Community to rescue Boy, 6, has cancer

By Dan Vandenhemel

For 6-year-old Kenny Overton, Christmas came early.

Kenny has cancer, and doctors have told his mother he might not see Christmas this year.

When Clarkston school district bus drivers learned the only thing the Bailey Lake Elementary School kindergartner wanted for Christmas was a bike, they made sure he got one.

It was presented last week.

Kenny has been able to ride it a couple of times. He plans to give it to his older sister.

The Lymphomic Burkitts type of cancer has affected Kenny's liver. It is so enlarged he can't ride the bike.

"He's going through a lot," said his mother, Geneva Overton. "He has dropped from 75 pounds to 55 pounds. The doctors have taken him off the radiation therapy. I don't know if they are giving up or what."

Kenny and his mother live on Bridge Lake Road in Springfield Township with Kenny's grandmother, Ann Overton.

Workers at the Richardson's Farm Dairy on Dixie Highway and Davisburg Road found out about Kenny and decided to help.

Vickie Jenks and Debbie Woods came up with the idea a few weeks ago to put a canister on the counter with Kenny's picture on it asking for donations.

"We felt we could try and do something," Jenks said. "Something like this reminds us of our own children. We want to make him as happy as possible."

Part of that helping was a phone call to the McDonald's Corp. asking the clown Ronald

Things that go bump in the night and "whatever you're afraid of" are promises of what awaits inside the Clarkston Area Jaycees' Haunted House. Shawn Smith's makeup blends him into the walls; then he leaps out and snarls, "Leave this room." He and other members of the Clarkston High School Drama Club help in the Halloween haunting. More of their scary faces are captured on Page 21. There's fright nightly at the Haunted House through Sunday, Oct. 30, from 7:30 to 10 p.m. inside the 150-year-old Sashabaw United Presbyterian Church, across the street from Sashabaw Junior High School and the new church at 5300 Maybee in Independence Township, where visitors can park. Admission is $1.50. Hot cider and donuts are for sale. [Photo by Kathy Greenfield]

Creation of 'The Chemical People'

Editor's note: In conjunction with the upcoming PBS series, "The Chemical People," we offer the second in a series of articles exploring the use of drugs and alcohol by Clarkston area teen-agers. This week we talk to a sociology professor, the director of special services for Clarkston schools and the high school principal about reasons for chemical abuse by school-age children and possible solutions. Details on the TV program are on Page 6. The reports were written by Clarkston News staff writer Marilyn Trumper.

Alcohol and drug abuse is prevalent in the Clarkston school district, according to Robert Brumback.

Why and what to do about it are questions Brumback struggles with every day as a licensed social worker and director of special services for the district.

"If I sit in my office and look out at the high school parking lot, it causes me to see a lot year in and year out," he said. "You can tell when things are up and down just by watching the kids.

"You see the usual drinking. I remember one day looking out and seeing kids lined up at a car buying drugs."

When he went out to stop it, he found CHS principal Dom Mauti stopping sales at another car.

"The availability of it all influences the borderline kids," Brumback said.

He sees the problem growing.

"We've seen an increase in the number of kids who have drinking problems. I think it's considered more acceptable than it was in my time," he said.

"For so long people were scared of drugs and parents would be almost relieved that instead of drugs, their kids were drinking.

"In this community we have a lot of concerned parents and in those troubled areas we're getting the parental support we need. That's going to make the difference, and I think we're headed for a big turnaround."

Youth drink and abuse drugs because of stress, according to Brumback.

"It's the social problems that cause people to have stress. Unemployment brings the father home. That's stressful. There's an increase in child abuse when there's stress at home, which creates more stress. We see it in the schools. People drink and take drugs to combat that. Marital problems put a family into stress," he said.

It's reflected in the kids and compounded again by the shaky economy and the threat of a dismal future.

"When I was in high school I knew I could get a job if I worked hard enough. And that if I went to college I could get a better job. Kids today don't know that," Brumback said. "They don't know if they'll get the job, or how they'll get the money to go to college.

Schools, township at odds on safety path law

By Marilyn Trumper

Progress has halted on a portion of safety path construction as the Independence Township Board and Clarkston school district debate responsibility for possible user injuries.

The path is planned to cross the school's administration building property on Clarkston Road.

On Oct. 18 the board voted 4-2 to submit a rewritten "hold-harmless" clause to the schools for review, for the second time.

Trustees Dale Stuart and Larence Kozma dissented.

"I think the hold-harmless clause is still too broad, and I'm going to vote against it," Stuart said.

"It means if somebody's cutting grass at the administration office, and runs over a kid, that we hold them harmless. I don't agree with that," Kozma said.

After the meeting he elaborated.

"I think the schools should be responsible for their own negligent acts. The way it's written now the township will defend civil action of the person injured or killed, and pay the judgment.

"We will not hold them harmless for their gross negligent acts per the hold-harmless agreement, after it goes to litigation and a court determines that they were grossly negligent."

The proposed easement agreement says the township will "...wholly indemnify the school, the board of education, officers, employes or agents and holds them wholly harmless from and against all claims, losses, damages, judgments, costs or expenses...relative to the safety path construction easement."

"The original draft was quite restrictive," said Supervisor James B. Smith. "(Our attorney) proposed a compromise—they were approved and returned with the clause.

"We feel if there is a clear case of neglect on the part of the schools it should be settled without going to court. The way it's written now it can't be and we have to litigate it."

The school district gave the township its easement, and should not be held responsible for accidents on the township safety path, according to Milford Mason, superintendent of schools.

"It's considerably on our property and far from the right-of-way to get around a swampy section of ground. Because it's coming on our property we wanted to have a strong hold-harmless clause in the contract against people slipping, and things that happen on the sidewalk. We don't feel we should incur costs or judgments for the township safety path on our property.

"But," he added, "we're not in opposition whatsoever with the safety path. Our problem is with the hold-harmless clause."

Cancer victim is hospitalized

McDonald to visit Kenny at Pontiac General Hospital.

"He loved it when Ronald McDonald came here," his mother said.

She has been staying at the hospital in Kenny's private room. Kenny's aunt, Shirley Garten of Drayton Plains, has been providing the transportation to Children's Hospital in Detroit for tests.

"He has been in the hospital since Sept. 22," Garten said. "In the last part of May this year, Kenny was complaining of a sore stomach. The doctors thought it was his appendix. A couple weeks later it got worse and they discovered a tumor when they did surgery on June 6. By the 10th, they found out it was cancerous."

"He knows what is going on," Garten said. "I don't know if I can say this without crying again, but he said he knows he is going to go to heaven."

"The nurses and the doctors have been just great," said Kenny's mother. "The nurses are with him all the time and the doctors see him a lot.

"Everybody has been terrific," Mrs. Overton continued. "We're both going through a lot. I'm going through this all by myself—I'm not married and we don't have a car. It's great people just want to help."

Ronald McDonald visits with Kenny Overton.

Quik-Pik robbed

Police are looking for two armed robbers who stole an unknown amount of money Oct. 19 from the Quik-Pik party store, 5910 M-15, Independence Township.

According to a report at the Oakland County Sheriff's Department, two masked gunmen robbed the lone salesclerk shortly after 6 a.m.

They took a bucketful of money she was transferring from the cash register, the report said.

No one was injured.

The men fled on foot.

Because the men were masked and spoke little, police have limited descriptions, except their heights—5-8 or 5-9.

In addition, a motorcycle was heard in the area shortly before 6 and again about 20 minutes later. It may have been used in the hold-up, police said.

Persons with information are asked to call Detective Bob Gohl at 858-4982.

Creation of 'The Chemical People'

"There are much different problems for kids today."

Parents have given too much freedom, Brumback said.

"Kids today at 14 and 19 are doing what the 18- to 25-year-olds did in the '50s. That whole business of being involved in things we associated with as adults, kids are dealing with every day.

"But," he said, "they've not changed emotionally. They still need the caring structure and environment to deal with disappointments, their sexual feelings, their selves. The problem is they've been given the privilege of adulthood but not the emotional needs to deal with it."

Legal changes have led to testing the system.

