Jill Vedder was one of eight spelunkers trapped in Kentucky cave

By Marilyn Trumper

Clarkston High School's president from the Class of 1977 made national headlines last week.

Twenty-four-year-old Jill Vedder and seven other spelunkers were rescued after being trapped for three days in a flooded Mount Vernon, Ky., cave.

"We knew we were going to get out, we just didn't know how soon," Vedder told The Clarkston News in a call from her home in Cincinnati, Ohio.

Vedder was with a team of amateur explorers, members of the Greater Cincinnati Grotto Club.

The group was rescued by divers Tuesday, April 26, 72 hours after rising water trapped them 1,800 feet from the cave entrance.

"We kept going over to the entrance to see if we could get out, and that's when we heard the pumps and saw the diving line. There had been a 2-inch rain that day that caused the flooding," Vedder said.

Vedder said this was only her third adventure "caving."

"I have a friend...who got me into it. I don't think (being trapped) will be a deterrent, but I don't think I'll go that much more often either," she said.

The explorers ate canned Spam and beans and M&M candy, ironically left in the cave months earlier by one of the members of the group, who Vedder said, thought the cave would be prone to flooding.

Vedder is a former Walters Lake resident.

DNR weighs Levy gravel plan

By Marilyn Trumper

It's taken one month to compile the transcripts of a five-hour public hearing on the Edward C. Levy Co.'s controversial mining proposal.

But the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) can offer no timetable for rendering its decision on the controversial plan to mine 300 acres near the headwaters of the Clinton River, according to Brad Wilkins, water quality specialist with the Inland Lakes and Streams Division.

"We're still going over everything and waiting for some information we've requested. We don't know if more information will be needed, or if we'll want an environmental impact statement. The (Army Corps of Engineers) may want one too," Wilkins said.

Call's on for belt-tightening

By Marilyn Trumper

Clarkston Trustee Fontie ApMadoc told the council to prepare to pinch pennies in '83.

"It's time we tightened our belts around here," ApMadoc said at the March 25 meeting. "We're going to have to start watching where we're spending and for what. We've sat down in preliminary budget meetings and looked at the figures, and it looks like we should pay close attention."

After the meeting, ApMadoc said the late arrival of a state shared revenue payment may have eliminated her fears.

"It's not really as bad as all that, but we do have to be careful with our money, not that we're going hog wild. It's amazing what few things the village spends money on.

"We're about ready to pay off the village hall, I think we owe $7,000 on it. And the department of public works. Those are the two things we do spend money on," she said.

The village's tentative 1983-84 general fund budget totals $140,000, according to Treasurer Artemus Pappas. The DPW budget tentatively totals $32,000, he added.

Last year the village levied 4.4 mills, but can levy a total of 12.5 mills, Pappas said.

It has been five years since the village increased the general fund levy.

Gravel pit still under scrutiny

"There's no indication when we'll have a decision, but if an environmental impact statement is requested, it could lengthen the time by several months."

Wilkins offered one promising note.

"We do see the light at the end of the tunnel, and have been told to put this on top priority."

In late March, the DNR and Army Corps of Engineers held a joint public hearing on the Levy Co.'s proposal.

The meeting was attended by over 150 people representing 30 interest groups opposed to the plan.

At that time, the DNR indicated a decision would be made within 90 days.

Since the first public hearing two years ago, Levy has swayed little from its original plan.

•Mining of 300 acres with 80 acres reclaimed for an "upland habitat," a wetlands area that does not now exist.

•Developing a 200-acre lake.

•Creating a 21-acre shallow wetlands area in the northwest.

•Developing within the first five years a township beach on a 12-acre lake abutting Clintonwood Park.

Information on Pine Knob Investment Co.'s unpaid taxes was incorrectly attributed in last week's Clarkston News.

The figure came from Lillian Jawlick, deputy township treasurer.

A story in last week's Clarkston News incorrectly stated there was only one Clarkston area winner in the top-three-place finishers in the Boy Scout Pontiac-Manitou District Pinewood Derby held at Sashabaw Junior High School April 16.

In fact, there were three winners who are members of local Cub Scout packs:

•Jason Councilman placed first in the districts in the Wolf division.

•Tim Ford placed second in the Wolf division.

•Paul West placed third in the district match in the Bear division.

Photographs of Jason and Paul are on Page 24.

School officials discuss U.S. survey

Federal report criticized for emphasis on urban—not rural schools

By Kathy Greenfield

"Schools flunk out" and "U.S. gets an 'F' in education" screamed headlines in the Detroit daily newspapers last week.

The scathing summations of a federal report prepared by the National Commission on Excellence in Education were followed by portions of the 7,000-word document.

The 18-member panel called the collapse in student performance since the late 1960s "shocking" and said the United States is threatened by a "rising tide of mediocrity" in education, according to the news stories.

And the commission's recommendations to improve education included longer school days, stiffer graduation requirements, higher college entrance requirements, more homework, higher teacher pay and more fiscal support from citizens.

Educators in the Clarkston school district said they have yet to see the report, but they were willing to comment on their reactions to newspaper and television coverage.

Superintendent Milford Mason said the report seems to place emphasis on large, urban high schools, leaving doubt that all conclusions would apply to a more rural setting like Clarkston.

"I have mixed emotions on it," he said. "It seems to put education back on the federal agenda and that may be good—it may end up to benefit education."

The report suggested seven-hour school days and Clarkston High School now has seven 50-minute class periods in each school day.

It also recommended "far more homework" and school years of at least 200 to 220 days. In Michigan 180 days of school are required.

"I'm not wholly convinced that longer school days and longer school years in and of themselves are going to produce better-achieving students," Mason said. "Scads of homework just for the sake of homework I'm not sure is beneficial."

Rather than simply react to the criticism, Mason said such a report should be used to make education better.

"In any study like this, you've got to be extremely careful to remember that anyone and everyone should be expected to improve," he said.

"For me to say this doesn't apply to Clarkston, I won't say that because we have plenty of room for improvement and I want to strive for that. That's the point at which we should be—to strive for improvement at every level."

Also looking forward to reading the report is Allen Bartlett, CHS English teacher and president of the 290-member teachers' union, the Clarkston Education Association.

He pointed out that the report recommends higher teacher salaries.

"I didn't realize myself until recently how much we're falling behind other professions now," he said, noting that a starting teacher's salary in the Clarkston school district is less than $13,000 a year.

"There's no way we're competing at around $13,000. People are taking 11 or more years of their lives getting up to the starting salaries of people in other professions."

He said in the past two years, no graduates from the physics or mathematics departments of Central Michigan University, Mt. Pleasant, went into education.

Although attracting educators is not a problem in Clarkston now, he said it's time to think about the future.

With the average age of 42 for Clarkston teachers, "when these people retire who's going to come in to replace them?" he asked.

He also mentioned what he sees as a serious lack of teaching equipment, supplies and materials.

"We're vastly deficient in these areas. We need to put more money into education," he said.

"We in education are applauding Gov. (James) Blanchard because he was the first governor in two decades to increase (proposed) spending in education and that has to be the key."

Homework is another area, Bartlett commented about.

"Do you know the one question parents ask me most often? 'Do my kids have homework,'" he said.

'I think the pendulum is swinging back in education'

—Pam Bills

noting that in an English literature class there is always homework.

Parents need to realize their children have homework in certain types of courses and encourage them to do it, he said.

Bartlett also said Clarkston students have continued to turn in college entrance-type test scores well above the national average.

In reaction to the suggestion that graduation requirements become stiffer, he said that in each area mentioned—English, math, social studies and science—CHS requirements are only one-half credit below the recommendations.

"The report is saying we ought to go back strictly to a rigid curriculum—lock kids in," he said. "I think you would see a larger dropout rate if we did."

And newspaper accounts of the report did not mention other areas of study open to Clarkston students.

By upping requirements, students would not have time to take classes in the vocational center, to have jobs during their senior years or to take college courses at Oakland Community College, he said.

