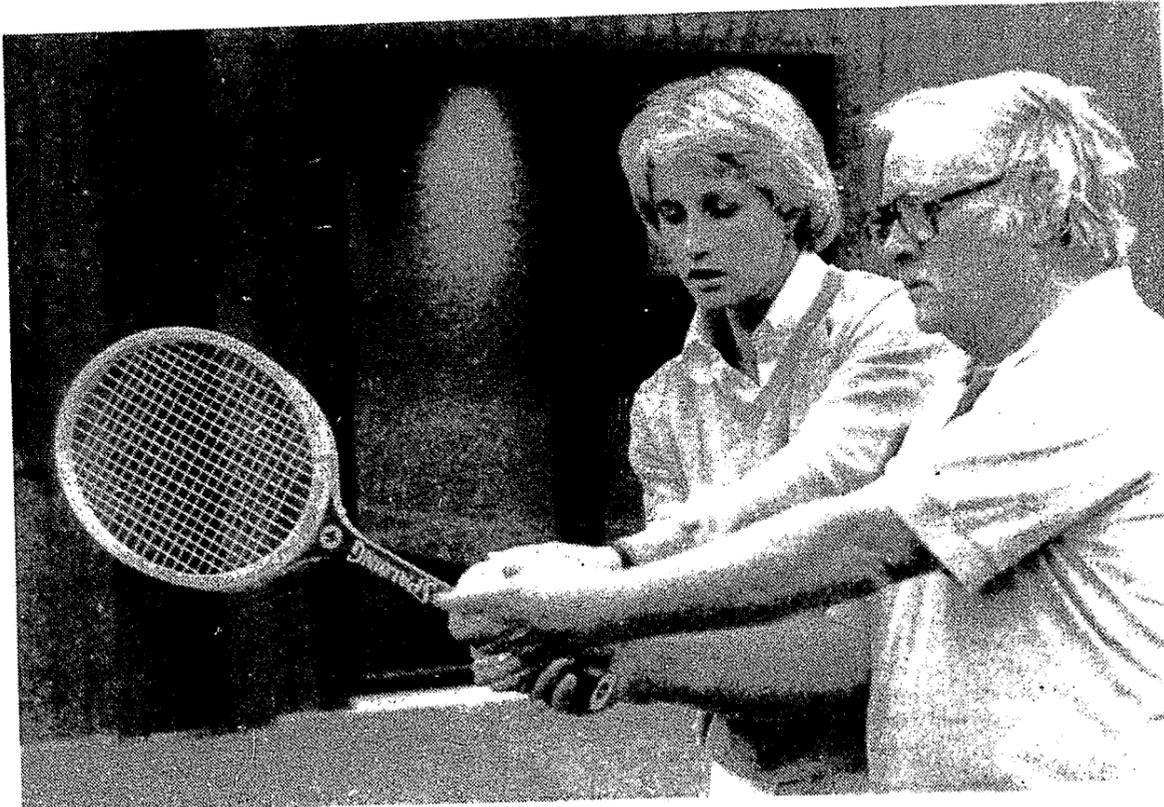

Faulkner has seen changes in professional tennis for women, and she's helped make some of those changes.

"When I left Australia in 1962 to play tennis, there was no real prize money to play for," she said. "I think I made about $500 over three years.

"Most of the tournaments were in Europe and we had to write to them ourselves to see if we could play. I had bargained for more. I wish I was born 15 years later.

"I've enjoyed watching it grow over the years. Some people have criticized the tour because of the young girls that are playing.

"Girls mature faster than the guys do and reach giving tennis and racquetball lessons at Deer Lake Racquet Club for two years.

their peak around 18 or 19 years old."

"Right now the WTA is very strong," she said. "We are coming up to the 10th anniversary later this year.

"I think I was very instrumental to get Avon to sponsor the tour. We are more unified than the men's tour, but they have more tournaments and more players."

Faulkner started playing tennis when she was 7 years old. Her family was sports oriented and her father was a national rugby player.

"The best time to start playing tennis is right around that age," she said. "I feel sports are very important for the educational process.

"If you can learn to handle defeats, it will be easy to bounce back from negative things that happen to you.

"I encourage my two sons (Grant, 15 and Scott, 14) in sports. They play a lot of soccer, but I've never pushed them into sports."

All types of people come to Faulkner for tennis lessons—people in business, children, beginners, advanced.

"I love it, most people who come in here know what they want," she said. "What I like the most is watching that little light turn on in their heads.

"After telling and telling and telling them what to do, they get the feeling. That little smile on their face is worth it."

Faulkner has traveled all over the globe, with the only exception Russia, but she regrets returning only three times to Australia since 1962.

