Independence, Pine Knob team up

By Marilyn Trumper

Pine Knob Investment Co. and Independence Township have put aside their differences on at least one issue, teaming up to fight the Edward C. Levy Co.'s proposed 300-acre mining operation.

The $9-million Pine Knob complex is located two miles south of the proposed mining site.

Its main entrance is on Sashabaw Road, between the entrance of the proposed gravel mine and I-75, where most of the gravel trucks would travel.

At the township board's May 17 meeting, Pine Knob Investment Co. attorney Anthony Locricchio volunteered his services as a lawyer, and added some new strategy to the three-year-old campaign to block the mine.

"We would be willing to volunteer litigation to the township if the township is willing to do condemnation (of a 500-acre wetlands parcel abutting the 80 acres now under condemnation)," he said.

"You have the rights of the township clearly established, and you've already spent $100,000 to condemn the 80 acres.

"We urge the township board to clearly study that alternative and we will pledge litigation support. It's extremely important...and will buy time. It's crucial not to have the (mining) permit granted," he said.

After the meeting Locricchio explained the strategy is to tie up even more land in condemnation proceedings in an effort to discourage the Levy Co. from pursuing its plan.

Locricchio called for a liaison between township, state and county officials to review litigation to date, and report back at the next board meeting scheduled June 7.

Township Supervisor James B. Smith said "...My schedule is open," and offered Locricchio a copy of the March 23 transcript from a joint hearing of the DNR (Department of Natural Resources) and Army Corps of Engineers.

That meeting was attended by over 150 people opposing the controversial plan to mine near the headwaters of the Clinton River.

In addition, Smith asked Locricchio to consider testifying before the Michigan Environmental Review Board on the effect the mining operation would have on the restaurant's ski lodge, music theater and golf course.

Joseph Locricchio, co-owner of Pine Knob, appeared surprised the issue was still on the table after

Building spurt

Bleak '82 is history

The housing market's taking off in '83, even though official statistics for '82 were bleak.

Unlike the past two years, Independence Township did not make Oakland County's top 10 list for new housing starts in 1982, according to data released last week by the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG).

In 1982 the township tied for 15th place with Brandon and Rose townships, reporting 10 permits for the 12-month period.

Springfield Township issued just five permits and the Village of Clarkston, zero.

The following is a list of the top 10 communities in the county:

Farmington Hills, 314; Avon Township, 305; West Bloomfield Township, 244; Novi, 68; Troy, 53; Ferndale, 46; Bloomfield Township, 43; Waterford Township, 34; Holly, 33; and Commerce Township, 31.

"'82 was a disaster," said Independence Building and Planning Department Director Kenneth Delbridge.

"We're doing a lot better in '83. There's a gradual increase I think will go all the way through the year. Already we've issued 26 permits for '83, and it's only May. Last year, for the whole year, we issued (10)."

B.Y.O. tradition may end

By Marilyn Trumper

Pine Knob may get permission to sell beer and wine at the music theater in time for the season opener May 27.

The request is expected to be heard in Lansing May 25, said Jerry Norris of the state Liquor Control Commission.

If it's approved, Pine Knob can begin immediately to sell beer and wine at concerts, and it will be illegal for fans to bring alcoholic beverages into the theater.

On May 17, the Independence Township Board officially approved transfer of the ski lodge's Class C license solely to partners Joseph Locricchio and Gary Francell.

The action ended a year-long dispute at the local level and cleared up 10 years' worth of name transfers on the license that were not approved by the Liquor Control Commission.

The application made in 1980 requests that the ski lodge's liquor license be transferred from seven limited partners and two companies no longer involved at the complex—Ogden Foods and Indusco Corp. Indusco was Locricchio and Francell's former company.

The commission is expected to "take it's pound of flesh" and levy arbitrary fines for the violations, according to Anthony Locricchio, attorney for Pine Knob.

Township board Trustee Dale Stuart cast the lone "no" in the liquor license transfer request.

"Pine Knob is still in the bankruptcy court...For that reason I think we should table this until (the outcome) is decided," he said.

Trustee Larence Kozma was absent. Supervisor James B. Smith, Clerk Christopher Rose, Treasurer Frederick Ritter and Trustee William Vandermark voted "yes."

Garner may go underground with senior village

By Marilyn Trumper

An obstacle's been thrown in the path of Hugh Garner's proposed $30-million senior citizen village, Clarkston Place.

On May 18, the Springfield Township Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA) unanimously approved three of four variance requests and in a 4-1 vote rejected the critical height variance needed to build.

Garner could not be reached for comment on the decision, but an employe of the developer indicated a revised site plan might show underground buildings, eliminating the issue of height.

Garner's plan called for 32-foot-high buildings in zoning that limits building height to 25 feet.

The ZBA approved a density variance from 3,000 square feet for each occupant to allow Garner 1,200 feet per person, according to Collin Walls, township supervisor.

The board agreed the development should not be split at the township line, and should have its density calculated as a 28-acre parcel, Walls said.

In addition, the board approved direct access on to Deer Hill Drive instead of Dixie Highway.

Garner's development at I-75 and Dixie Highway involves 13.5 acres in Springfield Township and 14.5 in Independence Township.

The preliminary drawings unveiled in late April showed all high-rise construction in Springfield Township.

The non-profit development will be managed by St. Joseph Health Services Inc. of Flint.

It's expected to house 750 residents in cottages, apartments, a 64-unit building for the elderly similar to hotel living with meals in a common dining room and a 120-bed nursing home for continuous care.

Garner is expected to revise the site plan and appear before the planning commission for approval.

He has yet to officially appear before the Independence Township Planning Commission or Zoning Board of Appeals.

PK, township to tackle Levy

three years.

"We had no idea this was going on. We know how well (the public) can rise up to get them—remember the hotel?" he said.

"The last things I want are gravel trucks running up and down the road every two-and-one-half minutes in front of me.

"There was a tremendous uproar in this township. I remember the vote for a condemnation was on the ballot the same time as the hotel and there was a big turnout.

"At the time we felt there's no way (Levy will get it. He has to abide by the) restrictions, the same as the ones put on us."

The law firm representing The Edward C. Levy Co., Honigman Miller Schwartz & Cohn, also represents the Borg-Warner Corp., one of the largest creditors in Pine Knob's bankruptcy suit in federal court.

After the meeting, Smith explained why he welcomes Pine Knob's help.

"Regardless of who ends up with Pine Knob and whether a trustee is appointed (by the bankruptcy court), (the Levy plan) would have enormous impact on the very expensive investment at Pine Knob.

"I indicated that as much as I might disagree with some of (Pine Knob's) procedures, it's never been my intention to drive them out of business.

"So, if it happens to ultimately be (Locricchio) or someone else (running Pine Knob), I feel we have a stake in the success of the Pine Knob venture and did not feel it the proper thing to drive in another coffin nail," Smith said. "We are willing to take any legitimate assistance offered."

Firefighters and paramedics rest David Lossing, 28, of Sterling Heights on the stretcher and ready him for the waiting ambulance. Lossing's car was hit by 21-year-old Leman Gilliland of Pontiac last Thursday at 6 p.m. on M-15 and Hubbard Road. Police speculate Gilliland lost control of his car during the heavy rains, sideswiping one car, then turning sideways in the road in front of Lossing. The driver of the first car, Daniel Oaks, 43, of Troy, was slightly injured. All three were treated and released from the hospital.

Land fund dwindles; Smith worries

By Marilyn Trumper

Supervisor James B. Smith sees the township losing a key foothold in its fight to thwart mining of 300 acres near the headwaters of the Clinton River.

In an effort to balance the budget, Smith says the state keeps dipping into the Kammer Land Trust Fund, established in 1976 to buy land for recreational and/or environmental preservation.

The fund has dwindled from $90 million to $16 million, and township officials expected it would finance purchase of 308 acres next to Independence Oaks County Park, 100 acres of which are part of a proposed gravel mining operation by the Edward C. Levy Co.

Former state senator Kerry Kammer, who sponsored the bill seven years ago, calls it "one more borrowing."

"I talked with the governor just last week and he told me he's working to keep the fund intact," Kammer said.

"The highest use of that property would be recreational. The worst use would be a gravel pit. I'm trying to see the money remains there for Independence."

