County offers its $2 flu shots

The Oakland County Health Department offers flu shots at the Independence Township Senior Citizen Center Tuesday, Sept. 11, from 10 a.m. to noon.

The year's vaccine protects against three viral strains, A/Chile, A/Phillipines and B/USSR.

Flu shots are recommended for all older persons, particularly those over 65, because the risk of death during influenza outbreaks generally increases with age.

Persons will have an opportunity to read and sign an informed consent form. There is a charge of $2 a shot, but no one will be turned away because of inability to pay.

Immunizations are also available at the Health Department office in Pontiac during regular clinic hours.

For more information call the senior center at 625-8231.

Village concerned about M-15 work

Clarkston's village council is keeping a close watch on the proposed widening of M-15 to three lanes south of the village—and is investigating buying two blocks of the downtown M-15 to keep it out of the hands of the state.

"I've been having trouble getting my phone calls from Lansing returned," said village President Carol Eberhardt. "But I've been told that would be an option open to us. On the other hand, I've been told the only way they'll sell is if we're no longer a major trunk line, and of course that's not the case. And then, we'd have to buy it all the way to Bay City which isn't feasible."

The village wants to thwart possible loss of Main Street parking if M-15 is widened, she stressed.

"We've decided it's not our place to tell the township what direction to take, but we want them to know we're still concerned," Eberhardt said. "No conclusion was reached in the BRW (engineering study on widening M-15) and we paid $5,000 toward that cost. We don't have a right to tell the township what to do—but what they do affects us directly."

The council's discussion at the Aug. 27 meeting stemmed from the Independence Township Board's mid-August plan to go forward with the three-lane widening, if the state could guarantee no loss of Main Street parking to the village.

Enrollment still drops

By Kathy Greenfield

Following the declining enrollment trend that began in 1974, unofficial tallies show 122 fewer K-12 pupils enrolled this year in Clarkston Community Schools.

Assistant Superintendent Mel Vaara said Tuesday morning he expects a few more pupils before the official fourth Friday tally, the number used to determine state aid.

Enrollments as of Tuesday, Sept. 4, put the total at 5,772. Last year pupils numbered 5,894.

While the drop means between $2,400 and $2,500 lost in state aid per pupil, the unofficial figure is lower than projections.

Vaara's loss estimate was 141 pupils, and the figure used in district budget projections was about 200.

According to the early calculations, there are 68 fewer pupils enrolled in the five elementary schools and 54 fewer in the secondary level.

"I'm encouraged with the elementary loss. Last year we lost 165 elementary, this year only 68," Vaara said. "I see the elementary settling down. I would say this is the last loss for elementary. I would think the elementary would go up next year. In secondary, we'll lose next year."

Peak enrollment in the district was reached in 1973, with 7,095 pupils, and the district has enrolled fewer pupils each year since, with the exception of 1977 when there was an increase of 15. The highest loss was recorded in 1981 when enrollment dropped by 303.

The changes were due to the declining birth rate and the economic atmosphere of the state, although Vaara said he's not certain how much of a factor the economy is this year.

Before the official fourth Friday count is taken, Vaara expects enrollment at Clarkston High School will increase, possibly by as many as 18 students.

"When families move into the Clarkston school district, they have secondary youngsters," he said. "It's their second or third or fourth house and their children are in junior high or, usually, high school."

The unofficial enrollment figures follow:

Andersonville Elementary	379 (-28)
Bailey Lake Elementary	616 (-43)
Clarkston Elementary	532 (-11)
North Sashabaw Elementary	461 (+09)
Pine Knob Elementary	582 (+05)
Total Elementary Enrollment	2,570 (-68)
Clarkston Junior High	720 (-29)
Sashabaw Junior High	860 (-29)
Clarkston High School	1,622 (+03)
Total Secondary Enrollment	3,202 (-54)
TOTAL DISTRICT ENROLLMENT	5,772 (-122)

Reabe resigns principal post; he's reassigned

By Kathy Greenfield

Some 11th-hour changes were made by Clarkston Board of Education last week following the resignation of John Reabe as assistant principal of Clarkston Junior High School.

Reabe's request to return to the classroom resulted in the appointment of Vincent Licata as assistant principal of CJH at a special meeting Tuesday night.

"Mr. Reabe requested to voluntarily return to the classroom and it's been the practice of the district, over a period of time, if we can accommodate that, we do," said Superintendent Milford Mason.

Reabe will teach fourth grade at Bailey Lake Elementary.

Formerly the principal of Pine Knob Elementary School, he was notified in March of 1984 by the board of education that nonrenewal of his administrative contract was under consideration. In April a closed hearing, at his request, was held; and in May the board renewed Reabe's administrative contract, but reassigned him to work with Mason for the remainder of the school year.

At the time of the reassignment, school board President Janet Thomas cited "serious indications that...staff/principal relations are severely strained (at Pine Knob Elementary School)."

In later action, Reabe was assigned the assistant principal post at CJH, former Sashabaw Junior High assistant principal George White was named principal at Pine Knob and David Reschke was hired as assistant principal at SJH.

The most recent change created additional staff shifts. Reabe took the fourth-grade teaching position formerly filled by William Rathburg, who previously requested a junior high school post.

Rathburg, in turn, took over the teaching duties of Licata. He is teaching English and reading and team teaching in the special education and general education programs at CJH.

Reabe has been employed by the district 28 years, four as a teacher and the last 24 as a principal.

Under an existing agreement with the Clarkston Education Association regarding teaching seniority for administrators, Reabe has sufficient seniority to protect his employment as a teacher, Mason said.

Junior high has new head

August turned out to be a busy month for Vincent Licata, the new assistant principal at Clarkston Junior High School.

"Everything happened," he said. "The week I got this job was the week my daughter was born. She was born the 17th of August. That was the week that was."

The board of education accepted the recommendation of Superintendent Milford Mason and appointed Licata to the post at a special meeting Aug. 28.

Because interviews of nine candidates for the assistant principal post at Sashabaw Junior High School had been completed just weeks before, Licata was quickly selected for the job, Mason said.

"I feel great about it. I really do," Licata said. "I had aspirations for this job. I interviewed for the position at Sashabaw Junior High and I was runner-up."

The 31-year-old has a bachelor's degree from Western Michigan University, Kalamazoo, and a master's degree in school administration from Eastern Michigan University, Mt. Pleasant.

He taught English and reading and was a team teacher in special and general education for nine years at CJH.

"I'm just glad to be here," he said last Thursday. "The nine years of being in the building has helped me in this position for the past few days, as I talked and interacted in meetings. I know what teachers are going through. I have that empathy."

