Raccoon in township hall

By Marilyn Trumper

Monikered "Rocky" by the Independence Township clerk, a bright-eyed raccoon's taken residence inside a wall at township hall.

"We're not sure how he got in there, although I assume it was somewhere through the roof," Clerk Richard Holman said. "A couple of people have come up nose-to-nose against Rocky when they pull open the little chutes in the wall."

The chutes are part of the building's heating system and are located in the lobby.

Holman says he'll call the county's animal control division to set a live trap and remove the animal without harm.

• Council OKs joint hearing

Topic: Ritter house-moving

By Marilyn Trumper

Clarkston's Village Council's agreed to a joint meeting with its planning commission to discuss a proposed ordinance amendment that would allow the 120-year-old Ritter home to relocate from Dixie Highway to the downtown.

Trustee Sharron Cattallo, who's fought for that, breathed a sigh of relief after the July 9th meeting when the agreement was forged.

"That's what I always wanted to see happen," Cattallo said. "I always thought it was something that should go before the public anyway."

The public meeting is scheduled Monday, July 30, at 7:30 p.m. in Clarkston Village Hall, 375 Depot, Clarkston.

Susan Basinger, active in the Clarkston Community Historical Society, presented the council with a 177-signature petition to save the cubed Italianate Ritter home now located on property destined for a Burger King Corp. restaurant.

Presently awaiting final site plan approval from Independence Township, the fast-food chain wants to build a $600,000 restaurant on that site, with a timetable to raze the home 30 days after closing if it hasn't been moved.

Hank and Jennifer Radcliff hold an option to buy the house contingent upon its relocation downtown.

"The petition urges the council and planning commission to do what they can to get the house into the Village of Clarkston," Basinger said. "There were 107 signatures from the village and 70 from the township and, really, there was no great effort to knock on doors for signatures."

Basinger points to the structure's historic significance.

HIGH STEPPIN': Hurdles and high jumps, hand-offs and shot puts, running and pole vaulting. Those are some of the track events being taught at a clinic at the Clarkston High School field. Here, Daisy Red takes the hurdle with ease as she perfects her form. Coaches Gordy

Richardson and Chris Krueger organized the clinic held every Monday, Tuesday and Thursday from 10 a.m. to noon throughout July. They're teaching the proper track techniques to interested sixth-graders through 12th-graders. More photos are on Page 19 and 20.

Restaurant nets first approval

Burger King Corp. landed preliminary site plan approval for its proposed $600,000 fast-food restaurant on Dixie Highway, next to Ritter's Farm Market.

At its July 12 meeting, the planning commission approved the hamburger chain's plan, with stipulations the on-site traffic pattern be cleared for the private lane behind the property, according to Carol Balzarini, commission member.

"This at least gets them off center," Balzarini said after the meeting. "There's still a question about the access road that needs to be worked out. But when they do their engineering study it's expected they'll take a look at the area then and settle it."

No dates been set for final site plan approval.

Burger King proposes a restaurant on the current site of the 120-year-old Italianate home just south of the market.

Hank and Jennifer Radcliff hold an option to buy the home contingent upon its relocation to downtown Clarkston, and have been working since March to have village laws amended to allow the move.

Burger King holds an option to buy the site contingent upon final site plan approval, with a contract clause to destroy the home if it's not gone 30 days after closing.

Village drops its suit stopping kimono sale

By Marilyn Trumper

The Clarkston Village Council and one of its trustees, Sharron Catalo, have come to an agreement on Catalo's one-time kimono sale scheduled in her home early last December. It was halted by village fathers before it began for being in a residential district.

Catalo, then a private citizen, was elected to the council this February.

At its July 9 meeting the council unanimously voted to drop the suit, certain the sale wouldn't happen again, according to village attorney David Lee, admitting the council had those assurances from Catalo and her partners when the sale was first halted.

"The village council was concerned about traffic and congestion. The women agreed not to hold the sale again, and so much time has passed the council felt it was better to drop it than pursue it," Lee said.

"The village council thought it was better than trying to hold a hammer over their heads."

Village council President Carol Eberhardt could not be reached to comment on the suit, or how much it cost the village.

"I'm paying through both ends," Catalo said after the meeting. "I never understood why they wanted a permanent injunction against us anyway. We agreed never to hold the sale. It just didn't make any sense."

Historic house

"There really is not that much representation of the cubed Italianate in the village," she said. "Most of those homes have been so modified they're not recognizable."

Council President Carol Eberhardt could not be reached for comment. Eberhardt has long maintained the issue is not to save the Ritter house, rather to adopt legislation that would allow historic homes to relocate in Clarkston with board of appeal variances.

If adopted, the amendment would allow the owners of current homes to rebuild in case of fire or acts of God on non-conforming lots when the structure and its proposed site have been approved by the Michigan Department of State as a contributor to the historic district.

The Radcliffs could not be reached for comment.

Curb bikes

Effective immediately, the Village of Clarkston will be impounding unattended bikes left on downtown sidewalks.

And children and youths will have to have their parents with them to get them back.

"We're just trying to keep them off the sidewalks," said village foot-patrolman Charles Smalley. "They're not supposed to be there and we're just enforcing the law."

According to Smalley, bikes should be locked in the rack at Main and Washington streets and not ridden on sidewalks.

Parents and kids can pick-up impounded bikes Wednesday from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. at village hall, 375 Depot, Clarkston.

GOP invitation

Everyone who even thinks s/he's a Republican is invited to attend the 6th Congressional District Republican Party's convention, Wednesday, Aug. 15, according to Dale Stuart, district chairman.

They're meeting to elect 34 delegates and 34 alternates to the Republican State Convention Sept. 7 and 8 in Detroit.

The event begins at 7:30 p.m., in the Kiva Room of the Waterford Board of Education Offices, 6020 Pontiac Lake Rd., Waterford Township.

—Corrections—

A story in last week's Clarkston News on a proposed sprinkling system for Independence Township's Lakeview Cemetery incorrectly reported the name of the engineering firm responsible for the estimating the cost of building the system.

Hubble Roth and Clark gave DPW Director George Anderson the $60,000 estimate, and Anderson garnered two more estimates of $70,000 and $90,000.

The Clarkston school district administrator who presented information on geometry textbooks at the school board meeting was incorrectly identified in last week's Clarkston News.

In fact, assistant superintendent Mel Vaara made the report.

