As she sees the park just past the hill at Depot and Holcomb streets, Tracy Doyon breaks into a run—and smiles as the volunteer stopping traffic to make sure the walkers are safe shouts, "You made it!" The 10 miles she walked for Clarkston SCAMP were reason for pride.

670 walk in SCAMP's fund raiser

By Kathy Greenfield

About 670 people put on their walking shoes and put in the miles Sunday to help Clarkston SCAMP. The number that participated in the 1984 Walk for SCAMP was almost double last year's total, said Mary Jo Griggs, walk co-chairperson with Cecelia Wiar.

"It's phenomenal. It's absolutely phenomenal," said Griggs. "We can't complain about support. That's what's great about small towns."

The goal was $30,000, the same as last year when $17,000 was raised in the walk that's been an annual event for about 10 years.

"I'm really hoping we'll get at least $25,000," she said. "All the schools really pitched in and that was a lifesaver. A lot of parents were involved."

"The thing is really incredible. The people in Clarkston back this. It's just a community effort."

SCAMP is a five-week summer program for children and youths from northern Oakland County with special needs. It meets at Sashabaw Junior High School with frequent outings to Independence Oaks County Park.

Fund raisers provide half of the budget between $60,000 and $70,000 for the about 200 SCAMPers served each summer, with tuition covering the remainder.

The largest fund raiser is the Walk for SCAMP, in which participants gather pledges-per-mile and hike along courses of three or 10 miles. Others are the annual Charity Bazaar at the Summit Place mall, a 50-50 raffle and last year the group helped the Independence Township firefighters with the circus that came to town.

Tiger victory hits home!

Kirk Gibson's mom Barb is Clarkston High speech teacher

By Dan Vandenhemel

Barb Gibson is a very proud mother.

Monday morning, following the day her son Kirk carried the Detroit Tigers to the World Championship, she wore her favorite shirt with No. 23 in the middle of the back and the words "Kirk's Mom" across the shoulders.

Kirk's two monster home runs, five RBI's and a daring bit of base running closed the door on the San Diego Padres in the fifth game of the series.

"I'm pooped," said Ms. Gibson, a speech teacher at Clarkston High School. "We spent a couple hours after the game at Kirk's house (in Grosse Pointe). Alan Trammell came in and so did Tommy Brookens. Everyone had a Cheshire smile. It was so exciting."

She and Kirk's father, Bob, were sitting in box seats above the Tiger dugout during the game and Ms. Gibson said Kirk kept looking up to the seats.

Treasurer candidates talk

Each week between now and the Nov. 6 election, The Clarkston News will feature candidates for the Independence Township Board, the district court judicial race and explore the police millage issue. This week the two candidates vying for township treasurer are asked why they are running, and what they think the election issues are. The full-time treasurer's job pays $33,542 a year.

John Lutz

By Marilyn Trumper

Republican John Lutz, a construction supervisor turned independent businessman, wants to be the next treasurer of Independence Township.

Lutz, 34, says his past qualifies him for the job, and cites that as one of the reasons he's running for office.

"Somewhere in your life you feel you should give something back to the community. Last year someone said, 'John, you should think about running.' I took it as a personal compliment," he said.

"Sure we have different qualifications, but I feel [Continued on Page 20]

Frederick Ritter

By Marilyn Trumper

Democrat Treasurer Frederick Ritter is seeking his third term on the Independence Township Board.

"I've been treasurer for six years and trustee four years before that. I've enjoyed my involvement with the community and the challenge of helping citizens solve their problems with government," the 35-year-old Ritter said.

"I like my involvement in local government and since it's the closest to the people it can best be demonstrated it can work for the people."

He points to his record:

GOP hopeful Ritter defends his child support

By Marilyn Trumper

Independence Township congressional hopeful Tom Ritter, who if elected wants to implement a tough system to enforce child support, admits he is behind in child support payments to his first wife.

"My former wife and I have had a working agreement to the payment, and we have a statement on file in our office from her, in which she said we have always been able to work our differences and provide for our three children," Ritter said.

"What I don't know is how some of the records got out of the court where they are sealed in a private file to protect the lives of innocent children. The problem was never one of payment, it was one of the pattern of payment. It's behind us now," he said, adding he's requested an investigation by the Friend of the Court.

Ritter, the former owner of Ritter's Farm Market, agrees he owes $165 for three weeks of back child support payments.

Running on the GOP ticket for the 6th U.S. Congressional District against Democrat Bob Carr, Ritter's been summoned five times from the Oakland County Friend of the Court to appear in circuit court for nonpayment. Two of the summons, according to Ritter, were canceled because he made payments directly to his first wife.

Once he was in arrears by $3,135 last year.

Congressman Carr denies charges he leaked information to the press implicating Ritter's child-support payment schedule, or that Ritter's faced several creditors in circuit court for failure to pay his bills.

"Of course not," said Carr, referring to his office being responsible for the leak. "I don't do that kind of stuff. He's put a reverse spin on the ball. I had nothing to do with the story."

But Carr admits he and most running for political office investigate the background of their opposition, and that he's investigated Ritter.

"Just as I assume he's investigated me," said Carr.

Residents say 'no' to cityhood

By Marilyn Trumper

There is overwhelming agreement among Clarkston village residents who responded to a mailing survey. They don't want to become a city.

Of the 400 surveys sent to homeowners in July sewer bills, 41 responded. Thirty-five opposed cityhood, three favored it and three were undecided, according to Trustee Fontie ApMadoc who led the survey campaign.

At its Oct. 8 meeting, the council tabled the issue until January, intending to explore cityhood on the local cable TV channel to better educate the public.

President Carol Eberhardt said she's disappointed so few responded to the survey, and said she still doesn't feel one way or the other about cityhood.

"I understand it's difficult to understand," Eberhardt said. "We're not going to tear down all the buildings and put up skyscrapers. We have no property to develop. We're not going to lose our quaintness. But people can't seem to understand that."

Earlier this year Eberhardt proposed the idea of cityhood, which if implemented would block the township from ever annexing Clarkston.

"That's created a lot of problems, and I think the township thinks we're making that an issue. We're not," Eberhardt said.

"From time to time all good governments re-evaluate their form of government. If the township re-evaluates theirs, then we'll be ready."

If Independence Township became a city township like Dearborn Heights, the village could be annexed with a majority vote of both municipalities. It would be in danger of losing snow removal, beautification funds and tree maintenance, village zoning and a council that makes those decisions.

As potential advantages, it would prevent annexation by Independence Township, lower village taxes because township taxes would no longer be paid, and make the village eligible for additional federal funding.

As potential disadvantages, the village would have its own police, fire and assessing departments; and hold its own school, state and national elections. The present practice of contracting with the Oakland County Sheriff's Department through the township for police protection would probably be continued, with a similar arrangement through the township for fire protection.

The village council would become a city council, with the president becoming a voting mayor.

Hiring a city manager would be at the council's discretion.

Cost to become a city is estimated between $3,000 and $6,000.

Break-in tries continue in town

For the third time in two weeks, a Clarkston Main Street business has been the target of thieves.

According to Lt. Henry Hanson of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department, thieves attempted to break into the side door of the Village Grill at about 4:30 a.m. Oct. 10. They broke out a window pane, but found the deadbolt needed a key. Unable to gain entry, they fled.

Owner Sue Linenger says the police checked the doors at 4 a.m., and found them secure.

"It makes me feel glad the police are out there checking, maybe they'll catch them," she said.

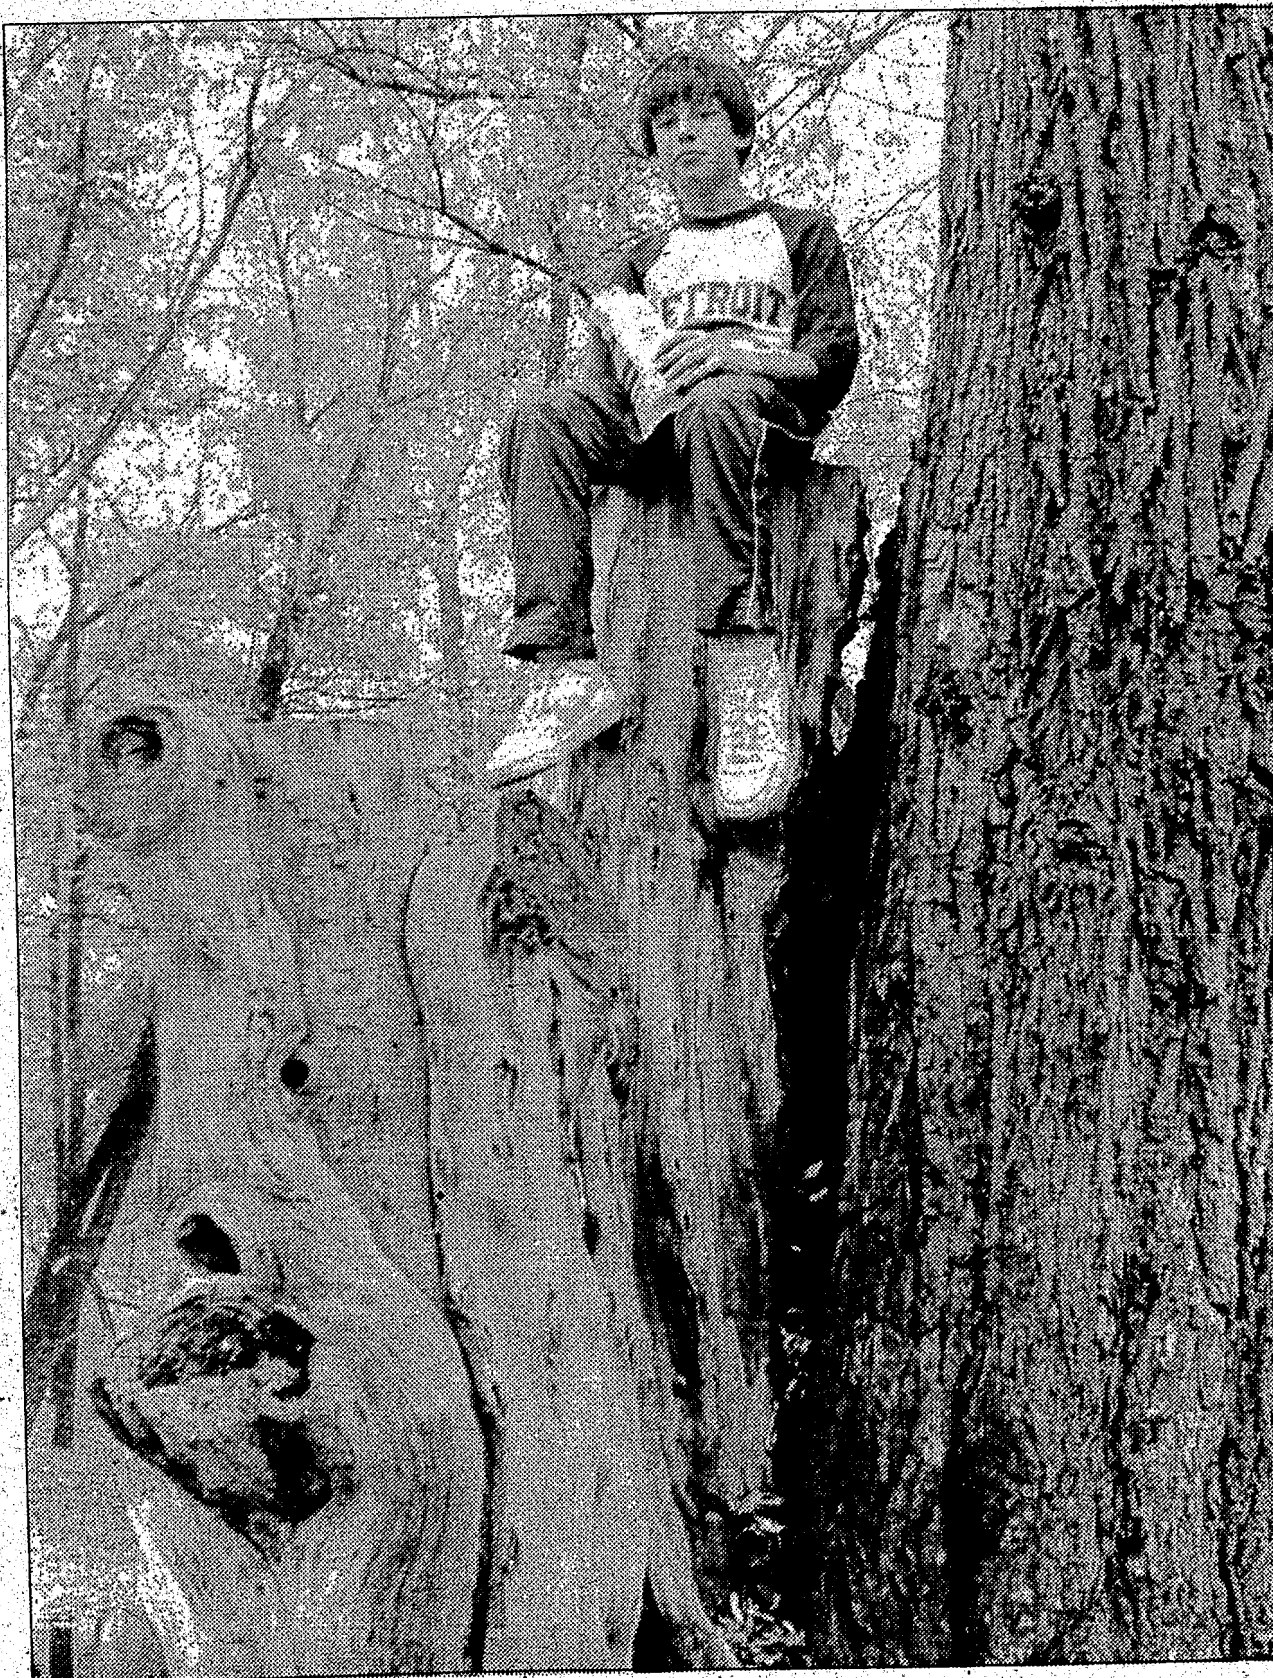

The Clarkston Cafe was the first business broken into, followed by Hallman's Apothecary where $1,800 was stolen.

Candidate debate

Here's an opportunity to hear and see all candidates for Independence Township offices plus state representative, county commissioner and district court judge.

"Know the Candidates," sponsored by the United Neighbors of Independence Township, is planned Monday, Oct. 22, from 7 to 10 p.m. at the Clarkston High School Little Theatre, 6595 Middle Lake Rd., Independence Township.

The open, non-partisan forum is designed to allow candidates to present their views on key issues, according to the organizers. A question-and-answer period is also planned.

Schools look at grading system

Whether or not to count pluses and minuses when figuring grade point averages for Clarkston High School students turned into an over 45-minute debate at the board of education meeting.

When it was over, the policy committee was directed to meet again and include opinions of more teachers—and students.

Grade point averages are presently figured on a four-point system. A grade of B, B-minus or B-plus, for example, is now figured as 3.0. Under the proposed change, B-minus would be 2.7, B would be 3.0 and B-plus would be 3.3.

Assistant Superintendent Mel Vaara presented the proposed policy change to the board Oct. 8.

"It rewards students for pluses," he said. "I think there's a lot of difference between a B-plus and a B-minus or a C-plus and a C-minus."

The change was challenged by Sue Learmont, member of the policy change committee, mother of two high school students and former teacher. She urged the board to maintain the five-point system rather than increase it to a 13-point system.

Many teachers, she said, use the pluses to say "great job" and the minuses to say "you're a little weak."