In his $31,419 assistant principal post, Licata's duties include enforcement and maintenance of discipline policies and procedures, supervising and organizing athletics and assisting the principal in the day-to-day operation of the building.

His wife, Deborah, has taught eight years in the Clarkston school district. She presently teaches developmental kindergarten at Andersonville Elementary School. They have two children, Michael, 2½, and baby Lisa Marie. They reside in Waterford Township.

At today's prices, everybody does their part to earn that degree

From parents, to grandmothers to the students themselves, seems everybody's got some stake in higher education

Faced with the rising cost of education, many families find it impossible to pay for, or help their children pay for, college. The Clarkston News talked with a student attending a university, three high school seniors who hope to, and one parent to find what kinds of sacrifices are involved with earning that diploma.

College: She's working her way through it

By Marilyn Trumper

At the end of winding, hour-long registration lines, 18-year-old Artha Sans handed over $815 for a semester's tuition at Oakland University, Rochester.

Payment for the 16 credit hours didn't exchange hands easily.

"...And that doesn't include my books," she sighed, trying to smile at the reality of another $100 bill. "I just remember a quote my mother read to me: 'If you think education is expensive, you should try ignorance.' I think she's right."

The third child in an Independence Township family of five, Artha's paying her way through college by working full-time in the summer, doing odd jobs during school, and depending on a guaranteed $2,500 student loan from Pontiac State Bank and a special scholarship from her grandmother.

And Artha's parents bought her a 1980 Citation "...so I could get all those places I'm going," she said. "I want to give them credit."

The oldest sibling, 29, completed two years of college at his parents' expense. Like Artha, sister Liz the second eldest, is financing her own schooling. College for the two youngest, 17 and 15, remains down the road.

"I applied for every scholarship at Clarkston High School, there were four or five. I didn't get any of them. They never tell you why," Artha said sadly.

"So my grandmother gave me my own scholarship just for me and really helped me out a lot. She gave me $500 at graduation and there's another $500 coming. She's wonderful."

No one and nothing, Artha said, prepared her for that $815 tuition bill.

"If they had, I think I would have started thinking about it," she said, admitting the shock came when the register totaled the bill.

"I sort of knew, because Liz pays for hers and she was talking about the expense. But it never really hit me until I started paying," Artha smiled. "It's a shock. I saw the whole bank account drop. I've never paid that much money at one time for anything."

During the summer Artha assembled trunk locks and carburetors at Lectron Products in Rochester, a factory that seasonally rehires college students for summer help.

She earned $5.14 an hour and with no overtime option, worked a 40-hour week.

"I wish I had the opportunity for overtime, that would have helped out a lot," Artha said. "But I was in a department where it wasn't available."

She left Lectron two weeks ago to start school and will work odd baby-sitting and cleaning jobs, including cleaning The Clarkston News.

"Everyone told me that with a full load it's not a good idea to work and study at the same time, so I'm listening," Artha said.

Laying her education groundwork at Oakland wasn't so much for financial reasons as it was for academics.

"Although it is less expensive, that's not why I'm going," Artha said. "It's ranked second highest in the state for academics next to the University of Michigan. I figure this way I'll make it easier on myself when I switch to Michigan State."

"And I'm not all that sure I'm ready to go away to school. Some people are, and some aren't. I'm not sure yet."

Artha says after Oakland she'll pursue a degree in hotel and restaurant management at Michigan State, a university heralded as the finest in the state for that degree.

Artha says the sacrifice for education is worth it, and she's just getting off the ground with a long expensive road ahead.

"I'm like my grandmother," she said. "It's something that's really important."

A parent's sacrifice for tuition

The woman quoted in this story agreed to an interview with The Clarkston News, only if her real name was not used. In the interest of keeping the family's finances private, we honored that request.

Joan and Jack Gladstone bought a home in one of Independence Township's most affluent subdivisions a few years ago, and moved in with their three teenage children.

The home is their biggest luxury.

Jack's a truck driver.

His salary pays the $150,000 mortgage.

Joan's a secretary.

Her $17,000-a-year salary pays for two of the three kids' college education. The third's expected to start college next year.

"I know there are some people out there who would say, 'If they didn't have such an expensive house, then they'd easily be able to send the kids to college,'" said Joan. "Some people would look at that and say, 'Oh, the poor girl.' I don't want to cry over this. In fact I feel lucky. So far we've been able to do it and we haven't run into trouble yet."

But there are sacrifices.

"My car," said Joan. "I'm driving an old klunker and we bought that used. It's a 1980. We can't afford any bills. Before that it was a 1976 Chevy with over [Continued on Page 14]

Artha Sans, 18, is paying the bulk of her way through college and is gearing up for a heavy financial commitment. She works full-time during the summer assembling trunk locks and carburetors, and cleans offices like The Clarkston News during the school semester.

Planners say 'no' to auto parts store

Developers Tom Tosteff and Rudy Mazza of Pontiac want to build an auto parts store on Maybee Road, east of Sashabaw, but the Independence Township Planning Commission has different ideas.

On Aug. 30, the commission unanimously recommended denial to rezone the 2.71 acres, saying its current C-2 zoning, or five-acre minimum, is better suited for developments, according to township planner Richard Carlisle.

"They didn't want to encourage strip developments," Carlisle said.

The pair sought to split the parcel and rezone it to C-1, commercial which has no minimum lot size restrictions.

The township board makes the final decision. After the meeting, Tosteff said he was disappointed.

"We don't think the planning commission really knew what we wanted to do, or how we were going to do it," he said. "We'll do whatever we have to, to get the job done. We want to put in something to benefit the community, and we're going to prove it."

Crackdown slows some Main St. speeders

By Marilyn Trumper

Working sporadically two weeks ago for seven days at the corner of Clarkston's Main and Washington streets, Deputy Ed Stout of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department issued 50 speeding tickets—the highest for 68 mph, or 38 miles over the posted limit.

"The situation was getting out of hand," Stout said of speeders through the village's two-block stretch of two-lane state highway. "There's an intense flow of traffic through the village and a high percentage of speeders. Pedestrian traffic didn't really have a chance and people were completely disregarding the posted speeds."

"Because of I-75 construction, people were detouring through M-15 and creating even more congestion in the village. When they travel at those speeds (68 mph) that's gross, reckless driving."

The ticketing appears to have worked.

"I can see a difference already," he said.

On and off for a week, Deputy Ed Stout of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department sat at the corner of Main and Washington streets in Clarkston with the radar on. He ticketed 50 speeders, one who topped 68 mph in the 30 mph zone.

"Already we're not getting the number of speeders we had before."