Money in the fund came from gas and oil leases on state land.

Smith says he's fearful a zero fund balance will give Levy additional leverage and take away some of the township's power to fight the mining plan.

The more land targeted for environmental preservation, the better the township's chances to stop the gravel mine, he said.

"We've waited years for this and were second on the list for purchase in the whole state. It would have taken place this year. Instead it puts us in jeopardy," Smith said.

"Now there's Senate Bill 238 to abscond with the entire $16 million left in the fund to provide employment for 60,000 youth for the summer.

"All that despite the fact we already have a federal jobs bill and training act and additional block grant funding for jobs."

According to Smith, the county agreed to pay $595,000 and the state would pay $387,000 for the 308 acres, which would then go to the county and ultimately be added to Independence Oaks County Park.

"Now after all these years when we're ready for the funding, it doesn't seem logical to again deplete the fund," Smith said.

Four cable studio sites selected

By Marilyn Trumper

Using a string of criteria to make his decision, Tribune/United's Manuel Copado named four "high priority" sites for Independence Township's hotly debated cable TV studio.

One is Clarkston High School, which ends a year of breath-holding for school administrators, and leaves open the question whether, if selected, the studio would be in the school or built on grounds.

The other three sites are a proposed office development at Dixie Highway and M-15; vacant school property on Clarkston-Orion Road next to the township library; and Helvey Orchards on Sashabaw Road, south of Waldon.

"We had a total of 18 sites that were potentially good locations, but got down to four high priorities," Copado told the Independence Township Board May 17.

"We took into consideration costs of property, renovation versus new construction, the ability to locate all the facilities at one site and secure them," he said.

Traditionally cable companies place the 100-foot receiving tower and 15-foot-wide satellite dishes at studio sites, he said.

In addition, a studio site's proximity to the center of the township, zoning and the master plan are all key to the decision.

Copado refused to pinpoint the site he considers most favorable.

"There are a lot of politics involved here and I don't want to get involved with that," he said, referring ing to the high school site favored by school officials.

Copado was directed to prepare a written report and submit it to the board for study. No decision was made.

Clerk Christopher Rose, who has worked closely on the cable issue from conception to adoption, said three of the four proposed sites looked good.

"The site on Sashabaw Road bothers me. We have talked about the proximity of the studio to the high school and how it should be within walking distance. That is not," he said after the meeting.

Memorial parade

The annual Memorial Day Parade is planned Monday, May 30, at 10 a.m. by the American Legion Campbell Richmond Post 63.

The parade route begins at the corner of Church and Buffalo streets and continues north on Main Street, west to Holcomb Street, then to Lakeview Cemetery on White Lake Road where a memorial service will be held.

Commander Leon Johnston requests that no horses, autos, bikes, pets or floats enter the parade because of the solemn purpose of the parade.

Post members will place flags on veterans' graves in Lakeview Cemetery on Sunday morning, May 29.

Call the post at 625-9912 or John Lynch at 625-3994 for more information.

Early deadline

Due to the Memorial Day holiday, there will be early deadlines for news and advertising in The Clarkston News this week.

News items and classified ads must be received by 4:30 p.m. Friday, May 27.

The display advertising deadline is Friday, May 27 at noon.

The office will be closed Monday, May 30, on Memorial Day.

If there are any questions, feel free to call the News office at 625-3370 or to stop by at 5 S. Main, Clarkston. Our hours are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays.

Historic committee eyes vote on new ordinance

Residents living in the 174-home historic district may be asked their opinion on readopting the historical ordinance in an advisory vote, or by an independent pollster.

At the May 23 meeting of the Clarkston Village Council, Trustee Carol Eberhardt said the second hash-session between the historical committee and village residents was poorly attended.

"I thought so, considering I sent out 96 postcards and 12 people showed up," she said.

The informal meetings are designed to gather residents' opinions for the committee redrafting the historic ordinance.

It appears the committee is leaning toward recommending an advisory ballot.

"There was quite a bit of feeling that people outside the historic district should not have a say on something that won't impact them," Eberhardt said. "So only the people in the district would vote."

President Jackson Byers agreed on the impact issue, but pointed out past advisory elections in the village have been poorly attended and would not provide an accurate poll of what residents think, only what a small percentage want.

Byers favored hiring an independent pollster to go door-to-door.

"That way everyone concerned is contacted and we'll know how each one of them feels," he said.

The cost of a special election is estimated between $300 and $500.

The council made no decision, waiting to hear the committee's recommendation, expected in the next two weeks.

The village repealed its controversial Historic District Ordinance last fall when residents complained of arbitrary decision-making by the five-member historical committee regulating all construction and repairs in the district.

Its readoption has been closely linked as a block to the possibility of the state widening M-15.

Fireworks train

What better way for Independence Township residents to celebrate Independence Day than ride the Independence Train to Detroit's Fourth of July fireworks for the Freedom Festival?

This year, using $8,475 from SEMTA's (South East Michigan Transportation Authority) transportation credits, Independence Township has cut the cost of chartering six 80-passenger cars on the Freedom Festival Train.

The train is to leave Pontiac's Transportation Terminal Thursday, June 30, at 7:30 p.m. and arrive at the riverfront station at the Renaissance Center at 8:30 p.m.

The return train heads home 25 minutes after the display ends.

If canceled by rain, fireworks are rescheduled for July 1, rain or shine.

Cars may park at the Pontiac Phoenix Center off Wide Track Drive for 50 cents.

Tickets for the township residents are $4 for adults and $2 for senior citizens or children under 12.

To reserve seats, a maximum of six, send a check or money order to Independence Township Parks and Recreation Department, 90 N. Main, Clarkston, MI 48016.

Friday, thieves stole a $150 bug-whacker from a yard on Lakeview Drive, Independence Township.

Saturday, thieves broke into a mobile home on Crabapple Road, Independence Township, and stole a two captain's chairs.

This information came from reports at the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

For those reasons, Deputy Marc Cooper of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department suggests parents have their children fingerprinted.

"How can a parent prove a 2-year-old child is theirs?" Cooper asked. "They can't." There is no charge.

Children must be accompanied by parents, but volunteers at the Oakland County Sheriff's Department will fingerprint adults as well, Cooper said.

Fingerprints will be taken Monday, Wednesday and Thursday from 9 a.m. to noon and 1 to 4 p.m. at the Oakland County Jail inside the county complex off Telegraph Road.

No cheap thrills for me

by Kathy Greenfield

I couldn't resist the headline: "Are you a thrill-seeker?"

Then I noticed there was a quiz and I was hooked.

I take practically every quiz that appears in newspapers and magazines.

Among other things, I have discovered I'm terrible at trivia, that my vocabulary is "good," that I'm not an alcoholic and that I don't recognize the effects of colors on moods.

Usually the tests serve as a form of entertainment, and I forget them as soon as I've finished. I really had to think to come up with the above list.

Which is almost what happened with the thrill-seeker test.

Written by Dr. S.V. Didato in Parade magazine, the test required simple yes or no answers to a series of statements:

"You enjoy spicy foods." No.

"You'd like a job that requires a lot of travel." No.

"You sometimes take different routes to a place you visit often, just for variety's sake." No.

"You would like to experience hypnosis." No.

"If you were a salesman, you would prefer to work on a commission basis rather than receive a salary." No.

"You sometimes find driving fast to be exciting." No.

"You enjoy a scary movie." Once.

"You enjoy daring rides at amusement parks." No.

The similarity of the answers proved I thrive on security. It also occurred to me that I'm boring, but I dismissed it all and went on with my life.

Then people around me started saying things like "I'd love to learn how to hang glide," "Don't you like to ride roller coasters?" and "I had the best time scuba diving."

I can't stand it.

Let freedom ring!

Consider some of the options we, as Americans, have this Memorial Day Weekend.

We can attend the church, synagogue or mosque or our choice. Or we can stay at home, professing any sort of attitude toward religion that suits us.

Those in Vietnam won't be so fortunate.

We can gather around a backyard picnic table and, over a holiday barbeque, argue the pros and cons of President Reagan's economic policies. We can praise our national leader as a genius, or chastise him as a fool.

It won't be that way in Chile.

