Schools approve 2-year pact

By Kathy Greenfield

Almost a year of negotiations on the Clarkston schools teachers' contract ended Monday night with unanimous approval of a two-year contract by the board of education.

Included is a wage freeze for teachers this school year and a 5.95 percent salary hike for 1983-84 for teachers in the first 11 steps of the pay scale.

The raises will increase payroll expenses by about $410,937, said the district's chief negotiator Conrad Bruce.

The average salary will increase from $25,000 to $26,500, he said, adding that the average could be higher if the proposed 28 layoffs remain intact, eliminating most teachers on the lower end of the pay scale.

A beginning teacher with a bachelor's degree will be paid $13,632 and the highest salary is $34,408 for a teacher with an education specialist's degree and 21 years or more experience.

There are presently 269 teachers on the K-12 payroll.

There was no discussion by school board members before the vote, but afterwards President Janet Thomas commented on the settlement.

"It's going to be nice not to be in an adversary position for at least a few weeks," she said. "I hope it's going to be longer than that."

At the end of the meeting, Clarkston Education Association President Allen Bartlett added his opinion.

"It is a pleasure to have a two-year contract," he said.

About 80 people attended the board meeting, and there was a change in the atmosphere with school board members more relaxed than they've been in months, joking about having to read lengthy proposals for entry into the minutes and about the contract.

"Anything that has to take a year to settle must be good," said Thomas.

After the meeting, Bruce called the new contract one of compromises.

"We struggled with wages and benefits for a long time. When it was all said and done, there weren't many changes in the basic contract," he said.

"It's going to take a lot more compromises in the next couple of years to keep things going," he added.

Bruce's list of contract changes in 1983-84 included the following:

- A 5.7 percent wage increase for teachers in steps 16 and 21 (teachers receive raises each year for the first 11 years, then receive an increase after 16 years and after 21 years). The lower percentage will make their wage hikes about the same dollar amount as those in step 11.

- Elementary schools will begin classes five minutes earlier in the morning and five minutes will be added to afternoon recess periods, from 15 to 20 minutes, giving teachers more planning time.

- Removed from the contract is the stipulation that classroom aides must be provided when a class reaches "oversize" proportions. Instead, teachers with large classes will be given one free day each marking period to work on materials.

- A new contract section allows teachers to take year-long personal leaves without losing longevity. Thus, a teacher may try out a new job for a year or take a break without losing his or her teaching job.

- A committee made up of administrators and teachers will study alternate forms of health insurance with a report due prior to the 1984-85 teachers' contract talks.

The contract also includes the school calendar for next year. For students, the first day is to be Sept. 6 and the last day June 14. A mid-winter break has been included spanning the weekend from Feb. 17-20.

Felled pines

By Marilyn Trumper

Six 18-year-old felled pine trees, cut and left lying alongside Waterford Hill Automotive, are the work of malicious vandals and not management.

"People have been calling us and asking why we did it, why we cut down those trees. We didn't do it. I came into work Monday and there they were," said Jeff Vogl, manager of the Dixie Highway business. "We don't have any enemies that would do this. I don't have any idea why someone would do it."

"It's really a shame. It took a long time for them to grow."

The trees belong to the Independence Commons shopping center and Independence Squares Apartments, directly south and north of the auto parts store.

David Sherrill Sr., apartment complex manager, was rattled by the cutting.

"I don't know how much our insurance will cover," Sherrill said. "We're talking probably $4,000."

"It hurts you to see this. They took so long to grow and will never be replaced in my lifetime. I don't know who would do a thing like this."

Leader dog

Just a leash will do—who needs people? Bear, a 5-month-old golden retriever, taught himself this trick. He grabs the leash of Barren, a 7-year-old dachshund, and takes his fellow canine for a walk. "His forehead wrinkles up," says Barren's owner Olga Lovell about her grumbling dachshund. "To have this pipsqueak take him for a walk..." explains Bear's owner Patsy Carlson. The takeover started about three weeks ago. A group of women from the Boyne Highlands subdivision walk almost every week-day, taking along a gang of dogs on leashes for the one- to two-hour stroll. Bear kept grabbing at Barren's leash, so they decided to let go to see what would happen. Now the dog leading the dog has become a regular event. It has created a stir in the neighborhood. "They just think it's funny—we're out walking and the dog's walking the other dog," says Patsy. They wondered if the dogs would demonstrate even though they weren't actually going out for a walk. Bear eagerly took the leash and the walk along Caberfae Trail began with Barren putting up some minor growling over the whole thing.

Nederlander makes music with Independence

By Marilyn Trumper
Nederlander Theatrical Corp. came to the rescue.

The Pine Knob Music Theatre is expected to open on schedule May 27 with deputies from the Oakland County Sheriff's Department directing traffic.

Dangling the proverbial carrot-on-a-string, Independence Township wanted theater management to voluntarily provide traffic control or, some board officials said, they would adopt an ordinance ordering it.

At the May 3 township board meeting, representatives from the Nederlander organization agreed to pay for uniformed traffic deputies at I-75 and Sashabaw, and at the theater entrance.

Nederlander rents the Pine Knob Music Theatre from partners Joseph Locricchio and Gary Francell.

The partners are on record refusing to pay for traffic patrol, maintaining it's the responsibility of local government, and that as taxpayers in Independence Township they already pay a millage for police, as do all property owners.

"We're willing to be responsible for the cost of providing traffic control this year, until such time it's determined who is responsible for it," said Nederlander attorney Thomas G. Rollins.

Co-counsel Patrick McCauly refused to say if Nederlander would go after Pine Knob for reimbursement, expected to total over $200,000 by the season's close.

Nederlander already pays for plainclothes police patrol inside the theater, and will continue to do so, according to theater Manager Steve Finkel.

"We've acted with incredible haste to try and resolve this," McCauly told the township board. "And because of that, we ask the issue of the broader ordinance be tabled at this time."

Rollins was quick to agree. "Nederlander will not do anything to allow its reputation to be tarnished at one of its best facilities."

Township attorney Gerald Fisher agreed, saying an 11th-hour adoption of the proposed regulating ordinance could mean trouble later.

After discussion, the board voted unanimously to table the issue of an ordinance.

"All of the problems in my mind have been dealt with adequately," said Treasurer Frederick Ritter. "These guys are talking about millions of dollars—they're not going to jeopardize that for $50- to $60,000 in police pay."

"We've had problems with the landlord, but I don't think there's a need for the ordinance. It's a problem between landlord and tenant. If the landlord isn't holding up his part of the bargain, then the tenant does—and then goes after the landlord."

Building prompts staff search

By Marilyn Trumper
Independence Township doesn't know where the $18,000 salary will come from to pay a enforcement officer.

"But we'll have to find it somewhere, we just have to," said Trustee Dale Stuart at the May 3 board meeting.

After 45 minutes of discussion, the Independence Township Board unanimously approved Building and Planning Director Kenneth Delbridge's request to fill that position. Trustee Daniel Travis was absent.