"I don't think it's fair, really, to have students begging teachers to give them a plus or minus," she said. "I really have trouble with this."

Speaking in favor of the change was another committee member and assistant principal at CHS, John Kirchgessner.

"For me it's going to be a lot more work but, frankly, I think it's more for the kids and gives them a little more incentive perhaps," he said.

Some board members said they would like to see specific guidelines for each grade if the change were made.

"You can't have a system that 60-plus teachers all agree with," said Kirchgessner.

The board directed the committee to present the proposed policy change at the November meeting for discussion again, with the vote of the board to take place at the December meeting. If approved, the switch to a 13-point system would probably not take place until the 1985-86 school year, Vaara said.

Tigers make mother proud

"After his second home run, he looked up to the stands and waved," she said. "We were just tickled with winning. A man sitting in front of us turned around and asked for our autograph. We were so tickled."

Obviously happy with the championship and her son's performance, Ms. Gibson still had something negative to say about the scene at Tiger Stadium.

After the game, the Gibsons waited for Kirk on a ramp leading to the upper deck and they could see the streets below and the mass of people.

"We could see a car on fire over the wall. It was scary," she said. "A man who looked like a security guard came by with his face all bloodied. It reminded me of the riots in Detroit. The field looked like a patchwork quilt. I didn't see many bad things on the field other than tearing up the field."

"I can't describe it but it's a funny feeling now that they've won it," she continued. "You're so hyped up, so excited for so many games that you're just too tired after they finally win it to do much. It's silly but Alan (Trammell) said it best at Kirk's house, 'They can't ever take this away from us.'"

Vandals strike

Fearing reprisals from vandals, especially around Halloween, an anonymous woman phoned The Clarkston News last week, angry that once again someone had stolen her mailbox.

"I don't want anyone to know who I am, because especially around Halloween I'm afraid they'll come back and do it again," the woman said.

"Parents need to know the seriousness of this crime. A police report is taken. It's a federal offense. Parents need to say something to their kids, who I'm sure don't realize just how serious it is."

Because it's a federal offense, such thefts are punishable by fine or imprisonment, according to Clarkston's Assistant Postmaster Emily Bliss.

Letters to editor

A vote for Kozma

We were awakened one night by a man who was tearing the screen off our bedroom window. Our phone and electrical lines had been cut, and the back door was gouged where an attempt was made to pry it open.

Two men were arrested on the scene. Eye witnesses testified, crime lab evidence was submitted, the tracking dogs were used, and officers testified—but still the judge felt it wasn't proven that these men were going to rob us because they weren't carrying boxes or pillowcases to carry our belongings in.

Also, even though the temperature was 60 degrees that night, the judge said maybe they wanted to get in to get warm.

That judge was Gerald McNally. Is this justice? What about the rights of the victim?

It's way past time to "get tough." But now we have the chance to elect someone who will see that justice is done.

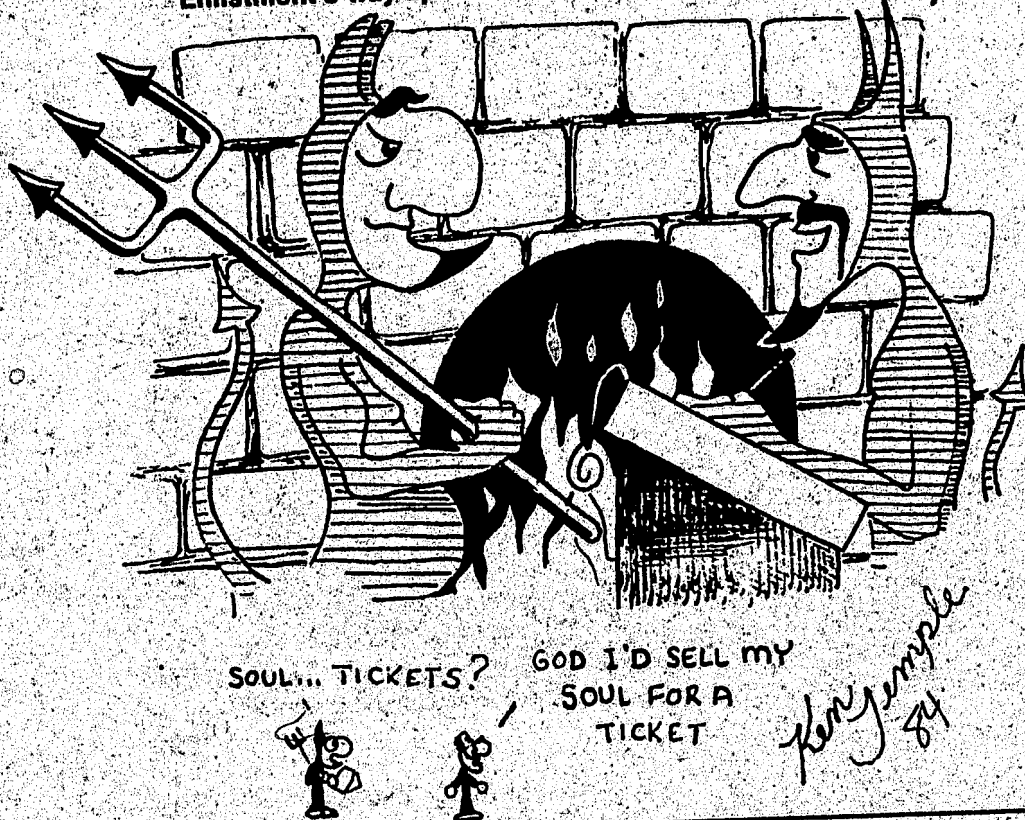

We're voting for Larence Kozma.

Mr. and Mrs. White

Success is theirs

Kathy Greenfield

Out on the 10-mile course set for the 1984 Walk for SCAMP, the walkers had but one thing in common—their determination to raise money for a good cause.

Some ran the distance, their hair soaked from the exertion on a day with high humidity. Others sauntered to the beat of rock music on giant jammers. Many wore small radios with earplugs. And a few brought their dogs—from golden retrievers to Yorkshire terriers—along for the exercise.

Then there were Steve Stewart and Curt Eckert. They carried a backpack loaded with a few of their favorite things, and stopped to reveal the contents: one large bottle of Pepsi, wine glasses for sophistication, a jar of olives, toothpicks, candy bars—and a hairbrush.

The about 670 walkers, and runners, were spread out along the marked trail, for they left Depot Road Park in Clarkston in waves, beginning at 10:30 a.m. and continuing through 12:30 p.m. Those hiking 10 miles headed north, those doing the three-mile walk headed east. By about 3:30 they were all back.

For their efforts, they received certificates, T-shirts if they had pledges of $100 or more, and hot dogs, chops and pop in the park.

Over 150 volunteers worked to make sure the walkers were safe and as comfortable as possible.

Members of the North Oakland Civitan club prepared and served food; Oakland County REACT, a CB club, kept an eye on the walkers out on the trails; Clarkston High School Mime Troupe members served as crossing guards and entertainers for the weary marchers; women's clubs at St. Daniel Catholic Church and the Clarkston United Methodist Church baked cookies distributed at check-in points along the way; co-chairpersons Mary Jo Griggs and Cec Wiar devoted hours to organization; and the list goes on and on.

Linda Irwin, who teaches art at SCAMP, was in charge of the Burma Shave-style signs tacked on trees along the way. About 10 different series offered gems of wisdom to passersby.

One on Holcomb Street captured the essence of the massive fund raiser embraced by Clarkstonites to provide an affordable five-week summer camp for their fellows with special needs:

Success is a ladder

In your pockets

Jim's Jottings

Belated goodbye to Fisher Body

Jim Sherman

Labor Day I was told Fisher Body related items were going on sale at the GM Tech Center in Warren.

It wasn't until then the full meaning of General Motors' reorganization came to me. Fisher Body was gone. Everything with Napoleonic coach trademark was put on the block. Employees first.

There was sadness in Harry Fahner's voice as he told of the demise of the company he'd worked for for 30 years.

His company, started by Fred and Charles Fisher July 22, 1908, was gone. In August a new sign, Chevrolet-Pontiac-Canada Group GM, replaced the familiar, colorful carriage.

Perhaps the demise was predictable with unitized bodies, wrapped and welded in assembly plants being the production method of the day. Too, GM had owned a portion of the company since 1919 and all of it since 1926.

Besides Harry there are 6,199 other Fisher Body employees who have been or will be re-assigned to other groups or division. New loyalties will have to be accepted, but it'll be tough getting up the spiiit for CPC after Body by Fisher.

The burial of Fisher Body was not without ceremony. A building-wide steering committee (there's always a committee), chose a laser-engraved wooden coach plaque to give to Fisher employees at Warren offices.

That's nice. But, Harry and a whole lot of others, sure liked that symbol attached to every GM car for 75 years.

With the elimination of Fisher Body you just know some jokes and cartoons would result. I've seen three cartoons, one of which shows Body symbol broken in four parts. Another has the Body delapidated with weeds growing around it with the CPC, not standing for Chevrolet, Pontiac, Canada, but Cheap, Practical Cars.

Then there's this one, titled: REORGANIZATION.

Don't miss local candidates' debate

Surveys constantly review why people vote as they do. Was the candidate's makeup correct during the televised debate? Did an issue capture the women's vote? Were TV ads effective?

As a voter it's not difficult to feel manipulated.

There is one area left, however, where voters can be informed through their own efforts. Where they can take advantage of an opportunity to be there and ask questions themselves—and not rely on those from journalists agreed upon by the Republicans and Democrats.

In small communities like ours the spirit of democracy lives on. Here the average person can telephone or visit the people who represent him or her. Here a political party is not as important as the person. Here lobbyists paid by special interest groups aren't big business.

On Monday, Oct. 22, the United Neighbors of Independence Township are hosting a "Know the Candidates" forum from 7 to 10 p.m. at Clarkston High in the school's Little Theatre.

Those invited to present their positions on issues like development, adult foster care and handling tax dollars include all Independence Township candidates plus those for the Oakland County Board of Commissioners and the state representative.

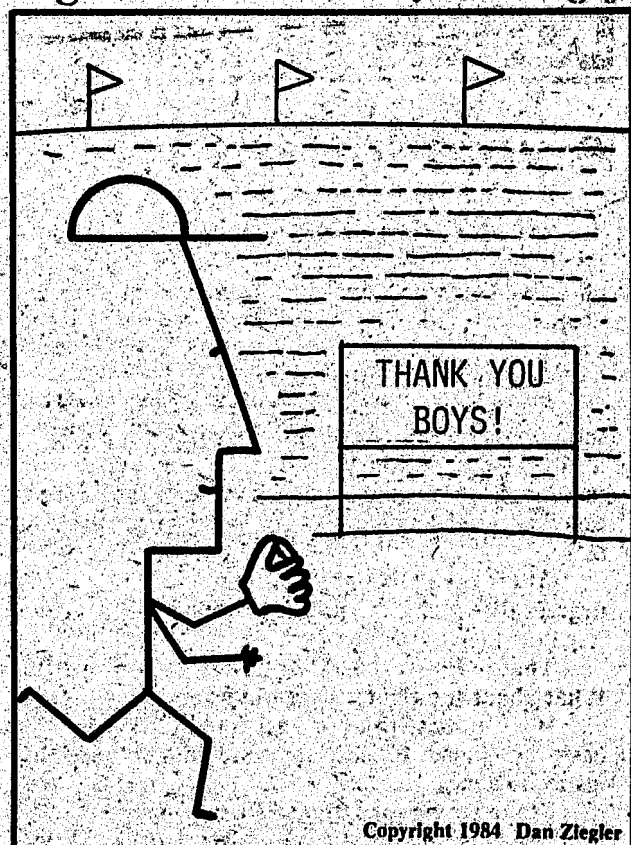

The candidates for 52nd District Court judge have been asked to speak on the sentencing of criminals and on drunk drivers.

And you'll be able to ask questions or listen to those presented by your fellow residents.

It's one of the last bastions of democracy as it should be—and an opportunity those who strive to be informed voters shouldn't miss.

On my soapbox

Spoil me rotten

Marilyn Trumper

Sunday night I watched TV in the living room of friends' historic home in downtown Romeo and toasted the Tigers' World Series victory with a cold Stroh's.

It was much different than my first World Series celebration 16 years ago.

But it felt very good.

Bless You Boys.

A week before, the red-jacketed Jamaican waiter shook out the white linen napkin and lay it across my lap.

Returning to the table he uncorked a red bottle of Cabernet, deftly pouring it into a fine-stemmed crystal glass.

Brown cork floated to the surface. I caught it on the end of my baby finger and rubbed it on a white linen napkin.

The wine was great.

Spoil me rotten.

Twenty-four hours at Mackinac Island's Grand Hotel during upper Michigan's color weekend was an overdose to the senses.

For guests, everything's taken care of.

All that's left to fend for oneself are the personal toiletries.

After 6 p.m. women wear skirts and men, ties and jackets.

After dinner, brandy is served in the richly decorated hotel lobby and a harpist entertains.

I wandered around the 98-year-old rambling white-columned hotel with the world's largest front porch like a kid with free rein at grandma's house, poking in closets, climbing stairs to empty rooms and touching all the vases and grandfather clocks. With a camera slung on my green poncho-covered shoulder I took off in the drizzle to explore the island.

First stop after serious chocolate-walnut fudge eating at Ryba's was the Pink Pony bar, an island institution, especially in the off-tourist season.

Only the island resident die-hards remained, watching the Lions play the Denver Broncos on the bar's 13-inch color TV.

We talked good winds and sailing, how warming Grand Marnier and Baileys are on a wet autumn afternoon and the pluses of being spoiled rotten.

Then for miles and hours I walked, taking pictures of the island's most flamboyantly-colored golden maples, crimson sumac and hot-orange oak.

Small boys riding bikes home from school wore their brakes out on the steep-hilled roads.

A hound dog followed my heels.

Lots of cottages were boarded up, empty until next spring.

And I dodged a lot of green road apples, courtesy of the island's horse-drawn carriages.

Over the years I've heard office desk drawers slam shut emphatically at 5 p.m. on a Friday, with its owner announcing he's heading up north for the weekend.

I always wondered at their delight.

I'd been up north.

It had been 16 years, but I'd been there.

What was the big deal?

Now I know.

Symbolism against Slickem

Jim Fitzgerald

At noon on Saturday, Oct. 20, a bunch of people will link arms and form a 6½-mile human chain on Eight Mile Road, between the Artillery Armory on the west side and the Light Guard Armory on the east side.

"It sounds like another one of your dumb, arms-control peace games, full of cute symbolism," my friend Ralph said. "They'll link arms between armories. That's pretty slick."

Sure. And the peace-game players will be linked for eight minutes. That's how long it would take for the first nuclear weapons to reach their targets in either the United States or the Soviet Union.

But do you know what's really slick? The Slickem. That's the cute nickname the Pentagon uses for its newest weapon, the SLCM — Sea-Launched Cruise Missile. Don't you just love it?

THE SUPER-SLICK thing about the Slickem, according to Sen. Charles Mathias, R-Md., is that it "will make future arms control agreements almost impossible." It will greatly decrease the danger of peace!

The Slickem is a comparatively small, low-flying, pilotless aircraft that can be fired from almost any kind of ship, from a submarine to a garbage scow, to deliver a powerful nuclear warhead to the Soviet Union from about 1,500 miles. Or maybe not.

The Navy is building 758 nuclear Slickems and 3,236 non-nuclear Slickems. They are all the same size, shape and color. The only differences are what's inside, so no one can tell whether a Slickem is nuclear or non-nuclear without taking it apart.

