Ronk wins supervisor

Independence voters defeat 1 mill for police

By Marilyn Trumper

In a neck-and-neck race spanning all of Independence Township's 11 precincts, primary voters elected fire Chief Frank Ronk the new supervisor with a 78-vote margin over James B. Smith, unseated after one four-year term.

At his victory party at the Lew Wint home Tuesday night, three hours after the polls closed, an elated Ronk celebrated with supporters.

"Number one, of course, we're really excited," the 12-year veteran fire chief said. "And we are a little sorry about the low voter turnout. We thought it would be much greater than it was."

"My people, especially Diane and Lew (Wint, campaign managers) worked super hard. It's hard to get the guy in office out, especially with the figures (Smith) formed."

"But we're excited, and we're going to keep on working."

Smith, who lost to Ronk 1,101 to 1,179, was at township hall as ballots were counted.

"I think the people have spoken. If they want to go to the form of government the chief reflects, then God bless 'em," Smith said, adding he didn't know if he'd ask for a recount.

"I'm going to look at it. It's been suggested, but I've not considered it—I probably will in the next day or two."

The third Republican candidate vying for the supervisor's seat was George Vitinaros, who garnered 76 votes.

Smith will serve until his term ends in November. Ronk, unless defeated by a write-in candidate in the general election, will be sworn into office then.

Incumbent Clerk Richard Holman (R) who was appointed to the office last year, won his party's race in the first election of his career against Claudia Brazel (R).

"It's extremely gratifying. This is my first race," Holman said, accepting congratulations from supporters at township hall. "I want to thank the people of the township for their support. And my wife, for seeing me through what has been several difficult weeks."

Holman also congratulated Brazel who captured 761 votes to his 1,430.

"I'd like to congratulate Claudia on a campaign that was a well-organized effort," he said.

Holman faces Democrat Floyd (Whitey) Tower in November, who garnered 224 votes against Brian Gerver's 73 in their primary race. Although voters cast ballots for Democratic candidates, all Democrats ran unopposed and were guaranteed a slot on the November ballot.

Treasurer Frederick Ritter, a Democrat, captured 287 votes, and faces Republican John Lutz in November. Lutz captured 1,184 votes against Republican E. Frank Richardson's 626.

In the trustee race, Charles Smalley, who ran unopposed on the Democratic ticket, captured 246 votes, and faces the following four Republican trustee candidates on the November ballot where they'll vie for four seats: Carol Balzarini, 1,283; Incumbent Daniel Travis, 1,219; Incumbent William Vandermark, 1,217; and incumbent Dale Stuart, 1,188.

In a very close race, trustee candidates on the Republican ticket who lost were Lawrence Rosso, 1,154; and Mel LeRoy Vaara, 1,095.

In addition, a proposed 1-mill tax increase for Independence police protection was soundly defeated, 1,057 to 818.

Oakland County Parks and Recreation's request for a .25-mill renewal went down to defeat, 1,113 to 780.

Of the township's 12,008 registered voters, over 1,400 cast ballots.

Mitchell Boyd, 9, [left] and Danny Mazlick, 5, found an unsupervised mud puddle, and wasted no time wading in and slinging a few handfuls. [Photo by Marilyn Trumper]

Springfield supports cop tax

By Dan Vandenhemel

Voters in Springfield Township turned thumbs up on police protection in Tuesday's election, approving a 1-mill tax increase and 1-mill renewal.

With all the incumbents on the Springfield Township Board running unopposed, only the two local questions on the primary ballot were a concern to the township voters.

The increase passed by a slim 221-213 margin but the renewal passed with ease, 339-113. One mill is $1 for each $1,000 of assessed property valuation.

The township currently contracts for three deputies from the Oakland County Sheriff's Department. The additional funding will allow the third deputy that has been patrolling the township since April to continue, according to township Clerk Calvin Walters.

Only 11 percent (538) of the 4,874 registered voters in the township cast ballots.

"We didn't expect that low of a turnout," Walters said after the polls closed at 8 p.m.

"Some of the precincts were better than the others, but they were all down. The reason was probably that no one was running opposed. Other than the police millage, there was nothing to bring the voters out."

Running on the Republican primary ticket were Supervisor Collin Walls, Walters, Treasurer Pat Kramer, and Trustee William Whitley. Trustee Glen Vermilye ran on the Democratic ticket.

All received votes, assuring their spots on the November ballot. There were no write-in votes for any position.

Concrete slabs from I-75 pile up in the abandoned gravel pit off Waldon Road. According to the state, the prime contractor is expected to crush the concrete as part of his cement business.

Concrete slabs from I-75 pile up

By Marilyn Trumper

What will the prime contractor do with the broken concrete he's removed from I-75 and stored in the abandoned gravel pit at Sashabaw and Waldon?

Ed Winkler, project engineer with the Michigan State Highway Department, anticipates it'll be broken up, mixed with virgin gravel and be recycled.

"I don't know that for sure, but I know the prime contractor is in the business of concrete crushing,"

Winkler said of Angelo Iafrate Contractor, Warren. "It all depends on what kind of deal he's struck with the property owner."

Iafrate's leasing the abandoned gravel pit to store equipment while he rebuilds portions of I-75 from University Drive, north to the Oakland County line. Iafrate, the prime contractor, is working with six sub-contractors on the $15-million project, Winkler said. Iafrate could not be reached for comment.

Township car stolen by 2 men

Two men fleeing the Michigan State Police, who pulled them over on I-75 in Springfield Township for driving a stolen car, are suspected of stealing a second car, a 1984 Pontiac from Deer Lake Court in Independence Township.

According to Trooper Frank Washington of the Michigan State Police, two troopers attempted to pull the men over at a rest stop July 31, but the alleged thieves overshot the entrance, hit a ditch, abandoned the car, and fled on foot.

Two women in the car were arrested, Washington said.

Hours later the 1984 Pontiac with a trunk full of sports equipment was stolen from Independence Township. It was later recovered in Saginaw.

Saginaw authorities are holding the two men while police here work to make positive identification, Washington said.

Davisburg Rd. closed

Davisburg Road from Dixie Highway to Bridge Lake Road will be closed for paving now through Sept. 1., according to the Oakland County Road Commission.

- Corrections -

The age of Larry Rosso, a trustee candidate for the Independence Township Board, was incorrect in last week's Clarkston News. In fact, Rosso is 40 years old.

An incorrect telephone number was listed in last week's Clarkston News for The Chemical People of Clarkston, a group devoted to prevention of drug and alcohol abuse among the community's young people.

The correct number to call for more information is 625-9600. Ask for co-chairperson Fred Baumann.

Sunday, thieves stole $800 worth of jewelry from a home on Allen Hill Court, Independence Township.

Sunday, vandals caused an unknown amount of damage when they painted a lawn decoration and wrote expletives on a car on Clintonville Road, Independence Township.

This information came from reports at the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

Fred Waring saw spark in Lisa Hofer

She attends famous conductor's workshop; Waring dies after last day

By Marilyn Trumper

Lisa Hofer, a senior at Clarkston High School, was with Fred Waring and his Pennsylvanians the day before he died, capping the the last of the conductor's famous month-long summer singing workshops at Pennsylvania State University.

Just hours after the 17-year-old walked in her front door in Independence Township, Waring, 84, suffered a massive stroke at his summer home near State College, Pa.

For 68 years Waring, billed as "the man who taught America to sing," performed concerts and offered workshops, leading his 20-member singing group, the Pennsylvanians, as they pioneered radio and television.

"I cried," said Lisa. "My father told me when I got home, and I cried. I couldn't believe it. I was just with him the night before and he told me he'd been watching me, that he was proud of me, that I had done a wonderful job. I was happy."

With three scholarships from the Clarkston school district and her own funding, Lisa attended the first week-long session of Waring's workshop on the campus of Penn State.

It was her dream since junior high.

Waring and his road manager, Peter Kiefer, were so pleased with her performance they awarded Lisa a scholarship for the next two-week session, a $450 gift, and she stayed on.

From 9 a.m. to 10:30 p.m. seven days a week, Lisa and others from all over the country learned dance and music in the intense workshop.

"It was a dream come true," Lisa said. "I'd heard about Fred Waring and the Pennsylvanians all my life. My grandparents had their records when I was growing up. I'd wanted to go (to the summer workshop) ever since seventh-grade."

"It was wonderful," she said, referring to the scholarship. "I wanted to stay for the next two weeks so badly, but I never mentioned it to anybody."

Lisa's teaching a dance/music class in the Clarkston school district's After-School Enrichment Program this fall, and says the seminar taught her 90 pieces of music she'll choose from.

Of Waring, she has fond memories.

"Once, when we were singing, a girl over in the soprano section hit a wrong note, and it was obvious. There must have been 70 singers there. He walked right over to her. He knew who she was," Lisa said.

"He was so friendly," she said. "When we finished performing, he'd blow us a kiss."

Lisa, a Madrigal singer at Clarkston High School, received five college credits for completing Waring's program. But she says she'll major in psychology in college.

"But whatever I do, I'll continue to study singing and dancing," she smiled.

Lisa Hofer, 17, completed conductor Fred Waring's three-week-long intensive singing/dance workshop at Penn State in July. The day she returned home to Independence Township, Waring died of a massive stroke. She remembers the 84-year-old with fondness.

Man hits steer

A 17-year-old Springfield Township man is listed in fair condition at William Beaumont Hospital, Royal Oak, after hitting a 1,000-pound steer that escaped from the Oakland County 4-H Fair.

Mark Katchmark of Big Lake Road was driving on Andersonville Road, within sight of the fair, at midnight Aug. 3 when he hit the steer, carried it on his car, then hit a tree, according to Springfield Township Fire Chief Marlan Hillman.

"The 4-H steer was lost the first day of the fair and they hadn't been able to corral it," Hillman said. "He came around the curve, and there it was."

New law clears Ritter home for ZBA review

By Marilyn Trumper

After four months of debate, the Clarkston Village Council approved a zoning amendment that allows historic homes to be moved to the village—but it doesn't mean Hank and Jennifer Radcliff are free to move the 120-year-old Ritter home.

The unanimous vote came before a standing-room-only crowd of over 35 people at a special joint meeting of the council and planning commission July 30.

The amendment becomes law 20 days after publication, but the Radcliffs must still go before the zoning board of appeals for approval to move the Italian cube-style home from Dixie Highway to a vacant lot next to the municipal parking lot at Washington and Main streets.

The variance process requires a public notice 15 days in advance of the meeting, where the Radcliffs are requesting a variance of 7 feet on the village's 35-foot height requirement, and a 10-foot sideyard setback variance.

