OCSD fingerprints 550 kids

By Marilyn Trumper

Letting some red-smocked stranger or uniformed deputy press his fingers into black ink and transfer them to a yellow card was out of the question for this toddler.

"NO! NO! NO!" cried the boy, who looked about 2 years old, his blue eyes welling with tears.

Encumbered by a bulky snowsuit and heavy moonboots, he clumped around Room 9 at Bailey Lake Elementary, wanting deputies and volunteers to fingerprint him—just like all the big kids—but afraid to be touched.

"NO! NO! NO!," he cried, his fine blond hair standing straight up with static electricity, created when grandma pulled a red stocking cap from his head.

But members of The Oakland County Sheriff Department's E.S.C.A.P.E. (Enroll in the Sheriff's Crime and Accident Prevention Education) were patient. They fingerprinted 550 pupils at Bailey Lake Elementary the better part of March 7th's afternoon.

"Neither the sheriff's department or the schools keep a record of the fingerprints. We give them to their parents for their records," said Bob Misener, in charge of fingerprinting for the OCSD.

"It's just another method of taking pictures of their children."

The workshop, including a visit from Deputy McGruff and a film, was open to all children of the Bailey Lake area.

Surprise votes

By Marilyn Trumper

Two write-in candidates battled it out at the polls Monday in an unexpected race for the open trustee seat, and Sharon Catallo with a slim five-vote margin beat Robert Sanderson.

Catallo captured 35 votes to Sanderson's 30.

She left for a 15-day vacation the day after the election and was not available for comment, according to a family friend.

All other candidates, all incumbent Republicans, ran unopposed in an election where 89 of the village's 470 voters cast ballots.

Lansing stalls POH satellite

By Marilyn Trumper

There's at least a six-month delay in the planned spring groundbreaking of Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital's proposed 100-bed satellite hospital in Independence Township, and some question whether it will get off the ground.

Part of the state's newly announced "comparative review," POH's plan is to transfer 100 beds from its downtown site to a $34 million two-story hospital at Dixie Highway and White Lake roads.

Three other major metropolitan hospitals want to build in northwest Oakland County and are competing for new bed allocations, not bed transfers. But no new beds are available, according to Joan Luecke, project review coordinator for the State Department of Public Health.

"It's a simple delay," said Jack Cruikshank, director of development and public relations for POH. "You can't compare apples to oranges, and that's what they're doing."

"We're transferring beds, not asking for new ones. And we are so confident we can work things out with the state that we haven't stopped working internally on this project. We're still determined to build in Independence Township."

According to Luecke, the county's northwest quadrant has more beds than it needs.

"To get more, they'd have to prove a need, and right now that area's going through a de-bedding process and eliminating beds. I see very little difference in what (the hospitals) are proposing," she said, disagreeing the comparison is apples to oranges."

Larry Payne of the State Department of Public Health agreed with Luecke.

"In a comparative review we try to identify need," Payne said. "If beds are to be awarded, they'll have to demonstrate need. The idea of a review is to contain health care costs—to show there is a need before building and no duplication of services."

All other applicants have until 5 p.m. April 24 to apply. The review is expected to take six months, according to Luecke.

The three other hospitals requesting certificate of needs:

- Since 1975 William Beaumont Hospital proposed a $36 million, five-story, 200-bed community hospital in West Bloomfield. It currently operates community hospitals in Troy and Royal Oak.

- Last December, Sinai and Henry Ford hospitals announced plans to build a 200-bed acute-care hospital on the 78-acre Henry Ford Hospital Edsel B. Ford Center on Maple Road in West Bloomfield.

- Finally, Huron Valley Hospital proposes an additional 100 beds to its proposed $44 million, 153-bed hospital in Commerce Township.

Named North Oaks Community Hospital, the proposed Independence Township site is designed for inpatient and outpatient surgical services, radiology, laboratory, pharmacy, physical medicine rehabilitation, outpatient walk-in service, 24-hour emergency care and community health programs.

- Sheriff's log -

Wednesday, thieves stole firewood from a yard on Hadley Road, Independence Township.

Friday, thieves broke into a garage on Sashabaw Road, Independence Township, and stole tools.

- Correction -

A story in last week's Clarkston News incorrectly stated that all members of Chris Moore's Sparks Camp Fire group attend Andersonville Elementary. In fact, Jason Moore attends Springfield Christian Academy and Stacy Simmons is a preschooler.

Oak Hill horse barn nets township approval

By Marilyn Trumper

After garnering a special land use and site plan approval from the Independence Township Planning Commission, Joe Martines says he'll pull a building permit this week for his $80,000, 8,000-square-foot horse barn on Oak Hill Road.

"As soon as the ground thaws, we'll start the track," Martines said. "We'll begin Martines Standard Bred Farms in Independence Township."

Martines plans to move his Brandon Township horse farm to 33 acres in Independence Township where he'll raise pacers and trotters, each worth between $20,000 and $100,000.

"I'm in complete favor of how they do things before a board for evaluation," he said of the planning commission's March 8 meeting. "If what I went through is any indication of what the guy next door might have to go through, then I'm in favor of it because I know nothing below standard will be accepted."

Under the township horse-to-acre ratio, Martines is allowed 26 horses, but only a 1,500-square-foot barn to house them in. He sought a variance to allow the 8,000-square-foot barn.

The planning commission approved the plan with the following restrictions: the barn must face the acreage, not the road; the horse farm's sign must not exceed six square feet; the maximum number of horses is 26; and Martines must reappear before the commission for approval to construct more out-buildings.

Commission member Carol Balzarini was the lone dissenter, and after the meeting explained.

"When Neil (Chairman Neil Wallace) made the motion for special land use approval, he put a lot of restrictions on it. It wasn't simple. It was complicated. But I went along with it," Balzarini said.

"But then when he made the motion for final approval he made it very complicated again, and I felt it was unusually complicated. I voted more against making the motion being complicated than against the barn.

"I like it," she said. "And I think it's great to have something like that out here."

Board adopts new clause in pension plan

By Marilyn Trumper

For their first five years on the payroll, newly-hired non-union, non-elected employes at Independence Township Hall will be paying into the pension plan just like union employes.

The board unanimously adopted the policy, retroactive to April 1, 1983, at its March 6 meeting, according to Clerk Richard Holman who spearheaded the change.

"The idea is they'll be paying 5 percent of their base salary to the pension program the first year, and the township matches that. It works on a sliding scale so the next year they'll pay 4 percent, and the township 6. The next year 3 percent, and the township 7, until after five years, the township's paying the full 10 percent."

According to Holman, the change is designed to save the township money.

In the past, Independence Township paid the full 10 percent into the pension plan every year.

It's difficult to project a savings because few salaries are the same, and not everyone will remain for the full five years, Holman said.

But, as an example, he cites the vacant non-union enforcement officer's post with an $18,000 salary.

In the past where the township would have paid $1,800 a year into the non-union pension plan, it would now pay $900, he said.

Two teens assaulted after township party

A Pontiac man faces four counts of criminal sexual conduct and one charge of unarmed robbery for the kidnapping and rape of two 17-year-old Oakland County boys who gave him and another man a ride home from an Independence Township party March 10.

Charles Bruce White, 23, of Pontiac, was arraigned March 13 before 52nd District Court Judge Gerald E. McNally on the robbery and criminal sexual conduct charges. McNally set a $60,000 cash or surety bond on each charge, according to a court spokesperson.