"There have been dramatic changes and today, everybody knows their rights. If a kid gets caught smoking in the school, and faces suspension, the parents want to know 'Did you see my kid with the cigarette in his mouth?' There's no support for the schools. The kid knows that."

Stress sometimes leads to suicide attempts.

Brumback recalls a local teen who committed suicide three years ago, falling to his death from a high-tension wire.

PRINCIPAL:

Alcohol common at open houses

Alcohol is so socially acceptable it's offered routinely by parents at senior graduation open houses, according to Dom Mauti, Clarkston High School principal.

"It's probably at two-thirds of the parties, and, no, I've never seen any parent discourage kids from drinking," Mauti said.

"It's a problem, and this year I think we're going to try and do something different. There's nothing we can do because it is away from school grounds.

"We're going to recommend in letters to all senior parents that they not have alcohol at open houses, and we're looking into the possibility of a single party to be held in place of all the open houses—maybe in the building, or we'll rent a building."

And three weeks ago a township girl attempted suicide jumping off an expressway overpass.

"Suicide is listed as the third largest killer of our youth," he said.

The trend toward single-parenting, Brumback said, makes it difficult to control children and continues to give them freedom.

"The number of single parents is very high in Oakland County, and in this community. They're good parents often—but when they're having difficulty with a youngster strength comes from having two

SOCIOLOGIST:

Give kids better 'sense of self'

A stronger "sense of self" requires fewer body highs, body highs achieved through drugs and alcohol.

"And if you can get that (sense of self), you're not in the market for body highs," says Professor Jesse Pitts, a sociologist on the teaching staff for 19 years at Oakland University in Rochester.

"To end (drug and alcohol abuse) you do it as with a deviant, the better a relationship between a teen and their parent, the less vulnerable they are to brandishments of their peer group. They won't feel the need to demonstrate they're 'in.'

"If you don't smoke and your kid doesn't smoke, that already is a good sign. If your mother's not stuffed with Valium, chances are you won't be either."

To eliminate alcohol and drug abuse, Pitts says the functional equivalent of a "non-delinquency" must be substituted.

"The trouble with drugs is they're very effective. That's why they've spread from America to other countries all over the world and kids everywhere are using them.

"My students tell me the glamour of drugs has died some, because everybody's doing it, and the 'heads,' people who use drugs every day, are called 'burnouts,' not a very flattering term.

"Drugs are a non-delinquency. There's not much chance of getting caught, with all the thrills of delinquency. One of the reasons they're so popular is that feeling of daring disobedience, without much risk."

people to reflect on that, talk about it and work with each other."

The answer could be with the community, he said.

"You have to have the community get organized. You have to encourage kids not to use drugs, and know how to help them when they need it. To be willing to say, 'You need help'—and say it when you think it.

"People need to be able to call each other, let the schools know when someone has a problem," Brumback said.

Pitts cites the body pleasure and body high derived from substance abuse.

"Young people need a body high. Some get it by driving too fast and putting their life on the line. Girls get it being chased by a male octopus. It's part of touching the boundaries of yourself. Young people's identities are more fragile—and that's one reason they take drugs. It's the equivalent of driving too fast, an element of danger.

"You know you're going to make it—but sometimes you don't. Young people don't think they won't," he said.

According to Pitts, as people mature, they need fewer body highs. Drugs, and alcohol, are weeded from life-styles.

"Lovemaking and sports are legitimate ways of getting body highs. As people age, their identities are better seated. They don't need to test the boundaries so often and there's a decline in the use," he said.

"With drugs, adults go for the more conspicuous and expensive, like cocaine, the middle-class heroin. Its users show daring and affluency. It's a badge-of-membership. An, 'I'm not a goody-two-shoes.'"

Pitts warns against educating the youth on drugs. "It's been found that the educational sessions do more harm than good. It's like educating a child on birth control. They've found it increases sexual activity.

"I wish I knew how to end (substance abuse)," he said. "I think on its own it's gradually tapering off."

POH announces hospital site

By Marilyn Trumper

A six-month option to buy 50 acres has been signed for land on the southwest corner of White Lake Road and Dixie Highway, according to Patrick Lamberti, executive assistant for Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital.

Early this month the hospital announced plans to build a $34 million, 100-bed satellite hospital in Independence Township, and sent its letter-of-intent to the state for a certificate of need.

The life of the option-to-buy lasts as long as the expected state review, according to Lamberti.

"We can't do anything without the certificate of need, and there's a bit more to the process. On Sept. 2 we sent a letter-of-intent to the state, and we have 90 days to file the application after that. We'll probably file Dec. 1 or 2," Lamberti said.

"From there the process goes to the project review committee in Detroit, then back to the state. It should take six to nine months."

POH will not request additional beds from the state, but will reallocate 100 of its current 308 beds in Pontiac to the proposed Independence site, he said.

Trick-or-treat hours

Official hours for trick-or-treating have been established by the Independence Township Board and the Clarkston Village Council.

On Halloween night, Monday, Oct. 31, costumed beggars may seek treats from 6 to 7.

The setting of a trick-or-treating hour is a long-standing practice in the Independence and Clarkston communities, but there are no set times in Springfield Township, according to Clerk Calvin Walters.

Screening of treats will be available in Independence Township at the two McDonald's restaurants, 6695 Dixie and 5625 Sashabaw, from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

The free service is to be provided by the Explorer Scout group sponsored by the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

Road projects

Of the more than 30 projects eyeballed for road repair, Independence Township has selected five for its $30,000 share of the tri-party road agreement.

After discussion Oct. 18, the board selected the following priority jobs:

- Installing school flashers on school speed signs at Bailey Lake Elementary; and on Maybee Road, east of Sashabaw, near North Sashabaw Elementary.

- Clearing site obstructions at Pine Knob and Clarkston roads; Rattalee Lake Road and Ellis Road; and Stickney Road at Pine Knob Road.

- Graveling the intersection of Allen Road at Rattalee Lake Road.

Under the Tri-Party Road Program, construction costs are equally shared between the township, Oakland County Road Commission and Oakland County Board of Commissioners.

The board is expected to return the five-priority list to the road commission for a list of costs.

Clerk Richard Holman said there will not be enough funding to finance all five projects.

Not a hunter

Deer hunting season is approaching, and as usual, I'm feeling like the world's biggest wimp.

It seems like every red-blooded American male these days is talking out the fantasy of felling an eight-point buck and riding all the way home from "Up North" with the carcass tied to the roof of his car. Yuck.

I always feel forlorn and alienated when the conversation of the group turns to hunting. Maybe it's because I was born in Detroit, where "hunter" was a type of sausage, and where few deer are ever seen crossing major thoroughfares.

Anyway, the embarrassing truth is that I've never gone hunting in my life, and I can't say I've ever felt the compulsion to go, either. Does that disqualify me from membership in the "Real Men" brotherhood?

BUT PLEASE, DON'T put me in the same class with the yahoos who erect grand moral arguments in favor of banning hunting and sparing the poor innocent deer—and then follow up their preaching with a trip to McDonald's for a Quarter-Pounder. Why poor and innocent deer are worthy of humane considerations, while poor and innocent cows are not, is obviously a contradiction that has never occurred to these people.

I like beef, and given my appreciation for just about any food that doesn't bite back, I'd probably like venison, too. But I view killing animals as a dirty business best left to the butcher. I cannot imagine it as a form of recreation. I could never be a vegetarian, but there is just something tainted in killing animals, not out of necessity for food, but out of fun for sport.

The real difference between me and the yahoos is that I realize that all this moralizing is just my dumb opinion. I don't preach. Hunters are entitled to their point of view, and I afford their opinions all due respect. A lot of my friends hunt—most of them, in fact—and I'd never support the idea that the sport should be banned. I feel the same way about boxing: I think it's brutal and inhuman, and I wouldn't pay a nickel to watch it—but I'd never support any call to ban it. The French have a term: Laissez faire. That's the way I approach many things in life.

NOT TO SOUND immodest, but I wish there were more people in the world harboring that point of view. Too many of us are inclined to preach and attempt to shape our neighbor's convictions to match our own. And when preaching doesn't work, we want the government to "do something about it."