Radcliff remains optimistic, despite the fact he's working against Burger King Corp.'s deadline to have the house removed or razed 30 days after the final purchase agreement is signed. The fast-food chain has plans to build a $600,000 restaurant on the site, and is scheduled before the township planning commission Aug. 9 for a final site plan approval.

"We're going ahead just like we can do it," Radcliff said, after the meeting. "Of course, I'm very, very happy. In fact, I think there were a lot of people at that meeting who were happy."

"If we put the 15-day and 20-day wait together, I think we have a chance of making it," he said. "As long as everyone involved makes the same effort. And I think they will."

The law was opposed by five people when the council asked for a show of hands.

"I think there are better places up and down the Dixie where that house could go. I don't think Mr. Ritter looked hard enough," said Jim Bickford. "I

VISA denial upsets woman

By Marilyn Trumper

Sixty-three-year-old Marianna Vascassenno applied for a VISA card to establish credit separate from her husband's—and was turned down.

"I'm not as angry as I am upset," she said, in between customers at Christie's of the Clarkston Mills Mall where she's a clerk.

"It seems to me that when they deny you, they don't take the time to go any further than a form. They don't realize that women hold the purse strings in the family."

She offer's VISA's form letter denial:

It pointed to a TRW credit data check showing "insufficient income," and offered a Pontiac State Bank phone number if there were questions.

Marianna made that phone call, then drafted VISA the following letter:

"...I'm curious to know what kind of justice and what kind of a society will deny a credit card to a wife and mother, who for 40 years has devoted her life to raising six well-mannered, honest, solid citizens. Who for 40 years stretched her husband's paycheck to raise those children, clothe, feed and school them. Many times the boys' shirts were hand-stitched, the girls' dressed, blouses and prom formals stitched at home. Bread was made and butter churned.

"The paycheck was always managed, bills and dues paid by me, and you send me a 'form' letter telling me I'm a poor risk for your credit card.

"I suggest you re-evaluate your criteria for credit. There are lots of we, sixty-plus-year-olds out here that have kept your banks and our economy in operation for years by the way of our 'common sense' where money is concerned.

"Friends have told me they were unable to receive credit cards in their own names. This I found unbelievable in this day and age of supposedly 'women's rights' and equality.

"Now I know the denial of credit cards is fact and plan to do my part to rectify what I see as an injustice."

"But she won't, and I can't consider it without it," he said, adding it's a state banking law.

"She lists an income way below the 50 percent she lists as bills. I cannot consider it," he said.

But Biske did indicate individual reviews, separate from the form application, could make a difference and might land Marianna her VISA card.

"It depends on what the exception might be," he said.

Steve Biske, supervisor of Pontiac State Bank's credit card department, says if Marianna would have her husband sign the application form proving she has access to his money, that would make a difference.

Marianna remains steadfast.

"I won't have my husband sign it," she said. "In this day and age I should be able to establish credit on my own."

MIMING ALONG: Stars arrows and rainbows adorned the cheeks of preschoolers last week at the Independence Township Library. Mimes from the Clarkston High School drama club came Aug. 1 to paint the faces of children at the Preschool Story Time.

Clarkston Road curves to straighten

By Marilyn Trumper

Since 1980 the Oakland County Road Commission's targeted the curves at Clarkston and Estón roads for straightening—and the Independence Township Planning Commission's jumped on the bandwagon.

Unaware of the road commission's plan to straighten the curves during the 1985 construction season, the planning commission recently asked the township board to consider it because of the road's two "dangerous curves at that intersection."

Key to the plan is Bartheld and Helen Zeunen's agreement to sell some of their land on both sides of the road to allow the change.

They seek to rezone 78 acres on either side of the road from R1-R, requiring 3-acre minimum lots, to and R1-B and R1-C, allowing 1.5- and 1-acre lots. In addition, they want 10 acres rezoned to commercial.

Neither could be reached to comment on the rezoning or land sale, which have been delayed until the road commission decides its next move.

Planning commission Chairman Neil Wallace cited three reasons for straightening the curves on Clarkston Road.

"Number one, because I think it's a hassle. Number two, because of the danger, and number three, because it also gives us the opportunity to separate the commercial district without cutting them off," he said.

Dennis Pajot, public information officer for the road commission, said the curves have "...probably been there since the Indians first blazed them."

The project will be paid for by the road commission, but its total cost is not known, he said.

Scare tactics

Al Zawacky

President Reagan recently committed a grievous sin for a man seeking public office: He told the truth about Social Security. A man his age ought to know better.

What Mr. Reagan said was that the long-term solvency of the system is not assured, and that young people today would do well to seek alternatives. That is good, common sense advice—but, remember, this is an election year. And, to paraphrase Mark Twain, political rhetoric can travel halfway across the country while common sense is still putting on its shoes.

MR. REAGAN'S REMARKS had hardly cleared his palate when House Speaker Tip O'Neil began shaking his chin and engaging in a favorite game of his, "Scare the Senior Citizens." If the president has some secret agenda for the Social Security system in a yet-unrealized second term, O'Neil thundered, he should come clean with his plans now, before the election.

Dog
dental hygiene

Kathy
Greenfield

I should have known my involvement was inevitable when I heard my husband say, "Brandy, I have to brush your teeth every day. I may as well get started."

Brandy is our Irish setter. He's about 10 months old and he's been taking over our household since January.

All the while the former little fellow grew from a babe in arms to a creature with a big bark, we've been trying to teach him some manners.

Exercise, says my marathon-runner husband, is the answer. So every day he takes our dog for an extensive period of fetch-the-ball that includes swimming in the lake.

Our entire neighborhood has been pulled in to this as my husband's shouts fill the air, calling in vain to get Brandy to return before he's good and ready.

A few weeks ago the two of them enrolled in a dog obedience class.

Brandy quickly figured out the good part. One morning we found the remains of a plastic container that formerly held doggie tidbits used as rewards.

Part of the dog obedience course is keeping your canine well-groomed, including the expected bathing and combing.

The afternoon following the unexpected toothbrushing part, my husband opened the cupboard in the bathroom, pulled out my toothbrush and asked if it belonged to anyone.

"You can't be serious," I said, knowing deep inside why he was asking—and not liking the conclusion.

Needless to say, we got that straightened out in a hurry and Brandy was assigned a toothbrush for his exclusive use.

The next morning another tooth-brushing battle ensued.

"Brandy, you're giving me more trouble brushing your teeth than a little kid would," said my husband.

"Why don't you tell him about Mr. Tooth Decay?" I asked.

The dark implication behind O'Neil's remarks is that President Reagan is secretly plotting to slash benefits to needy senior citizens should he be re-elected. The notion is rubbish, and O'Neil knows it—but there is obvious political gain in giving nervous jitters to Social Security recipients.

There will be no cuts in benefits to people who depend on Social Security to maintain themselves. You can bet the farm on that. Even if the president proposed such a cut, Congress would never approve it; any Congressman who voted to slash benefits to those in need would be cleaning out his desk after the next election.

Future beneficiaries, however, face a less certain picture. Who can doubt that the system is on shaky financial grounds? Every few years, (regardless of who controls the White House), we find it necessary to raise Social Security taxes in order to "save the system through the end of the century."

EVEN IF THESE bailouts achieved their intended goal of assuring the system's solvency through the year 2000, that in itself wouldn't be much of a comfort to someone under 40. The "end of the century" sounds more distant than it is: currently, a fleeting 16 years. What about the solvency of the system in 30 or 35 years, when the "baby boom" generation reaches retirement age?

Mr. Reagan was on the mark. No sensible young person I know is counting on Social Security for much of anything. The system may be preserved, but only at the price of a permanent freeze on benefits and/or a much higher minimum eligibility age.

But what matter this to Mr. O'Neil, a short-sighted politico who never looks beyond the next election? Scaring senior citizens and denying that the Social Security system is in trouble may be good election-year politics. But it is poor and irresponsible leadership.

Jim's Jottings

This and that

Jim Sherman

The theory is being advanced by some that the selection of Geraldine Ferraro as Walter Mondale's running mate could eliminate women from future presidential ballots for many years.

The thought is that Mondale really has no chance of defeating President Reagan in November, thus, being unable to win with a woman, none would be chosen in 1988.

Of course, there's another thought that now that a woman has been nominated for vice president, such a selection will be forced.

Heard of another sneaky little tax increase that only a government could come up with. Last year we joined 19 other couples on a golf outing at Gull Lake View Golf Club, paying the published rates.

We went again last month. There have been no physical changes to the property during the year. However, we all had seven percent added to our bills.

Why? The state of Michigan declared the golf club a convention center and that adds 7% to attendees.

Clearing up rebukes

There appears to be some confusion regarding The Clarkston News' policy on printing letters about candidates prior to an election.

While it is true that The Clarkston News did once have a policy not to print letters for or against candidates in the issue prior to an election, that policy ended four years ago when I became editor.

I rescinded the former policy for the following reasons:

1. If there were items in letters two weeks prior to an election someone wanted to dispute, they couldn't, so there were always cries of "unfair!" It made more sense, I decided, to maintain the ongoing letter policy and not confuse matters by having one policy most of the year and another only during election times.

2. Because the policy of refusing letters was only in force occasionally, people did not know it existed. During the two years I worked at The Clarkston News prior to becoming editor, people invariably brought in letters about candidates and were upset to learn they could not be printed the week prior to the election.

3. People feel like writing letters close to the election. Because we encourage letters to the editor and consider them a vital part of The Clarkston News, it was counter-productive to reject letters the week before an election.

4. While it is true that the letters published the week before the election do not leave time for a response in our newspaper, there are other avenues. We have three daily newspapers that cover our community. And if a candidate deems a letter or letters to be totally unfair, as in the case this year, they can always go door-to-door with their rebuttal—which also happened this year.

Serving as editor of a weekly newspaper is always interesting, for no matter what stand you take the paper is always up for criticism.

Perhaps the most frustrating part about this particular controversy is that my policy has always been to be as fair as possible.

One letter that began this editorial policy controversy was written in response to an article in The Clarkston News that the firefighters considered unfair. They brought their complaint to me, and I told them to write a letter presenting their side. I don't believe I should have made them wait until after the election. We were dealing with an election issue, and they wanted their opinion known in an appropriate period of time—the week following publication of the article.

The other letter concerned a printed brochure distributed throughout the township. It does not make sense to me to keep a reaction to campaign literature out of the newspaper prior to the election.

Rather than an end in themselves, letters should be an avenue to vigorous discussions and debates. They're opinions. They're signed by the authors. They belong in a newspaper.

Our readers are not living in a vacuum. They realize the letters are opinions. They know they were written just days before an election. And they have the ability to make their own decisions from there.

It's unfortunate The Clarkston News ended up in the middle of this election dispute. We did not create the animosity between the firefighters and the present township administration.

Fairness questioned

We question the fairness of publishing the two letters condemning the supervisor in the last Clarkston News.