The job has been vacant for two years following the 1980 budget crunch when the bottom fell out of the market. Budget cutbacks brought township layoffs soon after.

"We're overburdened with paperwork and general housekeeping. There are a number of pending items we just can't get to," Delbridge told the board.

"I need someone to help me and assist me on the job. Someone who can take over when I'm gone, review plans, everything."

For the past two years the building department has operated with one director, one inspector and one secretary.

In 1982 a total of 9 building permits were issued. Building permits are a primary source of revenue for the department.

Just four months into 1983, Independence Township issued 20 permits for new housing starts.

In addition, the proposed senior citizens complex at I-75 and Dixie Highway is monopolizing a great deal of time, and so is what Delbridge calls "general township housekeeping," like junk cars, tall weeds and vacant homes.

Supervisor James B. Smith warned against hiring in what could be a false market boom.

"I know that it's directly related to the number of building permits issued, and my friends and associates in real estate and development tell me this is going to be a steady increase," Delbridge said.

He is expected to report back to the board with a recommendation to fill the opening at the May 17 meeting.

The non-union/management position pays $18,000 a year with approximately $7,000 in benefits.

Knob partners relinquish power-of-attorney

By Marilyn Trumper

Joseph Locricchio, co-owner of Pine Knob Investment Co. is sick to his stomach over recent events surrounding the Independence Township complex, according to his brother, Anthony.

Attorney Anthony Locricchio, who retained power-of-attorney over the $9-million complex, explained the situation like this: "... (Joseph) said, 'Take it over for a while because I can't deal with it anymore.'

"... (He's) sick to his stomach" from the pressure, Locricchio said, contradicting a newspaper report that said Joseph was "ill."

Pine Knob owners Joseph Locricchio and Gary Francell have been embroiled in federal bankruptcy court since filing Chapter 11 in 1980, action that allowed them to continue operation while paying debts.

The most recent activity was the resignation from the case of Judge George Woods, who was to rule on appointing a trustee to take over the Pine Knob operation last week.

"This has been a very scary experience for everybody," Anthony Locricchio said, referring to the two-year battle.

But he stressed that his control of Pine Knob is temporary.

"Pine Knob belongs to Joseph Locricchio and Gary Francell. Currently I have full power of attorney, but in reality Pine Knob was Joseph Locricchio's and Gary Francell's yesterday, is today and will be tomorrow," he said.

Pine Knob owes almost $200,000 in back taxes to Independence Township.

Locricchio alleges township officials pushed for appointment of a trustee to ensure that back payment.

"The township participated in this fully for the purpose of taking away our right to litigate," Locricchio said.

"When the township joins with the jackels, then it's time for the citizens to find out. I'd take out my anger on the township (with lawsuits) but the township is a collection of people," he said, pointing to a run of losses at the supreme court and the amount of tax dollars spent in litigation.

"If that's what the citizens want, great," he said. Independence Township Supervisor James B. Smith says Locricchio has lumped the court cases together, and says the supreme court has essentially ruled only the question of allowing the zoning board members to be questioned under oath.

"And the township did not move for a trustee to be appointed," Smith said. "It was the attorney general's office, the IRS, Comerica and Borg-Warner.

We didn't. The facts speak for themselves."

Unlike other trials when a judge steps down from the case, this trial does not begin anew and continues where it left off.

Locricchio anticipates another hearing for a trustee, and a victory for Pine Knob which has repeatedly requested delay in the appointment sought by the creditors.

The two largest creditors in the suit are Borg Warner Corp. and Comerica. Each are owed $3 million.

In addition, Locricchio says Pine Knob's three restaurants will open in conjunction with the May 27 season music theater opener.

Koop's cleanup

Kicking off the Independence Township Spring Cleanup, Gary Koop volunteered to help clean up illegal dumpsites along Maybee and Waldon roads this week, said George Anderson, township DPW director. The township covered the $400 fee to take the trash to a dump and paid the salaries of three employees who worked with Koop. Dan Priestley, the third township employee working on the project, aptly summed up the situation: "It's not pretty." Township residents can dump their unwanted trash for free at the township DPW building on Flemings Lake Road on Friday and Saturday, May 14 and 15, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. There's a map on Page 4.

School officials get pay raises

Immediately following settlement of the Clarkston teachers' contract Monday night, the school board unanimously approved the same wage hike—5.95 percent—for administrators.

As with the teachers, administration salaries were frozen for the '82-83 school year.

For central office administrators, the raises increase their 1983-84 salaries to the following: Superintendent Milford Mason—$52,745, Assistant Superintendent Mel Vaara—$45,677, Administrative Assistant Conrad Bruce—$44,307 and Administrative Assistant William Dennis—$33,900.

Principals, assistant principals and program directors are covered by five-step salary scales.

Elementary school principal wages in 1983-84 begin at $33,623 for the first year and increase to $39,671 for the fifth year.

Junior high school principals are to be paid $35,425 the first year, up to $41,465 for the fifth year.

On the senior high school level, the principal's salary begins at $39,911 up to $45,093 for the fifth year.

Assistant principals on the senior high school level are paid according to the junior high school schedule.

