Girl injured in bike fall; no help

By Kathy Greenfield

It was bad enough that Kelly Wilson fell from her bike, slammed to the pavement on Church Street, Clarkston, and was knocked unconscious.

But when nobody stopped to help the 14-year-old, a bad situation turned into a nightmare for her friend, Kelly Martin, also 14.

Martin remembers people stopping their cars. She remembers asking a woman whose arm was resting on the rim of an open car window for help. She remembers the woman pulling in her arm and looking away.

Wilson had a convulsion from the head injury, and Martin moved her unconscious, bleeding friend to the side of the street for safety.

"Nobody would even come out and help," Martin said. "They were waiting for me to get her out of the road. I was just scared and everything. I didn't know what was going to happen to her."

The accident occurred June 25 between 5:30 and 6 p.m. near the Methodist parsonage and Brookside Apartments. Minutes before, the girls left the home of a friend and were beginning the seven-mile bike ride toward Martin's Davisburg home.

When Martin had her friend to as safe a spot as possible on the edge of the street, she ran back to the friend's house for help.

Shortly thereafter, Independence Township firefighter Gar Wilson (no relation to Kelly) was leaving his home for work.

"I noticed this body lying up on the hill. I thought, 'Some kid's playing around. They're going to get run over.' So I whistled real loud and she didn't move," he said.

Wilson told his wife to call the fire department's EMS unit and rushed to the scene.

He arrived about the same time as Martin and her friend's father, Russ Wilson (no relation to Kelly). The EMS unit arrived; then Fleet Ambulance.

"When the ambulance got there everyone started climbing out of their cars (to see if they could help)," said Martin.

Kelly Wilson, a Drayton Plains resident, was taken by ambulance to Pontiac General Hospital.

She received three stitches in her head and scrapes under her eye, on her elbow and hand. Home recovering, she could remember little about the incident.

"I was standing up to pedal and the gears changed, and the next thing I know I'm in the ambulance.

"I couldn't believe anybody wouldn't even stop," she said. "I was glad she pulled me off the road because these people wouldn't have stopped. They probably would have run over me."

Electric wires shock builder

By Marilyn Trumper

Working without a building permit, a general contractor erecting an aluminum greenhouse frame on Holcomb Road touched Detroit Edison overhead wires carrying 13,000 volts and was thrown from a ladder, suffering second-degree burns on his arm and leg and dislocating his shoulder.

Robert Westra, 50 of Chattam, Ontario, is listed in fair condition at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, Pontiac, according to a hospital spokesperson.

Within hours of the June 27 mishap, the Independence Township Building Department sent property owner Joseph Cook a letter to stop work on the greenhouse or face court action.

"There was no building permit issued," said

Kenneth Delbridge, director of building and planning.

"Before I'd even issue a building permit where there were Edison wires overhead, I would contact Edison to go out to the site and evaluate the situation and give an answer. No one applied for a permit."

According to Delbridge, it's up to Cook and whomever he contracts to decide who'll pull the permit.

"There's some confusion as to who was to take out the building permit," Cook said the following day. "I had discussions with the firm and they were not used to getting a permit for a greenhouse."

"We're not the contractor. We just take out the electrical and the contractor does the rest."

Concerts in park

"Concerts in the Park" make their fifth annual debut Friday, July 6, and continue each Friday through the month.

The free two-hour concerts are double the length of last year. They begin at 7 p.m. on July 6, 13, 20 and 27 at the Village Park, adjacent to Village Hall, 375 Depot, Clarkston.

Sponsored by the Village Business Association, the concerts this year feature three bands.

Emil Sutt, whose band performed last year, returns for two concerts, and there are two new bands, Hall James with swing era music, and Jim Joseph and his Tall Gate Ramblers with Dixieland-style entertainment.

Could mean the end

Another delay halts Ritter-house moving

By Marilyn Trumper

A law that would affect the Ritter house-moving controversy has been passed back to the planning commission in a 4-3 vote by the Clarkston Village Council, which effectively stills any hope the 120-year-old home will be moved into Clarkston.

It appears Hank Radcliff's timetable has run out. "I don't really know what it means," Radcliff said after the village council's June 25 meeting. "I thought they passed a motion last week to have a joint meeting with the planning commission to review the amendment."

"It feels like they're shuffling us again. I don't know what they're doing. I don't know how to react anymore. I don't know if they don't understand what we want to do, but it's taken us three months to come up with the fact they have no conclusions.

"People ask me and my wife every day and we tell them we can't seem to make any headway."

Instead of a joint meeting to review the amendment that would give the board of appeals power to allow historical homes in the village, the council asked the commission to consider incorporating the amendment into its current revamping of the master plan, and gave the commission no deadline.

The planning commission has already recommended the home be moved from Dixie Highway to the vacant lot at Washington and Main, north of the municipal parking lot.

"I feel we have enough amendments now and I did not feel we should amend the law for one individual," said Trustee Ethel Sinclair who made the motion. "I feel we should keep the ordinance as is."

"(The Radcliffs) really didn't apply the home to the ordinance that we have. If they can't abide by the ordinance, they should make other arrangements."

Although she voted for a decision to be made on the proposed law that night, President Carol Eberhardt was against its adoption.

"It doesn't include other parts of the village, only the historic district, and I think it should include the whole village," Eberhardt said.

"I would like blanket approval of the entire village. I'm also not convinced we need to amend the ordinance. No one has proven to me we need it, and the next person who comes in may suggest we amend it again to meet their special interest.

"I still contend you can bring anything into this village if you meet the ordinance. We would be hard pressed to let one in, and not the other," she said.

"I have a problem with giving this much power to the zoning board of appeals. You cannot vote out a zoning board of appeals member. And there's nothing that says who will regulate the structure is restored correctly once it's in."

Trustee Sharron Catalo argued in favor of adopting the amendment, as did Dick Weiss, a Main Street resident.

"We've got too much mumbo-jumbo going now. Why can't we use our own common sense?" asked Weiss. "We're having our attorneys run our village and I resent that. I'd like to do it by good common sense."

Catalo says she's disappointed with the council's vote.

"I think it's too bad, and I think it should at least have come to a public hearing, at the least," Catalo said.

"I was very disappointed. I think it's a responsibility of the council to be innovative, and this project would maintain a high quality of history to Clarkston."

"I also think the whole point has been missed. The amendment would allow us to rebuild in the event our homes were destroyed. None of us now could replace our homes. We're all on non-conforming lots. The amendment wouldn't affect just one person, it would affect all of us."

I KNOW YOU'RE IN THERE: Patiently waiting for a bite of breakfast, or at least for her family to reappear, Spirit keeps silent vigil outside the Village Grill on Main Street in Clarkston. Her owners, Shirley Wollerman and son Glenn, are on the other side of the glass. The click of the camera momentarily distracts the miniature schnauzer, but she quickly looks back to keep an eye on them. Spirit's wait isn't for naught, for Glenn slips out with a bite of pancake for his fluffy pet. [Photo by Kathy Greenfield]

Fire consultants vie for study

Board interviews two firms; to schedule a third

By Marilyn Trumper

Whatever fire consulting firm is hired by Independence Township, it will review a full spectrum of issues facing the fire department and not just its controversial history of saving and spending.

So says Clerk Richard Holman who with four other board members and the three-man fire committee spent more than three hours interviewing two consulting firms at a special June 26 meeting.

"It was nothing official and the only consensus the board arrived at was that it wants to interview the third firm," Holman said, adding that meeting with Cresap McCormick Paget of Chicago has not yet been scheduled.

"We were trying to get a handle and grope with what the study would encompass. It seems that everyone has their own idea of what they'd like the firm to look at."

According to Holman, both Bartell Associates of Pennsylvania and Public Administration Service projected studies that would cost between $10,000 and $12,000.

The board and fire committee focused on new station locations, personnel and grievances.

"We seemed to be covering a lot of territory,"

Holman said. "Station locations were not a part of the original proposal, so they told us that would be reflected in the cost of the study if indeed that's what we finally decided to do."

Fire Chief Frank Ronk was at the meeting. "When we talked about the study (finances) were exactly what we talked about, but I don't know that any decisions have been made yet," Ronk said. "We haven't settled on anything and we're going to talk to another firm."

"I'm still a little concerned about what we're going to be looking at when we get going."

Man dies tilling

An 80-year-old Springfield Township man tilling his garden died when the 8 horsepower rototiller ran over his legs.

Charles Pylman was dead when Springfield Township's Emergency Medical Service crew arrived at his Bigelow Road home.

Cause of the accident remains under investigation, said Fire Chief Marlan Hillman.

Fire damages group home

By Marilyn Trumper

An early morning blaze in Springfield Township destroyed 50 percent of a contemporary quad-level group home on Foster Road, home to six developmentally disabled adults.

The residents were taken in by neighbors for a day after the fire until the Macomb Oakland Regional Center could find them new places to live, according to Springfield Township Fire Chief Marlan Hillman.

The fire began in a back bedroom, according to Hillman, who says foul play has been ruled out, but that the cause remains under investigation.

The fire broke out shortly before 3 a.m. Friday. "They were very lucky, it was the smoke alarm that saved them," Hillman said. "One of the patients in the back bedroom was very modest and refused to leave without his clothes on. They got him out by the window on a neighbor's ladder."

"The attendant woke everyone up, got them out of the house and called the fire department. By the time we got there the fire had advanced very rapidly."

No one was injured, he said. Independence Township assisted in extinguishing the blaze.

The loss is estimated at $60,000, Hillman said.

Toddler dies in ATV accident

A 2-year-old Independence Township toddler died Sunday afternoon, four hours after he fell off a three-wheel All Terrain Vehicle (ATV) driven by his father in an open field off Clintonville Road.

Dead is Jacob Kelly Gates of Elmdale Road.

According to a report at the Oakland County Sheriff's Department, Jacob was sitting in front of his father James Gates, 24, who reportedly hit a hole in the Independence Township field near I-75. Both tumbled from the bike and rolled down the hill, the report said.

