Union policy ends reserves' work

By Marilyn Trumper

A rupture in negotiations between Sheriff Johannes Spreen and Deputy Dave Rhines, union president, has idled the Oakland County Sheriff Department's 150 volunteer reserves since January 1983.

With five years in the reserves, Scott Robeson of Independence Township calls the situation "...a bunch of crap."

It's kept them from working Independence and Springfield township parades and crowd control, directing traffic at accident scenes, riding with full-fledged deputies and assisting in ground searches, he said.

To prohibit reserves from working in place of deputies, a union contract clause says reserves cannot work if deputies have been laid-off.

The reserves haven't worked since the layoff of 27 deputies last January, according to Rhines, who says he'd be willing to reissue the contract reactivating the reserves with the current guidelines.

Spreen says he's angry reserves can't be used in what he calls "crime deterring patrol" despite the contract which, he interprets, allows them to work.

Negotiations between Spreen and Rhines ended Oct. 31, when union officials walked out of Spreen's office over what Rhines called "an ultimatum."

"The union is not running this department."

—Sheriff Spreen

"(Spreen) told us he'd do away with the road patrol if we didn't let the reserves work," Rhines said.

"I'm willing to reissue the contract with the current guidelines so we know what we're working with. That would allow the reserves to come back. But if there was another layoff they wouldn't be able to work, unless we reissued the guidelines again."

"(Reserves are) a valuable asset to communities. They help townships cut costs."

Spreen interprets the negotiations differently.

"I just asked them if I could use the reserves for crime deterring patrol, and they told me 'no,' and walked out," Spreen said. "They wouldn't let me."

"Until they come back, I can't negotiate. And I will be damned if they'll tell me I can't put people interested in crime prevention into crime prevention."

"If they're going to tell me I cannot use them, they can go to hell. The union is not running this department."

There is no dispute between Spreen or Rhines over the current contract guidelines which say reserves

No Independence rabies clinic

By Kathy Greenfield

There will be no rabies clinic for dogs in Independence Township this year.

The reason is that township employees refused to work, according to George Anderson, director of the township's department of public works.

A one-day clinic, sponsored by the Oakland County Animal Control Division, has been offered in Independence at least four years, he said.

His brother, Carl Anderson, is head of the county's animal control division.

cannot be used to replace a regular officer; that reserves won't act as second men in the patrol car, thereby skirting the need for back-up; and that the department will not have patrol cars specifically for the reserves.

Robeson, the Independence Township reserve with five years under his belt, contends the 150 reserve officers are caught in the middle of the dispute.

He wants to get back on the road.

"I can't speak for everyone else when I'm talking about the reserves, but most of them, in my opinion, have taken the time and effort to be trained—and feel it's gone for nothing," he said.

"From a realistic standpoint, people from Independence and Springfield townships are not getting the best law enforcement they could be getting."

Reserve officers are certified by the state of Michigan and deputized by the sheriff. They can make arrests when with a regular deputy, are trained

"... most of them feel...
it's gone for nothing,"

—Scott Robeson

to fire weapons and must meet the same skill requirements as regular deputies, Robeson said.

In addition, reserves buy their own weapons and uniforms.

"I think a lot of residents look at us as parade officers, as the second person in the car helping the regular deputies," Robeson said. "But let me tell you—the time may come when you'll thank God a reserve was with a deputy at the scene of an accident while we direct traffic and free the deputy to take care of you until help arrives."

Reserve officers involved in a ground search three years ago recovered the body of a young teen off Dixie Highway, he said. Missing for three days, the boy fell jumping motocross moguls and broke his neck.

"The union thinks we're going to steal the regular deputies' jobs. That's a bunch of crap. I don't know of any reserve who doesn't have a full-time job. It's ludicrous to believe we'd do anything other than support the deputies 100 percent," Robeson said.

"For the past five years I've put my life into something to try and help the community. It's too bad people in the sheriff's department don't realize that. If (the regular deputies) would all rise up against the contract we could get back to work and do what we're designed to do, and not worry about childish behavior."

Tax due Feb. 14

Independence Township's 1983 winter taxes are due Feb. 14.

And if you haven't paid summer taxes due last Sept. 14, there's a 1 percent, per month late payment penalty compounding into an additional 3 percent penalty by Feb. 14, according to Treasurer Frederick Ritter.

Of the township's $5.4 million in taxes, $800,000, or 14.4 percent, is outstanding from the summer collection, he said.

Taxes can be paid now through Feb. 14 at Independence Township Hall, 90 N. Main, Clarkston, weekdays from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., and on Saturday, Feb. 11, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Faculty shares talent

By Kathy Greenfield

They call themselves the "Fearless Faculty Floodlighters," this group of Clarkston High School teachers who put their acting talents on stage.

Their second production ever—a farce by Phillip King entitled "See How They Run"—comes to the CHS Little Theatre stage Feb. 9, 10 and 11.

Barbara Gibson, leader of the CHS student drama department for 19 years, founded the teachers' group last year.

"For fun and we thought it would be a good way to earn money and to let the students see the faculty in a different light," she explains.

All seats are $2, and the money is divided between the students' drama club and the faculty fund.

Last year, Gibson said, the money provided a microwave oven for one teachers' lounge and a sink for the other, with the remainder going to cover general expenses for student productions.

The nine faculty members in the play—Carol Arend, Leigh Bonner, Jim Chamberlain, Gibson, Michael Kaul, John Kirchgessner, Jim MacArthur, Holly Rupprecht and Howard Webster—are not alone.

Students assist with set building and painting, ticket sales and programs, and there are two student directors.

For the audience, Gibson promises "a fun evening—lots of laughs."

She directs and has a starring role in the production she first directed students in 12 years ago.

"I just loved it," she says. "I think this is probably the best comedy. It's just very well-written and the lines in it are just a scream—they really are. It's a good, good comedy."

It has been 20 years since she has had a role in a play, Gibson says, and she feels the difference.

"When I used to do plays, when I was performing in them and in summer stock, I could memorize by reading it twice—just reading it," she says. "I have worked on these lines...it's driving me crazy."

Then she smiles.

"It's fun though," she says. "I'm really doing well with them now. I miss just a couple."

That's one place where the student directors Cory Goodrich and Shawn Smith come in—for they'll prompt lines for the teachers during the performances.

They've also put in long hours building sets with other volunteers from the drama department.

"I've enjoyed it," says Cory, a senior.

"Teachers are a lot more fun to work with at times than students, because they're older—they put more into it."

For Shawn, a junior, the experience has also been positive.

"It's fun working with teachers—you get to know them," he says. "I hadn't met most of these teachers and they're really neat."

"It's a funny play," he adds. "It really is. It's a riot."

Tickets may be reserved by calling CHS at 625-0900. They may also be purchased at the door. The curtain rises at 8 p.m.

While he's not yet totally in costume, for this is only a rehearsal, Jim MacArthur takes on the look of a minister who has traveled long and hard.

Barb Gibson's character role in "See How They Run" is a challenge, she says, for her character changes dramatically—from a pillar in the church to a drunken lady. This moment is from a scene with Jim MacArthur, who plays a minister.

Complex on way

By Marilyn Trumper

Developer Ronald Helin of W.H. Investments garnered variances to build his proposed 48,000-square-foot office/retail complex on M-15 in the abandoned Texaco Service Station site north of Clarkston.

The Independence Township Zoning Board of Appeals voted 4-0 to approve the request Feb. 1, with the stipulation that a greenbelt screen run the length of the adjacent residential area and along M-15, according to acting Chairman Roy Haeusler. Chairman Neil Wallace was absent.

The ordinance requires a minimum 5 acres for the development. Helin has 4.6 acres, according to Kenneth Delbridge, director of building and planning.

Helin could not be reached for comment.

The plan is now before the Oakland County Planning Commission and goes next to the Independence Township Board for Helin's request to rezone to C-2 commercial. The planning commission recommended approval.

Tax notice delay

A printer's backlog delayed Independence Township 1984 assessments from making the mail Feb. 1, according to Assessor David Sherrill.

"They should be out by the later part of next week," he said. "And be sure people know it's a notice of assessment increases. If their assessments didn't go up, they won't be receiving a notice in the mail."

In January, Sherrill predicted no great overall increases to residential, commercial or industrial land, the county's three property classifications.

The year's past sales in those categories are compared to assessments there, to determine if increases in classifications can be expected. But property sales continue to be slow in the township punctuated by only sporadic sales, Sherrill said.

But, he said, residents can expect individual increases in pockets where there have been sales.

Who cut power?

By Kathy Greenfield

A power outage, possibly caused by a cable-TV installation crew, knocked out electricity at 50 addresses and doused the traffic light at Main and Washington streets Wednesday, Feb. 1.

