Board fires its 7th patrolman

Blames millage for loss to township coffers

By Marilyn Trumper

Hoping Oakland County won't hold it to a 60-day release clause, the Independence Township Board approved of Supervisor James B. Smith's independent action to fire the seventh deputy, which means an immediate $16,858 savings.

Hired in June to begin work Aug. 1, the seventh deputy cost $30,754 which included salary, car and equipment through March of next year.

At that time board members agreed retaining the deputy past November would depend on voter approval of .5 mill on the general election ballot.

The proposal was defeated, for the sixth time since 1976, by 647 votes.

"I think it's most unfortunate," said Supervisor James B. Smith. "I think the people here have been very shortsighted about the police millage. We needed it. There's no time for any crime prevention and (deputies) are unable to respond to crimes that have happened."

The board asked the Oakland County Sheriff's Department to waive the 60-day release clause, and for the seventh man to stop work Nov. 30.

Schools OK 3-year contracts

By Kathy Greenfield

A three-year contract for Clarkston Community Schools' Superintendent Milford Mason and raises ranging from 5.2 to 10.9 percent for the seven central office administrators were approved by the board of education last week.

The board also approved salary increases ranging from 9 to 18.6 percent for seven supervisory positions, and a three-year contract for the 15 building administrators and directors.

After meeting over two hours in a closed session, the board opened the meeting to the public at 12:47 a.m. Nov. 13 and voted 5-0 in two separate motions to accept the contracts and wage hikes.

Because the district implemented a new system to base raises on job performance, the result was a large range of percentage increases this year, Mason said.

"I'm really pleased with the fact that we now have a compensation system with which to deal with this," he said. "The purpose of this whole exercise was to get a logical system."

The revamping began in January and included a $15,000 study, which Plante & Moran of Southfield presented to the board in September. It covered salaries of similar jobs in the 28 Oakland County school districts and those in the metropolitan Detroit area, 21 position descriptions and evaluations, and an

MORC pushes group home

By Marilyn Trumper

The Macomb Oakland Regional Center (MORC) is pursuing construction of a group home on two acres off Horseshoe Circle, and Independence Township says it will sue, charging excessive concentration.

With brief discussion at its Nov. 16 meeting, the board agreed to notify MORC that the issue of excessive concentration was not addressed in agency's application to the state, reminding them it is the one issue that can be appealed.

"And will be appealed," according to Clerk Richard Holman. "We've agreed to write MORC a letter telling them their letter to us did not give a com-evaluation format.

"Typically Clarkston administration and supervisors are paid in the lower half to one-third of what districts pay in Oakland County," said Mason. "That hasn't changed."

The seven central administrators' benefit package will remain the same with the addition of a 3 percent tax-sheltered annuity.

Mason's salary rose 6 percent, to $55,914, a figure board President Janet Thomas said she proposed.

"We gave (him) a contract for three years, but the salary is an open item," said Thomas. "The board will determine the salary (each year) on how he does."

Other central administrators' raises were proposed by Mason. They include Assistant Superintendent Mel Vaara, $49,225, up 7.8 percent; Administrative Assistant William Neff, also principal at Andersonville Elementary, $47,798, up 7.9 percent; Curriculum Director Alberta Ellis, a new position, $46,228, up 5.2 percent; Administrative Assistant William Dennis, $47,391, up 7.95 percent; Administrative Assistant Conrad Bruce, $47,798, up 7.9 percent; and Business Manager William Jackson, $41,546, up 10.9 percent.

The seven supervisory employees' salaries range from $20,160 to $30,026, for positions from community education coordinator to transportation supervisor.

The three-year contract for the building principals, assistant principals, and directors of community education and special services includes salary schedules for the first two years, with the second year based on performance. The third year will be determined by a formula that takes into account the raise received by teachers and is also subject to performance.

Changes include the establishment of an evaluation procedure that will determine raises, beginning next year, based on ratings of outstanding (raise plus bonus), excellent (raise plus bonus), satisfactory (raise) and unsatisfactory (no raise).

In addition, those with over 12 years on the job will receive longevity pay of $700 annually, and up to $1,000 a year will be reimbursed for tuition for employment-related advanced college courses approved by the superintendent.

For 1984-85, their salaries range from $33,950 to $47,798, increases of 5.3 to 12.1 percent. The overall budget for the 15 positions has increased 4.16 percent, or $25,564.

All increases for the 29 administrative and supervisory positions are retroactive to July 1, 1984.

plete list of our options, and that we are protesting on the issue of excessive concentration."

"I was at township hall with the builder when he applied for the building permit," said James Clark, development specialist with MORC. "We're certainly going ahead with this and pursuing it. We're going forward with the project."

In early October, the Independence Township Board adopted its own standards to determine excessive concentration in response to a request from United Neighbors of Independence Township.

UNIT, residents from the Perry Lake and Bloch Equestrian Village intersection in the township's northeast quadrant, objected to MORC's then proposed group home in their neighborhood, and argued against it based on excessive concentration.

The state cites an excess when one group home is located within 1,500 feet of another.

But chairman of the 35-member coalition to block the home, Sam Cataldo, showed figures which put Independence Township above surrounding communities for the number of group homes it has, numbering 14.

Township officials agreed, and said they would fight further group homes until surrounding communities reach the same level.

Neighbors fight one quest to buy easement

By Marilyn Trumper

Gerald Schroeder wants to buy a township easement next to his house on Fawn Valley Drive to keep out wheeled vehicles, but his neighbors are bucking the move, saying the vacant lot was billed as a "nature trail" by the developer and is used to get from one side of Deerwood subdivision to the other.

At the Nov. 13 Independence Township Board meeting, Schroeder presented a 16-name petition from neighbors who approved his plan to buy the easement, 20 feet long and 150 feet deep.

In 1978 it was designated as one of two service drives for the township's Department of Public Works to maintain and service a well pump. But the DPW, according to Director George Anderson, uses the Deerwood Road easement exclusively.

"The private township easement is used as a public footpath by snowmobiles, motorcycles, ATVs, bikes and sometimes cars," Schroeder said. "It's only 20 feet wide. It's not a road. We've maintained the grass so it looks decent. But people abuse the privilege of walking through."

"We've put rocks at one end to keep them out but now that the leaves are off the trees they're finding a way through again."

"We've lost the privacy of our backyard," he said.

Those opposing his plan presented a 48-signature petition to the board.

Donald Ernst of Fawn Valley Drive asked the board keep the easement open.

"I don't feel I can walk around the subdivision anymore in my condition," he said. "I utilize that cut-through."

One Rustic Trail resident objected to closing the easement.

"I'm being made to feel I'm possibly doing something wrong," she said. "I was led to believe that path was public. We've used it all along. We fish at the pond (on the other side) and I'd rather use it than walk around the entire subdivision."

"My personal opinion is that the path was there at the time they moved in," said one man.

Another produced a brochure from the developer which referred to the paths as "nature trails."

"We were told it was a nature trail, a footpath. How could this have happened?" he asked.

"It wouldn't be the first time in history," said Supervisor James B. Smith. "Many people have had surprises."

After lengthy discussion, the board directed its attorney to investigate the subdivision's deed restrictions and determine if the easements are recorded on the plat.

TURKEY DAY CHATTER: "Let's talk turkey about getting out of this mess," says one gobler to the other as the chopping block—and Thanksgiving—nears. The feathered fowl were spotted at Fruehauf Farm in Lakeville where owner Claude Ruby's been raising 66 turkeys every year for 23 years. They're holiday gifts to employes, weigh between 25 and 30 pounds and will serve a few hundred people.

Aides wanted

By Kathy Greenfield

The long-standing policy of not hiring aides for large classes was challenged by Andersonville Elementary School parents at the Nov. 12 Clarkston school board meeting.

Twenty-three parents signed a letter to board President Janet Thomas and several spoke about their dismay with large first- and fourth-grade classes.

The district's policy of providing $200 more for instructional materials or one day off for the teacher each marking period for record-keeping was not enough, said Ruth Gruber, who has a child in each grade.

"I think first grade is a very critical grade as far as the children are concerned. You can't deny if you don't give instruction to the students at this grade, they rely on remediation later," she said.

"This district is not strapped financially where they could not afford two more aides for the remainder of the school year. It could make a big difference to 124 students in the district."

Presently Andersonville's first-grade classes have 32 and 28 pupils, and the two fourth-grade classes have 32 and 33 pupils, said Principal William Neff, who noted that under the teachers' contract, the money or day off have been the accepted method of dealing with large classes.

"What happens in that class depends mainly on the teacher," he said. "One teacher with 10 may not do as good a job with 32. I think the teachers at Andersonville are doing a good job."

"Would we like a class of 22 or 23 instead of 32? The answer is yes. I think we'd all like smaller class sizes."

At one time aides were hired to help with large classes, said teachers' union representative Tom Brown, but "in the financial crunch of the past four or five years, we've moved away from that."

Brown added that the contract lists several methods of handling such situations and the hiring of aides would be acceptable.

Board member Carolyn Place said she shared the concerns of the parents.

"I consider first grade to be almost the most important year," she said. "I can testify as a teacher and a parent what I consider the ideal size to be, around 24 or 25... I think we would be pound wise and penny foolish if we can't honor the request regardless of what the contract says."

While no decision was made, board members indicated the situation would be discussed at a future meeting.

Parking lot OK'd for crew use

By Marilyn Trumper

Hank Radcliff's landed the use of two spaces in Clarkston's municipal parking lot to accommodate house-moving construction traffic, at least until the foundation under his 120-year-old home is done.

But it's going to cost him a $5,000 surety bond, one Radcliff says he's not sure he can get.

At its Nov. 12 meeting, the Clarkston Village Council unanimously approved Radcliff's request to use two village parking spaces for access to the house, providing:

- No bulldozers, dump trucks or large vehicles be permitted to park in the village lot.
- The Radcliffs acknowledge personal liability for damage to the lot.
- They provide a $5,000 corporate surety bond to protect the village against damage.

•If the required bond is not furnished on or before Nov. 26, permission terminates upon completion of the foundation and backfilling of the basement.

"I hope we can get the bond," Radcliff said after the meeting. "It was hard to get the first bond on the house moving, because the companies are few between. But we'll try our best."

Radcliff said he's pleased with the council's decision.

"It would be very difficult to finish the house without that access," he said.

Village President Carol Eberhardt said while the council discussed the proposal at length, no one dissented.

Schools approve $23 million

An amended budget of $23 million was approved by the Clarkston board of education last week.

The figure included an increase of $214,000 in revenue and an increase of $238,000 in expenses in the $16.4 million general fund for K-12 education.

The major cause of the revenue increase was higher-than-projected enrollments, said district Business Manager William Jackson.

And the expense column increased because of the construction underway of five elementary school multipurpose rooms, additional teachers hired because of higher enrollment and supplies needed for the new position of curriculum director.

