Independence residents welcome the Spring Cleanup once again, creating a mountain of trash next to the DPW Building on Flemings Lake Road. At the weekend's end, the trash mountain stands over 20 feet tall and 100 yards long.

Residents create own Mt. Trashmore

By Kathy Greenfield

By Sunday afternoon the mound of trash was an awesome sight.

People in the crowd dubbed it Mt. Trashmore as they participated in Independence Township's Spring Cleanup, dumping loads of discards for free next to the DPW Building on Flemings Lake Road.

"I can't believe it. I've never seen so much junk," said Bill Wilson, superintendent of the water department, who was checking ID's during the two-day event.

"Some people think it's the greatest thing that ever happened in the township," he added.

On Monday, work had begun to haul the rubbish to a dump and DPW Director George Anderson estimated the cost between $20,000 and $22,000 to pay for trucks, labor and dumping fees.

"The operation was successful, but the patient died," he joked, then added: "It's exactly what I expected. I was tickled to death with it."

The 12-foot high, 100-yard long and 30-yard wide trash mountain contained every kind of garbage imaginable—parts of boats and cars, appliances, tires, boards and dried out Christmas trees, furniture and toys.

Quietly walking around the accumulation on Sunday were young brothers Matt and David Boucard. They didn't get too close, and they didn't spot anything that tempted them into the pile.

"It seems like just junk," said 10-year-old Matt with-enough wisdom for someone 10 times his age.

Others were more into the moment.

Standing atop a pile, grinning from ear to ear and waving a still usable blue plastic skateboard was Dave Key.

"I was here earlier dumping," he said. "I threw some mattresses out and I saw it up there, so..."

His plan was to present it to the daughter of Doug Peterson, his dumping partner.

Jim Campbell had a pickup load ready to haul away from the dumping site. His father-in-law found a good snowmobile engine, and there were some reclaimed bicycles and old furniture. He said he was planning to sell it to a resale shop.

After dropping off his load, Dick Southern paused to express what appeared to be a universal reaction.

"I think it's great," he said. "It's one of the few opportunities we have to get the place cleaned up. I think it's a very worthwhile project."

Only one person, a Springfield Township resident, was turned away as DPW employees faithfully checked ID's.

During last year's Spring Cleanup, 10 sites dotted the township. The change was made this year so tighter controls could be placed on those dumping to assure the refuse was that of the township residents.

Rose resigns from clerk's post

By Marilyn Trumper

After six years as Independence Township clerk, Christopher Rose has resigned to take a job as town manager in the small New Hampshire burg of Littleton, population 5,200.

Rose, 32, made the surprise announcement at the close of Tuesday night's board meeting.

"It was a very difficult decision to make, and I've been reconsidering it for the past two weeks," Rose said, his voice breaking.

Later, he added, "It is the type of opportunity I've been looking for, and it was very hard even to talk about it. It's something my wife and I have wanted to do and felt we should try it."

The position was advertised in a municipal journal, and means a $3,000-a-year pay cut for Rose, who now earns $32,000 annually.

"I hate to see you go," Supervisor James B. Smith said. "We're going to miss you enormously."

On Saturday, the township attempted to keep people from hauling treasures found away from the site but that policy changed, said Anderson.

Several heated arguments and unfounded accusations that township employees were keeping the best for themselves resulted in the change, he said.

Next year, though, among modifications he plans to propose will be that no one will be allowed to remove goods from the dumping site.

Anderson also intends to suggest residents be charged a fee to dump to offset the major expense.

And the dirt roads leading to the dump should be chlorided at township expense, he said, along with some sort of traffic control to eliminate the problem of speeders.

Rose, who grew up in Independence Township and attended Clarkston schools, now lives on Snowapple Drive with his wife June and their two daughters.

He worked as a mail carrier for the U.S. Postal Service before embarking on a political career in 1976. He was re-elected to three consecutive terms as clerk.

Rose's climb up the political ladder is marked with a controversial party switch in 1980, when he divorced the Democrats for the Republicans.

In the past year he's been most actively involved in hammering out the township's cable TV franchise from its conception through adoption.

The township board is expected to appoint someone to fill the remaining six months of the clerk's term which expires next November, and has 45 days following his resignation to do so.

If the post is not filled in that time the governor will order a special election.

Rose said he will be leaving the last week in June.

Blanchard recall drive thrives in Independence

By Kathy Greenfield

Janice Seifert has never been involved in politics before.

But the petition drive for a recall election for Gov. James Blanchard changed all that.

She's hard at work as the Independence Township coordinator of the statewide effort to gather 1 million signatures by July 15.

The petition seeks the election because Blanchard "originated and then signed into law the 38 percent income tax increase."

"I think it's about time that the people let the politicians know that they're working for us," she said.

"I feel that Blanchard has broken a promise to me as a person—he promised that he would not go for the tax raise. Within a week after he was in office he started working toward it.

"I also feel strongly that we have to put an end to taxation and look for other means for the money, because when half of your paycheck goes for taxes something has to give—that's exactly what my husband has taken out of his paycheck and that isn't even the other taxes we have to pay."

While Seifert has strong personal feelings, she admits she was surprised at the response after only about a week in her post.

"I don't dare go out of the house without 100 petitions," she said.

At the beauty shop she was talking about the recall drive and before she left 40 petitions, each with room for 20 signatures, were taken by willing participants.

"This is the way it's going," she said. "In fact, it's shocking me."

She became involved on May 1 during a family dinner.

Her brother-in-law Jack Seifert, the assistant director of the Oakland County recall drive, said he needed a coordinator for Independence Township and she volunteered.

"He's never been political in his life and neither have I," she said. "I'm a registered voter but I'm non-partisan. I've never gone door-to-door to campaign for anyone."

She'll be asking people to go door-to-door to gather signatures on the recall petitions on Wednesday, May 25, at Independence Township Hall, 90 N. Main, Clarkston.

People can volunteer to assist for a couple of hours a week, can obtain petitions or just come in to sign one from 7 to 9 p.m.

Petitions can also be picked up or dropped off at McCabe Real Estate, 5995 S. Main, or The Flower Adventure, 14 S. Main.

Or those wishing to join the recall effort can call Seifert at 625-4066.

He's already signed a petition to recall Gov. James Blanchard, so Bill Croke of Troy agrees to stage putting his John Hancock on one for a photograph while Janice Seifert, Independence Township coordinator of the recall drive, holds the paper in place.

CHS beefs-up alcohol abuse program

By Marilyn Trumper

In less than two years, five Clarkston High School students have died or were severely injured in alcohol-related accidents.

•What began as horseplay ended in death for a 16-year-old sophomore with a promising football career. The youth was thrown from the back of a pickup truck and died hours later of head injuries.

•Another 15-year-old boy is permanently disabled and confined to a wheelchair. His judgment affected by alcohol, the teen dove into the shallows of Deer Lake and broke his neck.

•Just six months after graduation a Clarkston High School student failed to negotiate S-curve on Maybee Road at Spring Lake. The car flipped. He died instantly.

Saddened by the numbers of accidents, school officials are taking precautions to educate the student body and make them responsible for their actions.

Last week in a special assembly, students listened to a representative from the prosecutor's office talk about drunk-driving laws and watched a film that explored a prom night celebration that ended in death.

While the mandatory assembly was well-attended, Clarkston High School Principal Dom Mauti expressed doubt over its effectiveness.

"Alcohol is a definite problem in the schools. We're not going to lie...or try to cover it up. It's very obvious we have incidences of kids drinking on school grounds, during school, after school and weekends.

"We had an incident just last week where a girl had fixed her pop with something in it. We allow them to walk around the halls and drink bottles of pop. She had a (bottle) with scotch in it," Mauti said.

After high school sport games and following weekends the parking lot is riddled with empty wine and beer bottles, he said.

"That's one of the reasons we don't have many dances. We've had a problem in the past with drinking," Mauti said.

An empty pint whiskey bottle found that morning next to the pay phone illustrates the widespread acceptance, he added.

Spring heralds the festivity of prom night and graduation parties, both dominated by open houses and the American drinking tradition.

"Automatically they're drinking at these open houses. I've known cases where the parents will buy a keg and say, 'Here, this is for you. But you have to drink it here—you can't leave.'

"I've been to a lot of them and boy, I'll tell you, I wouldn't want to be responsible for a teenager leaving my open house like that."

The problem is that drinking is socially acceptable, according to teacher Gordon Richardson who explores factors associated with substance abuse in his health class.

"They think it's OK to drink. It's OK to get drunk. The worst that can happen is you'll make a fool of yourself and find out about it the next day. That's what goes on in these kids' minds," he said.

"And when you go over to someone's house what's the first thing they ask you? 'Would you like a drink?' not 'What would you like to drink?' It's as if alcohol is the only thing."

Richardson recalls a teacher from Massachusetts whose students organized Students Against Drunk Driving.

"He spoke at a conference at Oakland Schools and talked about what happened in the school when they lost two students in two weeks. The way he put it to us is that the students finally said, 'That's too many.' His reply was 'Why did it take two?'

"The thrust of his talk was not 'This is what happens when you're drunk.' It was 'Why can't you be responsible if you drink? If you know you can't drive why do you?' He suggested they sit down with the parents and work out a plan where if they get into a situation where they can't get home they call home, no questions asked, and get a ride.

"Their parents can talk about it with them another time," Richardson said.

Students who attended the program reacted positively to the information, Richardson said, stressing the only way to police drinking teens is to have them police themselves.

"The parents can't do it—they're not there, and scare tactics don't work. It's peer pressure that will do it. If you know your friend isn't capable of driving, why do you let him? Doesn't it concern you he might not make it home?"

"We need these kids to be able to look at one another and say, 'I think you've had too much to drink. I don't think you should drive.' I think students will listen to their peers. They'll listen to us—but they don't hear us. And that's the difference," Richardson said.

There are student alcoholics at Clarkston High School, 16-year-olds who need to drink before their first class.

And they continue drinking throughout the day, according to Mauti.

It's simple to acquire a fake driver's license, easier to buy alcohol than drugs, and it's cheaper, Mauti said.

"I think kids are afraid of drugs. You're never really sure what you're buying and have no control over the quantity. Kids are aware of the look-alike drugs, and all it takes is a couple of walking examples of what happens if you get the wrong stuff to make them wary.

"Alcohol on the other hand is easy to get, and socially acceptable."

It is, Mauti said, a tough combination to beat.

In tribute to beautification

They call it Sun Day, a kind of tribute to summer's approach, but it means work for the 150 Clarkston High School students of teacher Gary Nustad. The crews cleaned up their school grounds Friday and planted trees and flowers during the sixth annual event. This group of industrious students is removing weeds and loosening soil in a planter in front of the school. More photos and a story are on Page 48.

Sashabaw Junior High students have been practicing long hours for their musical "Kids for America." Jennifer Fenton goes through her lines during a rehearsal play to be presented May 25 and 26 starting at 8 p.m. The school's five choirs are participating in the play with proceeds to benefit the vocal music department. Tickets are $1.50 for adults and $1 for students at the door.