Because the panel responsible for the study also included people in the business community and a housewife, The Clarkston News sought reactions from people in similar walks of life.

Pam Bills taught fourth-grade in Osceola before quitting seven years ago to devote her full-time efforts to her family.

Open classrooms, not giving letter grades for course work and a non-structured atmosphere were all the rage in education during the period the study covers, she said.

"I think the pendulum is swinging back in education," she said. "I think we're turning out better quality students now than they did in previous years."

"With the job market the way it is, school doesn't need to be so much fun. When I was teaching, teachers were knocking themselves out to make school fun for each individual child. The whole day was 'Sesame Street' in the classroom."

As a parent reacting to the Clarkston school district, Bills said she could only speak about her daughter, a first-grader at Bailey Lake Elementary School.

"From what I see in the first-grade program, I just don't see how they have so many illiterate people (the report cited surveys that said 13 percent of all 17-year-olds are functionally illiterate)," she said.

"I'm not disappointed with the length of the school day in Clarkston and the length of the school year," she added. "The summer plays a valuable role in social growth and family time, and I just feel positive, so far, about the school district."

Martha Wheeler, vice president and Clarkston branch manager of the Pontiac State Bank, reacted as a businessperson and a parent.

"I think what we have in this township is somewhat unique," she said. "I think they train the kids well. My children got an excellent education and they've done something with it."

"(The bank) has hired people from the vocational school who worked here on a field study. I'm really impressed with our vocational schools."

Vets blame heart worm upsurge on economy

By Marilyn Trumper

Veterinarians in Independence and Springfield townships are calling on dog owners to prevent heart worm—and now they say, is the time.

Carried by mosquitos which begin breeding in warm weather, the worms live in a dog's heart and, unless treated, can kill.

A tablet given daily to the dog will keep it from getting heart worm.

"We've seen well in excess of 20 cases this year, but my gut feeling is I kind of expected it," said Dr.

John Bruggeman of the Springfield Veterinary Clinic on Dixie Highway, adding he treated a total of 32 dogs for heart worm in 1982.

"We've had two years of slow economic times and people don't have the money to have their dog tested and treated. I don't want to condemn...they have to feed their family before they take care of their dog.

"That I think accounts for the increase in numbers," Bruggeman said.

Other veterinarians in the area concur.

Dr. Bruce Harlton of the North Oaks Animal Clinic on M-15, Independence Township, says 5 percent of the dogs he's tested have had positive heart worm results.

"I don't have exact figures, but there has been an increase in numbers. I think the big reason is that people are not doing what's necessary to prevent it."

Dr. Earle Davis Jr. of the Clarkston Veterinary Clinic on Dixie Highway, Independence Township, reports eight cases this year and says that's an increase from last year.

"The most important thing to remember is that heart worm doesn't necessarily spell the end for your dog. It can be treated—and prevented," Davis said.

Some of the warning signs are a normally active dog that becomes lazy, has no endurance and coughs, he added.

Bruggeman says one fallacy he wants to quash is that city dogs aren't susceptible to heart worm.

"Clarkston has a Mill Pond—that's beautiful for mosquito breeding. A city is no protection from that.

"What we need is intelligent concern. We're not dealing with an epidemic, it's an endemic. The lakes, streams and swamps have always existed in Michigan and always will. An epidemic is sudden outbreak. Heart worm is not. We have to admit it to ourselves that heart worm exists—and prevent it," Bruggeman said.

Chiropractic Clinics

Stress, nervous tension and strain are believed by many to be the cause of their headaches and they subsequently endure years of needless suffering.

Often headaches stem from abnormal positioning and mobility of one of several vertebrae in the upper neck. Undue stress on the muscles, nerves and ligaments from improper posture, physical strains, poor sleeping positions and other similar causes of stress may create pain in the base of the skull.

For many people Chiropractic is an effective answer to recurring headaches. By correcting the abnormal alignment of the vertebrae in the cervical (neck) area, chiropractic goes to the root of the problem to gain permanent relief.

Precious Saturday

Last week Clarkston Junior High had an opportunity to attend the Michigan Science Olympics Conference.

The day was a very successful and positive experience for our boys.

Anthony Stachurski deserves credit for this enthusiasm and exposure. He is an example of quality education.

Not only did Mr. Stachurski give up his entire Saturday on April 23, but the means he used to select students that attended the science olympics should be commended.

Equal opportunity was given to all interested.

Thanks Tony, we appreciate our children having exposure to the Mr. Stachurskis of the world.

Organ donating: 'Gift of Life'

"Put a miracle in your pocket" declares the heading on a brochure seeking organ transplants.

It's illustrated with a blue jean pocket with this much visible: "I hereby make an anatomical gift effective upon my death."

The printing above the pocket reproduces a sticker that comes with renewal notices of drivers' licenses, is available at all Secretary of State's offices or can be obtained by calling the toll-free numbers of 1-800-482-4881 or 1-800-482-1455.

It allows people to make the decision to donate organs, or not to, for the list includes "none, kidney, middle ear, pituitary, skin, bone, any organ, body for study and eye (cornea).

After the potential donor signs the sticker and has it witnessed by two people, it's designed to go on the back of his or her driver's license.

Recent media attention to the problem of finding suitable donations of organs has heightened awareness of the need.

There was the movie based on a true story about a young man who needed a heart, and news stories about the baby who desperately needed a suitable kidney and about several young people who benefited from multiple organ donations from another young person who died.

We believe the decision to offer donations of organs is a highly personal one—something that should be discussed with family members.

And we support the caring movement to gain attention for the need of donations.

The motto of the Organ Procurement Agency of Michigan is worth sharing: "The Gift of Life...Pass It On."

Give me back that hour!

by Kathy Greenfield

The aftermath strikes of the Daylight Savings Time switch.

Every morning my mind and body cry for another hour of sleep. I'm grumpy and groggy.

For the first couple of days after the loss of an hour it's not so bad.

Then I start to react to my internal timeclock being out of whack.

I almost never wear a watch because I bother myself constantly checking my wrist to see what time it is.

As a result, I have developed a fairly keen sense of time. Daylight savings time makes it go haywire.

There's this feeling of panic because when I check the clock it doesn't say what it's supposed to.

I also have to fight off a tendency to be a night person.

Staying up late is wonderful...until the alarm clock rings the next morning.

But when 11 p.m. rolls around and it feels like 10, I'm wide awake and ready to go for another hour.

At first I fight it and then give in. It's midnight, so what's the big deal about staying up another hour, and so on.

The problem is that it always catches up on me. And it gets to the point where 75 cups of coffee and other things laced with caffeine don't help.

I have only one thought to soothe me. When autumn arrives and the clocks go back to where they should be, we'll gain an hour.

That means I'll be refreshed after an extra hour of sleep that one glorious day.

Get it together

by Jim Sherman

state income tax foisted on us by the governor and legislature.

Workers are upset, and for good reason. Their take home pay just dropped $40 to $80 a month. Those who contacted us are already living without luxury, thus the added tax cuts some everyday living needs.

Union leader Doug Fraser said the tax increase was an absolute necessity. His union members don't see it that way, at least those I've heard from don't.

It makes one wonder about the recall. One mild manered taxpayer told me they had never been involved in any political action or movement in any way, but she called the recall office and volunteered to circulate a petition or two.

The people certainly did not want a tax increase. They just got two increases in gasoline tax, up 7 cents a gallon, which is quite a bite. Many families are living on less income since the depression started in 1979. And, many workers wonder at the need without further cutting in Lansing.

In his first 100 days in office did Gov. Blanchard really look for ways to cut spending? It would appear he spent those three months looking for a way to increase taxes so he could come up with a bigger budget to give away enough money in particular areas to dampen citizens complaints.

Like increasing aid to education. Who is going to really knock him for that? Well, no one openly.

But surely some knocks will turn into signatures on a recall ballot.

True-to-life-dolls? Connie's got that pattern

By Kathy Greenfield

Connie McClellan gathers her kids around. She puts them on her lap, stands them next to her, rests one on her feet.