"There's 1,500 different line items, at least," he said. "Some go down a little bit, some go up."

Following state law, the board approves a budget for the school year in June. Once enrollment figures, and income, are known the budget is amended and approved again in November.

The increase in expenses drops the general fund balance surplus below 10-percent of the expenditures, to $1.5 million, Jackson told the board.

"I feel this is a temporary problem that will not happen in future years because we will not need to transfer so much money into the building and site fund," he said.

Without comment, the board voted 5-0 to approve the amended budget. Janet Thomas, Mary Jane Chaustowich, Elaine Schultz, Carolyn Place and Thomas Bills cast the "yes" votes. David Keith and Stephen Wetner were absent.

Blaze damages vacant house

An early morning blaze Saturday that sent flames shooting 30 feet into the air caused extensive damage to an unoccupied Independence Township home.

Firefighters answered the call at 3:23 a.m. and worked about one-and-one-half hours to bring the fire at 6750 Townview under control, said firefighter Gar Wilson.

"When I hit the signal light (at Main and Washington streets), I looked up—it's the one that sits at the top of the hill overlooking town. The flames were shooting up about 30 feet from the basement doors," he said. "You didn't have any trouble knowing which house it was."

The owner of the home lives in Florida, and Wilson said he was told an offer to purchase had recently been made.

The 2,700-square-foot brick house was worth about $150,000, he said, and he estimated damage between $50,000 and $70,000.

Firefighters from all three Independence stations helped battle the blaze. They were assisted by Springfield Township firefighters with a tanker, and Brandon Township firefighters covered the Independence fire stations.

The fire was suspicious, and it's under investigation, Wilson said.

Fees frozen for golf, park use

The vehicle entry fee at Independence Oaks and the basic golf fee at Springfield Oaks remain the same following adoption of the $6.6 million 1985 budget by the Oakland County Parks and Recreation Commission.

"We're proud of the fact that nearly all user fees will remain at the same rate even though operating costs continue to rise," said chairman Lewis Wint.

The budget, approved Nov. 7, includes $2.6 million revenue from parks fees and charges; $3.7 million from the voter-approved .25 mill for county parks; and $380,000 from investments and sale of property.

The operating budget of $5.1 million is 1.7 percent higher than in 1984.

The county park system includes three golf courses, Springfield Oaks in Springfield Township and Glen Oaks in Farmington Hills, both retaining the $5 for nine hole fee; and Red Oaks in Madison Heights with a $4.50 fee.

Day-use park entrance fees are $2.50 for county residents and $4 for non-county residents. In addition to Independence Oaks in Independence Township, there are Addison Oaks near Oxford and Groveland Oaks near Holly.

The Waterford Oaks Wave Pool, Waterford, entrance fee remains at $2.50.

The county park system also includes the undeveloped Orion Oaks in Orion Township.

Local TV

By Marilyn Trumper

Independence Township's $1.2 million cable system's local access channel should be working Dec. 3, and will air as its first night of programming two features locally produced by volunteers.

According to Access Director Jim Vonderhaar, graduates of two 10-week classes have been trained to produce shows and have filmed and edited two features.

The first, "Close Harmony," features barbershop music. The second features Independence Township resident Homer Biondi exploring the art of making-up clowns.

"It's been good, practical experience for the students," Vonderhaar said. "This gets the ball rolling and we're over our first hurdle."

To date, only Clarkston High School students studying media have been trained to use the equipment.

According to Vonderhaar, the two locally produced programs are expected to air Monday, Dec. 3, at 7 p.m. on the local access channel.

More production classes will be scheduled after the year, and they're free for township residents, he said.

Feast recalls church founder

Stepping back in time, the Clarkston United Methodist Church presents Christmas dinner with the family of John Wesley, founder of Methodism in America, on Dec. 7, 8 and 9.

A four-course English feast "at the Wesleys' Bristol, England, home" and entertainment by actors, madrigal carolers and musicians begin at 7 p.m. each date.

The celebration combines the holiday season with the bicentennial anniversary of the Methodist Church. Wesley founded the denomination as an offshoot of the Church of England. Among the 9,000 hymns written by his brother, Charles Wesley, is "Hark the Herald Angels Sing."

Cast members include Bob Schultz as Charles Wesley; Karen Clapp as Charles' wife, Sara; Dave Galley as John Wesley; and Marty Johnston as Betty, the maid. Barbara Steele is musical director and coordinator; and Barbara Gibson is stage director.

The Old English menu includes pate with crackers, fruit cup, sirloin of roast beef and vegetables, round bread with butter and plum pudding with rum sauce.

Tickets are $12. They may be purchased at the church office, 6600 Waldon Rd., from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. weekdays. Mail orders containing self-addressed, stamped envelopes will be filled on a first-come, first-served basis.

Seating is limited to 108 each night. For more information, call 625-1611.

Special ed teacher tapped for work honor

A special thanks went to Mary Jo Griggs at last week's Clarkston board of education meeting.

Griggs, a special education teacher at Clarkston Junior High School, was nominated for the Employee Recognition Award by her co-worker Patricia Evans.

The award, in its second month, was designed to honor school district employees who make contributions beyond normal work responsibilities. Nominations are approved by a committee led by Assistant Superintendent Mel Vaara.

Griggs has served as student government sponsor and cheerleading coach, has coached intermural and interscholastic sports, and volunteers time to help at sporting events.

In addition, she was chairperson of the SCAMP Walk and director of the CJH ninth-grade camp program.

"Her tireless participation and eagerness to take on additional responsibilities is invaluable to our school district," wrote Evans on the nomination form.

Griggs smiled as she accepted the certificate and engraved Cross pen.

"I would like to thank the committee, and I had 150 helpers with the SCAMP Walk. Many people helped me with the camp," she said. "And I'd like to thank Duane and Bill and Doug and Vince."

The men are CJH Principal Duane Lewis; Assistant Principal Vince Licata; former CJH principal Bill Potvin, now Clarkston Elementary principal; and former CJH assistant principal Doug Pierson, now assistant principal at the Northwest Oakland Vocational Education Center.

Be thankful, from your heart

Thanksgiving was always THE holiday in the Dair McKinley Sherman household. His being a Jehovah's Witness and not believing in celebrating Christ's birthday on December 25 ("He was born in April," Dad repeated annually) had everything to do with it.

And, what a wonderfully enjoyable day it was. The dressing was Dad's job, because he wanted it to be his job, and he started on it early in the day. His huge hands mixed gobs of bread, several chopped onions, hands full of salt (I swear), and lots of sage. "Can't have decent dressing if you can't taste the sage."

The fowl (more often goose than turkey) would be stuffed, put in the pan, and slid into the oven of the kitchen range, later a gas range, and the aroma would begin shortly thereafter.

Mother would begin preparing holiday food the day before, making bread, baking pies, and making sure of table settings.

We kids would be washed and clean. The dining room table would be let out to its fullest extent. The tablecloth would have its annual spreading. And, the carriers would begin.

Cranberries, squash, homemade bread, dressing from both the main course and separate baking, and gravy (Wow, could my mother make gravy), and pumpkin and mincemeat pie, and the beast... gloriously brown and ready for Dad's pre-sharpened knife.

It's been more than 21 years since Dair McKinley Sherman's tribe sat down together, and now, though it will never happen again, we are so very thankful that it did happen the many times it did.

We can do no more than ask and hope that you have a bountiful and thankful day November 22. And, this we do, with all our heart. J.A.S.

Recognizing an alcoholic; and help

This is the second in a series of three guest editorials designed to encourage participation in the Nov. 22 Clarkston Drink-out sponsored by the Chemical People of Clarkston, a group dedicated to the prevention of drug and alcohol abuse among local youngsters. A drink-out is a 24-hour period when you voluntarily refrain from taking any alcohol or chemicals.

By Judy Labash

How has alcohol affected your life?

After giving this question considerable thought, perhaps some of us were stunned at our own conclusions!

Now that we realize we have been affected directly or indirectly, are we stimulated enough to do something about it?

Recognition of any problem is the first step in solving the problem. As we continue with the National Council of Alcoholism drinking test, being honest with ourselves can make a difference between a healthy, happy, productive life, or continuing a life of denial.

It is your choice, make it a wise one—we are worth it!

MIDDLE STAGE

9. Are you secretly irritated when your family or friends discuss your drinking?

10. Have you recently noticed an increase in the frequency of your memory "blackouts"?

11. Do you often find that you wish to continue drinking after your friends say they have had enough?

12. Do you usually have a reason for the occasions when you drink heavily?

13. When you are sober, do you often regret things you have done or said while drinking?

14. Have you tried switching brands or following different plans for controlling your drinking?

15. Have you often failed to keep the promises you have made to yourself about controlling or cutting down drinking?

16. Have you ever tried to control your drinking by making a change in jobs, or moving to a new location?

17. Do you try to avoid family or friends while drinking?

18. Are you having an increasing number of financial and work problems?

19. Do more people seem to be treating you unfairly without good reason?

20. Do you eat very little or irregularly when you are drinking?

Changes

Kathy Greenfield

My husband and I were in the front seat, and four teens were crammed in the back as we made our way home from a concert they saw in Detroit.

Their conversation covered many topics, but the one I found most interesting had to do with ironing their own clothes.

What led into it was this: One of them had to vacuum and wash dishes before he was allowed to go to the concert.

The same young man admitted to his friends that he had left the iron on all day after eliminating the wrinkles from a shirt. Then he told them he melted a button.

Another boy entered into the conversation by saying that he sometimes ironed his pants while wearing them, but advised caution because the iron can get too hot.

We all laughed over their trials and tribulations.

Later it occurred to me that the topic was quite remarkable. When I was a teenager, ironing would never have been discussed by a group of boys.

They may have moaned about taking out the garbage. Maybe they would have grumbled over lawn mowing duties.

All the ironing, however, most likely would have been done by their mothers.

Times have changed. All the boys in our car that night have working mothers who no longer have the time to perform what all of what I call the survival skills.

The list includes laundry, cooking meals, vacuuming, washing floors, dusting and doing dishes.

I remember my mom spending time teaching me how to iron—sprinkling, proper settings, caution around buttons, and so on.

After listening to the conversation, I decided it may be time to teach my son some of the procedures.

But I never considered taking over the job.

Jim's Jottings

Bits and pieces

Jim Sherman

I've had a couple different approaches pulled on me lately to get my attention via telephone. And, they got it, to a point.

One was a woman's voice, assumed to be a secretary, introducing herself and saying, "Mr. Doe of (some major stock brokerage) would like to talk to you. Hold on please."

On came the resonant-toned man, reeking with confidence and trust. Generally, representatives of Merrill Lynch, Bache, and Smith Barney will make their own calls. This guy from Chicago had class, but no client.

