'A hospital without walls'

Surgical center eyed in '86

By Carolyn Walker

A hospital without walls is how pediatrician James O'Neill envisions the proposed Clarkston Surgical Center.

O'Neill, in cooperation with local medical doctors and osteopathic physicians, plans to establish a free-standing surgical center for outpatient services by 1986.

The unit, which will house four surgical suites and a psychiatric day care center, will allow patients access to different tests and procedures without the overnight confinements common to many hospitals.

It will supplement local ambulatory care and physician services.

Pending approval by the Comprehensive Health Planning Council of Southeastern Michigan and the State of Michigan, which look at population densities and existing facilities, a Certificate of Need may be issued by March 6, 1985.

The projected cost of the facility is $3,425,327. It would be funded by money from contributors and stockholders, according to Mike Upham, comptroller for the Clarkston Ambulatory Care Center.

In addition to O'Neill, the stockholders include: former state senators Kerry Kammer of Springfield Township and Billy Huffman of Madison Heights, and attorney Thomas P. Rabette, who resides in Davisburg.

"Staffed by local physicians and with community members on the board of directors, it will sustain itself," O'Neill said.

Saint Joseph Mercy Hospital also has an option to buy a 50-percent share.

O'Neill noted that many major hospitals from Detroit and Flint have looked at the Clarkston area as an ideal location for establishing satellites.

"Major hospitals do not always have the best interests of a small community at heart," he said. "Many only want to feed themselves."

"We do not need acute care beds here. We need 24 hour ambulatory care, outpatient surgery, and a

Clarkston approves condo's

By Carolyn Walker

The first steps toward building condominiums in Clarkston were taken by the village council at Monday night's meeting.

In a 3-2 vote, council members approved Fontie ApMadoc's motion to establish a separate zoning classification for condominium districts and rezone Walker's property.

Walker, who has been attempting to build condominiums on property adjacent to Deer Lake beach since 1981, presented a petition with 95 signatures to council members.

The motion was approved after a lengthy debate between council members and residents at the meeting.

"Zoning operates on districts and not projects," said Tom Gruich, attorney for the village, who cautioned members that a condominium ordinance could pave the way for units, in addition to Walker's, being built in the village.

Council member Sharron Catallo attempted to amend the motion and delete the section which would rezone Walker's property, citing the need to establish condominium regulations before granting Walker approval.

The amendment was defeated.

Norma Goyette, clerk for the council and a non-voting member, voiced approval for ApMadoc's motion.

"We've got to change with the times," she said.

Four senior citizens supported the concept of condominiums within walking distance of the village.

"There is a definite need for housing for elderly single people," said Patricia Beach, a village resident. "We need something smaller than our old homes, something that is easier to take care of."

Helen Woolfenden agreed.

"How can we convince the board that there is a need? Shall we demonstrate?" she said. "We'll all be dead and gone at this rate."

The next steps include establishing an ordinance for condominiums with the aid of the village planning commission or an outside planner; and public hearings, said Gruich after the meeting.

Walker must have his land rezoned from single dwelling to condominium and submit plans for the project before building can begin, he added.

Traffic worries parents; want crossing guard

By Kathy Greenfield

Concerns about children who walk to and from traffic-plagued North Sashabaw Elementary School have prompted plans to request the township hire a crossing guard.

Patricia Summers, the mother of two North Sashabaw pupils, and Linda Sutton, the mother of three pupils, sought solutions to the problem at Monday night's board of education meeting.

They suggested adding school bus service for pupils who must walk along busy Maybee Road and hiring a crossing guard near the Lake Oakland Woods subdivision where children must walk on the road's shoulder or cross the road to use the existing sidewalk.

The board agreed action was needed, and Superintendent Milford Mason said he would join the women in a meeting with Township Supervisor Frank Ronk.

According to state law, the township board must hire crossing guards because only they have the authority to allow them to stop traffic.

Summers noted that 75 percent of the school's pupils do not ride buses.

"Probably half of those walkers are driven to school and there really is a lot of congestion," she said.

She described a common situation of slowing to 25 mph as directed by the yellow flashers on Maybee Road, and then having a driver behind tailgate and zoom past. In addition, she said a child had been approached by a stranger and a pupil, who attends Sashabaw Junior High School located behind the elementary school, had been struck by a car.