Her favorite is a toddler with pigtails. She also likes the little boy with a pacifier who fits perfectly over her hip for carrying.

Called Connie's Kids, her line of handmade dolls will travel with her to the Clarkston Mills Mall Doll Show on May 6 and 7.

Always into crafts, Connie's latest hobby-turned-business began just seven months ago.

"I started in October when my husband went hunting," she said, then laughed. "What else can you do when your husband is away—you make babies."

She made one for each of her teenage daughters and one for herself.

Then she made some for people where she works two days a week tutoring math and reading at Waterford Village Elementary School.

"My husband started to encourage me—he said, 'Maybe you should try to sell them,'" Connie said.

She participated in the Davisburg Christmas craft show and sold six. Then she took part in a doll show at Roma Hall.

"It started at 10 o'clock and I hadn't sold anything by 2 o'clock," she said. Then three people placed orders.

"I thought, 'A lot of good this is going to do me. I want money—I'm going to Florida."

"But by the time the show was over, I had sold seven."

The basic pattern for the dolls—boy with pacifier, toddler, infant and preemie—was provided by a friend.

Connie has made several changes including her own hairstyles, dimples and making the male dolls what she calls "anatomically correct."

Customers' requests prompted her to add the proper anatomy to the life-size dolls.

She makes the appendages in batches, and one night she worked until about 11 and left them sitting atop her sewing machine when she went to bed.

Shortly thereafter her daughter and her date arrived, walked into the house and were confronted with the collection.

Her daughter quickly threw them under the sewing machine.

"Is that what I think it was?" asked her friend.

"My mother makes dolls," replied her daughter, who then showed her friend the entire collection Connie's Kids.

"I had to prove to him you weren't kinky, you were making dolls," she told her mother later.

Connie's Kids range in price from $55 to $75 fully clothed and she'll take custom orders for specific eye and hair color. Once she added a scar for a customer whose child had undergone surgery.

It takes Connie about a week to make each doll.

"Anything else, my family has to give up eating," she said.

Connie and her kids pose in the living room of her home on Hillcrest Road, Independence Township. The life-like dolls with handpainted eyes are sewn from polyester knit fabric.

Flexing cans of beans

by Jim Fitzgerald

In the living room, on the little table next to my chair, there was a can of yellow beans. Also a can of green beans. The two cans were full and unopened. Such an unusual juxtaposition would never occur in Alfred Taubman's home.

Why were the beans in the living room instead of in a kitchen cupboard? Where were the pad and pencil that should be on that table—in the refrigerator?

The beans hadn't been there the night before. There were no grandchildren visiting, so they couldn't be blamed. The apartment's only occupants for several days had been my wife and me, and I knew I hadn't put two cans of beans in the living room.

"It had to be you," I told her.

"Sing it," she said. "I also like 'The Nearness of You'."

We have been very close lately, because of my surgery. I don't know what I'd do without her.

"It was minor surgery, performed in five minutes by a dermatologist who kept me waiting only 50 minutes beyond my appointment time. If it had been major surgery, the wait might have been much longer. The seriousness of a person's illness can be measured by the number of hours he is willing to wait beyond appointment time before snarling something nasty to the receptionist and storming out of the waiting room. My skin surgery was so insignificant that I wouldn't have waited even 50 minutes except I was reading a New Yorker magazine, which is almost as mollifying as waiting in the bar for a restaurant table. But the tiny incision was made in the middle of my back, and suddenly I needed my wife more than ever.

"IF MY SHIRTS buttoned up the back, it wouldn't have taken 28 years for me to fully appreciate you," I told her the first morning she changed the bandage on my wound. There was no one else to do it.

Also, there was no one else to put canned beans in the living room. At first, I didn't demand that she reveal why she did it. It was fascinating to guess. Did she bring the cans to my chair the night before so she could sit down and read the labels? Does she have trouble getting to sleep after reading those exciting ingredients?

Was she cutely reminding me to eat my vegetables? Had Andy Warhol or some other twit declared it fashionable to decorate living rooms with canned beans? Or was she using cans of beans as paper weights to keep my little table from blowing away when I sneezed?

Amazingly, that last guess was closest. Honest. My wife said anyone who knew anything could easily figure out why she had two cans of beans in the living room. I couldn't; how about you?

The answer is: The two cans of beans were ersatz dumbbells.

MY WIFE USES them as weights, one in each hand, while exercising along with some muscle guy on TV every morning. Usually she remembers to return the cans to the kitchen before her husband, a real dumbbell, comes nosing around.

That's not what I call class.

What I call class is the way Alfred Taubman exercises. He's the real estate tycoon who recently made a few billion dollars by selling a spare hunk of California he had lying around the house. In a recent newspaper interview, Taubman said:

"I have a gentleman that comes to my home every morning at 6 o'clock. We do calisthenics, work on the light and heavy bags, then we spar three or four rounds."

Now that's class. What I need is a gentleman doctor that comes to my home every morning to change the bandage on my back. Then I wouldn't have to sing "It Had to Be You" to a woman who needs a gentleman grocer that comes to her home every morning to deliver ersatz dumbbells.

Otherwise, there will always be the danger that someday I'll be terribly embarrassed by a phone call notifying me that my wife is lying on her back in the A&P, pumping beans.

'Oh Ollie'

You can almost hear the dialogue: "That's another fine mess you've got us into, Ollie." Sashabaw Junior High drama students Karl Schaeffer (left) and Jeff Huber are dressed as Laurel and Hardy during a Comedy Classics film festival last week. Led by teacher Jan

Malane, the students planned appropriate costumes for the dual-purpose event. The goals were to raise money for the drama department and to offer a look at some of the best comedians of yesteryear.

'Hash sessions' planned for historic district

By Marilyn Trumper

The committee drafting the proposed Historic District Ordinance is taking a new approach to gather citizen's opinions.

The village's 174-home historic district has been drawn into three sections, with residents on Main Street, Miller and Washington scheduled for the first "hash session," according to Clarkston Village Council Trustee Carol Eberhardt.

"Then depending on what kind of turnout we have, we will determine how many more sessions will be held. If it's small, we may combine the last two," she said.

Eberhardt, chairperson of the seven-member committee drafting a new ordinance, said the meetings to be held at village hall are designed "...as input for the council. We want to know how people feel.

"Basically," Eberhardt said, "they're designed as hash sessions where people can come and talk about their concerns. We're not attempting a public hearing or a gripe session. It will be very informal."

In November, the council revoked the controversial ordinance regulating all construction and repair in the historic district. The action also disbanded the five-member Historic District Commission which approved all construction.

According to Eberhardt, the new draft is almost a copy of the old law.

"The new section talks about the rights of homeowners, but other changes are very minor," she said.

Stablex talks come to halt

By Dan Vandenhemel

Site Approval Board meetings on the proposed Stablex toxic waste treatment plant have come to a halt.

A court order by Circuit Court Judge Richard Kuhn on April 27 stopped the Site Approval Board from holding its final meeting at Holly High School.

"We filed the lawsuit to cancel the right and the authority of the Site Approval Board," said Oakland County Prosecutor L. Brooks Patterson, who requested the restraining order.

"The board has gone over the required 120 days by law to make a decision. Also a hydrogeological report that is required by law has not been turned into the board by Stablex."

Among other charges in the lawsuit is that Site Approval Board Chairman Dennis Tierney could have a possible conflict of interest because he has past dealings with Stablex.

"It is pretty clear Stablex is trying to cut corners," Patterson said. "You can't do that when you're dealing with public safety and public health."

Dave Wolf of Stablex said there is nothing the company can do about the court order.

"We will just have to wait until the court date," he said. "We're a law-abiding company. We just have to wait and see what happens."

Seth Phillips, staff coordinator of the Site Approval Board, said the board is prohibited to meet and discuss Stablex.

"There isn't much we can do," he said. "We had to cancel the meeting at the last minute."

The court date is set for May 9 at 1:30 p.m. before Judge Kuhn.

