Senior complex site dropped

By Marilyn Trumper

After investing thousands into site plans and engineering and a two-year battle to land approvals, developer Hugh Garner and pediatrician James O'Neill, M.D., have abandoned plans for a $30 million senior citizen complex at Dixie and I-75, on 26 acres shared by Independence and Springfield townships.

Instead, they've made single inquiries into buying 144 acres behind Spring Lake County Club where 39 acres is owned by the Clarkston School District, 75 owned by Garner, 30 owned by Oakland University and 75 by another party. They're also looking at a second site, acreage next to Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital's proposed satellite community hospital at Dixie and White Lake Road.

Springfield Township Supervisor Collin Walls says there are sour grapes over the partners dropping plans to develop 13 acres of the project in his township, after officials there "bent over backwards."

"They didn't have the courtesy to call and tell us of the change in plans," he said, adding Garner never submitted an approvable site plan for development of the landlocked 13 acres.

"I was somewhat disappointed to see all of our ef-

I-75 traffic jam to last until Oct. 15

By Marilyn Trumper

Commuters using the I-75 corridor had better get used to bumper-to-bumper traffic from University Drive north to the Oakland County line.

It will be a sporadic one-lane drive until Oct. 15, the targeted completion date of the $15-million project, according to senior project engineer Ed Winkler of the Michigan State Highway Department.

Told Independence Township officials had received numerous phone calls from irate drivers, Winkler was sympathetic.

"That's probably just 10 percent compared to what I got," he said. "People have to understand that contractors have their specialty, and we subcontract out the work."

"Some work has to be done first so that other work can be done. As long as they meet the completion date of Oct. 15 we have no control over their schedule."

According to Winkler, seven subcontractors have been hired to complete the 30-plus miles of repair.

To further complicate the issue, workers ran into problems resurfacing the Clintonville Road overpass which compounded the time needed to make repairs.

"Initially they were taking down aluminum rails and putting up concrete, and resurfacing the surface by scraping off a quarter inch," Winkler said. "But they discovered it was bad concrete, a combination of salt and age."

At one point, crews contemplated replacing the bridge's span.

"It's because people aren't happy in the winter unless there's 60,000 tons of salt on the roads," he said. "If we put it down, they're angry because it destroys the roads. If we don't put it down, they're

4-H parade

Floats and animals and clowns march their way down Andersonville Road, July 28, to help kick off the Oakland County 4-H Fair.

The 4-H parade is scheduled to start at 10 a.m. at the Springfield Oaks Youth Activities Center on Andersonville Road in the Springfield Township. The 4-H fair opens July 31.

The route for the parade begins at Springfield Oaks, down Andersonville Road to Cross Hill Road then a few blocks on Davisburg Road and back to Andersonville Road and Springfield Oaks.

Following the parade, 4-H members plan to participate in the 4-H Mock-Olympics with events for the most freckles, watermelon eating, peanut push, and balloon and egg toss.

The theme of the parade is "Head, Heart, Hands and Health: The Olympic Connection."

For information concerning the parade or fair, contact Donna Hines at 634-8830.

Firefighters' contract talks begin

The Independence Township Board is gearing up to negotiate the firefighters' new contract, and last week went into closed session for preliminary discussions.

The last contract negotiation period in 1981 lasted nine months.

Steve Ronk, of the firefighters' three-man negotiating team, says he expects this year's talks to be another uphill battle, and says wording interpretations will be a key issue.

"We filed five grievances over interpretations in the contract wording for the life of this contract, more than we've ever filed in the history of the department," Ronk said. "Their interpretation of what's on paper is different than ours. You can be sure that in these negotiations we'll leave no questions in the definitions."

Supervisor James B. Smith said he hopes negotiations don't last nine months this time.

"We expect to bargain in good faith," he said. "We hope to end up with an agreement, if I have anything to do with it, that is fair to both parties, and when the contract is finished I expect it to be honored and respected by both parties."

"I think," he added, "my record on grievances speaks for itself."

According to Smith, he settled all but one of the grievances.

"There have been a number of grievances, most have been turned down," he said. "Actually the chief never granted one of them. He turned them down or passed them on to me, that was level one."

"I received them at level two and actually upheld most of them in favor of the firefighters. Only one went to level three, which is the two representatives of the fire department named by the fire department and the two representatives of the community named by the township board, and that went on and was scheduled for arbitration and an agreement was reached.

"What the basic issue has been, and continues to be, is management rights and maintenance of departmental operation," he said.

Smith says five of the nine months of negotiations resulted when the other union members opposed the two-man firefighter committee's first negotiated contract, and refused to ratify it.

In 1981's negotiations there were 250 wording changes in contract language.

This year the township spent $9,000, according to Ronk, from the fire fund to defend the one grievance that went to the third level, when a firefighter disputed the township's policy that simultaneous vacations could not be taken from different platoons.

All grievances excluding the vacation/leave dispute have been settled. An agreement was signed Feb. 22, but a new grievance was issued on that agreement in March.

Smith said he expects that grievance to be settled during current contract negotiations, or by arbitration if it still remains unsettled.

According to Ronk, the fire department doesn't win all the grievances.

"To say we've won would be wrong. To say we've lost would be wrong. We don't win or lose, we settle. But the settlements do show we were right," Ronk said.

All fire department grievance and arbitration costs are paid for from fire department funds.

"We can't keep dipping into our pockets," Ronk said. "So we settle. It's cheaper than going into arbitration. Arbitration's expensive. If (Supervisor Smith) wanted to, he could break us. We can't keep paying out $6,000, $7,000 or $8,000 a shot. He'll break us."

"It's a copout if they said they didn't go to arbitration to save money," Smith said. "They always have the alternative to go to arbitration as it's legally specified in the procedures."

According to Ronk, the Smith administration's spent $20,000 of fire department funds during this contract period to settle grievances and pay attorney fees for all fire-related matters.

"We have settled grievances, and they're inevitable," said Smith. "The reason the fees were so high was that the union consistently indicated it would go to arbitration, and part of our effort was to settle the situation amicably through draft of agreements that would eliminate the need for arbitration."

"Those agreements had to be drafted by attorneys. We don't know who paid their attorneys, but we do know it was expensive and certainly have no apology to make for substantial legal bills that were necessitated by their reluctance to come to early agreement or to stick with ones that were made."

Contract negotiations are expected to begin next week.

Independence Township wants big cats out

By Marilyn Trumper

Independence Township isn't giving William Murdock's tiger and bobcat any rest.

They want the big cats out of the township.

But Murdock, whose son has the federal permits needed to have both animals at their northwest township home, isn't budging.

"They can't put in an ordinance and make it retroactive," Murdock said. "The USDI (United States Department of Interior) came out and took a look, and they don't know what the township's complaining about."

"We have the permits. They're just whistling Dixie."

Says Murdock, "There's always the courts."

Independence attorney Gerald Fisher says the township's ordinance is "permissive," with only animals specifically listed allowed. Tigers and bobcats are not listed, and thus, aren't allowed, he said.

At its July 17 meeting, the township board agreed to pass the law to the planning commission for review, and possible specific exclusion of giant cats.

"If they're going to be allowed we should expressly provide for them, so we've given it the planning commission for review," Fisher said. "Their recommendation will determine the township board's next action."

If the commission recommends the giant cats not be "expressly provided for," chances are Murdock will be forced to remove the cats, Fisher said.

Building and planning department Director Kenneth Delbridge agrees with the action.

"There's supposed to be somebody's pet, a panther, loose right now in Oakland County. The last I heard it was somewhere in Highland Township," he said.

"That's all it takes, for one of those things to get loose and kill somebody. If we were to allow them in the township, and that happened, you know who would take the blame."

According to Delbridge, the curator of mammals at The Detroit Zoo says, "...a tiger is one to be watched closely, even by its handlers."

Murdock's son has a 1-year-old 200-pound Siberian tiger named Athena he reportedly wrestles with like a dog. The animal was raised in captivity from birth, and is caged.

Federal law allows endangered species to be domesticated if they're raised in captivity from birth.