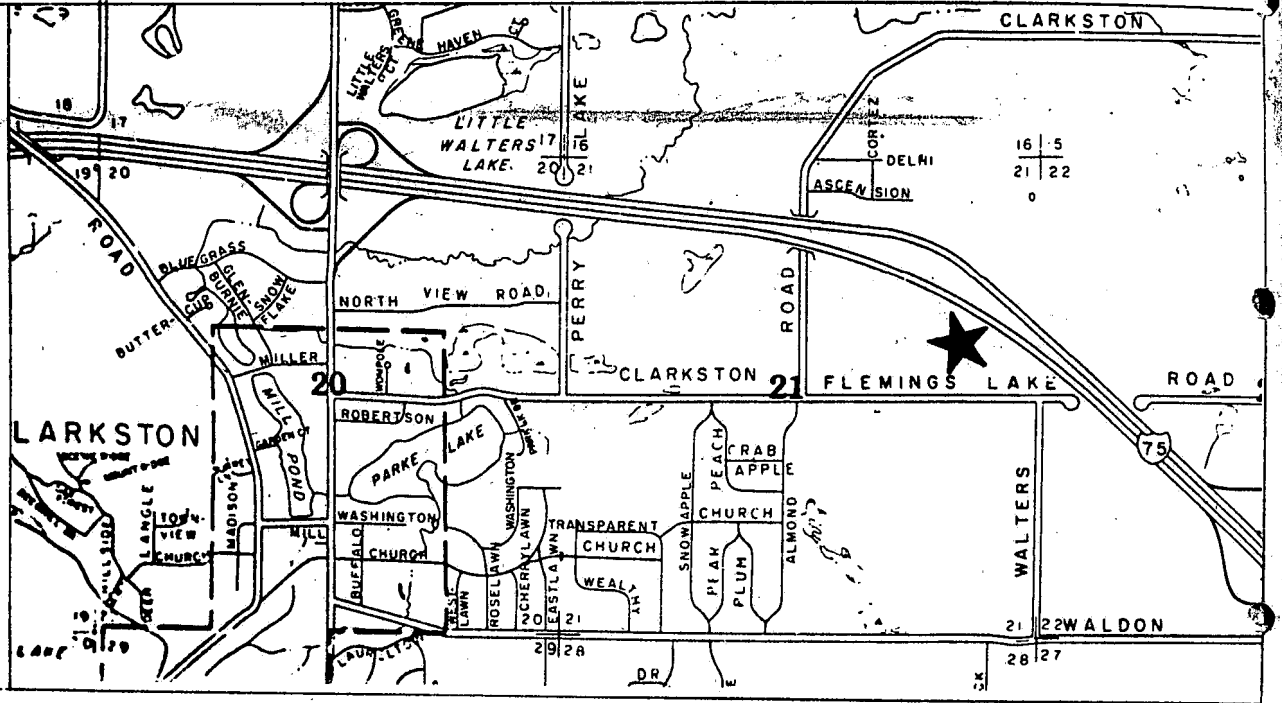

Assistant junior high school principals fall under the elementary school schedule.

The director of special education is paid according to the junior high school schedule and the director of community education is paid from the elementary school schedule.

All other benefits remain unchanged from the '81-82 school year, Mason said.

Free dumping

Unlike last year when 10 dumping spots dotted the township, there's only one site for Independence Township's 1983 spring cleanup. Residents can haul their refuse to the township DPW Building, 6050 Flemings Lake (see star on above map), on Saturday and Sunday, May 14 and 15, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. There will be no fee for dumping, but participants must prove they reside in the township with a driver's license, voter's registration card or similar ID, says George Anderson, DPW director. While the township board allocated $6,000 for the cleanup project, he projects the cost to be between $12,000 and $15,000. "I expect all you'll see come Monday at the DPW Building is the flagpole," Anderson predicts.

Alum basics

by Kathy Greenfield

Alum was the topic of conversation one recent morning in the Clarkston News newsroom.

I'm not sure how it started, but this is where it led: We identified alum as an ingredient in pickles and homemade soft modeling dough and as something the Road Runner cartoon character uses to dump on his adversaries.

As the story goes, when alum is dumped on an animated figure it shrinks and its lips become shriveled.

None of us was sure why alum is used in pickles and we were at more of a loss trying to figure out what it has to do with modeling dough.

We sought assistance from a dictionary.

"al-um, noun 1: a potassium aluminum sulfate or an ammonium sulfate used especially as an emetic and as an astringent and styptic 2: any of various double salts isomorphous with potash alum."

Got that? There are times when dictionaries just don't do it for you.

As one member of the staff said, it's obvious we should all stay away from alum, that awful stuff.

The search for truth didn't end there.

It was time to consult a higher source—The World Book Encyclopedia.

"ALUM is the name of a group of double salts made up of two metals and one acid group. Common alum is potash alum, or potassium alum, a sulfate of potassium and aluminum. Other alums are ammonium, sodium and chrome alum. Chrome alum is unusual because it contains no aluminum. Manufacturers make most alums from bauxite, the source of aluminum sulfate. Potash alum is used to shrink tissues, stop bleeding and check excessive perspiration. It is also used in treating canker sores, ulcers and sore throats. Industry also uses alum to size paper, purify water, harden plaster of Paris, deodorize mineral oils, and dye and tan material. Some baking powders contain dry sodium alum."

That was a little better. Now I could understand why alum captured the imagination of a cartoonist.

I didn't have a bottle or can of alum on my spice shelf because pickles are always made at my parents' house and it has been years since my children were young enough to enjoy an afternoon of entertainment with soft modeling dough.

So, I went to a grocery store and read a label.

"Alum—useful in home pickling to give crispness to cucumbers, melon rinds, onions, green beans and other foods... Use as directed in recipe."

Now you know everything. I know about alum.

I'm still not sure why it's an ingredient in modeling dough, but so all this is not for naught I'm including the recipe I saved just in case I someday need to entertain small children again.

I remember being told, incidentally, that the result is nontoxic. I wouldn't be first in line to give it a taste test.

Soft Modeling Dough

- 1 c flour
- 1/2 c salt
- 1 T powdered alum
- 1 c boiling water
- 1 T salad oil
- Food coloring

Mix together thoroughly and store in closed container.

Balance sought in school news

We would like to add our appreciation for the motivation to excel which Mr. Stachurski is giving science students in Clarkston Junior High. Their achievements in the Science Olympiad are noteworthy.

The event and your coverage were also timely in view of the recent report by the National Commission on Excellence in Education.

However, we urge still more coverage of scholastic achievements and reporting in greater detail.

Without depreciating the value of school sports, it seems disproportionate to give them four and five times more space and detail than is given to academic pursuits.

For example, a Clarkston team recently won first place in a state competition on future problem solving—and an invitation to compete nationally.

Another team won honors in an "olympics of the mind" meet at Mt. Pleasant.

And, we feel sure there are other accomplishments in literature and arts about which we have no information.

A more balanced treatment of sporting and academic events would better reflect the schools' purpose and achievements.

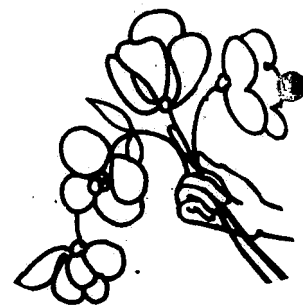

And, we believe, it would help to motivate students and teachers, and encourage parental support, toward higher academic standards and performance.

It would also inform taxpayers about the substantial contribution which schools make to the future of the community and the nation.

Diamond in the rough

by Jim Sherman

Cathy was hurried, and harried, as she grabbed the phone. Her first impulse was to let it ring and get on the road.

She heard a woman's melting southern voice ask, "Is Ed Sherman there?"

As Cathy demanded, "Who's calling?" she remembered her husband had just returned from a week-long vacation in Atlanta, Ga.

"This is Victoria Hamilton," she said and Cathy began drawing mental portraits. In rapid succession, and sorting out various methods of creating suffering for her husband, the irate lady from Ada asked: What do you want? Where are you from? What company are you with?

When the caller said, "Beaver Company from Texas" Cathy became even more suspecting, if possible.

Even when the belle said Ed Sherman had won a diamond, Mrs. Sherman was skeptical.

She wasn't so convinced of her husband's unfaithfulness to lose her common sense all together, however. She asked, "How big is this diamond?"

"Three-quarter karat."

That was the convincer. Cathy spent the next several minutes out-sweetening the wholesome, very American, and really true friend on the other end of the line.

Seems Ed (my nephew) filled out a coupon as he passed a booth at the convention center. His was one of a couple thousand.

The diamond is a stunning attraction around the neck of a stunning attraction. Many from Oxford might remember Cathy, a Camp Oakland girl, OHS grad. Her last name was Howick then.