This should not have been done without checking the facts and giving the opposite side a chance to answer before the election.

Move gas station

Referring to the Ritter home:

Since there has been a hassle about moving the house next to the parking lot on Main Street, I suggest the Village of Clarkston could purchase or the people that are going to buy the house try to buy the property at the northeast corner of Ortonville Road and Clarkston Road.

It would look a lot better than the gas station in a residential section.

Path clarification

On July 18 we ran an editorial supporting safety path construction on property between the Clarkston village limits and the Independence library on Clarkston Road.

In the editorial, we said residents along Clarkston Road did not own the property where the path would be built.

That is the case in that portion of Clarkston Road because an easement exists on the property. But that is not the case on every piece of property along Clarkston Road.

In some cases regarding the path recently under construction along other portions of Clarkston Road, the township purchased easements from property owners in order to construct the paths.

'If It Fltz ...'

Miss America brouhaha

Jim Fitzgerald

In its eagerness to titillate the public, the news media often dwell too much on the frivolous while failing to answer the really important questions. The Miss America brouhaha is a good example.

There has been much press speculation about whether Vanessa Williams should resign her crown, whether Penthouse magazine should make money off her nudity, and whether Miss America Pageant officials should be shot for hypocrisy.

But so far I haven't read or heard one word about what I really want to know: How come the September issue of Penthouse comes out in July?

The question of publication dates has bugged me ever since I was a little boy and first realized that newsstands began selling the weekly Saturday Evening Post on Wednesday. I could have understood Friday.

That is, I realize distribution logistics make it impossible for every magazine and newspaper to become publicly available everywhere on the exact date printed on the front page. The Tuesday Detroit Free Press may be purchased late Monday in Detroit so it can be delivered to Kalamazoo residents on Tuesday.

BUT HOLY COW, the September Penthouse could be purchased all over the U.S. 39 days before

Sept. 1! Such early publication is particularly confusing to me because the only time I see a Penthouse is when I get a haircut.

I always read in the barber's chair so the barber won't ask me to explain nuclear fission. The problem is that my eyeglasses must be removed for haircuts and I can't see very well without them. At first, the only reason I read Penthouse was because I thought it was National Geographic.

"Sarongs are skimpy in Samoa," I said one day because I thought it would make a great song title. The barber answered by putting my glasses back on my nose, and for the first time I saw clearly just how much progress has been made in the magazine world since The Petty Girl was considered risqué.

"Nuclear fission is the splitting of the nucleus of an atom into nuclei of lighter atoms," I said, not knowing what else to say.

The barber continues to hand me Penthouse every time I sit in his chair, and I continue to accept it because I don't want him to think I'm an old fuddy-duddy nuclear scientist. He always says something like, "Here's the February Penthouse; it's the latest one." And that is what confuses me.

MANY YEARS AGO, I got my hair cut every two weeks. But ever since haircuts began costing enough to be financed through the bank, I try to get one every two months. And, to avoid the expense of vanity, I don't schedule haircuts by how I look. I use the calendar.

So I tell myself if I got my last haircut while reading the September Penthouse, I shouldn't need another one until November. But if I read the September issue in July, the next haircut should be in September. However, if I read it in August...

Life is confusing, especially when lived in a world where a sex magazine makes millions of bucks selling nude photos of women who look sexier with clothes on.

But on a hot Sunday afternoon in July, I was pushing two-year-old Emily on a park swing, and the little boy on the next swing was singing a medley of "Jingle Bells" and "Santa Claus Is Coming to Town." All three of us laughed.

Moral: Just because life is confusing, and doesn't always go by the calendar, it doesn't have to be as dismaying as adult reading tastes. Life can be as delightful as children who haven't yet learned how to read crap.

Dear Cat Paw:
Does marijuana affect young people differently from grownups?

Youngster

Dear Youngster:
Yes. Young people are still growing sexually, physically and mentally.
Because marijuana interferes with all of these important areas of development, scientists are concerned that young people who smoke marijuana have may have problems in growing up to become physically and emotionally healthy adults.

Dear Cat Paw:
Can marijuana cause brain damage?

Bright Kid

Dear Bright Kid:
It is a real possibility. When marijuana is smoked, its mind-changing ingredient, TMC, reaches and affects the brain.
Scientists are now trying to learn whether these effects produce long-term physical damage to the brain.

Dear Cat Paw:
Does marijuana affect the way a person thinks and acts?

Forgetful

Dear Forgetful:
Yes. Memory is affected. While high, users will often forget something that happened minutes earlier. Also the ability to concentrate, learn and react is slowed down.

Don't print election letters

It has always been our understanding that it was the policy of The Clarkston News not to print controversial articles or letters about candidates for office if the candidates had no opportunity to respond.
If this is the case, you violated your own policy in the Aug. 1 issue by printing letters from Michael Fahrner and Neil Ashley which were highly critical of township Supervisor Jim Smith.

Since the election was held on Aug. 7, Jim had no opportunity to respond to their comments.

By this time, of course, it's academic and Jim either continues in office or he was defeated.

If he lost, and by a narrow margin, who knows how much damage was done by printing those two letters when you did.

No one disputes the right of both men to air their views through The Clarkston News. In fact, the letters to the editor are what make the paper so interesting.

In this case, however, we think the letters should have been withheld until after the election.

Sound journalism

Two aspects of the Aug. 1st Editorial Section of The Clarkston News struck me as rather curious.

The first was the letter to the editor reacting to Supervisor James Smith's goals statement for Independence Township, and its progress to date. The lengthy and, frankly, often confusing statements befuddled with rhetoric like "Goals here are established and achieved by community support, all the board did was ride the bus."

Ironically, the point of the letter was to discredit Mr. Smith's goals report card as "political rhetoric."

The supervisor's 10 point program was, in fact, clear and concise in its language, despite the comprehensive nature of the issues.

The second consideration was the peculiar judgment of the editorial board of the News to include letters politically significant in their particular bias in an issue which allows no rebuttal by virtue of its time just prior to election date.

Sound and fair journalism should dictate otherwise, I should think.

J. Durlis

Looking for a perfect swing

Video camera helps pinpoint problems

By Dan Vandenhemel

A push of a cassette, a flip of a switch and a turn of the dial produces the image of Curt Ilg on his television screen.

A sophomore at the University of Central Florida (UCF) in Orlando on a golf scholarship, he's using video taping equipment to help improve his game.

The TV-technique has steadied his golf game significantly, said the 19-year-old, Timber Ridge Trail, Independence Township, resident.

"I started using the camera this spring and have dropped about four strokes off my game," Ilg said. "It helps me be more consistent in my swing. My all-around game has improved."

Last year as a freshman on the UCF golf team, he averaged 77.5 for 18 holes. That score was good enough for eighth out of 16 golfers.

A friend, Dave Brochu of Holly, convinced him to attend UCF.

"I decided to go there because of Dave, and plus it has great weather," said Ilg, a 1983 graduate of Brandon High School. His family moved to Independence Township this July.

Summers are pretty busy for Ilg between working at the Waterford Oaks BMX track and his practice time.

But his time on the golf course is spent wisely, working on his swing. An average of three trips a week and 18 to 27 holes each time, gives him enough opportunity to work on the mechanics.

"I'm always working to improve. There is no perfect swing. It's a challenge," he said. "A lot can go wrong in your swing. There is a lot of geometry and physics involved."

One slight disadvantage the two-handicap golfer

"I'm always, working to improve. There is no perfect swing. It's a challenge."

—Curt Ilg

has made up for is his height. At 5-foot-9, Ilg doesn't try to overpower the ball.

"One good thing about it, I'm closer to the ball," he said. "I can't hit it 290 yards. I don't hit it as far as some others but it's a lot straighter."

Last summer Ilg lived the dream of anyone who holds a golf club. He recorded a hole-in-one at the Holly Greens Golf Course.

But during the school year, golf is not the main thrust of his energy.

His freshman year, he was a business major. Now he's switched to mechanical engineering.

"I'm looking for the education," he said. "Right now I want to see how school goes and maybe how my golf career goes before I make any kind of decision."

Sports

Bus trips

to see Tigers

The Detroit Tiger pennant express is picking up steam as the team moves closer to winning the American League Eastern Division.

With less than 60 games to play in the regular season, tickets are becoming scarce—but through the Independence Township Parks and Recreation Department, three trips to Tiger Stadium are now offered.

The first game is Aug. 15 against the California Angels. This night is also junior baseball and youth softball night.

The second trip is Sept. 4 against the rival Baltimore Orioles. The third date is Sept. 18 for a game with the Milwaukee Brewers.

The cost for each trip is $6 and that includes bleacher seats and the bus ride. The buses are to depart from Clarkston High School at 6 p.m.

Reservations for tickets must be made in advance. The deadlines for registration are Aug. 10, Aug. 31 and Sept. 13.

For more information contact the parks and recreation department at 625-8223.

Girls hoop season starts

The basketball season at Clarkston High School is gearing up and the girls' varsity and junior varsity teams are beginning practices.

Aug. 13 is the opening day for the tryouts from 9 a.m. to noon at the high school for any 10th- through 12th-grader.

Physicals are required before a player can participate in the workout.

Varsity coach Dave McDonald said he expects up to 40 girls to tryout for the two teams. He plans to make the team selections later in the week.

Tennis hopefuls set to try out

Clintonwood Parks is the location for the Clarkston High School girls' tennis team tryouts.

Starting Aug. 13, from 10 a.m. to noon, the tennis team will be practicing at the park.

The practices are open to students in grades nine through 12. The ninth-graders will only be on the team to play exhibitions during the season. Physical exams are required before a girl can tryout.

Coach Dick Swartout extended the deadline for signing up for the team because of vacations.

"I know of at least six girls that are out of town that are going to play for me," he said. "This way maybe some of the younger players will come out."

Video taping has help Curt Ilg become more consistent with his golf swing, and a scholarship to the University of Central Florida keeps him working on his game.

Chalk up another award for the Clarkston High School cheerleaders. This time the junior varsity squad won a title and a competition at Northwood Institute. Earlier in the month the varsity cheerleaders took top honors at a camp at Albion College.

CHS captures more honors

Winning is becoming a regular event for the cheerleading squads at Clarkston High School.

The junior varsity group recently came away with top honors at the Dynamic Cheerleading Association camp at Northwood Institute July 16-19.

The JV team outclassed 17 other squads for the best routine along with dance routine. They were voted the camp's super squad by the counselors for having the most spirit. They also received a handful of ribbons for their spirit, jumping, chanting, cheering and formations.

In taking the title, the JV squad kept even with the varsity team's top prize at the Universal Cheerleading Association competition at Albion College July 5-8.