Taken during the Michigan National Bank robbery in Independence Township July 17, this photograph appears to be of the same man who robbed an Ann Arbor branch of the bank in June.

Tired of thefts

By Marilyn Trumper

Patricia Moutoux moved to the Village of Clarkston a year ago for its tranquility and safety.

A place where she didn't think renter's insurance would be needed.

It appears she was wrong.

Twice in two weeks thieves struck, taking an antique peacock chair from her front porch on Church Street and stealing the steering wheel from her son's locked van parked in the street.

"We live right across from the fire department. I thought certainly it would be safe there," Moutoux said. "There's someone there 24 hours a day. Who'd think (the thieves) would be that daring?"

"We've had more problems here than in Union Lake and Pontiac."

She remembers why Clarkston became home.

"I thought it was a place to get away from all that. I was wrong. I didn't even think I'd need renter's insurance," she said.

Moutoux filed a police report.

"They think it's the work of a kid. I don't know. I just want people to know this is going on and that they're daring," she said. "We need to protect our property."

Man beats bolt

Paul Johnson was so shook up after lightning traveled down a CB radio antenna and destroyed half his home, he spent the night in his car, according to Independence Township firefighter Gar Wilson.

Johnson was in the bedroom of his Allen Road home about 10:15 p.m. Friday, July 20, when a bolt of lightning blew up his bathroom and lifted the roof.

The same bolt burned the electrical wiring in a home behind Johnson's on Allen Hill Court, and broke a gas main about a half mile from the site.

No one was injured.

"We had fire when we arrived," Wilson said. "We're not sure if it took the roof off, but it sure looks that way."

Across the street firefighters found an electrical arc on the gas meter.

According to Wilson, it was not raining but there was a lot of lightning.

Gunman robs bank

A lone white gunman robbed Michigan National Bank at Dixie Highway and M-15 in Independence Township at 2:50 p.m. July 17.

The man wore sunglasses, a hooded sweatshirt, a baseball-type cap without printing, light-colored pants and gloves.

The amount of money stolen was less than the $38,000 previously published in a daily newspaper report, according to an FBI special agent who would not be more specific.

The agent provided a photograph of the suspect taken with the bank's camera during the robbery, and one from a bank robbery in Ann Arbor.

The FBI and Oakland County Sheriff's

A photograph taken during the Ann Arbor bank robbery shows the man pulling on the strings of a hooded sweatshirt to cover his face, as the man did during the Independence robbery. His gun is visible in the sweatshirt pouch.

Department (OCSD) investigating the case believe the same man could have committed both crimes, he said, because they were wearing almost identical clothing.

There are other similarities between the two robberies: The Independence crime occurred at 2:50 p.m. and the Ann Arbor robbery at 2:55 p.m.; both were at branches of Michigan National Bank; and the suspect pulled on the strings of his hooded sweatshirt to cover his face during the robberies; and he was armed with a gun.

But while the FBI has photographs, it does not have the name of a suspect. "We don't know who committed that one, either," the agent said of the Independence robbery.

Because of a processing error, the photographs taken during the Independence Township robbery are not as clear as they should be, he said, but the negatives are at the FBI crime lab in Washington, D.C., for further processing.

The FBI agent asked that his name not be used because he works in the area, as did the Independence Township branch manager who requested that she and her staff remain unnamed in the news report because the suspect has not been apprehended.

According to the branch manager, the man came through the door hollering.

"I was told that I had 10 seconds to clear out the vault," she said. "He did state, 'Your 10 seconds are up.'"

"We're all very grateful that no one was hurt," she added. "Everyone handled themselves professionally. The police responded as soon as they had the alarm. The alarm was triggered. He is on film."

There were one customer and four bank employees in the building when the robbery occurred, she said.

According to reports at the OCSD, the unmasked gunman approached two tellers and ordered they hand over their money.

He fled on foot, after ordering everyone inside to lay on the floor, reports said.

This is the bank's first robbery since it was built in December 1979.

Clarkston Place developers seek new site forts to try and get the project off the ground were wasted. No one found it necessary to advise us."

Walls agrees Springfield's approach to the plan differed from Independence, where Garner landed all the necessary approvals, but doesn't think that is responsible for the shift in sites.

"Yes, we wanted more detail than Independence asks for, a more detailed engineering plan. But we don't have a (building director) and we don't have an engineer on staff," he said. "When we approve a site plan it has to be ready for an building permit."

Walls wants the development.

"My thoughts haven't changed from the beginning. This project was meant to provide a service to senior citizens who were financially able to take care of themselves.

"I believe the convalescent center, nursing home and extended care are very much needed and I'd like to see that development in Springfield Township.

"There are a lot of sour grapes," Walls said. "It's a matter of common courtesy that someone make a trip or call Springfield Township and let us know what's going on.

"There were special meetings held. I was the one who pushed for a joint review to ensure the problems of the developer would be minimized. We agreed to use Independence's planner and engineers.

"I'm very disappointed we're not going to be a part of something that will be an asset to the area," he said.

Jack Cruikshank, director of public relations and community development for POH, says O'Neill asked hospital administrators if they would be willing to help set-up medical facilities inside the proposed senior complex, Clarkston Place.

"It's my understanding all our resources are tied up in getting the (satellite hospital) set-up," Cruikshank said. "O'Neill contacted (us) several weeks ago and asked if we'd be interested, but there've been no subsequent conversations."

Milford Mason, superintendent of Clarkston

Schools, says he was contacted two weeks ago by someone "whose name I forgot," asking if the school board would sell the district's 39.09 acres behind Spring Lake Country Club.

"I told them that I didn't know what the board would want to do, that we'd need more specifics on the matter, and that the board would probably ask me for a recommendation on what to do. It was all very preliminary, and I haven't heard anything since.

"If I knew what I'd recommend, the school board would know before the papers," he said.

Before agreeing to sell, the school board would have to decide the district doesn't need the land for school purposes, he said.

O'Neill says the proposed 30-acre site at Dixie and I-75 is too small.

"I never liked that one from the start," he said. "There's no room for expansion; you're locked into it. It's too tight. But no site has been selected yet."

He denies the change was a matter of economics.

"Inevitably when there's a nursing home or senior center, they're going to need a storage area, a place to store their boats and campers. Not all of them will be incapacitated. They'll want places to tinker, a shop. I want botanical displays, a greenhouse and park areas, and vegetable and garden plots."

In addition, O'Neill plans to offer multi-income housing.

"One very important consideration is that (Clarkston Place) would have been aimed at only the very, very, very upper income people. With more land, there can be alternatives to that, like less expensive housing," he said.

The township's new Planned Unit Ordinance (PUD) which allows a number of uses under the same zoning, is ideal for Clarkston Place, O'Neill said.

"I don't want to throw it up and get it over with," he said of the development's construction. "I want to get it done in 10 to 15 years with a master plan. Of course, we'll build the nursing home and home for the aged first."

The proposed site and the one at Dixie and I-75 both had utilities and the potential to hook-up to sewers, and that wasn't a factor in site selection, he said.

"(The Spring Lake site) is an equal distance from shopping at Sashabaw and Maybee and the golf course," O'Neill said, saying that was the appeal. "It eliminates the need to build them on the center."

According to O'Neill, St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Pontiac remains at the fore to sponsor the senior village.

Garner, O'Neill's partner, is out of town and could not be reached for comment.

I-75 traffic jam

angry because they can't get anywhere. It's a catch-22 situation."

According to Independence Township Fire Chief Frank Ronk, his department's responded to numerous fender-benders on I-75 since construction began in May.

"We've had quite a few rear-enders out there, but the problem isn't with the construction, it's with the drivers," Ronk said.

"People drive 70 mph and all of sudden come up on one lane and that's it. If people would pay attention, they wouldn't have the accidents."

Here's to seat belts

I have a terrible confession to make. On my way to work this morning, I did not wear my seat belt. Please don't tell on me to the big nanny in Washington, Secretary of Transportation Elizabeth Dole.

Ms. Dole held a news conference recently, and (wagging her finger, one would imagine) warned us all to start wearing our seat belts. If two-thirds of all Americans aren't living under mandatory seat belt laws by 1989, she threatened, the entire country will be sent upstairs without supper. Not only that, but we'll have to spend hundreds of dollars more for our next new car, owing to the mandatory presence of an exploding gas bag. It's for our own good, you know.

