Kids get home at 4:40 p.m.

Parents call late bus runs unfair

By Marilyn Trumper

Bus riders from Bailey Lake and North Sashabaw elementaries get home later than all other students in the Clarkston school district—approximately 4:40 p.m.

For kids, the late schedule often conflicts with after-school extras like ballet classes, soccer, piano lessons, movies at the library, Boy Scouts and catechism.

Jan Eby would like to see it changed.

"You learn to make the time," said Eby, who has five children between the ages of 3 and 13.

The Ebys live in the rural northwest quadrant of Independence Township off Reese Road, the tail end of the bus route.

The Monday through Friday scramble "...disrupts the family," Eby said. "There's very little those kids can do before dinner. They come home, they've been up since early morning, they haven't eaten since lunch at 11 o'clock, they're hungry, trying to tell you about their day, while you're trying to get dinner together.

"You send them upstairs to get their clothes changed to go outside and play, and there's very little daylight left to do that.

"By the time they do that, eat dinner, do their homework and have a bath, the day's gone."

Getting to after school soccer games is difficult.

"Everyone in soccer is in a real rush. Now they have the kids staying at school because it starts at 4:30 or 5 o'clock. By the time they get home they'd just have to come back again," Eby said.

Pam Bills, whose husband is president of the Bailey Lake PTA, agrees.

"I wish they didn't get home so late. But that's the way it is. I don't know of a faster way," she said.

Eby suggests switching late bus runs every couple of years with the district's other three elementary schools—Pine Knob, Andersonville and Clarkston.

William Dennis, administrative assistant of auxiliary services, says that's impossible.

The district's 22 routes are divided three ways.

The first run is for Clarkston High School and Clarkston Junior High.

The second run is for Andersonville, Clarkston Elementary and Sashabaw Junior High.

The third run is to Bailey Lake, Sashabaw and Pine Knob elementaries, with students from Pine Knob dropped off first.

The triple-tripping schedule was implemented eight years ago, and monopolizes the most buses at schools with the biggest student bodies. It was designed to meet declining enrollment.

Clarkston cut its routes and buses from 38 to 22.

For example, it takes eight buses to get students from Andersonville home, and 10 buses from Clarkston Elementary, Dennis said. If the schools were to switch dismissal times, two buses normally transporting Clarkston kids would sit idle.

"I understand what she's saying, and there's no easy solution," Dennis said.

Jan Doolittle, consultant with Oakland Schools, randomly phoned other districts in the county for their late dismissal times.

•Bloomfield Township's latest dismissal: 3:40 p.m.

•Oxford's latest dismissal: 3 p.m.

"I don't know for sure if Clarkston has the latest," Doolittle said.

Eby remains steadfast.

"The emphasis with the school always concerns money. We have to be concerned with the child more than cutting down costs," she said.

"We may be saving money, but do we have the best interest of the child at heart?"

Traffic light to blink no more

In the next two months, travelers will notice a slight difference at the intersection of Maybee and Sashabaw roads.

The Oakland County Road Commission is going to change the traffic light to a 24-hour stop and go indicator.

Currently the light flashes between the hours of midnight and 5 a.m.

Dennis Pajot, public information director for the road commission, said the move is for safety.

"Studies show that the number of right angle accidents have increased on county roads," he said. "It's a preventive measure for the safety of drivers."

There are 55 intersections on county roads that will going through the changes. The road commission only has jurisdiction over county roads.

The Michigan Department of Transportation has jurisdiction over all state highways.

"There could be more intersections facing the changes," Pajot said. "The state trunk lines could change also if they decide to look into it."

Next step: color choices

Mason answers questions about energy plan

By Kathy Greenfield

Questions about the $735,000 project expected to be completed this summer to make Clarkston school buildings more energy efficient have been brought to the attention of The Clarkston News.

But Superintendent Milford Mason said he's received no community reaction since the proposal was approved by the board of education in a 5-1 vote Jan. 15.

Principals of the eight school buildings have been encouraged, however, to share with teachers drawings that illustrate how the changes would affect the buildings, he said.

Energy conservation projections were prepared by the architectural-engineering firm Daverman Associates Inc. of Grand Rapids.

The district is to borrow money to purchase bonds to fund the project, as allowed by State Act 431. In order to borrow the money, it has to show proof of the project is expected for itself over the 10-year period of the bonds. The annual payment is expected to be about $115,000.

The Daverman projections used an expected increase of 13 percent annually, on the average, for fuel and electricity costs. According to the figures, the district would come out ahead $355,289 over the 10-year period, with a $5.4 million savings over 20 years.

Those figures prompted the first question: If expenses do not increase by 13 percent, where is the money coming from to pay off the bonds?

"Our heart and soul is not tied precisely to the 13-percent increase," Mason said. "We figure we can take an average escalation of about 8 1/4 percent and have the project payed off in 10 years."

The average increase over the past four years has been 17 percent, he added, and in 1985 the price of natural gas will no longer be controlled by the government.

"I tend to feel it opens the market place up sufficiently to the potential of price increases again," he said.

For the first three years of the bond payments, the district expects to have to supplement the cost—with a shortfall of $33,000 the first year which decreases to $10,000 by the third year and, after that, more money should be saved than the cost of the bond payment, Mason said.

"We feel we'll be able to buffer that to some degree in that the money ($735,000) will be in our hands in about 20 days," he said. "We'll be able to invest that until the latter part of June."

The next question was raised because the plan includes eliminating most of the window and glass brick in the school buildings, reducing natural light and increasing the need for artificial lighting: How much are electrical costs expected to increase?

"That won't occur," Mason said, noting that most classrooms now have lights burning all day.

In addition, the district has replaced all incandescent lights with fluorescent lights in the past few years, he said.

And there will be some savings when the energy conservation plan reduces the amount of time fans run on some furnaces.

The next question also comes from the result of reducing the number of windows: What about cooling?

"Feeling, obviously, in the cold weather it's going to make the rooms warmer, on the reverse side, in the spring we feel it will make the rooms cooler and more environmentally comfortable for children for learning," Mason said.

Another aspect of the project also involves windows, he said.

The district was faced with replacing rusting window frames now at Andersonville Elementary School, with the same problem coming up at Clarkston and Pirie Knob elementaries.

The project funded by bonds is less expensive "in the long run and accomplishes the replacement of portions of buildings that were in very critical need of repair," Mason said.

The final question: How was the architectural-engineering firm selected?

Mason said 12 firms expressed an interest in the project and that number was decreased to five by members of the district's administrative staff.

The board of education then held two special meetings in the latter part of October to interview each of the firms.

At its regular meeting Nov. 14 the board of education unanimously selected Daverman Associates.

Now that the project has been approved, the matter is not expected to come before the board until colors are chosen for materials that will replace windows, Mason said.

Shades of beiges and browns to blend with existing brick on buildings have been proposed by Daverman Associates for the majority of the buildings.

Gas/food store request denied

Owner weighs appeal

By Marilyn Trumper

Independence Township's Planning Commission put the kibosh on Dandy Oil Co.'s plan to expand the Union 76 Station at Sashabaw and Maybee roads to a convenience gas/food store.

A 600-signature petition and over a dozen people from adjacent businesses and neighborhoods opposed the expansion at the Jan. 12 meeting, arguing traffic would intensify an already busy intersection, according to a Beverly McElmeel of Independence Township's building department.

In addition, some argued it wouldn't be in keeping with projected character for the Sashabaw Corridor, that the township should hold out for more developed businesses and that they needed no more stores, that the Pine Knob Wine Shoppe meets their needs, she said.

Architect David Donnellon's request for special use, allowed under the station's zoning, was denied despite township Planner Richard Carlisle's recommendation for approval because the use is allowed under that zoning.

One owner of the Pine Knob Wine Shop, Mike Bahii, said he thinks a 600-signature petition from his customers discouraged approval for a convenience party store at the Union 76 Station, Sashabaw and Maybee roads.

"They didn't want it," Bahii said after the meeting. "They didn't want signs like up and down Dixie Highway, or the extra traffic."

"And if it were approved, what's to stop all the other gas stations from doing the same thing?"

Chairman Wallace denies the petition affected the commission's decision.

"I don't think it was a substantial consideration," Wallace said. "We are not a referendum body and didn't try to validate any of the signatures, although they are part of the record."

According to Wallace, primary concerns were increased traffic at that intersection and the proposed 24-hour operation.

"Of course we're very disappointed," architect Donnellon said. "We don't feel there'll be an increase in traffic. All we wanted to sell was milk, bread, candy, a few toiletries. Nothing like a party store. The only people who would be shopping here would be people pulling in for gas."

"We're a convenience store, not a party store with beer and wine and things like that. And we were going to be open 24 hours. No other store in the area offers that."

Donnellon said the Dandy Oil Co., of Troy, hasn't decided if it will appeal.

LIVE AT THE LIBRARY: There are some new faces at the Independence Township Library—two gerbils donated by Moby Dick's, a Waterford Township pet shop. Getting acquainted are Chris Lewis and Lauren Basinger. The gerbils are fearless and busy, making them a perfect addition, says children's librarian Anne Rose. A naming contest, open to everyone, is underway now through Feb. 15. Posters are the prizes and entries can be made at the library, 6495 Clarkston Rd., Independence Township.

Cold delays cable 'in-house' deadline

Recent bitter cold with below-freezing temperatures has delayed Tribune/United Cable Communications' "in-house" timetable, according to Manual Copado, commercial marketing manager.

But cable installation on the $2.5-million system is expected to continue on schedule.

"We're not behind in terms of franchise commitment. We'll still meet our mid-April completion deadline," he said.

"With the severe weather, Edison and Bell pulled their field people out of the work—which slows our construction down. But we still hope to have first-subscribers on the line by April 15."

Shadow tradition

Al Zawacky

Thursday is Ground Hog Day, and tradition has it that if the ground hog sees his shadow, there are going to be six more weeks of winter weather.

Everybody knows that, but I suspect few are aware of the following obscure Ground Hog Day traditions. Trust me.

If BILLY SIMS sees his shadow, there'll be six more weeks of court hearings.

If Agnes Mansour sees her shadow, there'll be six more weeks of hypocrisy.

If Al Zawacky sees his shadow, there'll be six more weeks of failed diets.

If Yuri Andropov sees his shadow, it'll be a miracle, since no one has seen Yuri Andropov.

If Coleman Young sees his shadow, he'll accuse it of racism.

If Coach Nick Polano sees his shadow, the Red Wings will go another six weeks without a powerplay goal.

If Walter Mondale sees his shadow, he'll immediately offer to sell it to the highest-bidding special interest group.

If Jim Blanchard sees his shadow, there'll be six more weeks of recall elections.

If Martha Griffiths sees her shadow, there'll be six more weeks of cheap put-downs directed at the recall organizers.

If Ronald Reagan sees his shadow, there'll be six more weeks of "who, me?" whenever the talk turns to federal budget deficits.

Senator Ted Kennedy won't see his shadow, because most of his political views seem to be formed in the dark.

George Bush won't see his shadow, either, since he spends all of his time hiding in Ronald Reagan's.

If Sparky Anderson sees his shadow, the Tigers will win the 1984 World Series. (Sparky will spend the entire day indoors.)

If Monte Clark sees his shadow and is asked what he thinks of it, he will explain that he can't really say until he sees the films.

I don't know about some of these predictions, but I think we can all count on six more weeks of winter.

[Al Zawacky is editor of the Lake Orion Review and the Oxford Leader.]

