Are our kids 'Chemical People'?

Students, professionals share knowledge of problem

Editor's note: In conjunction with the upcoming PBS series "The Chemical People," we offer this first of a two-part series on substance abuse in the Clarkston school district. To explore the problems that exist in the Clarkston area, we went to the student government, pediatrician James O'Neill, social worker Fred Baumann Clarkston High School Principal Dom Mauti. Next week we talk with the sociologists who explain the phenomenon and the impact drugs and alcohol have on our young people, their families and society. The reports were written by Clarkston News staff writer Marilyn Trumper.

Walk in the front doors of Clarkston High School, go straight down the hall east, take the first left turn and enter "burnout hall."

Thus billed by the 37-member Student Government, they say it's a common description by the school's 1,621 population.

"It's where the smoking area is, so it's always full of smoke," said one student government member, "from cigarettes—and whatever else they want to smoke back there. No one would be able to tell anyway."

To get a pulse on substance abuse in the high school The Clarkston News turned to the student government.

Its president, vice president and secretary-treasurer are elected by the school populace. The class is taken for credit, and its other students are selected by teacher Kate Germuska.

Almost all are honor students, actively involved in athletics and other extra-curricular activities and some have part-time jobs.

Their last names read like a who's who in Clarkston. They have parents who teach in the district and are elsewhere on the payroll, some are prominent local business people and one is pastor of an area church.

"First of all, many of the people in this class, most of us, wouldn't know people who take drugs. It's a different crowd of people and we don't hang around with them," said one girl who asked to remain anonymous.

"But if we wanted drugs, we'd know how to get them. If you want the drug, you can get it. If you don't, you won't. You're not exposed to the people who use them. We call them the burnouts."

"No one in here hangs around with that group. If we did, it would be more or less expected (that we take drugs)."

What drugs can be bought at Clarkston High School?

"Marijuana."

"Speed."

"Mescaline."

"Cocaine."

"It's a lot easier to pop a pill than drink a six,"

ON THE RUN FOR SCAMP: Rounding the corner at the half-way mark on the 10-mile course, these girls decide to run for a while during Sunday's Walk for SCAMP. Participants in the fundraiser gathered pledges for each mile, and then they walked. Although tallies aren't complete, a conservative estimate of pledges is $15,000, according to Margaret Olesnavage, coordinator of development for the SCAMP Funding Corp. Last year the walk raised about $22,000. [Photo by Kathy Greenfield]

FOND FAREWELL:
It's official. Summer's over. Its passing was marked last week by Clarkston village DPW employees picking up flower boxes and storing them for winter. They'll reappear in the spring in full regalia bloom.

—Corrections—

In last week's Clarkston News there were two errors in the story about the Clarkston Band Boosters Las Vegas Night planned Friday, Oct. 28, at St. Daniel's Hall.

The article should have said admission to the party is $2 and the price includes a chance in a $200 drawing.

The location of a training class for parent volunteers on Thursday, Oct. 25, should have been St. Daniel's Hall.

The Washington, D.C., telephone number for United States Congressman Bob Carr was incorrect in the Oct. 5 edition of The Clarkston News.

The number should have been 517-337-6714. Carr's administrative aides are Carol Barnes and Carol Conn.

said one boy, because it's tougher to mask breath odor.

"The real problem is alcohol," said one girl. "It's more socially-acceptable because everybody is doing it. People don't think it's as bad."

But one student warned against creating a false image.

"We are not a burnout school. Probably less than 10 percent of the kids take drugs."

But drinking, they agree, is widespread.

It's socially acceptable and easy to buy.

"You just go to a store, wait outside, and look for 'People will buy.'"

"I don't think people realize drinking is among a wider spectrum of people. Everybody does it. The smart kids...the athletes...everybody."

DOCTOR:

'It's a very vulnerable age'

According to pediatrician James O'Neill, M.D., there's more alcohol abuse than drug abuse in the Clarkston school district, and he has the patient numbers to prove it.

As recently as 10 days ago the Independence Township physician had a Clarkston High School boy in his office for a "drug screen."

"That's where they take a blood or urine test and screen it for drugs or alcohol, often at the request of the school, parents or the police. We're usually not surprised by the results," O'Neill said.

He recalls two high school girls treated last spring for alcohol overdose. The first registered a blood-alcohol level of .29, the second .28. Police call .10 legally drunk.

"Those are lethal levels," O'Neill said. "The one girl drank gin. I suppose it was sloe gin because that's what kids seem to drink. She mixed it in with something and drank the whole thing down."

"She woke up the next morning in the hospital, full of IV's..."

He remembers a high school girl pulled from a Clarkston High School bus and rushed to his office.

"We examined her and determined she was dead drunk from drinking vodka—and had been drinking vodka and orange juice every morning. Her dad was a lawyer. He was relieved to find out it was just alcohol. It seems parents can accept that. In that case both mother and daughter were alcoholics. That's usually the case. If you examine a family history you see alcoholism repeated."

Abuse extends beyond the high school level.

This summer O'Neill treated a Michigan State University coed for gonorrhea following a weekend drinking binge.

"By law, we have to report the contact, and I always pride myself in finding out who the contact is."

"She didn't have any idea. She didn't remember and wasn't sure when it happened. It could have been one of three or four partners."

O'Neill's practiced medicine 22 years in Independence Township.

"As I see it (the high school kids) have gone from alcohol abuse in the late '50s and early '60s to substance abuse with psychotropics and psychedelics in the '60s and it's evolved back to alcohol in the '70s. Alcohol, cocaine and other stimulants are the big drugs again," O'Neill said.

"Alcohol is a very accepted drink by both parents and young people—and society in general. Some people think it's cute, the idea of a 'kiddie-cocktail.'"

"I think that's tragic."

In the past seven years, seven chronic alcoholics under the age of 15 have been diagnosed at O'Neill's office.

"By all the definitions of the word, with blackout spells, physical withdrawals, physical stigmata, poor judgment, malnutrition," he said.

"In all cases, except for one where the child was adopted and it wasn't known who the parents were, there was a history of alcoholism in the family."

O'Neill says he's more worried about the junior high than high school.

"It's a very vulnerable age in terms of emotional liability, wanting to grow up and be mature. We've had some pretty bad problems with kids heavy into drugs. In fact there was a group of five kids in the Fox Center (at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital) last year. All from one school. They knew each other."

"And that's not unique to Clarkston. It's just a tough age group."

Parents often have tell-tale signs their children are experimenting with drugs.

"They wear the pot leaves on the belt buckles, have a spoon on their key ring. The paraphernalia is laying around. It's in their dress. They're sleeping inappropriately, have glazed eyes, things like that."

"A lot of parents look for it and don't moralize. They problem-solve. Others go into denial."

"I'm not saying it's immoral or amoral, only that you need to get the whole community involved to solve it," O'Neill said.

"Religion, a set of values, is important; the schools, the parents, a broad support system to draw the noose."

"You can fill your brain with alcohol—wreck your mind—lose your judgment—and your whole mind goes south."

"If you use drugs, you're going to lose control of your life."

"That's what we have to bring these kids around to, and it takes the family, the schools, the churches, the doctors, social workers, health care workers, everyone working together to do what I call, 'putting the noose around the kid, until it's so tight he has no place to go. Then you can make changes.'"

"Hopefully before they're brought to the attention of the coroner."

SOCIAL WORKER:

Avoiding pain

Because it's so socially acceptable, alcohol is the primary substance abused by Clarkston-area youth, not drugs.

That's the opinion of Fred Baumann, master's level social worker and assistant director of the Consortium for Human Development in Independence Township.

Of the 1,084 clients the Consortium saw last year, 162 were adolescents treated for substance abuse.

Alcohol is easier to obtain, is socially acceptable and, compared to chemicals, is considered safe, Baumann said.

"Alcohol is the third largest killer of our nation's young people. Those are staggering statistics. Chemicals have fallen into disfavor because they've been misrepresented. Kids know that what they think they're buying is not actually what they're getting. With alcohol there's no question."

But help is slow in coming, he said.

"As a society we've tended not to want to deal with alcoholism as a problem. Alcohol is so readily accepted and considered part of our recreational heritage. Although the stigma is lifting, there's still a stigma about being an alcoholic."

"Parents dismiss their children's drinking as '...a phase all kids go through.' Or say, 'I drank when I was their age.' It usually goes untreated until there's an accident or until the child is caught with a secret cache of alcohol," he said.

It's then they most often come to him.

"The most important thing to do is involve the whole family in the treatment. You have to break down the walls of denial, teach them to accept their disease. Parents need to understand that it exists. Alcohol's in church at functions there, it's at weddings, football and basketball games, it's in television ads and on the radio."

"It's a lifetime disease."

Kids, says Baumann, drink for the same reasons as adults.

"They say, 'It makes me feel better.' We spend a lifetime avoiding pain, be it physical pain or mental pain. That's the explanation be it from a heroin addict, from that first hit of marijuana or from a problem drinker."

"Kids have disappointments, pressures, expectations that aren't met. They're not any different from adults."

Baumann criticizes the availability of alcohol.

"Fifty years ago you wouldn't have found a party store owner selling to a kid. You do today. I think you're going to see a real crackdown on party stores and bars that sell to minors."

This is society's problem, not just the schools.

Town meeting

"The Chemical People" a PBS presentation (TV-Channel 56) moderated by First Lady Nancy Reagan will be on the air Nov. 2 and 9.

Members of the community are asked to watch the Nov. 2 program at home, which presents the problem in three segments—national the first hour, state the next half-hour and local the final half-hour. It begins at 8 p.m.

The Nov. 9 program deals with ways the community can work together to stop the program. It will be shown on television from 8 to 9 p.m.

Members of the community interested in gathering together for a town meeting to watch the program may go to St. Daniel's Hall at 7:30 p.m. Following the program, there will be a panel discussion and an opportunity to join a task force to work against substance abuse by young people.

The Nov. 9 TV program will be taped and offered again on Nov. 16 for those who could not attend the first town meeting. It will also begin at 7:30 p.m., include a panel discussion and offer an opportunity to join a task force.

For more information call Garry Pullins, Clarkston Area Youth Assistance Committee social worker, at 625-9007; Cecelia Wiar, Clarkston Junior High School assistant principal, at 625-5361; or Fred Baumann, director of the Consortium for Human Development, at 625-9600.

Trim joins Republican Party

By Marilyn Trümper

After eight years in Lansing former state representative Claude Trim, then a Democrat, lost the 1982 election to Mat Dunaskiss, a Republican.