"It's really an unsafe situation," she said.

Because kindergarten through third-graders closer than one-and-one-half miles are now bused to school, Sutton suggested the district pick up the older children as well.

An exception was made for the younger children and adding the older children would only create problems, said board President Janet Thomas, because there are many parents across the district who may also feel it is unsafe for their children to walk.

"What we should attempt to do is make it safer for your children to cross at your subdivision," she said.

senior citizens' facility with a nursing home component."

Ambulatory care allows patients walk-in, same-day services.

People with major medical problems would be transferred to appropriate hospitals such as Children's Hospital of Michigan in Detroit or the University of Michigan Burn Center, he said.

Using outpatient facilities when needed and appropriate would be a tremendous cost saver, he added.

The idea for the Clarkston Surgery Center evolved from health care services in Independence over the past 23 years O'Neill has practiced in Clarkston, he said.

The center would complement current medical services in the area and include such examinations as: breast biopsies, arthroscopies, cystoscopies, and ultrasounds, in addition to day-treatment psychiatric care, and outpatient surgery.

It would be built on six acres behind O'Neill's M-15 office with accesses on Dixie Highway and M-15.

"Our goal is to have a health care system for Clarkston," O'Neill said.

Calls for 2 new stations

Fire commission makes report

By Carolyn Walker

Building two new fire stations and hiring two more firefighters were among many recommendations the Independence Township fire commission made to the township board at the Dec. 4 meeting.

The commission recently supplemented a Public Administration Service study of the Independence Township Fire Department.

"The two groups found themselves mostly in agreement," said Dr. James O'Neill, M.D., spokesman for the fire commission.

The commission's objective was to study apparatus, fire stations and organization, he said.

Commission members Roy Hauesler and Andrew Creamer, along with O'Neill, recommended that the township build a new headquarters station on the site of Station 2 at Clarkston and Sashabaw roads, expand the living quarters of Station 3 located on Maybee at Pine Knob road, and relocate Station 1, currently on Church Street.

"If we didn't have a fire station in it (Station 1), they would probably condemn it," O'Neill said.

The committee also advocated hiring two new firefighters at a projected cost of $28,000 each the first year.

"This would bring the full complement of firefighters to 14," O'Neill said.

In addition, the commission recommended that officials investigate a "public safety millage" to include the fire and police departments. Township residents currently pay 3 mills for fire protection, or $3 for each $1,000 of assessed property valuation.

O'Neill noted that 10 out of 11 fire calls are medical in nature and indicated the need to expand volunteer forces and encourage medical and fire training for all personnel.

The fire commission, which grew out of a public safety commission instituted in 1980, also recommended, "creating a command structure, so that an officer is always on site, on call, and in command of each fire."

Board members accepted the commission's presentation and authorized the men to draw up criteria for hiring a new fire chief.

Fire Captain Dale Bailey has been acting as chief since former chief Frank Ronk vacated the position in November, following his election as the new township supervisor.

Clarkston woman hurt at carwash

A Clarkston woman lost her left arm following an accident Saturday in a Waterford Township carwash owned by her husband.

Jo Ann Stringfield, 34, of Holcomb Street was discharged Tuesday from Detroit's Harper-Grace Hospital.

"She's in pretty good spirits, considering," said a carwash employee who wished to remain anonymous.

The accident occurred at 12:45 p.m. at Johnnie's Carwash on Dixie Highway when Mrs. Stringfield was working at or near an extractor, a machine used to spin towels at high speed to remove moisture, according to Waterford Township police.

Oaks to grow County looks at 200 acres

By Carolyn Walker

Oakland County is waiting for word from the state before committing to buy nearly 200 acres of land off Sashabaw Road near Independence Oaks County Park.

"We have obtained a state grant to purchase the property, but cannot exercise that grant until the state has approved the land's appraisal price," said Joseph Figa of the Oakland County Parks and Recreation Department.

Independence Township holds the option to buy 40 of those 200 acres from the Edward C. Levy Co., which was denied mining rights on the parcel in 1983.

Township officials anticipate that the county will purchase the land to add to Independence Oaks County Park, according to Clerk Richard Holman.