Letters to editor

Enough is too much already!

My God! What more do we have to pay for—besides sewers—that we don't have.

I know the bike paths got the "yes" vote from a total of a very few voters. Those that voted "yes," I'll bet, never expected the added maintenance costs!

First, it was build them—for a few. Next, snow plow them—for fewer. Then, salt them and expect damages because of the salt to the lawn-side grass and shrubbery.

Later, snow fences to lessen drifting across paths. Of course, equipment and labor to do all of the above. Oh yes, insurance coverage for anything and anybody hurt on them.

Maybe, too, outdoor carpeting to soften the impact and enhance the weeds growing right up through the existing blacktopped paths.

What else will the costs (taxes) mushroom into and take out of our pockets?

Do we have enough of a recall fever in this township?

My doctor wants me to keep calm and keep my blood pressure down to reasonable levels, but how can that be when we have to pay for more that we don't have!

Sewers were bad enough in 1976 and since. They want five new gyms, too, now.

How about the telephone bill charges, too?

Enough now is too much already!

Disgusted,
Iva Sommers Caverly

TV zombies report

Kathy Greenfield

Do you know anyone who averages seven hours, two minutes a day watching TV?

Neither do I, and yet there it was in last week's news, as reported by an A.C. Nielsen survey.

It was called a milestone—the first time ever TV viewing topped seven hours.

Perhaps everyone I know is atypical. But I doubt it. Who in the heck do they survey to come up with data like this? Will the zombies please report?

Surely, as a member of the TV generation, I should at least qualify with some working knowledge.

I remember, rather foggily, when televisions became household necessities. All black and white, of course. Small screens. Few programs for children.

When my family moved from the metropolitan Detroit area to Arizona for a year, I remember TV there. There weren't very many stations and even fewer programs for kids.

I can remember never missing one children's show—and meeting the show's star in a store. I stared because I recognized his face, and Cowboy Bob, or something like that, told me who he was.

It was a thrill.

Back in Michigan I remember having lunch with Soupy Sales, watching Captain Kangaroo every morning before leaving for school and, later, watching soap operas when returning (they were mild then).

"Rocky and Bullwinkle," "Superman," "I Love Lucy," "The Jackie Gleason Show," "The Ed Sullivan Show"—I was a fan of them all.

If anyone should be hooked, it should be me.

But I'm not. Weeks go by now when I don't watch a thing.

I only feel bad when I miss "Dynasty." I'd simply rather read or play a game or go somewhere.

According to the news, cable TV may make a difference. And it probably will at first.

But, still, I'm trying to figure out how anyone would average seven hours, two minutes of TV a day and be counted as human.

That's 49 hours, 14 minutes of television a week, for God's sake—more than the average work week and just under 56 hours of sleep, at eight hours a night.

Jim's Jottings

Thinking prize

Jim Sherman

The L'Anse Sentinel in Baraga county is the winner of more awards in recent years than any other weekly paper in Michigan. Just in the National Newspaper Association contest they won seven awards in 1983.

Included was the best editorial page and the best personal column. Rick Buck's column "Buck Shot" last week could win another award, as a confession in stupidity (his word) if nothing else.

He said he expects to be nominated for the Nobel Prize in economics for what he calls "The Stupidity Factor". He mentions some of his actions that kept the L'Anse economy moving last year.

Like wearing contact lens and losing one while swimming, buying auto parts that weren't the right ones, and leaving storm windows leaning against the house only to have the wind destroy them.

But, Buck's real Nobel entry will show how he took a simple thing like plugging an extension cord for a battery charger and converted it into a $345 plumbing bill.

He says the stupidity of actions like his keeps factories humming, creates jobs, and contributes mightily to the Gross National Product.

He said: "During a cold snap a few weeks ago I was running around frantically in the minus 20 degree weather trying to start my truck. The closest outlet for the battery charger was in my well enclosure.

"So I dug the pile of snow off the well cover, opened up the pit and plugged the cord into the socket that also runs my water pump.

"I fiddled with the truck for two or three hours in that numbing chill. Then I went inside to wash my hands. That's when I noticed that the water wasn't working. Exposure to all the cold air had frozen my water pump solid.

"I was desperate to thaw it quick. In fact, I even piled up sticks and built a fire in the eight-foot deep well shaft to warm the pump up. The idea was a failure. All it did was crack parts of the cement walls.

When it got light the next day, I found out that the well pump casing had split down the middle, as had several pipes. You couldn't have done such a job if you hit them with a sledgehammer.

"That's why one local plumber is $345 richer today. As I was writing the check to pay for the new water pump, I said to myself "Buck, if you weren't so stupid as to let that pump freeze, this never would have happened."

"That's when the theory hit me."

Praise for commission stance

I would like to take this opportunity to say thank you to the Independence Township Planning Commission for a job well done.

A recent public hearing demonstrated the "public good" involved when a commission created to protect the public interest acts responsibly.

The area of the township affected by the outcome of this meeting is known as the "Sashabaw Corridor." Independence Township has spent many thousands of dollars in professional planners' fees to assure our children that Sashabaw Road will not become another "Dixie Highway."

Sound planning is the key to the quality of life enjoyed by residents of Independence Township.

Recently Independence Township took the bull by the horns and, against the odds, foiled a plan to mine gravel near the Clinton River headwaters for a short-term profit.

I believe the planning commission was previously misled on development in the Sashabaw Corridor and has concluded that making a "quick" or "fast" buck and sound planning do not necessarily go hand-in-hand.

Not one, but two petitioners were before the planning commission requesting to change existing buildings in the Sashabaw Road, Maybee Road area into party stores.

The "public" spoke loudly and clearly at the meeting, the commission deliberated, an attempt to stall failed, and ultimately both proposals were defeated.

Neil Wallace took a particularly strong leadership position and should be commended individually.

A debt of gratitude is owed by the residents of Independence Township to Mr. Wallace and his commission.

Keep up the good work.

Here's store's right name for record

My sister, Mary Soulby, and I are in Florida for the winter and are receiving The Clarkston News. It's fun to read about home.

I'm writing about the enclosed picture that was published in "Peeking into the Past."

Because we both grew up in Clarkston I'd like to give you more information on the store on the corner which you said housed Rudy's Market in the Twenties.

I know different because Rudy came to Clarkston in the Thirties, and so I called Jeannette Miller Tucker, also in Florida, who also grew up in Clarkston and who was the daughter of Dr. Raymond Miller who practiced medicine there.

The first owner of that store (a dry goods and variety store) that I remember was Mr. Radobaugh. He sold to Dr. Miller and James Beuchler (Mr. Radobaugh's son-in-law).

They evidently sold it to Rudy and they moved to a store next to the Clarkston Cafe.

As a child growing up in the Twenties I can remember going to "Miller's" for penny candy—also to buy shoes—so I guess they had a wide variety of "necessities" for a small town.

You no doubt have heard from other "old-timers" regarding this picture, but I felt that if it was going to go into the "Archives" it should carry correct information.

Louise Gulick McLintock

We stand corrected: During the 1920s, the buildings in this photograph housed [from left] the F. Walter & Son dry goods and grocery store, a barber shop, Miller's variety and dry goods store and, across Washington Street, a hotel.

'If it Fitz...'

Dear occupant

Jim Fitzgerald

The first paragraph of a flattering letter inviting me to become a Smithsonian National Associate said: "If we're correct, your intellectual and cultural growth did not end when you left school. Your curiosity about the human adventure — past, present and future — remains lively. Your lifelong love of reading is demonstrated by the magazines you subscribe to and the books you buy."

That's me, all right. I don't know how the Smithsonian people found out so much about me, but I appreciate their respect. It's a lot more respect than TV huckster Ed McMahon showed the United Cerebral Palsy Association of Detroit Inc.

Citing McMahon's performance in dog-food commercials, International Dull Folks Unlimited recently named him one of the dullest people of 1983. But McMahon is dull about a lot more than just dog food. Every time I look at TV or newspaper and direct mail advertising, I see McMahon telling me to buy something I don't want, such as life insurance or magazines. There is no denying that, from simply being Johnny Carson's Gabby Hayes, Ed McMahon has somehow evolved into the media's most persistent and boring salesman, the type of guy you always hate to see coming because you know he'll try to sell you something.

However, I never thought McMahon would be boor enough to insult a charitable organization that helps disabled individuals and their families. And, to be honest, it may be unfair to heap all the blame on McMahon. Probably it should be shared by American Family Publishers, one of McMahon's many employers, and a computer.

IT IS ONE OF McMahon's most annoying sales stratagems that makes him the most likely target for tomato throwers. When using the Postal Service as a vehicle for his huckstering, McMahon is not content to enter homes in the usual manner—inside an envelope. He puts his picture on the outside, like a postage stamp, close to the name of the addressee.

So it is only natural to primarily associate McMahon with the letter he and American Family Publishers sent to the United Cerebral Palsy Association of Detroit. It was addressed to U. Ass."

And in much larger letters still on the outside of the envelope it said: "Be it hereby known that if the enclosed entry is the Grand Prize Winner, U. ASS SHALL BE PAID A FULL ONE MILLION DOLLARS in guaranteed annual $50,000 payments. And that payments to U. Ass may actually double to two million dollars."

The United Cerebral Palsy Association, is sponsoring a 10-week Awareness Program for parents and other relatives of children suffering from disabling illnesses (for details, phone 313-871-0177 between 8:30 and 4:30 Monday through Friday). the series is typical of the worthwhile services offered by the association to the victims of disabling diseases.

IT IS SERIOUS work done by dedicated people, but they all laughed when Ed McMahon called them "U. Ass." They'll probably say the same thing to McMahon when he tells them they won the $1 million.

But let's return to the respect shown me by the Smithsonian Institution. It said it can tell by the magazines and books I buy that I'm continually growing intellectually and culturally. The only magazine I subscribe to is Sesame Street, to read to my grandchildren, and the only books I buy are paperbacks from drugstores.

It costs $17 a year to become a Smithsonian National Associate and receive the monthly Smithsonian magazine. I'd send in my money except it would be so embarrassing if it were ever discovered that I'm really not worthy of the honor. The Smithsonian Institution would surely cut off my subscription and send back my $17. I'd be so ashamed.

Calling a man an ass isn't the only way to insult him. It can also be done by assuming he is stupid enough to believe all the marvelous things said about him in letters written by people who don't care if he has one brain or one moral, just as long as he has $17.

Independent view

Down, not out

Chief Frank Ronk showed no alarm when Independence Township's Fire Department responded to just seven calls last week, compared to an average 15 to 20 a week.

"We've had dry spells before, three or four a year," Ronk said. "But we'll pay for it. We'll spend the next two weeks playing catch-up. We always do.

"Historically when we have slow ones, we're overloaded for the next two weeks."

More King fans

Seems there are more Stephen King fans in Independence Township than those at The Clarkston News.

Our phones lit up with calls about the nine-line want ad on Page 35 of last week's paper:

Stephen King fans at The Clarkston News would give their front fangs for a chance to read "Dark Tower," the highly acclaimed horror writer's 1982 limited-edition publication. It's as scarce as newt toes.

"How much does it cost?" asked one caller.

"Where can I get it?" asked another.

And from a third, "If you get it, can I read it?"
Ve want it, and ve want it bad.

Ve vait, like Dracula patiently stalking his victim.

Too good to be true

So you thought three days and nights in Las Vegas for $165 sounded like a good deal?

So affordable, your palm itched to grip the handle of a slot machine—it was so close?