A second suspect held in connection with the case escaped in a police car Monday afternoon from the Pontiac post. Michigan State Police are looking for David Leyraud, 23, also of Pontiac. Persons with information are asked to call 332-9132.

According to Lt. Matthew Hogan of the Michigan State Police, the two victims, whose names are being withheld, are not Independence Township residents, but were at a party in the township Saturday, March 10. At 3 a.m. White and another man allegedly asked for a ride home.

Feigning illness five minutes later, they forced the teens over to the side of the road and took control of the car, driving to an unknown location. There they allegedly forced the boys to perform sex acts with them, and each other in and out of the car, Hogan said.

Twice the boys attempted escape, running into nearby woods, but were caught and forced to lie on the ground where White and another man allegedly attempted to run them over, Hogan said.

Putting the victims back in the car, the two suspects drove until 7 a.m., parked the car and fled after telling the boys to count to 200.

Conviction of the charges is a life-felony, according to a court spokesperson.

run for president, and captured 43 votes. Home ill, she did not vote herself.

One of Eberhardt's first official acts would have been appointing someone to fill the open trustee seat captured, instead, by Catalo.

"I was tickled to death," Eberhardt said after the election. "I was tickled a couple of people wanted the job enough to try and fill it, and grateful I wouldn't have to find someone."

Clerk Norma Goyette received 62 votes; Treasurer Artemus Pappas received 69 votes; Assessor Ralph Thayer received 58 votes; Trustee Jon Gaskell received 54 votes; and Trustee Ethel Sinclair received 52 votes.

They will be sworn into office at the April 9 council meeting, according to Goyette.

Catalo made headlines last fall when the village council, determined to enforce the zoning ordinance, quashed a proposed one-time kimono sale in her Buffalo Street home. The village filed a subsequent lawsuit seeking a permanent restraining order to prohibit any proposed sale there again.

Filing for relief

Adler's Food Town Inc., dba Food Town, filed for relief from creditors with the United States Bankruptcy Court Monday.

A meeting of creditors of the food store chain is set for 10 a.m. April 11 at the U.S. Courthouse in Detroit.

Food Town is asking relief under Chapter 11 which permits the debtor to continue operating their business. However, creditors are restricted from taking action against the creditor until a solution to the problem is resolved.

Food Town offices are at 39 S. Main, Clarkston.

Daryl Fox and President Ronald Reagan share a Feb. 6 birthday. Daryl sent the president a birthday card and received a birthday letter in return. Now, says Daryl, they're pals.

Presidential greeting

By Marilyn Trumper

Seven-year-old Daryl Fox doesn't know what a Republican is.

But if he could vote, the Bailey Lake Elementary student would vote to re-elect President Ronald Reagan.

"Cuz he's my pal," Daryl said, flashing a birthday letter from President Reagan, a letter that came in February's mail.

Daryl and the president share a Feb. 6 birthday. At his mother's urging, Daryl sent a card to the White House.