Stout mans the sheriff department's circle car and patrols several townships in northwest Oakland County. Sitting for traffic patrol in the village was his own decision.

"I had to respond to other calls too, family fights, alarms. Had I been a traffic car I would have been there all day and written a lot more tickets," he said.

"I just decided on my own that something had to be done. But I'm not a hard-nosed cop. It all depends on who's ox is getting gored. Some thought I was hiding and waiting to trap them. I told them if they weren't speeding, they wouldn't be ticketed."

"Most of the tickets I wrote were for 42 mph in a 30 mile zone, and I'd only write them for five over just to get their attention. It wasn't designed to make people lose their license or get a lot of points. Just to make them wake up."

Village President Carol Eberhardt says she's been trying for months to get traffic patrol on Main Street, and is more than delighted with Stout's performance.

"I don't know what happened, but I'm glad he's there," she said. "At each council meeting in a committee report for the past three months we've talked about speeds on Main Street. The village had tried for a long time (to get traffic patrol) without luck. I've made several phone calls. They just tell me they're out there, and I'm not seeing them."

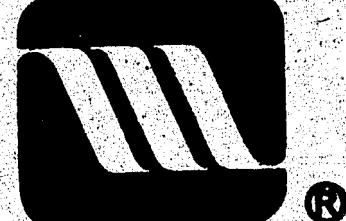

"I know that's not true. I'm here in my shop looking out on Main Street five days a week. I know what goes on."

She recalls a close call with son Mike.

"We were crossing the street and almost bought it," Eberhardt said. "The car came within inches—it had run a red light. I don't know what (deputy's) out there, but I'm glad he is."

To C.A.T. P.A.W.:

Meow,

Gee, I always thought Jews were Caucasians. What are they in your universe? The only choices are Caucasian, Mongolian, Negro and Negrito.

Of course, there are Mongolian and Negro Jews but they have to be numbered on the order of less than 1/2 percent of the Jewish population.

Aside from this minor aberration, I think your column is both needed and fine. Keep up the good work.

Dom Rosenfield

ViewpointFavorite*Al ZawackyThoughts over morning coffee...*

Fall is my favorite season of the year. Warm days, cool nights, cider, doughnuts, football and hockey. How much closer to heaven are you going to get on this mortal orb?

I still haven't been to the Menage in Pontiac and, since I fancy myself a man of the world, I'm starting to feel self-conscious about it. I plan on making my grand appearance in a month or so—which is how long it'll probably take me to save up for the weekend cover charge.

Is it really $12, or is somebody putting me on?

Consider with envy our neighbors to the north. The Canadian national elections are done and over with. Here in the states, some seven months after the New Hampshire primary, we still have 60 days to go.

From grandstanding, name-calling and annoying TV and radio commercials, good Lord preserve us. But then, the din of democracy is always preferable to the serenity of slavery.

Is it still possible for the Tigers to blow the American League Eastern Division title? Our blessed boys seem to be doing their best to prove that it's never too late.

I see where Sterling Heights Stevenson is ranked as one of the top prep football teams in the state. I will thus refrain from looking at the Clarkston High School schedule and asking, "Where's the beef?" Now, all they have to do is get Flint Central and Saginaw on the basketball schedule, and I'll clam up for good. Promise.

"We shall see what we shall see." Has anybody ever stopped to think what a dumb proverb that is?

I think I've had another close encounter with one of those "vital state services" that regularly drain everyone's paycheck. The state Department of Commerce's vital Energy Administration recently sent our office a press release announcing "free" loans of video cassettes, giving homeowners tips to "maximize the energy efficiency" of their homes.

Now, it would seem to me that anyone who could afford to own a video player to view these films—let alone afford to own their own home—is not in need of "free" energy tips, paid for by everyone's tax dollars. This is a vital state service only if you happen to be a state employee working for the Energy Administration.

So now religion has become an issue in the presidential campaign. I am greatly amused. The same Walter Mondale who gets so indignant about conservative preachers "mixing politics and religion" has never uttered a peep about the politics of the pulpit practiced by Jesse Jackson, a man who gave his blessing to church-service voter registration drives during the primary campaign.

Meanwhile, the same Ronald Reagan who flushes over liberal church leaders canvassing for a nuclear freeze cherishes his chummy relationship with Jerry Falwell and religious activists on the political right.

Ah, what would politics be without hypocrisy, eh? Terribly dull, I should think.

EditorialCheers for parade success

Wow! What a parade.

The 5,000 or so people who lined Clarkston's streets Monday viewed one of the best we've seen, and thanks are due the sponsors, the Clarkston Rotary Club, and the participants. They did a tremendous job.

After the parade was over, this statement was heard again and again: "It was a good parade."

The Rotarians again displayed their outstanding organizational skills by posting no-parking signs along Main Street and putting up ropes to keep overzealous youngsters back far enough for safety.

The only thing that didn't cooperate 100 percent was the weather—but at least it didn't rain.

Unfortunately the chilly temperatures and clouds decreased the number of breakfasters at the Independence firefighters' pancake breakfast in the downtown station, the number of parade-watchers and those feasting on corn at the annual corn roast at the American Legion Post on M-15.

But those who participated enjoyed.

If this happens next year, dress for fall and don't miss the Labor Day events around Clarkston—they're worth ignoring the autumn message of Mother Nature.

garbage can—or remember to sort through and separate the good stuff from the bad.

Generally I don't mind being put in charge of the refuse. It's something I began when our children were young and were tempted to throw things out windows or on the ground.

But I never realized just how effective my training had been—until I was put in charge of games for the younger people at a picnic.

Some of the prizes were pieces or packets of sugarless gum. One of the games was a cherry pit spitting contest.

"Now, when you chew the gum, give me the paper," I said.

"Should we give you the cherry pits?" asked one of the kids.

It was a logical question.

Regardless, General Custer had more time to think of escape than I did with those bumblebees. Of course, I liked my results better.

And, two years ago, on the first mowing of the season, I pulled the tractor close to a cedar tree . . . you know, the closer you mow the less trimming you have to do by hand.

Half way around my shoulder hit a hornet's nest twice as big as a softball. I jumped off the tractor and did the 440 in three seconds flat. Didn't need to, though. The guys only chased me about 10 feet.

Now comes 1984 and another biting bee experience.

I was cleaning up brush clipped during spring's energy surge. I'd been at it an hour when one of those pot-bellied, yellow striped menaces took a bite from one side of my sitter-downer—right through my denims.

I vacated the area immediately, only to have a second stinger placed strategically a few inches below the first. Wow, that smarts!

This week I found I'd used up all my willpower against scratching.