Barbara Walters has the reputation as an outstanding interviewer. Her television interviews are specials with much build up, and with famous people, usually.

I've enjoyed just enough of her shows to tune them in for a peek, if nothing longer.

Recently her program featured an interview with the parents of John Hinckley, the man who tried to kill president Ronald Reagan.

We got the impression through most of the show a public relations job was being done for the son. However, there's no knowing if there was a 'meaning' to the interview.

What really turned me off about Barbara, maybe forever, was this question she asked of the parents whose son shot the president of the United States: "Will you ever forget?" She really asked that.

Quick-thinking boy saves friend's eyesight

By Kathy Greenfield

The afternoon ended up with Rick Mawhinney a hero, but it began like many afternoons for many groups of youngsters.

Three boys were out in a field near their homes on in Springfield Township last week talking about the latest project—building a fort.

Paul Postal, 13, brought along his air rifle.

He handed it to Derek Hill, 10, and Derek proceeded to blast at the dirt, creating spurts of dust.

"The next thing I heard was something that sounded like somebody lit off a firecracker," said 14-year-old Rick.

"I turned around and saw Derek. He put his hands over his eyes and went down on his knees."

Rick spotted the aerosol paint can, looked to see if the metal had exploded and decided the clean hole indicated Derek's agony was created by paint. With light blue paint all over his face, Derek looked like a ghost.

"I grabbed Derek and said, 'Let's go to the house. C'mon, run!'"

Paul opened the door and the three friends rushed inside.

"I lifted him up on the counter and turned on the spigot. He wouldn't open his eyes, so I held them open."

Derek protested—the paint in his eyes felt "not so good"—but Rick kept the water going for five minutes. Paul helped hold Derek's eyes open.

The first aid procedure Rick followed was perfect, said Derek's mother, Pamela Hill.

The pediatrician who treated Derek following the incident said he didn't see a trace of paint in the boy's eyes.

Just two weeks before, Rick had completed a study of first aid at Clarkston Junior High School as part of an elective course called "Environment" taught by science teacher Anthony Stachurski.

"Everything Mr. Stachurski said just flashed back in my mind," Rick said. "I just remembered all the steps. I remembered them right I guess."

"I actually think first aid should be required because it's fun learning about it and it's also beneficial to you."

"It wasn't just me who rescued Derek," he added. "Mr. Stachurski, if it wasn't for him I wouldn't have known this."

The most difficult part was keeping Derek calm. "He was saying, 'No, no, it's OK, I'm fine,' and I was saying, 'No you're not,' " said Rick.

"He was worried that he'd have to pay for the gun because it was covered with paint. I said, 'Don't worry about the gun. If I don't rinse out your eyes, you're going to go blind.'"

Paul admits he was worried about his gun that was also covered with light blue paint. But Rick cleaned it up later with nail polish remover.

"I think Rick did a pretty good job cleaning out Derek's eyes," Paul said. "He told Derek, 'If you don't stop wiggling around I'm going to break your arm.'"

"Sometimes," Rick said, "you have to resort to force."

Derek, a fourth-grader at Clarkston Elementary School, said he's decided to take two courses when he reaches junior high school—French and environment.

"I didn't know about environment class before," he said.

Now he does.

'If it Fitz...'

Balancing games, guns

by Jim Fitzgerald

Don't be dismayed by how much it costs you to furnish the weapons needed to stop the bloodshed in Central America. Never mind the confusion caused by President Reagan's speeches. Taxpayers have good reason to be grateful.

First, the Cost and the Confusion:

"The total amount requested for aid to all of Central America in 1984 is about $600 million. That is less than one-tenth of what Americans will spend this year on coin-operated video games," the president said April 27.

His meaning appeared clear: Because they spend much more playing unimportant games, taxpayers shouldn't gripe about buying important guns for Central American military forces.

BUT WHAT ABOUT the speech Reagan made in March at Disney World? He told 500 teenagers:

"Many young people have developed incredible hand, eye and brain co-ordination in playing these (video) games. The Air Force believes these kids will be outstanding pilots should they fly our jets. Watch a 12-year-old take evasive action and score multiple hits while playing 'Space Invaders' and you will appreciate the skills of tomorrow's pilots."

So, will the real Mr. President please stand up and tell confused taxpayers which is really most important—helping El Salvador kill guerillas, or training our youngsters to make multiple hits?

It's a tough question. Both actions have the same goal—to prevent bloodshed and preserve peace. And if you think supplying guns to foreign soldiers or training American youngsters to drop bombs is no way to accomplish that noble goal, you simply don't understand how to achieve modern peace.

You don't understand that the best way to save a man from drowning is to hold him under water until he stops struggling to reach shore where he would breathe free in some dumb village that will probably have to be destroyed to be saved anyway.

IT WOULD BE NICE to believe Reagan didn't really intend to imply that "Space Invaders" is unimportant. Many of us remember what happened during the Vietnam war when President Johnson failed to collect enough taxes to pay for both guns and butter. To prevent a similar embarrassment, it is President Reagan's duty to make sure the United States can afford both military aid and video games.

After all, what does it profit a nation if it stamps out guerilla warfare in El Salvador but fails to produce children who know how to make multiple hits?

Sure, it will cost billions of dollars for the U.S. to continue pumping quarters into video machines while at the same time providing the weapons required to prevent the Soviet Union from circulating the writings of Karl Marx among Central American peasants and converting them from thriving capitalists into struggling socialists.

But the marvelous results—such as 12-year-olds who can take evasive action and missile bases in Costa Rica—would be worth the money.

AND BESIDES—this is what you should be grateful for—taxpayers don't have it as tough as you think. U.S. News & World Report recently said it will cost taxpayers $27 million this year to provide protection, pensions and various services to our three living ex-presidents. But there was a gratifying quote concerning Gerald Ford, who gets $100,000 a year plus $249,200 for office expenses from the government to go along with the millions he earns making speeches, sitting on boards, and investing wisely.

Ford is entitled to free mailing privileges for his official, but not personal, correspondence and, according to his senior aide, "Whenever we're in doubt, we put a stamp on the envelope."

Wow. Because of such freewheeling generosity, Ford may sometimes pay 20 cents for postage that should rightfully be charged to taxpayers!

Knowing that, who among you would be ungrateful enough to gripe about having to finance both military aid and video games?

Solo

Into nature, Rick Ragatz camps alone

By Marilyn Trumper

A red-and-white bandana tied snugly around Rick Ragatz' forehead keeps the wind from whipping hair in his blue eyes.

Stopping before the flint-studded glass of Rudy's Market, the 17-year-old drops his blue nylon knapsack to the sidewalk.

The walk from Boomer State Park north of Ortonville leaves the Springfield Township resident thirsty.

Raising the familiar green bottle to his lips, he sucks down a cold Mountain Dew through silver braces.

The Clarkston High School senior surveys activity on Main Street then wrenches the knapsack back to his shoulders and heads south out of town.