Village happening

Clarkston's 'Concerts in the Park' bring people together

By Kathy Greenfield

People chat quietly. Some snack, others eat dinners packed at home or brought along from restaurants. Toddlers dance to the music or join in the fun of applause.

The atmosphere at the month-long "Concerts in the Park" series sponsored by the Village Business Association is relaxed, and organizer Joan Kopietz likes it that way.

"It's not like the concerts at Pine Knob, like people can't sit there and talk," she says. "There's always some conversation going on—people like it."

The concerts, in their fifth year, have become a Clarkston tradition. With all her years of experience running the events, Kopietz offers an interesting fact about rain patterns.

"The best night of the week to have a band concert is Friday night," she says. "We have never been dripped on."

Last Friday the 250 to 300 concert-goers brought lawn chairs, TV tables and blankets, or just sat on the grass or the wooden borders surrounding flower beds—and listened to the music of the Hal James Orchestra.

Continuing through the end of July, the two-hour concerts begin at 7 p.m. in the village park on Depot Road, Clarkston. The July 20 concert features The Tailgate Ramblers with Dixieland music and the July 27 concert features the music of Emil Sutt and his band.

The Village Business Association sells popcorn, soft drinks and Mickey Mouse hats to help defray the cost, and no money is collected for the show or the program at the park.

Instead, "Band—anna lot of fun" boxes, wrapped in colorful bandannas are placed in village businesses for contributions. Kopietz encourages people to donate to the cause, because more money is needed to pay for the concerts. For larger contributions, she can be contacted at 625-2511.

Little Victoria Jackson and her mom, Amy, eat dinner while listening to the music. Later, Victoria dances to the music, much to the delight of the crowd. The Jacksons reside in Ortonville, but have a Clarkston connection. Victoria's dad and Amy's husband, Bill, is financial manager for the Clarkston school district.

Music fans Connie and Helen Bouchard of Birmingham find a seat on the flower bed border. They discovered the concerts while dining at the Cookery restaurant. "We find this a real treat," he said. "It's really a beautiful place."

Six new diesel buses join school district fleet

By Kathy Greenfield

When school begins Aug. 29, six new diesel Clarkston school buses will roll.

Three of the new $40,552 buses arrived Saturday at the bus garage on Middle Lake Road behind Clarkston High School. The others are expected to be on the lot within the next couple of weeks, said transportation and grounds supervisor Gary Bliss.

Bliss and three of his staff members made the trip to the Carpenter Body Co. in Mitchell, Ind., to pick up the trio of buses.

"We like to go down and pick them up ourselves, so if there's anything wrong with them we can get them fixed before school starts," he said.

During the 410-mile drive home, one of the buses was found to have a problem with the accelerator and there were some minor air leaks, he said.

The new buses are conventional style with protruding hoods, the first purchased by the district since 1962.

While Bliss said he prefers the transit-style bus, with the flat nose, the switch back to conventional style was based on cost.

The last transit-style buses were purchased two years ago, at a cost of about $47,000. This year similar buses would cost $60,000 each, he said.

Bliss was pleased over the mileage of the 72-passenger buses. Traveling at about 48 miles per hour, the buses got about 10 miles per gallon.

That compares to between 3½ to a little over 4 mpg for gasoline-powered engines. Of the 40-bus fleet, 13 will be diesel this year.

Last year Clarkston school buses traveled 645,000 miles transporting about 4,800 pupils a day to and from school. School enrollment of kindergarten through 12th-graders was about 5,900 pupils.

Transportation supervisor Gary Bliss stands alongside a row of the three new Clarkston school district buses that arrived Saturday. Three more are expected in about two weeks.

Springfield plans local newsletter

Townshipwide events will be the focus of a proposed newsletter in Springfield Township.

Township Supervisor Collin Walls said the newsletter has no name yet or any one person to do the work.

"It's my personal opinion that if it is done properly it can be an asset to the community," Walls said during the board meeting July 11. "It will be difficult unless someone is retained to do the work."

The board approved a motion to set aside $750 for the newsletter, on a trial basis.

The money can only be used for the township government functions reported in the publication, said township attorney Gary Dovre. Social, church and service club news must be financed by outside advertising.

Walls said the township has about 2,500 dwellings housing around 8,300 citizens.

"I'm not sure how the letter will be distributed," he said. "It could be by mail, by deliveries or by setting them in area businesses. Personally, (I feel) we've got to get them to the homes for it to be effective."

Reptile facts

Kathy Greenfield

Did you know:

Not only are reptiles covered with scales, but they're covered everywhere. For snakes that means scales are on their lips, eyes and tips of their tails. For turtles that means scales cover their shells.

Snakes don't have ears. You can yell, "Hello, snake," while holding one of the critters inches away and it doesn't flinch.

Some turtles, like box turtles, can snap their shells shut and totally protect their bodies. They do not bite. One of their favorite things to eat is the banana. If they could talk they'd say, "I'm bananas about bananas."

Other turtles, like snappers, have only the outline of a shell on their undersides. If turned over, a predator can easily end their lives. That's why they bite.

Salamanders, like all amphibians, are moist to the touch. If they cannot stay moist, they cannot stay alive. They must have water to lay their eggs.

Cats are good for controlling mice and rats in barns, but fox snakes are better. One that is 4 feet long, for instance, is only 2 inches tall giving it easy access to the rodents' hiding places.

Fascinating stuff, eh? I learned it all while waiting for the naturalist from Stony Creek Metropark to unsack the creature in the white bag.

He kept the crowd of about 135 first-through sixth-graders at the Independence Township Library entertained for an hour with such knowledge about reptiles and amphibians that live in Michigan.

I knew there would be some good possibilities for photographs with the snake in the sack, so I stood back and listened, and was absolutely amazed when I glanced at the clock and 20 minutes had passed in a minute because his lecture was so interesting.

Roger Bajorek works in Rochester. I asked him how he happened to be in Clarkston and he said his name somehow got out on the library circuit.

That's called humility.

Letters to editor

Take pride in town's history

In an article in the July 11 edition of The Clarkston News, I was quoted as stating that the Ritter house is an example of a style "not represented here." I would like to correct that statement.

The Ritter house is an Italian Revival cube. Clarkston's historic district does have three examples of this style, two on East Washington, and one on South Holcomb which exists much as it did when it was first built.

I would also like to explain my comment about "true preservation." Preservation of a village like Clarkston means that the original features of the buildings should be maintained so that they are recognizable to future generations.