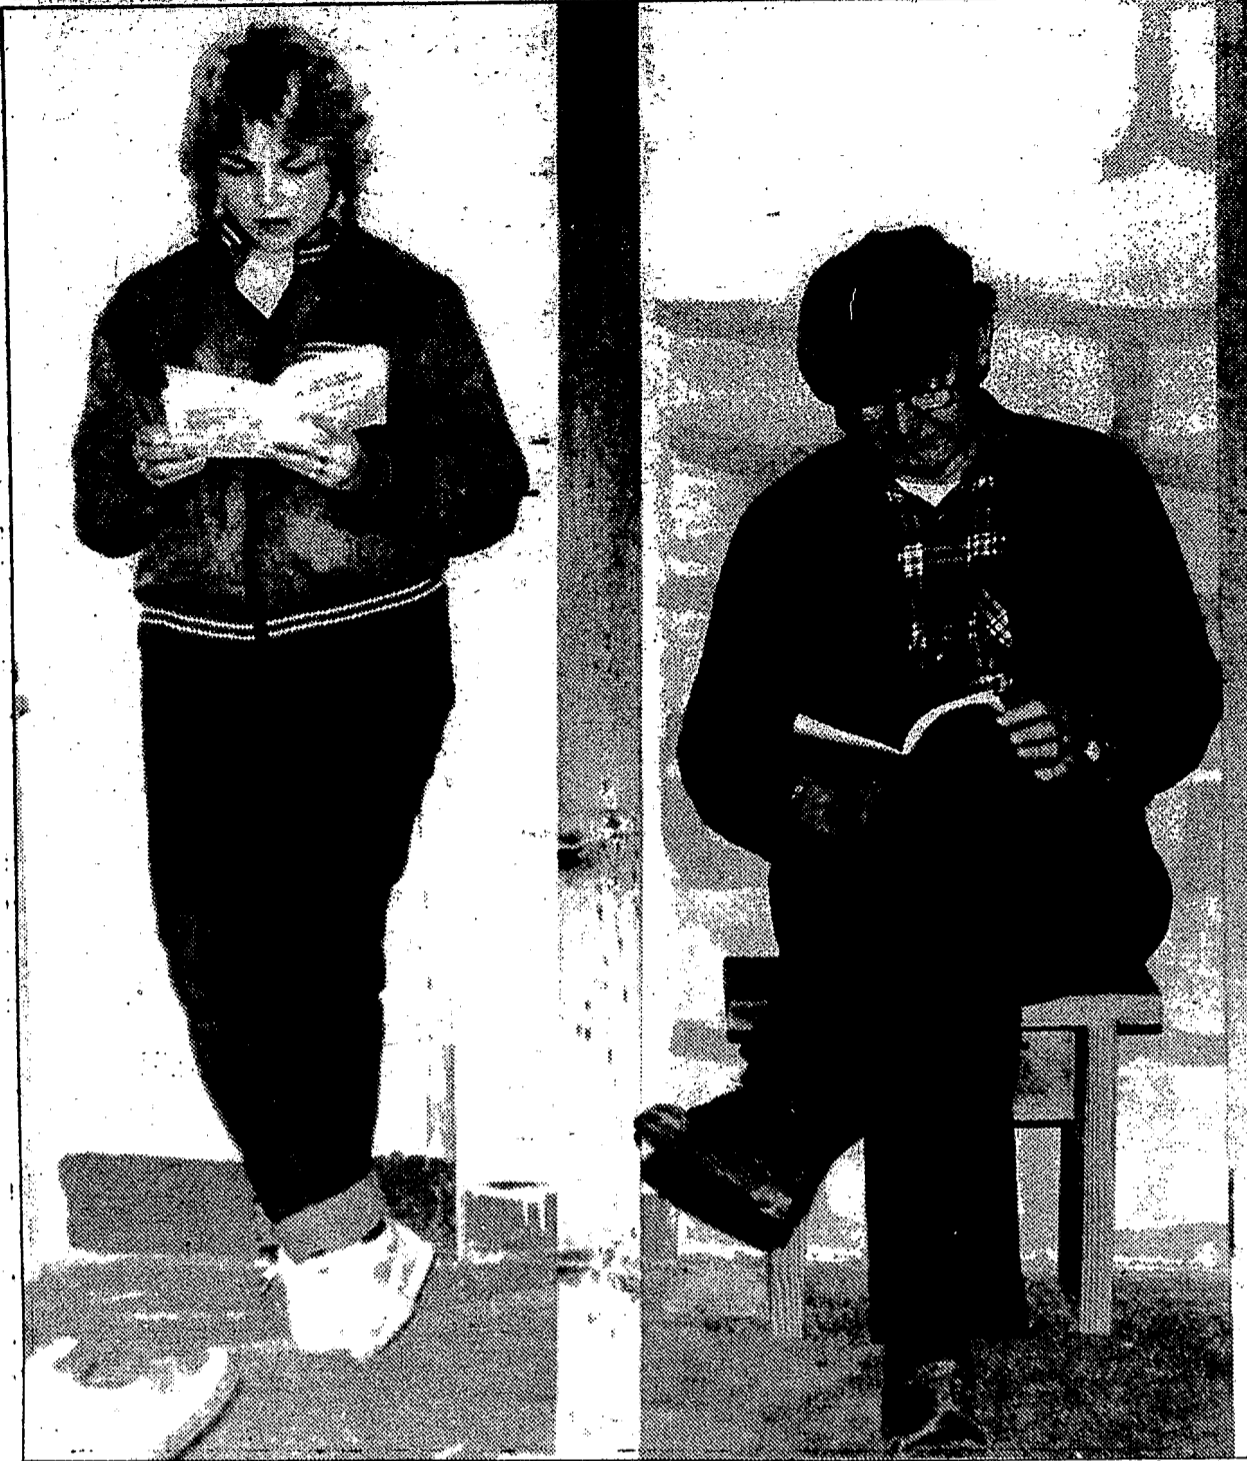

President Reagan sent one back offering Happy Birthday wishes to the Independence Township child.

"I told him that I'd be 7 this year—and good luck," Daryl said. "I was really excited (when the letter came). I didn't know what to do."

Does Daryl watch the president's press conferences or State of the Union Address?

"When (President Reagan) pre-empts Bugs Bunny, then Daryl gets upset," his mother said.

The white parchment 8 1/4-by-11 letter with the presidential seal is now on display under a sheet of plastic in a photograph book Daryl clutches to his chest.

Between their lines during a rehearsal for the dinner-theater production of "Don't Step on My Footprint" Sandy Sanford and Pete Rose follow along with their scripts.

Players gear for new production

Be more brassy, suggests Cheri Broome's fellow performers during a rehearsal for the upcoming dinner-theater production by the Clarkston Village Players.

Broome comes through with such finesse that everyone takes a break—to laugh, a perfect response for a comedy.

The Players' next production is dinner-theater fare at the Deer Lake Racquet Club, 6167 White Lake, Independence Township.

For $16 a person, playgoers receive a buffet dinner beginning at 6 p.m. and the 8 p.m. performance of "Don't Step on My Footprint," a comedy farce by Fred Carmichael.

Dinner-theater dates are Fridays and Saturdays, March 23, 24, 30 and 31.

The light-hearted farce is the story of an award-winning soap opera writer, played by Bob Arend, whose plans for a quiet weekend at a Vermont resort go awry.

Broome plays the soap's temperamental star; Marty Johnson is the soap writer's unhappy wife; Mike Kaul is his son; Pete Rose is the resort's welcome wagon person; and Nancy Osmon, the housekeeper. Arend also plays the soap writer's twin brother, and Sandy Sanford plays the twin's psychiatrist fiancée.

Broome serves as director and Denny Colwell is producer.

Tickets are for sale at Tierra Arts & Design, 64 S. Main, Clarkston, and at the racquet club by contacting Cindy Hallman at 625-6111. For more information call 363-0188.

Democracy perks up

Just when we thought the democratic process was floundering in the Village of Clarkston some sparks of interest appeared.

The village election Monday remained quiet, with only 89 voters out of the about 470 registered to vote, but write-in campaigns added a touch of excitement.

All village council candidates were unopposed on the ballot, all were Republicans—and there weren't enough to fill out the ballot, with only two persons running for the three open trustee seats.

It was no surprise, then, when 43 votes elected Carol Eberhardt president, 62 elected Norma Goyette clerk, 69 elected Atremus Pappas treasurer, 58 elected Ralph Thayer assessor, and 54 and 52 respectively elected Jon Gaskell and Ethel Sinclair trustees.

Apparently some write-in campaigns got underway in the 11th hour, and the result was a close race for the third trustee seat with Sharon Catallo pulling into the lead with 35 votes compared to second-runner Robert Sanderson with 30.

While it would have been better if more people voted, and certainly more exciting if public campaigns were waged between all contenders, we're glad there was some interest beyond a partially filled ballot.

Food for thought

Kathy Greenfield

It's fascinating, don't you think, the way people remember similar incidents from their childhoods and come up with strikingly different conclusions.

The other day after watching someone, I'll call him Sam, dump several containers of cream and some sugar in carryout coffee, I remembered grandma.

The conversation went something like this: "Sam," said I, "when you were little did your grandma fix you coffee that was really almost all milk?"

"Huh?" said Sam.

I didn't give up.

"Your grandma," I said, "Did she ever fix you coffee to have with the adults that was really milk with just a tiny bit of coffee?"

"Yeah, yeah, yeah," said Sam. "My grandma did that, too. Hooked me on coffee when I was just a little kid. She dumped all that sugar and coffee into my milk and made coffee essential to being an adult. I didn't have a chance."

I laughed.

"I can't believe this," I said. "Here I am trying to share a fond memory and you make it sound like a conspiracy."

He laughed too.

I know from previous conversations that Sam has plenty of fond memories about his grandmother, just as I do. We both grew up with what is now called an "extended family," an increasingly precious commodity.

But I never before connected drinking coffee with what happened all those years ago following Sunday dinners at my grandparents' home.

My grandmother also made the world's best jelly-filled raised donuts and wonderful fried cakes.

It's all beginning to make sense.

Keep prayer cartoons out

I have just gone through the latest issue of The Clarkston News, and came upon the cartoon about prayer in the schools.

Although I usually enjoy the cartoons in this paper, this one has made me regurgitate.

Of all the subjects the cartoonist has a chance to pick, he picks one with little children and a simple-looking teacher.

This is an insult to the teachers in the Clarkston schools and the children they are trying to keep in line.

This also puts the cartoonist in the same alley as Johnny Carson, when he pulls his lousy jokes on the president of our country.

If the cartoonist wants to get some real dander up, instead of what is supposed to be humor, ask him to send a copy of this cartoon to President Reagan and ask him to cut out the invocation that is said each time Congress meets.

Then the whole country will go to hell, instead of only the little kids from Clarkston schools.

Jim's Jottings

Notes

Jim Sherman

A person doesn't have to go away to have things accumulate, but the pile does increase in one's absence.

And, like your kitchen collection drawer, the items are exceedingly important.

In my case the items are notes, such as: We were really impressed with our tour of EPCOT center near Orlando. That's your hint to re-subscribe right now to be sure you don't miss my review coming up in a future issue.

You will not read about my tour of Cypress Gardens, though we walked past all the millions of flowers and plants. You will not read about it because we went in on a cold day, thus missing the $10.50 gate fee, show, souvenir shops, rides, and refreshment stands; all the things you'd want to know about.

Oh, yes, I forgot to say the vacation announced in the Feb. 29 issue was to Florida, Florida; that's the winter spelling of Michigan resident's home town. As one man from Illinois told us, "I've met so many people from Michigan I've concluded your state is vacant."

Also, in my accumulated notes was one of the U.S. Postal Service running ads recently in both Parade and Family Weekly Sunday supplements, urging consumers to bypass their local merchants (and ad media) and shop by mail order, through the various catalog houses.

Shopping by mail is coming on fast enough without the Postal Service encouraging it, assisting in the demise of small business.

Another note had to do with how long we wait in lines. For lunch we wait 2.9 years of our lives. You don't have to believe me, but you shouldn't doubt Republic Airlines. That's what I compiled this data.

