James Snover, Jack Chisholm, Lucky Fletcher, Judge Stamp, Smokey Stover and Todd Post. Publisher of The Clarkston News 28 years, Judge Stamp is a retired attorney. He served as Justice of the Peace in Clarkston for 15 years.

"Whoever told The Clarkston News, I'd like to shoot 'em," said the judge, who also shared this tidbit: "The Bible says threescore and 10, and thereafter your troubles start, so I'm celebrating the start of my trouble."

Township names fire committee

By Marilyn Trumper

Without notifying Fire Chief Frank Ronk of plans to discuss establishing a fire commission to oversee his department, the Independence Township Board named a three-man committee to review the plan and be the commission.

Pediatrician James O'Neill, retired automotive safety expert Roy Hauesler and Andrew Kramer, president of Pontiac State Bank, agreed to study the commission's responsibilities and sit on the commission once they're decided.

"I met with no one. I didn't even know it was on the agenda," Ronk said when contacted after the meeting. "I was out of town and got back in that night, but not in time for the meeting."

"I didn't know anything about it and I don't know what they've got in mind to say whether it's good or bad," he finished, refusing further comment.

At the May 9 special meeting, Supervisor James B. Smith proposed establishing the fire commission and hiring a consulting firm to "defuse and depolitize" relations between the board and the fire chief.

"Number one, the creation of a fire commission in the township would act as a controlling management agent," Smith said. "Number two, would be for us to immediately retain an imminent management consulting firm with substantial expertise to determine just exactly what the department needs."

"Whether or not another elected official, such as the supervisor, would sit on the commission is up to the board," Smith said.

"Frankly, I think it's a good idea," said Trustee William Vandermark. "There's been a lot of political pressure tied to the fire department and spending, and I don't think planning and budgeting should be a political issue."

Trustee Dale Stuart disagreed.

"That's part of the board's duty, to approve budgets and plan, and I have concerns we haven't the authority to delegate that. That's one of my functions as a member of this board—that, and to approve township policies."

"However, I think the idea of a study is fine providing the cost is not prohibiting. And I want it understood that this not a means of second-guessing the chief or trying to force the will of this board on the fire department."

Clerk Richard Holman favored both plans.

"I feel very strongly the concept is a good one," he said, "and I'm prepared to endorse the concept and to define their areas of responsibility."

"It's only fair to the members who'll serve that they know what their responsibilities will be. I also think it wise for us to proceed with a consulting firm, and define what they are to look at."

Trustee Daniel Travis said he saw benefit to both plans.

"There's been a terrific loss of morale (in the fire department), maybe from this (the firefighters) will pick up our interest," Travis said.

Firefighter's back

After six months away from the Independence Township Fire Department with a knee injury suffered in a Halloween barn fire, Neil Ashley returned to work Saturday.

"Yes, it feels pretty good, although I still have a few weeks of therapy," the veteran firefighter said. "I'm a little apprehensive, too, I guess."

Ashley was injured when his leg fell through the floor of a burning barn.

Trustee Larence Kozma agreed.

"The concept of a fire commission will go a long way to improve the situation between the fire department and township board," he said. "The firm may be a good step in the right direction. It sounds good, but we should look at costs before we leap."

Treasurer Frederick Ritter said the commission is a good idea, if it has power.

"If we ignore their recommendations then we're right back to square one," he said. "In my view we're elected and we're going to end up making the decisions anyway. I'm wondering if since we're going to end up making the decisions anyway we shouldn't just jump into it."

Cleanup near

Clean house and gear for Independence Township's annual townshipwide cleanup.

It's scheduled May 19 and 20 from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. at the Department of Public Works building, 6050 Flemings Lake, Independence Township.

Those dumping must show proof of residency, such as a valid driver's license.

The annual effort is to be paid with $16,000, budgeted from Federal Revenue Sharing funds. It was originally designed to motivate volunteers to clean up vacant land filled by illegal dumping.

To combat the illegal dumping problem, Supervisor James B. Smith asks residents to phone the Oakland County Sheriff's Department if they see someone casting refuse, and indicated a special assessment district could be implemented to finance property clean-ups where dumping is a problem.

New position may open up in school district

A new administrative position in the Clarkston school district is on the agenda of a special board of education meeting May 21.

Superintendent Milford Mason presented a potential job description for a curriculum director at the May 14 board meeting.

The curriculum is now handled by two administrators as part of their regular duties. William Neff, also the principal of Andersonville Elementary school, coordinates course offerings in the elementary schools; and Mel Vaara, assistant superintendent, is in charge of the secondary schools.

Under the proposal, one person would be in charge of coordinating courses and developing new programs at all schools in the district.

"Based on the conversations we've had up to now, I've considered this a new position," said Mason, who noted that the district dropped four-and-one-half administrative positions during budget cuts over the past three years.

The board voted 5-2 to establish the position of district curriculum director and directed Mason to rewrite the job descriptions for the positions now held by Neff and Vaara.

Before he voted "no," board member David Kithil said, "I must oppose the establishment of an additional position in the district."

C. Vincent Luzzi also voted "no."

Also on the May 21 agenda are bids for the energy conservation project planned this summer for the all the school buildings in the district.

The meeting is to begin at 7:30 p.m. in the administration building, 6389 Clarkston Rd., Independence Township.

Fire funds for study questioned

Smith disagreed.

"If it is going to be an effective commission, it has to have clout, making recommendations that will be followed," he said. "We're not looking for a buffer, or a group of showmen."

After discussion, the board voted 6-1 to approve the concept of a commission. Stuart was the lone dissenter.

The board voted 6-1 to establish the three-man committee to research the commission's duties and obligations. Ritter was the lone dissenter.

In addition, the board voted unanimously to have the three full-time officials and committee establish guidelines for the consulting firm's study.

Former volunteer firefighter Mike Darby was angry fire department funds would be spent to finance the study.

"Somebody mentioned it could cost $20,000 to $25,000 for a consulting firm and we're saying we don't have the money to keep Station 2 open," he said.

"That's what the millage is for," said Smith, referring to the study.

"And with the fire board," said Darby, "what would be the problem with having one more member of Chief Ronk's recommendation, someone who has fire experience? I'm sure the board members are very good, but they don't have fire experience, and someone could blow something right by them."

"Chief Ronk will be looked to for input," said Smith.

Full-time firefighter Neil Ashley favored the commission but questioned if it would work, and was against hiring a consulting firm.

"If (the commission) works, then yes, it's a good idea. If this solves the problem I'll be pleased with it, but I don't see how it will."

"The board is not giving them power to make decisions. They're only sticking them in the middle," he said.

"The consulting firm we don't need. The board just appointed three professionals, the best in their field, to sit on the commission. Why hire an outside company to see what the department needs?"

"All you're doing is spending money without giving the people what they paid for. How much time are we going to waste before we do something?"

After discussion, Smith set a 90-day deadline to establish the commission and receive the consulting firm's recommendations.

Historic home's move to Clarkston denied

By Marilyn Trumper

After two hours of discussion before a standing-room-only crowd, the Village of Clarkston's Zoning Board of Appeals denied Hank Radcliff the variances to move a 120-year-old home from Dixie Highway to Main Street.

"They were afraid of jeopardizing the zoning ordinance," Radcliff said after the May 10 meeting.

"Obviously I'm not happy. It was like watching a balloon deflate. But we're not giving up yet. There is an alternative to amending the ordinance to allow historic homes to be moved in. And we'll go that route if we can get Burger King to postpone its restaurant by a four weeks or so."

Radcliff holds an option to buy the Italianate home next to Ritter's Farm Market, where Burger King plans to build a restaurant, and wanted to move the house to a vacant lot just north of the municipal parking lot at Main and Washington streets.

He sought a 10-foot sideyard setback variance and 7-foot height variance on the house, limited to 35 feet by ordinance.

Radcliff could move the house without a sideyard variance, but would have to seal off windows and doors on the north side, something he said he didn't want to do because it would greatly alter the building's character.

Tom Ritter, owner of Ritter's Farm Market, negotiated the Burger King land sale and could not be reached to comment on the possibilities of delaying the restaurant's construction by four weeks, in time to amend the ordinance.

ZBA member Richard Weiss was the lone dissenter. Chairman Howard Huttenlocher, members Lillian Bauer, Bud Yo and James Schultz voted to deny.

"Number one, I like the idea of the house in the village as opposed to what might be built on the property. And two, I thought the variances requested were valid and doable by the ZBA," Weiss said.

Petitions smooth way for roads

There are smooth roads ahead for residents of Thendara Park, barring any unforeseen complications.

The Independence Township Board unanimously accepted petitions to pave the subdivision's 3.8 miles of private roads at its May 1 meeting, and now waits to confirm 51 percent of the property owners signed the petitions and to determine the Oakland County Road Commission's conditions.

After 10 years of struggling with washouts and ruts, residents rallied last November, petitioning the township for a special assessment district to finance the paving.

Currently 72 percent of the subdivision's property owners pay $135 a year, in three $45 payments, for snow removal and grading.

The subdivision pays an additional $3,000 to $4,000 a year for road work from its dues, according to Tim Petersen, chairman of the 100-home subdivision in the township's northeast quadrant.

Kids clean up

Rays of light managed to shine through cloudy skies Friday, an appropriate response to "Sun Day" at Clarkston High School when about 160 students staged a massive clean-up effort.

The students enrolled in Gary Nustad's classes brought tools from home and worked from 7:30 a.m. to noon.

They planted flowers, painted flower bed borders and trash cans, mowed courtyard lawns, raked, swept, and planted trees.

The project carried a double purpose, said economics student Marta Sanchez, "to improve the appearance of the school and...to improve the image of younger people."

"Things really start to look nice when we get through. It gives us a sense of pride," she said.

In its sixth year, "Sun Day" shaped up to be another roaring success, said Nustad.

"I'm just really proud of the students. They do a super job every year," he said. "It's really nice to see young people show concern for their school in an attempt to beautify it."

"That's really what this day is for, to show students as they really are, the 97 percent. These are concerned, responsible people."

Donations for "Sun Day" came from Bordine's, Ritter's, Gingell Hardware, the Oakland County Road Commission, McDonald's, the CHS student government, ACO Hardware and the Village Bakeshop.