Almost a year later, Trim has announced he's joined the GOP.

The Springfield Township resident is back at the General Motors Corp. as a senior supervisor.

His switch to the Republican party followed reappraisal of his voting record.

"I realized then that I was voting along Republican lines, but I felt people in the district elected me and I had an obligation to be there as they elected me.

"But I want people to know that if I was ever to go back, I'd run as a Republican. I feel our philosophies are more on the same lines."

Trim warned against speculation he'll seek Dunaskiss' office should Sen. Phil Mastin be recalled and Dunaskiss run for the senator's seat.

"But I have to be honest. There are people out there that said, 'Claude, we'd like to see you run.' I'm not going to say no, or yes. If the situation arises—I'll look at it."

"What it boils down to is Mastin's recall. People were coming up to me saying, 'Claude, if you were still in Lansing, would you have voted for the tax increase?' I said no, that I'd ask for other things in the package like a revised property tax structure," Trim said.

"I did when I was in office and that's what got me into trouble with the house and governor (Richard Milliken). He was governor then. He was for the tax increase.

"Now that I've been out of government, working for some 40 people, I know they're bitter about the cost of government."

Chiropractic Clinics

"Why Tomorrow's Health Begins Today"

It is the wise person who makes the right decision at the right time.

With health care in mind, decisions can be of critical importance.

Suffering Needlessly

Occasionally, we have had patients who, prior to visiting our office, had reconciled themselves to living in pain or illness.

Some had lived with their problems for years, and had been physically unable to enjoy much of what life offered.

Finally, when their pain had become too intolerable to live with and nothing seemed to relieve it, they came to our office and tried the chiropractic approach to health.

Regaining Health

How life changes when health returns for those who are accustomed to living in pain! Activities and events that had been passed by now become opportunities. A healthier person is a happier person.

Chiropractic has an excellent record in cases that involve headaches, back pain, (neck and lower back), numbness and pain in the extremities (arms, hands, fingers, legs or feet), muscle spasm or strain, shoulder or elbow pain (tendonitis or bursitis), nervous conditions, slipped discs, or chronic illness.

Don't delay! If you or someone you know is in pain, call our office and set up an appointment. There is no reason to live in pain.

Pursuing the Hispanic vote

President Reagan has spent an awful lot of time in recent months pursuing something called the "Hispanic vote." At first, I wondered who this guy "Hispanic" was, and why his single vote was so important.

Since, I've been apprised of what the Hispanic vote actually is, but frankly, I'm still confused. The thing I don't understand is why, if the votes of Hispanics are so important, the President and his Democratic opponents aren't also scrambling for the German vote, the Irish vote, the Polish vote, the Italian vote, or for that matter, the Eskimo vote?

I'M PARTICULARLY INCENSED, for obvious reasons of ethnic heritage, at the President's habit of ignoring the Polish vote. You'd think the man would hold at least one press conference in front of a Kowalski delicatessen, munch kielbasa and publicly declare his fondness for sour cream and accordion music, just to make me happy. But, alas, while the Hispanics travel first class in terms of political attention, we Poles are stuck on coach.

I'm also a little bitter about having been deprived of the wonders of bilingual education when I was in school. The use of public money to teach youngsters in languages other than English only makes sense. Put me squarely in the corner of Mario Obledo, the president of the League of United Latin American Citizens.

In the course of an interview in a recent issue of U.S. News and World Report, Obledo opined that "every American child ought to be taught both English and Spanish," owing to our "proximity to our neighbors in Mexico and Central America."

A capital idea, indeed, since Obledo thinks I should be obligated to learn Spanish, I know he'll have no objections at all to learning Polish. I'll arrange for the lessons.

And, since Quebec is just as close to our borders as Mexico, I think every American child ought to be taught French, in addition to English and Spanish. Learning Portugese would be a nice gesture too, since Brazil, being in our hemisphere, surely qualifies as being in our "proximity."

Mandatory German for Michigan school children also makes sense, owing to our proximity to Frankenmuth.

Let's see, that's mandatory English, Spanish, French, Polish, German and Portugese. And to avoid any accusations of European chauvinism, let's add all the dozens of Native American languages and re-name our local grade school "Babel Elementary."

OBLEDO SAID ANOTHER thing I could relate to. I quote: "I have often thought: Mario, what would you do if you were in Texas and you'd wake up one morning and millions of Mexicans are walking across the border into the United States? The U.S. would have to resist. We'd have to get the armed forces, conduct a battle. What would I do? What side would I take?"

I know how you feel, Mario. I sit up nights worrying about what side I'd take if the Soviet Union and its Warsaw Pact allies decided to invade Western Europe. Would I stand by the nation in which I merely vote, make my living, own property and hold citizenship? Or would I cast my lot with the country where things are so peachy and the opportunities are so great that my ancestors left and came over here?

A dilemma indeed. Anybody have a coin?

$1 pencils

You might think the word "collateral" is a big one for kids at Sashabaw Junior High—but don't.

They live with it daily.

If they forget a pencil in health class, one can be borrowed for a $1 collateral.

"Inflation's" a routine part of their vocabulary too.

But they've always got pencils.

Right place, wrong crew

Don't ask the rangers at the Pine Knob Music Theatre about collecting, rinsing and storing the 80,000 cans that cashed into $7,500 for SCAMP, an Independence Township summer camp program for kids with handicaps.

Maintenance crews did all the work—and they deserve the credit.

The Clarkston News salutes them, and regrets the error in last week's paper that didn't give credit where credit was due.

No cheers here

There are no cheers for The Clarkston News from the high school's JV cheerleading squad.

Two weeks ago we reported on the two male cheerleaders blazing trails on the traditionally all-female squad—and neglected to mention the females.

To soothe cries of reverse-discrimination we hail coach Sue Jorgensen and her young women who devote just as much time to the job as the young men.

Reading pleasure

I missed The Clarkston News the last few weeks.

The Clarkston News is such a pleasure to read—the local news, the historic pages, the school activities, all dear to my heart and interesting to read.

I'm looking forward to my next paper. Enclosed please find my check for a three-year subscription.

By the way I was 80 years old on Aug. 15.

Best of everything; keep up the good work.

Jim's jottings

Fudging in golf

Jim Sherman

My sister, Barbara, who plays golf twice a week year around, suggests others use the following list of rules of golf which she has adopted for her play.

A ball hooked or sliced into the rough shall be lifted and placed in the fairway at a point equal to the distance it carried into the rough. Such veering right or left results from friction between the ball and the club face and the player should not be penalized for such uncontrollable mechanical problems.

A ball hitting a tree shall be deemed not to have hit the tree. Hitting the tree is simply bad luck and has no place in a scientific game. The player should estimate the distance the ball would have traveled had it not struck the tree and place the ball in the fairway at the point, preferably on a nice tuft of grass.

There shall be no such thing as a lost ball. The missing ball is certainly there someplace and will be pocketed by someone else at a later date. It thus becomes a stolen ball and the player should take a stroke off his total score for each such ball at the end of the round.

When hitting a ball from a bunker, the player shall have the right to strike the ball as many times as necessary to remove the ball from the hazard. A maximum of two strokes shall be counted in any case since it can be assumed that if the player had adequate time to concentrate that he could remove the ball in as many strokes. This rule applies to the first bunker only.

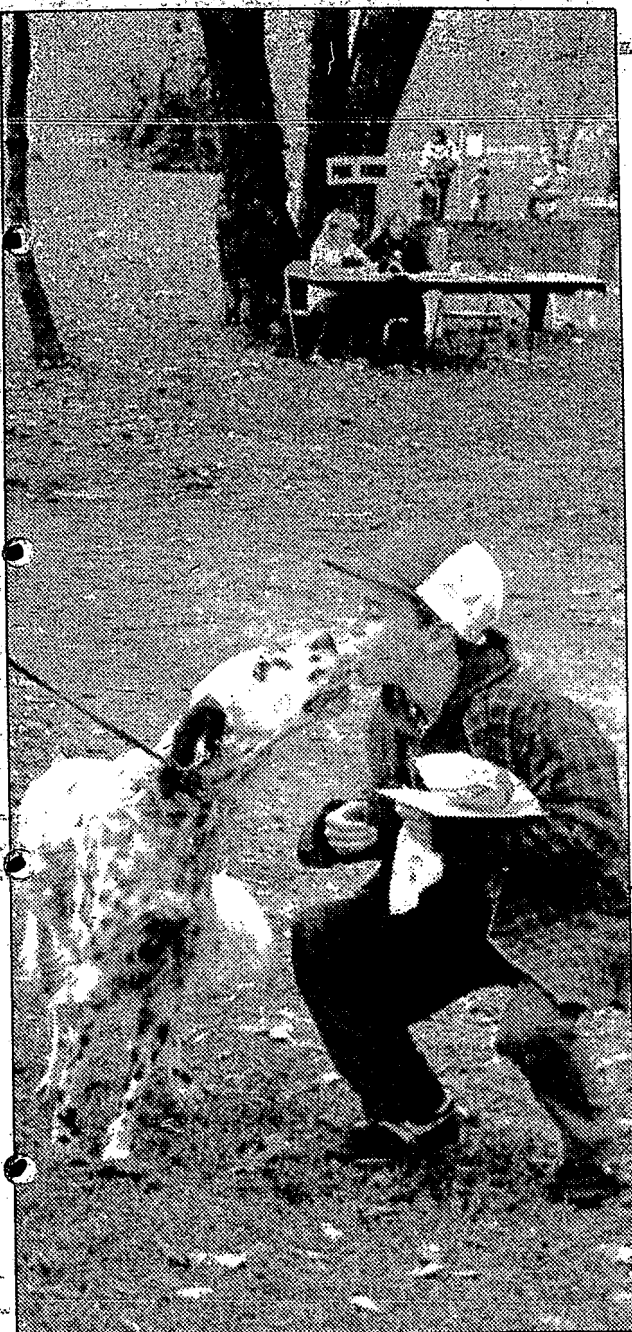

Thereafter, the ball shall be lifted from the bunker without penalty.

A putt which passes over the cup without dropping shall be deemed to have dropped. The law of gravity states that an object attempting to maintain its position in the atmosphere without support must drop. The same theory holds for a ball which hangs on the rim of the cup. The law states that it must drop. A ball stopping so close to the hole as to inspire such comments as "You could blow it in" may, in fact, be blown in. The rule does not apply to a ball which is more than three inches from the hole since no one wants to make a travesty of the game.