Buildings, like oil paintings and antiques, are most prized as originals. Even the most faithful copy or reproduction cannot match the original in value or desirability.

It seems that we only care about the accessories to our Historic District, i.e. street lights, park benches, gazebos. Granted these may be attractive additions, but they do nothing to preserve the original features which make this village worthy of a place on the National Register of Historic Places. Accessories may be temporary; let's hope originals are not.

In the future, let's take pride in adding to and enhancing our special "collection of history."

Vote for Dunn

We need a conservative Michigan businessman in the United States Senate, and Jim Dunn is that man.

He fully understands (as a businessman) the problems in the Michigan area, and as a past U.S. Congressman, is the best qualified to solve them.

I think his best qualification is—he has survived as a businessman in Michigan.

Do remember to vote on Aug. 7th for Jim Dunn. Your vote does count.

Jim's Jottings

Criminals

Jim Sherman

I'd like to discuss a couple crime-related stories.

When the judge pronounced sentence on two men in the beating death of Vincent Chin in Detroit, there were only two people in the audience.

They were Milt Yee, owner of the Moon Gate restaurant in Lake Orion, and the woman who is now his wife.

Judge Charles Kaufman had postponed sentencing several times before he kept the date. That morning Milt realized late what day it was and hurried to the courtroom.

When he heard Kaufman give probation for killing a man with a baseball bat he was furious. Realizing no reporters heard the verdict, Milt called the court reporters of the Free Press and News.

Shortly, the Chinese community, civil rights people, more reporters, and common citizens started giving the case attention.

When the two men involved in the death of Mr. Chin were re-tried on civil rights violations, and the verdict was coming in, there were 14 reporters and four artists waiting.

I suggested to Milt that were it not for his alerting the press the original verdict might have gone unnoticed. He said, "Well, perhaps the court reporters would have picked it up."

I wonder. I wonder if the 'press' hadn't decided to ignore the beating of the Chinese, excuse me, American, because that is his nationality.

Then there's the matter of Fidel Castro giving Jesse Jackson 22 American criminals to bring to the United States.

As Chicago Tribune columnist Mike Royko says, "If there is anything we have a surplus of in this country it's criminals."

Indeed, in Michigan criminals are being turned loose before the end of their sentences to make room for more criminals who will be turned loose early.

Royko also wondered this day if Castro was offered a gift of Cuban prisoners in America by Jackson as a sort of 'return the gift' idea.

Jackson maybe saying, "Fidel, I'd like you to have some genuine Cuban criminals from our prisons."

And, Castro declining, "You're too generous, Jesse. But no thanks. I'll settle for a few autographed baseballs."

Jackson could have brought back some Havana cigars.

Some say 'no' to safety paths

Safety paths seem to be on people's minds these days, no doubt because of extensive construction along Clarkston Road.

The question we're hearing most often is: "Why isn't one being built between the library and the village?"

That's a question we've asked frequently because we strongly believe a path belongs there. It looks like decisions on where to build paths next will not happen until 1985, and certainly not until after the November election.

Meanwhile, it seems worthwhile to ponder some answers to the why-no-path query.

Many people believe there's some kind of secret about the Independence Township Board's decision not to build a path along the south side of Clarkston Road.

There really isn't. When the path was under consideration, residents whose homes would have the path in their front yards attended township board meetings. They objected in public. While they didn't say they would rather not have the paths in their front yards, they did cite the possible danger of encouraging bikers along the curvy road with a bike path.

Apparently the majority of board members agreed.

That, too, is not surprising. It's easy to figure out most paths already built or almost finished are not found in heavily populated areas.

There's little controversy involved with path construction at the edge of a cornfield, swamp or field of weeds.

Nonetheless, we firmly believe there are some locations, like the Clarkston Road stretch, where a path would serve the majority of residents and help make some sense out of the present practice of stringing them here and there.

The safety paths are funded by .3 mill, or 30 cents for each $1,000 of assessed property valuation. Voters approved the millage for 10 years in 1979, and as the years go on more paths will have to be built in front of houses.

The people who live along Clarkston Road do not own the property where the paths would be located. It's part of the road right-of-way owned by the Oakland County Road Commission.

They can landscape it and use it, but they don't own it.

We'll be back on this when the township board makes plans for the next paths. Because there is no more money in the fund for 1985, the plans will probably be made next year for 1986 construction.

Clarification

We've had some phone calls regarding a story and a photograph (unrelated) that appeared in The Clarkston News over the last few weeks.

Two people called to object to the story in our July 4 edition about the girl who fell off her bike on Church Street while riding with a friend and was not helped by passing motorists.

They were upset that the story gave the impression Clarkston people wouldn't help someone in trouble. They both had been at the scene shortly after the accident occurred, one in a car and one from a nearby residence.

Both said help was offered in force as soon as people realized there was a problem.

We consider that a good sign. When people care about possible damage to a good reputation of helping others, that means it's a strong and important part of the tone of the community.

The other objection came about a photograph of a refrigerator on a roof with a beer sign in front that was part of a graduation party.

The person suggested that with all the stories the News has done on underage drinking we shouldn't have run the photograph.

We have two replies to that thought: Just because the refrigerator was there doesn't mean kids were allowed to drink alcoholic beverages; and in our role as an observer in our community we would never ignore a request to cover something to make a point about something else.

'If it Fitz ...'

Balancing the worth

Jim Fitzgerald

Because the Freep's George Pucas writes so well about boxing—and particularly about Thomas Hearns—I can't resist reading about the only athletic competition that literally makes me reach for my throw-up pot. And I also couldn't resist watching when television showed a tape of the Hearns-Roberto Duran slaughter that I'd read so much about.

I'm ashamed of watching the fight on TV. It's OK to read about legally sanctioned brutality just because I admire the writer's style and insight and also because I like to keep abreast of what all the cretins are doing out there. But I already knew that Hearns pounded Duran senseless in less than two rounds. Why did I have to see it?

It's easy to tell myself it was work-related research, but that's baloney. I saw plenty of prizefights during my ignorant youth, and I don't have to see one more to know that they rank (pun sincerely intended) right up there with bull, dog and cock fights. During the last 39 years, well over 300 fighters died from injuries suffered in the ring, and God only knows how many fighters took enough punches to end up with mush for brains.

I can understand why a fighter will risk getting hurt in the hope of getting rich, but how do you explain the spectators? Civilized people shouldn't enjoy watching a contest in which the only objective is for the participants to hurt each other to the point of unconsciousness and possible maiming or even death.