Myself, I don't want the government to do much of anything for me, lest I concede to it the power to start doing things to me. We certainly don't need a big nanny in Lansing or Washington to protect hunters, boxers, or whoever from themselves. They know what the risks are, and if they want to take 'em, that's their business.

Speaking of the risks, it seems like whenever I pick up a newspaper during hunting season, all I ever read about is heart attack victims, drownings and accidental shootings. Sometimes, I get the feeling I'd be a whole lot safer in the woods as a deer than a hunter.

Maybe that's the real reason, moral grandstanding aside, why a-hunting I will not go. And that's this week's word from the world's biggest wimp.

All should watch TV drug show

We plan to tune into the first portion of the PBS presentation, "The Chemical People," and we recommend that community members do the same.

The program is a two-part series on drug and alcohol abuse by school-age children moderated by First Lady Nancy Reagan on TV-Channel 56.

The first segment, on Wednesday, Nov. 2, at 8 p.m. is two hours long, and people are encouraged to watch it at home.

The first hour looks at the problem across the nation, the next half-hour focuses on the state and the final half-hour zeros in on the local scene.

It will include reports by experts and interviews with regular people.

The concept of a nationwide attempt to curb life-threatening practices by our young people, a campaign open to the public at large, is a new one.

We believe it's worth considering because of the natural tendency to surround our homes and our community with a feeling of blanket security. "Never in Clarkston"—it sounds so good.

But there is a problem. The Clarkston News' two-part series completed this week on drug and alcohol abuse by local teen-agers explores it.

We do have our share of deaths related to drunk driving by teen-agers, suicides and lives destroyed before they have a chance to really begin.

Drug and alcohol purchases are available to any youngsters who seek them in the Clarkston area.

So, let's first take a look at the problems as presented in the first portion of the PBS special, "The Chemical People."

The next step is to watch the second program, also at 8 p.m., on Wednesday, Nov. 9.

It will talk about ways to organize community task forces and methods that have worked.

Members of the Clarkston community will have two opportunities to participate.

The first town meeting with a panel of community members is planned to begin Nov. 9 at 7:30 p.m. at St. Daniel's Hall, 7007 Holcomb, Independence Township.

The gathering includes watching the TV program, a panel discussion and an opportunity to become involved in a community task force.

The Nov. 9 program will be taped, giving community members another chance to participate in a town meeting on Wednesday, Nov. 16. The time and place are the same.

Those who wish more information may call Garry Pullins, Clarkston Area Youth Assistance Committee social worker, at 625-9007; Cecelia Wiar, Clarkston Junior High School assistant principal, at 625-5361; or Fred Baumann, director of the Consortium for Human Development, at 625-9600.

Jim's jottings

'Yooper' it is

Jim Sherman

I'm a regular reader of the Gladstone Reporter in Gladstone, MI, naturally. Editor Dave Rood is the drawing card. The punster, humorist, satarist, historian is much in love with the Upper Peninsula.

A major drawback to the Reporter is a slogan, "You don't have to be big to be better" carried atop page 3. What then? Being smaller is better?

Regardless, Dave wondered in the weekly paper recently if people in his community liked being called a Yooper. It's a name that has gained considerable acceptance downstate, but then so has another word for illegitimate child.

Here's the conclusion of Rood's Yooper poll: It may not be a very scientific way to take a poll and good old George Gallup would probably put an instant stop to it, but we feel our recent poll of local residents is definitive for this week, at least.

Of all those taking the time to call one of our offices and register their vote, either for or against using the word "Yooper" to designate people who live in the Upper Peninsula, we're happy to report that Yooper won by a 2 to 1 margin.

So, from now on we'll use the word intrepidly, until another one comes along to replace it.

One caller said her stepson, Brett Crawford, had won a contest some time ago for coming up with the term Yooper. Another "yes" voter mentioned that she thought UPenite was just as good (and we may have misspelled that).

Most of the callers were good natured about it and seemed to think, as we've already expressed, that it's a term of affection, giving those of us in God's Country an identity all our own. One person commented it was like being called a "Yankee," although there may be some of us who'd take exception to THAT.

The "no" voters felt that Yooper was just plain insulting.

One "yes" voter said she especially liked the downstaters being called "trolls," while a "no" voter said both were disgusting.

So "Yooper" it is.

Students are not 'elitist snobs'

When Ms. Trumper was invited in to interview the 37 members of the Clarkston High School government class, we didn't realize her front-page article of Oct. 19, 1983, would make the group look like elitist snobs from a "who's who list."

Students apply for membership and are selected on criteria of former service and leadership experiences, adult recommendation of character, and reasons for wanting to serve.

There is not a question asking, "What do your mommy and daddy do in the community or in the school system that will give this group status?"

These bright, motivated, NORMAL kids spend countless hours organizing projects for the CHS student body and the community.

They are our future leaders and are already concerned citizens—that dedication comes from each of THEM, not from their parents' jobs.

Spooked!

Kathy Greenfield

Usually I don't like horror movies or spooky books.

The last movie of that genre I saw was "The Shining," because Jack Nicholson played a starring role.

The most frightening part, I thought, was when it was revealed what Nicholson had been typing for so many hours while he was supposedly writing a novel, ambitious novelist that he was, working hard for a future for his family.

"All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy."

Pages and pages of it; creepy.

I was spooked. And I knew I'd be spooked the rest of the movie. I was.

The reason I started thinking about that again is because I was foolhardy enough to go through the Clarkston Area Jaycees Haunted House alone.

Well, half way.

When I arrived without advance notice Sunday with my camera it was decided that it would be terrific if I surprised everyone.

Right.

I was spooked when someone poked his ugly head under black plastic and made a creepy sound.

I admit it, I screamed a little.

Have you ever tried to focus a camera using a flashing strobe as your light source? Don't.

I found someone with a miniature flashlight and told him he had to stay with me.

Most of the scary stuff in the haunted house is provided by costumed members of the Clarkston High School Drama Club.

Great kids that they are, they first let me experience the visual haunting delights and then my pal with the flashlight used it to help with camera focusing.

Later they turned on the lights for more help and I tracked some of them down sipping hot cider during breaktime.

"You know me!" said a creature covered in black.

I told them I was too spooked to do voice identifications.

It was true.

Behind the keyboard, Cory Goodrich matches her face to the haunting music.

'If it Fitz...

For Fitz it's flattery

Jim Fitzgerald

The nicest thing happened while I was out of town. S.K. Pullen, a resident of Belleville, Mich., wrote a letter to the editor accusing me of not "liking anything the average person likes." And I was whelmed by the number of readers who wrote in my defense.

But they didn't write to the editor, they wrote to me. I usually don't publish letters in this column, so when people write nice letters about me, I wish they'd address them to the editor for possible publication on the editorial page. People who write nasty letters about me should address them to the City Waste Disposal Department for possible burial in a sanitary landfill.

In the meantime, I hope you won't think it too egotistical of me to reprint the Pullen letter. Obviously, Pullen and many other people considered it a nasty letter, but I disagree.

"I HAVE given up hope of Jim Fitzgerald's ever liking anything the average person likes," Pullen wrote. "He hates hunting, rodeos, boxing, most professional sports and guns and he thinks integration is the answer to all of society's ills. A bleeding heart such as he must have had 100 transfusions over the past 10 years. What a soldier he must have been."

When I first read that letter, I thought I couldn't be more flattered. But I guess I could.

Pullen could have added that I also hate war, pestilence, cooked carrots, tamper-proof bottles and Jerry Lewis. That would have been ever more flattering. But I'm certainly not complaining. Within the confines of a short letter, which editors always prefer, Pullen did an incredibly complete job of buttering me up, and I am grateful.

MY ONLY REGRET—and it's tiny—is that Pullen didn't mention that one of the professional sports I hate is football as played by the big universities. That is, I can enjoy the games themselves, but my gorge leaps whenever I hear the athletes described as amateurs playing strictly for the glory of the old alma mater.