Clerk files for November race

Holman, who lives on Clinton Drive, was formerly the appointed treasurer for the City of Wixom.

In August, he replaced Christopher Rose who resigned to take the town manager's job in Littleton, N. H.

Lawsuit stems from changing district lines

By Marilyn Trumper

Drafted into covering a new area when redrawn district lines became official April 1, State Rep. Willis Bullard Jr. (60th District) says many voters didn't elect their current lawmakers.

He filed a lawsuit Friday in Oakland County Circuit Court on behalf of three Independence Township and two White Lake Township residents to stop the special election to fill the vacant house seat of Rudy Nichols (20th District). The first hearing is scheduled May 17 at 8:30 a.m., before Judge John LaPlata.

Those named in the suit are Robert Anderson, Carol Balzarini and Jon Gaskell of Independence Township, and Bernard Brown Jr. and Kenneth Navarre of White Lake Township.

The 20th District includes Independence and Waterford townships.

Springfield Township has been absorbed into Bullard's 60th District, which includes Rose, White Lake, Highland, Milford, Lyon and South Lyon townships and three townships in Livingston County.

At a special meeting May 9 the Independence Township Board agreed to join the lawsuit with no financial obligation, along with five unidentified parties. Treasurer Frederick Ritter was the lone dissenter.

Bullard, according to Balzarini, is expected to file an amended suit later naming the township.

"What really bothers me about all this is the fact that it's really establishing a dangerous precedent," said Balzarini, a candidate for township trustee. "If any time there is a shift in the balance of power, they're going to shift the lines if they've got the votes. I don't think they should be allowed to play the game."

Teachers wanted

Clarkston schools' Community Education Department wants teachers for the After School Enrichment Program, which will be offered at all the schools next year, according to Jeanne Molzon, director.

"The only qualification is that they'd like to share their interest with a child," Molzon said. "You don't have to have a teaching certificate."

On beauty

Kathy
Greenfield

Beauty. It's a topic worth pondering every once in a while.

Unexpectedly, even though appropriate for the occasion, I found myself thinking about just that on Mother's Day.

My mom and members of our family had gathered at our house for dinner and a celebration of beauty in its truest sense.

But I didn't really start thinking about all that until later.

Before settling in to watch "The Dollmaker" on television Sunday night, I read an article in the May issue of Geo magazine called "The Voice of the Body."

The text and photographs compared beautification practices people indulge in now with different cultures and different times.

Among the comparisons: manicures, rings, bracelets and things with the ancient Chinese custom of keeping nails too long for any form of labor; contact lenses, eyeglasses, eyeliner, mascara and false eyelashes with the old Italian custom of using belladonna to widen pupils; plastic surgery on noses with rings in the noses of Cuna women in Panama; spike high heels which compress toes with the 1,000-year-old permanent mutilation of women's toes in China to form "lotus points"; dying, streaking, curling, braiding or spraying hair in an attempt to look younger, trendier or sexier with the exotic hairstyles of punk rockers and the Nuba of Sudan, who crown their locks with white feathers.

On to "The Dollmaker." Jane Fonda played the lead role of Gertie.

Her clothes were practical, makeup nonexistent, hair clean and natural. Yet her beauty was unmistakable. As a person—and a mother—she was the way everyone should be.

I didn't put all this together until one of the commercial breaks during the three-hour-long TV movie. It featured Linda Evans, the actress who plays Crystal on "Dynasty."

Beautiful? Yes, but not the same.

She discussed the merits of a popular brand of hair dye.

I couldn't wait to get back to the story of "The Dollmaker" and the beautiful woman it portrayed.

A FATAL STUMBLE?

Letter to editor

Why was Reabe demoted?

What is a principal? According to Funk and Wagnalls dictionary, principal is defined as: 1) First in rank, character, or importance, chief. 2) One who is at the head of some body; a chief; one in authority. 3) The head teacher or master in a public or private school.

Our principal, John Reabe, has been abruptly removed from our school, and we ask why?

Our children ask why? We, as parents, don't know what to tell them, because we have not been informed as to what this man has done.

Do we, as taxpayers, have the right to know, and decide, or is it left up to a few staff members to dictate to the board of education?

Why are we not advised of situations involving our principal? A newspaper report stated there are lawyers involved. Who's paying all these legal fees? How much more of our tax dollars will be spent on this personal vendetta?

The board members of Clarkston Community Schools voted to have Mr. Reabe removed with 34 school days remaining.

We feel this was a major decision and we should have been informed of this matter. The board is supposed to represent all parents of Pine Knob School, not a few disgruntled teachers.

How can the board voice an opinion for us when we were never informed. Doesn't our opinion count? Maybe it will count on June 11, 1984.

The Clarkston News said "staff stress."

If the teachers worked on an assembly line, would they succeed in removing their supervisor, who required that their work be completed and well done? Would clerical workers try to get their office manager removed because they were told to carry out their responsibilities?

If some members of his staff are having problems coping with the way Mr. Reabe runs his school, maybe they should seek employment elsewhere.

No matter where you work, there will always be stress. The world will never be stress-free, nor will Pine Knob Elementary School.

In the three years I have known Mr. Reabe, he has always shown fatherly concern for the children.

The elementary years are so important for our children. They are molded in these years.

Most children are led to believe the principal is the Bad Guy. Mr. Reabe has not given these children this impression at all.

On the playground he is their pal. In the office and classrooms, he is their friend. And to some he is their mentor.

He has been in the Clarkston school system for 28 years. That shows professionalism and dedication.

Personal or social adult problems should not come before our children's education and well-being.

The school board should put Mr. Reabe back where he belongs—in Pine Knob Elementary School.

Jim's Jottings

Those were the days

Jim Sherman

Graphic descriptions of a scene following a car-train crash in newspapers has taken a direct opposite approach from what TV shows and movies present.

Look through the newspapers of 50 and more years ago and you'll read words like "blood and guts" lying midst a tanglement of steel. When a DUR train hit a person the editors didn't use alternate adjectives when describing a train-cow/horse collision.

It's nauseous reading today . . . just like the TV and movie presentations. Censorship is out to lunch when it comes to goriness on the tube and screen.

Personally, I think writers had more fun writing news stories years ago. Not the crashes, accidents and fires, but things like raiding blind pigs. Seems like all towns had places that sold illegal booze, including Oxford.

I ran across an example of "fun" writing in the April 27, 1934 Oxford Leader that may prove my point.

Here it is:

The Union House, in this village, conducted by Al Light, was again the scene of a raid by Sheriff Roy Reynolds and his efficient corps of deputies, Saturday night.

The raiding squad, upon their arrival could hear voices of people, in the place, but the polished and genial operator of the Hostilery refused to let strangers in without the correct ring of the bell, which is a token of their accustomed frequency and the faithfulness the operator had in their social tranquility.

The visiting squad were not acquainted with the correct tingling and, of course, were refused the courtesies that stand-patters received. Whereupon, the raiding squad, did not put off what they intended to do, but went at once, the shortest route, the door gave way.

After the squad had finished, it was a sorry-looking mess, a facsimile of the Carrie Nation episode—but no liquor was found.

'Brigadoon' applause

I say "great job—well done" to all the students and staff at Clarkston High School involved in the production of "Brigadoon."

A special thanks to students and staff of Pontiac Central High School in helping with playing of instruments in the orchestra.

Everyone should be very proud of our teens who were willing to put much time into this production.

It was your fault if you missed any of the performances.

Plan to attend the next musical. You might like it.

Thanks for the 88th birthday party

To my friends who gathered at the coffee break at the Village Bakeshop on my 88th birthday, May 10, 1984, I wish to express my thanks for the party honoring me.

The cake-cookie (large enough to share with all present and more) from the owner and staff together with the card said it all.

A card signed by 34 friends, together with cards from those not present, were appreciated.

The hangman's noose, hanging over my head, reminded me of all my days as Justice of the Peace.

Dinner at the Red Lobster as guest of my nephew and niece, Donald T. and Marie McGregor, closed a day I can never forget.

Coming so close to Mother's Day, I must thank my mother who inspired me to become a lawyer.

Remembering teachers

Al Zawacky

The topic was teachers. It was a friendly discussion over a not-so-friendly game of five-card draw.

Years had passed since any of us in this group of card players had been in high school. The memories of several teachers had indeed already blurred into the background, but everybody could remember the really good ones and the real turkeys.

The interesting thing, however, was how some of the good guys and villains had changed hats. The teachers we regarded as good ol' boys back in high school were now often viewed as bums. The ones we used to hate, on the other hand, had been elevated to respectability.

WE LAUGHED ABOUT teachers we loved as students, but who have since fell from grace. One guy remembered Mr. V., who regularly declared Friday a "free day." He would then sit at his desk and vegetate while the class broke up into group bull sessions and card games.

Another recalled Mr. M., whose idea of an English lecture was to stand around and tell jokes. Then there was Ms. P., who played the radio in class and dedicated 90 percent of her class time to open, unstructured class discussion.

We loved these "teachers" at the time, of course. Students, like most human beings, are basically lazy and seek out the "path of least resistance." We didn't realize that, once out of school, there wouldn't be many employment opportunities for people whose training included listening to the radio, playing cards and laughing at jokes.

Looking back with the benefit of experience, we realized these teachers had cheated us.

THEN THERE WAS Mr. G., who always assigned homework, and who tended to favor essay tests over wimpy true-false, multiple-choice exams. If the class whined for a "free day," he would usually reply that we already had two coming—Saturday and Sunday. We weren't too crazy about the guy back then. But he has our respect now.

It has been a procrastinated intention of mine for years now to go back to all my schools and shake the hands of the teachers who compelled us to learn, even when we weren't really in the mood. As for some of the others, the urge has been to ask them for a full refund.

I suppose in the teaching profession, it's not what the students think of you when they're in school that always counts. It's what they think of you after they graduate.

Nostalgia

Jim Fitzgerald

The coincidence was juicy. One night I read a marvelous book that took me back 50 years to Port Huron Junior College and the biggest building I ever fell off. The next morning the college president phoned and asked little Jimmy Fitzgerald to speak at this spring's commencement exercises. If my father were alive, he'd die laughing.