However, the big shooters pay more than $500 for ringside seats close enough so the fighters' blood will splash on their shirts. Little shooters pay whatever they can afford to see the mayhem in person or in closed-circuit theaters. And even an anti-boxing wimp like me will sneak a guilty look at a three-week-old tape of a brutal knockout.

Many fans claim they enjoy boxing because of the fighters' skill at feinting, weaving and bobbing. More baloney. They watch fights to see two guys beat the living hell out of each other. They want to see blood and knockdowns and a fighter carried out of the ring on a stretcher. Show me a crowd that stands up and cheers for expert bobbing, and I'll show you a Halloween party.

People watch prizefights for the same reason they gawk at freeway accidents. Something in all of us is fascinated by seeing pain inflicted on someone else. Many of us have that dark spot in our nature, and some of us overcome it. I usually go out of my way to avoid seeing anything more violent than an occasional collision at home plate. And I think professional boxing is as civilized as selling curbside tickets to planned car crashes.

BUT LAST Sunday I switched channels to the Hearns-Duran fight. I watched Hearns clobber Duran unmercifully, knocking him down several times. I saw the final, terrible right-hand wallop that ended the battle. The announcer said he knew immediately that Duran was through because he fell forward, on his bloody face, as though dead.

The crowd roared in Las Vegas and also, I'm sure, at closed-circuit telecasts all over the nation. Those people weren't cheering for feints and bobs.

It was brutal, and my anti-boxing biases were buttressed: I will never learn to enjoy winning. The nice thing about freeway crashes is they are accidents. Prizefights are on purpose. And we all should be ashamed of that. Also, a nicer class of people hangs around freeway accidents.

No matter how well George Pucas writes about boxing, I herewith pledge never again to give in to the dark side of my nature and watch a prizefight.

Onward and Upward, and spare the throw-up pot.

Mondale's choice

So, we now have a woman running for vice president on the Democratic Party ticket. Walter Mondale's decision last week has been hailed as a breakthrough, and it was in the sense that neither major party had taken this inevitable step before.

But, in another sense, the nation's reaction came as evidence of how immature we are on questions of sexual equality. The vice presidency is a significant office only in that it holds great potential for power. By itself, however, it is nothing; unless a president resigns, takes ill or dies, a vice president can look forward to four years of gavel-pounding in the Senate, broken up by an occasional state funeral overseas.

Walter Mondale has chosen a woman to hold this ceremonial, figurehead role—a job that John Nance Garner once described as “not worth a bucket of warm spit”—and suddenly the entire nation is talking about this “bold” step. The hoopla is a little hard to understand when you look across the ocean. The United Kingdom has been governed by an effective female prime minister since 1979. India also has a female prime minister, and Israel has provided the example of the late Golda Meir.

None of these women were boosted into office by feminist pressure groups. They achieved positions of great political power because they were highly capable organizers, campaigners, politicians and leaders. The fact that they also happened to be women was irrelevant, as it should be.

BUT, HAS THAT BEEN THE CASE WITH GERALDINE FERRARO? Did Walter Mondale scour the countryside and discover that Ms. Ferraro was the best possible choice for vice president on the only criteria that matters: The ability, experience and knowledge to perform effectively in the White House in the event of an emergency?

Of course, the argument has been advanced (and it is not wanting for truth) that presidential running mates have been chosen in the past on the basis of political considerations above experience and qualifications. A presidential hopeful from the industrial northeast may feel compelled to select a southerner or westerner over a better-qualified northeasterner to “balance the ticket” and reach out to voters in other areas of the country. This kind of political strategy is almost as old

Viewpoint:

Al Zawacky

as the Republic.

But a look at regional considerations leads one to believe that Mondale has committed either an act of political showmanship or desperation. Ferraro hails from the northeast, where Mondale could undoubtedly hold his own without her. Her presence on the ticket will do nothing for him in the south and west, however, where Mondale needs all the help he can get.

Much has been made of the “gender gap” and Ferraro's supposed ability to pull in more women voters, but this thinking is specious. The feminists who went into raptures over Mondale's choice would not have voted for Reagan in any case. And, the initial excitement over the precedent-breaking selection is sure to wane when voter attention shifts from the “what” of Geraldine Ferraro (a woman) to the “who”—a left-of-center congressman who shows a distinct fondness for the policies of 1977-81, policies that gave us humiliation in Iran, 13 percent inflation and a 21 percent prime.

INDEED, THE SELECTION of Ferraro may eventually harm Mondale by buttressing his image as a political errand boy who caves in to pressure from any well-organized special interest group. In this case it was the National Organization of Women, who threatened a floor fight at the convention if Mondale failed to name a running mate of the appropriate gender.

The NOW feminists held their breath, turned blue, kicked and screamed and generally raised a tantrum—and Fritz Mondale's backbone predictably turned into warm Jell-O. If Mondale doesn't have the guts to say “no” to NOW, his ability to make the hard decisions intrinsic to the presidency is certainly questionable.

Deli owner must comply with greenbelt plan

By Marilyn Trumper

Unknowningly, the Independence Township Planning Commission approved a deli's final site plan that showed a berm on an unmarked easement.

The berm, on an easement shared between deli owner Mario Rotundo and his neighbor Merritt Butler, would make the easement inaccessible.

That makes Butler angry.

He wants the township to revamp the site plan and move the berm.

Director of building and planning, Kenneth Delbridge, re-evaluated the issue with the township attorney, and now says it's not going back to the commission.

"It's up to Mario to comply with the final site plan as submitted," Delbridge said. "If that creates a problem for him with his neighbor then it's up to him to revise the site plan."

"We've got to go by the site plan that was submitted to the planning commission. What can the planning commission do at this point? It's a legal problem, but it's not the township's legal problem."

Seventy-year-old Butler is angry.

"They don't tell me anything, all I do is sit here,"

Butler said. "It looks like a graveyard. I'll have car lights shining in my eyes and people keeping me up until 2 o'clock in the morning coming into that deli."

"They've heaved it into my lap. I've got to fight it—and I've got to pay the bill."

Rotundo says he knew the easement existed.

"I didn't pay attention to it," he said. "I didn't pay attention to what kind of an easement it was. I saw the word 'easement' and thought it was a utility easement."

"(Butler) and I have to iron out the problem."

Rotundo says he anticipates opening the deli at the end of July.