We spend 3.7 years waiting in banks, 3 years at movies, 6.5 years in supermarket checkout lines, and 7.3 years in line at public rooms.

Waiting for transportation will take up 20 years, we'll spend 23.9 years waiting for occupational advancement and, my goodness, 20.4 years waiting to use our family bathroom.

Finally, there's this important note. To prevent getting separated during a flood, some ants on the North American prairie cling together forming a big ball. The ball becomes a float, that constantly tumbles, giving each ant a turn to breathe. Amazingly, National Wildlife magazine says few ants drown. It certainly is...

Zigmund Freed's creator

Dan Ziegler: Security guard, philosopher, cartoonist

Cartoonist Dan Ziegler, 40, was born and raised in Bay City. His wife, Barbara, is originally from Pontiac, where she now teaches at Kennedy Junior High School. That's what brought them to Independence Township about eight years ago. They have two sons, Dan and Dave.

By Kathy Greenfield

Cartoonist Dan Ziegler brings his talents to the pages of The Clarkston News this week, as he introduces "Zigmund Freed."

The cartoon sprang from Ziegler's yet-to-be-published book, "A Life in the Time of Zigmund Freed," filled with philosophical statements, each accompanied by the line drawing of Zigmund.

Many were jotted down over a period of years while at work as a security guard for General Motors Truck & Bus in Pontiac.

"My job is not very stimulating," Ziegler said. "I sit around doing a lot of nothing, and I have time to think."

He'd read books on philosophy, religion and inspirational topics, then write down thoughts and put the pieces of paper in his lunch box.

"Once I cleaned out my lunch box and put all my things in a file," he said. "Finally I decided to put it together and see what I had."

From 30 or 40 originals came the inspiration for 186 statements. Most have a reincarnation theme, and while Ziegler said he's not sure if he believes in reincarnation himself, there's no doubt about Zigmund Freed.

Some examples from the book:

"This lifetime may be a breakthrough."

"Haven't we met some lifetime before?"

"This lifetime is temporarily out of order."

"I hope I get out of this lifetime before my brakes give out. I seem to be using them a lot."

"Before it's too late in this lifetime, I want to tell you that I love you."

"If you get to the next lifetime before I do, save me a window seat."

And "Maybe next lifetime I'll just stay home and watch TV."

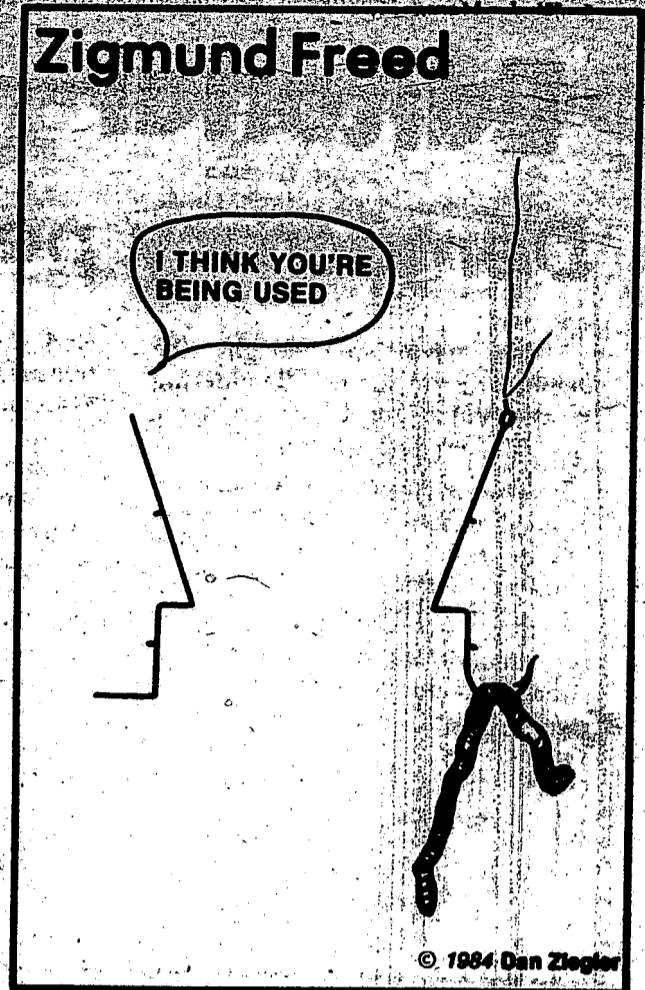

Once the statements were down, Ziegler decided he needed a character and the line-drawing was born. From there, thoughts turned to a name.

"My name being Ziegler, my nickname was Ziggy all through my life but, of course, I couldn't use that," he said. "One man at work calls me Zigmund so I thought, 'Well, I'll use that.'"

The last name, Freed, was the idea of a family member.

The proximity of the name to Sigmund Freud, the Austrian neurologist who founded psychoanalysis, is no mistake.

In the cartoons, as Zigmund Freed looks at other members of his race, his penetrating comments seem to create tell-tale clues on the other's faces, while Zigmund himself never changes.

"I'm not an artist. That's why I have to keep this guy simple," Ziegler said. "His personality, his attitude, his inner-being is much more important than what he looks like."

"He doesn't have a back on his head—that's not important. It doesn't matter how he dresses."

Zigmund has also proven therapeutic for Ziegler.

"It's been total fun, because Zigmund Freed can say things that I couldn't say, but I can say them through him," he said.

"I may have to go out in public and present myself as a very positive person, but Zigmund can say, any day, exactly how he feels."

The book and cartoons aren't Ziegler's only

Lost socks

Jim Fitzgerald

In court testimony, Jay Kogan said his wife held his laundry for ransom. Maybe that's what happens to my socks! Why didn't I think of that earlier? Why didn't my father?

One of my earliest memories is of my father telling a visitor where my mother was. "She's down in the laundry room losing my socks," he said.

Long ago it became a cliché that wives eventually lose half of every pair of their husbands' socks. Many husbands honestly believe the Bermuda Triangle was manufactured by Maytag.

I quit complaining about it several years ago, when Women's Lib became a socially acceptable cause. Every time I blamed my wife for my bottom drawer full of mismatched socks, women told me I should wash my own dumb socks. That made good sense, of course. I hate it when people who disagree with me make good sense.

I washed my own socks for two years during World War II, when I was in the Army. Sometimes I had to wash them in my helmet. I never mislaid a sock for any longer than it took to comb my hair. But, because our side won the war, it seemed fitting that I should never ever have to wash another sock. To the victor belongs the right to sleep with his laundress.

Of course, that was before the Marshall Plan,

Toyota and Volkswagen. Now I realize to the victor belongs a sock with no mate, and I thought nothing could be done about it. In the early years of my marriage, whenever I complained, my laundress denied culpability and implied the losses were somehow my fault—I dropped my discarded clothing too near the bed and perhaps I was eating my socks in my sleep.

Then came Bella Abzug and the overdue realization that there is no word such as "laundress" to describe a man who washes socks, but there are many words, many of them four-letter, to describe a man who thinks it's funny to say he sleeps with his laundress. I became reconciled to never again mentioning the mystery of my missing socks in mixed company.

HOWEVER, JAY KOGAN has prompted me to reopen the subject. He is the multimillionaire owner of an Oakland County mall. In July he was convicted of assaulting his wife, Reva, with his belt and sentenced to 300 hours of social work. He faces trial on a second charge of trying to hire a hit man to kill Reva.