Chiropractic Clinics

Arm & Shoulder Pain

The proper functioning of the arm and shoulder area is of critical importance in our day-to-day activities. Together they are used in even the most routine movements. Often, because of constant use, some people develop pain which varies from a sharp pain in the shoulder and arm, to a deep, aching pain. Many times such pain can indicate a serious problem.

A large percentage of the cases are caused by subluxated vertebrae pinching nerves that radiate to the neck, shoulder and arms. Often the amount of pain experienced is not always a reliable guide in determining the seriousness of arm and shoulder pain.

The wisest course of action is to come in for a thorough examination and analysis of the problem. While working to give you immediate relief the results of your examination will help us to seek the underlying cause of the problem and to correct it.

Bumpy road

by Kathy Greenfield

During a practice driving session, my daughter's friend backed out of our driveway and knocked down the fence.

It wasn't a major catastrophe.

My husband and I have done the same thing more than once over the years. There isn't much room to maneuver.

But as our children reach that unforgettable pinnacle in life, I find myself thinking about some of my early driving experiences.

I remember driver's training class and the instructor whose face turned red and whose voice became strained when I came to a screeching stop on busy Crooks Road to let a duck and her ducklings cross.

I remember taking the driving test sitting next to a police officer who noticed how nervous I was and very nicely suggested I drive for a while with my parents before taking off on my own.

I remember deciding a car was slowing down for a caution light when it really was accelerating. When I turned in front of it and the driver slammed on the brakes, a load of lumber crashed through its front window.

I remember riding one slippery morning with a newly licensed driver who decided it was better to drive through a fairly old yellow light than try to stop.

I remember her tears after a police officer gave her a ticket for running a red light.

And then there was the time I destroyed the family car.

We lived on a dirt road and it was being graded.

A mound of dirt split the roadway. I decided the best course would be to straddle the dirt with the car and drive along. It wasn't.

I will never forget the sound of the crippled car after a rock partially buried in the dirt killed the transmission.

Even now after decades have passed, I'm grateful for my father's reaction.

"We needed a new car anyway," he said.

Trash pile illustrates problem

Aside from the overnight appearance of the son of Mt. Trashmore out on Flemings Lake Road, the most amazing thing about the Independence Township Spring Cleanup is its cost.

As the trash removal to a dump began Monday, George Anderson, DPW director, said it would cost between $20,000 and $22,000 to clear it all away.

While no individual was charged for taking rubbish to the site, it's all going to be paid from federal funds that come from taxes.

And you know who pays those.

But more than anything else, the situation points out that we have a problem.

Everyone who dumped had to provide ID so the rubbish, indeed, was coming from the township.

That doesn't mean, however, that it was all ours.

A group of people cleaning up an area around Walter's Lake drove through 14 times.

And the Michigamme Knolls subdivision crew cleaned up 12 pick-up loads from rural roads around their homes.

"Out of one swamp alone, we pulled out 49 tires, a 59-gallon drum and two bicycles. It was unbelievable," said Vincent Rizzo, an Iroquois Raod resident.

Just as an experiment, they also separated debris from fast-food restaurants and jam-packed a garbage bag with that.

We draw two conclusions from all this:

People have to start taking responsibility for their discards and stop making our formerly beautiful rural roads trash and who-knows-what-else infested messes.

If, as Anderson says he's going to recommend, the township starts collecting a fee for dumping during the annual cleanup, provisions must be made to waive the charge for those trying clean up after the slobs.

Help keep concerts humming

The call is out for money to help pay for professional band concerts during July in the Clarkston Village Depot Park.

We're told that a typical concert attracted 800 people last year.

There is no charge to attend the concerts with expenses covered by a grant received by the Pontiac Federation of Musicians and by a healthy donation from the Clarkston Village Business Association.

The grant has been reduced this year.

That means to continue with a month-long series with a 31-piece band playing each Friday in July, the business association has to come up with $2,000, or $800 more than last year.

We join concert chairperson Joan Kopietz, the owner of Tierra Arts & Design, in her request for funds from residents.

There will be three concerts for sure, she said, but she would like to be able to plan five.

Because of the lead time necessary, money is needed as soon as possible before it's too late to schedule more.

The Clarkston Community Women's Club has assisted with a $200 donation, raising hopes that other civic organizations will join in with donations.

There'll be canisters placed in downtown Clarkston businesses in June to help cover costs, and the business association conducts popcorn and soft drink sales during the concerts to raise money.

But right now, Kopietz seeks donations from community members who enjoyed the concerts and want to see them continue their month-long run.

She's accepting contributions in any amount at her shop at 20 S. Main, or she may be reached by telephone at 625-2511.

The concerts are the kind of thing that help keep Clarkston's community spirit in tune.

We urge you to help if you can.

—KLG

The depression was not my fault

by Jim Sherman

I hope those who blamed newspapers and other media for the depression are giving them credit for the current increase in the economy.

Of course, that's an idle hope.

Several people confronted me in the past three years on the role played by writers in fueling the recession. That was after we had already been accused of starting it.

Oh, the awesome power of the press!

By reporting employment figures (down), telling of declining sales, mentioning the slump in production (auto), reciting the stock market's Dow Jones minus averages, and giving statistics on increasing welfare costs the print and broadcast people caused and prolonged the depression (1979-83).

The dogs!

But now, starting in mid-January, the economy changed. Who did it? No one has come up to me and said, 'Thanks to the media the depression has ended'.

I'm hurt. Why isn't the media being given credit for increasing auto sales, for putting the Dow Jones above 1200, and for putting profits back into the picture of many retailers?

The newspapers are just full of 'good news'. "Employment figures for March are up" shout headlines. "Record profits reported for the auto industry", "Steel and oil will end the year in the black", "Governments start jobs programs", and "New home starts are up" are reported regularly.

Yet no one is writing letters to the editor crediting the media with turning bottom lines from red to black and sales from down to up.

Probably I'm taking the criticism too personal. Actually, the depression was not MY fault. I'm just being painted with the same wide "press" brush.

I'm getting the same treatment a state representative gets for being "the legislature", a town councilperson gets for being a "politician", and letter carrier gets for being "on the government dole".

As in: The legislature is a bunch of politicians on the government dole, which is, of course, high paying jobs for not much work and no good being accomplished.

I understand when a person makes that kind of statement.

Parents should be responsible

Every time I read or hear about a child disappearing after being sent "to the corner store," I get heartsick.

The latest incident that I heard about was of a 4-year-old, I repeat, a 4-year-old who was sent to the store by the mother's boyfriend for a pack of cigarettes!

How irresponsible!!!!

And it's usually a case such as this and I can't believe that a caring, concerned, responsible, reliable, mature parent or adult would do such a thing. And for cigarettes, no less.

Children, unless your life is in danger, don't be an accessory to your parent endangering his or her health by purchasing cigarettes, or such, for them.

And, parents, what's wrong with your heads? I feel that if a child abducted while on an errand such as this or any other reason alone and underage, the adult who is supposedly in charge should be held responsible to the law and be punished!!!!

To me, there is something morally wrong and illegal about putting a child's life in danger—it's a lot like sticking something you don't especially care for out where someone can steal it (which is another wrong—tempting someone to steal).

Young teenagers don't have any business out on errands unless accompanied by others either.

It's too bad we have to be so overprotective, but we have to constantly be on guard!!

I want to change the word "overprotective" to "caring."

Children are our business, loaned to us by God and guess where that puts us???????

Deborah Stuart

Welcome to town

After living 33 years in Ferndale, Lester and Evelyn Evans are making Independence Township their home.

"We want to welcome them to Clarkston," said their daughter-in-law Pat Evans, who called The Clarkston News.

As every person who has ever moved knows, it's tough making decisions on what to eliminate from the household, but Pat laughs as she tells this tale.

She was helping the elder Evans unpack recently when she came across full trays of ice cubes.

The Evans' new home is on Sunnysdale Road and Pat says her father-in-law is especially looking forward to walking everywhere.

If you see Lester with his black Labrador retriever, remember to ask about the dog's tricks—the canine's repertoire includes "talking."

Pat and husband Terry live on Deerhill Drive in Independence Township.

"Get Carried Away with Philately" is the theme of the latest promotion by the United States Postal Service.
Huh?

Ah yes...philately, according to Webster's, is "the collection and study of postage and imprinted stamps: stamp collecting."

There are 10 new, inexpensive stamp collecting kits for sale at the Clarkston Post Office as well as the 1983 U.S. Collecting Kit and the 1982 Definitive Mint Set, all ideal starter kits, according to Postmaster William Kinsley.

There are 22 million Americans involved in stamp collecting, according to post office figures.

They know what philately is. And now, so do you.

The orange, shredded balloon caught his eye as Charles Holloway planted trees in a field near his home on Clark Road in Springfield Township.

Holloway read the attached note and found another of the balloons released from the Raisinville Elementary School in Monroe, about 55 miles away.

During Easter break, Eddie White of Independence Township and his friend Matt Falk of Royal Oak found another balloon near the Whites' Oakhill Road home.

Faith and begorra, the wind must have been blowing this way on St. Patrick's Day, the date the balloons were released.

'If it Fitz...'

It's in my diary

by Jim Fitzgerald

Tom Wieck of Dearborn Heights asked me to write something nasty for him and a group of war veterans. It will be a pleasure.

It would be appropriate if Wieck picked me for this important job because I'm also a veteran. In fact, I was a soldier in Germany during the last days of Adolf Hitler and I kept a diary. But Wieck had no way of knowing that.

In April of 1945 I was confined to a U.S. Army hospital in Augsburg, recovering from wounds inflicted upon most of my body by a Nazi flu bug. It was then that I saw Hitler.

You may be surprised to learn that Hitler spent the final few days of World War II visiting wounded American soldiers. Apparently what happened was no one told him the Augsburg hospital had been captured and occupied by U.S. troops. Hitler thought it still contained German soldiers. All soldiers look alike under hospital blankets, the same as under gravestones.

Not surprisingly, on most of his hospital visits, Hitler was accompanied by Robert Mitchum. I talked to both of them. I spoke English to Mitchum and German to Hitler because the white blanket on my bed provided too light a background for subtitles.

I RECORDED EVERY WORD Hitler said in my diary. It was a five-year diary that locked with a key I wore on a chain around my neck. Unfortunately for posterity, before the five years were up, I was discharged from the Army and became a heavy-eating civilian. I gained so much weight that the chain tightened around my neck and one day in 1948 I discovered I had so many chins, I couldn't get close enough to my diary to open it.

And that's the way the situation still stands today. My diary has never been published by the London Times because it can't be opened, so there's no way Tom Wieck could know I'm a war veteran. The only reason he asked me for help, he explained, is because he's read my column, not my diary, and he thinks I'm good at being nasty.