Comatose, Jacob was first transported to Pontiac General Hospital's Ambulatory Care Clinic in Waterford Township, then to St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Pontiac where he died.

Cause of death remains under investigation pending the coroner's report, according to a spokesperson from the Oakland County Medical Examiner's Office.

AND NOW, ABOVE CENTER RING: The North Oakland Charity Circus comes to town July 5, 6, 7 and 8 with two-hour performances at 7 p.m. Thursday; 3 and 7 p.m. Friday; noon, 3 and 7 p.m. Saturday; and 3 and 7 p.m. Sunday. Performers are from the M&M Circus Internationale. Sponsored by the Independence Township firefighters, all profits from the event go to the National Burn Center, Clarkston SCAMP, Clarkston Athletic Boosters, Clarkston Band Boosters and the Clarkston Rotary Club. Tickets will be for sale at the gate, at Dixie Highway and Maybee Roads, Independence Township. Tickets for the circus are $6. Parking and admission to a variety of other types of entertainment are free. For more information call 625-1952.

Committee to review cityhood

Whether to become a city remains a key issue with the Clarkston Village Council.

On June 25, the council unanimously appointed a two-woman committee to draft an informational letter to be sent in the August sewer billing to all village residents.

Trustees Fontie ApMadoc and Ethel Sinclair are expected to write a letter explaining the history behind the proposal for cityhood, and to determine a course of action, according to President Carol Eberhardt.

"We're going to pursue it to a point," Eberhardt said after the meeting. "But we're not ready to file with the boundary commission yet."

As potential advantages, it would prevent annexation by Independence Township, lower village taxes because township taxes would no longer be paid, and make the village eligible for additional federal funding.

As potential disadvantages, the village would have its own police and fire department, although its expected they'll continue to operate by contracting through the township, and their own assessing department as well as hold their own school, national and state elections.

Village to net fees

Each time a business in the Village of Clarkston folds, Independence Township realizes $50 from issuing a going-out-of-business permit.

Now Clarkston's council wants that money to go into village coffers.

At its June 25 meeting, the council agreed to begin issuing the permits and collecting the fees.

Most care Kathy Greenfield

Do you ever have a day when unrelated events somehow fit together?

Mine started last week while working on a story about two 14-year-old girls riding bicycles in Clarkston. One fell, was knocked unconscious and her friend couldn't get help from motorists who stopped, sat in their cars, waited while she moved the injured girl to the side of the road and drove off.

Part of the security of living in our community is the knowledge, somewhere in the back of your mind, that if you or anyone in your family needs help someone will come through.

In this case the reasons that didn't happen are merely guesswork: The wrong people were there, or they didn't realize the seriousness of the situation or they just didn't care.

One family wrote a letter to The Clarkston News about the incident, which is how we found out about it. Another parent picked up the telephone while I was talking with his daughter and expressed his shock and dismay.

The same day I spent some time taking photographs at the vacation Bible school at the Clarkston United Methodist Church.

The children were gathered in the church to practice songs and act out one of them. Robbers knocked down a man and left him by the side of the road. One person passed him by—he was too sophisticated to get involved. Another person ignored the injured person—he was too busy to care. Then came the Good Samaritan, willing to help when needed.

I couldn't help but think that those who decided not to help the girls on the bikes should have been in attendance.

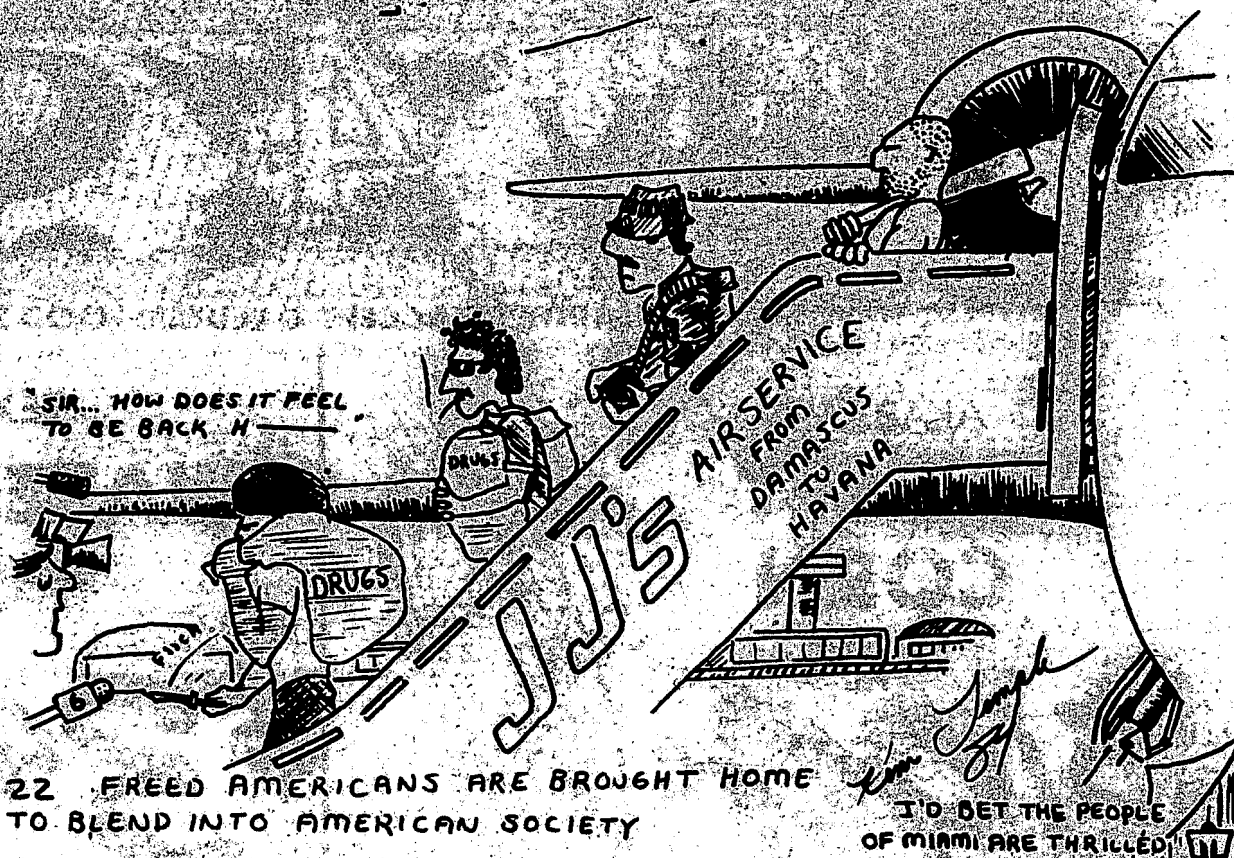

Before I end this I have another story to share, one I heard while talking about the bicycle incident.

A week earlier another girl riding alone on her bike in the Clarkston area got something she was carrying jammed in the spokes, fell off and was hurt.

People came running from houses all around, I was told. They called for emergency medical help and took care of the girl until it arrived.

From all my experiences reporting news and living in this community, I know this type of caring is almost always the case.

It's that time of year again.

Every year, it's the same thing. Sunny hot weather, being outside often, and suffering.

Nobody wants to stay indoors on a cloudless day with the temperature hovering around the 80-degree mark.

Either working around the house, or just lying around soaking up the sun can be hazardous to a person's health.

For one, the sun can do nasty things to your skin. Not all of us turn a pleasant shade of brown our first time out.

I'm one of those who always seems to burn.

A couple of Saturdays ago, while covering a softball-baseball double-header, my arms and neck turned a nice fluorescent shade of red. The pain that followed the next couple of days compared with having someone constantly run his fingernails up and down a chalkboard.

The red turned to a dark brown quickly, but soon the mange set in.

Skin slowly fell off the arms, neck, and worst of all, the nose.

Once the pain from the burn is gone, the only thing the cooked, sun-lovers have to put up with is the kidding from the non-burners.

Having a dark complexion as I do, I only burn once, but that once is enough.

The other problem that pops up in the warm summertime is the dreaded hay fever.

With the coming of nice days, out come the flowers, weeds and lawn mowers. All of these help put the heads of us sufferers in a plastic bag.

We can't see clearly because of the itching and watering and the puffiness.

We can't breathe because of the stuffiness.

And for the lucky ones (me included), we occasionally lose our voices because of a dry, ticklish throat.

Eye drops, pills, tissues, are a come-calling card of the many people who suffer.

But if it weren't for the sunny days, hot temperatures, days at the beaches and relaxing outside, summer wouldn't be that much fun.

Jim's Jottings

Small media

Jim Sherman

As a reader should suspect, a newspaper gets letters from all segments of the populace. There's anti-Christian literature, pro and anti-abortionists' writings, pieces on anti cruelty to animals and children, and husband's rights offerings.

We are also on the list for the National Conservative Political Action Committee. I recently read a letter (addressed Dear Friend) that said a post was enclosed that "is not intended for public information."

I'm safe, and so are you. I threw out the report file saving the letter.

The second paragraph is catchy. "I have had this post prepared to be shared only with selected individuals such as yourself." The next to last paragraph in the six page letter makes me skeptical of my selection. It solicits my "maximum gift to NCPAC today."

In between those paragraphs the national media is grouped with unions and liberals as being "totally anti-Reagan."

"It's no secret", the letter states, "that the big media is controlled by elitist, narrow-minded, liberals who are directly opposed to everything you, and I, and Ronald Reagan stand for."

Statements like that make me happy. I'm 'small media'.

The letter quotes a Columbia University study showing the media elite are biased against: overly patriotic people, the police, American military, and people who do not share their lifestyle.

The letter does not say if those conducting the study are of a particular persuasion, and any thoughts I have of Columbia University being in elitist-liberal New York City should remain unsaid.

So, too, will my thoughts on studies proving conclusions sought by those paying for the study.

As the Reagan for president campaign gets underway this fall "the media will be using distortions to cover up his (Reagan's) accomplishments. And when that doesn't work, they'll omit the facts completely," says the letter from NCPAC.

