Board adds • 7th deputy Voters face police tax

By Marilyn Trumper

Independence Township will have a seventh deputy added to its payroll at a cost of $50,574 beginning April 1—and for the sixth time since 1976, voters face an additional police millage on one of this year's ballots.

With one dissent at its March 20 meeting, the board approved both moves. Treasurer Frederick Ritter voted "no."

"I thought the hiring of a seventh deputy would reduce the fund balance to a dangerously low level," Ritter said after the meeting.

"Unfortunately that's construed as being an anti-police vote—but I feel it was a vote that was fiscally responsible.

"There's no question we need more deputies—but in my view, we can't afford them."

The new deputy could go on routine road patrol and work "reactively," responding to calls; or work in conjunction with the four-man Northwest Quadrant Team "proactively," in school liaison work and crime prevention, according to Supervisor James B. Smith.

"That's something the board has yet to decide, and we'll do that sometime in early April," Smith said. "I think it's very important the seventh deputy be used in proactive service. I think we're receiving our full share and maybe a little besides. We're not paying the (Northwest Quadrant) squad for the work they're doing here. They're saying they'll be here sometimes, and not others.

"This way, the seventh man can be here working proactively all the time," Smith said. "If we can do anything to cut down on the vandalism, B&E's and juvenile delinquency, we'll be further ahead."

In mid-February the four-man Northwest Quadrant Team said it would begin programs like crime prevention in the schools and neighborhood watches. Comprised of non-contracted deputies, the team's scheduling is flexible. They are not limited to work in the northwest area.

"The board's decision was to proceed with putting the millage on the ballot. There's been no specific figure or election, or anything like that," said Clerk Richard Holman after the meeting.

There's still the issue of the proposed millage.

Currently the township levies 1 mill for police protection which generates $260,700 each year. The township's $356,018 police bill is supplemented this year with $24,000 from federal revenue sharing.

"According to the national average, we should have one police officer for every 1,000 people. We have one for every 3,000 people," Smith said. "We simply need more police funding to do the job properly."

The bill per deputy increased two weeks ago when the county settled an amended arbitration award covering contract years 1982-83 and 1984-85.

Cost per deputy is now $48,768 for 1982-83 and $51,349 for 1984-85. Last year's cost per deputy was $48,708. The figures include each deputy's salary plus all equipment, and supervisory and support services.

TASTE OF MAPLE: A firsthand taste of the watery, slightly sweet sap flowing from a maple tree is found at the Drayton Plains Nature Center by Clarkston Elementary School first-graders Dana Linenger [front] and Beth Nacy. During the springtime outing last week, the comments of Audrey Shupe's pupils varied from "It tastes like wood" to "I like this!" The children also learned how to identify a maple tree, snacked on pancakes topped with—what else?—maple syrup, and made authentic wooden tappers for searches of their own.

Principal could lose his job

By Kathy Greenfield

John F. Reabe, a principal with Clarkston schools 24 years, is being given notice his administrative contract may not be renewed by the school district.

The board of education voted 5-0 at a special meeting Monday night to notify Reabe, in writing, of the possibility.

According to state law, the notification must be made 90 days before the existing contract expires to allow Reabe 30 days to request a hearing before a majority of the school board. Under the Michigan Open Meetings Act, Reabe decides whether the hearing will be open or closed to the public.

With or without the hearing, the board must decide whether to act on the nonrenewal of the contract at least 60 days before it expires.

Reading from a written statement, Superintendent Milford Mason made the recommendation that Reabe be given notice that his job is in jeopardy.

"The nonrenewal is in the best interests of the overall educational process of the district," he said. "That educational process has been adversely affected by the strained relationship between Mr. Reabe and the professional staff."

Mason refused to comment further on the reasons and recommended that the board of education not discuss them at the meeting, stating that such discussions could jeopardize Reabe's right to a hearing.

Reabe, who is presently the principal of Pine Knob Elementary School, has worked for the district 28 years, the first four as a teacher.

According to Mason, if the board opts not to renew Reabe's contract as an administrator he has the right to remain in the district as a teacher.

Board members Janet Thomas, Mary Jane Chaustowich, Vincent Luzi, Elaine Schultz and Carolyn Place voted to send the notification. Stephen Werner and David Kithil were absent.

Condos planned

By Marilyn Trumper

The village council agreed to a joint meeting of Clarkston and Independence Township's planning commissions to review developer Frank Walker's proposal to build condominiums on 7 acres fronting Deer Lake, property shared between both municipalities.

It's expected the meeting will be held April 26, although no date has officially been set.

Walker, owner of Frank J. Walker Developer Inc., briefly outlined his plan at Monday night's council meeting, proposing five units per acre with a price tag of $100,000 to $150,000 a unit. Walker said he would be catering to the empty-nest market.

Walker, who holds an option to buy the land will be seeking rezoning in both municipalities from residential to multiple.

"(The condominiums) won't have lakefront rights. We'll deed restrict them out," he said after the meeting.

Council members offered no comment, and left specifics of the joint planning commission meeting to its chairman, Jim MacArthur.

Police say misconduct charges unfounded

By Marilyn Trumper

Three Oakland County Sheriff's Department deputies and a sergeant have been cleared of misconduct charges for detaining an Independence Township man and his wife, according to Sgt. Doug Hummel.

Robert and Raye Phillips of Snowapple Drive matched the description of two suspects in the alleged March 17 armed robbery of a taxi driver in Brandon Township.

Robert Phillips complained of police misconduct to the Independence Township Board March 20, charging he and his wife's lives were in danger when police pulled their car over on M-15, near I-75 in Independence Township shortly before 10 p.m., pointed loaded shotguns and ordered the couple out of their car.

"I've completed my end of the report, and have done everything except take a statement from Mr. Phillips, who told me he wanted his lawyer present," and the inclusion of Phillips' statement is a formality, said Hummel.

"At this point, as far as I can tell, I can find no wrongdoing," he said, confirming that pointing loaded shotguns at alleged felons is proper police procedure.

When contacted after the meeting, Phillips refused further comment except to say he's contacted an attorney and is considering filing a lawsuit.

The incident began when police responded to a call of an armed robbery in Brandon Township where a Pontiac taxi driver dropping off a customer had allegedly been robbed of $300.

Based on the taxi driver's description, police were looking for a green Pontiac Catalina with a missing rear taillight. The male driver and female passenger were believed armed with 357 magnums, and a third male was believed to be in the car.

Deputies spotted a green car with missing taillight southbound on M-15. Det./Sgt. Fred Scholz drove in front and slowed, a second deputy turned on his red and blue lights, pulling them over from behind and a third police officer pulled along the side and blocked the Phillips' car.

"We all got out of the car with loaded shotguns, and laid across the trunk, ordering them out of the car on the P.A. (public address system)," Scholz said. "What we did was proper police procedure. I saw the woman's head bob as if she were reaching under the seat. For all we knew, she could have been reaching for a gun."

"We got permission to examine her purse. Every compartment was stuffed with bills. They said they were shopping for a car. Who shops for a car on a Saturday night? And how many people carry the money with them?" he asked the board.

A fourth officer arrived from Brandon Township with the taxi driver to identify the couple. Initially, he recognized the car but not the people. Police released the Phillips.

The taxi driver was later arrested and charged with two misdemeanors; filing a false police report and embezzling less than $100 from an employer, according to police.

Carr hosts hearing on Dixie

By Marilyn Trumper

Got a gripe about Dixie Highway?

Like to see it resurfaced? The speed limits lowered? A center lane built? Do the number of accidents and fatalities concern you?

Tell United States Congressman Bob Carr (D-Okemus), who represents the 6th District, which includes Independence and Springfield and Waterford townships. He's hosting a public meeting on the issue Friday, March 30, from 1 to 3 p.m. at Our Lady of the Lakes in Waterford Township.

"The purpose is for me to get a feeling for what the people would like to see. I don't have a Dixie Highway position," said Carr, a member of the House Appropriations Subcommittee on Transportation.

"In my time in Congress, people from that area have been asking for improvements to Dixie Highway. I've traveled it enough to know that some areas are more improved than others and that there are a great number of traffic accidents and fatalities along Dixie and M-59.

"I've held constituent office hours and it's come up again and again, people asking for a variety of things to improve the road."

According to Carr, the transportation subcommittee approves the highway budget, which is broken down into priorities by the State Highway Department.

"But my job is to represent the people—and not sit back and do it in an armchair fashion," Carr said.

Our Lady of the Lakes church is located at 5481 Dixie Highway.

State, feds to pay 90 percent of M-15 costs

By Marilyn Trumper

If word from Lansing is correct, the state and federal government will pick up 90 percent of the cost to widen four-tenths of a mile of M-15 south of the village—a project with a $750,000 price tag.

And Independence Township will pay $87,000, the projected cost for parking lot and drainage changes, according to Supervisor James B. Smith.

"And we may not even have to pay that. It may be the businesses that benefit will, either in a special assessment or voluntarily," Smith said after the March 20 board meeting when he updated the board on the financing for the widening issue.

Anticipating the plan will go through, the board shifted $50,000 in federal revenue sharing from the park improvement budget to the road improvement budget.

The $50,000 was budgeted in anticipation of parks Director Timothy Doyle landing a matching federal grant for the parks department.

If at his March 27 meeting in Lansing Smith finds the state won't finance M-15, Doyle can still make application for the matching grant and will be reallocated $28,000 of the $50,000 for a $56,000 grant, Smith said. The remaining $22,000 was reallocated for road paving.

"I hate to get people all excited and get up (to Lansing) and learn they haven't taken this or that into consideration," Smith said after the meeting. "But we need the money, and I wanted a higher priority put on

M-15 than a parking lot (for Clintonwood Park) or additions to the (Sashabaw Plains Park)."

For years a proposed widening of M-15 to five lanes south of the village met opposition from downtown businesses and residents, fearful the impact eliminating Main Street parking would have on their homes and stores.

In October 1982, the village council endorsed the Independence Township Task Force's proposal to widen to three lanes with businesses sharing driveways.

In 1980, as a wedge to block the proposed widening, residents worked to have Clarkston admitted to the National Register of Historic Places, certain the state would balk at destroying historic Main Street.

New old house for Clarkston?

By Marilyn Trumper

Hank and Jennifer Radcliff hold an option to buy Tom Ritter's 120-year-old Italianate home on Dixie Highway, adjacent to Ritter's Farm Market, and plan to move it to a vacant lot next to their Main Street home.

Hank Radcliff made the announcement at Monday night's Clarkston Village Council meeting, saying that if the historic residence can't garner an exemption to the barrier-free law, he wants to rent the upstairs as apartments, which would require a special use from its current business zoning.

"Otherwise if we don't have to put in an elevator, we want to rent it as offices and already have an interested party," Radcliff told the council. "It's 1,000 square feet on the first floor, and 1,000 on the second floor, and another 1,000 if you count the basement."

Historic buildings can be exempt from handicapped barrier-free laws, according to Trustee Carol Eberhardt.

According to Radcliff, the lot meets all setback requirements and has enough land for the 10-space parking lot required by the ordinance's per-square-foot ratio.

"Although, I'm not saying we'd preclude commercial (rentals)," Radcliff said. "We want whatever will give us the highest rate of return. I think we can put the house down by reconstructing the light foundation. But the problems in moving it are all monumental. For all practical purposes, with your cooperation, we feel we can do it."