The lights went out at 4:01 p.m. and were restored at 5:20 p.m., said James Connelly, Detroit Edison's assistant supervisor of lines for Oakland County.

"Our people, they attribute it to the cable-TV people because they were working on the pole...at Washington and Holcomb," he said. "Evidently our crew has some strong suspicions it was cable-TV."

When crews are at work installing the cable lines such events are relatively common, he said.

"It's a boon for mankind, but sometimes it's hard on the utilities," Connelly said. "We've had problems before with cable-TV people, and I'm not throwing bricks at them—when they get on our lines, sometimes we have problems."

The Independence Cable Television installation crews work closely with Edison and Michigan Bell, actively participating in the Miss Dig program and using computers to assure accidents won't happen, said Manuel Copado, manager of new market development for Tribune/United Cable Communications.

"It may be something that our contractor did that caused it," he said. "But we can't confirm it at this time. (Edison) went out there and found the cable crew in that area. All they said is chances are it was something our guys did."

"It doesn't happen frequently. Our people don't come in contact with lines, but accidents do happen," he added.

Work is continuing on schedule for Independence Cable Television, Copado said, and he expects the service to be available townshipwide by April 15.

"There's still a good chance that we can get (the first) customers on in March," he said.

ZBA denies party store bid; developer angry

By Marilyn Trumper

Mario Rotundo and Peter Caruso's plan to open a party store in the former Helvy Orchard's 15-year-old apple stand Sashabaw Road south of Waldon Road was quashed by Independence Township's zoning board of appeals.

"They wouldn't give me the time of day. They told me they didn't want Sashabaw to look like another Dixie Highway. Well, all I can say is Dixie Highway pays a lot of taxes," Rotundo said after the

Feb. 1 appeals board's 4-0 denial. Chairman Neil Wallace was absent.

"The land is zoned for commercial. I can have the use," Rotundo said. "But they told me my building is non-conforming. It was cut and dried. I'm going to see what I can do to make my building not non-conforming."

Rotundo sought a front and sideyard variance of four and three feet respectively for the site, built around 1966 before the township's zoning ordinance was enacted.

"He wanted to convert a non-conforming apple stand to a party store, and can't do it," said Roy Haeusler, acting chairman.

"The ordinance says you can't alter an existing non-conforming building. One of the reasons it was denied was because it's doesn't meet the zoning ordinance's setbacks now. It's too close to Sashabaw.

One day it's anticipated they'll widen Sashabaw, and it will be closer still."

Two years ago Rotundo sold his first party store, Country Cones Deli, located on Sashabaw Road near the entrance of Independence Oaks County Park, about two miles north of his proposed site.

"I just don't understand how they can tell me I can only sell apples there when I'm zoned for a party store," Rotundo said. "I'll see if I can't cut three feet off my building and become conforming."

Bridge repairs

Fourteen bridges in Oakland County aren't as solid as they used to be.

The bridges, including two in Independence Township, have had their weight limits lowered.

"There is no danger of the two bridges in Independence Township collapsing," said road commission spokesperson Dennis Pajot. "We've closed a couple of bridges in the county and posted low limits, but some of these bridges are 50 or 60 years old."

The two in Independence Township are on Andersonville Road; one west of Airport Road and the other east of Clement Road.

Both have had limits lowered in tons for one-, two- and three-unit vehicles. The previous limits were 42, 63, and 74 tons. Now the bridges are to be posted 42, 57, 68.

"Most of the cases involve rust," Pajot said. "The deterioration of the metal make the bridges weak."

The new postings are to be in place within the next 60 days.

Mysteries

Al Zawacky

Things I'll never really understand.

State spending policies. The governor recently advocated spending $1 million in the next state budget to study and seek ways to remedy Michigan's high infant mortality rate.

That's all very good and well, but another, less publicized area of the budget, calls for $6 million for state Medicaid abortions.

I confess to being totally incapable of the mental gymnastics required to have this make sense.

Potholes. I don't understand how they can be so prevalent. It's inconceivable to me how a nation that can conquer polio and put men on the moon is unable to develop a road surface that doesn't self-destruct every spring.

Personal care products. Why do these things cost so much? Aftershave lotion, no matter how fancy the bottle or pompous the name, is nothing more than a little water, alcohol and fragrance.

The cost of a bottle of good shampoo mystifies me also, and the prices charged for women's cosmetics is a crime.

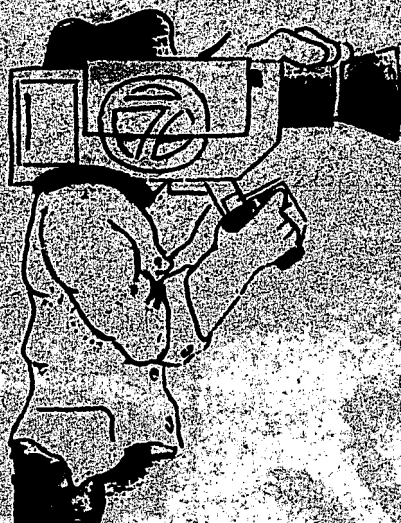

Gasoline. While we're on the subject of prices, why does lead-free cost more than gasoline with lead added? I've heard it's because the other additives in lead-free cost more than lead, but I'm not sure I buy that.

Another thing, why do some gas stations charge as much as a quarter a gallon more for full-serve as opposed to self-serve? Fill up your tank with, say 15 gallons, and that's an extra $3.75 for about 10 minutes of work. Get out your calculator. I don't think many of these 16-year-old gas station attendants are making $22.50 an hour.

If they are, let me know if any gas stations are hiring.

Got a gripe?

Just asking

Kathy Greenfield

It bothers me that Independence Township is not offering a rabies clinic to ease the cost and make more convenient the vaccination of dogs against the dread disease.

I wholeheartedly agree that working at such a gathering isn't the best job that money can buy.

I understand that people can take their dogs to private veterinarians.

I know that there are clinics not horribly far away that offer the same service.

But when you work for government, aren't you supposed to be into doing things for the people in your community?

Just asking.

And while I'm into questions like this, I'm wondering what happened to the sheriff's department coverage of parades and other such events in our community.

I remember, about six years ago, when the sheriff's department argued we'd have far better police protection if we spent our money on them rather than on trying to maintain a local police department.

I know the community has consistently voted down police millages that would increase police protection.

I realize that the deputies on duty in our township are professionals and I have no problem with the job they do.

But when their internal problems end all reserve patrols and result in not enough coverage when thousands appear in parades, and downtown Clarkston has no one directing traffic when a stop light goes out for over an hour during the busiest time of evening traffic... I wonder.

Isn't someone supposed to enough care about local events to do something about these problems?

Just asking.

Jim's Jottings

Newspaper talk

Jim Sherman

For the first time in over 35 years the Michigan Press Association had their annual convention off the Michigan State Campus. A record number went to the Amway Grand Plaza in Grand Rapids.

To quote an old comedian, "That is zum plazzz." Service is excellent, atmosphere terrific, and tipping frequent. I believe there are seven restaurants and bars in the place, and that's not to mention the hospitality suites of the suppliers.

Forgetting all that, we newspaper types were there to listen and learn. You know that. The seminars are a diversion between eating and the health spa.

One session was particularly interesting, though not exactly enlightening to editors. Called, "Is the press losing credibility?" the head table brought the Detroit News' Majors Thrift Acres, Plymouth Crier, Stealcass office furniture, and Petoskey News-Review to us.

The moderator, Bill Giles, MSU teacher and former Detroit News editor, said newspaper credibility suffers sometimes when, "We print lies because people lie to us."

Others said newspapers are often "used" by politicians, business and industry. The industry people said newspapers should send reporters who have some background on their subject and "avoid asking dumb questions, like: 'What do you people do?'"

A weekly newspaper editor questioned a daily newspaper's choice of headline words that grab, but mislead. Probably the reverse was true, also. I didn't hear it all.

There, too, was lunch with Governor Blanchard. It is hard to believe a person can make such a change in a year. At last year's MPA meeting the Governor was nervous, hesitant, unsure of his audience, and obviously wanted to be some place else.

This year it was like he was among friends, but believe me, newspaper types are still heavily Republican. Gov. Blanchard was personable, mixed well, and spoke directly.

His message was now new. He repeated his state of the state points for more money for education, zero budget, less for social services, reduction of government employees, and lower taxes sooner if possible.

You know, all the Republican, conservative planks to a 1984 platform.

But, he's doing his homework and not approaching people with, "What do you people do?"

Letters to editor

Writers call for second look at new complex

As residents of Independence Township, we feel that recent news about the forthcoming retail/office complex development on M-15 where the abandoned Texaco Station presently sits has some alarming aspects surrounding it.