His solo three-day backpacking excursion is coming to a close.

Weeks later Rick talked about the independent hobby that monopolized three rainy days over Easter break.

"It's different than what everybody else does. It's quiet. You can sit and think. (I think about summer) and my plans to backpack cross-country to Washington, California and Texas. So far I'm going alone and figure I'll be in Texas when it's winter up here. I'll get jobs along the way to support myself."

With most of his friends vacationing in Florida over Easter break, Rick opted to camp in Boomer State Park alone.

The walk from his home on Andersonville Road to Ortonville took seven hours and covered 17 miles.

He didn't hitchhike, "...because it would defeat the purpose of trying to get in shape."

Alone in the deserted park, he slept in a two-man pup tent, ate only soup ("because it's the only thing I could carry") and ran a lot to keep warm.

"I went into town twice. The second time on Thursday. I bought a newspaper and read it four times. I had a radio with me too."

While Rick's dad gave the single-handed campout his stamp of approval, Rick admits his mom worries.

And the first night in the woods, Rick worried too.

"No one knew where I was. I wasn't exactly in the campground, I was in the woods and there was no road to (my site)."

This summer Rick will have to get used to being alone.

The road westward is a long one.

A red bandana stripes the 17-year-old's forehead as he stands in the shade of Rudy's overhanging awning. His heavy knapsack rests on the sidewalk below.

Developer seeks gravel pit restoration delay

By Marilyn Trumper

David Derusha wants to build a single-family subdivision in the abandoned 23-acre gravel pit off Stickney Road.

The Independence Township Board is listening, but keeping to strict adherence of the consent judgment regulating reclamation of the Stolaruk Corp.'s pit.

At the May 5 meeting of the Independence Township Board, Derusha, owner of Derusha Inc. with residential developments in Avon Township, asked the board to delay a hearing to force Phase I reclamation.

"I know you're supposed to do something in court this week, but I'll need six weeks to get the layouts from my engineers.

"If we can get going with a preliminary plat, topography and cost analysis I'll have something for you," Derusha said.

Supervisor James B. Smith was cautious.

"If we were to hazard a six-week delay, we would need at least some preliminary standards of what you would incorporate into the plan. Right now you have nothing to show us, you're not sure what you're going to do until the studies are made," he said.

Board members had few words of encouragement for Derusha, who asked if the consent judgment, a binding court-sanctioned agreement that spells out restoration, would be forfeited if he developed the land.

"The consent judgment could be altered (to accommodate your development), if you put up a cash bond—but not forfeited," said Trustee Larence Kozma.

Trustee Dale Stuart agreed.

"I'd much rather have a good development than a big hole, but we don't intend to give up the rights we've taken so long to get. But the board will always be willing to look at any plan you bring before us," he said.

The gravel pit's reclamation is outlined by a strict plan which allows Stolaruk to get the opinion of a third, independent engineer if the township and mining officials disagree on slopes and grading.

Last week Oakland County Circuit Court Judge Frederick Meister appointed a third engineer to resolve the dispute, and ordered work on seeding, grading and the erection of a fence to begin by May 30, according to Gerald Fisher, township attorney.

Township and Stolaruk officials have been in court since 1979 when the first consent judgment was drafted.

Memories of '63

Twenty years ago the 150-member Clarkston High School Class of 1963 prepared to graduate.

Humming tunes of the new singing sensation, the Beatles, they drove to Harvey's or Rocko's for pizza, never considering McDonald's because it didn't exist nearby.

The third class to graduate from the new Clarkston High School, their graduation party was at the Pine Knob Ski Lodge.

They celebrated the basketball district championship by the Wolves, and the first Junior-Miss ever in Clarkston accepted her classmates' congratulations.

Those memories and more await revival during the Class of '63 reunion planned July 9 at the Deer Lake Racquet Club.

Because of many friendships with their younger classmates, the CHS Class of '64 is invited to attend the party, as well as parents of graduates in both groups.

Ten-year-old Derek Moscovic crosses the finish line in the 1-mile SCAMP-NWOVEC Fun Run on Saturday.

The 5-kilometer race take runners through Colombiere Center's campus down the road a bit from the vocational school. Over 100 runners participated in the races.

Charities win Fun Run

Cool breezes and mild temperatures brought 104 runners to run for fun and for the SCAMP and the Northwest Oakland Vocational Education Center May 7.

Families and friends scattered the hill along side the NWOVEC at the starting line to cheer the runners on.

The races ranged in length from 1 mile to 5 kilometers and 10 kilometers. The course took the runners around the Colombiere Center and back to the vocational center.

The top finishers in each of the six age divisions received medals.

The real winners of the day's events were SCAMP and NWOVEC. The two organizations will split the $312 collected through the entry fees.

SCAMP's share will go toward the six-week summer camp for northern Oakland County children and youth with special needs and NWOVEC's money will go into the school's scholarship fund.

Winning the 1-mile race was Paul Burch in a time of 4:52. The first woman to cross the finish line was Debbie Keith.

In the 5-kilometer run, Mike Conwell blistered the course in 16:54. Finishing first for the women was Kathleen McInnis.

Chris Campbell won the 10-kilometer race and Pat Roselli was first for the women.

The runners could compete in one or all three races for one entry fee.

At the half-way point in the 10-kilometer race, 30-year-old Mark Smith grabs a glass of water from a volunteer. The entry fees raised $312 for SCAMP and NWOVEC.

Birtsas grabs two awards

Tim Birtsas, a graduate of Clarkston High School and Michigan State University, recently pitched his way to two honors in the New York Yankee farm system.

While pitching for the Fort Lauderdale Yankees of the Florida State League during the week of April 24-30, Birtsas hurled two complete games, allowed only four hits and one unearned run, and struck out 14 batters in 17 innings.

He was named the Florida State League player of the week and received the New York Yankees Elston Howard Pitcher of the Week award.

The award, named after the late star, is given weekly to the best pitcher in the Yankee minor leagues, from class A to AAA.

The Yankees drafted Birtsas as their first pick in 1982 summer draft.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gus Birtsas of Robertson Court, Clarkston.

Timely hitting, good pitching pace Wolves

By Dan Vandenhemel

The Clarkston High School Junior Varsity softball team has been playing strong, solid softball so far this season, posting an 8-2 record.

In the Wolves' 7-5 win over Waterford Kettering Monday, every part of the game—pitching, defense and hitting—came through for coach Don Peters' team.

Cindy Covert hit a bases-loaded triple in the second inning to start the scoring. The Wolves built a 6-0 lead before the Captains could cross the plate.

Dawnaree DeBoer pitched the first three innings and gave up only one hit to raise her record to 4-1 and tie with teammate Jody Law.

"We have been getting great pitching from Dawnaree," said Peters. "She is one of the best pitchers in the league. Jody is doing just a fantastic job too."

With 15 girls on the team, Peters has little trouble getting everyone in the games.