Athletes vigorously recruited to entertain in exchange for tuition, books, room, board and other goodies are professionals selling their services for a price. To claim otherwise is as dumb as trying to find 100,000 people willing to pay $15 each to watch 44 parents cut corners so they can afford college educations for sons with skinny necks.

(Incidentally, the score was Michigan 42, Michigan State 0. As an MSU alumnus, I'm extremely grateful my university was smart enough to pay a Philadelphia law firm $19,000 for arranging a $175,000 payoff to quash a $1 million tampering lawsuit filed by George Perles' ex-employer, therefore making it possible to hire Perles for $95,000 annually to coach MSU football. If old Muddy Waters were still coach, the score could very well have been 43-0.)

OTHERWISE, S.K. Pullen did me proud. And any slight hint of sarcasm detected here wouldn't be interpreted as meaning that I think Pullen was wrong to say the average person likes hunting, rodeos, boxing, most professional sports, guns and segregation. Good lord, if Pullen isn't right, a civilized society can no longer believe what it reads on bumper stickers.

But I never wanted to be ordinary, which is average, so those whelming readers who feared that my bleeding-heart might be cauterized by Pullen's letter should be assured that, on the contrary, it was thrilled and encouraged to continue pumping.

Lutheran Pastor Carl Welser of Hamburg, Mich., who is also a columnist, wasn't confused. He wrote "I consider the Pullen letter perfect in nearly every detail. I should like to receive such a letter myself. However, I have been writing a column for more than two years without success. What is your secret?"

It's no secret: I was a lousy soldier and I never eat cooked carrots.

Maintenance building to be cable TV studio

By Marilyn Trumper

Ending a year of speculation, the Independence Township Board has selected the maintenance building adjacent to Clarkston Junior High for the cable TV studio-office site.

The board made its unanimous decision Oct. 18. Multi-Cablevision, operators of the $2.5 million Tribune/United system currently under construction, is expected to hammer out a 15-year lease agreement with the Clarkston school district.

At the board meeting, school officials indicated possible rental for $1 a year. Fifteen years is the life of the cable contract.

James Anderson, vice-president and general manager of Tribune/United, said it will cost between $40,000 and $50,000 to remodel the four-walled maintenance building into a studio and offices, not including equipment.

It will save the company an estimated $90,000, had it built a new building from the ground up.

"First the existing structure has parking, lighting and gas, the accessibility off Waldon Road is better than the library (the alternate site) and it's closer to the schools," said Supervisor James B. Smith.

"In addition, the kind of uses it will have does not demand a library location. The library does not require a studio. Plus, the high use and technical capability will come from school people, and they'll be closer than if it were at the library."

Superintendent of schools Milford Mason pushed for the site, and his choice was sanctioned by the seven-member Cable TV Task Force.

Manual Copado, commercial marketing manager for Tribune/United, said using the existing structure will "...have us up and running sooner than if we had to build a new building."

Bill Genshaw, media instructor at Clarkston High School, hailed the selected site.

"It will allow the students to use the studio in a setting where they can type, write, edit and produce their own productions. I believe the students could offer the community at large the expertise to put together their productions," he said.

Carolyn Place, school board member, said the proximity of the studio to the schools could reaffirm the community portion of Clarkston Community Schools.

"This is an opportunity for us to live up to that and work with the community. It will be the students who have the technical background to operate the equipment and do productions. It will most likely be them filming a Rotary presentation and working with the community in the studio. That's the concept of community education," she said.

Trustee Dale Stuart expressed concern over the schools monopolizing the studio site.

"We have one media production class that is a 50-minute period. I'm hoping we'll have a two-hour block. We're not talking total domination by the schools for more than three hours a day," Genshaw said. "We'll determine the hours of use at the school board, and how (use of the studio) will fit into the curriculum."

Stuart remained steadfast.

"My concern is that this be a system for the whole community, not just the township, village or the schools, but for the individuals who live here. I want maximum use for everybody," he said.

The satellite dish and antenna will be located at the head-in site behind Rademacher Chevy Inc., M-15 and Dixie Highway.

November named Alzheimer month

Julie Johnson, an Independence Township resident, is involved with Alzheimer's Disease and related Disorders Association Inc.

Two members of her family suffer from the degenerating brain disease.

Via letter Johnson requested the Independence Township Board declare November Alzheimer's Disease month in Independence Township.

It did, voting unanimously Oct. 18 to support the cause.

The little-known disease is a degeneration of the brain cells and causes its victims become forgetful. As the disease progresses memory loss increases and other changes such as confusion, irritability, restlessness and agitation appear in personality, mood and behavior.

Judgment, concentration, orientation and speech may also be affected. In the most severe cases the disease may render its victims totally incapable of caring for themselves.

In the United States each year 2.5 million people are diagnosed with Alzheimer's Disease, 50,000 of those in the Detroit-metropolitan area alone. For more information phone 340-2373.

New furnace buy

Things will be heating up at Independence Township Fire Station 3 as soon as the new furnace is installed.

On Oct. 18, the Independence Township Board unanimously approved spending $1,792 to replace the existing defunct furnace, installed new when the station was built 10 years ago.

"They're without heat in the living quarters," said Capt. Dale Bailey. "It was bad all last year and they said then it had to be replaced."

Station 3 is located at Maybee and Pine Knob roads.

Board drafts law too tighten mobile home rule

Steps are underway in Independence Township to toughen standards for mobile homes in residential neighborhoods. Reacting to a 1981 Michigan Supreme Court ruling that allows mobile homes in residential zones, on Oct. 18 the township board reviewed four pages of proposed amendments to the ordinance that would restrict mobile homes.

- Independent view -

Autumn glow

Seekers of autumn highlights can drive out Sashabaw Road, just north of the Clarkston Road intersection, for a spectacular view.

The road reaches the top of a hill and provides a panoramic scene to the north and west, says Sara Spiece of Independence Township.

"You can see forever from up there," she says. "It's beautiful and it's going to get better."

Birthday greetings

In the dark of night, James and Gracie Langford draped their birthday surprise in the Clarkston Road yard of their 16-year-old grandson, Brad Mathisen.

At home in Lake Orion, they worked with their friend, Nancy Hall, to prepare the banners to spread with the message: Happy 16th Birthday Brad.

"When he goes to school (the morning of Oct. 25), these will be out in his front yard," said Mrs. Langford, "so he'll be surprised.

"He's one of our favorite people," she added. Brad is a junior at Clarkston High School.

"It's critical, because the way the mobile home commission would have it, (the law) would allow a mobile home of the usual type to be placed in a subdivision lot in the community," said Supervisor James B. Smith.

"This will preserve the standard of living, aesthetics, quality and value of the adjoining property."

Extra hour of sleep

Get ready to say goodbye to Daylight Savings Time and grab an extra hour's sleep.

The official time to "fall" your clock back is 2 a.m. Sunday, Oct. 30. Sweet dreams!

With little discussion, the board agreed to send the list to the planning commission for review.

Key is a clause that says all mobile homes shall be "...compatible, (and meet) equal or greater standards compared to existing dwellings in the area," and leaves the judgment call to the township building director, according to township attorney Gerald Fisher.

Mobile homes must be "compatible" with houses in the plat, the platted subdivision or houses within 2,000 feet. If those homes are bricked or have garages, the building director can require the mobile home to have the same, Fisher said.

Appeals can be made to the zoning board, he added.

In the saddle for CHS

Equestrian club finishes second

By Dan Vandenhemel

Long hours and hard work paid off for the Clarkston Equestrian Club with a second-place finish for the season.

The 17 riders—15 girls and two boys—finished behind only South Lyons in the 17-team district. Last year Clarkston won the Class A state title after making the finals as the wildcard team by receiving the most points but not winning one of the four districts.

"The format was changed this year and there isn't a wildcard team," said coach Arlene Laurie. "The largest district was split. Now there are five districts."

In the three meets this year, Clarkston gathered 381 points to South Lyons' 441.

Points are gathered in the 17 different classes of the meets, from western riding to speed and action.

The riders are allowed in six classes per meet.

"I have some strategy. I can move the riders around to where they perform best," Laurie said. "I wish I could just give everybody six classes and not worry about it. Most of the classes allow four riders, but a couple can have only three."