Shots which strike the green but roll off the back shall be deemed to have stayed on the green. The ball shall be placed on the green at a point halfway between the point it struck and the back of the green. Obviously, the green has not been kept in ideal condition and the player cannot be penalized for this.

On courses where the greens are not kept up, such as above, the old rule of "inside the leather" does not apply. Instead, the player shall remove the flagstick and measure the putt. If the ball lies within the flag, the putt shall be termed a "gimme". Putts lying outside the flag may be practiced up to three times prior to the player putting them for real. A practice putt which falls may be called a real putt. A putt which travels less than 50 yards, such as a shank or a top, may be replayed without penalty.

Walkers raise money for SCAMP

SHARING THE REWARD: Robert Ward and his English setter, Lillian, share a hot dog following their completion of the three-mile Walk for SCAMP. Robert's mother, Nancy, met them in the park following their efforts to raise money for the summer camp program for children with special needs. Robert attends Clarkston Elementary School.

ALMOST DONE: Shelly Swartz (left) and Stacy Whitmire burst into a run as they near the finish of their three-mile Walk for SCAMP. The North Sashabaw Elementary School pupils par-

'If it Fitz...'

His bet's with betting

Jim Fitzgerald

Every morning I watched the steady stream of buses unload passengers—all of them elderly, most of them women, many of them in wheelchairs, using walkers, or otherwise slowed and stooped by various afflictions.

"They look like they are arriving in Lourdes in search of miraculous cures," someone said.

Actually, they were arriving in Atlantic City in search of a lot of money, or a little fun.

It was the last week in September. I wasn't supposed to be in Atlantic City. I was supposed to be in Baltimore to see the Orioles and the Detroit Tigers play three baseball games which would surely determine which team would be champion of the Eastern Division of the American League. That had been the vacation plan, made too soon.

THE TIGERS POOPED OUT before they got to Baltimore and those three games meant nothing in the final scheme of things that cause fans to whoop or sob.

There was no sense in going to Baltimore to mourn a dead issue, but just wait until next year. Under the Tigers' new ownership, if Kirk Gibson doesn't hit .3000, he will at least deliver pizza to your front door.

So, anyway, at the last minute I turned left and went to Atlantic City instead. My wife wasn't too thrilled but I explained that Mayor Coleman Young and several other people, none of them editorial writers, think casino gambling might be a good thing for downtown Detroit. And for me to write about how slot machines and crap tables have changed life along the famous Boardwalk could be a contribution to the improvement of my hometown, not to mention an expense-account possibility.

The change is considerable, and certainly includes the aforementioned Lourdes-like tourist who are commonly referred to as "day people." There are six huge and glittering hotel-casinos along the Boardwalk, with a seventh under construction, and each employs a fleet of buses to transport customers between the gambling games and nearby New York City and Philadelphia.

The buses arrive before lunch and leave around 6:30 p.m. The casinos compete for day people with many "free" goodies, including rolls of quarters to prime slot-machine pumpers. The little-old-lady-in-sneakers cliché hits its peak in Atlantic City. During the afternoon, it's nearly impossible to find a vacant slot. After the buses leave in the evening, the crowds are smaller, younger, more masculine—and less interesting.

THE CREATOR'S MOST fascinating creation is still the human being. Most of the people on Boardwalk benches sit with their backs to the Atlantic Ocean so they can watch other people walk by. It is fun to speculate about the Atlantic City tourists, especially those who look like my 83-year-old mother-in-law but gamble like Nick the Greek.

Because I'm too chicken to risk more than a few dollars, I find it hard to understand anyone who'd rather bet than eat. But to each his own. Gambling is fun and exciting and here to stay—forever. It's bringing thousands of visitors to Atlantic City who certainly wouldn't be there otherwise. All of those tourists aren't greedy idiots wasting their children's lunch money. Most of them are Aunt Mary and Uncle Harry from Harrisburg, looking for a few kicks.

Casino gambling can be as honest as the police and politicians who supervise it. It would create jobs, fill downtown with spending tourists, and subsidize top-flight restaurants and entertainment. But it wouldn't "save" the city any more than the lottery eliminated the state income and property taxes.

By the way, the day people pumping slots in Atlantic City looked familiar. They looked like the people who line up in my neighborhood grocery store to buy Instant Lottery tickets. They looked like the people who bet at Michigan's horse tracks and play the crummy games-of-chance at downtown ethnic festivals.

Onward and Upward, and all hail the hypocrites who will surely save us from casino sin. They will bet on it.

One less truck

Clarkston has sold its 10-year-old DPW dump truck for $7,056.

The council approved the lone bid at its Oct. 10. A new truck was ordered in late August at a cost of $19,151, purchased from a special equipment reserve fund.

Park laws coming

Plans continue to make Depot Park rules law. At the Clarkston Village Council's Oct. 10 meeting, attorney Thomas Gruich offered an update on progress to condense the park's 24 rules into law. The draft followed a request by deputies of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department who need the law in hand to enforce it.

Sewer hookups

Two village residents, on Glenburnie and Holcomb roads, failed to hook up to the sewer system and have 90 days to do so or face legal action.

The decision was unanimous at the Oct. 10 Clarkston Village Council meeting.

Ten years ago it became mandatory for all residents to hook up, according to attorney Thomas Gruich.

Spooky place

Grab a friend's hand and hold on tight! You'll need it for the Clarkston-area Jaycees' popular Haunted House in the 150-year-old Sashabaw United Presbyterian Church on Maybee Road.

The setting's perfect with a black wrought iron fence and cemetery, knarled trees, lots of darkness—and the Clarkston High School Drama Club has been practicing their monster roles.

Tickets are $1.50.

There's parking across the street at the new church, 5300 Maybee, Independence Township. The haunted house is open from 7 to 10 p.m. from Oct. 21 through the 30th.

For information phone 627-6024.

Hot cider, donuts and coffee will be sold.

Gambling charges

Loy and Barbara Limbaugh, owners of Sam's Town Bar at Dixie Highway and M-15, face gambling charges for providing video poker games at their Independence Township bar.

A preliminary exam scheduled Oct. 14 before Oakland County District Court Judge Gerald E. McNally was canceled. No new date has been set.

Last June 23 the machines were confiscated, according to Lt. Larry Keeton of the Michigan State Police's Oakland County Organized Crime Unit.

The maximum penalty is two years in jail and $1,000 fine for violation of state and Liquor Control Commission laws, Keeton said.

According to Keeton, the machines are commonly found in Las Vegas and Atlantic City and payoff in extra games, or the extra games can be cashed in for money.

Unlike other video games, there is no skill involved with poker video, and that makes the payoff illegal, Keeton said.

RUNNING FOR SCAMP: Lisa Burkemo finishes her 10-kilometer run for SCAMP. She's one of seven members of the Clarkston High School Cross Country teams who gathered pledges and ran Sunday, working out while helping others. Coach Mike Taylor is on hand to announce her time as she crosses the finish line in Clarkston's Depot Road Park.

Begging hours

Read on for safety tips on trick-or-treating and Halloween hours.

Trick-or-treating in Independence Township is Monday, Oct. 31, from 6 to 7 p.m.

The Oakland County Sheriff's Department will be screening candy with a metal detector from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. that night at the two township McDonald's restaurants; 6695 Dixie Highway and 5625 Sashabaw.

In addition, St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Pontiac is offering a free Halloween safety packet which includes a safety tip sheet, reflector tapes for costumes and a 60-page emergency handbook.

Write: St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, Public Relations Department, 900 Woodward, Pontiac, MI 48053, or call 332-0777.

Look into future

Independence Township's future is the topic of the annual meeting of the Independence Land Conservancy.

Richard Carlisle, of Community Planning & Management, Ann Arbor, is guest speaker. He is presently working on the township's master plan that establishes the allowed uses of land.

Carlisle's program is entitled "Where is Independence Township Going?"

The Thursday, Oct. 20, meeting is to begin at 8 p.m. in Independence Township Hall, 90 N. Main, Clarkston.

Also on the agenda are election of conservancy board members and a change in bylaws which would increase the annual dues from $1 to $5.

For more information, call Conservancy President Lucy Kasl weekdays during business hours at 625-2462.

Anita Davison: Woman of the year

Clarkston Elementary kindergarten teacher surprised by honor

By Kathy Greenfield

It was the day after teacher Anita Davison was chosen Woman of the Year by the Waterford-Clarkston Business Women's Association.

Her kindergarten classes had taken a field trip to a cider mill Friday morning.

Alone in her classroom at Clarkston Elementary, she's busy with organization tasks still underway following the move of kindergarten back from Clarkston Junior High this year.

There are no adult-size chairs in the room; she doesn't use a desk for sitting but wants to be with the children.

And after 28 years in the classroom with little people, Davison says she's always comfortable in short chairs.

"I like kids," she says. "I think if I ever grow up I'll quit teaching. I enjoy children's literature—the humor in it. It's fun to watch them grow. There's a lot of self-gratification, a tremendous amount."

She admits she was surprised by the honor bestowed by the businesswomen's club.

"What this does to you is it makes you wonder if you deserve it," she says. "It makes you renew what you do—if I have been given this, I should evaluate what I have been doing so I deserve it."

She wonders aloud who submitted her name for the award, knowing only that it was someone whose child she had taught.

"Somewhere along the line, I'm sure I've done something nice for a few people with the thousands of kids I've had," she says.

She talks about the thank-you notes she's received over the years—and says she saves them to read when she needs a pick-me-up.

Then it's on to her practice, revealed during the award ceremony, of sending graduation cards to every student she's had who graduates from Clarkston High School.

She writes a personal note in each one.

"I heard about a teacher who did it many years ago. I thought it was nice," she says. "It hasn't turned out as I thought it would—it turned out better."

"I've gotten letters saying it was their nicest graduation gift. I think they're surprised that somebody remembers and cares."

It's significant that graduation has always meant a great deal to the kindergarten teacher.

Three years ago, the school district began developmental kindergarten, largely through the efforts of Davison and Pat Loveless, who teaches the Clarkston SPICE program for preschoolers.

This year there is at least one developmental kindergarten class in each of the district's five elementary schools.

It's an understatement to say Davison is enthusiastic about the program that provides an extra year of kindergarten for 5-year-olds not ready for regular kindergarten.

She notes that another school district in Michigan with developmental kindergarten for many years has a high school drop-out rate of zero.

But back to the beginnings.

The first 10 years of her career were spent teaching first grade.