Recently I listened to WJR's J.P. McCarthy interview former first Lady Roselyn Carter. You could almost see her shiver as she said she feared for this country under four more years of President Reagan.

Isn't it nice that we can let opposites like Mrs. Carter and the NCPAC try to influence our votes. Too bad they both have to use fear and doubt as weapons.

Community's 24-hour clinic meant help when needed

On June 17 our 2-year-old son, Tom, was badly burned when an urn of coffee accidentally spilled on him.

We were at a graduation party and our hostess, Marcie Schoff, immediately began temporary first aid. As soon as possible, Marcie's husband, John, drove us and our baby to the 24-hour Ambulatory Emergency Clinic on M-15.

The staff at the clinic were fast, efficient, professional, compassionate—wonderful.

Tom came home from Children's Hospital of Michigan on Tuesday, June 26.

He is almost well! He was released after only eight days of hospital care. Most young children involved in this type of accident are much more seriously burned than Tom was. Many of them die.

We would like to publicly thank John and Marcie Schoff and the staff of the 24-hour emergency clinic. These people probably saved our child's life.

We also would like to remind our community of how lucky we all are to have such a fine medical facility at our disposal.

We never would have dreamed that we would ever be so desperate for quick help. Thank God there was a local facility to go to.

Our Heartfelt Gratitude,
Jim and Ruth Brueck

No one stopped

We hate to think that the people who, on June 25, drove by Kelly Martin on Church Street and M-15 as she dragged her unconscious friend off the road are representative of the Clarkston population.

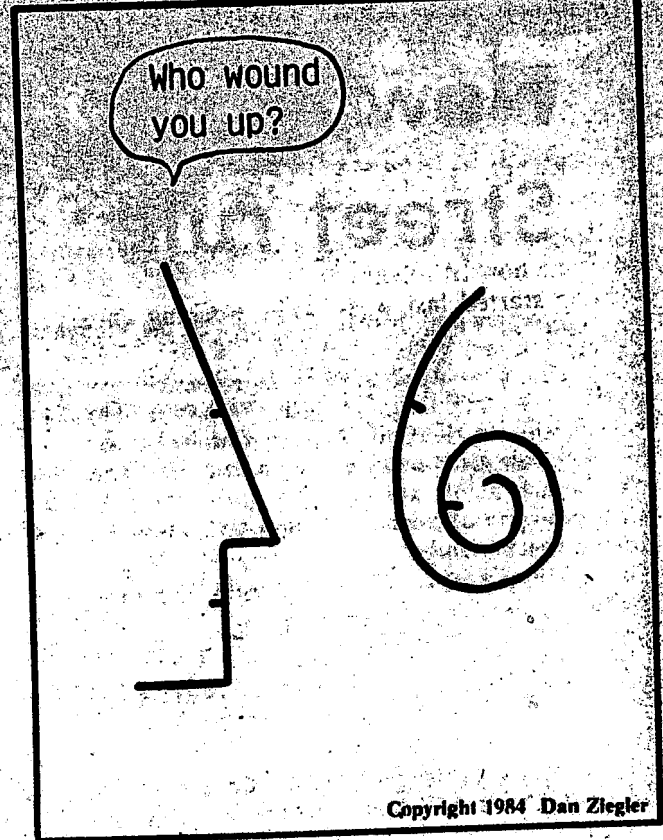

Rather than honk because their bikes were blocking traffic, couldn't someone have stopped to help them?

Couldn't the lady to whom Kelly pleaded for help have done something other than roll up her window?

To everyone who ignored the two teen-agers in trouble, we say that we hope you are not symbolic of the residents of Clarkston!

'If It Fitz...'

Lights out!

Jim Fitzgerald

After all these years of darkness, I'm convinced the light will never go on again when our refrigerator door is opened.

I don't remember exactly when the light quit working, probably 1978 or '79. I do remember that at the time I told my wife there was no way the light could be fixed because the repairman couldn't get near it unless she first removed all the food inside the refrigerator, and she couldn't do that because there wasn't room in our apartment for that much food.

THAT WAS my sly way of calling her the covered-plastic-dish queen of the world. She took considerable umbrage—left over from a boiled umbrage dinner cooked in 1958—and declared we would therewith begin living off the refrigerator and no new groceries would be purchased until it was vacant enough to accommodate rolled rib roast of repairman.

About three years later, there was enough open space inside the refrigerator to determine that the trouble wasn't in the light bulb, it was in the complicated mechanism that turns on the light when the door is opened. If the darkness had been caused by a simple burned-out bulb, I could have handled the repair myself.

UNLESS IT WAS a General Electric bulb. The real reason I'm writing about our dark refrigerator today is because last night I tried to replace a burned-out bulb in the bathroom and became so angry I vowed to find some way to write something nasty about GE.

I couldn't simply write that most GE bulbs are rotten at the first screwing, because I pride myself in writing a relevant column that relates to currently big news, and my unfortunate experience with GE bulbs hardly qualifies. I needed an important news hook to hang GE bulbs on. I considered hanging them on Ronald Reagan—he used to work for GE—but the president is so often the victim of negative reporting by the liberal press that one more ho-hum swat at him falls short of being big news.

(Gov. George Deukmejian of California recently described how several White House reporters watched Reagan walk on water, all the way across the Potomac River, and the headline in the next day's Washington Post said: "Reagan Can't Swim.")

So the really big news is that a modern, middle-class, North American family may never again see light when their refrigerator door opens. Why? Because the refrigerator works too well.

When the refrigerator was empty enough to be repaired, and I couldn't do it, I decided it wouldn't be cost-efficient to hire someone to repair a dinky little light

I told my wife to wait until something bigger went wrong with the refrigerator. That always works with my car. I never get a broken dashboard light fixed until the motor falls out on the freeway. And I never have to wait more than a few days before I can say: "We might as well have that sun visor adjusted while the car is in the garage for two months having its chassis rebuilt."

BUT WE HAVE two grandchildren old enough to go to school who've never once seen the light on inside their maternal grandparents' refrigerator. Apparently it will never have anything worse than a busted light mechanism. Historically, refrigerator owners have always wondered if the light really goes out when the door is shut. We are certainly the only family who wonders if the refrigerator light really stays out when the door is shut. That is truly big, tree-wets-dog news.

Incidentally, speaking of light, I took four new GE bulbs out of their crisp cartons when changing the bathroom bulb. Only ONE of them worked. My wife can't remember where she bought them, so we can't take them back. We are effectively screwed, indicating we weren't manufactured by GE.

But GE did manufacture the refrigerator that, just to spite me, won't get anything worse than darkness wrong with it. Please pass the umbrage.

No U-turns please

New Main Street rule

Speeders and drivers of U-turns in the Village of Clarkston had better watch out.

That's the word as the village council agreed to ask the Oakland County Sheriff's Department to step-up patrols on Holcomb Road and Main Street.

"I saw a car make a U-turn on Main Street just the other night. He couldn't quite make it, and backed-up traffic until he could turn around," said one council member.

"There's especially a problem on Holcomb," said Trustee David Raup. "Call the police and get your neighbors to call the police for more patrol. I did when I lived there, and it worked.

"We're paying for it. We may as well get it."

- Sheriff's log -

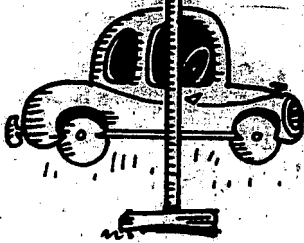

Wednesday, thieves cut the fence lock at the Holly Greens Golf Course, 11450 E. Holly, Springfield Township, and stole an $800 golf cart trailer.

Thursday, thieves stole a $60 battery from a motorcycle on Pine Knob Road, Independence Township.

Friday, thieves broke into a house on Jerome Street, Independence Township, and stole four TVs, a gun and assorted jewelry.

This information came from reports the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

A CUT ABOVE THE REST

B&E charges

An 18-year-old Independence Township man waived a preliminary exam on charges of breaking and entering before 52nd District Court Judge Gerald E. McNally June 29.

Terry Garten of Ennismore Road is accused of breaking into a home on that street and taking over $2,000 worth of video equipment, according to Detective Sgt. Tom Strong of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

Garten is scheduled for arraignment before Oakland County Circuit Court Judge Steven Andrews July 13.

McNally issued a $1,000 personal bond.

PUD review

The Village of Clarkston is looking at a Planned Unit Development (PUD) ordinance like the one Independence Township just adopted.

On June 25, the council unanimously agreed to give its planning commission a copy of the township's ordinance for a report and adoption recommendation.

A PUD would allow the village to restrict and closely supervise a single development with several types of zoning uses.

Sprinkling OK

The Clarkston Village Council wants Depot Road Park's lawn, flowers, bushes and memorial garden watered—and will foot the bill for an underground sprinkling system.

The council unanimously agreed June 25 to take bids for the four-phase project, projected to cost $5,350 by contractor Gary LeBenz.

The flush-head sprinkler system would draw water directly from the Mill Pond stream and water flower boxes on Depot Road, the area around village hall, the large grassy play area and the memorial gardens.

Road Work

Maybe Road at Waterford

Independence Township is one of 45 sites statewide targeted for $21 million worth of road repair by the Michigan Department of Transportation.

Two-tenths of a mile on Maybe Road, near Waterford Road, are scheduled for three-foot paved shoulders and five-foot gravel shoulders by the Oakland County Road Commission.

A bid of $47,603 by Trans Environmental Construction Inc. of Burton was accepted for the job.

Work's expected to begin in six to eight weeks, according to Dennis Pajot, public information officer for the Oakland County Road Commission.

Meeting change

The August meeting for the Springfield Township Board has been switched from Aug. 8 to Aug. 1.

Treasurer Patricia Kramer is planning to attend a treasurers' conference in Cincinnati, Ohio, Aug. 8-10.

Kramer requested the township board pay for the conference, and she asked for the meeting date change so she could be at both.

"It would be interesting to attend," Kramer said at the board meeting, June 13. "I've never been to one. I'd like to see what goes on."

Supervisor Collin Walls said the conference will cost $600.

