Vandals hit Depot Park

By Kathy Greenfield

Vandals struck Clarkston's Depot Road park early Tuesday morning, then destroyed sign posts in other village locations.

Damages were estimated at $1,000 by village DPW Director Gar Wilson.

Fontie ApMadoc, village beautification chairperson, put out the word there'll be a $100 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of those responsible.

The vandalism was discovered by DPW employee Bob Pursley when he arrived at work at 8 a.m. Tuesday.

A piece was broken off the playground equipment installed Sunday, parts of the fence around the creek were broken, an "authorized vehicles only" sign was found in the stream, the "do not enter" sign at the intersection of Depot and Holcomb roads and the "one way" sign in the alley were down, and railings on the park's band shell were broken.

"I don't know why anyone would want to do it. It's dumb," said Pursley. "It was probably just something to do—nothing to do on Monday night, so they came down and destroyed the park."

Damage to the newly installed "Inches," a metal playground caterpillar-like toy, could provide a clue to the vandals.

"Somebody must have part of our toys in their bedroom," said Wilson, who noted Inches' head was missing. "I don't know. It seems like you can't have anything."

He placed the time the vandals struck at sometime between midnight and 8 a.m.

Wilson was at the fire station on Church Street until midnight, he said, and usually squealing tires can be heard when something's going on.

The "do not enter" sign looked like it had been knocked down with a vehicle, he said.

There was a Clarkston Village Council meeting Monday night and some members of the council, including Trustee ApMadoc, were watching children play on the new playground equipment in the park before the meeting began.

"They were just having a ball out there. I just thought it was the greatest thing," she said. "I think it's just a crying shame and I certainly hope we have somebody who will call in."

Those with knowledge of the crime can call village hall at 625-1559 or the Oakland County Sheriff's Department at 858-5000.

Village gets $400 increase for roads

The Village of Clarkston is $400 richer in the state's gas and weight tax revenue payment for the second quarter of 1983.

The village received $4,919 compared to last year's allotment of $4,515.

The increase is explained by the 2-cent-a-gallon tax raise implemented the first of January, according to the Michigan Department of Transportation.

The village traditionally uses the money for road repair.

ZIP SLEDDING ALONG: It's all the rage for this trio on Dixie Lake in Springfield Township. Look, no hands, gestures Robbie Sample as he kneels on the plastic sled-like water toy in front of Nikki Lebow (standing at left) and Karl Swift. Robbie and Karl of Springfield Township are the guests of Nikki, who lives in Ohio, and her grandmother, Bev Lebow, who lives on Dixie Lake. Bev is a willing accomplice as she takes the kids for numerous spins around the lake. "It's risky. I like risky things," says Nikki. But her friend Karl quickly cuts in with, "Oh, it is not risky. It's fun. It's exciting to go on. It kind of tests your creativity—how many things you can do without falling off."

Cable company pays $2,500

Independence Township won't have to pay for the attorney, counseling and data collecting fees involved with the review of Concord Cablevision, the one cable company that withdrew its proposal earlier this spring.

Concord agreed to an out-of-court settlement and will pay $2,500, about $700 less than the fees associated with its review, according to James R. Smith, township supervisor.

"They have 15 days to get us the money," Smith said.

Multi-Cablevision won the township's contract and continues to install its cables on schedule, with hook-ups to begin in December and completion of the entire system expected by next summer.

-Correction s-

In a story in last week's Clarkston News, it was incorrectly stated that there is 42 percent unemployment in the six-community area that makes up the Greater Pontiac Consortium, a service delivery area for the federal Job Training Placement Act.

The story should have said the six-community area has 42 percent of the unemployment in Oakland County.

In last week's Clarkston News, it was incorrectly stated that Custom Decorating was the last team from Clarkston to win the Clintonwood Invitational Softball Classic in 1977.

In fact, the Clarkston Fuel Pumpers won it in 1981.

hoe their garden plot next to the township's DPW building. The mother/daughter team jumped at the township's offer of free garden space, and their green thumbs work.

2 reap benefits from garden offer

By Marilyn Trumper

When Independence Township offered gardeners free use of land next to the DPW building, Carole Fisher and her mom, Charlotte Cumming, rose to the occasion with hoes and spades in hand.

From 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. the mother/daughter team labor under the hot sun, stumbling through the rocky but rich ground, and vie for shade under a makeshift canopy.

Charlotte's orangish-pink straw hat rivals the color of the healthy zinnias that make the garden's southern border. Marigolds add more color.

"I couldn't figure out why she wanted all these flowers planted," said Carole from under a big straw hat with a purple sash. "Now I know. They really make the garden beautiful."

The summer draught forced the pair to daily haul 30 and 40 one-gallon jugs filled with water to keep their garden alive.

The corn, the third crop planted this season, is four feet high. The first two crops didn't have ears.

Sunflowers put in a shabby performance, but the tomatoes, cukes, peppers, potatoes, sweet potatoes, celery, beans, cabbage, watermelon, eggplant, lettuce, green onions, broccoli, cauliflower and brussel sprouts flourish.

Chicken wire keeps small animals out and the garden's perimeter is marked with white string wrapped around wooden posts of different lengths.

"When we first came out and took a look at this, it was rough. I thought, 'Let's just forget it,'" Charlotte said.

"Then we talked about it, and paid a man $60 to till the soil. This is good soil. When we first started there were 12 of us—but most of them dropped out."

She points to withered gardens spotting the field. Gardens started, then left to the elements.

"There was one young man, he rode a motorcycle. He really wanted a garden. I know he had heat stroke," Carol said. "It was a real hot day and we didn't do much, just sat under (the canopy). He worked in the sun all day long hauling water. I don't know where he was getting it."

"After that day he never came back."

With a hoe, Charlotte pokes at a tomato plant. "I had one of these the other day. It tasted like a tomato used to. So good."

The garden, they say, is organic.

"We don't like to use sprays. Instead we have a nice bird that works good and keeps the insects out," laughs Charlotte.

Harvesting through the summer, Charlotte and Carole say they'll can and freeze the crops.

"It's easier to ask us what we don't have," Charlotte said. "We don't have tobacco or peanuts—but we will next year!"

Program for pregnant teens

By Kathy Greenfield

New this year in Clarkston schools is a program for pregnant teen-agers or those with small children. It is called P.A.C.E.—Parent and Child Education.

"I'm really excited about it," said teacher-director Lee Wells, who conducted a similar program in Lake Orion last year.

"I have a smile on my face every time I think about it. It was marvelous for me as well as for the students that I had last year."

The class will meet at the Clarkston Community Learning Center on Maybee Road in Independence Township.

There'll be a nursery for the children, or they can stay with their mothers while classes are underway.

The emphasis is on individual programs for the students so they can earn credits toward graduation and also learn how to cope with the changes in their lives.

"The student's child is just as important as the student. We try to do something with the children daily in the room," Wells said.

The course work includes academics as well as what Wells calls "survival," with consumer and child development, art, exercise and speakers.

"It's just a very positive thing," she said. "There seems to be a need for it in the area. I want it to be a very positive thing for them."

Enrollment will be open all year.

Similar programs once conducted in Waterford and Lake Orion are no longer offered, and some enrollment is expected from those areas, said Mel Vaara, assistant superintendent of Clarkston schools.

"This is our first attempt at it and we're hoping to get 10 to 12 or 13 (students). If we get that many, the program will be entirely self-sustaining."

Vaara said he's not sure how many pregnant teen-agers there have been in Clarkston schools in the past, but the number is small.

"It's not a real problem in our district," he said. "There are some students who are very comfortable in high school even though they are pregnant."

"But I'm sure there are many junior high school students especially and some high school students who are very uncomfortable in that situation. This is an alternate."

Wells will be at the community learning center, 5275 Maybee, beginning Aug. 29 weekdays from 8:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

Parents and their daughters are welcome to stop in to look at the classroom and nursery and ask questions.

Those who wish to speak to Wells prior to Aug. 29 may call the learning center at 673-7756 and leave a message. She'll call back.

Parade Sept. 5

Plans for Clarkston's last big fling of the summer are underway by the Clarkston Rotary Club, the hosts of the Labor Day Parade.

This year's theme is "Volunteerism" and feature units are wanted from as many local clubs as possible.

Groups interested in entering a float or marching unit may contact parade chairman Homer Biondi at 625-5636 or 625-2140.

There are also a number of specialty groups that could be sponsored by local businesses.

Planned, too, is a Kiddie Clown Kontest for children up to age 10 with prizes for make up and costumes. All contestants will be invited to march in the parade.

It's scheduled at 10 a.m. on Monday, Sept. 5.

Township says no to league request

As far as Independence Township is concerned the Michigan Municipal League will have to finance its own lawsuits.

On Aug. 2, the board denied a request for $300 to help finance a defense fund designed to help pay league members' court costs, agreeing that the fund is sometimes used to pay for lawsuits against townships in general.

According to Independence Township Supervisor James B. Smith, the league often represents class-action lawsuits and most of its members are cities and villages.

"They have asked a few communities that are around our size to help with the fund," he said. "The legal defense fund is to subsidize the attorney fees. The league goes in and helps a member community fight their case."

Road paving

Two areas in Independence Township are scheduled for road paving.

The township is to pay 25 percent and benefiting property owners the remaining 75 percent, according to the Oakland County Road Commission.

At the end of August, 2.7 miles of street in Sunshine Acres Subdivision are scheduled for work at a cost of $204,914.

In addition, .8 of a mile of Pine Knob Trail and Pine Knob Lane is to be paved at a cost of $80,218.

Chiropractic Clinics

Millions of chiropractic patients have experienced a relief from pain and annoying symptoms of disease and feel very grateful knowing what chiropractic care can do. Certainly every chiropractor sees many patients who experience immediate relief or extraordinary unexpected recovery.

However a chiropractor's goal is higher and more enduring than just temporary relief. An aspirin will give "temporary relief." Chiropractors adjust the vertebrae of the spine to get at the CAUSE of nerve interference and ill health. Spinal stability can increase, muscle tension can be replaced by tone, nerve function can increase or decrease in different areas and recuperation of the organs can occur as the body regulates itself back to normal. These are fundamental changes occurring within the body, and are naturally regulated by the body.