"I can't pick an area or a country that I like the most," she said. "But with all the travel and everything, I would not change my experiences for anything."

Booster shots for athletics

They'll shoot 100 times from the free-throw line and be prepared to collect pledges for each basket made.

The event is the Clarkston Athletic Booster Club's Shoot-A-Thon.

The fund raiser is to be underway Saturday, April 16, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the Clarkston High School gym.

Admission is free for those who want to watch. Those seeking practice in the batting cage can pay $1 for 25 pitches in baseball or fast-pitch softball.

Proceeds are to go into the booster club's general fund.

The most recent expenditure of the club was $5,000 for video equipment.

Adult or high school and junior high school students may participate in the Shoot-A-Thon by gathering pledges.

Call Arden Collier at 674-2167 for more information.

Adult basketball teams close out season in state tourney

By Dan Vandenhemel

Two adult recreation basketball teams from the Independence Township league traveled to Mt. Pleasant last weekend for the Michigan Recreation and Parks Association state tournament.

Both the men's and the women's teams lost the opening round games in the tournament.

The women's team, Serra Chevrolet, finished the regular season with a 10-4 record. They lost to the Kalamazoo Ball Bellies 56-38.

The men's team, Mt. Clemens Crane lost, 90-84 to Grand Haven. The defeat was the first for the team. They finished the season with a 14-1 record.

The tournament starts with 105 teams split into divisions, according to the size of the community.

"We only had six of our nine players there," said the men's player-manager Jerry Olsen. "If we had Mark Cheklich and Steve Muller there, it might have made a difference. Mark is 6-foot-8 and Steve is 6-7."

Other members of the men's team are Bob Fuller, Greg Strzlecki, Weldon Graham, Frank Merriam, Gary Mason and Jeff Durchuk.

Players on the women's team are Sue Conling, Kris Topolincki, Sue Peterman, Janice Weddle, Kathy Boyea, Marsha Meyers, Nyla Hill and player-manager Lynne Parker.

Independence Township Parks and Recreation Department director Tim Doyle said the men's game was very close.

"They didn't have their full squad," he said. "They played a great game, it could have gone either way. The women just got beat out there."

Wolverines dodge water, mud in practices

By Dan Vandenhemel

For a softball team, practicing outside in the spring isn't as nice as it seems.

The players have to dodge water and mud in the field and hope they don't slip.

During a recent practice, the Clarkston Wolverines' Sherfy Kulaszewski wasn't one of the lucky ones.

While racing for a ball hit over the firstbaseman's head, she slipped and fell in the mud.

"She made a real nice try for the ball," said coach Holly Rupprecht. "She is one the girls on the team that plays other sports in school. She is a pretty good athlete."

The Wolverines have one of their more balanced teams this year, according to Rupprecht.

"I've had some pretty good lopsided teams here," she said.

"In the past, I could point to one player and say she is the best player out there. But this whole group is good."

Rupprecht said her key players are Sue Lovelady, Kelly Cruz, Terry Sherman and Denise Sewell.

"Sue is strong in the outfield, very strong," the coach said. "Cruz and Sherman are both shortstops and pitchers and will be good. Sewell has good power as a hitter—sometimes it's unbelievable."

"I have two players for every position, but I don't know who will be starting yet."

Other members of the Wolverines are Patti Hadad, Amy Eiden, Laurie Brandt, Michelle Sprung, Kris Schultz, Lori Walker, Lisa McCreery, Kely Ford and Alysa Gettig.

In her first three years as coach, Rupprecht's teams have won over 50 percent of the games.

"Last year, we were 8-9 and the first two years we won over half of the games," she said. "We should win 75 percent of our games this year, I think they can. There's no doubt in my mind that this will be a winning season."

catching equipment. This is Rupprecht's fourth year as Clarkston Junior High's coach.

Athletic talent all through Cougar team

By Dan Vandenhemel

The Sashabaw Junior High softball team has one unusual feature—only one girl out of the 14 on the team has not been involved with another teams during the school year.

Lisa Spina is the one. All the others were on the basketball team, the volleyball team or were cheerleaders.

That doesn't mean Spina isn't as good as the rest of the team. Coach Nancy Foster plans on using her as the starting catcher.

"She has to be the most aggressive girl on the team," Foster said. "She'll probably be my catcher, even though she's left-handed. She's not afraid to stand up and throw the ball with someone standing in front of her."

"So many girls from other sports are a real help," said Foster, who also coaches basketball at Sashabaw.

"When they start in the fall with basketball, they don't play well as a team. But by the end of the season, they realize they have to play together to win. They give up the 'I' attitude for the 'we' attitude. They play better as a team through volleyball and are really together when it comes to softball."