BEFORE CONTINUING with Wieck's problem, it occurs to me that something written earlier may cause you to doubt what follows. Please don't. I can understand if you don't believe I really saw Adolph Hitler with Robert Mitchum in Germany in 1945. I probably wouldn't believe it myself if my neck didn't hurt all the time. But Wieck's need for nasty words is real and should be believed, absolutely.

Wieck is a member of Polish Legion of American Veterans Post 16, which does a lot of nice things. For instance, it adopted two wards of patients at the VA hospital in Allen Park. "We make sure these men are never forgotten," Wieck said.

Also, Post 16 supplies American flags for schools, Boy Scout troops, and others. Which is ironic, because flags are the problem. The flags on the roof of the post's little building in Dearborn Heights.

"WE ARE SMALL, Polish and proud," Wieck said. "So we proudly display the flags of our nation, our state and our native country, Poland. But someone apparently objects...For the fourth time in little over a year, vandals—maybe you can think of a better word—scaled our fence, climbed on the roof and ripped the flags off their masts."

Wieck hoped I could write words that would cause something awful to happen to stupid jerks who steal flags in the dark. Perhaps someone out there knows who they are, and would like to squeal on them, or at least run over them with a truck. That would be nice.

The Polish people in Poland have it a lot tougher than the Polish people in Post 16, of course, and maybe we shouldn't get nasty about the theft of a few flags. But the best way to prevent big trouble is to jump all over little trouble.

That's what I told Robert Mitchum in 1945. If he'd only listened to me, there might have been no communist menace in 1983, not to mention Ali McGraw. It's all in the diary.

House blaze burns township resident

Fire officials suspect a kerosene heater is responsible for starting a blaze that trapped and injured a 43-year-old Independence Township man in his basement on Scenic Ridge Trail.

According to Capt. Dale Bailey of the Independence Township Fire Department, Jon Zemaitis' screams woke his wife at 1:30 a.m. May 15.

Unable to rescue her husband, the woman sought the help of a neighbor. The two broke out a basement window and pulled him to safety.

Zemaitis suffered first- and second-degree burns over 20 percent of his body, and was transported to the Ann Arbor Burn Center, Bailey said.

Damage to the house is estimated at $20,000.

"We know there was kerosene heater involved, but we're not sure if it's responsible. We have it under investigation," Bailey said.

Ambitious fair project

By Marilyn Trumper

To block outside distractions and the prying eyes of sensationalism-seekers, Leslie Parrish begins dissection of the dog carcass behind closed doors at Clarkston Junior High School.

Leslie Parrish (left) uses a scalpel to cut the hide away from the dog carcass. Leslie plans to exhibit the skeleton in Clarkston Junior High's Science Fair May 20. She undertook the solo effort with the sophistication of a college student.

Window drapes are pulled to block prying eyes and avoid queasy stomachs.

Paper covers the door window.

Dressed in a white lab coat, scalpel in hand, the 14-year-old ninth-grader tackles her project for the Science Fair May 20, and says it's going to take the better part of the evening.

"The project is to get the skeleton, preserve some organs and make some slides," Leslie said, brushing bangs from her forehead and resuming the task. "Mr. McDonald said 30 percent of our grade would be display so I thought that would be the most visual thing I could do."

The Humane Society held the mutt's frozen carcass until Leslie was ready for it.

"To prepare I read up on it—books on dissection and anatomy."

To illustrate her prowess, Leslie points to the jugular vein, recites the names of a few muscles and some bones.

The honor science class student is thorough.

"I want to be a doctor—a neurosurgeon," she says matter-of-factly.

Somehow it seems inevitable.

Playground to perk up park

In six to eight weeks kids will be fighting over who gets to sit on the spring turtle and duck, swing on the gate, balance on the beam and and straddle Inches, a giant iron caterpillar.

On May 9, the Clarkston Village Council unanimously approved purchase of $2,500 worth of playground equipment for Depot Road Park, to be paid for from community development funds.

Outfitting the park has been the project of Trustee David Raup.

"I don't know how long it will take to get things in, but I'm shooting for June," he said.

"I'm real excited about getting this done. I think it's really going to turn the park around.

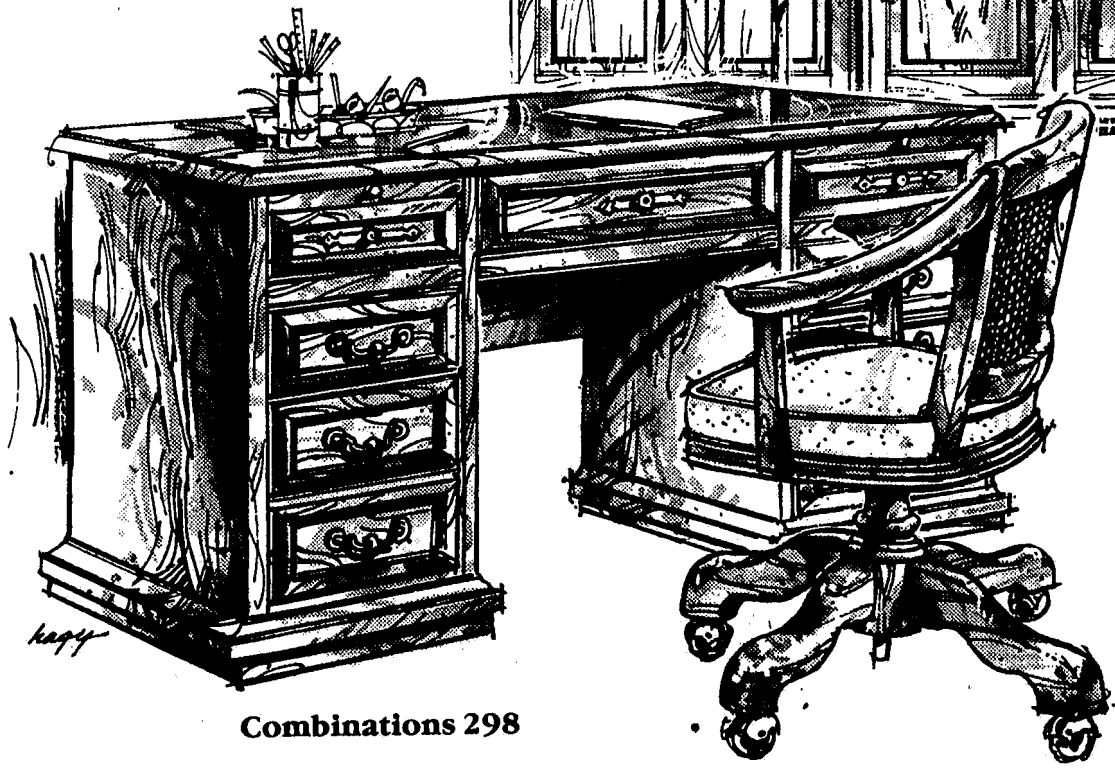

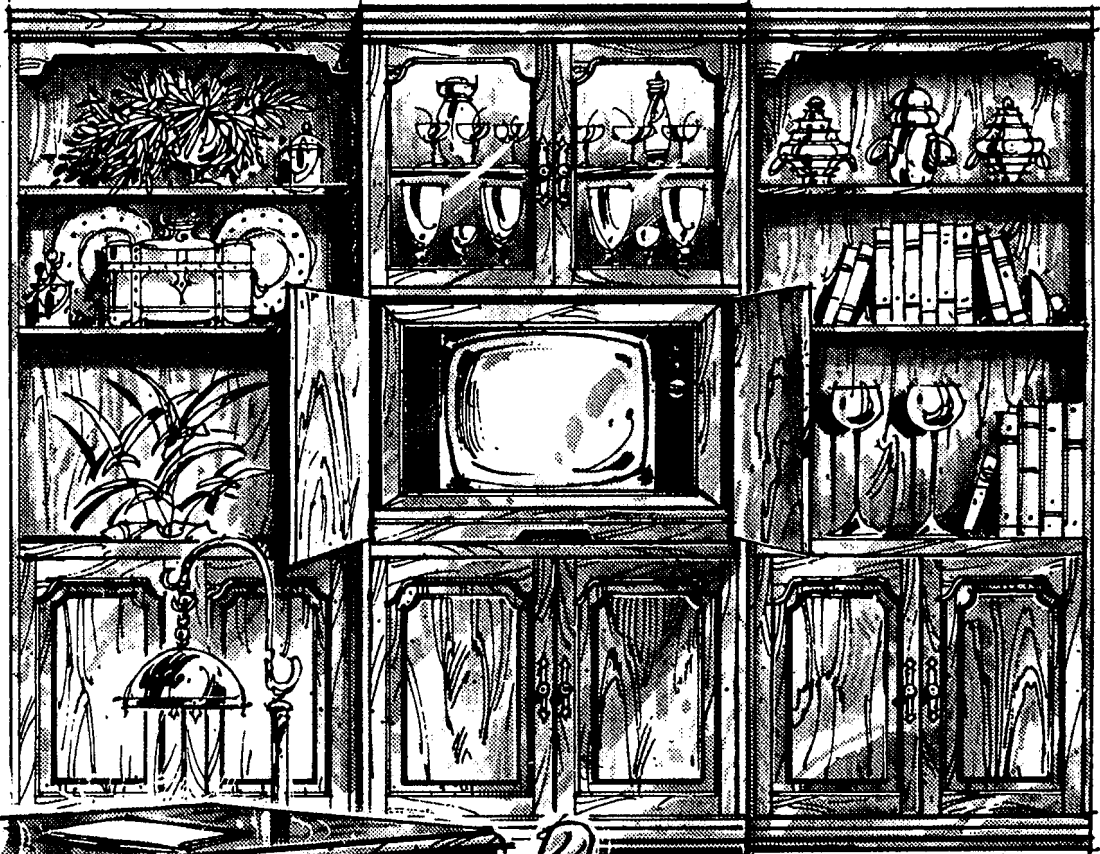

"It won't be long before the playground equipment's in, and we should have some blueprints for the gazebo roof. And I hope a bridge built that will cross the creek from the playground to the gazebo.

"The park is becoming more and more a place to go."

Charter a bus

The Springfield Township Board is setting up a SEMTA charter service for township residents only. The township has over $4,400 in SEMTA credits accumulated over the last two years.

"The money is the portion of the extra money collected from the license plate fees," supervisor Collin Walls said. "Wayne, Oakland and Macomb residents pay more for the fees than the rest of the state."

A charter service is the only way the credits can be used. The money must be spent by August 31 this year.

"The charter service is for anyone in the township, not just kids or senior citizens," Walls said. "The park commission is responsible for the credits."

Anyone interested in the bus service should contact the township office at 625-4802.

Village pay raises

The Clarkston Village Council is giving out raises.

In one breath at the May 9 meeting, traffic enforcement officer Charles Smalley took a $1-an-hour pay cut for getting students safely across the street. In the second breath, he took $1-an-hour more for patrolling village streets.