I don't go around apologizing for my actions, however. I just let observers think I'm a professional baseball player out of uniform.

Designer blues

My wife recently bought me a pair of pants at Jacobson's, which I always thought was strictly a women's store. I may have been right.

Women often wear dumb, uncomfortable things, such as spike heels and jeans so tight they have to lie down to zip them up. They voluntarily wear this impractical, even painful clothing because they think it makes them look good. Sometimes it does, and sometimes it makes them look like a loaf of bread in a gum wrapper.

Free Press Fashion Editor Linnea Lannon recently wrote that men don't know enough to advise women on how to dress because women wear a varied, colorful collection of costumes while men "have been wearing one basic outfit for their entire lives!" She's right. For example, I've always worn pants with pockets that basically could be trusted to do their job.

THIS IS NOT the case with my new pants from Jacobson's. The entrances to the two side pockets are slashed half-way to the knees. If my hands were as wide as meat platters, I could slip them inside these pockets, but they would soon slip back out again.

It should be pointed out that these are leisure pants, as opposed to dress or work pants. When purchased through the mail from Sears, they are called Putter Pants because many men wear them for putting around the house, or putting on golf greens. Because my definition of "leisure" is more classical, I wear Putter Pants for sitting at home any time or in movie theaters on Saturday afternoon.

My wife forsook the Sears catalog for Jacobson's after many years because we sometimes run into someone we know at Saturday matinees and she wanted me to look more fashionable than Sears. Deeply slashed patch pockets are fashionable, she said. Did I mention that these pockets are patch? That's important. It means there is fancy stitching on the outside of the pants, outlining the shape of the pockets so everyone can plainly see that they are deeply, stylishly slashed.

The first time I wore my new pants we went to the Maple Theatre in Bloomfield Hills, where sophisticated people go to see foreign films. When I sat down, $1.50 in change fell out of my side pockets and clink-clattered all over the floor. So did my car keys, house keys and money clip. While I was on my knees, pawing and wimpering in the dark, several people sitting nearby failed to notice my sophistication.

PATCH POCKETS don't have a free-hanging lining, so there is no way to adjust them to prevent possible spillage. And when they are side pants pockets slashed halfway to the knees, spillage is not only possible, it is mandatory. A later test proved that when I sit down, even a handkerchief must fall out of either side pocket of my new pants.

While still at the Maple—in the rest room—I discovered another incredible thing about the pants from my wife's favorite store. I will put this as delicately as I know how: The zipper doesn't zip down nearly far enough. These pants were not manufactured to accommodate wall urinals.

Because I've worn only one basic outfit all my life, I'm too dumb to know why a fashion designer would expect a man to wear pants that negate one of the few advantages men have over women. I have no idea why a man would want to wear pants with pockets designed to lose his money and embarrass him in an art theater.

It's awful to be too stupid to advise a loaf of bread on which gum wrapper to wear. But it's comfortable.

Colombiere to hold medieval feast

Here are four easy steps to stage a Medieval Feast:

- Throw out the silverware
- Make sure every table has a keeper of the knife
- Put Gibbon the Troubadour in charge of the castle rules
- Have plenty of basins and pitchers of water on hand to clean up guests.

Sounds like fun, but too much trouble? There's a simple solution for those less into do-it-yourself banquets—the second annual Authentic Renaissance Feast on Saturday, Sept. 22, presented by the University of Detroit Clarkston Campus at Colombiere Center in Springfield Township.

The party begins at 7 p.m. at an outdoor wooded site. Tickets are $75 a person, with proceeds to benefit the Clarkston campus. The price includes admission

"We expect many of our guests to spend the day at the Michigan Renaissance Festival and then as the sun goes down join the medieval banquet as a finale to the day," said Clarkston pediatrician James O'Neill, chairman of the Renaissance Feast.

Abundant and rollicking are the adjectives selected by the party planners to describe the authentic menu of stone soup, roast turkey drumsticks, salmon quiche and fruit tarts plus entertainment by the U of D Theatre Company and renaissance music, Old English songs, jests, cheers and general rowdiness throughout the evening.

The Rev. Robert J. D'Amico, S.J., recently assumed responsibilities as director of Colombiere Center, Springfield Township, replacing the Rev. John E. Dister, S.J.

Fertilizer care

The Village of Clarkston asks residents living on the Mill Pond and Clinton River not to fertilize near the water's edge.

Fertilizers, according to Trustee Ethel Sinclair, contain nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium, and encourage aquatic plant growth.

Sinclair suggests those who must fertilize use organic fertilizers which release nutrients over a long period of time.

In addition, she suggests waterfront property owners maintain a zone of natural vegetation between the lake and lawn to minimize the amount of fertilizer reaching the water.

Boxing helps land state post

Grable eager to work on board of control for amateur sports

By Dan Vandenhemel

Three or four times a month, Rosie Grable sits and watches two fine tuned participants do battle with heavily padded gloves.

As a licensed boxing judge for 12 years for amateur and professional bouts, Grable has seen many talented fighters including Thomas Hearns, Milton McCoy and Sugar Ray Leonard.

Now the 44-year-old Grable can use her experience to help amateur athletics.

She has been appointed by Gov. James Blanchard to the State Athletic Board of Control. The position is pending Michigan State Senate approval.

"We'll be dealing with any aspect of amateur sports," said the Oak Park Drive, Independence Township, resident. "There are a lot of people on the board with different areas of expertise."

Two positions opened up on the nine-member board earlier in the year when the four-year terms expired. One is for a person not involved in athletics, the other for a person currently active in sports.

Thirty-eight people applied for the professional position, 19 for the public.

"I'm sure being involved in boxing for 12 years

"I feel I know my sport well enough that I'll be able to contribute."

—Rosie Grable

helped get the position," Grable said. "I feel I know my sport well enough that I'll be able to contribute."

The Grable family is deeply involved with boxing. Besides Rosie, her husband Dale is a boxing trainer and referee and their four sons have all fought in the ring.

The volunteer position on the board won't interfere with Grable's job as a bus driver for Clarkston Community Schools.