The team of 14 girls were picked from the 35 who tried out.

Foster chose the team March 31, just before Easter.

"I made the picks and then it was spring break," she said. "During the break, I had only six or seven players at the practices because (the rest) were gone. I still have one that is in Florida and one in Tennessee."

"After I made the picks, my two best pitchers took off. I only worked with them for two days. I still don't know exactly what I've got."

Despite the lack of practice, Foster said she believes this is one of her better teams since she's been a coach.

This is her fourth year coaching the Cougars. Each year, her teams have finished over .500.

Last year, Sashabaw had a record of 8-6. The year before was the Cougars best record at 13-1. In her first year, they finished 9-5.

"We should be well over .500 this year," she said. "Usually we have to look for the best athlete and make her the pitcher, but this year we've got a number of them. I never expected this many good pitchers.

"Melanie Upcott and Chris Jarrett should be my best pitchers. Sue Stefanski and Colleen Conway have the most experience on the team and will help a great deal."

Other members of the team are Michelle Taulbee, Jackie Roberts, Chris Raymer, Tammy Pittman, Pam Stiff, Kim Bender, Dawn Krajenke, Renee Lindeberg and Dana Hocking.

Opening day

By Dan Vandenhemel

Opening day at Tiger Stadium has a strange but special feeling.

The first home game of the season attracts all the people who normally wouldn't go to a baseball game.

The Tiger fans are special because over one million turnout throughout the season to watch them finish anywhere but first.

But on opening day, everyone in the park anticipates a pennant-winning season. Rarely is the stadium as full as it is when the home schedule starts.

Detroit area radio stations give away tickets to the game. There are also long opening-day ceremonies preceding the game.

Besides all the activities, there is still a baseball game to be played.

Once the game starts, the fans do more walking than they do watching, and with 50,000 at the park, every line in the building is longer.

The hot dog lines, the pop line, everything. When people stand in line, they tend to miss some of the game. More often, they miss a lot of it.

Five years ago, a friend and I were on a hot dog run for all seven people we came with.

We missed the biggest play of the game.

We could hear the constant roar of the crowd. But when we heard the crack of the bat, the entire stadium was quiet.

When roar returned, we heard that Thompson had just hit the roof in right field and barely missed hitting the ball out of the park.

Every time the subject of opening day comes up, that moment is always in the middle of it.

There are the bad seats and the good seats, sunny days and snowy days for the opener.

Four years ago, three of us sat in the right field upper deck, in the box seats with our winter parkas on.

With the 40-degree temperature, the snow, the wind, the weather conditions were not the best for a baseball game.

With all the adversities that come along with opening day, why do the fans keep going to them?

The best answer I can find is, well, just because.

El Paso / Juarez cut apart by the Rio Grande

Note: Last week we got you through Memphis and Dallas. On to Houston, San Antonio, El Paso and Juarez. Hazel and I are traveling with Marsha and Jerry Olrich in their new, well upholstered and communication fitted van.

BY JIM SHERMAN
Publisher of The Clarkston News

Houston was badmouthed in Dallas. Several discouraged us from visiting the sprawling, Texas oil rich city. However, it was on our agenda from our first planning.

We wanted to visit 12-year-old Patrick Sweeney from Lake Orion. He was injured while jumping moguls on his bike a year ago. He fell wrong and it crushed his spinal cord, leaving him paralyzed from the neck down.

Patrick's a spirited lad with an active mind. He's typing and painting with tools in his mouth and will be running a wheel chair around his Lake Orion home the same way one of these days. Actually, he got home before we did.

Contrary to the warnings, we were impressed with Houston. It had as many buildings under construction as Dallas, or more, it had an absolutely huge medical complex of more than a hundred hospitals, 25 colleges, and miles of oil refineries and storage tanks.

So far in 1983 the Chamber of Commerce counted 100 construction ribbon cuttings.

Not impressive was the battleship Texas that is anchored in a park 21 miles from downtown Houston. It wasn't nearly as impressive as I remember battleships from my Navy tour in 1944-45.

We drove around downtown Houston, but otherwise saw too little of the area to have the impression deeper than an overview.

When friends learned we were going through Texas enroute west they practically insisted we stop in San Antonio. Same way with people we met along the way.