So did a lot of other people who read last week's Clarkston News. The Independence Township Senior Citizens Center was inundated with calls from eager travelers.

But don't pack that suitcase just yet.

The correct price is $365, with $50 down by Feb.

17.

It was the Senior Center's error. They're red-faced, but not from the Nevada sun.

18-wheeler jackknifes on slippery roads

Police blame snow and icy roads for two semi trucks that jackknifed in Independence Township, the day before and day after the weekend. Friday morning a driver exiting I-75 lost control on the M-15 off ramp. The photo above was taken Monday, after a second driver lost control of his 18-wheeler at about noon on southbound I-75 just east of the Sashabaw Road overpass. No one was reported injured.

Parents sue for $100,000 over sign

Parents of an Independence Township teen seek $100,000 in damages over a sign that hung inside the Clarkston Cinema lobby near Dixie Highway and M-15.

Dan and Rosemary Grable allege theater owner Dean J. Kitchen humiliated them in their community with a sign reading: "Mike Grable is banned from this theater.—Management."

According to Kitchen's attorney Thomas Cavanaugh, Michael Grable is accused of damaging one of the theater seats Dec. 9. A police report was made. No arrest warrant has been issued, he said.

But Cavanaugh indicated the issue could be settled out of court.

The Grables' attorney, Ray Bolger, could not be reached for comment.

A hearing is expected before Judge John N. O'Brien to order Kitchen to show why he should not take down the sign. No date has been set.

We, Candice and William Nevaux, are not responsible for any debt or liability incurred or otherwise sustained by THE PLAINSMAN SADDLERY, its representatives, owners, or executors, beyond January 28, 1984.

No vote for bridge repair

There will be no help from the Clarkston Village Council for Bud Campbell and his neighbors to finance repair or replacement of the 50-year-old timber bridge on Pinehurst Drive.

Following recommendation from village attorney Thomas Gruich at the Jan. 23 meeting, council members said the only recourse is a special assessment district to finance repairs.

"The village can only spend money on things the state says it can spend it on," Gruich told the council. "Nothing authorizes us to spend money on a private bridge that we don't own, and are not condemning."

"If we were to finance minor repairs and assume responsibility for the bridge making a conscious decision not to bring it up to code, we'd have no defense if there were an accident," Gruich said.

For the past year Campbell's wanted the village to finance repair of the private bridge servicing five residences on a cul-de-sac road.

Campbell talked about his displeasure with the council's decision after the meeting.

"I think we need a new council. If the council can't do anything for the bridge, I want the 30-foot wide easement leading up to the bridge, to be in—and maintained. It's called for on the plat," he said.

"Or maybe I just won't pay my taxes for three years and draw interest on the money."

New parking law

To eliminate plowing problems on car-lined streets, the Clarkston Village Council adopted a no-parking law for all village streets from 2 a.m. to 6 a.m., with a few exceptions.

East Washington Street east of Buffalo is not included because some of the residences do not have driveways.

The parking ban also excludes Main Street between Washington and Church because patrons of the 24-hour bakeshop will need spaces to park, according to Clerk Norma Goyette.

When plows are out, they'll post signs alternating no-parking on the east and west sides of the streets, according to Goyette.

On your own ice

Owners of the Clarkston Mills Mall, which includes water rights to the Mill Pond, don't want to assume liability for skaters injured on the village ice rink, according to village council President Jackson Byers.

On Jan. 23, the council directed attorney Thomas Gruich to see if village insurance covers skater injuries.

In the interim, the village is not sanctioning the pond as its own, although the ice is groomed for skating, according to Clerk Norma Goyette.

Park gets funding

Clarkston village is spending $5,000 of its 1984-85 Community Development funds on Depot Road Park development and $2,500 on historical preservation.

With little discussion Jan. 23, the council unanimously approved the budget.

Park funds will pay for playground equipment and beautification. Preservation funds will be used to implement architect Betty Lee Francis' historical study done four years ago, calling for benches, street furniture, lighting and signs.

J&J Kennels file lawsuit; seek over $10,000

Owners of J&J Kennels, John and Jo Anne Nelson, filed a counter lawsuit in Oakland County Circuit Court Jan. 23 against Independence Township and David Endreszel.

The suit, before Judge Frank Meister, seeks over $10,000 in damages for defamation, malicious interference with economic advantage and property rights, and intentional infliction of mental and emotional distress on the part of Endreszel, the kennel's neighbor.

It's not known when it will come before the judge, according to the Nelsons' attorney William Vanderkloot.

Last November, after winning a three-year lawsuit to close down the kennel, Endreszel filed a $300,000 lawsuit against the Nelsons and the township for deprivation of rights, lack of due process and the township's failure to enforce its ordinance.

The courts agreed with Endreszel's charges that the kennel met non-conforming status when it closed for a year prior to the Nelsons' purchase in 1976—and should not have reopened.

The Nelsons argued buildings remained on site during that year.

The township zoning board of appeals has repeatedly refused to outlaw the licensed kennel.

Volleyball

Clarkston High School Varsity
Avondale 15, 15, Wolves 12, 7
Jan. 25—The Wolves play well despite the loss that is only the second against eight victories. Wendy Learmont controls the front of the net with her hitting and blocking shots, and Roseann Hirniesen comes off the bench to stabilize the back row.

Wolves 15, 15, Lake Orion 4, 6
Jan. 23—The Wolves quickly dispose of the Dragons for their third straight win in the league without a loss. Amy Stark, Beth Springer, and Learmont dominate the front in the win.

Clarkston High School Junior Varsity
Jan. 28—The Wolves travel to Lansing Waverly for a tournament and come home with a second-place finish out of 10 teams. They lose to Brighton in the finals, 14-16 and 9-15. During the round robin part of the meet, the Wolves defeat Pottersville 15-7, 15-2; Howell 15-11, 15-1; Haslett 15-11, 15-6; and host Waverly 16-14, 6-15, 15-9.

Skiing

Clarkston High School Girls' Skiing
Wolves 13, Rochester 23
Jan. 30—Rochester's 5-1 record and Clarkston's 5-0 for the season make it a critical meet, but the Wolves win handily. Stephanie Brown comes in first with a time of 40:56, next is Lisa Burkemo at 42:16, third is Heather Laurie with 42:67 and Jennifer Hodges finishes seventh with 46:69.

Clarkston High School Boys' Skiing
Wolves 12, Rochester 26
Jan. 30—A spectacular recovery by Craig McLeod, who almost falls near the finish line, cinches his first-place finish with a time of 37:86. Mike Roeser posts a second place with 38:38, Mark Southby is third with 38:97 and Steve Zoss is fourth with 39:40. The Wolves now boast a 6-0 season record.

Clarkston High School Girls' Skiing
Wolves 10, Lady of the Lakes 34
Jan. 24—Another cakewalk for the CHS skiers as the Wolves sweep the top six places of the race. Burkemo leads the charge in a time of 40:62. Brown is next in 42:11. Laurie is third, Lynne Howse is fourth, Amy Spaven is fifth and Lori Walker is sixth. The girls raise their record to 5-0 with the win.

Clarkston High School Boys' Skiing
Wolves 11, Lady of the Lakes 28
Jan. 24—The Wolves race to their fifth straight victory of the season. The team is lead by McLeod with a time of 37:77. Second is Southby in 38:67. Other top finishers for Clarkston are Rick Whittaker, third; Jim McElmeel, fifth; and Sandy Gaulin, sixth.

Basketball

Clarkston High School Varsity
Pontiac Northern 51, Wolves 50
Jan. 27—The narrow defeat knocks the Wolves from a first-place tie with Northern. The Wolves trail most of the second half after leading 28-27 at halftime. Dave Jokisch and Craig Kulaszewski provide the top scores with 12 points each. Chris Bruce tallies eight and Erik Kline adds seven.

Wolves 51, Lakeland 37
Jan. 24—Ten of the 13 players score in the rout of Lakeland. Kline leads with 14, followed by Steve Luchenbach with 10 and Bruce with eight.

Clarkston High School Junior Varsity
Pontiac Northern 63, Wolves 46
Jan. 27—A fine showing by Matt Riddle with 25 points goes down in the big loss to Northern. Riddle scores all but four points in the first half as the Wolves trail 36-16 at the intermission.

Wolves 49, Lakeland 46
Jan. 24—The Wolves hold on for the close victory with Mike Walters leading the charge with 13 points. Riddle tosses in 11 and Mike Peterson adds eight.

Clarkston Junior High Wolverines
Wolverines 65, Mason 37
Jan. 25—It's another rout for the Wolverines. They are averaging a victory margin of 27 points a game. Dan Jokisch takes honors as top scorer with 19 points. Craig Chamberlain is next with 12 and Mike Norman follows with 11. The Wolverines are 9-0 for the season.

Sashabaw Junior High Cougars
Cougars 58, Crary 54
Jan. 26—Dave Larkin and Keith

Mercier each hit for 16 points in the triumph that raises their record to 4-5. Jim Hall also contributes 12 points. Pierce 56, Cougars 34

Jan. 23—A lack of offense and not enough rebounds tell the story of the whopping loss for Sashabaw. Scott Harvey is the high scorer with nine points and Mercier follows with eight.

Wrestling

Clarkston Junior High Wolverines
Wolverines 60, Sashabaw 15
Jan. 26—Clarkston shows no mercy for rival Sashabaw as they win 10 of the 14 matches. Winning for the Wolverines are Jason Valenzuela, Chris Luzi, Dan Stuk, Randy Maloney, Rob Lund, Dean Moscovic, Scott Emery, Jeff Valenzuela, Matt Stark and Paul Cassin.

Wolverines 62, Rochester West 12
Jan. 24—The Wolverines have little trouble with West. Winning for Clarkston are Jason Valenzuela, Luzi, John Phyle, Stuk, Maloney, Lund, Rich Seederchuk, Jeff Valenzuela, Stark, Cassin, Garrett Bass and Rick Keetch.

Sashabaw Junior High Cougars
Clarkston 60, Cougars 15
Jan. 26—Sashabaw's experience controls the Cougars in the loss. Corey Camp, Mike Gilbert, Mike Noel and Jeff McDonald win matches for Sashabaw as the Cougars see their record fall to 3-3.

Trying to relax in the lockerroom before their game, Mike Prucher and Jason Simpson take a lot of jeering from teammates while their picture is being taken.

Prucher and Simpson keep an eye on the action during their final game of the season.

Hockey keeps pair on the move

By Dan Vandenhemel

Sitting in the living room watching television, Jason Simpson and Mike Prucher were a little nervous.

But the pair of 11-year-olds loosened up as they were asked about one of their favorite subjects—hockey.

They were dressed in identical outfits, red corduroy jackets, red and white sweat suits and flashy black and white checked tennis shoes.

The outfits (sans the shoes) are courtesy of Hockey Wholesale, the sponsor of their hockey team along with Marathon Oil.

Jason of Milane Circle, Independence Township, and Mike of Main Street, Clarkston, are teammates on the Birmingham Flames, a traveling hockey team that just completed its season with a 23-3-2 record.

In the final game before the playoffs the Flames crushed the Lansing Capitals, 8-3, and both boys scored goals.

"Sometimes when you shoot the puck, you know it's going in," said Mike, a fifth-grader at Cranbrook Elementary School in Birmingham. "It feels great and you just want to score another and another."

Both have been playing organized hockey for the past six years, but this is the first time they have been on the same team or in the same league.