All strategic arms control negotiations with the Soviets have been conducted on the premise that verification — finding out if the other guy is telling the truth — would be made by satellite photography. There is no way for Soviet satellites to photograph the inside of a Slickem.

Is that slick, or what?

Thanks to the Slickem, according to Sen. Mathias, efforts to control the nuclear arms race may have reached "a point of no return." If he is right, we will no longer have to live in the fear that someday there will be no possible way to blow up the entire world during lunch hour.

IT IS ALL a war game, of course. Neither the U.S. nor the Soviets have any intention of ever playing for keeps. Nuclear stockpiles are for mutual deterrence only, and that's why no one should complain that there is no need for the Slickem because there is already a surplus of the nuclear weapons required to kill everybody everywhere.

But some people do complain. They decry the resources wasted on mutual deterrence. They fear reaching the point of no return. They worry about being deterred to death if someone lights a match in the wrong place. So, in response to war games, they play peace games.

"The Survival Line" is what the Detroit Area Nuclear Weapons Freeze organization calls the peace game to be played on Eight Mile Road Oct. 20. Its purpose is to focus attention "on the biggest issues this country faces as we look toward the elections: the full-throttle nuclear arms race, the danger of military intervention in Central America, and excessive military spending versus the needs of our people."

Any group or individual wanting to link arms in the Survival Line should phone 577-5053 between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. weekdays. It will be symbolism against the Slickem. It will be for your children and grandchildren. And it will be verifiable through satellite photography.

Support for Proposal B on ballot

The adoption of Proposal B on Nov. 6 to create the Natural Resources Trust Fund will have a significant impact on the future preservation of environmentally sensitive, and valuable scenic recreational land, in Oakland County and southeast Michigan.

The Oakland County Parks and Recreation Commission urges the passage of Proposal B to ensure the availability of state funds to purchase, protect and improve recreational and environmentally special acreage.

The Michigan Land Trust Fund (also called the Kammer Trust Fund for its sponsor, former state Sen. Kerry Kammer) was established to acquire and develop land for public use.

the fund is derived from leases and royalties on oil, gas and mining operations on state-owned land.

The Oakland County Parks systems has benefited from the fund with $387,000 recently awarded to acquire some 200 acres of environmentally sensitive acreage adjacent to Independence Oaks County Park near Clarkston.

But the trust is being threatened. It has often been "raided" with funds transferred for other state purposes.

The passage of Proposal B will assure that the trust fund earnings be used only for intended purposes including the purchase and/or development of land for public recreation.

The Oakland County Parks and Recreation Commission has adopted a resolution supporting Proposal B, urging Oakland County and Michigan voters to approve Proposal B on Nov. 6.

Vote for change

Last week the letter of one local pediatrician appeared in The Clarkston News attempting to defend his friend, the local judge.

His reason was the need for compassion in the handling of cases he said were "not" serious. But every case that goes to court, whether criminal or civil, is serious and important.

With the current judge, "compassion" has meant disregarding the injuries and sufferings of victims. "Compassion" has meant ignoring the rules we have established. "Compassion" has meant a disrespect for the judge and the law.

We need—we deserve—a change. Larence Kozma knows the rules must be applied with compassion, but compassion must not replace the rules. As a judge, Larence Kozma will restore the balance and respect to justice for all of us.

Larence Kozma, a district judge who will care enough about the rules, about kids who make mistakes, and about victims...care enough to be tough. We should all determine for ourselves the kind of community and the kind of judge we want.

New park makes her feel proud

I do believe I will have a chance to put that basket on my arm and picnic in the new Sashabaw Plains Park, for Thursday my husband and I drove through the park.

I had a feeling of pride when driving through the gate. On the left was the sign "Sashabaw Plains Park." This made me feel Sashabaw Plains will not be forgotten and the Plains will always be connected with Sashabaw.

Our Independence Township is represented there by the labor of the youth and the men who worked to make it a beautiful place.

Our country by the oak trees not cut down but left to grow.

Michigan—with all of this we have to "say yes to Michigan." Without Michigan this park would not be a part of it.

Mr. Doyle (Timothy Doyle, township parks and recreation director), I believe the people of Sashabaw Plains along with myself will be proud and enjoy your labors.

Carr helps out

Bob Carr gets my vote in November!

He listened and cared! He promised and delivered!

He helped get a light near the Waterfall-Harvard plazas (due the last of October).

He promised to get our area more money from Congress to help with widening Dixie Highway and he did ($12 million passed Congress the first of October).

Thanks, Mr. Carr!

Our problems are not solved on Dixie Highway but the wheel is moving.

We should all keep the Michigan Department of Transportation on their toes and see that Dixie is taken care of shortly. No more talk about having no money!

Applause for column debut

Dear Ms. Trumper:

Such an auspicious debut! I much enjoyed your Wednesday, Oct. 10, column. (I didn't even know girls were allowed to play softball in 1968.)

From my part, I was a junior in college, so busy that I didn't even watch the series! In any event, thanks for enlivening an otherwise dull paper—there haven't been any issues near and dear to my heart in the last several months.

In the meantime, you have my best wishes!

The $400,000 nature center at Independence Oaks County Park is finished on the outside but the interior work has yet to be completed. The modern building blends into the natural woodland surrounding and is set off the main roadway. Visitors must walk to the center.

At Independence Oaks

Nature center opening only months away

By Dan Vandenhemel

The nature center at Independence Oaks County Park is still some months from opening its doors to the public but display items are starting to pile up.

Park naturalist Kathleen Dougherty said she hopes to move into the center by late October or early November.

"The inside could be almost finished in about a month and maybe we could start setting up displays," she said. "Putting the exhibits together could take awhile, so the opening of the center is still up in the air. Maybe two, three, four months."

Half of the $400,000 for the nature center came from a federal Land and Water Conservation grant, the other half from the Oakland County Parks Capital Development Fund.

Janet Pung, of the Oakland County Parks and Recreation department, said the federal grant came through in October 1983 and construction began on the 4,000 square foot building that December.

The building's wooden paneling and large picture windows blend into the woodlands. It's behind the main thoroughfares inside the park, located on Sashabaw Road, north of Clarkston Road in Independence Township.

"We wanted it back here so it wouldn't be disturbed by people wanting to use the boat house or the beach," Dougherty said. "There's not going to be traffic going by."

The lack of outside noise should help one of the five exhibits planned for the center, an outside wildlife feeder with a viewing area from inside. Other displays will take advantage of the habitats around the building, the fields, the forest and the wetlands.

"We're going to have a children's discovery corner," Dougherty said. "The display will have a lot of interaction for the children where they have to find the answers to some questions."

"But I want to stress that the opening of the nature center isn't set yet. It'll be a couple of months. There's a lot of work to do to finish the inside and to set up the displays."

Springfield OKs eatery's liquor

A liquor license for a Springfield Township restaurant under construction was recommended for approval by the township board last week, pending final building and zoning inspections.

The restaurant, owned by Russ and Dorothy Elkins, is under construction but the major stumbling block could be two billboards on the property.

The board voted 4-1 at the Oct. 10 meeting, with Trustee William Whitley casting the lone "no" vote. "There are two rather large signs on Mr. Elkins' property and I feel before agreeing to approve, that the question must be resolved," Whitley said.

Elkins said he leased the property near I-75 to Golden Media Inc. and they put up the signs.

"I did not build the signs," he told the board. "I can't do anything about it right now. My lawyer said not to say too much. My hands are tied."

The state Liquor Control Commission makes the final decision on approval for the Class C license and the entertainment and dance permit.

Vote for Proposal B

by Timothy Doyle

Over the next couple of weeks you will be inundated with many good reasons why one should vote against Proposal C. You may find yourself, however, stepping into the voting booth Nov. 6 having heard very little about Proposal B and how it will impact upon your way of life.

Federal Land and Water Conservation funds have been the primary source of funding for all major park land acquisition and development in the township. The funds expire in 1989 and without them everything will come to a screeching halt, not only in Independence Township, but all over the state.

Proposal B is the most significant issue in the history and future of recreation in Michigan!

To further explore the importance of this proposal, I'd like to share the following article by John Greenslit, executive director of the Michigan Recreation and Park Association.

Timothy Doyle, director
Independence Township Parks and Recreation Department

Election Day, Nov. 6, will bring Michigan voters a unique opportunity to enhance its image as the nation's greatest recreation and tourism based state.

Proposal B will create, by Constitutional Amendment, the Recreation Land Trust Fund. It will extend the current Michigan Land Trust Fund, passed in 1978, into a perpetual program to utilize oil and gas revenues for recreation purposes.

Passage of Proposal B will prohibit Legislative and Administrative transfers and raids for unrelated purposes. This technique saw $6 million diverted to replace double bottom tankers in 1979, as well as two budget balancing transfers in 1980 and 1981 of $72.2 million. The latter virtually devastated the fund.

Adoption by the voters would leave the fund intact for its original purposes, as authored by former state Sen. Kerry Kammer. It caps the fund at $200 million, an increase of $50 million, with the balance going to the general fund.

The act is further strengthened by permitting funds to be used, not more than 25 percent, for orderly public recreation development in addition to the acquisition of public recreation lands. The bill, adopted by over two-thirds of the House and Senate, was a House Joint Resolution authored by Rep. Jerry Bartnik of Temperance and Sen. Paul Henry of Grand Rapids.

There are many implications reflected in endorsements of environmental groups, conservation and preservation interests, the Michigan Chamber of Commerce, governmental organizations representing townships, counties and municipalities, private interests, citizen groups, labor and public service organizations.

A successful vote sets into motion extensive public and private ventures on the recruitment of tourists and the retention of Michigan residents to enjoy the most outstanding recreational waters, lands and programs in the nation.

The coalition of support has recognized the potential spin-off of additional job opportunities as full utilization of the natural resources is maximized without endangering any of its fragile components.

A recent Department of Natural Resources spokesperson indicated that over 90 percent of tourism and daily recreation takes place on public lands and waters in Michigan. The dependence of small business on the daily and seasonal enjoyment of these resources can only be enhanced.

The issue, fully supported by the Michigan Recreation and Park Association, will lessen the dependence of Michigan on industry and agriculture for economic stability. The extremely unique bipartisan support in the legislature moved the issue to the ballot with minimal opposition.

The final step is voters' acceptance on Nov. 6. A vote "Yes on B" will be, in my opinion, a vote "Yes on Michigan." I ask for your "yes" vote.

John Greenslit

Board opposes ballot Proposal C

Citing "the far reaching and detrimental consequences for the educational program in this community" if Proposal C passes in November, the Clarkston board of education voted 6-0 to make its opposition public.

Superintendent Milford Mason prepared the statement he read to the board.

It included the following list of "harmful effects":

"1. Cancellation of school millage restorations made after 1981 by the Board of Education pursuant to the Truth in Taxation Law;

"2. The rollback of millage reinstatements made after 1981 pursuant to the Tax Limitation Amendment;

"3. The necessity to seek voter approval to reinstate millage levies already approved by the electorate;

"4. The difficulty the State of Michigan will experience in making adequate and timely school aid payments because of inability to borrow funds and a resultant increase in interest costs for local district borrowing."

Town celebrates Tiger victory

By Dan Vandenhemel

The Detroit Tigers are World Champions. The Tigers made it as easy to say as it was to do by downing the San Diego Padres, 8-4, in the fifth and decisive game of the World Series.

Over 51,000 fans jammed Tiger Stadium and many thousands more filled the streets surrounding the ball park.

But for those without tickets to the game, and those who didn't want to be engulfed by the crowds on Michigan and Trumbull, most televisions were tuned to the clinching game.

Spring Lake Country Club on Maybee Road had close to 30 people sitting around following a golf outing watching the game.

"The people were screaming and hollering," said assistant manager Lisa Braun-Clark. "We were hugging strangers. It was real exciting."

"The people were screaming and hollering ... It was real exciting."

That wasn't the only lounge to have its set tuned into the game.

Hooters Tavern in Ortonville had close to 100 people at its Tiger Party.

"We were packed in here," co-owner Marty McCarrick said. "The people went nuts; it was nuts all night. They started coming in about game time and stayed until closing."

Hooters had drink and food specials throughout the evening to celebrate the happening. But The Deer Lake Racquet Club had the famous "wave" going.

"Russ Inman was leading a drink wave," said hostess Sandy Sanford. "We had about 80 to 100 people and they were cheering and doing the wave. One person raised their glass, downed it, then the next person would do it and it went around the room."

Waterford Courts had a Tiger Weekend.

Drink and food specials started on Friday and continued until the series was won.

"It was real exciting in here all weekend," manager Terry Templeton said. "On Friday the people didn't want the entertainment to play because of the Tiger game. After the game (Sunday) we gave out noise makers. It was like New Year's Eve."

The parties on Dec. 31 will have a lot to do to live up to the Tiger victory celebration.

Mistakes help Pioneers tame Wolves, 16-0

By Dan Vandenhemel

The Wolves had a chance to ruin their opponents' homecoming festivities for the second straight week. But at Dearborn High School, winning is more than just an event, it's expected.

As the football team was busy putting away the Wolves, 16-0, Oct. 12, the loud speaker kept announcing other sporting event triumphs by the school. The cross country team, the field hockey team, the swimmers and the golfers were also big winners.

Meanwhile on the football field, little went right for either team. Each committed five turnovers and each had over 75 yards in penalties. The only difference was the score.

The Wolves crushed Waterford Mott last week, 47-7, to put a damper on their homecoming activities.

"We weren't very productive," Wolves' coach Walt Wyniemko said of the shutout. "They (Dearborn) did some things to stop us. Defensively we did some things to stop them."