The other call also started with a woman telling me Congressman Tom Cochran had an urgent message for me. On came recorded Tom. He didn't say who he represented, just gave me part of a spiel about how he needed support for his bill to outlaw "Legalized union extortion."

According to him, the legalizing was done by an act of Congress. Tom's bill would make it a crime for union officials to "incite or commit violence."

I hope before the Congressman's record wears out it gets to that broker in Chicago. Maybe some Harte Hanks stock could be traded for a Cochran petition.

Speaking of recorded messages... Did you get one from President Reagan the day before the election? Jack Valentine, of Oxford, did, but he'd already made up his mind to vote for the prohibition party.

THOUGHTS: While many of us criticize, condemn and curse the drivers whom we feel are bad, some thought should be given to the overwhelming number of good drivers, like you and me, who, but for our outstanding ability would have collided with the bad.

This is said to be the most difficult tongue twister in the English language: The sixth sick sheik's sixth sheep's sick. Say it fast and you'll see how tough it is.

If you want to stop receiving unsolicited mailings, there is a way to take your name off nationwide lists. Get in touch with the Mail Preference Service, Direct Mail Marketing Association (DMMA), 6 East 43rd St., New York, NY 10017. Ask for a form, fill it out, and return it. A lady from Clarkston told me last week she gets so many flyers and folders she hates to go to the mailbox.

Quite often I can guess what Hazel's having for dinner. It's what I ordered for lunch. We should really communicate better after 35 years.

High school students, take note: The 1907 football game between Oxford and Rochester was cancelled because the players were drunk. No mention of treatment centers, free call-in phone lines, halfway houses, social programs, seminars for adult awareness, etc.

Letters to editor

Neighbors defend condo vote

During the spring of 1984, Frank Walker, a developer, approached the Clarkston Village Council and the Independence Township Planning Commission to request a variance in the zoning of a parcel of land located in the village and in the township on White Lake Road, adjacent to Deer Lake Beach.

The land is currently zoned for single family homes and Mr. Walker requested the variance to allow members of the community an opportunity to voice their concerns.

This meeting was well attended. As a matter of fact, it was a standing-room-only audience.

Petitions, bearing the signatures of both village and township property owners were presented to the township planning commission and the village council. These petitions expressed opposition to the proposed zoning change request.

The vast majority of the community members attending the joint meeting expressed opposition to Mr. Walker's request and urged township and village officials to deny the request.

The major concerns expressed by community members were:

1. Safety concerns—The construction of 22-29 condos would cause a substantial increase of traffic entering and exiting White Lake Road near the beach, an area that is currently very hazardous.

2. Spot zoning—Does "spot zoning" best serve the needs of the township and the village residents or does spot zoning open a "can of worms" that presents many negative ramifications for residents and officials?

3. Density—Mr. Walker has proposed the construction of 22-29 condos on approximately 3 1/2 to 4 acres of land. To obtain an idea of the density concern, one has only to look at the Green Acres subdivision. This subdivision consists of the same number of families as Mr. Walker's proposal, but is situated on approximately 20-25 acres.

4. The land in question can be developed as presently zoned. When the current owner purchased the land, he knew it was zoned for single family homes. If he is interested in building condos, he should purchase land that is zoned multiple.

Following the discussion stage of the joint meeting, the Independence Township Planning Commission unanimously denied the request. At a subsequent meeting, the village council also denied Mr. Walker's request for rezoning.

Following the denials from both the village and the township, Mr. Walker decided to try another approach and met with village officials and suggested that there was an "error" in the wording of the village zoning ordinances.

The village planning commission again listened to Mr. Walker's contention and acted appropriately by having their attorney study the zoning ordinance and offer a legal opinion regarding Mr. Walker's allegation.

The legal interpretation offered to the commission was expressed very well by the attorney's letter which was read publically in a meeting which Mr. Walker also attended.

The letter very adequately and clearly indicated the attorney's findings—there was no error in the wording of the village ordinance regarding current zoning restrictions. With this information, the planning commission did not grant approval to Mr. Walker's request.

At the very next village council meeting, Mr. Walker stated there had been no discussion of the attorney's findings at the planning commission meeting.

What was there to discuss? The entire letter had been read to those in attendance and the question of whether or not an error in the wording of the zoning ordinance existed has been very clearly answered.

Mr. Walker's request for a variance from the current zoning has been denied over and over again—and for very sound reasons.

How much more valuable time must members of the village council, village planning commission and township planning commission spend rejecting the same request?

The Officers of Green Acres Subdivision

Slip of the wench

I read with great interest the article in the Wednesday, Nov. 7, edition of The Clarkston News surrounding the relocation of the Ritter house.

As I read the article, one statement in there piqued my interest. Specifically, the statement "...used wenches to pull the house across the timbers."

It raised two questions in my mind: 1. How many wenches would it take to pull the house? 2. Were they possibly the same wenches that worked the Renaissance Festival in Clarkston?

John W. Steckling

Editor's note: Mr. Steckling isn't the only one delighted by the image we presented. We also received several phone calls over the amusing error. The word, we know, should have been winches.

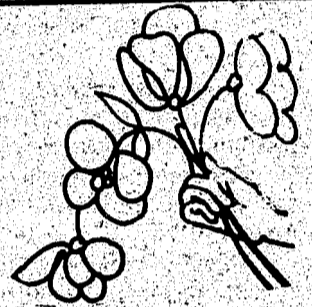

What's the problem?

I think I'm in over my head.

Independent view

In his last official act as Independence Township treasurer, Frederick Ritter moved to adjourn the three-hour-long board meeting Nov. 13.

The milestone was seconded by Trustee Larence Kozma, who marked his last meeting too.

Instead of seeking re-election to the board, Kozma challenged 52nd District Judge Gerald E. McNally for the bench, and lost.

Ritter was unseated by his challenger, John Lutz.

'If it Fitz . . .'

People who smile

Jim Fitzgerald

I never did learn how to stop licking my lips, but maybe I can train myself to smile down. The re-election of Jesse Helms could help.

Morgan Fairchild smiles down, to avoid unsightly wrinkles. She is a beautiful TV actress, I am told. I've never seen whatever show she is on, so I've never seen her smile down, but that doesn't mean I'm prejudiced against beautiful TV actresses. I've also never seen whatever show Mr. T is on.

A reader named Margie Fitts, of Birmingham, wrote me about Fairchild. Fitts was sure I'd be interested in Fairchild's ability to smile down because, a couple of years ago, I was fascinated by a local socialite who revealed publicly that her lipstick never ever smeared because she'd trained herself to never ever lick her lips.

IT TOOK ONLY a minute's study for me to discover that I lick my lips 135 times a minute. And it took only five minutes to discover that I might be able to train myself to lick my lips only 82 times a minute, but no way did I have enough willpower to stop licking them forever and ever. Perhaps I would have tried harder if I wore lipstick.

Also perhaps, Margie Fitts implied, I'd have better luck training myself to smile without the corners of my mouth going up. According to Fitts, Fairchild explained smiling down on the Jane Pauley TV news show. I have never seen Jane Pauley, but I'm told that she isn't Mr. T.

When she was only 13, Morgan Fairchild said, she noticed that Marilyn Monroe smiled down instead of up, which prevents smile lines and crow's feet. I have seen Marilyn Monroe, many times, but I must admit I never noticed that she smiled down. But I did notice that she didn't walk like a crow.

Anyway, Morgan Fairchild, at age 13, immediately began practicing in front of a mirror, and after many, many hours of smiling, she trained herself to get it down. If a 13-year-old girl could do that to avoid smile lines and crow's-feet, how about a 58-year-old man? I already have smile lines, but it's not too late to avoid crow's feet. My wife says I still walk like a duck.

So far, according to my mirror, I'm not making a lot of progress. It is hard to smile down without looking like you're frowning. In fact, I've about decided that Morgan Fairchild exaggerated. When she said she smiles down instead of up, she probably meant it feels like she is smiling down, because of the extreme effort required to keep from smiling up, but actually she is smiling straight across.

According to my mirror, when I smile straight across, it looks more like a grimace. But a grimace is nearer to a smile than a frown, and I've only been practicing for a couple of days, so there is good reason to believe it won't be too long before I can let a grimace be my umbrella.

MORGAN FAIRCHILD apparently didn't mention it to Jane Pauley, but I wonder if, when trying to smile down, it would help to think sad. When I practice in front of my mirror tonight, instead of thinking about how Marilyn Monroe didn't walk like a crow, I will think of something real sad. I just read that Jesse Helms spent $13 million to be re-elected to the $60,662-a-year senator from North Carolina (his opponent spent only $9 million). I will think about that.

Helms is the Bible-thumping pro-lifer who fights for the inalienable right of embryos to become people and fights even harder for the tax-subsidized right of the tobacco industry to sell its products—and kill people.

When I think about this nation being run by such clear-thinkers as Helms, I'm ready to pack up all my troubles in my old kit bag and grimace, grimace, grimace.

On my soapbox

My swan song

Marilyn Trumper

With apologies to Joe Falls, I'm borrowing his column-writing style and offer the last On my soapbox.

Plugging away at the copy desk on the Mt. Pleasant Morning Sun's afternoon shift I'll miss:

- Hot blueberry muffins from the Clarkston Village Bakeshop that get me through the morning, and their hot coffee that gets me through the night.

- Visits from Lucky Fletcher who with paper in hand hot-off-the-press every Wednesday afternoon insists there's a cover-up at township hall and I'm not seeing it.

- Kathy Greenfield's enduring patience and helpful insights.

- Iva Sommers Caverly's endless supply of story ideas, and her scrutiny to see we report local history right, even if nobody else is paying attention.

- Restaurateur Ali Assad for the most dynamic performance at a township board meeting in the four-and-a-half-years I've covered that beat.

- Mel Mason's socks in the arm when he shares a private joke.

- Dom Mauti, and his good-natured eyeball rolling when I find another way to lasso students from classrooms for one story or another.

- Morning visits to St. Daniel's.

- Stu McTeer's spontaneous bursts of "Oh Sweet Mystery of Life."

- Treasurer Frederick Ritter's after-the-meetings impromptu piano playing, and his flexibility to play the duet "Heart and Soul" my way.

- Bev McElmeel's ability to keep me from boss Ken Delbridge despite my steadfast bird-dogging.

- The fiery Joseph Locricchio and his kingdom-building. If I had the mortar Joe, it'd be yours.

- Neil Wallace and Larence Kozma's relentless

- Donna Fahrner's endless kindness.
- The wind-surfer on Clarkston's Mill Pond. You've come a long way.

- Autumn's crimson sumac on White Lake Road.
- And winter's cruel blowing blasts across Deer Lake.

- Lorna Bickerstaff's easy laugh.
- Judy Galley and Marianne Gaulin for indulging me, and my gifts to men.

- Paul Tungate, who three years ago during my brief stint writing sports got me to thank in print everyone, including the guy who chalked the field.