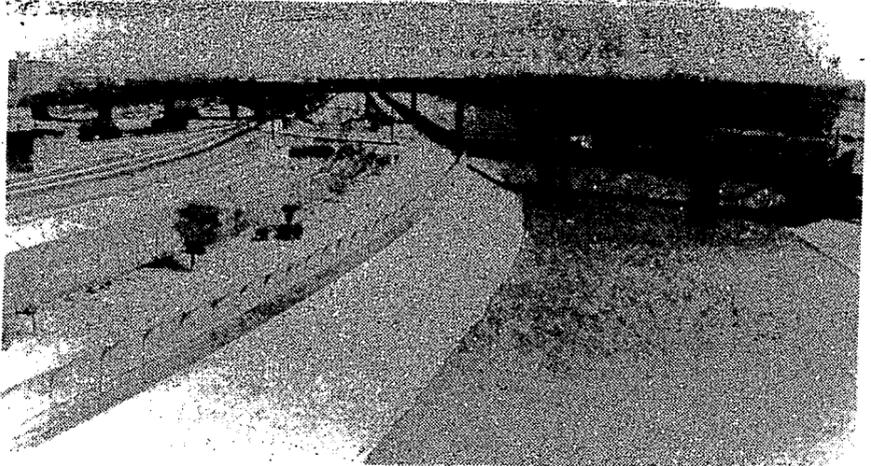

"Oh, you must see the river front!" we heard time and again.

So we did. But, just as Houston was downplayed too much, San Antonio was overplayed. After all, there's more to an area than a 1 1/2 mile landscaped river.

Could you drop into the U-shaped river scene by helicopter and avoid the neighboring streets it would be just fine, as long as it was say 5 p.m.

As you would expect the river is about one story below street level.

City planners have made Paseo del Rio (river walk) into a park complete with walkways on both sides of the 50-ft. wide river. Foot bridges, considerable plantings, and patio restaurants add to the scene. And, for a dollar you can get on a barge with 39

The middle of this river, the Rio Grande, is the US-Mexico border. The cement-sided river to the left is water being diverted for irrigation.

other people and view the new and renewal efforts. Trouble for us was, it was cloudy and rainy the morning we were there. Shops don't open until after 12:00 noon and the area was vacant.

Neighboring streets are narrow and littered with people down on their luck. It wasn't scary, just unclear. It's a great place to buy used clothing.

The sun was practically out when we toured the Alamo. Re-reading the history, seeing clay modelings of the fort, and absorbing the atmosphere of the 13 days of 1836 when all the Alamo protectors lost their lives was memorable.

We had kind of planned on spending 2 nights in San Antonio, and maybe see some missions or the Hemisfair, but the downtown turnoff limited our stay.

On the other hand, never had any of us planned on spending one night in El Paso, let alone two. We were sort of blown into town, liked it, and stayed there.

It was windy the Friday night we stayed in Ft. Stockton, TX. The next morning it was windier. It blew sand at 40 mph all the 244 miles to El Paso. At one time we couldn't see a turn-off and we were right at it. A state road was closed with tumbleweed piled 10 feet high.

Traveling a curvy mountain road north of the city to get a view probably was safe enough, but the shaking van didn't make 3 of 4 of us feel safe. Have to admit it's a great view, though, over El Paso and the Rio Grande into Juarez, Mexico, a city of 1.5 million.

Good weather means so much toward a successful, enjoyable trip. Our first morning was perfect. We survived the sand storm the first afternoon partly by taking nourishment at Miguel's Central Cafe in downtown El Paso and partly by attending an antique show in the city's modern civic center.

Our first morning in El Paso was a Sunday, not a great day for touring in Mexico, but not too bad either. We had decided to take others' advise and not drive across the border.

We took a taxi driver's advise and didn't walk across either. Good thing. Shops are a long way from the bridge. For $9 each the cabbie took us on a 4 hour tour.

We went through the glass factory, a couple shops where we figure the driver got a kick back, through the downtown open fruit and vegetable market that was jammed with people, and to a silver factory.

This factory makes bracelets and more intricate jewelry with very old equipment, but that's not the interesting part. The trip to the silver works is through a poor part of town.

Bordering the factory are repair shops for the neighbors. Broken appliances, bicycles, furniture, furnaces, and motors of all kinds were under and on top of lean-to's along an alley.

The 'used everything' area also served as a border to the Juarez cemetery. Bright colors are evident in many places in Juarez including the cemetery.

It costs a dime to get back in the U.S. across the bridge over the Rio Grande. The driver stopped in the middle for us to get pictures. It's a good thing he did. The river may have a "grand" name, but it's not much for width or color.