Chiropractors have been adjusting people since 1895. There are many older people alive who have been under regular chiropractic maintenance care for their entire lives. They are living testimonials to what regular spinal check-ups can do in maintaining a healthy body and an active, productive life.

The greatest compliment you can give your chiropractor and yourself is to stay healthy, vital and active throughout your entire life.

Random thoughts

Kathy Greenfield

For me, the best time of the day for random thinking is in the morning.

I consider it to be a sort of mental exercise and I feel better if the alarm rings and I have enough time to let my mind wander over whatever pops in for 10 or 15 minutes before I have to be in a hurry.

While I'm not just waking up right now, it's time to put a few of these random thoughts on paper.

Don't you just love the name of the first American woman in space—Sally Ride.

It sounds like something somebody thought up for a novel and is perhaps even better than Sally Spacefirst or Sally Starship, two obvious choices for pretend names.

That reminds me of a column I read in a weekly newspaper from Sioux Falls, S. D., that said it was about time an American woman finally became an astronaut. We were only 20 years behind the Russians on that one.

But the column called her Sally throughout, and that surprised me.

If the man who wrote the column had been writing about one of her male counterparts my guess is he would have taken the less-familiar tack of calling the man by his last name.

We tend to hang on to our traditions.

My father pointed out last week that instead of blaming office mistakes on typographical errors everyone is blaming "the computer."

How true that is.

His particular frustration came after his automobile insurance company canceled his policy.

My brother, who has the same first and last name as my father but not his middle name, had canceled his insurance policy with the firm.

Presto. My dad's policy was canceled, too. He drove to the insurance firm, talked to an agent and wrote a check to cover his insurance.

Back came a letter that said the check could not be accepted because the policy was canceled.

Whose fault was this?

Yep, the computer's.

I, too, have blamed the computer when things that have been done somehow vanish between typesetting on a computer and appearing on paper.

But I always try to add that when the computer errs it's a human error. None of that ever makes me feel better.

I do know that my job is easier now that we have the computer than it was before.

Now if they only made a computer that knew when you were making mistakes.

There are numerous messages out there that the economy is improving, and two that come to mind have to do with the Clarkston schools board of education.

The atmosphere at meetings is becoming more relaxed. The jokes, smiles and laughter are getting close to what they were three years ago.

A sure sign, however, came this week when the possible closing of Clarkston Junior High School was mentioned again.

I'm still not sure how I feel about that. I know renovating the portion of the school that's 53 years old would cost a fortune.

But it's from the same era as the junior high school I attended, and I love old buildings.

My house is a bit older than that and it sure has its maintenance problems but I wouldn't trade it for anything new I've seen.

Letters to editor

Park work 'fishy'; answers wanted

I am so glad you have given the controversy of the Maybee Park property some recognition.

As I stated in my two previous conversations with Clarkston News reporter Marilyn Trumper, there definitely is something fishy going on over there.

The worst part of it is no answers were given to our questions.

Are all political figures crooked or is it just they do not care about voters and their rights once elected?

I still want to know why we, "the taxpayers," are paying to mow, trim and cut down trees for a private corporation. CETA and Job Corps are paid by "OUR" taxes.

I quote Mr. Tomothy Doyle's comment in the Aug. 3 Clarkston News. "My people are patiently waiting for him (the contractor) to start work so they can get out there and do the seeding and trimming and everything we do. Until then they worked on the lot."

WHY??

Does Clarkston not have any property of their own to work on?

If not, why don't they mow across the street on either side of my house? I'd like mine to look good also.

Is it a normal thing to trade 13 men's labor for three or more days before negotiating with the owners?

I was told they were working on the lot in hopes the owners would allow equipment and access to the park.

CLARKSTON NEWS LETTER POLICY

We welcome our readers' opinions. Letters to the Editor must be at The Clarkston News office by noon Friday to be considered for the following week's paper. We reserve the right to edit all letters for the sake of brevity and clarity and to limit the number of letters from any one individual on any one issue. We don't publish open letters or copies of letters sent elsewhere. Letters must be signed and a phone number and address included. Names will be withheld on request.

Now that the property is up for sale, will the new owners allow the useage also?

If not, look at how many thousands of dollars that have been spent improving that lot.

It has been groomed since May and, would you believe, the park has only had a minor amount of work done on it.

In May I talked to Mr. Doyle and he said he had no idea why the private property was being mowed and he referred me to Mr. Smith (James B. Smith, the township supervisor).

When I talked with Mr. Smith he denied knowing anything about the mowing and promised he'd get back with me, but he didn't.

I did talk with his secretary a couple times with no satisfaction.

Isn't it strange work is being done and absolutely no one knows why.

Why aren't you giving us any answers Mr. Smith and Mr. Doyle, or is this the way the political ball bounces?

Roberta Buckmaster

Breaking summer

by Jim Sherman

We want fall to be colorful, crisp, full of footfalls and bountiful of harvest.

We want winter to cover our land with snow, not blizzards, but the stuff just right for outdoor sports, snowball fights, and the Christmas setting.

We want our spring to be full of smell. It's the coming-out-season for casting off coats and inhaling clover, for thinking of vacation and planning, and for cultivating soil and brightening our surroundings.

We want summer to be a lot like the summer of 1983. Maybe it was a touch too warm and humid at times, but it beats wearing sweaters as we did in 1981, as I recall.

We want summer to be so we can use the beaches, water, and the outdoors like we did this past summer.

And, though my priorities haven't let me go to our Engadine retreat yet this year, I don't feel a traitor in referring to summer in past tense.

August can be hot, no doubt, but stores don't have fall clothing on racks for nothing. Cooler nights are close and extended hot spells are unlikely.

It was a great summer. Hope it's a great fall.

I've been wondering if all the eruptions of thunder and tremendous cracking of lightning last Sunday night wasn't the breaking of the back of summer.

It's been years since we've had a summer like this one . . . like old timers refer to as 'old fashioned hot summer'. The wilting high temperatures and equally high humidities of day and perspiring nights.

The series of 90-plus-degree days sapped strength, loaded beaches, made sailors out of landlubbers as they sought cooler breezes, and gave rise to sales of fans and air conditioners.

July sent Michiganians outdoors. Weekends without rain loaded golf courses, increased festival attendance, and camp grounds were filled as people got out and enjoyed.

For those of us who like our Michigan seasons, summer did not leave us wanting as winter did. Spring, too, was less than we tend to imagine that season should be . . . if you remember April and May were rather wet.

In this upper mid-west, where we brag about our seasonal changes (as in: I wouldn't live in the sunbelt where they don't have seasons), we want our quarterly changes.

Editorial

Congress does respond to noise

Label this one a victory for the overburdened taxpayer.

Faced with an avalanche of hostile mail, Congress has decided to squelch plans to withhold interest and dividends for income tax purposes. The happy fact is that despite the growing complexity of government, despite the cumbersome bureaucracy, despite the arrogance of some public officials, Washington is responsive when the people make enough noise.

Critics of repeal contend that the federal government will pay dearly for its action in the form of unreported income and higher deficits, adding that withholding was not a "new tax," but simply a new way of collecting an old one.

Those are half-truths. In the first place, repealing a tax scheme that was never actually initiated costs nothing. And the federal government's deficit problem is the result of spending policies, not a lack of revenue.

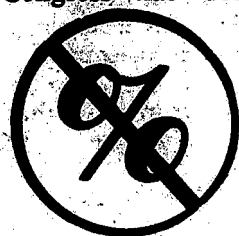

Secondly, anyone who has ever taken out a loan knows that time and money are often opposite sides of the same coin. Collecting taxes at the source, rather than waiting until they are officially due, may not be a new tax per se. But it does deny the individual the use of those dollars months before the money is actually due April 15. In that sense, withholding was indeed a new tax—one more burden on an American taxpayer already bled white by federal, state and local government.

Rather than wring their hands over unreported interest revenues, Congress and the president should concentrate their efforts on controlling federal spending—and perhaps even give some thought to exempting a large portion of interest and dividend income from taxation entirely.

ly. What better way to encourage savings and investment? Those are two factors we must have in abundance if the economy is ever to return to full health.

--A.J.Z.

Those $1.2 billion federal loan guarantees were going to be paid in full. The basket case of the American automobile industry was back in the black. Lee Iacocca strode before the National Press Club in Washington last month, gripped the podium and said, "We borrow money the old-fashioned way—we pay it back!"

Iacocca's words hadn't yet echoed off all four walls when the United Auto Workers began pressing demands for immediate wage increases.

NEGOTIATIONS EVENTUALLY BROKE down when the union rejected an offer of an immediate $1 an hour increase, and another 41 cents in August 1984. Combined, that's an annual increase of almost $3,000, not considering overtime.

Not good enough. The UAW cites the curious dogma that Chrysler workers should be paid the same wage as workers at General Motors or Ford.

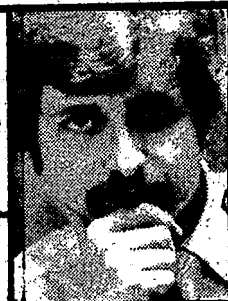

Why? Does a waiter at the London Chop House earn the same wage as a waiter at "Joe's Hamburger Joint?" Does the governor of New York earn the same wage as the governor of Maine?

Those analogies are hardly inappropriate. Compared to General Motors, Chrysler Corporation is a lemonade stand in Lee Iacocca's driveway. How can wage parity between the two be viewed as the natural order of things?

During the negotiations, Owen Bieber made much of the fact that if it hadn't been for worker concessions, there wouldn't be a Chrysler Corporation. Bravo. Bieber makes it sound as though his membership accepted the concessions out of the goodness of their hearts. Heck, they didn't have to, you know—if the company had folded, all those workers could have gone out and found jobs paying the same wage in just a few days. The only reason they did it was because they liked Lee Iacocca's commercials.

Killing the goose

BIEBER IS, of course, the UAW's president, the most visible individual in the union's leadership. But can this be called leadership at all? On the Chrysler negotiations, what has passed for leadership is only a knee-jerk reaction to the short-sighted whims of the membership. Some may call this an example of UAW democracy; I call it a sad commentary on the union's lack of direction and responsibility.