First, we are concerned that such a visible and profitable area in the township and close to village would be railroaded into such quick development.

We agree with Trustee Dale Stuart in his belief that such extensive variances from our township's long-established and well-thought-out Master Plan signals a "red flag" of concern, calling for complete and careful analysis of the development proposal.

Business interests in the village have told us they were not consulted for their opinion as to the desirability of a shopping mall in the area.

Residents in the area are truly upset with the lack of information dealing with traffic impact on the area, possible increase in crime, and the rapid pace with which the development procedure is progressing.

Though we do not live in the area we are concerned as well about the mall proposal, feeling that it may create too high a density development for the limited area available.

Can we expect residents who selected Independence and the Village of Clarkston as their homes, based on their careful and measured development, to respectfully continue to honor those same rules and ordinances that achieved the excellent living conditions we share if larger, heavily financed entities are allowed to so easily circumvent them?

We would like to know if complete traffic and crime impact studies were done or will we find it "necessary" to open up and widen M-15 in forthcoming years to accommodate the shopping/retail complex and hire additional crime protection?

We would like to know how all the village business people feel about the addition of a mall so close to their specialized and personable shopping atmosphere.

Will the mall compete unfairly with their long-held interests or will it help?

Also, we ask for further information about the surrounding wetlands area and the effect such a high-density development (for that area) will have on the surrounding areas.

We agree the land is valuable, but why the rush to develop? We are developing the future, not merely trying to be conciliatory to an investor with a financial timetable to keep.

We hope the planning commission and the building department do their usually competent job and ensure that the citizens of this township are not let down in their respect for and willingness to abide by their township's ordinances and laws.

We feel that a second look should be given to the mall proposal and we commend Dale Stuart for stand-ding alone, again, against rush tactics and weak informational sources.

By the way, how can approval be given when some of the investors and their proposed plans for the complex remain unknown?

Window changes challenged

The Daverman Company's Tom Chen says teachers are happier and kids learn better in rooms without windows. This was part of the "expert" advice the Clarkston school board asked him to relate at its Jan. 16 meeting on energy conservation.

He told us his plan conforms to a "trend" toward windowless schools and recommended windows be eliminated except for the minimum opening required by law through which a child could escape in case of fire.

Having seen Daverman's barracks-like transformation in Grand Rapids and Kalamazoo, I was alarmed when I learned Chen followed up a seminar he conducted on State Act 431, attended by a Clarkston administrator, by contacting the board.

The act empowers a school board to increase taxpayer indebtedness without taxpayer consent, alter public buildings without public approval and hire an architectural firm without competitive bidding, on energy conservation projects. Tom Chen helped write the act.

Daverman can show the ultimate saving in fuel feasible because it imposes the ultimate artificial atmosphere tolerable.

Michigan's changing seasons: red and gold leaves, softly falling snow, trees budding in spring's mild air and warm sunshine can relax, refresh and revitalize the spirit.

During most of the school year the sun is more cheerful than hot, but the miserly windows don't allow for our children to participate in a beautiful day. Year round they will study in the artificial light of fluorescent tubes.

The sensitive approach to energy conservation is to treat each room separately for its individual location, conditions and class activities.

To carefully limit and position windows to balance their thermal benefits and losses. To make use of the innumerable new transparent, translucent and opaque interior window coverings with high "R" values that can be adjusted to control heat, light and air according to the weather on a specific day.

We all see the need to end the discomfort suffered by both children and teachers during weather extremes, especially in those buildings too poorly designed to temper an excessive use of glass.

They were built when an earlier school board was persuaded that the "trend" toward glass block made the best learning environment.

Then, as now, there was no cautious test of a radical proposal, but lots and lots of glass block. Not on one, but three schools.

In his answer to questions initiated by The Clarkston News last week, school Superintendent Mason said he has had no community response since the proposal was approved.

Could the reason be that the public was unaware of alternative plans since no citizen participation was invited before the decision?

When parent and teacher campaigning was needed to pass the "Kids Count in Clarkston" millage, a torrent of information was forthcoming.

This time only routine newspaper presence at board meetings and the resultant news items let us know of the board's intent.

Other interviews, which included more conservative plans by local firms, were conducted by the board at special meetings not attended by newspapers, so alternative plans were never published.

At the Jan. 16 meeting the board reiterated that fact that the well-being of the children was their foremost concern. A still unanswered question is how the money saved on fuel will be spent to benefit the children more than daylight, sunshine and fresh air.

'If It Flitz...

Greatest age of all

Jim Fitzgerald

"There was an old woman who lived in a shoe. Oh my!" the recorded voice said, and said no more. Oh my? Is that it? What about all the children she didn't know what to do with?

To hear that severely abbreviated nursery rhyme, I had to yank a cord. It was like starting a power lawn mower. Emily was sitting on my lap. When I complained that her Mother Goose rhymes petered out too quickly to get the grass cut, Emily said I was a bean butt.

Emily has been two years old for about four months now. She recently spent a week visiting her high-rise grandparents, plenty long enough to confirm my long-held belief that two is the greatest age of all. For the spectators, that is.

AGE ONE IS SPLENDID, and three on through the teens is fine. When pressed, I can even think of something nice about a 25-year-old son who skips college terms more frequently than his father skipped classes. But two is best.

I first noticed this with my three younger sisters. Fortunately, there is no one alive, especially me, who can remember seeing my much older sister, Terrible Jean, when she was two. So I don't have to deal with empirical evidence that would undoubtedly mess up my theory that it's impossible for a two-year-old to be unlovable. There is much to be said for being born too late to experience the exception to the rule, or to know Attila the Hun, and I just said it.

After the little sisters, there came my own three children, and then my first three grandchildren. For me, all of them were the most fun around age two. That's when they were never too busy to receive a hug and give one back. That's when they were smart enough to learn a new word every minute, but not smart enough to know they were smarter than adults. That's when they provided many reasons for joyous celebration.

CELEBRATION? It was like that during Emily's visit. When, instead of diapers, she used the local plumbing for the first time, even if only in a minor manner, we all applauded and cheered like crazy as she took a hammy bow. Later, when Emily made major use of the plumbing, we were hard put to top the original celebration. There wasn't time to hire a band for the parade, so we turned up the stereo, banged pans and asked a neighbor to make a major speech.

The greatest thing about two-year-olds is everything they do is cute. Soon enough there comes a time when a kid must be told it isn't funny to call the waitress a dumbo. But two is still safe, and anything goes. I like that. I like it when kids don't know they should be ashamed of themselves for running around with no clothes on.

THROUGH THE YEARS, there have been more changes in toys than in two-year-olds. When Emily tired of hearing me read the same old Sesame Street books, she instructed me to pull the cord on a wondrous talking machine that spouts a wide selection of bob-tailed nursery rhymes. Besides the old woman who lived in a shoe with no mention of children, there is Jack and Jill with no pail of water, Little Miss Muffet with no spider, Humpty Dumpty with no king's horses, and so on. It's the same as getting news from television instead of the newspaper.

At first, I was going to fill Emily in on the details. I thought she should know it's not easy for a woman to live in a shoe with a lot of children. But then I thought—what the heck? She's only two. She doesn't have to know everything yet.

When Emily is older, she'll learn that Jack fell down and broke his crown, which can kill a person. She'll learn that when Humpty Dumpty couldn't get it together, he was in real trouble. There's a lot of real life out there, and Emily will learn all about it, when she is no longer two.

She'll even learn it isn't funny to call her grandfather a bean butt. But not from me.

Infected bats increase need for dog vaccines

"The thing about it, the one responsible for it is my brother. It was his decision," Carl Anderson said. "We've had five bats with rabies (in Oakland County) so we're really concerned this spring with the rabies getting into the dogs and cats."

"I'm disappointed that Independence Township and Brandon Township didn't have clinics this year," he added. "It's not only harder on the people, but it's rougher for us to get the animals licensed and vaccinated."

George Anderson stressed that the weekend clinics are available nearby and that cat and dog owners can have their pets vaccinated by private veterinarians.

"It bothers me, but there are other places to have it done," he said. "It would bother me a lot more to say to my people, 'Yes, you're going to work it' and have grievances filed. Our union contract and state law say you can't force an employee to work overtime."

Last year about 200 animals were vaccinated for rabies at the Independence clinic at the DPW building on Flemings Lake Road and over 300 licenses were sold.

The large turnout and the resulting chaos is the main reason township employees refused the work that would have paid time-and-one-half, according to the DPW director.

"It's a real chore, because you've got fighting dogs and barking dogs and angry people," he said. "It's been harder and harder every year to get people to work the thing, and they said they don't want to do it."

George Anderson said he's "not really" affected by having to turn down a clinic offered through the county department run by his brother.