"Pat is going to go with another treasurer," Walls said. "They are going to try to share transportation and housing costs."

PRACTICE MAKES PERFECT: Young soccer players received some professional advice during a week-long soccer camp sponsored by the Independence Township Parks and Recreation Department. This is the second time pro soccer player Clyde Watson, a former Detroit Express and current Wichita Wings player, conducted the clinic. He has procured present and former teammates, Deepak Shivrman, Mark Snell and John Metsker, to help with the coaching. The camp has 22 participants, aged 6 through 14, learning soccer skills.

Jim Bohl's road to recovery

JV soccer player on come-back trail after field injury

By Dan Vandenhemel

"Jimmy's starting to bug me a lot again," said Rosalie Bohl. "He's getting back to normal." Mrs. Bohl was kidding about her son, but the fact he is walking and living a normal life again is amazing, according to the Bohl family.

Jim suffered a head injury while playing for the Clarkston High School junior varsity soccer team

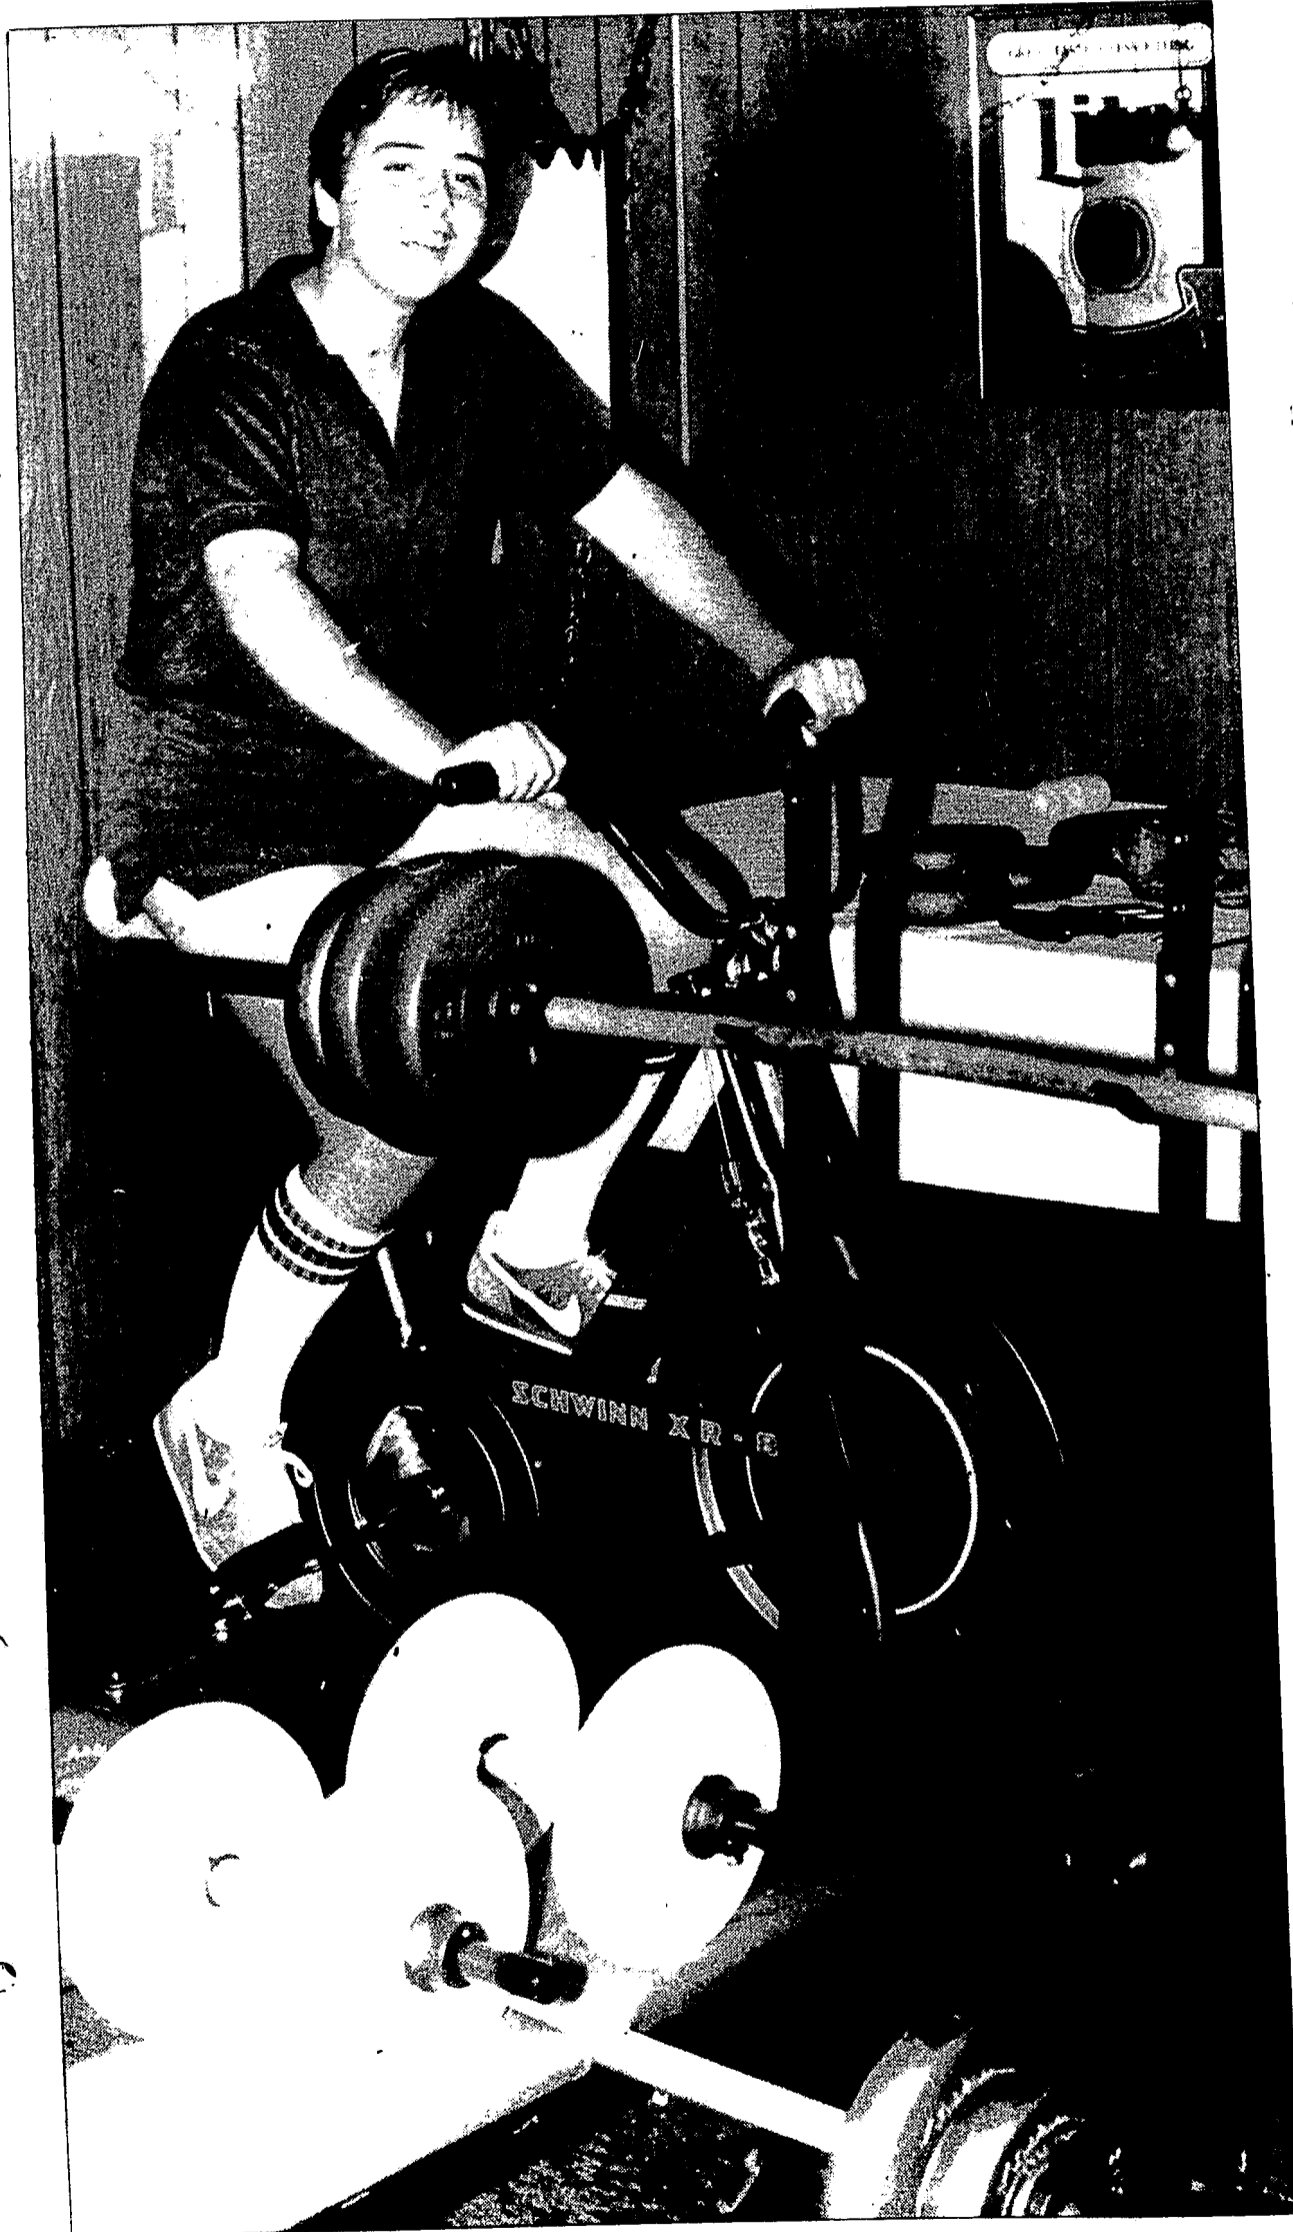

Sept. 22. He butted heads with a player from Birmingham Brother Rice.