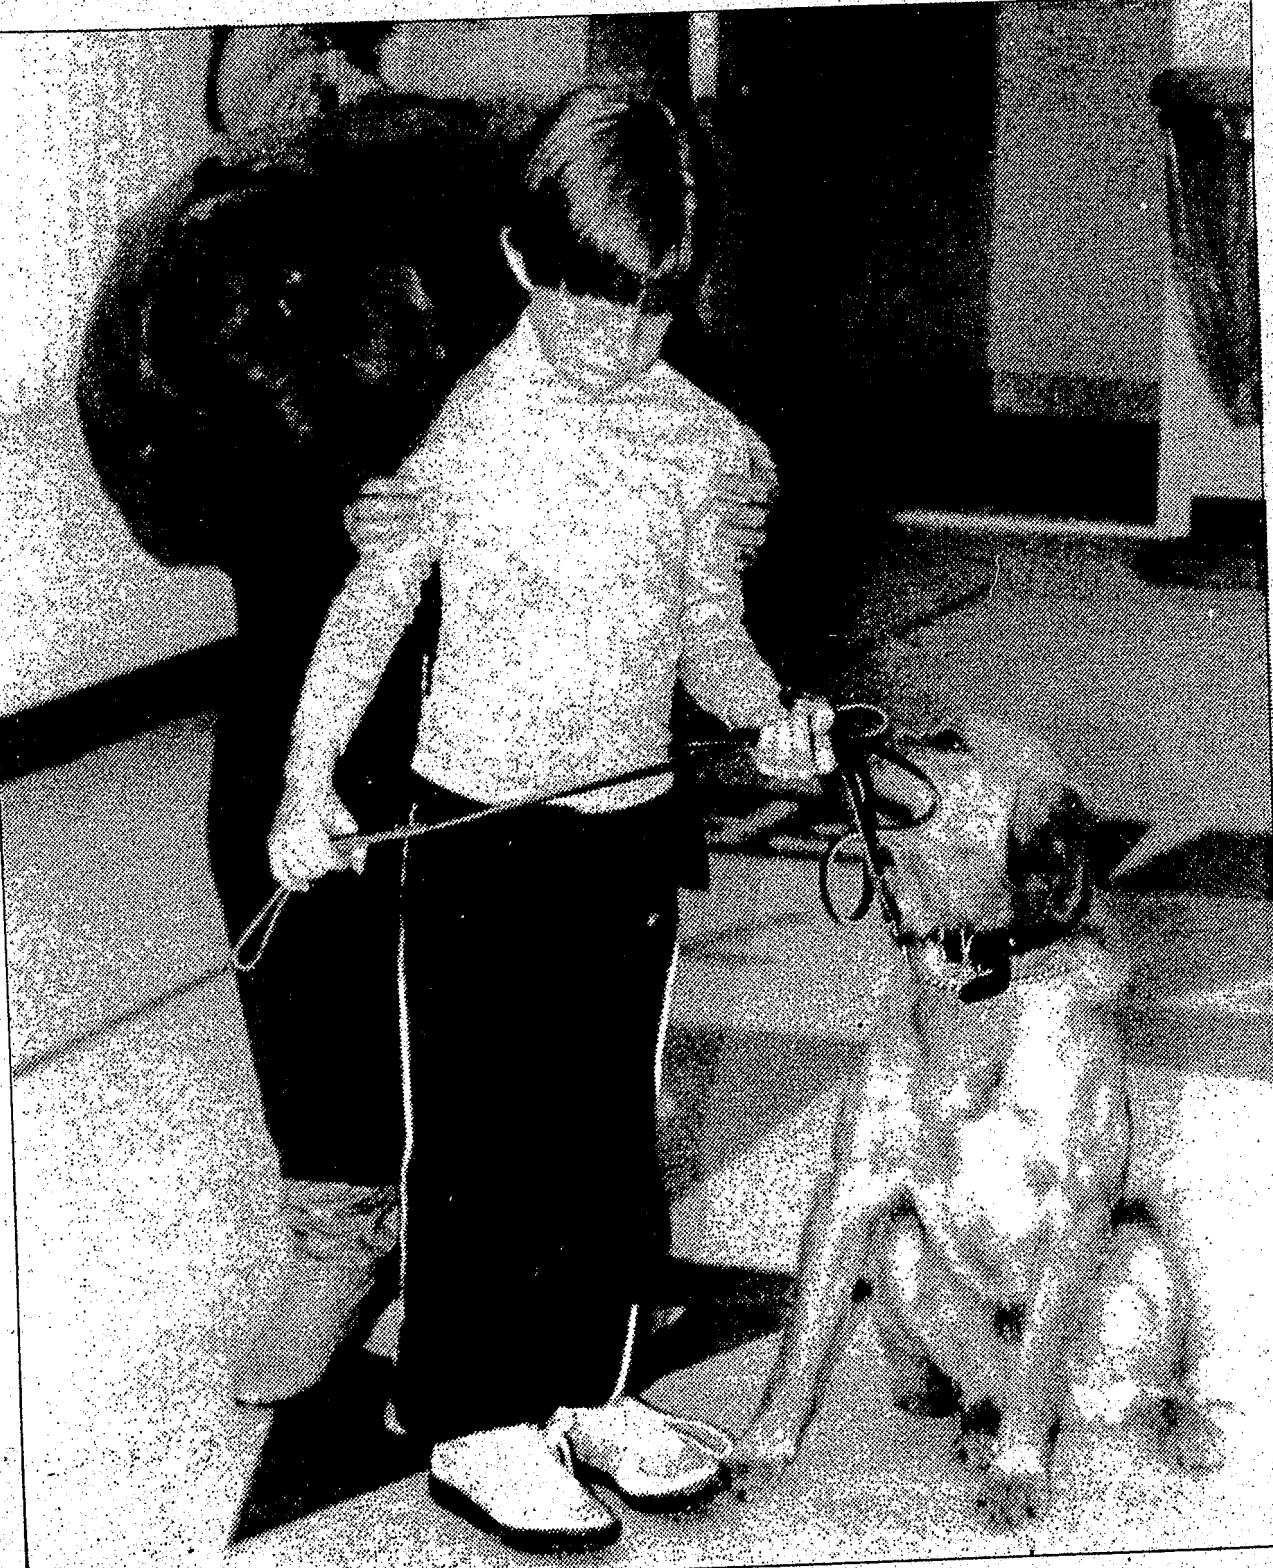

"We have been negotiating this situation for approximately seven years," Figa said at the Dec. 4 township board meeting, adding that the township had been involved four years.

On Dec. 5, Oakland County commissioners authorized Figa to continue negotiations with the township, he said when contacted at his office after the meeting.

Figa would not comment on when he expected authorization to purchase the property.

Levy is requesting $3,000 to extend the township's 40-acre option another three months. The deadline is Dec. 31.

On Dec. 4, the Independence Township board tabled the matter until the Dec. 18 meeting, pending word from the county.

Ideas needed for CDBG grant

Ideas are wanted on how to spend the $69,400 available to Independence Township from the Oakland County Community Block Development Grant (CDBG) program.

Board members will accept suggestions on how these funds might be used at a public hearing on Jan. 8.

Treasurer John Lutz was appointed administrator of the community block development grant by members of the township board at the Dec. 4 meeting.

Linda Richardson, who had formerly worked on the CDBG without pay, was appointed to the position of assistant administrator by the board.

She will be paid on an overtime basis at her current rate of pay.

2 charged in township break-ins

Two Mount Clemens men charged with the attempted breaking and entering of two occupied dwellings in Independence Township remain in Oakland County Jail following their lawyer's refusal to sign court waivers in district court.

Brian Friscioni and Zeno Friscioni were scheduled for a preliminary exam before 52nd District Court Judge Gerald McNally on Dec. 7.

Their $6,000 cash surety bonds, which had been set by a magistrate, were raised to $10,000 by McNally.

Their lawyer, William E. Bufalino II of Saint Clair Shores, objected to the increase and refused to sign the waiver which would bind them over to circuit court, said a court spokesperson.

The two are suspected of over 100 breaking and enterings in the north Oakland County area including Independence Township and Avon Township, according to police.

Their preliminary exam has been rescheduled for Dec. 14.

Board looks at 23 projects for tri-party funds

By Carolyn Walker

Improvements to Oakhill Road in northern Independence Township are but one of 23 road projects being considered by the township board.

The Oakland County Road Commission has allotted Independence $48,750 for road improvements under the tri-party project.