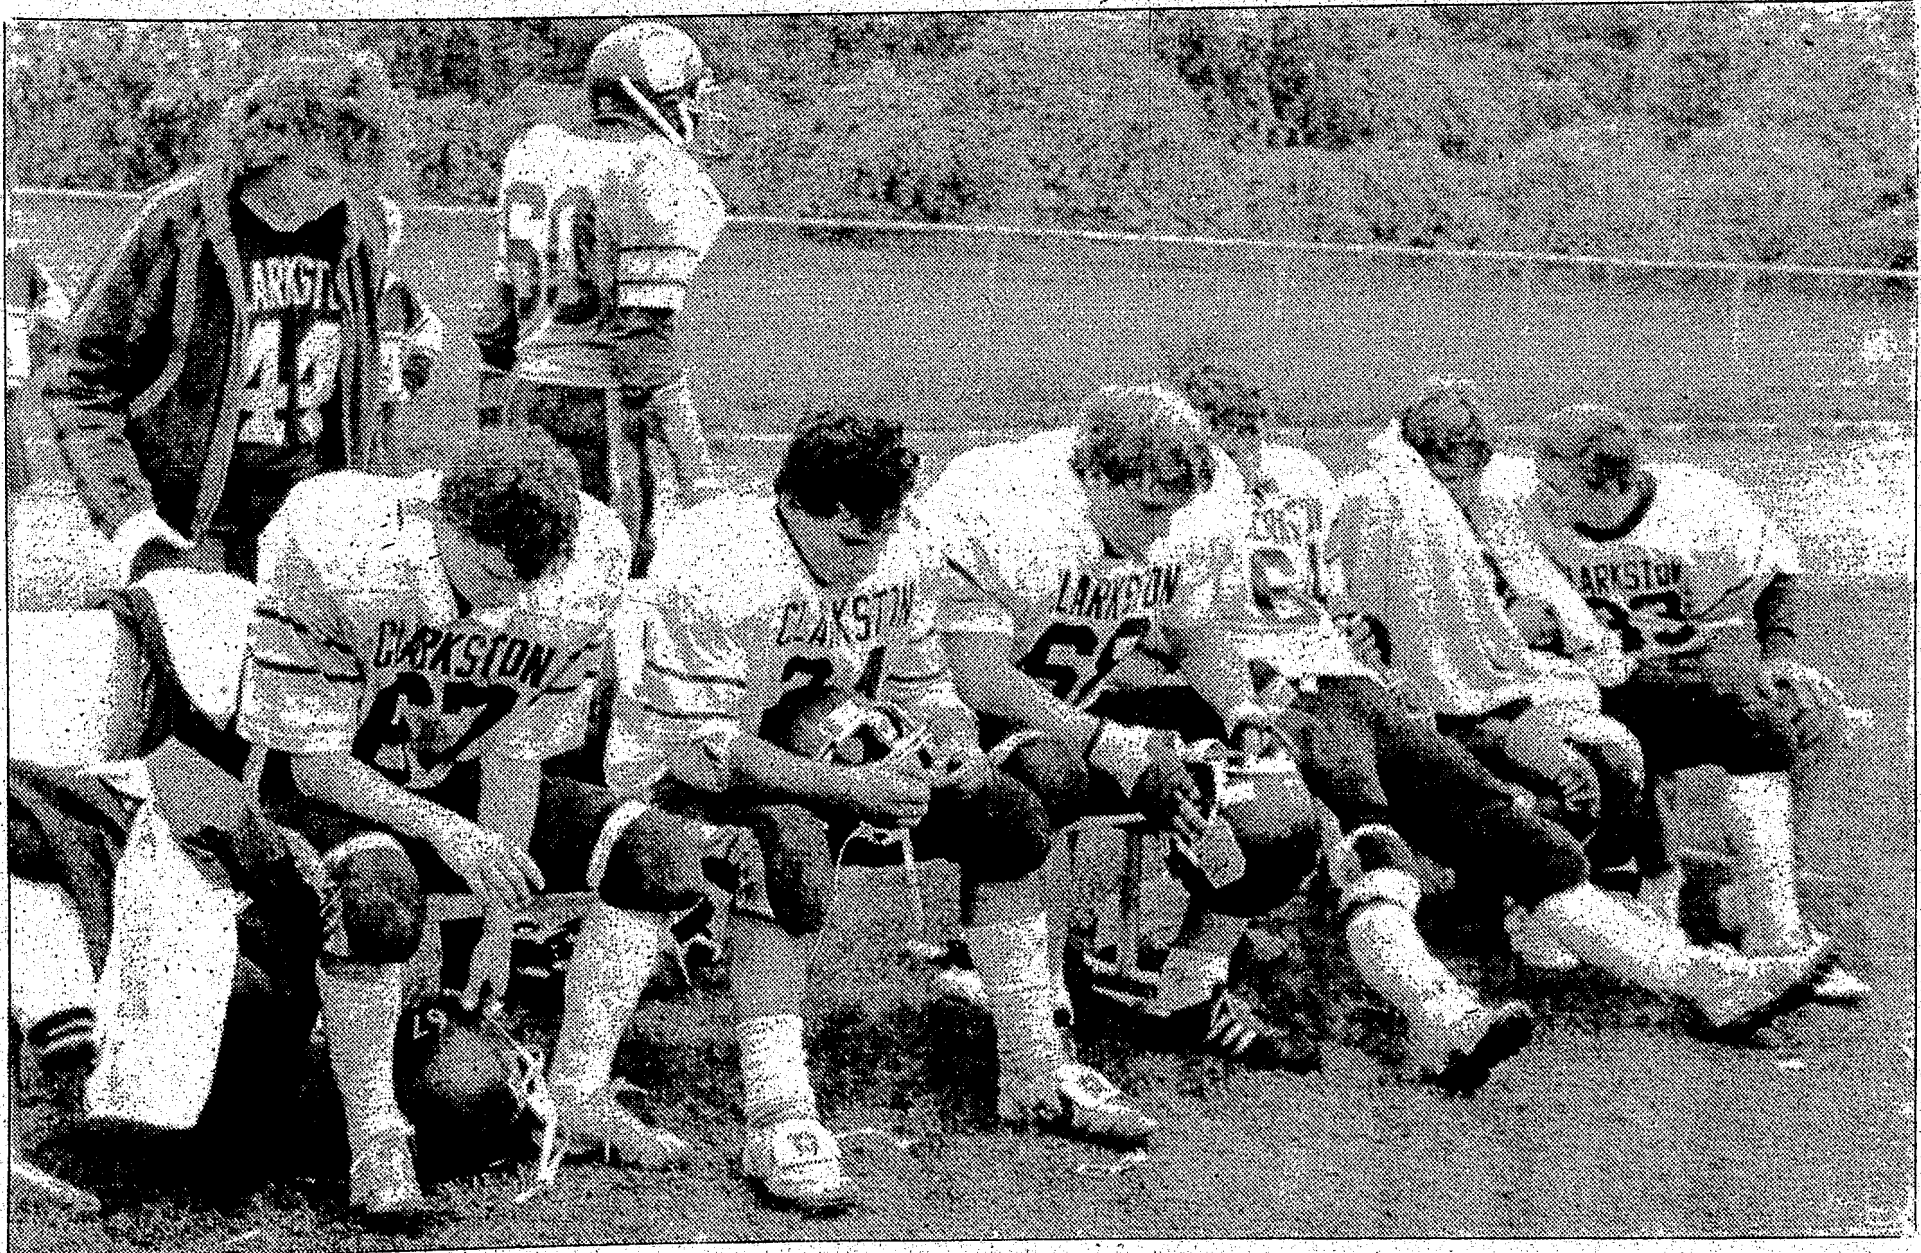

With the Greater Oakland Activities League Championship resting on the Lake Orion game next week, the Wolves might have been looking past the Pioneers to that game. Wyniemko said he refuses to believe that or that the drive to Dearborn had any effect.

"They (Dearborn) had to make the drive last year and we had to make it this year. I don't think that was the reason," he said. "We knew the importance of this game. We're just going to have to bounce back to win the GOAL title."

The defense played well and came up with some

Making mistakes and getting shutout takes a toll on the players. Some of the Clarkston varity football players sit on the bench just before the final buzzer and try to figure out what went wrong as the Wolves lose to Dearborn High School, 16-0.

Wolves win at home, again

By Dan Vandenhemel

The home court advantage means more to the Clarkston Wolves than most teams.

The girls' varsity basketball team has won all six of its games in the Clarkston High School gym and has lost four on the road.

The Wolves easily handled Avondale, 50-36, Oct. 11. Clarkston dominated the game from the opening tip-off.

Over four minutes ticked off the clock before the Yellow Jackets could get on the board. The Wolves led, 16-4, at the end of the quarter.

"We took control early, and took it easy after that," said Wolves coach Dave McDonald.

That control came by the way of hustle.

Bridget Kilcline gave the Wolves an early surge of power with some key rebounds and defense on in-bound passes. Michelle Taulbee supplied the offense with 14 first-half points and finished with 18. Kim Ottman and Laura Hurren each tallied 10 points.

"Bird (Kilcline) was sick last week and really gave us a boost," McDonald said. "Michelle played well, too. She had 12 rebounds to go with her 18 points."

This was the Wolves' fourth straight decisive victory. With a 2-0 record in the Greater Oakland Activities League, Clarkston and highly regarded Waterford Kettering are headed for a clash, Oct. 25.

"I would've like to play a couple of close games before Kettering."

—Dave McDonald

The Captains are undefeated this season and feature a balanced scoring attack. But before the Clarkston-Kettering game, the Wolves face Lake Orion. In the first meeting, Clarkston humiliated the Dragons, 60-24, Sept. 27.

"I would've liked to play a couple of close games before Kettering. We've won a couple by two, three points and we've lost a couple of one-, two-, three-point ball games on the road. But I think we're going to be all right."

Just another day at the office for the Wolves' Kim Ottman.

Golfers end 10-year wait for state finals

By Dan Vandenhemel

For the first time in 10 years, the boys' golf team at Clarkston High School has qualified for the state finals.

This Saturday at Forest Akers, the Michigan State University golf course in East Lansing, the fivesome of Gunnar Karlstrom, Rich Lay, Steve Willis, John Stapleton and Chris Hunter will compete with 23 other schools for the top honors in the state.

They qualified for the finals with a fourth-place finish, Oct. 12, at the regionals in Brighton. They shot a combined 18-hole total of 317, just ahead of Birmingham Groves at 319. Only the top four teams advance. The individual scores were Lay at 76, Karlstrom at 77, Willis at 80, Stapleton at 84 and Hunter at 86.

"This is the best team I've ever had," said coach Jim Chamberlain. "I was just an assistant coach under Doug Pearson when the boys qualified in '74. The girls qualified for the state finals in '75 and '76."

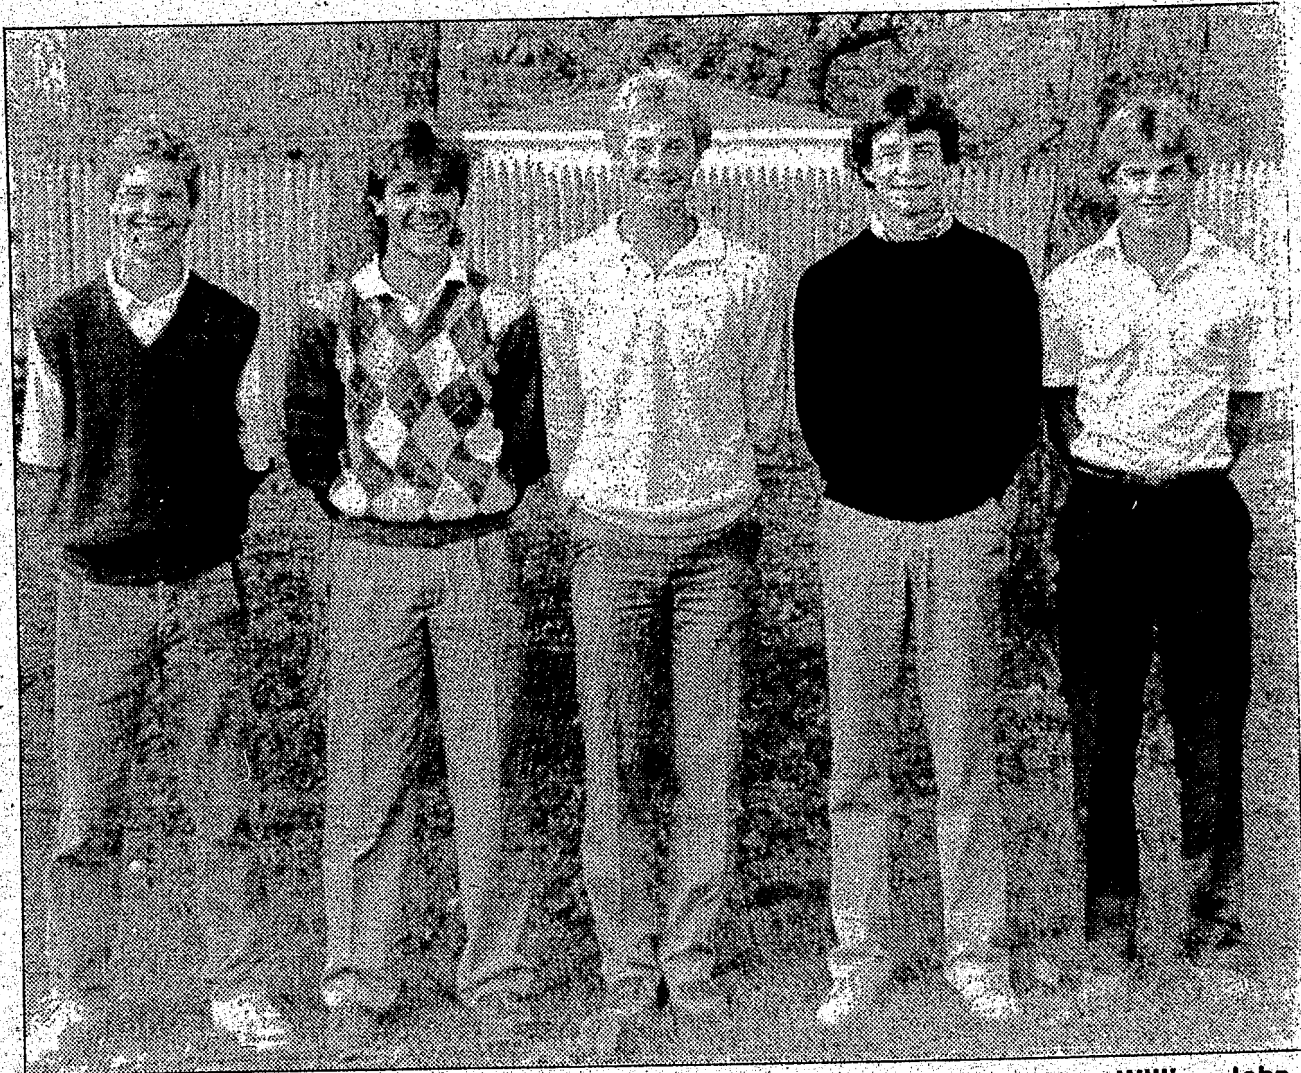

Chamberlain said this regional is one of the toughest in the state. And the scores proved it. Birmingham Brother Rice won the regional with a score of 293, West Bloomfield was second at 308 and Walled Lake Western finished at 309.

"There are smaller regionals and maybe only a couple of teams qualify," Chamberlain said. "I know one regional up north was won with a score of 340. Now I know the course could have been tougher or the weather could have affected the scores."

The Wolves came back three days after the regional to win the Greater Oakland Activities League meet and that title. They shot 303 with Karlstrom at 69, Lay at 73, Stapleton at 80 and Willis at 81 to outdistance the closest pursuers, Lake Orion.

"The final scores aren't in yet but I know we won," the coach said. "We had to beat Orion and we did."

That title tops off a very good season for the Wolves. They were 8-0 in league dual meets, 12-1 overall and eighth in the Oakland County meet Oct. 1.

One problem at a time

By Dan Vandenhommel

Fate has a habit of working its way into our lives. Some people don't believe in it while others will swear by it.

I'm one of those standing on the yellow line in the street. Fate, destiny, luck, it's all the same thing. Some have it, others can't buy it.

This all came into focus with a phone message last week. The registration office at Oakland University called and said my class schedule resembled the New York Times crossword puzzle.

Gasping for air, I thought the entire semester was shot down like Snoopy's famous Red Baron.

Somehow, the class number and the class section number didn't match up correctly. Anyone who has tried to fill out forms of grave importance can sympathize with how I felt.

When I was signing up for the courses back in September, I was looking at the class schedule for the exciting History of China, beginning through 240 B.C. I managed to get the correct class number down, but the section number matched Western Chinese Communications.

Since the beginning of the semester, I've been faithfully (well, almost) attending the History of China class. Now I find out I'm registered for the other one.

I would have never found out about the mix-up until the grades came in with a 0.0 mark.

As luck (there's that word again) would have it, the registration office found out because of the size of the class.

The woman in the office said her mother was in the Chinese Communications class and commented on how small the class was and that only one man was in it. The daughter knew the man and looked at the class list and saw my name also.

A quick check of my schedule revealed a problem and resulted in the helpful phone call.

Early the next morning I made a trip to the registration office to hopefully straighten out the snafu.