The collision, which left the Brother Rice player unscathed, ruptured an artery in Jim's skull. He underwent emergency surgery at Crittenton Hospital in Rochester about four hours later.

The five-week, drug-induced coma to keep his brain from swelling and possible brain damage clouded the future of the 16-year-old CHS junior.

Last month Jim finished the last of his therapy at the rehabilitation center at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Pontiac.

"I still have a little trouble with speech and my strength and coordination," Jim said. "Oh, there's the laughter too.

Sports

There are times when Jim laughs uncontrollably, but he adds, "It's better to be jolly anyway."

The extensive rehabilitation program at St. Joseph's re-taught Jim how to talk, to move and to help his memory. Today, the therapy continues in the Bohls' home on Pine Knob Road in Independence Township.

A stationary bike, a weight bench and the ever-present soccer ball are all Jim needs for his self-improvement program.

"It's going to take a long time to get back to normal," Jim said. "I estimate well over a year."

Twice weekly workouts plus three miles of running on Tuesday with the soccer team have helped Jim recover and bring his weight down.

"I was 145 pounds when I played soccer, then 135 during the coma, then I went up to 163 pounds, now it's back down to 153. I was a blimp," he said.

Jim's neurosurgeon is Dr. Harold Portnoy. He told the family Jim will recover 100 percent.

The Bohls have looked into the possibility of seeking a rule that soccer players wear protective helmets.

"We've set that aside for now," Mrs. Bohl said. "The doctors said a helmet wouldn't have stopped Jim's injury, but we still feel helmets would help. It doesn't hurt to protect your child."

The experience has brought a new awareness to the Bohl family.

"We learned a lot about intensive care and medicine, (and) the ability doctors have to keep people alive after brain surgery," Mrs. Bohl said. "This is something we'll never be able to forget."

Come next fall, Jim's senior year could be a busy one. By taking a full schedule of classes plus one night course, he will be able to graduate on time. There is also the possibility of participating in sports.

"If I'm ready, I'll play soccer. If not, I'll play golf," Jim said. "By being ready I mean having my strength and coordination back."

Jim works at Spring Lake Country Club about 20 hours a week and he gets in as much golfing as possible.

"Before the injury I was averaging about 43-45," said Jim. "Now I'm around 49-50."

There was one unexpected side-effect from all the stories that appeared about Jim in weekly and daily newspapers.

"Since the injury, I'm a renown celebrity. People are coming up to me and asking how I'm doing," he said.

A stationary bike and a weight bench keep Jim Bohl on the trail to full recovery. Doctors have told the Bohl family Jim has no brain damage and should recover 100 percent from his head injury suffered in a Clarkston High School soccer game last September.

Grand Prix car body hangs in fan's foyer

By Dan Vandenhemel

Hanging in the foyer of Jim Carlson's home is a keepsake from last year's Detroit Grand Prix, the molded body of a race car.

Carlson is the President of the Detroit Grand Prix Association, a volunteer group that has helped with the race the three years it has been in the city. Besides organizing the volunteers, Carlson is the Formula I garage manager where he has a chance to get acquainted with the team members.

The race car body belonged to Jacques Laffite, of the Williams racing team out of England. He hit the wall in a qualifying race last year and cracked the fender.

"They were just going to throw it away when they asked if I wanted it, and I said, 'Of course,'" Carlson said. "Tell me, have you seen another house with a race car hanging in it? It's very unique. It'll be with me as long as I'm around."

Following this year's June 17 race, the Carlson home in Independence Township was opened to five members of the Tyrell team from England.

"Opening your houses to these people is one of the things I believe in," said Carlson. "These are nice, nice people. To have the Grand Prix function, we have to go out of our way to show our appreciation to them."

Carlson sees the Grand Prix as a community public relations project, an opportunity to show off the city to people from all over the world.

"From all the reports I've read, it was highly successful," Carlson said. "The city looked great on TV. And from all the people that come to this, I didn't meet one discourteous person."

The event would not be as successful without the help of the volunteers, Carlson said.

"The volunteers are the most important cog of the Detroit Grand Prix," he said. "Of course we don't get paid. Actually we have to pay $15 to do this."

This year 925 volunteers helped with ushering, office work, being race marshalls and assembling the track.

Carlson is the administrative manager for computer system development for the K mart Corp.'s Troy headquarters. He got into organizing volunteers by helping with the Super Bowl when it came to Pontiac.

"When they say you have to support your community, that also means the Detroit metropolitan area," he said.

The Grand Prix was a good opportunity for Carlson to get closer to the action.

"I really enjoy racing, Formula I racing absolutely the most," he said. "I think I enjoy the noise, the smell, the color, the speed, the people. I just enjoy it."

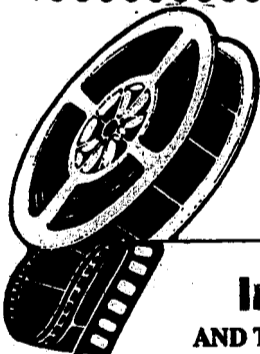

Soccer player

One who asked the question was Ken Stephenson, an assistant coach with the Michigan Panthers. Along with an encouraging letter, the Panthers also sent pictures autographed by some of the players.

"It was so nice that they sent those things," Mrs. Bohl said. "The whole community has been terrific, with their prayers and their feelings toward Jim."

The new pompon squad at Clarkston High School practices one of its routines for the upcoming year. New coach is Gina Mancini, a former cheerleader at Western Michigan University and at Canton-Plymouth High School, where she also coached cheerleaders.

Gina Mancini takes the helm

Pompons back with 6th coach in 8 years

By Dan Vandenhemel

The Clarkston High School pompon squad is back.

Last February, CHS principal Dom Mauti halted the season with less than two weeks to go because of turmoil within the squad.

Gina Mancini will be the pompon coach for the upcoming school year. She is the sixth sponsor in the last eight years.

"From what I've heard (about last year's squad) is that it was a personal conflict," said the 22-year-old Mancini. "One of the problems I think was discipline. I'm going to crack down on them. They'll have to go to every class and they can miss only one practice without an excuse or they're off the squad."

Mancini works at A.S.T. Inc., a manufacturer of hand-held data entry terminals in Independence Township.

The Rattalee Lake Road, Springfield Township, resident is a graduate of Western Michigan University, Kalamazoo, and Plymouth-Canton High School. She was a cheerleader at both and coached cheerleading at Plymouth-Canton.

Because CHS does not provide financial support for the pompon squad, plans are underway to earn money for traveling and uniforms.

"We're going to have numerous fund raisers. Car washes, garage sales, bake sales, anything to raise money and improve the image of the squad," Mancini said.

Pleased couple wins drawing's top 2 prizes

The new owner of an ultra light aircraft, Fran Smith has never flown one and doesn't intend to start. That's OK, because her husband, Roger, has been flying for over three years.

By Dan Vandenhemel

The odds are against winning the grand prize in a drawing of 28,000 entries, but what about winning the first and second prizes in the same contest?

Roger and Fran Smith returned from the Experimental Aircraft Association Ultra Light Convention in Oshkosh, Wisc., to find Fran had won both prizes in the drawing.

The grand prize was a 1984 Chinook Ultra Light worth $7,800. The second prize was a winter flight jacket worth another $150.

"When we got home, Roger put the answering machine on and they had told us about the grand prize," said Fran. "When we called to claim that prize they told us about the second prize."

Roger, a member of the Pontiac Police Department, has been flying ultra lights for about three and half years. Fran is a registered nurse at Pontiac General Hospital.

"We just went to the convention to enjoy ourselves," Fran said. "I enjoy watching him fly but I have no interest in doing it myself."

Of the estimated 28,000 tickets in the sweepstakes, about 20 belonged to the Smiths.

"It worked on a donation deal," Roger said. "We gave $15 and I filled some out for Fran, some for me and some for my mother. It was something for Fran to win the top two prizes."

If it wasn't for Roger making a presentation on the use of ultra lights for police search and rescue, the Smiths wouldn't have gone to the convention in early June.

"On the way there, I was dreaming about how nice it would be to win the drawing," Fran said. "We didn't think it would happen."

No more signs

The Clarkston Village Council is cracking down on campaign and garage sale signs posted on public property—especially telephone poles.

At the June 25 meeting, the council unanimously agreed to have the planning commission draft an amendment to its sign ordinance to outlaw signs on public property.

"What people do on their private property is one thing. We can't stop them from doing that," said Trustee Fontie ApMadoc. "But some of those signs hang there long after the election and are never taken down."

President Carol Eberhardt agreed, predicting a "...heated election year."

"We're going to be barraged by signs," she said.

His career began in high school

by Dorothy Leaming

Duane Proctor, in his 18th year at Bailey Lake Elementary School, says he has wanted to be a teacher since he was in high school.

This decision was made when the illness of the instructor in his accelerated government class required that he take a leave of almost two months. But in this case the cloud had a silver lining.

Duane and several of the other high achievers attempted to shoulder the teaching tasks, but only Duane survived.

In fact, he thrived in the role and found that doing seminars, making out tests and grading papers was very much his cup of tea.

Duane, a native Michigander, graduated from Saginaw High School in the community in which he was born and raised.

It was then on to Delta College, Bay City, and thence to Central Michigan University, Mt. Pleasant, from which he graduated in 1966 with a bachelor's degree in psychology, history and math. In addition, he earned a master's degree in reading from Michigan State University, East Lansing, in 1973.

Duane has taught the fifth, sixth and fifth-sixth split grades.

April and May find him organizing and running the school softball program. Earlier in the school year he is one of those involved in sponsoring the system-wide spelling bee. Other activities include serving as teacher representative on the PTA board and serving on the school district math, science and reading committees.

Duane is a firm believer in considering the child and his/her growth within the framework of learning.

He believes in fostering the ability to live harmoniously with each other, an unstated goal of education. Successful intra-group participation makes him feel good.