- An assigned last-minute feature on a physician's collection of fishhooks removed from patients' punctured limbs. It brightened my life.

- A township board that mumbles when I argue against closed sessions, and their attorney Gerald Fisher who finally saw things my way.

- Dan Vandenhemel's motivation that daily encourages me to swim.

- Karmen Smith's phrase, "I have to feed my thighs." It's been incorporated into my vocabulary.

- George White, from his decibel readings to his concert hosting.

- Sgt. Allen. Like it or not, I still like you.

- Chief Ronk's sense of humor.
- B.A. Modrack's relating.

- Twenty-five cent money orders at Wonder Drug.

- Carol Eberhardt's persistence.
- June VanKeuren's nose for news.

- The Eghigians, and their proud belief and trust in the American way.

- Dale Stuart's maverick voice.
- Hot Quebec-style French onion soup and cold mugs of Signature from the Clarkston Cafe.

head-knocking with me. Put up your dukes, guys.

- One reader who recognized I never split my infinitives.

- Jeffrey Heldt's fan mail.
- Blue eyes at the Sashabaw and I-75 Standard Service Station.

- Al Zawacky. I'll trip the light fantastic with you anytime.

- Ned Barker's Cabernets.
- Cinde Sans and Julie Carey, lovers of Teddy Bears.

- Dave Sherrill. It took four and a half years but with your patience I've mastered SEVs, the Headlee rollback and that 1 mill is $1 for each $1,000 of assessed property valuation.

- Richard Campbell's sexist jousting.
- Rudy's smile.

- Mark Gallo's wit.
- Harry Fahrner, the mad roller skater and leader of Hitchcock.

- Jim Sherman, player of toys.
- James B. Smith's red face when I challenge him.

- Jerry Powell, and his controversy.
- Keith Humbert, the first to shake a finger.

- The smiling secretaries at township hall.
- Jack Cruikshank's loyalty.

- Carolyn Walker. Here's looking at you kid, and good luck.

To all I've mentioned, and those I've forgotten to mention, I close with something else borrowed, a phrase from from Jean Paul Richter:

"Never part without loving words to think of during your absence. It may be that you will not meet again in life."

Again, it has been my pleasure.

IN MEMORY OF: Joe Homant will be remembered often by his family and friends. The 21-year-old bartender at the Deer Lake Racquet Club was killed in a car accident Oct. 25 on Clarkston Road near Delhi Road. With the help of Dick Lowrie of Lowrie's Landscape, a tree and bushes were planted in a memorial garden for Homant at the Independence Township Library. About 15 people showed up at the Nov. 10 planting. The idea belonged to Sue Lekander, a waitress at the racquet club. "It was just something I wanted to do," she said. "We collected money and decided to do this. We're all friends of Joe's. He was special."

Stickney pit up for sale

Township looks at purchase

By Marilyn Trumper

Independence Township is weighing purchase of the abandoned 23-acre Stickney Gravel Pit on Stickney Road, but first wants to make sure it's not "...getting a white elephant."

At its Nov. 13 meeting, the township board unanimously appointed the two-man committee of Fire Chief Frank Ronk, newly elected supervisor, and Kenneth Delbridge, director of building and planning, to investigate the property's worth and the cost of reclamation.

"I don't want to buy a white elephant," said Trustee Larence Kozma. "I don't look at this as a gift."

Ronk and two other new board members were to be sworn into office Nov. 20.

"I don't think this is a decision this board should make," Kozma said, referring to the current board authorizing purchase of the pit. "I think it's something the new board should investigate and decide."

Board members agreed.

The Stolaruk Corp., pit owners, offered to deed the land to Independence Township.

The company failed to meet a reclamation timetable set in 1982 and forfeited a $120,000 performance bond in June of last year, which is not enough to cover the cost of reclamation.

If deeded to the township, the land could be sold for an extremely low price, for example the cost of reclamation, assuming the buyer would reclaim the land.

Or the township could use its own equipment to level and grade the site and turn it into a public park.

County wants 40 acres for park addition

By Marilyn Trumper

As part of its condemnation battle last year with the Edward C. Levy Co., Independence Township landed an option to buy 40 acres near the headwaters of the Clinton River. With a Dec. 31 expiration on the option, Supervisor James B. Smith is negotiating to sell the land to Oakland County for inclusion in Independence Oaks County Park.

At its Nov. 13 meeting, the Independence Township Board authorized Smith to request a 90-day extension on the option, giving time for the state and county to arrive at a fair price, according to Smith.

"There's a dispute between the state and county about proper appraisals," Smith said. "They've gone to a third appraiser and I assume will take his figure. Right now, the county has no money from the state and it's waiting for the Michigan Land Trust Fund to be signed into agreement."

Both the DNR and legislature have allocated money for the sale, but it won't be freed until the law is signed, Smith said.

When the township condemned Levy's 80 acres in September of 1983, the options to buy were negotiated at a maximum of $3,000-an-acre, Smith said.

Independence Township wants the land, but can't afford it.

"The board has indicated it would like to buy the land, but hasn't the money," Smith said. "Really, 20 of the 40 acres are wetlands and really should go to the (Independence Land) Conservancy."

"We'd like to see the county buy it."

Jon Kipke, interim manager for Oakland County's Parks and Recreation Department, says the county is eyeing 160 acres in addition to the 40.

"Our intention, as it was earlier, is fulfill our obligation to purchase the land like we said we would," Kipke said. "But we need to settle on a price with the state, and we need the land trust."

"We're limited to how much the land trust will give us, and it may be up to the (Oakland County Parks) Commission to pay more if there are inadequate funds. We may have to settle on buying less land."

D.O.s, M.D.s join forces in O'Neill's office

By Marilyn Trumper

The stigma surrounding osteopathic physicians has worked its way out of our culture, according to Independence Township pediatrician James O'Neill, M.D.

Long considered the black sheep of the medical profession, Doctors of Osteopathic Medicine are now members of hospitals that traditionally staffed only Doctors of Medicine.

They are completing residencies in the offices of M.D.s, and later entering into practice with M.D.s.

In Clarkston, when D.O. pediatricians are out of town, O'Neill picks up the patient load.

When he's out of town, the D.O.s pick up his patient load.

Cementing the growing trend in medicine, Irving Kernis, D.O., left his nine-year Clarkston practice and joined O'Neill and partner Charles Yee, M.D., last September.

"It's the best thing I've ever done," said O'Neill. "We've been covering each other for years. Whenever I'd leave town, my patients would go over there and vice versa. All of (the area physicians) seem to be moving into a large, specially grouped practice and this is part of that."

"With a third physician, we've been able to extend our office hours. We can take care of moms early at eight in the morning and we're here until seven at night. They love it."

"If they miss us, there's always a doctor on staff at the (24-hour) clinic next door."

Kernis, O'Neill and Yee are affiliated with Health Maintenance Organization, the Health Care Network and Independence Health Plan, an alternative to Blue Cross-Blue Shield.

Joining forces eliminates two offices doing record-keeping and billing, and consequently cuts costs, O'Neill said.

In addition, the doctors are less hesitant about capital investments, and plan soon to buy a special machine to test hearing.

The end result means cost-cutting for both insurance companies and the patients, the doctors say.

In addition, their M.D. and D.O. alliance gives them three hospital affiliations: Pontiac Osteopathic, Pontiac General and St. Joseph Mercy.

Like M.D.s, D.O.s use all scientifically accepted methods of diagnosis and treatment including medications and surgery.

The educational requirements are the same for both, and in most instances both are examined by the same state licensing board.

The difference is D.O.s are trained to manipulate muscles and the skeleton, and as a result often improve circulation and eliminate stress that can create spasms.

"There's a move afoot to cause a merger of the osteopath and M.D. profession, and one of the ways of fostering this amalgamation is to allow osteopaths to take their residency in M.D. institutions," Kernis said. "I got my training at Children's Hospital. That's how I was able to take pediatric training, and my residency with an M.D. because my specialty training was through an M.D. institution."

Kernis is board certified through the American Academy of Pediatrics, an M.D. organization.

And he says at least a couple of dozen times a week, he uses manipulation on patients.

"I think people should stop dwelling on the differences and judge by what the person has to offer," he said.

O'Neill agrees, and laughs, recalling an incident early in his 26-year career in medicine.

"It was the summer of 1967... I was asked to be a lobbyist. The M.D.s told me to lobby for a D.O. school in Pontiac. They said they'd pick up the tab. I never asked them, but I think I was supposed to lobby against the school. I lobbied for it," he said. "I thought it was a good idea."

The alliance with Kernis, says O'Neill, "Is the happiest, the best thing I've ever done."

Says Kernis, "It's been a pleasure."

Members of the gifted education class at Sashabaw Junior High, these kids look through items for their time capsule. It's scheduled for a spring burial in a secret location, to be unearthed in the year 2014 or by construction crews, whichever comes first. From front, right to left, are Mike O'Connor, Mike Barnes, Quinton

Geyer, Jeremy Roberts, Corey Whisner, Wendy Scroby, Brendon Gillen, Mike St. Charles, Sharon Hawley and Annmarie Mudge.

Kids leave modern relics in time capsule

Gifted class to bury cache in secret hiding place

By Marilyn Trumper

There'll be some interesting reading for the construction crew that unearths a time capsule buried by 13 kids from Sashabaw Junior High's GATE, the Gifted and Talented Education class.

The brainchild of teacher Sue Kaiser, the capsule holds the kids' collection of an old pair of Nike tennis shoes, Calvin Klein jeans, the Detroit News front page announcing President Ronald Reagan the winner, fast-food restaurant logos, popular rock band music, zipper pants, bumper stickers, a Bible, crucifix and more, all sealed in plastic locking food storage bags.

The relics were put inside a silver garbage can, topped, and will be buried this spring in a secluded, secret spot, for opening in the year 2014 or discovery by a construction crew, whichever comes first.

They've also included a bank book with a $10 balance at Pontiac State Bank.

It's Jeremy Robert's job to make a deposit every seven years to keep the account active.

"Whoever finds it might be a millionaire someday," laughs Quinton Geyer, anticipating the $10 will parlay into millions with 30 years of fluctuating interest rates.

Thirty years, according to the kids, is the typical span cited by sociologists for change.

Each of the kids wrote an essay, some on the weather the day the capsule will be buried, others on the role of women in society, one on the role of schools, and another on robotics and what he thinks they'll be like in the future.

The idea, according to the kids, "is to let people know what it was like to be a teenager today."

Board weighs new team

Solid waste force resigns

By Marilyn Trumper

After four years monitoring meetings at the county level, the three-member Independence Township Solid Waste Task Force has resigned.

The group was appointed by Supervisor James B. Smith with board approval shortly after his new administration took office in 1980. Their resignation read: "We were happy to support Jim Smith in his effort to solve many of the township's most pressing problems as members of this volunteer committee. However, we believe the new board should start with a clean slate."