We can read the newspaper or magazine or our choice, each representing a different perspective of the day's events. We can turn on our TV or radio and, with a turn of the dial, make our selection in the free market of ideas.

People won't be so lucky in the People's Republic of China.

We can drive our highways without encountering tanks and armored troop carriers; we can walk the streets and speak our minds without fear of intimidation or arrest from soldiers or uniformed thugs who call themselves policemen.

Would that a holiday weekend could be that way in the Soviet Union.

We do indeed, as Americans, have much to be thankful for this Memorial Day, even in these days of economic stress and high unemployment.

The Berlin Wall and events in Poland, Afghanistan, Southeast Asia and South America serve as grim reminders that in much of the world, tyrants and thugs hold the reins of power.

Other places—Bunker Hill, Gettysburg, Flanders Field, Bataan and Normandy—should remind us that the price of maintaining our liberty has, at times, been enormous.

In the past, it has claimed the price of human lives and suffering; at present, it demands the sacrifice of eternal vigilance.

In the spirit of the holiday, it would befit us all to pause for a moment and remember that our "options" this weekend have not come cheaply.

—Al Zawacky

Buckle-up holiday

Across our desk came this plea we feel bears repeating:

"Secretary of State Richard Austin today challenged Michigan motorists to equal or surpass their traffic safety performance over last year's Memorial Day weekend when the lowest number of deaths—nine—were recorded for the weekend.

"No motorist wearing a safety belt was killed on Memorial Day, Fourth of July or Labor Day weekends in 1982.

"Austin said, 'Death can take a holiday on Michigan highways this Memorial Day weekend and 100 percent safety belt use would contribute to this goal.' "

Jim's Jottings

A 40-year denial

by Jim Sherman

Sometimes I listen to too much radio. Take Sunday morning's Ted Strasser program on WJR, Patterns in Music. Like the rest of WJR's music players, Ted lets people tell of their birthdays, club fairs and reunions.

Last Sunday graduates of a class of 1943 were invited to a 40th reunion.

What? Forty years for the class of 1943? My class? It can't really be that long since Vernon High School sent its last class out the door and locked it permanently.

Forty years since I wrote and recited the Class Will? Wonder what I predicted for the other eight members of that august group? I certainly don't remember. Right now I'm hard pressed to come up with their names.

It wasn't what I'd call a close class of nine. Of course, I hadn't been with the group too long. Only since fall of 1942.

I remember my entrance into Vernon better than my exit. I'd started the senior year in Morrice. The last game on our 6-man football league schedule was with Vernon.

The week of the game my folks moved to a block from Vernon High School. I dressed for the game in Morrice, rode to Vernon to compete on the gridiron, and after the game walked home to shower still in the orange and black of MHS. My next, and only other, connection with Morrice High was the senior trip. Vernon's graduating eight didn't have enough money in the treasury to tour a caboose in Durand.

Since I'd help contribute to Morrice's senior voyage Supt. Shoefelt let me join my former classmates on the SS South America and a Lake Huron trip to Mackinac Island.

Our Vernon graduation ceremony was in the Methodist Church, which probably wouldn't be allowed today. Our class needed God's guidance, court or no court.

That was 40 years ago, and now I'm convinced of two things: Now I know I wasn't right prepared for the world ahead, but I knew then I was ready.

Over 15,000 baseball fans plus a home television audience watch and listen to the Clarkston High School Madrigal Singers perform the National Anthem at Tiger Stadium Saturday. Two ground crew members set up microphones in front of the 16 singers. They are Dawn Lambertson, Bill Mosher, Dawn Colling, Greg Bailey, Kim Koerber, Blair Collins, Joy Schmidgall, Alec Puskas, Marget Nelson, Cory Goodrich, Martha Huttenlocher, Paul King, Jody McAllister, Jay Smith, Kelly May and Jeff Blagg.

'Oh say can you see...'

The story behind the CHS Madrigal Singers' Tiger Stadium performance

By Dan Vandenhemel

"A funny thing happened on the way to the Coliseum..."

The Clarkston High School Madrigal Singers traveled to Tiger Stadium to sing the National Anthem before the start of the locally televised game.

On the way to the park, the lead car missed an exit but only went a few miles out of the way to find Michigan and Trumbull.

Inside that same car, members of the Madrigal singers were also practicing the National Anthem while driving down I-96.

After their performance, the group settled down, so to speak, to watch the game.

They changed out of their dresses and jackets, went on food runs, told jokes and watched some of the game that the Tigers won 5-3 over Texas.

In the sixth inning when Texas scored three runs to take the lead, one group member exclaimed: "Hey, we're losing. How did they score three runs?"

The ball game was almost secondary to having a good time.

The students were worried who spilled whose pop, or where the ice-cream vendor was.

Being on the field with over 15,000 people in the park and the television audience looking on didn't seem to bother the singers.

"It was fun," said senior Jodi McAllister. "It was exciting out on the field with everyone watching us. It was neat."

"They weren't nervous out there," said director Grayce Warren. "To them it was just another song to sing. I don't think they are scared of big crowds."

A few of the members, however, admitted there were a few butterflies.

"It's so big out there," said junior Cory Goodrich. "This is my first time here—I almost forgot everything, even the words."

Another first-time singer at the stadium was senior Alec Puskas.

"I almost forgot them," he said. "It was instant panic. I'm glad they had the words on the scoreboard."

This is the second year in a row the group has performed at the park. Last year, Barb Gibson (Kirk's mother) asked the Tigers' front office if the Madrigal Singers could come out. This year was different.

"To be asked back is rare," Warren said. "I think the only reason we were called back is because of how well we did last year. They have requests on file that date back 10 years."

For some of the 16 singers, this was their second trip to the stadium. But for all of them, it was exciting.

"It felt pretty much the same as it did last year," said senior Martha Huttenlocher. "Last year we were nervous. This year we were just excited."

"It was much better this year," said senior Kim Koerber. "I heard a beer commercial was shown while we were singing last year. It was also drizzling. The sun makes it a lot better. Too bad it didn't last longer. As soon as you're out there, you're done and have to come off."

"It was definitely more exciting this year," said senior Kelly May. "The group is a lot closer together. That makes it fun."

"Once I got out there," she added, "I wanted to take my shoes off and run around the bases."

'If it Fitz...'

Time is on her side

by Jim Fitzgerald

Agnes Mary Mansour, the world's most famous exnun, and her supporters should cheer up. There is good evidence that the Vatican, by the year 2333, will rule that it's OK for nuns to attend City Council meetings, just as long as they sit in the back and keep their heads bowed at all times.

Look what happened to Galileo.

It was only 350 years ago that the Roman Catholic Church condemned Galileo for saying the planets rotate around the sun, not the Earth, and already the Vatican is admitting it may have been a little harsh for the Inquisition to sentence him to life imprisonment.

Just a few days ago, in fact, Pope John Paul II noted that he has appointed a committee to study the whole Galileo matter carefully.

The pope wasn't so hasty as to formally renounce the Inquisition trial of Galileo held in 1633, mind you. Nor did John Paul reverse the church's old position by supporting the famous astronomer's pioneering research into the movement of the planets in the solar system. There is no sense going off half-cocked.

"It is only through humble and assiduous study that (the church) learns to dissociate the essentials of faith from the scientific systems of a given age," the pope said.

Such patient study should also be applied to the church's relationship with the political systems of a given age, of course. Today, the Vatican says priests and nuns can't hold public office, and Mansour was forced to quit her religious order so she could continue as director of the Michigan Department of Social Services. But she shouldn't break all her old habits.

IT WILL PROBABLY be only a century or two before the Vatican appoints a committee to study whether Mansour might possibly have been less than an insane heretic for thinking she could serve her God as a nun and direct the Social Services Department at the same time.

After all, that department's main job is aiding unfortunate people, and to say a woman must quit being a Catholic nun to help the poor is the same as saying a mailman must take a day off to deliver mail.

Sure, there are some impatient radicals who think the Vatican has been a little sluggish in officially conceding what everyone knows is true—that Galileo was right and that his persecution was an injustice. Just as there are many people who think the Vatican has been slow in dropping its official ban against girls being "altar boys" and women being priests.