Springfield enacts new sign ordinance

Steps to ensure that leftover political campaign signs won't be an eyesore have been made by the Springfield Township Board.

The township board approved an ordinance at its July 11 meeting covering the posting and the removing of the campaign signs.

The ordinance requires a $10 permit per sign and signs are restricted from trees, utility poles and public right-of-ways. They also must be removed within 13 days of the election date.

Similar to a deposit, once the sign is down the $10 is returned.

"Never to my knowledge have we had a problem with local candidates and their signs," Supervisor Collin Walls said. "The 13 days to take them down gives them two full weekends. After that time the township will remove them and send notice to the person responsible for the signs to pay the cost of removing the sign."

Summer alert: Watch for con jobs

Warm weather tends to bring out the "con artists," those smooth-talking criminals who want to separate you from your money or possessions through trickery and deceit. They may be men or women working alone or in groups, usually pretending to be someone they are not—a salesman, repairman or utility employee. Jim Hayes, meter reading supervisor for Consumers Power Company's southeastern region, notes, "Our employees are easily identified by the white shirts or blouses with the CP emblem over the left pocket. In addition to the personal identification cards that all employees carry, meter readers also have a hand-held computer that can display the customer's name, address and meter number upon request." Normal summer working hours for the 74 people that read 580,000 meters each month in Oakland, Macomb and part of Wayne County, are from 7 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday. "Don't hesitate to ask for identification from anyone attempting to gain entrance to your home or business", Hayes says, "and immediately report all suspicious persons to the local authorities."

Dawnee lands teen pageant title

At first there were 31 contestants. Then 12. Then five finalists.

When the Miss Michigan Teen All American pageant, held Saturday and Sunday in Fraser, was over, Dawnee Balhorn held the title of second runner-up.

"Very surprised," she said, explaining her reaction. "I felt I did good, but that's just a dream. I didn't think I'd ever make it that far."

Dawnee, 15, is a junior at Holly High School. She lives on Shaffer Road in Springfield Township.

"... that's just a dream"

She has done some modeling and has appeared in fashion shows for the past one-and-one-half years. This was her second beauty pageant.

"It was a different kind of pageant," she said. "You met with each judge individually, not at the same time. You met with each judge three minutes and they asked you as many questions as they could."

Dawnee plans a career in modeling. Placing in the finals in the Teen All American pageant "will help me a lot to be noticed by this," she said.

Her parents are David and Sheron Balhorn.

Teen pageant finalist: Dawnee Balhorn

"They were just as surprised as me," Dawnee said. "They were very proud."

Her pageant sponsors were Pontiac Photo and Davisburg resident Jason Watson.

SCAMP celebrates 9th year

From the lunch room to the gym, one class of SCAMPers scramble down the hall and laugh, competing to keep the yellow balloon off the tiled floor. SCAMP's a five-week summer camp for the handicapped, preschool to age 26, servicing north Oakland County.

Wendy Mandlik laughs and throws herself into the popular hokey-pokey folk tune played by Tom Cawood at the piano.

Uninhibited hugs, head-rubs and smiles are a big part of Clarkston SCAMP, a five-week summer camp program that meets at Sashabaw Junior High School.

It caters to 10 communities in northwest Oakland County, and provides education and social programs for handicapped children and young adults.

In its ninth year, 156 campers from preschool to age 26 enrolled, filling summer days with music, song, crafts, picnics, swimming and more.

According to Director Jim Butzine, each child has his/her individual goals.

"Teachers and parents put down what areas each child may need work in, whether it's getting along with others, motor skills, eating or whatever it is.

"We know that here, and work on their goals."

One young girl confined to a wheelchair, walked farther in her walker than she ever had before.

"We gave her a certificate for that," Butzine said.

Youth involvement picks up in Springfield

By Dan Vandenhemel

Teenagers have an opportunity to learn breakdancing this month, grooming tips, and the possibility of car repair in the fall.

The Springfield Township Parks and Recreation Department Youth Involvement group has those activities planned.

"They're not just for Springfield teenagers. They are for anyone who wants to come," group director Laurel Larson said.

Dunn fund raiser

Pediatrician James O'Neill, M.D., is hosting a fund raiser for Jim Dunn, Republican candidate for the United States Senate.

The $100-a-couple event is scheduled Friday, July 27, from 5:30 to 8 p.m. at O'Neill's house on Holcomb Road, Independence Township.

For ticket information phone 674-4191 or (517) 482-3332.

July 24 is the date for the breakdancing lessons at the Springfield Oaks Youth Activities Center on Andersonville Road. A fee of $2 is to cover the cost of the instructor.

"This will be just a one-time session," Larson said. "It'll last one or two hours, depends on how many turnout. Andybody can do this, Brad Baker (director of the activities center) and I are going to try it. From this, if there is enough interest, we could have a four- or five-week class for advanced skills."

The youth involvement group first met May 31 to discuss what teenagers in the area would like to do. Regular meetings are Thursdays at 8:30 p.m. in Springfield Township Hall.

"We start each Thursday with a softball game at 6:30," Larson said. "Softball is one of the activities most of the kids wanted, so we plan the meetings with it. We have about 30 regular members and 15 of those are active in the planning."

The group is going to have fund raisers during Davisburg Daze, Aug. 18, at the Mill Pond Park.

They plan a jail-and-bail system, cake walk, clown make-up booth and a tug-of-war.

"These kids work quite well together," Larson said. "Every time out we have a good time. You don't have to be a resident to join in."

Larson said anyone interested in joining can call Springfield Township Hall at 625-4802 or 634-3111.

Grid registration

Football season is fast approaching and the Clarkston Chiefs Football Association is offering a registration day.

On July 23 from 6 to 8 p.m. at the American Legion Post on M-15, north of I-75, boys ages 8 to 14 can sign up for the freshman, junior varsity and varsity teams.

The cost is $20 per family. Physicals will be provided at the registration time for $2.

Trophies show success of racer

Still looking for prestigious victories

By Dan Vandenberg
A large collection of trophies adorns the living room of Tammy Spaven's home. There are still more in the basement and in her bedroom.

For the last two years, the 15-year-old has been racing BMX (bicycle motocross) and has earned 98 trophies.

Of all the plastic, chrome and marble tributes to her success, one stands out for Tammy.

It's the trophy she won last year in the Grand National competition held at the BMX track in Waterford Oaks County Park.