No troubles

By Dan Vandenhornel

Rain, rain, go away. Come again another day. How often does a person use that phrase and really believe it is going to work?

The only time it's used is when the weather puts a damper on an outdoor activity, especially when an exciting time is almost guaranteed. Take last Thursday, for example.

A last-minute trip to Cedar Point was arranged within four days. Days off at work had to be switched, pets had to be cared for, final packing had to be done.

All this planning was taken care of within the allotted time, but did anyone bother to check the weather reports?

Of course not.

Everyone was too keyed-up, too excited to worry about the weather. So naturally it rained.

The day began late and it took longer to travel to the amusement park than originally thought. Still no one seemed to mind when the car pulled up to the gate around 2 p.m.

The four people in the party all knew it would be a quick day at the park because of a newly acquired cast on the foot of one of the fun-lovers.

The cast almost kept the day from even beginning at all. Some major arm twisting was needed to keep all the plans in order.

Once inside the park entrance, with breakfast all but a memory, lunch was the first item on the agenda.

It was close to 2:30 when the first roller coaster ride was etched in our memories (our stomachs, too). Then walking toward the Corkscrew, the rains came. Light at first, but just enough to worry about.

Through the twisting line and getting drenched as we did, the covered platform at the top of the ride served as a shelter.

With one more car to be filled before we were at the head of the line, the ride closed. Most of the major rides shut down because of the possible danger of brakes failing.

Fifteen minutes turned into a half-hour then a full hour before the rides reopened. Before the showers started, over 100 people were waiting in line for the Corkscrew. Now 20 would have been an overestimate.

The weather cooperated the rest of the day, as did the casted foot.

The rain could have ruined the day, but all four of us didn't let it happen.

3,800-mile trip ends

By Dan Vandenhemel

Taking a short, but much needed, break alongside Main Street in Clarkston were three road travelers heading for home.

Home for Greg Jones, Tim Miller and Claire Robertson happens to be in central Ohio. Jones and Miller are from Columbus, Robertson from nearby Springfield.

The trio's trek began in Seattle, Wash., June 10. A train ride to Seattle with bicycles aboard started the adventure that would last eight weeks.

The 3,800-mile trip wound a trail through the Cascade Mountains in Washington, Yellowstone National Park in Wyoming, the Badlands of the South Dakota and through the Upper Peninsula of Michigan.

"We just wanted to see the country," said Jones, an employee of the Columbus Museum of Arts. "This gets you nice and close."

Jones, 27, had no problem taking time off from work. Miller, 25, a student at Ohio University, and Robertson, 25, who attends Columbia University, had time between semesters.

Camping along the way, carrying food and cooking equipment, made the load a little heavier. Still, the average distance per day was almost 80 miles.

"We didn't have any problems finding camping spots. There were no bears; it was pretty uneventful," Jones laughed.

Between the three riders, 20 flat tires were the only misfortune.

After the short break and a quick glance at the ever-present road map, the trio of bicyclists were on the road to home.

One of the most important pieces of equipment to Greg Jones, Claire Robertson and Tim Miller was the road map. They stopped in Clarkston to check the route to finish their trip.

Pheasants are the topic of this painting-in-progress by Russell Cobane in his Marshland Woods Studio in Independence Township. His daughter, Kelly, looks on.

Mechanical illustrator's art

By Kathy Greenfield

Out on Allen Road, behind a pond suitable for ducks and geese, sits the home—and art studio—of Russell Cobane.

While Cobane's name may not be well-known, his work is. A mechanical illustrator, he produces photo-realistic paintings of cars, tires, appliances, and more. His work appears in national magazines, on billboards and in catalogs on a regular basis.

If you've looked at a color ad for Goodyear tires, admired the G.E. hat with the map of the United States, or looked at the sports car on a box of Rally car wax, you've seen his work.

As his wife Margaret says, "He's already an established artist."

But Cobane is working toward a future of a different sort. It ties in with the rural setting of the Independence Township home where the Cobanes and their daughter, Kelly, live and work.

Rather than striving for perfect pictures of products, Cobane wants to build a business selling prints of his oil paintings of wildlife.

"I always wanted to do paintings of wildlife, but my commercial business was so demanding," he said.

A trip to Minnesota and a visit to a competition between wildlife artists made Cobane decide to give it a try about a year ago, and Marshland Woods Studio was born.

Keeping his commercial and his new business alive, he works eight to 10 hours a day—and sometimes 15 hours—seven days a week.

Margaret pitches in by making contacts with art galleries and stores about carrying her husband's wildlife prints—and performing chores like mowing the lawn portion of their 10 acres when necessary.

Cobane's entered several contests throughout the country and done well.

His entry for the Michigan Duck Stamp tied for first place, but a final ballot gave the top spot to the other artist. His Federal Duck Stamp entry placed in the finals and is part of the traveling show. (Duck stamps are required purchases for hunters.)

There are similarities between the kind of wildlife paintings he does and mechanical illustrating of products—in competitions, judges count the feathers on ducks, for instance.

"It's same in the sense of detail," he said. "You

Over quickly

"Quick" would be a good word to describe the Springfield Township regular board meeting Aug. 1.

Thirty-seven minutes after calling the meeting to order, Supervisor Collin walls motioned to adjourn.

The following day, Walls said the meeting was fast, but it fell short of what the planning commission did.

"I don't remember a regular meeting ever being any shorter," he said. "But we missed by about seven minutes compared to the last planning commission meeting. They were done in a half-hour."

House blaze is called arson

The Independence Township Fire Department worked two hours to control an intentionally set blaze that destroyed an unoccupied tri-level home on Grubb Road, a private drive off Sashabaw Road across from Pine Knob Elementary School.

No one was injured, according to Capt. Dale Bailey, who said the family was in the process of moving and the home was empty when the fire occurred.

Firefighters and six trucks arrived at 10:41 p.m. Aug. 4.

"The house was a total loss," Bailey said. "And we called in the sheriff's department arson squad. There was an explosion, and no reason for one to be there."

Illustrator gears up for show

have to know the anatomy. You don't just paint. Wildlife is the same thing. You have to know the ducks."

But Cobane stresses the differences.

"Wildlife is relaxing. It's very relaxing," he said. "You feel like in commercial you're being picked apart by art directors."

"You don't have deadlines in wildlife. You have deadlines in commercial. They want it yesterday. You constantly have to make changes. It's very stressful."

He smiles as he remembers one man's reaction to one of his paintings of ducks: "I've been in that spot! I've been there!"

Each of Cobane's prints is signed and numbered, and it includes a remark, an mini-original painting done on the border of the print that increases its value.

He now has two prints for sale. They can be found at Aura Fine Arts on Main Street in downtown Clarkston.

Cobane also plans to have an art show in the fall in the McGillacutty's building in Clarkston.

He's on his way.

Home debate brings law

think it should be a single-family residence, not a commercial building."

Denise Symons argued in favor of adopting the amendment, which would allow historical homes in the village to be rebuilt in case of fire. Without the amendment, few non-conforming homes could meet the village's current building requirements.

"Gary and I have had a fire in (our house and the dentist's office) and we never would have been able to rebuild historically. With this law at least we'll be able to come as close as possible with taste craftsmanship," she said.

The new law allows historic homes to be moved or rebuilt with Michigan History Division sanctioning of their contribution to the historical district and with board of appeals approval.

Springfield hires ordinance officer

The new position of ordinance officer for Springfield Township is costing more than expected.

The township board established the position to control and enforce township ordinances at the annual meeting in March. They budgeted $4,000 to provide officer Pat Powell enough funds to operate.

Supervisor Collin Walls suggested at the regular meeting Aug. 1 to add an extra $5,000 from the contingency fund to last the rest of the year. So far, a little over $3,000 has been used in four months.

"When we budgeted for the position, we had no idea how much it would cost. It was a guess," Walls said. "Now we know. There is no question that we'll keep him on. His solemn job right now is taking care of the junk and anti-litter ordinance."

The switch in township funds brought the ordinance officer budget to $9,000 and lowered the contingency fund to $13,473.

3 German teachers see Clarkston

By Kathy Greenfield

Three West German schoolteachers had experienced life in Clarkston for a week when they gathered for a party at the Independence Township home of Bill and Joette Kunse, and they had some opinions.

Georg Schumacher and Udo Grunke were first-time visitors to the United States, but Barbara Rohrmoser spent six months in Washington, D.C., in 1967.

Their visits were arranged through American Host of Los Angeles, Calif., an organization that strives to give European, English-speaking teachers a first-hand experience of life in the U.S.

Schumacher, a Frankfurt resident, teaches high school French and mathematics. During the first week, he lived with Phil and Barbara Deegan in their Thendara Park subdivision home. His second week was with the Kunes, who live on Waterford Hill. Then it was on to Hudsonville for two weeks.

"I like very much the way the Americans live—I mean American housing," he said. "Living in the woods is not exactly what we can afford in Germany, not enough room."

"I think I am a happy man," he added, "because I've met very, very friendly people."

Schumacher enjoyed visits to Windsor, Ontario, Canada, and the Ann Arbor Art Fair. In all, he said, his impression of America was very positive and he's looking forward to telling his German friends about his experiences.

"I have many, many friends who are interested in America, the way Americans live. I will tell them it's a really big country," he said.

"I think, to put it in a jokey way, the ideal life in my opinion would be to get the American housing and the German food. To put it another way, the German housing and American food would not be the best."

Rohrmoser teaches high school French. She lives in the city of Stuttgart. Her host family the first week

While some of the children of host families frolic in the pool, the adults—from Germany and Clarkston—get to know one another better.

Enjoying the international party is visiting West German schoolteacher Udo Grunke, the man laughing at right.

were Martha and Jim Matthews who reside in the Deerwood subdivision. From there, she stayed with Greg and Sally Seaman who reside in the Birdland subdivision and, finally, she planned a two-week stay in Jenison.

Her first week included trips to Frankenmuth, Greenfield Village and the Henry Ford Museum.

The life-style in Independence is different than in Stuttgart, a city with a population of about 60,000, she said.

"I'm living in a town. It's different over here—it's more like the country," she said.

She was surprised to learn that Jim Matthews works out of his home.

"I'm used to where the father leaves the house in the morning and comes back at night, so the family life is different," she said.

Grunke, who lives in the countryside of northern Germany, teaches economic subjects in a vocational school. He spent his first week in the Clarkston village home of Ron and Pat Schebor, then planned a week with Jim and Eileen Hurrell in their Thendara Park home, and two more weeks in Waldron.

"It's a vast country and the houses are scattered," he said. "At home they're closer together, in buildings and towns. People don't get any building permits to build outside towns and cities. This happened after World War II."

Grunke was impressed the selection of packaged products and frozen foods in American supermarkets.