The proposed site for the toxic waste treatment plant is on Grange Hall Road between I-75 and Dixie Highway in Groveland Township.

The Site Approval Board was formed last December to decide if the site was a good location for the plant.

Opponents of the site say it would endanger an aquifer that provides water to 100,000 people in northern Oakland County and Genesee County.

Township man volunteers architecture skills

By Marilyn Trumper

Independence Township resident David Katz, an architect, has volunteered to design the Village of Clarkston's bandstand.

Katz, who sought to remain anonymous, was thrust into the limelight March 26 when the village council voted unanimously to put him on the public payroll so he would be covered by insurance.

Katz will receive $50 for his services. He's indicated the money will be donated back to the village.

The existing bandstand consists of a cement foundation, platform and posts. It was built hurriedly last spring with community development funds—and never finished.

Katz says he envisions Victorian accents to the bandstand.

"The articulation will be Victorian in terms of the trim and styling, things like bracket trim and a balustrade," he said.

Katz, who lives on Waterford Road in Independence Township, said he was asked to take on the project.

"I don't live in Clarkston, but I do live in the greater Independence Township area, and Clarkston is part of my community. I felt I should make a contribution. I'm also a member of the Rotary, and they're a very civic-minded organization," he said.

Katz had no deadline for the finished plans, and said he's not begun drafting them yet.

Jitters, Cougars trip Wolverines

By Dan Vandenhemel

When the Sashabaw Cougars and the Clarkston Wolverines met last Wednesday for a baseball game at Sashabaw, it was one of the few games either team had played.

Sashabaw had played just one game and it was the opening game for the Wolverines because of all the rainouts at the start of the season.

Wolverine coach Dave McDonald didn't want his team to open with Sashabaw, but he didn't have a choice.

"I wanted the team to have some experience before we played Sashabaw," he said.

"I wanted the opening day jitters to be gone and I wanted them not to be nervous. This is such a big game with everyone knowing each other."

McDonald's suspicions were right as the Cougars downed the Wolverines 7-3.

The game was close until Sashabaw's Jim Ruelle grounded a single past third with two runners on base in the bottom of the fifth inning. He came all the way around when the ball got past the outfielder.

Scott Rigonan hit a two-run homer for the Wolverines in the top of the fifth to tie the score at 3-3.

"With the wind blowing to the right, I thought Scott might have a chance to hit one," said McDonald. "But we got outhit 10-4. We didn't hit too well."

The major cause of Clarkston's lack of hitting was Cougar pitcher Ed Adkins. He pitched seven innings, gave up three walks and struck out eight.

"He pitched a great game," said Cougar coach Jim Koslosky. "Our hitting came up to what I expected it to and our defense is coming along. I think the kids played an outstanding game. They wanted this game real bad."

In the opening game of the season for Sashabaw against Waterford Crary on April 25, the Cougars lost 6-5.

Ruelle and Mike Peterson each tripled and Sashabaw scored four times in the fifth inning to pull within one run.

"It was a tough game to lose for your opener," Koslosky said. "We came back to make it close but fell short."

Sashabaw coach Jim Koslosky waves Ed Adkins home to score what proved to be the winning run in the 7-3 victory over the Clarkston

Wolverines. Adkins was coming home on the fifth-inning single by Jim Ruelle that got past the outfielder for a three-base error.

Sports

Twelve players come home with trophies

By Dan Vandenhemel

The first annual Paddleball Tournament at the Waterford Courts was a complete success, according to director Terry Templeton.

"We had 39 doubles teams," she said. "I was expecting a little more but I couldn't be happier."

The winners which included six teams from the Clarkston area.

In the women's novice division, Judy Lackey and Barb Kourthaus, both of Clarkston, took first place. Director Templeton from Pontiac and her partner Leslie Hodge of Clarkston finished third.

In the men's novice, Kerry and Murry Snow of Clarkston finished second behind Bruce Aittama and Pete Bungart of Taylor.

Men's class C was won by Dave Topping and Bob Hanna of Ann Arbor, but Clarkston residents swept second and third places.

Joe Merriman and Garnet Peeling were second and Ken McLain and Moe Lackey place third.

"I think everyone had a good time"

The men's class B was won by Lou Giampetroni and Dick Pitcher of Flint. Clarkston's Chris Ashley and John Sawgle were second. In third was the team of Carla Teare of Clarkston and her sister Anna Thompson of Flint.

Winning the men's class A was Kevin McCully and Tim Owens of Ann Arbor.

"I had to put Carla and Anna in the men's class because they are so much better than the rest of the women," Templeton said. "They are really good players."

"The game is really popular in Pontiac and Clarkston. It's a slower game than racquetball. It uses a slower ball and paddles instead of racquets."

The tournament was sponsored by Miller High

Life and Courthaus Pub, a bar inside Waterford Courts on Dixie Highway in Independence Township.

The Miller Brewing Company provided the trophies to the winners and Courthaus Pub provided the food.

"It was a real good time," Templeton said. "I think everyone had a good time. I'm pretty sure everyone will come back next year."

Up My Alley

My trusty dictionary

By Dan Vandenhemel

I can only totally agree with the recent federal report on education in America stating education here isn't up to par with the rest of the world.

Comments have been made on the quality of the education and the non-respect the students have for the teachers.

Being a student, I can see this from both sides of the classroom.

Some of the students don't care very much how they do or what kind of education they are getting.

While some of the instructors on the other hand also don't seem to care very much.

The entire problem is both the students' and the teachers' faults.

Statistics show many high school graduates can't read or write.

Some of them can't spell either.

That's where I come in.

If it was not for my trusty dictionary, I wouldn't be able to spell dictionary.

Spelling has always been a major problem throughout my school years.

I think it started way back in elementary school during one of many spelling bees.

I was always the first one to sit down during the contest. If my memory is correct, PROBABLY is the word that gave me the most trouble.

There were others too, like sponsor, asphalt, tomorrow, soup, soap, like, it, a...

But I must be getting better at spelling. When I look up a word that might be spelled wrong, 70 percent of the time it's right.

It's embarrassing to have your spelling corrected.

Little things seemed to have helped me with the spelling.

One is when a paper is returned to me from a professor, and there is more red ink on the pages than blue ink.

Another is the embarrassment of asking how a word is spelled because you can't find it in the dictionary.

But I think the major reason is the threatening notes from me editor to have words tattooed to the back of my hands if I kept misspelling them.

One day, I'll be able to be set free from the dreaded dictionary. But until then, it's my best friend, oops.

Rivals run

Crossing the finish line first in the 2-mile run is Sashabaw eighth-grader Matt Beamer. The Cougar seventh- and eighth-grade boys' track team was edged by the Clarkston Wolverines 68-64.

After placing fifth in the 2-mile run, Clarkston eighth-grader Terry McNally relaxes and tries to catch his breath in the infield of the track. In the meet between Sashabaw girls' track team and the Clarkston girls' track team, the Wolverines came out on top 67-56. In the loss, eighth-grader Kathleen McInnes destroyed the Clarkston school record in the 2-mile run by almost a full minute. The old record was 14.24 and she ran the event in 13.29.

Natalie Larson takes a good look at her new clown face after Cindy Jones applies the makeup. Natalie is one of the many children, in grades one through six, who come to the Clown Session hosted by the Independence Township Library at the Church of the Resurrection last Saturday. Five of the 17 members of the Crittenton Clowns of Rochester came to Clarkston to help children be clowns for a day.

Maggie Freeborn adds the final touches to Jeremy Hughes. The children could have any design they wanted and many chose the face of the clown working with them.

Science Olympiad

Clarkston Junior High came away with a fourth-place finish at the first annual Science Olympiad.

The group of 11 from Clarkston competed against 17 other schools and five of the pupils won awards at the event held April 23 at the Lawrence Institute of Technology in Southfield.

The team of Chandra Manuel, Kelly Cook, Andy Needham and Brian Galley took first place in science bowl, a panel question-and-answer event.