He also believes that to teach effectively, the teacher must pick up the learning patterns of the children he teaches.

Not surprisingly given his math background, Duane is turned on to computers and feels they will revolutionize education. He delights in visiting retail computer outlets.

Other avocations include reading, cards, Scrabble and playing sports with his family, most especially bowling.

He particularly enjoys the feeling of family. The Proctor family includes his wife, Jan, and 16-year-old Amy and 21-year-old Corey.

Duane has a gift for teaching and we feel fortunate this talented educator is teaching in Clarkston.

Editor's note: An Apple for the Teacher is provided through the efforts of a Clarkston Education Association Committee. Its purpose: "To acquaint or reacquaint the community with members of the Clarkston school district's teaching staff who represent a highly trained and diversely talented resource and in whom we can all take pride." This week's column was written by Dorothy Leaming, a school social worker.

Duane Proctor: "Successful intra-group participation makes him feel good"

Architecture Archives

by Susan Basinger

Hold tightly to the real thing

"Once total quaintness occurs, as it has in Williamsburg, all you have left is a two-day town."

An anti-preservationist statement? Not at all. This excerpt is from a commentary by New York columnist Russell Baker which appeared in a recent issue of Historic Preservation magazine published by the National Trust for Historic Preservation.

In his editorial, Baker was lamenting a trend on Nantucket Island to reproduce the "quaint" elements of earlier times, i.e. cobblestone streets and fake gas lamps.

Too many towns, such as Frankenmuth, Mich., have traded their original architectural integrity for fiction by allowing their buildings to disappear behind masks of cute details.

Instead of accepting their structures as they were originally, even if plain and simple, owners yield to the temptation to dress them up with reproduction elements from other eras or cultures.

Bavarian chalets, Old West saloons and English Tudor shopping centers pop up in the unlikeliest places. Towns built 100 years after the colonies became states are "colonized." Twentieth century storefronts are sweetened with nineteenth century Victoriana.

... treating these original elements with care and respect"

Unlike the museums of Williamsburg and Old Sturbridge Village, few functioning small American towns and villages reflect the architecture of a single time or style.

Instead, they are amalgamations of the architectural heritage of the United States, collections of American hand craftsmanship and creativity.

Clarkston is fortunate to have much of the rich detail from its past.

How do we continue to preserve the best of its heritage? Owners who understand their structures' histories and the original architectural elements which make them historic help preserve towns like Clarkston by treating these original elements with care and respect.

As noted in previous articles, historic structures are determined, classified and dated by studying these elements: construction materials; roof type and pitch (and in regard to some architectural styles, the way various roof types are combined); and the design, proportion and placement of the doors and windows.

Each architectural style has a characteristic roof type or treatment, and/or combination of roof types and treatments.

Furthermore, roofs often provide picturesque silhouettes or dramatic emphasis, as with the soaring, steep-pitched roofs of the awe-inspiring Gothic cathedrals of Europe.

Roofs, like doors and windows, can provide valuable clues to the age and style of a structure, especially a structure which has been masked by modernization.

Further, when modernization has resulted in the replacement of original doors and windows with new ones in different sizes and in different places as well, it is often the only roof type and pitch which provide clues to a structure's style and age.

For further information on roofs, the following books in the Independence Township Library are especially helpful: "American Shelter" by Lester Walker and "Identifying American Architecture" by John J.G. Blumenson.

In the next article, we'll look at some photos of some of Clarkston's rooftops. In the meantime, look up!

Look up and you'll see a line of residential rooftops on the east side of North Main Street. The picturesque scene also reveals some of the history of Clarkston.

Minister meets Soviet's faithful

By Marilyn Trumper

Sashabaw United Presbyterian's co-pastor, the Rev. Bill Schram, spent two weeks touring republics in the Soviet Union with 268 men, women and clergy through the National Council of Churches in early to mid-June.

The invitation came from the Russian Orthodox Church and was the first government/church cooperative effort to this extent, he said.

It was designed to educate people on both sides to the common wish for peace.

Back in Independence, Schram's exploding myths of an atheistic communist country, and reports instead that estimates show 40 to 50 million avowed Russian Orthodox and 1 million Baptists worshipping in a population of 270 million Soviets.

Everywhere his group of 26 traveled, in the republics of Georgia, Armenia and Russia, babushkaed women greeted them outside churches waving tree branches, a symbol of peace, and offering icons, painted religious images in the Russian Orthodox faith.

“On paper, as part of the Soviet Constitution, people are free to choose their own belief system,” the 32-year-old Schram said. “It also states that officially the Soviet Union is atheist. Churches cannot publicize or advertise. There are no billboards, no Sunday School, no radio or TV preachers. All of that would be counter-propaganda.”

“None of the (religious count) figures are firm and the churches are not required to keep records, but each church is required to be registered,” Schram said. “But there, even a bird watching club has to be registered, so they're not discriminating against the church.”

“In Russia, Georgia and Armenia we heard reports of churches that were closed”

Schram, who does not speak Russian, is quick to point out that all his conversation with Soviet citizens came through an official interpreter.

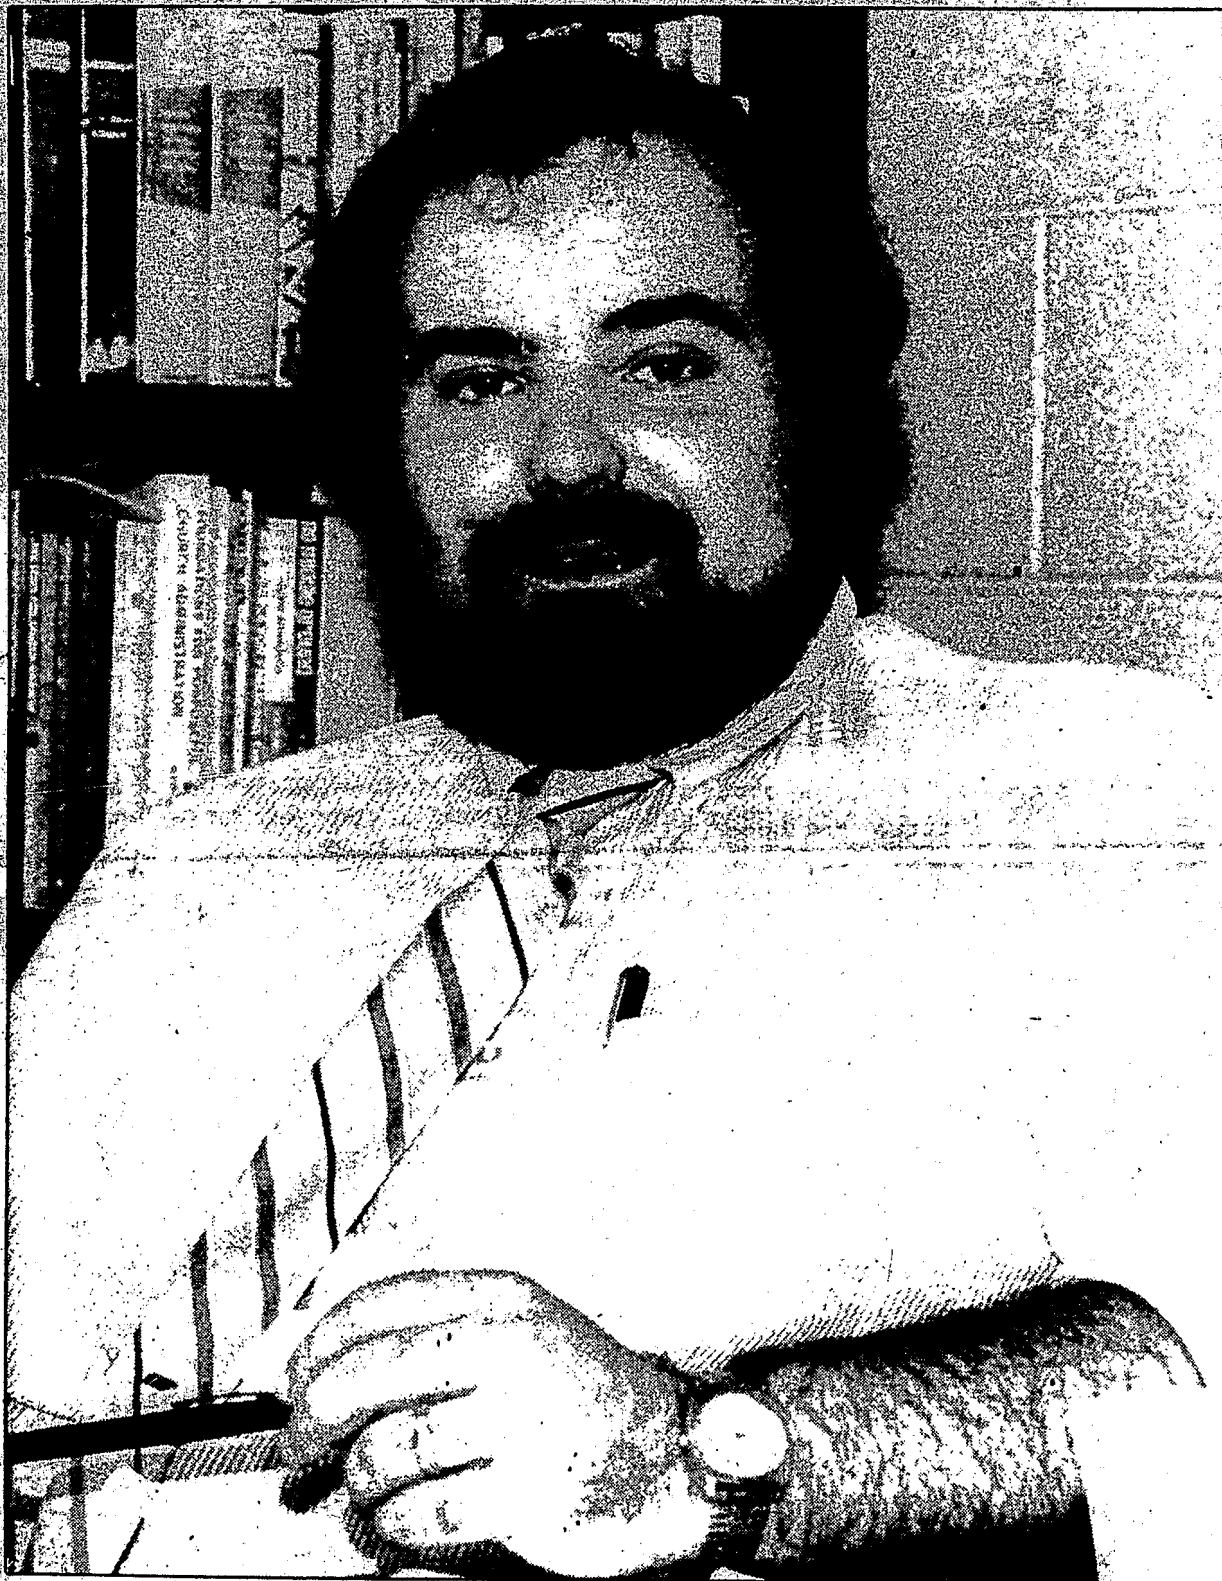

“When we asked one man if they were discriminated against for practicing their religion, his response was, ‘It's not a question on a job application,’ meaning they don't have to declare it,” Schram said. “But he never specifically said yes or no.”