Radcliff declined to say what he's paying for the Ritter home.

The home is expected to sit the same distance from Main Street as other historic homes on that street, he said, with the entrance off Main Street. The proposed site is just north of the downtown municipal parking lot at Main and Washington streets.

Burger King Corp., which bought the land the house currently sits on, plans to begin "...selling hamburgers by July 13," Radcliff said. "If it isn't moved by July 13, the house goes."

After discussion, the council agreed to ask the planning commission and its attorney to review the ordinance for zoning variance procedure to allow multiple use above commercial, like several other current Main Street businesses.

Radcliff is expected to schedule a meeting before the planning commission for site plan approval, but has yet to do so.

After the meeting, Radcliff said buying the house and relocating it was his wife's idea.

Jennifer, a past-president of the Clarkston Community Historical Society, was instrumental in having portions of the village admitted to the National Register of Historic Places in 1980, and a key figure in the drafting and adoption of the Clarkston's now defunct historic district ordinance that regulated construction and repair in the 150-home district.

"My wife can up with the idea. The home's in danger, and we wanted to develop the property (next to our home)," Hank Radcliff said.

Council member decline comment, opting for the planning commission's recommendation on special use.

Board to fight fourth election

Independence Township government is unhappy with Gov. James Blanchard's anticipated order for a special election to fill the vacant seat of the 20th District State Representative.

It could be the township's fourth election this year, and would cost approximately $5,000, according to Clerk Richard Holman.

At the March 20 township board meeting, Holman asked the board to consider filing a lawsuit to block the anticipated order.

The board made no decision, opting to wait for the governor's decision. Blanchard is expected to issue the order April 1.

Township voters have a school election in June, the primary election in August and the presidential/general election in November.

The house vacancy occurred when Rudy Nichols resigned to run for the senate, and won in early February.

The 20th District encompasses Independence and Waterford townships.

"What I'd like to do, if the governor orders the election, would be to get permission to hold that election with the school board election in June," Holman said after the meeting. "Right now Blanchard's talking about a June 5 election and the school board's is just two weeks later."

"It seems ridiculous to hold an election and get someone in office in time for the summer break

Republican Claude Trim announced in February he's moving to Waterford Township and will seek Nichol's vacated seat.

Formerly a Democrat, Trim switched parties and joined the GOP last year.

Circus OK'd

A three-ring circus with trapeze is coming to Independence Township.

The fund raiser sponsored by the Independence Township Fire Fighters Association garnered unanimous board approval at the March 20 meeting.

In conjunction with E.F. Hutton & Co. and the Clarkston Lions Club, the 46-member firefighters' association says it expects to raise $90,000 at the proposed Fourth of July event, with the money split between Clarkston SCAMP, Leader Dogs for the Blind and the Ann Arbor Burn Center.

M&M Productions plans to set up tents on the former Waterford Hill Golf Course off Dixie Highway, behind the House of Maple & Pine.

According to volunteer firefighter Gary Tressel, they plan eight shows between July 5, 6, 7 and 8, each seating 3,500 people. The site plan shows ethnic food concession stands, a beer tent and an overflow parking area.

Schools weigh stiffer academics; want input

By Kathy Greenfield

Proposed changes that would stiffen academic requirements in all grade levels of Clarkston schools are the topic of a public hearing scheduled Wednesday, April 4.

"We want public input, public reaction, to the curriculum design we have come up with," said Albert Ellis, who co-chaired the curriculum committee with Conrad Bruce.

"We want to stress (the report) is preliminary," she added. "Sometimes preliminary reports become final and that was not the intent."

Copies of the 65-page preliminary report are available at the Clarkston school district's administration office, 6389 Clarkston Rd., Independence Township, (625-4401).

The public hearing in the CHS Little Theatre is to begin at 7 p.m. Those who attend will be asked to sign a card if they wish to speak and they will be called in the order in which they arrived at the meeting. Each person will be limited to five minutes.

Those who wish to make their comments in writing should mail their statements to the administration office in care of the curriculum committee.

The 13-member committee met with teachers in the district earlier this month.

About 85 teachers attended the session and about 20 spoke, Ellis said, and although there were compliments for the effort of the curriculum committee, there were some negative reactions.

"There were all sorts of comments from the union. Obviously they were concerned that they, as a union, were not in on it even though we had three teachers on the committee," she said. "The union is also very much opposed to changing the structure we now have for curriculum."

Under the present system, the curriculum is handled separately on the elementary and secondary levels. Under the proposed plan, the K-12 curriculum would be handled as a whole.

Another concern was that the plan for elementary school pupils is too content-oriented with not enough attention paid to other needs of the children. That was not the intent, according to Ellis, and she expects the final report to make that clear.

The preliminary report is the culmination of 18 months of study and 37 meetings.

Among the recommendations for curriculum changes are:

- An increase of required courses for high school graduation to 21 from the present 13.

- An increase in required courses on the junior high level from 26 to 32, with the addition of applied technology, fine arts, foreign language and an additional year of health/physical education.

- Time requirements for studying certain subjects on the elementary level, with the addition of foreign language for sixth-graders and applied technology for third- through sixth-graders.

The final report is expected to be completed by May 1, Ellis said.

The curriculum committee's goal is to begin changes in the 1985-86 school year, but the final decision rests with the board of education.

Firm hired for $10,000

Study grades administrators

Work is underway toward a system to establish the worth and value of administrative positions in the Clarkston school district.

In a 6-0 vote March 12, the board of education approved hiring Plante & Moran of Southfield for $10,000 to do the study and to train others so such a system could be established for other district employees.

Currently the approach is arbitrary, said board member Vincent Luzi, with administrators at certain levels receiving the same salaries.

"I know some of them aren't equal and the responsibilities are different," he said after the meeting.

Luzi, board president Janet Thomas and member Stephen Werner made up the committee that proposed hiring Plante & Moran.

The 90-day process will begin with consultations with administrators and will result in ranking of positions, Luzi said. He expects the system to be in place for the 1984-85 school year.

"What has happened is the spread between the teachers and administration has grown faster than the board anticipated," he said. "Right now it would be difficult to defend the system we've got—we've got some very subjective standards to determine where an administrator's salary is at."

Duties of each position will be weighted in order to establish the value of a job.

"It's an objective approach to determining where jobs should fall in the organization, in addition to making it clear to the public and board members and administrators," he said.

Type classed

Kathy Greenfield

I was listening to a weaver whose works of art hang in Detroit's Renaissance Center and the Amy Grand Plaza Hotel in Grand Rapids.

He was speaking to a group of Clarkston Junior High School students.

"The most important class I took in school was typing," said Jim Gilbert, who is also exhibition coordinator for the Pontiac Art Center.

The statement made me smile, but not for the reason you think.

It's something I've said to my two teen-agers many times—either when it was time to register for classes or when they were struggling through the early part of typing classes, trying desperately learn the keyboard and pull a decent grade.

It wasn't that long ago that parents would say—especially to their sons—"Don't learn how to type. And if you do, don't ever let anyone know; otherwise, you'll end up typing your own reports."

"After all," the argument continued, "that's what secretaries are for."

It's not surprising that I find typing important. If I couldn't type, I couldn't write for a newspaper. It's that simple.

And as computers have become part of that career, typing has increased in significance.

Trust me when I say that writing on a computer is simplified and streamlined. You can quickly correct errors and make changes. The old days of crossing out, retyping between the double-spaced lines, making insert symbols and retyping if too many changes were made are gone.

You can make changes as quickly as your fingers can type them in, so no time is wasted rethinking or trying to recapture your train of thought.

In a word, it's wonderful.

If I had one message I could get out to schools, it would be this: Do something, now, about the existing structure of typing classes.

Start teaching typing skills to the younger children before they hit those computers and end up with habits that will slow them down in the future.

Improve the equipment in typing classes—when I look at banks of outmoded, manual typewriters I wonder why someone isn't paying attention to this need.

In Clarkston schools, there aren't enough typing classes. Many high school students who want to learn to type have to wait, because the classes are full. At Clarkston's junior highs, the students couldn't take typing if they wanted to—such classes don't exist.

Stop adding stress to the learning process by grading students who are trying to learn how to type. If the effort is there, the skill will come. And if it's taught early enough, just wanting to learn will be enough.

Jim Gilbert said the typing was important to him because it has allowed him to be more professional in his business communications.

I say typing is important because computers are important—and they aren't going to go away.

When I see more and more attention paid to getting computers without any sign of attention to the companion skill of typing, I grit my teeth.

It's a fine example of the proverbial cart before the horse.

No more studies

Each member of the board of education, who voted to approve paying $45,000 to $48,000 of the taxpayers' money for architectural drawings for the multipurpose rooms, should have his or her knuckles rapped three times with the edge of a ruler.

How arrogant and self-assured they must be, to spend this money in advance of the June 11 vote.

It is the equivalent of picking a friend's pocket before asking for a loan or slapping your boss's face before asking for a raise.

Multipurpose rooms have been defeated, by the voters, before and probably will be again.

If they are, perhaps the board members who spent the money will volunteer to repay the $45,000-plus from their own pockets.

Hold the onions

Jim Sherman

Well, it happened again, and it's high time I exposed what I call "the coney island conspiracy."

There's a quirk in the make up of slingers of wieners and stuff into a bun that caused them to automatically add chopped onions.

Nothing wrong with onions, except when I, as a customer, choose to have the onions held, as in hold-the-onions.

The first and last time I went into a coney joint at the Summit Mall in Pontiac I very distinctly asked the mixture maker to "just put on the loose meat and some mustard."

I was so confident he understood I turned to look at the crowd. By the time I turned back the dog was in a bun and into a coffin-looking styrofoam box. I let it cool while walking to the car, opened it only to find the bun stuffer stuff hidden by onions.

Like other bad eating experiences, I don't complain, I just don't go back.

This week the same thing happened at yet another coney house. They just couldn't hold the onions, there must be something about working under those tube steak and rolled bread conditions that either affects hearing or makes them want everyone else to have bad breath.

Good coney are good business, I know a guy named Mike Sura who decided to open a hot dog stand in Snow Mass, Colorado. There were none there at the time. Mike went to Lafayette Coney in Detroit and convinced them to sell him 150 pounds of 'sausage'.

They did, he opened the doors, and it was instant success time on the slopes. I'll bet he held the onions when asked. He hasn't been at it long enough to want all his customers' friends to know where they eat.

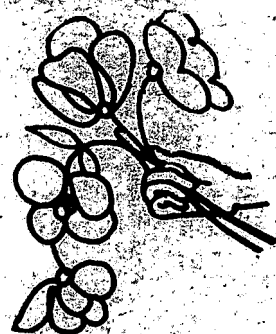

I've written before that the greatest coney ever assembled in one place were in downtown Flint in the early 1940's. There were five very near the corner of Detroit and Saginaw.

There's still at least one great coney outlet in Flint, on Bristol, just east of I-75. A great coney to me is one that uses loose, spiced, hamburger for fill, which is held inside the borders by mustard.

Too many coney makers today use chili, which wouldn't be bad in a bowl or with the kidney beans and tomatoes on the side.

Not too long ago a gourmet writer in a Detroit daily wrote of finding a good coney place in Flint. The address wasn't given. The writer's description of the coney left me thinking he/she doesn't know coney from crepes while holding the onions.