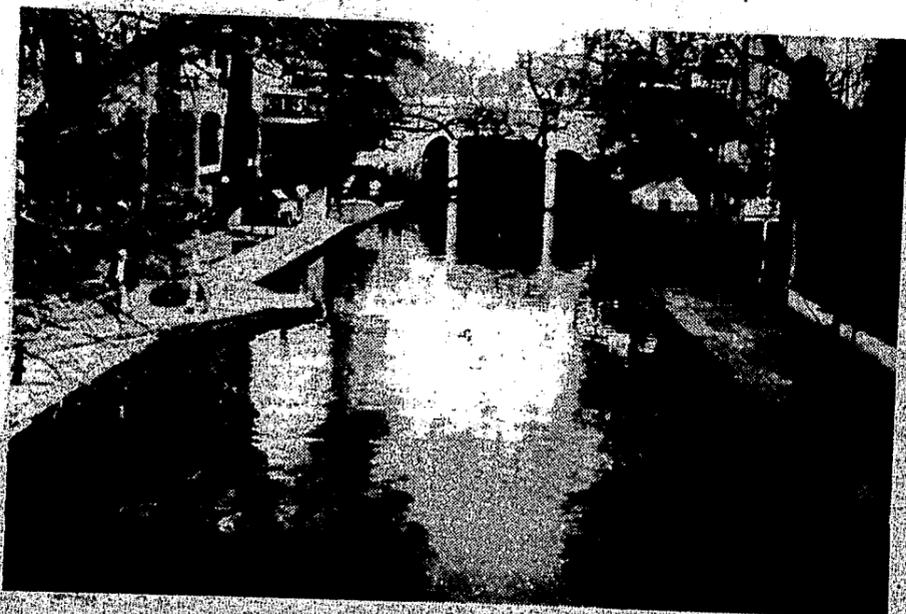

We spend the afternoon on Coronado Country Club on the mountainside north of El Paso. It wanders among expensive homes and cars. We probably wouldn't have gotten to play golf at this rather exclusive club later in season. It's a great layout with a view of the mountain or valley all the way. But, if you miss a green your next shot was up a steep hill.

For dinner you might try the Great American Land & Cattle Co. restaurant. It's not far from Ft. Bliss.

Pecan farming, old Tucson, Tombstone and more in our next story.

Elegance in Juarez. Our taxi driver said this is the home of a liquor company owner.

The Picturesque river walk in downtown San Antonio

The poorer people of Juarez come to this area for used everything. It's their 'repair' area the driver said. Over the roof tops is a cemetery.

... within the Inkwell

First steps: educational goals, community profile

by Mary Ellen Hanson and Pat MacArthur

Editor's note: This is the second installment of "within the Inkwell" designed to follow the progress of year-long work on reports about Clarkston schools for the North Central Association, the organization that grants accreditation to school districts.

Dear Pen Pal,
Since my last letter, the North Central Evaluation is progressing on schedule.

Remember I said "Philosophy and Goals" and "School and Community" needed to finish their reports before anyone else should begin?

Well, these two committees have been very busy and have nearly completed their work.

The purpose of "Philosophy and Goals" is to provide a framework of basic principles of education.

Sound pretty idealistic? I guess it does, and that's part of the problem.

You see, these goals have to be reflective of the community and reflected by what actually happens within our building.

Whew! It's not an easy task, but the committee went right to work.

Nancy Albyn chaired this diversified committee. Teachers from various curriculum areas assisted her—Cliff Chapman, Mary Fowler, Judy Medlin, Janet Miller, Gene McCurdy, Marlene Reed and Dave Skillman—as well as Sue Learmont, a parent who served as the community resource person.

They studied Clarkston Community Schools' objectives, reflected upon changes over the past seven years and formulated new objectives.

Major changes were in the areas of math and extra-curricular.

Computers and technology are becoming so important they felt the need to address that issue.

Extra-curricular objectives needed revision because many organizers of various groups no longer teach in the high school. This has had an effect on how these responsibilities are perceived.

The best part of this group's involvement was the presentation to the staff. The teachers discussed and questioned terminology and made suggestions for change.

It is really good to see staff members think about an idea that is so important to us all.

The committee studying school and community needed to take a different approach.

Howard Webster is chairman of this committee. Members are Ginny Farmer, Margo Lay, Freda Meyland and Kathie Pierson.

Duties include gathering factual and statistical information about the community, as well as former and present students.

Educators must be aware of all cultural, racial, religious and socio-economic groups within our community in order to provide good learning experiences for each group.

This report becomes the mirror by which we should analyze the rest of our curriculum.

Do our programs really reflect our community? Every other area must then consider this information in order to determine how effectively its program meets the needs of the students.

Many changes have taken place since the North Central Evaluation of seven years ago.

Perhaps the most significant and surprising deals with the changing enrollment.