She remembers a boy who spent a year in private school and, although he was 5, was put in first grade rather than kindergarten in the public school.

The child was bright. But he graduated at the bottom of his high school class of 400.

Anita Davison joins the conversations of members of her afternoon kindergarten class during snacktime. Davison's taught in the Clarkston school district 28 years.

"That really preyed on my nerves, what happened to that child because of early admission," she says.

And she remembers a "marvelous mother of five" whose children were born late in the year and chose to enroll them all in kindergarten when they were 6.

"She just looked at me and said, 'They're not old enough to start.' They did beautifully," she says.

Davison discovered the Gesell Institute, and a battery of tests that determine whether a child is ready for kindergarten—not mentally, but physically.

She's emphatic in her belief that many bright children need more time to grow before they're ready for regular kindergarten.

"Up here, it's wonderful," she explains, pointing to her head. "But the body doesn't say, 'I'm ready to sit still.'"

"I think if we haven't done anything else, we've stopped the naughty little boys—the fact that they move around, talk, knock down blocks is OK. It's not in any other grade."

Davison has worked for the Gesell Institute about five years. She's on its national lecture staff, she does developmental assessments on a private basis, and she performs the service for Clarkston schools at no cost beyond her teaching salary.

Recently she's been involved in statewide conferences for optometrists to instruct them how to test children's vision beyond simple eyesight—to catch developmental problems and know what exercises work to overcome them.

There are now 16 teachers in the district trained in the Gesell method, that is so accurate "it's scary," she says, for she's never disagreed, from her own observations and experience, with test results that show certain children need the extra time and experience developmental kindergarten can offer.

In the past, through kindergarten screening, it used to be recommended that some 5-year-olds go to nursery school.

Developmental kindergarten is better, Davison says.

"They're ready for more than (nursery school), but they're not ready for paper and pen," she says. "In my regular kindergarten, I teach almost like I did in first grade 28 years ago."

Gordon Bovee [third from left] strides into the marathon finish line. His time: three hours, 22

minutes and 20 seconds. Of 24 runners from Clarkston's WGAS only two didn't finish: Eric Beamer whose shoes fell apart and Pat Portenga who was recuperating from the flu.

After the run is over Clarkston club members share memories

By Dan Vandenhemel

The Detroit Free Press International Marathon is etched in history and in the minds of 24 runners from Clarkston's running club.

They wore bright orange, for visibility among the 4,000 runners in the Oct. 9 race. Large white letters proclaimed Clarkston, their first names and the club's name, WGAS (We Go All Seasons).

Their experiences ran the gamut from qualifying for the Boston Marathon to having a pair of shoes fall apart two miles into the race.

Carole Dieck, 40, of Waterford Township and Joe Kalina, 52, of Orion Township were the only members to qualify for the Boston Marathon.

Kalina's time was 3:13:52.

"I've run in four other marathons this year and qualified in each one but this was my best time," he said. "For my age group I had to beat 3:20, the other times were just below that."

Dieck finished 65th in the field of 456 women and completed the Free Press marathon in 3:28:21. In her age group, the qualifying time is under 3:30.

"And she's going to Boston," said her husband, Jim, 41, who ran the Detroit marathon in 3:51:34.

"One of the things we're finding out now, it's hard as heck to find a place to stay in Boston during the marathon (run on a Monday in April). We're trying to work on that right now."

While his wife is planning to run in the prestigious race, Dieck is thinking about hanging up his marathon shoes.

"I'm not sure I want to run any more marathons," he said. "I think it's too hard on your body. It takes too much training. I'm still going to run...but I think these long runs are really hard on you."

A number of other runners ran their personal bests, including Larry Bowman, Fred Jones, Roy Fry, Lee Freel and Elaine Bass, Freel, 43, of Snowapple Drive, Independence Township, said the cool weather was perfect.

"It was the major difference in the times. Last year it was hot and you got tired quickly," he said.

In training for the marathon, runners logged up to 80 miles a week with at least one long run of over 20 miles.

Fred Jones, 44, of Sunnysdale Road, Independence Township, is the unofficial president of the club. He trained harder with more miles this year.

"I wanted to see if the miles helped. It did," he said.

Running in their first marathons were Sharleen Cameron, Michele Preuss, Joyce Felice and Larry Beamer.

"I made up my mind before I started and during the race that I would not stop or walk," said Larry Beamer, 43, of Boyne Highland Trail, Independence Township. "I couldn't do that; I wouldn't let myself."

One way of being recognized in the middle of 4,000 other runners is to have a bright orange uniform with your name on it. Twenty-four members of the WGAS (We Go All Seasons) running club of Clarkston competed in the sixth annual Detroit Free Press International Marathon.

Race memories linger for Clarkston club

The novice marathoners said the experience was different.

"I was worried about my endurance before the race," said Michele Preuss, 39, of Waterford. "This was my first race and I was a survivor. Next year, I'll be a racer."

The wearing of bright orange was a plus.

"The spectators were calling, 'Come on Clarkston!' They were doing that all along the route. It was a real boost to hear that," said Larry Bowman, 43, of Drayton Plains.

"The outfits were fantastic," said Joyce Felice, 33, of Drayton Plains. "People were calling out our names and cheering us along. It was great."

The importance of wearing good shoes was a lesson learned by Eric Beamer, the 19-year-old son of member Larry Beamer.

"The inside of my right shoe came out (at two miles) and I ran like that until the eight-mile mark," he said. "I took my shoes off and ran another eight miles. After running with the bad shoe for so long it felt great running without them. My feet just got too sore and I quit after 16 miles."

Pat Portenga, 45, of Balmoral Trail, Independence Township, had to quit after 19 miles.

"I had the flu the week before, but I tried the race anyway," she said. "I was weak and cold. After training three months, I hated to see that go down the drain."

Patricia Evans, 46, of Deer Hill Drive, Independence Township, was the oldest woman in the group. She was also sick the week before and finished in 4:27:45.

"I thought it was a moral victory just to finish. I was thrilled," she said.

WGAS members' times for the marathon: Joe Kalina, 3:13:52; Larry Beamer, 3:14:52; Gordon Bovee, 3:22:20; Everett Rawlings, Boca Raton, Fla., 3:26:27; Carole Dieck, 3:28:21; Don Johnston, 3:32:02; Frank Jones, 3:32:39; Lee Freel, 3:36:24; Roy Fry, 3:43; Larry Bowman, 3:43:46; Fred Jones, 3:44:33; Jim Dieck, 3:51:34; Bruce Olson, 3:59:25; Harold Lawton, 4:02:43; Dan Schulte, 4:08:59; Dick Selvala, 4:16:06; Sharleen Cameron, 4:16:55; Elaine Bass, 4:21:44; Pat Evans, 4:27:45; Jane Bovee, 4:35:23; Michele Preuss, 4:40:10; Joyce Felice, 4:40:11.

Rest and recuperation are a must for marathon runners after the 26.2-mile race is over. Each year following the Detroit Free Press International Marathon, the members of Clarkston's WGAS running club, their families and friends meet at the same spot on the grass near the finish line on Belle Isle to eat food brought from home and relax before they head back to the Clarkston area.

Kickers lose in rain, 8-2

By Dan Vandenhemel

Two factors were responsible for Clarkston's 8-2 pre-regional soccer loss, the weather and Farmington High School.

The score was tied at two apiece late in the first half when it started to rain.

Both teams had to contend with the slippery field conditions, but Wolves' coach Neil Granlund said Farmington's experience allowed control of the game.

Greg Molzon and J.R. Keelin scored the only goals of the game for the Wolves who are 0-12-1 for the season.

"Once it started raining they had a couple of fast breaks against us and scored quickly," Granlund said.

The half ended with Farmington leading 4-2. In the second half it poured, and Farmington continued to score, racking up four more goals.

Both teams drew byes in the first round of the pre-regionals. The region is comprised of 19 teams from as far north as Alpena, and down to Livonia.

The loss to Farmington ends the Wolves' chances in the regional battle.

"It was clear Farmington took advantage of the rain and controled the game," he said. "The key for us on defense in the first half was 'Face' (Derek Brown). I had to sit him down in the second half because of a headache."

Brown got his nickname the night before against Lake Orion when he got hit square in the face with the ball. Brown said that night at home he could see the impression on his face.

"That was a tough game against Lake Orion," Granlund said. "It was hard to get started against Farmington after losing 4-2 the night before."

Clarkston has one remaining game left against Flint Powers, Oct. 25. Clarkston and Powers played to a 5-5 tie Sept. 27.

Jim Bohl is improving

By Dan Vandenhemel

Four weeks after a head injury on the soccer field, Jim Bohl is out of intensive care at Crittenton Hospital in Rochester.

"He is responding to questions by blinking and he is aware of who is in the room with him," said his mother, Rosalie Bohl.

Bohl was injured in a Sept. 22 game and needed surgery that night to remove a blood clot from his brain.

"He's semi-conscious but the doctors feel he should be fully consious in a couple of days," Mrs. Bohl said. "Right now he is fighting an infection but he doesn't have a temperature."

Bohl is aware of what happened to him and sheds a tear now and then, said his mother.

"We assure him that he is going to be OK, but we are still asking for prayers," she said.

Mrs. Bohl said her son is able to have visitors now and is in room 541 at Crittenton.

Chris McBride clears the ball out of the Wolves' end of the field during the 8-2 loss in the pre-regional soccer game with Farmington High School Oct. 12.

Dan Vandenhemel

When football teams meet, people bet. Las Vegas is known more for its betting atmosphere than what state it is in. The "experts" in Vegas predict each week which football team will beat who by how much. They choose winners in the pro games and college games.

I don't know if their staff of experts decides on high school teams. But if they did, I'd like to know what they'd say about the Clarkston-Lake Orion game Oct. 21.

That is a big game. The winner will own a share of the Greater Oakland Activities League (GOAL) title with Waterford Kettering.

Kettering is 3-1 in the league and has beaten the Wolves and the Dragons. Both Clarkston and Lake Orion are 2-1 in the league.

When they meet Friday night, they will not be playing for just a piece of the title, they will be playing for lunch, mine.

Al Zawacky, the editor of the Lake Orion Review offered to bet on the game. Though the loser will not have to wash the other's car or clothes, lunch will still be different.

He doesn't know it but if I lose, which I won't, it will be McDonald's. If he loses, we're talking RenCen.

Zawacky said he didn't bet because Lake Orion is a powerhouse of a team, he bet because Clarkston isn't very strong.