Peace games

Jim Fitzgerald

It is easy to commit a crime while playing peace games, especially if you play in Oakland County where Prosecutor L. Brooks Patterson bravely protects the public from all dangerous persons gathered together in church, gymnasiums, to conspire against the joys of a nuclear holocaust.

It is hard to commit a crime while playing war games, especially if you play in Washington, D.C., where violence is a trillion-dollar business and Pentagons generals retire to become highly paid "defense entrepreneurs."

A recent study by the General Accounting Office, which watchdogs government operations for Congress, charged that military spending from 1984 through 1988 will likely be around $324 billion more than original Pentagon estimates. The Pentagon said it would spend nearly $1.8 trillion but the GAO suggested the actual cost could top $2 trillion.

Although they supply the money, average taxpayers find it difficult to visualize just how much a trillion dollars is. Look at it this way: A billion is a thousand millions, and a trillion is a million millions. Multiply a trillion by a billion and you come up with the average number of times the average taxpayer is robbed by the average military procurement officer on an average Tuesday afternoon.

The GAO said its prediction of the $324 billion overrun was based on the historical fact that the Pentagon always underestimates the cost of weapons by at least 32 percent. And it is well known worldwide that the Pentagon will go to any length to maintain its cost-overrun record, even if a general has to somehow find a defense manufacturer willing to sell a $2 tank part for $5,678 instead of the usual $3,452.

YOU THINK that's a crime? Don't be silly. Pentagon war-game players who waste taxpayers' money not only escape penalty for incompetency or thievery, they are often rewarded with far more than ordinary military pay and junkets to weapon demonstrations held in Las Vegas casinos.

A good example was provided by a recent advertisement in Washington newspaper. Under a headline reading "Defense Entrepreneurs" it said: "Want your own business? If you leave government, will you leave friends behind? If so, we'll set you up as a division of a national corporation and give you equity, as well as a top salary with tax sheltered benefits!" Procurement officers due to retire and reluctant to leave the warmth of the taxpayers' pocket could respond to a box number at the Washington Post. That's nice.

After civilian auditors recently revealed that the Army paid around $35 million more than it was supposed to for some helicopters, the Army didn't bother to ask the manufacturer for a refund. It is nice to know there is fruitful employment waiting, or any retiring Army officer experienced enough to realize $35 million isn't worth retrieving, just as long as it's tax money spent on war games.

COMPARE THE treatment received by the Pentagon's wild-spending war-game players to that given the 50 people, including ever-dangerous nuns and ministers, arrested for playing peace games in Oakland County. Many of them served 30-day sentences for trespassing and blocking traffic while protesting war outside a missile engine plant. They were prepared to accept that much punishment, just as Martin Luther King put on his going-to-jail clothes before hitting the streets. But, thanks to the extreme zealotry of Prosecutor Patterson and his infiltrating troops, the peace-game players also face varied conspiracy charges that could put them in prison for a year.

Of course, we must remember it's a crime to conspire to trespass in the name of peace. But it's no crime to gyp taxpayers out of $100 trillion in the name of war. It's just an oversight.

If Washington's war-game players waste enough, they may become defense entrepreneurs. If Oakland County's peace-game players conspire enough, they may become convicts. That's criminal justice in the United States. Go get 'em, Brooks.

60-acre split OK'd out of court

Developers Don Nolte and Martin Brennan are free to build, ending a year and a half long battle with Independence township for a tax split on 60 acres deeded to the Independence Land Conservancy.

Attorney for the pair, Carl Karlstrom came to an agreement with township officials the first week in March in a consent judgment, a court-sanctioned agreement that gives a tax split on the 60 acres and ends the developers paying taxes on the parcel.

It also guarantees the property will be developed residentially without further lot splits, mandates a 100-foot setback from Dartmouth Road and allows private roads.

Karlstrom says his clients are pleased, and expect to break ground this spring for their proposed 240-acre subdivision on Dartmouth Road with 21 homes on 10-acre lots.

The suit filed in January asked the court to order the township to grant the tax split and issue building permits.

The dispute stemmed from the developers' gift of 60 acres to the land conservancy more than a year ago in exchange for approval of private roads for the subdivision.

The Independence Land Conservancy, founded in 1972, currently owns or has scenic easements on over 100 acres of property in eight locations throughout the township. Its intent is to preserve open space for aesthetic and ecological reasons. Donated land must be left in its natural condition.

The request for the 60-acre split needed in order to build was denied because the conservancy property did not have frontage on a private road, as required in the ordinance.

The 60-acre parcel did not have an easement for access, and the conservancy didn't want road frontage because it lacks the funding to pay for grading, snowplowing or future special assessments.

Mining 50 acres under review

By Marilyn Trumper

After two hours of discussion, the Independence Township Planning Commission tabled a request to mine over 50 acres at Sashabaw and I-75, but scheduled a special meeting on the issue Thursday, March 29.

Southfield attorney Irving Keene and developer Charles Nunn resurrected a four-year-old plan to level the 50 acres and create an industrial park with a 2,200 foot cul-de-sac.

The plan, reviewed under the township's amended, more-restrictive mining ordinance, outlines an 18-month extraction operation and the removal of sand and gravel to level the land, making it buildable. The men estimate 100 truck trips in and out of the site each day, according to Carol Balzarini, commission secretary.

At the March 22 meeting, commission members questioned hours of operation and traffic on Sashabaw Road near the Walden Road intersection, Balzarini said.

Township Planner Richard Carlisle asked the men to produce the following:

- An aerial photograph of the site with a transparent overlay showing reclamation and extraction.

- A reclamation plan, as required in the ordinance, to show where topsoil would be stockpiled and stabilized.

- A more detailed environmental impact report.

- Screening plans for the southeast corner.
- A landscaping plan detailing existing trees to be saved and new plantings, and maintenance of existing vegetation to reduce wind and water erosion.

- Hours of operation.
- Documentation for no excavation below the water table.

Chairman Neil Wallace said he was disappointed no one attended the public hearing "because I think it's something the community should make itself aware of."

"Mr. Keene was not too pleased with us putting such apparent close scrutiny on him," he added. "But I firmly believe Independence Township is doing its part. We've been burned so many times in the past."

Keene said he wants to get on with the review and approval so he can begin operating when the weather breaks.

"I firmly sympathize with the problems of the city, and will do everything needed to meet the requirements," he said.

The commission's meeting is scheduled Thursday, March 29, at 7:30 p.m. in the Independence Township Hall Annex, 90 N. Main, Clarkston.

In July of 1982 Independence Township adopted the amended mining ordinance.

It was drafted when Blount Materials Inc. made a bid for a five-year extension to mine the 25-year-old Salem gravel pit on Oak Hill Road.

The new law covers licensing, regulations and inspections, and requires topographic surveys, geological surveys, detailed plans of operation, reclamation plans, an environmental impact report, and a $1,000 processing fee up-front for the first 50 acres and $5 for each additional acre.

The law also includes establishment of a fund to cover reclamation and 25 percent of the administrative costs.

The licensee makes monthly payments to the township equal to a 6-cent-a-ton levy on outbound tonnage, and to ensure compliance the township will make an annual audit.

Mining officials have the alternative of creating a $7,500 fund, without allowing the balance to dip below that mark.

The law calls for fencing of the site, posting of signs, berm screening for neighbors and dust control, and limits the hours of sales and operations.

Following recommendations on proposals from the planning commission, the township board makes the final decisions.

Wolves' hurlers provide power

By Dan Vandenhemel

Another season of softball means another year of high hopes for the Clarkston High School varsity softball team.

The Wolves have six returning letter winners from the 26-7 team that finished fourth in the state last year. Only a 6-2 loss to eventual state champions Belleville in the semifinals stopped the Wolves' bid for the title.

This season, behind pitchers Julie Marshall, Dawnaree DeBoer and Jody Law, Wolves coach Carla Teare is hopeful.

"If our pitching comes through, we'll be all right," Teare said. "Julie has the speed. If she has the control, we'll be right in there. I can't tell at this point who'll be starting, but any one of them can do a good job. Laura Hurren can pitch, too, but is not fond of it. I'll use her if I have to."

There are other areas of strength, as well.

"I'm not worried about our hitting," she said. "Julie led the team in hitting and had the most extra base hits last year. Sue Castillo can hit, too; so can Laura (Hurren)."

"I'm looking for everyone on the team to hit. But it's hard to tell what is going to happen. Practicing inside and practicing outside are totally different."

"If our pitching comes through we'll be all right."

—Carla Teare

The Wolves have been practicing for close to a month in the gym, but had to wait an additional two weeks for the basketball and volleyball seasons to end to put up the indoor batting cage.