Although overall figures indicate a decrease of 1,023 students in the district since 1972, the first year of system-wide enrollment decline, it is interesting to note that high school enrollment continued to increase until 1979.

Since 1979, high school enrollment has decreased by 69 students.

But the overall population has increased by 107 students when figures from 1972 and 1982 are compared. And 11 teaching positions have been cut.

These statistics make it difficult to support cut-backs at the high school level based primarily on declining enrollment.

At the same time, many improvements can be observed.

Achievement and ability scores are available on our incoming sophomores and updating of that testing is done during the 10th grade.

We now have many auxiliary programs, including a full-time Community Education Program to better meet the needs of our school and community.

The other area that has grown is improved communications between the high school and homes within our community.

Statistics show that more of our graduating students are attending college which will force us to review our curriculum carefully.

Senior student questionnaires found many students satisfied with their educational experience, with a majority identifying teachers as the "thing most liked about school."

This should be good news for teachers whose questionnaires reflected teachers' morale below average this year.

The conclusions from the "School and Community" report can be used in a positive way to improve the quality of our school operation.

And that, of course, is what North Central is all about!

Sincerely,
I.M. Quill

Raccoon rescue

By Kathy Greenfield

Mater artium necessitas.

The translation of the anonymous Latin saying: Necessity is the mother of invention.

Bill and Catherine Lobb know its true.

That's how they saved the raccoon trapped in the chimney of their home on Scenic Ridge Drive in Independence Township.

Last Thursday, they decided to warm up with a

Clarkston News

SECTION TWO

The Clarkston (Mich.) News Wed., April 13, 1983 21

fire in their lower level fireplace.

Catherine takes the story from there:

"(Bill) opened the flue and he heard something crying," she said.

He could feel the weight of the animal. He knew it was large, but he couldn't tell from the sound what it was.

"I knew when I lifted that damper it was more than a squirrel," he said. "It sounded like a baby's whimper."

So, Bill got out the ladder, climbed on the roof, looked down with an assist from a flashlight, and saw the raccoon.

"He looked so forlorn huddled down there," Bill said. "He was more scared than I was."

What to do? It was around 10 p.m. and Bill couldn't stand the thought of leaving it there any longer than necessary.

His first thought was to lower a sapling he had cut down, stripped and saved for future use.

It was too short to reach the raccoon trapped two stories below.

"We talked about it and he decided to go up on the roof and lower a rope," said Catherine. "I didn't want him to because he's 63 years old. I didn't want him to climb up there at night."

Bill had some misgivings, too. He had visions of a crazed raccoon grabbing the rope, rushing out the chimney and attacking his rescuer.

So he took a tennis racket up with him, just in case.

The rope was tied around the chimney and lowered. The raccoon shied away from it.

Bill dangled it around. The raccoon grabbed hold, but didn't attempt to scramble out.

So Bill left the rope, climbed down and removed the ladder.

"During the night, I heard him several times. He'd grunt a little bit while trying to pull himself up, and then fall," Bill said.

"The next morning I got up and looked and, sure enough, he was gone."

Relief.

The Lobbs had been out of town for a while, and they weren't sure how long the raccoon had been trapped.

"We thought that was a pretty smart raccoon," Catherine said. "We didn't know if it would be strong enough to use the rope. But it got out."

"I'm sure," she added, "there's a sooty raccoon roaming around here."

The chimney where the raccoon rescue took place is in the background as Bill Lobb holds up the rope he used to give the animal a chance to climb to safety.

Free health screening tests April 21

Free health screening tests will again be offered in Independence Township through Project Health-O-Rama on Thursday, April 21.

The Clarkston Community Women's Club serves as local sponsor of the session from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Episcopal Church of the Resurrection, 6490 Clarkston-Orion.

"This is a very good opportunity to have enough of an examination at no charge or a very minimal charge so that if there is something wrong a doctor can be reached in time," said Mary Jane Chaustowich, site coordinator for the women's club.

Free tests available include the following: height/weight, blood pressure, vision, health hazard appraisal, health history, counseling/referral and glaucoma.

In addition, an optional blood panel will be taken for $7 which includes 21 tests. Those participating should not eat for four hours preceding the test.

Students from Clarkston's Northwest Oakland Vocational Education Center medical assistant course are to administer many of the tests, and registered nurses are to be on duty to interpret the results.

Last year was the first year the women's club served as the local sponsor of Health-O-Rama.

"We were very successful last year," Chaustowich said.

"We had over 200 people which, for the first time out, was more than the project people anticipated, and we're expecting an every greater turnout this year."

Information sheets on the tests will be placed in area drug stores and the Independence Township Senior Citizen Center.

The tests will also be available at 65 other sites throughout Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties, with some locations offering additional free tests.