PERSONALLY, I THINK wearing seat belts is a good idea. I got in the habit back in driver's ed, and for several years wore one religiously.

Lately, however, I've slipped into apostasy and have begun wearing one only occasionally. Ms. Dole is trying to put me back on the straight and narrow and save me from myself. Lord knows, that's no easy task.

So, it's only a matter of time before drivers in Michigan will be subject to a mandatory seat belt law. Police will shortly be pulling us over for lap inspections. It's kind of nice to know that we live in a country so free of crime that the police have nothing better to do.

Also, it seems appropriate that the notion that my body is the property of the U.S. government should gain official currency from a sitting administration in the year "1984." Ronald Reagan, it will be remembered, promised in the 1980 campaign to "get government off our backs." He never said anything about getting it out of our laps.

Pro-seat belt law people point out that belt laws and/or air bags will save lives, and that people who don't wear belts aren't just incurring a risk for themselves—they're costing everybody in higher hospital and insurance costs, and lost work time.

I CAN'T WAIT to see future manifestations of this type of logic, i.e.:

1988: The secretary of housing and urban development rules that all new buildings and dwellings with stairways must have "stairway airbags." "A lot of people are injured and killed each year in stairway falls," the secretary says. "This will save lives."

1992: The secretary of health and human services rules that smoking in cars is henceforth banned. Police will have the authority to pull over smokers and issue them a fine. "If 2/3 of the states don't comply and pass mandatory anti-smoking laws, the secretary will push for passive restraints—a sprinkler system installed in each car that will automatically douse a cigarette moments after a smoker lights up. Cost of the sprinkler system to consumers: $1 billion. "This law will save lives," the secretary says. "Our figures show that if we could just get smokers to cut down by quitting when they're on the road, we could save 40,000 Americans in reduced heart disease and lung cancer rates each year."

1996: The surgeon general has announced that people overweight by 10 pounds or more will be subject to ticketing and fines. "Overweight people aren't just taking a risk for themselves—they're costing hospitals and insurance companies billions in terms of more heart attacks and strokes. We have to protect them from themselves. This law will save lives," the surgeon general says.

2000: The secretary of health and human med-dling (as the post is now called) has announced that Americans who do not take their vitamins and get eight hours of sleep a night will be subject to criminal penalty. "This will save lives, and save the country billions in health care costs," the secretary says.

Let's hear it for mandatory seat belt laws: One small step for man; one giant leap for Big Brother.

Going to the FBI office in Troy to pick up photographs taken during the armed robbery of an Independence Township bank was an unusual experience.

I knew the contact would be different when I called the office and spoke to a special agent, who answered the phone by saying his last name, gruffly. I smiled. It was like something I've seen and heard on TV.

In the course of our conversation, I told the man I have had little contact with the FBI in the course of news reporting in the Clarkston area. We both laughed. He was human.

Usually I don't drive to Troy to provide coverage of local news, but when the man said I could get a photograph if I picked it up, I agreed.

I admit I was curious, about the robbery and about what I would find when I arrived at the office. My curiosity did not prepare me for the reality.

I found the plush office building, found the elevator and rode up to the proper floor.

There was an FBI sign on a wall. The door alongside was strange for this building of many windows. There were three or four locks, a peephole, and a little opening in the wall to the left that looked like it held a camera lens.

I tried the doorknob. It was locked. "OK," I thought, "this must be the rear entrance," and I searched for another FBI sign. There wasn't one.

I knocked on the door. There was a faint buzz. I tried the handle. It opened.

It's safe here for you to assume I was feeling a little intimidated, but still curious.

The office entrance wasn't all that irregular. A receptionist accepted my request to talk to the special agent, and I only had to wait a few minutes.

Into an office we went. It was carpeted and paneled, and there was one picture on the wall. I think it was a portrait of the FBI director.

A battered gray government-issue metal desk almost filled the room. The photographs were provided, and some of the questions answered. It took me by surprise, however, when the special agent asked me not to use his name in the story. Still, they obviously have their reasons for being cautious.

As I left the building, a Michael Jackson tune filled my mind.

You know, the one that includes this line: "I always feel like somebody's watching me..."

Hot dogs, and more hot dogs were the main attraction at the SCAMP picnic held at the Independence Oaks County Park, July 16. The Clarkston Rotary Club organized the event again this year to bring the families of the SCAMPers together.

They also took turns rolling the franks around the open grill. All the food including salads and watermelons were donated by community businesses. The smiles on the faces of those in attendance said it all. [Photo by Dan Vandenhame]

Brazel endorsed for township clerk

As a resident of Independence Township and the husband of Claudia Brazel, a Republican candidate for the office of township clerk, I feel the citizens of Independence have the opportunity Aug. 7 to elect a township clerk who will work both for the people and with the people.

Claudia, my wife of 15 years, has given many, many hours of her time, both as a reporter and a citizen, pursuing issues and concerns relevant to this township and the citizens who live in it.

She is dedicated to the belief that each and every citizen has the right to be heard and listened to by their township officials and that citizen interests should be protected first and foremost.

As a reporter for a local paper, Claudia covered local government in Independence and Waterford townships. She understands the process of local government. She knows the issues and researches them thoroughly.

Even though she is no longer reporting, Claudia still works hard to keep in touch with citizens and to help provide them with information about their community.

Claudia has the energy and intelligence to complete the clerk's duties and obligations. She has the desire to put the people and their community first.

I feel this township is fortunate to have the opportunity to elect a well-qualified and dedicated candidate like Claudia to serve our community.

W. David Brazel

2nd endorsement

The residents of Independence Township are fortunate to have a dynamic, hardworking and caring individual such as Claudia Brazel running for township clerk.

No 'tinkering'

So Tink Ronk is running for supervisor of Independence Township. Tink has an ax to grind so he should run—the question is can the township stand him—or will it?

Tink has had differences with all five boards since 1969. Is he running as fire chief, or for township growth rejected by the voters 15 years ago?

At least Jim Smith recognizes the title "Supervisor" means only he chairs the board meetings and then has the obligation to carry out the board's decisions as the board understands the will of the people.

Jim Smith understands his role so well we have the least controversy in 17 years. Except with the fire chief.

Don't tinker with good government!

Two granddaughters spent the same week at my home. Melissa is 11, and her cousin Emily is two. Melissa had a loose tooth and decided to yank it out. There was considerable tugging and bleeding. Emily was fascinated.

"Do it again," Emily said. "Right now."

That same evening, Michael Jackson's Pepsi commercial appeared on television. Emily loves it, and she knows her autocratic grandfather controls the TV via the remote-control device tied to his belt. "Show Mike Jackson again," she instructed me. "Right now."

Emily is the only one I know who calls Michael Jackson "Mike." She has no right to be that familiar with the super-star. I told her that not even Brooke Shields calls him Mike, and she's probably seen him with his glove off.

"Show Mike Jackson again," she repeated. "Right now."

EMILY DOESN'T believe in waiting for anything she wants. This makes life difficult for a grandfather who, realizing President Reagan will be re-elected no matter how loud he screams, has decided to dedicate his life to giving his grandchildren everything they want.

With excruciatingly detailed logic, I told Emily that a group of highly paid executives decide when Michael Jackson will appear on Grandpa's TV. I told her that the magic buttons tied to my belt gave me the power to switch channels and make Grandma mad but that I had nothing whatsoever to say about what the channels show or when. I told her if I controlled my TV set the way I control my couch, Barney Miller would be captain of the A Team.

"Show Mike Jackson again," Emily said. "Right now."

Holy Moses. Were my kids that stubborn when they were little? I can't remember. It bothers me that I remember so little about my children's childhood. Wasn't I paying attention? But I've been taking a refresher course, thanks to my late mother-in-law, who never threw anything away.

My wife is spending the rest of her life "going through" what her mother never threw away, and that includes every column I ever wrote about our children—her grandchildren. In 1961, for instance, I wrote convincing proof that I'm not the sappiest grandfather who ever lived.