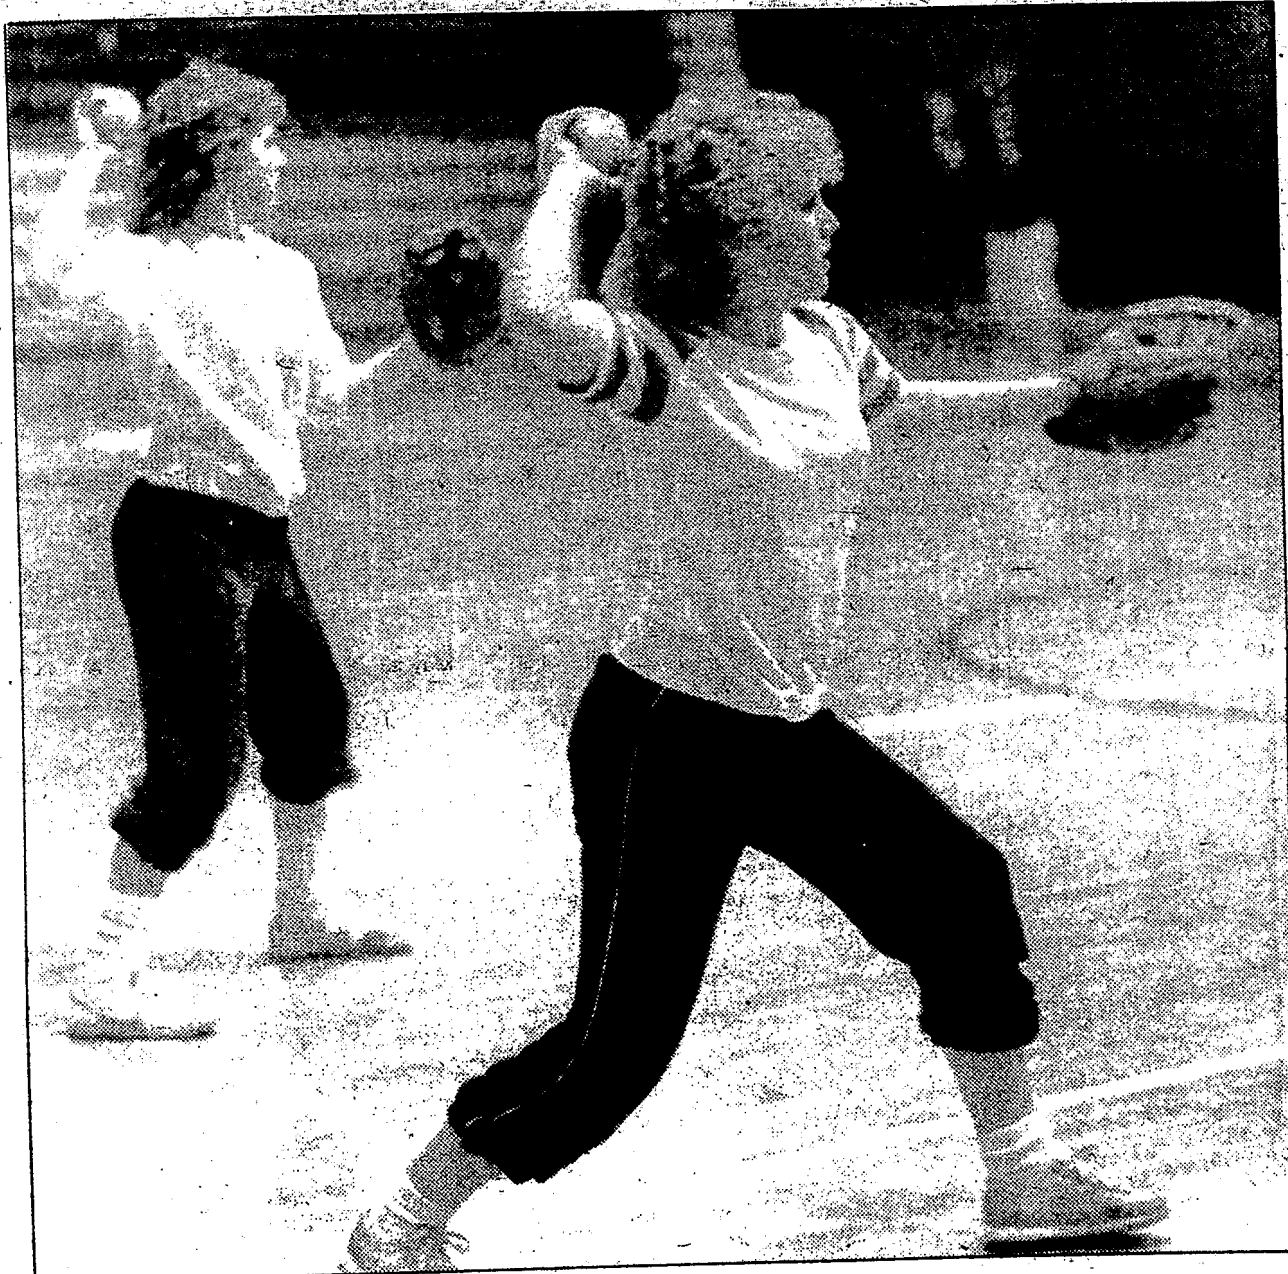

Returning players are Marshall, Castillo, Hurren, Kelli Keating, Sheila Moore and Stephanie Wagner. Rounding out the roster are DeBoer, Law, Jill Griffis, Roseann Hirneisen, Michelle Law, Kim Stiff, Kristin Tiarht, Sue Stefanski and Ellen Fleming.

Stefanski and Fleming are the only sophomores on the team and Teare is planning to give them the opportunity to get in the games.

"I wouldn't pick them for the team unless they were going to play a lot," she said. "If they weren't going to play I'd have let them stay on JV so they could get playing experience."

Last season, Waterford Township won the Greater Oakland Activities League title with Clarkston placing second. Since Township's closing, the majority of the team went to Waterford Mott who is favored to win the league.

"I'm really looking forward to this year," Teare said. "Everyone is going to be tough with the exception of maybe (Pontiac) Northern. We play every team three times and that should make for an interesting season."

Juniors Laura Hurren and Dawnaree DeBoer give their arms a workout in the Clarkston High School gym in preparation for the upcoming varsity softball season.

Wrestlers win again at Springfield school

By Dan Vandenhemel

Tack on another state championship for the Springfield Christian Academy.

In the school's gym on March 24, the wrestling team won the Michigan Athletic Association of Christian Schools title for the third straight year.

Dave Vanaman, coach of the wrestling team, said the state association asked him to organize a statewide tournament three years ago.

"They knew that I had wrestled in high school and asked if I would be interested in organizing it," he said. "It was so successful, they keep asking us to host it."

SCA won with 218 points. Community Saginaw was the second best in the 12-school field with 167 points. Last year SCA won by 30 points, and they won by 87 the first year.

"Sometimes we get crunched by the public schools... but by the time we get to the tournament we are ready."

—Dave Vanaman

Pacing the 148 individual wrestlers by grabbing first-place championships were SCA students Chuck Cox at 95 pounds, Kevin Clarno at 102, Ron Conwell at 109, Ryan Pyke at 136 and Ken Dockery at 149.

Other top placers were Pat Mackey, fourth at 95 pounds; Matt Montgomery, second at 116; Jim Rogers, fourth at 130; Craig Dockery, fourth at 149; Jeff Haslock, third at 189; and Jeff Kelly, second at 202.

"We really work at being good," Vanaman said. "This ends our season. We start about the end of the public school season. We began around the first of February and ended with 30-11 record."

"We start later because a lot of the wrestlers play basketball. We are a small school, only about 120 students in the high school. Sometimes we get crunched by the public schools in the nonleague meets but by the time we get to the tournament we are ready."

"There is good competition in the Christian schools," he added. "That's why we stay in this tournament instead of signing on with the public schedule."

Skater looking to turn pro

By Dan Vandenhemel

Connie Head is a year away from graduating from Clarkston High School, a year away from auditioning for the Ice Capades, but the work continues.

In the meantime, the CHS junior is going to be skating in the Tribute to the Olympics of 1984, a ice show at the Birmingham Sports Arena March 31 and April 1.

Head is one of 10 skaters in her skating club selected to perform a solo routine. All 55 club members are participating in the show that features costumes from a number of different countries.

"I'll be doing a two-minute program to 'Edelweiss' from the 'Sound of Music,'" the 16-year-old said. "I'll be dressed in a Swedish costume; it'll be fun."

In trying out for the solo, Head had to skate a one-minute program with six jumps and three spins.

"They go by age groups and I'm the oldest in the club so I was skating against the book. That made it tougher," she said.

The Bridge Road, Waterford Township, resident has been skating since she put on a pair of double-edged skates at age six.

"It was at a New Year's Eve party and I told my parents right then that I really liked it," Head said. "I've gone from the basic to private lessons."

During the week, about 10 hours are spent on practice, more during the summer. Being able to juggle homework, a job and the skating keeps Head moving, although she loses out on many activities.

Head will participate in the Tribute to the Olympics of 1984 by performing a two-minute solo routine

"I can't swim because that relaxes your leg muscles," she said. "Ice skating builds certain muscles. I can't even go roller skating because that's too hard on your legs."

Performing in front of an audience does not pose a problem for the talented skater.

"I don't really get nervous. I've skated in competitions and exhibitions and have done pretty well," she said.

Her good-luck charm is a testimony to that. An 18-inch stuffed Minnie Mouse is covered with over 20 ribbons and medals.

"She goes with me everywhere I skate," Head said. "I used to have a panda but that got a little hard dragging around to competitions. Minnie does just fine."

Connie Head and her good luck charm, Minnie Mouse, are ready for the Tribute to the Olympics of 1984 at the Birmingham Sports Arena on March 31 and April 1.

Lend
an ear

By Dan Vandenhemel

Sight, smell, touch, taste and hearing. The human senses, the vital functions of a person are too often taken for granted.

Though life can go on without one or more of them, if the five of them are looked at closely only two can please another person.

Your sight can bring the beauty of the world but what you see cannot be described without someone hearing you.

Smell and taste share the same sort of link, but the senses of touch and hearing are the only two that can bring joy to another person.

A light touch of a hand for reassurance or a pat on the back for a job well done do not go unnoticed.

But hearing is the most important for the sake of others.

Sure it would be hard to live without hearing music playing, or people laughing or the crack of a baseball bat, but one of the best things hearing is for is to listen to other people talk.

Sitting and holding a conversation with someone, be it a close friend or an elderly person who just wants to talk gives you a nice feeling.

Lending an ear to the problems of someone and then offering advice (if they want it) can clear the air about many things.

Many marriages and solid relationships are based on the ability to talk out problems, not hold them in until you blow up.

Talking and listening can defuse a good many incidents.

Fights in bars, traffic accidents, complaints about service are mostly caused because someone isn't listening.

Being a good listener is not easy. For one thing, you often hear of other people's troubles.

It is all worthwhile hearing that sigh of relief after they spill the problems on the floor and to hear them say thanks for listening.

The next time someone is complaining or feels hurt, open your ears to them. Try it, they'll like it.

After three months of basketball, Independence Parks and Recreation Department crowned its men's league champions.

Mt. Clemens Crane emerged as the title holders for the second straight year. They defeated the Drillers 88-64 in the Clarkston High School gym March 24.

Frank Merriam led the winners with 27 points. Mark Cherlich was next with 19.

Mt. Clemens qualified for the playoffs by winning the seven-team league with a 12-1 record.

The Clarkston (Mich.) News Wed., March 28, 1984 15

The top four teams make the playoffs. League second-place finishers were Tune Saloon at 10-3, third place was the Drillers at 9-4 and fourth was Little Caesar's at 6-7.