"At home we must make more preparations before our meals," he said, and he talked about pancakes made from a boxed mix. "I make pancakes, but I have to grind my own wheat."

Swimming pools, large homes and the number of automobiles owned by single families prompted him to comment on a higher standard of living and more luxuries in America.

"On the whole it's more civilized, I would say, than ours," he said. "There's more technique everywhere. At home we do more work by hand, in the garden, in the household. There are a lot of lawns here. The grass is mowed—even beside the roads."

But while he'd return for visits, Schumacher likes it at home.

"I'm not quite sure whether I would prefer to live at such a high standard of living," he said. "If I have my job and a regular income and I can go on holiday, this will do. There's a limit."

Among places he visited were a Japanese restaurant in Windsor, the Northwest Oakland Vocational Educational Center in Springfield Township and Lake Michigan for an outing in a cabin cruiser.

"The lakes look very tiny on the map," he said. "They aren't."

Honored guests at the party held July 29 include Georg Schumacher, holding a glass on the right, and Barbara Rohrmoser, on the far left wearing eyeglasses.

Sign stolen

Depot Theatre heirloom lost

By Marilyn Trumper

What appears to have been more than a century-old sign on Clarkston's Depot Theatre has been stolen—and the Clarkston Village Players are offering season tickets for its return.

The wooden sign, nailed above the theater's main entrance, long gave travelers the mileage to Grand Haven, 153.08, and Detroit, 35.23.

It was stolen sometime between July 26 and 28, according to Marlene Sewick, president of the community theater group.

"It was there Thursday, and as I near as I can tell was gone by Saturday. It's really maddening. It really added to the place," she said.

Twenty-four years ago the Players bought the station, built in the 1850s, from Grand Trunk Railroad. They own the station, but not the land.

Persons with information on the stolen sign are asked to call Sewick at 363-0188.

CVP kids on Aug. 16-18

Theater by children for children comes to the Clarkston area Aug. 16, 17 and 18 through the efforts of the Clarkston Village Players.

The 39-member cast of kids is to present "Tumbleweeds," a takeoff on the comic strip, at Clarkston Junior High School at 7 p.m. on Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Tickets may be purchased at the door or from members of the cast. They cost $2.50 for adults and $1.50 for children age 12 and under. The junior high is located on the north side of Waldon Road, east of the Village of Clarkston.

Adding proceeds from children's productions from the last three years with this year's receipts, the Village Players plan to award a drama scholarship to a 1985 Clarkston High School graduate, said Sandy Sanford, director of "Tumbleweeds" and treasurer of the adult community theater group.

HALLOWEEN IN AUGUST: Windmills, flowers, crayons, dolls, breakdancers and other assorted costumed kids were found at the Independence Township Library Aug. 1 during the Summer Reading Club's annual costume

CMU has external degree program

Prospective students interested in Central Michigan University's external degree programs may obtain information at a meeting Saturday, Aug. 18, in Independence Township.

The meeting is to begin at 9:30 a.m. in the Clarkston Community Learning Center, 5275 Maybee, Independence Township. It is expected to last about one-and-one-half hours.

Bachelor's degrees in management and supervision, and in community development, are offered through CMU's Institute for Personal and Career Development.

Designed to accomodate working adults, both degree programs allow students to complete most, if not all, course work through independent study.

For more information write: Individualized Degree Program, 125 Rowe Hall, Central Michigan University, Mt. Pleasant, MI 48859, or phone (517) 774-4465.

Under the eaves and out of the rain, game vendors swing their legs in boredom. Crowds were thin at this year's fair that ran from July 31 to Aug. 4.

Filling time at the fair

All the lights are on, and the merry-go-round's moving, but no one's sitting on the horses. It was a lonely fairground where vendors dodged mud puddles. But best of all, there were no lines at the food booths.

New newsletter

Springfield Township's proposed newsletter will soon become reality.

A target date for the first issue is the end of August. The four-page tabloid will feature upcoming events and news of activities in the recent past.

Township Supervisor Collin Walls informed the board Aug. 1 that the newsletter will be mailed to township residents as an insert in the Herald-Advertiser.

"We're going to get a mailing list together and have it mailed by their newspaper postal rate," he said.

The township set aside $750 at the July meeting for the cost of the newsletter. That money can only be used toward township news. All other information must be paid for by outside advertising.

"We'll continue it on a monthly basis if we can afford it," Walls said. "We want to get it to as many households as possible."

Handicap benefit

The 5th annual fund raiser for the Exceptional Children of Oakland County is scheduled Aug. 26 at Adam's Landing, formerly Sandy Beach on Dixie Highway in Waterford Township.

The price is $10 for adults and $5 for children 4 to 14. The event includes a catered meal, magicians, clowns, swimming, and music by The Look and Shotgun Willie Band. It's open from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Beer, wine and drinks will be available with Las Vegas gambling.

Proceeds benefit children with multiple impairments and are used to aid them and their families through the year, and to finance a Christmas party for the kids.

Out of the rain and drizzle, game vendors sit dry and warm inside a booth and play a friendly game of cards. With no crowds, they had time on their hands.

Reickel leaves county post

Eric Reickel, former manager of Oakland County Parks and Recreation Commission, resigned that post last week for the park supervisor job in Wayne County.

"It wasn't the challenge as much as it was the career opportunity," Reickel said, explaining the move. "I've been here 12 years, and I've done a hell of a lot. It's a good system,

"But I've always wanted to administrate for a large urban park system. It was a decision I had to weigh carefully. Oakland County is a great place to work and live."

Reickel lived in Independence Township 11 years. His activities in the community included serving on the Clarkston Board of Education. He moved to West Bloomfield a year ago.

He joined the Oakland County Parks and Recreation Commission in 1972. Since then the commission's grown from six parks and 2,200 acres to nine parks and 3,700 acres.

Under his administration Oakland County boasted the first Wave-Action Pool, and waterslide, both at Waterford Oaks in Waterford Township; a nine-hole executive golf course, driving range and the nation's first golf dome during the winter months at Red Run Drain in Madison Heights; a court game complex at Waterford Oaks; and modern campsites at Groveland Oaks near Holly and Addison Oaks near Oxford.

During his 12-year stint, the commission received at least one state or federal grant per year and earned state and national recognition for excellence in park design and programming.

"Under his direction, the Oakland County Parks have flourished. His dedication and commitment to quality parks and recreation programs and services will be an outstanding asset for the people of Wayne County," said Lewis E. Wint, Oakland County Parks Commission chairman.

Until Reickel's successor is selected, assistant manager Jon J. Kipke will serve as interim manager.

125- CARD OF THANKS

BEA RAAB was appreciative of so many people in this wonderful community for all the love and thoughtfulness they expressed during her illness. The prayers, support and gracious actions kept Bea's spirits and determination at their peak and gave her encouragement to fight a courageous battle. Her family pays tribute and is thankful for the important role that her friends provided in her life. Heartfelt thanks to the Lake Orion Maccabees, Rev. Peacock and the Lake Orion Methodist Church and each and every one that paid their last respects in presence or in thought. Our grief was eased by the tremendous amount of support that was shared. We have lost a beautiful human being but the memories of Bea, the warmth and light she radiated will always be. "Think of Beautiful Bea living still, Where the road goes on without end. It is only we who do not see The path beyond the bend." ILLX-31-1

MY HUSBAND and I wish to extend our thanks to the Oxford Police, fireman and paramedics for their quick response. Also neighbors, friends and relatives, for their flowers, cards and kindness during my recent injury. Sincerely M. le Sparks ILLX-31-1

4-H Fair

Rain dampens turnout

By Marilyn Trumper

Four days into its five-day run, crowds at the Oakland County 4-H Fair were down a third over last year, and Friday festivities were dampened by rain.

Don and Bonnie Latham sat in folding chairs under a canopy and collected parking fees as they have the past four years.

This Friday, the pair sat a lot more than they collected.

"It's not the rain. It's been this dead all week long," Don said. "We can't figure out what it is. Crowds are down about a third from last year."

Inside the grounds of Springfield Oaks Youth Activities Center on Andersonville Road, carnival workers dodged mud puddles and operated empty rides.

"Guess your weight, or your age," said one vendor holding a microphone to his lips.

But there were no takers.

Hot dogs on a stick and snowcones were for sale.

But no one was buying.

To fill time, game vendors sat in their booths and played cards.

And the rain drizzled on.

Rabbits are sold for pets and meat. This one's a pet, and seems to realize it's safe from hasenpfeffer fans.

Bonnie Whetstone spent 16 weeks raising chickens she'll sell at auction. It won't be tough to give them up, she says, especially when she'll parlay her initial investment into $100.

Howard King of Holly curls his daughter's sheep while she's off giving a beef demonstration. The sheep are scheduled for auction, and Howard wants them to look good.

Kim Berry, formerly of the Oxford 4-H group, feeds her 2B Premium eating rabbits. They'll be auctioned tonight—and that's OK. Kim doesn't eat what she raises though. "I can't eat anything I've seen alive."

American women: Are we fit—or are we fat?

By Libby Wolosiewicz

Dr. Joseph Arends, an MD in cardiology-preventive medicine, has stated that 97 percent of American women have never experienced a high level of fitness in their lifetime.

One may assume that this staggering statistic might reflect the fact that women have been socialized from childhood to choose activities and occupations that involve small muscle movement rather than gross motor movement.

Little girls taught to play with dolls and puzzles and grow up to be secretaries, whereas little boys are given gifts of baseball bats and matchbox cars that they may some day design, build, or repair them.

But the fitness level that American men maintain is just as poor. Dr. Arends suggests that 95 percent are never fit a day of their lives.

So...what is fitness, and how can we, as women, develop and maintain a high level of it, therefore improving our quality of health and life?

Let me state what exercise physiologists agree is NOT fitness:

- Being thin
- Dieting Regularly

A person can be very thin and still have a very high body fat percentage. Fitness experts suggest that the average American female has a body fat composition of 27 to 33 percent. They suggest this is due to:

- Lack of aerobic exercise
- High fat diet (too many fast foods)
- Sedentary lifestyle (occupation and recreational)

I recently had the privilege of participating in a controlled study at Oakland University. Our group of 20 graduate students in exercise physiology were assigned to calculate our percentage of body fat. Half of us were women.

Those of us women who maintained a high level of fitness through aerobic exercise had a body fat composition of 15 to 17 percent, those who were not on any type of aerobic fitness program were 27 to 33 percent, body fat, and none of them according to the standard height-weight charts were overweight—they were overfat!

So how do we reduce our amount of body fat? Dr. Dennis Remington, in his excellent book, “How to Lower Your Fat Thermostat,” (available at the Book Place, Downtown Oxford) suggests the following:

1. DON'T DIET: Dieting, missing meals and irregular eating trigger the “starvation defenses”. The body starts making changes to conserve energy and protect the fat, not burn it. Eat intelligently. Three meals per day, low in fat, refined sugars and salt, high in fiber (from your whole grains, fresh fruits and vegetables) and a modest amount of lean meats.