Chrysler is turning out a quality product these days, and the buying public is beginning to sit up and take notice. But this is still a corporation far from full health. There are currently 68,000 workers on Chrysler payrolls today, compared to 131,000 just four years ago. The company's much-heralded last quarter profits are still pocket change compared to corporations in other industries.

Still, Chrysler will undoubtedly survive, grow and prosper—provided that the UAW combats its instinct to kill the goose and learns instead to wait for the golden eggs.

'If it Fitz...

Bridging the gap

by Jim Fitzgerald

"The government officials responsible for the Zilwaukee Bridge fiasco should volunteer to demonstrate that it is possible for a person to continue living even though his body has been completely penetrated by a giant screw."

My friend Ralph said that. He'd just read that federal Agriculture Secretary John Block, a millionaire, volunteered to live on a food-stamp budget to demonstrate that a family of four can eat well for $58 a week.

Block and his wife, using a shopping list supplied by Agriculture Department nutrition specialists, recently bought $54.14 worth of groceries in a supermarket. As they approached the checkout counter, according to the Associated Press, "an aide reminded Mrs. Block that she had a coupon for eggs."

I hope regular poor people were paying attention. Many of them complain they can't eat well on a food-stamp budget. But how many of those chronic complainers remember to take their aides shopping with them? Answer me that.

Just the other day, in my neighborhood supermarket, I watched an old lady hand food stamps to the cashier. She was alone. Not even one aide in sight. How can she expect to get the best deal on eggs if she forgets to bring an aide along to advise her?

As for the Zilwaukee Bridge, when I wrote about it last year, I said the taxpayers were getting screwed again. So a clever cartoonist illustrated my words with a drawing of a man with a giant screw sticking through his back and out of his chest. And my friend Ralph was referring to that cartoon when he suggested the people who made Zilwaukee infamous should demonstrate that a total, through-and-through screwing need not be fatal to the screwee.

I always thought the most astonishing thing about the Zilwaukee Bridge is that it isn't really needed. Ralph disagrees.

THERE IS NOW a drawbridge over the Saginaw River at Zilwaukee. When it is raised to allow big boats to pass through, auto traffic backs up on I-75. To eliminate this occasional congestion, the Zilwaukee Bridge is being built high enough for the Queen Mary to pass below. Millions of dollars are being spent on this project even though there is an alternate route—I-675—that motorists can take when the drawbridge is up.

This route, well-built and easy driving, takes 81 seconds longer than staying on I-75 when the drawbridge is down. By coincidence, the original price estimate on the Zilwaukee Bridge was $81 million, so it was possible for smartie critics to say the bridge would cost taxpayers $1 million a second.

All of which seemed an astonishment—not to mention screwing—of championship proportions. But now the bridge estimate has jumped to $119 million. And my friend Ralph insists the manner in which the bridge cost was escalated is even more astonishing than the fact the bridge isn't needed.

I CAN'T BELIEVE IT, Ralph growled. "Last year the people building the bridge goofed and put too much weight on part of it, turning it into a damn teeter-totter. I knew the necessary repairs would add millions to the cost, but I figured the builders would have to pay it. I was sure, at least, that our brilliant government officials had arranged that taxpayers were insured against having to pay for someone else's incompetence and stupidity."

"But no way. Last week the state agreed to pay the bridge contractor $12.8 million to quit the job and leave its equipment behind. In return, the contractor agreed not to sue the state. It's now estimated the bridge will be finished three years late and cost $42.2 million more than originally estimated. And taxpayers—most of whom will never use the bridge—will pay every cent. THAT is astonishing."

Moral: Government officials shouldn't worry about proving a person can eat well on food stamps. It's more important to prove a taxpayer can continue living while being screwed with a screw the size of the Zilwaukee Bridge.

Hot off the presses: Snowapple Sun Scenes

By Marilyn Trumper

Maybe Editor Bethany King did violate a few copyright laws printing comics and puzzle mazes in her neighborhood paper, The Snowapple Sun Scenes.

And perhaps the 9-year-old jumped the gun reporting a neighbor's vacation, discovering later that

Mr. Smith and son Joe stayed home while other family members went on holiday.

Nevertheless, The Snowapple Sun Scenes is a success.

"Be sure and bring me the second issue," says neighbor Jan Modesitt.

The Snowapple Sun Scenes staff deliver the first issue to neighbor Jan Modesitt. At left are Nancy Sorgatz and Bethany King. Also along were Many Peterson and Sarah King.

The first issue of the weekly paper went free to 20 homes on Snowapple Drive, south of Waldon Road in Independence Township.

Its four pages give a rundown on five neighbors' vacations, has one classified ad, a recipe for Yorgurt-Jam Pops, Movie of the Week and Book of the Week.

The next issue, as this is designed to be a money-making venture, will be 10 cents, according to Bethany.

"But the advertising is free."

Scouring the pages of "A Kid's Guide to Making Money," Bethany said she liked the idea of starting a neighborhood newspaper to make money instead of cutting grass and pulling weeds.

Recruiting sister Sarah, 7, her friend Mandy Peterson, 7, and best friend Nancy Sorgatz, 10, the staff assembled.

"Then we all thought up things to put in," Bethany said.

The next step, setting copy.

"But we couldn't read the first line of our typing, so my mom did it," Bethany said.

Wanting advertising she decided to hold a yard sale so the paper wouldn't go without a classified section.

They ran off papers on her dad's Cannon Copier, and delivered them to the neighbors by hand.

But already with the first paper there's dissension in the ranks.

The corporation's ruptured.

"I'm going to start my own newspaper," said Sarah. "I'm going to call it The Little People Paper. We're not going to put in vacations. But we are going to have ads."

Competition.

It's the hallmark of free enterprise.

A REVIEW OF OUR DISCERNING
CRITICS FOR 1982

WILLIE NELSON —
"My nights at LaVeranda were some of the high points of my summer tour. Can't wait to get back."

OLIVIA NEWTON-JOHN —
"The place was so beautiful I had to enjoy it with all my friends" (So she threw a party at LaVeranda, video camera, et al)

HENRY MANCINI —
"An ambience that is unmatched and the homemade pasta is great"

JOAN RIVERS —
"I wish I had a few more nights at Pine Knob because I could have a few more dinners at LaVeranda."

WAYNE NEWTON —
"Some of the finest Italian food in the country."

KENNY LOGGINS —
"My wife Eva and I loved the place and we can highly recommend the scampi."

SHIRLEY EDER —
"Raves for the new LaVeranda restaurant. The Italian food is divine. the ambience is dress-up and elegant, the service is wonderful."

MOLLY ABRAHAM —
"LaVeranda may just be the prettiest restaurant in the area. Its interesting cuisine equals its smashing looks, but LaVeranda's food proves it's more than just a pretty place."

DOG DAY AFTERNOON: Fresh from a cooling dip in Springfield Township's Dixie Lake, Chip finds a sand pile and nestles down. While the action may not be exactly tidy, it looked like a good place to be on a hot afternoon. The part Brittany spaniel, part golden Labrador retriever belongs to Nikki Lebow of Ohio, who was vacationing last week at the Dixie Lake home of her grandmother, Bev Lebow.

All dressed up

Dracula was there.

So, too, were Mickey Mouse, George Washington, Peter Pan, Ali Baba and Robin Hood.

But the biggest costume of all belonged to Chuck E. Cheese who appeared to hug the kids, chat without words and pass out certificates for free video game tokens at the Pizza Time Theatre.

It was the annual costume party for the 80 members of Independence Township Library's Summer Reading Club.

Awards were given for costumes deemed to be original and homemade.

Taking first places for first- and second-graders were Bryan Hargreaves as a tramp and Stacey Bowers as a pencil, complete with eraser top. Runners up were Bradley Kozma as Peter Pan and Kerri Caster as a cat.

In the contest between third- and fourth-graders, Steven Bowers as a robot and Heather Yerty as a witch took first places. Joe Romzek as George Washington and Kelly Sadler as a penguin were runners up.

For fifth- and sixth-graders, first-place winners were Matthew Oliver as Ali Baba and Sara Veltigian as Dark Victory. Runners up were Tom Buday as a Mexican caballero, Craig Petty as a mummy and Michela Meyer as a ballerina.

Coach Dave Larkin can smile now knowing his team is in front of Lapeer to stay in the state playoff game.

Midgets win with Larkin

By Dan Vandenhemel

The parents love him.

They say coach Dave Larkin deserves much of the credit for a state-playoff berth for Harvey's Electric of the Midget league in the Independence Township Parks and Recreation program.

"He's wonderful with the kids," said Judy Mercier, whose son, Keith, plays on the team. "He has never stressed winning or any of the name-calling that goes on. Keith really respects him."

Larkin, owner of Larkin's Barber Shop in Independence Township, has been a little league coach seven years.

He started when his son, Dave, entered the T-ball league and they've moved up together along with Ted Ryeson, Scott Harvey and Mercier.

"I've had those four every year," Larkin said. "There are a few others that I've had about four years. Coaching is almost a hobby for me, a pastime. I really like the relationship I get with the players."

In the two previous seasons, Larkin's team was 30-0. This year they finished the regular season with a 11-1 record.

"We've had a really good career-win record," said Sharon Ryeson, mother of Ted. "Dave stresses everything but winning, mostly sportmanship. Our kids are learning more than just baseball from him. He encourages the kids. He doesn't do any of that hollering some other coaches do."

Harvey Electric advanced in the state playoffs for 13- to 14-year-olds with a 5-1 victory over Lapeer last Thursday.

In the last two years, the team lost the final game of the season to stop them from getting into the playoffs.

In the game Thursday, they scored four runs in the third inning with the big hit, a two-run triple to right field, coming from Scott Harvey. They added one in the sixth to send Lapeer home.

Harvey pitched six innings, gave up three hits and struck out six before Allen Logan came in for the final inning.

"I really get some good support from the parents," Larkin said. "There must have been 50 people watching the game and it was in the middle of the afternoon. They help a lot, but I've got to say I've really got a nice bunch of kids."