The book, titled "Blue Water Reflections", is a pictorial history of Port Huron and the St. Clair River district, by Mary C. Burnell and Amy Maraccio ($16 at the Museum of Arts and History, 1115 Sixth St., Port Huron, Mich., 48060. Add $2 for postage.) The ancient photos provide splendid nostalgia for old poops like me who grew up in St. Clair County. The oldest picture, taken in 1857, shows the first bridge over the Black River in Downtown Port Huron and yes, by gosh, sitting on the bridge railing is my much older sister, Terrible Jean.

A 1904 PHOTO shows ground being broken for the Maccabee Temple at 901 Huron Ave. Several other pictures show the building after it became Port Huron Junior College in 1928. None of these pictures shows me climbing up the outside of the building, sneaking inside to yell "phew!" at the awful stink in the chemistry lab, riding my bike down the two dozen concrete steps leading to the front entrance, or—after

I matured—attending classes in my sleep.

I did all of those things and much more at Port Huron Junior College. My family lived half a block away, and the huge concrete building was the biggest challenge of my childhood. Its Greek Revival architecture provided hundreds of skinny ledges and cracks that a boy could use to gain footholds and handholds as he climbed to the rescue of Fay Wray.

The college janitor kept yelling that my friends and I should come down before we killed ourselves, but he also yelled that when we got down, he was going to kill us himself, which didn't make a lot of sense. To demonstrate our appreciation of his concern for our health, we ran through the school's hallowed hallways, whopping all the way, or took the tires off our bikes and rode over his garden hose.

IN THOSE DAYS, it never occurred to me that I'd ever attend Port Huron Junior College. The sixth grade was dumb enough, and I figured only a big sissy with bookends for ears would go to school one day longer than the law demanded. But then came World War II, the GI Bill of Rights and the wondrous realization that taxpayers were paying veterans $65 a month plus free tuition just for breathing and showing up for class once in a while.

So I became a student at the college next door to my home and, after studying hard, learned I could get out of bed at 9:55 a.m. for a 10 a.m. class and be back in bed by 11:05, so there was no need to wake very far up. The only other thing I learned was that textbooks were free for veterans and could be sold at the nearest used bookstore.

I was one of those battle-weary veterans who thought it was fashionable to ignore the usual extracurricular activities attached to college life. I slouched around in old khaki pants and GI boots and shaved once a week. I wanted my classmates to understand how our side won the war, and I also wanted to look tough in case that janitor was still there and had an unpatriotic memory.

My name can be found just once in the Port Huron Junior College yearbook for 1949, the year I graduated, under the heading: "No Picture Available." That says it all.

It has moved to a new location, and the name has been changed to St. Clair Community College, but it will always be Port Huron Junior College to me. And even if I knew how to give a commencement speech, I'd never have nerve enough to give one there. President Dick Norris said he understood.

But I do send this written message to the Class of 1964: Onward and Upward, fingerhold by foothold, and try not to fall on the janitor.

Independence ponders township manager

By Marilyn Trumper

Whether Independence should hire a township manager, and make the supervisor's job part-time, is shaping up to be a November election issue.

It's a concept to which Treasurer Frederick Ritter is soundly opposed; one other board members haven't dismissed, and one Supervisor James B. Smith says would develop continuity between administrations, provide a degree of expertise and cut his work in half.

"Logically, it could create a part-time supervisor," Smith told the board at its special meeting May 8. "There's been much talk about the cost, and duplication of management which I think have been grossly exaggerated."

Then later, Smith said the township could expect a new manager with the election of new administration every four or five years.

"We can't expect (the township manager) to stay more than four or five years. It's a mobile position, a stepping stone to other things in the career ladder."

To date, the board has no figures on cost to hire a township manager, or what the salary would be.

"I'm totally opposed to this," said Treasurer Frederick Ritter. "I think it's a major change in our form of government. And, I consider it to be another level of bureaucracy."

"It's also a very expensive proposition. We're talking about this person making something that not one of our department heads comes close to making."

"And anyone appointed by a political body is as political as the body that appoints him," he finished. "I think we run a pretty good government here, and an economical one."

Trustee Dale Stuart was hesitant.

"I think it's a dramatic step for our rural township government," Stuart said. "It's going to cost us a tremendous amount of money and it's not a panacea to get someone in who's a professional in township government."

Trustee Larence Kozma agreed, and wanted voter input.

"I think there are a lot of positive aspects, but you have to look at it also that the public elected a full-time supervisor and have granted that supervisor raises."

"For us to make that major a change I don't think is appropriate," he said. "Make it an election issue. Let's place the question on the ballot and run with it. I don't think a story in the paper hoping large numbers of the public will see it is enough."

"Fine, then let's make it an election issue," said Smith.

Ritter was angry.

"It's clear to me that what is cooking here is

Students thrive on park designing experience

By Marilyn Trumper

Groups of academically gifted kids sit clustered around tables inside Room 111 at Sashabaw Junior High.

Busy with scissors, tape, plastic overlays and wetlands maps, they're designing Independence's acquisition from Edward C. Levy: 80 acres targeted for addition to Independence's Clintonwood Park.

Their designs may, or may not be incorporated into the new addition, but director of Parks and Recreation Timothy Doyle, wanted the kids' input.

Under the direction of Larry Falardeau, Oakland County landscape architect, they've labored to "...learn in two months what equals two years of college," says Falardeau.

Black and white aerial photos supported by the chalk ledge stand against the blackboard. Next to those, a base map, a line drawing used to outline the park and a site analysis of the existing conditions.

Using templates of tennis courts, ball fields, soccer fields, community center, restrooms, parking, etc., they take into consideration wetlands, direction of the prevailing winds, where the sun rises and sets, soil, vegetation, man-made features and topography to design the park their way.

"You have to come up with things to keep these kids occupied," Falardeau said. "They catch on real fast. I'm very impressed with them."

"It's very important for them to remember they're working with a natural environment. We've messed up the last 25 years filling in wetlands and we're finally beginning to recognize the importance of man to his environment."

The kids learn the importance and functions of wetlands, that lighted game fields should be in the center of a site to minimize impact to adjacent subdivisions, that footpaths should be used to link major facilities on the site and that picnic areas should be near parking lots so patrons don't have to lug food a half-mile.

"You can't put tennis courts in east to west, or the sun will be in your eyes," said Mike Barnes.

"You can't put two baseball fields back to back, or one game will interfere with another," said Chris Cataldo. "It's also dangerous to put a soccer field by a softball field."

Parking lots can't be put in near wetlands, because they'll flood, the kids agree.

"It's pretty hard designing," said Steve Myre. "It takes a lot of time, and a lot of teamwork."

Deadline for the plans is the end of May, when they'll be presented to the township board, according to Falardeau.

Groups of academically talented kids at Sashabaw Junior High are coached in park design by Larry Falardeau, landscape architect with Oakland County's Planning Division. Fifty kids in the Gifted and Talented Education program are designing 80 acres targeted for addition to Clintonwood Park. It's a joint project between the schools, Independence Township and the county.

4-mill renewal

Editor's Note: On June 11, Clarkston school district voters face two local questions—whether or not to renew a 4-mill property tax (4 mills are $4 for each $1,000 of assessed property valuation) and whether or not the school district can borrow $1.75 million to build a multipurpose room on each of the five elementary schools.

William Neff, administrative assistant in charge of elementary education, has compiled a list of frequently asked questions and answered them.

Next week, the topic will be the multipurpose room ballot question. He'll also prepare another question-answer column for publication in the June 6 edition of The Clarkston News.

QUESTIONS ABOUT THE MILLAGE RENEWAL

Q. Is this a tax increase?

A. No. This is asking approval of voters to maintain the operating millage at its present level. The 10-year permission to levy this 4 mills expires and voters are asked to approved this 4 mills for a nine-year period.

Q. Doesn't the wording on the ballot refer to the millage as an increase?

A. Yes. This is legal wording as required for the election and must contain the word "increase." In actuality there is no increase but a continuing of an existing millage level.

Q. What does the school district use the money for?

A. This money is operational millage and is used for utilities, insurance, bus upkeep, textbooks, paper, pencils, supplies, salaries, student programs, furniture, etc. All of the day-to-day necessities.

Q. How much money does 4 mills raise for the school district?

A. Based on the 1983-84 state equalized value of property the 4 mills generated $1,445,937.

Q. Would the loss of 4 mills pose a serious threat to the operation of the budget?

A. Yes. The loss of $1,455,937 is 9.6 percent of the total operating budget of the school district.

Q. Does the teaching staff have a contract for the 1984-85 school year?

A. Yes. School will begin the last week of August for students and teachers.

McCormick survives another cut

Playing basketball in olympics is closer to reality

By Dan Vandenhemel

Tim McCormick is one step closer to playing for the United States Olympic Basketball Team.

The Clarkston High School and University of Michigan graduate survived the latest player cut by coach Bobby Knight. The 6-11 center/forward is one of the final 16 players vying for the 12-man roster.

"He's doing pretty well," said Tom McCormick of his son's performance. "The fact that he is still there says that he is doing well."

Tim is still in Bloomington, Ind., the site of the tryouts. His father has not been worried about Tim's chances of playing in the 1984 Summer Olympics in Los Angeles. The senior McCormick never doubted his son's ability.

"The fact that he is still there says that he is doing well." —Tom McCormick

"A parent never loses confidence," he said. "Tim has confidence now and it shows in his play. The NIT is carrying over to the trials. I think people have sold him short on his ability."

The 22-year-old McCormick was the Most Valuable Player in the National Invitational Tournament won by the University of Michigan Wolverines at the end of March.

The 40 hopefuls for the Olympic team were selected prior to the NIT finale in which McCormick scored 28 points and grabbed 16 rebounds.

"Bobby Knight had told us that Tim was one of the next two players to be selected for the tryouts," Tom McCormick said. "When a couple of players decided not to take part, Tim was added right away."

The final cut for the Olympic team is scheduled late in June. The final practice session starts in June.

"We'll probably go down and watch some of the tryout," Tom said of him and his wife, Terri. "We're going to go out to the Olympics, too, after Tim makes the team. We don't want to say 'if'."