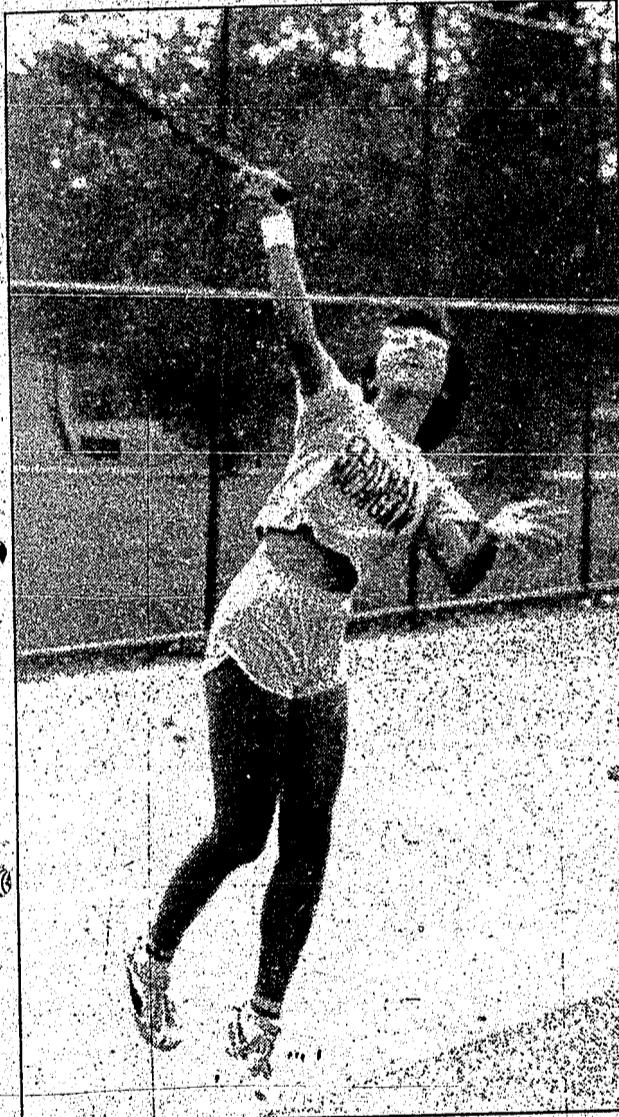

"I'm starting my 10th year as a bus driver," she said. "You can't forget those kids."

Helping organize and keep amateur athletics running smoothly is the board's main goal. It meets once a month in Lansing.

"We'll deal with whatever comes up," she said. "We'll be in charge of upgrading amateur sports, any problems or suspensions or rule changes. I hope I have an opportunity to give some input."

Newly appointed to the State Athletic Board of Control, Rosie Grable hopes to have some input to help amateur sports.

A summer full of practice helped Kristin Tiarht move up to the No. 2 singles player for the Wolves.

Sports

New look improves future

By Dan Vandenhemel

There is a new look this season to the girls' tennis team at Clarkston High School. Ninth-graders will be joining the Wolves but only on an informal level.

"They're practicing with us and will be playing some exhibition matches," said coach Dick Swartout. "There are some good players coming up."

Of the 19 players on the team, six are ninth-graders from Sashabaw and Clarkston junior highs.

Returners Kelly Craig, who is recovering from a auto accident, Kristin Tiarht, Lynne Howse and Daisy Red should be the top singles players, Swartout said.

"I don't know but I think Kelly will be ready to play," the coach said. "I've got no idea how we'll do this year. All our players had to move up to singles except for Kelly."

Last season the Wolves finished with an 8-3 record. They were second in the Greater Oakland Activities League to Lake Orion and placed sixth in the state regionals.

"Lake Orion beat us twice last year and both times it was 4-3 and they graduated all their players last year," Swartout said.

With only a few seniors playing and the addition

"... that'll give them more experience for when they join next year." —Paul Tungate of the ninth-graders working with the team, the Wolves are a young team, he said.

Clarkston High School Athletic Director Paul Tungate said Swartout came to him with the idea of letting the ninth-graders join the team.

"We petitioned the Michigan High School Athletic Association to let the ninth-graders play for the high school. But they said unless we planned to have the ninth grade come into the high school in the next three years, we couldn't do it," Tungate said. "We don't have anything planned for that. They're only practicing with the team and that'll give them more experience for when they join next year."

Senior Daisy Red is one of six returning letter winners to the Wolves' team that finished second in the league last year.

Chiefs kick off coming season

The football season is fast approaching for the Clarkston Chiefs.

The little league football program for 8- through 13-year-olds is holding its annual "Kick-off Dance" Saturday, Sept. 15, at the Knights of Columbus Hall on Maybee Road to help raise money.

The cost is $20 a couple. That includes music by a disc jockey and pop, beer, chips and pretzels. The proceeds go toward uniforms and equipment for the players.

The dance starts at 7 p.m. and is open to the public.

For more information contact Jeff or Margaret Davis at 623-1595.

Up My Alley

Baseball business

By Dan Vandenhemel

Somebody tell me it's not true.

Does everyone realize that the football season has begun and hockey and basketball aren't far behind?

Baseball is just starting to heat up as the pennant races begin to tighten up. That is, except for the American League East.

The baseball world is going gaga over the Detroit Tigers and their fantastic year.

Everyone knows of the pitching corps led by Jack Morris, Dan Petry, Milt Wilcox and Willie Hernandez. Cover boy Alan Trammell along with the "other" stars of the team are household names in Michigan.

The Chicago Cubs and the Minnesota Twins are also making noise by being in the unfamiliar territory of first place in their respective divisions.

But the team everyone is ignoring is the San Diego Padres. They are leading their division by a whopping margin over Houston. Only the Tigers have a safer lead over the second-place club.

San Diego has been the Detroit of the National League. For the past four or five years, the Padres have been close to the top—always around the .500 mark and just a couple of players away from winning it all.

Detroit has gotten the national exposure while San Diego kept winning quietly.

Granted the Tigers have the division cinched, but they still have to beat the winners of the Western Division.

Minnesota has played very tough baseball against the Tigers and the playoffs will be no cakewalk.

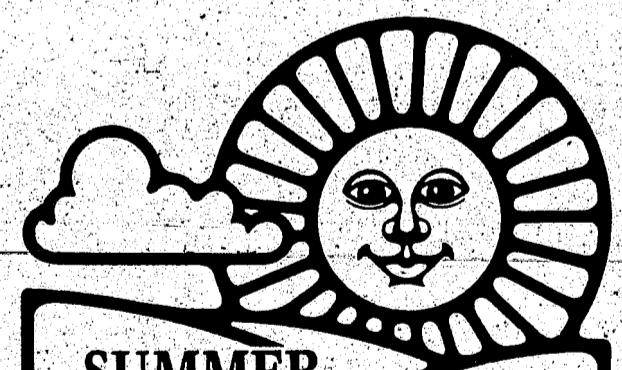

The Cubs are sentimental favorites, but they have to beat the Padres who, like the Tigers, are going to be in the playoffs barring a major collapse.

The ideal World Series matchup for the fanatics would be the Tigers and the Cubs, a repeat of the 1945 series.