Which brings up an interesting point. Many Catholic churches have altar girls, and I used to live in a city—Lapeer, Mich.—whose mayor, for many years, was a Catholic priest. Also, there is the well-known fact that most U.S. Catholics ignore the Vatican's ban against birth control. How come some heresies evoke stop-or-face-the-Inquisition orders from Rome, and some don't?

IT'S A MATTER of degree, one priest told me. Altar girls are a minor infraction, but if women were allowed to be priests, the next thing you knew they'd want even more important positions, such as chairwoman of the pope's Galileo committee. And if Agnes Mary Mansour were director of the Agriculture Department, the Vatican wouldn't care. But the Department of Social Services administers Medicaid-paid abortions!

It doesn't matter that Mansour is personally opposed to abortion and simply believes poor people and rich people should live under the same secular law. Galileo was probably personally opposed to rotating around the sun and simply believed Earth and the other planets should follow the same traffic pattern.

It also doesn't matter that Mansour's predecessor as social services director as a Catholic male who never felt the inquisitors' wrath.

The important thing is that I don't accuse the Vatican of hypocrisy or sexual discrimination until after giving the matter humble and assiduous study. You will hear from me again on this subject in 350 years.

125 attend community awards

By Dan Vandenhemel

Marty Johnston didn't feel right about winning the Super Person Award at the Independence Township Community Awards Banquet Friday, but she was glad she won.

"It feels strange taking an award for something that you enjoy doing. I'm really surprised," she said.

"My daughter nominated me. This is a real honor."

The 125 people at the dinner gave her a standing ovation as she accepted the award.

Last year's winner, Virginia Walters, presented the plaque to Johnston for her work in the community.

Organizer Ken Bell said the dinner was a non-profit event sponsored by the Clarkston Area Jaycees and the North Oakland Civitans.

"The whole dinner is just to say thanks to all the people who have volunteered over the year," he said.

The Clarkston Rotary Club and the Clarkston Community Women's Club won distinguished service awards—the Rotary Club for their "Shoes for Kids" and the Women's Club for "Lunch with Santa."

Chris Schull also received a distinguished service award as an individual.

Others receiving plaques for their work in the community were: Floyd Zitenski, Special Civitan Award; P.J. and Beverly Dennis, Susie DePorter, Ken Leslie and Lew Wint for Outstanding Volunteers; Julie McClellan for Outstanding Young Citizen; Pete Rose for Outstanding Contribution to Creative Arts; Ruth Basinger for Outstanding Government Official; and Joette Kunse for Outstanding Clarkston Education.

Marty Johnston sits quietly as the list of her accomplishments are read to the crowd of about 125. She received the Super Person Award for the outstanding citizen in the community.

Julie McClellan (far right) heads toward the podium to receive her Outstanding Young Citizen Award at the Community Awards Dinner Friday.

Battle grows to spend $35,400

By Marilyn Trumper

Independence Township's supervisor and treasurer are at odds on how $35,400 should be spent locally from the federal government's Jobs Bill program.

Supervisor James B. Smith favors discovering what jobs can be permanent instead of "...throwing a wad of money at a department head and saying, 'Here, spend it.'"

Treasurer Frederick Ritter favors hiring as many employes as the money will buy for development of the Maybee Road Park, a project funded with Community Development Block Grants.

After brief discussion the board voted May 17th to have the supervisor and treasurer submit a proposal to the county for approval. They are expected to hammer out a plan between them.

According to Lee Mitchell, contract compliance officer for Oakland County, the township can spend its $35,400 in three ways:

On material or labor for community block grant projects already approved, like the Maybee Road Park; to benefit low- to moderate-income households or to eliminate slum or blight; or on a project that creates employment.

"This is not like the CETA program, where people with doctorate degrees were getting federal jobs," Mitchell said. "This bill is designed to help the people who really need it and provide jobs for people who don't have them."

The program is not limited to age, he added.

"The overall intent is to try and employ people and create jobs, but the money can be used to buy materials too," he said.

If Independence Township decides to fund jobs and the county approves the plan, jobs will be advertised in a newspaper, Mitchell said.

Student wins congressional art competition

Michelle Law never entered a contest before. So when she won the honor of having her oil painting selected to hang in the corridor leading to the United States Capitol Building, she reacted with surprise.

"I was sort of flabbergasted," said the Clarkston High School 11th-grader. "I didn't believe it. I said, 'Oh, my gosh.'"

Michelle entered the second annual nationwide Congressional Art Competition at the suggestion of her art teacher, Janet Miller.

Her outdoor scene of a boy in a washtub was copied from a photograph in National Geographic magazine.

The painting was wrapped up and taken to the Pontiac office of Congressman Bob Carr (D-6th District).

Then the call came that she was one of four finalists and inviting her to a reception near Lansing.

Michelle didn't know she'd won until Carr read the names of finalists and announced Michelle's victory May 14.

Her painting will hang in its Washington, D.C., spotlight for a year.

While she did not receive a cash prize, the honor pleased Michelle.

"That's enough," she said.

May 21—Sue Castillo and Audrey Campe lead the Wolves with two hits each in the game.

Wolves 10, Royal Oak Dondero 7

May 21—Julie Marshall hits a grand slam in the top of the 10th inning to win the game. She also hit a three-run homer in the first inning.

Wolves 9, Rochester Adams 1

May 21—The Wolves blow the game open in the sixth inning with seven runs. Clarkston collects eight hits by eight different batters in the win.

Wolves 6, 5, Lake Orion 0, 8

May 18—Clarkston splits the double-header with Lake Orion. Ulasich pitches a shutout in the first game. In the second game Marshall picks up the loss despite going 3-4 including a triple.

Clarkston High School Junior Varsity Wolves 14, West Bloomfield 7

May 20—The Wolves end the season with the win and raise their record to 21-3 overall and 11-1 in the league. The 21 victories are the most ever for the JV team and this is the fourth league title in a row. Cindy Covert and Cindy Law lead the attack with two hits each.

Wolves 10, 13, Lake Orion 6, 5

May 18—The Wolves sweep the double-header from Lake Orion. Jody Law wins the first game and Dawnree DeBoer takes the second. Roseann Hirneisen makes five hits and drives in five runs.

Clarkston Junior High Wolverines Wolverines 20, 17, Lapeer East 16, 16

May 18—Clarkston wins the first game but the second game is stopped in the fifth inning because of injuries. Wolverines Amy Eiden and Michelle Sprung collide on a pop-up and are taken to the hospital. Eiden receives four stitches and Sprung is released with a bump on the forehead. In the first game, Sherri Kulaszewski hits two home runs and drives in six runs.

Open roads beckon area cyclist

By Dan Vandenhemel

Crisp clean air and good exercise are advantages of owning a 10-speed bicycle.

For Jeff Mortz, owning a bike also puts him in touch with nature.

During a visit to Idaho three years ago, the 34-year-old strapped 50 pounds of food and equipment to his 10-speed and tackled the Canadian Rocky Mountains.

Born in Detroit but raised in Moscow, Idaho, Mortz now lives on Dixie Highway in Independence Township.

He's been a serious biker for the last 15 years.

One bicycle trip he'll always remember took place in Kootenay National Park in Canada. He wheeled within 20 feet of elk and sheep.

"At one point on my way up an 11-mile-long pass through the mountains," Mortz said, "I had to wait one-and-one-half hours for a herd of Rocky Mountain sheep to move off of the road.

"I didn't know what to do, those things were huge. I wasn't sure what they would do if I tried to pass them.

"In that area the shoulders of the road are grassy and the sheep and elk come down from the mountain to feed on the grass," he said.

"When I was riding into the wind, I could come right up behind these elks. They are huge—they had racks on them that you only read about.

"Just after entering the park, I was told a grizzly bear was giving people trouble," he said. "The first couple nights sleeping in the woods with just a sleeping bag and no tent was a little scary, especially when the elk would walk by in the middle of the night. I couldn't tell what they were. I didn't get much sleep those nights."

Mortz goes back to the Rockies every year, but now he's into racing.

The rain doesn't stop Jeff Mortz from riding his 10-speed bike. The 34-year-old Independence Township resident, a serious biker for 15 years, coaches the Flying Rhino Cycle Club.