"We didn't know each other before this year," said Jason, a Pine Knob Elementary sixth-grader. "I love playing hockey. It's a lot of fun and good exercise, too."

Mike got the hockey bug when his older brother played in a league.

"Watching him play, I always wanted to join a team," Mike said. "Now that Jason and I are on the same team, it helps driving back and forth to the games."

Their schedule included trips to Lansing, Port Huron, Flint, Livonia, Plymouth and Waterford.

With practices in Birmingham on Thursdays and Saturdays and three games a week, the twosome found little time for much else.

"Oh we skate around here sometimes," Jason said. "I'll skate on the weekends and sometimes during the week."

"I can't skate during the week," said Mike. "I usually have a lot of homework. But I'll skate on the weekends if there is time."

Homework and grades aren't a problem for them, but they are a concern. Both maintain B averages.

When asked what position they play, Jason quickly answered left-winger. Mike, on the other hand, said, "I'm the water-boy."

Mike is a forward and is even with Jason's 18 assists and 15 goals during the year.

"School is more important to me than hockey is," Mike said. "I don't want to be a pro (player). It's too tough a life. I want to be a doctor."

"I'd love to be a pro hockey player or a pro football player," Jason said. "But if they don't work out, I'll be a doctor too."

Close doesn't count in defeat for Wolves

By Dan Vandenhemel

The game was close, but that's no consolation for the losing team.

The Clarkston Wolves varsity basketball team lost a heartbreaker, 51-50, to Pontiac Northern Jan. 27.

The loss dropped Clarkston out of a tie with Northern for the lead of the Greater Oakland Activities League. Both teams entered with 3-0 records.

Coach Dan Fife said his team isn't out of the league race just because of this game, but it's going to be tough.

"We have Northern at home later in the season," he said. "We'll have to beat them and hope someone else knocks them off."

The Wolves never trailed until early in the second half when the Huskies' defense gave Clarkston fits.

Northern was able to build an eight-point lead at the start of the fourth quarter before the Wolves chipped away to tie it at 46 with four minutes left.

Then the mistakes came. Badly timed turnovers kept the Wolves from regaining control of the game.

Clarkston still had a chance to win the game with six seconds left as Erik Kline tossed up a 30-foot jumper that went off the rim right back to him. He put up another long shot, but that, too, was off the mark.

"We made some crucial mistakes," Fife said. "You can't do that if you're going to win. We almost came back to win it with the mistakes, and that's hard to do."

The Wolves stayed in the game by making 18 of 20 free throws. Northern hit only three of 11.

Clarkston controlled the first half of the game by hitting almost every shot they took. The Wolves grabbed a 18-8 lead with two minutes left in the opening quarter, but Northern hustled back and trailed by two at the buzzer.

The second period was more of the same as Clarkston led, 28-27, at the half.

Dave Jokisch and Craig Kulaszewski led the Wolves with 12 points. Chris Bruce added eight and Erik Kline followed with seven.

The Northern pep band played the entire game and that made communication difficult between the players.

"We knew it was going to be loud in there," Fife said. "But that's what basketball is all about—loud, excitement and pressure."

Standing behind his two motorcycles that are for sale is Bryan Pankey. He's looking forward to racing motorcycles professionally on dirt—and ice—tracks.

To start one of the bikes, Bryan and his father, Jerry, have to push it down the road. Bryan became interested in racing by following his father's races.

Pro ranks ahead for racer

By Dan Vandenhemel

Bryan Pankey has his two motorcycles up for sale, two Yamaha 125cc racing bikes.

That doesn't mean the 15-year-old sophomore at Clarkston High School is giving up his days of racing. All it means is he is moving up in classification.

Pankey has been racing motorcycles on oval dirt and ice tracks since he was 8 years old. Over 100 trophies later, it's time to move up.

"I want to become a professional," he said in the front room of his Pine Knob Trail, Independence Township, home. "To enter the Pro-Am level, you have to race either 250s or 500s. We have to sell the two bikes so we can afford a new one."

"We" is a big word around the Pankey home when it comes to racing. Bryan's father, Jerry, used to race and his mother, Linda, has been a chairperson for the Michigan Dirt Track the last three years.

"I got interested in racing watching my dad," Pankey said. "I mainly go out there to have fun and to race other people."

In the Pro-Am level, the racers vie for prize money.

Some racers make $50,000 a year with sponsorships included, according to Pankey.

"I'm sponsored right now by the Klotz Company in Indiana," he said. "They help with some of the equipment, like oil and lubrication."

Motorcycle racing is not an inexpensive sport. The 500cc cycle Pankey is looking at costs $3,500 and it's a used bike. With pads, outfits and customizing, the costs increase.

He's in 35 races over a full year, each with an entry fee around $10.

Of all the races and all the trophies, the one that stands out is the 1981 National Dirt Bike Championship for which Pankey topped the best racers in his class on an oval track in Chicago.

On Feb. 4-5, the Pankeys head to New York for the National Studded Ice Race Championship.

"I like racing on ice because you slide around the corners better. You just slide more," Pankey said. "I only raced about five times on ice, just to keep me in shape for the summer races."

Rivalry match is lopsided

By Dan Vandenhemel

So much for a close rivalry.

The Clarkston Wolverines made sure the Sashabaw Cougars went home not feeling very good when they pounced on the Cougars, 60-15, in wrestling at home Jan. 26.

Clarkston almost knew the outcome before the match even started, said coach Dave Stobbe.

"My team looked so bad," Stobbe said of the Wolverines' tough attitude before the match. "I was almost embarrassed with the way they went out on the mat. They had no doubt they were going to win."

The big match came at the 128-pound class when Scott Emery of Clarkston and Mike Grable of Sashabaw hooked up.

Grable was leading, 8-4, early in the final period when he made a mistake and Emery was able to pin him.

"He (Grable) rolled around and Emery took advantage of it," Stobbe said. "Grable dominated the whole match."

"The crowd went wide when Emery pinned him. Everybody jumped up. It was an unbelievable response. That kind of put the match away."

Cougar coach Jim Banes thought his team didn't do as badly as the score indicates.

"They all did a good job," he said. "We lack a little in experience. Most of our wrestlers are seventh- and eighth-graders. This is a rebuilding year for us. We are in the spot they were last year."

A quick lead helped the Wolverines gain control of the match and the momentum.

"We killed their enthusiasms by winning the first couple of matches," Stobbe said.

The Wolverines started out strong with Jason Valenzuela at 78 pounds and Chris Luzi at 86 pounds winning the first two matches.

Corey Camp at 93 pounds kept the Cougars close with his first win as a wrestler.

"They had no doubt they were going to win."

"He did quite well out there," said Banes. "He's only a seventh-grader."

After that the Wolverines took the next five matches. Winning were Dan Stuk at 100 pounds, Randy Maloney at 107, Rob Lund at 114, Dean Moscovic at 121 and Emery at 128.

The Cougars' Mike Gilbert then won a very close match with Rich Sedorchuk at 134 pounds.

"Rich was a little disappointed in losing (5-4)," Stobbe said. "He was in the match the whole time. It was a great match."

Jeff Valenzuela, at 140 pounds, recorded the fast pin of the meet for Clarkston with a 36-second victory. Matt Stark added a pin for the Wolverines at 147 pounds before Sashabaw could get on the board again.

Mike Noel at 157 won for the Cougars but by that time, the score was out of hand. Pat Cassin pinned his opponent at 169 pounds for Clarkston and heavyweight Jeff McDonald ended the meet with a pin for Sashabaw.

"Everybody was really looking for pins," Stobbe said. "Earlier we weren't doing that. We've been working on that and we got a lot of pins."

The rivalry between the two schools is just as strong but not as fierce, Banes said.

"In the past, it was a very intense rivalry, almost bitter," he said. "We've tried to calm that down some because the following year they could be teammates in the high school."

Shouting encouragement to his wrestlers didn't seem to help for Sashabaw coach Jim Banes. His Cougars lost to the Clarkston Wolverines in the teams' first meeting this year.

Spikers split pair but coach stays happy

By Dan Vandenhemel

It was a good and bad week for the Clarkston High School varsity volleyball team in the won-loss column, but as far as coach Nancy Foster is concerned it was the best week of the season.

The Wolves started last week with an impressive 15-4, 15-6 victory over Lake Orion on Jan. 22. Then on Jan. 25 Clarkston lost, 12-15 and 7-15, to Avondale.

The Wolves dropped their record to 8-2 overall, but are 3-0 in the Greater Oakland Activities League.

A solid spike by Wendy Learmont, and the scoreboard tells the story in the Wolves' volleyball match against Lake Orion.

"I was pleased, if you can be pleased with a loss."

And Foster believes the Wolves are starting to come around:

"We've played well our last two matches," she said following the Avondale loss. "When we looked at the video tape following the match, I thought we didn't play that bad—a couple of mistakes but I was pleased; if you can be pleased with a loss."

Avondale was 9-0 coming into the match and Foster felt the Wolves were uptight.

"They were pretty nervous before the match," she said. "Avondale is rated in the top 10 by the Detroit News. I thought we were a very equal team. It was a good match."

The home court advantage has a special meaning in Avondale. Above the volleyball net in the center of the gym is a hanging net that divides the gym in half when it's down. Clarkston had a number of balls hit the net and throw them off stride.

"Their coach told me that they practice hitting balls into that net to get used to it," Foster said. "We had so many hit it. A couple of times we were coming back and had the momentum. Then we'd hit that stupid thing."

Wendy Learmont played a good game in front of the net by blocking and hitting the ball and Roseann Hirneisen came off the bench to play a strong back row.

Against Lake Orion, the Wolves had little trouble taking the match.

"That is the best we've played as a team all year," Foster said. "We did something right all the time. Amy Stark and Wendy (Learmont) played real well on the front line. Wendy kept blocking it right back into their faces. Beth Springer also played well."

Revs. Schram are installed

It's official after 3 years

Since the couple was reassigned to Independence Township in 1980, the Detroit Presbytery annually sanctioned the Revs. Bill and Jenny Schram as co-pastors of Sashabaw United Presbyterian Church on Maybee Road.

Last Sunday, they were officially installed before the congregation.

"In effect, the three years were designed to see if we and the church could put our act together," Bill Schram said. "And we did that."

"I described it as couple living together with permission for three years, finally being married. This gives us more permanent linkage."

Before the Schrams arrived, the church was without a full-time pastor for one year. Visiting ministers "filled the pulpit" on Sundays.

Since the Schrams took the helm, the congregation's numbers increased from 50 to an average of 95; Sunday school attendance swelled from 25 to 65; and they've increased community outreach programs like the food collection, clothing distribution, summer swimming programs and contributions to missions.

And pledges have increased, Schram said.

"When we first came here pledges made up half the budget, and we made up the rest by robbing Peter to pay Paul and by hook-or-by-crook," he laughed. "Pledges now make up 80 percent of the budget and the budget has increased in size."

"The leadership of the church is responsible for that. The spirit of the church is really good and they feel, as we feel, we're in a real partnership. We feel good about that."

Jenny Schram agrees.

"There's a real pride among the people of the church in terms of what we've been able to accomplish for our size," she said.

The Schrams live on Waldon Road, Independence Township.

And, although the presbytery officially gave its stamp of approval by the installation, "we, too, chose Clarkston," he said. "We wanted to live here and be a part of the community."

The Revs. Jenny and Bill Schram were officially installed as co-pastors of Sashabaw United Presbyterian Church where they've served the past three years. Their daughter, Jessica, 1, attended the celebration on Sunday with the congregation.