What will probably happen is the Padres will face the Twins in the October classic.

I'd love to see the Tigers win the series but the other three teams with a shot at the trophy are being taken too lightly.

The Tigers just better be careful when October rolls around.

Going over the track layout with the cross-country teams, coach Mike Kaul points to the boundaries around the newly fenced Clarkston High School property.

Harriers stride into season

By Dan Vandenhemel

For 10 minutes the cross-country teams for Clarkston High School limber up prior to their practice. They also plot a suggestion for the coaches.

After stretching out, 15 boys and girls converge on coaches Mike Taylor and Mike Kaul.

Returning letter winner Jeff Toretta is elected spokesperson for the group.

Instead of the normal running, the majority of the team would like to run less and do some work in the weightroom to help improve their upper body strength, said Toretta.

Taylor and Kaul agree to the suggestion and the team walks away triumphantly.

"There has to be some interaction with the team and the coaches," Taylor said. "Actually we (Taylor and Kaul) didn't lose anything. We lost one mile of running and gained 45 minutes in the weightroom."

Taylor is expecting about 22 runners this year, 12 girls and 10 boys.

Toretta, Dan Bailey and Brian Baert should lead the boys while Kathleen McInnis, Beth Galley, Trisha Johnson and Erin DuPree should help the girls.

"We have some thin ranks," Kaul said. "We've got three real competitive runners on each side. Beyond that it's total youth; they're untested in competition."

An average of seven miles a day in practice readies the Wolves for the season opener Sept. 6 against Romeo, Walled Lake and Grosse Pointe.

"We break that down into different workouts," Taylor said. "One day we work on distance, then some speed work. With running distances, you don't build any speed. You've got to work on both."

Saving begins now for college expenses

By Marilyn Trumper

Three days into the first week of their senior year at Clarkston High School, Steve Gerber, Sue Colwell and Julie Dengate are thinking about college next fall.

The three 17-year-olds hold part-time jobs and are saving now for their tuition.

Two of the three will receive financial help from their parents, the third, Julie, is depending on her brother.

Next fall she'll live with his family in California where she'll attend San Diego University.

"After you've lived in California a year, tuition's free," Julie said. "He'll help me out the first year. I'll live with him, and the next year will be free."

"My mom and I live alone because my dad died. She can't afford it to help me. But I'm eligible for grants and scholarships because our income's just about zero."

Julie's a waitress at McGillacutty's in downtown Clarkston, and works for $2.50 an hour plus tips.

Saving's tough.

"I pay for everything already," she smiled. "My clothes, car, everything. But I don't mind. My mom's 60 years old. There's no way she can help me."

"Besides, college is too important not to do it."

Steve works in the vegetable department at Food Town 25 to 30 hours a week for $4.30 an hour, and laughs when he says he's a good saver.

"I loaned my sister money to pay for college. Yes, I'm good at it. I've been saving (for school) since last year."

Sue Colwell

Steven Gerber

Julie Dengate

He hopes to graduate from Ferris State. Sue's set her sights on the University of Michigan to study "something in the medical field."

This past summer she worked for SCAMP, a five-week summer program for the developmentally and physically disabled.

On and off she's cleaned houses and is now certified to be a lifeguard.

But, Sue admits, saving's tough.

"I'm getting better," she smiled. "But yes, my parents are going to help me out a lot."

"Everything I've always wanted to be has needed a lot of education, but in the long run it will be worth it. To get anywhere in the world, you have to have a college education."

"I feel I should have to help out, but sometimes it seems unfair. But it really isn't when you figure what you'll get out of it."

Sacrifices needed for tuition

No new car for working mom

100,000 miles on it. I'd like to have a new car. I'd like to have some new things for the house. But I'm not getting it. "I'm working," she said, "to put my kids through school."

It will cost $5,000 for the eldest to finish her third year at Central Michigan University.

The second attends classes at Oakland Community College and lives at home. Costs to send him hit $1,000 for the year, Joan said.

"And that doesn't count gas to drive back and forth and all the other things," she said, adding all three kids work during the summer and save for school.

"If any one of my kids should go to college it would be (the third one), she's the smartest, and she's going if I have to go into debt to do it. And I might have to," Joan said. "They can only work so much and you're still their sole support. When (the third) goes away, you're talking $11,000 a year for education."

"We haven't felt the real pinch yet. Not until next year."

Joan's sympathetic to parents who can't afford to help their children pay for college, and to the kids who take out thousands of dollars in loans and are in debt upon graduation.

"My parents can't pay for it all, and I wouldn't want them to. It wouldn't feel right taking their money."

His first two years will be spent at Oakland Community College where he'll drive back and forth from home in a car provided by his folks.

"I'm going to pay for most of it. They'll pick up what I can't," Steve said.

"Expenses are high," she said. "A kid trying to do it alone is scraping the bottom of the barrel. Especially if their parents can't help, they're in bad shape. If the parents can't help, the kids have a really rough way to go."

She uses her daughter's friend as an example.

"When she graduates, she'll be $10,000 in debt. That's an awful way to have to begin life. And when you're in that kind of hole it's hard to get out," Joan said.

"To be eligible for a scholarship you have to be a real brain. And the grants are very little help. What's $300 when you're looking at a $5,000 bill. It's a pitance."

But Joan's willing to make the sacrifice.

"Because I never had the opportunity (to go to college), what's important to me (is the kids). I don't want any thanks for it. If I can help them, I want to. And I will."

"And I'll do it if I have to go into debt."

"One day," she said, "this will all be over."

School berms waived, district saves $271,000

By Kathy Greenfield

There'll be no berms outside the multipurpose rooms to be constructed on Clarkston's five elementary schools, and the difference means a savings of $271,000, according to Superintendent Milford Mason.

The school board unanimously accepted construction bids totaling $1.79 million at a special meeting Aug. 28 after rejecting bids of $2.08 million Aug. 13 and instructing architect Charles Sherman of Sherman and Associates of Troy to return with proposals that would reduce costs.

The action delayed the start of construction of the identical 54-by-74-foot additions about two weeks.

By removing the energy-saving earth berms, money could also be saved by eliminating the need for reinforced walls and waterproofing. The additions could then be moved closer to the school buildings, making connecting walkways shorter and less expensive. The height of the multipurpose rooms was dropped by 1 foot, 4 inches—the amount they were raised from the original plans to make sure youngsters could not easily climb the berms and get on the roofs.

"The structure of the additions themselves has not been altered in the terms of the size. The stage is still there," Mason said. "I want to say that as a positive. The buildings are still the same size."