Granted the Wolves are not Farmington Harrison or even Waterford Kettering, but they have played some good football.

In last week's loss to Dearborn, Clarkston made a couple of early mistakes, then outscored the Pioneers, 14-3, in the second half.

Kettering shut down Clarkston, but they mauled Lake Orion.

With any luck, the Wolves should be 4-2 instead of 2-4. They lost to Dearborn when they should have won. And in the opening game of the season against Romeo, Clarkston lost, 21-20.

Who have the Dragons beaten lately? Waterford Mott, 39-28. Clarkston shut Mott out, 21-0.

The "experts" always try to predict a score. The score isn't as important as the outcome.

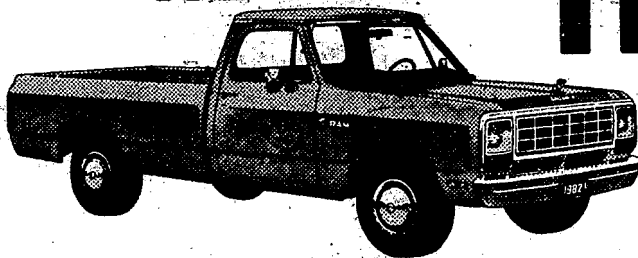

Since there isn't any doubt on the outcome, I'll take a stab at the score to practice for stabbing at a thick steak.

Clarkston 14, Lake Orion 9.

CHS downs Mott, 52-50

By Dan Vandenhemel

Juniors on the Clarkston basketball team won the Wolves' game against Waterford Mott.

Clarkston won, 52-50, on Oct. 13 as juniors Wendy Learmont and Bridget Kilcline came off the bench to score key baskets.

Kilcline led all scorers with 12 points and had 10 rebounds. Learmont added nine points and fellow junior Kim Ottman scored 10.

"They made the difference in the game," coach Dave McDonald said.

Senior Lin Klingler, who has started all season, did not see action because of the flu, and Sue Ketvirtis saw limited court time in her first game of the season due to a leg injury.

"Once we get everyone healthy again, we're going to have great depth," McDonald said. "Anyone can come off the bench to help us now."

Team quickness and defense helped Clarkston raise the lead to 32-20 at halftime.

Junior guards Ottman and Laura Hurren were also key to the victory. Both were able to move the ball up the court and weave between defenders to set off the offense.

"They have been playing well all year," McDonald said. "Kim is leading the team in scoring and in steals. She is the best junior I've ever had on a team. She used her speed well."

McDonald said the Wolves needed the victory badly; they had lost their last two games, putting their season record at 9-4.

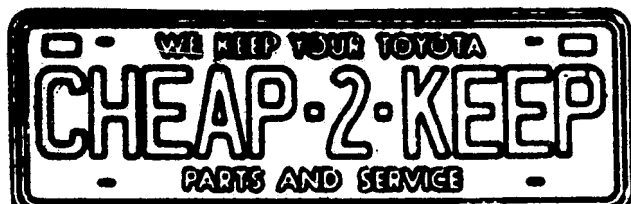

"We were starting to wonder what was happening," he said. "We play good at times, then not so good. Our bench depth is shaping up now, but when you're 9-4 someone is carrying you."

Senior Janet Herron scores two of her eight points against Waterford Mott. The Wolves defeated the Corsairs, 52-50, at Waterford to raise their season record to 9-4.

1st half kills Clarkston Wolves

By Dan Vandenhemel

The Clarkston Wolves tried to come back after a badly played first half but fell short as they lost the varsity football game to Dearborn High School, 24-14.

The Oct. 14 game started with Dearborn returning the opening kickoff 84 yards to set up the Pioneers' first touchdown.

Three plays later Dearborn led, 7-0. They punched in another score at the end of the first quarter.

By the time the Wolves woke up, they trailed at halftime, 21-0.

"It's hard to come back from 21-0," said Wolves' coach Walt Wyniemo. "You can't give up that many points and expect to be in the game."

The Wolves came out of the lockerroom with a different attitude and took the second half kickoff the length of the field to score.

Rob Newblatt churned and twisted his way up the middle for a 10-yard run to put the Wolves on the board. The play before, Jeff Davis broke two tackles for 5 tough yards to set up Newblatt's run.

Later in the quarter, Dearborn intercepted its third of four passes and drove close enough to record a 28-yard field goal to make the score 24-7.

Clarkston took its kickoff and started an 82-yard scoring drive that ate four minutes off the clock. Jim Ruelle pushed in from the 3-yard line to pull the Wolves within 10 points.

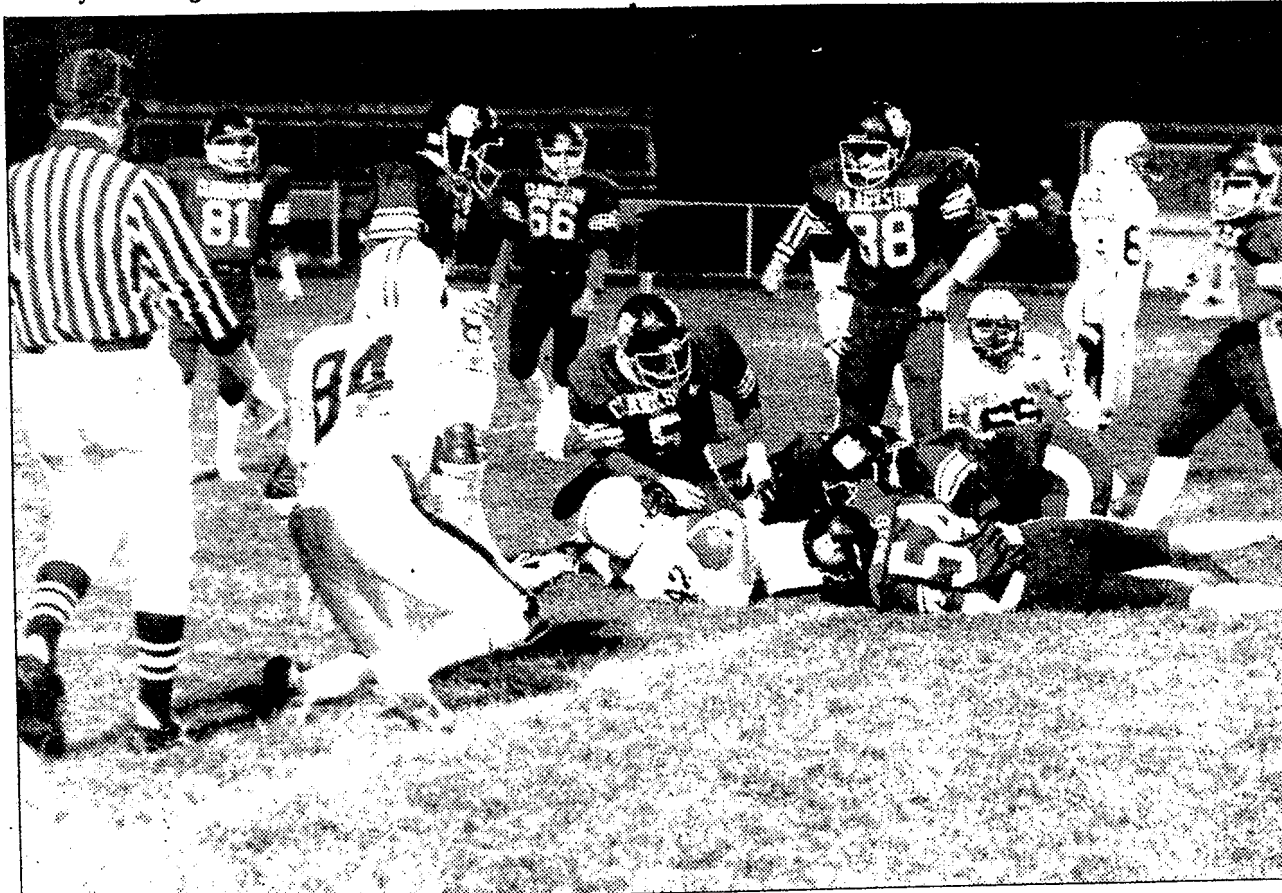

With eight minutes left in the game the Wolves tried an onside kick, recovered it on the 50-yard line, but were unable to move the ball.

The total yardage for the two teams was close, Clarkston with 212 and Dearborn with 205.

Clarkston looked like two different teams. The first half they were making mistakes; and the second half they looked like champions.

Wyniemo said the team wasn't up for the game at the start.

"We lacked intensity in the first half," he said. "We played with a lot of guts the second half, but you have to be able to do that right away."

Clarkston gave up 21 points the first half and were unable to come back to win.

The Wolves gang up for a tackle of a Dearborn player in Clarkston's 24-14 loss Oct. 14.

Share colors

Fall of 1983 is turning into one of the most colorful in memory.

The reds seem more brilliant, the rusts rustier and the yellows brighter.

Northern Oakland County includes spots as beautiful as any in Michigan.

If you have found a place that is breathtaking, will you share it with us?

Call The Clarkston News at 625-3370 and give us the location.

We'll pass on the information to our readers so all can share in the beauty of autumn.

YFU needs exchange students

Calling all area students: Do you want to travel? Would you like to live abroad? How about becoming part of an international family?

Youth for Understanding invites you to become part of their foreign student exchange program and live in one of 24 countries for the summer or for a year.

There are still openings in many countries for the coming summer and the 1984-85 school year, but the time to begin planning is now.

The deadline for registration in the YFU summer and year is March 1984.

Youth for Understanding, one of the largest foreign student exchange programs, is a non-profit international educational organization. The program stresses family living as the heart of the learning experience.

As a YFU student, students will live with a foreign family and become a part of that family, sharing in their daily life and becoming personally involved in a different culture.

For more information, phone 517-777-4420, or write to the YFU Regional Office, 6264 Dixie Highway, Bridgeport, Mich. 48722.

Seeing triple, double at SJH

By Marilyn Trumper

No, you won't see double at Sashabaw Junior High School when the six twins and one set of triplets walk down the hall.

Just two sets of twins are identical.

The rest, including the triplets, are fraternal, or non-identical.

But they're first to point out their differences.

Todd and Troy Cook, 14, are mirror-images of each other.

"I don't really like being a twin," Todd said.

"You walk down the hall and everyone calls you Troy.

They scoff at documentation of twin's ESP (extrasensory perception) or mind reading.

"We tried it," Todd said. "Troy said, 'OK. You think of something and I'll tell you what it is.' But it didn't work."