For more information, call the Project Health-O-Rama hotline at 271-7800 between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. weekdays.

The project is sponsored by WXYZ-TV, Blue Cross/Blue Shield of Michigan and the United Health Organization.

Clarkston's architecture in spotlight

Ever wonder what architectural ingredients make the Village of Clarkston so unique?

Dr. John Cameron, Oakland University art history professor, will share the answers in a free lecture planned Tuesday, April 26, at 7:30 p.m. in Clarkston Village Hall, 375 Depot.

Sponsored by the Clarkston Community Historical Society, the lecture is the fourth in the restoration series.

"Michigan Architecture" is Cameron's topic.

Through the use of detailed slides, he'll explain architectural styles found in Michigan and the differences between Greek Revival, Gothic Revival, Stick and Italianate styles, all of which are present in Clarkston.

Cameron is currently working on the Oakland County Architectural Survey.

For more information, call 625-8823.

Free bicycle clinic

There's a way for kids to get their bikes in shape for spring. And it's free.

The Independence Township Library is sponsoring a Bike Clinic for first- through sixth-graders on Saturday, April 16, from 10 to 11:30 a.m.

It is to be held at the Church of the Resurrection, 6490 Clarkston-Orion, across from the library.

A representative from Scarlett's Schwinn Cyclery Inc. of Pontiac is to talk about safety, and tune-up and repair of touring and motocross bicycles.

Children may bring their bikes and receive individual tips.

Registration is not required, but for more information call the library at 625-2212.

Call for volunteers

Work is underway on Bailey Lake Elementary's annual School Fair.

The event is planned April 30. Those wishing to help may contact Frank McGeogh at 625-5179 or the school at 625-2812.

More details will be announced later.

Recipe file Just add coffee

By Lorna Bickerstaff

Doreen Schwarze of Rudy's Market gave us a copy of one of her good recipes.

We sampled the cake, and The Clarkston News' staff highly recommends this one. Similar to a pound cake, it would be delicious with a cup of coffee.

Cocoa Ripple Raisin Cake

½ c finely chopped pecans
½ c sugar
1½ T cocoa
1 T cinnamon
1 c margarine or butter, softened
8 oz cream cheese, softened
1½ c sugar
1½ t vanilla
4 eggs
2¼ c flour
1½ t baking powder
½ to 1 c raisins
½ c finely chopped pecans

Heat oven to 325 degrees. Grease a bundt pan. Sprinkle ½ cup pecans on the bottom of prepared pan.

In a small bowl, combine ½ cup sugar, cocoa and cinnamon; set aside.

In a large bowl, combine margarine, cream cheese, 1½ cups sugar and vanilla; beat until light and fluffy. Add eggs, one at a time, beating after each addition.

Lightly spoon flour into cup and level off. Gradually add flour and baking powder; blend until moistened.

Fold in pecans and raisins. Spoon one-third of batter into pan; sprinkle with half of cinnamon mixture. Repeat, ending with batter.

Bake for 65 to 70 minutes or until the cake springs back when touched.

Youth Assistance announces winners

Some 80 participants put their skills to work in the Clarkston Area Youth Assistance Bowlathon March 20.

Money raised will help send 6- to 12-year-olds to Camp Oakland in Oxford this summer.

And three bowlers came away with prizes of their own: Paul Maas made $286.48 for youth assistance and won a weekend trip for two to Toronto, Canada; David Merz made $274.07 and won a wireless telephone; Rich Carpenter made $222 and won a 12-inch black and white TV.

The bowlers gathered pledges for the number of pins knocked down in a three-game series.

"We aren't really sure how much money is coming in because it's still straggling in," said Garry Pullins, youth assistance social worker. "But we hope to get around $5,000."

Because expenses have increased for the nine-week camp program, youth assistance needed about $4,200 more to send 70 children to camp this year, the same number as last year.

The campers, selected by teachers in the Clarkston school district, may be having problems with shyness, a divorce, or getting along with peers or parents, Pullins said.

Thus, the camp program serves to help them through a rough period and offers a positive experience, he said.

"The Youth Assistance Committee thanks all the bowlers and all the people who pledged money," Pullins said.

Jim Meloche: active cross-country skier in the Nordic Ski Patrol.

Skier finds whiter pasture

By Marilyn Trumper

1983 was a dismal skiing winter in Michigan. So dismal, that downhill and cross-country skier Jim Meloche took to the Aspen slopes. "I skied more in those three days than I did all winter in Michigan," Meloche said of his excursion to Colorado.

Meloche, 39, of Springfield Township, has been in the national ski patrol two years and serves as director of the Independence Oaks Nordic Ski Patrol.