Finish season 1-7

Wolves serve up 1st victory

By Dan Vandenhemel

It had to happen eventually, or at least that is what Clarkston High School tennis coach Dick Swartout thought about the team's winless season.

He was right.

The boys' tennis team defeated Pontiac Northern, 4-3, May 9 to end the Wolves' regular season with a 1-8 record.

"I was beginning to wonder," Swartout said about winning a match.

To the team's credit, four of the eight losses were by 4-3 scores.

"A lot of those matches went three sets before we'd lose," he said. "They were always losing the close matches. It wasn't just one person, everyone shared in losing close."

Pacing the lone victory against Northern were No. 1 doubles Dan Travis and John Reading, No. 2 doubles Matt Hargett and Dan Martin, No. 3 doubles Shawn Smith and Neil McGinn, and No. 4 singles player Greg Wagner.

"The only record that is over .500 for us is the

No. 1 doubles of Dan Travis and John Reading, they are 7-2," Swartout said. "Everybody else has a losing record."

Swartout said at the beginning of the season he had no idea what to expect from the players.

"It's hard to tell what you have as a team when the people are coming back at a higher level than the year before," he said. "All the players are juniors and sophomores. They have to learn how to win the big point."

Lack of experience hurt the Wolves most of the year.

The league meet was canceled because all the teams already played each other during the season, Swartout said. With the regionals coming up, May 18, Swartout is not looking for a good showing.

"If we get good pairings we'll get some points. If not, we'll get wiped out," the coach said.

"Everyone is playing like I expected them to; they just have to keep up the rallies. They have to hit the ball at the end like they did in the beginning of the match."

Sashabaw versus Clarkston

Lots of walks, lots of hits, lots of runs, with

Sashabaw downing Clarkston, 20-19

By Dan Vandenhemel

The battle between Sashabaw Cougars and the Clarkston Wolverines turned into just that.

The Cougars were able to come back, then hold on to a 20-19 victory May 8 over the crosstown junior high school.

The Cougars were down, 17-15, going into the seventh and final inning and scored five times to take the lead. The Wolverines countered with two runs of their own to draw within one.

The game was the first of two scheduled, but after the two hours, 45 minutes it took to play the first game the second was postponed.

"There were a lot of walks," Cougar coach Nancy Foster said of the many runs and the time it took to play the game. "That was our first win of the season. Our pitching has not been too good. We haven't been throwing a lot of strikes."

The Wolverines held a 15-7 lead midway through the game before they ran into control problems.

"Our pitching just fell apart and they caught up and won," said Clarkston coach Holly Rupprecht. "I expected a close game because both of us were having a tough time pitching. Before that game, we had won one game and they had won none."

"I thought we had a slight edge just because we had won a game," she said. "I think we both expected a high-scoring game because of the trouble pitching. When you start walking people there is nothing you can do. We both played the game with two pitchers, just switching them back and forth."

Leading the hitting attack for the Cougars was Jessica Shoup with four hits, three RBI's and three stolen bases. Catcher Kolleen Kline had two hits and threw two runners out at second base on attempted steals.

For the Wolverines, Beth Tilley and Amy Morris combined for seven stolen bases and Morris posted three hits and three RBI's. Shelly Heyman and Tracy Roek also had three hits.

The Cougars' record is 2-6 following a 9-8 triumph over VanHousen May 10. The Wolverines are 1-7 after a 24-7 walloping from Mason on May 10.

Dan Travis leaps to make a return against the Pontiac Northern in the Wolves' only victory of the season, with a score of 4-3.

Sashabaw wins contest in lopsided score

By Dan Vandenhornel

The Sashabaw Cougars came out the victors in the first meeting with the Clarkston Wolverines in junior high baseball.

The Cougars coasted to a 11-5 triumph May 8, behind the hitting of Scott Harvey and Jeff Billig. Harvey collected two doubles and a single and had four RBI's while Billig had two hits and three RBI's.

"Basically they outplayed us," said Wolverine coach Dave McDonald. "I think we are equal to them in fielding and hitting but they are better in pitching."

The pitching of Harvey was the difference in the game. He struck out 10 in five innings to record the win.

Cougar coach Jim Koslosky echoed McDonald in different phone interviews on the playing ability of each team.

"The game was well-played by both teams," he said. "There were not many errors or walks, but I think our pitching is better. Usually, they have the better pitching."

Craig Chamberlain led the offense for the Wolverines with a double and a single and scored two runs. Rob Ronk and Brian Galley each collected a hit.

"They got up right away and led, 9-0," McDonald said. "Once they got going, we couldn't stop them. It wasn't a bad game but we just couldn't catch up."

The big factor in the win for the Cougars was their ability to get the clutch base hit to score the runs.

"They only gave us four walks," Koslosky said. "But we were just able to get them in. The stolen bases we got I think were the key to the game. We were able to move the runners around and get the hits to bring them in."

The Cougars improved their record to 5-1 on May 10 with a 7-5 victory over VanHoosen. The Wolverines upped their record to 2-3 by beating Mason, 7-5, also on May 10.

Up My Alley

So there!

By Dan Vandenhornel

In a bold move of finger wagging, the Soviet Union pulled out of the 1984 Summer Olympics in Los Angeles.

With the games scheduled to start in July, the Soviets claim the United States cannot ensure the safety of their athletes. This may be true, but who can guarantee the safety of the average spectators at the summer games?

The so-called political experts believe this is in retaliation for the 1980 Summer Olympics in Moscow when the United States withdrew from the game because of the Soviets' involvement in Afghanistan.

In each case of a country making a statement, allies also withdrew. This substantially decreased the number of athletes that participated in the games.

The protest in 1980 by the American team did what it was supposed to do, help build anti-Soviet sentiment and enhance the morale in America.

The Soviets' proposed pull-out will probably have the same effect on American citizens. Except for the people the games are for, the athletes.

The American athletes suffered through 1980 as will the Soviets this year.

Many of them have trained most of their lives for a chance to compete in the Olympics.

I thought the idea of the games is to build international athletic spirit. It should be the competition between individuals who have worked hard to become the best in the field, not a tug-of-war between political powers.

I'm not complaining about what the United States and the Soviet Union are doing with their relations with each other, just how they are doing it.

To slap the hands of the other country or to stick your tongue out is one thing but don't play a chess game with athletes.

These "pawns" are being told they cannot compete against one another. It's like telling them, "you've worked very hard to become very good, but because such-and-such a country is being bad, we're punishing them by not letting you compete."

That stinks.

What the Soviets are doing this year and what the U.S. did four years ago has little impact on the other country. In fact, they are punishing their own athletes, their own people, by withdrawing from the Summer Olympics.

These two political powers are acting like children and the athletes are their favorite toys.

"If you don't play nice, I'm not coming over to your yard to play."

"So there!"

Planned Deer Lake condominiums on agenda

By Marilyn Trumper

Developer Frank Walker says he's anxious to get the joint meeting of the village and township planning commissions over regarding Edgehill, his proposed 35-unit condominium complex on Deer Lake.

The meeting is scheduled Thursday, May 17, at 7:30 p.m. in the Independence Township Hall Annex, 90 N. Main, Clarkston.

Last week Walker unveiled his artist's rendering of the 1,200- to 1,500-square-foot condos with traditional English tudor facades of brick, stucco and timber, sculpted chimneys, leaded glass windows and tiled roofs.

Targeted for seven acres shared by Independence and Clarkston, the site will be developed around existing trees and he'll try to save as many as possible, Walker said.

"And there's a 40-foot setback required on the site that we're going to stick to as closely as we can all the way around," he said, adding the tree barrier would seclude the condominiums.

In addition, he's preserving a cottage, built in the 1920s, on the site for use as a community center.

"A lot of the designs (for the condominiums) I got from the little stone house, especially the window details," Walker said. "I think it's important we keep it. It has some unique characteristics and I think it has some historical significance to the area."

"I see a lot of uses for the community center," he said. "I'd like to have a small library, greenhouse with a wet room and use it for weddings and get-togethers for the people who live there."

A single drive will service the site, with a guard for security if the homeowners' association wants one, according to Walker.

And Edgehill will deed restrict out lake rights, he said.

Petition deadline

Township board candidates have until June 5 to deliver their petitions to Independence Township Hall for placement on the August election ballot.

Republicans must collect 29 signatures and Democrats 44.

Petitions can be picked up at Independence Township Hall, 90 N. Main, Clarkston, between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m.

The four-year terms of full-time supervisor, treasurer and clerk are up for election as well as the four part-time trustee seats.

Aimed at housing for parents whose children are grown, Edgehill is a 35-unit condominium development proposed by developer Frank Walker on Deer Lake. The traditional English tudor condos will sell for $120,000 and $150,000, he said, and will not have lake rights.

Parking spaces up to board

By Marilyn Trumper

It's up to the board of appeals to determine parking requirements for developer Ron Helin's proposed 50,000-square-foot office/retail mall on M-15, north of Clarkston in the abandoned Texaco Service Station.

After more than two hours of discussion at its May 10 meeting, the Independence Township Planning Commission gave preliminary site plan approval to Helin, contingent upon meeting all the ZBA's parking requirements, according to Chairman Neil Wallace.

The ordinance doesn't specifically address parking for a development like Helin's, according to Wallace, but the closest calculation calls for over 400 spaces. Helin's plan shows 326.

"Apparently the new trend is to reduce the size of parking spaces to 9-by-20 instead of 10-by-20, which will give him 10 percent more parking," Wallace said. "The ZBA is going to look at that and determine the safety factor too."

At a mid-April meeting commission members expressed concern about the safety of parking spaces to either side of entrances and exits.

Parking remains the critical issue, according to Wallace.

Helin, owner of W.H. Investments, could not be reached for comment.

Private school plan receives township OK

A plan to open a private school on Dixie Highway in Springfield Township cleared another hurdle when approved by the Springfield Township Board.

The site is a 7-acre farm owned by Dr. O.J. Fusilier until he moved late last year.

"I can't remember a discussion that's been quite so tough," Supervisor Collin Walls said during the board meeting May 9. "That's a special piece of property."