Dan Reed placed second in the fact and five event, where he had to answer five questions.

"The whole purpose of the science olympiad was to give kids in science the same opportunity kids in sports have," said Anthony Stachurski, the science teacher who went with the group.

"Everything there is centered around science. In the obstacle course, you had to run an event like running through the tires then answer a question after each obstacle."

The questions ranged from naming different types of rocks and organisms to physics problems.

Others in the group from Clarkston Junior High were: Sue Haran, Chris Scharfenkamp, Dawn Diederich, Brad Dedrick, Lew Galligan and Mike Kolody.

"For the first time being held, everything was right on time," Stachurski said. "The kids really had a good time there. I'm sure next year it will continue to grow and become more popular."

Springfield teen tries for Miss Michigan U.S.A.

Dawn Balhorn's Arizona Easter tan was on stage at the 1983 Miss Michigan Teen U.S.A. pageant last weekend at the Plymouth Hilton.

The 14-year-old Springfield Township resident was one of three that age to compete against more than 60 teens from all over the state seeking to capture the crown and title.

She didn't win.

"But it was a good experience, and I really enjoyed it," she said the following Monday. "I met girls from all over."

Quizzed by the judges, Dawn was asked what her fantasy would be on Fantasy Island.

"I told them to have any kind of car, house, anything I wanted. And they asked me what one thing I would change about myself. I said, 'Nothing.'"

Asked if she was nervous the day before the two-day event, Dawn's blue eyes got round.

"Yes," she answers, nodding her head and softly laughing.

But the butterflies left, Dawn said, as soon as she stepped on stage.

Dawn's grandmother, E.J. Goodwin of Arizona, is responsible for sending the Holly Junior High School student across the light-studded stage, initiating the idea that Dawn compete.

"She made me a portfolio and sent it to pageant headquarters. I was chosen, and it's my first competition," Dawn said. "I want to be a model."

"And if you win the contest you get a full modeling scholarship, fun fur and a complete composite," offered Dawn's mother Sheron. "They're judged on poise, personality and appearance."

Dawn's personality seems geared to competition, evidenced by her record on the school track and tennis team.

Although the track team was Class B Champions this year, there have been defeats for Dawn.

"I like to compete because you get to see how well you can do against other people. But no, I don't always win. I ran the 100-yard-dash and came in last."

"Then I turned around and ran the 220—and took second."

Dawn is the daughter of David and Sheron Balhorn of Schaffer Drive, Springfield Township.

The temptation's too great. So, as Bailey Lake Elementary School fourth-grade pupils pass by the blooming trees on April 28, many of them stop for a sniff of the sweet smell of springtime.

The field trip to the greenhouses and tree nursery at Bordine's on Dixie Highway in Springfield Township came about because of the annual marigold contest between the classes of Bill Rathburg and Kay VanNatta. The winning class is the one whose marigolds bloom first. They expand their knowledge with the field trip and, besides, it's fun, says Rathburg.

How does your garden grow?

In the early 1900s, downtown Davisburg looked like this. The early photographs are mainly the work of two traveling photographers—Hinkley, a Howell resident, and Cave, of Detroit.

Hinkley's pictures usually include white printing, describing the location.

Springfield history seekers

They're hard at work gathering information about the past

By Kathy Greenfield--

The year: 1903.

The town: Davisburg.

The business: millinery.

Apparently, say members of the Springfield Township Historical Society, the hat shop in the thriving town of Davisburg was a big draw.

Women would hop on the train in Detroit and travel to Davisburg where they'd spend the weekend at the Davisburgh Hotel.

On Friday, they'd choose the materials for a new hat and their heads would be measured.

On Sunday, they'd leave carrying their hatboxes, ready to proudly appear in the big city wearing their stylish creations.

The women who worked at the Davisburg millinery shop were single. When they married, they had to quit.

How times change.

With the 150th birthday of Springfield Township approaching in 1986, about 15 members of the historical society are hard at work compiling information and photographs for a history book about their community.

"It's a challenge and then you get wrapped up in it," says Lester Smith, chairman. "You get kind of proud of what you've got."

Along the way, they've gathered an impressive collection of photographs and some interesting data.

"Davisburg was bigger 100 years ago than it is now," says Smith. "It had a blacksmith shop, undertaker, doctors, carriagemakers, and millinery shop, and the undertaker was a furniture maker."

There were three distinct communities.

In 1831 Springfield Village was established. Then part of the old Saginaw Trail, it's now on Dixie Highway.

In 1834-35, the Andersonville settlement came to be. It's location is now indicated by the Andersonville Cemetery on Andersonville and Big Lake roads. The two large families involved were the Husteds and Andersons, with the Anderson family winning out when a name was selected.

In 1836, the town of Davisburg was established where Davisburg Road turns to Broadway Street and many of the old buildings still stand that once housed the complete line of services.

Using the techniques of historians everywhere, tidbits about the community are being collected.

Found in the Andersonville Cemetery about the Andersonville settlement: "The first year they settled, six little girls died of whooping cough," says Cathy Phillips, Springfield Township librarian.

From an oral history tape-recorded by Mildred Chanter: "When I was taping the different older people, this one lady, she's 86 now, she was a teacher. All she had to do after she graduated from high school was go down to the superintendent and if she passed a test she could teach. That's certainly a far cry from what it is now."

As they work toward a goal of February 1984 for the printing of their history book, the committee members meet in an appropriate location, the Spr-

-Obituaries-

Lennea V. Carlson

Funeral service for Lennea V. Carlson of Clarkston was held May 2 at the Clarkston United Methodist Church with the Rev. James Balfour officiating.

Mrs. Carlson, 79, died April 29. She was a member of the Clarkston United Methodist Church and the Order of the Eastern Star.

Surviving are her children, Gordon of California, James of Texas, Mrs. James (Carolyn) Armstrong of Clarkston and Mrs. Eleanor Viergever-Brand of Clarkston; 14 grandchildren; and three great-grandchildren.

Following the service, burial took place in Ottawa Park Cemetery, Independence Township.

The family suggests memorial tributes to the Clarkston United Methodist Church.

Arrangements were made by the Lewis E. Wint Funeral Home, Independence Township.

Mike Kosiba

Funeral service for Mike Kosiba of Independence Township was held April 28 at the Calvary Temple Assembly of God with the Rev. Arnold Hashman officiating.

Kosiba, 63, died April 25. He was a master carpenter, served in the United States Navy during World War II and attended Calvary Temple Assembly of God.

Surviving are his wife, Bertha; children, David of Clarkston, Gary of Union Lake, Marcus of Clarkston and Sharon Zaneta Kosiba-Vagas of Ann Arbor; grandchildren, Mike, Andrea, Lisa, Jason, Apolina and Nicole; brother, John Kosiba of Hartland; and sisters, Anne Korhi of Florida, Stella Lockhart of Florida and Christina Zadrozny of Pennsylvania.

Following the service, burial took place in Ottawa Park Cemetery, Independence Township.

The family suggests memorials to the Michigan Cancer Foundation.

Arrangements were made by the Lewis E. Wint Funeral Home, Independence Township.

Springfield gathers its history

They have borrowed one family scrapbook with weddings, births, stories of family reunions and obituaries dating from 1898 to 1931.

Photo albums are wanted. Land grants and other official documents are welcome.

And all are treated with care, photo copied and returned, Smith says.

"If we don't use it in the book, we'll use it for the historical society to record the history," he says.

Plans are also underway for a room devoted to photo documents and memorabilia in the Springfield Historical Society's Museum, the John Harvey Davis home, built in 1842 and located on Andersonville Road across from the Springfield Oaks Youth Activities Center.

To order a history book, send a check for $15 to the Springfield Township Historical Society, Box 203, Davisburg, MI 48019.

To share historical information, call the Springfield Township Library at 625-0595.

Andersonville School was moved down Andersonville Road from Ware Road to Hogback Lake Road in 1976.

Constant work on the history book has been ongoing for about a year.