"He's got his job; I've got mine," he said.

Citing the high number of bats in Clarkston and Ortonville, Carl Anderson said it's important for local animal owners to have their dogs and cats vaccinated against rabies.

"I suppose it's because of the older buildings there," he said. "They get up in the attics and such, and you see them flying around after dark."

Rabid bats found in Oakland County in 1983 include two in Avon Township, one in Birmingham, one in Bloomfield and one in the swimming pool at Oakland University.

"Luckily the person used a net (to get it out of the pool) and didn't touch it," he said.

In addition, he said, the first human death from

"we're really concerned this spring with the rabies getting into the dogs and cats." —Carl Anderson rabies since 1948 occurred last year when a 6-year-old girl died in Hillsdale County, located in the southern portion of the lower peninsula.

Usually bats hibernate beginning in October and don't reappear until April, so the recent discovery of a bat hanging on a door at an Oakland County residence is cause for concern, he said.

The bat was sent to a laboratory to be checked for rabies but the results are not back yet.

At the clinics, dogs and cats can receive three-year rabies vaccinations for $6. Also sold are dog license tags which cost $5 for neutered dogs and $7.50 for sexed dogs before March 1. After that date the tags are $15.

The tags are also sold at Independence Township Hall, 90 N. Main, Clarkston, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays. Dog owners must bring proof that their dogs have been vaccinated.

Carl Anderson cited the need for licensing dogs. Last year, of the 13,000 animals brought into the Oakland County Animal Care Center, 1700 Brown Rd., Pontiac Township, 10,000 were destroyed and only 1,000 were returned to owners, he said.

For the first time this year, dog license information will go on the police department computers to facilitate finding the owners of lost dogs.

There's another reason, as well.

"If they don't get the license and they are caught, they have to go to court," he said. "It's better to pay the $5 or $7.50."

Here's a list of rabies clinics

A list of the rabies clinics sponsored by the Oakland County Animal Control Division follow.

Fee for the three-year rabies vaccine for a dog or cat is $6.

Dog licenses will also be sold. The metal tags for 1984 are in the shape of Michigan's lower peninsula. They cost $5 for neutered dogs and $7.50 for sexed dogs. Owners must provide proof of rabies vaccinations.

Paving quest

Petitions to pave Thendara Park subdivision's 3.8 miles of private roads are coming in according to Tim Peterson, chairman of the 100-home subdivision in Independence Township's northeast quadrant.

"We're getting real close, and should have an answer in the next week," he said. "Then we'll know exactly where we stand. It's going real good."

After 10 years of struggling with washouts and ruts, residents rallied last November to petition the township for a special assessment district to finance paving.

Cost figures are not available, but engineering studies will be done after the petitions are all in, Peterson said.

"We should have an idea after that how much it will cost," he added.

Currently, 72 percent of the subdivision's property owners pay $135 a year, in three $45 payments, for snow removal and road grading. The subdivision pays an additional $3,000 to $4,000 a year for road work from its dues, he said.

Man charged in theft

A 21-year-old Clarkston man faces charges of stealing beer from the Sunshine Food Store, Dixie Highway, Springfield Township.

Barry Keith Parker of Holcomb Road had a preliminary exam before Oakland County District Court Judge Gerald E. McNally Feb. 3.

He was bound over to circuit court for arraignment Feb. 21 before Judge Richard Kuhn, according to a court spokesperson.

Conviction carries a maximum four years in jail.

Arrest mars wedding

While celebrating with family just days after his wedding, 18-year-old Jeffrey Gribble was arrested by deputies from the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

The Whipple Lake Road, Independence Township, resident has been charged with breaking into an occupied dwelling with intent to commit larceny.

Conviction carries a maximum 15 years in prison. Gribble was arraigned before Oakland County District Court Judge Gerald E. McNally last week, and is scheduled for preliminary exam Feb. 10. He is free on $1,000 personal bond, according to a court spokesperson.

"I know (the police) came in with search warrants while the party was going on in the basement," the spokesperson said.

From a Pontiac pawn shop, police recovered a TV stolen in the break-in of a Whipple Lake Road home. Gribble allegedly showed his driver's license to the shop owner, the spokesperson said.

Gribble has asked for a court-appointed attorney.

This information came from reports at the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

Race horse barn denied by board

By Marilyn Trumper

With one dissent, the Independence Township Zoning Board of Appeals denied Joe Martines' variance request to build an 8,000-square-foot, $80,000 barn for race horses.

Martines wants to relocate Martines Standard Bred Farms from Brandon Township to 33 acres on Oak Hill Road, and points to what he calls "precedent setting" approval given last year to an Allen Road resident for a 14,000-square-foot horse barn.

"Who's playing politics here?" Martines asked, following the denial before the appeals board Feb. 1. "They tell me they examine each case individually, and that's the way it should be. But I'm interested to know why they approved a barn more than half the size of my barn, when I have 13 more acres than he did."

"A number of others in the township have been approved for variances too. If you're going to discriminate, take at full value what's right or wrong."

Independence Township's zoning ordinance has a horse farm horse-to-acreage ratio: three acres for the first horse, and one horse per acre after that.

Barn size is restricted to 150 square feet per acre, up to a maximum 1,500 square feet.

Under those guidelines Martines can have up to 26 horses, but must house them in a 1,500-square-foot barn.

"A 1,500-square-foot barn will house three horses comfortably," Martines said. "I want to put up a 7,500- to 8,000-square-foot barn and with an adjacent 3 acres not factored into this, I can have as many as 30 horses."

"To think you could put them into 1,500 square feet is ridiculous," he said.

Acting appeals board Chairman Roy Haeusler was the lone dissenter in the 3-1 vote.

"You can't put 26 horses in a 1,500-square-foot barn. There's not enough room," Haeusler said.

"I voted not to deny, although I did take into consideration the concerns of a couple, his neighbors, who didn't want him to have 26 horses. But he's allowed that under the ordinance. They were concerned he was going to be operating a commercial business too."

The neighbors could not be reached for comment.

Martines doesn't deny the race horses are his bread and butter.

"I own trotters and pacers, strictly for racing. They're worth between $20,000 and $100,000 in value each. Certainly it's a business. But they don't race here."

"It's no different than if I were to farm this land with potatoes and sell them on the corner. I can do that under this zoning."

"And if I can't build the barn, I'll have to subsidize the land for subdivisions to protect my investment," Martines said.

To smooth the discrepancy between the number of horses allowed compared to the maximum barn size, a joint study session of the appeals board and planning commission has been ordered, but not yet scheduled, according to Director of Building and Planning Kenneth Delbridge.

"They're analyzing it to see if they can come up with a recommendation on how to handle large structures like the one he proposed," Delbridge said.

Township Board Trustee Lawrence Kozma, an appeals board member, opposed the barn, citing the strict letter of the law. He was not on the appeals board when the Allen Road barn variance was approved.

"And I never would have approved it," Kozma said after the meeting. "The procedure is to grant a variance only when there's a hardship or the applicant can prove practical difficulty.

"He's done neither. You can't grant that variance and not violate the spirit of the law."

Kozma offered an example.

"Say someone has a stand of 100-year-old oaks on his property, a valuable resource to the township as well as to the developer."

"He wants to put up a sign, but under our ordinance would have to cut down 20 percent of the stand to meet the height and size requirements. He goes before the ZBA and says he has a practical difficulty, and would like a variance of 10 feet to save the trees. That's what the ZBA is for," Kozma said.

Before an appeal to circuit court, Martines says he'll wait to see if the ordinance is amended as a result of the study session, and reapply for the barn under a new law.

Windows help

Few taxpayers have the occasion or opportunity to evaluate the impact of the proposal at school, but you can easily simulate the effect at home: a 4-by-6-foot window in a 25-by-35-foot classroom is the equivalent of a 2-by-4-foot window in your 15-by-20-foot room.

Block out all your window area except a 2-by-4-foot space and you have your only source of daylight and fresh air even in midsummer—for the next 20 years.

Remember...no air conditioning because that will decrease the money saved!

Clarkston High School Varsity Wolves 54, Waterford Mott 27

Feb. 3—The Wolves start the game flat and are unable to score as they lead only 7-6 after the first quarter. Then the Wolves gain control and make a rout of it in the second quarter—and the rest of the game. Erik Kline leads with 14 points. Dave Jokisch tosses in 12, and Chris Bruce and Craig Kulaszewski each hit for seven. The Wolves up their record to 4-1 in the league and 11-3 overall.

Clarkston High School Junior Varsity Wolves 60, Waterford Mott 39

Feb. 3—The junior varsity also wins big over the Corsairs as Kevin Pitcher leads the charge with 17 points, Matt Riddle and Brian Lewis pump in 11 points each. The Wolves raise their record to 9-5 with the victory.