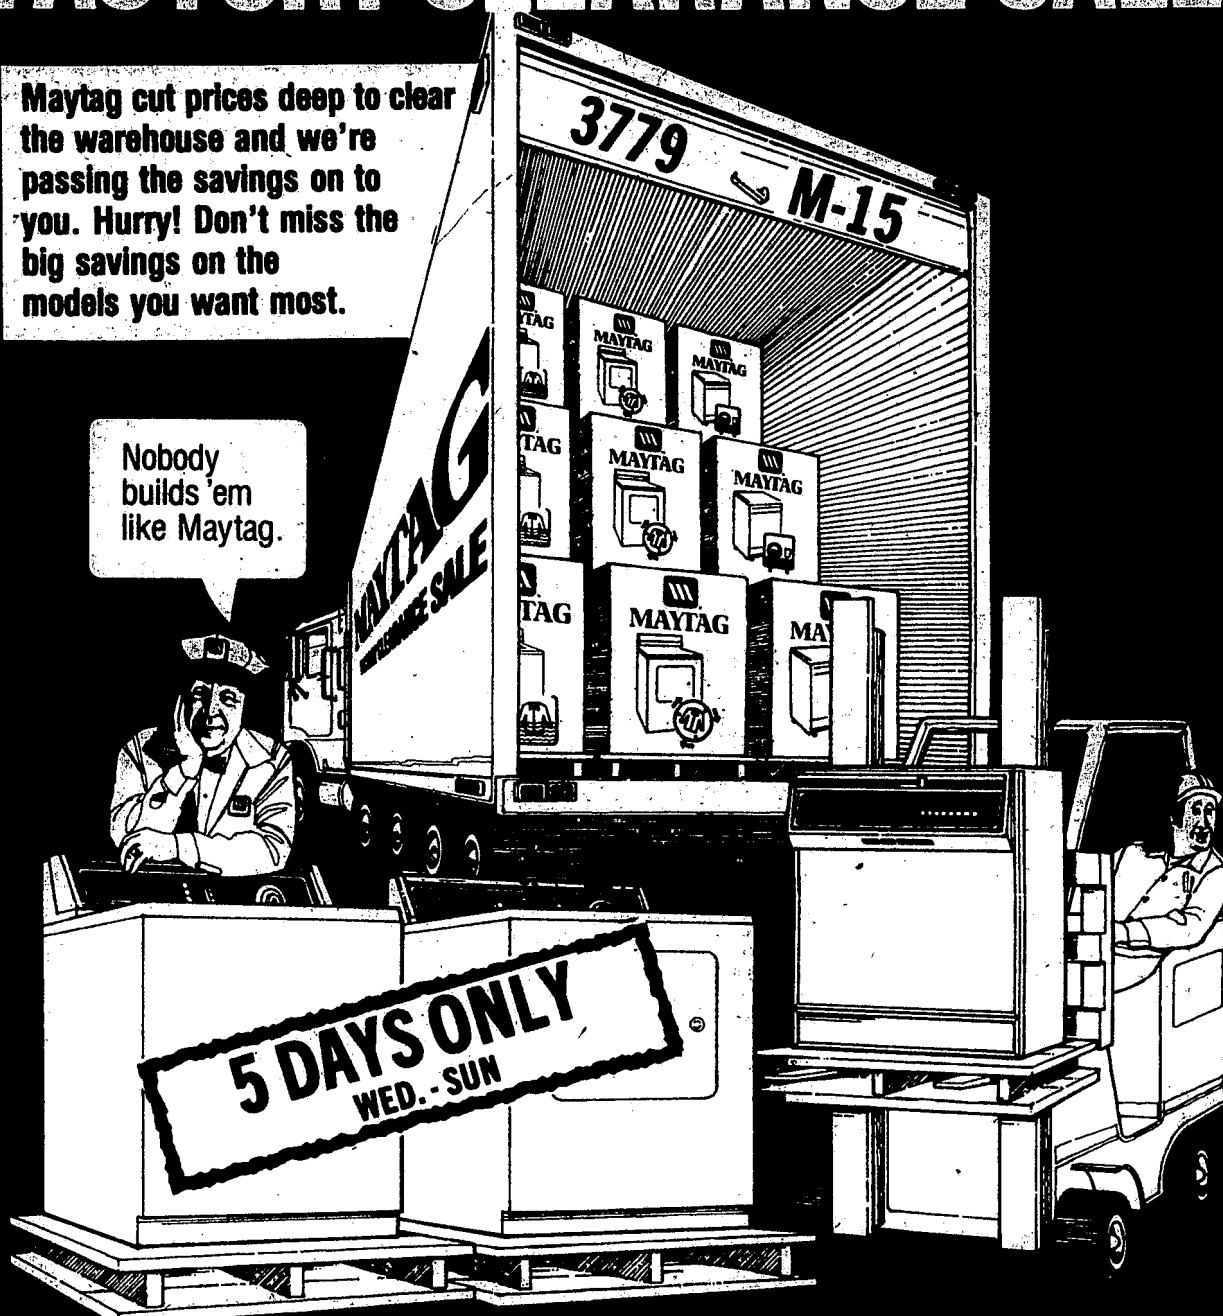

Mt. Clemens team members are Terry Olson, Gary Mason, Greg Strzelecki, Cherlich, Jeff Dorchock, Merriam, Mark McCean, Bob Fuller, Dave McDonald and David Partlo.

All first-place winners received trophies from the township.

Village eyes rezoning cases

Two controversial rezoning issues are before the Clarkston Village Council.

An attorney for the Hawke Estate sought a rezoning of the old Hawke residence, 42 W. Washington, from residential to office.

The planning commission recommended denial and the council opted to hold a public hearing on the issue April 9 at 7:30 p.m. in Clarkston Village Hall, 375 Depot, Clarkston.

- Sheriff's log -

Friday, thieves stole a case of beer worth $13 from Richardson's Farm Dairy, 4758 Clarkston, Independence Township.

Saturday, thieves broke into a house on M-15, Independence Township, and stole a video recorder, TV, radio and stereo equipment worth $3,000.

Saturday, thieves broke into a shed on King Road, Springfield Township, and stole tools, a weed cutter, lights, jumper cables and hedge trimmers.

Sunday, police recovered a stolen dirt bike on Farley Road, Springfield Township.

Sunday, thieves broke into a car on Wellesley Terrace, Independence Township, and stole the stereo.

Sunday, thieves broke into a house on Reese Road, Independence Township. Nothing was taken.

This information came from reports at the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

"First of all the use plan says that it should be residential, not commercial," said James MacArthur, planning commission chairman. "Second, we want to keep the commercial from encroaching on residential, otherwise the guy next door could make the same requests, and the guy next to him and down the line."

"Thirdly, they've only had the house on the market three months. Some homes here in Clarkston have been on the market two years. I don't think they gave it enough time before coming back and saying, 'We can't sell it. Let us change it to commercial so we can sell it,'" he said.

In the second issue, Century 21 requested a rezoning from residential to office for a lot on the east side of Main Street, across from Randy Hosler Pontiac.

"We anticipate building an office there. We're renting now," said general manager Bert Schmidt. "We'll have a greenbelt in front, parking in the back, and are sensitive to the transition in relation to Main Street. We're going to make it look like the old-home style."

The proposal is scheduled before the village's planning commission April 2 at 7:30 p.m. in the Village Hall.

The village council has the final decision.

Church open

By Marilyn Trumper

The for-sale sign outside the empty former Carpenter Realty Inc. building on Main Street is for that building—not the Clarkston Church of God, says parishioner Lanny Ganger.

He thinks it's keeping new members away from services.

"The sign makes it look like the church is for sale, and people think it's empty. I want everyone to know it's not empty," Ganger said. "We hold services every Sunday at 11 a.m. and 6:30 p.m., Wednesdays at 7 p.m., and have Sunday School at 10 a.m."

When the new pastor arrived a year ago last October, the parish had five members, he said.

"Now we're up to an average of 45 to 50 for each service, and last Sunday equaled our all-time high of 63," Ganger said. "I think we'd have more if not for that sign."

The Carpenter Real Estate firm moved from the downtown Clarkston location to Dixie Highway in Waterford Township about a year and one-half ago.

Gerald Savoie, owner of Savoie Insulation, owns the empty real estate building.

He's out of town and could not be reached for comment, according to his secretary.

Man bound to circuit court for rape

Charles Bruce White, 23, of Pontiac had a preliminary exam March 23 before Oakland County District Court Judge Gerald E. McNally on four counts of criminal sexual conduct and one charge of armed robbery.

McNally closed the hearing to the press and public, pointing to the sensitivity of the case, according to a court spokesperson.

White was bound over to circuit court for arraignment before Judge John O'Brien on April 9.

He is accused of abducting two 17-year-old Oakland County boys who gave him and another man a ride home from an Independence Township party March 10.

The teens were forced to perform sex acts with the men, and each other, and they later escaped.

Police continue to seek the second suspect in connection with the case.

Independence hosts annual meeting

Mark Saturday, March 31, on your calendar, and plan to attend the annual meeting of the Independence Township Board at 1 p.m.

It's here the board presents the proposed 1984-85 $1.6 million general fund budget—and where residents can propose and approve raises for elected officials.

It's the only time residents have a vote at a township meeting.

The supervisor, clerk and treasurer received a 10-percent raise last year, and the four part-time trustees a 30-percent raise, when their annual pay increased from $3,525 to $4,582.

Currently the full-time supervisor earns $34,519 and the full-time treasurer and clerk $31,644.

Springfield to set budgets, raises

The coming year's budget and officials' salaries will be open for public debate when Springfield Township holds its annual meeting March 31 at 1 p.m.

The budget of $509,000 is $29,000 less than the previous year. Supervisor Collin Walls notes that the purchase of a computer last year and a separate budget for the Community Development Funds are reasons for the decrease.

Those in attendance will also vote to decide raises for the elected township officials.

Walls said the clerk and treasurer positions carry a proposed increase from $21,630 to $24,000 and the supervisor's salary from $25,000 to $27,000.

"The main thing about the proposed salary increases is that they are just a place to begin the discussions," Walls said. "I can't tell you the last time that a proposal has been passed without any changes. On the other hand, if we don't list an increase it looks like we don't want one. We are human."

Also set for the annual meeting is the distribution of $30,720 in Federal Revenue Sharing and a proposed police millage increase for the August primary ballot.

Walls said the money has been used in a number of different areas, but in the recent years it has been allocated to the Parks and Recreation Commission.

The meeting is to be held at Springfield Township Hall, 650 Broadway, Davisburg.

—Obituaries—

Francis Larkin

Francis Daniel Larkin of Troy and formerly of Clarkston died March 20. He was 78 years old.

He attended Alma College and was retired from the sales department after 35 years as an employee of the Pontiac Motor Division of General Motors Corp. He was a member of the Church of St. Alan, Troy, and a life member of the Elks No. 810, Pontiac.

Surviving are his wife, Mary; daughter, Sue Balmer; three grandchildren; two sisters; and one brother.

The funeral mass was held March 22 at the Church of St. Alan. Burial followed in White Chapel Memorial Cemetery, Troy.

Arrangements were made by the William R. Hamilton Co., Troy.

Victor J. Kapla

Victor J. Kapla of Independence Township died March 25. Mr. Kapla, 63, was retired from Salem Sand & Gravel.

He was a member of the American Legion Campbell-Richmond Post No. 63 and the VFW David Belisle Post No. 1008.

Surviving are his wife, Lillian; children, Sandra of Rochester, Cynthia of Marquette, Victor of Rochester and Kathleen of Rochester; sisters, Mrs. John (Stella) Jankowski of Dearborn, Mrs. Joseph (Helen) Gaydek of Redford Township; and brother, Chester Kapla of Plymouth.

The funeral mass was to be held Wednesday, March 25, at St. Daniel Catholic Church with the Rev. Charles Cushing officiating. Burial was to follow in Ottawa Park Cemetery, Independence Township.

Arrangements were made by the Lewis E. Wint Funeral Home, Independence Township.

Sashabaw party store nets approval

Contingent upon the Oakland County Road Commission's approval of a deceleration lane, Mario Rotundo and Pete Caruso received final site plan approval for a proposed delicatessen and real estate office in the former Helvey Orchard apple stand on Sashabaw Road, south of Waldon Road.

The commission approved the plan March 22, with Chairman Neil Wallace the lone dissenter.

"We couldn't deny it because of a quirk in the law," Wallace said after the meeting. "So my vote was a vote of protest because I knew it would pass.

"I also don't think we need that service there. The lot is long and narrow, and I think it's going to increase traffic, creating a potentially dangerous situation."

In addition to the deceleration, the commission requested a performance guarantee be posted to ensure completion of a landscape berm, other landscaping and parking lot construction.

New park stirs her memories

Agnes ready to picnic

By Marilyn Trumper

When the first picnic table goes in the 15-acre Sashabaw Plains Park on Maybee Road, 74-year-old Agnes DeNise says she'll be there with an old dark brown wicker picnic basket slung over her arm.

"It's my husband's grandmother's basket. She used to use it to carry butter and eggs to town in 1900 when they moved up to Boyne Falls," Agnes said, leaning forward on her elbows in between sips of coffee.

"We'll fill it up with a little bit of everything; we always have potato salad, chicken, cold tea. I'm anxious to see (the park) open. I can just visualize it filled with tables out there."

Agnes has lived in Independence Township 73 of her 74 years—and always in the Sashabaw Plains area.

She and husband Merle have lived on Eastview Road 38 years.