After the meeting, Walls said there were several reasons why he and Treasurer J. Calvin Walters were concerned about the plan.

"That's just such a quaint, charming piece of property. It was like a picture postcard," he said. "A dentist owned that farm and had his practice there and as a hobby he had an evergreen farm. This will all change. It's hard to explain this feeling,"

The Clarkston (Mich.) News Wed., May 16, 1984 17

Walters read a prepared statement with the motion to accept the plan. It was passed unanimously by Walls, Walters and treasurer Patricia Kramer. Trustees William Whitley abstained and Glen Vermilye was absent.

The winged colonial house is set back off Dixie Highway and will not be torn down under current plans.

Organizers Betty Moen and Doloris Imbrunone expect to open the school Sept. 4.

Construction is to begin by the end of May. "We have passed all the board needed to begin," Moen said. "Right now we will be through the sixth grade, but if growth continues we'll be open to the seventh and eighth grades too."

Meet Howard Wright—Mr. Mom

By Marilyn Trumper

Brian and Aaron Wright's mom is an imposing person who doesn't smell of Chanel No. 5, or squeeze into the the latest black Vanderbilt's, or buy L'Espresso pantyhose or L'Oreal cosmetics.

But this mom has a 4-by-3 index card in the left breast pocket with a sure-fire molasses cookie recipe.

And this mom has hairy arms, a barrel chest, strong, big hands and shaves every morning.

She's a he.

Meet Howard Wright, who as a never-been-married man at the age of 32 adopted Aaron, now 11, a Korean orphan, and three years later adopted Brian, now 6, also a Korean orphan.

"I was the first single father in Michigan to complete inter-country adoption, so I spent a lot of time pioneering," said Howard, offering a big smile and sparkling blue eyes, reaching out with mammoth arms to hug his youngest.

"Now, go over there and play while I talk," he said, settling behind the desk of his classroom at Pine Knob Elementary where he teaches music to grades K-through-6.

According to Howard, working with kids all day helped make his decision.

"I like my job and I like my students and I figured parenthood had to be fun. I also felt I was missing something. I wanted a family."

"And it is fun," he smiled, "but it's more than just doing the nonsense. Sometimes it's tough. Especially when you have to make decisions that will affect your child."

"And it can be a real wow. Parenting," he said, "is a real trip."

But the rewards are great.

"There's always a payback, like something super your kid does that makes you super proud and you want to say, 'That's my kid!'"

Dad and the kids spend time together biking, at Aaron's softball games, and growing bonsais, Howard's miniature tree hobby.

"Sometimes I think we spend too much time together, but I love it. I just love it. Nothing feels quite so good," he said.

When Brian arrived in the states it was a year before he had the strength to walk around the block.

"They remember what it was like (in Korea) and they are reluctant to talk about it. It's very painful," Howard said. "They didn't have enough to eat. Aaron

The never-married Howard Wright wanted a family and six years ago adopted a Korean orphan. Three years later he adopted another one. His mom turned Howard's name into the Kelley & Co. Mr. Mom contest, aired on Channel 7 last week. Of the four contestants, a father with two daughters, a father with two sons and a father of twins, Howard won. He and the boys, Aaron (left) and Brian, have a week's paid vacation, with three days in Disneyworld.

was in good shape, but Brian was very malnourished. He's in good shape now, but it took awhile."

The boys have never asked why they don't have a mother.

"No, it's never happened, and I'm not sure why," Howard said. "I figured it would some day. But I've always been of the philosophy that one parent is better than none."

"And besides, there's so much outside influence and stimuli that no one really raises a child 'alone.' They get messages from all over."

Each boy has his chores.

Aaron cuts the grass and cleans the cat litter box. Brian sets the table and makes his bed.

Quiet, but active, the boys grin and nod shyly when asked if they like their dad.

"Parenting," said Howard, "is on-the-job training."

Buy circus tickets through the mail

Step right up and get your tickets for the Independence Township Firefighters Association three-ring circus.

They're $5 in advance or $6 at the door, Master Charge and Visa honored. Call 625-1952.

The circus fund raiser is scheduled July 5, 6, 7 and 8, with one, two, three and two two-hour shows respectively, each seating 3,500 people, according to Roger Gillespie, volunteer firefighter.

Deadline for mail-in tickets is June 15.

The 46-member group hopes to raise $90,000 with M&M Productions circus, at the former Waterford Hill golf course on Dixie Highway, behind the House of Maple & Pine.

According to Gillespie there'll be a beer tent, hot air balloon, the Budweiser Clydesdales, a kite contest and ethnic food concession stands.

"You know, I started to think about this and realized that I'm 35 years old, and have never been to a circus under the big top. It's become very rare," he said. "So we hope to see everyone there."

Helium-filled fun for kids

The afternoon before their school fair May 5, North Sashabaw Elementary's 455 pupils gather outside for a great balloon send-off. Members of the school's PTA spent all morning filling the multi-colored balloons with helium and pasting on each child's name and the school address and phone number. By Tuesday morning, five people called to say they found balloons at Grand River and Greenfield roads, in Ferndale, in Southfield, in Detroit's Virginia Park—and in Essex, Ontario, Canada. Workshop

Topic: assertive discipline

Parents looking for how-tos on raising happy, well-behaved children and solving everyday problems such as not listening, talking back, arguing, tantrums, school problems and sibling disputes may attend an Assertive Discipline for Parents workshop by Lee Canter & Associates of California.

Sponsored by the Bailey Lake PTA, the two-hour workshop is to begin at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, May 22, in the Clarkston High School Little Theatre.

"It's a program where you don't listen to what you should do, they tell you what you can do, a step-by-step plan," said Pam Bills, spokesperson for the PTA.

Tickets are $3 a person or $5 a couple. They are for sale at Bailey Lake Elementary School.

As available, tickets will also be sold at the door the night of the workshop.

For more information call PTA president Tom Bills at 625-1373.

Honor Buckle-up Week, May 24-31

To promote seat belts and start Michigianians on a healthy habit All American Buckle-up Week is May 24-31.

"We hope to go national with it next year," said Eva Clark, of Oakland County's Department of Institutional and Human Services.

"Car accidents are the number one killer and crippler of children. If (children) are properly restrained, fatalities are cut by 90 percent and injuries by 80 percent," she said.

In April of 1982 the state adopted a law which mandates all children from birth to the age of one be in car seats. Those up to the age of four can be in the back seat but must be buckled up, she said.

Since then, there's been a 40.2 percent reduction in casualties under the age of one, and a 24.8 percent drop in casualties between the ages of one and four.

From 1981 to 1982, 323 children under the age of one suffered casualties.

The first full year the law was in effect, that number dropped to 193, according to Clark.

The one to four age group reflects the same decline. Prior to the law's adoption in 1981 to 1982, 1,887 children between the ages of one and four suffered casualties. After 1982, that figure dropped to 1,419, she said.

Parents who can't afford to buy a car seat, or grandparents who need them infrequently can rent seats by calling 634-3327 in Holly Township, or 634-7135 in Rose Township.

A bug-eyed sprite

"Talk about politicians," laughs Everett MacDougall about this snapshot of his grandson, Jason Thrasher. Taken when Jason was five weeks old, the photo could be of a future president, says the proud grandfather. Jason was born Feb. 20 on the Hawaiian Island of Maui. His parents are Moses Thrasher and Karen Lee MacDougall, who graduated from Clarkston High School in 1969. Grandparents Mary Alice and Everett MacDougall live on Hillside Drive in Independence Township.

Pageant contestant finishes top 18

Kelly Molter finished in the top 18 at the Miss Michigan American Co-Ed Pageant May 12 at the Plymouth Hilton Hotel.

There were 93 finalists at the three-day event, but even more impressive, says Kelly's father, Tom Molter, is that there were 10,000 applicants.

A Clarkston High School junior, Kelly entered the contest at the suggestion of the Ford Modeling Agency in New York City, where she submitted a portfolio.

"It was really exciting, especially all the friends I made," she said. "That was the best part, meeting all the different people from different places. I really enjoyed it."

Kelly would like to become a model, but she's also interested in clothing design, psychology and becoming a department store buyer.

Deerhill Drive residents, Tom and Jean Molter have three other children, Stephanie, 20, Tom, 19, and Dirk, 13.

Pageant contestant: CHS junior Kelly Molter

Michelle Sexton and Matt Jensen placed in the top 10 of a future problem solving essay writing contest sponsored by the University of Michigan. Also placing was Dawn Dederich.

Much applause

Three honored for writing

Three students at Clarkston Junior High were honored for the writing skills as well as their ability to work out futuristic problems.

Placing in the top 10 for the University of Michigan Future Problem Solving contest were Dawn Dederich, 4th; Michelle Sexton, 6th; and Matt Jensen, 10th.

The honors English students were required to write a scenario on one of five topics—prisons, lasers, nuclear waste, genetic engineering, or electronic games.

The students were given situations and bibliographies to work with and were limited to 1,000 words.

Dawn did her work on genetic engineering,

Michelle worked on electronic games and Matt on lasers. All three are ninth-graders.

Each will receive a certificate from the University of Michigan.

"I really didn't expect to win anything," Michelle said. "I did mine on video game addiction. It took a lot of time."

"I did mine on using lasers to solve the energy crisis," Matt said. "Winning didn't really affect me either way."

Other students who had their essays submitted were Michelle Pettit, Dean Moscovic, Laura Manser, Wendy Law, Mike Kolody, Chris Houston, Todd LaRowe, Jane Selent, Heather Smith, Peter Hollis, Andy Luter and Kelly Cobane.

Job opening

Parking lot attendants are needed by the Pine Knob Music Theatre. Applicants must be at least 18 years old or 1984 high school graduates.

Inquiries may be made at the Pine Knob Ski Lodge, 7777 Pine Knob Rd., Independence Township, now through Sunday, May 20, from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Poppy sale

Selling poppies to aid needy veterans and their families is the goal of two local veterans' organizations, the American Legion and Auxiliary, Post 63 of Clarkston and the Clarkston VFW, Post 1459.

The Poppy Days and VFW Buddy Poppy sales are planned Thursday through Saturday, May 17, 18 and 19.