Lew Wint holds parks chair for seventh year

By Kathy Greenfield

Lew Wint now holds the distinction of being chairman of the 10-member Oakland County Parks and Recreation Commission longer than anyone else.

He was recently elected to the post by his fellow commission members for the seventh consecutive year.

Wint, the owner of the Lewis E. Wint Funeral Home in Independence Township, has served on the commission 10 years.

The Clarkston resident calls the effort "a labor of love."

"It's just the nicest diversion for me because of what my vocation is—funeral service," he said. "Parks and recreation is really an uplift for me because you're dealing with people in an entirely different situation—happy times and where to go for parks and recreation, and I truly enjoy the professional people I work with."

"The system is very well-known," he added. "It's known throughout the country as a very fine parks system."

The 3,700-acre system is comprised of nine parks in Oakland County, including Independence and Springfield Oaks.

The commission controls the budget that includes $6.7 million in operating funds, and creates the policy for maintaining and developing the parks.

Wint's duties include chairing the twice-monthly meetings, representing the commission at events and attending meetings of the county board of commissioners and the state Department of Natural Resources when necessary.

As manager of the parks system, Eric Reickel works under the direction of the commission.

Wint's election as chairperson for the seventh straight year is a first in the commission's 19-year history, Reickel said, noting that founding chairperson Fran Clark served six years, as did her predecessor, Frank Richardson.

Reickel calls Wint progressive and innovative.

"He's given an awful lot of time, much more than the average taxpayer would," he said. "I've been really delighted as an administrator to have an opportunity to work with somebody like Lew... He's a very positive type of person, very easy to work for."

Other members of the parks commission are Vice

"It's just the nicest diversion for me..."

Chairman Carol Stanley of Waterford Township, Secretary Jean Fox of Farmington Hills, Walter Moore of Pontiac, Oakland County Road Commission Chairman Richard Vogt, Harold Cousins of Bloomfield Hills, Oakland County Drain Commissioner George Kuhn of West Bloomfield, Pecky Lewis of Bloomfield Hills, County Executive Daniel Murphy of Sylvan Lake and Oakland County Board of Commissioners Chairman Richard Wilcox of Ortonville.

Electricity: Instant Energy

Electricity, we can all agree, is instant energy.

There was once a baseball player who, the story goes, could flick the switch on the wall in his hotel room and be in bed before the light went out. That's quick. The Tigers could use him.

But, save for that one fellow, there are few among us who can outrace electricity.

We might also agree that electricity is our lifeline to comfort and convenience. Don't believe it? Think about living without it—without a refrigerator, a TV, lights, a vacuum cleaner..... Enough?

What we may not agree on is that electricity is a bargain.

Consumers Power Company's electric rates for residential customers are among the lowest in the Midwest and are 15 to 26 percent less than the national average, according to a national study released last summer. For a typical family, using 500 kilowatt-hours of electricity per month without water heating service, 87.7 percent of the nation's other 225 investor-owned utilities have higher rates.

That's not all the evidence. Look at effective buying income. In 1963, it took 1.44 percent of your income to buy a year's supply of electricity. In 1982, it took 1.46 percent. In fact, the average middle-income Michigan family spends more each year on their insurance, their telephone bills, their vacations and even eating out than they spend on electricity.

According to computations developed from surveys conducted by the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics, the average family spends $880 a year for insurance, $523 on telephone bills, $818 on vacations and a whopping $1,428 eating out.

But, in Michigan the average middle-income family using 500 kilowatt-hours of electricity per month will, over a year, only pay Consumers Power approximately $350. For their money, they get clean, instant comfort and convenience.

Is electricity a bargain? Think twice before you say "No"—even if you're not quick enough to flick the switch and be in bed before the light goes out.

Paid for by the shareholders of Consumers Power Company.

3 named Calvary's 'Leader of Year'

Calvary Lutheran Church has selected its "Leader of the Year" for 1983.

For the first time in the history of the award, three recipients were selected—Mel and Jo Vaara of Church Street and Carolyn Mansfield of Tuscarora Road, all of Independence Township.

The church is located on Bluegrass Drive in Independence Township.

The Vaaras have been members of Calvary 22 years.

Jo Vaara has directed the Junior Choir, and taught Sunday church school and vacation church school. She was one of the first adult Sunday church school leaders.

She was instrumental in starting the first summer prayer group and is very involved in LCW activities. She is also a member of Calvary's Chancel Choir.

Mel Vaara has been Building Committee chairman in charge of fund raising; taught Sunday Church

School 14 years; was a church council member six years, serving four years as vice president; and was a choir member eight years.

He recently retired as Calvary's head usher, a position he held for so many years no one is really sure of the grand total.

Carolyn Mansfield has been a member of Calvary 15 years.

She's very involved in parish education, teaching Sunday school four years, serving as Christian education chairperson three years and now serving as teacher adviser.

She has also been on the Forward Planning Committee, and is now serving as a member of the Facility Development Committee and the LCW Board.

"Calvary is very fortunate to have this tremendous trio in its midst," said Kathy Adair, church secretary. "We're thankful for their faithfulness, dedication and willingness to serve."

New arrival

Lawrence and Pat Johnson have cause for celebration—their 14th wedding anniversary and the birth of their first child.

Nathaniel Sean was born Jan. 20. He weighed 9 pounds, 6 ounces and measured 22 inches long.

The Johnsons, who live on Greene Haven Road in Independence Township, were married on Valentine's Day in 1970.

Nathaniel's grandparents are Victoria Johnson of Pontiac and Mr. and Mrs. Jaxson Pritchard of Port Huron.

Great-grandmother is Kathryn Johnson of Pontiac.

Grads

Mark Frenchl recently received a master's degree from Ohio State University, Columbus, Ohio.

He resides on South Main Street, Independence Township.

Michael Latimer has graduated from Western Michigan University, Kalamazoo, with a bachelor's degree in business administration.

He resides on Reese Road, Independence Township.

Hammond-McGuffin

Colleen J. Hammond of Independence Township and Scott D. McGuffin of Chicago, Ill., plan a March wedding. The bride-elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Blachura of Parvay Road, Independence Township, and David Hammond of Waterford. A 1978 Clarkston High School graduate, she received a bachelor's degree from Northwood Business Institute in 1982. She is employed as a travel consultant by the AAA Club of Michigan. Her fiancé is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert McGuffin of Birmingham. Also a 1982 graduate with a bachelor's degree from Northwood Business Institute, he is in management for Perry Drugs Inc.

Honors

Terri Lynn Peck is on the dean's list for the fall semester at Maranatha Baptist Bible College, Watertown, Wisc.

A 1980 Clarkston High School graduate, she is majoring in Christian elementary education.

Her parents are Jack and Mary Peck of Oak Park Drive, Independence Township.

Ruth Lipmyer has been named to the dean's list for the past term at Madonna College, Livonia.

A sophomore majoring in gerontology, she resides on Lakeview Boulevard, Independence Township.

Mary Carol Ridgeway, one of the 1983 graduates from Clarkston Community Adult Education, has made the dean's list at Detroit College of Business.

Out of 15 DCB scholarship winners from 12 extension centers, she was the only student who made the dean's list.

Shannon Shilling, a Clarkston area resident, has been named to the honor's list at Suomi College, Hancock.

At college

Stanley Garwood is a candidate for a master's degree in social work from the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor.

He resides on Evec Road, Independence Township.

Keranen-Carr

Joyce Luebke of Oxford and Ted Keranen Sr. of Pontiac announce the engagement of their daughter, Kathleen Marie Keranen, to Paul Alan Carr, son of the Honorable and Mrs. Robert W. Carr of Waterford Township. The bride-to-be and her fiancé are seniors at Michigan State University, East Lansing.

She's a freshman majoring in business administration.

Among the 312 students recently named to the dean's list for the fall semester at Albion College are two local residents.

John Schultz of Clarkston is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Schultz, and Valerie Voorheis of Davisburg is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Voorheis.

In service

Newly promoted Spec. 4 William Doerr has been decorated with the Army Achievement Medal in Baumholder, West Germany.

The achievement medal is awarded to soldiers for accomplishment, meritorious service or acts of courage.

Doerr is a tank systems mechanic with the 8th Infantry Division.

A 1976 graduate of Andover High School, Orchard Lake, he is the son of William Doerr of Rattalee Lake Road, Independence Township, and Jean Doerr of Missoula, Mont.

Vaara-Lewis

Mr. and Mrs. Mel Vaara of Independence Township announce the engagement of their daughter, Liisa, to Jeff Lewis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bud Lewis of Holly. The bride-to-be is a 1979 Clarkston High School graduate and a 1983 Michigan State University, East Lansing, graduate. She is employed as a social worker for Dana Elderly Home Care Agency in Chicago, Ill. Her fiancé, a 1978 Holly High School graduate and 1982 MSU graduate, is employed as an engineer for Sargent & Lindy, a nuclear power plant design firm in Chicago. An August wedding is planned.

What can I do with my spare time?

Try skating!

by Jim Carlson

If asked to watch a ballet on TV or go to a ballet, most people would say, "No, thank you."

But ask that same person to watch figure skating or go to the Ice Capades and get out of the way so you don't get knocked down.

The interesting and common thread is both involve intricate dance steps that utilize conventional movements.

But wait a minute! The title says "Ice skating." Most of us living in the midwest have gone to ice arenas and skated or watched people skate.

The amazing part of ice skating is watching the children zoom around. Maybe that's why you haven't thought about skating. It's so-o-o humiliating.

Perhaps the humiliation has gotten to you when the midget (that came up to about your waist) said, "Hey, mister, your ankles sure shake a lot."

"Yea, yea! Get out of the way so I don't fall on you."

But wait, I think that's part of it—being with other people and having fun with whatever happens. So, the first step in learning to ice skate is to make up your mind to have fun.

Like any physical activity, skating requires some exercise before hitting the ice arena. Do everything related to ankle strengthening exercises. I mean everything.

How about equipment? First-timers should rent skates. The rental necessitates going to an arena.

But all those children! Well, for the first two or three times, try off-hours, or adults-only sessions. Clothes? Blue jeans, gloves and seat-padding, because falling is part of skating.

Skates? If renting figure skates be sure the last point, the point closest to the ice, is smoothed off. If not the point will catch constantly, making hitting the ice a reality. Lace skates tightly, as support will be generated by tight laces. Don't walk on concrete or other hard surfaces.

And then you're at the gate leading out to the ice surface. Wayne Gretzky and Peggy Fleming, eat your hearts out.

Back to reality: Step on the ice while holding onto the boards, because balance is the first step. Man, those blades want to go every way, and talk about looking funny! You will!

Begin step two: Remove your "crutch" (take hands from boards) and balance. Just stand there. The slightest movement results in a leg-windmill activity second only to Saturday morning cartoons.

Step three: Balance on one blade/leg, then the other. We're progressing. Oh, oh, you fell! I will guarantee there's no easy way to stand back up. If the boards aren't within reach, crawl back over to them. Get composed, and let's move forward.

Don't use the basic walk-step to skate, however. Instead, push with one foot while gliding on the other.

Do you remember all those exercises to strengthen your ankles? This is the first test. The foot you glide on determines the direction, so keep both alternating blades in the same general direction. Don't be afraid to use the boards again.

Does the balance feel better? Try standing up without using the boards. The rule of thumb is to balance with your feet on the ice and stand up. No problem.

But wait. There is a problem. Everyone is turning. There's a corner and you have to turn too.