In addition, the council gave raises to two other employees.

The council unanimously adopted the $150,000 budget for 1983-84, and gave its secretary of two years a raise from $6.60 to $7 an hour.

The pay of a part-time employe of the department of public works was raised from $4 to $5 an hour.

"The pay cut was Mr. Smalley's idea," said council President Jackson Byers. "He checked into what crossing guards were making in other school districts, and found it was about $4 an hour."

"So he asked for the cut. The other raise was to bring his pay up to par with the rest of the department of public works employes."

New fire hall needs repairs

Less than a year after the completion of Fire Station No. 2 in Springfield Township, repairs are needed in the ceiling of the meeting room.

The ceiling tile is starting to sag but is not in danger of falling, according to Fire Chief Marlan Hillman.

"We have to figure out what the problem is," he said. "It could be from a number of reasons. It could be the insulation resting on the tiles or it could be moisture forming in the ceiling.

"It has to be replaced. You can't really notice it. If you walk into the room you can't see it unless someone points it out to you," he said.

Hillman added there have been only a few other things that needed to be fixed in the new station.

"The other things were small," he said. "This isn't that big of a problem, it just needs to be fixed."

Bumped and bruised, Matich keeps racing

By Dan Vandenhemel

A quiet Sunday afternoon drive sounds relaxing to most people but not to Nick Matich.

The Independence Township resident spends Sundays racing motorcycles through, around and into the woods.

Matich and fellow racer George Poynter of Waterford have been racing enduro or cross-country around the Midwest together for the last seven years.

"Most people know what motocross racing is," Matich said. "But the enduro series is more like a road rally where you have to keep a certain time table and you go through all types of obstacles instead of just a hilly dirt track in motocross."

The two have traveled all through Michigan, Ohio and Indiana, and as far away as Tennessee for the races.

The course is generally 100 miles long and takes the riders through thick woods, mud and rough terrain.

During the first race of the year for Matich, he suffered a cut eyebrow that required 40 stitches.

"It was a freak accident," he said. "It happened early in the race when I tried to pass someone. A branch came through my helmet. I didn't know how bad it was until the race was over."

"A lot of times, you literally run someone down" —Nick Matich

"Another time when my bike was buried up to the seats in a mud hole, I had to put my foot under the back wheel and run over it to get some traction."

The 33-year-old Matich has also broken bones in his foot and his hand.

"You are forever getting banged up riding," he said. "When I broke my hand, the doctors had to wire my hand back together. I had hit three trees in a row and smashed all the bones on the top of my hand."

But Poynter, 40, has yet to break any bones.

"I've been lucky in that regards," he said. "But the day after the race you're always too sore to move. You need help moving around."

"You have to be in good shape for this," Matich said. "I run every week to stay in shape. It doesn't matter how good of shape you're in, you can't condition yourself to run into things. You're always bouncing off of trees and running over other racers."

"A lot of times, you have to literally run someone down. The paths in the woods are only wide enough for one bike and if one is down in front of you, you have to run over the bike and sometimes the rider."

The riders are not the only things to be abused.

An average motorcycle lasts just one year. And with all the replacement parts, and travel costs, it's an expensive sport.

Last racing season, Matich finished second in his class and Poynter placed first.

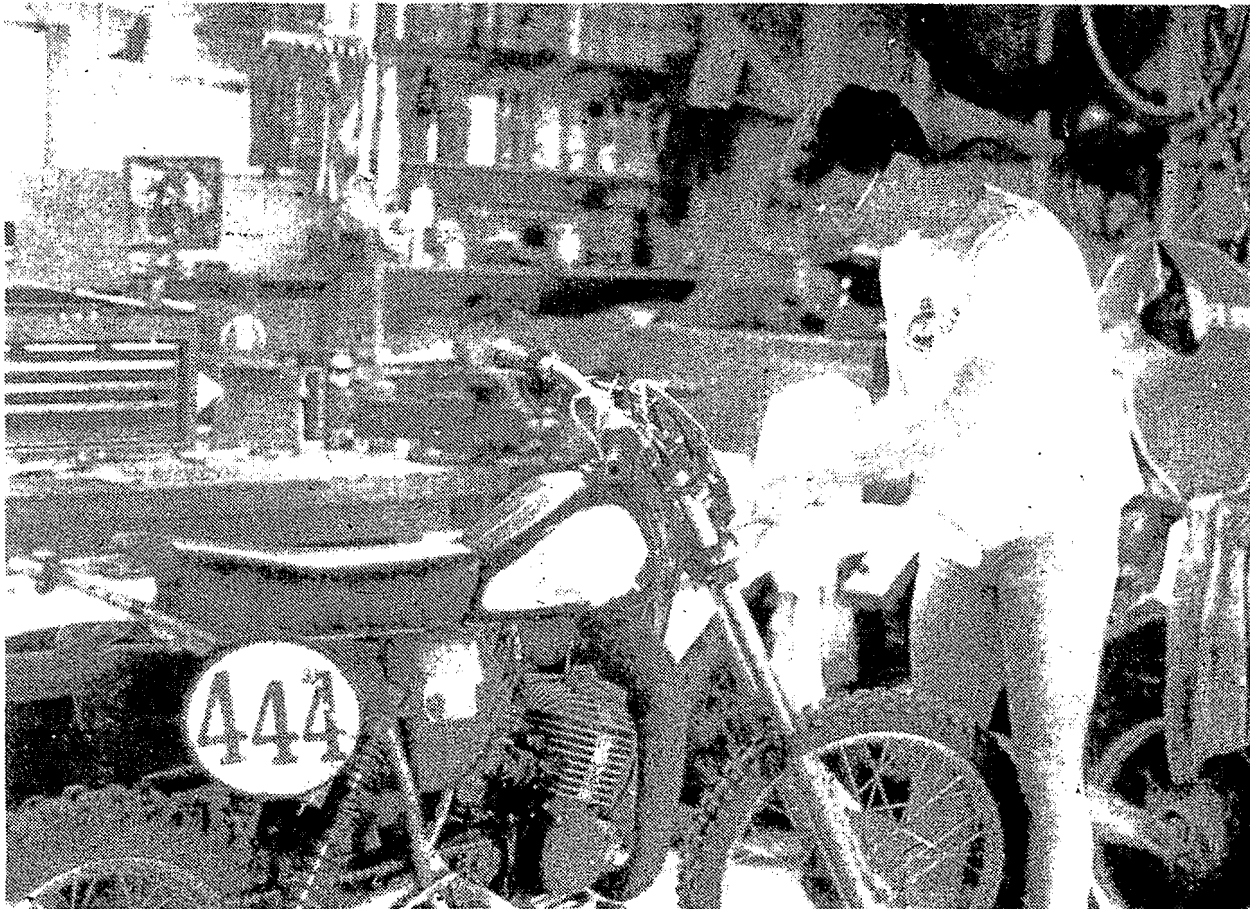

For their accomplishments, each received a trophy.

There is no prize money awarded but for the $15 entry fee for each race and $8 membership each year, all riders receive a jacket.

For all the abuse and the cost of equipment with no prize money, why would someone want to race?

"I'm not sure why we do it," Matich said. "Now you have me thinking (about) why we do it. I guess it's because of I'm a competitive individual. I like beating up on myself. It's a challenge. The gratitude you get. We're crazy, I guess, but we like it."

"It's like asking a mountain climber why he does it. It's the same kind of thing," Poynter said. "Hey Nick, why DO we race?"

Nick Matich spends most evenings working on his motorcycle, putting in 10 to 12 hours a week. The 33-year-old Independence Township resident has been racing seven years.

Wolves bury opponents, win tournament

By Dan Vandenhemel

The hosting team in a softball tournament usually doesn't win.

Nobody told the Clarkston High School JV softball team as they blew past the other seven teams in the Clarkston Invitational Tournament last Saturday.

In the four games for the Wolves, they won by a combined score of 63-8.

"The competition was good," said coach Don Peters. "The girls just played the best they have all year."

With the tournament format, Peters brought down sophomore Laura Hurren from the varsity team to help with the pitching.

In her one game, Hurren threw a no-hit, 11-0 shutout against Royal Oak-Dondero in the third game of the day for Clarkston. She also hit two home runs in the game.

Hurren wasn't the only pitching star for the Wolves. Dawnaree DeBoer won two games and gave up only three hits in 12 innings pitched.

She won the championship game 12-1 against Marion and 24-5 over West Bloomfield.

Jody Law won the other game of the tournament, the opener against Avondale 17-2 at 9 a.m.

"The pitching and defense was the main reason we won," Peters said. "Everyone there could hit. That's why pitching and defense is so critical."

Clarkston crushed Marion in the championship game 12-1. They led 10-0 after four innings, but Marion scratched a run in the fifth to force the game to go the regulation seven innings.

"We could have mercied them but they got that run in the fifth," the coach said. "The first three games we won by mercy. Against West Bloomfield, they couldn't stop us from hitting."

Big inning pushes Cougars past Wolverines

By Dan Vandenhemel

The softball game between Sashabaw and Clarkston junior highs turned out just as expected, a close, exciting game between cross-town rivals.

A big seven-run rally in the bottom of the seventh inning enabled the Cougars to come from behind to beat the Wolverines 13-12 Thursday.

The Wolverines jumped out to a 10-1 lead after the first four innings but weren't able to score after the fifth inning.

Chris Raymer came in to pitch the final four innings for Sashabaw to close the door on Clarkston and pick up the win.

"She's my Goose Gossage," Cougar coach Nancy Foster said. "She's not fast but she doesn't walk anybody. She shut them down. We left a lot of runners on base early in the game, but finally scored in the fifth."

"We didn't score the last two innings," Wolverine coach Holly Rupprecht said. "That's when they did the bulk of their scoring. We played real well up until the fourth inning. The next time we play them I know we won't fall apart the last two innings."

Foster said the Cougars' enthusiasm played an important role.

"Our bench was going crazy," she said. "We made so much noise down the middle of the game, I think it shook their pitcher."