The result is limited individual participation in competitions, and that causes Laurie some concern.

But the group handles it well, she said.

"What's so nice about coaching this club is that nobody really argues about not riding that much," she said. "They're just out here to have fun. We never cut anyone from the team. I figure that if they are willing to be out here and want to be here, they will be. The team needs that versatility."

Long hours of practice, the meets and the time-consuming job of upkeep on a horse could be why few boys are on the team, Laurie said.

"Many of the boys are more into sports like football or baseball," she said. "...If they do join, they must really be interested."

In 4-H and in their group, the Michigan Interscholastic Horsemanship Association, there are not many boys who ride, Laurie said.

The Clarkston Equestrian Club is open to ninth- to 12-graders in the Clarkston school district.

"We're not considered a varsity sport so we aren't backed by the school," Laurie said. "We have a concession stand at the meets to help raise money."

Out of the profits, Laurie buys letters for the members' jackets and medals when they are seniors.

"It's really nice to coach because the parents are very supportive," Laurie said. "They are the ones that have to haul the horses to the meets. Without them there would not be a club."

The club members are: Serena Brown, ninth grade; Stephanie Brown, 11th; Laura Cornell, 12th; Sue DePoorter, 11th; Debbie Gibbs, 12th; Inga Girschner, 12th; Laura Howse, ninth; Tracey Hutchings, 10th; Wendy Kellerman, ninth; Kim King, 11th; Marc DeLisle, 11th; Heather Laurie, 11th; Megan Rausch, 11th; Kathy Rollins, 12th; Wendy Rollins, 10th; Joy Schmidgall, 12th; and Shawn Smith, 11th.

Laura Cornell, dressed in an English equation riding outfit, brings her horse up to the barn.

Laura Cornell and Heather Laurie, two of the 17 members of the Clarkston Equestrian Club, lead their horses up the path. The club finished second in the district this season.

Netters place 6th in regional

By Dan Vandenhemel

The tennis season came to an end for the Clarkston tennis team at the state regionals in Rochester.

Singles players Kelly Craig, Tonya Cook and Jenny Kithil went into the regionals with only one loss between them. Kristin Tiarht, the No. 4 singles player, provided enough help to push Clarkston into sixth place in the Oct. 15 tournament.

All four players eventually lost to No. 1 seeded players.

Tiarht and Cook lost in the second round and Craig and Kithil lost in the semi-finals.

"Kristin gave a great effort," coach Dick Swartout said. "She lost in the third set, 6-4. She was playing a girl that was undefeated from West Bloomfield.

She played with a lot of confidence."

For the season, the top three singles players finished with a combined record of 45-5.

Craig has not lost a regular season match in two years and Kithil went undefeated this year.

"They were very consistent; they carried the team throughout the year," Swartout said.

"I can't say I'm disappointed at all with the team," he said. "I had to shuffle the doubles players around but I'm pleased with the season."

This was Swartout's first year coaching the girls' team. They finished 9-3 for the year and 4-2 in the league, good for second place. He is the boys' coach in the spring.

All three losses, two to Lake Orion and the other to Rochester Adams, had the same score, 4-3.

Charity game

College basketball fans are in for a treat when the University of Michigan basketball team comes to Clarkston High School.

The Wolverines, featuring Clarkston area residents Tim McCormick and Paul Jokisch, will be playing an intersquad scrimmage game at CHS Wednesday, Nov. 9, at 7 p.m.

McCormick, a senior at U of M, a Clarkston graduate, and Jokisch, a Brother Rice graduate, will be joined by their teammates getting ready for the Wolverines' opening game Nov. 12.

Tickets for the scrimmage are $3 for adults and $2 for students.

They may be purchased at the high school, Clarkston Junior High or Sashabaw Junior High or from any Clarkston Athletic Booster Club member.

Proceeds are to go to the Clarkston Athletic Department.

Strong 2nd half lifts Wolves past Avondale

By Dan Vandenberg

Help from the bench and balanced scoring let the Clarkston Wolves run past Avondale, 62-53, in basketball Oct. 20.

Kim Ottman was the Wolves' offense in the beginning. The speedy guard scored eight of her 10 points in the opening quarter.

Senior Sue Kevirtis came off the bench near the end of the first quarter and took over where Ottman left off. She scored nine of her 12 points in the second quarter as Clarkston led, 29-26, at halftime.

For Kevirtis, out most of the season with a hip injury, the game against Avondale was only her third of the season.

"Sue gave us a big boost coming in like that," said Wolves' coach Dave McDonald. "(Avondale) played good but so did we."

Janet Herron led Clarkston with 14 points and had 10 rebounds. Laura Hurren was next with 13 points. Hurren also had 10 assists.

"Laura has really been hustling," McDonald said. "Against Pontiac Northern (Oct. 18) she had eight more assists and eight points."

The first time the two teams met Clarkston won, 56-34, in Avondale.

Rough play occurred in their second contest, this time on the Clarkston court.

Hurren and Ottman were repeatedly crashing to the floor as they tried weaving their way up the court with the ball.

With the close first half, Clarkston came out running in the second half and took control of the game.

McDonald said he has the fastest team in the county, and once able to run with the ball they can control the game.

"We are handling the ball much better now than we were earlier in the season," he said. "The last three games we controlled."

"We're 11-4 now," he said. "I'm really pleased with that."

One reason for the successful season is the Wolves' bench strength. Despite the winning record, Clarkston has not had a full roster for any game.

In the Avondale game, Lin Klingler was out with an illness.

"Once we get Lin back we'll be a better balanced team," McDonald said. "Denise (Giroux) came in and made some really good baskets so did Wendy (Learmont). And did you see how well Shannon Moore handled the ball?"

"Having such a balanced team is a pleasure plus a heartache," he said. "It's great to have all the players, but it's tough to get them enough playing time."

Kim Ottman passes off through the middle of the Avondale defense during the Wolves' 64-53 win. She scores 10 points as Janet Herron leads Clarkston with 14 points.

Cheerleading clinic at Clarkston

The Clarkston High School Varsity Cheerleading squad is holding a clinic for kindergartners through sixth-graders.

Fee for the two-day clinic is $2.

It is planned Nov. 12 and 19 at the high school from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Participants should bring a lunch, shorts and tennis shoes. Cheers, stunts, dance routines and jumps are to be taught.

The cheerleaders will serve cookies and punch after the clinic.

Bohl's awake

By Dan Vandenhemel

"Hi, Mom" were the first words Jim Bohl said after regaining full consciousness Saturday.

Bohl, 16, was injured in a Clarkston High School soccer game Sept. 22 and underwent emergency surgery to remove a blood clot from his brain.

"He can talk, but in two- or three-word sentences," said his mother, Rosalie.

"He is really alert and can remember everything. He is so much aware of what is happening and what happened to him."

Mrs. Bohl said the doctors and the nurses are amazed about the progress Jim has made since the accident.

The junior at Clarkston High School is scheduled to start physical therapy at the St. Joseph Rehabilitation Center in Pontiac.

"The therapy could last anywhere from two weeks to six months," Mrs. Bohl said. "The doctors have said it could last about a month, but they don't want to speculate too much. He has the desire to be out in that time."

Thank you

Mom and Dad

GOAL title slips away from Wolves

By Dan Vandenhemel

Clarkston's rushing defense disappeared, and with it went the Wolves' hopes of sharing in the Greater Oakland Activities League title.

Lake Orion bounced and banged Clarkston around, and ran the ball right through the middle of the Wolves' defense play after play in the 39-14 loss Friday.

Clarkston fell to 2-2 in the league and 2-5 overall. The Dragons increased their league record to 3-1 and tied Waterford Kettering for first place in the league.

"They were hungrier than we were," said a dejected Wolves' coach Walt Wyniemko after the game.

The Wolves came out of the game with more injuries than touchdowns.

Kurt Bottorf and Rob Newblatt went out with ankle injuries, Hugh Boyd was kicked in the helmet and sat out the rest of the game and Steve Morris suffered a pinched nerve in his neck.