It's just as simple as push and glide with specific direction. The blades have to be pointed in the new direction. A couple more corners and one straight and lap one is history.

Did you ever think you'd make it? Not bad. Ready to try lap two? Experiment, make longer strides. Go a little faster. Don't venture too far from the boards, but experiment. Lap four? Five?

It's time to stop. If fun was previsualized, then you had fun.

The next step is to go home and take a hot bath and soak. Muscles that you didn't know existed will be sore. And then wait until Ice Skating II occurs.

There is an easier way—call an arena beforehand to see if a lesson can be arranged from a private instructor.

Of course, this is more expensive. If objectives have been established to ice skate with some skill and grace, however, this may be the best path. I would still suggest skate rental the first few times.

There is another alternative because of the large number of lakes in the geographical area.

Some drawbacks are snow must be shoveled from the ice, there are cracks in the ice and bumpy surfaces at times, and it's cold.

A major problem is open water—look for extremely blue (gray if overcast) ice that moves—that's called water and it's dangerous.

What you need in that case is a tester. Choose one, say your brother? Or a person you don't like? Actually, just stay away.

Some drawbacks from lake skating are no boards to use as crutches and dull skate blades.

You still have people to laugh at you, however. In summary, there are some steps that can be followed:

- Establish that you will go skating five times or more.

- Begin ankle strengthening exercises.

- Choose adult-only sessions and rent equipment.

- Learn balance on both feet and independently.

- Push and glide. Your path will not be straight,

- but a series of directions that look like a herringbone.

- Spend time soaking those sore muscles when finished.

- If you wish, take instruction. It will be easier.

- Just a note in closing: If you are starting a young child skating, purchase hockey headgear for protection.

- Expand your sports activities to include ice skating. You might meet an interesting person. And the world looks different from the seated position.

- But most importantly, spare time was spent having a good time. And that's what it's all about.

- Editor's note: Each month Jim Carlson will share some ideas for people who panic over free time with nothing to do. Leaving after 16 years

Hilda Lowrie will be missed, says her boss

By Kathy Greenfield

For 16 years, secretary Hilda Lowrie took care of business in the school building on Maybee Road that became the Clarkston Community Learning Center in 1982.

Last week on Thursday, with only one day to go before retirement, she was still working at full speed, answering questions and promising record searches that would take anyone with less know-how days to handle.

For most of the years Lowrie worked in the building it was South Sashabaw Elementary School, closed in June 1982 because of declining enrollment.

Reopened as the learning center in September 1982, it houses programs for the community education department, and the adult and teen-age students are in high school programs.

Lowrie said she enjoyed her work, regardless of the ages of students.

"Especially with elementary, you're more than a secretary," she said. "You're really grandma and mother and principal and teacher—all of those things have certainly been rewarding to me."

"I can't say I liked one position more than the other—with this you're meeting adults. They're all really special in their own way."

Lowrie, who turned 65 in October, is retiring because she wants to.

"I'm leaving with a really good feeling about all my past work, and anything that I've done," she said.

Her plans include six weeks, right away, in Florida, but she'll maintain her residence in Independence Township—home since 1932.

What she's looking forward to most is "having time to do things I would have liked to have done and not had the time to do," she said. "And probably coming back to take leisure-time classes with community education."

She began working for the school district shortly after her husband died. They owned Lowrie's Dairy, located just north of the Village of Clarkston where the Hosler used car lot now sits.

They sold dairy products, starting out by bottling their own milk and later purchasing already-processed products.

"It was lots of hard work. Wow, was it ever," she said.

She has one daughter, a school teacher in the Waterford school district, and her two grandsons attend Clarkston High School.

Parties in her honor were held last week—the biggest surprise was when the three principals she worked for over the years showed up, along with the teachers, Superintendent Milford Mason and her present boss, community education Director Kathleen O'Donnell.

In all, there were 104 people at the party held at the Knights of Columbus Hall on Maybee Road.

"I knew they were going to plan this party but, of course, I didn't know who was going to be there, or how many," she said. "I just couldn't believe it."

For O'Donnell, the loss is a major one.

"She's one of the most special women I've ever known," she said. "Everyone on the community education team has a nickname that has something to do with their personality and Hilda is 'The Happy Handler' because she's a pro."

"There is no situation Hilda is involved with that isn't better than when she started."

Just one day before her retirement after 16 years as a Clarkston school district secretary, Hilda Lowrie pauses to pose for a photograph at the learning center.

For snowmobile fans

Snowmobile enthusiasts who want to buy, sell or trade equipment can attend the Snowmobile Swap and Sale Feb. 11-12 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Addison Oaks County Park.

Participants will sell or swap snowmobiles, suits, trailers, helmets and other equipment. Most trading will take place outdoors in the parking lot, but indoor booth space is available for dealers.

This is the last of three snowmobile swaps held at the park this winter.

Cost for the swap and sale is the park entry fee of $2.50 per vehicle for Oakland County residents and $4 for non-residents.

Addison Oaks, a 700-acre park, offers 13 miles of groomed snowmobile trails, ice fishing, ice skating and sledding.

The park is on West Romeo Road, nine miles north of Rochester, in Addison Township.

CAYA on prowl for new honoree

The Clarkston Area Youth Assistance Committee is looking for some good kids to honor April 12 at its Youth Recognition Banquet.

Nominations are now being accepted on forms available at The Clarkston News office or by calling 625-9007. The forms must be returned by March 12.

The purpose of the banquet is to recognize youth who have volunteered to help an individual or an organization without compensation for their time.

Suggested good deeds include personal acts of heroism, hospital or nursing home service, ecology or beautification activities, school service projects, church youth projects, Special Olympics, work with charitable organizations, preparing meals for a sick neighbor or doing odd jobs for a neighbor in need.

Nominees must reside within the Clarkston school district.

For more information, call the Youth Assistance office at 625-9007.

An Apple for the Teacher

Our teacher this week is Anne Rasmussen who teaches fourth grade at North Sashabaw.

Anne was born and raised in Marlette, Mich., a small town in the central thumb area.

She worked as a secretary before deciding to attend college and become a teacher. College vacations were spent working as a secretary at the National Music Camp at Interlochen.

After graduating from Michigan State University, East Lansing, with a bachelor's degree she began her teaching career in Lansing.

She has also taught in Grand Blanc and Clarkston with a total of 22 years in the teaching profession.

Anne maintains a positive and enthusiastic approach toward teaching. Watching the students develop and learn and having fun while doing it is one of her greatest rewards.

She has worked on the Elementary Curriculum Committee for two years, acting as secretary the second year.

She is also a member of the Clarkston United Methodist Church where she serves on the music and the adult ministries committees, and teaches a fifth-grade church school class.

She and her husband, John, a GM production engineer, have two sons. Tom is attending Ferris State College in Big Rapids, and Paul is pursuing his master's degree in business while working as a teaching assistant at Wayne State University, Detroit.

Anne enjoys taking aerobics classes, which she feels give her added energy. She also enjoys gardening and boating during the summer months.

The Rasmussen family has traveled to many

Anne Rasmussen:
Her career spans 22 years

states, but Florida and Hawaii are Anne's favorite vacation spots.

Even though she's spent 13 years in the fourth grade, Anne says each year is like starting all over again with new faces and personalities, interests and challenges.

Editor's note: An Apple for the Teacher is provided through the efforts of a Clarkston Education Association committee. Its purpose: "to acquaint or reacquaint the community with members of the Clarkston school district's teaching staff who represent a highly trained and diversely talented resource in which we can all take pride." This week's column was written by Jeanelle Selhost, a sixth-grade teacher at North Sashabaw Elementary School.

Wind whips the plumes on drummers' heads during Friday's below-freezing temperatures. Members of the band shoved hands inside their sleeves to keep warm—but to little avail. When breaks were called the band loudly yelled its thanks and ran inside to thaw.

Chrysler ad stars CHS band

(But you'll have to be in Boston to see it)

From 9:30 a.m. to long after 5 p.m. last Friday, Clarkston High School's band stood in below-freezing temperatures on Holly Village's historic brick street, Battle Alley—marching in a commercial that will be shown in the Boston area.

Castorri & Co. of Southfield shot a commercial for the Chrysler Corp., and invited the band to mime music for the 30-second spot.

The band received $500—and will receive a video tape of the commercial for posterity, according to producer Mary Beth Langenhorst.

Students from Holly's On Stage Dancers, a private dance school, braved the cold, too, dressed only in hose and dance leotards.

Red, white and blue banners and crepe paper decorated the short block, famous for its historic drunken street brawls and a march by umbrella-toting prohibitionist Carrie Nation.

Director Carl Spesser shouted orders through an orange megaphone.

And just like Hollywood, cameramen rose into the air and dropped down on seats bolted on dollies that rolled on tracks.

The kids were treated to a hot lunch, and during breaks vainly tried to keep their hands warm.

Producer Langenhorst, said Clarkston was selected because its administration was cooperative.

"We called a couple of high schools, but Clarkston was the most receptive. The kids really wanted to do it, the administrators too, and the kids had the day off for exams, so it worked out well," she said.

Bundled in olive green drab, crew members brave the cold and operate cameras. Just like in Hollywood, the platform rises and falls, moving along dollies that roll on tracks.

Watch your sodium intake

SURGEON GENERAL

C. Everett Koop, M.D.

U.S. Department of Health and Human Services-Public Health Service

More and more people are using their salt shakers less and less these days and that's a healthy development.

Salt or, more correctly, the 40 percent of salt that is sodium is a needed nutrient. It helps maintain blood volume and pressure by attracting and holding water in the blood vessels and it aids in other body functions.

But too much sodium can be harmful to the health of some people. And, today, most Americans get more sodium than they need in their diet, often several times the amount that medical scientists consider safe and adequate.

Overconsumption of sodium can be dangerous because it is linked to high blood pressure, which is associated with heart attack, stroke and kidney disease.

Some people may be predisposed to high blood pressure—that is, they're more likely to get it because of hereditary factors.

But it is not possible to predict who will or will not develop high blood pressure. That's why it's so important that each of us watch our sodium intake carefully and cut down if we're consuming more sodium than we should.

The National Academy of Sciences says that between 1,100 and 3,300 milligrams (mg) of sodium a day is a "safe and adequate" intake for most people.

To help you understand these levels, a teaspoon of table salt contains nearly 2,000 mg of sodium.

But your table salt shaker isn't your only source of sodium; it's one of four sources, as a matter of fact.

The others are salt or sodium that is added during the preparation of food, sodium that is added in food processing, mainly for flavoring or as a preservative, and sodium that occurs naturally in food and water.

As you can see, cutting down on sodium requires a little thought. But it's worth the effort and not all difficult, once you get the hang of being a sodium watcher.

For instance, spices other than salt, a number of herbs and such flavorings as lemon or lime juice can be substituted for salt in cooking, with tasty effect.

When you dine out, you may be able to order a low-sodium or no-salt-added meal. More and more restaurants have begun to cater to the sodium-conscious customer.

Food labels can help you watch your sodium intake. A growing number of foods in the stores today show sodium content per serving right on the labels.

Check the labels carefully to see if sodium content is listed in milligrams per serving.

If it's not, look at the listing of ingredients. Ingredients are listed in order of their predominance in that product, so if salt is listed third, you will know there are only two other ingredients in this particular item in amounts greater than salt.