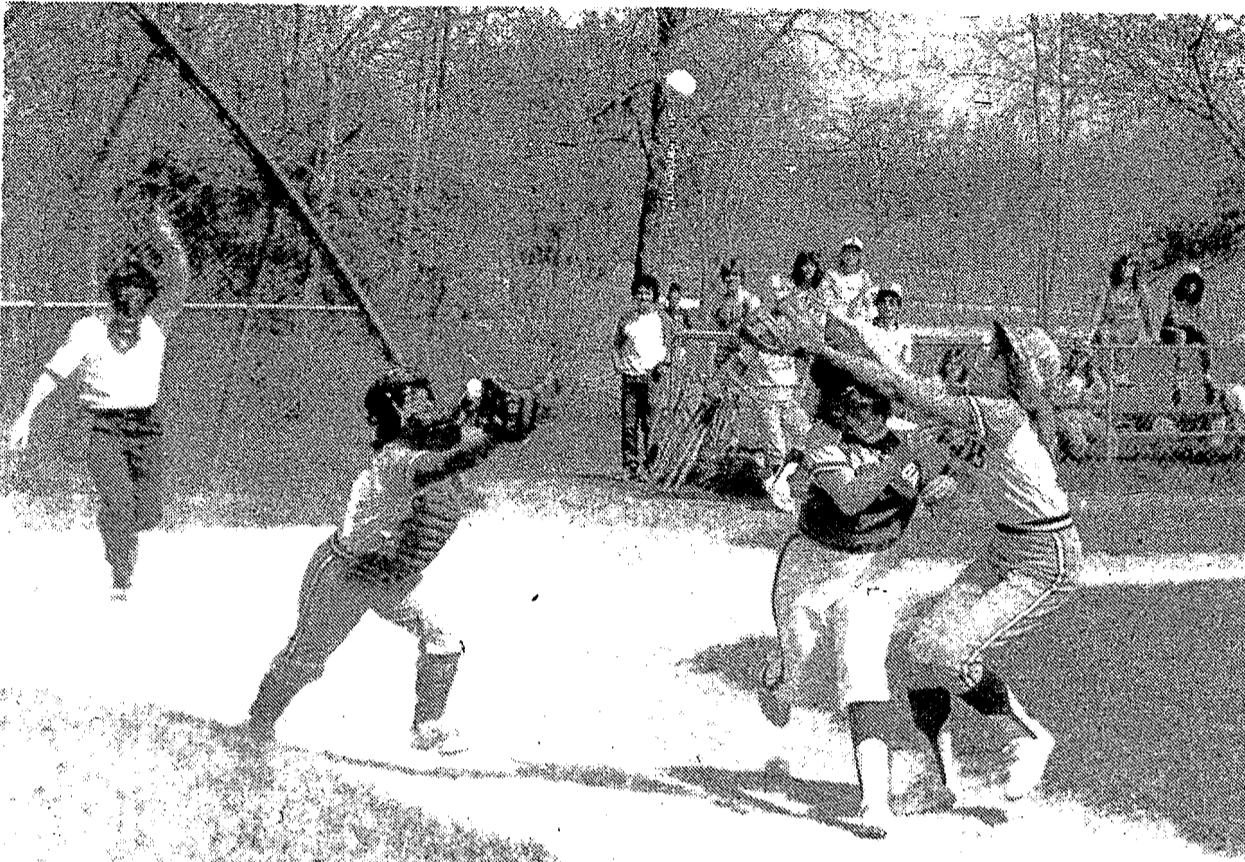

Catcher Lisa Spina drove in the winning run for Sashabaw with a double in the seventh. She led the Cougars with four hits.

Alysa Gettig collected three singles and four RBI's to lead Clarkston.

Clarkston was coming off a 14-8 victory over Lake Orion West May 10.

Sashabaw had come from behind in their previous game to edge Lake Orion East 10-8.

Both teams are 3-2 for the season with four rainouts each.

In a close rivalry, both teams go all out. During the Clarkston-Sashabaw junior high softball game Thursday, Cougar catcher Lisa Spina and pitcher Melanie Upcott try for the pop up by Amy Eiden—and collide with her. No one was hurt during the play, and the ball went foul.

Ray LaLone offers a look at his brown and yellow Ultralight. LaLone built the delicate experimental craft from a kit and for the past year piloted it in Linden. When the grass takes on his homemade runway, LaLone says he'll be taking off from his own backyard.

'The closest thing to being a bird'

Ray LaLone rides under the wings of his flying machine

By Marilyn Trumper

Ray LaLone describes Ultralight piloting as "sitting in a flying chair."

The lightweight aluminum frame resembling a delicate dragonfly is held together with yards of stainless steel wire and a colorful yellow and brown Dacron sailcloth.

Built by LaLone from a $4,000 kit, the Ultralight's 18 hp single-cylinder engine flies at speeds of 50 mph at 1,000 feet, and needs only 300 feet of grass for takeoff and landing.

The burly LaLone runs a hand through his salt and pepper hair as he talks about the hobby in his Oakhill Road home.

No license is required for flying the craft, billed by the FAA (Federal Aviation Administration) as "experimental." To qualify as such 51 percent of the craft must be assembled, he said.

"It's like riding a chair," LaLone explained, strapping himself into the open seat and dropping his feet on pegs to either side of the instrument panel.

"You're sitting back and as you drift off away from the ground you feel like you're floating. You're not connected to anything. It's not like being in a plane where you're surrounded by the body and instruments. It's you and the wind. There's nothing to refer to. Everything's in back of you.

"But it's a nice feeling. And an awful feeling. It's humbling because you realize you're up there alone," LaLone said.

LaLone's wife Judy has never flown, but said her husband defines it as "...the closest thing to being a bird." He tells me that if a flying saucer landed out there he'd go aboard. I've said, "What about me? The kids?" But he loves to experience it all.

A veteran pilot, LaLone's been flying Ultralights for the past year but hasn't flown yet this season.

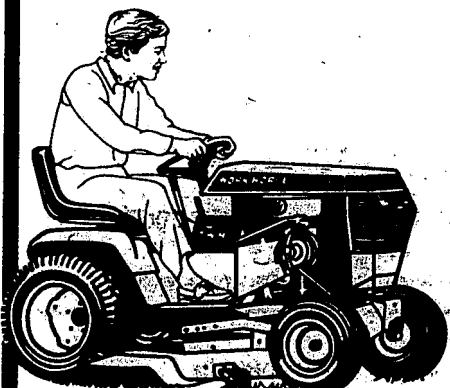

He points to a balding strip of land with seeded grass running the length of his property.

"We're having trouble getting the grass to take," LaLone said of the runway. "But once it does, I'll be flying."

Netters help coach's predictions come true

By Dan Vandenhemel

Dick Swartout could make a good living from predicting.

The coach of the boys' tennis team at Clarkston High School predicted the Wolves would finish around the .500 mark for the season and after seeing the pairings for the league meet, said Clarkston would win two matches and West Bloomfield would win the meet.

The latest two forecasts about the Greater Oakland Activities League (GOAL) meet last Friday came true.

At the league meet at Rochester High School, sophomores Ron Hammond and Dan Martin teamed up to win the No. 1 doubles match and senior Dave Carpenter won his match at No. 4 singles for the only wins for the Wolves.

"It wasn't too hard to figure out who was going to win for us," he said. "After the drawings for who played each other, I knew those two would win."

Regarding the title forecast, it was only a matter of time before West Bloomfield captured it.

The Lakers outdistanced Rochester by eight points, 19-11. Clarkston finished tied for fifth with Pontiac Northern with two points.

Lake Orion and Waterford Mott tied for third with seven points. Waterford Kettering finished sixth with one point and Waterford Township was shutout to round out the standings.

"I thought West Bloomfield would win," Swartout said. "They have a real good team, mostly seniors. Everything else went the way I thought it would."

Swartout knew what Township was going through by being shutout because last year the Wolves didn't win a match.

"That's not a good feeling," he said. "I didn't expect to be shutout this year. But in all but those two matches, our guys lost to their opponents earlier in the year so I expected a couple of points."

"The kids played better in the meet than they have the rest of the year. Every one of them played better. They have made progress all year, so next year they should be stronger and better," he said.

Swartout's other prediction was the team would finish around .500 for the season. With one meet left against Lakeland, the Wolves are 3-5.

"I expect to beat Lakeland and we'll be just below .500. I will be at least close on that one," he said.

Golfer grabs ace

March 2 is going to be hard to forget for J.D. Powell.

After 18 years of golfing, the Holcomb Road, Clarkston, resident recorded his first hole-in-one at the Rocky Bayou Country Club in Fort Walton Beach Florida.

He aced the par-3, 150-yard 12th hole using a 7-wood on his way to round of 91.

Up My Alley Hot stuff

By Dan Vandenhemel

When it comes to Mexican food, there are only three flavors—hot, very hot and call the fire department.

I had my first real taste of food from south of the border last week and my mouth is still numb.

Whoever invented nachos should be commended, but the guy who discovered jalapeno peppers should be forced to eat them the rest of his life.

Nachos are a god-send. That creamy hot cheese over chips are what Mexican food is all about.

Many restaurants and snack bars offer nachos. Every place has a little different taste. The chips could be hot along with the cheese or everything could be on the mild side.

Since I've been hooked on nachos, the best have been bought at Tiger Stadium.

They give a big helping plus the cheese is spicy hot and a lot of it.

That was until I discovered a new Mexican restaurant.

They have nachos to end all nachos.

The cheese is not gobbled over the top of a pile of chips. Each chip is covered with two kinds of cheese plus a slice of the dreaded jalapeno pepper.

The cheese and chip combination was worth it until I took a bite of the pepper.

Sweat was forming on my forehead, my eyes were watering and I couldn't breathe.

My friend knew how hot the peppers were, but did he tell me? Noooo.

My only previous experience with the peppers was watching a beer commercial where a Mexican prize fighter says, "And with jalapeno peppers, the best thing about the beer is it's cold!"

Nothing was cold enough after that first bite.

The ice water didn't help. Neither did the iced tea or the ice.

After that first bite, I tried to swallow the pepper whole. All that did was save my mouth and kill my throat.

Once the shock was over and my taste buds dead, the rest of the dinner tasted the same.

I couldn't taste the difference between the tacos or the rice or anything for that matter.

If anyone is planning a trip to a Mexican restaurant, just remember the four magic words.

Please pass the water.

Achievement tests bring out student knowledge

By Kathy Greenfield

When a potential employer says: "You took the course, but how much do you know?" some students from the Northwest Oakland Vocational Center will have an answer.

Forty-five of them recently completed Student Occupational Competency Achievement Tests in five areas of study.

"It will give the kids something to show the employer," said Bill Holmes, metal machine trades instructor.

"They can say, 'I have taken the state competency exam and this is how I rated. They can put it in their portfolio.'"

With stiff competition for jobs, the tests results could be an employer's deciding factor for hiring, Holmes said.

This is the first year metal machine trades students have taken the tests that include an aptitude test, a written test on knowledge in a specific area of study and a job performance test.

The 16 students participating in the machine trades competency test had 4½ hours to complete the job performance portion that included completing a project on a drill press and working on lathes.

At the beginning of the first portion that lasted 2½ hours, the needed tools were provided, but no help. Like regular tests, the students could not talk to each other or ask an instructor how to do the project.

Evaluations were made by retired tool and die makers Joe Perez of Springfield Township and Gerald Gerber of Independence Township.

"They've got a good setup here," said Perez, who serves on the advisory committee for machine trades at the vocational school. "These are seniors...(and) some of these kids, I was amazed at what they could do."

"They're doing really well for their age group," said Gerber. "The training will help them, I believe, seeking employment later on."

Last year, the vocational school participated in a pilot program for the tests in order to offer opinions on them for the National Occupational Testing Institute.