2. EXERCISE: A decrease in fat always occurs as a result of regular exercise, but the amount of loss varies from person to person. If you have a higher fat cell number (established at birth), you may have to exercise longer and control the types of foods you eat more carefully. There is no doubt that percent of fat will decrease, the extent of the decrease depends on the person.

DON'T BE DISCOURAGED if you don't lose a lot of weight quickly, remember: Weight is not a good fitness indicator. You will be losing fat, but gaining muscle density, which weights more than the fat lost.

Some of the wonderful physiological changes that occur ONLY during aerobic exercise are:

- Increased circulation
- Lowered blood pressure
- Stress reduction and decreased depression.

(Due to Beta-endorphine production, a natural tranquilizer produced by the body only during aerobic exercise)

•Increased metabolism (Both during and after exercise)

•Beta-oxidation (Fat metabolism. Your body converts from burning carbohydrates to burning fats when you work at 60 percent of your maximum.)

- Increases muscle tone
- Increase in fat burning enzymes
- An overall feeling of well-being
- Increased efficiency of the heart muscle
- A lowered “SETPOINT” (The point at which your body converts to burning fats)
- Lowered blood cholesterol

If you do not maintain a level of fitness, but are anxious to experience its benefits, may I suggest that you experiment with different aerobic activities until you find one that you enjoy.

There are many to choose from: Walking, jogging, running, (progression is the key to these to prevent musculoskeletal injury) swimming, cycling, rowing, cycle machines and aerobic dancing.

I prefer and recommend aerobic dancing to women. It is most often done in a group, which makes it fun, and it is constant rhythmic movement that involves all muscle groups plus the cardio-vascular system. Check out the credentials of the instructor and/or director of the program that you are interested in.

Dr. Ken Cooper, aerobic fitness originator in America, notes: “God has given to each of us a gift, our body, there is only one per customer.”

My own life philosophy is that it is not my option, but my responsibility, to care for the body my God and creator has entrusted me with.

If you care for your magnificent meshing machine it will perform efficiently for you to produce a high level of health that will increase the quality of all aspects of your life.

I wish for all of you to experience the benefits of such a lifestyle!

They chose alternative-style birth

A midwife delivered Jim and Sheryl Butzine's third child

By Marilyn Trumper

Emily Butzine was born into the world on 1984's cold morning of Feb. 5 at Detroit's Hutzel Hospital—delivered by Janice Wery, C.N.M., certified nurse midwife.

In the past considered irregular, perhaps archaic, midwife delivery is a growing alternative to a physician-staffed stainless steel/brightly lit delivery room.

And that's exactly what Sheryl and Jim Butzine of Independence Township wanted with the birth of their third child.

"When I had my first two children, I was healthy and everything was normal," Sheryl said. "I was resentful of the time spent waiting in the doctor's office for my checkups. The nurse took my temperature and weighed me and the doctor would spend 10 minutes, and ask 'Is everything OK?' As long as

Sher's mother said it was one of the most beautiful moments of her life.

—Jim Butzine

you're healthy and everything is OK, they don't spend much time with you. He'd always answer my questions, but there was never anything more.

"I wanted my third birth to be more sensitive to the baby," she said.

Sheryl's sister, a nurse, suggested a midwife.

"She said, 'Sher, I know exactly what you want.' She was right. Jan (the midwife) doesn't consider pregnancy a sickness, it's a more healthy attitude.

"She's professional, but more personal. You never feel you're being squeezed into an appointment. You learn more about the pregnancy. Where I was in my pregnancy, what to avoid... I felt I had a good understanding of where I was and the development of the fetus."

Although no doctor is present at birth, one is available should complications occur.

Certified Nurse Midwife is one of three specialties of nursing, according to Janice, and is acquired after a BSM in nursing. She has her master's degree in science with a specialty in nurse midwifery. Candidates must pass the national board exam and be licensed by the state.

She's been a midwife five years.

"We provide total, complete care just like a physician, focusing on education and the prevention of problems for normal healthy people," Janice said.

"It's an alternative for normal healthy women."

Sheryl laughs, recalling those who wrinkled their noses at a midwife.

"When I was pregnant, people would say to me, 'Why go to a midwife?' As if I was settling for less. This was so much more positive and pleasant."

Sheryl and Jim honed up on the natural childbirth classes taken six years ago when their first child Todd, was born.

"I could have used a refresher when Sarah was born and didn't take it, so we thought it'd be a good idea this time," Sheryl said, speaking of their daughter, now 3½.

Sheryl remembers the morning of Feb. 5 when Emily, 9 pounds, 8 ounces, came into the world.

"I had a history of fast labors, and because they were normal they happen in much less time than it might normally take. Jan suggested we call her first in Rochester and stop by on the way to the hospital to see how far along I was.

"It was going to be a long ride, and I was concerned about that," she said.

All Jim kept thinking about were February blizzards.

Sheryl's water broke at 9 a.m.

A half-hour later she felt her first contraction.

The Butzine family of Sunnydale Drive in Independence Township waived the traditional birth of their third child for a midwife delivery at Detroit's Hutzel Hospital. This is their story and why they opted to be mavericks this time around. From left, clockwise, are Jim, Todd, Sheryl, 5-month-old Emily, and Sarah.

"I showered, left the kids with my dad and we picked up my mom."

Jim, his mother-in-law, Sheryl and her sister arrived at the hospital at 10 after 11 a.m.

Emily was born at fifteen minutes before noon.

"It happened almost too quickly," Sheryl said.

"Three strong contractions, three pushes, and Emily was born."

Janice is quick to interject, "She'll tell you how easy it was, but she'll also tell you it was hard work."

Janice hadn't yet shown up when Sheryl arrived at Hutzel.

"I was crying before she (Janice) came in, but once she got there, I knew everything was going to be fine," Sheryl said.

"We were allowed to invite anyone we considered to be family in to observe the birth. My mom was thrilled. I felt a little sorry later we didn't have Todd and Sarah, but we weren't sure if there would be complications and we didn't want to subject them to that."

The delivery room was more like a living room, she said, sans stainless steel, bright lights, paper drape covers and stirrups.

"Instead of stirrups, I laid on my left side and raised my right leg, and Jim's job was to hold it up," Sheryl said.

According to Janice, it's more comfortable and easier for the person giving birth in that position.

Sheryl had no episiotomy.

Instead of an incision to enlarge the vulval opening, they massaged the area with wheat germ oil stretching the skin to make way for the baby's head.

Sheryl says when her first two were born, she never actually saw the birth despite mirrors on the delivery room ceiling.

This time her mother held a hand mirror at her feet.

"I could see when to push. I could see the baby's crown and I could see what was happening."

Jim remembers too.

"Sher's mother said it was one of the most beautiful moments of her life."

Sheryl agrees.

"My mom, I think, feels a very special bonding with that grandchild because she was there."

Sheryl's mother took pictures, during the birth, unaware the shutter was locked. None of them came out, but they captured the moment in before-and-after shots.

The next day, Sheryl was home with her family. Because their lives and schedules are so different, Janice and Sheryl's relationship has remained on a professional level.

Before the interview, they spoke once, during Emily's first checkup.

"But when you share a birth, you share something special in their life. It lasts," Sheryl said to Janice. "When I think of Emily, you'll always be a part of that."

Maureen Brandow joins sports training staff

CMU student brings sports medicine to CHS.

By Dan Vandenhemel

Clarkston High School is entering the age of sports medicine.

The school's sports program will serve as a classroom learning experience for a sports training internship from Central Michigan University and the Clarkston Family and Sports Medicine Clinic.

Maureen Brandow needs only the 15-week internship before graduating with a bachelor's degree in Sports Medicine and Exercise Science.

Part of Brandow's responsibility will be the care and prevention of injuries, therapy and rehabilitation, and emergency first aid.

Mike Therriault, a certified athletic trainer at the Sports Medicine Clinic with Dr. Daniel Bielak, said it's important to point out that this is a educational opportunity for Brandow, not a push for the clinic.

"Maureen won't be making any diagnoses or sending any of the players to us," Therriault said. "She will recommend that they go to their own family doctor. Remember, she is still a student so all liability and responsibility falls on Dr. Bielak and Central Michigan."

The internship in sports medicine is fairly new. It enables the students to gain practical experience in order to become certified as trainers.

The 23-year-old Brandow has strong thoughts about the program and what it can do for her.

"I need to get into the clinic-type setting," the Bay City native said. "I worked with all the sports at Central. It's just a new experience working at the high school level. But I don't want to be looked at as a first aid person. I'll be working with the students."

To accommodate the internship, Clarkston High School needed some minor renovations. The first aid room adjacent to the boys' lockerroom had to be changed to be accessible to the girls.

A door was added in June to the hallway leading to the gym, out of sight from the lockerroom and gym.

CHS athletic director Paul Tungate said another part of Brandow's job will be to organize the training room.

"I think we'll have more control over the injuries," he said. "She'll be documenting the injuries and what sports they are occurring in, and she'll keep track of the first aid supplies."

Tungate said the school district spends about

sibilities in the sports medicine internship with Central Michigan University.

$3,000 a year on first aid supplies, which is less than the average in other districts.

Brandow is scheduled to begin the non-paying program Aug. 16 when the high school officially begins practices. While here, she'll spend the mornings working with the clinic on some of the nine area high schools. The afternoons will be at CHS working with the athletes. She will also be at many of the home sporting events.

"She's going to be putting in a long day," Therriault said. "She'll be under very close supervision. If she couldn't do the job, she wouldn't be here."

Therriault believes the athletic trainer internship will be a continuing program with the Clarkston school district.

"I fully expect to see another intern come in here after Christmas," he said. "This gives Maureen a chance to practically apply her experience and gives Clarkston someone who knows what to do and to help the coaches."

Olympics for senior citizens

If you think you're too old to be the "athletic type," think again.

Rosalie McDonald, age 91, of Royal Oak, entered the Senior Olympics one-mile walk last year and plans to again this year.

What about Frank Romaniuk of Royal Oak? He took a silver medal in checkers last year, and he's 93! The 1984 Senior Olympics are set for Saturday, Aug. 18 at the Orchard Ridge Campus of Oakland Community College in Farmington Hills.

Opening ceremonies begin at 9 a.m. in the H building and continue until 4 p.m.

Some 1,000 senior citizens from throughout Michigan, many of them in their 80's and 90's, will compete in events ranging from spiking volleyballs to baking apple pies.

The event also includes a one-mile walk and one-mile run, 50- and 100-yard dashes, tennis, swimming, shuffleboard, checkers, golf, arts and crafts and a dance contest.