A Sept. 6 meeting with the contractors has been scheduled and Mason expects the construction timetable to remain the same, with the multipurpose rooms in use by the fall of 1985.

"I don't expect any difficulty reaching that," he said.

Voters approved a $1.75 million bond issue for the five multipurpose rooms in June.

The $1.79 million in bids approved last week do not include some of the construction costs and equipment.

Mason said interest earned on the invested bond money will help offset those expenses and some cash will be used from the school district's general fund to complete the project.

In earlier discussions, board members indicated parent-teacher organizations are expected to further equip the rooms as desired.

Nederlander wants old PK photos

Photographs of the Pine Knob ski lodge restaurant—the way it was—are wanted by its new owners.

"(The Nederlander company) is trying to return it to look like its original form, putting the fireplace in and so forth," said George White, community relations director. "Ice (the present restaurant) will no longer be Ice."

White, who grew up in the Clarkston area, can remember senior class parties and other events in the restaurant—and he knows somebody out there has photographs that would show the original look.

"It's been changed so many times they have no idea what it looked like," he said.

Those who would like to share their photos can call him at 625-1290 after noon. If he's not there, he requests callers leave their phone numbers.

Commission updates road closings

The Oakland County Road Commission has updated information on road closings:

• Davisburg Road from Dixie Highway to Bridge Lake Road in Springfield Township is now expected to remain closed through Friday, Sept. 7.

• The closure of Rattalee Lake Road over I-75 in Springfield Township for bridge repairs remains, with an indefinite completion date.

• Holcomb Road, closed for bridge repairs over I-75 in Independence Township, was expected to reopen Saturday, Sept. 1.

For areas where lanes are reduced during construction, the commission reminds drivers that state law requires slowing down to 45 mph in road-work zones, safety often requires slower speeds, and motorists should be prepared for unexpected stops by drivers ahead.

Bids shrink sidewalk size

Using Community Development funds, the Village of Clarkston wants to build a safety path from Main Street south of village hall near the pump station, through Depot Road Park and connecting with the nine-year-old White Lake Road Path that ends at Deer Lake Beach.

On Aug. 27, the council opened bids ranging between $5,500 and $9,000 for approximately 1,071 feet of path, but made no decision, opting to rebid the project for a 6-foot-wide path, instead of the traditional 8 feet.

"Not all the bids were consistent," said village President Carol Eberhardt, "so we're going to rebid them for prices on a smaller path."

The smaller size is designed to discourage motorized traffic on the paths, which is against the law, she added.

Village Players get building permit

Asked when The Clarkston Village Players would begin renovations at Depot Road Theatre, Independence Township Planner Richard Carlisle laughed and said, "10 o'clock tonight I think."

Then he added, "I'm sure they'll begin as soon as they get their building permit from the building department."

On Aug. 30, the Independence Township Planning Commission unanimously granted the theater final site plan approval.

The 22-year-old community theater group spent seven years raising money to renovate the 80-seat theater, to build indoor toilets and a lobby.

To date, patrons have used outside Port-O-Johns.

Just in case . . .

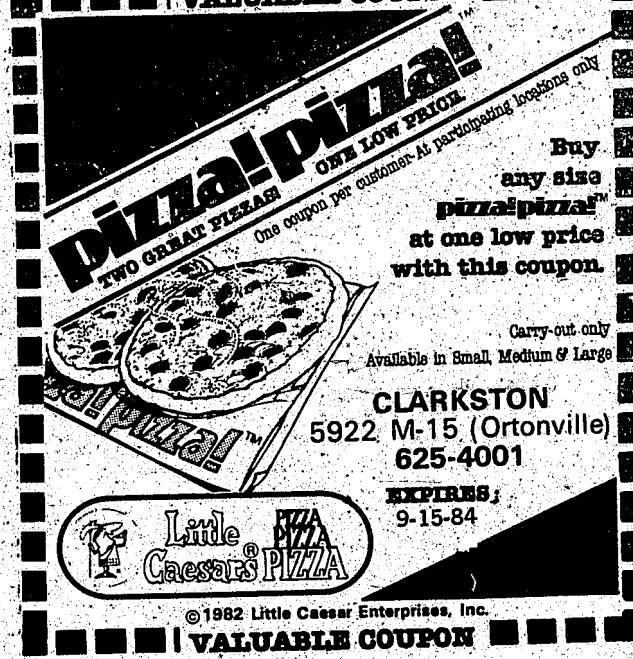

Village foot patrolman Charles Smalley wants a hand radio to call for help if he's committed to helping an injured person or directing traffic downtown.

Estimated cost: $800 to $1,000, according to village President Carol Eberhardt.

At its Aug. 27 meeting, council authorized Smalley to investigate buying a used radio.

"We've always been concerned that he has to leave and make a phone call if there's been an accident, when we'd much rather have him stay with the injured person," Eberhardt said. "We feel he should have (a radio)."

We Love a Parade

ALL SMILES: This must be mime for "We're having a wonderful time." Members of the CHS Mime Troupe are among distributors of free balloons at the Labor Day Parade.

Balloons provided a rainbow of color against overcast skies Monday as people lined Clarkston's streets for the annual Labor Day Parade sponsored by the Clarkston Rotary Club.

The crowd was estimated at 5,000 by Fire Chief Frank Ronk, who noted it was a smaller number than the July 4th parade but still a sizable gathering.

Grand Marshall Rudy Schwarze, owner of Rudy's Market, threw candy from his convertible perch, setting the tone for this year's theme, "We Love a Parade."

Judges Dick Ayers, Tom Rademacher, Dick Logan and Bob Newlin had such a tough time selecting the winners of plaques and certificates awarded by the Rotary Club that they more than doubled the traditional six winners in the honorable mention category.

While he heard some comments on the inevitable gaps in the parade line-up, Logan looked at the bright side.

"I've also heard it was one of the largest, one of the longest and one of the best," he said. "We appreciate the participation of all the groups—each contributes. It's very much appreciated by the Rotary Club and the community."

The winners were:

Floats—first place, Mr. G's; second place, The Clarkston News; third place, the Clarkston Chiefs.

Costumes—first place, the bagpipers from Flint; second place, the Independence Township Library; third place, the Village Business Association.

President's Award—the Independence Township Republican Club.

Theme Award—the Independence Squares.

Honorable Mention (equal awards)—Sea Ray Cub Scouts, North Oakland Civitans, Tumbleweeds from Clarkston Village Players, Pine Hills Academy, Springfield Christian schools, Clarkston High School Varsity Cheerleaders, Clarkston High School Pompon squad, Uncle Sam (Ron Voorheis), Mounted Division of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department, Clarkston High School Marching Band.