Not so surprisingly, the Kogans are living apart. But a court order that ousted Jay from his $1 million-plus home also provides that his laundry be done there. And last week, in a pre-divorce-trial hearing, he testified that his wife "held my laundry for ransom" because he was late in paying her monthly $2,200 "allowance."

If I owned my own mall, I wouldn't wear the same pair of socks twice. I'd toss them out the window every night, just to impress the neighbors. But perhaps Jay Kogan is cleverly preparing a defense for his hit-man trail. A husband who can't afford to take his dirty shirts to a professional laundry probably can't afford to hire someone to kill his wife, either.

Speaking generally, without implying any specific guilt, I've never understood why extremely wealthy people don't always hire someone to do their squabbling for them. What's the sense in being rich if you can't phone rent-a-neck whenever you need something besides your waist to buckle your belt around? Also, if money were no object, I'd certainly hire a surrogate jackass to take my place in gossip columns.

But that's me, not Jay Kogan, and it's none of my business how he spends his money. I wish him well in future attempts to get his laundry done and thank him for going public with the suggestion that clothing can be held for ransom.

Through the years, I've frequently neglected to give my wife her monthly allowance, usually because I didn't have any change. Lord knows how much I owe her. If I ever pay up, lord knows how many hostage socks will be released from captivity and allowed to rejoin their lonely mates in my bottom drawer.

I always knew I didn't eat my socks in my sleep.

Board tightens loitering law

By Marilyn Trumper

Last summer, Independence Township successfully prosecuted a loitering charge against a young man who interfered with patrons freely entering and exiting Richardson's Farm Dairy at Clarkston and Eston roads.

"But there was a question at the time as to whether or not our (loitering ordinance) would be upheld," said township attorney Gerald Fisher.

Over the years several cases decided statewide invalidated the township's loitering law, forcing Independence to play catchup with amendments.

At the March 6 meeting the board reviewed Fisher's proposed changes, essentially language changes, and is expected to adopt the amendments at its March 20 meeting.

"There are those who'll argue it's your right to stand around," Fisher said. "Fine, but it's not a right to stand around and obstruct the free passage of others—and that's what this is about."

The ordinance makes it unlawful to do the following in a car or on foot:

- Obstruct or attempt to obstruct the free and uninterrupted passage of other persons or other vehicles.

- Take part in illegal conduct with loiterers.

- Be under the influence of alcohol or a controlled substance, or drink alcohol, beer or wine in a public place not licensed to sell.

- Fight with the intent of injuring, frightening or harassing.

- Climb on or remain on the exterior of a public building or structure, excluding where the public's invited, like stairs or porches.

creative endeavor. He's also written several poems, and all of them have appeared in The Clarkston News.

Whenever one was printed, he received a call from his sister-in-law, Bernice McCarrick. While it's fun to hear from Bernice, Ziegler wants feedback from others, too.

"First of all, to see if what I'm saying makes sense to anybody else," he said. "I think we all wonder about this; to see if it makes any effect on somebody else's life, gives them a smile or chuckle, gives them an idea, a new perspective."

"If any of the cartoons can do that, then I've accomplished what I set out to do."

School prayer

Al Zawacky

There is certainly no shortage of serious matters facing Congress and the nation these days. We have our growing budget deficit; an ugly and dangerous war in the Mideast, a mammoth trade imbalance and continued unrest in Central America.

Plus, there are all the old familiar problems—crime, drug abuse, urban decay, etc.

Perhaps, in the light of these woes, some time spent by each of us in prayer would be quite appropriate. But it is dismaying to see Congress, when its time could be so much better utilized, milling away hours and days debating a "School Prayer Amendment."

I CAN SYMPATHIZE with the supporters of such an amendment. Their motives, I believe, are good. They are upset by what they view as the removal of God from the schools, while literature and magazines they regard as trash (often quite rightly) remain in some public school libraries.

But pure motivations are not in and of themselves a guarantee for the creation of sound public policy. The prayer amendment sounds reasonable, but at its essence it is little more than an opportunity for politicians to engage in moral grandstanding.

If a school child wishes to say a private prayer before eating lunch or at the start of the school day, he or she can do so without fear of being dragged into court. It was never prayer per se that was removed from schools, but the institutionalized, official (and often hypocritical) praying that is capable of creating a kind of conform-or-else environment.

So why has this become one of the great issues of the day? Simply because "allowing little children to pray" makes for such compelling political oratory. Ronald Reagan has dutifully pushed the prayer amendment during its battles in Congress; there is an election coming up, and the President must mollify the Falwellian forces in his conservative coalition.

THE SUGGESTION FROM some of them is that returning official prayer to schools will somehow improve student behavior. This is wishful thinking as a high art form. A moment of silence and/or prayer will not cause a juvenile delinquent to adopt values not taught at home. Faith, reverence and good citizenship start with the parents.

As a believer and public school graduate, I know my own moral convictions did not suffer for want of a teacher to lead me in prayer. Congress, at any rate, should find better uses for its time than debating this point; it shouldn't prove too difficult.

1st-graders send good cheer

This is the house the Frey's grandson Jon drew on the greeting card he made for them in school.

By Kathy Greenfield

Bill Bonds, and George and Marian Frey have something in common.

They're recipients of batches of cards made by first-graders in Peggy Lazenby's Bailey Lake Elementary School class.

The Freys' cards were to congratulate them on moving into their new home in Independence Township. Their grandson Jonathan Dean is a member of the class.

"We were just bowled over. Teachers that are this concerned with grandparents of people in her class are really exceptional," said Mrs. Frey.

Former residents of St. Louis, Mo., the Freys moved to Independence Township 1 1/2 years ago, and lived in an apartment until their new home was built.

The welcoming notes were hand-delivered by Jon the day after they moved in. Each one had original artwork, and each child had printed the message: "I am very happy for you that you are moving into your brand new home tomorrow. I hope both of you spend many happy years together in it. Happy moving."

The first-graders make note writing a common practice, sending forth as many as four a week.

"It's to teach them not only handwriting and helping them to write letters, but it teaches them to care," their teacher said. "They're not just writing letters that don't mean something to them—not like writing something out of an English book."

From the children come a never-ending stream of ideas—they write when someone dies, loses a pet or returns from out of town.

Once they wrote to one mother's friend, and they found out the woman cried with pleasure over their caring.

They have, in turn, received thank you notes for their thank you notes, cupcakes and candy.

Recently the children decided to write to Bill Bonds, the TV Channel 7 news anchorman who has been in the hospital, and off the air.

The children dictated their get-well messages to Mrs. Lazenby, then copied them into cards they made themselves.

"They were saying things like they like to watch him on TV but a lot of times they watch cartoons, and they hoped he'd be home soon and back on TV so they could see him," Mrs. Lazenby said.

Campus Day

Classes, a guest speaker and luncheon are included in the ninth annual Campus Day sponsored by the Waterford Branch of the Association of University Women.

The day-long event for women is planned Saturday, March 31, from 8:30 a.m. to 2:45 p.m. at Pierce Junior High School, 5145 Hatchery, Drayton Plains.

The cost is $8.50.

Keynote speaker is Suzanne Reynolds, executive director of Oakland Community College Foundation and chairman of the OCC Board of Trustees.

Each participant will select four classes from a list of 28 on such topics as food, finances, hobbies and health.

The Village Bookstore on Main Street in downtown Clarkston has current books which complement many of the classes.

For more information call 623-1875. The registration deadline is March 21.