It only took five minutes to correct the slight problem which is strange in itself. Universities in general don't work that fast when it comes to paperwork tied together with red tape.

Now everything is fine with the schedule. I'm in the right class, at the right time, and the university has it on its computer.

Everything is fine except that 10-page term paper due in two weeks.

Girl grid stars

Close to 200 girls will be waging a tough battle on the Clarkston High School Football field.

The annual Powder Puff football game between the junior and senior classes is set for Saturday, Oct. 20, at 2 p.m.

The student government-sponsored activity opens Homecoming week activities at the school. The varsity football game against Avondale, Oct. 26, and the dance following conclude the week's festivities.

Tickets for the powder puff, flag football game are $1.50 for students and $2 for adults at the gate. The game isn't sponsored by the school athletic department so season passes will not be accepted.

JV girls earn 4th straight easy victory

By Dan Vandenhemel

The learning process created by junior varsity basketball is building up momentum at Clarkston High School.

The girls' JV team raised its record to 6-4 with another solid win, a 43-11 trouncing of Avondale. It was the fourth easy victory in a row for Clarkston.

"We haven't come within 30 points in the last few games," coach Larry Sherrill said. "We're playing pretty well right now but I don't know how good we are."

Sherrill said switching from junior high basketball to the high school level is a big change for most of the girls, even at the junior varsity level.

"When you get the two teams (Sashabaw and Clarkston junior high) it takes awhile for them to work together," he said. "You get to a point when they start to play better, when they start to gel."

The victory cakewalks have helped the Wolves by letting the bench players see a lot of court time. Against Avondale, Maggie Gdula lead the scoring with 13 points and Ruth Webb was next with seven. They played a little over half the game. In all, eight of the 13 players scored in the game.

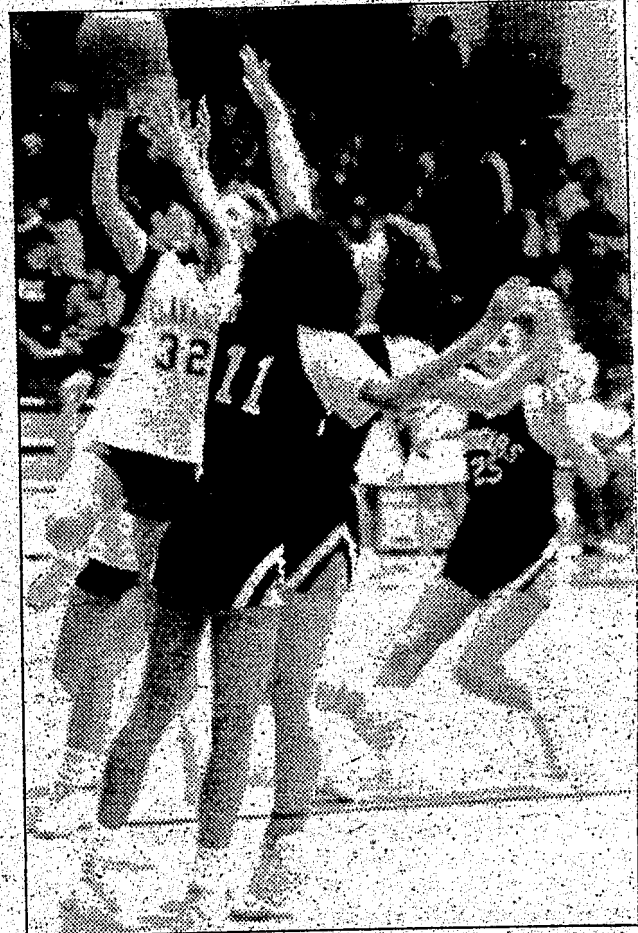

"It's great for morale because everyone is getting a lot of playing time," Sherrill said. "The starters are in the first half and that's about it."

Lisa Ladd and Missy O'Dell have also been playing well this season.

"Missy came back from two ankle injuries and helped in the middle quite a bit," the coach said. "The guards Maggie and Lisa have played well."

"I told the girls that they are better than they think they are. The Milford game, (Sept. 10) when we came from behind to win by three, gave the girls the idea how good they can be. I thought they'd be about .500; that's my goal."

The battle under the boards is strong between rivals Clarkston and Sashabaw junior highs.

Cougars grab close game

By Dan Vandenhemel

Both coaches agreed, so did the officials. The girls' basketball game between Sashabaw and Clarkston junior highs was one of the best they've seen.

The Cougars came out on top, 39-35, Oct. 13, against the rival Wolverines but the excitement never stopped.

The lead changed hands numerous times, with the largest margin only four points except in the final minute when Sashabaw was on top, 39-34. The game was played in the Clarkston High School gym rather than on one of the smaller junior high courts.

"I thought both teams played very, very well," Cougar coach Nancy Foster said. "I think the big floor helped. There weren't all the fouls, the jump balls or the turnovers."

"I expected a tough game. We're pretty evenly matched."

The high scorer for the Cougars was Renda Beck with 12 points and nine rebounds. Jackie Patrick followed with 11 points and 10 rebounds, and Stacey Shurtz had eight points and 13 rebounds. Chris Castillo ran the offense most of the night and set up many of the scoring plays.

For the Wolverines, Michelle Baker pumped in 16 points, with most of those long range shots. Shannon Kileline tallied another 10 points.

"I think they all played well, Baker, Kileline, (Kristy) King, (Kathy) Lamphere, all of them," Wolverine coach Dennis Bronson said. "We played pretty well overall. I think this is the best game the two schools have played against each other."

The Wolverines are now 2-6 and the Cougars are 6-3. Clarkston has lost its last six games.

"It's a hard loss to take," Bronson said. "I fully expected to win. From what I heard about them, I thought we'd win. The girls really needed this one. They worked hard for it."

Consistency marks netters

By Dan Vandenhemel

Consistent is the best description of this year's girls' tennis team at Clarkston High School.

The Wolves finished with a 6-6 dual meet record, placed second in the league meet to Lake Orion and all of the players finished near the .500 mark.

"We played pretty good. It was a fine season overall," said coach Dick Swartout. "Everyone was either 8-7 or 7-8 with all the matches we've played."

The season ended for the Wolves at the regional meet, Oct. 12. The final results won't be in until later in the week but the Wolves are far down the list of 11 teams.

Coreen Hummel recorded the only two points for the Wolves with a victory in the second round against Lisa Clark of Lake Orion.

"We got some pretty bad seeds," Swartout said. "Most everyone had a bye in the first round and had to face top seed players in the second. We probably finished in ninth or tied for 10th. I know a one or two teams were shutout."

"Everyone was either 8-7 or 7-8 with all the matches we've played."

—Dick Swartout

The league meet was a different story as the Wolves beat Waterford Mott for second place by one point. Lake Orion ran away with the meet with 18 points. Clarkston had 10 and Mott nine, with Pontiac Northern in last place.

Again Hummel in the No. 2 singles led the way for the Wolves by reaching the finals before losing as did the No. 1 doubles team of Mia Graversen and Cindy Hewitt.

"Daisy Red was the deciding factor for us finishing in second," Swartout said. "She beat Kim Dorr of Mott, 6-7, 6-3 and 11-9. They were playing for almost three hours."

The season's awards have gone out and senior Kristin Tiaht came out the big winner. Besides being voted the Most Valuable Player by her teammates, she received the Craig Award for the senior with the most tennis talent, scholarship ability and leadership. Previous winners are Jenny Kithil and Mary Smith. Graversen, an exchange student from Denmark was voted the Most Improved Player.

Wolves tamed

timely turnovers. Rob Newblatt picked off two passes and Erik Kline grabbed one to stop drives. Tom Ruelle and Chuck Stein each jumped on a fumble but five of the Wolves' passes were caught by Dearborn defenders to even the miscues.

"Our whole defense played well but we were unable to move the football," said the coach. "We were always half-step away but couldn't do it."

The loss dropped the Wolves' record to 4-2 overall while Dearborn came up to 4-2.

The Seer

Found in the Clarkston News mailslot Monday morning...

Seer here. I'm sure there are no more doubters to the all-knowing seer. It wasn't tough at all predicting what the Wolves would do against Dearborn. You hose heads came through just as I expected. You're not supposed to win playing teams out of your class—and you didn't.

With teams like Waterford Mott and Kettering you guys can be competitive if not dominating. You needed outstanding performances to defeat Dearborn. The defense played well enough, but oh that offense. This week's opponents, Lake Orion aren't as good as Dearborn but they're close. Read on for details.

Clarkston at Lake Orion (Oct. 19): Fortunately for Clarkston, they came down to reality with the latest loss. That might wake them up to realize teams aren't going to lie down for them; Dearborn didn't and neither will the Dragons. The game is for the GOAL championship and it is on the Dragons' home turf. No question the two teams will be pumped up for the contest.

The Wolves' defense will undoubtedly keep the game within reach for the shaky offense. Lake Orion is still undefeated in six tries. That can be misleading because of the opponents. But in any case, they are a good football team—just a bit better than the Wolves. The score will prove it. Lake Orion by four.

Plains park officially open

15 acres available for play

After two years, Independence Township officially opened Sashabaw Plains Park on Maybee Road, east of Sashabaw.

The 15-acre park was bought with $125,000 in community development funds, and was designed with soccer and softball fields, a picnic area, playground and parking lot, according to Timothy Doyle, parks and recreation director.

"Although, we won't be allowing any soccer playing until next year," said Doyle, adding that area's just been seeded and isn't ready for use. "The goals aren't even in yet. But the softball field is ready and if someone wanted to use that, they could. The backstop's in."

The park is open to township residents, and is free.

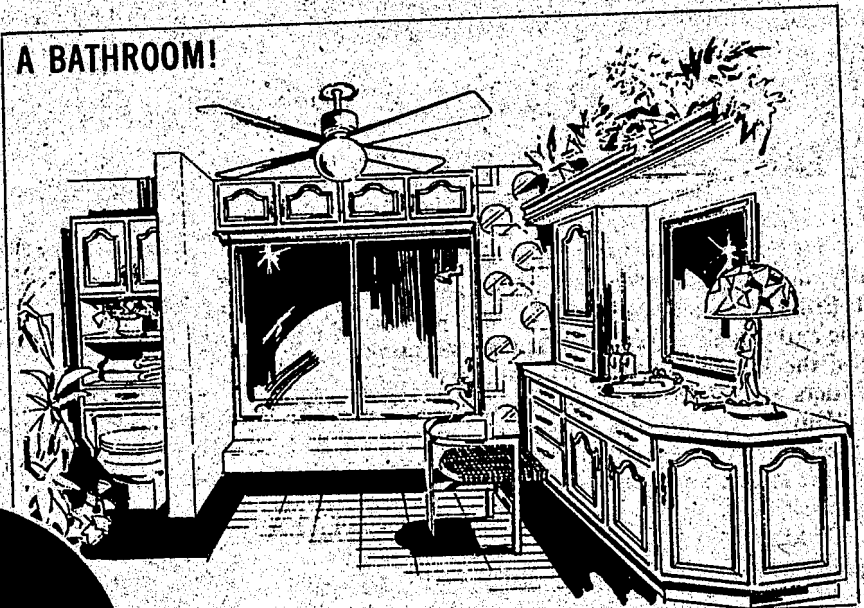

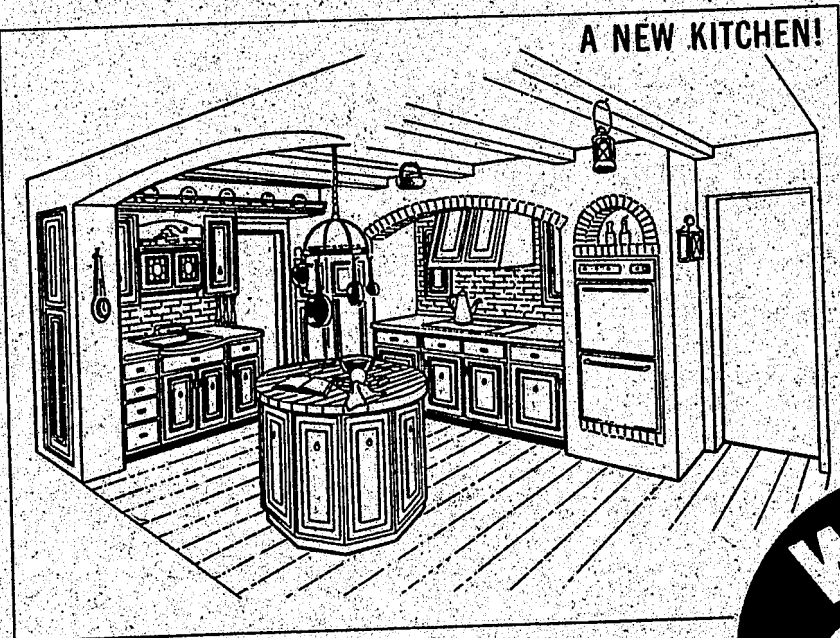

Playground equipment, a slide and climbing bars, was scheduled to arrive last week but hasn't, Doyle said.

"When it arrives, we'll put it in," he said. "Basically, this is a neighborhood park designed for the use of the people who live around it, although if someone wanted to drive from other areas of the township and use it, they can."

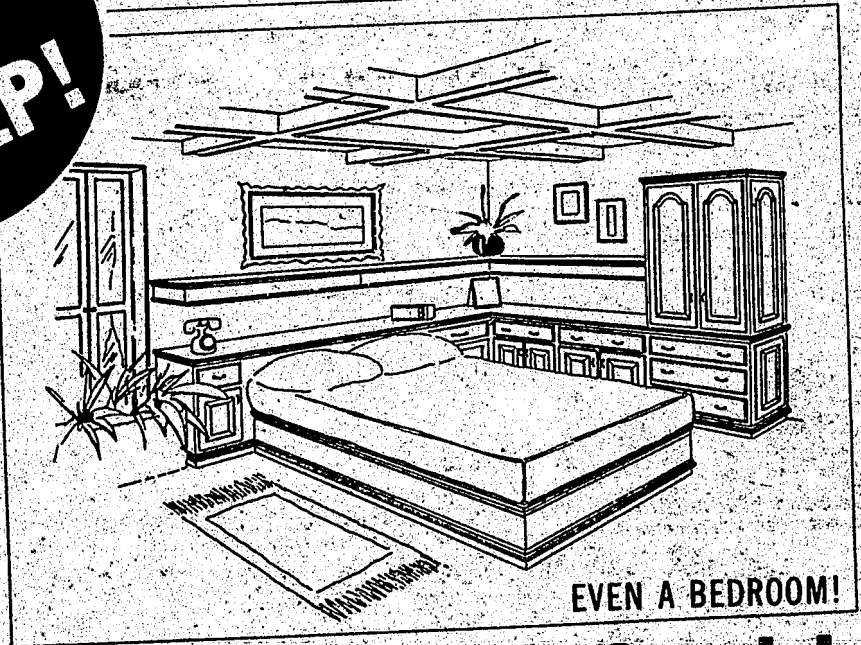

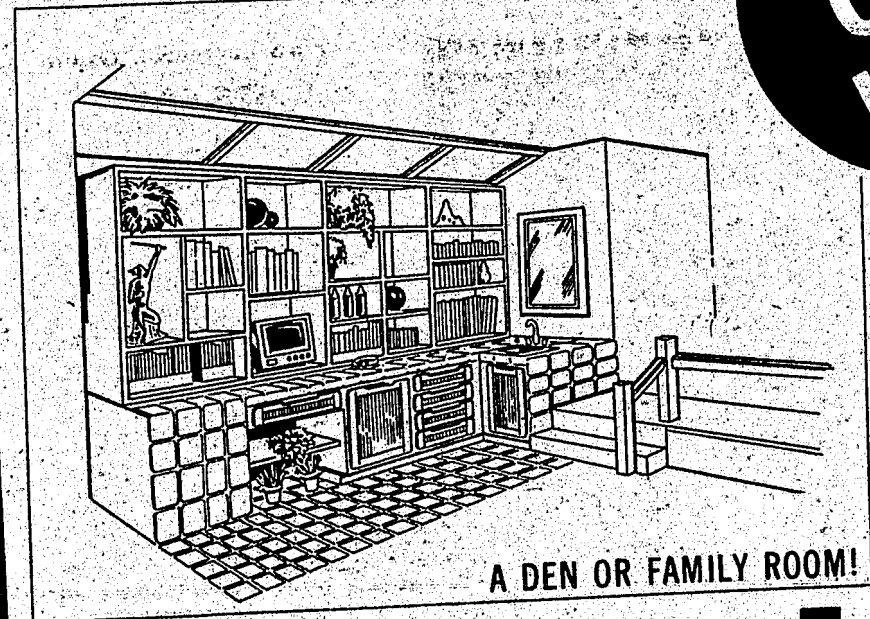

It's expected to be open and operating at full capacity by the first of next June, Doyle said.