"We started out with a big collection of photos, but we didn't know how to get it off the ground and I talked to Jennifer Radcliff (editor of the Clarkston Heritage book) and she said, 'I'd love to do it,'" says Smith.

"She's keeping a flow chart to keep everything on schedule."

The book is for sale now, with a pre-publication price of $15. In January 1984 the price will go up to $18.

The committee is still hunting for more information.

They speak with gratitude about a scrapbook found in the attic in a cottage on Big Lake filled with newspaper clippings.

They would like to hear from older people who lived in the area way back when.

Awards dinner

Tickets are now on sale for the Community Awards Dinner, an event designed to say thank you to those who have contributed to life in the Clarkston area.

The cost is $14 before May 9 and $16 thereafter.

Sponsored by the Clarkston Area Jaycees and the North Oakland Civitans, the awards dinner is planned Friday, May 20, at the Deer Lake Racquet Club with a social hour beginning at 6:30 and dinner at 7:30.

Entertainment is to be provided by the Clarkston High School Jazz Ensemble. Speaker is Francile Anderson and Homer Biondi is the emcee.

Tickets may be purchased at the following locations: Hallman's Apothecary, Tierra Arts & Design, The Clarkston News, Deer Lake Racquet Club, The Reminder and the Independence Township Library.

Student winners

Three $200 college scholarships have been awarded by the Waterford-Clarkston Business and Professional Women.

The presentation was made at the club's annual scholarship fund raiser, a fashion show on April 19.

Winners of the scholarships are:

•Jackie Jawlik, a Clarkston High School graduate and a sophomore at Central Michigan University, Mt. Pleasant. This is the second year she has won a club scholarship.

•Roxanne McKee, an Oakland Community College student. This is the third time she has won a scholarship from the group.

•Joan Rogers, a club member who attends Wayne State University.

Next year, the club will have over $950 to distribute in scholarships, said president Martha Wheeler, because of the success of this year's fashion show.

Clarkston High School senior Mark Jimenez has enlisted in the United States Delayed Entry Program.

He is to enter basic training Aug. 24 as a food service specialist at Ft. Lee, Va.

Jimenez has also enlisted for the Army's Airborne option with training at Ft. Benning, Ga., and assignment to the 82nd Airborne Division at Ft. Bragg, N.C.

He is the son of Thomas and Diana Jimenez of Paramus Road, Independence Township.

Craft applications

Applications are now being accepted for the 1983 Clarkston Community Historical Society's Crafts and Cider Festival.

All arts and crafts should be handmade by the exhibiting artist for the festival planned Sept. 16, 17 and 18 in the village's Depot Road Park.

To apply, send slides or photographs with a self-addressed, stamped envelope to the Clarkston Community Historical Society, P.O. Box 261, Clarkston, MI 48016.

For more information, call 625-8784.

Civic groups may also apply for space in order to raise money.

They are asked to provide a food or service like popcorn or entertainment. The historical society will provide ideas and more information.

Write to the above address or call 625-8823.

Honors

Mark Thompson has been named to the dean's list for the fall semester at Spring Arbor College.

He is the son of the Rev. and Mrs. Clancy Thompson of Winell Road, Independence Township.

***

Tanis Pettit is a new member of Alpha Lambda Delta at Western Michigan University, Kalamazoo.

The national society is open to all freshmen who obtain superior scholastic achievement.

A pre-occupational therapy student, Pettit lives on Warbler Drive, Independence Township.

***

Frank Davis has been named to the dean's honor roll for the winter day term at Lawrence Institute of Technology, Southfield.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Davis of Glenburnie Road, Independence Township.

Grads

Annette Stowe recently graduated cum laude with a bachelor's degree from Western Michigan University, Kalamazoo.

The 1979 Clarkston High School graduate majored in accounting and minored in data processing.

Annette was on the dean's list five semesters and was a member of three honorary societies—Beta Alpha Psi, an accounting fraternity; Beta Gamma Sigma, a business fraternity; and Alpha Lambda Delta, a freshman honorary sorority.

In August, she is to begin her career on the auditing staff of Price Waterhouse, Detroit.

She is the daughter of Michael Stowe of Pontiac and Marie Marlowe of Clarkston.

Derby winner

When Jason Councilman's Pinewood Derby racer came in first in the Wolf division race, he was grinning from ear-to-ear, says his dad. The Pine Knob Elementary School second-grader's racer is on display in the Boy Scout Pontiac-Manitou District office. He'll get it back, along with a first-place trophy, at the district round table meeting May 5. Jason sums up his feelings about winning the district race in a word—"Glad." And he says the best thing about his handcarved racer is its color—"Red." The most exciting thing about the race, though, was this: "One wheel didn't touch the ground." Winning Pinewood Derbies is becoming a family tradition. Last year, Jason's brother Aaron won the Pinewood Derby race in his pack and came in third in the division race. Jason's car came in second in his pack that meets at the Waterford Hills Sportsmen's Club.

Pinewood champ

"I think it's great," says Paul West about his Pinewood Derby racer. The Cub Scout has reason to be proud. His handcarved racer came in third in the Bear division of the Pontiac-Manitou District Race held April 16 at Sashabaw Junior High School and first in the Pack 199 race. His secrets of success: running the wooden car back and forth for about an hour before the race and the graphite his dad put on the nails and inside and outside the wheels. A Pine Knob Elementary School fourth grader, Paul belongs to Pack 199 that meets at the Waterford Hills Sportsmen's Club.

50 join National Honor Society at high school

Behind candlelight, 50 Clarkston High School students were inducted into the Henry Ford Chapter of the National Honor Society.

Thirty-eight of the students were juniors, the largest number ever inducted.

"That is almost double the number we had last year," said CHS counselor and sponsor Victor Hart. "This is one of the best junior classes we've ever had here."

To be nominated for the Honor Society, a junior must have a grade point average of 3.5 or better, a senior must have a 3.2 average.

The short ceremony was highlighted by guest speaker Brigadier General Allen Ono. He is the Deputy Commanding General of the United States Army Recruiting Command.

The native Hawaiian told the gathering at the Clarkston Little Theatre it doesn't matter what you choose to do, as long as you do it the best you can.

The 12 new seniors in the Honor Society are: Patricia Bailey, Kelly Bartlett, Deanna Bruce, Kendra Kruz, Autumn Lofton, Mike McCormick, Kathleen Mullen, Michele Phaup, Steve Schaller, Jean Smart, Annette Ulasich and Dave Zawacki.

The 39 juniors are: Sheila Adkins, Lisa Ashton, Julie Beamer, Linda Chad, Bethny Chartier, Tonya Cook, Molly Counts, Mark Cowden, Barbara Eckert, Dawn Eschker, Kara Evans, Christopher Everett, Daniel Fenton, Corinne Goodrich, Carol Harris, Mark Heil, Karen Kozlowski, Michelle Law, Kelly Miller, Greg Molzon, JoAnn Moss, Daniel Mullen, Jill Needham, David Newblatt, Eric Pilarcik, Natalie

Russell, Marta Sanchez, Shari Santala, Kim Schulte, Susan Schwartz, Jay Smith, Deanna Stuart, Kristi Swanson, Kristine Tisch, Greg Wagner, Lise Young, Theresa Zeleznik and Paula Ziolkowski.

Rollable dough and cookie cutters keep Marian Bird of Fenton busy with her granddaughter Allison Farah.

Ray Howard of Sylvan Lake lightens the load for his granddaughter Leah Howard as she builds a wall of wooden blocks during Grandparents' Day at the Clarkston Co-op Nursery that meets in the Clarkston United Methodist Church. The teacher of the 4-year-old group is Pat Pitcher. The week before, Marion Janeshek's 3-year-old class entertained their grandparents.

Perched on identical chairs while putting together booklets for visiting grandparents are Marjorie Christensen of Davison and her granddaughter Elizabeth Yuergens.

Finding time to read a book are Pat Ratledge of Drayton Plains and her granddaughter Kendra Eichbrecht.

Q What's the best thing about your mom?