Icy practice

Braving Deer Lake's 34-degree water, deputies from the Oakland County Sheriff's Department Marine Division drop into 14 feet of cold to test new equipment and learn the latest techniques in underwater rescue. Dressed in dry suits, five divers from the OCSD and 11 others from departments throughout the county followed the frozen yellow line under the ice, disappearing into the blackness. "You keep pretty warm in those suits," said Sgt. Charles Eno, in charge of the marine division. "Your body heat forms a layer of insulation and keeps out the cold. They're dry; no water gets in. It's actually colder sitting up in the wind than it is in the water." [Photo by Marilyn Trumper]

Palulian named to low-profiled EDC

Independence Township's former building director, Timothy Palulian, was appointed by the township board March 6 to a six-year term on the Economic Development Corporation.

Palulian, who resigned the township post three years ago, lives on Clarkston Road and now manages a Stage Courts racquet club in Rochester.

The EDC, established in 1980, works to promote and control township growth by providing low-interest revenue bonds to developers.

Its only project to date has been orthodontist Charles Munk's Clarkston Professional Plaza on M-15, north of Dixie Highway.

Thanke, sports fans!

The Clarkston Wolves' spikers may have been beaten by Flint Kearsley in the state regionals, but it was not because they played badly, just Kearsley played better. The Wolves' Amy Stark

[No. 11] goes high above the net for a spike as her teammates wait for the play to continue. The regional match and season highlights can be found on Page 16.

 20 YEARS IN CLARKSTON

The atmosphere is that of a state championship as fans and players "high-five" their way around the CHS gym after the Wolves down Pontiac Northern in the opening game of the state district tournament. It's the Wolves' first victory against Northern this year.

Chiefs skin Wolves in districts

By Dan Vandenhemel

Last year it was the Indians, this year it was the Chiefs. The Clarkston Wolves have a knack of ending their basketball season by being scalped.

The Wolves bowed out of the district tournament and the season in the semifinals with the 63-58 loss to the Pontiac Central Chiefs March 8.

Last season, the Wolves lost in the regional opening round to the eventual state champions, the Flint Central Indians.

"What I'm sorry about," said Wolves coach Dan Fife after the loss to Pontiac, "is that it happens so abruptly and your season is over. We played hard but came out on the short end."

The Wolves finish with a 15-7 record. They gave the standing-room crowd of 1,500 at Clarkston High School reason to cheer early in the game, but the vocal fans lost most of their volume midway through the final quarter.

Clarkston held a brief one-point lead in the opening quarter after battling back from a four-point deficit. Central maintained a lead the entire game.

"Central always seemed in control of the game," Fife said. "They made the big free throw. Central really played a really tough game."

The Chiefs' major weapon, Eli Parker, drew most of the attention on and off the floor. On the court, the defensive coverage by Craig Kulaszewski and Jim Acton held the 6-foot-4-inch scoring machine to just 19 points, seven under his seasonal average. Off the court, shouts from the bleachers failed to rattle him.

Johnny Orr, ex-University of Michigan basketball coach, now coaching at Iowa State was in attendance to scout Parker.

As Clarkston's defense did its work, the offense could not get on track.

"We were able to get the ball inside to David (Jokisch) in the first half against their zone, but in the second they closed in and we couldn't hit from the outside. We missed Chris Bruce in that game," Fife said.

Bruce, the Wolves' best outside shooter, suffered torn cartilage in his right knee March 2 against Pontiac Northern.

The Wolves beat Pontiac Northern for the first time this season, 57-46, in the district's opening round March 6.

"I'm really proud of the way the kids bounced back against Northern," said Fife. "I'm as proud of them as any team I've had for the way they responded.

"We would have liked to win the GOAL. We would have liked to win the district. But I can't ask for more from this team. I'm happy with the season."

Lift-a-thon set for CHS

Weights will be hoisted, and money will be raised at the Clarkston High School March 17.

Students and alumni plan to pump iron in a effort to improve the school's weight room and training room.

Last year, lifters recorded $3,656.85 in pledges from the community.

"We would like to remodel the training room," said CHS teacher and football coach Walt Wyniemko. "We had a good time last year."

Wyniemko added that people interested in pledging money can do so at the high school office. (625-0900)

The lift-a-thon starts at noon in the high school gym.

Sports

Fans sit stunned after the Wolves loss to Pontiac Central in the district semifinals in Clarkston. Over 1,500 people packed into the CHS gym and watched the Wolves end their season.

CHS spikers bow from regionals

By Dan Vandenhemel

The Clarkston Wolves do not have anyone to blame for the regional semifinal loss to Flint Kearsley—except Kearsley.

The Wolves played virtually mistake-free volleyball March 10 in Flint, but the Hornets did even better. In losing 7-15 and 6-15, Clarkston was never really in the match that ended their season.

"They just outpowered us," Wolves' coach Nancy Foster said. "It wasn't just their big girl, it was the whole team. That's why they are rated second in the state.

The Hornets' "big girl" is 6-foot-2-inch junior Karen Histed. When she went up to hit the ball, there was little doubt it would be to the floor.

"She really hurt us," Foster said. "When she was in the front row, she was deadly. If her hit wasn't right at somebody, we didn't have a chance."

The Wolves fell behind in the first game, then fought back to knot the game at 7-7 before Kearsley took over. The second game belonged to the Hornets.

"When we tied it up, I thought we'd get back into the game," Foster said. "They took over; they took control of the game. They really had control the whole day. You had a feeling they were going to win.

"In the second game we had better passing but our hitters weren't as aggressive. I think the kids got excited and forgot some of the things we had been working on during the week."

The Wolves finished their season with a 26-5 record. The Hornets went on to beat Midland Dow for the regional title and have a 43-2 record.

During the season, the Wolves accomplished many things they set out to do: they won the Greater Oakland Activities League title, the district title, the Lake Orion tournament and made the semifinals in their own and the Andover tournaments.

"I think they played up to their potential," Foster said. "I knew we had a good team at the start of the season. They all got along so well, too, and that helped."

Another plus for the Wolves was the strength of the bench. Of the 11 players on the team, seven received votes for the most valuable player from their teammates. Kim Lorenz won the honor of MVP, while Roseann Hiriensen was the most improved player.

"We didn't have any standout players," Foster said. "Everyone had a role and they did it very well."

The rest of the district champion Wolves' team are seniors Amy Stark, Denise Giroux, Lisa Ashton, Kris Tisch and Beth Chartier; and juniors Wendy Learmont, Laura Hurren, Beth Springer and Tricia Butler.

Hoopsters come back strong

Disciplinary actions hit team

By Dan Vandenhemel

No one figured Springfield Christian Academy would pose much of a threat on the basketball court early in the season when disciplinary actions hit the team.

Shortly after the season started, four players were kicked off the team for the remainder of the season.

But the team came out of an early slump to win eight in a row, and finish the season tied for the Wolverine Christian Conference title with an overall record of 14-6.

"We never expected this," said first-year coach Jim Slayton. "We have rules here at school and the four players had to learn. Three of them were starters and the other was our sixth man."

Their season ended Feb. 24 with the close 44-41 loss to Calvary of Midland in the state playoffs.

Last year, the team had an outstanding season and qualified for the national tournament. They wound up with a 23-5 record, the conference, state, and regional titles.

"We were in the top eight teams in the nation," Slayton said. "It was just a fantastic year."

"I've learned a lot this year on the varsity level," he added. "So have the players. I've really enjoyed this season."

Providing most of the points was senior Brian Bullock. He averaged 21 points a game and 13 rebounds.