Except for Marcia Spiece's deeper dimples, sister Michelle, 12, is identical.

They like being twins.

Are best friends.

They wear the same clothes.

And dream the same dreams.

"It's spooky," Marcia says.

Tim and Darrel Summers, 13, are fraternal twins.

Tim's quiet and small, has straight red hair, wears braces—and dislikes sports.

Brother Darrel is the talker, he's bigger, has reddish curly hair, no braces—and likes sports.

Ryan and Jamie Brimacombe, 12, are fraternal twins.

Jamie, a member of the Clarkston Chiefs, will take football any day of the week.

Says Ryan, "I played last year and quit after the first day."

Tim and Ted Hale, 13, like each other.

"We haven't been in a fight all week," says Ted.

"Oh yes we did, this morning," counters Tim.

"I like a lot more sports," says Tim. "Ted likes his trumpet."

They laugh.

David and Paul Reading, 13, are different as night and day.

David's blond, without glasses.

Paul's dark-haired, wears glasses, and has a spattering of freckles.

Where one excels in math, another's tops in geography.

Then there are the triplets, Jim, Jody and Janis Ridley, 12.

Not one looks like the other.

"People say, 'You're triplets? You don't look alike.' But we are," Janis said. "I don't like it. You're always known as a triplet. The Ridley Triplets. You never have an identity of your own."

"And you don't get any advantages," says Jim.

"You get one present on your birthday."

Twins and triplets are commonplace this year at Sashabaw Junior High. There are 15 students in all—six sets of twins and one set of triplets. Clockwise from the lower left are the Spiece sisters, the Ridley triplets, the Cook brothers, Jamie and Ryan Brimacombe, the Hale brothers, the Summers brothers and the Reading twins.

County Line

Health care via county

by Daniel Murphy, Oakland County Executive

Even if you're a lifelong resident of Oakland County, you may be unfamiliar with many services of the Oakland County Health Division.

Most are free of charge and all are provided by trained health professionals.

The Dental Clinic, Child Passenger Safety Project and our Substance Abuse Prevention projects have received National Association of Counties awards for excellence in preventing disease and promoting health.

The public health services offered by the health division cover the spectrum from before birth, through childhood and adulthood and into old age.

Most services are available to all county residents, regardless of income. In many cases, a trip to a county clinic is not required.

- Family Planning Services provide information and counseling on infertility and all birth control methods, and physical examinations are offered.

- Expectant Parent Classes offer information and training for mothers- and fathers-to-be.

- Women, Infants and Children (WIC) Supplemental Food Program provides nutrition education and supplemental foods to low-income pregnant or nursing mothers, infants and children under 5 where a health or nutrition risk exists.

- Child Health Conferences offer counseling, blood tests, immunizations, physical exams and referrals to families that cannot afford medical care for their children from birth to 5.

- Project Health (EPSDT) offers a variety of screening, diagnostic and treatment services to Medicaid clients under 21 years of age.

- Child Passenger Safety Project offers consultation and assistance for establishing Loan-A-Seat Programs and promoting the use of proper restraints for all automobile passengers.

- Immunization Clinic staff offer vaccines to all residents including shots and boosters which protect against hard measles, rubella, diphtheria, tetanus, whooping cough, mumps, polio, influenza and rabies.

- Dental Clinic offers oral hygiene services, screening for oral cancer and high blood pressure, and prosthetic and restorative care. Fluoride mouthrinse and brushing programs are provided in schools.

- Hearing and Vision Screening are held in schools, and preschool children and adults can receive these services by appointment in the health division.

- Scoliosis Screening is also conducted in the schools for seventh- and eighth-graders.

- School Health Curriculum Project offers a comprehensive health education curriculum to schools, and another project provides an alcohol component to driver training classes.

- General Clinic staff offer diagnosis and treatment for venereal diseases and other selected nuisance diseases.

- Diabetes classes offer education on the diabetic and family's role in the treatment and management of diabetes. Special classes for diabetic children are also offered.

- Blood Pressure Control offers screening and follow-up services for persons found to have hypertension.

- Breast Cancer Detection and Treatment Center offers examinations, mammography, medical consultation, and instruction in breast self-examination.

- Tuberculosis Control Center offers medical consultation, chest x-rays, TB skin testing, and anti-TB medications with appropriate monitoring.

- Substance abuse Control personnel coordinate and monitor the state licensed alcohol and other drug treatment and prevention programs.

- Public health nurses offer assistance to individuals and families on disease prevention, health promotion and coping with health crises. These services are provided in clients' homes and in the schools.

- Environmental Health Services protect the public through education, inspections and monitoring of air; private and public water resources; food service operations in markets, restaurants and vending machines; solid and liquid waste disposal systems; and shelter conditions.

- Laboratory Services include diagnostic tests for communicable and noncommunicable diseases and water quality.

- Senior Citizen Substance Abuse Prevention Project offers education on the safe use of medications and alcohol-related problems.

- Services to the Aging offers counseling to older clients and their families, and classes for persons who take care of aging parents.

Oakland County Health Division services touch everyone directly or indirectly.

Any resident who would like to participate in any of these programs or would like additional information should call 858-1280 during regular business hours.

A future column will be devoted to mental health services, also offered through the county health department.

Daniel Murphy's column appears in The Clarkston News once a month.

$500 fee

Man angry at inspection cost

By Dan Vandenhemel

An building inspection fee of $500 for a 10,000-square-foot pole barn has the Springfield Township Board looking at the fee structure.

At the meeting Oct. 12, Supervisor Collin Walls said a complaint from Joe Livermore of Big Lake Road in Springfield Township prompted talk about revision.

Citing engineering reports from other townships, Walls said the board is looking at having inspections charged by the square foot or by inspection.

"I can see a house having four or five inspections," he said. "But a pole barn should only need a couple."

The pole barn is an indoor riding arena that was built this summer by Livermore.

"I thought the fee was unfair," Livermore said after the meeting. "I'm a tax payer, I don't have to pay more than I already have."

"I think the township board will be fair about the whole thing," he said. "I'm willing to pay a reasonable fee, but not $500 for a riding arena."

After discussion, the board tabled the item for future attention.

Road funding

Springfield Township may be able to receive more county money in 1984 under the Tri-Party Program.

The program is set up to help townships with road improvement costs by having the Oakland County Board of Commissioners, the county road commission and the township split equally three ways the cost of improvements.

Last year, Springfield used all but $30 set aside by the county for the township.

Supervisor Collin Walls said at the Springfield board meeting Oct. 12 that $150,000 will be available next year and no more than six communities would want part of it.

"It's possible some township did not use the program," said Clerk Calvin Walters. "They have to have the matching funds before they can use it. We should find out how much more is available to us sometime in '84."

Schools receive $28,000 for arts

By Kathy Greenfield

More exposure to the arts—$28,000 worth—is coming to Clarkston school pupils this year from three grants.

And when the school year nears its end, Michigan's First Lady and Clarkston native Paula Blanchard wrote she'll be here "in the front row" when the Michigan Opera Theatre does a full performance open to the public in Independence Township, according to Dorothy Neff.

Neff became aware of the possibility of receiving money to promote the arts while working in her present job as Chapter 1 reading director for the district.

She applied for several grants; the district has received three; and the program is beginning.

"This can be the joy of the year," Neff said. "Art can be such a pleasure. It can comfort the soul. It can be fun, and children can learn so much from it."

In April, the State Department of Education awarded an $800 grant for adoption of the Urban Arts program.

The money paid for a full-day training workshop for two teachers from each of the district's eight school buildings by Wallace Kennedy, developer of the program. He also spent three days visiting schools, and he wrote a report.

The idea, Neff said, was "to create an active arts collaborative of teachers."

Teachers with talents in the arts—music, theater, painting, dance—will be encouraged to share with classrooms other than their own, for example, in an effort to use what is available to broaden the children's knowledge.

Each school may have an art gallery and exhibits of student and faculty works.

The second grant, for $10,000, is also from the State Department of Education. It is to be used for community-school relations.

"Local artists in the community will be coming into the classrooms to work with students and teachers; in turn, students will be going into the community to work," Neff said.

The third grant, for $10,000, is from the Michigan Council for the Arts.

It will be used to pay members of the Michigan Opera Theatre for a series of workshops, lectures and demonstrations, to begin the second semester.

If everything goes as planned, the year will culminate with an arts festival for the entire district, and at least with a festival in each school building, Neff said.

The festivities would kick off with a major performance by the opera troupe, and a visit by Mrs. Blanchard.

Community members who would like to volunteer their talents, or those with ideas, may call Neff at 625-3330 weekday afternoons.

ART WORKSHOP: Using money from the student-community grant from the State Department of Education, a workshop Monday is attended by one Clarkston school district teacher from each building. Sharing their expertise were Jim Gilbert, a Pontiac Art Center staff member, and Lisa Ngote, an art history instructor at Oakland University. Here, Gilbert discusses art display techniques with Karen Gonzales of Bailey Lake Elementary. Gilbert's latest project was the completion of an eight-story sculpture for the Amway Grand Plaza Hotel, Grand Rapids. The purpose of his presentation was to make teachers aware of ways to display and give pupils' works of art more respect. Ngote's portion of the workshop covered history and the development of the practice to encourage children to work with experimental media and not strive only for realism.

Student Government: What it is—and does

By Marilyn Trumper

In the first 10 weeks of school, Clarkston High School's 37-member Student Government raised $1,600 from a powder-puff football game and two dances. An additional $350 was lost in the theft of one dance's receipts.

The net profit is $400 more than they made all of last year—and it's only October, points out teacher Kate Germuska.

"I think that says a lot about how much more enthusiastic they've gotten people," Germuska said, noting numbers that show increased attendance at dances.

One-hundred-and-eighty students attended this year's homecoming, up 70 from last year.

"A lot of it has to do with the fact they got experience from last year. They know how to organize. They've learned to delegate. We get a lot of our ideas brainstorming," Germuska said.

"They're a spirited bunch of kids."

This year they donated a $650 stereo system to the school, and budgeted $300 to the Michigan Council for the Arts.

And they have a line-item for SCAMP, although how much they'll donate has to be decided. SCAMP is a summer camp for kids with physical, emotional and learning disabilities.

They host the canned goods drive for needy Independence Township families; the high school's blood drive; the clothing, toy and book drive; sponsor all the high school dances and annual grounds clean-up; and offer the rewards for the successful anti-vandalism program.