"It's an excellent opportunity for seniors to engage in a social event and compete in the olympics on a small scale basis," said Oakland County Parks recreation supervisor Dan Stencil, who is co-chairing the event.

"Participants get a sense of accomplishment through the activities," he said.

"The dance contest is really big," added coordinator Marye Miller. "Last year many people just watched, but more will join this year after seeing how much fun it is."

Dance categories include the waltz, foxtrot, cha-cha, swing and freestyle.

The newest addition to the program is the arts and crafts contest.

Men and women age 60 and over may register through their local senior citizen center for up to three events.

Olympics profits will go toward the purchase of new equipment for the annual event. For instance, this year a new chalkboard will display scores and times of events.

For further information, contact Dan Stencil at 858-4946.

Knowing the right answers in this quick quiz about prostate cancer could help save your life.

1. The third leading cause of cancer deaths in men over 55 is cancer of the prostate (a) True (b) False?

2. The single best way to look for cancer of the prostate is a routine rectal examination (a) True (b) False?

3. There are many symptoms in the early and curable stages of prostate cancer (a) True (b) False?

4. When cancer of the prostate is discovered at an early stage it may be cured or may result in a long-term survival about 75 percent of the time (a) True (b) False?

ANSWERS: 1. (a) True. Prostate cancer directly causes the deaths of 25,000 men in the United States annually. 2. (a) Delay in diagnosis because of failure to do routine rectal examinations in men is all too common. 3. (b) Cancer of the prostate produces no symptoms whatever in its early stages. It's important to remember that any individual in which prostatic cancer is either suspected or diagnosed is best served by being under the care of urologists, because they are medical specialists in this area. 4. ## Cystitis—a common, but easily treatable bladder infection

Cystitis, a bacterial infection of the bladder, affects almost all females at some period in life.

About one to three percent of little girls will have an infection before they reach high school, and by age 70, most women will have had at least one bout with the infection.

Cystitis in men is much less common; it is nearly always caused by infection from the prostate.

In women, the usual symptoms are frequent urination (voiding) accompanied by a burning sensation and often discomfort at the end of urination.

If the infection ascends from the bladder to the kidney, high fever, shaking chills, and pain in the back over the lower ribs can occur.

In the infant or young child, fever is often the only sign to suggest a urinary infection; it is all too often ascribed to a sore throat or tonsillitis, and the diagnosis is thereby missed.

The onset of bedwetting in a previously trained (dry) child can be a significant sign.

All of these infections are caused by bacteria that normally reside in the lower rectum, i.e., we are infected by our own bacteria.

The route of entry is from the rectum, to the vagina, to the urethra (the entrance to the bladder), to the bladder, and then to the kidneys.

It is important to understand that recurring cystitis is fairly normal in the sexually active young female, particularly early in her sexual life.

Urologists, doctors who specialize in diseases of the urogenital tract, are specially trained to diagnose and treat infections of the bladder and kidney.

Cystitis can be, and usually is, satisfactorily treated with a short course of medication for a week or so.

Should you experience any symptoms of cystitis, see your doctor. Cystitis can be and usually is, satisfactorily treated with a short period of medication for a week or so.

It's also important that follow-up urine cultures be done after medication, to make sure the patient remains free of infection.

For more information about Cystitis, mail a self-addressed business size envelope to: Miss Jane Cook, Urological Association, 1120 N. Charles Street, Baltimore, Maryland 21201.

Is cancer more common here?

Find the answer, and more...

Q. I hear so much about cancer in the United States. Is it just as widespread in underdeveloped countries?

A. It is even more of a problem. The World Health Organization recently reported that cancer is more common in underdeveloped countries than in the industrialized world.

For unknown reasons, it strikes younger people in those areas, usually between the ages of 30 and 40.

The influence of environmental factors can be seen in the frequency of stomach cancer, which is the most common cancer worldwide. It is only rarely seen in this country, probably either because something in our diet is protective, or its absence decreases our chances of getting this kind of cancer.

Cancer of the cervix, esophagus and liver also occur more frequently in developing nations.

Some of the other statistics the World Health Organization came up with are fascinating.

Did you know about one-third of Chinese and Eastern Indian men are addicted to tobacco by the time they reach 20 years of age?

Or that mouth cancer is the most common form of cancer in Southeast Asia, undoubtedly due to chewing tobacco and the betel nut?

Q. I have an aunt who just developed lung cancer. Isn't that unusual for a woman?

A. It certainly was until recently, but now in a number of states more women are dying from lung cancer than from breast cancer.

This tragic epidemic is caused by the increased number of women who began to smoke 10 to 20 years ago. In 1963, before the Surgeon General's first report associating cigarette smoking with lung cancer, only 6,500 women in the United States were known to have died from smoke-related lung cancer.

This year the number will be 36,000!

The only bright spot is that the smoking rate among adults in 1983 fell by 7 percent.

If only the rate of teenage smoking in girls would drop by a similar amount. But we do not have a consistently successful method to prevent teenage smoking.

Smokers who would like help quitting can write for a copy of the pamphlet "Calling It Quits." The address is at the end of this column.

Q. I am pregnant and my doctor has done several ultrasound examinations because he suspected problems. Could these tests affect the baby or me?

A. You can relax about the safety of ultrasound. It seems to have no effect on the developing embryo. There is no evidence of an increased risk either of birth defects of the baby developing cancer.

This test uses sound waves which bounce off the fetus in an apparently harmless manner. In no way is it similar to radiation exposure, which should be avoided whenever possible, particularly during pregnancy.

Q. At what time during the menstrual cycle should a woman perform her monthly breast self-examination?

A. Right after the menstrual cycle would be the best time for an examination because the breasts are less sensitive to the touch and are less likely to feel lumpy or engorged due to hormonal changes.

When a woman has passed through her menopause and is no longer having periods, it would be best to check the same day each month (for example, the first day of every month) to get in the habit of doing it.

Q. Why do cancer patients frequently lose weight?

A. There are many reasons for this. A cancer of the digestive system can make it difficult to take in enough food. Some cancer patients lose their sense of taste, resulting in a loss of appetite.

Many cancer treatments themselves cause a loss of appetite. Some cancers increase the demand for food by increasing the energy requirements of the body.

Finally, the psychological factors associated with any severe illness may cause a patient to lose his appetite.

Q. I have been reading this column for some time and I see that you emphasize the things we can do to prevent cancer. Where can I read more about this?

A. We will send you the booklet "Cancer Prevention" upon request.

Questions may be directed to The Cancer Information Service, The Cleveland Clinic Foundation, 9500 Euclid Ave., Cleveland, OH 44106. All questions will be answered by mail.

Here's an 11-week plan for running 26.2 miles

You can't run a marathon the day after you decide to try it, but you can run one if you're willing to invest 11 weeks in training, according to the Automobile Club of Michigan.

That long-range schedule is the philosophy behind a marathon training guide developed by the Auto Club Life Insurance Company.

"Our program is based on two fundamental concepts in training for a 26.2-mile run," stated Auto Club Life Director Jim Zwick. "To complete a marathon, you should be running 50 miles a week, but building to that level gradually."

"Eleven weeks is just about the minimum anyone can train and still complete a marathon," said Zwick, who emphasized the guide is designed for the novice marathoner, but not the novice runner.

"Before attempting this intensive schedule, a runner should consult with a physician," he said. "This is especially important for someone over age 35."

The Auto Club is a sponsor of this year's Free Press International Marathon, to be held in Detroit on Oct. 14. Runners planning to enter should begin training immediately.

"You must be able to run five or six miles to start this program," said Zwick. "If you are not at that level, forget about the marathon this year."

The marathon guide begins at the 35-mile-a-week level and builds to a 50-mile-a-week pace. Each week includes one long run, followed by a day off.

A 20-mile run is included twice during the cycle to get the runner ready for the mental and physical challenge of a marathon. The guide is flexible, and the daily routine can be re-arranged to accommodate work schedules and personal commitments.

"The specific days you ran are not that important," he said. "What matters is that your total 11-week mileage is in the 500-mile range, with at least two 20-mile runs."

Zwick suggested runners follow these procedures on marathon day:

*Develop a comfortable pace and stick to it. Do not try to go too fast at the beginning.

*Take liquid at every rest stop, even if thirst is not obvious.

*Be aware of "the wall," a physical and psychological barrier where runners feel they cannot take another step, which often occurs at about the 20-mile mark. If runners are aware of the potential problem, they are better equipped to intensify their effort so they can run "through the wall," get a second wind and finish the last few miles of the race.

Before running, a person should do stretching exercises to get muscles limber, especially the calf and lower leg.

In addition to co-sponsoring the International Marathon, the Auto Club will staff several of the rest stops for runners along the 26.2-mile route. The marathon is one of several projects the Auto Club is involved in to promote fitness.

An 11-week timetable was developed by the Auto Club Life Insurance Company to help runners get in shape for the Oct. 14 International Marathon in Detroit. It is designed for persons now able to run five to six miles daily. It begins at the 35-mile-a-week level and builds to a 50-mile-a-week pace. One long run and a rest day are included each week to develop a runner's stamina. A runner should consult a physician before beginning. The Automobile Club of Michigan is a co-sponsor of the marathon organized by the Detroit Free Press.

A warning for swimmers

Look before you leap.

Divers who don't look often end up with broken necks.

Hurley Medical Center, Flint, trauma experts who treat such patients annually advise swimmers to check the depths of pools and lakes before diving.

Divers who hit their heads on the bottom can fracture spinal vertebrae and be killed or paralyzed, warns Thomas Wright, Hurley's trauma care coordinator.

If such an accident does happen, rescuers should not move the victim (unless drowning or similar danger is imminent), Wright says.

If the victim must be moved, keep the head, neck and back as straight and steady as possible.

Call emergency medical services immediately.

Summertime Snacks

Raiding the refrigerator is a popular pastime. Studies have proved that people develop more tooth decay in the summer than at other times. So make sure that your refrigerator is stocked with sugar free foods and liquids that are nutritious.

Try this fresh fruit shake: In a blender puree 1/2 cup fresh fruit (strawberries, raspberries (strain seeds, if you wish) pineapple, peaches.) Add a small banana. Add 3/4 cup plain low fat yogurt and blend. One serving that is cool, nutritious and good tasting.

This drink is low in fat, sodium and contains only the natural sugar present in the fruit.

Summer fun

Young asthma victim spends week at camp

By Marilyn Trumper

Eleven-year-old Jack Roek sometimes gets winded walking to the mailbox and back.

Struggling with asthma diagnosed at the age of 7, Jack succumbs to four injections a week, carries three atomizers and daily takes pills to keep him breathing.