IN THOSE days, we lived in a treeless subdivision. My kids complained that there were no piles of leaves to play in. So their grandfather trucked in huge quantities of leaves and dumped them in my backyard, from where they blew next door. And I wrote that my neighbor was worried about winter and having to shovel someone else's snow.

Twenty-three years later, reading about my kids' imported leaves, I wondered how I could have forgotten such a nice time. I also couldn't believe I'd forgotten what I wrote about Emily's mother, Ferd, in 1965. Ferd was nine years old then, and, while her mother dictated, Ferd "helped keep house" by printing a list of things her mother had to do the next day, without fail. Ferd numbered and recorded each dictated item faithfully and added one of her own. Thus when her mother took up the list the next day, she read that she had to:

1. Take dog to vet. 2. Call furnace man. 3. Take shirts to laundry. 4. Love your children.

I wrote it in the newspaper and then forgot it. Lord knows how much more I've forgotten about the fun of being a young father. It's nice to be reminded by yellowed newspaper clippings saved by my mother-in-law, and it's great to get a second chance from grandchildren.

I'd like to see that old show again. Right now.

Claudia donated time and energy in the ongoing fight to protect north Oakland County from one of the world's largest proposed toxic and hazardous waste facilities, just seven miles from beautiful Deer Lake.

Claudia, with others, saw a serious threat to Independence Township and took on the responsibility and put forth much ambition to work toward the protection of Independence Township, its neighbors and our state.

A person like Claudia that seeks knowledge and safe solutions to a problem will be an asset to the people of Independence Township as clerk.

Finals next for Jr. Olympian

Dan Jokisch is on one of last 8 basketball teams in tourney

By Dan Vandenhemel

The 1984 Summer Olympics have taken hold throughout America. Besides the better known competition in Los Angeles, the Amateur Athletes Union (AAU) Junior Olympic finals for basketball are underway in Frankfort, Ky.

Among the eight teams left in the tournament set for Aug. 2, is a team from Monroe.

Dan Jokisch, a 15-year-old sophomore at Clarkston High School, is in the starting line-up and has helped move the 12-member team into the finals.

In a telephone interview with The Clarkston News, Coach Dave Williams said that in the four games so far, Jokisch has 58 points and has hauled in 56 rebounds.

The 6-foot-6 Jokisch is playing power forward and center in the tournament. The team is sponsored by Monroe Trophies.

Williams got wind of Jokisch through his older brother, Paul Jokisch, who attends the University of Michigan and plays football and basketball there.

"Any kid from anywhere can play in the tournament," Williams said of the team in the 15-year-old-and-under division. "I heard about him through Butch (Paul) and got to know the family. The kid really hustles; he almost overhustles."

Debby Jokisch, Dan's mother, was leery at first when Williams approached the family to have Dan play for him in Monroe.

"I was afraid to let him go," Mrs. Jokisch said. "We didn't know the coach or the team, plus playing in Monroe is a long way. But the coach offered to come and pick Duke (Dan) up and let him stay with him."

The Jokisch family believes, she said, that the experience Dan gains from the Junior Olympics will only help his high school basketball career.

Williams and Jokisch said the team's chances of winning the tournament in Kentucky are good.

"I think we can do it. I think we can win it," Dan said. "It'll be tough, but we'll be there."

"I'm expecting to win the whole thing," Williams said. "These kids don't know how to lose."

There is one catch with the tournament and that is funding the trip to the finals.

"We've got these kids with room and board and the $350 entry fee. We're going to need about $2,300 to get these kids to Kentucky or we don't go," Williams said.

Williams said if anyone is interested in making a tax-deductible donation, they should contact Mrs. Jokisch at 625-7351 or Dan Fife at 625-3731.

The AAU Junior Olympics basketball finals in Frankfort, Ky., lie ahead for Dan Jokisch. Only eight teams remain to be beaten by his team in the nationwide tournament.

Up My Alley

Parting friends

By Dan Vandenhemel

Driving home at 1:30 in the morning after playing a game of Trivial Pursuit is a strange time to be struck by a column idea.

The inspiration came after playing the game with some friends who will soon be leaving the state.

Jeff, his wife, Shawn, and his sister, Cori, are departing Michigan the first part of August.

Goodbyes have never been a strong point of mine. Last year, a good friend moved to Florida and I wrote a farewell to him in this space.

But how do you say goodbye to someone you've known for 17 of your 23 years?

Jeff and I have been together since cub scouts, little league baseball, beginners' bowling leagues and high school baseball.

I adopted his family, and he adopted mine. On Aug. 14 Jeff will join the army. Shawn and Cori will move to Miami to be with Jeff's parents.

Standing up in their wedding last August only brought all of us closer together again.

There were stints of living in Oscoda, North Dakota, and college at Northern Michigan University that took Jeff and his family away from our neighborhood.

It's sad not just because the threesome is leaving the state but also because all the childhood memories come flooding back.

Our playing little league against each other, our bowling on the same team for so many years, and the dreams of becoming a professional in each sport.

The true sports fanatics that we were then and still are, are kept up with a dice baseball league as well as a whiffle ball league.

The bowling tournaments together always bring a smile. Especially traveling in a camper to Saginaw, then staying overnight in a 7-11 parking lot with a 150-pound German shepherd wanting to share my sleeping bag.

One of our best times came when we shared the coaching duties of a little league team, and the arguments about who should play where and whose turn it was to buy the pop for the team victory celebration.

In one month's time, Jeff will be in New Jersey, then Georgia after that. His base for the rest of his enlistment is still up in the air but wherever it will be, it'll be away from his friends in Michigan.

I'm going to miss Jeff, Shawn and Cori.

Lions game to feature CHS cheerleaders

The preseason football game at the Pontiac Silverdome Aug. 11 between the Lions and the Seattle Seahawks will have a Clarkston look about it.

The Clarkston High School varsity cheerleaders will lead the cheers on the sidelines during the game.

The Lions sent a letter to the school to see if the squad was interested. After the reply was made, Clarkston was chosen to cheer at the game.

Coach Sue Jorgensen said the Clarkston cheerleaders have been at the Silverdome before.

The 1984-85 squad returned from the July 5-8 Universal Cheerleading Association cheerleading competition at Albion College.

The squad came home with six ribbons and the Master Key to Spirit plaque. The spirit award was voted on by all the 28 squads at the competition.

Board hires firm for fire study

By Marilyn Trumper

Following the fire committee's recommendation, the Independence Township Board hired Public Administration Service (PAS) to conduct a $10,000 study on the fire department.

The board, at its July 17 meeting, agreed with and adopted the contract wording that calls for the Virginia firm of PAS to investigate fire and emergency services, existing resources, department management, the role of volunteers and fire communication practices.

The $10,000 fee will come from the fire department fund.

At the meeting Fire Chief Frank Ronk refused comment, but later elaborated.

"I went along with the study in hopes of getting us off dead center," Ronk said. (The $10,000) is the part I'm not excited about. I feel that money could have been used for more productive things.

But Ronk's not threatened by what PAS will recommend.

"This study will support some of the things I've said we needed in the department," he said.

The study is expected to begin July 23 and be completed in 70 days.

CVP theater renovations hit snag

The Clarkston Village Players, the area's 22-year-old community theater group, spent seven years raising money for renovations to its Depot Road Theatre—then ran into a delay when the year-old township building approvals expired.

With plays running from fall to spring, the renovated train station on White Lake Road seats 80, and has outdoor Port-O-John lavatory facilities.

The thespians hope to build indoor toilets, a concession stand and lobby.

At its July 12 meeting the Independence Township Planning Commission waived the fees needed to reapply for site plan review and a variance appeal before the zoning board.

"Certainly that makes me happy," said Russ Inman, who's agreed to wade through the red tape for the Players. "But we were really premature going before the planning commission that night."

"We have to go back to the planning commission and the zoning board. Nothing was right."

Road fees: $800

It will cost $800 to calculate how much each property owner in Thendara Park will pay for a special assessment to pave the subdivision's 3.8 miles.

On July 17, the Independence Township Board unanimously authorized paying Hubble Roth & Clark to come up with a cost-per-property owner figure.