Sashabaw Junior High Cougars Cougars 77, Brighton 67

Feb. 2—The defensive press causes many turnovers for Brighton that result in points for the Cougars. Keith Mercier and Jeff Billig each pump in 17 points, Jim Hall adds 16 and Joe Hamlin 15. The victory pushes the Cougars' record to 6-5.

Cougars 47, Lake Orion 42

Jan. 31—After trailing 20-16 at halftime, the Cougars put more pressure on Lake Orion and take the lead for good in the third quarter.

Wolves move back into first Victory over Mott ties Clarkston with Pontiac Northern

By Dan Vandenhemel

The Clarkston Wolves' basketball game with Waterford Mott was not expected to be an important one.

Clarkston had beaten the Corsairs twice this year, by 30 points each time. They won the Feb. 3 encounter with the Corsairs handily, 54-27, but this time the victory moved the Wolves back into a tie for first place in the Greater Oakland Activities League (GOAL).

Pontiac Northern, who beat Clarkston 51-50 last week to take over first place in the league, lost to Lake Orion 64-59 the same night.

"We're back in first place," Wolves' coach Dan Fife said. "We can win the league if we win the rest of our games, and no one at the start of the season expected us to do that."

The win pushed the Wolves record to 4-1 in the GOAL and 11-3 overall. Mott has not won in 14 games this season.

Clarkston led, 28-12, at halftime and the only reason for that was a switch in defense for the Wolves.

"In the second quarter we started to press them," Fife said. "That was the difference in the game. We took it to them and they were turning the ball over."

As for the players, they looked as if they wanted to be home watching television instead of playing the game.

"We were flat, we missed shots and turned the ball over. We just didn't have any intensity," Fife said. "There's not much to talk about in this game except that we won."

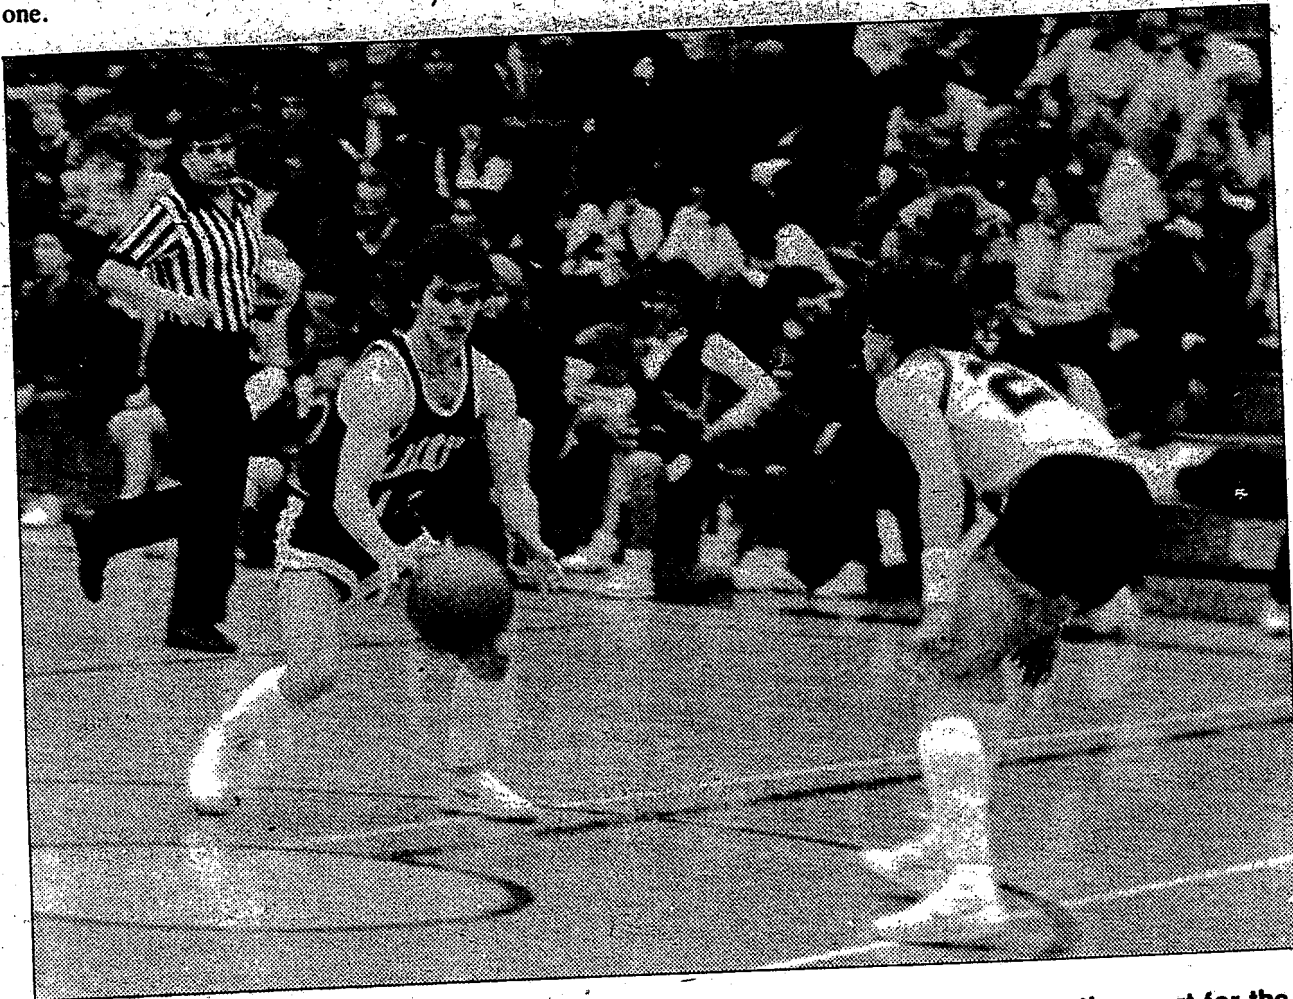

Erik Kline accounted for 14 points and Dave Jokisch added 12 for the Wolves. Chris Bruce and Craig Kulaszewski each tossed in seven points in the victory.

This was a good game for Fife to air out the bench. All 14 players saw action and 10 of them scored.

Guards Doug Colling and David Ladd came off the bench in the second half and never stopped running.

"When Ladd and Colling are in there, I can expect a lot of steals," Fife said. "They (the opposition) better take care of the ball because they are going to come after them. They are always intense."

"We're trying to develop some kind of consistency," he said. "We didn't have any in this game, but we still won."

Nice and easy, that's the way the Clarkston Wolves beat Waterford Mott, 54-27. Here guard

David Ladd brings the ball up the court for the Wolves in the second half.

Clarkston wins 15-2, 15-11

By Dan Vandenhemel

The gym is a familiar setting for many players and for a number of coaches.

The Clarkston Junior High School gym is a factor for both teams that are in a contest. Sometimes in a physical sense, others just in the mind.

When the Clarkston Wolverines met the Sashabaw Cougars in a volleyball match at Clarkston Feb. 6, the gym played a part in the match.

The Wolverines won, 15-2 and 15-11, with a consistent team performance. The Cougars, on the other hand, were not in the first game mentally.

"We didn't play well at all," said coach Sue Koslosky after the match. "It wasn't the gym's fault that we didn't play well, but in no other place is it as noisy or the gym such a factor. It doesn't bother just volleyball, but every sport."

Most of the small crowd of 60 people were followers of Clarkston and they let everyone know who was their favorite team. Cheers and screams echoed around the gym each time Clarkston did something right.

While the Cougars were busy trying to get organized in the first game, Sandy Lovelady was serving nine straight points to build the Wolverine lead to 13-2.

The second game, Sashabaw was ready and the momentum switched to their side with a solid spike by Jessica Shoup. That tied the score at 6-6. The Cougars built a lead of 10-7 before strong serving for Clarkston took over.

Missy O'Dell's serves were shot from a cannon and Sashabaw wasn't able to return many.

"Missy is a very good player," Wolverine coach Sally Lindeman said. "I wouldn't want to be in the way of her spike. But she isn't always that deadly."

Though the statistics do not show it, Sashabaw also served well.

"We didn't miss too many serves," Koslosky said. "Kelly Laidig did a good job and so did Amy Ashton at setting, but we just didn't play well."

"We've scrimmaged them (CJH) three times already this year and have won all three times," she added. "Maybe next time will be different."

Pine Knob tackles injuries

By Dan Vandenhemel

A snowy winter is the best way to bring people out of the house and onto the ski slopes.

This is one of the better winters for skiing in the area but as more people hit the hills, the chance of injuries increase.