"That first-place trophy means more to me than the others," she said. "The others are nice but the Grand Nationals is better."

Riders from all over the country travel to these big races. Last year over 2,000 riders of all ages converged on the Waterford track for the Grand Nationals. On the 28th and 29th of this month, the Grand Nationals return to the area.

Almost every weekend, a Grand National competition is held around the country. Tammy has traveled to Florida, Oklahoma, Ohio and Pennsylvania.

"I really like the competition and the traveling part," Tammy said. "You get to meet a lot of nice people when you're at these races. You get to meet some of the pros and they help me a lot."

Most of the time Tammy makes the trips with Kelly Burnette and his family. Burnette works at the Waterford track and sponsors a four-rider team for the local races. Tammy is also sponsored by Stuff-N-Shirts of Utica.

Burnette, a science teacher at Sashabaw Junior High School, suggested Tammy start racing.

"I had never even ridden one of the BMX bikes," said the Meyer Road, Independence Township, resident. "Mr. Burnette was looking for riders in his classes and I was interested."

Being a successful racer takes more than just wanting to compete. Tammy practices at the track every day during the summer. When the weather isn't cooperating, she places her bike on a stationary roller. Also important are knowledge of changing gears, and the size and tread of the tires depending on track conditions.

"My dad (Roger Spaven) taught me a lot about the gears," Tammy said. "Talking to the pros also helps."

Turning professional is not Tammy's goal. She says there are not that many girls who are professionals.

"I just want to win some nationals," she said. "I've gotten a lot of thirds, fourths and fifths. It's a lot of fun. I just wish more girls got into it."

Some of Tammy Spaven's 98 trophies from BMX racing sit behind her. She's eager to win more prestigious races like the Grand Nationals coming to Waterford this month.

Tammy Spaven leads other racers around the BMX track as she is about to rack up another victory. She keeps on winning despite a slightly pulled stomach muscle.

Sports

Watching for fallen bikers keeps Kelly Burnette alert during races at the BMX track at Waterford Oaks County Park. Burnette is also in charge of track maintenance.

Pride keeps track in shape

By Dan Vandenberg
Behind the wave pool at Waterford Oaks County Park and past the water slide, there's a buzz of activities on any given Saturday afternoon.

The bicycle motocross (BMX) track at the park has racers of all ages competing for trophies—and bragging rights.

With racers and watchers from the littlest 5-year-olds to 50-year-old businessmen, track coordinators Nancy Phillips and Kelly Burnette keep everything organized.

Phillips is in charge of all the paperwork and Burnette takes care of track maintenance.

Burnette, a science-gym teacher at Sashabaw Junior High School, has been involved with BMX for 10 years. His wife, Lawrie, is the secretary of the National Bicycle League board of directors.

The Burnette family involvement does not stop there. Their son Ed is a professional racer, but he's had to slack off because of school.

"This is a real family sport," Burnette said. "You can always hear someone cheering one of the racers on."

Burnette described his title as the BMX coordinator of beautification and maintenance of the track.

The job keeps Burnette more than busy during the summer. Usually working more than 40 hours a week, he has the area looking attractive with a pond and flower beds scattered along the track.

The hard work on the 900 twisting, hilly feet of dirt has paid off. The track has been rated in the top 10 in the country by BMX Action, a national magazine.

"I've got a lot of pride concerning this track," Burnette said. "We try to give the best service we can. We've got a good reputation; we just want to keep it."

National attention is coming to Waterford Oaks when the track hosts the Grand Nationals. Close to 2,000 racers are expected July 28-29.

"I'm going to be the starter for the grand nationals and it's going to be hectic," said the East Washington Street, Clarkston, resident. "There'll be a race every 30 or 40 seconds. We'll be busy."

Quotes and cliches

By Dan Vandenhemel

Great and not so great quotes and cliches from the past:

- A penny saved is a penny earned.
- Don't put all your eggs in one basket.
- Baseball is 90 percent mental, the other half is physical.
- Win one for the Gipper.
- He got all of that one, Al.
- Boy, he really got that one, George.
- Ooo, you're so right, Al.
- I am not a crook.
- An apple a day keeps the doctor away.
- One of your oars is out of the water.
- Larry, Moe, the cheese.

He stood there like the house by the side of the road and watched it go by.

Where do people come up with these little bits of wisdom? Just because it's clever or dumb and people remember it?

Last Friday, on trip to the Komedie Korner in Windsor, I heard another one about a person's instability.

"She doesn't have all her chairs pulled up to the table."

This may not be a new one for some people but it was for me. It sent laughter bouncing off the walls. I heard other ones that are just as good.

Such as: Not being wrapped too tightly. They need their rugs dusted off. Somebody pulled their shades down.

What I'm wondering, who gets the credit for the cliches that all too quickly become old news?

A friend's book of quotations is filled with famous people and their famous words.

The list runs from Albert Einstein to Henny Youngman to William Shakespeare.

The quotes tell the readers about everything from adversity to zeal.

The one thing all famous quotes and overused cliches have in common is that they all make a person think.

They are so dumb or profound the reader can't help but remember them.

So remember what has been printed here. Something from it could be famous someday.

Tracksters meet at state level

By Dan Vandenhemel

Runners, throwers and jumpers from across Michigan converged at Michigan State University for the Hershey Track Meet.

Forty teams with over 1,100 participants, aged 9 through 14, competed in the state regionals for parks and recreation departments July 6.

Independence Township sent a team of 11 to East Lansing with Mark Hughes as the coach.

The only ribbon Independence Township won went to Karen Dunham for an eighth-place finish in the softball throw.

"The competition was really tough," Hughes said. "A Detroit team brought bus loads. They had more people on the team. We started with 20 kids signed up, but with vacations and lack of interest, the team dropped down."

Most of the contests were running events. There were dashes of 50, 100 and 200 meters; runs of 400, 800 and 1,600; and the 400-meter relay. Besides the softball throw, there was the standing long jump.

"The whole idea of this is to give the younger kids competition," Hughes said. "A lot of our kids never had any experience on track. A lot haven't run before. They're showing interest in athletic activities, specifically track."

Members of the township team were Steve Christensen, Chris Cusumano, Karen Dunham, Chris Figa, Jason Gross, Miguel Hernandez, Shea Kammer, Fritz Lamm, Aaron Meyer, Paul Strong and Kim Toretta.

If the pitch lands on the carpet, it's a strike. The July 28-29 tournament will be held at A.J.'s Bar and the White Lake Township Hall on Highland Road near Alpine Valley.