Consumers also have to check the ingredient list for ingredients other than salt that contain sodium. You might want to look, for example, for monosodium glutamate, baking soda (sodium bicarbonate), garlic salt, brine and sodium citrate.

Still another way to reduce sodium intake is to use low- or reduced-sodium products.

In the past couple of years, a wide variety of such products has been introduced into the marketplace in response to public demand.

Included among those products are snack foods, soups, breads, condiments, canned vegetables, cereals, pastas and dairy products.

Public demand for less sodium is even reflected in drug products. A number of nonprescription over-the-counter drugs, among them the usually high-sodium antacids, are now offered with no sodium or with reduced sodium content.

Some sodium in the diet is necessary. Too much sodium can be harmful.

Americans have become sodium watchers, and so, for your own good health, should you.

POH's Emergency Center

● Informal survey brings praise for hospital's outstanding trauma care

By Marilyn Trumper

Throughout Pontiac's metropolitan area, deputies, ambulance paramedics and firefighters skilled in advanced life support agree: Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital is head and shoulders above the city's other two major hospitals for handling emergency room trauma.

In an informal telephone survey, The Clarkston News talked with seven men including city and township firefighters, private ambulance paramedics and deputies.

"It's nice to hear that," said Michael Doyle, D.O., director of Emergency Services for the Perry Street hospital. "You conduct your own survey, people tell you that here and there, but it's nice to know an independent survey came up with that."

Last year 24,000 people came through the hospital's emergency room. Approximately 10 percent qualified as trauma patients, what Doyle calls "...acute injuries like car accident victims, gunshot, a fall, all that represent trauma to me as opposed to medical injuries like heart attacks and diabetic comas."

POH has the state's highest classification, "Emergency Center," awarded only to three Oakland County hospitals: St. Joseph Mercy in Pontiac, William Beaumont in Royal Oak and Providence Hospital in Southfield, just south of the county line.

"(The classification is) really more about the staff than the equipment or facility," Doyle said.

Hospitals qualify with the following:

- They must have a physician in at least his or her second year of post-graduate training in medicine and surgery on duty 24 hours a day.
- They must be staffed by board certified or eligible emergency physicians and be proficiency certified by a board in emergency medicine.
- All specialties, like orthopedic surgeons, plastic surgeons or neurosurgeons must be available to the hospital within 15 minutes.
- They must have full-time emergency physicians on staff at all times, not outsiders.

In addition, POH has the only active emergency residency program in Oakland County, according to Doyle.

"I think we have more of a commitment here to the hospital—we work for the good of the hospital. Doctors here have no concerns for private-practice. They have no outside conflicts," Doyle said.

Since 1970, POH's emergency room has been staffed only with emergency physicians.

"It's not like at other hospitals where a gynecologist is on duty and you might be his first cardiac arrest in 20 years. He hasn't seen that since med school," said one paramedic who asked to remain anonymous, unwilling to go on record because of the politics involved.

"They just seem to be more on their toes at POH. People feel they're treated better there, or handled better there. The doctors are there to meet you at the door.

"And that's what those doctors see all day long, week after week. They're prepared for it. They're used to it. It's routine. That makes the difference."

"Emergency Center" is the highest stamp of approval given to hospitals by the state. Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital's one of four in the county with the honor, specifically because of its trauma room, according to Michael Doyle, D.O., director of emergency services.

POH's four-bed trauma room serves critically injured victims of gunshot wounds, burns and vehicle accidents where the difference between life and death can hang in seconds.

By law, head injuries are transported to St. Joseph Mercy Hospital because it had the city's only CAT Scan, a machine used to measure brain activity. But last month POH bought a CAT Scan at a cost of $1 million, so that routine is expected to soon change, according to Doyle.

"St. Joe's has the newest emergency room and has a trauma section set-up of six to eight beds. Theirs is good too," the paramedic said. "Let's face it, it's as good as the physicians working there the time you go in, just like anywhere.

"When someone's in an accident, if they don't have a head injury, have no one there to tell me where to take them, and can't answer themselves or don't know where they want to go—I take them to POH."

One fire chief billed POH as "...a forward, aggressive hospital. They care...they give 110 percent. And they care about the hospital because they're not allowed to have private practices."

Survivor: He credits POH with saving his life

By Marilyn Trumper

Today, former Pontiac City police officer Jim Bergeron maneuvers on a pair of silver aluminum crutches.

Four years ago the father of three lost half his pelvis and his left leg from the hip down in a jogging accident, an injury with a 90-percent mortality rate, according to physicians at Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital.

Bergeron credits quick response from passers-by, EMS and POH's trauma center staff with saving his life.

"From the time EMS got to me to when I got to the hospital, it wasn't more than five to seven minutes," Bergeron said.

"They took me right into the trauma center. They were ready for me there. Everything was all set up. I remember them cutting my clothes off—and that's all."

It took a team of nurses and physicians 40 minutes to stabilize Bergeron, then age 34.

Seven hours of surgery followed.

"They tried to save my leg, but doctors said it was my life—or my leg. If I had to do it over again I'd have said take my leg rather than let me die. I have three kids and a wife. I'm glad I'm here. They saved my life.

"I'm living testimonial that they do what they say they do," he said.

Michael Doyle, D.O., now POH's director of emergency services, was on duty the afternoon Bergeron was brought in.

"We didn't think he was going to make it," Doyle said. "He survived all the odds. It's not supposed to happen."

"It was four years ago Feb. 18 at 3:25 in the afternoon. You don't forget things like that," the soft-spoken Bergeron said. "I used to run six to 12 miles a day. I was going to work that day. I was running on Perry Street, going to Lake Orion, running from Perry and Walton up to Lake Orion, and then back.

"I'm not sure myself what happened. Runners get what's called a 'runner's high.' You cancel out everything around you and get caught up in your thoughts. I was about a mile and a half, maybe two miles out and felt pretty good.

"I looked at the light at Perry and Walton and thought 'I can make that.' I got behind a truck, was in the turn lane, and the next thing I know I'm in the hospital. I never felt anything. I never heard the screech of tires most people say they remember."

Community health is nurses' goal

By Kathy Greenfield

Their names may not be familiar, but many of their contributions to the health of residents in Independence and Springfield townships are.

Community health nurses Kathy Nicholson and Vickie Dickie review immunization records of school children, conduct scoliosis clinics at the schools, make home visits when communicable diseases break out, provide pregnancy counseling for young mothers, assist new parents of high-risk infants, conduct well-baby clinics, and more.

"Public or community health is mainly trying to keep your community healthy and teaching (people) how to keep themselves healthy," said Dickie.

"Ours is mostly counseling and referring people to other resources," said Nicholson. "That's primarily our purpose for visiting—teaching and making them aware of our resources and other area resources that are available."

Both licensed registered nurses with bachelor's degrees, the women are employed by the Oakland County Health Department. There is no charge for the services they provide.

Nicholson has been a community health nurse for 11½ years, eight in the Clarkston area; Dickie for four-and-one-half years.

Prior to that, they both worked in hospitals.

"It's a lot different than hospital work," Dickie said. "You've got to sell yourself in this job a little bit."

"In the community, quite often we work with the entire family as opposed to one person in the hospital," Nicholson said. "It's quite different. You become aware of people's problems when you get into the home. It gives you some idea of the problems people are faced with—especially with the high unemployment in the area."

Don't let minor problems become major problems. If your foot or ankle hurts and is not getting better, call your podiatrist. A delay in treatment, especially in ankle injuries, often means the difference between a good result and chronic ankle pain.

Our office is open Monday through Friday and we have a 24-hour answering service that is instructed to contact me for emergencies any day or night. There is no need to wait hours in an emergency room with a sprained ankle or lacerated foot only to be given first aid and told to see your family doctor. I encourage my patients, or any patient, to feel free to enlist my services in an emergency. After all, any conscientious doctor does not "punch out" for the day. Survivor shares memories of accident trauma

Witnesses say Bergeron was struck by an Oldsmobile traveling 45 miles-an-hour.

He landed 100-feet away; his left leg shattered from the hip down.

"I think, I don't remember, that I was hit at the hip line," he said. "I had to have been hit from behind. It was as if you took a doll and shook it until the leg snapped.

"My leg was broken in seven places—like a jigsaw puzzle. You can't put something like that back together."

Bergeron's bleeding was severe.

"I had a 40 percent blood loss in two minutes. Overall they replaced 33 pints of blood. I was losing it as fast as they were putting it in," he said.

"One reason I survived was because I was in good physical shape. I went into shock and from running my heartbeat was already real low. My body just shut down to almost nothing.

"EMS was there in minutes. I had good people working on me. They started replacing fluids immediately."

Bergeron also credits a passerby for his survival.

"There was a guy down about two cars who'd had medical training in the military. He took his jacket off, rolled it around his fist and shoved it into my leg. An artery was bleeding and it was squirting up like a fire hose," he said.

"I've known Gary for four years. I met him for the first time after the accident. I didn't know how to repay him. How do you repay someone for saving your life? I gave him a watch that says, 'I OWE YOU ONE.'"

Bergeron calls it "divine providence" that two nurses were at the accident scene too, and a key surgeon just two miles from the hospital.

"And the fact that there are only 50 trauma centers in the United States, and this happened within miles of one of them. What are the odds of that happening?"

"POH has a dedicated medical staff. People there do their job well. They know how to do it. They save lives. Trauma centers save lives.

"That's what they did for me," he said.

Bergeron says that in 1980, he was one of 13 people in the world to survive a hemi-pelvectomy, loss of half the pelvis and a leg.

"Trauma centers save lives..."

That's what they did for me."

Nurses provide many services

From pregnancy counseling to home visits

"And then, too, we have more time to work with them than you do in a clinical setting," she added. "In a hospital you don't have the time. That's why the hospitals often refer them to us."

During the school year the nurses spend about 40 percent of their time in school buildings.

In addition to making sure children have all the immunizations required by state law to attend school, they participate in kindergarten screening and conduct annual checks for curvature of the spine.

They also assist elementary school teachers as resource people for health classes; provide classroom demonstrations of blood pressure procedure and the dissection of hearts, lungs and eyes; and offer growing-up programs for fifth- and sixth-graders.

Teachers sometimes seek advice for personal health problems, get blood pressure readings and ask for a review of medications.

For older students, among the services the nurses provide is pregnancy counseling.

"If the girl lets the school know, they'll let us know, which is all confidential," Dickie said. "If they want us to involve their parents, we will. We can give them information but we can't tell them what to do.

We give them four or five alternatives."

Dickie also provides health teaching for young mothers and pregnant teen-agers enrolled in the Clarkston school district's Parent and Child Education (PACE) program.

Nicholson conducts a well-baby clinic in Independence Township twice a month for children ages 2 months to 5 years whose parents cannot afford visits to the doctor on a regular basis.

In addition to home visits to aid parents of high-risk infants, the nurses duties include home visits required by state law when a communicable disease—like hepatitis, meningitis, encephalitis, botulism or salmonella—has been reported.

"The community, I think, is a better place because we're there. We can help some people with some of the concerns they have. It certainly makes the community a better place—makes life a little bit better," Nicholson said.

Residents of Oakland County with questions about an illness of any type or substance abuse can request a nurse's visit, or they can call the health department at 858-1348 and ask the nurse on duty questions.

"If we're not able to help, we can direct them to area resources," Nicholson said.

Home remedies stay popular

And some of them do work, say professionals

By Dan Vandenhemel

Old books and textbooks filled with cures for anything from arthritis to headaches adorn the desk and bookshelves of Dr. Susan Coleman.