"This bunch is one of the toughest and hardest working bunches I've had"

Against West Bloomfield Wednesday, Peters used pinch runners Cindy Law and Joan Leichtham to steal a total of five bases. They led the Wolves' 12-10 victory.

Covert is the team's leading offensive weapon. She is hitting .450, has 15 RBI's and has made only one error at first base in 10 games.

Catcher Roseann Hirneisen is another plus for the Wolves.

"Roseann is as good a catcher at the JV level as you'll see," Peters said. "I haven't seen anyone better. Nothing gets past her and they don't steal against her, plus she's hitting around .300"

With the two strong pitchers, powerful offense and steady defense, the coach said the team should finish with an 8-2 record.

"We could be undefeated, but I feel it's more important to play the tougher team in the area instead of playing the easy ones," he said. "Also if a girl is good enough to make the team, she's good enough to see some playing time."

"This bunch is one of the toughest and hardest-working bunches I've had."

"I told them at the start of the year if they want to win, they're going to have to work for it. Marie Susalla said, 'We want to win. You tell us how to do it and we'll do it.' This team is really together."

Up My Alley Do-it-yourself

By Dan Vandenhemel

If anyone tells you it's easy to change the back tire of a 10-speed bike, they couldn't have done it before.

The back rim to my 14-year-old Peugeot bike was bent (courtesy of my older brother) and needed to be changed.

My brother said he had turned a corner too quickly and flipped the bike and it hit a curb.

The bike was rideable but it had no back brakes.

Buying the new frame was the easy part.

After taking the chain off of the back wheel, the wheel came off rather easily.

Not having any instructions for the bike, I didn't know if the back gears just twisted off like many of the other models or if it was welded on or something.

After trying and trying to unscrew the gears, I thought they must just pop off.

That was my first mistake.

My second mistake came after the retaining ring was off and I slowly pulled the gears away from the rim.

Just as the gears left the rim, dozens of tiny ball bearings started to pelt the ground.

Those little things were jumping all over like they were jumping beans.

The thought of picking all those bearings up was enough to make me scream. But that was easy compared to the job of trying to put them back in the gears.

Somehow I managed to gather most of the bearings but three hours after they were set free from the gear, I decided to consult the phone book.

The first bike shop I called told me I shouldn't have taken the gears off that way.

Now he tells me.

He also said no one manufactures the ball bearings and that I'd have to buy a new gear mechanism.

Just having bought a new rim, I didn't want to buy a new gear.

I stopped at a different bike shop with both wheels and the same story, and they said no problem. They would have it fixed by the next day.

Now it works like new and I didn't have a thing in the world to worry about, almost.

JV Wolves perfect through seven games

By Dan Vandenhemel

The Clarkston Wolves Junior Varsity baseball team stretched their winning streak to 7-0 with the 17-7 blowout of Waterford Kettering Monday.

The Wolves jumped to a 11-0 lead after four innings before Kettering could get on the scoreboard.

Eric Kline allowed only three earned runs to record his second victory without a loss.

Teammate Todd Olsen, also 2-0 for the year, knocked in a pinch-hit double to ice the game.

David Ladd paced Clarkston's hitting attack with three doubles, lifting his average to .450.

Ladd has only the third highest average on the team. Scott Carter is hitting .460 and Mark Ushman is hitting .525. Catcher Robert Newblatt is also hitting above .400.

Newblatt played a important role in the win over Kettering.

During the early innings when Kline couldn't get his curve over the plate, Newblatt was forced to block a lot of the pitches.

The few runners Kettering had by hits or walks had to stay on first base.

"He's a tough catcher back there," said coach Kurt Richardson. "He really gets in front of the ball. He was just super out there."

Richardson had other thoughts about the team strong points before the season started.

"I didn't think we would be undefeated at this point," he said. "I thought at the beginning of the season our pitching and the defense would hold us up. But we've been averaging around 12 runs a game. Everybody is hitting the ball. It's completely opposite from what I thought."

Not all of the wins have been run-aways for Clarkston.

Against West Bloomfield last Wednesday, the Wolves won 13-11 in nine innings, their third extra-inning win.

The Wolves were down 5-0 before West Bloomfield made an out and came back to win it.

Carter drove in Ladd with a triple in the ninth-inning to win the game and he scored on a passed ball.

"That's typical for this team," Richardson said. "They keep scratching back to win. We keep coming back. Everybody supports each other well."

Golfers drive for consistency

By Dan Vandenhemel

The Troy High School golf team broke Clarkston's winning streak at three in the 206-250 win Monday.

The Wolves had won their first three meets of the season before they met Troy at the Spring Lake Country Club.

"I felt if we played our best, we could have been competitive with them," said coach Jim Chamberlain. "That doesn't mean I thought we could have won, only competitive."

Troy's best golfer Debbie Harris shot a 42, while Lori Martin led the Wolves with a 51.

In the first four meets, Martin has shot 49, 51, 52, 51. Debbie Spillum is right behind her with a 55 average.

Chamberlain said with those two and Lisa Burkemo he has a solid top-three, plus others getting better.

"The first three are looking pretty good right now," he said. "Lisa started out a little high but came down to a 52 against Rochester. Another player, Katrina Lussier does everything right but I don't know why she scores inconsistently. Dee Johnson has dropped about 10 shots off her score since the start, that's a big improvement."

Troy has one of the best public school teams in the county, finishing fourth in the county tournament. The top-three teams were from private schools.

"Troy is shooting for the fourth spot in the regional tournament," Chamberlain said. "Most good teams have four girls that can break 100 for 18 holes."

"A good team has to shoot close to 200 to be competitive at the state level. We can't be to competitive with scores around 220."

"But if we all shoot the best we can in the regionals, we might make it. Who knows, stranger things have happened."

West Point drummer does it again

By Marilyn Trumper

In 1919 Francis O. Eidam played drums for movie, minstrel and vaudeville shows, traveling by train throughout the New England states with a band of musicians.

In summer they entertained at small resorts in the Catskill Mountains, playing dance music for those tripping the light fantastic.

He was 19, and a long way from his youth in Rockville, Conn., where he had dreamed of playing the drum, beating on the skin of a stringless banjo using round-tipped clothespins as sticks.

With years of Sunday mornings monopolized with $5 drum lessons Eidam mastered the art.

Two years after vaudeville he joined the U.S. Army—auditioned for the West Point—and earned a place in the band.

With a military career and pension under his belt, Eidam retired 30 years later as a master sergeant.

It's been 20 years since he picked up the sticks, a career that ended because of ailing eyes.

But on April 30, at the age of 83, the veteran drummer made a comeback before an audience of 40 at Calvary Lutheran Church's "Walter Mitty Night," where the Rev. Robert Walters said he "...virtually played like a demon."

"He was full of vigor and life. He came alive. He stood there dignified, straight and smiling like never before," Walters said.

Eidam draws up a chair to the kitchen table of his Independence Township home and laughs at the review.