Lubomyr Hewko, a Whipple Tree Lane resident and member of the township zoning board of appeals, and township planning commission, addressed the issue of Oakhill Road at the Dec. 4 township board meeting.

"There are two problem areas," he said. "The first is the approach to M-15 on Oakhill Road. If you stop in slippery weather, you can't get going again because of the incline."

"The second is a wetland area on Oakhill, which is sinking. Eight people have lost control of their cars at this spot this year alone."

Hewko requested the grade on Oakhill be raised and the road be paved.

Carol Balzarini, trustee, said portions of Oakhill lay in Brandon Township and suggested Brandon should take some responsibility in its repair.

Board members agreed to contact Brandon representatives for the purpose of reviewing the project.

Final recommendations on how the tri-party money should be spent were tabled until the Dec. 18 board meeting.

Costly thoughts Kathy

A penny for your thought.

If it comes to pass that the telephone company begins to charge a penny a minute for local telephone calls, that old saying may enjoy a widespread revival.

When I first read that such a charge was one of a multitude of possibilities under consideration by Michigan Bell, it didn't sound so bad.

Then I started calculating. On the average, I figure my family of four totals 120 minutes a day on the phone—$1.20, still not bad...until that amount is multiplied times 30 days and ends up at $36 over and above basic fees for reaching out to touch someone.

If I add that to what's happened to my other standard expenses I begin to get a little nervous.

No longer does my house radiate with warmth during winter months. With all the ups and downs on the thermostat trying to keep things cooler when no one's home and during the night, it's a wonder anyone ever gets warm. Every winter the gas bill gets higher anyway.

Remember when electric bills came every other month because they were too tiny to pay monthly? Now twice a month would make more sense.

And I remember when the idea of paying for television was worth a belly laugh.

Way back then when you ordered telephone service the only questions asked were: Black or white? Wall or table model?

What if the penny-a-minute charge became reality and you called the doctor's office, township hall or a business and were put on perpetual hold?

At least you could hum along with the music while you became penniless.

"A penny for your thought," by the way, dates way back. The earliest reference I can find is "Proverbs" by John Heywood. The collection of English colloquial sayings was first published in 1546.

Now, nearly 450 years later, it reads like a prediction.

Jim's Jottings

Letters to editor

Senseless politics

To the editor:
(To whom it should concern)

Several weeks ago a friend of mine lost his job. He was fired! That in itself was bad enough; but the reason for his firing was even worse.

My friend had held his position for six years and from most accounts performed quite well. Yet one morning he arose to find himself without a job. Why? Why indeed!

It certainly was not due to the qualifications of his successor. The fact is the man neither held the position before nor one similar.

My friend was fired, in large part, out of principle not performance. For this reason his wife and children, as well as himself, suffered the horrible consequences.

You see, my friend was caught up in a thing called politics, a.k.a. the Reagan landslide. He was the Democrat in the year of the G.O.P.

His opponent was quoted as saying, "I creamed him"!!! Creamed, indeed, as if it were a game, a sport. These are human lives we are dealing with here. This is not a contest between gladiators where no one mourns the loser.

Oh, it's happened before... And often. But only when it happens to someone you know and like do you suddenly realize the cruelty and senselessness of it all.

What does being a Democrat or Republican have to do with being a treasurer of this, or any, township? What great policy decision is made because of party affiliation? The fact is...none! And that is the point.

My friend could have avoided much of this, of course. All that was necessary was to change his party affiliation (for whom would really care); others had already done so and today have their jobs. Instead he chose principle and for this he paid the price. For it is the system...it is politics.

Sad, indeed, my friend lost his job; sadder still the reason. The inevitability of it happening again to someone else, however, is perhaps the saddest thing of all.

'Under the Yellow Cover'

Jim Sherman

One of these days I'm going to get around to write more completely about Reno and Lake Tahoe, where I conventioned in September.

Jottings readers always love these interludes. It lets them get through the paper that much quicker.

Until then, sidelights in this space will have to do. Sidelights like what Wilbur Garrett, editor of National Geographic, had to say in his session: "Under the Yellow Cover".

Garrett's show is a set of six slide projectors, synchronized to film-like production. Naturally, every picture is a gem, having sometime appeared in an issue of the magazine.

The who took 'em and under what conditions makes the presentation even more outstanding.