It was signed Edward Thomson, William Basinger and Fred Hancock.

For years, the task force monitored the county's solid waste plan and final adoption, and alerted local government when Independence escaped as an incinerator, landfill or transfer station site.

"They've worked vigorously, and continuously pursued the county's meetings and know more about solid waste than anyone, second only to county officials," Smith said. "I urge my successor to ask these people to reconsider. We need their talents."

Smith was referring to fire Chief Frank Ronk, the new township supervisor elected Nov. 6.

Village eyes M-15

By Marilyn Trumper

The village council's eyeing a seven-member committee to establish a unified front to protect Clarkston's downtown from the ramifications of a widened M-15.

With trustee Sharron Catalo spearheading the move, the council discussed 15 review possibilities for the yet-to-be-named committee.

Among them are declaring M-15 a village road, bird-dogging the state highway department and gearing the downtown to pedestrians.

"We determined a long time ago we have no say in what happens to M-15," President Carol Eberhardt said. "But we can do what we can to prevent anything from happening to the village."

"The council agreed this was a good idea," she said after the Nov. 12 meeting.

Catalo's expected to return to the next council meeting with a list of candidates for the committee, according to Eberhardt.

Reye's warning

With the flu season here, parents should be on the lookout for the symptoms of Reye syndrome.

The following tips are from the federal Food and Drug Administration:

Reye syndrome is a rare but dangerous condition that can develop from flu or chicken pox. It occurs mainly in children under 16, usually when they appear to be recovering.

Watch for these signs: persistent vomiting, fatigue, and confusion and belligerence.

If a child displays any of these symptoms, contact a doctor immediately.

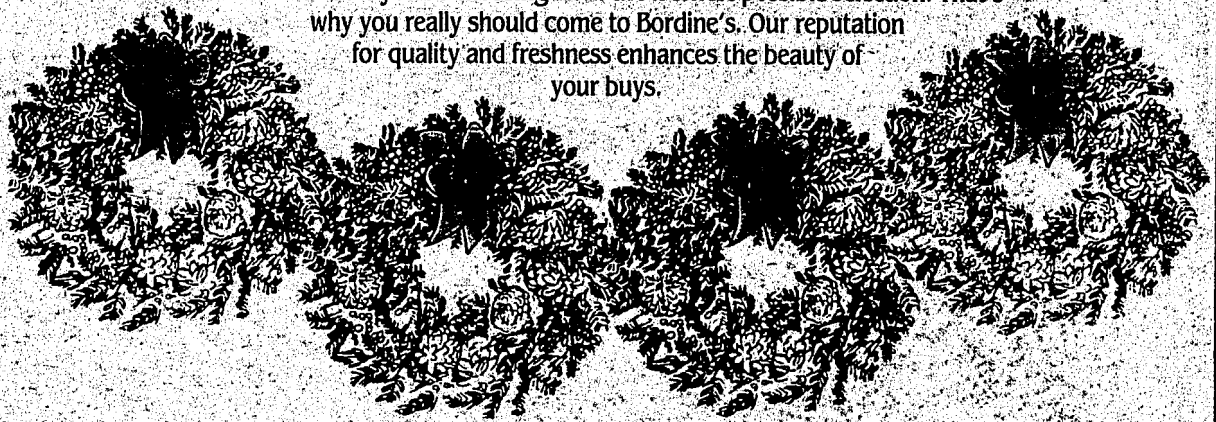

Some studies indicate there may be an association between the use of aspirin for flu and chicken pox and the development of Reye syndrome. Further studies are being conducted on this possibility.

In the meantime, the United States Surgeon General suggests checking with a doctor before using aspirin or any medication when a child has flu or chicken pox.

Through working with Julie [center] and Tracy Chin, the Clarkston school district has developed a program for teaching English as a second language. Teacher's aide Jessie Hurr leads the process, called "total immersion" because none of the instructors speak Chinese.

● Americanizing 2 Chinese sisters

Tracy's name in China was Chin Juan Qing. Unlike her sister, Tracy had never taken an English class, but she's eager to learn.

By Kathy Greenfield

Julie and Tracy Chin smile as a visitor enters the comfort of their Clarkston Junior High School classroom, and they offer the traditional American greeting: "Hi."

Julie, 13, turns to her younger sister and speaks a few words in their native tongue, Chinese. Tracy, 11, jumps up and removes a chair from atop a desk against the wall.

She puts it up to the table where the girls are studying with their special tutor, Jessie Hurr, turns to the visitor, and says, "Please."

It's a polite and thoughtful welcome. And while only a few words of English are exchanged, the greeting illustrates the girls' progress as they eagerly work to learn a new language and way of life.

Former residents of Canton, China, Julie and Tracy moved to Independence Township at the end of September with their parents, Donna and Bill Chin, and their grandmother, Feug.

Julie had studied English four years, but her lessons were in reading and writing, not speaking. Tracy's knowledge was limited to the English alphabet.

They're the first non-English speaking students to attend Clarkston schools, so a program was developed for them. It has been a learning experience for everyone.

The girls spend four hours each school day with teacher's aide Jessie Hurr at CJH, then attend regular

Clarkston Latchkey starts off with 78 kids

By Marilyn Trumper

A year ago, for an hour before school and an hour after school, 9-year-old Bryan Crawley and his 5-year-old brother Kevin stayed with a baby-sitter. Their parents both work.

And their parents getting to work on-time meant leaving the kids in the morning an hour before the bus came to take them to school.

Their work day ended an hour after the kids were scheduled to arrive home from school.

This year, Bryan and Kevin are two of 78 registered in the Clarkston school district's Latchkey Program, which made its debut in September when the school year began.

Now their folks drop them off in the morning at North Sashabaw Elementary where they typically have a breakfast of toast and peanut butter before classes begin.

After school, they return to the Latchkey classroom where they play games, listen to stories and make crafts and have a snack under a teacher's supervision until their parents come to pick them up.

"I like this better," Bryan said, bending over the craft table, and gluing together a Popsicle stick house. "Otherwise I'd have to be at the babysitter's house and here I can play with all my friends. There's more to do here than at home."

Developed by Supervisor Jeanne Molzon, the program is self-sufficient. Parents pay $1.50 an-hour for one child, $2 an-hour for two children and $2.50 for three children.

It's open from 7 a.m. until school starts and after school until 6 p.m. for North Sashabaw and Pine Knob elementary students in kindergarten through sixth grade.

Children from Pine Knob are bused to and from North Sashabaw.

Doris Bonnel has been a substitute teacher in the Clarkston School District since her pink-slip in 1976, and readily took over the Latchkey teaching job with its unorthodox hours.

"So far it's really been a good program," Bonnel said. "The kids enjoy coming and most of them would rather be here than at home anyway."

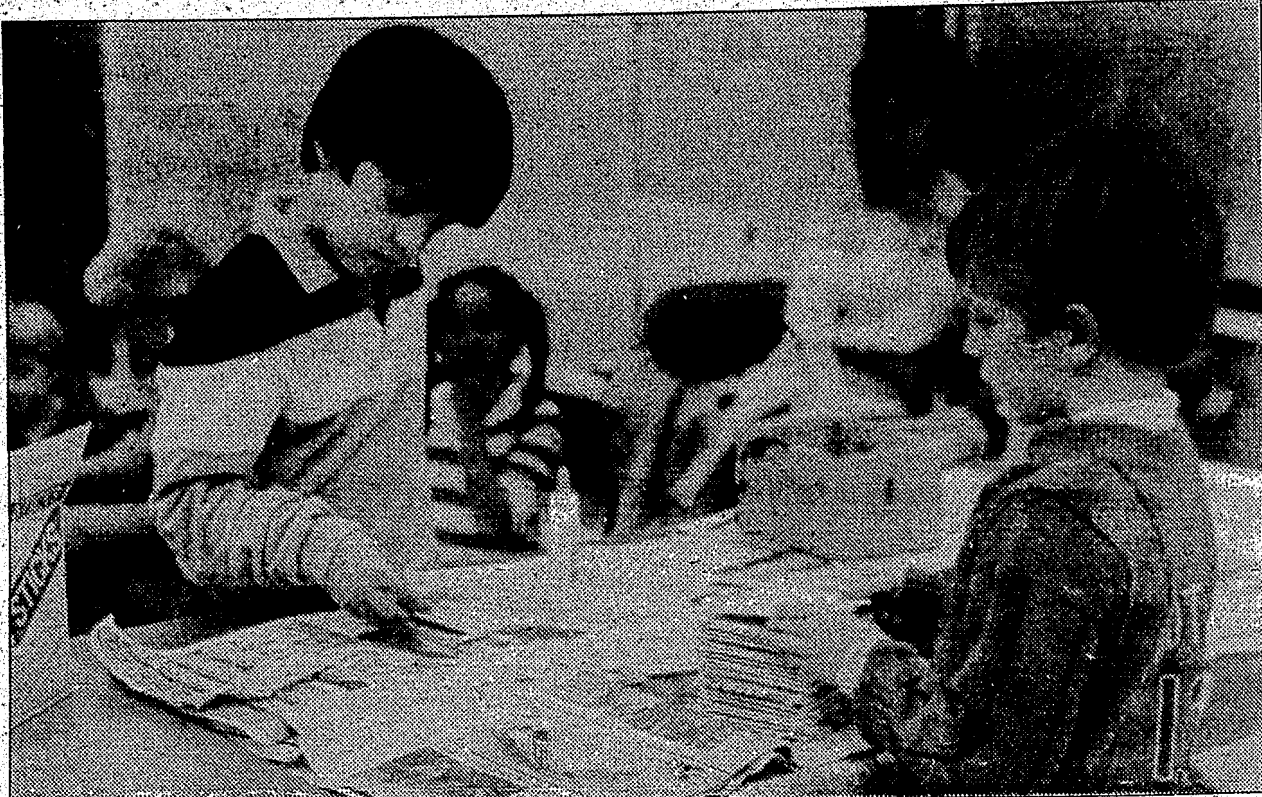

"I really felt like I would enjoy doing (this job) and I've always hoped to be called back. For years I taught elementary school so this was a way to keep my skills intact."

The program is licensed by the State Department of Social Services, which makes mothers accepting Aid to Dependent Children (ADC) eligible. There's no limit to the number of students in the program, but state regulations require one teacher for every 20 students.

Bonnel has three aides now.

This January, according to Molzon, the program's expected to expand to Clarkston Elementary and by next fall to all elementaries in the district.

Bryan Crawley [left] and Jeremy McManan bend over the craft table, gluing together houses of Popsicle sticks. All 78 kids in the Clarkston Community School District's Latchkey program are breaking new trails. Latchkey was offered for the first time this fall, and ended children having to go to the sitter's before and after school.

Dear Cat Paw:
What does cocaine come from? Confused

Dear Confused:
Cocaine is a white crystal-like powder derived from the coca bush. It is also known as snow, leaf, or simply coke.