The slow-pitch event is open to men's Class C and D teams with an open roster limit of 15 players. The cost is $100 per team. That covers individual trophies for the first two teams and sponsor trophies for the top four teams. For more information contact Jim Soubly at 887-6210.

Body building starts with hard work, diet

By Dan Vandenhemel

Some of the little things about body building keep Derek Place motivated about his workouts.

"It makes me feel good to walk down the street and hear a little kid or somebody say, 'Wow, did you see those muscles!'" Place said. "The whole idea of the competitions is to show off. But the main thing is to not let it go to your head."

The 1981 graduate of Clarkston High School has been lifting since school but not seriously until two years ago. He said people wouldn't recognize him now.

In school the 6-2 Place weighed about 160 pounds. Now he's a solid 235.

"Right now I'm fat," he said pinching a handle of skin on his stomach. "I just got done with a competition three weeks ago and gained 30 pounds. Most of that is water weight."

The competition was the Macomb-Oakland Body Building contest in Mt. Clemens June 16. It was the third competition for Place who finished sixth out of 21.

To ready himself, Place cut down from his normal six-meal-a-day, 4,000 calorie diet to just 1,500 calories a day.

"The diet is most important," Place said. "You eat a lot of fish and chicken and fruits. The diet is almost 80 percent of the sport. For competition, it's like starving yourself so the muscles show and the skin is tight. I figure in about a year I'll be ready to start winning some competitions."

The workout schedule for Place consists of one to two hours a day at the World Gym in Waterford following his job with the Independence Township Department of Public Works, plus a workout on Saturday.

Place explains body building as a healthy sport if done properly. Along with toning the muscles the builder must strengthen his heart.

"I jump rope, do a little jogging to help the aerobics," the 21-year-old Place said. "It's much better if you do both, otherwise you won't be playing with a full deck if you miss the aerobics."

"Body building is the tearing down of the muscles through strenuous exercise then rebuilding it with proper diet and workouts."

The starvation diet, the hard workouts and the dedication to the sport do not give it a very glamorous appearance.

"I try to portray a positive attitude," Place said. "There have been some many negative things said about body building, but really it's a clean sport. I love it. I can't think of a better sport and I was in wrestling and track. Anybody with a good, healthy body and who wants to work hard can do this."

Working on his arms one day then shifting to his truck and legs the next, Derek Place is lifting toward winning body building competitions in the future.

BEST KEPT SECRET AMONG INDEPENDENT SCHOOLS

Most of the people in this area know the names of some independent schools. Cranbrook, Roper, Detroit Country Day, University Liggett. Most have never heard of Kingsbury School, "the best kept secret among Independent Schools". But Kingsbury is comparable in many ways to those larger and better known schools.

Kingsbury and the others are all accredited by the same organization; the Independent Schools Association of the Central States (ISACS).

Kingsbury and the others offer similar academic, athletic and extra-curricular programs. Kingsbury is smaller, with smaller-but-similar programs.

Kingsbury and the others have faculty members recognized by ISACS as experts, able to evaluate other schools. In fact the current Chairman of the ISACS Evaluation Review Committee is Richard Halsey, the Headmaster of Kingsbury School.

There are two major differences: Kingsbury's tuition is lower, and Kingsbury is the only one that offers bus service to Oxford, Lake Orion, and Clarkston.

Openings available for 1984-85 at some grade levels

KINGSBURY SCHOOL

Kingsbury School is a co-ed day school est. in 1953 serving students in jr. kindergarten to eighth grade in Oakland, Lapeer, and Macomb counties.

Male and female goats can have beards, horns or waddles, the flaps of skin at that hang from the neck.

Goat carts are limited only by the imagination, says Judy, adding they come in metal, wood or aluminum.

With a week-old white goat on her lap snoozing in like a cat, Judy Warden sits in the shade of her 40-goat farm in Springfield Township and talks about their merits. A 200-pound goat can easily pull 400 pounds, says Judy, and they give milk with all the same uses as cow's milk.

Singing the praises of goats

See Judy Warden's goat-driving 4-H'ers at this year's fair

By Marilyn Trumper

When Judy Warden's goat Hezekiah horned the family's blue truck, chomped a blueberry patch and ate through the chicken coop, it was time to get rid of him.

That was their learning experience.

Husband Ron brought home a new kid to appease her. They named it Hannah. As company for that one, they bought a second baby goat, Sarah.

That was five years ago, and the late-night reading on their hobby has since spiraled upward to a 40-goat milking and boarding farm and Galilean's Harness Company on Big Lake Road in Springfield Township.

All the goats have biblical names, from King David to Abraham and Caleb.

The pair tour 4-H clubs teaching youths how to master the growing hobby/power of goat-carting and have agreed to dress as shepherds and offer goat-cart rides in the Michigan Renaissance Festival's 16th century village recreated in late summer at Colombiere Center.

But they're most proud of the goat harness company which both say has grown 800 percent in the last three months-of its 16-month life.

In the shade of a sideyard tree in view of a red barn, Judy scoops up a white, one-week-old goat and pulls it into her lap. With Judy's hand stroking its held, the goat's eyes slowly close, the head drops, and it sleeps like a cat in the sun.

Goats, according to Judy, are cleaner than dogs, safer than dogs, as smart as dogs, cost less to feed, and next to rabbits have the best manure money can buy.

The Wardens give theirs away free.

"We want to eliminate the picture of a dirty old goat eating tin cans out in the backyard," she said. "In fact, they're very picky about what they eat. Mostly they like alfalfa hay.

"But they are a very curious creature and because of that, they put everything in their mouths, which is where the rumour they'll eat tin cans began."

As if on cue a goat nibbles on a skirt hem, a tie tack, the edge of a chair, and settles on some grass growing against a tree trunk.

"They're not grazers like a cow, they're browsers. They have no back teeth, but they have a callous that's sharp as glass. A big goat can bite a man's finger off if he gets it back there," Judy said. "They're called the poor man's cow. For 35- to 40-cents-a-day you can feed a goat. They'll give you a gallon of milk a day and they're good meat."

The Wardens allow the kids to run free under

A challenging and rewarding career

by Jan Modesitt

Jim Wenger has taught social studies at Clarkston High School for 17 years, the last two of which he has also served as the chairperson of the 11-member social studies department.