This year, four of the vocational tests (recreational vehicle, auto body, printing and metal machine trades) were in final form with one still in pilot form (food service).

"It helps us keep our curriculum relevant. Also in terms of our students, it gives them a chance to compete on a national level," said Gene Lewis, building coordinator for the competency testing.

Only the sound of machines breaks the silence as Northwest Oakland Vocational Education machine trades students tackle Student Occupational Competency Tests. Among those taking the tests are Clarkston High School seniors Kent Cumming (left) and George Diehl.

Tree planting requires a gigantic hole and this one is dug the old-fashioned way during Sun Day Friday at Clarkston High School. Among trees planted Friday at CHS were two purchased by the senior class in memory of classmates who died last year, Carol Hyde and Jolene Ferrin.

Traffic woes dominate meeting

From the 200 invitations sent to homeowners living near the Pine Knob Music Theatre, 60 attended the annual meeting between management and residents, according to George White, community relations director.

Most of the hour-and-a-half meeting May 11 evolved around traffic flow down Pine Knob Road toward Clintonville Road, he said.

"The golf course traffic out the back way was their basic concern. (Theater manager Steve Finkel) said he would discuss it with the Oakland County Sheriff's Department to see what could be done to eliminate problems," White said the day after the meeting.

"There were also concerns with litter, and we indicated the work crews would be around to clean up."

Each year as a goodwill gesture to residents affected by theater traffic and noise, Pine Knob offers first-crack at prime seating and window signs. The special signs make exit easier during the concert traffic exodus.

Pine Knob's music season begins May 27 with the Beach Boys.

The type of award in the Michigan Renaissance Festival's second Da Vinci Machine Model Contest was incorrectly stated in last week's Clarkston News.

This year the festival is offering a grant of up to $1,000 in addition to first, second and third prizes for the design and completion of a full-scale functioning machine of 16th-century design.

For an application that describes requirements in detail, call Paul Scheier in the festival's Birmingham office at 645-9640.

'On the Air' for commercial winners

By Kathy Greenfield

Microphone in hand, Brad Dedrick begins the 60-second Detroit Edison spot radio commercial on safety with electricity. He's the narrator.

There's some toast caught in a toaster. Marvin takes a fork to it.

"Ouch!" says Mark Colwell in his role of Marvin, who messes everything up in three situations. He also plays Marvin's brother Frank who acts out the correct way to handle such occurrences.

The Clarkston Junior High School seventh-graders respond simultaneously when asked how they feel about winning the radio commercial contest: "Pretty great."

They were among 10 teams from Linda Palace's honors English class who entered the 17th Annual Detroit Edison Safety Contest open to seventh-through 12th-graders.

There were 103 entries from southeastern Michigan in the contest, and they came out the grand prize winners in the seventh-grade division.

"I'm very proud of them," said their teacher.

The class had voted on the top 10 cassette recordings of 60-second spot commercials.

Brad and Mark's ranked fifth among their classmates, and that added to the surprise of learning they'd won.

Mark wasn't there the day their teacher made the announcement, so Brad called him on the telephone after school.

"I just said, 'Remember that contest? Well, we won it,'" Brad said.

"I said, 'We did?' because I didn't think we'd win," Mark said.

As assignments go, making a safety commercial wasn't bad, they said, but they were merely doing what they were told.

"The reason we did it was because we had to do it," said Brad. "We just did it to get it over with. We weren't even trying to win."

"It was just another assignment," said Mark.

That doesn't, however, take away from the excitement of winning.

They'll be presented with certificates at a ceremony in Detroit May 20 and they look forward to the grand prize awarded in each age group—to have their commercial aired on the radio station of their choice.

They selected rock station WABX-FM (99.5).

"I didn't want it on a country station or anything like that," said Brad. "It's the one I listen to a lot."

Putting in a bit of practice before the final recording of their public service radio commercial for Detroit Edison are Brad Dedrick (left) and Mark Colwell.

Summer of harmony

Barbershopper Scott Turnbull lands job at Cedar Point Amusement Park

By Marilyn Trumper

This summer when you're walking through Cedar Point's Frontier Town, stop into the Red Garter Saloon and say "Hi" to Clarkston's Scott Turnbull.

He and "The Ivy League," a barbershop quartet from Eastern Michigan University, will provide summer entertainment at the popular Sandusky, Ohio, amusement park.

Cedar Point will never be the same when barbershopper Scott Turnbull takes the stage at the Red Garter Saloon. The 22-year-old Clarkston resident, one of four singers in the Ivy League, was hired for summer entertainment at the popular amusement park.

"I finally got a paying job singing," Scott laughed. "I've done banquets and weddings, but nothing like this."

Tall, with a wide girth, the 22-year-old green-eyed Turnbull sports bushy muttonchops under each ear, driving home the old-fashioned barbershopper style.

Turnbull's Ivy League career with Bob Hartley, Brian Philbin and Paul Hanson spans three months. The lead singer, he is a music education major in college.

"This," he said of barbershopping, "is just a hobby."

"There was a quartet singing 'Coney Island Baby' out in the hall (at school), and we thought we could do better. We gave it a try."

The quartet's been together ever since.

And they auditioned for the Cedar Point job on a whim, "...for the experience," Turnbull said.

Key to the audition is stage presence, or what Turnbull calls "selling the song," choreography and interpretation.

"We went up to Boyne City Bush League competition last weekend, with the thought we would not finish last.

"We finished fourth out of 15, and were proud of that," he said.

Twenty-five minutes out of every hour the Ivy League is scheduled to perform their Cedar Point repertoire of 16-plus songs, dressed in knickers, bow ties and straw hats from the era when barbershop harmony was in.

"That's going to be the real test. I'm excited about this. We'll find out what we're made of this time," Turnbull said.

Protesters plan trip to Lansing

Worried parents and educators went through the list at last week's school board meeting, expressing concerns about the fate of special education, gifted education, elementary school media centers and music in Clarkston schools.

Then Jeanne Molzon talked about the Candlelight March planned on the Capitol steps in Lansing June 6 by Equal Partners in Michigan, a group devoted to restoring education as a top state priority.

And Allen Bartlett, Clarkston Education Association president, said the teachers' union would pay for a bus.

At the meeting's end, 32 people had signed up to ride the school bus to Lansing and join in the protest.

"At the local level, the people, all of their anger becomes directed to the school board and it's so important that people become aware that this much money has been cut from education," said Molzon after the meeting.

She pointed out that state support for K-12 education has been cut by one-quarter billion dollars since 1979.

As the school district representative for CURE (Citizens United to Restore Education), she's been working to make sure legislators know their constituents consider education important.

But she's upset when only small groups of people appear during meetings of legislative committees who decide the fate of education in Michigan.

"When you are there en masse, the legislators really tend to believe there are a lot of voters who feel that way," she said. "I think we'll make the legislators realize that the people out here really mean that something has to be done."

Although there is no local Equal Partners group, CURE has agreed to join in when something merits participation, she said.

The legislature will be in session during the candlelight vigil.

The bus to Lansing is to leave Monday, June 6, at 5:30 p.m. from the board of education office.

Those who wish to go along can call Molzon at 625-9399 or Clarkston CURE Chairperson Dave Kithil at 625-8189.

People who cannot participate but want to help by writing letters to legislators can also contact the CURE representatives.

Learn computer literacy through Clarkston Community Ed.

Children and adults can while away some hours this summer learning computer literacy with new courses offered through the Clarkston schools Community Education Department.

"I've been so excited—we've been working on it for three months," said Kathleen O'Donnell, community education director.

An agreement was finalized with Texas Computers and, within a week, flyers are to go out from the elementary schools and junior highs describing the classes.

The computer firm has agreed to provide 10 computer systems at no charge to the school district—approximately $15,000 worth for the summer program with expansion to $25,000 worth as classes continue in the fall.

"What we're trying to do is to attempt to provide computer literacy at a faster rate than what's available in the (school) system," said O'Donnell, citing the financial straits of the district.

"We want to make people aware in the community that computers are friendly."

The summer courses will cost $49.95 for children and adults.

Taught by Texas Instruments' education division, the classes are to meet two to two-and-one-half hours two days a week for two weeks, and continue to be offered all summer.

The classes include basic programming for adults or children; computer awareness for adults, children or preschoolers; and children's logo for children with some computer awareness.

O'Donnell stressed that the courses are not designed to sell computers, and that the general microcomputer background will be able to be applied to any system.

Call the community education office at 673-7756 for more information.

Spinach rates low on lunchroom list

By Marilyn Trumper

The halls at Bailey Lake Elementary School echo with the sound of snapping dollar bills, dropping change, shuffling feet and giggles as kids line up at the food window to buy today's lunch: A choice of a Fiestada (Mexian pizza) or chicken patty; coleslaw or spinach; fruit cup; and milk.

Back in the classroom, second-grader Sheila

Clarkston News

SECTION TWO

The Clarkston (Mich.) News Wed., May 18, 1983 29

Bookie turns up her nose at the dark green spinach piled in the upper left-hand corner of her sectioned lunch tray.

Chocolate chip cookies purchased a la carte from the hall monitor are quickly traded for a cluster of fat purple grapes from the lunch of Holly Zorka.

Sitting off to the side, Jenny Gross eyeballs the trade Tom Sawyer would have reveled in and appears content with the tuna fish sandwich, buttered bread, raisins and an apple brown-bagged from home.

The orange T-shirt of 7-year-old Chad Wayne rivals the color of the Fiestada.

Through thick glasses he peers at his hot lunch: Three teeth-bites scallop the pizza's side, a fruit cup and chocolate milk.

"I hate spinach," he frowns.