"I like her because she drives me in the car."—Gwendolyn Gregory of Main Street, Clarkston; daughter of Beth Gregory of Clarkston.

"She is always there no matter what happens, she is there to support us. I can count on her."—Chip LaMarre of Brandon Township; son of Vicki LaMarre of St. Clair Shores.

"She does keep a nice house, clean neat. She is usually there when you need her."—Brad Schoff of Overlook Drive, Independence Township; son of Marsha Schoff of Independence Township.

"She tries her best to be the best mother she can and she succeeds at it."—Michele Phaup of Rattalee Lake Road, Independence Township; daughter of Valerie Phaup of Independence Township.

Mothers are...

Pine Knob Elementary School second- and third-graders started out with "Mothers are..." and finished the sentence with their own words.

...sweet, gentle, kind, pretty, willing, caring, smart, busy, generous, thoughtful, great, cookful, like a playmate, intelligent, super, are the best, cleans up after me, loving, fine, perfect, clean, wonderful, helpful. They're tops. I love mothers.

—Andrea Flega

...sweet, kind, nice...everything like pretty. I love my mom. She is very nice. She lets us swim in the world pool she owns. She helps us when we're sick and everything nice.

—Shannon Kell

...nice, pretty. She helps me with my homework. She is loveable.

—Carol Delo

Q What's the best thing about your mom?

"What I like is the way she appreciates my family and the children."—Sharon Campbell of Rochester; daughter of Margaret Cloutier of Rochester.

...kind and very nice to us. They cook us food to eat and they let us go outside and play. They help us with our homework, too.

—Melissa L.

...beautiful. And kind. And loveable. And good, very good cooks. And very nice.

—Guy Passmore

...very nice. I don't think she can wait for Mother's Day, that's for one thing.

—Michelle Drake

...great. Nothing can beat her except my dad. She is pretty. I love her, too. I don't want another mom. I want to keep her forever.

—Jason Head

...are going to work at morning or evening or afternoon or at night. Mothers sometimes make your dinner or sometimes they make your lunch or breakfast, too. Mothers take you places and buy you stuff and they love you a lot.

—Nick Shires

...helpful with homework. They are very pretty when they get dressed up, and they are nice almost always. And sometimes they let us do what we want to do like play outside in the backyard, or ride our bikes on the driveway. I think it's great to have a mother.

Carefully brushing on turquoise paint, Springfield Township Librarian Cathy Phillips prepares Chris Preston for the second hand-print on the Mother's Day poem. Keeping a close watch on the progress, at right, are Chris' mom and brother.

It's time to wash the paint off Elanor Hallman's hands, so her mom, Lezlie, leads her to a sink for cleanup.

Raymond Arnold carefully holds his hands in place as his special Mother's Day gift nears completion. Librarian Cathy Phillips learned the project at a workshop and put it into practice for the preschoolers who meet weekly at the library.

Sometimes you get discouraged
Because I am so small
And always leave my fingerprints
On furniture and walls

But every day I'm growing
I'll be grown up someday
And all those tiny handprints
Will surely fade away

So here's a final handprint
Just so you can recall
Exactly how my fingers looked
When I was very small.

Fascination of the feeling of a paintbrush and the fun of having paint all over his hands shows on Bradley Shea's face.

On Saturday: at work with mom

"Now they go to preschool
... but my heart is with them"

By Marilyn Trumper

The door opens and a bell announces a customer's entry. From behind the counter of The Clarkston

Catherine Kim stands next to her two children Cleaners, son Steve and daughter Jacqueline. The kids spend Saturdays at the shop.

Cleaners rise peals of laughter.

Followed by a giggle and another squeal. And more laughter.

Tipped off by the ringing bell, up from behind the counter pops 26-year-old Catherine Kim, straightening her hair and brushing her skirt.

Then up pop two tiny heads covered with shiny black hair—her children, Steve, 4 and Jacqueline, 3. The tickling session comes to an abrupt end.

Saturday morning the smiling siblings spend working with mom, wrestling on the big yellow bean bag chair behind the counter, watching TV, talking to customers and begging to visit the party store next door.

Today's pleas are heard.

Steve, oversized pinking shears in hand, snips dangerously at the corner of a Lik-M-Aid package and his mom comes to the rescue.

"Here, here, let me do that for you," Catherine says, taking the powdered candy away to divert disaster.

Six weeks ago Catherine and husband Kyong bought the cleaners on M-15 south of the village and moved from their Warren home to Independence Township.

"Before that, (Steve and Jacqueline) all the time they were home with me. Now they go to preschool. I am working here—but my heart is with them," Catherine said.

"You don't know a mother's feelings. I miss them all day."

Kyong manages the couple's other cleaners in Bloomfield Hills. Catherine manages the Clarkston store from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. six days a week.

Sunday is her day with the children.

"We go shopping or visit friends. It's the only time I have to play with them—and I know I have to play with them."

Steve and Jacqueline just smile.

The topic: My Mother

Here's what teacher Marlene Sewick's fifth-graders at North Sashabaw Elementary School created:

I think my mother is the best in the world. I love my mom, she is so nice. She lets me do a lot of stuff, like go over to my friend's house in the rain and she lets me do other stuff like ride horses over to my friend's house.

—Christina Lemond

My mom is so nice and wonderful. It is nice to have a nice mother. She is the best woman I've ever seen. She is so pretty that all of my brothers like her very much.

—Rodney Momany

I love my mother for helping me with my homework. And for washing my clothes. And for taking me places. Another thing is when I come home during the winter sometimes, supper is ready. She also sometimes buys me things that I want. And best of all I love my mother for loving me.

Scott Stringer

My mother is special to me because she does a lot for me. She always washes the clothes and she does the dishes. And I love her very much. She does yell at me, but she doesn't want me to get hurt or be bad all the time. She takes me wherever she does go. All I can say is she is the best mother I ever had and always will be the best. I love her very much.

—Becky Davis

Mother is another name for love. She's talented and beautiful. She is helpful and creative. A good cook and wise. She helps me with my homework And gives me a big surprise. She gives me lots of privileges And even lets me do the dishes. She tells me to go to bed. She takes care of me when I hit my head. Sometimes I don't think she's fair. But when I ask her, she brushes my hair. Mother is another name for love.

—Tammy Sansom

My mother is so sweet
My mother is very neat
My mother is the best
My mother beats the rest
My mother is so nice
My mother is scared of mice
Georgia Miller is her name
Being nice is her game
My mother is so great
My mother is 38

—Dane Davis

My mother is always there to help me with my problems and she cares a lot about me. I know she means well when she does yell, but sometimes she won't listen to what I have to say. But she is my mother and I love her more than anyone else in the world.

—Danielle Belanger

Dear Mother,

I think you are special because you take me to the movies almost every weekend. And you let me do a lot of things. And when you play games with me, and play soccer with me and play baseball catch. I think all mothers are very, very special. I love you very much.

Q What's the best thing about your mom?

The topic: My Mother

"Her wit and intelligence are the best things."—Lanny Ganger of Union Lake; son of Marilyn McDonald of Detroit.

My mother is loving, caring, sharing, kind, clean and she gives up time for me just to do something special for me. My mom does all kinds of stuff for me and other people. I think she really tries at things. I think she is the best mother I could ever have. I love her.

—Brad Warner

Mothers, aunts and grandmothers
They are on Mother's Day
They give up their time for helping a child
And loving and kissing them too
Especially me when I hurt my knee
And scratch my elbow too
They are good friends
But most of all when I feel sad and muggie
They help me get over my blues

—Stephanie Payne

My mother is very special because she: Cooks my supper, cleans my clothes, helps me with homework, takes me places, fixes my bath, gives me presents, plays games, has fun, tucks me in, promises me things, buys surprises for me, tells me things. The last thing is she picks me up from the bus.