"Well, I enjoyed it. My wrists are still stiff. I wanted to get limbered up—but there's still time for improvement," he said.

Dressed spotlessly in gray pants, light blue shirt

Francis Eidam demonstrates his drumming prowess in his Independence Township home.

Eidam picked up the sticks after 20 years for a special performance on Walter Mitty Night.

West Point Military Academy was good to Eidam. A 30-year career in the historical band ended 20 years ago. But they still remember him and last year honored Eidam as the oldest retiree.

At the age of 19, Francis Eidam (third from left) played drums in this band, traveling throughout New England resorts and for vaudeville minstrel shows. That was 1919. The 83-year-old Independence Township resident, after 20 years away from the drums, picked up the sticks and performed at Calvary Lutheran Church's Walter Mitty Night, to rave reviews.

Lifesaver: CPR skills can be learned in local classes or at Silverdome May 19

By Marilyn Trumper

In a freak softball accident at Clintonwood Park last June, the heart of a 26-year-old Independence Township man stopped beating when a line drive to pitcher's mound struck him in the chest.

The stands were filled with open-mouthed fans who could only stand and watch as a volunteer Independence Township firefighter and nurse, both

To meet Oakland County's qualifications for Advanced Life Saving, Cliff Holmyard learns CPR from Independence Township firefighter

Neil Ashley, Holmyard, 19, plans to work as a lifeguard at Independence Oaks County Park this summer.

trained in CPR (cardiopulmonary resuscitation), responded immediately and restored the heartbeat until paramedics arrived and transported him to the hospital.

"CPR worked there, and boy I'll tell you, (the ballplayer's) alive today because of what those two did," said Neil Ashley, Independence Township firefighter and CPR instructor.

"The big thing is getting it to the public. They are the first responders. I don't care, you can have as many nurses, doctors, EMS technicians, paramedics, anyone trained in the medical field and have them all there at once. But if they get there any later than six minutes—you're gone.

"The public is the first responder while you wait for that doctor to get there. Because of that, you have a better chance to survive."

Ashley recommends people age 13 and up learn the CPR technique, especially members of families with heart patients, infants with heart problems and recovering heart surgery patients.

Independence Township Fire Department teaches several CPR classes a year through Clarkston Adult Education. The next class is scheduled June 27, 28 and 30.

But those who want to learn CPR can do so free—and don't have to wait that long.

There's an opportunity Thursday, May 19, at the Pontiac Silverdome during "Project Life," sponsored by the Oakland County Council for Emergency Medical Services, WDIV and Blue Cross-Blue Shield.

The three-hour classes begin every 15 minutes from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. No registration is required and parking is free. For information, phone 858-1355.

"I'd recommend everybody take it," Ashley said. "You never know when you might wish you had."

and striped tie, Eidam produces a large manilla envelope and pulls out photos from the past: black-and-white shots of his West Point and vaudeville days,

He's in the lead

James Freel is in the lead again this year as the co-drum major of the 100-member Saginawes Drum & Bugle Corps. A junior at Oakland University, Rochester, Freel is in his third year as drum major. Prior to 1981, he played baritone in the corps' horn line for two years. His brother, John, is also a member of the corps. a portrait, and last year's trip to the historical New York military academy where he was honored as the oldest retiree.

"They gave me a standing ovation and it scared me at first. I've never had anything like that ever happen. I got all choked up."

His head wreathed in white hair, Eidam blinks through thick, black-framed glasses and demonstrates a drum beat on the Formica table top.

"Three taps for full-dress blues," he said, explaining one of several codes he'd beat daily to tell the enlisted how to dress.

"When I tried to get into the army, I weighed 117 and you had to weigh 124. They got a special waiver to enlist me," he said. "They told me how good it would be, the pension, that I'd be able to take care of my family. Of course I wasn't married at the time.

"I used to do all right though. I made as much playing weddings and parties as I did with my salary. Bought a car after two years. I wasn't doing too bad."

Eidam married his "hometown sweetheart" Martha 53 years ago.

He laughs, because with all the dances he's provided music for, "...I never learned how to dance."

"I always liked it when people would come up to me and say, 'I liked that' or 'You were terrific.' It makes you feel better."

Calvary Lutheran's Walter Mitty Night was a staged for performing "secret talents" like James Thurber's character in "The Secret Life of Walter Mitty," according to the talent organizer Rick Tyler.

In the novel, Mitty uses fantasy to escape a domineering wife.

"We turned it around to let them show the creativity given to them by God," Tyler said, and Eidam, according to all reviews, did that.

Back at home he deftly sets up a snare drum and blurs the sticks across the skin.

"I think the neighbors might mind," Eidam smiles.

Then smiles again, and beats a little more earnestly.

After 20 years he's in his element.

And it feels good to be back.

Poetry—cinquain style

In second grade English class, the children are exposed to many types of creative writing. One is cinquain poetry.

The cinquain style of poetry is composed of five lines.

This poetry form is highly structured and children must follow directions to create it.

The writing of cinquain gives children an opportunity to use adjectives, verbs and synonyms which have been previously studied.

Because of the high interest level, the children are enthusiastic and enjoy becoming poets for a day.

Burnell produces TV mini-special

Dial up TV-Channel 62 on Saturday, May 14, and see Independence Township resident Joel Burnell in a 15-minute mini-special, "He's Alive."

"We taped it last Thursday and I was really pleased with the camera work and the message it inspires," said Burnell last week.

"It gets people thinking there really is somebody caring about us. God is really alive, not just a god of stone or a religious ritual."

Burnell, 23, produced the inspirational music program that begins with "What a Difference You Made in My Life" and ends with "He's Alive."

He sings and plays guitar with his four-member band.

A 1978 Clarkston High School graduate, Burnell is presently attending Oakland University where he's studying biology.

He has sung professionally four years.

Editor's note: An Apple for the Teacher is the work of a Clarkston Education Association committee. Their goal is to let residents know about the teachers who serve their children and their community. This week's author is Pat Andrus, a teacher at Andersonville Elementary School.

An unfamiliar blue Volkswagen whizzes into the Andersonville School parking lot this year.

But Mike Donovan, its driver, is not new to Clarkston schools.

Before he came to Andersonville, he had taught in the upper elementary grades at Pine Knob since 1968.

Born and raised in Saginaw, Mike earned his bachelor's degree from Central Michigan University, Mt. Pleasant, while working summers on production at Saginaw Steering Gear and as a salesperson at Sears and Arlans.

He also received his master's degree from Central, but earned his education specialist's degree in instructional technology and library science from Wayne State University, Detroit.

A member of the Pontiac Federation of Musicians, Mike is a freelance musician who has worked as a pianist in area supper clubs.

For 22 years he has been an FCC-licensed amateur radio operator and is involved in the American Radio Relay League, a group of ham operators who give assistance to citizens in emergency situations.

He serves as the reference librarian at the Avon Township Library on Sundays and as needed during the week.

He has also served for three years as a remedial reading teacher at White Lake Camp, Michigan Department of Corrections.