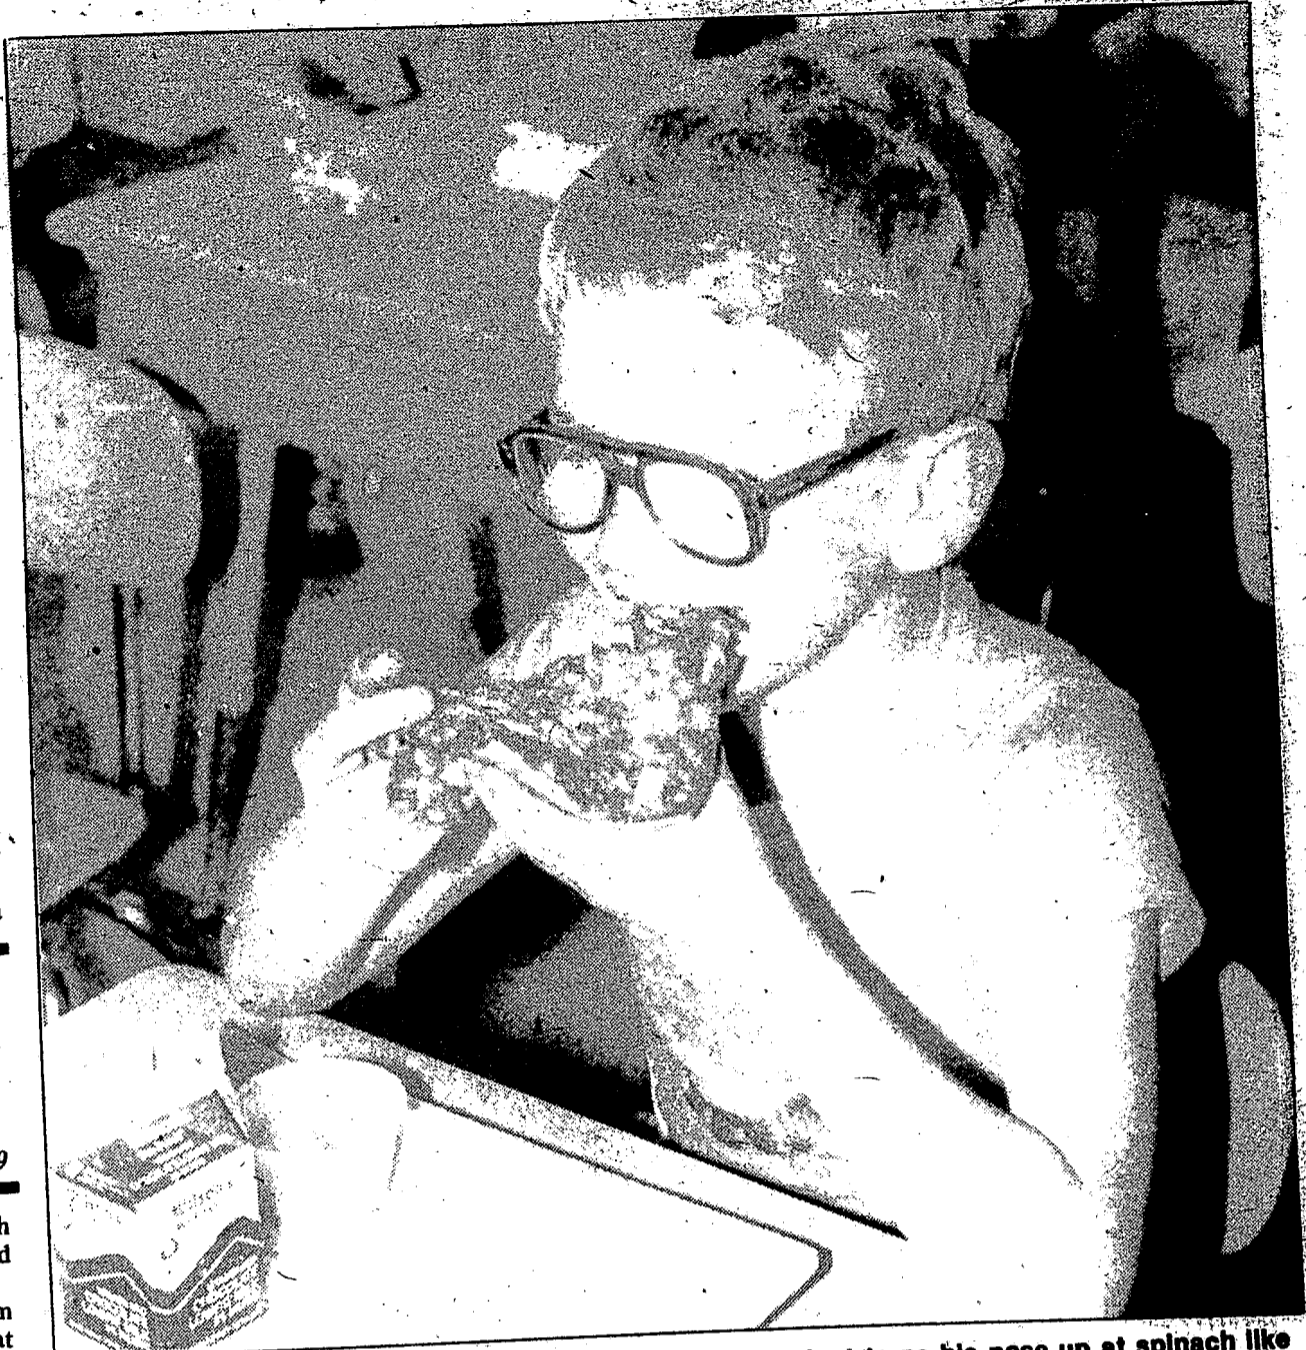

For a graham cracker, Jill Theyoung trades a bite of her Fiestada to Amy Pursell.

In another room, grapes and peaches in Joe Ramzek's fruit cup bring no enthusiasm from the 9-year-old.

"I'd rather have chocolate pudding."

Pieces of a spongy chocolate Hostess cupcake purchased a la carte halo Sharon Granlund's mouth and bib her red and white checked dress.

A cold cupful of Dannon strawberry yogurt sits nearby, next in line for consumption.

Seven-year-old Chad Wayne bites into his Fiestada with relish. The Bailey Lake Elementary student turns his nose up at spinach like most of his other classmates.

The Fiestada is getting cold.

"I hate hot lunch, but my mom says I have to get it," Sharon said, biting again into the chocolate cake.

Seven-year-old Jennifer McArdle waves a peanut butter sandwich in the air. The rest of her brown-bagged lunch: a banana, cookies, pretzels and chocolate chip cookies await.

"I have peanut butter sandwiches everyday. I don't like any other kind. And I hate spinach," she grimaces.

Aslyn Hardenburg fails to understand her classmate's puckered face and bites into a spoonful of the stringy green vegetable.

"It's good for you," Aslyn says, delighting in the response she gets.

Jennifer grimaces again.

Head cook Grace Reder says the kids have a choice of what they want to eat, picking and choosing items from the four categories.

"If we have spinach I know not to cook as much as if we were having a vegetable they do like. Corn is one, and green beans would be second I guess. Spinach is not real big. But they have a choice of coleslaw.

"Then I suppose they like pizza the best, then hot dogs and oven-baked chicken. For desserts it's cherry cobbler and apple crunch."

Reder says there's a reason for some of the more empty trays.

"You take one of these first-graders and a Fiestada. If they eat all that and drink a milk, there's no more room inside them to eat more. They're full."

Full of Fiestada that is.

Not spinach.

Watching the bowling ball roll toward the pins are Kathey Cleveland and Matt Yingling. Matt, of Pine Knob Road in Independence Township, is competing in the bowl-a-thon for the Montgomery Developmental Training School in Waterford Township. The goal is $50,000 for playground equipment for the handicapped at the school. All 100 students participated in the three-day event starting Monday. Cleveland, a teacher at the school of Kootima in Independence Township, said teachers and students went out to collect pledges for the event. Installation of the equipment is to begin sometime this summer.

Olympic award

A group of five Sashabaw Junior High School seventh-graders returned home with a Creative Award from the Olympics of the Mind at Central Michigan University, Mt. Pleasant.

The pupils competed in the Leonardo Da Vinci Spring Car category, changing their vehicle from a 16th century design to a futuristic model while going through a "time warp."

Members of the GATE (Gifted and Talented Education) Program, the youngsters volunteered to participate in the statewide contest held May 5.

Their teacher is Sue Kiser.

Home restoration

Where to begin, and what steps are necessary in older home restoration?

A man who has made a career of such work is the final speaker in the restoration series of free lectures sponsored by the Clarkston Community Historical Society.

"Setting a Master Plan for Restoration" is the topic of David Conlin of Restoration Inc. of Birmingham.

His program is to begin at 8 p.m. on Wednesday, May 25, in the Clarkston Village Hall, 375 Depot, following the historical society's annual general meeting at 7 p.m.

During the general meeting, the historical society's board will briefly present this year's achievements and committee reports.

Election of officers is also planned.

Viola! Montessori students master 'ze French

By Marilyn Trumper

French teacher Rhonda Pochert stands before the class in her purple paisley-print dress and says to room of Montessori preschoolers:

"Il fait du soleil. Quelle est le temps?"

Translation: "The sun's shining. What's the weather like?"

One by one in response to her inquiry, the children answer as easily as if the question were "How's your peanut butter and jelly sandwich?"

Since September as part of the standard curriculum at the Laurel Montessori school in Waterford Township, these pupils, age 2½ to 4, have studied French. The language is taught in every grade at the school.

"What is this?"

"Qu'est-ce que c'est?" she asks, pointing to a colorful dress and shirt painted on a poster.

French teacher Rhonda Pochert fires questions at the Laurel Montessori preschool class in Waterford Township.

"Une robe," says one child.

"La chemise," answers another, pointing to the shirt.

"Paul, are you wearing une chemise?" she asks.

"No," he laughs, comprehending the absurdity.

In rapid succession they recite colors, parts of the body, sing songs and poetry, and raise their hands in the air for a chance to point out the window and door in response to Madame Rhonda's question: "Ou est la fenetre? Ou est la porte?"

Instead of the expected "Oui," in response to one question, a chorus of "Yeahs" is heard.

"What happened to 'Oui'?" she asks, hiding a smile at the sudden transition to English, the first spoken since the hour-long French lesson began.

In between responses there's praise for correct answers.

"Tres bien."

"Very good."

The little girl beams and tugs at the hem of her dress.

Television's "Chez Helene's" got nothing on Montessori.

At that Rhonda laughs.

"Last September when school first began, I spoke French and English. Then one day instead of saying, 'Show me,' I said, 'Montre-moi.' No one noticed the difference and they caught on quite easily. Now I speak only French—and they understand completely."

Small children have no pronunciation problem because they can't read, Pochert said.

"I'm sure you've heard high school students mispronounce comment, 'ka-va'?" Instead of a soft 'c' on the ca-va they use a 'k.'

"These kids don't have that problem. They have perfect pronunciation."

Learning a second language, even at the preschool level, can be a benefit for life, she said.

"Beyond that the world's gotten smaller. By the time they're adult, it will be mandatory they know a second language.

"It helps strengthen their grammar, opens up their world, and what better shortcut to learn a culture than through its language?"

C'est fini!

It's finished.

McDonald's boasts playground

Gleaming red chairs with yellow tabletops decorate McDonald's new Playland at Sashabaw and Maybee roads in Independence Township. Kindergartners from Pine Knob Elementary sent colorful helium-filled balloons into the air, then monopolized the slide, jumping animals and spinning merry-go-round while the Sashabaw Junior High School band played the famous restaurant's theme song.

Waterford Hill Courts adds pub

Now after a hard game of racquetball at Waterford Hill Courts you can cool off with a cold beer. Or join them for happy hour. Or a hamburger at lunch. Located on Dixie Highway between Andersonville Road and M-15 on Waterford Hill, the building has been remodeled and now has the Court Haus Pub. Tiffany-style lamps hang from the ceiling accenting the dark pine tables and brown leather booths. The menu boasts a full sandwich line, soups and salads.