Its opening was marked with a ribbon-cutting ceremony the afternoon of Oct. 15.

Lutz: construction background, understands business

I have many I can bring to the treasurer's position. I have construction background, and I understand small business. I pay small business taxes, and I understand that area well."

According to Lutz, the treasurer's job "...is the easiest of all full-time positions."

"There's not a lot to know. You send out the tax bills, invest the money properly. This is why the treasurer is usually appointed to different committees. He has more time."

The issues in this election, says Lutz, are many. "One really no one has talked about much is long-range planning. Independence Township is worried about the M-15 corridor and the Sashabaw corridor. They could be major highways in the next 10 years, and I think they will be," he said.

"It's the same with the planning commission. They have to decide where businesses will be located. Do we want more houses developed? That might mean more schools. It's good we're looking at it now."

Second, Lutz points to adult foster care homes. "I do work for them," he said, referring to his wall-printing business that decorates the homes. "I understand them well. We need those homes in the community. It's everyone's duty to support them. They give better care than the institutions. It's sad to see someone 21 years old who's lived with their family signed over to the courts at that age."

"Where are they going to live? In an institution after living in a family situation? People accustomed to family life can't go to an institution."

But Lutz agrees many residents of group homes come from institutions and experience independent living for the first time.

"They (the state) are not going to put them in if they're too wacky. If they are, they're not going to be in a home," he said.

"But I don't think we should flood the area with them, and I do agree the township is doing the right thing. The figures submitted by UNIT were impressive as far as concentration goes."

"We have to be sure the state knows what it's missing as far as concentration. The Department of Mental Health has no idea what the Department of Social Services is doing. Their maps don't overlap, and that's what they need to do."

Lutz points to police services.

"I think we're understaffed. We have problems with drugs and alcohol abuse and teenagers," he said. "It's hard to patrol all that with one officer on duty. We're not going to solve it with one officer."

But, says Lutz, "...It's most logical for us to stay with the Oakland County Sheriff's Department for police. I live near a beach where there are teenagers smoking reefer and drinking beer at an age when their brain is developing at its maximum. I hate to see that."

Finally, he points to the relationship between the fire department and the current administration.

"It seems we have the money to make improvements needed," Lutz said. "But we have to work with the budget."

Ritter: Enjoys community involvement, helping people

"Since 1978 as treasurer I've earned $2 million in interest for the township and I enjoy the challenge of making the township's money work for the citizens. And singularly, the greatest challenge was putting together some long-term investments that will permanently erase the need for the very unpopular sewer ad valorem tax. Its (invested) rate is locked in for the next 16 years and will satisfy any cash deficiency on the future sewer bond payments."

Finally, said Ritter, "It's great to help maintain the fiscal integrity the township has always had. As a member of the township board I've worked hard to be an independent voice representing a common-sense point of view. I think the township's benefited from my actions on the board, because I express views that might not otherwise be represented."

"I think I'm accessible and approachable and I think I listen to their comments and concerns, and I speak for them. And," said Ritter, "I want to continue to do that."

According to Ritter, there are a number of issues. "I'm really interested in going through the fire study and implementing the recommendations made by the fire consultants," he said. "We're expecting to hold a study session at the end of the month to do just that. I think it's exciting coming from an independent consulting firm who is completely void of any personal or political input. And I think the township is going to benefit from that."

Secondly, Ritter points to adult foster care homes.

"I don't know that it's any longer an issue. The township has taken its position formulated by me and a couple of other board members. It's going to do what it can with it," he said.

"We fought and lost the battle of self-government and self-determination with the state. We've been dictated to by the State of Michigan. Fortunately the people from UNIT presented us with a fresh angle to pursue, and that is the concept of excessive concentration."

Ritter says he approves the concept of foster care homes.

"I agree with the need, but I believe every community should share the burden. And I also agree with the fact that we are currently carrying our own weight. It's time some other community picks up the slack."

Thirdly, Ritter points to Proposal C, the state proposal to roll taxes back to 1981 levels.

"It's not so much a local issue as it is a state issue, and perhaps it's needed," he said.

"But if anyone here is concerned about services, and the level of government services, I think we're going to be innocent by standards of carrying the brunt and impact of the proposition if it passes. So even if it isn't a local issue, it has heavy negative local implications," he said.

Finally, Ritter says one of the reasons he is seeking re-election, is to finish projects underway.

"I'd like to see some things come to pass that I've been involved with, but have not been completed, like the safety path, the development of 80 acres next to Clintonwood park, the M-15 road improvements, and assisting homeowners in the paving of their streets and subdivisions," he said.

"I want to do whatever we have to do to maintain our level of fire service, whether it's with new employees or a new fire hall, and see us come to some sort of local cost solution for police protection."

Said Ritter, "As far as police protection, I support the millage on the ballot and I urge everyone to vote for it."

A high-five home plate greeting for Kurt Gibson following his first home run Sunday. The greeting bigger and more exciting on the second.

Love those Tigers

The excitement, the noise, and the joy that went on in Detroit Sunday night was something to behold.

This happening didn't start at night, really. It was going on less openly since the Detroit Tigers won the American League pennant, built during the World Series, then exploded with the final out of the fifth game.

When we arrived at the game with our hosts, Jim and Pat Fitzgerald, cars and vans decorated for the occasion greeted us. Sidewalks were filled with non-game goers. Hawkers were everywhere. It was wall to wall everything. As a parking lot attendant said, "Welcome to the zoo."

The San Diego Padres were being introduced as we took our seats, second row, second deck, just to one side of the backstop.

After each player's name, the stands responded, "Who cares?"

There seemed to be a different response for each Tiger introduced. Lou Whitaker was "Lou, Lou, Lou". Kurt Gibson, "Yeah Gibby." Lance Parrish, "La-aaaannnce."

But, the loudest shouting at one particular player came in the eighth inning toward Goose Gossage. Over and over came the yell, "Goose Buster".

And, didn't it just happen. Lance Parrish and Kurt Gibson busted the Goose wide open.

Throughout the game over 51,000 fans did the wave in three motions, slow, medium and fast. In the eighth inning a dozen vendors raised their empty Styrofoam boxes over their heads and ran halfway around the stadium.

Frequently the bleacher and other sections got into a shout-off with the Miller Lite beer commercial. . . "Less filling" one group shouted, "Tastes great" was the return. This contest continued later in the Bricktown Bar and Grill in downtown Detroit, as did the wave. Even single tables did the wave.

The game was everything a hometown fan could ask for. There was great pitching by Aurelio Lopez and Willy Hernandez, big hitting by Gibson and Parrish, close plays like Padre speedster Alan Wiggins being cut down at the plate, and there was tremendous crowd support.

Needless to say, that same support was outside on the streets. Leaving the second deck, we looked out over the scene. It was solid people except for an area close to the stadium cordoned off by police cars.

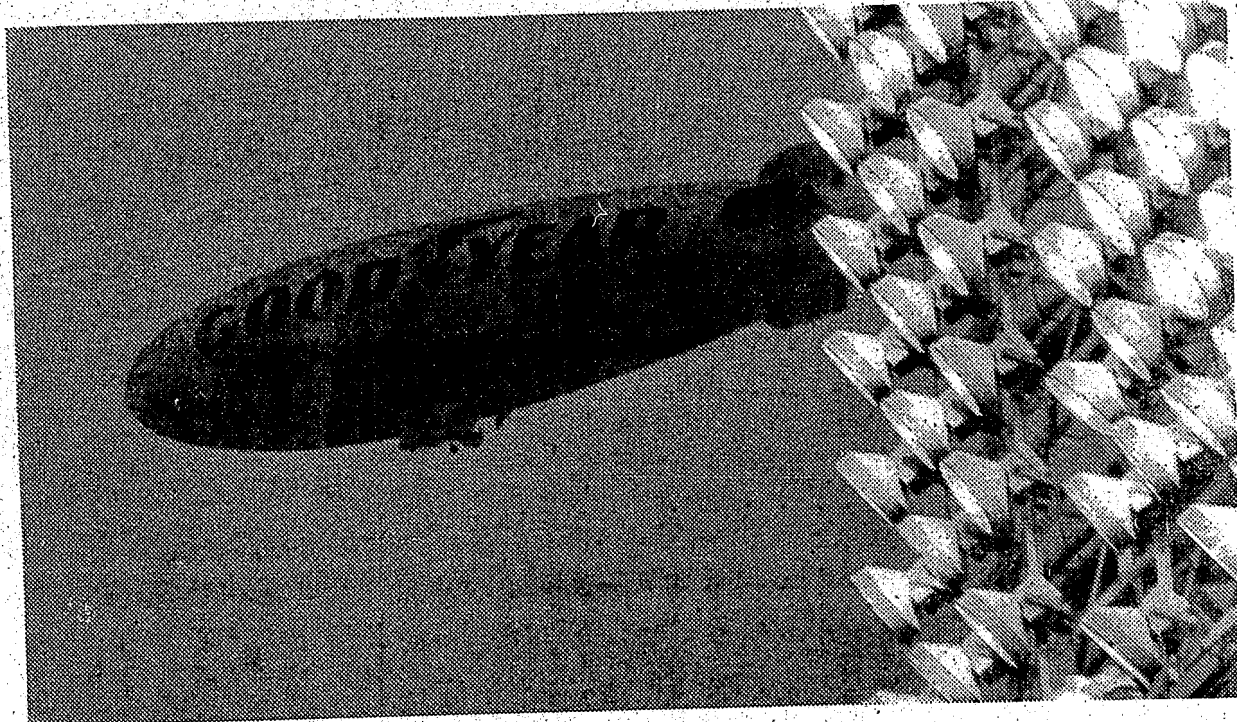

Yelling, whistling, laughing, arm waving baseball fans rocking a Tiger-painted van, pouring beer, waving pennants, and having a great time.

It was in no way frightening, everyone was too happy right after the game. The fact that it started to rain rather hard five minutes after the last catch didn't slow the celebration.

The fans continued their fiesta far away from the stadium. Some were still riding on the hood and trunk of Fitzgerald's car four blocks away. Two and a half hours after the game the Greektown area and fringes were filled with horn honking, yelling, still excited fans.

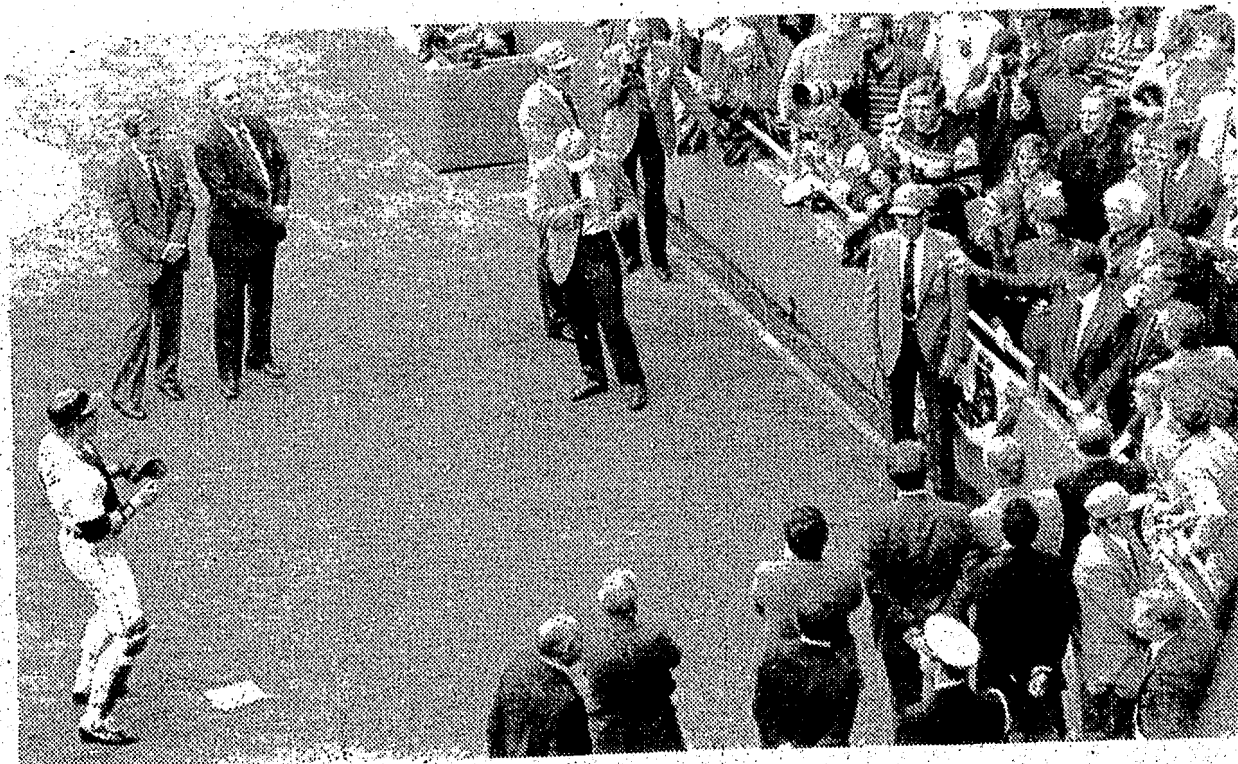

It was the Tigers' first World Series championship since 1968.

We're looking forward to the next one in 1985.

3 school employes win awards

Work above and beyond the call of duty won three Clarkston school district employes praise, certificates and engraved Cross pens.

The awards were presented at the Oct. 8 board of education meeting to Suzanne Kiser, a teacher at Sashabaw Junior High School; David Blehm, system maintenance director for the district; and David Campbell, head custodian at Clarkston Junior High School.

SJHS Principal Gus Birtsas nominated Kiser for the award. Birtsas praised her work in developing a new program for gifted ninth-grade students that includes working with adult mentors in the business and professional community. Kiser devoted many hours of her own time, Birtsas said.

The students will work every other week for three hours with a mentor in their chosen area of interest.

"A program such as this is not created in a vacuum. You need the community and the parents," said Kiser on accepting her award. "On behalf of everyone, I'd like to thank everyone very much."

CJHS Principal Duane Lewis nominated Campbell, praising his volunteer work on Saturdays to build sets for plays, chaperone dances and repair equipment. Lewis also cited his work on energy conservation measures that "resulted in significant financial savings to the district."