DANCING IN THE STREET: Members of the Independence Squares twirl through the Labor

Day Parade on a truck bed large enough to hold a square of four couples. They are led by their club square dance caller Jim Thompson. The float won the Rotary Club's Theme Award.

Staff receives watches and lapel pins

By Kathy Greenfield

A big "C" and a learning lamp adorn the 32 new watches of Clarkston school district staff members and the 312 lapel pins received in recognition of years of service.

The district employees on staff for 25 years or more received their watches the first day of the 1984-85 year, and the lapel pins for 10, 15, 20, 25 and 30 years and above were distributed in each school.

"It was just well received by all employees, a lot of good comments, and they all really appreciate the watches and the pins," said Assistant Superintendent Mel Vaara. "There's a lot of them wearing them. I had a lot of people thank me for getting them the recognition."

The recognition program was established in March by the board of education following work of an 11-member committee chaired by Vaara.

The board budgeted $5,000 for the first year that covered a retirement banquet held in June and purchase of the watches and pins.

Vaara said he purchased enough watches and pins to cover about 10 years. He designed the logo that appears on the Bulova watches and the gold-plated lapel pins. He said he would like to see the district adopt the design as its logo.

Beginning in October monthly Employee Recognition Awards will also be given for those "involved in something up and above the call of duty," Vaara said.

Any staff person can be nominated for the award by a principal, teacher or fellow employee with the final selection made by the committee. They will be presented with engraved Cross pens at school board meetings.

Perfect attendance will be recognized with a letter from the board of education signed by its president, Janet Thomas. The 34 district employees who didn't miss a day of work during the 83-84 school year will receive a letter, Vaara said.

Because the Years of Service awards of watches and pins started this year, they were received by those with the designated number or more within each category. Beginning next year, the awards will follow five-year increments beginning with 10 years of employment.

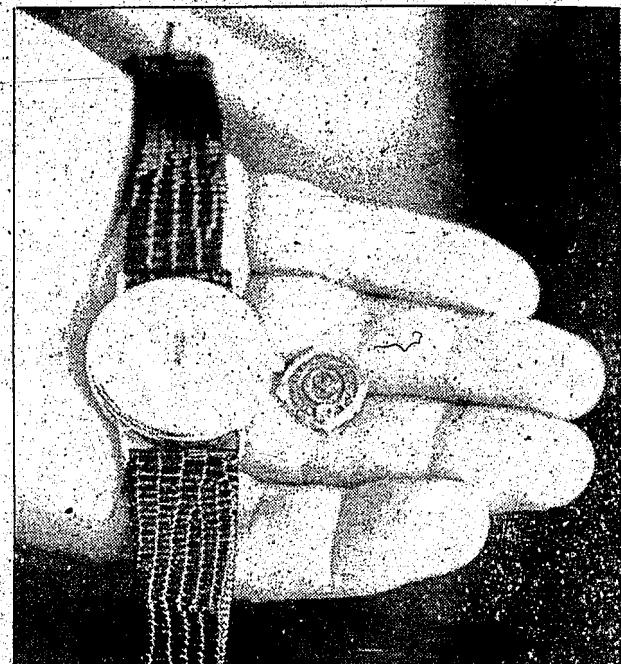

"Next year it will be much less than (23 watches) because we had to catch up," Vaara said. "Next year there will only be four or five watches."

The majority of district employees received watches or pins, with only about 200 who didn't.

A list of the watch recipients follows:

30 Year (and above) Award—Doris Mousseau, Bailey Lake Elementary principal; Clarkston Elementary School teachers Maxine Connelly and Patricia Thomas; Sashabaw Junior High School teacher Barton Connors; Ilene (Dottie) Allen, secretary at Clarkston High School; and Marilyn Hanson, counselor at Clarkston High.

25 Year (and above) Award—Bailey Lake Elementary School teacher John Reabe; Clarkston Elementary School teachers Anita Davison and Janice Walker; Pine Knob Elementary School teachers Lyn Jervis, Joyce McCurdy and Lucille Richley; North Sashabaw Elementary School teachers Virginia Myers, Marlene Sewick and David Westland; Clarkston Junior High School teacher Virginia Shelton; Sashabaw Junior High School Principal Gus

The watches and lapel pins awarded to Clarkston school district staff members for years of service include a logo designed by Assistant Superintendent Mel Vaara, who's holding the samples.

Birtas; Sashabaw Junior High School teacher V. Kelly Burnette; Special Services psychologist Gordon Spelbring; Clarkston High School teachers Ethelyn Hyde and Eugene McCurdy; and administrators William Dennis and Mel LeRoy Vaara.

Cost still high

Sprinklers on hold

The Clarkston Village Council still wants a sprinkling system in Depot Road Park—but they do have questions.

On Aug. 27, the council reviewed a fourth project bid but made no decision, opting to investigate whether four-inch-wide well piping is adequate, and if the screen can be kept clean.

"The bids are still high, and we still have a question about the well's depth," said council President Carol Eberhardt.

"We're also looking at taking the water from the stream that runs through the park. Right now it's low because we haven't had a lot of rain, and the water's real dirty and scummy. We'd be using the sprinkling system when the water's low, that's the point of it, and we're not sure if we can keep the (filtering) screen clear."

The project's estimated to cost $5,350, with $3,000 currently budgeted to help finance construction.

MICHAEL WHO? "Michael T." (note the gloved hand and sunglasses) pulled by this serious duo makes the adults laugh and the kids shout,

"There's E.T.," proving that the big screen hit character from last year has not been forgotten, even when dressed in disguise.

CHRISTMAS CARDS

BACKSTAGE AT THE CORN ROAST: Vern Ridgeway, 86, sits next to the pickup truck loaded with corn at the American Legion Post 63 on M-15. Most of the 1,800 ears of corn has been husked and he says he'll keep going until the job is done. Ridgeway is commander of the Veterans of World War I, Davisburg Barracks 2803. He's been a member of the American Legion since 1920. Also participated in the corn preparation for the Labor Day feast are Merle Riddle [center] and Dick Lowrie.

Labor Day events

While waiting for the parade to begin, these two boys keep busy talking about an impressive collection of balloons.

Before Bob French appears on horseback in the Labor Day Parade, he and his family eat at the Independence Township firefighters' annual pancake breakfast. French, a member of the sheriff's department mounted division, helps his son Ryan prepare to eat. The firefighters served about 700 breakfasts, down from the usual 800-900. The difference was attributed to chilly temperatures and overcast skies. Money from the breakfast will go to the Burn Center in Ann Arbor and to local charities.