Pine Knob Ski-Resort is taking the precaution of avoiding injuries by plowing down moguls and jumps on the hills during the week, and by not allowing jumping.

"(Moguls and jumps are) down periodically during the week each season," said Mike Lents, ski hills manager. "Skiers replace the moguls just by making their turns. They plow the snow in certain areas."

Lents said they are not grooming the hills any more than normal but there have been more complaints about the jumps.

"Some kids have gotten hurt on the jumps," Lents said. "We've threatened to take away lift tickets for the day, and we have."

Ski Patrol director Rob Bogardus said the number of injuries has gone down since moguls and jumps have been plowed.

"I really don't know if that is the reason or not but there are less accidents," he said. "But the grooming is driving kids to 'the Wall' and that is causing some trouble."

The wall is the common name for face of the resort's highest hill.

Last year at this time, Bogardus said they had about 300 injuries. This year the number is around 200.

Bowling as business venture rolls along

By Dan Vandenhemel

Bowling can be looked at two different ways: as a sport or as a business.

For Ted and Sheree Karbownik of Columbia Road, Independence Township, it's both.

The couple, along with Dave Cook of Waterford, are the directors of the ABT, the Amateur Bowlers Tour.

The ABT is a tournament in the Detroit area for any bowler with a 189 average or less. To date, there are over 450 members of the association.

Ted, 30, a current member of the Professional Bowlers Tour (PBA), said he thought the ABT would be a good investment.

"We're trying to run it as a business, just like the PBA," he said. "I talked to the national (ABT) director to see if we could get a franchise here. He thought the club should branch out and Detroit is one of the top two or three cities in the country for bowling."

The tournaments started in October 1983, just three months after the couple returned from living in California.

"We were there for 19 months," said Sheree, 26. "Ted got laid-off here, and he knew he could get a job in a bowling center out there. It was tough at first. It was a big change in life-styles."

California is where Ted discovered how popular the ABT is.

"When I worked on the tour out there, they had 470 bowlers every week," Ted said. "Last month's tournament for us was the highest ever, with 294. California was a heck of a training ground to run one of these."

When the ABT opened in October, there were just 55 bowlers vying for a guaranteed prize fund of $2,683. With yearly dues of $25 and entry fees of $25 per tournament, for the first few tournaments much of the money came out of the Karbownik's pockets.

"The potential is great of being a big money investment," said Sheree. "The membership has almost doubled since the start. Only now are we starting to make some money."

Fifty-hour work weeks are not uncommon for the Karbowniks.

"During a tournament week, we're lucky if we see each other 10 hours that week," Sheree said of her husband of two years. "When there is no tournament it's more normal, but we make a point of taking a day off."

Pro skiers due here

The hills of Pine Knob Ski Resort are going to be attacked by world class professional skiers at the end of February.

The third and final race of the Stroh Signature Pro Series will be run at Pine Knob Feb. 25, 26 with the winner receiving $10,000.

Race organizers held the first two races in the Chicago area. Over 60 skiers are expected to take part in the event.

"They contacted us to see if we wanted to hold the race," said ski hill manager Mike Lents. "Of course we said yes. Since this is the final race in the series, they will present the overall trophy at the end of the day."

Lents said the slalom course race is open to anyone for an entry fee of $48. Qualifying races start Friday, Feb. 24, at 10 a.m. with the semifinals on Saturday at 10 a.m. The finals on Sunday should start by 1 p.m.

Admission and parking are free for the event. For more information call the Pine Knob Ski Resort at 625-0700.

Ted and Sheree Karbownik look over some paper work for their Amateur Bowlers Tour. The Independence Township couple began their business venture in October.

Inner turmoil cancels CHS pompon season

By Dan Vandenhemel

Friction between the Clarkston High School pompon sponsor and squad members has forced principal Dom Mauti to cancel the remainder of the season, he said.

Cheryl Seelbinder, a Spanish teacher at the school, resigned last week as the sponsor.

"When we lost the coach, we decided to terminate the squad," Mauti said. "They had some internal problems and she (Seelbinder) had a rough time coordinating the girls and getting their cooperation."

The group was organized last spring with 16 members. Seelbinder agreed to take the position as coach after the girls had been picked for the team.

"It was a mess from the start," she said. "I came

"...but nobody thought about personalities."

—Therese Lederman

in after the start and tried to do things differently. I took it then because no one else would."

The majority of the problems occurred when Seelbinder tried to set up rules for the girls to follow.

"She put some rules on paper and wanted us to sign it, like a contract," said squad captain Sheila Adkins. "Some of the girls really lost respect for Miss Seelbinder. There wasn't much else she could do except quit. I was kind of relieved when Mr. Mauti terminated the rest of the season."

Seelbinder said most of the problems came from just a couple of the 16 girls on the squad at the start of the season.

"A few spoiled it for the rest," she said. "Some of them didn't respect me. I had a lot of problems with authority."

Mauti said the pompon squad has had its share of problems. Over the last seven years, there have been five different sponsors.

"We've had a great amount of difficulty with the pompons in the past, and probably before that," he said. "I think the season is just too long."

Therese Lederman, a senior on the squad, also said the length of the season had something to do with the problems.

"We started way back in the spring," she said. "The squad was picked on talent, showmanship and grades, but nobody thought about personalities."

"I can see their point of view to cancel the rest of the season," she said. "There was a lot of friction on the team, but it still hurts to have to program canceled like that. There are a lot of innocent people on the squad, but we all let it get out of hand."

Up My Alley

Once again

By Dan Vandenhemel

Ho-hum.

The thought of owning a car sounds less and less appealing.

Yes, my car broke down again for the zillionth time.

Why is it the time you need the car the most it dies. This time, it was the transmission for the third time.

I can't understand it. There are only 121,643 miles on the little thing.

While backing out of a parking space at Oakland University, I reached toward the floor shifter to put the car in drive and I heard a clunk.

Maybe it was a clank.

I don't know, all I know is that the stupid thing was stuck in drive.

That means, no reverse, no park, no neutral, just straight head.

My problems really didn't begin until on the way to work. I realized that I couldn't turn the engine off because there was no way to start it—not being park or neutral.

After getting to work totally depressed I made a few dozen phone calls. First the transmission shop that did the work the first time.

All he wanted me to do was drive the car to the shop so he could look at it.

Hey, no problem. I'll just leave work early on deadline day and push the car 40 miles to the shop, since, you know, the engine won't start.

Well, he still wanted to work on it himself.

He suggested getting the pile of rust to a service station to have them start it. Then I could drive it to Mt. Clemens and put the keys under the front door of the shop.

Maybe I should leave the keys on top of the hood so someone, anyone, could steal it—please.

They'd look at it, decide it was beyond repair and push it into Lake St. Clair.

That would be fine with me as long as I got the one thing from the car that is worth something—the bumper sticker I received for Christmas:

"This is NOT an abandoned car."

Mural adds color to CHS

By Kathy Greenfield

The man who walks into the Clarkston High School lobby with arms full of camera equipment wants to know where the wrestling team is.

Ken Temple pauses between paint strokes and tells him.

Later someone else arrives and wants to know if Ken's seen someone with cameras. He, too, is given directions.

Ken laughs. Such is the fate of the mural painter—during the long hours of work he also serves as an information center.

A CHS senior, Ken began work on the mural three weeks before Christmas break. With semester exams finally out of the way, he began again two weeks ago and expects to finish this week.

The work of art says Clarkston Wolves and features a stylized wolf, an original by Ken. Following the school colors, the backdrop is bright gold and the letters and wolf are mostly blue.

When finished he'll have spent about 60 hours of his own time on the project.

Ken became involved at the request of the CHS Student Government.

"They knew I was interested in art. They asked if I had any ideas, so I gave them an idea," Ken says. "Then they asked me if I wanted to do it. I said, 'Yes.'"

Student government paid for new blue carpeting on the wraparound seats in the lobby and the materials for the mural, and members Cathleen Ward, Chris Tisch and Amy Stark helped paint the mural's bright gold backdrop that took four coats of paint.

Although Ken hasn't decided where he wants to go to college, he knows he's interested in cartooning and political cartooning.

The mural's Wolf illustrates his talent.

Although he never before painted a mural, Ken has enjoyed the experience.

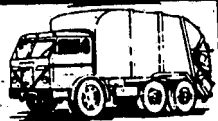

"They like it," he says about his fellow students. "It kind of builds up your self-confidence."

"I think it's nice because it will be there when I'm gone," he adds. "It will be something I've left for the school."

Trim announces he'll seek a new house seat

By Marilyn Trumper

With the election of Rudy Nichols to the state senate two weeks ago, Springfield Township's Claude Trim (R) announced he'll run to fill the vacant 20th District house seat.