Said Campbell: "I really do appreciate this, because a lot of us really do work hard and we don't get any recognition. We really couldn't do it without the fantastic administrative staff we have here and the staff at the junior high."

Administrative Assistant William Dennis nominated Blehm for extending himself "far beyond the normal work day without regard to financial compensation" while three major construction projects were underway at Clarkston High School this summer.

Blehm kept his acceptance speech short, with "Thanks a lot."

They're the first district employes to receive praise under the new employee recognition program adopted by the school board earlier this year.

In addition to nominations to a committee that selects employes for special recognition, the program includes pins and watches for longevity and a retirement banquet at the end of each school year.

Station grows

The Union 76 Service Station at Maybee and Sashabaw roads will soon have more than gas—it's remodeling into a convenience food store.

At its Oct. 11 meeting, the Independence Township Planning Commission gave the gas station special use permission to expand.

According to David Donnellon, architect for the Dandy Oil Co., station owners, they'll pull a building permit in 10 days with work expected to be finished in 90 days.

"Once finished it will be a convenience store," Donnellon said. "With bread and milk, pop, toiletries and a few canned goods."

Substitutes land pay raises

Substitute teachers in the Clarkston school district will now receive $40 a day and $50 a day for long-term assignments, up from $35 a day.

According to Assistant Superintendent Mel Vaara, the increase will make the district's substitute pay "somewhat consistent with what's happening in this portion of Oakland County" and put Clarkston slightly above the average of $38.75.

The change is expected to cost about $17,000 annually.

The board voted 5-1 at the Oct. 8 meeting to approve the raises. Carolyn Place cast the lone "no" vote.

"I am opposed, not because of the increase, but rather the increase is not enough," she said. "My belief is it should be $50 and $75 for those on duty more than 10 days."

The board had discussed paying more and defeated a motion to set the rate at $40 and $60.

First-year full-time teachers in the district make about $77 a day, not including benefits.

Samples of masks on two of her Lake Orion art students surround teacher Candy Garbacz. Marae Bird [left] wears an Indian headdress and Kurt Cocking wears a Hopi-style creation. Garbacz will conduct a class on mask-making and Halloween lore Saturday at Independence Oaks County Park.

Make masks at park

She shares Halloween legends

By Joyce Bonesteel
Special to The Clarkston News

When Candy Garbacz was a little girl dressing up for Halloween, she used makeup—lots of it.

"We used to live in the city, and that was my chance to really dress up and get away with wearing a lot of makeup," she remembers.

Today Candy still celebrates Halloween. As an art teacher, she helps young students and adults learn all about masks.

Now that Oct. 31 is near, she's sharing her skills with art students in Lake Orion schools and with the public at a program Saturday, Oct. 19, at Independence Oaks County Park. It starts at 7 p.m. and costs $1.50 plus the park vehicle entry fee. To register, call 858-0903.

Candy knows the history of disguise, whether the tradition is native American or ancient Egyptian, and she helps others understand reasons why masks have been worn throughout the centuries.

Americans follow a tradition based on an ancient Celtic belief, she says.

"On the night before All Hallows Eve (All Saints Day), witches, ghosts and imps could do all their mischief-making until they were quieted at dawn by the spirits of the saints.

"Later people didn't want to be recognized during Devil's Night when they were up to pranks, so they wore masks."

"Masks were used to imitate animals, and to capture their spirit . . ."

But there are many other reasons for disguise, and they vary according to country and culture.

"Early man wondered about the world around him. Unexplained phenomenon and origins of life must be explained in some way—such as spirits," Candy explains.

"Animals had powers that men didn't, such as flying or running swiftly. Masks were used to imitate animals, and to capture their spirit so they could perhaps become part of that spirit."

In Ariege, France, cave pictures depict men wearing animal skins and heads for ceremonial dances, or to frighten dangerous animals, Candy notes.

From the Stone Age until today, ceremonial masks have been used in Alaska, the Cape Horn and the Congo, she adds. Materials include wood, animal skins, fur, metal, shells, stone, corn husks, bark, cloth, feathers . . .

The Hopi Indians were mask-makers attempting to transform personalities from another person, animal or spirit.

Some masks were worn for protection, such as the Tlingit Ho Indian warriors, who used wooden helmets with visors and yolks, Candy explains.

"And they believed all things, especially animals, had special spirits. They carved fantastic masks of wood—some with movable parts—to help identify themselves with these spirits."

Masks have been used for entertainment in plays and carnivals, and to help actors portray other characters. The two famous faces of comedy and tragedy originated in Greece.

Eskimos wore rawhide masks, shaped like faces with holes for the eyes, nose, and mouth, and decorated them with a bright spot of paint which allowed a spirit to enter, according to Candy.

"Alaskan Eskimos believed the world is filled with many spirits, including the spirits of elements; the wind, sun and moon."

She tells about the Iroquois masks made of corn husks, and twisted faces carved from basswood.

The twisted face mask legend began with an argument between the Iroquois Maker and the leader of False Faces. Both wanted to control the earth.

Halloween as we know it in America today is based on a high level of commercialism and children wear masks to enjoy trick-or-treating.

Fortunately, knowledgeable people like Candy Garbacz are around to share the legends and traditions of disguise.

... within the inkwell A busy fall

by Mary Ellen Hanson and Pat Mac Arthur

Editor's note: "Within the Inkwell" is designed to follow the progress on reports about Clarkston schools for North Central Association, the organization that grants accreditation to school districts.

Dear Pen Pal,

It certainly has been a busy fall! The first week of school I discovered our North Central external visitation team was due to arrive on Oct. 30, which was earlier than we anticipated.

Consequently, we are on a very tight schedule. However, I wanted to make sure that I let you know what is going on with our preparations this fall.

First of all, most of our reports are completely finished. All of our objectives needed to be updated. This task is formally done every seven years because it is such a time-consuming undertaking that many teachers find little time for it in their daily duties.

Secretary Cindy Bortz then laboriously typed page after page of the objectives so they would all be in neat, appropriate form.

Once this task is finished, our North Central evaluation is complete.

I have already begun to bundle packets of information to go out to visitation team. Finally, I will be able to look forward to the actual visitation. Once they arrive, the team will have a very hectic schedule.

Dale Collier, the external team's chairman from Livonia, will orient his team Tuesday evening, Oct. 30. The evaluators are educators from other districts and arrive after completing responsibilities in their own schools.

Following this meeting, the external team will meet with Clarkston High School staff who were instrumental in compiling the report as well as some district personnel and the board of education.

During this time they will view a slide presentation produced by Ken Dean with the help of media students, and have an opportunity to visit with educators from our district.

That evening will be completed with dinner at Deer Lake Racquet Club and entertainment by the CHS Madrigal Singers.

The external evaluators will find little time for rest and relaxation.

During the next two days, Oct. 31 and Nov. 1, they will be viewing our school to see how well we have evaluated ourselves.

Prior to their visit, essential reports will have been sent for their examination. Talking to staff, examining the building and programs, and conferring with each other will easily fill their brief visit.

By Thursday, Nov. 1, they need to be ready to do a brief presentation to the staff and meet with various curricular areas. Their final reports will be compiled and sent to the district in about two months.

When we receive that report, our staff needs to take a look at areas that can be strengthened and who will be responsible for getting the task done.

This is a busy and exciting time for me. Naturally I would like these two days to go smoothly. But the really important task of evaluating ourselves, pinpointing our strong and weak points, is completed.

It was an enormous task and took much cooperative effort on the part of the high school staff and Superintendent Milford Mason, who arranged release time for part of this evaluation process.

We have good reason to be proud of our staff, of our school, of our community. After the visitation, I will let you know the results.

Sincerely,
I.M. Quill

Parents form new drug abuse committee

A parent support group for those with children involved in alcohol or drug abuse, or those who suspect their children might be, is forming in Clarkston.

Based on Families Anonymous, only first names will be used by members. Its sponsor is the Chemical People of Clarkston, a group that works on prevention of drug and alcohol abuse by young people in the community.

"We want them to know there is a place to go," said one of the organizers. "This is not any type of treatment, it's strictly a support group."

"Often so much of it is just being told you are doing the right thing—don't give in and let it destroy your family," she said. "I can't tell you how many separations and divorces have happened because some kid has had a family by the tail and his sickness is making everyone sick."

"If one person is sick, everyone else doesn't have to be. The rest of you can be healthy and go on with your lives."

"I think the philosophy of the group is: 'You're doing a good job. Don't feel guilty.'"

The first meeting is planned from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. on Tuesday, Oct. 30, at the Sashabaw United Presbyterian Church on Maybee Road.

The group plans to meet at the church the second and fourth Tuesdays of each month.

CAYAC receives $1,500 gift

The Clarkston board of education approved a $500 increase in its contribution to the Clarkston Area Youth Assistance Committee (CAYAC).

In a 6-0 vote Oct. 8, the board gave $1,500 to the organization whose motto is "Delinquency Prevention Through Community Involvement."

CAYAC social worker Garry Pullins made the request for the increase in funding.

"I am very much impressed when I read in the newspaper the kind of programs you're offering," said board member Carolyn Place. "In terms of $1,500, I think some of us on the board were eager and ready to offer that much last year."

The organization offers a counseling service for children and their families, sponsors the PLUS program in which the a volunteer establishes a one-to-one relationship with a child who needs an extra supportive relationship; sponsors a youth recognition banquet, conducts a shoplifting prevention program for all fifth-graders in the district and conducts family education programs.

CAYAC also sent 84 children to camp this year through its summer camp scholarship program.

The organization receives contributions from Independence and Springfield townships and the Village of Clarkston, as well as the school district.

Changes in store for Clarkston volunteers

Some changes in the volunteer program are likely in the Clarkston school district, following a three-day workshop attended by six representatives.

While the plan must be completed and presented to the board of education in December for approval, Jeanne Molzon said she will probably be hired as the district coordinator of volunteers. Presently an employee of the Clarkston Community Education Department, she is in charge of after-school enrichment classes for children.

"It makes it possible, when you have a district coordinator, to meet together and share ideas. When you have a district program, the schools have some direction," she said.

Designated as the volunteer coordinator, Molzon was one of six representatives from the Clarkston school district at the second annual State Board of Education Training Academy for School Volunteer Programs this month.

The three-day program on the campus of Michigan State University, East Lansing, was designed to teach techniques of organizing a citizen volunteer program.

When it ended, a plan for a district-wide volunteer program was well underway, Molzon said. "It was absolutely fantastic," she said. "We really got a lot out of it. It was a really valuable experience."

As overseer of the volunteer program, she would train a volunteer coordinator in each building and bring some degree of similarity to each school, but programs would be designed to fill each school's needs, she said.

The district participated in the Volunteer Training Academy at the invitation of the state board of education, said Superintendent Milford Mason.

Because the academy is funded mainly through a grant from the Shell Oil Co., the total cost to the district was $125, he said. Nine school districts attended this session.

The academy is part of Project Outreach, started in 1981 to communicate more effectively with the public, identify citizen and student priorities and concerns, and increase confidence in public education, said a news release from the state board.

Those attending from Clarkston were Molzon; Mary Jane Chaustowich, school board member; Milford Mason, superintendent (one day); Duane Lewis, Clarkston Junior High School principal; Pat Evans, special education teacher at CJHS; and Barbara Banker (two days), of the community education department.

Wary seniors

Crooks pose as workers;
steal thousands of dollars

Beware of thieves posing as utility company employes or repairman who are bilking area senior citizens of thousands of dollars, according to Sgt. William Bradway of the Lansing State Police.

Thefts have been reported as far north as the City of Pontiac and Oxford Township, he said, but have been centralized in Royal Oak and Hazel Park.

According to Bradway, the thieves gain entry to a house by indicating the senior is eligible for a discount, or furnace cleaning, or rebate. The thieves say they need change for a $100 bill and observe where the elderly person hides funds, Bradway said.

Later, one thief occupies the senior in the basement or another end of the house to inspect an alleged gas leak, while the other rifles the senior's valuables.

Bradway speculates one in 15 incidents is reported.

"They're embarrassed," he said. "They don't want anyone to know they were tricked. But I wish (the victims) would tell us when it happens and give us any information they can, like descriptions, what kind of cars they were driving, etc."

To protect themselves, seniors should do the following:

- Remember to ask for identification. All utility and service company employes carry identification cards.

- Remember that the utility companies would not come to your home to discuss a rebate. It would be done via the mail.

- Finally, check out businesses through the Better Business Bureau or the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

Homecoming—it's special

Julie Kiser

Homecoming is a time when former students come back to see the big game, meet old friends and bring back fond memories.

It is a special time for everyone, and it is no exception at Clarkston High School.

Our student government is sponsoring the many activities that take place during this time of year.

I would like to take time to explain these various activities.

The pre-tapping assembly took place Monday, Oct. 11. We tapped the people who were nominated for the Homecoming Court.

On Friday, Oct. 19, we will have the final tapping assembly after voting takes place. Two people, one maid and one escort, are chosen from each grade, the king and queen are selected from members of the senior class.

The Powder Puff Game will be held Saturday, Oct. 20, at 2 p.m. This game features senior girls against the junior girls in a touch football game. This game is always fun to attend, so we would like to see many people there.

All of these events lead into our field day assembly. Here we present the court in their formals. Then, we have many games in which each class gathers points for winning. The class with the most points wins the spirit award.

Thursday, Oct. 25, at 7:30 p.m., there will be a bonfire-pep rally held in the junior parking lot. We encourage students to attend and get "fired up" for the big game.

On Friday, Oct. 26, at 7:30 p.m., during the Homecoming game, there will be an alumni reception. This starts at kick-off and runs until halftime. We welcome all alumni to come and visit. Doughnuts, coffee and cider will be served.

The halftime ceremony will also take place at the game. During this time the maids, escorts, king and queen will be presented. Last year's homecoming queen, Julie Beamer, will be in town to crown the new queen.

The next night, Saturday, Oct. 27, will be the Homecoming Dance. It will run from 8 to 11:30 p.m. in the decorated school cafeteria.

This year we picked the theme "Let's Go Crazy" because we want to emphasize to students the importance of attending the dance, whether they have a date or not.

Finally, we would like to see the community involved in Homecoming. The football games are always fun to attend, so show some support and come cheer the home team to victory.

Let's all work together to make this a very special Homecoming!

Author Julie Kiser is a Clarkston High School senior. A member of the CHS Student Government, she's on the Powder Puff football team.

She makes family history

At age 13, Edy Meyers has her Bat-Mitzvah and as an adult accepts her Jewish faith

By Marilyn Trumper

The evening of Sept. 28 Edy Meyers made her Bat-Mitzvah and made Meyers family history.

At the age of 13, after five years of intensive study, she accepted adult responsibility for her Jewish faith, and at Temple Beth Jacob in Pontiac before family and friends read Hebrew from the Torah, the Jewish Holy Book.

Until five years ago, Jewish girls didn't make Bat-Mitzvahs.

They couldn't read from the Torah at a service. Edy's Bat-Mitzvah was a moment her mom Gayle is most proud of.

"With the women's lib movement it became accepted," Gayle said, referring to the Bar-Mitzvah, a ceremony restricted to boys. "(Change) became the natural thing. The main council of the U.S. writes Rabbinical law, rules that govern rabbis, synagogues and temples. They established this."

For five years Edy studied with three boys and nine girls who will make their respective Bar- and Bat-Mitzvahs at the age of 13.

Her ceremony was solo.

It took place during the Jewish people's most holy week, the days between Rosh Hashana and Yom Kippur.