Cocaine is a stimulant. It speeds up the pulse and circulation. It gives the user the effect of intensified "awareness."

Users are restless, often become irritable and aggressive. As the drug wears off, the user is left with severe depression and nervous exhaustion which can last for several days.

Dear Cat Paw:
Are all drugs harmful to the body? Curious

Dear Curious:
A body is balanced perfectly when healthy. Occasionally illness disrupts this balance and a doctor may prescribe drugs to restore the body to its normal balance. In this case, drugs are not harmful.
When people introduce drugs to a healthy body, they upset that normal balance and do a great deal of damage to the healthy body. Drugs should never be taken without the supervision of a doctor.

Dear Cat Paw:
What is speed? Wondering

Dear Wondering:
Speed is a stimulant or amphetamine. Known on the street as "uppers," they stimulate the central nervous system and produce an increase in alertness and activity.

Users can become dependent on speed. Speed produces restlessness, anxiety, mood swings, circulatory and cardiac disturbances, hallucinations, convulsions and coma.

Dear Cat Paw:
I would like to know if one can become high from breathing a stoned person's breath. Thank you. Brandy Wine

Dear Brandy Wine:
You cannot get high just from breathing someone's breath. If that person is in a car with you, however, and smoking marijuana, you can get high from the smoke he is exhaling and creating.

This is called a "contact buzz." Your high will not be the same as that of the smoker but, nevertheless, you will get high.

Dear Cat Paw:
If a parent suspects that his or her child has drugs, does the parent have the right to go through the child's stuff? Concerned

Dear Concerned:
I believe parents not only have the right, but also the obligation to go through their kids' stuff if they suspect drugs.

A child must be shown that the consequences of drugs on a child's mental and physical health are enormous and a parent must do everything in his or her power to save that child and get him or her off drugs.

The alternative is the ruination of a least one life, if not more.

To ask questions about drugs or alcohol, write C.A.T. P.A.W., in care of The Clarkston News, 5 S. Main, Clarkston, MI 48016. Letters need not be signed.

Editor's note: The author of C.A.T. P.A.W. is Jeanette Sanders, co-chairperson of The Chemical People of Clarkston, a group devoted to the prevention of drug and alcohol abuse among youth in the community.

The next meeting of The Chemical People of Clarkston is Thursday, Nov. 29, at 7:30 p.m. at the Clarkston school district administration office, 6389 Clarkston Rd., Independence Township. (Fred Baumann, 625-9600)

Dinner gift

Vet donates Thanksgiving

Dr. Steven Lindner of the Airport Veterinary Hospital will dine unseen with a local family over the Thanksgiving holiday.

Lindner, the winner of a Clarkston Elementary PTO raffle, donated his prize, a complete turkey dinner for 10, to a needy Clarkston family.

Says Lindner, "I wanted to share some of what I had with someone who needed it more than my family. It will arrive completely cooked with all the trimmings. Sort of a mini-banquet."

In the true spirit of the holidays, Lindner's good wishes go with the dinner.

Cut your own

Christmas is almost here and it's time to start planning.

This year at Camp Fire's Camp Oweki in Independence Township, tree seekers can find and chop down—for a fee—large green and blue spruce.

Most of the trees 10 feet or taller. The price for a 10-foot tree is $15 and trees over 10 feet are $30. The camp will be open Dec. 8 for cutting. Participants should bring a saw.

Camp Oweki is located at 6127 Gulick Road, off Waldon Road and west of Sashabaw Road.

Two sisters

classes. Julie in the ninth grade at CIH and Tracy in the sixth-grade class of Barbara Glover at Clarkston Elementary School.

Julie now attends math, gym and reading classes, where she received legitimate letter grades at the end of the marking period. For her other classes, she's receiving credits.

Julie and Tracy expect to have two-to three hours of homework each night.

"The one difference is these children think it's a privilege to learn and they want to learn," said Hurr.

In the beginning, she worked with speech correctionist Jan Kirchgessner to develop a list of survival words—bathroom, eat, drink, names of clothing and colors.

Hurr calls the initial experience "a fancy game of charades."

Both girls are filling up notebooks with English words. At first, they wrote the detailed Chinese character next to each one, but the double entries are becoming less frequent as understanding increases.

Now that they can communicate, sometimes still with the help of Julie's Chinese-English dictionary, they've moved into more complex matters—for instance, American holidays.

"I had a really interesting experience with Halloween, because they have nothing comparable," Hurr said. "I said, 'Halloween is fun.' Tracy said, 'No. This went on for 10 minutes. Finally, we learned 'fun' in Chinese is rice, and Tracy didn't want rice in her bag."

The list of discoveries of cultural and life-style differences grows daily.

In China, the girls attended school six days a week, beginning at 7 a.m. and they went home every day for lunch from 11:30 to 2:30. Depending on classes, they would return home from school at times varying from 3 to 6 p.m.

Girls in China, Julie said, always wore dresses—and on special days at school they wore uniforms. Now she wears blue jeans—and sweaters as the days get cooler.

Snow in places other than the mountains will be something new, because temperatures didn't go below 40 degrees in Canton.

For lunch in China, the usual menu was rice, vegetable soup and, sometimes, fish. Now they bring packed-at-home lunches of a sandwich, potato chips, candy and an apple.

Julie nods "yes" when asked if she likes learning English. "Hard, but I like," she responds.

Then she sets to work on some drawings to show her math teacher.

The project began when Hurr was working to explain drawing circles and squares around words and pictures in a workbook.

Julie's samples of a trapezoid, parallelogram, cone and rectangular prism all include the correct mathematical formulas, for Arabic numerals are used in both countries.

Once she masters English skills, it's likely she'll will be far ahead of her American counterparts in math skills, her teachers say.

In China, the Chin family lived five floors up in an apartment building. Now they live in a home on Deer Lake with Donna Chin's sister, Diane Gee and her family.

Leo and Diane Gee own the Wing Lauk restaurant in Waterford Township. They've sponsored the move of 15 relatives to the U.S.

"Just like an adventure, a change in life...to see if they like it," is the reason Leo Gee gives for the sponsorships.

In 1951, when he was 18, Gee moved from China to Detroit, where his father owned a restaurant. He and Diane were married in Hong Kong, and she moved to the U.S. in 1963.

"My life is here," said Diane. "I've lived most of my life here. Younger people coming here, it's a very easy adjustment. For older people, it's at least one year."

Julie and Tracy's parents work at the restaurant. In China, they were both electrical engineers. But, for now, they need to master English skills before being on their own, just like the other families the Gees brought to America.

"They stay with me until they learn English," he said, "and then they move to a house of their own."

"The kids like it," he said about their experiences at school. "So far, so good. I don't think they want to go back."

The technique used to teach Julie and Tracy English as a second language is called "total immersion" because they are working with people who cannot speak Chinese. Pat Evans, a learning disabilities teacher at CIH, is overseeing their studies.

After five weeks of tutoring sessions, everyone was amazed at their progress. Evans called it phenomenal.

"This week, we placed (Julie) in our regular materials and found that she's progressed so well she could function right now in a remedial reading classroom with children that have spoken English since age 2," said Evans.

"Jessie and I would really like to thank (Assistant Superintendent) Mel Vaara and (CIH Principal) Duane Lewis for being so insightful in letting us develop a program. The way we're acting now is where many school districts have ended up after seven to nine years of stumbling around."

Vaara, in turn, has praise for the staff. "When we had the original meeting with the two students from China, they could not speak a word of English," said Vaara. "We got a lot of support from the teachers in our system on this task of trying to teach these girls English. I'm overwhelmed with the enthusiasm of the staff on this project."

The goal is to have Julie and Tracy attend regular classes all day at the end of the first semester in January. The decision on whether more tutoring is needed will be made then, Vaara said.

In the meantime, he, too, is amazed at their progress.

"They're both bright girls," he said. "I went in there the other day to see how they were doing and they both said, 'Good morning, Mr. Vaara.' They pronounced my name correctly and many people mumble their way through."

"I feel good about this," he added. "I think we're going to help them be a success in life."

Judy Blackett of Keepsake Flowers adds greenery to decorations in the mansion's breakfast room.

Christmas fun at Meadow Brook

For a French Christmas, with a Joyeux Noel feel, embark on a holiday wonderland and visit Oakland University's stately Meadow Brook Hall.

Several rooms of the 100-room English Tudor mansion are decorated in the finest holiday tradition, with rich reds, greens and golds, stairways dripping with evergreen roping, gold beading and strings of lights.

Fifteen-foot-tall trees are draped in velvet ribbons and snow, with peach satin balls, and blue silk fans.

Springfield Township's own Keepsake Flowers decorated the breakfast room this year with grapevine centerpieces and evergreen sprigs.

Special displays of santons, terra cotta or porcelain figurines of saints, give "Joyeux Noel" a French flair.

The tiny basketmakers, lamplighters, chimney sweeps, shepherds and more are used in French homes as part of the traditional creche scenes.

Forty-one floral designers and special exhibitors are involved in this year's walk.

"Joyeux Noel" hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily except Wednesdays, Nov. 28 and Dec. 5, when the hall remains open until 9 p.m. Admission is $5 weekdays, $6 Saturday and Sunday. For group or senior rates phone 377-3140.

Meadow Brook Hall is located on Adams Road, one-third mile south of Walton Boulevard in Rochester.

By Lorna Bickerstaff

Sharon Kohs shared these super-moist muffins with her aerobics class at St. Daniel's Church. When asked for the recipe, she decided it was worth sharing with Clarkston News' readers, too. We're glad she did.

Sour Cream Applesauce Bran Muffins

- 1 1/4 c. flour
- 1 tsp. baking powder
- 1/2 tsp. soda
- 1/4 tsp. salt (optional)
- 1 tsp. cinnamon
- 1/2 c. sugar
- 1 c. bran cereal
- 1 egg, beaten
- 1/2 c. sour cream
- 1/4 c. butter or margarine, melted
- 1 c. applesauce

Sift dry ingredients, except bran, into mixing bowl. Combine bran, beaten egg, sour cream, butter and applesauce. Let stand two minutes to soften bran. Stir into dry ingredients until flour is just moistened. Fill baking cups 3/4 full. Bake at 400 degrees for 20-25 minutes.

Wolves win in upset

By Dan Vandenhemel

Half of a basketball game is offense, but after the Clarkston Wolves' upset of Waterford Kettering Captains, the only thing coach Dave McDonald could talk about was the defense.

The girls' varsity Wolves went into the Kettering gym knowing they needed a good game from everyone to beat the Captains, who stood with a record of 17-0. The Wolves got what they needed and crushed Kettering, 49-43, Nov. 15.

Throughout the fourth quarter, Clarkston was able to control both ends of the court. They built on their 32-28 third-quarter lead and were up by as much as nine points with just over three minutes to go.