When new district lines are forged April 1, the Cancer camp aid

Helping children with cancer attend the Special Days Summer Camp in near Jackson is the goal of the annual charity fashion show luncheon of the North Oakland County Medical Assistants Society.

Tickets are now on sale for $10 for the event planned Saturday, March 10, at the Deer Lake Racquet Club on White Lake Road, Independence Township. It is to begin at 11:30 a.m.

The tax-deductible donation includes the Julianne Salad luncheon and a fashion show by The Clothes Tree, Catherine's of Waterford and Foley's Uniforms.

The society is dedicating the fund raiser to the late Ginger Hyatt, a former member who helped start the camp when she had a son who suffered from leukemia.

Special Days Summer Camp was founded by Dr. George Royer, an oncologist, in 1979. It now serves about 150 children each year at a cost of $45 a week. It's free for those unable to pay.

About 50 staff members provide medical care and supervision so the children can have a typical summer camp experience with swimming, boating, horseback riding and other activities.

To order tickets for the luncheon, send a check made out to the North Oakland County Medical Assistants Society to Marsha Benedict, 3980 Midland Drayton Plains, MI 48020.

For more information, call 335-8170 during regular business hours.

20th District, now White Lake and Waterford townships, will be Independence and Waterford townships.

Springfield will be absorbed into the 60th District under Rep. Willis Bullard Jr. and will include Rose, White Lake, Highland, Milford, Lyon and South Lyon townships and three townships in Livingston County.

Mat Dunaskiss currently represents Independence and Springfield townships in what's now the 60th District. When new lines are official, he moves into Lapeer, keeping Oxford and Orion townships.

But if new lines weren't drawn, says Trim, "I would have run against Mat."

"I went to Clarkston High School. I've lived in Independence and Springfield townships all my life. It's my district, and my home."

"A lot of people said to me, 'Claude, you've got a good job. Why do you want to give it up?'"

"The answer's easy. I enjoy serving people. I want to contribute to that."

Trim has moved from his Springfield Township home to Scott Lake Road, Waterford, and says he's negotiating a purchase agreement there for a condominium in Colonial Village.

Formerly a Democrat, Trim surprised supporters last year when he switched parties and joined the GOP.

In 1982, after eight years in Lansing, Trim lost to Dunaskiss, a Republican.

Trim has since worked for General Motors Truck and Bus as a supervisor.

Current lawmakers will continue to represent their respective districts until the end of the year, Bullard said.

"But I've told local officials in Springfield Township if they need me, to call me. In reality, Mat Dunaskiss is a lame duck. At the end of the year, he'll be out of there."

Dunaskiss uses savings for all

State Rep. Mat Dunaskiss (R) saved $3,967 from his last year's $10,000 office operating budget and is sending it back to the general fund in Lansing.

In addition, the representative from the 61st District, which includes Independence and Springfield townships, said he would not accept the $1,256 pay raise granted last year by the State Officers Compensation Board, and will instead channel it into a constituent charity fund for district residents.

"This will be the second year for that," Dunaskiss said. "It's used for people in the district with charitable cases."

In the past, the fund gave a Clarkston woman $25 when her purse was stolen; gave $200 to a needy cancer patient without medical insurance to finance a flight to Texas for treatment; gave $50 to a Springfield Township runner working toward the Olympics; and $100 to a man to help finance heart surgery.

According to Dunaskiss, each of the state's 110 representatives receives $10,000 a year to operate offices and pay for postage, stationery, general office supplies, brochures and publications.

"I have always felt that an annual stipend of $10,000 was a generous amount of taxpayers' dollars and I have always tried to use those funds wisely," Dunaskiss said. "While the temptation to flood my district with mailings and brochures is a natural part of an elected officer's job, I find such indiscreet expenses uncalled for."

Valentine's wedding—and baby!

By Marilyn Trumper

This is Pat and Larry Johnson's Valentine's Day love story dripping with sentiment and oozing with mush.

It begins with the appropriate Valentine's Day elopement in Hell, Mich., 14 years ago, and culminates with the birth of their first child two weeks shy of their wedding anniversary.

"We finally got to a point in our honeymoon where we had room for him," Larry said, pointing to two-week-old Nathaniel nestled in a yellow blanket, a thatch of dark brown hair growing up through the top.

White letters announce Larry as a "Proud Papa" on his T-shirt, above the left pocket.

"How proud am I? So proud I can't wear a shirt with buttons," he says.

Pat laughs.

She's heard it before.

They sit on the couch in their Independence Township home—holding hands like newlyweds.

"We were in college when we were married. Hell, Michigan, was one of the first places we dated, so we thought it'd be a good place to be married," she says.

Reasons for the Valentine's Day date were twofold: Pat thought it was very romantic.

Larry saw the humor potential.

"I always said it would be cold day in Hell before I got married, and it was zero degrees that day. And, I knew I'd never forget our anniversary date," he laughs.

"We almost couldn't find anyone to marry us," Pat says. "We had a 99-year-old witness. There was one of two buildings we could be married in in Hell...the gift shop and retirement home."

They chose the gift shop.

Married at the age of 19, today they're 35.