The township will recoup the loss after the assessment's first collection, but takes a loss if the subdivision doesn't go through with the paving.

Residents of the 100-home subdivision in the township's northeast quadrant have been trying to gather 50 percent of the subdivision's property owners' signatures to OK the assessment.

Plagued with washouts and rutted roads, the private road subdivision residents believe paving is the answer to their problems.

It's estimated the township will invest $130,000 into Thendara's paving, and won't realize any payments on the loan to residents for at least two years, until the first money from the special assessment is collected.

Significant finds at mastodon dig

Workers uncover 12,000-year-old jawbone with fist-size teeth

By Marilyn Trumper

Under a 90-degree July sun in a Brandon Township field, volunteers and students labor in four-foot high trenches delicately scooping shovelfuls of rocky earth at a mastodon dig.

In this, the second summer of the dig, working in a grid pattern, they've uncovered a foot-long mastodon jaw with fist-size teeth, three back vertebrae and part of the mandible, the lower jaw from a 12,000-year-old hairy, tusked elephant.

Volunteers range in age from 10 to 71.

Yesterday, 100 visitors stopped by the Seymour

Lake Road site, east of Sashabaw, to witness history in the making after metropolitan-Detroit media reported their work.

"It's wonderful," says site coordinator Hezy Shoshani, an instructor at Wayne State University.

He lives on the tent-covered site 24 hours a day standing guard with other volunteers.

Tadmor Tadri of New York, a high school student, was there the day the jaw and teeth were uncovered.

"I'd been digging there and had removed all the upper earth and left for about 10 minutes. Hezy started yelling, 'Stop! Stop! That's a bone,' " he said.

The volunteer who uncovered the jaw was a first-time worker, Tadri said.

Last year, the group sponsored by WSU, Cranbrook Institute of Science and Oakland Community College's Highland Campus uncovered two tusks and a piece of mastodon cranium on Frank Shelton's land.

All pieces found to date fit together and create a portion of skull now at Cranbrook, he said.

Scheduled first to be a one-summer dig, Shoshani and crew are back this summer and will be excavating until early August.

Two volunteers brave the heat and use trowels to fill buckets with earth. It's then finely sieved for anything that could prove significant. Even Jack pine cones which flourished during the mastodon age, are preserved. They've not grown in the area for 1,000 years.

Regina Simpson, a student at Wayne State University, shaves off row after row of hard packed dirt that most likely last saw the light of day 12,000 years ago. Regina laughs knowing she could make the next mastodon find.

A trowel gives perspective to the flat-size teeth on a piece of mastodon jaw. Left where it was uncovered in the trench, the jaw tells part of the mastodon's story and helps excavators know where next they should begin digging.

Married 25 years, couple has 65 foster kids

By Kathy Greenfield

At the party celebrating their 25th wedding anniversary, Jim and Carolann Reed opened a gift—and it was baby clothes.

"In fact, everyone applauded us when we opened the gift," Carolann said.

Considering that the Reeds have been foster parents to 65 children, parents to five of their own and they've adopted one child and are planning to adopt another, the reaction of the crowd of 125 members of the family and friends is not surprising.

They began taking foster children into their home on Ellis Road in Springfield Township 11 years ago.

The decision was made after the Reeds had four children, who were growing up. They decided to foster parent a baby, then had another baby of their own.

That caused a delay in the foster parenting, but the pattern was established.

"Mostly...we wanted a baby in the house," said Carolann. "Then, we got into older children, partially because we got into foster children classes."

The Reeds are licensed for four foster children, a number that's usually filled.

Over the past 11 years, there's "never, ever been a dull moment," Carolann said. "Sometimes we've wished for a dull moment, but there never was."

She remembers a recent visit by an older son who no longer lives at home. Upon his departure, he said this: "Since there aren't any dull moments, I'm going home."

While the conversation is going on in the living room, two of the older children play quietly with T.J., who's now 1 year old. An orderly stack of baby toys sits on the floor. Another group of children, fresh from a dip in the swimming pool, are in the kitchen. Their son, Jim Jr., 23, is visiting and preparing dinner on the grill as a treat for the family.

Another son, Gary, no longer lives at home. A Michigan State University student, he's living in the East Lansing area this summer and plans to be married to Amy Bixby in October.

Now at home are Bill, 18; Dan, 14; Reggie, 13; Leanne, 12; Brian, 10; Nathan, 9; and T.J., 1.

Proving there's always room for one more, the Reeds expanded their family with another generation a year ago when Carolann's stepfather, 71-year-old Clyde Hensey, moved in following retirement.

"He loves the kids," Carolann said.

Reflecting on their 25 years of marriage, Jim said, "It's been great—exciting."

Said Carolann: "I think it's been a very good 25 years. In fact, people say, '25 years!' It hasn't been that long. I just think it's because we're so busy, the time really goes."

Besides the gift of baby clothes that were special because of their symbolic significance, the Reeds received another outstanding gift—a wooden swing they had admired but decided to not buy because it was a luxury.

It was a gift from their children.

What's new in business

Christie's has second shop

Christie's of the Clarkston Mills Mall is expanding with a second location, an event that's caused a surprising reaction, said owner Rosemary Christie.

Several people have asked if the Clarkston women's clothing store is closing, but the only change will be that instead of one Christie's there will be two.

Rosemary and her husband, Jack, expect to open the new shop on Main Street in Frankfort on July 28.

"It's going to be a seasonal business up there. It goes from 2,300 (residents) in the winter to 33,000 in the summer," she said.

Accordingly, the Frankfort shop will be open from May through December, unlike the Clarkston shop that is open year round.

During the six years they've been in business in Clarkston, the Christies have been approached to open additional shops in other malls, but always decided in the past that one shop was enough, Rosemary said.

The decision to expand in Frankfort came through work their architect son, Mark Christie of Davisburg, did on Crystal Lake near Frankfort.

The Christies traveled to the town to look at the home under construction—and, Rosemary said, "I fell in love with this little town. The same feeling hit Jack and I, like when we saw the (Clarkston Mills) mall—we loved it."

They plan to live in Frankfort during the months the shop is open, then return to the Clarkston area.

Rosemary will purchase merchandise for both shops, and her sister, Delores Rhodes, will continue to manage the Clarkston shop, as she has since it opened.

"She's very capable," Rosemary said. "In fact, a lot of people think she owns the store because she's in it more than I am."

Twelve years ago, Roger Board began his career in automotive sales at Hahn Chrysler-Plymouth. Today, he's returned as operating manager of the the Dixie Highway, Independence Township, dealership which recently changed its name to Regal Motors Inc.

Hahn Chrysler-Plymouth changes to Regal Motors Inc.

To give equal time to Renault and AMC Jeep

More than the name has changed at Regal Motors Inc., formerly Hahn Chrysler-Plymouth, located on Dixie Highway in Independence Township.

Roger Board, operating manager of the business since November, said the name change was official in May and the sign changes should be complete within two weeks.

It's designed to take emphasis off only two of the automotive lines the dealership sells, and give equal recognition to the others, Renault and AMC Jeep.

"We want people to see Regal Motors as a fresh new place to buy, which it is," he said.

There's a new service manager, Jerry Gilbert, who formerly managed service departments at large AMC and Pontiac stores.

"He's a very well-qualified man," Board said. "If we ever had an image of poor service, we're turning that around. It's the number one goal, service."

A Renault master mechanic has been hired to assist Gilbert, all mechanics are master mechanics with the exception of the lub man, and an additional hoist has been installed to expand service capability.

Computerization of the main office has streamlined the parts department and given the capability to make factory-direct orders by computer.

The number of cars on the lot has doubled, offering a wider selection, Board said, and pricing is more competitive.

An all-new sales staff and a new sales manager round out the changes. In the used car line, each now comes with a five-month, 5,000-mile warranty at no charge.

The result is an over-100-percent increase in sales from last year, he said.

"We want to be known as a good place to buy where you'll get good service and a good price," he said. "It's really working. It's surprising what you can do when you make a commitment. I'm really excited about it."