"We plan activities to get the school involved," explains Julie Beamer, student government president.

The students take the class for credit. The officers are elected by classmates and the others are selected by Germuska.

DANCIN' IN THE PARKING LOT: The Holjakat Dancers perform at the Scandinavian Mini Festival behind McGillacutty's restaurant. Kristen Lehto of Independence Township (far right) is director of the group. She helped organize the event planned to draw attention to the revival of business on the south end of the Village of Clarkston.

Dance floor OK'd

Nanjo's Pizza has received the go ahead to allow dancing at the restaurant.

The Springfield Township Board approved the dance permit at its meeting Oct. 12 after some basic changes were made to the pizzeria.

"We needed to know if the tables were going to be in the way when they moved them off the dance floor," Springfield Clerk Calvin Walters said. "Everything is OK now."

"The changes were nothing major," said Nanjo's manager Judy Stout. "We added a couple of fire extinguishers, mostly the changes were for fire safety."

The 100-square-foot dancing area is a raised, carpeted platform surrounded by a railing.

"We made some changes when we brought in Dennis Vernier as the entertainer," Stout said. "The dancing was just an afterthought."

Following approval by the State Liquor Control Commission, dancing can begin. An inspection was expected last week, Stout said.

Clarkston Post Office changes atmosphere

By Kathy Greenfield

The Clarkston Post Office on M-15 has a new look.

Wallpaper, framed posters, a picture of an eagle, a lighted display sign with moving messages and hanging plants provide the atmosphere.

"We wanted to make it a pleasant place to do business, make them want to come here, not look like a place that's 50 years old, and out of date and blase," said Postmaster William O. Kinsley III.

It fits in with the changing philosophy.

"We decided locally in management there were things we could do to be more receptive to community needs," he said.

"So many residents or customers live in Clarkston but commute to different places to work. By the time they get home the post office is closed."

So residents can now buy stamps by mail. There is no service charge. They can call the post office or leave a note for their mail carrier.

There is also a stamp machine, with no service charge, in the Clarkston Mills Mall, 20 W. Washington.

Another problem for commuters has been getting to the post office to pick up notified articles—postage due, certified and registered.

The post office service desk closes at 5 p.m. weekdays, but residents can now bring their notices until 5:45 p.m. and knock on the door in the outer lobby to pick up items.

Saturday hours have also been changed. The service desk is now open from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. and notified pickup is available until 4 p.m.

In addition, customers can go to the Clarkston Mills Mall convenience center to take advantage of the Express mail service that guarantees next-day delivery to over 2,000 locations in the United States and many foreign countries. The minimum cost for up to 2 pounds is $9.35; the maximum weight is 70 pounds.

What's new in business

Due to recent expansion of locked post office boxes—from 348 to 888—there are some available for rental in all sizes, at the post office and at the Clarkston Mills Mall.

There are also more locations with Neighborhood Delivery and Collection Box Units, the locked units installed and maintained without charge by the post office.

Ninety percent of the neighborhood has to agree to the conversion from standard mail boxes and the size ranges from 16 in a northern township area to 500 due shortly at Sashabaw Meadows. A sample unit is available for inspection in front of the post office.

Kinsley is also encourages the use of Consumer Service Cards for comments, suggestions or complaints by postal patrons. He has a holder on his office door.

The cards are available from mail carriers or at the service desk at the post office.

"I review them personally every day and take them very seriously—I want to emphasize that," he said.

CPR classes

CPR classes are held monthly for individuals or groups upon request at the Pontiac General Ambulatory Care Center of Waterford.

Two types are offered.

The four-hour heart saver class meets once. It includes single rescue resuscitation techniques. Cost is $2 a person to cover materials.

The eight-hour basic coronary life support class meets twice. Covered are single and two-person resuscitation, CPR for infants and children and how to handle choking children and adults. Cost is $4.

Most classes are scheduled in the evenings, but groups can arrange to meet during daytime hours.

The Ambulatory Care Center is located at 1305 N. Oakland Blvd.

For more information or to register, call Nancy Wheaton, R.N., at 666-9000.

For cross country skiers, bicycle motocross enthusiasts, clowns and people who like to help others, the Oakland County Parks and Recreation Volunteer Program offers some rewarding opportunities.

Established three years ago, the volunteer program reaches into many of the activities provided by the parks system.

While some programs are seasonal, others run throughout the year and are constantly in need of volunteers.

The Oakland County OAKlowns are a group of volunteers who improve and expand on their clowning skills while performing at parades and health care facilities.

Volunteers are also needed to staff special events throughout the year, such as the "Halloween Happiness" party and camera hike for the mentally impaired.

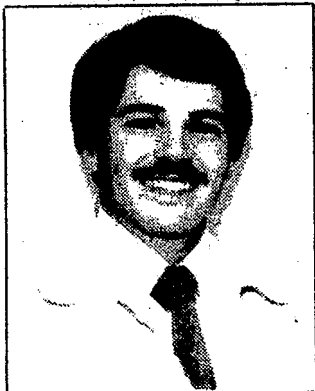

The Nordic Ski Patrol operates out of Independence Oaks County Park and is responsible for patrolling 16 kilometers of groomed cross county ski trails within the park during winter months.

Another seasonal program, bicycle motocross, uses volunteers to ensure quality racing at the Waterford Oaks BMX Track.

Naturalist aides help the parks naturalists conduct interpretive activities.

GIANT JACK-O-LANTERNS: Shannon Mosler, 8, planted her own garden this year. She harvested a few radishes, lots of carrots and the biggest pumpkin ever seen by her grandmother, Ozelle Mosler of Independence Township. The jack-o-lantern-to-be weighs 100 pounds. "I watered it when my mom and dad said it was dry," says Shannon, revealing her only green thumb tactic. She poses here with her brother, 3-year-old Travis, who helped with the total harvest of five pumpkins from the Brandon Township garden. Their parents, Gale and Pat Mosler, helped too.

She's 105

Adella Perry Downing

to celebrate quietly

By Kathy Greenfield

One hundred and five years ago Adella Perry Downing was born at home on Bridge Lake Road in Springfield Township.

There won't be a big party this year for Mrs. Downing, who resides in Caro.

"She doesn't ever want another party. After the 100th, she said that was too many people," said her niece, Mary Hine of Groveland Township.

Instead, family members will visit in small groups to give gifts and greetings.

When Mrs. Downing's father, Charles H. Perry first came to Clarkston he lived in the Terrace Building, now owned by Gary and Denise Symons, that houses Symon's dental office, the Village Bookstore and Aura Fine Arts.

Charles Perry married Minnie Beckman on Nov. 9, 1877. They had 15 children, 11 of them lived.

Mrs. Downing was born Oct. 19, 1878. Rutherford B. Hayes was President.

Her mother was a midwife. She assisted in the birth of Durand Ogden just two days before her first child was born. Ogden later became Clarkston's undertaker.

Her father was a farmer and the family lived in numerous locations in the area—on Bridge Lake Road, Allen Road and Oak Hill Road.

Among Mrs. Downing's memories is walking to the Springfield Plains School and stopping for cookies at her Aunt Hine's. She also attended the Oak Hill School.

When she was 14 the family moved to Caro in Tuscola County. They moved back to Oakland County to Ortonville because her mother was more at home in this area, but Mrs. Downing stayed in Caro and was married.

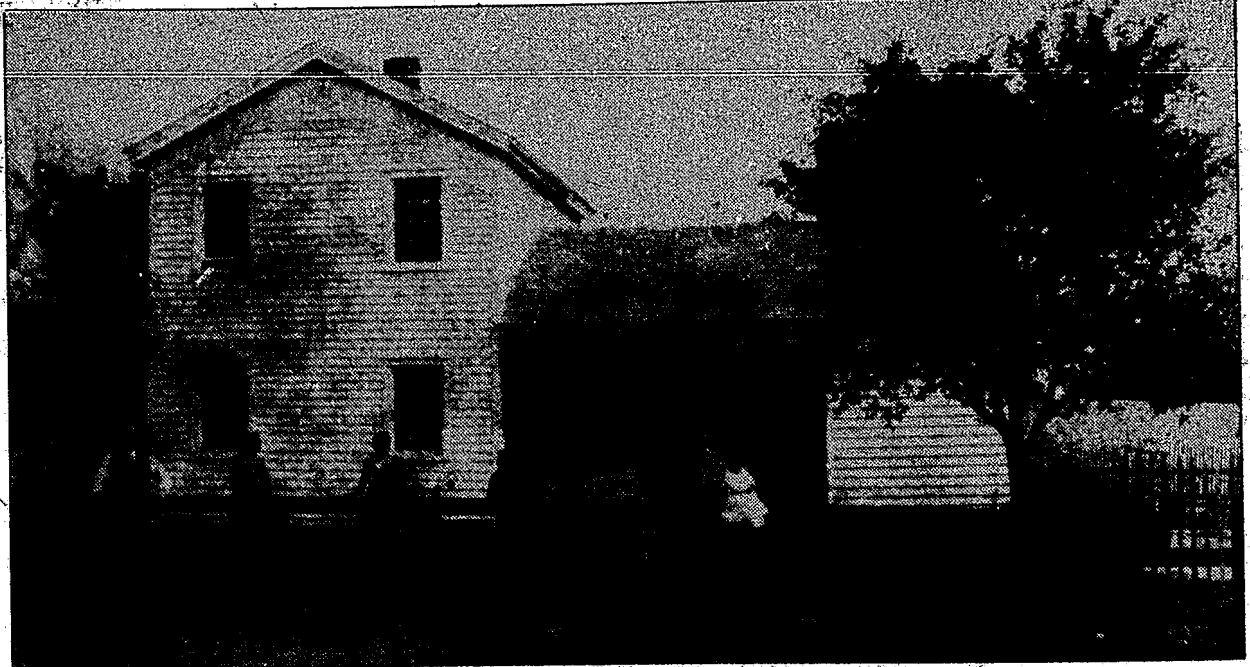

She and her husband had seven children. He died in 1950. They had been married 54 years.

Mrs. Downing then lived alone in their home until about 10 years ago when she fell and broke her hip. Her daughter, Cora Shorge, 84, moved in with her to help.

With six generations of her family living, Mrs. Downing's lost track of how many great-great-grandchildren she has, but there are 25 grandchildren, 61 great-grandchildren and 20 to 30 great-great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Downing's major disability is difficulty hearing.

"She's right up there as far as memory. She can tell you about anything you ask her from the past," said her niece.