Jim was born and raised in Flint, where he graduated from Flint Central High School. He graduated from Central Michigan University in Mt. Pleasant, earning a bachelor's degree with a social studies major and a history minor. He has taken graduate courses at Oakland University and Michigan State University.

Except for one semester during which he was a permanent substitute (K-12) for the Flint school district, Jim's teaching experience in social studies has been gathered through the Clarkston school district. His current teaching assignment includes classes in American government and current events.

Jim is a former building representative and member of the board of directors for the Clarkston Education Association. He presently serves as the president of the Clarkston Community Schools Credit Union and as a member of its board of directors.

Jim and his wife, Sharon, a Clarkston Elementary School teacher, have been Independence Township residents 17 years. The Wengers have two sons, Jason, 12, and Matt, 7, both of whom attend Bailey Lake Elementary School. The Wenger family attends Clarkston United Methodist Church.

Jim truly enjoys being with his family—traveling and doing things together. His hobbies used to include playing organized softball; but he maintains that he now participates through helping coach his sons' baseball teams.

Jim's list of former extracurricular activities at the school include coaching the girls' Powder Puff teams and serving as an adviser to the student council.

Currently Jim's main interest area is with his family and home—it seems as though the family keeps him busy with "house projects."

The travels of Jim and Sharon have taken them to several areas, including memorable trips to Hawaii and the Caribbean. Jim vividly remembers the funeral of President John F. Kennedy, which he attended in Washington, D.C., while a college student.

Sensing the never-ending demands and pressures on teachers, Jim views teaching as a challenging and rewarding career.

Says he, "I'm proud of the people who work at the high school. I hope that the community realizes the effort and dedication of teachers in Clarkston schools."

Jim's philosophy of teaching stresses treating students as individuals. His use of humor and class discussions help draw out students as they take the state-required American government course.

Jim's methods strive to have students become involved with class-related projects and government meetings (local, county and state).

He hopes that his teaching will help students better understand themselves and the world in which they live.

Most of Jim's students are seniors, by which time Jim believes that these students should be encouraged

Jim Wenger's philosophy of teaching stresses treating students as individuals (prodded?) to think and question their feelings, opinions and beliefs as individuals.

Jim sums up his thoughts on his teaching career thus far by saying he hopes he has "helped each student to grow more toward their ultimate potential in life."

Editor's note: An Apple for the Teacher is provided through the efforts of a Clarkston Education Association committee. Its purpose: "To acquaint or reacquaint the community with members of the Clarkston school district's teaching staff who represent a highly trained and diversely talented resource and in whom we can all take pride." This week's column was written by Jan Modesitt, a mathematics teacher at Clarkston High School.

Goats: Cleaner than dogs, less costly to feed their supervision and encourage them to sit in laps, eat from their hands and become "humanized."

"It makes it easier when they start to give milk," Judy said. "They're not as hard to catch, they come when they're called, and they're used to humans."

The second kid steps up on Ron's lawn chair, bleats, and wants into his lap.

Judy remembers goat Ben raised from a kid. He's now 180 pounds.

"He'd still try to sit in my lap if I let him," she laughed.

"There's less odor with goats than with dogs," Judy said, stressing the buck scent gland must be removed to eliminate the odor given off during mating season.

"That's what really smells," she said, adding its removed at the same time the goats are de-horned.

They're de-horned for safety, to prevent them from scraping the sides of cars, doe's udders and each other, she said.

Bucks and does can have horns, beards and waddles, strings of fur-covered skin that hang just below the chin.

Sixty percent of the world's population drinks goat's milk, according to Judy.

"We're just starting to catch up. It's better for you than cow's milk," she said, adding its smaller fat globules make it easier to digest.

The Wardens collect antique pictures of goat-carts pulling children. One favorite has the year 1929 etched in the cart.

"It's been around a long time. This isn't something new," Judy said. "One family in Coldwater uses goat power to cultivate. If a goat weighs 200 pounds, it can pull 400 pounds."

Wethers, castrated goats, are traditionally used for meat, and butchered at one-year of age.

"No one really knows how big a wether will grow if it's let go," Judy said. One of the Wardens' friends has a goat that's hit 300 pounds.

"That," Judy laughed, "is a big goat."

When 4-H'ers wanted to master goat harnessing instead of working with milking goats, Judy and a friend approached a harnessmaker who produced a dozen harnesses.

"Then he asked us politely never to come back," she laughed.

The 4-H'ers had so much fun harnessing their goats and pulling carts, Judy and her husband opened their Galilean's Harness Co. to fill the void.

"I thought, let's make them ourselves, let's start our own company. With my mother's financial backing we did it," Judy said.

Judy sews, Ron puts in the eyelets and the financier, Mable Lee, cuts the colorful 1,000-pound-test nylon strips.

"It's been exciting to see this happen, kind of like the pet rock," Judy said. "We found a field where no one else had seen the possibilities and we're making it work."

Across the county, goats are the fastest growing farm animal, she said.

"They're a gold mine. (Goats) really are the unsung hero of America. This is the animal that kept the settlers alive crossing the prairie. It wasn't the cow. Goats can eat on the run both on the prairie and in woods, and they can climb the mountains and rocky ground. Goats are browsers. Cows are grazers."

People see the corralled goats outside the Warden home and stop, Judy said.

"We agreed to do a birthday party for some people. We'll put up the tables and chairs and they'll bring the cake and drinks—and we'll give goat rides," she said.

Judy laughs at the old tin-can eating image.

"The days of calling them nannies and billies are over," she said. "America is catching up with the rest of the world."

During a lecture on reptiles and amphibians at the Independence Township Library, Christine Kolar, 8, volunteers to help out and is told she has to reach inside a white bag holding a snake. She gets to peek inside first.

Snake in hand, Christine isn't sure yet what this snake is going to do. Naturalist Roger Bajorek of Stony Creek Metropark, Rochester, assures her it's OK. Later, Christine says she goes on snake hunts at home but she was afraid this one might bite. "I think they're neat," she says, adding that she learned "snakes aren't all mean and sometimes snakes can be nice."

Charming snakes

Naturalist Bajorek holds up a salamander and the children stare in awe. After he tells them some facts about the amphibian found in Michigan, he adds an observation. "I like salamanders because they have large mouths," he says. "They're always smiling!"

Gaining confidence, Christine holds the reptile for a while. "The thing I'd like you to learn is snakes are really nothing to be afraid of," Bajorek tells the crowd of 135 children attending the Summer Reading Club meeting.