"These are my old stomping grounds—and I've had lots of fun those 74 years. I grew up on my dad's 80-acre farm next to where the park is," Agnes said.

"Years ago I could tell you every home along Dixie Highway, and every farm in the area; the Beardsees, the Voorheises... This was all farms and plains here. There was a one-room school house where the fire hall is now (on Maybee Road at Pine Knob).

"I walked a quarter of a mile to school every day. And when it snowed, my dad would come down and meet us, take our lunch boxes, and we'd walk through the drifts.

"We never knew what it was to get a ride to school."

Hot summer days evolved around the Sashabaw Creek swimming hole.

"It was much larger than it is now—but we thought it was huge," she laughed.

In thrashing season when farmers drove steam engine tractors through the fields, Agnes stood outside and listened for the whistle that indicated the day was at an end.

"Then the women knew it was time to put the potatoes on," she said.

She remembers when Rudy's Market sold three pounds of bacon for 25 cents.

"I remember he sliced it, too. That was the first time I ever saw bacon in a grocery store."

During the holidays, three or four neighbors' families hitched the horse to a sleigh and went to Pontiac for Christmas shopping.

"We'd heat up a soapstone (a flat, square stone drilled to accept a metal handle), wrap them in newspaper and put them in the hay to keep warm.

"The horse was always parked, well I guess you wouldn't say parked...it cost 10 cents to have him stand in the livery barn where he'd be fed hay while we shopped," Agnes said.

Keeping her memories, Agnes looks to the future.

In a mid-March letter to Timothy Doyle, director of Independence Township Parks and Recreation Department, Agnes wrote:

"You have made a senior citizen of Sashabaw Plains very happy when you allowed the new park to be named Sashabaw Plains Park.

"I know when the first picnic table arrives I will be there with my basket on my arm.

"After living in this same area 73 years there are many memories and many changes."

Agnes DeNise was pleased with the Independence Township Board's decision to historically name Sashabaw Plains Park. The name came from entries submitted in a contest between Sashabaw Junior High, and Sashabaw and Pine Knob elementaries.

Check out at Health-o-Rama

Free health screening and an optional $7 blood test panel are services provided when Health-o-Rama comes to Independence Township Thursday, April 5.

Services available at the Church of the Resurrection, 6490 Clarkston Rd., from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., include health counseling by a registered nurse, height and weight measurements, blood pressure, vision and glaucoma tests and a hearing test.

The $7 blood test panel, which could cost as much as $80 with a private physician, checks for signs of kidney disease, liver disease, cholesterol, diabetes, bone disease, gout and more.

"It is a wonderful chance to get a fairly adequate check-up without a great deal of cost to the individual," said Mary Jane Chaustowich, who has been local site coordinator three years. Roz Needham is also serving as site coordinator this year.

If there are any problems, the person is alerted and provided with the name of a physician if necessary, Chaustowich said.

The Clarkston Community Women's Club conducts the local clinic for Project Health-o-Rama, sponsored by WXYZ-TV, Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan and the United Health Organization, a Torch Drive Agency.

There are 72 Health-o-Rama sites across southeastern Michigan hosting clinics from March 27 through April 18.

For more information call the hotline at 596-0077 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. weekdays.

Folk art show

Art lovers will have a chance to examine hand-made reproductions at the Country Folk Art Show March 30 through April 1 at the Springfield Oaks Activities Center.

More than 85 artists are expected to participate in the show with hand-forged iron works, hand-woven baskets, wood carvings, hand-made quilts, pottery, oil and water color paintings and more.

Early bird shoppers can have first choice at Friday's evening preview from 6 to 9 p.m. Admission is $5.

On Saturday and Sunday the admission is $2.50, with hours from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Prices start at $3. Springfield Oaks is located on Andersonville Road at Hall Road in Springfield Township. For more information call 858-0906.

The farm is located at the corner of Seymour Lake and Perry Lake roads.

AWARD-WINNERS: Beth Sayles Richards of Sayles Studio, Waterford Township, poses with her four portraits selected for exhibition at the state and regional competition in Columbus, Ohio, and the at the state convention in Grand Rapids. In addition, she was named one of the top 10 photographers in the state of Michigan. The subjects in the portraits are (top row, from left) Therese Lederman and Kursten and Natilie Pickup, and (bottom row, from left) Beth Ballard and Jennifer Youmans.

Six classes offered on parenting

"It's Tough Being a Parent Today," a series of six classes in parenting children between the ages of 6 to 12 is offered by the Clarkston Ambulatory Care Center.

Led by social worker Stan Garwood, they are scheduled Tuesdays, April 3, 10, 17 and May 1, 8 and 15, at 7:30 p.m. in the office of Dr. James O'Neill, 5885 M-15, Independence Township.

The registration fee is $10 a family.

Topics to be discussed include ways to build a positive child-parent relationship, how to handle misbehavior, ways to improve communication, ways to instill responsibility in children, how to utilize encouragement in fostering self-esteem and how to deal with outside influences like peers, school, sex and drugs.

Advance registration is not required, but it would be appreciated. Call 625-CARE for more information or to register.

Preschoolers learn music at Melissa's

A six-week music program for preschoolers is planned this spring by Melissa's Keyboard Classics.

The one-day-a-week, 1½-hour program is structured to prepare the preschooler in the basics of music, and learning tools such as games, singing, crafts and puppet shows are planned.

The music studio is located on Dixie Highway in Independence Township.

He enjoys being a teacher

by Sharry Doty

An Apple for the Teacher

Cliff Irwin, a science teacher at Sashabaw Junior High School, has been an active member of the Clarkston community for the past 30 years.

Being a graduate of Clarkston High School, Northern Michigan University (bachelor's degree in biological sciences) and Michigan State University (master's degree in secondary administration), illustrates Cliff's confidence in education in Michigan's schools.

Cliff has also devoted the past 20 years to teaching junior high school in Clarkston.

Aside from his involvement in educational organizations (CEA, MEA and NEA), Cliff is also a member of the National Blue Key Honor Society, a coach for the Oakland County Science Olympiad, and he works with the Clarkston schools' marketing team.

Along with Cliff's science teaching experience, he brings to his work a great deal of experience outside of education that he feels has enhanced his classroom teaching.

Cliff has been involved in real estate sales; he has worked in various stages of construction work; and he has worked for the Michigan State Corrections Department.

"These areas are not directly related to education, but they have given me insight into people, their motives and behavior," he says.

His interests outside of school are varied, but all revolve around the out-of-doors, not surprising for a science teacher.

Cliff enjoys archery, wood carving and camping with his wife, Linda, a teacher aide in Clarkston, and with his daughters, Jodi (16) and Lisa and Lori (13). The family is also active in church programs at the Clarkston United Methodist Church.

When asked if he had any personal goals, Cliff

"There is no more important product in the world than the product I have a small part in producing."
—Cliff Irwin

responded with this statement, "My goal is to develop an interest and appreciation of the sciences."

"I believe there is no more important product in the world than the product I have a small part in producing, and that product is a well-rounded productive young adult. I'm proud to be a teacher!"

Editor's note: "An Apple for the Teacher" is provided through the efforts of a Clarkston Education Association Committee. Its purpose: "to acquaint or reacquaint the community with members of the Clarkston school district's teaching staff who represent a highly trained and diversely talented resource in which we can all take pride." This week's column was written by Sharry Doty, an English teacher at Sashabaw Junior High School.

Colombiere hosts play

The University of Detroit's Theatre Company presents "Mass Appeal" at the University of Detroit's Colombiere Campus April 6, 7, 25 and 26.

A wry comedy written by Bill Davis, the play revolves around the conflicts between Father Farley, a popular, flashy priest and the young, zealous Deacon Dolson, played by David Regal and John Lark, respectively.

Showtime is 8 p.m. and tickets are $6 for adults and $4 for students and senior citizens.

The play is directed by Arthur Beer.

Colombiere is located on Big Lake Road in Springfield Township.

For ticket information, call Colombiere at 625-0270 or the Theatre Company's box office at 927-1130.

Newspapers wanted

Contributors of newspapers are wanted for a paper drive to help Clarkston SCAMP, a summer camp program for 200 young people with special needs.

Donations are now being accepted for the drive, planned May 5 by the North Oakland Civitan Club in the Harvard Plaza parking lot in the 5600 block of Dixie Highway, Waterford Township, from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m.

To have your newspapers picked up, call 623-9278.

Learn boating safety

Learn boating safety with the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

Free classes for students 12 through 16-years of age are offered in two sessions; April 7 and 14 and May 12 and 19 from 9 a.m. to noon in the Oakland County Jail's Civil Defense Room, 1201 N. Telegraph, Pontiac.

Students are awarded a boating safety certificate which allows them to operate a boat without adult supervision.

Pre-registration is not required.

For more information phone 858-4991.

Burma Shave-style sign hails birthday

The signs along Rattalee Lake Road were lined up Tuesday, Burma Shave-style:

Happy
Birthday
Polly
U2 Molly

They were spotted by the 18-year-old twins' mother, Kay Counts, as she headed out to buy birthday presents for the young women on their March 27th birthday.

"When I saw the 'Happy,' immediately I thought it was strange," she said. "I thought it was obviously lettered by someone who wasn't a professional (sign painter)."

Molly and Polly Counts are seniors at Oakland Christian School in Rochester.

Their mother, who stopped by The Clarkston News to share the moment, wondered if they saw the signs on the way to school, but said she'd have to wait until they reached home.

She suspects the signs are the work of Polly's boyfriend—because Polly's name was placed first.

Honors

Bryan Bennett is a member of the Golden Key National Honor Society at Michigan State University, East Lansing.

The honor society recognizes and encourages academic excellence. Membership is by invitation only, bestowing honor without requiring participation in extracurricular activity.

The MSU chapter selects juniors and seniors who have earned a 3.5 grade point average in at least three terms of study at MSU.

A Clarkston High School graduate, Bennett is the son of Daniel and Judith Bennett of Amy Drive, Independence Township.

Doors:
An explosion
of individuality

by Susan Basinger

A recent gift from my brother-in-law and sister-in-law was a jigsaw puzzle of the poster the "Doors of Dublin," a lovely color photo collection of some 40 proud portals.

Since, I have discovered at least three similar posters have been produced featuring the doors of Washington, D.C.; Lewisburg, Pa., and Greenwich Village, N.Y.

Coincidentally, while reading a magazine in December, a festive ad featuring a parade of 11 doorways decked for the holidays caught my eye.

A gift-boxed bottle of the product was sitting on each threshold. The doors, however, were the real stars—six-panel, four-panel, two-panel and single-panel doors surrounded by fanlights, pediments, shutters, sidelights or pilasters.

Surely, no one could help but see the beauty in each detail, I thought.

After all, we don't seem to take the door, the front door especially, as much for granted as we do other architectural details.

Trimming them has become a year-round custom—Christmas wreaths, flowered straw hats, Indian corn, and baskets of flowers or leaves taking their seasonal turns.

These join other door decorations—door knockers, nameplates, bells, letter slots and house numbers, all offering signs of pride, as well as welcome and hospitality.

Attention-getting paint colors also trim wood doors.

In Europe, where wood has always been scarce and, therefore, at a premium price, masonry structures are the rule.

Row upon row of townhouses fill the cityscapes, each one identical to the next, all built of the same material, brick or stone, with no opportunity for personal expression or preference of color—except in the wood trim of the windows, eaves and doors.