Mike believes in making instruction as individualized as possible, using different types of media: television, slide programs, plays and other multi-media presentations.

But, at the same time, he feels media aids should not be gimmicky nor should they be used as a substitute for the teacher.

He believes in making the educational experience as relevant as possible to the world outside the classroom.

Thus, he found the sixth-grade camping program particularly enjoyable.

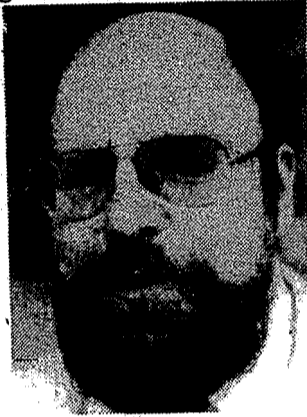

As sidelines, he has maintained and repaired school audio-visual equipment and has installed closed-circuit television systems at Pine Knob and Andersonville schools.

He has spoken to PTA groups on the uses of audiovisual materials in elementary teaching.

Mike particularly enjoys camping with his family.

Though he and Chizuo live in Rochester, they maintain their membership in the Church of the Resurrection, Clarkston.

The Donovans have two boys: Jason, 10, and Justin, 9.

rent or sale at their new shop in downtown Clarkston, Video Express.

Video Express chugs into town

An interest in video, a friendship that goes back to their childhood and the love of Clarkston brought Video Express to town, say its owners, Paul Thomas and Mark McLeod.

The store opened in Clarkston Corners, at the corner of Main and Church streets, in March.

It features video tapes of movies and games that can be rented or purchased, and Quasar and RCA video equipment including video cassette recorders and cameras.

"Actually it was a hobby for both of us. We liked it so well—we belonged to other video clubs—we thought, 'Why belong to clubs? Why not have one of our own?'" said Mark.

"Clarkston seemed like a nice town to have a video shop in. The residents deserve it," said Paul.

The men grew up in nearby Rochester and Paul still lives there. He owns PGT Illustrators in Rochester, a firm specializing in advertising, industrial design and graphic arts.

Mark has lived in Independence Township seven years. He is the quality control manager of Oxford Tube.

Club memberships at Video Express are available for movies and games. The movie club membership is $29.95 a year and members are not required to leave a deposit when renting movies.

Coming soon to Video Express is a line of the latest in home telephone systems.

Orthodontist caters to adults

Adults like their privacy, says orthodontist Stephen Hershey, and the recent addition of private treatment areas as well as an adults-only waiting room has been a success. "We find more and more people, primarily executives, attorneys and business people, feel less comfortable with kids. We have two atmospheres—if you want things quiet with more serene surroundings, we can offer that now." More and more adults are wearing braces now, and Hershey credits the change to several factors—an increased self-awareness, an increased importance in appearance and the availability of more adult orthodontics insurance. In the last five years, Hershey and his partner, orthodontist Edward Bayleran, have seen the number of adult clients grow from 10 percent to 20 percent, he says, and that adds up to several hundred adults a year. Their office is located in the Pine Knob Professional Plaza on Sashabaw Road in Independence Township.

Ann's Ark

by Ann Glenn

The other day while driving into Clarkston on M-15, my daughter saw three dogs running loose on the side of the road and in the street.

Later we returned along M-15 and all of a sudden a white West Highland-type terrier, a gray poodle mix and a small, black mixed breed shot in front of us.

I slammed on the brakes and pulled to the shoulder of the road to avoid hitting them.

Then I waited with great fear as they dallied in the right lane because a car could come from the north over the hill and not see them until it was too late.

My daughter and I got out of the car and pursued them. They were elusive and kept just out of reach.

It became obvious that the black mix was a female at the peak of her breeding season and the two males were in hot pursuit.

After trying to corner them, we then each took one side of the street and asked at each house if anyone knew one or all of the three dogs.

No one claimed any knowledge.

How many dogs roam the lack of roads and highways of Clarkston and are either unsupervised or unowned?

A dog has the potential of being the greatest companion a human can have.

But like a child, he must be supervised and he must have a part of your day whether it be in active games or passive presence.

A dog's place is not tied to a dog house day in and day out where his agility and brain decay, nor is it running endlessly loose, dumping garbage or destroying property.

Dogs running in packs will do things they would never do alone and they cannot be trusted.

Dead dogs are the consequence of dogs on the loose.

Bad habits that take much more effort to break than to never acquire are the result.

Unwanted puppies are another consequence.

The signs pop up on yard fronts now—"Free Puppies."

Well, my advice is look and drive on unless you have the energy for years of dedication and caring for a dog. (It won't be a puppy forever.)

Second piece of advice—have your dog spayed or altered now before the spring is too heady and brings unwanted bundles of life.

For every dog that finds a home, more than 100 are destroyed in animal shelters.

And how many more suffer from inadequate or no care or carnage on the highway?

I shook the pepper out quickly.

Suddenly the world began to say, "Ah.....Ah.....Ah.....Ah... choooo!"

Once upon a time . . .

There were 6 young authors from Andersonville school

By Marilyn Trumper

Give Adam Pearson Rice the task of spinning a tall yarn and he won't shirk the responsibility.

As a matter of fact, the small Andersonville Elementary second-grader rises to the challenge.

And draws illustrations to boot.

His book, "Adam's World Story," follows Adam on a jogging adventure around the world.

Without warning he's swallowed by the earth, and his cries for help go unheeded.

Using a pocketful of black pepper, Adam makes the world sneeze. The red-suited boy is blown free and falls asleep on a white cloud.

"The object of this writing assignment was to make me say, 'I don't believe it. That's impossible,'" said Pat Andrus, Adam's teacher. "And I said it."

For months students in the second-, fourth- and fifth-grades worked on their books, exploring subjects like Adam's fantasy, hamburgers come-to-life and science fiction drama.

Six were selected to attend the Young Author's Conference at Oakland University two weeks ago where students from all over the state critiqued each other's work.

Children's author Verna Aardema and media personalities from the metropolitan Detroit area spoke.

"The idea was to instill in them a love for books," Andrus said, explaining the writing assignment. "We've been studying authors, their books, and we've written to authors too."

"(The children) also keep a journal. That helps improve their phonetic ability and creativity, and helps them express themselves."

The young authors said they enjoyed Oakland's conference—but none want to write for a living.

Second-grader Stacy Carr, author of "The Lost Valentine," shrugs her shoulders when asked what she'll be when she grows up.

Matthew Brown, author of "The Adventures of the Planet Casmack!" wants to be an astronaut and Ethan Lee, author of "Zacue Learns to Balance," wants to be a chemical and mechanical engineer. They are fourth-graders.

Shona Davenport, author of "The Wish that Came True for a Hamburger" and Missy Sloan, author of "Jackie's Adventure," want to be a computer technician and teacher respectively. They are fifth-graders.

Adam wants to be an artist.

After sharing their books with classmates and each other, the stories go home to the bookshelves.