An Ortonville native and 1965 Brandon High School graduate, Board now lives in Drayton Plains with his wife, Jean, a secretary for the Durbin Co. of Clarkston. They have three children.

He served four-and-one-half years in the air force, and attended Phoenix College in Arizona and Northern Michigan University in Marquette.

He began working for Bill Hahn as a salesman in 1972 at the Independence Township dealership. He then was manager of the Birmingham dealership and worked as manager of Hahn's Quality Pontiac in Waterford Township.

He's happy to be back in Independence. "Obviously I'm thrilled about it," he said. "We're making great progress. This is a wonderful community to work in."

"The products today are 300 percent better than when I sold them in 1972," he added. "Iacocca's number one. If we could get a president to run this country like Iacocca runs this company, it would be something."

New store for Computer Contact Inc.

Computer Contact Inc. of Grand Blanc has expanded with a new store in the Harvard Plaza on Dixie Highway in Waterford.

Frank Walker, president of the corporation, recently announced plans for opening two new stores, including one under construction in Mt. Pleasant.

Both stores will sell Apple and IBM Computers and other related hardware, software, books and periodicals. Computer Contact celebrated three years in business in Grand Blanc on June 1.

Jerry Wright, formerly area director for Young Life in the Flint area, has been named to manage the Waterford store. He will be joined by Russell Hallum and James Finch, who are sales advisers. Technical support and service will be provided by Mitch DePriest, support manager.

Talk health with Simply Natural

Health is the topic of five classes planned during August at Simply Natural, 5625 Dixie Highway in the Waterfall Plaza, Waterford Township.

Called "Health Discussions with Luis-Jorge Cardenas," the classes are to meet each Wednesday from 7:30 to 9 p.m. There is a $2 donation for each.

"This is something new, something I wanted to do for a long time," said Sherill Collick, owner of the shop. "There are a lot of people interested in different facets of health—how to take responsibility for their own health."

According to Collick, discussion leader Cardenas is an iridologist, one who can tell by the eyes certain herbs and other things a person should be using, and a neurologist, one who has studied the use of herbs.

The class schedule includes "Changing Living Habits to Lose Weight" on Aug. 1; "Understanding the Healing Virtues of Foods" on Aug. 8; "A Complete Understanding of Herbs" on Aug. 15; "The Never Ending Vitamin-Mineral Use in Foods" on Aug. 22; and "The Bach Flower Remedies for Emotional Health Care" on Aug. 29.

For more information, call the health food store at 623-9817.

Women's golf tourney

The annual women's tournament at the Clarkston Golf Course is set to tee-off Saturday, Aug. 4.

"It's been a very successful thing," said owner Jean Frechette. "They don't have too many tournaments for women."

The fee for 18 holes of golf and lunch is $16 a person. There's a trophy for the overall winner, and other prizes as well.

The deadline to sign up is Aug. 1. The golf course is located at 9241 N. Eston, Independence Township. For more information call 394-0020.

Barrier hurdled for French friend

Communication has been an adventure for the Pfahlert family and their guest from France:

[from left] Betsy, Mary, Bill, Corinne Derderian, and Margaret.

By Dan Vandenhemel

Betsy Pfahlert described the short visit to her family's home by Corinne Derderian from France as an adventure but she's willing to do it again.

The adventure was due to the fact that 12-year-old Corinne did not speak much English and the Pfahlerts don't speak French.

The visit came about following a trip Bill Pfahlert took to France as part of the program, "To Educate the People Consortium" through Wayne State University.

"You go to foreign countries to learn about their culture," said Pfahlert, an engineer with Michigan Bell. "Part of our curriculum was to visit the farm Corinne lives. She came back to the United States with the group as part of CLAJ—it's a program like our youth hostels.

Corinne has been in the states since July 7. She stayed with the Pfahlerts July 17 through July 20.

"She carries a dictionary with her all the time," Pfahlert said. "With that and sign language, that is how we communicate. She is a little homesick for the Alps.

"She said she has not formed an opinion of her stay here yet," Pfahlert said. "She does not care for our food. Theirs is more natural. She does like pizza and banana splits."

Corinne lives in Rochejean, a small town near the Switzerland border.

The question of a return trip by Corinne to the Pfahlert home on Warbler Lane in Independence Township was greeted with a round of agreement from Pfahlert, his wife, Margaret, and their two daughters in the room, Betsy, 16, and Mary, 12.

"We'd like to have her back next year if possible," Pfahlert said.

Springfield plans 150th birthday

Springfield Township's 150th birthday is not until 1986 but the plans to celebrate the sesquicentennial are underway.

March 2, 1986, is the official anniversary date. Most of the events leading up to it are still in the idea stage said Helen Vergin, celebration coordinator.

"We're slowly going to get into it," she said. "We want to get a steering committee to plan the activities and to gather any ideas."

The first of the events scheduled is a walk-a-thon to help raise money on Sept. 22. Vergin said other walks are possible next fall and maybe a nationally sanctioned walk in the spring of 1986.

"We want at least one major event in 1986 with three or four in the fall of '85 as fund raisers," Vergin said. "The important part is to get as much total involvement by the township as possible."

To help organize, Vergin is going to have block representatives contact residents.

"They'll be calling to get input on a survey," she said. "It's going to ask what activities they want. Hopefully we can get a total communication with this."

Another step in the planning process is to contact the township businesses and ask for their cooperation. "Hopefully the businesses will give their input and their help toward the sesquicentennial," Vergin said.

Interest rates slow building starts

By Marilyn Trumper

A flex in fixed and adjustable interest rates has pulled in the reins on home buying and building in Independence Township.

The first four months of '84, Stylemaster Builders' Joe Noll sold 17 lots and closed nine house deals in his Woodglen Subdivision.

"Our phone has stopped ringing the last 60 days," Noll said. "Since May there were two house deals and we've sold no lots."

The 27-year building veteran, who weathered the 1980 recession, blames the drop on a raise in the fixed and adjustable interest rates, from a 9.5-percent adjustable rate to 14.75 rate, and from 12.75- to 14-percent fixed.

"You can't raise it 2.5 points and expect anybody to buy a house," Noll said. "We're back to where we were in '81. People are very cautious about an 11.75 adjustable interest rate with a 6-percent cap. That cap means a two-point adjustment per year for a maximum of six years."

"It could be up to 17.75 with people making a $1,000-a-month house payment on a $60,000 house, and that doesn't include taxes."

"How many people are making money like that? How many people can commit to that?"

Realtor Rudy Lozano of Evans & Associates Inc. disagrees the secondhand housing market's slumped but says new homes aren't moving as fast unless they're involved in a bank sale.

"There's no doubt new construction's gone soft. They've all but dried up FHDA (Federal Housing Development Authority) market. The feds have done that deliberately. Why, I don't understand," Lozano said.

"But the used market is booming right now because of so much depressed inventory and a lot of bank foreclosures. Builders have it rough."

Lozano points to Old Sturbridge, a subdivision started before 1980 in Independence Township's west quadrant, and never completed when the builder went bankrupt.

It's owned today by Community National Bank. "You can get a good deal in new houses," Lozano said. "Because it's owned by Community National, you'll get a better interest rate than a standard bank simply because they want to get rid of them."

Kenneth Delbridge, director of Independence Township's Building and Planning Department, remembers when builders put up model homes.

"Not anymore," Delbridge said. "The economy fell out and the banks were stuck holding homes they couldn't sell. Today they build for people who have the money or who are capable of making it."

Delbridge defines Independence's 1984 building starts as "...a slow upturn."

"I don't think we'll ever go back to the way it was in the '70s. But we're seeing pretty good size houses."

"The interest rate really is the heartbeat. Those who are building are usually people on their second or third homes, who sold them and are upgrading their life-styles."

POH expects August answer

By Marilyn Trumper

Officials at the State Department of Public Health anticipate an August answer to Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital's request to transfer 100 beds from downtown Pontiac to a proposed satellite hospital in Independence Township.

"But we're not making any promises," said Ed James, chief of the planning department division. "(August) sounds like it's about right. There's a lot to look at here and we want to give all the hospitals that want beds a true comparative review on their own merits. That takes time."