On these details, individuality often explodes, yielding extraordinary hues: chartreuse, pink, [Continued on Page 27]

Spelling bee winner says contest '... wasn't that tough'

One-by-one 15 other nervous students from Clarkston Junior High and Waterford Our Lady of the Lakes sat down, and Amy McDonald won the district spelling bee.

An eighth-grader at CJHS, Amy lives on Cranberry Lake Road in Independence Township.

"Sure I was nervous," she said. "(But) it wasn't really that tough. I think a lot of kids got out because they were nervous."

"I got a list of words four days before the competition and had a chance to study it."

The spelling bee between the two schools was held March 12 at the K of C Hall on Maybee Road.

For her efforts, Amy received a trophy and a trip to the regional spelling bee at St. Frances Council, Troy, planned March 31.

Clarkston Junior High held a spelling bee March 8 for the seventh- and eighth-grade pupils who wanted to participate. Amy won that event, and the top eight spellers qualified for the district.

English teacher Linda Palace organized the school bee. She said Amy should be getting another word list for the second round.

Other Clarkston spellers who qualified for the district level were eighth-graders Jane Selent, Bill Shook and Betsy Darnell, and seventh-graders Dave Saffron, Laura Postal, Kris Scislowicz and Todd LaRowe.

Top speller Amy McDonald shows off her first-place trophy. She is headed to the second round of the spelling bee competition in Troy.

Real wood: Elegant integrity

lavender, citron yellow, "kelly" green and "fire engine" red.

Such proliferation of colors offers the added benefit of preventing owners from mistaking their row house from their neighbor's.

On grander examples of European architecture, fine craftsmanship and the beauty of the prized solid wood combine to produce elegant heavily-carved doors, masterpieces glistening with freshly polished brass.

(Europeans don't seem to mind polishing brass as much as I do.)

Solid wood doors have long stood for elegance and integrity in the United States also.

An ad for Curtis Woodwork (an Iowa firm) in a 1928 issue of the then popular "Home Building" magazine stated, "exterior trim defines the architectural character of the structure adding beauty and charm even before anyone moves in."

The ad further encouraged owners to "begin here with this authentic woodwork to build beauty into your home."

While the state of Rhode Island is particularly noted for its beautiful doorways, the abundance of wood in the U.S. in the past produced countless admirable examples.

Michigan forests yielded a large portion of this first-quality material.

Cork wood and white pine from trees 150 to 300 years old produced clear, white wood which was easy to cut and work, and took finishes extremely well.

It isn't surprising that such wood yielded countless superior products—moldings, sidings and doors.

Originally covering 20 percent of Michigan's forests, this ideal building material was virtually gone by 1880.

Even until 1920, however, there were ads for Sears "catalog" houses (bungalow and cottage-style plans available at modest prices and in great variety) which challenged owners to find a single knot in the construction materials.

Today every builder or do-it-yourselfer knows that it is difficult to find even a handful of 2-by-4s without knots in an entire truckload of lumber.

The next time you put up holiday decorations, take the time to look at your front door.

If it is the original, the door will probably provide clues to the age and style of your house, the skill of the craftsman and the quality of the wood.

Admire it for the workmanship and history, two of the aspects we'll discuss when we next take a look at some of the "Doors of Clarkston."

... within the Inkwell

CHS strengths, weaknesses

by Mary Ellen Hanson and Pat Mac Arthur

Editor's note: "Within the Inkwell" is designed to follow the progress of work on reports about Clarkston High School for the North Central Association, the organization that grants accreditation to school districts.

Dear Penpal,

Busy, busy, busy, is the only way to describe the Clarkston High School staff the last two months.

Christmas vacation was still fresh in everyone's memory when we began the tedious effort of reading, accepting, or rejecting committee reports.

After completing the investigation of its area, each committee writes a staff summary which is presented to the faculty. The staff then comments on everything from mechanical errors to points that need clarification.

Committees sometimes feel they are "on the firing line," for they must justify their summary.

North Central now takes on a new dimension; it no longer resembles a disconnected body which is unsure of the direction the rest of the body is moving but is now a catalyst, a chance for some 65 individuals to discuss philosophies and beliefs.

Of course, sometimes it is difficult to remember this during the meetings that are held weekly after a full day of teaching, but the discussing and sharing is worth the time and effort if our school becomes a stronger and more effective educational community.

Because of the tight budgets of the past few years, many of us have been frustrated when we attempted to implement changes we felt were necessary; but in reviewing reports of the last evaluation, we realized that we have made progress, changes have been made, and we must keep trying to improve.

We were encouraged when the board of education allocated funds for a ramp for the high school. This is a major recommendation in many of the current reports, and the 1976 evaluation cited lack of ramps as a problem area.

Another weakness that is getting board attention is the heating problem in the high school.

I thought you might be interested in some of the strengths and weaknesses listed in committee reports to date. Our strengths include:

1. Community support and cooperation by individuals and booster clubs.

2. Active student participation in extracurricular programs.

3. Initiative, time, commitment and expertise of coaches and sponsors.

4. Student government support in initiating new programs.

5. Easily accessible facilities which are extensively used.

6. New lighting for the football field and new equipment in the auditorium and gymnasium.

7. Team classes which combine a general education teacher and a special education teacher to deal with the problems of the low achiever.

8. An Instrumental Enrichment program to strengthen thinking skills.

9. Advanced class offerings which challenge the academically talented student.

Our weaknesses include:

1. Lack of coordination and leadership for the overall student activities programs.

2. Lack of financing for student activities programs.

3. Lack of intramural sports and swimming and diving programs.

4. The need to go outside the school system for coaches.

5. The age of the high school.

6. Repair and maintenance has not kept up with the needed improvements.

7. The student population is greater than the building was built to accommodate.

8. The counseling and media center facilities are inadequate.

9. The computer installed to regulate heating and lights does not operate efficiently. Heating is still a big problem, and lighting does not coincide with school activities.

10. Lack of understanding on the part of personnel not involved in special programs.

11. Difficulty in adjusting staff schedules to accommodate special programs. The smaller class size of the special programs frequently results in larger classes for others.

12. Special classes frequently incur additional cost.

13. Not enough special class offerings.

Although these are only a small sample of three reports presented to the high school staff, it is easily seen that a great deal of information has been gathered.

All departments have now begun the task of writing goals and objectives. As you can imagine, this is not a job most of us enjoy.

Ron Jacobson is chairman of the Educational Programs, and he, along with his committee, formulated a very good guide for us to follow.

Since the last evaluation changes have taken place in many classes. Because of new staff members, ideas and student needs, new goals and objectives are being formulated to reflect our existing curriculum.

There will be between 15 and 30 objectives for each class that is taught.

We worked for three hours on Thursday before winter break; each staff member's goals and objectives are due on March 9. It is very important for us to get together in our departments and be aware of the goals each department member has set.

I have had some very interesting contacts with our community lately.

In January, I did a presentation for the Rotary Club; and in February, I presented an update for the board of education. I also proved information and answered questions for the high school parent dialogue group.

I am glad to have this opportunity to tell our community about our work. Our staff is spending a great deal of time on this evaluation, and I am anxious to make our community aware of what we are doing.

Please keep in touch, and let us know if you need any information.

Sincerely,
I.M. Quill

Volunteer

With a capital 'V'

By Kathy Greenfield

"Why I became a volunteer? You want an honest answer? Guilt," says Jessie Hirt.

Over a cup of coffee in the dining room of her Snowapple Drive, Independence Township, home, Hirt shares her Erma Bombeck-like sense of humor.

As volunteer coordinator at Clarkston Junior High School and a classroom volunteer as well, her nonpaying job consumes between 20 and 30 hours a month now and more than 40 hours a week during organization periods early in the school year.

Before she became a volunteer, Hirt worked 16 years "off and on" as a medical receptionist, a job she quit.

"I decided just to enjoy myself. You know, that dream just to sew everything you want to sew, to knit everything you want to knit," she said.

And that she did, sewing and knitting to her heart's content—for a while.

Then, four years ago, came the notice asking for volunteers to work a minimum of one hour a week.

"I think I felt guilty because I hadn't been able to help before, to participate in little pageants..." she said.

Her son, Marke, now 15½, has since moved on to Clarkston High School. She never worked in one of his classrooms as a volunteer, but doing something for others was enough to ease the "guilt."

"It ended up being a lot of fun," she said. "I really enjoyed it, so that's why I'm still in it."

Two years ago, Hirt became head of all the volunteers. She begins her work in August, making up surveys for teachers to find out what kind of help they want and when they want it.

"Then I recruit the volunteers, which in this community is no problem at all, and I just match the people up," she said.

She attends seventh-grade orientation and gives parents an opportunity to sign up.

This year there are 61 volunteers, a number that's about average for the four years the volunteer program has existed at CJHS.

Once the organization is over, Hirt turns her attention to volunteer work of her own.

She works for four teachers in three distinctly different settings.

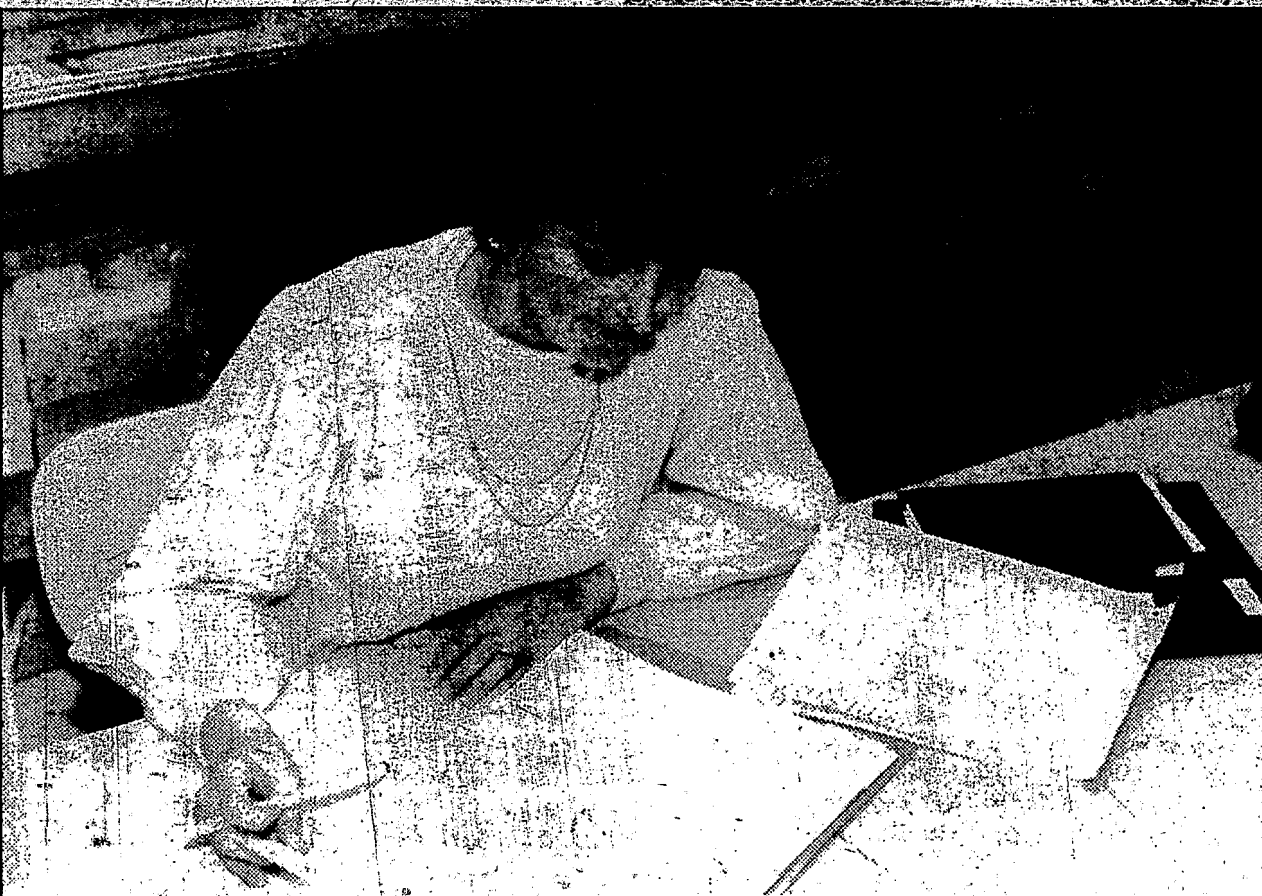

With special education students she provides one-on-one assistance, helping with projects and homework.