"We got mashed in, banged up," Wyniemko said. "I don't want to get into that but some programs feel it is important. We don't, not at all."

The Dragons were punishing the Wolves badly in the first half while building a 26-0 lead.

With 1:56 left in the first quarter, they scored their first of four touchdowns in the half. The Dragons started the scoring drive on their own 7-yard line.

It was the second game in a row the Wolves came out flat in the first half and fell behind big.

Wyniemko is not sure why his team is not playing well in the opening half.

"We've talked about it," he said. "We have some kind of problem. We are somewhat of a young club with less experience, but I thought we were up for this game."

Paramedics check over over Clarkston Wolves' football player Hugh Boyd. Boyd was not seriously injured when he was kicked in the head during the game with Lake Orion.

The Wolves' only two touchdowns came on scoring passes of 19- and 14-yards from Mike Galley to Chris Bruce and Erik Kline.

That was most of the offense generated by Clarkston. The Wolves had 202 total yards to Lake Orion's 507.

Work goes on to outlaw township hunting

Hunting and shooting with center-fire rifles is expected to be illegal in Independence Township and hunting to be outlawed on most of land south of I-75 in time for next year's hunting season.

The changes will take place 15 days after an official filing with the Secretary of State's office, according to James Dabb, supervisor of the DNR's hunter education program.

The action will ban hunting in the following areas of the township:

Most of Independence Township south of I-75; in and over the waters of Walters Lake, Woodhull Lake and Pelton Heights subdivision; Birdland; the Orchards; Deer Wood; the apartments around Greens Lake; Deer Lake Subdivision and the area around Cranberry lake.

According to Dabb, the expediency of the outlaw process is left to Independence Township, which must publish three notices on three consecutive weeks and post the no-hunting areas.

To keep hunters off property, it must be posted, sometimes fenced, and all farmland is off limits according to state law, Dabb said, unless written permission is given from the owner.

To prosecute illegal hunters, property owners must be willing to sign a complaint and testify in court.

"We are not bouncers," Dabb warns. "So often people just want us to chase hunters off their land."

Of the three types of rifles, center-fires can shoot up to two miles, Dabb said.

"Basically the problem is density of population more than anything else," said Supervisor James B. Smith. "The power of a bullet is greater than most people realize, and it's ability to ricochet and hit something out of the line of fire is great."

"The concerns are that over a period of years, we've had to restrict areas as they've become developed."

The process has taken over a year, and brings to an end 30 steps required by the Department of Natural Resources to change the law.

Hunting with rim-fire rifles is allowed in most areas north of I-75, because the area remains relatively rural, with significant numbers of large-acreage parcels.

Muzzle-loading rifles have no long distance capability and rim-fire rifles, used for target shooting and small game, can shoot up to a mile.

To report illegal hunters phone the Oakland County Sheriff's Department, Michigan State Police or the Waterford office of the DNR.

Plat denied

Because developers missed the deadline to request a final plat extension for Oakhill Meadows subdivision, the Independence Township Board denied the late appeal Oct. 18.

The nine-lot subdivision on Oak Hill Road in the northwest section of the township has been on the drawing boards since 1980.

By township ordinance, the plat extension should have been requested in August when the developer was informed the erosion bond had expired, according to Supervisor James B. Smith.

"By ordinance we have nothing to extend. They missed the deadline," Smith said.

After brief discussion, the board voted unanimously to deny the request for an extension because the application was not made in a timely manner.

"That's ridiculous," developer Jerry Bandy said after the meeting. "I'm upset, and don't want to say any more until I've talked to the building department."

Theater arts are drama teacher Dick Williams' career and his hobby. Here he portrays concert pianist Duncan Latimer, a man with a secret, in a scene with Mary Pappas as Ilona.

This teacher takes his talents to the stage

By Kathy Greenfield

Theater arts go beyond Dick Williams' forte as a teacher; he also considers them his hobby.

Last May he appeared in the Clarkston Village Players' "Last of the Red Hot Lovers."

The highlight of his summer vacation was working to start a community theater group in the Torch Lake area in northern Michigan.

And when the curtain opens on "Take a Number, Darling" he'll be on stage again, this time in a dinner-theater production by Brandon S.T.A.G.E. at Deer Lake Racquet Club Nov. 3, 4, 5, 10 and 11.

Williams, 39, lives in Independence Township and teaches speech and drama at Waterford Mott High School.

He's been active in a variety of community theater groups for years—the Willoway Apprentice Theatre in Bloomfield Hills, the Lakeland Players, Pontiac Theatre IV, the Clarkston Village Players and Brandon S.T.A.G.E. (Students of the Theater for the Advancement of Greater Entertainment).

"I suppose a lot of it is an ego thing—to receive acclaim or praise or whatever," he says. "That's always nice. I suppose that's what anybody does anything for."

"Theater people tend to like to be active and do things and talk about ideas—plays have a lot to do with ideas and philosophy, and I like it because I think about those things then."

Beyond that, there's the challenge.

"I always look for a different kind of thing to do—things that would be challenging, parts I haven't done before. I also look at it as a mental exercise," he says.

Williams usually tries to keep his community theater participation to one play a year.

"Take a Number, Darling" meant about 60 hours spent in rehearsals over the past two months.

In addition, Williams directs three student productions a year at Waterford Mott.

He also finds time for family activities—for the past three years he's been a soccer coach for the Independence Township Parks and Recreation Department program. His sons, Patrick, 13, and Daniel, 11, were on the team.

His wife, Kathy, has been involved in community theater as well, appearing on stage in Willoway productions and helping with ticket sales when Williams appeared this year with the Clarkston Village Players.

She and their sons always attend the plays he's in and the high school plays he directs.

They'll be there for "Take a Number, Darling" which has six roles, all about equal in size.

Williams plays Duncan Latimer, a concert pianist whose wife is a soap opera star.

The comedy-farce by Jack Sharkey is purely entertainment, he says.

"This is the first time I've done dinner-theater at Deer Lake and I think it should be enjoyable," he says. "I tell my kids at school about it and, although it's expensive for kids, I think some of them are going to go."

"Some of my relatives are coming, which is fine. I like having people I know come to plays."

Williams' favorite roles have included King Arthur in "Camelot," Harold Hill in "Music Man," George in "Of Mice and Men" and several parts in plays by William Shakespeare.

"As any actor would, I'd love to do Hamlet before I get too old," he says.

Illegal hunting angers woman

By Marilyn Trumper

Arv Stegeman is angry over illegal goose hunting on Gullick Lake Oct. 19.

"It was about 20 after 6 last night when my husband and I heard gunshots. They were so close," she said. "A flock of 15 or 16 Canadian geese rose off the ground and started flying."

"One was flying without a partner, then turned around and headed back. There was another shot. We never saw it again."

Stegeman lives on Woodglen Road, off Waldon between Sashabaw and M-15. Hunting is illegal in the densely populated area, according to Independence Township Supervisor James B. Smith.

"(The gunshot) was so close. My husband says it was a shotgun, he could tell by the 'pop' it made," Stegeman said. "It's a private lake owned by the Girl Scouts and no one is supposed to have access to it."

"It just makes me sick because we enjoy those geese so much. They come back in the spring and spend all summer here, and they're so beautiful in flight."

"It just rots my socks."

Hunting violators face 90 days in jail and/or a $100 fine, according to a spokesperson from the 52nd District Court.

School moves to end playground aggression

By Marilyn Trumper

State trends show an increase in student aggression on the playground, and Bailey Lake Elementary in the Clarkston School District is no exception.

Its 700 students, overseen on two split recesses by two paid aides, seem to accept short-tempered pushing and shoving as life on the 40-acre playground, according to head roommother and PTA member Barbara Burge.

The situation spurred the PTA to implement a new school program for safety on the playground and in the classroom.

"I was concerned about aggression, but more about the acceptance level of the children," Burge said. "They seem to think that's the way it is. But it's not the way it's supposed to be.

"For example, a child accidentally trips another one. He gets up and immediately hits him without finding out first if it's an accident."

The same pushing and shoving has gone on for years, Burge says, but its acceptance is new.