In May, when three hospitals in addition to POH requested certificate of needs for beds, the state ordered a comparative review to determine which most qualifies. The review was expected to take six months.

Jack Cruikshank, director of development and public relations for POH, says he and other hospital administrators remain confident they'll land the certificate for their proposed $34-million, two-story satellite at Dixie Highway and White Lake Road.

"Our first major review is scheduled July 25th with the project review committee," Cruikshank said. "The committee makes a recommendation to the executive committee which sends its recommendation to public health.

"After the 25th, things should start moving."

Since May, POH received written endorsements from Sen. Rudy Nichols, Sen. Richard Fessler and State Rep. Charlie Harrison.

"We feel those endorsements give us more momentum," Cruikshank said.

Named North Oaks Community Hospital, the proposed Independence Township site is designed for inpatient and outpatient surgical services, radiology, laboratory, pharmacy, physical medicine, rehabilitation, outpatient walk-in service, 24-hour emergency care and community health programs.

Other hospitals in competition are:

•William Beaumont Hospital, which since 1975 proposed a $36 million, five-story, 200-bed community hospital in West Bloomfield. It currently operates community hospitals in Troy and Royal Oak.

•Last December, Sinai and Henry Ford hospitals announced plans to build a 200-bed acute-care hospital on the 78-acre Henry Ford Hospital Edsel B. Ford Center on Maple Road in West Bloomfield.

•Huron Valley Hospital proposes an additional 100 beds to its proposed $44 million, 153-bed hospital in Commerce Township.

Clarkston News Special Writer

August "Gus" Larson, the president and founder of a company that bears his name, rises from his bed in Bloomfield Hills at 6 in the morning. He attends mass and is in his office by 9 o'clock.

He conducts business as usual throughout the day. His time is spent with accounting (his first love), contracts and labor negotiations involving the more than 100 employees at The Larson Company, that includes yards in Romulus, Fraser and Independence Township and a main office in Detroit.

In some respects, this rather strenuous daily routine does not appear to befit the image of an 85-year-old man.

When he returns home from work, he generally relaxes for a time, but is soon out running up, down and along the streets of his subdivision.

He says he's getting "a little older" now and runs

Designer's approach to woodworks

By Kathy Greenfield

Paul Bennett balks at being "labeled" an artist. "Would an artist be elected to the school board?" he asks. Call him an artist, he says, and "everyone wants me to respond in a certain way."

Instead, he prefers to be called a woodworker and a designer. He's also a bit of a philosopher.

As owner of Piety Hill Woodworks with partner Frank Walker, Bennett maintains an office in the Clarkston Mills Mall. His shop, where designs become reality, is located north of Clarkston.

The partnership has existed for about a year, but the office has a new location in the mall.

It's a showcase of Bennett's work, which begins when the door he designed is opened into a reception area. His talents are reflected in the woodwork, some of the furniture, the light fixture, hall ceiling, and so on.

What at first appears to be a study in oak accents changes form with a guided tour.

One room's style is art nouveau. Shut the door in another office and it shows a contemporary look that includes door trim of green formica and walnut wood. Another office shows off painted doors and woodwork. Still another combines the old-fashioned look of oak trim, an oak desk made by Bennett and a bright blue wall.

Where wood is concerned,
Paul Bennett will design
just about anything.

Where wood is concerned, Bennett will design just about anything. He and Walker have renovated condominiums at Pine Knob with moldings, fire place mantels and fronts, oak hoods for oven vents, and such touches as wooden bases for chandeliers.

His work includes the sign for the Village Sampler in the Clarkston Mills Mall and he recently designed a ceiling for an attorney's office on Main Street in Clarkston.

"Basically what I think we're doing is trying to create an attitude toward architecture, craftsmanship that I think has been lost for a long time," he said.

Bennett points to the hall ceiling in the Mills Mall office. The rich wood grain is complemented by molding. A carpenter could recreate such a ceiling, but it would take "forever"—at $20 an hour, he said.

"That system I can build in the shop in about 10 minutes, so I can achieve the same look," he said. "So what I do is design. You can turn a designer loose and say, 'Design me a wall.' So, the designer sits down and designs something. What he doesn't have is the knowledge how woodworking is produced.

"What I'm doing is designing almost backwards to that. I produce a system of doing my design at the same time I produce the design, trying to make the machines work for me rather than me work for the machines, so to speak."

Bennett is proud of a recent job where he designed a front door that changed the entire look of a residence. The cost for the design, door and installation was about $2,500.

"The door entry was a work of art, as far as I'm concerned," he said. "I treated it like that."

Bennett's credentials include a showing of his furniture for two years at the Yaw Gallery, Birmingham, and pieces on display at the Cranbrook Museum of Art.

A Clarkston High School graduate, he's lived in the area since 1948, when he was 6 years old.

With aspirations of becoming a teacher, he attended Oakland University and Mott Community College and never took an art course at either place. But he remembers always studying "down by the woodshop."

"I realized the only time I was truly happy was when I was around that particular odor of a workshop," he said.

He then worked for antique dealers repairing and restoring 18th century furniture. There he learned the look, feel and construction of such pieces and began making quality reproductions. Later he made one-of-a-kind pieces of contemporary furniture.

"In both I was collected," he said, recalling a disappointing part of the experience. "I'd make a table and nobody would put anything on it. Nobody would eat their dinner off it."

His father, the late Merle Bennett, first used the name Piety Hill when he founded Piety Hill Pine in Birmingham in the 1940s. As the original name suggests, his specialty was furniture made of pine.

"I don't think Dad ever thought of himself or defined himself as an artist," Bennett said. "He wasn't burdened with that..."

Paul Bennett stands alongside the door and entrance area he designed for his Piety Hill Woodworks office in the Clarkston Mills Mall. On the wall behind are photographs of work he and partner Frank Walker did in the Pine Knob condominiums.

MONTH IN REVIEW

A liquor license request for Pine Knob's ski lodge prompted the Independence Township Board to offer to interview all candidates for the township's last two liquor licenses until the next census in 1990.

In a letter, the state Liquor Control Commission (LCC) asked the Nederlander Corp. to be considered for the license "above all others."

But township board members said it would only be fair to offer the opportunity to be heard to all township businesses. They voted unanimously to invite all those on the liquor license waiting list to make presentations at the Aug. 14 meeting.

Cityhood is the topic of a committee appointed by the Clarkston Village Council. A two-person committee was appointed by the council in late June to draft an informational letter on the possibility of cityhood for the village. It is to be mailed to all village residents with the August sewer billing.

When a village business receives a going-out-of-business permit, the $50 will now go to the village. The past practice of license issuance and fee collection by the township for village businesses ended in late June when the village council decided to issue the permits—and collect the fees.

PUDs, as they're commonly called, are the coming thing in the ordinance line. Following the lead of the Independence Township Board, which recently adopted a Planned Unit Development ordinance, the Clarkston Village Council has directed its planning commission to recommend a PUD for the village. PUDs allow restrictions and close supervision on a single development that includes several types of zoning uses.

The Burger King Corp. received preliminary site plan approval from the Independence Township Planning Commission July 12. The fast-food restaurant is destined for the property that now holds a 120-year-old Italianate home, just south of Ritter's Farm Market on Dixie Highway. Village residents Hank and Jennifer Radcliff hold an option to buy the house if they can move it to property they own in the Village of Clarkston. A joint hearing between the village council and planning commission on a proposed ordinance amendment that would allow the relocation of the house to the village is scheduled Monday, July 30, at 7:30 p.m. in Village Hall.

The sale of Ritter's Farm Market is progressing, says owner Tom Ritter, and he expects the deal to be closed any time in the next two to eight weeks.

The person involved in the purchase is a businessman who lives in Independence Township, Ritter said, although he would not be more specific.

The market, located on Dixie Highway between M-15 and Maybee Road, was founded by Ritter's father. A Republican candidate for the United States Congress, Ritter recently sold a portion of the property for a Burger King restaurant.

Negotiations for the sale of the market portion have been underway about six months, a period of time "not unusual for property transfers of this size," said Ritter.