For a science teacher she sets up field trips and does materials research—"that's fancy for running dittos and looking books up in the library," she said.

With a group of about 10 English students she provides enrichment—they read plays, short stories and books and discuss them.

"Through this class I've had an opportunity I may not have been otherwise able to have," she said. "We'd been reading 'The Diary of Anne Frank' and brought in an actual survivor of a concentration camp. It was humbling, just a fantastic experience. He spoke to the students for an hour."

Hirt found the man by calling the Jewish Information Center in Southfield, and the program was so successful he's returning in May to speak to history classes.

Jessie Hirt keeps track of the hours of each volunteer at CJHS while sitting in her "office," space on a table, a bulletin board and a sign-up Hirt likes junior high school students, and she suggests that people who worry about being around the age group spend time with them.

And she understands when kids sometimes have a rough time, even though their anguish may not make sense to the adults around them.

Hirt lived in the Clarkston area her entire life, until she was in junior high school.

I-75 was the culprit, as it took over the family property near Sashabaw Road.

"That's why we had to move—the northbound lane went right through our house," she said.

Their new home was on Waterford Hill, still in Independence Township but in the Waterford school district. There was a brand new house, new furnishings, a new car.

She had everything but what she wanted—home the way it used to be, her old friends, a rural life-style she loved.

Hirt remembers the period in her life as particularly difficult. She wasn't happy. And her reasons weren't something other people could understand.

"As a matter of fact," she said, "I've talked to some of my high school teachers and they can't believe I've ever stepped into a school again."

All that, of course, is in the past. Now 36 years old, Hirt is happy—and part of the happiness involves her volunteer work.

"I really enjoy it. It's almost like a hobby," she said.

She and her husband, veterinarian Richard Hirt, have lived in their home on Snowapple Drive eight-and-one-half years.

They have two sons, Marke who lives at home and Nathan, 13½, who lives in Flushing.

There's plenty of family support for her volunteer work.

"My husband is so good about it," she said. "In October I probably cooked one meal. He says I'm much happier now that I'm busy. He doesn't mind clearing up the dishes or soup and sandwiches, and Marke's good about it, too. He does a lot of extra chores around the house for me."

Foreign oil

Kick the habit, scientist urges

America's growth as an electrically powered society is a prime opportunity to kick its dependence on foreign oil, says one of the nation's most celebrated scientists.

The switch to electricity from other, more expensive power sources is "one of the most striking changes in our pattern of energy use," says Dr. Alvin M. Weinberg. Electricity today accounts for more than 32 percent of U.S. primary energy, almost double what it was just 15 years ago.

"We should push oil out of every sector of our society except transport, where it's genuinely needed," he says. "Only then can we truly be self-sufficient in energy."

Dr. Weinberg's comments on American energy appear in the current issue of Focus: Views on Energy, a magazine published by Consumers Power Company. Dr. Weinberg, often called "the grandfather of nuclear energy," is director of the Institute for Energy Analysis. He was director of the Oak Ridge National Laboratory for 18 years, and is past president of the American Nuclear Society.

Replacing oil-dependent energy with electricity, says Dr. Weinberg, is a smart move that America is already making. "The price of electricity has gone up, to be sure," he says, "but not nearly as steeply as the price of oil and gas. As a consequence, electricity is pushing into many areas where it hasn't been used previously. For example, 30 percent of the steel in the United States is being made electrically today. That's far more than ever before. It's happening in the automobile industry, too."

Where will all of this electricity come from? Coal and nuclear power are Dr. Weinberg's answers.

"I think the use of nuclear power is going to expand in a major way during the next generation," he says. "I'm convinced that the present malaise we're suffering with respect to nuclear energy will pass and we'll get back on course again. Soon."

"The fact is nuclear energy is both cleaner and safer than most other forms of energy."

Already, he says, nuclear power is "a fantastic success. Just think. It's less than 50 years since fission was discovered and by 1990 it will be producing almost 10 percent of all the energy the world needs."

Clarkston 6th-graders net Olympics awards

Clarkston sixth-graders came away with plenty of awards from the Olympics of the Mind competition Saturday at Oakland Community College, Auburn Hills.

The Region I contest included pupils from schools in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties.

Chalking up a first-place award in the Chariots of Rescue division against eight other teams was a group of students from Pine Knob Elementary. The team from Clarkston Elementary took a second in the event.

"I'm really proud of my students," said Pine Knob sixth-grade teacher John Matheus, who asked parents if they'd be willing to serve as coaches for participation in Olympics of the Mind.

"They thought it was a good idea, the kids were excited...and it wasn't easy," he said.

"We basically competed against middle school and junior high kids, so I felt really good," he added. "These kids weren't intimidated by the age factor and they really had a ball."

While adults could pose questions, they had to leave it up to the children to come up with answers and were required to sign affidavits that the work on projects was totally that of the children, Matheus said.

They built chariots powered by body movement and dressed in costumes to carry out their chosen themes.

Participation by Pine Knob was encouraged by Clarkston Elementary teacher Joette Kunse, whose group of sixth-graders came in second in the competition.

"We've always had third place in the last two years, so we moved up one," she said, adding that she was thrilled with both victories.

Teams from all five elementary schools in the district placed in the top six spots the categories, making them eligible to compete in the statewide Olympics of the Mind on April 28 at Michigan State University, East Lansing.

In the structure category the contest involved loading on weights to see how much it would hold. North Sashabaw came in third and a fourth-place was won by a combined team from Andersonville and Clarkston elementaries.

In the car category, the Mousemobile run by the spring action of a mouse trap took fifth place for a combined team from Bailey Lake and North Sashabaw elementaries.

In the Camelot division, the costumes and nonverbal language created by a team from Pine Knob Elementary captured sixth place out of 17 teams.

Sashabaw science teacher Debbie Shotwell hands out the certificates received by the the junior high team of 12 pupils for placing third overall in the Oakland County Science Olympiad. This is the first year the SJHS entered the contest.

12 pupils represent school

SJH captures third place in science Olympiad

In the first annual Oakland County Science Olympiad, Sashabaw Junior High sent 12 pupils and came home with a third-place finish.

The March 18 event at the Kensington Academy featured eight junior high schools from the county. The competition is to test the knowledge of the pupils in the areas of earth science, physics, chemistry, biology and computers.

One of the events, Name That Organism, was won by Sashabaw's Jeff Alkire. He had to name and identify 24 different plants and animals.

A second-place finish went to the team of Ted

Hale, Tim Hale, Jeremy Roberts and Mike O'Connor in the panel-question event, The Science Bowl. They had to answer questions from all areas of science.

Jacqui Sommers, Emily Winfield and Alkire placed third in Fermi Questions. The event featured physics questions that could not be calculated such as, "How many hops does it take a frog to go around the world?"

Other team members from Sashabaw were Cris Cataldo, Jennifer Fauss, Quinten Geyer, Peggy McDaniel and Jessica Ketchum.

Teachers who helped the team were Debbie Shotwell, Roger Bower, Shirley Wolven, Sherry Doty, Jim Smith and Cindy Dodgers.

"We broke the students down into groups and started working with them about two months ago," Shotwell said. "We didn't get a chance to go on to the state level because the application deadline already passed. It is becoming so popular they limit it to only 100 schools. We are definitely going to go next year."

Plan now for 4-H handicap program

The Oakland County 4-H Horseback Riding for Handicappers program is scheduled to begin in April.

The program is open to 5- to 95-year-olds with special mental, physical or emotional characteristics. There are beginner, intermediate and advanced level classes.

Its purpose is to provide an opportunity for the handicapped to challenge and reinforce abilities while gaining emotional and physical therapy and an improved self-image.

Licensed riding instructions and volunteer 4-H leaders and members conduct the classes.

Eight-week sessions are held Monday evenings at the Dennis Farm in Davisburg from April 2 through June 4 and from Sept. 10 through Nov. 12. The cost for each session is $30. For registration information contact Bertha Dennis at 625-5981.

Six-week sessions are held Monday evenings at the Bloomfield Open Hunt Club from April 2 through May 21, July 9 through August 27 and Sept. 10 through Nov. 5. The cost for each session is $25. For registration forms call Vikki Gartner at 363-8574.

For more information on Horseback Riding for Handicappers call 4-H program assistant Georgina Cunningham at 858-0889.

Here they are in the flesh—the remaining twins at CHS. Clockwise from upper left: the Krupps, Griffises, Remunds, Kents and Ruelles. In all there are 15 sets of twins attending CHS. We missed these five the first time around. Like those in the previous story, they share the trials and tribulations of being twins. It isn't, they say, all it's cracked up to be.

More seeing double inside the high school

By Marilyn Trumper

We left out a few twins in the first Clarkston High School twin story.

Five sets to be exact.

Debbie Kent called to let us know it was her anonymous letter in the first place asking us to write the story on CHS twins—and we left her out.

Meet Debbie Kent, a 16-year-old junior. Her brother, Steve, had classes at the voc school and couldn't make the interview.

What's good about being a twin?

"Nothing. We fight all the time," Debbie said.

Meet Jill Griffis, 16, a junior.

Her bother Mark couldn't make the interview.

"I don't mind him; I just don't claim him," she laughed.

Meet John and Mark Remund, 18, seniors.

They say being a twin is "unique" and "different."

"You've always got somebody to go places with," said Mark.

"But I don't like being confused as being him," said John.

Keith and Kevin Krupp are 15-year-old sophomores.

They take classes together, "...because it's easier to do homework."

Finally, there are Jim and Tom Ruelle, 16, sophomores.

They're both quiet.

And move exactly alike.

They sit on a bench, elbows across their knees and scratch an eyebrow at the same time—with the same speed.

Air mail

Five to six hundred brightly colored helium-filled balloons left the clenched fists of Pine Knob Elementary school students and floated into the sky the afternoon of March 23. The fun was part of the Weekly Reader balloon contest. A card was attached to each balloon asking the finder to write back. A $500 prize is awarded to the school with the balloon which travels the farthest in the nation. By Monday Pine Knob received its first response after a woman in North Canton, Ohio, found one of the balloons, according to a school spokesperson.