The group patrols cross-county paths in search of injured or lost skiers.

"It really was a disappointing winter for cross country. There was so much enthusiasm this year among the patrollers and we weren't able to get out very often."

Meloche joined the Nordic Ski Patrol last year, driven to increase dropping membership.

"...We had a bad season two years ago and there was not much of an aggressive recruiting campaign. Our numbers weren't growing."

Today the Independence Oaks Nordic Ski Patrol boasts 13 patrollers who've completed first-aid and emergency-care training as well as a 40-hour internships on the paths.

Twenty candidates are waiting in the wings. The Independence group was the first operating in Michigan, and is the largest, according to Meloche.

In all of Michigan, there's a total of 30 qualified patrollers to troubleshoot for the 128,000 cross-country skiers expected to hit the trails this year.

"Independence Oaks is the nicest of all Oakland County Parks and has four different levels—children, intern, advanced and expert," he said.

Last year 18,000 cross-country skiers traveled the four paths, averaging 750 to 1,000 each day.

Meloche calls the sport's expense "very reasonable."

"The best part is you can go just about anywhere as long as there's snow. To Rudy's for a loaf of bread or just visiting down the street."

Meloche and his two sons, Joey, 11, and Jim, 12, have skied to St. Daniel's church on Sunday.

"We prop the skis up outside and go in," he said.

Key to successful skiing is wearing proper clothing, learning how to ski and fall, and safety rules like never skiing alone. The organization hosts seminars to explain the ins and outs of the sport, Meloche said.

This year for the first time Independence Oaks rented cross-county ski equipment.

For information on the Nordic Ski Patrol, phone Meloche at 879-8820 or 625-8368.

Postmaster opens doors to area

By Kathy Greenfield

As he takes on his new job as Clarkston's postmaster, William Kinsley II talks about the role the area played in his past.

Kinsley, 32, was sworn in as postmaster Friday. He served as officer-in-charge of the Clarkston Post Office in December 1979 and January 1980.

"I fell in love with the community of Clarkston, the people that I met in the short time, and especially the employes and the working atmosphere in this office," he said.

On his first date with Gloria, his wife of two years, he drove from Birmingham to go to the Nickelodeon Tavern on M-15 in Independence Township.

His knowledge of the town even goes back to his childhood.

"I spent summers and weekends and vacations with my great-aunt and uncle. He was a doctor in Davison, Mich., so just about all my life I've driven through Clarkston," he said.

Kinsley applied for the job as postmaster several months ago. He found out he got the job about two weeks ago. His reaction sums up his pleasure.

"I was stunned," he said. "I'd worked very hard to prepare for this type of position."

"It's very gratifying to realize something I really wanted had come through."

His career as a postal service employe began in Hazel Park when he was 16, and includes deciding along the way to turn down a four-year college scholarship and stay with the post office.

He's been a letter carrier and accounting assistant in Royal Oak, officer-in-charge in Clarkston and Troy, and branch manager in the Birmingham post office.

"I feel successful through the post office," he said. "I have no regrets. It's been worthwhile."

He's seen the massive changes over the years, calls them interesting and exciting, and says there's more to come.

"I see how the new innovations coming down the road are really going to help us better serve the community," he said.

Kinsley stresses the need for communication.

"I do want to be successful in giving 100 percent service and I need the community to help me," he said.

"I'd like the community to know my door is always open. I welcome their calls, their comments, their concerns."

"I'm available to speak at any civic group or meeting with homeowners' groups about delivery concepts... (and) to get ideas from them on how I can better serve the community."

"I'm very service-oriented and the Clarkston post office will be service-oriented."

The post office serves Clarkston and portions of Independence and Waterford townships.

It has 48 employes, 15 city routes and seven rural routes.

Tanker ready to roll

Firefighter Mike Stitt gets ready to take off in the shiny new tanker fire truck. The tanker cost $115,000 and can hold 3,000 gallons of water. The Independence Township Fire Department fleet now includes a pumper and a medical rescue unit in each of the three stations. The tanker replaces a 1959 pumper that held only 500 gallons of water. The other two existing pumpers hold 750 gallons and 1,000 gallons. The tanker will be stored at the No. 3 Station at Pine Knob and Maybee roads because it is too tall to fit anywhere else, said Fire Chief Frank Ronk. It measures 9 feet, 9 inches high and weighs 64,000 pounds when full of water. "We now have the capability of putting 5,750 gallons of water on the road immediately on the initial call," Ronk said. "We're in hopes that the addition of the large-gallon tanker is going to do help insurance-wise for the residents of the community in the coming year."