"It's becoming a normal type of reaction rather than a rare occurrence when someone would lose his temper," she said.

Principal Doris Mousseau blames the trend on violence in television and films.

"They see this socking and punching, and they know the actors aren't hurt. The youngsters don't understand physically how much that hurts when it's done to another person. They have a problem differentiating between fantasy and reality," she said, recalling a punching episode that fractured the knuckle of a fourth-grader some years back.

"Ninety-eight percent of these kids do a super job," she said. "It's the 2- to 3-percent that create the problems."

To counteract the trend of acceptance among the kids, Burge has kicked-off a campaign for safety on the playground, bus and classroom.

Banners and posters line the school halls encouraging good behavior. Classrooms are shown filmstrips, while Burge and other volunteers lead discussions on playground problems—and how to solve them.

"Instead of telling them you should do this or that, it's explained what we would like them to do. The kids are looking at the posters, and they do talk about what bothers them," Burge said.

The campaign culminates in mid-November with "Playground Pal," the selection of a pupil by his or her peers to be honored for good, courteous and respectful behavior and innovative play.

Mousseau warns it won't work unless the schools have parent backing.

"The fourth-grader with the fractured knuckle. His father said, 'I don't want you teaching him not to fight. I want him to be able to defend himself.' How can we work with that?" she said.

"I really feel most parents teach their children to be good, well-behaved youngsters in school. It's the community that makes the whole thing work."

Path falls short

Sidewalk construction stopped mid-way through Thomas Boyd's front yard on Clarkston Road and he asked the Clarkston Village Council why.

Village President Jackson Byers unraveled the sidewalk mystery, and announced this week Clarkston will extend the sidewalk 50 more feet.

Boyd approached the council Oct. 10, asked for re-examination of the blueprints, praised the work, and offered to foot the bill to finish the job if the unfinished portion wasn't in the village, but in the township.

"It was my understanding (the village) was going to finish the job to the village limits... I've been paying property taxes to the village for years," Boyd said.

Boyd owns two adjacent lots—one in the village, the other in the township—and pays village taxes on both parcels.

"Apparently, there are a lot of these kinds of lots in the township, and somebody a long time ago decided who would pay to the township, and who to the village," Byers said. "Mr. Boyd has been paying to the village—and we'll finish the sidewalk."

Liquor transfer

A liquor license transfer to the new owners of the Breaktime Lounge has the Independence Township board's unanimous stamp of approval.

On Oct. 18 the board voted to recommend approval to the State Liquor Control Commission.

New owners of the lounge at 7504 Dixie Highway are Bob and Wanda LaLone of Springfield Township.

"There aren't going to be any big changes in the place," Bob said after the meeting. "We're going to do some repairs, fix things up a little bit."

"And we're catering to the older crowd," Wanda said.

Eeeek!

Among members of the Clarkston High School Drama Club haunting the Jaycees' Haunted House are [clockwise from top] Jim Fuller peeking out between black draping and a wooden bench; Mike Weber providing organ music and this greeting: "Have fun. Ha-ha-ha."; Joe Wilson springing out of the dark recesses; and Carrie Roselli reaching out from the cage.

NWOVEC's remodeled Northwest Inn to open

The remodeling complete, the Northwest Inn opens for business Nov. 1.

The 74 students enrolled in the food service program at the Northwest Oakland Vocational Education Center prepare and serve the food in the dining room, and they've been learning their skills since school opened in September.

Located inside the school at 8211 Big Lake, Springfield Township, the restaurant's hours are 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. Tuesdays through Fridays, following the school calendar.

Soups, salads and entre specials are included on the menu.

The students also prepare the food for the student/faculty cafeteria and about 100 meals for senior citizens which are sent out to the Ortonville and Independence Township senior citizen centers.

In order to prepare baked goods for the annual Thanksgiving Bake Sale, the dining room will be closed the week before Thanksgiving.

Following the week of Thanksgiving, the dining room will again be open to the public for lunches until Christmas break.

A December buffet is planned in addition to all the usual activities.

The students also prepare ham and cheese trays and hors d'oeuvre trays to sell. These must be ordered in advance.

For more information call 625-5202.

DAR plans to establish local chapter

A local chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution is in the planning stages:

An organizational tea is planned Wednesday, Nov. 2, at 1 p.m. at the home of Mrs. William McLaughlin, 8195 Deerwood, Independence Township.

Anyone presently affiliated with another chapter, a member at large, or anyone who feels she may be eligible for membership may call 625-1597 for a reservation.

Roberta Stimpson, state regent, is to be guest of honor.

Libraries host Halloween parties

It's Halloween party time at the Independence and Springfield libraries.

Both parties are planned Saturday, Oct. 29, and they're free.

In Independence, the hours are 10:30 a.m. to noon for the annual celebration co-sponsored by the Friends of the Library at the Church of the Resurrection, 6495 Clarkston Rd., across the street from the library.

There will be a magic show, prizes for the most creative costumes and refreshments. The party's for kindergartners through sixth-graders. Call 625-2212 for more information.

In Springfield, hours are 1 to 2 p.m. Featured are movies, refreshments and prizes for the best costumes.

Children of all ages are invited to the party at the library, 10900 Andersonville. For further information call 625-0595.

State questions sewer fund

By Marilyn Trumper

Because of a $1.5-million deficit in the sewer special assessment, Independence Township is in violation of Act 621 and could lose its state shared revenue as a penalty.

"We've already adopted a levy, and that's what we're telling them, nothing else," said Clerk Richard Holman at the Oct. 18 board meeting. "We're not bound by the plan, but if we don't send in something we're in jeopardy of losing our state shared revenue."

The state requires townships to be in the black with payments, or to file a financial plan putting the fund in the black, according to Holman.

Board members disagreed over the filing this year's plan of levying tax of 0.35 mill to be paid by all township property owners.

"If we file this it binds us to collecting $90,000 every year, and I don't think we have to do that," said Trustee Dale Stuart. "I said it two weeks ago, and before that. I think we need to get some good, hard figures on what's happening with this sewer fund and go from there, and creatively think about what to do with the sewer fund."

Board members voted 3-2 to send the plan to the state.

Supervisor James B. Smith, Treasurer Frederick Ritter and Holman voted "yes." Stuart and Trustee Laurence Kozma dissented. Trustee William Vandermark was absent.

This rickety gray and black haunted house is Brad Gaines' contribution to the Halloween scene.

Festive glass

With brushes glopped in orange and brown, Suzanne Kiser's Art III students from Sashabaw Junior High paint Halloween designs on the windows of the Waterford Township Burger King on Dixie Highway.

"We've been here since 7 this morning," said Lisa Ladd.

"And we're not done yet," added Janet Jablonski.

The students volunteered their talents to give the glass a festive, holiday-look with pumpkins, ghosts and haunted houses.

Bliss-White

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Bliss of Bay Drive, Springfield Township, announce the engagement of their daughter, Nicole Susan, to Charles N. White, son of Mr. Charles B. White and Mrs. Barbara White. The bride-to-be, a 1982 graduate of Clarkston High School, is attending Oakland University, Rochester. Her fiancé is a 1979 graduate of the Art Institute of Pittsburgh. He is self-employed in advertising. A May wedding is planned.

Dutcher-Pawloski

Karen H. Dutcher and David F. Pawloski plan an August 1984 wedding. Her parents are Monroe and Ruth Dutcher of Independence Township. His parents are Ann and Robert Pawloski of Tawas City. Both graduated from Michigan State University, East Lansing, in 1983. She is employed as a perfusion technologist at Ingham Medical Center. He is a personnel supervisor at Michigan State University.

Youths to collect for UNICEF Oct. 30

If someone knocks on your door Sunday, Oct. 30, chances are it will be a member of a church youth group collecting for UNICEF.

They'll be wearing UNICEF nametags and representing the Independence Township Ministers Association.

UNICEF, the United Nation's Children's Fund, works in 115 developing countries of Asia, Africa and Latin American, where the child population exceeds 1.3 billion.

Four out of five of these children have no access to regular health services, nearly nine out of 10 are not immunized against the major childhood diseases and 100 million go to bed hungry, according to a UNICEF brochure.