—Ralph Mayse

My mom is the best in the world! She cooks my meals and she works. Then when she gets home even when she is tired even to talk she takes me and my sister to do something. She is very fair and kind to other people and (She is pretty too!) I love my mom very much. She takes care of me and my sisters, Jamie and Amy. She cleans the house and she cleans the rooms. And every day when we come home from school she has dinner on the table.

—Kathy Branch

My mom is a very nice person. She's the greatest ever. I love her so much. She helps me when I need help in everything. She gets me all kinds of stuff. All my friends like her. They say she is pretty.

—Wendy Jasso

My mom always gives up her time just for me. She always is understanding and giving. That is why I love her so.

And because she is always there at night when I am scared. She is there if I am lonely or hurt. She also mends my socks and is always doing things with me. And she loves to take me shopping.

Just recently she bought me a new wardrobe. She takes me out to eat.

So on Mother's Day if you can't buy her a thing, just say "I love you Mom." And do things for her and help her out.

—Kimberly Rudaitis

My mom is one person who will help me and my brothers even if she is doing something. So I am thanking my mom for all the things she did for me like help me with the dishes, buying me new pants, and she even takes me bowling.

—Keith Percival

My mother has always cared
She is always there
She comforts me when I'm scared
Her kind of love is very rare
My mother has always listened to me
Whether I'm sad
Or if I've skinned my knee
My mother, I love her lots
I try to help her
Like cleaning pans and pots

They're a team: Daisy Dowling and Sarah Schultz share lots of love

By Marilyn Trumper

It's a special relationship Daisy Dowling enjoys with granddaughter Sarah Schultz.

Upstairs above her grandmother's Clarkston Main Street Antique shop Sarah has a bedroom always primed for weekend stays.

Afternoons in that room have been monopolized by numerous tea parties with teddy bears and dolls as guests of honor.

The pair attend antique shows, estate sales and auctions. For years Sarah's selected three items to sell in the shop and reaps profits from those sales.

And they travel together.

Daisy's adventures have taken Sarah on a cruise from Connecticut; to Newport, R. I.; Martha's Vineyard, Nantucket and Cape Cod, Mass.; twice to California; and to Vermont.

This year Daisy gave her 12-year-old granddaughter this option: a train trip through the Canadian Rockies or a tour of the Netherlands.

Sarah, according to Daisy, opted for Vermont.

"She likes Chester, Vt. It's a town smaller than Clarkston. Everybody knows her there and she seems to know everybody. She goes into the stores and talks to people and rides her bike around.

"So," said Daisy, "I guess it's Vermont. I know she gave it a lot of thought."

Surrounded by antiques on the floor, walls, ceiling and counters, Daisy sits in a straight-backed chair and points to a half-dozen handmade cards from Sarah.

Cut from colorful construction paper, specked with glitter and bright strokes from felt-tipped pens, they announce: "THE BEST GRANDMOTHER IN THE WORLD" and "HAPPY BIRTHDAY."

"She always wants to give me a card she's made herself. Never a store bought one," Daisy said, speaking softly, choosing each word carefully.

Sarah and her 75-year-old grandmother write each other notes in secret code.

The special relationship runs deep.

"Never a day goes by that she doesn't call me to say, 'I love you Nana,'" Daisy said. "And she tells me all kinds of things that happen in school and with friends.

"She'll say to me, 'Nana, I don't know why one day they're friends and the next day enemies.' I tell her, 'Just don't be like that. There are some people like that, particularly in that age group.'"

While Sarah pulls from her grandmother's experience, Daisy learns from her granddaughter too.

"In all the years I've been keeping house and doing things like shelling eggs, I do it the same way. You just kind of pick at it and pick at it to get the shell off.

"Sarah saw me doing that and said, 'Nana, let me show you how. All you have to do is this.' And she rubbed it between her hands. It works. It amazed me. She can think of the easiest way to do things."

Framed in a doorway of antiques are Sarah Schultz and her grandmother, Daisy Dowling, both Clarkston residents. The pair share a special relationship that runs the gamut from secret codes to teddy bear tea parties and cruises along the Atlantic.

Weekends, the pair scheme to break the house rules that call for a curfew.

"Sarah's not allowed to watch very much television at home. It's something she likes to do when she comes here," Daisy said. "Sarah always says, 'Nana, let's stay up later than we tell.'"

And of course, Daisy said, they do.

That's part of what being a grandmother is all about.

Tributes to moms

These tributes were penciled by North Sashabaw Elementary School second-graders.

"I left the spelling as it was in most cases. I think it's rather cute," said their teacher Norma Stallons.

A mom is nice and special and prity and fat like a cat.

—Anita Kirk

A mother is kind and sweet. Shes the nicest person you cood meat. She makes the supper and irons the closes.

—Stevie Bowers

A mother is a nice person who every one should love and care for. She buys you toys and other nice things—that is why you should respect and love your mom.

—Tiffany Hamilton

Q What's the best thing about your mom?

"Her being there when I need her."—Brenda Cox of Holcomb Street, Clarkston; daughter of Lora Bridger of Lapeer.

A mom is someone who gives you T.L.C. tender loving care every day and thats inpornint and a hug is inpornint and so is a kiss and T.L.C. The end.

—Chester Carson

My mommy is nice to me and kind and pretty she buys me stof. She taks me places a lot she is smart to. She gos to work evre day.

—Lisa Stoglin

My mom is verey nice. And, she loves me. And I lovè her. My mcm is verey specil. I think my mom is great.

—Sean Mick

My mom is my maid and she washes my clothes, She tells me to clean my room. She grounds me to the yard. And I cry.

—Mike Collins

Mothers are . . .

...terrific because they love you and my mother is pretty. She helps me with my homework, she helps me with math problems that I got wrong and I love my mom because she is great.

—Ryan David Poquette

...sweet, very nice, kind, and loving. My mom is EXCELLENT, great and an excellent cook. My mom makes new creative food. She loves me very much.

—Missy Ferguson

...flowers when they bloom in the spring. Tulips with many different colors, too.

Chris Perris

...nice, pretty, loveable. I love my mother very much. She is very kind to me. She helps me when I'm hurt. My mother feeds me when I'm hungry. And my mother helps me with my homework. I love her.

—JoAnn Thornberry

...the best. They are so nice and helpful. My mom is special to me. She washes clothes too!

—Laura Rutkoski

...nice. They are good.

—Scott D.

...nice. They love and care for you a lot. They love you and get you things. They get you clothes and pj's, slippers, toys and they give us lots and lots of stickers.

—Julia Harding.

...wonderful. They are very good cooks, loveable and very nice. They help you when you are in trouble. They will help you with your homework when you need help. Well, to tell you the truth, they can do everything.

—Stephanie Nicholson

...nice. They are neat. They are good cooks. They help with your work. Moms are the best.

—Eric Eason

...very nice. I am just glad she is my mother.

—Robin

...nice to us kids. Moms are sweet to us kids. Moms help us when we are sick. We love our moms. My mom helps me when I am hurt. And I love my mom, too.

—Derek

...kind, sweet, loving. They take care of you and buy you the things you need. They take you on trips and worst of all they enroll you in school. Last of all, I think mothers are great.

—Sean Prystash

...pretty, sweet, kind, nice, smart, willing, helpful, caring, super, great, loving, generous, thoughtful, intelligent, the best thing in the world, busy, fine, perfect, clean, wonderful, the tops, happy and a genius.

—Jennifer B.

"Grandma, are you going to work?" "No," said Grandma. "Can I go to my friend's?" "Yes," said Grandma. It is time to go to bed and they went to bed. "It is morning," said Steven to Grandma. "Can I eat breakfast?" Grandma said, "Yes." Grandmas are the best.

—Steven

(who lives with his grandma and dad)

...nice for cooking dinner and washing our clothes.

—Rusty Earls

...good and helpful. Sometimes they say "no," or sometimes "yes." They cook dinner and sometimes they do fun stuff with you too, like painting and having friends come over.

—Erica Nienstedt

Q What's the best thing about your mom?

"I like the love she shows toward others, not just her family."—Mary Waxell of Rochester, daughter of Isobel Graves of Flint.