An elated Ted Ryeson crosses the plate with the first run of the game for Harvey's Electric. He's greeted by teammate Dave Larkin Jr.

(No.12). Harvey's defeated Lapeer 5-1 last Thursday to advance in the state playoffs for 13- to 14-year-olds.

All-Stars shine in state game

Clarkston grads help the East win 3-2

By Dan Vandenhemel

Clarkston High School made a strong showing at the Second Annual Michigan High School All-Star Softball game.

The game Saturday in East Lansing featured Audrey Campe and Annette Ulasich from the Clarkston Wolves.

Between them, they put the East team on the board in the second inning, and their team went on to win 3-2 in 11 innings.

Campe collected a bunt single in the second inning and scored one of two runs on Ulasich's triple to left center. Campe also had two walks, and Ulasich grounded out her other time at the plate.

"It was neat. It was fun to work with the girls from all over the state," Campe said. "With the hit and two walks, it was really a good experience for me."

Only seniors selected to the all-state team were eligible for the all-star game.

Campe was named to the second team, Ulasich to the third team, and junior Julie Marshall received honorable mention.

"They usually don't take honorable mentions on the team," said Wolves' coach Carla Teare. "Julie couldn't have played anyway because she was a junior, but she went to the game and watched. It was a pretty good time."

The game was scheduled for nine innings but went an extra two before the East could come out on top.

"It was a little confusing because we really didn't know everyone," Ulasich said. "It was kind of tough on the field because you didn't know what defenses everyone was used to. It was exciting to be named to the team, though."

"We had a meeting the night before and they gave out our uniform jerseys," Ulasich said. "They had our number and our name on it. They really look nice and we got to keep them"

Ulasich is going to Grand Valley State College on a basketball scholarship to study physical therapy on the basketball scholarship. She also plans to play softball.

Campe is headed to Western Michigan University and will try out for the softball team in the spring.

"Right now I'm undecided on what I'll study," she said. "But with this game, it might help me get some kind of scholarship."

Hoop tryouts

Basketball tryouts for the girls' teams at Clarkston High School, Clarkston Junior High and Sashabaw Junior High are scheduled Aug. 15.

The high school varsity and junior varsity teams meet from 9 a.m. to noon at the high school.

The Clarkston Junior High tryouts will also be at the high school at 7 to 9 a.m.

At Sashabaw, tryouts will held from 9 a.m. to noon.

Physicals are required before a player can try out. For more information call varsity coach Dave McDonald at the high school, 625-0900.

Benefit for Hall of Famer

The friends of internationally known skeet shooter Ila Hill are throwing a benefit in her honor.

Hill, a member of the National Skeet Shooting Association Hall of Fame, works at the Davisburg Medical Clinic and lives in Birmingham.

The benefit will be held at the Detroit Gun Club, 2775 E. Oakley Park, Walled Lake, this Saturday starting at 4 p.m.

Among the sponsors are the Springfield Lions Club.

A skeet shooting exhibition featuring Hill and members of the gun club will start at 4 p.m. A buffet dinner will be served at 7 p.m.

Tickets are sold in advance only for $20 with all proceeds going to cancer research.

For more information call Helen Vergin at 634-9410, the Detroit Gun Club 624-9647, Claude Trim at 625-5516, or Bob Wedge at 234-3541.

Golfer shoots for pro tour

By Dan Vandenhemel

When someone mentions golf, many people think about doctors, retirees or people out for a little relaxation and exercise, but Dave Brochu hopes it means a career.

The 22-year-old Holly resident who works summers at Springfield Oaks Golf Course is shooting for the Buick Open at Warwick Hills in Grand Blanc.

The qualifying round is at the Owasso Country Club in Owasso. The top four finishers will make the Buick Open.

Because he is listed as an amateur, Brochu can't win any money. Instead, he's paying a $110 entry fee to participate in the qualifying 18 holes of golf.

"It's an expensive round of golf," he said. "But with the exposure and hopefully the good reputation I'll get, it'll help when I try to make the tour."

To make the field for the Open, Brochu said he would have to shoot a round of 68 or 69.

"When I tried to qualify a couple of years ago, that's the score that made it," he said. "A lot of the guys that are out there are club pros or close to being professionals. If I shoot around that, I'll know I've made it."

Brochu has been a summer employe at Springfield Oaks Golf Course in Springfield Township for five years.

By working 6 a.m. to 2:30 p.m., the 1979 Holly High School graduate has ample time to practice.

"Oh, it's nice to get off work then," he said. "I usually get in nine holes in the afternoon and sometimes a few more in the evening."

A junior in Marketing at the University of Central Florida in Orlando, Brochu got added exposure to different and tougher courses as a member of the golf team.

"Down there, you can play some holes that have water on each side of the hole," he said. "If you don't hit it straight, you're gone."

He hopes the experience will pay off.

"I plan to join the Mini-Tour soon and that will let me know if I have what it takes to make it on the big tour," he said.

"You pay $2,000 and play in six tournaments. Each one has a first-place prize of $5,000. This tour is for the guys that aren't really ready for the big tour. If sharpening his golf skills as he prepares for the Buick Open qualifying game.

you can't make money there, don't bother with trying to make it on the big tour."

Brochu has been golfing seriously for 10 years. His best round has been 67, and that was with someone else's clubs.

"I'm usually right around that, 67 to 73," he said. "When I shot the 67, I used a guy's clubs on the front and another's on the back nine. All that tells you is that it's the player and not the clubs."

Earl J. Bishop

Funeral service for Earl J. Bishop of Dunedin, Fla., was held Aug. 8 at the Lewis E. Wint Funeral Home, Independence Township, with the Rev. Alfred Nead officiating.

Bishop, 80, died suddenly while on vacation in West Branch. He was a retired production control manager for Ford Motor Co., a member of the First United Presbyterian Church of Dunedin, a life member of Century Lodge No. 457 F&AM and a Shriner.

Surviving are his wife, Ruth; children, Earl II of Sarasota, Fla., and Mrs. Richard (Phoebe) Bojanzky of Clarkston; seven grandchildren; one great-grandson; and brother, Lyle of Chatham, Ontario.

Following the service burial took place in Lakeview Cemetery, Independence Township.

Ethel M. Craft

Funeral service for Ethel M. Craft of Independence Township was held Aug. 8 at Christ Lutheran Church with the Rev. Robert Walters officiating.

Mrs. Craft, 84, died Aug. 4. The owner and operator of Waterford Hill Greenhouse from 1931 to 1972, she was a member of Christ Lutheran Church, Drayton Plains. She was preceded in death by her husband, Edward, in 1962.

Surviving are her children, Edward Jr. of Drayton Plains, Kenneth of Schererville, Ind., and G. Harvey of Ortonville; eight grandchildren; three great-grandchildren; sister, Clara Lofberg of California; and brother, Elmer Larson of Fraser.

Following the service burial took place in Oakland Hills Memorial Gardens, Novi.

Arrangements were made by Goyette Funeral Home, Clarkston.

WORKER B'S.

Nothing works harder than our B-Series tractors. They range from 12 to 19 hp. So there's one for every job.

And with a hydraulic 3-point hitch, front and rear PTO, these tractors can handle a variety of implements.

Like every Kubota tractor, B models come with your choice of 2- or 4-wheel drive. Plus a sturdy, low-maintenance Kubota diesel engine.

There are special features you can choose from, too. Like hydrostatic transmission for the ease of no-shift one-pedal control.

So if you're looking for a hard worker, look no further than Kubota's worker B-Series tractors.

His business shakes, rattles, rolls

By Marilyn Trumper

You too can have a skeleton in your closet. Just call Dan Joumas, salesman. Make no bones about it.

He's the best factory rep. around for Medical Plastics Laboratory Inc., manufacturers of authentic anatomical reproductions.

And he's got a sense of humor that tickles the funny bone.

"I'll never forget, I was at a show once talking to a doctor pointing out this and that. The doctor said to me, 'Boy you sure know a lot about anatomy.'"

"Yup. I do surgery on Saturdays."

"You do what?" he yelled.

"Shhhhhh! Not so loud doctor. I don't have a license."

Then Dan releases a hearty laugh. "We're the Mercedes-Benz and Rolls Royce in this type of business."

He produces the Skele-Torso, a full-frame, full-color plastic skeleton with organs, teeth and arteries. "It's to scale, actual human scale. We don't replace cadavers, we'll never do that. But most of the time a cadaver is 65 years old and its muscles and tissues have deteriorated."

"We sell these to high schools, medical schools, to a lot of doctors and orthopedic surgeons, and to a lot of lawyers. They'll take them in the courtroom and demonstrate to the jury what's happened to their client."

When Dan's wife, Betty, suffered a mild heart attack, she took a heart model to her physician's office, thrust a finger at the plastic organ and said, "Now, show me exactly what happened to me."

"He said, 'Where'd you get this?' I told him, and said it was better than pointing to the charts on his wall," Betty said. "He showed me. And I'll tell you, it put my mind at ease to know exactly what had gone on."

In addition to the full-frame skeleton, Dan sells skulls with a complete set of teeth to dentists; Choking Charlie, a torso used to teach the "Hug of Life" and save a choking victim; models to teach nursing and med students how to insert catheters and IV's; spinal columns; hands; and hip joints.

"We're the only company in the United States that does this. There's one in China, one in England and one in Germany, so we do have competition," he said.

The American Cancer Society liked one of Dan's pranks so well, they've implemented it at their booths.

A skeleton smoking a cigarette.

Dan laughs again.

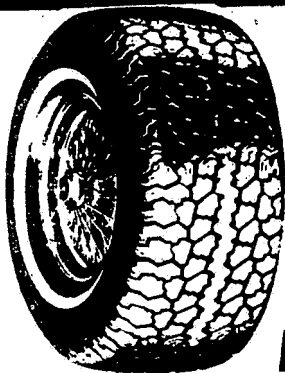

Dan Joumas stands outside his Independence Township home and hams it up with a full-frame skeleton. For 13 years he's been selling authentic anatomical reproductions to doctors, dentists, lawyers and schools, and he's cultivated a special sense of humor.