“You can't be a member of the Communist Party and be a believer. Just as you can't be a believer and be a member of the party. Both church and state agree on that.”

Schram said his group met a teacher who was a believer.

“He told us if that were known, he'd lose his job. You can't be a believer and teach in a state school,” Schram said.

“It's true the churches we saw were full but a number of them were women and grandmothers with babushkas,” Schram said. “You get a sense of a strong and vital faith. On the other hand, there were 30 churches in Moscow proper, and just 130 in the surrounding area.

“In Russia, Georgia and Armenia, we heard reports of churches that were closed, and others reopened by the government. And a report they were building one new church in Armenia.”

Christian education is handled in the home.

And the government has closed some churches and reopened them as museums.

“I have to admit I didn't like that. It was eerie, and odd,” Schram said.

“Most people admitted that things were better. That baptisms had increased. That there were a number of new (congregation members) That the church had survived the worst of the oppression and is still going strong.”

That the peace trip went off so well adds legitimacy to the church in Soviet Union, Schram said, adding their visit was covered in several major papers.

It made the New York Times when dissident Baptists demonstrated in a Moscow church, unfurling banners written in English that proclaimed 200 Baptists were imprisoned for their faith.

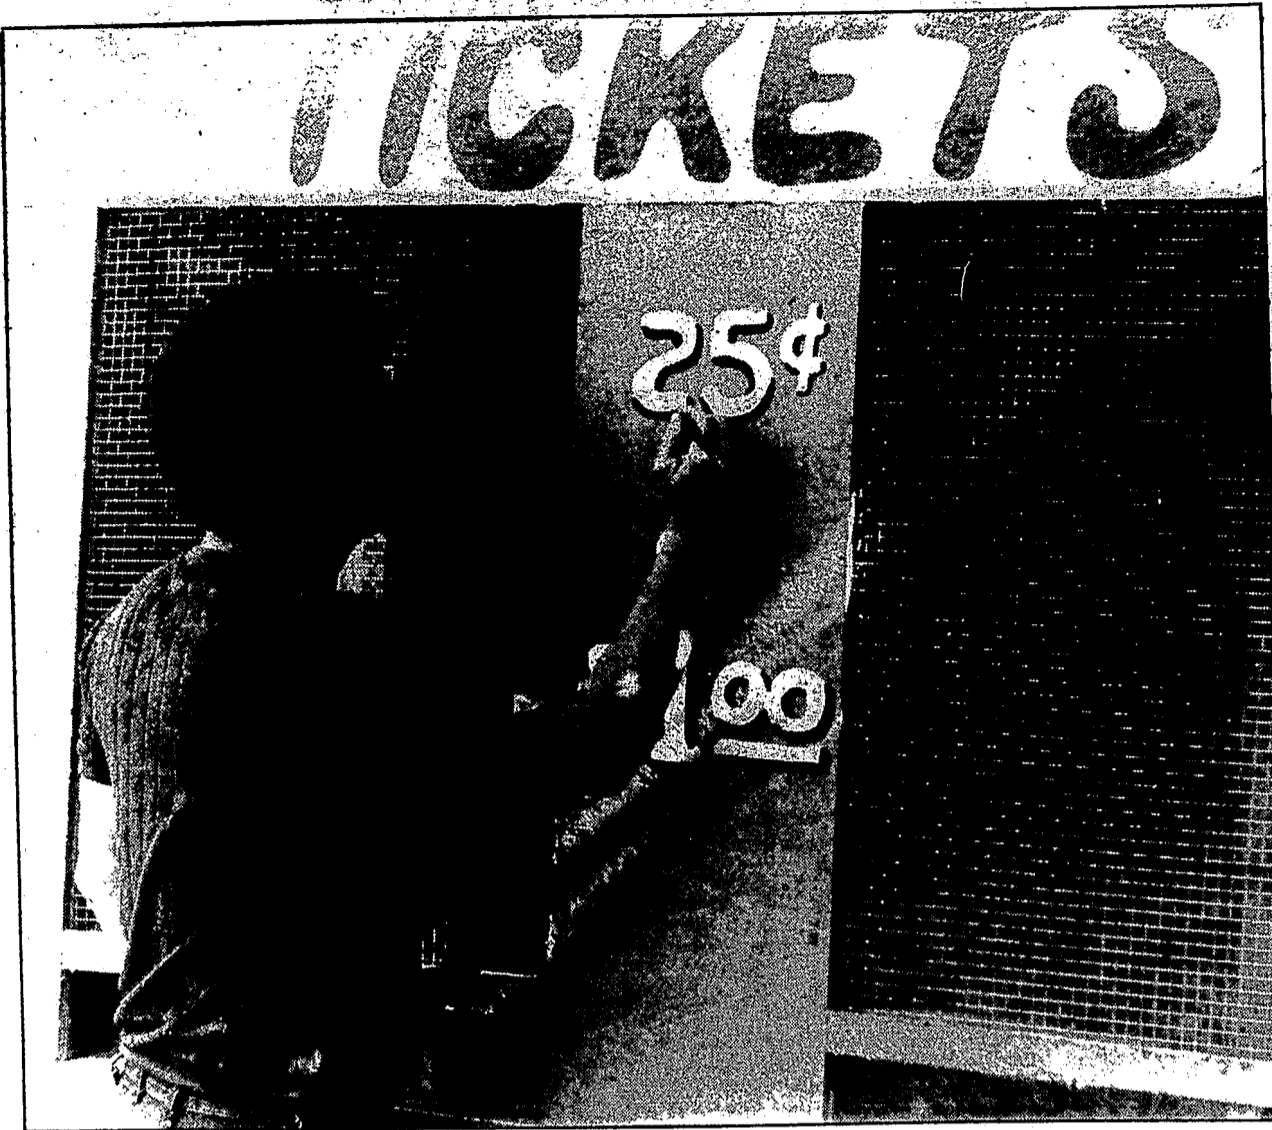

“Members of the church tried to get them to take the banners down, and others weren't sure what it was all about because they couldn't read English,” Schram said.

“Later I asked Bichkob (church leader) if what the banner said was true. He said yes. That this dissident faction, which represents 8,000 to 10,000 Baptists, refuses to register with the government, and because of that the government seeks to control them.”

“His church just decided that it's worth registering to keep alive. Just as we here have to register our

Technical illustrator donates talent for circus

A ticket booth for the upcoming circus sponsored by the Independence Township

Firefighters receives finishing touches by technical illustrator Ray Thompson.

Painting smiling clown face circus signs is a big step away from technical illustrating for GM Truck and Bus—but 45-year-old Ray Thompson gave it his best shot and Independence Township firefighters thank him.

For weeks he's been sequestered at home, cutting and painting and lettering signs advertising the circus and where to go once patrons are inside.

"I don't really know how much time I've put in, but I've enjoyed it," Thompson said.

"It was more fun to do that than work because I didn't have to be as accurate or as technical, and I could let my imagination go."

His favorite: An 8-foot-tall baby clown with red shoes advertising the beer tent.

"It strikes me as more humorous than the other ones," he laughed.

Volunteer firefighter Gary Tressel lassoed Thompson into the job.

"I did some work for him years ago on a Grand Rapids bridge, and he knew I could letter," Thompson said. "But I didn't know it was going to be this big of a job—it's mushroomed. They keep saying, 'We'll need one for this, and we'll need one for that.'"

"I'm going home tonight and work on another one."

The firefighters are hosting a benefit three-ring M&M Circus Internationale with eight shows July 5, 6, 7 and 8 behind the House of Maple and Pine on Dixie Highway, near Maybee Road. Tickets are $6 at the door. Proceeds go to the National Burn Center and local charities.

There will be hot air balloons, a demonstration of stunt and circus kites, live performances by clowns, skydivers, an antique tractor display, food concessions and a beer tent.

Schram says Soviet believers want peace non-profit corporation status with the state."

The dissidents weren't arrested and the police were not called, he added.

Soviet churches appear to do well financially, Schram said.

"They're glorious and many are fully restored. There's a real opulence, with gold leaf and malachite columns and marble. Peter the Great attempted to westernize, so some of the churches have stained glass, but not many. And there's a tremendous use of icons which, when declared blessed, not only depict holy people but in some ways become real, and the people participate in the events on the icon," Schram said.

"It's much like our communion of saints. It's a very deep spirituality."

Because Soviet churches never faced a reformation, they're rooted in a tradition and belief.

The Russian church celebrates its 1,000 year of existence in 1988, and the Georgia and Armenia church 1,500 years.

"There's an understanding and patience of the church and a willingness to take small steps," Schram said. "They've outlasted regimes before—and they can do it this time.

"They can truly point and say that in their church their faith is alive and strong and vital."