What's new in business

Hill joins FTD

Waterford Hill Florist has been accepted as a member of Florists' Transworld Delivery Association (FTD), the worldwide flowers-by-wire delivery service. The owners of the shop, located at 5992 Dixie Highway in Independence Township, are Belinda Seal and Theresa Petherbridge.

Village Grill hot with hot dogs

More than the name is new at the Village Grill, formerly Sweet Sue's, in the Village of Clarkston.

Ice cream is still on the menu, but so are full breakfasts, hamburgers, coneys and sandwiches including Ruebens, salads, soups—and homemade pies. Gone are the ice cream cones.

"We wanted to give Clarkston a place open year-round and it's just impossible to have cones and have a restaurant in here also," said Sue Linenger, owner of the Village Grill with her husband, Dick.

"We really enjoy doing business in Clarkston. We really love the town, and we're really proud it's done so well so quickly."

Hours at the grill, opened for business April 27, are 6 a.m. to 8 p.m. seven days a week. Carryouts are available.

It's located at the corner of Main and Washington streets in downtown Clarkston.

The Linengers also own Sealcote, an asphalt maintenance and driveway seal coating business, which is keeping Dick busy.

The firm has been hired by the Village of Clarkston to fix potholes, and Dick has joined to crew to complete the work as quickly as possible, Sue said.

Bonnie Palizzi, the new manager of Frames By Marilyn in Ortonville, stands in front of a portion of the art gallery which fills one long wall of the shop.

Frames By Marilyn grows

Ask Bonnie Palizzi how she likes being manager of Frames By Marilyn in Ortonville and a smile fills her face.

She explains it's not much different than working in the shop, which she's done five years, except that owner Marilyn Greve travels between the new Flint shop and the Ortonville location.

"I just love my job," she said. "I enjoy being with the art, I enjoy being creative and I enjoy meeting people. And all the gals here are super, nice, fun to work with."

Jeane Dixon and Maryagnes VanKlaveren make up Bonnie's staff, and she's proud of their work.

"They are capable of handling anything," she said.

The shop specializes in custom frames and mats. Along one long wall is a miniature art gallery, and the framed artworks include posters, oils, watercolors and original needlework.

Also for sale are ready-made frames and a large selection of limited edition prints and posters.

A feature of the shop is The Decision-Maker, which eases the selection of mats and frames by creating the illusion of pictures hanging on a wall the same color as the one in customer's home or office. Swatches of wallpaper can also be used for background.

Groupings are another specialty, and they'll help customers combine a new item or two with things from home.

Through the years, the shop has framed several unusual pieces, from a yo-yo collection, a pastry hammer for a wedding cake and a football to a roll of Tums.

"A woman got a promotion and one of the gifts was a roll of Tums for her ulcer-to-be, and she wanted it framed," Bonnie said.

"We feel that if somebody enjoys it and they want to frame it, then it should be framed. I don't care if it's a picture a kindergartner painted or a print worth thousands of dollars. What's important is how the person feels about it."

An Ortonville resident, Bonnie has two sons. Her husband is an attorney.

She's also an artist, and a few of her watercolors are for sale in the shop.

"This is not only a job. It's also a hobby, so it combines work with pleasure," she said.

In Ortonville, Frames By Marilyn is located at 431 Mill St. The Flint shop is at 4215 Miller Rd., in the Valley Plaza.

Promotion means new director

John D. Butler has been named assistant director of arbitration and contract administration in the labor relations section of the General Motors Industrial Relations staff.

His promotion was among seven promotions and appointments announced May 7.

Butler joined GM as a college graduate in training at the Chevrolet-Flint Metal Fabricating Plant in 1969. His most recent position was manager of arbitration and contract administration at GM's Central office.

Butler holds a bachelor's degree in economics and a master's degree in labor and industrial relations, both from Michigan State University, East Lansing.

He resides in the Clarkston area.

made. "We've brought more wines in. We did more studying, so we can give our customers more information on what kind of wine they want for their parties or dinners," says Mike, proving his expertise with glib pronunciation of the German, Italian and French selections. The Pine Knob Wine Shoppe is located at 5726 Maybee, at the corner of Sashabaw Road, Independence Township.

Student contest to rename task force

The contest to rename the Clarkston Chemical People Task Force is underway at Clarkston's three secondary schools, and prizes await for the top five entries.

The task force was formed last fall following the airing of "The Chemical People" on PBS-TV. Its goal is to prevent drug and alcohol abuse by young people.

"We want student involvement," said Jeanette Sanders, the group's education committee chairperson.

Students may submit entries at their schools.

First prize is a $50 gift certificate for Coach's Corner donated by the Clarkston Rotary Club and $25 cash donated by the task force.

Second prize is a $35 gift certificate for Coach's Corner, also donated by the Rotarians, and $15 from the task force.

Third prize is a $25 gift certificate for McGillacutty's restaurant donated by the Clarkston Village Business Association and $10 from the task force.

Fourth prize is a $25 gift certificate for the Clarkston Big Boy donated by the Waterford-Clarkston Business Women's Association.

The winners will be announced in June.

For more information on the task force, call Fred Baumann, co-chairperson, at the Consortium for Human Development, 625-9600.

Tour tickets

Tickets are still available for the Clarkston Home Tour II on Sunday, May 20, from 1 to 4 p.m.

The tour features six unique homes in the Village of Clarkston and includes a reception at the Clarkston Cafe.

Tickets are $15 a person, with all proceeds going to benefit Clarkston SCAMP, a five-week summer camp program for handicapped children and youth.

A limited number of tickets will be for sale in front of the Clarkston Cafe until noon Sunday.

Anyone interested in attending Saturday night's candlelight showing should contact Margaret Olesnavage at 625-3330. Tickets are $50 a person.

Concert

Greet the season with song by attending the annual Clarkston High School spring concert, "The Majic of Spring."

Planned Monday, May 21, at 8 p.m. in the CHS Little Theatre, the concert is dedicated to graduating seniors in the music department.

Donations will be accepted.

Groups singing songs of springtime under the direction of teacher Grayce Warren include the 48-member Mixed Chorus, 43-member Choralaires, 13-member Fortissimo's, 60-member Concert "Varsity" Choir and 16-member Madrigal Singers.

Highlights of the evening include student teacher Jacqueline Thompson performing as a conductor and soloist, presenting of departmental awards, and introduction of the 1984-85 Madrigal Singers.

Welcome visits

New residents, new parents and "nearly weds" are eligible for a visit from Clarkston's new Welcome Wagon hostess, Joan Killion.

In addition to gifts from local sponsoring businesses, she provides information on governmental agencies and civic and cultural groups.

To request a Welcome Wagon call, contact her at 625-6483.

Learning Japan's -culture through taste, touch

Success is hers as Dyana Kaski uses her new-found skill to eat some fried rice.

Lynne Turk, whose daughter was in Pat Andrus's Andersonville Elementary School second-grade class last year, returned this year to share her knowledge during a social studies unit on Japan. Born and raised in Hawaii, Lynne's parents were from Japan. She taught the children how to use origami, the Japanese art of paper folding, to create miniature birds; and she prepared a spaghetti-vegetable dish in a wok and fried rice. "It's fun," said Lynne. "They're always so curious about everything."

After working hard to fold the paper just so for an origami bird, Angle Brown (left) and Ray Griunwald take a few moments to play.

Billy Gordon completes his origami bird by blowing into the creased paper to create a three-dimensional back.

Fear—a normal reaction

Heart attack, the number-one killer in American, leaves more than a half a million families in grief each year. But it also frustrates and angers an estimated million survivors and their families.

Fear, anger or impending doom are some of the common reactions among heart attack patients and their families. Some patients wonder if death is near, or if they're living on borrowed time or if the chest pain will come back.

Dr. Seymour Gordon, co-director of the division of cardiovascular disease at William Beaumont Hospital, and president of the American Heart Association of Michigan is familiar with patient concerns.

"It's normal after a heart attack for the patient to have some fear. But just as the heart needs some time to heal, so do those feelings. It often takes two to six months for the feeling of anxiety and fear to begin to fade away," he says.

The feelings of anger and frustration are unpleasant, but they are even more unpleasant if a patient feels that having them is abnormal.

Before a heart attack, a small, fleeting pain in the chest doesn't mean anything. After a heart attack, the tiniest sensation in the chest worries the patient.

"With every slight twinge in the chest, some patients get visions of being back in the ambulance, or in the emergency room, or even in the morgue. Fortunately, those fears tend to lessen with time," he says.

Some patients experience depression and feel that they are "damaged or crippled." Others feel that they have "had it," or that "life is over."

The typical signs of this depression are sleep and appetite problems, excessive fatigue, agitation or apathy, difficulty in paying attention, loss of interest in old hobbies, sloppy dress habits, feelings of inadequacy, or repeated thoughts of death or suicide.

Family members of heart attack patients also experience some frustrations or depression, Dr. Gordon says.

"But the worst feeling that the family develops is guilt. Family members feel that they did something which gave the person a heart attack. Teenage children commonly feel this way."

The family and the patient should discuss their feelings openly with the physician. Counseling services are available to help the patient and the family.

Most patients, according to the Heart Association president, recover physically and psychologically within a few weeks or months.

Eighty percent of heart attack patients return to work within two or three months and experience has shown that they can usually return to their previous jobs.

"Often, it's just a matter of time," he emphasizes.

The American Heart Association wants to reduce the incidence of heart attack and the disability that may result.

For information on heart attack and its prevention, contact the American Heart Association of Michigan, a United Way agency.

Doctor, What Causes The Noise In My Ears?

To nearly 36 million people it's not music to their ears that keeps them up at night and disturbs them during the day, it's an annoying ringing. If you suffer from this affliction, the following advice from the American Academy of Otolaryngology-Head and Neck Surgery may help.

What are these head noises? Are they unusual?

Although tinnitus, the name for head noises, is very common, the degree of severity differs from patient to patient. Noise can vary from a low roar to a high squeal, from one or both ears, from intermittent to continuous distractions. More than 7 million people are so severely afflicted that they cannot lead normal lives.

What causes tinnitus?

Although some causes are not serious, trouble with the hearing nerve (which could stem from excessive exposure to loud noises and the aging process itself) is probably the most common cause of subjective tinnitus.