Kettering didn't win the first 17 ball games without a good basketball team, and McDonald knew it.

"I didn't think it was over until there were four seconds left," he said.

"We played great defense; we needed to. They still scored 43 points, but we had to play great to keep them to that."

Kim Ottman put in another outstanding scoring performance. The senior guard racked up 20 points to lead the Wolves. Michelle Taulbee pitched in with 14.

Besides mentioning the play of Ottman, McDonald lauded guard Laura Hurren and the other stars of the game.

"Laura did a great job running the offense. She was all over the floor," he said. "Wendy and Bird (Learmont and Bridget Kilcline) did the job, too, underneath. They stopped Kettering from getting the ball inside."

Praise also went out to Taulbee, Missy O'Dell, Sue Stefanski and Kecia Powell.

"Everybody just played great," he said. "Without the defense, we wouldn't have been able to crank up the offense."

The big victory brings the Wolves to 12-6 overall and 5-2 in the league with a chance for second place. Kettering has the league wrapped up with a 7-1 mark in the 17-1 season. Waterford Mott, the Wolves' next opponent, is also 5-2 in the league.

Changes still to be made

By Dan Vandenhemel

Changes in the Greater Oakland Activities League are in the works but few of them are coming through, at least for the moment.

That's what Clarkston High School Athletic Director Paul Tungate is saying. The GOAL presently has five member schools, Clarkston, Waterford Kettering, Waterford Mott, Lake Orion and Pontiac Northern. Two years ago, the league dropped to the present number when Rochester and West Bloomfield went to different leagues and Waterford Township closed its doors.

Expansion or a merger with another league is a possibility Tungate has been looking into.

It was reported earlier in The Clarkston News that a number of schools have shown interest in joining the GOAL, including Lapeer East and West, and Milford.

Driver grabs championship at race track

By Dan Vandenhemel

Driving at 100 mph in rain with the window fogging up is not the ideal Sunday afternoon drive for most people—but Ted Wollesen is not most people.

Wollesen came away with the track championship at the Waterford Hills Race Track for the first time in his four-year racing career. Last year the Deer Hill Drive resident finished sixth.

Out of 20 races at the Waterford Hill, Wollesen won 17 times, finished second twice and the other time, the car broke down.

To help keep track of his races, he mounts a video camera in his Austin Cooper "Mini" and tapes the races.

"I could watch these all day," he said of the tapes. "I've got most of the races on file. I've missed a few, like when I forgot to turn the camera on."

One of the races on film is from Watkins Glen, New York. It was raining and the front windshield was steaming up so much, Wollesen couldn't see.

"I had to loosen the shoulder harness so I could lean forward to wipe the window off," he said. "You know, after the race I had the biggest bruise where my shoulder was pushing against the harness."

At age 41, Wollesen is just getting starting in racing when most people are giving it up.

Sponsors like Clarkston Big Boy and the Clarkston Shell station help on the cost.

"I'm going to keep racing until the money runs out—and then race some more," he said.

Racer Ted Wollesen poses with his Mini Cooper. The Independence Township resident won top honors at the Waterford Hills Race Track this year, posting wins in 17 out of 20 races.

Wrestler hunt

The Clarkston Wrestling Club is looking for more members.

The free-style wrestling club plans a registration period Dec. 3 and 5 from 6 to 8 p.m. at Sashabaw Junior High School.

The club had 43 wrestlers last year, boys and girls from ages 5 to 14. The $10-a-person fee covers insurance and uniforms.

For more information, call club president Bob DeRoseau at 628-3924.

Sports clinic

Girls will have an opportunity to learn volleyball and basketball at a clinic sponsored by the Independence Township Parks and Recreation Department.

It's scheduled to begin from 10 a.m. to noon, in the Clarkston High School gym and run for six weeks.

Open to girls in grades one through eight, the cost is $15.

For more information, call the parks and recreation department at 625-8223.

Family life in NFL never dull for coach

By Dan Vandenhemel

The toughest jobs in the National Football League are those of the coaching staffs. If the team is doing well, the players get the credit. If they're floundering, it's the coaches' fault.

For Lions' special teams coach Joe Madden and his wife, Janis, a music teacher in the Clarkston School district, the season doesn't hold a dull moment.

"It's exciting, but it's more fun when you're winning."

"It's exciting, but it's more fun when you're winning," Janis said from the family home in Troy. "It's never dull, moving from town to town and meeting new people."

Joe has been with the Lions five years. Prior to that, he coached in colleges including Tennessee University and the University of Pittsburgh.

For 18 years, Joe coached in the college ranks. Now in the NFL, he handles everything to do with the kicking game for the Lions.

"Every time we line up for a kick, it's my responsibility," he said from the Lions' office in the Pontiac Silverdome. "There's about 27 snaps a game with the special teams. That's where you can get beat the fastest. Everyone in the NFL is looking for an edge, and mostly that comes in the kicking game."

A typical week for Joe isn't very typical for most people. Monday's the coaching staff reviews the prior game; on Tuesday they watch the game films for the next game; Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, they go over punts and kickoffs; and then it's a travel day.

"I go home when the work's done," he said. "It's late most of the nights. It's better now, I'm home more. In college I had to go on recruiting trips. The hours aren't the best, but I wouldn't do it if I didn't enjoy it."

GOAL looks at expansion

"The Lapeer schools were invited, but they're not going to come in," Tungate said. "They're in the Flint Metro League and are afraid they won't get the press coverage down here that they're getting now. Milford's not coming either, because they're in the Kensington League and they have eight stable teams."

A fourth school, Avondale which is independent, has not responded to the invitation to join the GOAL.

With expansion not moving as quickly as league AD's had hoped, a merger has been discussed.

"The Big 9 out of Flint might have an opening coming up and we'd look into it, but that's not saying we'll take it," said Tungate. "We'd hate to leave the other schools hanging. There's a small league in Livonia, but the distance is going to add to the cost."

"Right now we're at a wait-and-see period. People know we're interested in adding teams, so we'll just have to wait."

Learn to ski

Wax those skis and get ready for the cross-country ski season.

The Independence Township Parks and Recreation Department is giving skiing lessons in two separate classes at Independence Oaks County Park on Sashabaw Road.

Class dates are Jan. 5 and 12 from 9:30 to noon at the boat house.

The cost is $6 a person and it's open to everyone.

For more information, contact the parks and recreation department at 625-8223.

Friends now rivals in coaching

By Dan Vandenhemel

Cheerleading from the sidelines of a Sashabaw Junior High sporting event eight years ago, Jill Thompson and Peggy Thomas were rooting on the Cougars with enthusiasm.

Today they're standing on opposite sides of the field as they coach rival cheerleading squads.

Thomas is in her second season as coach at Clarkston Junior High while Thompson is in her first at Sashabaw Junior High.

Their friendship spans 11 years, dating back to seventh grade at SJH.

"We met back then when I tried to open Jill's locker instead of mine," Thomas laughed. "The lockers were in alphabetical order and there were three of us all trying to open the wrong locker."

From cheering at Sashabaw, the next step was the color guard at Clarkston High School their sophomore year. Thomas said she tried out for the cheerleading squad at CHS but didn't make it. Thompson wanted to try out for the squad, but couldn't.

"I had mono that year," she said. "Peggy saw that I was upset and talked me into going out for the color guard."

After a year on the guard, Thompson went back to cheerleading for the final two years in high school and Thomas stayed with the guard until they graduated in 1979.

Time is limited for both coaches because of their jobs. Thomas is a teller at the Pontiac State Bank in Clarkston. She graduated from Oakland University last year with a degree in Human Resources. Thompson is a 1983 grad of the University of Michigan in Mechanical Engineering. She's working at Pontiac Motors in Pontiac.

"I don't have any problems with the kids," Thomas said. "But it's hard to get together sometimes because they do so much, it conflicts with schedules."

But how the two 23-year-old women got involved with coaching while trying to get their own careers going ties into one thing, they were willing to do it.

Thomas ended up at Clarkston Junior High because a cousin wanting to try out for the squad at CJH needed some help and asked her for advice.

"I gave her a hand and told the school I was willing to help get the girls organized," Thomas said. "No one wanted to take over the squad so I did."

Thompson got the post at SJH mostly due to Thomas' persuasion.

"Sashabaw needed a coach and Peggy called me and told me about it," Thompson said with a smile. "She talked me into it. That's twice she's talked me into things. It's neat though—a lot of fun."

Part of the fun is when the two schools meet in a sporting event. The rivalry between the junior high cheerleading squads isn't fierce, but friendly.

"We call each other before the two schools meet," Thompson said. "We try to set up who's going out on the floor first for a routine and who'll take the first time out. Sometimes we mess up on who's supposed to be out on the floor. We just look at each other and shrug our shoulders."

"We try not to make a big thing of the rival bit between the schools because they're going to be going to the same high school in another year," said Thomas.

Thompson echoed those thoughts about the rivalry, saying the squads get together during the summer for camps.

"I don't like to criticize the other school," she said. "We try to keep it in the sports and have a good time."

"We try not to make a big thing out of the rival bit between the school..."

—Jill Thompson

Still best of friends, Peggy Thomas and Jill Thompson were on the same cheerleading squad at Sashabaw Junior High, today they're coaches at rival junior high schools.

Volunteers keep an eye on CHS crowds

By Dan Vandenhemel
 While many of the fans at the Clarkston High School football field intently watched the Wolves in action, little did they know they were being watched. At all the home games, Oakland County Sheriff's Department (OCSD) deputies were on the sidelines keeping an eye on the crowd and controlling the traffic after the game. They were there, along with reserve officers and Explorer Scouts, to maintain peace. The men in blue have been at the games in previous years, but this year is different because it's on a voluntary basis.

Capt. Jim Curtis of the OCSD road patrol said all the deputies who worked the games were off-duty.

"We've got 23 deputies living in Independence Township," he said. "A lot of people think the sheriff's department is in Pontiac and that we've got no relations in the community. Actually, quite a few of the deputies graduated from Clarkston. This is good P.R. (public relations)."

In the past, the Clarkston school district hired deputies for $23 an hour, Curtis said.

Deputy Jim Snover was on hand for the Wolves' final game of the season, Nov. 2. He watched his son Chad play and kept an eye on the crowd.

"We're here strictly because we wanted to get involved in the community," he said. "Many of the people don't think it's a volunteer effort because we're always there. Us being there is just something they're

At the final football game of the season at Clarkston High School had enough protection with the Oakland County Sheriff's Department reserves and Explorer Scouts in attendance, all volunteering their time to patrol the crowd and direct traffic.

Up My Alley

Rambling
goodbye

By Dan Vandenhemel

There's a little thing called writer's block. It's a simple thing, yet very common. Many types of cures are available when this occurs.

The most overused is the battered cliché: Just sit down and open a vein and let a little blood flow.