Sports

He coaches the Flying Rhino Cycle Club out of where he works at the Kinetic System Bicycle Shop on Dixie Highway in Springfield Township.

"I'm a racer that hasn't had a chance to race," Mortz said. "I have bad knees and the doctors told me not to ride anymore. I said the heck with that and kept riding."

Many people are afraid of biking because they think it's dangerous Mortz said. But in his 15 years of riding, not once has he been hit by a car.

"I have had eight accidents though. Mostly by my own stupidity," he said.

Last year while riding with the club on Dixie Highway, a horse jumped in front of him and he suffered a severely bruised hip bone.

"We were training and when you're training you concentrate on staying within about four inches of the racer in front of you," he said.

The horse was on the side of the road and just jumped about 12 feet onto the road. I flipped over the horse still holding my bike and landed on my head. If it wasn't for my helmet, I'd be dead."

Even before the accident, Mortz was a firm believer in helmets as safety devices.

Anyone entering the cycling club under 18 years old is strongly urged to wear one.

Safety and the prevention of injuries is one of Mortz' biggest concerns.

"People don't realize that you just can't jump on it should be comfortable.

"There are a lot of good bikes around," he said. "You could pay up to $5,000 for a bike. That may sound crazy to pay that much for a bike but I look at it this way: It's non-polluting form of crazy."

a bike and ride it," he said. "One reason people don't like riding is because the bike doesn't fit right. There are a lot of little adjustments that need to be made for a comfortable ride."

And if you spend $1,800 for a bike as Mortz did.

"I love coaching but it would be difficult to continue"

—Linda Denstaedt

CHS volleyball coach resigns

By Dan Vandenhemel

After 10 years of coaching varsity volleyball at Clarkston High School, Linda Denstaedt is stepping down.

She is expecting her second child in November, just before the season starts.

"I love coaching," she said. "But it would be too difficult to continue. It would be too difficult to juggle teaching, coaching and being a mother. I don't want to quit but my family is more important."

Denstaedt had talked with athletic director Paul

Tungate about a successor to the post.

"I think my assistant (JV coach Nancy Foster) should get the job," she said. "She's been sitting on the bench with me during the matches. She's been the JV coach for four years and is very competent."

Tungate must first post the position in all the Clarkston schools.

"I would like to have someone in the job before the end of this school year. Linda said she'd like to see 'Nance' get the job. She's been with us a while, she's probably the leading candidate for the job," he said.

Big wins ready CHS Wolves for districts

By Dan Vandenhemel

If the past week is any indication, the Clarkston Wolves are all set for the pre-district softball game Friday against Rochester.

The Wolves battered Pontiac Northern Monday 15-0 and 14-1 behind Annette Ulasich's perfect game in the opener.

"We hit the ball real good," said coach Carla Teare. "We seem to be peaking at the end of the season. We need to peak now with the tournament coming up."

On Saturday, the Wolves won three games in the triple-header against Birmingham Groves, Royal Oak Dondero and Rochester Adams.

The Dondero game ended in dramatic fashion. The Wolves won 10-7 as Julie Marshall hit a grand slam in the top of the 10th inning to win the game.

She also hit a three-run homer in the first inning and finished with seven RBI's.

Clarkston beat Groves in the opener 15-4 with Sue Castillo and Audrey Campe each collecting two hits. The Wolves opened the third game up in the sixth inning with seven runs and won 9-2.

Even though the Wolves are hitting and scoring runs in bunches, Teare said she believes they could do better.

"I feel we're not hitting the ball as good as we could," she said. "We need more key hits like Julie's against Dondero. We have to work on that this week before the pre-districts."

The Wolves' bench keeps a close eye on the action as the varsity softball team wins the first game of the double-header against Lake Orion May 18, 6-0.

"We have to get by Rochester to get into the districts. Once we get there, everybody is even. Everybody starts at 0-0. We've beaten them twice this year but they were close. If we play good, we'll beat them, if not anything can happen," she said.

At the start of the season, Teare knew she had a strong ball team and they proved her right by posting a 19-6 record.

"I knew we had an excellent team this year. Three of our losses came to (Waterford) Township," she said. "They are real good. But we didn't get blown away—the girls feel they can beat Township. We know we can. But like I said, once you're in the districts, anything can happen."

How's Your Hearing?

Chicago, Ill.—A free offer of special interest to those who hear but do not understand words has been announced by Beltone. A non-operating model of one of the smallest Beltone aids of its kind will be given absolutely free to anyone requesting it.

It's yours for the asking, so send for it now. It is not a real hearing aid, but it will show you how tiny hearing help can be. The actual aid weighs less than a fourth of an ounce, and it's all at ear level, in one unit.

These models are free, so we suggest you write for yours now. Again, we repeat, there is no cost, and certainly no obligation. All hearing problems are not alike and some cannot be helped by a hearing aid but many can. Thousands have already been mailed, so write today to Dept. 32632, Beltone Electronics Corporation, 4201 W. Victoria St., Chicago, IL 60646.

Up My Alley

My big chance

By Dan Vandenhemel

The urge was there but I couldn't go through with it.

Saturday, I tagged along with the Clarkston High School Madrigal Singers to Tiger Stadium as they sang the National Anthem.

The objective was to take some pictures of them because singing in Tiger Stadium doesn't happen very often.

As soon as the group entered the stadium with their formal gowns and Tuxedos, they were getting strange looks and even stranger questions.

"Hey, did somebody die?" or "Where's the groom? Did we miss the groom? Who's getting married?"

It was easy taking pictures under the stands when they were warming up.

It was even easy to take the shots when they were waiting to go on the field.

But out on the field was a little different.

The game was locally televised which meant many more than the 15,912 fans at the ball park watched the Madrigal Singers sing and watched me take pictures.

Vince Desmond, the Tigers' traveling secretary, said it was all right to go on the field to snap the photos.

"You can go anywhere but on the pitcher's mound," he said.

This was my big chance.

Being on the field gave me the feeling of being small—not the field so much as the stands surrounding it.

Wanting to get some good pictures of the singers with the seats in the background. I had to visualize where I could stand.

Near the mound in front of the group would be the best but I thought I wouldn't be able take pictures for entire song.

So instead of taking them while they sang, I snapped away when they were getting in position. Then I practically sprinted back to stand near Desmond and the Madrigal Singers' director Grayce Warren.

As it turned out, the television camera moved from the singers toward the Tiger dugout.

And right in the middle of the shot was the trio of Warren, Desmond and yours truly.

My parents were watching the game at home in Fair Haven, some 40 miles away. The next day they asked if I had heard them scream when they saw me on TV.

I hadn't, but if I had been prepared for the camera turning on me I would have worked up the courage to do what I wanted to do.

Look straight into the camera, wave and holler, "Hi Mom and Dad."

Girls capture first regional title

By Dan Vandenhemel

The victory was sweetened Saturday when the Clarkston High School Girls' Track team took a first in the regional track meet at Romeo, marking the first time any Clarkston track team has won at that level.

The boys' team also went to the regionals. They only scored 1 1/4 points but ran much better than the score indicates.

"We knew going in that we had a good chance to win," said girls' coach Gordy Richardson. "If we ran well we would win it. The difference in the score was that we took the top three places in the high jump."

Richardson wasn't just boasting with the statement—the girls' team finished the season with an 8-1 record. The only loss came from league champs Rochester.

In the victory, eight girls qualified for the the state finals in Jackson June 4. To do so, they had to finish in the top three in an event.

Julie Beamer and Bridget Kilcline lead the list by qualifying in four events. Beamer will compete in the 100-meter and 300-meter hurdles. She and Kilcline each qualified in the 800-meter and 1600-meter relay. Kilcline also is going for the high jump and the 400-meter run.

"I was blessed to walk into a couple of great classes full of athletes"

—Gordy Richardson

The other qualifiers are: Kelley and Sandy Craig, high jump; Jamie Howenstine, discus; Michelle Trzcinski, 100-meter dash and 800-meter relay; Ronnie Barnard, 800-meter relay and 1600-meter relay; Wendy Learmont, 1600-meter relay.

The 800-meter relay team set a school record with a time of 1:47.14. That broke the record set by the same team earlier in the season against West Bloomfield.