Schram says the church in the Soviet Union has something to teach us.

"In how to keep a strong faith," he said. "I think they may have it easier than us in that there's a clearly identifiable opponent. America is more in danger of being seduced away."

Schram says there's a strong desire for peace among the Soviet people.

"I'm convinced the people there by-in-large have a pride in their country and in what they've accomplished, and a great pride in their history and culture.

"We aren't going to convince them not to be Soviets.

"There is an overwhelming sense of suffering caused by warfare. When they talk about peace, they bring up the fact that 20 million Soviet people died in World War II in the German campaign into Russia, in the Nazi's 900-day seige of Leningrad. They don't want it to happen again."

They remember the 1.5 million Armenians killed in 1904 in the Turkish holocaust.

Finance seminar

Want to plan your financial future but unsure how to go about it?

A free two-part financial planning seminar at the Deer Lake Racquet Club features Paul LeDuc, a registered representative with Mutual Service Corp. of Detroit.

LeDuc, who has offices in Birmingham, titled the series "Savings, Investments and..."

His plan is to motivate people to organize their personal finances by speaking about the following:

- How to determine your tax bracket; tax sheltered limited partnerships; real estate, oil, gas and miscellaneous; how deferred annuities work; understanding individual retirement accounts; IRAs and where to invest them; and how you are affected by recent changes in income and estate tax laws.

The seminar is to be held Tuesday, July 10, and Thursday, July 12, from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. at the Deer Lake Racquet Club, 6167 White Lake, Independence Township.

Register by calling 540-8711.

"The Armenians are glad to be a part of the Soviet Union. They don't have to worry about the Turks," he said. "The answers to why someone would want to be in the Soviet Union are more complex than we might expect."

Schram says he made the trip to learn, because he wants to believe there is something about the Christian faith that transcends national differences and because he's concerned with peace.

"I want my daughter to have as great a life that I've had here," he said.

When Schram left, Father Theophan, a Russian Orthodox priest, pressed an icon into his palm.

Theophan was one of the 26 traveling with Schram.

"He said, 'We believe the icons are a sign of grace with you.' I gave him a picture of my daughter," Schram said.

"I told him I didn't have an icon, '...but that I'm giving you a representation of what is God's grace to me.

"Through a translator we agreed to entrust the future of our children by working for the best for all people.

"He told me he would treat it as a relic of peace, to help him to remember the humanity of people on the other side of the ocean."

Council weighs bike impoundments; opts for education

To stop kids from riding on village sidewalks, the Clarkston Village Council was considering impounding bicycles—but 52nd District Court Judge Gerald E. McNally discouraged it.

So the council agreed June 25 to approach the business association with posting no-riding signs in windows, and to ask store owners to tell kids to remove their parked bikes from storefronts.

"I didn't think it would be wise," McNally said after the meeting. "If (the village) were to impound the bikes, they'd have to have a place to keep them."

"Then if an owner complains theirs was damaged or stolen, the village would have to get a lot of insurance. If the owners don't reclaim their bikes, the village would have to sell them and store them until they could be auctioned.

"There are a lot of non-legal problems," he said. Village President Carol Eberhardt is disgusted with kids who ignore the posted "Walk Bike" signs at all sidewalk/street intersections.

"Someday someone is going to fall and be injured on all the bikes laying on the sidewalk outside stores," she said after the meeting. "We need business owners to go out and tell the kids, 'You can't leave your bike here.'"

"I really think impounding a few bikes and making it inconvenient to claim them would clear this up."

In addition, the council agreed to explore purchase of a second bike rack, one that would be closer to the middle of downtown than the existing rack at the Mill Pond parking lot, she said.

Family finds heritage

Physician's historic letter shows caring past

By Kathy Greenfield

While going through some papers, Bill and Catherine Lobb found a letter written in 1921 by Clarkston physician C.J. Sutherland to Bill's great-grandmother Melvina Dilley.

"When we ran into that letter we thought it might be interesting for some of the old-timers who knew Dr. Sutherland," said Bill. "He must have been quite a doctor to take the time to do that when he found out, by hearsay, that she was sick."

Mrs. Dilley, who was 78, was visiting her daughter in Morrice when she died. The letter was written Feb. 5, 1921, just 10 days before her death.

Although brief, it reveals a great deal about Mrs. Dilley—and her caring physician:

Mrs. Melvina Dilley
Morrice, Mich.
Feb. 5, 1921
Dear Mrs. Dilley,

Just learned of your sickness two or three days ago. I hope by this time you have passed the crisis and are on the way to recovery. Would hate very much to have you leave us yet, for you are a good soul and we want to keep you just as long as we possibly can. Have faith in your physician for such faith helps to get you well, and I know you still retain your faith in God for this has ever blessed you and will continue to do so throughout all time. We all praise Him for having spared you to us this long and pray He may leave you with us many more years. With best wishes for your recovery, I am yours truly.

C.J. Sutherland

Dr. Sutherland's residence on Main Street, Clarkston, still exists. The large red frame building at the south end of the village business district now houses McGillacutty's restaurant and Marley's Gifts.

Mrs. Dilley spent most of her married life in Davisburg, where her six children were born. Her husband was Charles E. Dilley. The family name still marks a road and park in Davisburg and the old family home still exists near Dilley Park.

The Dilleys' daughter Grace married the Rev. Ulysses Grant Ostrand, whom she met while serving as an organist at the Methodist Protestant Church of Davisburg.

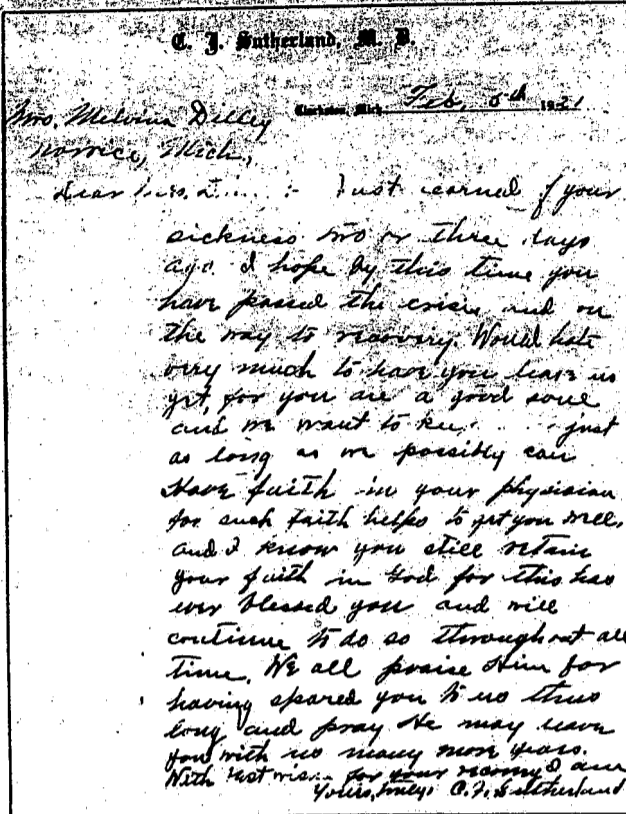

Because he was a minister, the Ostranders moved frequently. Their daughter Zada met her husband-to-be Wilfred Lobb when the family lived in Saginaw.

Bill Lobb is the son of Zada and Wilfred. Born in Linden, Bill attended General Motors Institute after World War II and was later employed by the Pontiac Motor Division of General Motors Corp.

Bill and Catherine lived in Waterford Township until 16 years ago, when they moved to Scenic Ridge Road in Independence Township.

The Clarkston address brought back memories. When Bill was young, he'd visit his aunts and uncles who lived in the area.

"When I'd come to my Uncle Dave's, we used to walk and walk and walk to go fishing and he'd bring us to what we called Lost Lake," he said.

After Bill moved to Clarkston, he walked down to Dark Lake—and while over 40 years had passed he was certain it's the same lake because sitting there, almost completely submerged in water, was the hull of an old row boat.

"I swear that's the old boat my uncle used to bring us to," he said.

Other memories include stopping for water at the spring at Deer Lake and White Lake roads when traveling between the home of his aunts and uncles—the Parkinsons of Crosby Lake Road and the Joneses of Reese Road.

"My mother, when we moved down here, said, 'Well, I sure never thought that I'd have some kids living in Clarkston,'" Bill said.

"She liked that," said Catherine.

Now there are three generations of the family living in the Clarkston area. The Lobbs' daughter Leslie Vaughn and her husband, Randy, live on Sunnydale Road with their children, Jake, 8, Natalie, 5, and Stephanie, 6 months.

Park summer fun

Activities for kids are building up at Clintonwood Park this summer.

The Independence Township Parks and Recreation Department is organizing a summer playground program at the park.

The numerous sports, nature walks and field trips in the program are open to children in grades kindergarten through six.

The cost is $5 for the six weeks of activities from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Monday through Friday.

For more information contact the parks and recreation department at 625-8223.

Waterford offers electronics course

An industrial electronics course that begins this summer and continues through the following school year is available through the Waterford Adult Education Department.

The class is free for high school graduates ages 18-20; free for anyone over age 18 who has not received a high school diploma; and there is a $100 fee for the summer and $50 for each of the two additional semesters for those over 18 who have graduated from high school. There is no residency requirement.

This is the second time the course has been offered, said Don Arsen, supervisor of adult education for Waterford schools.

"We went through the cycle with great success the last time," he said, noting that over 40 people signed up for the course and several found jobs, went on for additional training or received promotions upon completion.

"Electronics is the basis to the whole computer world and robotics in the high tech industries," Arsen said. "We went out and spent $15,000 just to equip the room and we have an excellent instructor. If people wanted a comparable course, they might have to go all the way to Detroit to get it."

The summer classes teach basic electronics and meet four days a week in the daytime or evening. Beginning in September, there is one class session a week during the evening and the class continues through May with digital electronics studied in the fall and micro processors in the spring.

Arsen stresses that good general math skills are needed, but Algebra and higher math experience are not necessary.

The classes begin July 9. For more information call 674-3145.