She has a special interest in the history of medicine, and she said home remedies can, at times, make people feel better.

"Oh sure, some of the home remedies work," she said from her office in the Clarkston Professional Plaza. "But remember, 30 percent of the people have the placebo effect. If they think it will cure them, it will."

Home remedies are only a hobby of Coleman. When it comes to medicine, it's strictly by the book, she said.

But during the course of her workday, patients describe remedies they've tried before coming to Coleman.

"When talking to my patients, they tell me some of the things that they did," Coleman said. "Many are embarrassed by that. They feel that they're old-fashioned or hicks because of them."

Some of the remedies that have come to Coleman and other people in the area range from the strange to the most common:

- Putting a pair of scissors on the upper part of the back to stop a nosebleed.
- Drinking apple cider and vinegar for relief from indigestion or a cold.
- Using salt water for a toothache or baking soda in bath water to stop itching.

"A woman from Arkansas told me that," Coleman said of the scissors theory. "It's the cold metal pressed against the spine that is supposed to stop the bleeding."

"Usually in the ER (emergency room) they'll have you blow your nose to remove the blood clot then just add pressure—that works," she said.

Sherrill Collick, owner of Simply Natural in the Waterfall Plaza, said many people come in looking for herbs for home remedies.

"We have books here that tell about different ones," she said. "There is the apple cider and vinegar plus chamomile tea to help you sleep."

"You don't really know what causes them to work. Who knows what makes anything work?" she added. "If you believe that they work, then they will."

Dr. Bruce Mercado, a dentist, also hears about home remedies in his office on Bluegrass Drive in Independence Township. He said warm salt water is a common cure for a toothache.

"The salt helps dry up the tooth and the area surrounding it," he said. "If there is swelling with it, then you can put some ice on the outside of the jaw. I've heard of chewing on clove leaves too. The eugenol in that is in some of the medicines we use—but that's stretching it."

So-called home remedies are also part of his practice, said Dr. Irvin Kernis, a pediatrician whose office is on M-15 in Independence Township.

"These aren't top secrets we're talking about," he said. "The soda in the bath works; so does whiskey, honey and lemon for colds. But basically I tell my patients what works."

One reason home remedies were so common in the old days was because they were cheaper, Coleman said.

"You couldn't afford a doctor back in the 1800s," she said. "Plus, most of the doctors didn't know what they were doing."

"In the 1900s when medicine started to become more scientific, home remedies fell off. Now they are starting to come back because of the cost and the idea of some side effects of drugs."

"I never had anyone come in here after they have tried a home remedy and feel that they shouldn't have," she said. "They always know when it is time to go to a doctor."

What illness results in 32 million days of lost work, 34 million days of lost school, and accounts for more doctor visits than any other illness?

Believe it or not—the common cold.

There's no cure for the common cold, but here are some "cold facts" that may help you separate the facts from the fiction about this misunderstood ailment:

•What is a cold? A cold is an upper respiratory infection caused by over 150 different viruses. According to the National Institute of Health, your cold may last from two to 14 days, but will probably last one week.

•It's estimated that an adult will average two colds a year...and school children average eight colds a year. This accounts for a total of as many as one billion colds a year in the United States.

•The common cold is most communicable two days before to two days after symptoms appear.

A free brochure, "You and Your Cold—The Cold Facts," is available by writing to: Schering Corporation, 1133 Avenue of the Americas, 15th Floor, New York, N.Y. 10036.

The English of the 15th to 17th centuries believed that the color red was helpful to the sick. Patients were dressed in red nightgowns and surrounded with red objects.

334-BABY hot line celebrates its first birthday

By Kathy Greenfield

Calls seeking advice about hiccups, symptoms, temperature taking, umbilical cord care, skin rashes and crying babies have poured into St. Joseph Mercy Hospital the past year.

The service that allows people to dial 334-BABY 24 hours a day and talk to a nurse in the hospital's nursery celebrates its first birthday Feb. 10.

Parents, grandparents and babysitters with questions about infants have dialed the number between 3,000 and 4,000 times since the Baby Hot Line began, said Ruth Hassenpflug, R.N., director of the family-child department.

"They are usually very frustrated, worn out parents who have been up several nights. Usually they just need some reassurance," Hassenpflug said.

Calls have come in from as far away as Indiana and Ohio.

The only other hospital with a similar service that Hassenpflug is aware of is in Lincoln, Neb.

When the nursery is busy and calls come in, it can get hectic, but the nursing staff has responded positively to the service.

"We're very pleased," she said. "We were doing this all along. Parents were calling the nursery after they went home. Now we're reaching a lot more people."

The service was even used by the head of volunteers at the hospital after her baby was born, Hassenpflug said.

"It's just so reassuring to know you can talk to some professional person any time day or night," she said.

The phone service has resulted in some changes in the education programs for expectant parents offered by the hospital.

"We're now doing a better job of teaching parents how to take a temperature and we're talking more about safety—how to tell when a baby is ill," Hassenpflug said.

Among the courses offered are prenatal classes for parents who plan to have their babies born at St. Joseph's, sibling classes and grandparent classes.

New this month is a class called "Babies Are People Too," which teaches parents how to communicate with their new baby—how to play with them and stimulate intellectual development.

"It's a fun and practical class," Hassenpflug said.

334-BABY telephone stickers are available by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope to the St. Joseph Hospital Nursing Office, 900 Woodward Ave., Pontiac, MI 48053.

For more information on class offerings, call 858-3525.

Wheelock marks 20th

By Kathy Greenfield

When Wheelock Memorial Hospital celebrates its 20th anniversary this month, Helen Titsworth will celebrate 20 years on staff as the nursing director.

She's a woman who can't say enough about the positive aspects of her job and the place she works.

"Our motto is serving our community," she said. "We're noted also as the little hospital with the big heart."

"I love it. I love the community. I love the contact with the patients. Our speciality is personalized service. We care about our patients. We treat them as a person. We give them kind, loving care."

The 53-bed hospital, located at 7280 State Rd. (M-15), Goodrich, serves northern Oakland County.

It provides medical and surgical services including physical and respiratory therapy, cardiac monitor care, pediatrics and a 24-hour emergency room. Also available are x-ray, laboratory and social services, including a dietician and patient education for diabetics.

"So many people think because we're a small hospital we can't handle things, but we really have excellent care here," Titsworth said. "We are very progressive. I feel we hold a candle to any other hospital, and our patients love it. They love the care they get here."

The hospital employs about 150 people plus the 171 physicians who are on staff or affiliated.

The nurses, according to Titsworth, are especially well-trained in emergency life-support.

Since the inception of the Marie Hand Award in 1982 by the Emergency Department of Nursing Association, two of four awards have gone to Wheelock nurses—in 1982 to Mary Grba, a licensed practical nurse in the emergency room, and in 1983 to nursing supervisor Barbara Deneen, R.N.

The award, Titsworth said, is recognition for excellence of nursing skills in the emergency room to enhance patient care.

On the hospital's actual birthday, Feb. 17, there'll be a quiet celebration with cake for the employees.

But plans are underway now for several community events, including an open house later this year.

Worth smiles

The kids on the cover of "To Your Good Health," Lindsay King (left) and Jamie Tyler have fun while pretending to be dentists.

Marissa Parrott (left) and Elizabeth Schmaltz check the teeth of Alfred, the demonstration dummy.

While some of their schoolmates at the Clarkston Preschool pretend to be dentists, Jay Richardson and Elizabeth Schmaltz practice their tooth-brushing techniques.

The magnifying dental tool close to his eye, Charlie Gorecki squints, looks very serious and says to his patient, Alfred: "You little stinker. Open your mouth!"

His teachers at the Clarkston Preschool on Maybee Road in Independence Township burst out laughing and ask Charlie if his dentist says that.

"Yes," he replies, his eyes twinkling.

They ask him who his dentist is, and Charlie, grinning all the while, reveals the name. (We won't tell.)

The preschoolers had a visit from Geri Jones of the Women's Auxiliary of Oakland County that morning in honor of February being National Dental Health Month.

The auxiliary provides the educational service for nursery schools and elementary schools free of charge.

She gave each of the children a toothbrush to take home, showed a filmstrip entitled "Michael Learns to Brush His Teeth" and passed out pictures to color (an apple plus a toothbrush equal a smiley face; pop plus candy equal a frowning face).

She also left Alfred-the-dummy behind, with a bag of dental tools, for a week-long visit.

Informed that their playroom has been turned into a dentist's office, the children take turns donning white "jackets" and playing dentist.

Their comments are priceless.

"He gots 10 cavaties," says Lindsay King after checking out Alfred's mouth. "He's not taking care of his teeth. He'll have to come here every day."

"I'm enjoying this," says Elizabeth Schmaltz.

Keeping busy brushing an oversize set of dentures, Jay Richardson reveals that he's thinking about his own missing two front teeth.

"I don't brush them when I don't have teeth," he says.

Contraceptive sponges: their pros and cons

By Marilyn Trumper

Contraceptive sponges, first available in the southwest, are selling so successfully there's no surplus to begin marketing elsewhere in the United States, according to pharmacist Bob Bennett at Hallman's Apothecary, Clarkston.

"It's the old supply and demand theory," he said. "But to tell you the truth, no one's really been asking about them."

Approved last spring by the federal Food and Drug Administration, the soft polyurethane sponge, 5.5 cm wide and 2 cm thick, is permeated with the common spermicide nonoxynol 9, a product that's been on the market 20 years.

Purchased without a prescription, the sponge has the barrier features of the diaphragm with the advantages of the less effective male condom. In tests, it's proved as effective as the diaphragm. Studies for one year involving thousands of women, some who may not have used contraception diligently or properly, show both methods prevent pregnancy in 90 percent of those tested, according to a story published in last April's Time Magazine.

Inserted up to 16 hours before intercourse, the sponge releases spermicide, killing and absorbing sperm before they reach the cervix. Unlike the diaphragm, the sponge is effective for 24 hours regardless of how many times the user has intercourse.

Billed as simple to use and non-messy, a small polyester loop attached to the sponge makes removal easy.

The price in April was estimated at $1 a sponge. Tests specifically addressed the risk of toxic shock, because some research indicated barrier devices like the diaphragm may encourage development of a bacteria believed to cause the deadly illness.

While reports say spermicide seems to kill the bacteria, the FDA requires a label advising women to remove the sponge within 24 hours to reduce the risk.

Obstetrician/gynecologist John Naz, M.D., has practiced in the Clarkston area 33 years.

"The OBGYN News reported two cases of toxic shock syndrome related to the contraceptive sponge," Naz said. "It appears to be effective, better than 60 to 70 percent. But there is a time limit in which it must be removed."

"It represents a basic element in clinical test experiments. For something that looks great in clinical testing there'll always be someone in the population with a risk value. I'd prefer to see it in use a couple of years before commenting to its usage," Naz said, offering a quote from Sir William Osler of Candada, a man he calls "...an outstanding internist."

"He said, 'Be not the first to try the new, or the last to give up the old.'"

Naz said he sees a return to the Victorian era, a "swing of the pendulum" in the sexual revolution.

"There are suggestions that people not participate (in sex), not be at risk of disease and be forced to use (contraceptive) devices, that they abstain until they're married and with one person."

"The biggest problem I see in barrier contraceptives is that women are more protected from cervical exposure, but not vaginal.

"If the man has herpes or warts it can still be dumped into the vagina. That's why contraceptives should worn by the male to limit how much disease will be passed on," Naz said.