"This is the most we've ever sent to the finals," Richardson said. "Two years ago just Kelley Craig and Sherry Rowland went. Last year just Julie (Beamer). These are really good kids. I was blessed to walk into a couple of great classes full of athletes."

Joe Powe collected the only points for the boys in the high jump when he tied for fourth.

They finished with a 6-3 record which is one the best ever for Clarkston.

"The times we ran were much better than we have run," said boys' coach Walt Wynnemko. "The competition is very close. Mt. Clemens won the meet and they only had around 50 points."

"Every team has one or two great individuals, but you need the breaks when things are that close."

Playoffs open with thriller win for Clarkston

Mike Harbough loses this race to first base in the first game of the Wolves' double-header against Lake Orion May 18. Clarkston lost the first game 6-2 but won the second 8-7.

By Dan Vandenhemel

The Clarkston varsity baseball team got off to a good start in the state playoffs with a 3-2 win over Rochester Saturday.

Shawn Mosele picked up his fifth win of the year against two losses. He pitched seven innings, gave up nine hits, struck out three and walked one.

"His our best pitcher right now," said coach Roy Warner. "They (Rochester) had runners in scoring position twice late in the game and we were able to hold them off."

The playoff win advances the Clarkston High School Wolves to play Pontiac Northern next Friday.

Clarkston was coming off of a loss to West Bloomfield on Friday and a double-header split with Lake Orion Wednesday.

Rick Williams hit a home run in each of the three games to give him six for the year. He raised his average to .500. Mike Harbaugh is the Wolves' leading hitter with a .511 pace.

Against West Bloomfield, the Lakers scored a run in the bottom of the seventh to take a 5-4 victory.

Richie Schrader had tied the game at 4-4 in the top of the seventh with a two-run single. Back in the fourth inning, Williams hit his homer, a two-run shot.

In the double-header, Williams hit a solo shot in the second inning of the first game and another one with nobody aboard in the fifth of the second game.

Rob Mortimore also hit a round tripper in the fourth, his first of the season.

Lake Orion made a late charge in the second game and came close to pulling out the victory.

The Wolves led 8-2 going into the seventh inning, but the Dragons scored five runs to make it close. Mosele recorded the win.

The rest of the season is just a tune-up for the playoffs, Warner said.

"This is what we've been playing for," he said. "I'm really happy with the game."

Live it up with 'Life. Be in it'

June is National Recreation and Parks Month across America with June 4 being national "Life. Be in it" Day.

The Independence Township Parks and Recreation Department is planning a celebration with a week full of activities starting May 29.

The Michigan Week Fun Run starts at 9:30 a.m. Sunday at the Pine Knob Music Theatre. There are no prizes for the 10,000-meter run but everyone in the race will receive a T-shirt.

Other events organized by the department include a road rally, a family bowling tournament, pinoche and euchre tournaments, triples volleyball, 3-on-3 basketball and the Clintonwood Invitational Softball Tournament.

"Traditionally we have over 30 teams in the softball tournament," said department Director Tim Doyle. "We will also have a chicken barbecue on Sunday (June 5) and a deejay on Saturday. The idea of the week is to get people involved. To get them out and into the parks."

Doyle added that people should sign up early for the events so the food can be ordered so they won't run out.

Library enhancers

Susan has a lot of lambs

But unlike Mary, she sells them as breeder stock, for meat—and takes home numerous 4-H prizes

By Dan Vandenhemel

For a little girl, selling sheep at a county fair can be profitable and heartbreaking.

Ten-year-old Susan Gavin has been raising and showing lambs for the last three years with her parents, but she doesn't like the idea of selling them.

"Some are sold as breeder stock," she said. "Others are sold for meat and that's mean. I'd rather keep them as pets."

For the Patterson Elementary fifth-grader, the profit comes from the sales and from awards that are given at the fairs.

Last year at the Oakland County 4-H Fair, Susan had the champion ram and ewe sheep. She proudly displays a pile of blue, pink, purple and green ribbons.

"I like to show," she said. "It's fun. It's fun to win the ribbons."

"Last year at the state fair she won $180," said her father, Ray. "We bought another lamb and she put the rest of it in the bank."

The Gavins have travel as far as Pennsylvania and New York to sell the sheep.

Susan's mother, Marlene, said when they sold one of her special ones in Pennsylvania, Susan worried he wouldn't receive proper care.

"The lady that bought him wrote Susan to tell her the lamb had a good home," Mrs. Gavin said.

Chubby Cheeks, Junior Chubby Cheeks, Big Boy, Cory and Ronnie are just some of the favorites at the home on Trotters Lane in Springfield Township.

"I like those the best because they are nice," Susan said. "They come to me and don't slam you into the fence. They let you pet them. Ronnie's funny because he likes to wear hats and eat my ribbons."

With over 40 sheep there now and at times over 70, Susan finds little time to do other things.

Meetings for 4-H and for the Tri-County Sheep Association, working with the sheep and dancing occupy most of her time.

How does she juggle all the activities?

"Very carefully," she says. "I have fun with the animals. And I have to go to the 4-H meeting to see what's going on."

Feeding the lambs and getting them in shape for showing takes a couple hours a day. And Susan doesn't forget to care for the family's other pets.

"We have three dogs, four cats, a rabbit and a gold fish too," she said. "I mostly take care of them too."

Though she is planning to work with the sheep a while longer, she doesn't see herself doing this forever.

"When I get older," she said. "I want to be a dancer, either a ballet or a jazz dancer."

Trimming the sheep before a show is part of what 10-year-old Sue Gavin does with the animals. She has been helping her parents with the sheep for three years.

One girl, a cornstalk in the play, had this to say to "Wizard of Oz" director Barbara Glover after dress rehearsal: "The cornstalks were so nervous. They were all so nervous, they didn't think they could do it." But they did it very well, and that's one of the rewards for everyone involved in the long hours of rehearsal, the planning and the worrying when a play includes every fourth-grader in a school.

Follow the yellow brick road

By Kathy Greenfield

The dress rehearsal was over.

Ninety Clarkston Elementary School fourth-graders had spent nearly three months practicing the songs, lines of dialogue and choreography for the "Wizard of Oz."

Success was theirs.

The play's director Barbara Glover and musical director Janis Madden knew they'd do well on stage at Clarkston High School's Little Theatre May 19 and 20.

Remembering the moment, Glover's eyes fill with tears.

"Standing backstage there today—it just really gets to me, just seeing them out there," she said.

It all started in Room 14 at Clarkston Elementary, where every fourth-grader met, working up to three rehearsal days a week after school for the past several weeks.

The conditions were crowded. It got so everyone knew all the lines—some children began silently mouthing everything when others practiced.

"The hardest thing for the majority of children...is to realize it's worth it to sit jammed in a room like this for the applause," Glover said, but now they knew.

"One child came up today and said, 'Boy, they really liked us!'"

One goal achieved was that each child realized he or she was important.

"They all have their moment on the stage, so to speak," said Glover, who teaches fourth grade.

"A lot of people couldn't get over how poised they are for children so young," said Madden, who teaches music.

Another was that the youngsters experienced the results of teamwork.

"They see all the things that life's about—it's all commitment to the ultimate goal," Madden said.

As the teachers sat in Room 14 talking about the experiences, they admitted they were exhausted.

But they shared the joys.

As the children split into groups so a photographer can take their pictures for souvenirs, this moment is captured by the Clarkston News camera.

Clarkston shop puts feet first

When the Clarkston Shoe Repair opened May 6, it marked the first time in three years the area has had such a service.

Owner Jon Retzlaff said that is one of the reasons he opened the shop, located on Washington Street behind the Clarkston Masonic Temple.

"I did some research before I made the move," he said. "I came here because the area needed a shoe repair business."

Retzlaff got started in the trade seven years ago in Highland Park, as he says, almost by accident.

"I was a contractor and everything was slowing down," he said. "I had to do something so I went into this. I like it. It's not the same thing everyday. I like working with people."

What's new in business

The Union Lake resident searched two months to find a small community for his shop. He chose Clarkston for two reasons.

"The community needed a repair shop," he said. "And the shop is in the middle of the walking community. I'm geared to have someone drop off what needs to be fixed and go shopping in town then come back to pick it up."

Retzlaff's optimism about his business comes from the knowledge that most people need his service.