"First," said Edy, "I read out of a prayer book. Mom lit the Sabbath Lights. Father blessed the wine. Sister Jessica did the blessing before the Torah. I read my Torah portion from the Torah in Hebrew, 'The Song of Moses,' a poem about the lament of Moses when he comes down from the mountain with the 10 Commandments and found the people running wild. "Then I read the English to that. My Aunt Jody Gelman read the blessing before the Torah, then I put the Torah back in the ark. My grandparents opened and closed the ark and my father shared holding (the Torah) with me."

The grandparents, according to Gayle, were delighted with Edy's decision.

"They were pretty excited. It meant a lot to them," she said.

Edy remembers a speech on her life's goals, to be an actress.

"And I talked about some of the other Jewish actors and actresses who had converted like Elizabeth Taylor, Sammy Davis Jr. and Marilyn Monroe. I made a short summary of the movie, 'The 10 Commandments,' and I talked about 'Yentl.'"

"About how (Barbra Streisand's) been a role model for women for years," Edy said, and Streisand's recent film about a young Jewish woman who masquerades as man in order to study Hebrew and the Torah.

"If it wasn't for people like her, I wouldn't have been standing up there."

"It was nice so many people were there who were not Jewish," said Gayle. "Some of Edy's friends brought their parents. It's nice to share that with someone so they can see a part of you they don't see at school, but letting them know what you're all about."

Clarkston Junior High School has a new student recognition system. It is called Student of the Month.

To be Student of the Month, a student must be nominated by a teacher. There are three areas to be nominated in, citizenship, academic achievement and improvement in class. A student can be nominated in each category only once.

The students listed below have been nominated this month.

The student council incentive program has been changed this year. Prizes will be awarded every marking period to the students rather than just at the end of the year.

The prizes will be one award ($25) for perfect attendance, one award ($25) for being on the honor roll with all A's and B's; one award ($25) for receiving only 1's and 2's in citizenship on the report card. At the end of the year, there will be three awards ($25 each) for no referrals.

Winners are selected through a drawing from the names of all students eligible in each category.

This week's contributors were Ronda Couch, Dana Robinson, Bree Michelson, Stacey Roy and Chris Watson.

ROLLING ALONG: The foursome of Rich and Marty Johnston, and Rick and Mary Beth Huttenlocher had a luxury ride to dinner in a 1967 Rolls Royce. The car belongs to Jon Abbott of Clarkston, who is acting as chauffeur for the trip to Northville. The Huttenlochters bid for the ride in the Rolls at an auction last year benefiting the Clarkston Junior High School drama department. The auction was organized by the Johnstons and raised $5,000.

What goes into being a political candidate?

By Marilyn Trumper

Who are the people that seek public office?
What makes them tick?

It's more than community-minded spirit.
More than wanting to give after taking.

Once in the job they suffer through tedious hours of meetings, late-night phone calls from unhappy constituents and a salary, at least in the case of township officials, where raises are determined by a vote of the people at the annual meeting.

When their two-, four- or six-year term ends, politicians face the stress of another campaign and, for most, another battle at the polls.

As part-time trustees they're overworked.

As full-timers on the board, they're stretched thin.

And the job becomes more sophisticated every day.

They question computer purchases and learn about high technology. They quickly garner knowledge on bankruptcy, condemnation, group homes, educational scores, labor negotiations and teacher contracts.

They approve a state-of-the-art cable TV system worth millions and struggle to preserve a one-acre wetland with the same vengeance.

They juggle hundreds of thousands of tax dollars and approve investments that will earn more income, and then debate whether a department head can afford another seminar.

They'll go door-to-door to sell millages, kiss babies and ring doorbells.

At times they're alienated by colleagues as well as the public.

And always, there's that fence to straddle.

The fine-line of diplomacy.

The thin line.

Gary Symons knows who politicians are and what makes them tick.

He held public office for four years.

After two terms on the Clarkston Village Council, Symons resigned his trustee seat when those sitting next to him at the council failed to support the historic district ordinance he researched, drafted and spent three years fighting for.

He recalls those gray days.

"Originally I got involved with the council after (then President Fontie ApMado's) urging," Symons said. "I had as a property owner a problem with the sign ordinance not being enforced."

"There I was, a new resident, a new property owner, and a tenant puts a sign on my building without my permission. That was in 1977. And that was when I began to spend time working on the new sign ordinance."

Getting legislation started for the sign ordinance was a first priority, then Symons steered his energies toward preservation.

"There, and with the Historic District Ordinance," he said. "I directed community development money into research to document historic districts. In the final analysis I ended up with an enlightened community. I think people are a lot more aware that preservation doesn't mean cute, it doesn't mean colonial, and it's not untrue to what architecture is. But to try and protect it and respect it for what it is."

After he met council opposition and a strong push to repeal the law, Symons said he was bruised.

"I realized I was just spinning my wheels. I started out to set an example for the community and the council to show them what restoration could and should be. But that wasn't enough," he said.

"I'd find it difficult to justify taking as much time now as I used to give to it, especially with the attitude of the community."

"I thought, 'Hell, why should I? No one else is willing to go that extra mile.'"

So, he resigned and disappeared into the private sector.

"I think they kind of put it on themselves," Symons said. "These people in the community support restoration and preservation, but they want the quick fix, the easy solution."

Ruth Basinger was on a trustee on the Clarkston Village Council on and off for 12 years. She served six terms.

Last year she decided not to run again immediately after the village council repealed the historic district ordinance.

But Basinger denies hard feelings.

"I can't say I suffered because of a difference in judgment," she said. "I enjoyed serving the village and I do feel it's a duty and a privilege, especially at this grass roots level."

Basinger first ran because she feared the impact a 1966 study urging urban renewal downtown would have on the village. It proposed razing the former post office, the old Methodist and Baptist churches and 32 other buildings.

"I was fortunate. For the most part when I was in office there were citizens concerned for community problems as a whole and for future generations. With their help, I believe the village made progress toward restoring its heritage of clean water and the skilled wood-craftsmanship of Michigan's early settlers.

"I did not run when my last term expired because my judgment of architecture elements that have enduring values for posterity are in conflict with the incumbents. But I feel privileged to have been allowed to serve and I am grateful."

Vincent Luzi sat eight years, that's two terms, on the Clarkston School Board.

He opted not to seek re-election last spring, preferring to steer his energies toward his family and other interests.

"After eight years, it was time to give someone else the opportunity to serve," he said.

He ran first because his children were in school, once there, he was often the maverick who voted against the board majority.

"No, I never ate dirt," Luzi said. "I never felt my re-election was in jeopardy or anything like that. I voted against the board on a lot of things, especially whenever we discussed a grievance or a court case. I was familiar with the courts traditionally did because of my job with the county, and in the end, after spending large amounts of money and lot of administration time, I was proved right."

After eight years, Luzi says he accomplished what he'd set out to do.

"I was unhappy with the policy making and felt it had a bad effect on teachers, and rippled down to the education of the children."

"At the time I felt they had an unfair grievance procedure, but after I was on the board we turned it around 180 degrees. I hope that was a result of some of my input."

"I also felt they had a budget problem. They would approve the budget in mid-October after school was already in session. Few people wanted to upset the apple cart and the board seemed to always give it a rubber stamp."

Finally, Luzi says he was concerned about the energy crunch and pushed in 1976 for a computer to regulate the schools' thermostats.

The system was expected to pay for itself in four to five years.

"It did in two," Luzi said.

PUBLIC NOTICE TOWNSHIP OF INDEPENDENCE COUNTY OF OAKLAND STATE OF MICHIGAN AMENDMENT TO CHAPTER 18, ARTICLE V, LOT SPLITTING

ADOPTED: 10/2/84
EFFECTIVE: 11/16/84

Chapter 18, Article V of the Independence Township Code of Ordinances, entitled, Lot Splitting, is hereby ordained and adopted under and pursuant to Act 184 of the Public Acts of 1943, as amended, with the following amendments, such provision to be and remain Article V of Chapter 18 of the Code of Ordinances, Sections 18-129 through 18-139, inclusive:

Section 18-129. Definitions.

The following definitions shall be added in alphabetical order:

LOT SPLIT COMMITTEE shall mean the Assessor, Inspector and Planner, acting together, and shall also include the Township Clerk and/or Township Treasurer, respectively, if acting in the event of vacancy or absence of the Assessor, Inspector or Planner.

ZBA shall mean the Independence Township Zoning Board of Appeals.

Section 18-131. Fees.

Each application under this Article shall be accompanied by a fee in the amount of Twenty-five ($25) Dollars if the application seeks two resultant lots, and an additional Ten ($10) Dollars per each resultant lot in excess of two. This fee schedule shall not include any fees required for hearings before the ZBA.

Section 18-133. Standards.

Paragraph (c) of this section shall be deleted.

Section 18-135. ZBA Variance Approval.

(a) In cases where the owner has made application for a split which would create one or more lots not in conformity with the minimum requirements of the Independence Township Zoning Ordinance, as amended, the Lot Split Committee may, upon request of the applicant, and provided the resultant parcels would not be clearly incompatible and/or inharmonious with, and/or result in material diminution in value to, surrounding property, and would not create an unreasonable burden upon the capacity for public services and/or facilities, and assuming all other requirements of applicable ordinances and law are met, conditionally approve the split, subject to the following:

(1) The applicant shall have thirty (30) days following the date of conditional approval by the Lot Split Committee to make application to the ZBA for all variances necessary to render the conditionally split resultant lots in conformity with the Zoning Ordinance. If the applicant fails to make application with the ZBA within such thirty (30) day period, the lot split shall be deemed denied.

(2) If the ZBA grants the application for all necessary variances to render the resultant lots conforming under the Zoning Ordinance, the conditional approval shall thereupon ripen into and become a finally approved split.

(3) If the ZBA denies the approval for any one or more variances necessary to render the resultant lots conforming under the Zoning Ordinance, the conditional approval of the split shall thereupon be voided, and the lot split application deemed denied.

Section 18-136. Appeal.

In the event an interested person is aggrieved by the decision made based upon the review conducted pursuant to Section 18-136, an appeal may be filed with the ZBA. In such instance, the rules and fees applicable to appeals of administrative decisions to the ZBA shall apply.

Passed this 2nd day of October, 1984, by the Independence Township Board.

PUBLIC NOTICE TOWNSHIP OF INDEPENDENCE COUNTY OF OAKLAND STATE OF MICHIGAN

ADOPTED: 10/2/84
EFFECTIVE: 11/16/84

TITLE: AN AMENDMENT TO THE INDEPENDENCE TOWNSHIP ZONING ORDINANCE NO. 83.
THE BOARD OF INDEPENDENCE TOWNSHIP, COUNTY OF OAKLAND, OF THE STATE OF MICHIGAN, ORDAINS:

That the Zoning Ordinance No. 83 of Independence Township is hereby amended as follows:

TOWIT:

Eliminate FOOTNOTE (I) OF ARTICLE XXX SCHEDULE OF REGULATIONS because it repeats the provisions of Section 5.04.

Revise SECTION 5.05 FENCES, WALLS, AND OTHER PROTECTIVE BARRIERS as follows:

Section 5.05 Fences, walls, and other protective barriers.

3. Non-Residential

(a) Upon any improvement, including a structural or use expansion, of property with a zoning classification of R-0, 0, C-2, C-3, C-4, ML, MH, or any non-residential special use, an obscuring wall shall be constructed to create a visual screen along all adjoining boundaries with residentially zoned or used property. Upon any improvement, including a structural or use expansion, of property with an R-2, or R-3 zoning classification, prior to use and occupancy, an obscuring wall shall be constructed to create a visual screen along all adjoining boundaries of property zoned or used for single family detached residential use. Such wall shall be six (6) feet in height as measured on the side of the proposed wall having the higher grade, and shall be constructed on both sides with: face brick; poured in-place simulated face brick; pre-cast brick face panels having simulated face brick; or, stone.

(b) In lieu of a screening wall required under Section 5.05 (a), above, the Planning Commission may permit the construction of a landscaped earth berm. The earth berm shall be constructed to a minimum height of three (3) feet with slopes no greater than one (1) foot vertical to three (3) feet horizontal, and with at least a two (2) foot flat surface on the top, provided; alternative designs may be approved by the Planning Commission upon a demonstration that such alternate designs shall be conducive to short and long term vegetation growth. In addition, the berm shall be planted with living materials so as to maintain a minimum opacity of at least sixty (60%) percent in the winter and at least eighty (80%) percent in the summer. Required opacity shall be deemed to exist when evergreen, semi-evergreen, or densely branched deciduous plants are planted in accordance with the minimum size set forth in Section 5.13. In relevant cases, minimum on-center spacing of screening vegetation shall be determined in the discretion of the Planning Commission for the purpose of achieving opacity.

This change is not reflected with the map circulated with the ordinance copy.

*Chemicals Are Trouble. People Are Working.

Dear Cat Paw:

Our daughter, a junior in high school, has ruined our family with her drug use. We still love her but realize we can't go on like we are. What should we do?

Heartache

Dear Heartache:

My heart aches for you! Contact a drug rehabilitation center immediately. A drug counselor can give you guidance as to what to do with your daughter and how to help yourself.

Our community now has a Family Anonymous group where you can meet parents with similar problems and get support from them. Call the Consortium for Human Development at 625-9600 for meeting place and time.

Dear Cat Paw:

My neighbor's boy stays out very late, drinks freely and seems to be involved with a group of boys who come and go night and day. I am worried. Do I step in?

Neighbor

Dear Neighbor:

Unless the law is broken, you cannot complain and get results. Unfortunately some parents find it easier to let their children run loose rather than to question or restrict their behavior and friends.

Perhaps talking to your neighbors first would be a more positive move on your part before the law is broken. Give it a try!

Dear Cat Paw:

My life is a nightmare. My husband is an alcoholic who can't stay dry and now my two boys are drinking also. I can't sleep. We fight constantly when together. I'm afraid.

Help!

Dear Help:

Look in the phone book under Al-Anon and go to the very next meeting and learn how to handle your problems. Al-Anon was founded for people just like you. Attend. Stay with it. It works.

Dear Cat Paw:

Wouldn't most smokers stop smoking if they knew all the dangers to their health?

Coughing

Most smokers are aware of the dangers involved. The nature of addiction makes stopping or withdrawal without help almost impossible.

Editor's note: To ask questions about drugs, write to C.A.T. P.A.W., in care of The Clarkston News, 5 S. Main, Clarkston, MI 48016. Letters need not be signed.

The authors of C.A.T. P.A.W. are Jeanette Sanders and Sue Ludwig. Sanders is education chairperson of The Chemical People of Clarkston, a group dedicated to the prevention of alcohol and drug abuse among youth in the community. Ludwig is a counselor at Insight at Colombiere, a residential drug rehabilitation center in Springfield Township.

The next meeting of The Chemical People of Clarkston is scheduled Tuesday, Oct. 23, at 7:30 p.m. at the Clarkston school district administration office, 6389 Clarkston Rd., Independence Township. For more information call chairperson Fred Baumann at 625-9600.

They hear music and voices in the distance and some more walkers for Clarkston SCAMP are soon to appear on the horizon. So, Michelle Pettit [left] and Danielle White begin miming while they're waiting at the corner of Reese and Oakhill roads. The girls are among volunteers from the Clarkston High School Mime Troupe who stood for hours at intersections making sure walkers made the correct turns and cheering them on during their long walks to benefit the five-week summer camp program for children and youth with handicaps.

Among members of the Clarkston High School Cross Country team running 10 miles for SCAMP are Trisha Johnson [left] and Beth Galley.