NO RIBBONS: But Bill Walsh had lots of fun. For a time, his metal Volkswagen Rabbit was parked next to the exhibition hall for the soft, furry variety of rabbits at the 4-H Fair in Springfield Township last week. "I was driving away the first day of the fair and I saw the rabbit hutch," said Bill. Then he remembered all the jokes, like the time he got a flat tire, went in to a gas station and listened to people say, "Ohhhhh, your rabbit broke its foot." So, he went home, made ears, a nose and whiskers for his Rabbit, borrowed metal fencing and straw and made a sign. It said: "German Short-Haired Rabbit. Name: Cost a Lotta."

Good News For High School Seniors

You, as a high school senior and consumer, HAVE RIGHTS, TOO! Governor Milliken signed into law House Bill 5291. Section 1349 reads:

- (1) The Board of a school district may enter into a contract with a photographer for the taking of pupil yearbook pictures.
- (2) The hiring of a photographer pursuant to this section shall not prohibit a pupil from engaging a photographer of his or her choice nor prevent a picture taken by that photographer from appearing in the yearbook if the picture meets the specifications of the yearbook staff.

Dear Seniors:

Sometime between now and graduation you will want a good portrait made as a record of personal achievement. It's taken because of the termination of countless hours in the classroom and 12 years of homework!

At some studios you will be allowed all of 5 to 10 minutes for this graduation picture. You will have the privilege of sitting before the camera, turning your head right and left and then rushed out because others are waiting. This sitting will usually yield four to six proofs that will probably deal a blow to your ego for all the work you've done.

INSTEAD

THE VILLAGE PHOTOGRAPHER feels this occasion demands more attention. But why come to us? We are offering new concepts in natural color photography. We offer casual poses that reflect today's clothing styles and traditional posing. You will receive the full attention of the photographer and not be hurriedly rushed out. Your sitting will last as long as is necessary to capture the "real you" on film.

REMEMBER:

Although your school has contracted a yearbook photographer, you are NOT obligated to use these pictures for your personal portrait needs.

CONSIDER:

- * Award winning photography at special discount rates for seniors.
- * Extraordinary quality and unique variety; you choose from four sitting styles.
- * Sitting styles from 8 to 20 poses; clothing and background changes.
- * Color previews will be ready within two weeks from sitting date.
- * Schedule your appointment at your convenience, not someone else's.

J. Thomas: school board president

By Kathy Greenfield

The president of Clarkston schools' board of education works full-time in an executive position, is married and has four children.

Janet Thomas is a woman of the times.

When she took a break from her busy schedule one recent Saturday to talk with The Clarkston News, she shared some of her feelings about being a working mother, and her philosophies on education and conducting the school board.

She's beginning her ninth year as a member of the board of education and her fourth year as board president.

She and her husband Michael, an industrial engineer for General Motors Corp. Truck & Coach, have four children—Gina, 20, a student at Michigan State University; Carrie, 19, a Ferris State College student; Kim, 15, a student at Clarkston High School; and Kevin, 12, a Sashabaw Junior High School pupil.

The Thomases have lived in their home on Warbler Lane in Independence Township 15 years.

Through her children she became involved in the elementary school's PTA, and that was the beginning.

"I would go to the board meetings. I had four children in the system and I wanted to have some input in decisions that were made," she said.

"I felt I had a contribution to make. As I lived in the community longer a lot of people suggested (that I run for the school board). I thought it was something I could do for the community in conjunction with my family."

She has worked for Harold Paper Co., now a division of Lombardi Foods, for 20 years. But until four years ago she did the accounting at home.

"It was nice," she said. "I was able to make the money all the people work for as well as be home with the kids."

A University of Detroit graduate and a certified public accountant, Thomas is now an administrative manager for her firm. She does general administrative work, accounting and some purchasing.

When she left her home and began going to the office each day her two oldest children could provide babysitting and assistance with cooking meals.

"I'm still amazed women can go to work and raise very young children. I never had to cope with all of that," she said.

"But as open as we get I still think women bear an extra burden, that extra load of guilt, because they feel responsible for caring for the children, the home, having meals on the table at night.

"We have to cope with it and each of us does it in our own way, but it's still there. And I guess our children adjust differently to it.

"In some ways they assume responsibility better...so that everything a family has to be is accomplished."

Thomas has added to her workload the additional time and responsibilities of being school board president.

In July when the board voted on officers for the 1983-84 year, there was some talk at home about whether her fellow board members would again put her at the helm. The vote was unanimous.

When she returned home, this was the conversation: "Gina said, 'You're president again. Right?' She said, 'I told you there was no sweat.'

"My children feel it's fortunate their last name is Education should be an opportunity for each individual to reach his full potential, says Clarkston board of education President Janet Thomas. That's her goal—to make sure that so common. They're kind of anonymous," Thomas said. Then she laughed and added, "I think they feel good about it."

Perhaps the most important ingredient, however, is this: "You couldn't do any of that if your family wasn't supportive about the whole thing," she said.

As board president, Thomas runs meetings that are usually relaxed despite the necessity of following the rulebook on meeting procedures.

Some other school districts have a much more formal atmosphere.

"I think some are highly structured. I tend to like (the Clarkston board) the way it is, because people tend to say things more than if it was very structured," she said. "I'd rather have a more relaxed feeling between the board members."

In the past few years, the atmosphere hasn't always been as relaxed as she'd like. The board has been forced to lay off teachers and reduce programs following state funding cuts and declining enrollment.

students who attend Clarkston schools leave with a good background, ready to grow and change with the times.

The district's teachers worked almost all of last year before their contract was settled, and as negotiations dragged it made for some tense meetings.

"One of the most difficult things to do, frankly, is lay off anybody because you're tampering with individual's lives.

"It's hard," she said. "There have been board meetings when I stood up and my legs ached. There have been times when you have to keep yourself in such tight control so your emotions don't take over.

"We sit there and understand just exactly what's being said. You know everything that's being said is legitimate and should come about, but you just don't have the ability.

"There's one thing I always tell myself especially when we have special interest groups: At least those people care enough about their children to fight for what they think should be done."

Thomas is aware there are areas that need improvement and she's confident the board is moving to meet those challenges as money is available.

But she's proud of the school district and its reputation.

"We don't have a number of flashy programs. A lot of districts do," she said. "Clarkston has a reputation of being a solid educational community. Other boards and administrations realize we do a lot of constructive things for our students. We do have results in the educational programs we do."

During her eight years on the board, there have been several changes she's pleased to have participated in.

There are now media centers (libraries) in every school building in the district. Before many were run out of hallways or storage rooms.

Clarkston now has a program for its academically talented pupils.

Parent volunteer programs have grown in every school building in the district.

Community education is in full swing with classes and programs designed to suit all ages and interests.

A study underway is looking at course offerings with an emphasis on needs of the future.

"What we have to do is prepare students in communication and math skills so they're prepared to be trained by other people," Thomas said.

As the economy improves and money tensions ease, Thomas would like to see the return of the former practice of ongoing textbook review and replacement.

"There's no question there are still a lot of things that need to be done, like physical education in the elementary schools especially," she said. "That's going to stay there to be a problem that needs to be addressed."

Through her experiences on the board and attending county and state level education meetings, Thomas said she has grown as a person.

She's also come to know herself better.

"I always say I'm an introverted extrovert," she said, then laughed at the contradiction.

"I think about things. I try not to make rash

Last year's Fourth Friday Student K-12 Count was 6032. Financial aid from the State of Michigan is dependent upon an official membership count. Each school district in the state must count the actual number of students enrolled on the fourth Friday after Labor Day, thus our official membership count is known as the "Fourth Friday" count.

decisions or say things rashly. I operate best when I can listen and read a lot and walk away for a couple of days and continue to mull it over—in that respect I'm an introvert—and then come back and make a decision.

The board: What makes it tick

Most people do not understand the role of a school board, says Janet Thomas, Clarkston board of education president.

"Many people believe we're full-time employees of a school district," she said.

But that is not the case. The seven school board members attend regularly scheduled meetings on the second Monday of each month and special meetings as they are called.

Most of their information comes from reports provided by full-time district employees.

In addition to Thomas, board members are Mary Jane Chaustowich, David Kithil, C. Vincent Luzi, Carolyn Place, Elaine Schultz and Dr. Stephen Werner.

They're paid $30 a meeting. Last year, Thomas made $660 and she attended every meeting.

"It's not for the money," she said. "I guess it must just be for self-satisfaction. Why do any of us get involved in the outside projects we get involved in?"

She compared the board's function to state or federal legislatures.

"We're a group of people elected by the public to represent their views when a decision is made. The professional educators are the ones that are trained to actually accomplish the ends and the purposes to affect a positive education for the students in the district," she said.

Thomas is pleased with the people on the Clarkston school board.

"The best school boards are made up of people with diverse backgrounds. That's the way you best represent the people," she said. "If you have a cross-section you continue to be more effective. I think we have a good cross-section of people now."

"What I've always felt good about the Clarkston board is we've always had some very diverse opinions, but when everyone gets up from the table we've always been able to get along on a personal basis."

"I've seen some boards where the infighting gets so bitter it affects the performance of the board. We might not like the way the person votes, but we can get along and respect each other's opinions and I think that's important."

Making up Clarkston's full-time administrative staff are Superintendent Milford Mason, Assistant Superintendent Mel Vaara, and administrative assistants Conrad Bruce and William Dennis. Rounding out the list are special services Director Robert Brumback and building principals and assistant principals.

Members of the administrative staff are hired by the school board. Their salaries and benefits, and those of all district employees are overseen by the school board, which must vote on all contracts before they become valid.

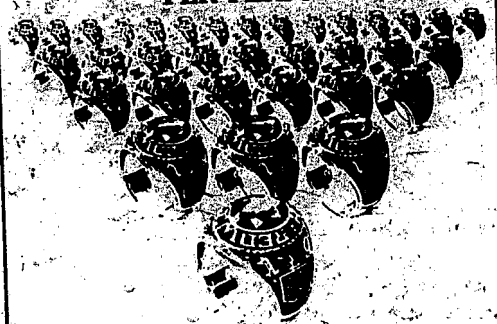

What to do for emergency closings

Information concerning the closing of Clarkston Community Schools due to severe weather, unsafe road conditions, or emergency situations can be attained by dialing to these radio stations:

WPON	1460	AM
CKLW	800	AM

In the event a tornado warning is given or other severe weather conditions occur while school is in session, our policy will be to keep all students in their building until conditions warrant their dismissal.