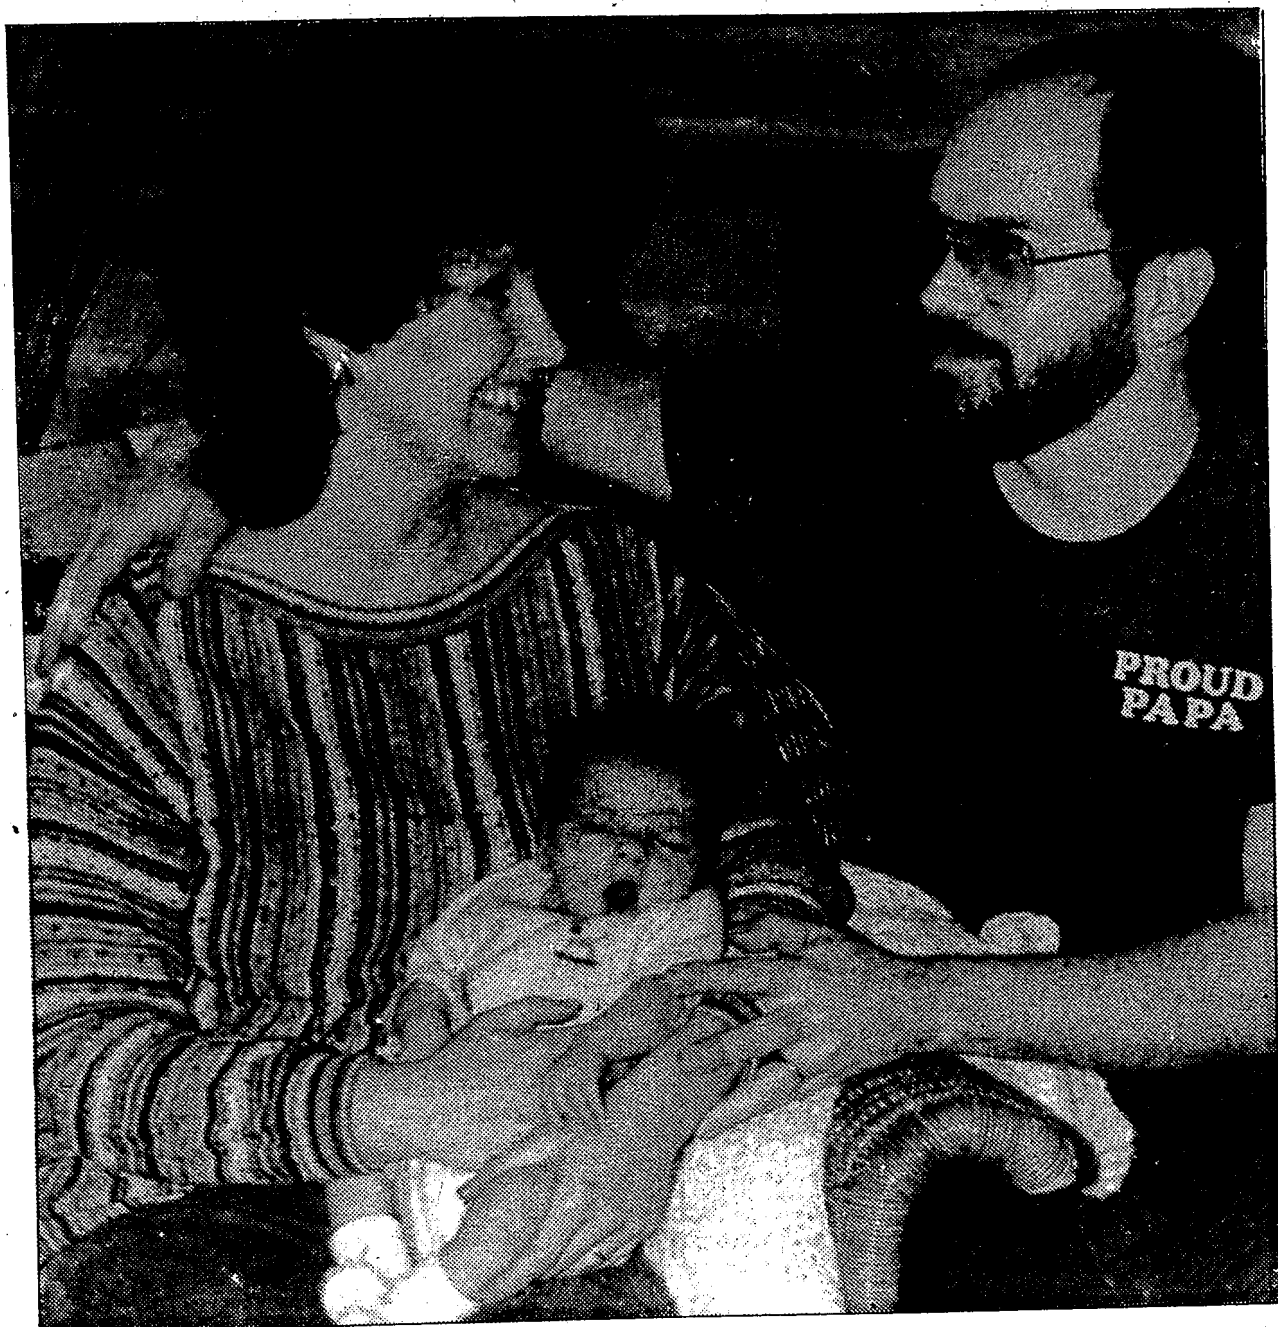

Larry teaches small engine repair for the Waterford school district. Pat's a librarian there.

"Today we're looking for a night's sleep," she laughs.

"But he's doing such a fine job of being a baby," says Larry.

Pat says she never missed the pomp and circumstance of a church wedding with flowing white dress and flowers on the pew.

"But she may get that church wedding yet," says Larry. "We're Catholics, so the church never recognized our marriage. When we have Nathaniel baptized, we're going to renew our wedding vows."

With Larry off by her side, Pat sits in a chair and holds their new son Nathaniel. The couple eloped in Hell, Mich., 14 years ago this Valentine's Day. Nathaniel was born two weeks shy of their anniversary—giving the day a special romantic twist. The Johnsons moved to their home on Greene Haven Drive, Independence Township, a year ago.

More years to come

Olneys share secret to 28-year marriage

By Marilyn Trumper

When Roger and Barb Olney wed 28 years ago, from inside a magazine they tore a shiny page featuring a wall-to-wall fireplace of orange and pink reclaimed brick.

Someday, Roger thought, I'll have that in my house.

Twenty years and seven kids later, Roger got his wish.

Were the years between tough ones?

"Not for me. Outside of his working seasonal work," says Barb. "Roger's a builder. His seasonal work was probably the most of our trials and tribulations."

"He'd work summers, long hours, unless the weather was bad. Then he'd work weekends to make up for it."

Roger remembers.

"In those days I worked between Detroit and

"You have to learn to give and take. . . " —Barb Olney

Flint, so we wanted a home somewhere in between. Clarkston," he says, "was it."

Was money tight then?

"It still is," Roger laughs. "I think it's worse now than it ever was."

Roger, 52, shucked the building trade for stability with the Kroger Company. Barb, 50, is a nurse.

Roger's help with the kids those early years was always welcome, Barb remembers.

"He would come home at night, and always bathe the kids. Woman's lib has nothing here. We've always shared the responsibility. He'd do the yard work, I'd do the cooking. I'd do the gardening, he never liked to, and he does the cars."

"We don't live in each other's pockets. I'm an independent person and so is he. But we do things together. I don't know where he is every breathing minute of the day—and the same goes for him."

Trust, Barb says, is critical to a lasting relationship, and Roger agrees.

"There's no trust in the kids today. They're very jealous," he says. "I don't think we've ever been jealous. But then, we've never given each other cause to be."

Understanding too is key, Barb says.

"But, there were a number of times I was in the dog house," Roger laughs.

They wed at the age of 22 and 23, after Roger's four-year stint in the Navy.

"I was going to travel all over the world. (Mar-

It all began in Rome

If you were celebrating Valentine's Day in ancient Rome, there would be a lot more to it than sending lacey hearts and flowers.

The forerunner of Valentine's Day, according to Dr. James Callow, director of the University of Detroit Folklore Archive, was a holiday called Luper Calia Day, celebrated Feb. 15 instead of the 14th.

On this unique day the young men of Rome, clad in nothing more than goatskin belts, ran around the outskirts of the city whipping the palms of the young women who wished to have fertility beat into them.

"I guess we should all feel relieved that such mid-February rituals have been refined to the Valentine's Day we know," said Callow.

Actually fertility is an important aspect even today. For example, in Ohio it is believed you should plant lettuce and peas in hot beds on Valentine's Day, and in the Ozark Mountains it's considered mating day for rabbits and birds.

The idea," said Callow, "is that Valentine's Day looks forward to spring in the midst of the winter doldrums."

The U of D Folklore Archive, the world's first computerized folklore collection, includes thousands of items collected every semester by students of folklore.

Since 1964, informants have been steadily enlarging and refining the archive with folklore from all over the world.

Many countries, including England, have the tradition that you will marry the first person (or the first single person) you see on Valentine's Day.

Guarding against an unwanted match, the school girls in England walk to school blindfolded on Feb. 14 until they get to a young man in whom they're interested. Then friends help them to take the blindfold off.

Birds are a popular motif on Valentine's Day, according to the Folklore Archive.

If you see a blackbird, you will marry a clergyman. A gold finch means that your spouse will be a millionaire, but a bluebird spells a life of poverty because your future mate will be far from rich.

If no birds are in sight, drop three balls of clay into a bucket of water. Each should contain the name of a likely prospect on a sheet of paper. The first one to rise will be your valentine.

Dreams are an important part of Valentine's Day lore according to the archive. They have a magic of their own and if you want to spend a night with your true love, follow one of these dream-recipes before going to bed:

Put three bay leaves under your pillow. You're sure to dream of the person you will marry.

Or boil an egg in salt water. Then eat the whole thing, shell and all.

If that doesn't conjure up your future spouse, it might help to add some audio-appeal. Try reciting this piece of folk-verse.

"Good Valentine be kind to me, in a dream let me my true love see."

Eggs are widely recognized around the world for the important roles they play in the serious business of courtship and marriage.

Unmarried Polish and Hungarian girls used to give eggs, sometimes by the dozens, to their boyfriends. In Macedonia engaged couples exchange eggs as gifts. Russians and Indonesians used eggs at their marriage ceremonies.

If you're hounded by an unwanted valentine, however, relief may be only a salt shaker away.

Salt, according to folk wisdom, can quiet a storm, bless a new house, cure an earache, and—get rid of unwanted visitors.

"Just throw some salt under the chair of an unwanted suitor," said Callow. "Or better yet stand a broom upside down in the doorway. This might be a little more direct approach."

A few modern-day tidbits from the folklore archive include Valentine's Day, 1981, when the famous Barbizon Hotel for Women in New York opened its doors to men for the first time, breaking a 54-year-old tradition of no men allowed.

One gentleman in England has made his own study of valentines—he's collected eight tons worth.

Not to discourage the romantic, there is an old Bohemian superstition that says if you receive roses on Valentine's Day, you'll never marry.

On a final note, in addition to changing rituals, customs, superstitions, and beliefs through the years, Valentine's Day has grown considerably in popularity.

The greeting card industry submits to the U of D Folklore Archive that 800 million valentines will be read this Valentine's Day.

riage) was the last thing I was going to do—and it was the first thing I did," he laughs.

"And I've got the letter to prove it," Barb smiles.

Asked for the key to successful marriage Barb becomes solemn.

"If I knew the answer to that, I'd give it to my daughters," she says.

"You have to learn to give and take. Marriage is a job you take on for the rest of your life. It isn't a cure-all. You have to work at it.

"You have to set up a life apart from either of your parents. You have to become 'we and us' instead of 'I and me.'"

"And it's sometimes hard," adds Roger.

In love 28 years, Barb and Roger Olney tell how they've done it, kept their marriage going, and raised seven kids and an aging white poodle in the interim. Behind the couple is a fireplace they vowed to build one day. Twenty years later, they got their wish.