I'm sure everyone knows that's silly. The best way is to relax and let your forehead crash into the keyboard knocking the writer unconscious, thus ending the problem.

Another way to fix the failure is to simply ramble. This is a better way because it eats up space and saves the price of aspirin.

For beginners, just open your mouth and disengage your brain.

The more advanced ramblers think about opening their mouths, then think about stopping the thinking process, then think about how they're going to remove that size 9 shoe from their mouths.

But anyway...

It's going to be different around The Clarkston News office after Thanksgiving.

My very good friend, Marilyn Trumper, has taken a job with a newspaper in Mt. Pleasant.

No more hearty laughs, that seem to start in the toes, as Marilyn writes a funny story—or reads the comics.

No more jokes about fumigating the office with strong perfume.

No more worries about the threat of a sharp pair of scissors being stuck in back everytime a cutdown goes her way.

No more acting like a taxi every time her car breaks down.

No more long talks while she's waiting for a meeting and I'm waiting to finish my work.

No more stories about her weekends.

No more blueberry muffin crumbs on the back table.

No more verses of a song she and Al Zawacky made up long ago.

No more fights with her about using the computer and no more fights about who's going to do the next story about a weed collection.

No more will I have to motivate her to go swimming.

No more will I be accused of stealing the Springfield Township map.

No more hearing a thump behind me and knowing Marilyn either knocked something over or her briefcase jumped off the chair again.

No more statements like, "OK, Dan, you can go cover the meeting for me," or "OK, Marilyn, you can go across the street and get me an iced tea."

It's going to seem different now. But to say so long, I'll have to borrow, and change a little, the closing line of Marilyn's column, "On my soapbox."

Marilyn, it's been our pleasure.

Booster club keeps working to help CHS sports

By Dan Vandenhemel

There's one behind the concession stand, and another in the press box, and yet another working on the sidelines.

Athletic Booster Club members seem to be everywhere when it comes to Clarkston High School athletics.

Throughout the year the club raises money to help support the school's sports programs. They even started the boys' soccer team two seasons ago.

Also on their list of accomplishments is a $1,200 electronic timer for the ski team; a $1,500 ice maker to take care of athletes in the trainer's room; and a $5,000 video-recording system for the teams to analyze their games.

"Right now we're looking for new members," said club president Mary Jean Cox. "We're looking for their input, because after a few years you tend to get a little burned out of ideas."

The club is 40 families strong and they man the concession stands at the football and basketball games, the scoreboard and the press box. No one is paid for time put in.

"It's all on our own," Cox said. "The sideline chains are volunteer, the booth announcers are volunteer, everything. It's to save a little money for the school district, to pick up the extras that the school can't come up with."

That includes the soccer program. "We started that, now the school can take over," Cox said. "They possibly may start a girls' soccer program in the spring. Soccer doesn't cost as much as other sports to fund, but we got it going to see if there was any interest."

With a solid record of helping the schools behind them, the booster club is looking for new ideas. One came from Clarkston Junior High. They're in need of new wrestling mats, at a cost of nearly $5,000.

"We're debating if we want to focus on a goal or a special project," Cox said. "Right now we need new members to help."

Cagers gear up for '84-85 year

By Dan Vandenhemel

Dan Fife isn't just looking forward to this basketball season at Clarkston High School, the boys' varsity coach is also thinking ahead to the following season.

Fife, entering his third year as coach, said he likes this team more than usual because of the talent and depth of the players.

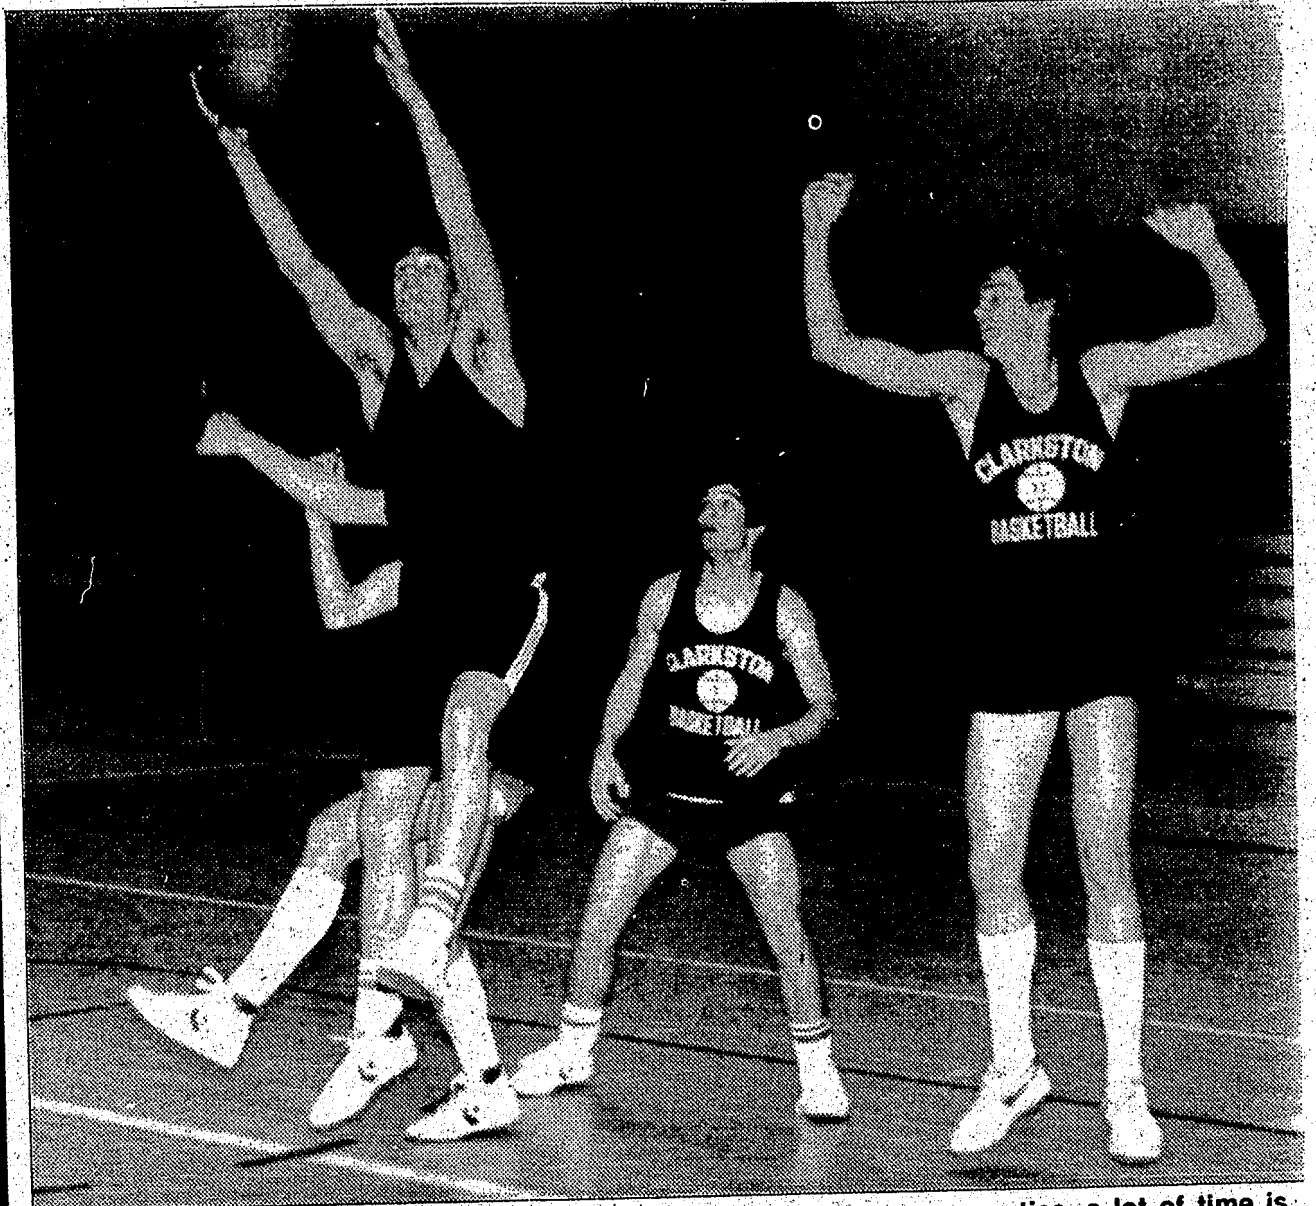

This version of the Wolves has 14 players, one more than the past two years.

"There were a couple of players I couldn't decide on, so I kept all of them," Fife said. "In previous years, I could have told you who'd be started this early, but not this year. Any one of 10 players could start. All I know now is Erik (Kline) is going to start."

Kline is in his third varsity season and is one of seven seniors on the team. Along with six juniors and one sophomore, the balance in experience is what Fife was looking for.

"I don't like being left starting five new players each year," Fife said. "This bunch has different levels

With the height the boys' varsity basketball will have, rebounding is going to be important. During an early season practice, a lot of time is spent pounding the boards.

used to seeing." Between the deputy, reserves and scouts, anywhere from five to 11 people patrol the area. The Explorer Post is sponsored by the sheriff's department and it gives young men and women, ranging from 14 to 21 years old, experience in law enforcement. "These guys are gaining time and knowledge," Snover said. "They're our eyes and ears. They don't actually do anything except report to the deputy and reserves so we can handle it." The scouts, with the help of organizers Deputy Frank Sciapani, Sue Bruns and Frank Thomas, have been able to get involved more with the police. This year included assorted fights and beer in the parking lot, but overall it was quiet. "We didn't have any problems, very peaceful," Curtis said. "The guys seem to enjoy it. There's no hardship with working at the games."

of experience. It's different than other years. They'll all be able to contribute." With a 21-3 record his opening year and 15-7 the following, Fife has been able to continue the winning ways at Clarkston.

One way of doing that is to have quality players come up through the school district—and to know those players. Prior to coaching at CHS, Fife headed the team at Sashabaw Junior High. Today, six of the varsity players were on that freshman team. "This is a hard-working group," he said. "At Sashabaw they knew what to expect from me and me of them, we all got along. I'm hoping the senior pride and leadership will come through. That adds to a good situation." Besides Kline, other key players for the Wolves prior to the Dec. 7 opener with Detroit Catholic Central are seniors Doug Colling, David Ladd, Jim Acton, Matt Riddle, Brian Lewis and Steve Mayer; juniors

Mike Walters and Ed Whitaker, and sophomore Dan Jokisch. "Mike Walters is going to be a good player. He's going to surprise some people," Fife said. "Danny (Jokisch) is going to be a great player before he leaves Clarkston. But we're only going to be as good as the seniors are."

During the off-season, researchers are busy trying to find a correlation between baseball skills and the size and shape of tobacco spit blots.