School lunches

Munch them gourmet style

By Marilyn Trumper

Look at school lunches from a kid's point of view. They open up the brown bag and peer down inside to find a mundane peanut butter sandwich, carrot sticks, apple and box of raisins.

Yuck.

Ptooeey!

And boring!

Or it's a bologna and mustard sandwich, bag of chips and chocolate chip cookies.

Tradition?

Yes.

But still boring.

The Clarkston News asked The Cookery restaurateur Ned Barker, in the Clarkston Mills Mall, to create from his menu a child's gourmet lunch.

Something with pizzazz.

Something to outshine pasteurized cheese on white bread and replace the apple a day.

He did.

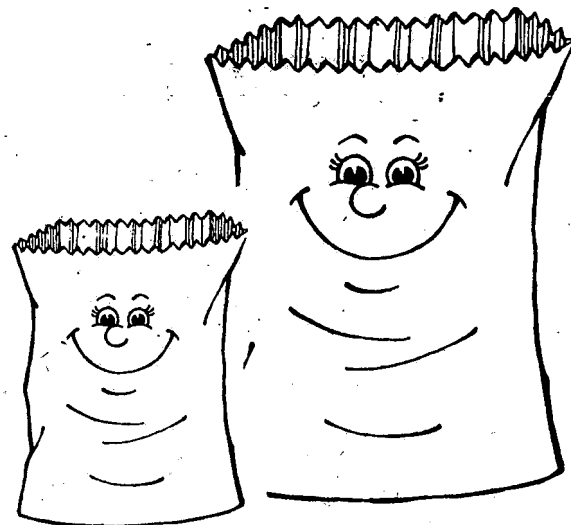

And here it is.

For beginners, chilled fresh Michigan cherry soup, a special not regularly found on the restaurant's menu.

That followed by a creamy rich shrimp salad in creamed cheese, with sour cream and celery seasonings served on a bed of lettuce with tomato and hard-boiled egg wedges.

To accompany that two of The Cookery's best: a bread basket of fresh-baked corn muffins and whipped creamery butter and a side dish of freshly made potato chips.

For dessert: light, lemon mousse pie.

Community schools athletic program

The fall sports season is closing in and with 18 teams and squads in the Clarkston school district, athletic director Paul Tungate is looking forward to some successful seasons.

Last year the varsity football team finished with a 6-3 record, one of their best ever, and the varsity and junior varsity girls' basketball teams are coming back after good seasons.

"The basketball team has almost everyone coming back," Tungate said. "They lost only Annette Ulasich and Lori Martin. With the JV having an almost undefeated season (19-1), the varsity should be good."

"The football team has a tougher schedule this year but they still should be good," he said.

Dave McDonald is coaching the varsity basketball team and Larry Sherrill is the JV coach. Walt Wyniemko is the head football coach.

Other high school coaches are Jim Chamberlain, boys' golf; Dick Swartout, girls' tennis; and Neil Granlund, soccer.

"The cross-country team is still up in the air a little," Tungate said. "Last year Mike Kaul and Mike Taylor took care of the teams but Kaul hasn't been called back to work yet. If he doesn't come back, Taylor will probably take the team."

Swartout is taking the place of Becky Craig who is on a year's leave of absence, Tungate said.

At Sashabaw Junior High, Steve Pearson and Dan Blower will coach the football team and Nancy Foster will coach the basketball team.

At Clarkston Junior High, John Craven and Dave Smith will handle the football team and the basketball team will be coached by Dennis Bronson.

"Overall I'm hopeful for a good season," Tungate said. "Financially we'll be operating under last year's budget, about $5,000 less. The Booster Club said they will cover the difference so I don't see any trouble."

The professor returns

By Kathy Greenfield
Professor Birgitta Vance Leffel sees Madrid, Spain, as a big city without fear, unlike its American counterparts.

She's fresh from a seven-month stay in Spain, and a sabbatical leave from her job as an assistant professor of Spanish at the University of Michigan-Flint.

"It's incredibly different," she said. "The thing that most impressed me was the extreme friendliness of the people, and I think this is partially due to the fact that it is so safe there—there's practically no killing, nobody has guns, there is almost no rape."

"One woman can go alone any time day or night and is not only safe, but is comfortable. It's not unusual for people to go to restaurants alone or other places alone."

Birgitta and her daughter Jocelyn, 17, lived in an apartment in Madrid, a city with a population of three million.

Jocelyn, who will be a senior this fall at Kingswood High School in Bloomfield Hills, would go out for the evening and ride home alone on the subway at 1 a.m., and Birgitta said she didn't worry.

Her son, Duncan, was also able to visit after he completed his sophomore year at Michigan State University.

The Leffels live on Waterford Hill in Independence Township, the place they've called home since 1968. Birgitta's husband, John, sells and leases large computer systems.

While in Spain, Birgitta did research on the contemporary Spanish novel, interviewed novelists and educators, and worked on a translation of the novel "Ratahilas" written a few years ago by Carmen Martin Gaité.

The translation is not yet completed, but when it is she will try to get it published, joining her other translations in print: short stories by Marta Lynch and a novel on the Spanish civil war.

A native of Austria, Birgitta has visited Spain before but this was her first chance to live there for a period of time.

In addition to the friendliness of the people, she liked several other things.

"I loved the food," she said. "It was very good, and possible to eat extremely cheaply if you knew where to go."

"Even the simplest restaurants have a great deal of fresh vegetables and fresh fruits well-prepared. Everything is so fresh there."

There were the open-air cafes filled with people until 4 each morning.

"The Socialist government has put a little bit of a damper on it by making the ministries open at 8 a.m. instead of 9 a.m.," she said, and laughed.

And she enjoyed the abundance of cultural opportunities in the city of three million people.

The newspapers include lists of cultural activities including open houses for people who have books printed.

She went to Spanish play productions at least once a week and to the movies frequently.

"I even watch television in Spain which I never do here. They had some exciting programs with substance where they would pick a topic and bring people in to talk about it from all over the world," she said.

There were also a couple of things she didn't like. "There was a certain difficulty in getting things done. A commentary on 19th century Spanish life would say there was a theme of 'you come back tomorrow at 8.' It was hard to get things solved the first time."

As an example, she cites what happened when she went to get her visa renewed.

She arrived the first time to ask what she would need to apply for the renewal. The second time she brought everything and was waited on by another clerk who added some more items to the list. At the third visit she received the visa.

"I saw everything, really, as an experience," she said. "You learn something about Spanish bureaucracy when you have to go back three times to get a visa."

She'd like to go back to Spain as soon as possible. But there was something Spain didn't have that America does, she said.

Her husband and her friends.

Welcome Birgitta back home

Professor Birgitta Vance Leffel's welcome-home party was supposed to be a surprise.

But Ivan Rouse gave it away, not realizing it was a secret when he planned it with her husband, John.

Rouse, the director of the Clarkston Conservatory of Music, had already planned the concert by world-renowned classical guitarist Manuel Lopez-Ramos for Sunday, Aug. 14, at Sadows Art Galleries in the Clarkston Mills Mall.

And when he learned that Birgitta was returning from a seven-month sabbatical in Spain, he decided to combine the two events.

Following the concert there will be a welcome-home garden party for Birgitta at the Conservatory on Main Street, Clarkston, and everyone who attends the concert is invited.

"I thought it would be a marvelous combining of the two Latin elements and it would be a good way to honor our dear friend," said Rouse.

Rouse met Birgitta in 1952 when he was a student at Interlochen.

Neither have met Manuel Lopez-Ramos, a native of Argentina, but Rouse knows his music.

"The Ramos technique is quite individual and he has many disciples in this area, so at that concert will probably come many classical guitarists and people from this area," he said. "A protege of his teaches at the Conservatory—Helene Rottenberg."

4-Hers take prizes

Rollins' students capture slew of ribbons

Marjorie Rollins is really proud of her students. The Springfield Township resident serves as a 4-H project leader in dog obedience training for the Triple B's Club.

She meets weekly with her students and their canines, with the exception of two months.

At the 4-H Fair last week they were rewarded for their diligence with a whole slew of ribbons and trophies.

Joy Schmidgall, 16, placed first in her class and had high scoring on senior obedience with her Belgian Shepherd.

Rollins' daughter, Wendy, 14, came in first place in graduate novice obedience and was named Best Junior Handler in Showmanship for the third time with her English Springer.

Other club members who placed were Marc Kukic, 16, third in sub-novice; Kathy Rollins, 17, third in novice obedience and third in senior showmanship; Kim King, 16, fourth in sub-novice; Kristy Sams, 13, fourth in novice showmanship and sixth in novice obedience; Aaron Kentross, 12, fourth in junior showmanship and fifth in sub-novice junior obedience; and Jeff Farrell, 15, sixth in senior showmanship.

Wendy Rollins, 14, puts her English Springer Spaniel in the show form that won an obedience title at the 4-H Fair. Wendy will be in the 10th grade at Clarkston High School in the fall. Her dog's name is Venetian Crickets Intellect, but he answers to his nickname—Telly.

Kathy Rollins, 17, shows off her water color of a swan, one of a trio of entries that won her the best in show art award at the 4-H Fair.

Having fun while getting some exercise, some of the 78 children enrolled in Vacation Bible School at St. Daniel Catholic Church have a rollicking good time playing games with a parachute. The Bible school met last week. Also on the agenda each morning during the week-long event were Bible study, music, crafts and a snack time. The classes met at the church located at the corner of Valley Park Drive and Holcomb Road.

Religious music complete with exercise-producing gestures entertains this group of youngsters at St. Daniel's Vacation Bible School.

Summer hazards

☀️ poison ivy 🐝 insect stings ☀️ burns from charcoal grills ☀️

☀️☀️☀️☀️☀️ swimmer's ear ☀️ foot injuries ☀️ sunburn ☀️☀️☀️☀️☀️

By Marilyn Trumper

Under a hot August sun a grumbling, shirtless 12-year-old tackles the weeds in a strangling raspberry patch.