In addition, there's a new exercise room with Universal gym, pro shop and eight courts for handball, racquetball, paddleball or wallyball. And there are saunas and a babysitting service.

Manager Terry Templeton says business has increased since the Court Haus Pub's opening.

"Our racquetball business has improved, more people are coming to the pub than before.

Doing business

"We try and stress that we want to see everyone here—not just the racquetball players. We have real good lunch specials and a great happy hour," she said.

The club is open to the public.

Waterford Hill court hours are 9 a.m. to midnight, seven days a week. The pub's open from 9 a.m. to 2 a.m., Monday through Saturday and noon to 2 a.m. Sunday.

Spring Stroll

Colorful helium balloons for children, at least one bake sale and the voices of the Sashabaw Junior High School Encores are to be among the goings on in downtown Clarkston this weekend.

The fourth annual Spring Stroll sponsored by the Clarkston Village Business Association is planned May 20 and 21.

On Friday the hours are 6 to 9 p.m. and on Saturday, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

The merchants will have sidewalk and in-store sales in addition to the free balloons at the Pontiac State Bank, the bake sale by the Clarkston High School cheerleaders, garbage bag sale by the Clarkston Athletic Boosters and, from 8 to 9 p.m. Friday, songs by the Encores.

Other organizations that wish to participate may call Sandie Bruce at 625-1019.

New foundation

The newly organized Oakland Parks Foundation includes Clarkston residents Ted Gray and Lewis E. Wint as trustees.

The private foundation, which includes four officers and 19 trustees, will actively seek donations of land and money to develop parks and recreation facilities in Oakland County.

"Substantial reduction in state and federal grants to local parks and recreation programs has seriously jeopardized the future preservation and development of land," says Carol Stanley, vice chairman of the Oakland County Parks and Recreation Commission.

"It is our responsibility to ensure that the quality of life will be preserved for future generations."

While the Oakland Parks Foundation will remain a separate unit, it will work cooperatively with the Oakland County Parks and Recreation Commission in fulfilling its master plan.

Four reasons given for big party

The Conservatory celebrates

Reasons for celebration abound and concertgoers are invited to a party following the Clarkston Conservatory of Music's faculty concert on Sunday, May 22.

The hour-long concert featuring "Brahms Piano Quartet, opus 25 in g minor" is to begin at 4 p.m. in Sadows Auction Gallery in the Clarkston Mills Mall, 20 W. Washington.

Tickets, for sale at the door, are $4 for adults and $3 for senior citizens and students.

Members of the Conservatory staff performing are Amy Shevrin on violin, Margaret Lang on viola, David Moulton on violincello and James Wilhelmson on piano.

Following the concert, the party is planned at the Clarkston Conservatory of Music on Main Street. Partygoers are asked to bring a bottle of wine or a casserole to share.

Conservatory director Ivan Rause lists the causes for celebration:

- The Conservatory's 25th birthday.
- Faculty member James Wilhelmson's doctorate degree in music from the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor.

•Brahms' 150th birthday.

•A memorial tribute to Grace Gookin of Romeo who died April 20.

"She was a leading piano teacher in Romeo," Rause said. "She came to all our concerts for 20 years. She left a Chickering grand piano for the Conservatory."

Proceeds from the concert will go to purchase a beam for the Conservatory floor "to hold the mighty Chickering," Rause said.

"STRUCTURE" means a walled and roofed building that is principally above ground, a gas or liquid storage facility, as well as a mobile home.

"SUBSTANTIAL IMPROVEMENT" means any repair, reconstruction, or improvement of a structure, the cost of which equals or exceeds 50 percent of the market value of the structure either, (1) before the improvement or repair is started, or (2) if the structure has been damaged or is being restored, before the damage occurred. For the purposes of this definition, "substantial improvement" is considered to occur when the first alteration of any wall, commences, whether or not that alteration affects the external dimensions of the structure. The term does not, however, include either (1) any project for improvement of a structure to comply with existing state or local health, sanitary or safety code specifications which are solely necessary to assure safe living conditions, or (2) any alteration of a structure listed on the National Register of Historic Places or a State Inventory of Historic Places.

A first: Summer school's here

"Here comes summer, school is out, oh happy day!" won't be the hue and cry for some in the Clarkston school district this year.

For the first time, summer school will be in session for high school and junior high school students. Under the direction of the Clarkston schools Community Education Department, classes are to run from June 27 through Aug. 4, Mondays through Thursdays.

Courses required for graduation will be available only to those who attempted them during the school year and failed.

The tuition charge for academic courses is $50 for one-half high school credit for Clarkston school district residents and $60 for non-residents.

Non-academic courses will cost $40.

There will also be a $10 registration fee, refunded at the end of the course with the return of the textbook.

The target group of seventh- through 12th-graders was specifically requested by Assistant Superintendent Mel Vaara, said community education director Kathleen O'Donnell.

"He felt it was really important to make available additional courses for junior and senior high school students who were deficient in credits to go from junior to senior high school or from one grade to another," she said.

The hoped-for result is a decrease in the dropout rate, she said.

All classes are to meet at Clarkston Junior High School with the exception of typing, which will be offered at Clarkston High School.

There will be two sessions, from 8:30 to 10:30 a.m. and from 10:40 a.m. to 1:10 p.m., allowing the maximum of two classes and one credit toward high school graduation.

Courses required for graduation include the following: Writing I, Oral Communication, U.S. History I and II, American Government, Social Studies and American Government.

Credit courses not required for graduation include the following: Math Lab, Algebra Lab, Biology Lab, Personal Typing, Reading Lab, English Lab, Career Education, Beginning French, Intermediate Math, Algebra IB, Earth Science, Creative Writing and Psychology.

Non-credit courses include the following: Nature Outdoor Studies and Jazz Dance for Teens.

From the high school, Jeff Dean and Eric Krause place fifth and eighth in the state.

From Clarkston Junior High, Scott Ritter was second, Matt Scharl third, Craig Ferrell third, Randy Budrow ninth, Brent Corliss fourth, Gary Garza sixth and Jerry Basham fourth. Darren Bennett also qualified for the finals but didn't place.

Sun Day

A sign of the times is provided by Beth Helsel who trims shrubs while listening to rock radio station WLLZ.

Sun wasn't the only thing shining at Clarkston High School last week.

The school grounds themselves were aglow after about 300 busy hands set to work Friday for five hours during the sixth annual Sun Day.

When they were through, the weed- and litter-free grounds were decorated with newly planted flowers and trees, trash cans sported fresh paint, lawns and interior gardens were raked and sidewalks were swept.

The 150 students from Gary Nustad's current events, economics and government classes worked in 14 crews, and their efforts also encompassed nearby Clarkston Elementary and Clarkston Junior High schools.

"It's the kids' day. They do a super job," said Nustad, sponsor of the clean-up campaign for six years.

On Friday morning, a planter box in front of the high school is choked with weeds. Shortly after Ted Wilson and Kim Klaker set to work with shovels, they are joined by a multitude of workers. On Friday afternoon, the planter box was no longer an eyesore—new railroad ties held rich peat and a multitude of flowers thanks to the efforts of the students.

"I can't say enough about what they do. It really shows high school kids care about their school and their environment—that's the whole point behind the day."

The students met before school and after school to organize their plan of attack. They contacted potential donors of trees, flowers and other necessary Sun Day ingredients.

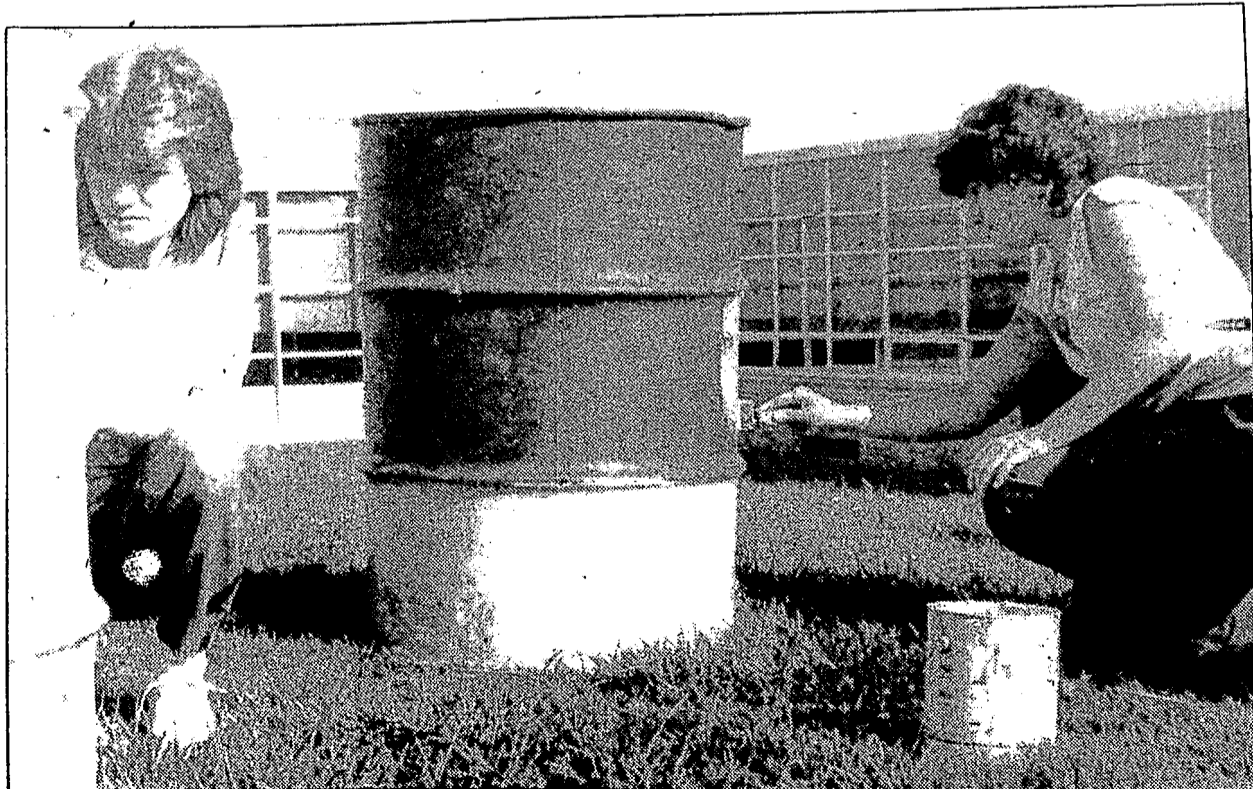

And then they worked.

"Often times high school students are looked at in a negative context by the community because all that seems to gather the headlines is when they're doing something wrong," Nustad said.

"Students are really shown in their true light as hard-working and industrious people."

Behind the high school, work is underway to brighten up trash cans. Deanna Stuart (left)

Even the corridors at CHS take on an unexpected look as a wheelbarrow load of courtyard debris rests for a moment before being wheeled away.