"A lot of people have a closet full of shoes that need just a strap or a buckle. With the new shop in town, they can go into the closet and bring those out to be fixed," he said.

Jon Retzlaff puts a new heel on a boot.

Bixby on committee

David Bixby, manager of the Oakland University Bookcenter, has been appointed to serve as a member of the medium-sized stores committee of the National Association of College Stores.

The committee reviews the association's programs and services as they apply to medium-sized stores and develops educational programs.

Bixby is president of the Michigan Association of College Stores, a post he also held in 1974-75.

He resides on East Washington Street in Clarkston.

Kay accepts GMC post

Laurie Kay has been appointed staff assistant-communications for the new General Motors Assembly Division, Lake Orion. A Davisburg resident, she has been employed by GMC since 1976. She was graduated from Adrian College 1973 with a bachelor's degree in history and English. In her new assignment, she will be responsible for internal and external plant communications including employe communications, communications training and news media relations, and will serve as plant representative with local civic organizations.

Schebor heads realtors

Ronald Schebor has been appointed the new executive vice president of the Flint Board of Realtors. His responsibilities include coordinating all local board activities along with state and national meetings. The 736-member board of realtors serves Genessee County. Schebor is a longtime resident of Clarkston.

An Apple
for the Teacher

Editor's note: Designed to give recognition to teachers in the Clarkston school district, an Apple for the Teacher is the work of a Clarkston Education Association (the teacher's union) committee. The columns appear bi-weekly. This week's author is Mary Ann Oshier, a speech therapist.

Anita Davison began her elementary teaching career in Clarkston schools 27 years ago, and she is just enthusiastic about her job now as she was then.

She currently teaches both a regular and developmental kindergarten class at Clarkston Elementary School.

Born in Pontiac and raised in Oxford, she now lives in the Village of Clarkston with her husband.

Anita has three grown sons and six grandchildren of whom she is very proud.

She states that her biggest handicap but greatest achievement was completing her education while working at two jobs and raising her children alone while a divorced parent.

She obtained a bachelor's degree in elementary education from Wayne State University, Detroit, and a master's degree in guidance and counseling at Michigan State University, East Lansing.

Anita is active in several professional organizations.

Anita Davison

She belongs to Delta Kappa Gamma, an educational sorority, and the National Association of Educators of Young Children.

She is also a lecturer and Certified Examiner for the Gesell Institute of Human Development.

She keeps busy in her free time with such hobbies as downhill skiing, tennis, knitting, reading and genealogy study.

She also enjoys traveling and has traveled extensively through the United States and Europe.

As a result of Anita's training at the Gesell Institute where she did an in-depth study of the theories of child development, Anita has derived her basic philosophy of kindergarten teaching.

She views children as "whole" individuals, taking into consideration their social, emotional, mental and physical development.

In the past 16 years as a kindergarten teacher, she observed many bright children who were not succeeding academically because they exhibited "young" overall developmental tendencies.

Thus arose the need for a program where "young" kindergarten-age children are allowed to grow with minimal structure and a lot of nurturing.

Anita is involved in a statewide kindergarten task force and has been instrumental in establishing the developmental kindergarten program in Clarkston as well as other school districts in Michigan.

This teacher's involvement with her students does not end after they leave kindergarten.

It has been her practice to write former students upon their high school graduation and she has received many grateful replies.

Anita's dedication to Clarkston's students is not a "nine-to-five" affair!

Apply now for SCAMP's camp

Applications are now being taken for Clarkston SCAMP's eighth summer daycamp program.

The camp serves children and young adults, ages 3 to 25, who have special needs including learning disabilities, mental impairment, emotional impairment or physical disability.

There is also a preschool program open to all 3- to 5-year-olds.

"We'd really like to expose more preschoolers to that program," said SCAMP Director Jim Butzine.

"A lot of preschoolers have not had kids to play with. They come into kindergarten without peer experience and the preschool component is good for that purpose. We get them used to a school setting, and they come in for a full day."

The camp program is administered by the Clarkston school district and is held at Sashabaw Junior High School and Independence Oaks County Park.

Positive self-image and academic maintenance are stressed with arts and crafts, field trips, gym and music, water sports and classroom instruction.

"We're trying as we have in the past to meet the needs of the learning disabled," Butzine said.

This year transportation will be provided in the Clarkston, Holly, Brandon, Waterford, Rochester and Lake Orion school districts.

Tuition is $100 if paid prior to June 1 and $120 after June 1. Financial assistance is available.

Dates for SCAMP this year are June 27 through July 28.

Fair fund raiser

Sixth-graders at Andersonville Elementary are counting on great participation at their upcoming fair so they'll make it to camp.

The fund raiser's scheduled Friday, June 3, from 6 to 9 p.m. at the school, 10350 Andersonville, Springfield Township.

Evening fun promises to include games like Jarco, Jail, the famous Dunk, clown faces, thumbprint pictures and a variety store.

Chuck E. Cheese is scheduled for an appearance.

In addition, promoters promise a snack bar with a cotton candy, popcorn and ice cream cart outside.

Game tickets are 25 cents and raffle tickets are 50 cents. Drawings are expected throughout the evening.

The sixth-grade camp program occurs during the school year, allowing the children to experience a week at camp together.

For more information, phone 625-2932.

Imagination conquers near-disaster

Olympics of the Mind award heralds creativity of SJHS seventh-graders

By Kathy Greenfield

They thought all was lost.

But a group of Sashabaw Junior High School seventh-graders turned an almost-disaster into victory.

Their story begins:

Construction of their Leonardo Da Vinci Spring Car had been underway every night after school for about two weeks, with planning adding two more weeks.

The papier mache, chicken wire, cardboard tubing, steel bars, garage door torsion spring and bicycle wheels were in place.

It was the night before their appearance in the Olympics of the Mind competition at Central Michigan University in Mt. Pleasant.

The five GATE (gifted and talented education program) pupils who volunteered for the competition were worried.

Annmarie Mudge takes it from there:

"We weren't sure it would work so we came up with an alternate idea."

They planned a funeral for their car, with a little help from their teacher Sue Kiser and Jimmy Clare's dad, James DeKoninck.

"I wrote the eulogy on the way up there to be on the safe side," said Annmarie.

When it was time to unload the car, their worst fears were realized.

"The weld was weak on the rear axle and it broke on the way there," said Corey Whisner.

"We attempted to carry (the car) to the gym door," said Mike St. Charles.

"We couldn't even get it through the gym door," said Corey. "I went to get my dad."

"...and piece by piece we took it back to the truck," said Mike.

Their plan shifted into full gear and they were ready when it was time to present the results of all their work.

Wearing brown garbage bags fashioned to resemble 16th-century monks' attire were driver Jimmy, Wendy Scroby, Corey and Mike. Annmarie wore a white garbage bag—she was a nun.

They carried the car that wouldn't run.

Appropriate music was provided by Corey on trombone and Jimmy on clarinet—they had taken along their horns just in case.

"Ann and I acted like we were mourning. We walked behind the car," said Wendy, who read the eulogy: "We are gathered here together to pay our respects to the remains of our Leonardo Da Vinci Spring Car..."

Part of the competition was to convert a 16th-century vehicle to a futuristic one while inside a "time machine."

Once inside, the five whipped off their garbage bags (they wore dark and light blue sweaters and pants underneath), sprayed their hair with punk rock hair spray and reappeared playing jazz.

"You know, in New Orleans they play jazz for funerals," said Jimmy.

While Jimmy Clare sits inside the car, his classmates gather round—(from left) Mike St. Charles, Corey Whisner, Wendy Scroby and Annmarie Mudge. Renee Davis also worked on the car, but couldn't attend the Olympics of the Mind competition because of a broken ankle. "My foot...kept swelling up. I was a little disappointed," she said.

They didn't find out they'd won the Creativity Award until two days after the May 5th competition. They said they were surprised.

But while this story has a happy ending, they plan to make a change when they enter the contest next year.

"The only thing we'd do different is to get started earlier and be more organized," said Corey.

Freedom Joy is Jr. Miss Poppy

Only one thing bothered 9-year-old Freedom Joy Lund when she was selling Poppies to benefit veterans.