"This is the first June he hasn't been hospitalized in three years," said mom Terry, explaining asthma's a congestion in the lungs that makes breathing difficult, and sometimes painful.

Unlike most other kids entering junior high, Jack can't play football, run distances or dunk a basketball without great effort.

But this summer he matched efforts with 75 other asthmatics at Camp Sun Deer, America's only camp for kids suffering from asthma. The free camp is sponsored by the American Lung Association of Southeastern Michigan and co-sponsored by the Michigan Society for Respiratory Therapy and Michigan Pulmonary Lab.

For seven days, from late June to early July, Jack swam, played football, competed in games, had a cookout, told ghost stories, and participated in arts and crafts—and garnered a trophy for climbing a rope at the renovated army base turned camp on Clear Lake in Battle Creek.

"I had a lot in common with the other kids," said Jack, who'll enter Clarkston Junior High this fall.

"It was pretty good. With some of the kids it was hard to tell they had asthma at all. With others it was easy."

Checking into the camp, the kids are examined by physicians and steered to the pharmacy if necessary. Activities are designed for asthmatics age 9 through 12 under the supervision of 47 volunteer medical and paramedical professionals.

Jack, quiet, with a distinct, low laugh, talks little, but says one of the most important aspects of the camp was competing with kids at his own level and seeing firsthand how they've overcome their disability.

"It's really made a difference," his mom Terry said. "He takes his medication more frequently without prodding and seems to accept more that he can't play football and do a lot of other things other kids do."

When Jack signed up for the free camp, officials requested a $25 deposit.

It was returned to Terry in last week's mail.

"But it's going right back," she said. "How could I keep that? Where else could you send a kid for $25 for a week and have him feel so good about it?"

For information on the camp phone 961-1697.

Jack Roek's suffered from asthma since age 7. At 11, on the eve of entering Clarkston Junior High School, he'd like to play football and run like other kids his age, but can't. The White Lake Township resident found out he could at the American Lung Association's free camp for asthmatics—and took a trophy for climbing a rope after competing with kids who suffer from the same disability.

Clarkston grad wins student award

By Kathy Greenfield

A breakthrough in the treatment of cirrhosis of the liver is near, says Kenneth Peters, and the 20-year-old University of Michigan pre-medical honors student is excited to be part of the research effort.

In July he received a three-month $1,500 American Liver Foundation (ALF) Liver Research Award, made possible by a grant from Avon Products Foundation, for work he began in October with Keith S. Henley, M.D., in Ann Arbor.

Peters' interest in research goes back to his Clarkston High School days. A 1982 CHS graduate, he conducted an experiment with saccharine on mice during his senior year.

"So I was looking for something to do with research," he said. "I kept getting interviews, but all the jobs were, 'You can wash dishes for this person; you can wash dishes for that person.'"

When Peters connected with Henley last fall, he began working with a drug invented by the Upjohn Co. called dimethyl Prostaglandin E2, which may prevent or reverse the formation of scar tissue from cirrhosis. The research involves rats and the effect of the medicine on their diseased livers.

"I was fortunate getting into something like this because I already got into something that was established," he said. "And they are definitely finding some important things out."

"The research, it's to the point now where this drug we're testing has totally reversed cirrhosis in these animals."

The next stage is to begin using the medicine on people, something Peters said he expects to happen in the spring or summer of 1985 in a clinical setting.

The research that led to the ALF grant started when Peters kept asking Henley why the drug worked. Henley suggested to his young research assistant that he find out.

The resulting paper was the basis for the ALF application completed by Peters in February.

So much time passed between the application and the award that Peters sought and received funds from Upjohn to pay for continuing his work with Henley. Subsequently, an agreement was made with Upjohn to allow the grant to offset the expense of paying him by the hour for his work.

Peters as a CHS senior

Peters has been working 13 hours a day on the research.

"One part I'm doing is to see what the drug is actually doing. How is it working?" he said.

Another part of the study has to do with the four types of collagen that make up cirrhosis and finding out which types the medicine breaks down the fastest.

Cirrhosis a degenerative disease where liver cells are damaged by viruses, drugs, environmental toxins, alcohol, etc., and are replaced by scar tissue. The disease claims the lives of over 30,000 Americans a year, according to the ALF.

Peters' goal is to pay his own way through college and the grant will help.

His parents, Jan and Bill Peters of Knoll Drive, Independence Township, are proud of their son's determination.

"He's always wanted to be a doctor since he was little, and nothing's going to stop him," said Mrs. Peters.

While still at CHS, Peters worked with Clarkston pediatrician James O'Neill, M.D. Then he wanted to become a pediatrician.

Since working with Henley, the U of M junior has considered specializing in another field.

"I definitely want to become a doctor," he said. "I can see myself now doing what a lot of doctors do. They have their practice and, like Dr. Henley, they do their research on the side."

In about two weeks, Peters plans to travel with Henley to Indianapolis, Ind., to assist in a presentation of the work they've done so far.

"I've had my name on four papers," he said. "It's kind of exciting. Dr. Henley has been good to me. He's an older doctor and he's given me more credit than a younger doctor might."

Some ways to avoid heartburn pain

Natural physiological changes and a substantial decline in physical activity mark the lifestyles of many elderly Americans. So, when a pain occurs in the chest area, it's a cause of concern.

But, a mild pain in the chest shortly after eating could be a sign of simple heartburn.

As its name implies, heartburn is generally accompanied by a burning sensation beneath the breast bone in the upper abdomen or lower central chest.

It is principally caused by the backup of acidic stomach contents into the esophagus, the passageway connecting the throat to the stomach.

Even though production of stomach acid has been found to decrease with age, heartburn can still be a prevalent disorder.

Studies have demonstrated that, as people grow older, the muscle tissue in the esophagus undergoes deterioration, primarily due to constant use over a number of years.

As deterioration occurs, the lower esophageal sphincter, a valve-like muscle located at the end of the esophagus, loses its ability to prevent the backup of stomach contents during digestion.

Although generally not considered life-threatening, symptoms of heartburn can be extremely discomforting. If this pain persists, the best advice is to consult a physician.

However, there are practical and inexpensive ways to relieve and prevent heartburn.

First, consume smaller portions of food on a more frequent basis throughout the day.

Second, consider the moderate use of an effective antacid.

Third, watch your weight and try to take a short walk after meals.

Fourth, avoid heavy eating before you go to bed, and sleep with your head slightly elevated.

Ear, Altitude And Airplane Travel

You may be able to avoid ear discomfort during air travel — the most common medical complaint of airplane travelers — if you lend your ears to these suggestions from the American Academy of Otolaryngology-Head and Neck Surgery (AAO-HNS). It's the national association of physicians who treat the ear, nose, throat, and related areas of the head and neck.

• Swallow. This activates the muscle that opens the Eustachian tube, which connects the back of the nose with the middle ear. You swallow more often when you chew gum or let mints melt in your mouth.

• Yawn. This is an even better activator of that muscle.

• Avoid sleep during descent; you may not swallow enough to keep up with the pressure changes.

• Unblock your ears by using the following method: (1) pinch your nostrils shut; (2) take a mouthful of air; (3) using your cheek and throat muscles, force the air into the back of your nose as if you were trying to blow your thumb and forefingers off your nostrils. When you hear a loud pop in your ears, you have succeeded. You may have to repeat this several times during descent.

• If you are traveling with a baby, give him a bottle or pacifier to suck, and do not allow him to sleep during descent.

• Use a decongestant pill to: AAO-HNS Membership, or nasal spray an hour or so before descent. This shrinks the membranes and makes the ears pop more easily.

To "pop" your ears during air travel, you can pinch your nostrils shut, take in a mouthful of air, and using your cheek and throat muscles, force the air into the back of your nose.

Travelers with allergy problems should take their antihistamine tablets at the beginning of the flight for the same reason. WARNING: decongestant tablets and sprays should be avoided by persons with heart disease, high blood pressure, irregular heart rhythms, thyroid disease or excessive nervousness.

Even after landing you can continue the pressure equalizing techniques (but avoid using nose sprays for a prolonged period.) If your ears fail to open, or if pain persists, you may need to seek the help of your otolaryngologist. If you would like a list of local doctors of the ears, nose, throat, head and neck region, write to: AAO-HNS Membership, 1101 Vermont Ave., NW, Suite 302, Washington, D.C. 20005. Enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Hospice care: Who pays bill?

Hospice care is compassionate, health care method which allows terminally ill patients to choose to live out their remaining days in an environment of home and family.

Now, changes in Medicare regulations will permit beneficiaries of that health insurance to exercise the hospice option under the assurance that they will receive appropriate health care services.

Congress has expanded the Medicare hospital insurance protection to include hospice care as a new benefit through Sept. 30, 1986.

Hospice is primarily a comprehensive home care program which provides all the reasonable and necessary medical and support services for the management of a terminal illness, including pain control.

Covered services include physician services, nursing care, medical appliances and supplies (including outpatient drugs for symptom management and pain relief), home health aide and homemakers services, therapies, medical social services and counseling.

In addition to the broad range of outpatient services, short-term in-patient care is also covered. When a patient receives these services from a Medicare-certified hospice, Medicare hospital insurance pays almost the entire cost.

To be eligible for hospice care, four conditions must be met.

1. The patient is eligible for Medicare (Part A) hospital insurance.

2. The patient's doctor and the hospice medical director certify that the patient has a terminal illness.

3. The patient signs a statement choosing hospice care instead of standard Medicare benefits for the terminal illness.

4. The patient receives care from a Medicare-certified hospice program.

Information about Medicare certification of hospice programs is available from Social Security offices.

The Setpoint Diet

Program book and menu planner are available through mail

Want to be slimmer and trimmer? Consider following The Setpoint Diet, the food-and-exercise program to lose and control weight in a healthy manner.

Setpoint takes its name from the concept of "weight setpoint"—the set amount of weight your body strives to maintain.

Your body defends its setpoint during dieting by inflicting hunger pangs and slowing the metabolic rate, so fewer calories are burned.

The diet was developed by a team of General Foods scientists headed by Dr. Gilbert A. Leveille, a nationally recognized expert on weight control and the corporation's director of nutrition and health sciences.

Many diets deny you essential nutrients, ban foods you love or impose requirements that are difficult to follow and impossible to fit into your lifestyle.

But no foods are excluded on The Setpoint Diet. You practice portion control, which means eating the right amounts of everything in proper variety and balance—without starving yourself.

Dieters must also include at least 30 consecutive minutes of moderate exercise every day to lower their setpoint and keep the weight off.

General Foods is distributing a Setpoint Diet kit, including a program book and a menu planner, for the cost of its production and mailing, $2.75.

People may obtain the kit by sending their check or money order made payable to "The Setpoint Diet," to: Setpoint Diet, P.O. Box 550, Bradley, IL 60915.