Often there is no identifiable cause for tinnitus. If this is true, can anything be done to lessen the noise?

Since the auditory system is part of the general nervous system, its responses are affected to some degree by anxiety. Therefore it is important to get adequate rest; avoid caffeine and nicotine; decrease salt intake; exercise daily; and explore the applications of biofeedback (relaxation and concentration exercises).

Since tinnitus is usually more bothersome when surroundings are quiet, a competing sound (such as a ticking clock or a radio) may help mask the head noises. Some people get relief from a small electronic instrument built into an over-the-ear hearing aid. This "tinnitus masker" generates a competitive but pleasant sound. Other people find that a hearing aid alone reduces the noise and occasionally causes it to go away.

Prior to any treatment of tinnitus or head noise, it is important that you have a thorough examination which includes an evaluation by your otolaryngologist. If you would like a list of otolaryngologists in your area, write: AAO-HNS Membership, 1101 Vermont Ave., NW, Suite 302, Washington, D.C. 20005. Enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

The unaided human eye, in optimum circumstances, can distinguish 10,000,000 different color surfaces.

EMS: Medical emergencies bring out another side of rural Midwestern life

By Marilyn Trumper

There's a life-and-death, sometimes seamy side to Independence Township few people see.

But its firefighters live it night and day, and have since 1976.

They man the Emergency Medical Service (EMS)—and respond to wife-beatings.

Tragic suicide/shootings.

Accidental drug overdoses.

Choking infants.

And the bloody traffic accidents caused by a drunk driver who lives—but kills an entire family in the other car.

To offset the losses there are victories.

Victims of cardiac arrest who might otherwise die—and are saved.

A frightened child nursing a fractured leg sitting by a battered bike on the side of road is treated and soothed until the ambulance and licensed paramedics arrive.

There's the frantic mother in labor who gives birth to her baby at home, assisted by firefighters.

Seven of the department's 10 firefighters are trained to respond with Basic Life Support, one is a licensed paramedic. All have their war stories to tell, some drawing from 10 years of experience.

In 1976 the department bought its first rescue truck and since modified a rescue truck and one pickup truck, bringing its EMS fleet to three.

With Basic Life Support training they are the first-responders, arriving on the scene before Fleet Ambulance with its fully trained paramedics.

EMS-serves-the-township's 36-square-miles.

Bob Cesario joined the Independence force last year after four years as a Fleet paramedic. He's the only township firefighter with paramedic status.

"This is nothing compared to what I've seen," Cesario said. "I pick up a shift now—and then with Fleet to keep up my skills.

In Independence, the men make repeat runs to avert the suicide attempts of a man in his 70s.

"I just want to die," police quote the man in their reports.

"What do you say and think? What can you say?" asks Cesario, 26. "You don't think about it. The person's obviously in distress. You make runs like that on people all the time. It's hard to see what the problem is. If you think about it, you lose sleep.

"You wake up dreaming of runs you made five years ago."

Michael Fahrner, 27, a nine-year department veteran, says it's injured children and alcohol-related traffic accidents he has trouble understanding.

"My last infant," Fahrner said, shaking his head. "That's about the only thing anymore. Some things you think about really hurt you. It's so much more devastating for a kid to have a problem.

"That, and drunk drivers. Ninety percent of the time he gets up and walks away but the kids and mom don't."

Putting their heads together, they recall some of the worst cases:

A suffocation suicide where the victim put a plastic garbage bag over his head; a murder/suicide; serious burns from grease fires; a house fire on East Harvard last spring that took the life of a woman and seriously burned her husband; a scalding; a head-on crash on I-75 that killed three and injured two.

"But most of the time it's someone having a heart attack or some other problem," said Neil Ashley.

The men recall a Clarkston Road man whose family summoned the department each time the aging senior had difficulty breathing.

"I'll bet we responded 20 times thinking it was a heart attack," Ashley said. "He'd be having chest pains and difficulty breathing and we'd think, 'Here we go again.'"

"He died at the hospital the last time of congestive heart failure—and it was really bad," interjected Fahrner.

Sometimes, firefighters are summoned when it's not necessary.

"Take the case of a kid who lays his hand open on a beer bottle," says Ashley, confirming that each time the fire department responds, an ambulance is routinely dispatched to follow.

"Usually it's mom who's more upset than the kid. But he needs stitches, and she's too shook-up to drive. We'll suggest that he get it checked out, and the ambulance will wrap and bandage his hand—and they won't refuse to take him. But it's really not necessary," Ashley said.

Ashley, too, has problems with drunk drivers.

"If we run a personal injury and it's an accident, and two or three people are killed, the drunk has to be given the same treatment as the others. You're not the one to judge," he said.

Fahrner remembers bringing a baby into the world in a sidewalk snowbank Christmas Eve at Greens Lake Apartments.

"The mother was on her way to the hospital and couldn't make it. She just laid down right there in the snowbank."

Almost a year to the date Fahrner responded to the same complex. The same child he brought into the world was found dead of Sudden Infant Death Syndrome.

"If you sit back and think about all the ones you lose, you don't sleep much," he said.

The township fire department insignia is found on each of the rescue vehicles.

"Some things you think about really hurt you. It's so much more devastating for a kid to have a problem."

Inside Independence Township's EMS truck, firefighter Greg Olrich unbags a headboard. For the past year and a half he's been one of the township's seven Emergency Medical Technicians answering fire and medical calls.

Are you suffering from burnout?

Identify symptoms and read about some ways to cope with too much stress

Most of us have heard about people suffering from "burnout," particularly as it relates to jobs.

Sometimes these people weren't even aware they were going through burnout. Being able to recognize some of the possible causes and symptoms may help you to avoid going through burnout yourself.

Negative stress is a factor in many burnout cases. Everyone needs some positive stress in their lives, but working in an environment with a lot of negative stress can make your work become less efficient and less effective.

As negative stress builds up, you may find that it takes more time and energy to do the same amount of work you used to do.

Does your job or life seem to lack challenge? Or do you have unclear goals that shift back and forth or goals that are unattainable (too high or too broad)? If so, you may be a candidate for burnout.

Other possible causes of burnout include becoming overly committed to your work, being an "overachiever," or identifying too closely with your work.

People in the "helping professions" are especially susceptible to burnout for several reasons.

Most of the time, these people experience demands from clients that are always urgent. These services to clients are frequently compromised, and "helpers" have no control over this.

Other reasons include lack of a valid criteria for measuring accomplishment and low pay levels at all levels of education, skill and responsibility.

How can you tell if you're going through burnout? Physical and/or emotional exhaustion or illness, feeling that you don't control your life and feeling that you are "stuck" in your job or your life are all symptoms of burnout.

Think back over the past six months. Have you been noticing changes in yourself or in the world around you?

Think of the office—the family—social situations.

1. Do you tire more easily? Feel fatigued rather than energetic much of the time?

2. Are people annoying you by telling you, "You don't look good lately?"

3. Are you working harder and harder and accomplishing less and less?

4. Are you increasingly cynical and disenchanted?

5. Are you often invaded by a sadness you can't explain?

6. Are you forgetting important things?

7. Are you increasingly irritable? More short-tempered? More disappointed in the people around you?

8. Are you seeing close friends and family less frequently?

9. Are you too busy to do even routine things like make phone calls (return calls), read reports or send out greeting cards?

10. Are you suffering from physical complaints (aches, pains, headaches, a lingering cold)?

11. Do you feel disoriented when the activity of the day comes to a halt?

12. Is joy elusive?

Burnout is reversible and there are ways to avoid the chances of being caught up in it. Most of these can be applied to daily situations. Some of these suggestions are:

- Look at one day at a time.
- Deal with one problem at a time.
- Limit the number of obligations you accept at any one time.
- Learn to say NO without feeling guilty.

• Learn to make priorities of tasks and obligations.

• Keep goals realistic and updated.

• When change is occurring in your life, realize it will be stressful and allow for it in your thinking.

• Take time to total your positives—recognize your capabilities and count your successes.

One final suggestion is to take time out to have a good time in life—you deserve it!

Helping a victim of heart attack:

The Primary Symptoms:

an uncomfortable pressure, squeezing, fullness or pain in the center of the chest. Pain may extend to the neck, jaw or arms.

Secondary Symptoms May Include:

sweating, nausea, a shortness of breath or feeling of weakness.

What to do:

- Have person stop all activity and sit or lie down at once.
- If person is a heart patient and has nitroglycerine pills for heart pain, he may take them as prescribed.
- If pain does not cease after three pills over a ten minute period, suspect heart attack. Call an ambulance.
- If person has no prescribed medicine, monitor symptoms for two minutes, then call an ambulance.
- Do not drive victim to the hospital yourself. If the victim's heart should stop, there's no room in a car to give CPR.
- Stay with the victim to watch for sudden heart stoppage. Be prepared to start cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) at any moment.
- If you are alone and if the victim suddenly becomes unconscious, shout for help so paramedics can be called, then go through the CPR sequence.
- Once CPR is started, it must NOT be interrupted for more than five seconds.

Lifting weights to stay in top shape

By Dan Vandenhemel

The clang of iron coming together blends with the flow of the up-beat music—and brings the weight room to life.

Weightlifting has long been associated with muscle-bound bouncers at a local bar.

But lifting weights does more than just build bulging biceps, says Barb Wandschneider.

Barb is serious about her weightlifting, which she says she does for body tone and total physical health. She's totally sold on the idea.

"I'll guarantee you'll see results in one month," she said.

She works at Physique, a fitness center in the Clarkston Mills Mall.

"I've lost inches on all parts of my body in three weeks," the Tiyanogo Trail, Independence Township, resident said. "What weight training does is break your muscles down, then rebuilds them in the form you want."

Barb and her lifting partner, Pam Ford of Deerhill Road, Independence Township, go through a series of exercises.

"I didn't like the way my body looked," said Pam, a slim 30-year-old. "I didn't like what aerobics or jogging alone was doing for me. Now if I go without working out...I don't feel good about myself."

Wendy Vincon, owner of Physique, said to get into shape, weights, aerobics for the heart, and proper nutrition are needed.