"He was the best overall we had," Slayton said. "Our other starters did a good job too."

The starters were seniors Tom Cox and Rich Sanders, sophomore Bryan Batten and freshman Jim Adams.

Award arrives after summer full of riding

By Dan Vandenhemel

It is the dead of winter, not exactly the time of year a person is thinking about riding a horse, but it is the perfect time to hand out awards.

Stephanie Brown, a 16-year-old junior at Clarkston High School, just received her reserve champion ribbon from the Michigan Horse Association.

She and her horse, Smokey Ransom, did well enough in last summer's shows to win the second-place overall award.

"I only rode in four shows that count for the points," said the Allen Road, Independence Township, resident. "And I only missed first by a few points; I think it was six."

There are eight to 10 shows a year for the association. Stephanie also rides with the equestrian team at Clarkston High School, in 4-H shows and at the Michigan State Fair, where she was grand champion two straight years.

The latest colorful red and yellow ribbon will be placed in her room with the rest of her awards—if there is space.

She has so many ribbons and trophies she stopped counting. "I don't really know, a lot," said Brown in response to "how many?"

She has been showing horses the past four years and has been on Smokey, a half-Arabian all those years.

"I didn't like him at first," Brown said of the horse. "But I got used to him. I try and ride once a day or at least every other day. I just like horses. I have since I was little."

Horse shows take the Brown family all over the state, up to twice a month.

Brown is eligible for the national finals in Lexington, Ky., this year.

"I don't know if I'll be able to go, something else might come up," Brown said. "We did start last year great by winning the 13th Regional. We took a grand champion there."

The "we" are Brown and the horse, and Brown said she plans to ride as long as she can.

Smokey is well taken care of by Stephanie Brown. Brown, with the help of Smokey, just received a reserve champion award from the Michigan Horse Association.

Deadline nears

Saturday, March 17, is the last day to sign up for junior baseball, youth softball and soccer with the Independence Township Parks and Recreation Department—without paying a late fee.

From Monday, March 19, through Friday, April 6, the $5 late fee will be added, and no more registrations will be taken after April 6.

Fees for junior baseball and youth softball are $20 for the first child, $5 for the second child in the same family and $3 for each additional child.

For soccer, the fees are $24 for one child, $40 for two and $50 for three or more.

Registrations are taken from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays at the parks and recreation department office, downstairs at Independence Township Hall 90 N. Main, Clarkston.

Special hours are scheduled Saturday, March 17, from 9 a.m. to noon.

Teacher appeals Bailey Lake hours to PTA

By Marilyn Trumper

Bailey Lake Elementary students in the after-school Enrichment classes lose their zip by 3 p.m., says French teacher Jeanette Sanders.

Their day starts at 9:20 a.m., school's out at 4 p.m. and the bus get them home by 5 to 5:30 p.m.

So the kids are pooped-out for Enrichment classes that begin at 4:30 p.m., she says.

Sanders took her plea for earlier dismissal to the school's PTA, which promises to have William Dennis, district transportation director, explain the bus schedule runs at the next PTA meeting, April 3.

Clarkston school officials say the bus schedule, which allows each bus to make three runs, was adopted eight years ago when enrollment started to decline to cut expenses.

Bailey Lake, Pine Knob, and North Sashabaw elementaries begin at 9:20 a.m.; Andersonville and Clarkston elementaries begin at 8:35 a.m.

Sanders says she understands the need to reduce costs, but still thinks the schedule needs to be changed.

"I took it to (the PTA) because I don't know if there's parent support out there for this or not," Sanders said. "I feel the children are much too tired for anything after they get home except to eat, do homework and go to bed."

"They have no gym during the day except a supervisor once a week, and getting home so late they have no playtime in the evening."

Sanders, who has a child in kindergarten at Bailey Lake, cites a 1981 educational study that says growth and motor development go hand-in-hand with reading ability, and she says the children's classwork suffers from the lack of exercise.

"As a teacher in the (after-school enrichment) program (which began last fall) I asked if they were going to enroll again," Sanders said. "Nine times out of 10 the parents said, 'We can't. It's just too much. My kid's too tired and gets home too late in the day.'"

Sanders points to how the school hours affect the family.

"I think there's no more time for family. There's no time to share. A child comes home from school, wants to talk about a problem, and mom's stirring a pot on the stove preparing dinner. She can't give him the attention he needs."

From their 11:45 a.m. lunch until they reach home, students have no eating period.

"That's hard on a kid, particularly the first-graders," Sanders said. "I was very pleased with the response from the PTA. Let's see what this can do to help."

The Bailey Lake PTA's Tuesday, April 3, meeting is to begin at 7 p.m. at Bailey Lake Elementary, 8051 Pine Knob, Independence Township.

PUD law still big board issue

By Marilyn Trumper

Trustee Larence Kozma continues his strong opposition to Independence Township's proposed Planned Unit Development law, and at the March 6 board meeting argued against its adoption.

A PUD is several uses on one parcel of land and, according to township attorney Gerald Fisher, "...allows flexibility, and a creative vehicle for development in an otherwise stagnate development."

"A PUD allows us to face the realities of keeping quality construction in the face of escalating costs on large developments," said Supervisor James B. Smith.

But Kozma was unmoved.

"I think the tools are already in place to preserve the characteristics and natural resources of this township," Kozma said. "I can see the argument that it keeps quality building. But it's spot zoning."

"For a large development I could see the reason behind it, a PUD for something like Pine Knob, one square mile, is good. That could be developed a lot of different ways."

"And what I can't agree to in a PUD is that it throws the master plan out and creates a scattered pattern for zoning," Kozma said.

Right now, cluster lotting allows subdivisions to be developed around wetlands and stands of trees, Kozma said, dismissing arguments that PUDs allow for a variance on density.

"I'm afraid of the density requirements. A lot of the standards are discretionary (in PUDs). I don't think it's the wave of future development. Whatever starts to fly before a board will be the plan for the next four years—and that's not right," Kozma said.

After lengthy discussion, the board agreed to send the proposed law to the planning commission for review.

Fred Saber is Kinney Shoe Store's 1983 Salesman of the Year, and was named Employee of the Month for January. The 17-year-old Independence Township resident is a loyal company man. Even his gray jazz oxfords come from the shelves at Kinney's.

'Hustle is Fred Saber'

By Marilyn Trumper

Shoe salesman Fred Saber wears gray-leather jazz oxfords—sold by Kinney Shoe Stores.

His company, the 17-year-old says, tugging on his lapels and giving the thumbs-up sign.

Fred was named "1983 Salesman of the Year" for the Independence Township store on Dixie Highway, and Employee of the Month for January. The job's been his bread-and-butter the past two years.

Hired at the end of his freshman year, Fred, now a senior, used it to meet co-op job requirements in NWOVEC's retail program, Clarkston School's Northwest Oakland Vocational Education Center.

He works between 20 and 40 hours a week, selling more shoes per hour than the other sales people, and he bought a 1984 Camaro with his earnings.

"I'll be making car payments. It's already ordered, I'm just waiting for it to come in," Fred said.

An elaborately scrolled sign on the stockroom wall describes what hustle is, like refusal to take vacations for fear of missing a sale, etc.

At the bottom he scrawled: "Hustle is Fred Saber."

"People might come in with one shoe in mind—but they usually don't walk out with just one," he smiled.

They petition school officials

Girls want equal sports time

By Marilyn Trumper

Joanne Brazel and Sara Roy, eighth-graders at Sashabaw Junior High, are circulating a petition for equal emphasis on girls' and boys' sports.