A portrait of the Perry family was taken at their home on Oak Hill Road in Brandon Township in 1884. Adella Perry Downing was then 6 years old. With their parents, Charles and Minnie Perry, are (on fence from left) Frank, Adella and William. Mrs. Perry holds Fred.

"She gets up and walks by herself, goes to the dining table, helps her daughter dry dishes, those sorts of things. She writes letters to relatives and everyone who writes to her."

In addition to Mary Hine, Mrs. Downing has other nieces and a nephew living in the Clarkston area—Richard Morgan, Henrietta Beach and Marian Bailey.

There are also several great-nieces and nephews—Gar Wilson, John Morgan, Duane Bailey, Carol Ridgeway, Onalee Stonerock, Mike Perry, Dennis Hine and Larry Morgan.

Busy mastering the ancient craft of locker hooking are [from left] Barb Doty of Independence Township, Anita Crowell of Bay City, Pat O'Connell of Union Lake, Jan Glass of gathered last week for a half-day workshop in the atmosphere reminiscent of old-fashioned quilting bees.

Hooking the real thing

Learning old English art with wool

Appropriate background music is provided by the sound of sheep over the loudspeaker from the barn to the workroom.

The eight women gathered at Hillside Farm in Springfield Township are learning the old English craft of latch hooking revived in Australia and new to the United States.

Busy on samplers, they use metal rug hooks to loop the unspun wool in natural colors through a stiff form.

They chat about their sheep (five own their own), their families and the homemade cake waiting for breacktime.

The aura, reminiscent of spinning and quilting bees of years past, is typical of workshops and weekly open spinning sessions held at the farm.

"It's a relaxed atmosphere," says Gloria Bellairs, owner of Hillside Farm with her husband. "People really enjoy and learn. I always felt it was work, but it made it easy and fun."

Once the locker hooking is mastered, it can be used to make reversible rugs, seat covers, wall hangings and even coats.

Instructor Clara Mae Bean of Mason learned the craft "from a book and a lot of trial and error."

Her skill earned ribbons at state and county fairs, and she'll share her knowledge of the ancient craft Oct. 29 in a class at the University of Michigan Museum.

During the half-day workshop she taught the women how to copy designs from drawings in children's books.

"I encourage them to make their own patterns," she says. "That way everyone's is a little different."

Learn job possibilities

Women's association hosts full Career Day

Topics ranging from job possibilities to self-improvement make up Career Day offered Saturday, Oct. 29, by the Waterford-Clarkston Business and Professional Women's Association.

The fee is $10, student registration is $6, and the price includes lunch.

Career Day runs from 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Sashabaw Junior High School, 5565 Pine Knob, Independence Township.

Fran Anderson is the keynote speaker. Her topic is "The Positive Self Image of Women in Careers—Their Importance in Life."

Participants will choose four topics, one for each of the hour-long sessions.

They range from investment planning, careers for women of the future, starting your own business and restaurant and hotel management to handling stress, health and nutrition, a beauty clinic and family history.

Registration forms which list all choices are available at the Village Bookstore, 26 S. Main, Clarkston, or at the three Clarkston area branches of the Pontiac State Bank.

The registration deadline is Monday, Oct. 24. For more information, call Martha Wheeler, president of the club, at 625-5041 during business hours.

Halloween parties just for preschoolers are planned Wednesday, Oct. 26, at the Independence Township Library.

The 3- to 5-year-olds should come in costumes for the festivities at 10 a.m. or 11 a.m.

They're free, and advance registration is not required.

Games, stories, songs and the films "The Elephant Who Couldn't Forget" and "How the Elephant Got His Trunk" are planned.

Refreshments are to be served.

For more information call the library at 625-2212. It's located at 6495 Clarkston, Independence Township.

Stereopticon

Clarkston in its resort days

Betty Duris

"One Hundred Dollars fine if bathers do not wear a long coat to the bathing beach."

Despite this stern admonition by our village fathers, tourists of yesteryear crowded the added railroad cars and headed north from Detroit to escape the steamy city and enjoy a lake-gentled summer at one of Clarkston's gracious country inns.

Had "America's Wonderful Little Hotels and Inns" existed then, it is likely that guide would have included the Demarest House, Deer Lake Inn and Vliet's on the Hill.

Summer visitors came to relax on the breezy, wicker-decked verandas, to promenade the shops and village streets, and to frolic in the clear lakes—notwithstanding waterlogged woolies and (for the ladies) "Legs...completely covered with black hose."

In all seasons over the years, Clarkston's inns also provided respite, bed and board to travelers journeying between Pontiac and Flint, first arriving by horse and buggy, later by motor car or train.

Two early pioneer innkeepers were John Hertwig, who in 1843 relinquished his tailoring trade to open a tavern on Main Street, and John Pratt, whose public house predated.

The W.S. Blake farmhouse became Vliet's on the Hill in 1872, the same year the Demarest House opened at the corner of Main and Washington.

Both hotels underwent cosmetic changes, had new owners, and took on new names in the ensuing years, Vliet's becoming the Green Acres Inn in 1926, the Caribou replacing the Demarest.

Another local landmark from 1890 was the Deer Lake Inn on old Dixie Highway, that portion now called Deer Lake Road.

Fronting on beautiful Deer Lake, the inn catered to the tourist trade, opening in the prosperous '90s and fading shortly after the depression.

The last vestige of these inns was lost to the local scene in 1958 when the fire-damaged Caribou had to be torn down. For Clarkston at least, this era of gracious, unhurried hospitality had come to a close.

Much the same was true across the country, as life took on a more frenetic pace. The post World War II years marked the emergence of caravanning campers and weatherproofed Winnebagos, as America moved outdoors.

Greater mobility ballooned the tourist industry and dotted the landscape with a succession of multistoried motels, orange tiled cupolas, red enamel-roofs, and green and yellow blinking standards.

America was on the move, and convenience and accessibility were watchword. The genteel tradition succumbed to fast foods, game rooms, chlorinated pools and HBO.

But what has long been a European custom of hospitality began making its way back across the ocean.

Once again, more and more Americans are seeking out these vintage landmarks which have been restored and refurbished to former elegance or country quaintness. Some inns seem to have stood still in time.

My personal introduction to B&B (bed and breakfast) traveling came, as to most, in that first trip to Europe.

It is still with great fondness I remember Glebe Manor, that special Irish country house.

So, too, the Dolphin Inn near Yeats' country, Mollai's on the Dingle Peninsula, sharing tea with Milsie O'Brien and Maude Leonard at Cobh Crescent.

Later my appreciation for the old, the unique, the out-of-the-way, was enhanced on a trip through

The last surviving large hotel built to accommodate summer vacationers in Clarkston succumbed to fire in 1958. The Caribou Inn was Kentucky and Tennessee, shared with friends from Europe who wanted to see country Americana.

One of our first stops was in Bardstown at the two-century-old Talbott Tavern.

There the famous and infamous, traveling old post roads from all compass points, warmed themselves at the same fireplace which welcomed us.

Another stop, and still a must for many, was the highly acclaimed Boone Tavern Hotel at Berea, Ky., where the food and folk craft continue the legacy of Appalachia.

Operated these past 60 years by students of Berea College, the inn blends time-honored traditions of warm hospitality and old-world manners (coats for gents, no tipping).

The marvelous regional recipe meals served at the Boone have become legend.

Before leaving Kentucky, we visited the Inn at Pleasant Hill, a former Shaker village.

Accommodations are offered in many of its buildings, including the Trustees' House, which stands as an architectural tribute to the functional, utilitarian concepts keystone to the Shaker community.

One of the unexpected pleasures of this year's excursions was an introduction to Stonecliffe, in the west central woodlands of Mackinac Island.

Built by the meatpacking Cudahy brothers in 1904, this English-country manor has incorporated into its timbered stucco elements of Moorish design in the spiraling turret and massive, patterned rear pillars.

The horse-and-buggy taxi which takes you to Stonecliffe carries you past West Bluff Queen Annes, immaculately groomed and pastel painted, before moving on through lush green forest paths.

In town, a second night was spent at the guesthouse Cloghaun, so named for the County Mayo town of its first owners.

A pleasant chat with present owner and descendant, Mrs. James Bond (I), offered insight into the built in 1872 as the Demarest Inn. The property is now a parking lot at the northwest corner of Main and Washington streets.

1852 construction of the home, made entirely of knotless Michigan pine, selected board by board.

No summer is complete without a visit to Stratford.

Usually this means an overnight stay at the venerable Queen's Hotel, still holding court, flags flying, on Ontario Street.

But this year we chose a B&B, an alternative becoming more and more popular in Canada.

Ours was one of the vintage homes built by railroad fortunes, still proud in its high, plaster-decorated ceilings, turned oak staircase, and spindled summer porch.

The continental breakfast of muffins and marmalade, shared with our host and other guests, added a delightful, "at home" touch.

Not all inns are former mansions or domestic structures of any sort.

Some, as the Elora Mill northeast of Stratford, were centers of industry. This Ontario inn was once Drimmies Mill, a working gristmill.

The obvious draw is its thundering waterfall, which has remained a constant. Though no longer providing hydropower for the mill, it continues to be atmosphere for the romantic, inspiration for the artist.

The outdoor patio deck high above the white water offers a spectacular panorama.

Just north of the inn is a deep stone quarry, which once provided building material for most of the town.

Now it is the "ol' swimmin' hole," a cavernous expanse sided by sheer perpendiculars of ledgerrock.

We arrived just in time to join an appreciative audience of sunbathers applaud a young daredevil's spectacular dive from the topmost edge to the dark waters 70 feet below.

The boy wore only cutoffs. Most bathers were bikini-clad. Not a long bathing coat in sight. No black stockings.

Don't tell the village fathers.

The bridge over the millstream in Clarkston's Depot Road Park provides a visiting place for

Elementary School pupils participated in the three-mile Walk for SCAMP.

Walking down a tree-lined stretch of Allen Road are [from left] Andy Monroe, a Bailey Lake Elementary pupil, David Graves of Clarkston Junior High and Ivan Ireland of North Sashabaw Elementary. Neighbors Andy and David came across Ivan, who was walking alone, and the boys hiked together during their 10-mile Walk for SCAMP.

Walking for SCAMP

Sirena Ward, a Bailey Lake Elementary pupil, walked three miles to help SCAMP and gathered $159.85 in pledges. Following her walk, she's ready to sit down and lunch on hot dogs in Depot Park. T-shirts were awarded to 63 walkers for gathering at least $100 in pledges.