"Your mental health has an effect on your physical health," she said.

Barb added that through weight training, a person's hard work can be seen faster and it's more rewarding when that happens.

"You can see the results in the mirror much quicker," she said. "You want to continue because you can see it working."

Compliments also help reinforce the positive idea of weight training.

"My husband (Gary) cannot believe the results, and I've had two children too," Barb said. "When we went to Florida, my father couldn't believe how well I looked either."

"I'm not in this for bulk, but I want the sleek look, what's so good about the free weights is you can spot train. Work on different areas you feel need the work."

"Your body is going to be with you the rest of your life, so you better take care of it now," Barb said. "You can easily get bored doing something else. With this, you keep getting better and better. It's fun."

Working on the weights as a team are Pam Ford [standing] and Barb Wandschneider, whose photograph is on the cover of the "To Your Good Health" section.

Empathy makers

Pat Brumback prepares for her role as the operator and voice of a deaf puppet.

Greg Seaman's puppet cannot see. They visit the audience to answer questions. Greg also operates a puppet with cerebral palsy and answers questions about that.

Betty Anderson's puppet talks about what it's like to be retarded.

What's it like to be blind?
What's it like to be deaf?
What's it like to be handicapped?

Those were a few of the questions children asked at the "Kids on the Block" puppet show put on for the North Oakland Support System, a group whose members are families of the handicapped.

The puppet show was presented by Greg Seaman, Pat Brumback and Betty Anderson, all special education teachers with Clarkston schools.

"This is to help the parents and the siblings, the brothers and sisters, the handicapped child to handle any problems they may have," said Bev Walters, who help organize the show at Dr. James O'Neill's office.

"We'll talk about what it's like to having a brother or sister that is special," she said.

The puppet show acts out everyday situations, tells the audience stories of what it is like to be handicapped and shares some of the questions people ask.

The support group has been meeting monthly at O'Neill's office since February.

X-Rays, Lab Work and Treatment not Included

Don't let minor problems become major problems. If your foot or ankle hurts and is not getting better, call your podiatrist. A delay in treatment, especially in ankle injuries, often means the difference between a good result and chronic ankle pain.

Our office is open Monday through Friday and we have a 24-hour answering service that is instructed to contact me for emergencies any day or night. There is no need to wait hours in an emergency room with a sprained ankle or lacerated foot only to be given first aid and told to see your family doctor. I encourage my patients, or any patient, to feel free to enlist my services in an emergency. After all, any conscientious doctor does not "punch out" for the day. He is available day or night to perform a service for those who seek his care.

Some ways to reduce the risk of getting cancer

Question: Is there some way to stop smoking by chewing some kind of gum?

Answer: You must be referring to a nicotine-containing chewing gum which has just now become available in the United States with a physician's prescription. It was recently approved by the Food and Drug Administration after several scientific studies showed it to be effective in helping people quit smoking. Because cigarette smoking is a true addiction (presumably to the nicotine in the tobacco), the gum allows gradual withdrawal. It does not contain any of the tars, carbon monoxide or other dangerous substances found in cigarette smoke, and has been used over nine years in Canada, Great Britain and other European countries. Weekly counseling sessions with the patient's physician are required during the three months or so it takes most successful "quitters" to stop smoking completely. The patient vows to stop smoking on a certain day, and thereafter chews a piece of gum whenever he gets the urge to smoke. Most patients chew about 10 pieces of gum a day at first. Over the next few months, this number is gradually reduced until the patient is ready to give up the gum too.

Question: Is the government spending enough money on cancer research?

Answer: It depends on what you mean by enough. For the 1985 fiscal year, the National Cancer Institute has requested $1.1 billion. Probably all or most of this money will actually be appropriated and spent on cancer research.

Question: Are there simple ways to reduce my risk of getting cancer?

Answer: Yes. You can give up cigarette smoking, eat foods with more fiber and less fat, drink only one or two alcoholic beverages a day, and avoid tanning of the skin by wearing sunscreens and protective clothing.

Question: Are we winning the war against cancer?

Answer: We are, if we exclude from death statistics the 100,000 American cigarette smokers destined to die from lung cancer this year. This number is so large and is increasing so steadily that it affects the overall national cancer death rate. This is edging upward despite the many recent advances in cancer diagnosis and treatment. Exclude lung cancer from the statistics, and it becomes apparent that increasing numbers of cancer patients are now being cured.

Question: What do you think of routine chest x-rays?

Answer: Not much. For years, many industries required pre-employment chest x-rays; hospitals insisted on chest x-rays for all patients being admitted; and obstetricians urged routine prenatal chest x-rays. Even today, almost half the of all x-rays are taken of the chest. It has been estimated that the annual cost of all chest x-rays in the United States is approximately $2 billion. Many scientific bodies have been concerned about the large number of people being exposed to radiation, and have recommended that "routine" chest x-rays be discontinued. Instead, x-rays should only be ordered by a physician on the basis of an individual patient's medical history and physical examination, or for another specific reason.

Question: Can eating too much fat lead to cancer?

Answer: It appears that excessive fat intake does increase the chance of developing prostate, colon and breast cancer. It does not seem to matter if the fat is saturated or unsaturated, or comes from animal or plant sources. Populations like ours which have a relatively high fat intake also tend to have a low intake of unrefined foods with high fiber content. It is not clear whether the high fat or the low fiber part of the diet is the culprit. But until this question is answered, we would all be well-advised to eat more high-fiber foods, such as whole-grain

Pregnant? You need calcium

Without enough calcium in her diet, the pregnant mother will lose calcium from her bones to supply the needs of her developing baby.

The National Academy of Sciences National Research Council recommends that pregnant women 19 years of age and older consume 1200 mg calcium/day, 400 mg more than that is recommended for the non-pregnant woman. This amount is necessary to build the baby's bones and teeth as well as to maintain the mother's skeletal stores of calcium.

Calcium needs are even greater for pregnant teenagers 18 years of age or younger. For this group, 1600 mg of calcium/day is recommended. If calcium intake is inadequate, the growth of the developing baby as well as that of the teenage mother herself, especially if she is less than 15 years of age, may be compromised.

Adequate calcium intake may also protect against pregnancy-induced hypertension or eclampsia according to Jose M. Belizan, M.D., Ph.D. at the Institute of Nutrition of Central America and Panama (INCAP) and Jose Villar, M.D., M.P.H. at the Johns Hopkins Medical School, Baltimore.

Eclampsia is characterized by high blood pressure, loss of protein in the urine, and convulsions. In one study, blood pressure dropped 7-10 percent during the final three months of pregnancy when healthy women aged 20-35 years were given 2000 mg calcium/day.

Nursing, like pregnancy, calls for a calcium intake of 1200 mg/day for women 19 years of age and older and 1600 mg/day for teenagers. This amount of calcium is expected to meet the mother's needs as well as cover the calcium lost in her milk.

However, if the mother's skeletal calcium stores are low and/or if her milk production is high, calcium needs may be greater.

Nursing teenage mothers in particular may have calcium needs in excess of 1600 mg./day, according to a study carried out by Gary M. Chan, M.D., and colleagues at the University of Utah and the Primary Children's Hospital, Salt Lake City.

These medical researchers go on to suggest that demineralization of bones in nursing teenagers consuming insufficient calcium may contribute to osteoporosis (porous bones) in later years.

At least 15 million Americans have some degree of osteoporosis. The crippling bone disease is responsible for over 150,000 hip fractures annually among older Americans.

Dairy products and green, leafy vegetables are good sources of calcium in the diet. To meet the high calcium requirements imposed by pregnancy and nursing, four servings of foods from the milk group are recommended each day. This increases to five servings for pregnant and nursing teenagers.

IT'S A CATCH

A cold is nothing to sneeze at. Experts say the average cold lasts five to seven days—and that Americans catch an estimated 93 million colds a year.

One way it may be possible to keep down the number of colds in your family is to fight cross infections and re-infections with single service products. Paper and plastic disposable cups, plates and utensils can be used once by your family member and then discarded immediately. It's a common sanitation procedure in hospitals.

Free Pamphlet

A pamphlet called "Is There a Patient in the House?" offers some precautions to help you keep illness from spreading in the family. It's available from the Single Service Institute, the national trade association of makers of disposable products for food service and packaging. For free copies, write: Single Service Institute, 1025 Connecticut Ave., N.W., Suite 513, Washington, D.C. 20036.

THE TERRIBLE TOO'S

TOO MUCH! TOO FAST! TOO EARLY!

When "Spring Fever" hits the most common injuries occurring are primarily of the "Over-Use" type. Muscles and joints that have been allowed to hibernate all winter are suddenly commanded to "Spring into Action" with strenuous activities, frequently exceeding the body's normal stress levels.

E. Patrick Mitchell, D.O., an Orthopedic Surgeon with Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital discusses some of these injuries and provides helpful hints on how to safely "Warm-Up" to springtime activities and avoid the stresses of "Spring Fever".

Ankle Aches

Ankle strains and sprains are linked to all athletic activities, often due to weakness in its supporting structures.

Properly fitted shoes and the development of the support structures of the ankle will help keep you on your toes!

Shoulder Soreness

Shoulder injuries, common to baseball and tennis are secondary to poor mechanics. You can't strike out with good mechanics and a sound training program.

A Real Pain in the Back

Lower back stiffness and discomfort commonly occurs from the jarring and twisting of racket, and running sports. Range of motion exercises will help get the kinks out for a more flexible, supple back.

Funny Bone foul-up

Tennis elbow results from overuse of the muscles of the forearm.

Good mechanics, proper training and a gradual progression of use will help get you into full swing.

Hard knocks on the Knees

Knee irritations commonly result from runners and joggers who initially try to go too far, without proper work up. A slow progression of mileage and avoiding weighted bent-knee exercises can get you off and running on the right foot.

PROPER EXERCISE IS GOOD PREVENTATIVE MEDICINE FOR ALL SEASONS!! Basic warm-ups, including muscle strengthening exercises and a gradual buildup of activity will help you avoid all of these common injuries and can prevent more serious ones.

Your family physician and many of the local coaching staffs can provide basic warm-up programs that will help you keep cool when "Spring Fever" hits!