"She couldn't understand when people said no," said her mother, Linda.

Freedom Joy Lund represents the American Legion Chief Pontiac Post No. 377 of Independence Township as Junior Miss Poppy.

As one of her duties as Junior Miss Poppy of the American Legion Chief Pontiac Post 377 of Independence Township, Freedom sold the poppies Friday and Saturday at the Pine Knob Pharmacy and Pontiac State Bank near the corner of Sashabaw and Maybee roads.

After selling 375 poppies and gathering $241.16 to help veterans and their families, Freedom talked about her experiences.

She had a word for people who wouldn't buy a Poppy: "Rude."

And she had words of praise for those who did: "That was very nice."

A whirl of activities have surrounded the Jayno Adams Elementary School third-grader since she was selected to represent the American Legion Post.

The book she prepared of post activities won first prize in the American Legion 18th District competition in Oxford May 6 and it will be entered in the Regional contest in Ypsilanti.

She presented a Poppy to the mayor of Pontiac. She's appeared at numerous banquets.

And she recited her Poppy presentation for the WPON radio station.

She grins, and doesn't hesitate a moment, as she repeats the speech she's memorized that was written by a friend.

"I'm not very big as you can surely see. But this little flower means a lot to me. It's a ray of light for any veteran's family Who seems to have lost the fight. So when you donate to the Poppy fund, Remember your Junior Miss Poppy, Freedom Joy Lund."

Her next scheduled appearances are in Memorial Day parades in Pontiac and Clarkston.

No guard for 1

One Clarkston Junior High student must learn to cross Middle Lake Road at M-15 alone—without the help of a guard.

Clarkston has paid its crossing guard $25 a week, $5 for each hour on duty, to cross the lone junior high student.

Two weeks ago, in an effort to save money, the Clarkston Village Council agreed to end the practice.

11 want the job

Eleven people have applied for the new enforcement officer's job in Independence Township, but building and planning Director Kenneth Delbridge has whittled eligible candidates to three.

On May 17 board members gave Delbridge the high-sign to begin joint interviews with the supervisor.

The management position pays $18,000 a year with approximately $7,000 in benefits.

In addition, neighboring Brandon Township to the north would like 25 percent of the new employee, according to Delbridge.

"Brandon Township eliminated their building director and they're experiencing a backlog," he told the board: "They'd like to pick up 25 percent of this guy's salary."

"There's a lot that still has to be worked out, and we've talked about a 30-day notice of termination on both sides if there's a problem, but I think we should try it at least on a trial basis, at least until it gets to the point where I need him 100 percent of the time."

After discussion, the board agreed to have Delbridge pursue the proposal.

NOTICE OF A PUBLIC HEARING ON INCREASING PROPERTY TAXES

PLEASE TAKE NOTE that on June 2, 1983 at 7:30 p.m. at 6389 Clarkston Road the Board of Education of the Clarkston Community Schools will hold a public hearing on the levying in 1983 of an additional proposed millage rate of 1.8438 mills for operating purposes pursuant to Act 5, Public Acts of Michigan, 1982.

The Board of Education has the complete authority to establish that 33.3300 mills be levied in 1983 for operating purposes if an election renewal proposed of 5.0000 mills receives a favorable vote.

The maximum additional proposed millage rate would increase revenues for operating purposes from ad valorem property tax levies in 1983 otherwise permitted by Act 5, Public Acts of Michigan, 1982 by 5.86 percent.

The figure for increase in revenue for operating purposes is based on the latest estimate of state equalized valuation of property located within the school district. State equalized valuation will not be finalized until after the fourth Monday in May. In the event that state equalized valuation as finalized is for any reason higher than the estimate used for this hearing, the Board of Education must hold another public hearing before levying millage on any higher valuation.

The purpose of the hearing is to receive testimony and discuss the levy of an additional millage rate for operating purposes. Not less than seven (7) days following the public hearing, the Board of Education may approve all or any portion of the proposed additional millage rate.

The Board of Education has proposed this millage for operating purposes in recognition of the responsibility to maintain and sustain an effective educational program for the community.

This notice is given by order of the Board of Education.

Their spirit of comaraderie undampened by the rain, members of Clarkston Junior High School's student government cluster together for a photo of wet heads. The students volunteered their time Thursday to pick up litter in downtown Clarkston to help the merchants prepare for the annual Spring Stroll. Flower

Adventure co-owner Marianne Gaulin asked them to help out by cleaning up and she called The Clarkston News during the cloudburst. "They were going to spruce up the town for Spring Stroll and they're going to do it!" she said with admiration for their spunk.

Davisburg facelift begins

The first phase of the $85,000 Downtown Davisburg Improvement Project has been approved by the Springfield Township Board.

The board voted May 10 to have Mosher-Kapelczak Inc. engineering company begin the designing phase of the project.

The designing costs are to be about $7,000. The estimated construction cost of $70,000 does not include landscaping the area.

Included in the project are the designing of sidewalks, road grading, painting street parking areas and the moving of public utilities.

"The utilities are going to take the longest to get the moves approved," said township Supervisor Collin Walls.

"The engineering company won't be doing the landscaping because they have no one who knows where to plant a tree. I've talked to Bordine's and they said they could have a landscape architect do the job for about $200."

10 Years Ago
May 24, 1973

William Martin is trying to save two giant elm trees on his property on Main Street. He's received permission from the state Department of Natural Resources to use a new fungicide to combat Dutch Elm Disease.

Tami Keating is named teen of the week by Clarkston Youth Assistance. A Sashabaw Junior High School ninth-grader, she's an all-A student.

A mountain of junk was accumulated at the Ben Powell landfill last week as Independence Township residents unloaded a year's collection of trash.

Sue Latter, Clarkston High School track star, now has four medals. She won the Girls' State Track finals last weekend in East Lansing, bringing home the first-place awards in the 440- and 880-yard dashes. Her other medals were won in the regional contest.

Grocery bargain: butter, 79 cents a pound.

Purchase a brand new 1973 Pontiac Catalina for $3,277 complete with white walls and radio.

25 Years Ago
May 22, 1958

Connie Blimka was hostess to 12 guests at a breakfast Sunday morning and then they all went to the high school and helped the clean-up committee take care of the props and equipment used at the prom.

Saturday evening Lucy Oakley celebrated her 16th birthday with a slumber party for 14 girlfriends.

All enjoyed the visiting and snack time that lasted most of the night.

Ron Jyleen, Anita Haddrill, Linda Wilkinson, Mary Inman and Judy Inman, members of the editorial staff of the Wolf Cry, were in Ann Arbor all day Friday attending the 31st annual convention of the Michigan Interscholastic Press Association.

Barbara Rockwell, Nancy Curtis and Gail Weston held a party before the prom at the Holcomb Street home of the Charles Rockwells. Eighty classmates attended.

Grocery bargains: chunk tuna, 79 cents a can; pineapple-grapefruit drink, 4 cans for $1; cottage cheese, 2 pounds for 39 cents; oleo, 2 pounds for 79 cents; pot roast, 55 cents a pound.

For $3.35 a week, you can reach 15,000 people in over 4000 homes every week with an advertising message on this page. Call 625-3370 and place your message today!

They're off to see the Wizard, the wonderful Wizard of Oz. From left are the scarecrow played by Brian Petit, the cowardly lion by Reese Vogel, Dorothy by Anissa Howard and the tin woodman by Todd Conklin. The fourth-graders performed in the starring roles.

The road to success

"It's just the sheer love of doing this with the children—to do as much with each child as possible," said Glover.

"If you could only see where they started. I guess only the two of us know."

Also contributing heavily to the play's success were fourth-grade teachers Ruth Kelsey and Karen Yakmalian. Working with parent volunteers, Kelsey was responsible for costumes and Yakmalian for set design.

Special thanks should also go to CHS teacher Barbara Gibson and CHS senior Alec Puskas, the women said.

"We couldn't have done it without them," Glover said. "I know that sounds trite, but it's true."

Once the children learned the lines and the songs, they had to begin using their hands for emphasis. Music director Janis Madden gives a tip.

Director Barbara Glover keeps a close watch from backstage at the Clarkston High School

Little Theatre as Todd Conklin, Anissa Howard, Reese Vogel and Brian Petit practice.