Money for the fund comes from contributions from 134 governments and the sale of greeting cards and other fund-raising activities.

In service

Army Pvt. Gary Carte was involved in a NATO-sponsored exercise by participating in the Army's return of forces to Germany (REFORGER) and the Air Force's Crested Cap exercises.

Carte is an equipment records and parts specialist with the 3rd Armored Division in Kirchgoens, West Germany.

A 1982 graduate of Clarkston High School, he is the son of Clarence and Loretta Carte of Crosby Lake Road, Springfield Township.

New arrival

Tim and Kim Doyle of Clintonville Road, Waterford Township, are new parents.

John Edward Doyle II was born at 11:11 a.m. Sept. 19 at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, Pontiac. He weighed 8 pounds, 1/2 ounce and measured 19 inches long.

His brothers and sisters are Ryan, 5, Shane, 12 and Tara, 14.

Grandparents are Idalia Doyle of Wisconsin and the late John Edward Doyle, and Antonio and Jean Varrubias of Independence Township.

Doyle is Independence Township's director of parks and recreation.

Head, Eberbach exchange their vows

Mary Jean Head and Steven John Eberach were wed recently in an afternoon ceremony at the First United Methodist Church, Ann Arbor.

For the Oct. 15 wedding, Linda Burkhart of Evanston, Ill., served as maid of honor and Melanie Ziarkiewicz of Troy was bridesmaid.

Jerome Caviani of Ann Arbor was best man. Groomsman was Stanley Livingston of Ann Arbor.

Serving as ushers were the bride's brothers, James Head of Wheeling, Ill., and Andrew Head of Drayton Plains; and the bridegroom's brothers, Peter Eberach of Ann Arbor and Mark Eberach of Ann Arbor.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Jerle Head of Clinton Drive, Independence Township.

The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Eberbach of Gregory.

Following the ceremony, the reception was held at the Women's City Club.

The newlyweds honeymooned in Colorado's Rocky Mountains.

They are residing in Ann Arbor.

Mr. and Mrs. Steven John Eberach

Couple wed in evening ceremony

Debbie Fisk and David Bridgewater were recently wed in an evening ceremony at St. Andrew's Episcopal Church in Waterford Township.

The bride wore an off-the-shoulder gown with tiers of lace on the sleeves and around the bottom of the hoop skirt.

She carried a bouquet of cascading pink and white carnations and red roses.

Matron of honor was Cathy Phillips, sister of the bride. Other attendants were Tammy Norman, Dawn Miller, Sue Narsh and Tara O'Neil.

They wore raspberry dresses and carried bouquets of pink, white and burgundy carnations.

Junior bridesmaid was Lauri Ormsby and ring-bearers were Ryan and Gary Ormsby, niece and nephews of the groom.

Best man was Joe Bridgewater, brother of the bridegroom. Other attendants were Larry Bridgewater, also the bridegroom's brother; Don Locker; Jimmy Miller; John Hamilton; and Dan Bates.

The bride was given in marriage Aug. 27 by her father.

Two-hundred-and-twenty-five people celebrated in the American Legion Reception Hall, Independence Township.

The couple honeymooned in northern Michigan. They reside in Independence Township.

Debbie is a 1977 graduate of Clarkston High School and works at Beaute Craft Supply Co.

David is a 1979 graduate of Waterford Kettering High School, Waterford Township. He works for Radios Knobs Speakers and Things, Pontiac.

Rhyming tributes to spooks

Halloween captures the spirit of this collection of poems from some sixth-graders at Andersonville Elementary School.

Halloween Night

By Missy Sloan and Shelly Turner
There once was a Halloween night
On which the moon was so bright
That the trees almost seemed to come alive

I was walking through the wood
Where the trees stood
When the trees just started to jive.

I thought I heard the rattle of chains
But it must have been my brains,
Because right then I wasn't thinking too clear.

Then out of the night
I saw such a sight
That I had no time to feel fear.

I sat there in awe.
Staring at the thing I saw.
It was one of the things I fear most.

It wasn't a bat,
Not a black cat,
And it wasn't even a ghost.

It had horns, it had wings,
It had all sorts of things.
I could not explain what it does.

The thing was in flight,
As it drifted out of sight,
I never found out what it was.

Halloween

By Tracy Trethewey
Ghostly nights,
Witches' brew,
Little kids in the Halloween crew.

Cara Sawyer stopped by The Clarkston News office with her mom to deliver a poem she's proud of. A fourth-grader at North Sashabaw Elementary School, she wrote it as a classroom assignment.

On Halloween Night

By Cara Sawyer
On Halloween night
When I was in bed
I heard a smash and
Our pumpkin was dead

On Halloween night
A ghost named Fred
Was passing by
A witch let out a screech
And a cat let out a cry

On Halloween night
A bat flew through the air
I felt a shiver
Run through my hair

On Halloween night
Snakes abrew
Spooks are ready
To haunt you

On the next morning
Sounds were dead
But strange thoughts
Were still in my head

Jack-O-Lanterns

Are Watching You

By Heidi Grunwald
The jack-o-lanterns are here and there,
They're on the ground and in the air.
They're on the fences with smiling faces,
They're in the skies with light in their eyes.
They're on the ground and all around.
They're here and there and everywhere.
The jack-o-lanterns are watching you.

Sherril Bailey off to Mexico

Teacher to help construct church

On Nov. 1 Sherril Bailey will be among 12 Volunteers in Mission winging their way to Monterrey, Mexico, to spend two weeks adding the finishing touches to the Buenos Ares Church.

Bailey, who teaches sixth grade at Andersonville Elementary, has received a leave of absence from her job to participate in the project.

She was commissioned for the missionary work on Oct. 16 at the Seymour Lake United Methodist Church in Groveland Township.

Tasks planned include painting the church and parsonage, window installations, wiring and the construction of pews.

"I'm anxious to return to Mexico. I have previously made several jaunts across the border and once chaperoned some high school students to Mexico City," Bailey said.

"In addition, I have worked with migrant families for many years. I hope my knowledge and understanding of the Mexican people and customs can be useful to this project."

Swap a day with your kids at CHS

Parents of Clarkston High School Students can find out what it's like to attend the school on Thursday, Nov. 3.

For S.W.A.P. (Switch With A Parent) Day, students will be encouraged to stay home if they can be replaced by a parent or guardian.

Students who cannot be replaced by an adult are expected to be in attendance.

The program is designed to offer parents an appreciation of a student's daily routine and to promote better communication regarding school between parents and students.

More information is included in "Happenings," the CHS newsletter.

Parents with questions can call the high school at 625-0900.

Knights of Columbus celebrate their silver anniversary

An evening of dining, dancing and reminiscing was theirs as members of the Pope John XXIII Council of the Knights of Columbus celebrated the group's 20th anniversary Friday.

"I don't think we've ever had as many past and present state officers as well as other dignitaries there," said present Grand Knight John Shiff.

Thomas Clark, the top state officer, talked about the charities the K of C supports, including Boysville of Michigan and the mentally retarded throughout the state.

The Rev. Frederick Delaney, past council chaplain and retired priest from Our Lady of the Lakes parish, spoke on the founders of the organization.

The celebration included the Past Grand Knights Ball, and six of the past grand knights of the local council attended with their wives.

The past knights are Robert Brazier, who served from 1963-67; Watson Siecinski, 1967-71; Henry Ricksgers, 1971-73; Raymond Smiecinski, 1973-76; Charles Springer, 1978-79; James J. Smith, 1979-80; William Methner, 1980-82; and Royce Haskins, 1982-83.

The Green and White Olympics provide the grand finale of camp for Clarkston Junior High School ninth-graders last week. Starting it all off is a "marathon"—a one-mile run around the dirt road at Camp Tamarack in Brandon Township. About 190 students spent the school week at camp learning about how environmental issues touch every facet of their lives and strengthening their class by getting to know each other better.

Winners of the "marathon," Kathleen McInnis and Brent Corliss, carry the Olympic Torch into the camp's amphitheater. And the games begin.