"We've not sold the business, we just have a sale in progress," he added. "The business is sold when the deal is signed."

Hiring policy: Helping others

By Dan Vandenhemel

Employees at The Lumber Yard and Davisburg Hardware have to be knowledgeable and want to put forth a good effort.

That sounds similar to many other businesses, but principal owner Steve Dice looks beyond that. He hires mostly young people or the disadvantaged. Of his seven current employees, five had never collected a paycheck before and another is retired.

"I'm not going to hire someone that's not willing to work," Dice said. "If they can do the job they're applying for, they'll get it. I put feelers out in the community for those that are looking for a job. I'm already looking for this fall."

The Lumber Yard is located on Andersonville Road near Davisburg Road in Springfield Township. Since the business opened in 1977, Dice has employed about 30 people and only two or three did not fall into the category of age or being needy.

"The job market is full of these people," Dice said. "With the recession in 1979, a lot of people were laid off. It was harder for the kids to get jobs. You've got to give these people the opportunity to work."

Though Dice has the policy of hiring the younger people, he does not want praise.

"I'm interested in doing this for the kids," he said. "I'm not looking to make points with the community. There are residents that have been doing this for a long time. I'm not looking for rewards. My rewards are watching the 15-, 16-year-olds grow up."

Occasionally Dice's policy creates minor problems.

"I've had reasonable success with this, but it has its drawbacks," he said. "For one, adults want to talk to another adult. They don't think the kids can help them. They just won't stop and think; they won't give the kids a break."

Dice personally interviews the applicants to see if they have working knowledge about lumber or hardware.

Ninety percent of the people applying have never had a job, Dice said, but they do have experience.

"By experience I don't mean another job, but someone who did some work around the house or someone who helped Uncle Joe," he said. "Someone living on a farm will have more experience than someone who lived in a condominium."

Dice has another reason for hiring young people. "I like this community and I feel businesses owe something," he said. "I just feel the kids need the opportunity to get a job."

The Springfield attraction

By Dan Vandenhemel

The attractiveness of Springfield Township to prospective businesses is a slight mystery to Supervisor Collin Walls.

"I really don't know why more businesses come here," Walls said. "I can offer a couple of observations though."

"It has been a belief for a long time by the elected and appointed officials that the small residential, commercial and industrial businesses are an asset. They are essential to the economic base and they are a place for local people to work."

Springfield currently has two industrial parks. Holly Greens is on Holly Road and Dixie Highway, and Valentines on Andersonville Road near Big Lake Road. Holly Greens holds mainly small machine shops, and Valentines has small factories and landscaping services.

The township collected over $225,000 last year in taxes, of that almost 25 percent came from commercial and industrial businesses including personal and real property.

One reason business may look toward Springfield is their low tax rate. Just two years ago only one community in Oakland County had a lower rate and that was Rose Township, Walls said.

"I don't believe we are more open to them

"The businesses are needed for a well-rounded, balanced community. We don't want a bedroom community."

—Collin Walls

(businesses) or easier or cheaper," he said. "There is not an organized attempt to attract businesses. We're not soliciting them. If they come to us, we'll try to help out as much as we can."

"The fact some of taxes paid are levied for the police, fire department, parks and rec, and the library is also attractive to the businesses," Walls said. "We might be considered attractive because we provide those services."

Walls estimates 10 percent of the township is zoned commercial and that should be enough to handle Oakland County's needs for the next 20 years.

"Basically Springfield is a residential community," Walls said. "The businesses are needed for a well-rounded, balanced community. We don't want a bedroom community."

Refreshing fund raiser

By Marilyn Trumper

The enterprising Boy Scout Troop 49 of Independence Township acted on a mother's suggestion, and revamped an old white trailer into a portable concession stand.

They're making money at Clarkston Elementary ballgames Tuesday and Thursday mornings, selling pop, chips, coffee and hot chocolate to thirsty, hungry fans.

They're the only game in town.

The donated trailer was previously used to haul camping equipment. The scouts gave it a new coat of paint, scrubbed it down and installed a shuttered service window.

The first day they made $48.

Five weeks into the season, sales have dropped to an average of $5 a day.

But they're still the only game in town.

From their car wash, popcorn sale, pancake breakfast and new concession stand, the 38-member troop earned $2,500 in six months, and bought a used Clarkston school bus.

They sanded the sides, and a scout's dad painted the yellow bus blue.

The boys use it for camping transportation up north, and plan white-water raft outing in Pennsylvania later this summer and a sojourn to Mexico next year.

Asked what they've learned from teamwork, there were different responses.

"It's kind of slow," said Tom Budday.

"You can get what you want if you work hard enough and put your mind to it," said Mike Morrissey.

"It's hard trying to get what you want," said Kevin Kozlowski.

"There are different ways of making money," said Jim Huttenlocher.

"It's hard work," said J.J. Price.

Some members of Independence Township Boy Scout Troop 49 stand in front of their concession stand trailer that offers pop, chips, coffee and more to thirsty fans at Clarkston Elementary ballgames. The boys earned $48 the first day on the job, and take turns manning

Larson's big chance came during depression

only three miles a day. He greets all he passes with a wave of the arm and a smile.

Gus' wife, Catherine, usually comes back from her job with the company when he is out. When he re-enters the house, he merely delights in talking or being close to her until it comes time for him to sleep. He insists on eight hours of it.

Born in the mountains of Montana in 1899, Gus won a state medal for the corn he exhibited when he was 14. The following year began his seven-year adventure as a cowboy.

He branded cattle and horses with the 8R irons that he still keeps in his front room. He drove cattle on long runs from state to state and busted wild broncos. He was once kicked in the mouth by a horse and had to have his upper teeth removed.

He came to Detroit in 1922 to visit an ailing aunt, decided to look for a job and was hired as a "teamster," the driver of a team of horses.

"It was during this time that I realized I needed an education," he says. "Forty cents an hour at that time wasn't really a bad wage, but I knew I needed more."

The plan to achieve his goal was set—six months of work followed by six months of school, a cycle he followed for about two years. He attended Wayne State University and the University of Detroit.

In 1932 when the depression was only beginning to gather momentum, the company he worked for, Michigan Sewer, ran into trouble. The owners sold it to him for $17,900. No money was required from him at the time. The owners trusted him to meet his future obligations.

"It was incredible," he says. "I had tremendous credit during the depression. People wanted to give me over $50,000 worth of their credit. It startled me at first. Then it overwhelmed me."

When World War II broke out, he began to sell a lot of sewer pipe, and his business increased substantially. He purchased a factory warehouse in 1946. He presently possesses one in Ohio and, even today, the business shows no real signs of slacking off.

The firm in Ohio, Larson Clay Pipe Co., manufactures clay pipe, and flue linings and ornamental chimney tops for mason contractors. The Larson Co. distributes underground materials for plumbing and masonry supplies to 30 states. Combined, the companies are worth about $4 million.

Gus' quick mentality and easy tongue have remained the same over the years. His memory is sharp and he can recollect minute details in ready fashion.

"My next goal is to live in three centuries."

—Gus Larson

He sports flowing waves of thinning white hair. He dresses comfortably within his home in a dark suit-coat and tie.

He is deeply religious and often makes efforts to proselytize his faith wherever he goes. He is openly affectionate with his wife and family, saying simply, "I love people."

While flourishing a pointed finger skyward, he says, "God is the chairman of the board up there."

Gus is Norwegian. "It's hard for Scandinavians to display affection," he says. "I never saw my mother and father kiss. It was too personal. But today I kiss my sons and treat people the way I'd like to be treated."

He likes to regard his employees as family. People who begin working with him generally stay with him.

Zach Maryman, a contractor now retired in Detroit, had been with him over 30 years, long enough to put his daughter through medical school.

Gus has always placed a high premium on his health. He stands tall, at 6-4, and weighs 180 pounds. His physique is robust and vigorous, and he maintains its trim through running.

"My next goal," he says, "is to live in three centuries. I don't think that many people can say they've done that."

On life in general, he says this: "There are people in this world who have talent, but they die unknown for lack of a little courage. You can't stand back or be timid with others. You have to throw yourself into the crowd and scramble with everyone else."