They've gathered 196 signatures from the school's 880-member population seeking a pep assembly for both ninth-grade teams.

"I think we should get the same treatment as the boys," Brazel said. "They're no more special than us. We can play the same sports."

Ninth-grade girls' basketball coach Nancy Foster said there was a reason the girls' team did not have a pep assembly this year.

"I talked it over with the girls' team, and they didn't want it," Foster said. "They didn't want to go out there with the record (0-14) they had."

"(Brazel) should have come to me before she started this if she had questions. I would have answered them. It's up to my team whether or not (they have an assembly)."

Brazel also wants the intramural girls' seventh- and eighth-grade basketball teams to have exhibition games before the student body, as the boys' seventh- and eighth-grade intramural basketball teams do.

"Starting in the seventh grade makes it a whole lot easier to get used to the crowds," she said. "I think the school spirit will be there if we let them know we're there."

Assistant principal George White said there wasn't enough participation by girls to warrant intramural exhibition games.

White also said the first time he heard Brazel's concern about lack of ninth-grade pep assemblies for girls, she was in the office asking to make copies of the petition.

"That's putting the cart before the horse," White said. "They first should identify that there is a problem and try to solve it with myself or Mr. Birtsas (principal Gus Birtsas) before circulating petitions or running to the newspapers."

"If every issue were registered with the papers it would be a poor situation."

"If I was on the other side of the fence I'd talk to the people involved first before anything," he said, refusing to comment further.

No new date set for talks

Board tables user-fee for township hall

A $15 pricetag to rent township hall is too high for a one-hour meeting, according to the Independence Township Board.

So it tabled the issue indefinitely at the March 6 meeting, ending Clerk Richard Holman's attempt to adopt a set user-policy for township hall.

"I'm disappointed," Holman said after the meeting. "They said the fees were too high. OK, I'm willing to change that, just so we have a set policy to work from."

"There was also concern about cleanup and liability. So we tabled it. There's been no date set for discussion."

At the meeting Holman offered his proposal which would allow outside groups to use township hall and annex:

- The group must be primarily comprised of township residents or property owners, and the meeting can't violate the civil rights of individuals.

- Application must be made 30 days before the requested date. Applications to use the annex must be made at the clerk's office, and for the upstairs of township hall at the Parks and Recreation Department.

- Applications must state the organization's name; purpose for the meeting and the person conducting the meeting.

- A non-refundable rental fee will be charged for each meeting, designed to cover labor, utility and maintenance costs.

- Proposed hourly fees for meetings: $15 for one hour, $20 for two hours, $25 for three hours, $30 for four hours and $35 for five hours.

- A refundable deposit of $100 will be required for each meeting. Designed to cover costs of any damage, it will be refunded no less than seven days after the event.

The applicant must sign a waiver of liability in case of accident or injury.

Finally, the applicant must also sign a written statement indicating the group agrees to the following terms and conditions: use of the facility is offered on a first come, first serve basis; township-sponsored events have priority even if a prior commitment has been made; facilities are available from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m., Monday through Friday; the building must be vacated by 10:15 p.m.; no weekend hours unless special security arrangements are made; no food, drink or smoking; and the township reserves the right to establish reasonable rules to safeguard the health, safety and welfare of users.

What can I do with my spare time?

Write a letter to . . .

by Jim Carlson

Have you ever received a letter from someone you had not heard from for years? It's a nice feeling, isn't it?

Let's assume the letter is from someone who was part of your life—an acquaintance, childhood friend, school pal, neighbor.

When you get the letter, you read it, reread it and then reminisce about the good things you did with the writer.

You sit back, let your head fall back to the cushion and remember the nice things. Often you don't share these fun times with anyone—just yourself.

At times I have been known to pick up the phone and call—that's OK, but not quite the same as a letter.

During the holidays many people send notes with greeting cards, and that's OK too. But why not write someone? Right out of the blue.

As close as the phone can be, a written letter has that extra effort required, and that is the one element everyone understands.

Start the letter out with a specific instance that both of you would remember as being funny, clever or interesting: "Do you remember when we went..."

You then can tell about the most current events in your life. Mention small things. Don't be afraid to tell something personal. Mention a new person in your life that you know would blend into that same friendship circle once shared.

Mention the nice things that have happened—a diet, your old clunker of a car still running, visiting the campus or old neighborhood. Also open the possibility of sharing moments together in the future.

We will call that an "old friend letter."

How about a letter to a local, state or federal official, like your state senator, United States representative, or whomever?

But (this is important), the rule of thumb is to make it a positive letter. Find a faint glimmer of positiveness that the official has done, in your eyes, and tell him about it.

Can you imagine all the bad and complaintive mail that a bureaucrat receives? Awesome!

Start this letter out with "I want to congratulate you on the (great) (excellent) (outstanding) job." (Cross out the non-applicable term!)

Let's call this an "accolade for an official letter."

Now, my final suggestion, a letter to someone you see frequently, perhaps a spouse, lover or close friend.

With this letter, be personal. Remember a special moment, describe something only the two of you have shared, ask to share a moment in the future.

Discuss how you perceive the relationship. Again, be positive because the results you seek will still be the same warm feeling.

Let's call this a "feeling letter."

The most important thing to do is make up your mind to share happiness with someone. Some steps can be followed:

- Write about a fun event that occurred.
- Don't complain.
- Share your special moments.
- And take your time in writing. The person won't know that it's taken two days to complete the letter. This reason sets writing apart from phone calls.

If you really get rolling, you may find yourself writing two, three, maybe four letters. Wow! Just think of the people you will surprise and share some happiness with.

In many cases, the favor may be returned. Who knows, you could even start a new career.

Editor's note: Each month Jim Carlson will share some ideas for people who panic over free time with nothing to do. The administrator of computer system management for the K mart Corp., Carlson uses some of his spare time serving as president of the Detroit Grand Prix Association. He resides in Independence Township.

CURE meeting

The CURE meeting planned last week was changed to Thursday, March 15, because of a conflict with the district semifinal varsity basketball game at Clarkston High School.

CURE stands for Citizens United to Restore Education, the citizens lobbying group formed about four years ago in reaction to massive cuts in funding for education by the state legislature.

Kerry Kammer, a paid lobbyist who works for several school districts including Clarkston, is to speak.

The meeting is to begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Clarkston schools administration building, 6389 Clarkston Rd., Independence Township.

As weaver Jim Gilbert explains the history of his art to home economics students, Clarkston

ferent from sewing," says Jennifer later. "It's more fun."

Storyteller Fred Boyce keeps his audience enraptured at Pine Knob Elementary School. Boyce, a Wayne State University professor, explains the process this way: "It's almost like sitting down in my living room and I'm telling you a story."

Art in schools

Fred Boyce spins tales that captivate the audience. Jim Gilbert uses weaving as his teaching tool. The men were in all of Clarkston's elementary and junior high schools last week sharing their knowledge and talent in and about folk arts and art history. They're part of Project B.A.S.I.C. (Bringing Art Studies into Classrooms), a semester-long program for Clarkston schools funded by a $10,000 grant from the Michigan Council for the Arts. In store for the pupils are projects involving styles of art throughout history—from painting and sketching to dancing and music. The project director is Karen DiChiera, director of education for the Michigan Opera Theatre, and co-director is Lisa Ngote, curator of slides for the Oakland University Art History Department. There'll be more on Project B.A.S.I.C. in next week's Clarkston News.

These children react with laughter as Boyce captures their attention.