Blindly ripping through thorny stems he pulls vine after vine from the ground, and tosses them to the back where they dry in a growing pile.

The next day his face, neck, back, arms and legs are covered in itchy, watery blisters.

The culprit: poison ivy.

"If you suspect exposure to poison ivy, the first thing to do is wash with a good soap like Dial or another antibacterial soap," said Dr. Susan Coleman, whose office is in the Clarkston Professional Plaza.

If the blisters appear, it's too late for soap and cortisone might be needed to eliminate the infection, she added.

Poison ivy and poison oak are just two of summer's hazards.

Drowning, Coleman said, is probably the biggest.

"And studies show it's usually alcohol related. That, and children who are visiting and aren't used to being around water."

Severe sunburn is another problem.

There's some relief in taking an aspirin product to reduce the swelling and ease the pain and applying cold compresses to eliminate some of the heat, she said.

"Another one I see a lot of are foot injuries. People like to go barefoot in the summer. A lot of puncture wounds and lacerations," Coleman said, adding they can be avoided by wearing shoes.

And careless performances by more than one chef have meant burns from charcoal grills, she added.

Repeat attacks of swimmer's ear, an infection from swimming, can be avoided with earplugs, Coleman said.

Dr. Chung-Woong Kim, specialist in pediatric and adult allergies, also has an office in the Clarkston Professional Plaza.

Insect stings and allergies are the summer hazards he treats.

"Bee sting allergies are quite a problem," Kim said. "There are two symptoms. The first is a local reaction of itching, pain and swelling where they were stung.

"The second is systemic, and they get sick all over. Usually with a body rash, a cardiovascular problem, their blood pressure drops, they get dizzy and weak and can go into shock. They have a breathing problem, their throat can tighten, they may have an upset stomach and vomiting.

"People who've experienced that in the past should go to an allergist and be treated with an allergy shot to prevent it from happening again," Kim said.

If the reaction to the sting is severe the person should seek medical help immediately.

Every year 50 to 100 people die from insect stings, according to Kim.

Drug stores carry Anakit, emergency treatment for insect stings comprised of adrenalin, antihistamine and a tourniquet, he said.

"The best thing to do, of course, is avoid the bees," Kim said.

Allergies manifest with a running or stuffed nose, itching, bloodshot and watery eyes, respiratory problems like shortness of breath and coughing.

"It's caused by pollens, like those in the grass, weeds and mold (spores in the air)," Kim said. "The worst time of the year is August and September because of the ragweed and it lasts until the first killing frost."

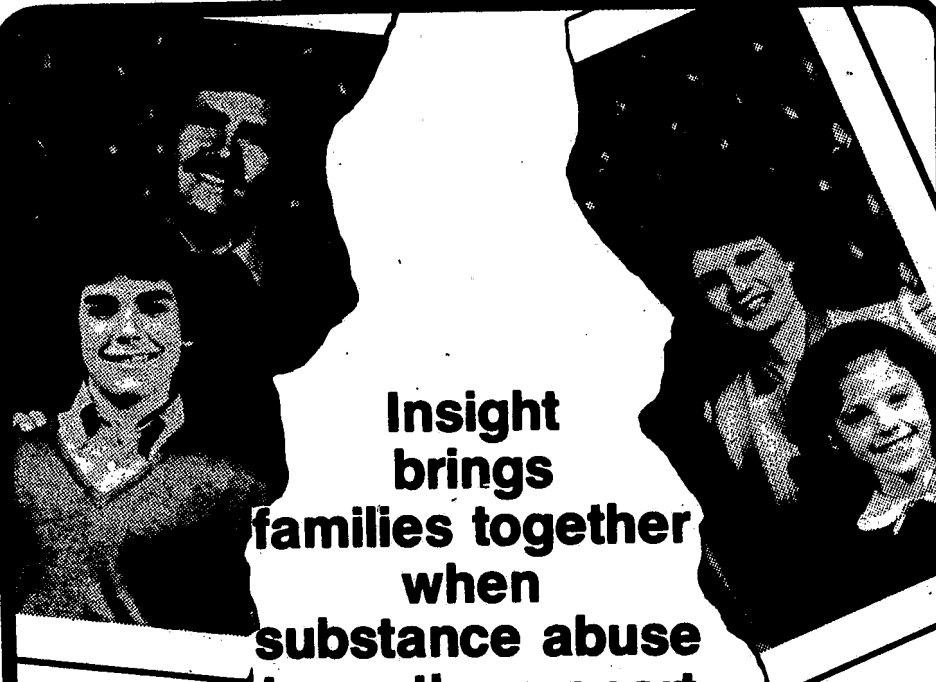

Treatment is to stay away from weeds and use an air conditioner, take an antihistamine or decongestant or get an allergy shot for long-term relief.

Emergency forms

Free emergency information forms are now available at Wheelock Memorial Hospital in Goodrich for use when parents are leaving their children in care of others.

The forms may be obtained from the emergency room or by calling the hospital at 636-2221, Ext. 231, and the form will be mailed.

In addition to permission to the hospital to give emergency medical treatment, the form includes space for a brief medical history, name of insurance company and additional notes.

A climbing platform complete with a rope swing, ladders, rings and a slide are there for a purpose in the back yard of Glen and Kay Riley, who believe parents should work to keep children physically fit. Their son, Patrick, is in the center, steering the "boat" while his friends and neighbors Danny (left) and Kelly Green get some exercise.

Fitness tips for kids

With a little imagination and effort, parents can make the difference

By Dan Vandenhemel

Running, jumping and climbing are all associated with children having fun, but Glen Riley believes children don't get enough exercise.

Riley is a physical education teacher in the Rochester school district and his wife, Kay, oversees exercise programs at elementary schools in the Clarkston, Waterford, Fenton and Lake Orion school districts.

"Some doctors say by the age of 6 the gross motor skills are developed," he said. "If a child can't throw very well by then chances are he won't be able to later. They have studies to prove that."

He has some suggestions to improve physical fitness.

"I'd have to encourage parents to let their kids climb and to experience movement," Riley said.

"Mothers are sometimes afraid of their children climbing; they hold them back. Children in their first six months learn more than they do the rest of their lives."

Back yard playground equipment, swimming pools, bike riding and walking, are all ways to keep your kids active, said Riley.

"Swimming is excellent," he said. "If the family can't afford a pool, then a wooden climbing platform is good. You can make one yourself, all you need is something for the kids to climb on and swing on."

"An obstacle course can be made out of all sorts of stuff, boxes, broomsticks, blankets—anything to make the kids go over, under and around."

"During the winter the best thing is to have an indoor fitness room where the whole family can work out. The parents should set up a time and say, 'OK, it's 7 o'clock. Let's go to the workout room for a half hour.' It's much better when the whole family gets into the act."

Riley mentioned numerous programs during the winter that will also help—basketball, swimming or a program like his wife's.

"She puts the kids through 45 minutes of balancing, throwing, kicking, anything to have the kids stay active and move around," he said.

"I gave my kids at Rochester a test and 47 percent of them couldn't pass the minimum requirements. Most of the kids have gym just once a week in the school."

"Some people put the blame on the schools but it's the attitude of the people. They think children just being children will keep them fit."

"To help get your kids in shape and keep them that way, they should have a half hour of brisk activity at least three times a week," he said.

"They should get their heart rate up to 150 and hold that for 15 minutes. During the summer, swimming is excellent."

"Our society now seems to be physically active," he said. "But studies show we are a physically unfit country. A New York World Health study ranked the U.S. near the bottom."

"It's due to our life-styles. Our kids come home from school and sit in front of the TV and don't do much."

Malignant hyperthermia can be fatal

By Marilyn Trumper

Eleven-year-old Jenny Futrell was diagnosed with malignant hyperthermia (MH) at the age of 2.

Victims of the inherited muscle disease have adverse reactions to several kinds of drugs normally used during anesthesia, and to extreme heat, emotional and physical stress.

An alert resident fresh from a seminar is credited with averting what could have been disaster, said Jenny's mom, Cheryl.

Prior to her daughter's scheduled tonsilectomy as a toddler, the resident reviewed Jenny's medical history.

"He was concerned with the high fever and something jelled from the seminar he'd just gotten back from," Cheryl said. "He said, 'I think your daughter may have MH.' They looked at the family history, (my husband) Bob has MH too, and decided not to operate."

"Who knows what might have happened had they performed the surgery," she said.

During a normal muscle contraction, calcium is released inside the muscle.

"For an MH victim (having a reaction), the calcium continues to be released. (...the muscles) go into disorganized and repetitive contractions, ending up in a solid state of contraction," said Dr. James O'Neill, the Futrells' pediatrician.

"It's like having a charlie horse all over the body. They have a decidedly high temperature. It can be lethal."

The victims' faces redden, their hearts race, they have difficulty breathing, often hyperventilate, and have erratic blood pressure.

"It's pretty scary when you know you can die in the dentist's office," said 37-year-old Jan Perry of Pontiac, who also suffers from MH.

Nitrous oxide, commonly called laughing gas, is a triggering agent for Perry. She also has allergic reactions to xylocaine, a drug used frequently by dentists to deaden pain.

"You ask a dentist who's not knowledgeable what he's using and he'll say, 'It's novocaine.' I tell them to read the label. It's not novocaine."

"We have to know what we're doing. It means our life."

The Futrells and Perry belong to the 30-member Michigan Malignant Hyperthermia Association. The group meets the third Wednesday of each month at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, Pontiac.

"It's not a common disease," Dr. O'Neill said. "And there's no real good test for it. A muscle biopsy is the best. Other than that the best way to diagnose it is to know the family history."

"They call MH a surgeon's nightmare," Perry said. "They ask the patient if they have any allergies, but if they've never been exposed to the anesthetic, they don't know if they'll react or not."

"You don't expect any problems, then your patient goes rigid and once the reaction's started, it's almost impossible to stop it," she said.

The drug Dantrium makes it possible for victims of MH to have surgery.

"But it's like giving your body poison," Perry said. "It's a muscle relaxant. You go limp, like a wet noodle, your eyes cross and you're sick to your stomach."

The drug loosens the muscles and allows them to respond normally to the anesthetic, she said.

Cheryl said the organization is working to educate doctors and dentists about MH, and locally Hallman's Apothecary in Clarkston has agreed to carry novocaine and Dantrium.

"And the Clarkston school district has been wonderful working with me on Jenny," Cheryl said. "They need to know that if anything goes wrong, Dr. O'Neill is the only one to be called and that she can't be administered just any drug."

So rare is the disease the Red Cross does not have it on its checklist—and should, Cheryl said.

"There's not enough sheathing over the (blood) platelets (of an MH victim). People who are given transfusions from someone with MH could hemorrhage," she said.

Persons with questions or those interested in joining the Michigan Malignant Hyperthermia Association can call the Futrells at 625-5136 or Perry at 334-3134.

Symptoms...

"Just because you have one or two of these is no reason to think you have MH," warns Jan Perry, herself a victim of the hereditary disease.

"A lot of these symptoms could fit anything. Look at the other members of your family. If they have most of them, search out a doctor."

MH (malignant hyperthermia) is an abnormal muscle reaction to emotional and physical stress and to drugs used in normal anesthesia.

Below is a list of symptoms found in MH victims.

- Muscle stiffness, tightness and rigidity, cramping or spasms when at rest like at night and after exercise or other stress.

- Joint hypermobility or dislocation. Joints become limber, move easily and are very bendable. MH victims are often double-jointed.

- History of congenital inguinal, umbilical or hiatal hernias.

- Curvature of the spine, back muscle problems, hunchback or slipped discs.

- Muscle weakness like knees buckling or popping out.

- Nerve-muscle damage.

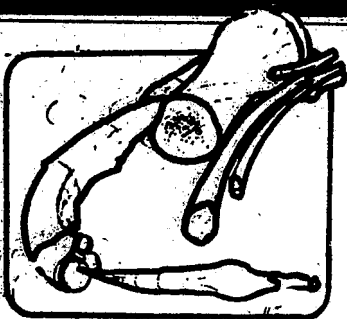

- Stress from physical exercise, fevers, muscle cramps, headaches, fatigue and heat intolerance.

- Stress from an emotional crisis that manifests in fever, cramps, stiffness, swollen neck, aching and excess sweating.

- Abnormal unexplained excessive high fever with mild infection and heat intolerance.

- Hypertension, hyperactivity, foot deformity, club foot, webbed toes or fingers, crooked teeth, spotted, or poor dental enamel.

- Crossed eyes, weak eye muscles, poor depth perception, detached retina and perceptual handicaps like dyslexia.

Insight at Colombiere changed his life

Alcohol therapist Ed Mills now works to help others

By Dan Vandenhemel

Ed Mills' life was a mess.

His marriage was in trouble, he had been in jail and he'd developed alcohol and substance abuse habits that cost $1,500 a month.

In 1979 he entered Insight at Colombiere.

The program changed his life.

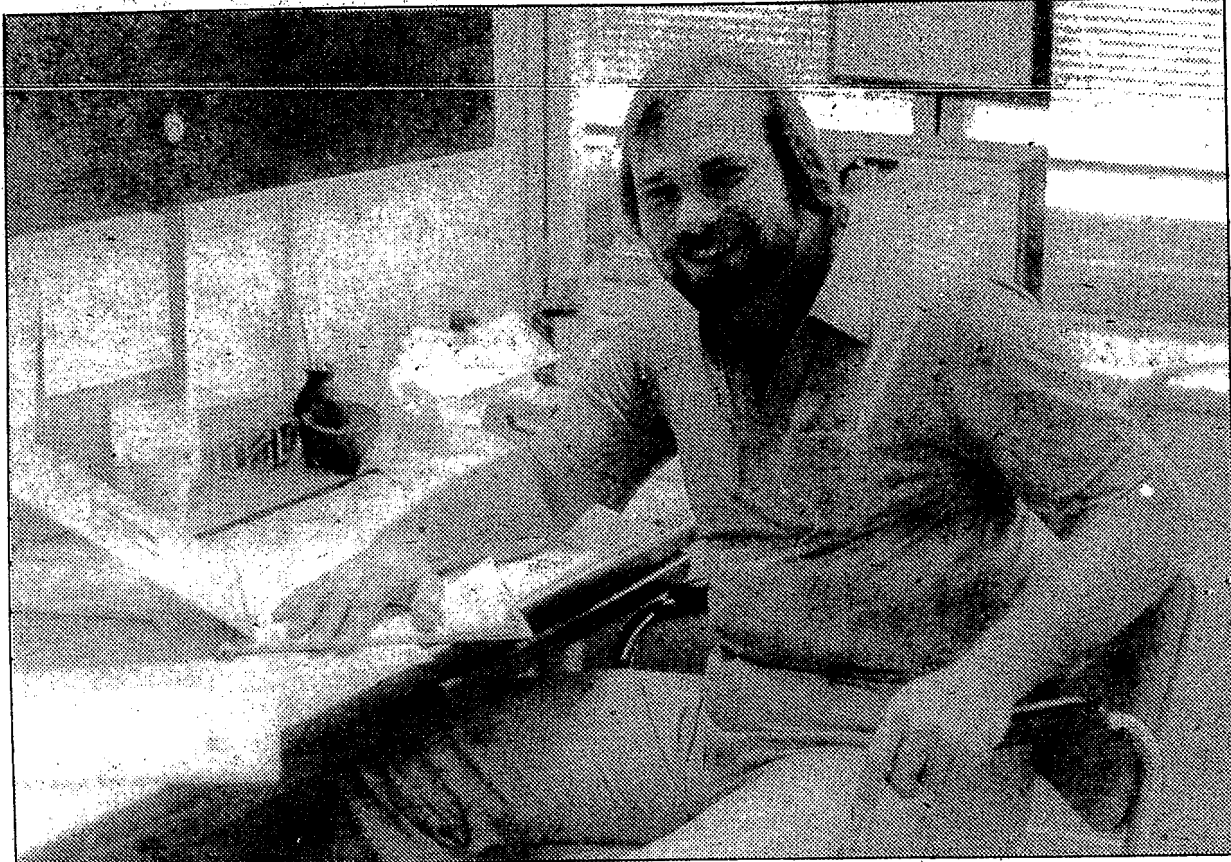

Mills, now 40, is now an alcohol therapist in the substance abuse program at Colombiere Center in Springfield Township.

"I was into cocaine, pot, alcohol to the tune of $1,500 of month," Mills said. "In '73 I owned two insurance agencies and I drank those up. I ended up embezzling money from myself."

When his problems began to deeply trouble his family, Mills said he decided it was time to do something.

"I had been in the Insight out-patient program and in a psychic ward for seven days," he said. "It was recommended that I come here for the 28-day program. I was in for 37 days because I had a erratic mood swings. Before I went in I was a manic-depressive—there was no child abuse but I tended to break things."

"I started drinking when I was in the Army in 1960," the Grand Blanc resident said. "I was raised in a family of successful people and I just associated drinking with success."

Ed Mills takes time out from his job as an alcohol therapist at Insight at Colombiere to talk about the time when he was one of the patients rather than on the staff.

"In 1963 I was arrested for assault and battery and was in jail for 40 days. By that time I had been separated a couple of times from (my wife,) Ann."

"In 1968 I killed a man. I was driving and hit him while he was walking down the middle of a six-lane highway—we were both drunk."

Once Mills completed the program at Insight he tried to get his life back together.

"I know that any problems can't be solved by a substance," he said. "I know the substance doesn't matter—if I take it, it'll kick my ass."

"Now I'm a better golfer, better father, better husband. I don't have a lot of experience to handle problems straight. I know in the past drugs always worked. But a change of attitudes was needed."

Intensive one-to-one therapy and group interaction are main parts of the program, Mills said.

Clients in the program start their day around 7 with breakfast served at 7:30. Lectures and group sessions fill the morning until lunch. Then after a 1½-hour lecture the clients have time to do as they please until supper at 5:30 p.m. Another lecture follows.

"The didactic (informative and pleasureable) lectures were really important," Mills said. "But a lot of

Since 1978 Insight has served over 1,200

Five years ago, Insight at Colomiere opened its doors to people with drug or alcohol abuse problems. Since then over 1,200 clients have gone through the program in Colomiere Center in Springfield Township.

"We have people coming from 19 different counties in Michigan," said director Owen McKenzie. "Most of them come from southeast Michigan. But we have some that come as far away as New York and Colorado. People from all over the country know about us, but people in our own back yard may not."

The 27-day program costs $155 a day or $4,300 for the month. With 52 beds, McKenzie said there are usually a few available.

"Everyone has a chance to be an alcoholic," he said. "We've had doctors, lawyers, engineers, wives, students, blue-collar workers, retirees. Everyone.

"There are lots of reasons people come here. One reason is they are sick and tired of being sick and tired—that's an AA (Alcoholics Anonymous) saying. There are family pressures, their business is in trouble...

"What this program does is give the person a new lease on life. They realize they don't have to live in a fog any more."

McKenzie cited a statistic about alcoholism. "Out of all the people who drink, 85 percent drink 15 percent of the booze," he said. "Are you ready for the flip side? The 15 percent that drink drink 85 percent of booze."

There is a test anyone can give himself or herself to see if there's a drinking problem.

McKenzie said to pick a date and for the next six months every time you decide to drink, limit yourself to just three drinks.

"That way you make a commitment to yourself and if you break that commitment, you're only cheating yourself. You have a problem if you go over the three-drink limit just once," McKenzie said.

Alcoholism affects the whole family emphasis was put on our leisure time. When you take the substance away, you create a vacuum. That vacuum has to be filled with something other than alcohol or drugs."

On April 20, 1981, Mills was hired at Insight as an alcohol therapist.

"I was very fortunate to get a job here," Mills said. "It's the only job I found where you can use your mistakes. I meet with the families to see how it affects their lives."

"So many come in and think the only one with a problem is the addict, but it affects the whole family. Many times the family thinks the client is on a vacation here, but it's tough on everybody."

Mills credits the Insight program with straightening out his life.