A listener to Garrett gets the impression printing starts with National Geographic. The first holograph, that eagle on the cover a few months ago, cost about $5 a cover, but the yellow magazine was first to do it.

The editor said they have fewer writers and photographers than people generally guess. Because of their reputation, and strong desire to maintain it, Garrett said, "We have to excite and stimulate fairly."

And, "We have to think pictures." He also said motor drive cameras, which seem to be the boon to sports photographers, are on their way out. "They and less and less place (to be used)."

Computers are in National Geographic's future, too. Particularly in the area of storage. Garrett said a disc has been developed that permits them to store every page of every magazine they have printed in their 97 year history on an eight inch disc.

He said, "The entire library of Congress can be stored on three discs, and they have instant recall."

What's the worst scene this editor ever saw? The 6,000 bodies uncovered in Cambodia a few years ago. "The holocaust in World War II was small by comparison to the number killed there, yet hardly a ripple of concern was raised in the United States."

What do people remark about most of the magazine? The updating of the index every six months. Readers like that.

I don't believe editors in the auditorium like to hear what the editor of National Geographic had to say about letting anyone read a story before it's printed.

Journalism students are taught very early in J-school how sacred their writing is, and that it is never to be seen until it's off the press.

Under the Yellow Cover every story is read by the person involved to be sure of the accuracy.

"We don't want to apologize later," Garrett said.

Yeah, but it does give a paper something to write next week.

Editorial

A prayer at Christmas time

Give us the faith of innocent children, that we may look forward with hope in our hearts, to the dawn of happy tomorrows.

Reawaken the thought that our most cherished desires will be realized, the things closest to our hearts—that we may come to an appreciation of the limitless joys and bountiful rewards of Patience, Charity and Sacrifice.

Above all, endow us with the spirit of courage, that we may face the perplexities of a troubled world without flinching, imbued with the child-like faith which envisions the beautiful and inspiring things of life . . . and restore the happy hours and experiences so many of us foolishly believe are lost forever.

Give us faith in ourselves and faith in our fellow man . . . then, the treasures and beauties of life that make man happy will spring from an inexhaustible source.

And at Christmas, when the hearts of the world swell in joyous celebration, let us cast aside the pretense of sturdy men and live, if only for a day, in the hope and joy we knew as children.

'Clarkston brats'

OK, what the h--- is going with Clarkston?

I am enraged weekly when I read the Sheriff's Log in The Clarkston News, or when I see that local businesses such as Tierra Arts & Design are vandalized or robbed.

The Clarkston businesses, especially Tierra Arts, have worked hard to have what they have, only to be robbed, shoplifted or vandalized.

Most of the time these crimes involve area youth. Are these "Clarkston-Brats" so bored that they have nothing better to do than shoot out car windows, shoplift, smash mailboxes and the list goes on?

Aren't parents supervising these little darlings or know what they are doing? Then, to top it off, Clarkston High School has an underground newspaper, "The Scum," which has vandalizing tips in it!

This is too much—I'm 25 years old and think this is disgusting and obscene to happen in this wonderful, small town.

I was "most fortunate" to be able to sit on a jury last month that involved a triple murder case. One of the defendants was a mere 17-year-old who committed horrible, unspeakable acts, and the murder itself to three helpless women.

Is this what happens to bored teenagers when the thrill of vandalizing is not enough?

Please, parents and especially the children be aware of the consequences. Find something better to do than terrorize local homes and businesses.

Maybe I'll be called someday to sit on your son's or daughter's jury. It is no laughing matter, especially when you may receive three consecutive life sentences in prison (and in all probability not live longer than a few years in there).

Let's clean up Clarkston. Please.

Lori Taylor

Media summit

Following fast on the tips of his summit on rape and his summit on crime, Mayor Coleman Young is expected to call a summit on the news media. Summit climbers from business, industry, civic organizations and churches will meet on top of a closed hotel to hear the mayor outline a massive program aimed at curtailing the media's supply of mud and straw.

"I think your paper is in a position of hyping a situation, of throwing mud all over the City of Detroit," Mayor Young said in a recent Free Press interview. "It's do-it-yourself, make your own headlines . . . I think that your paper has constructed a straw man and then knocked it down."

THE MAYOR was responding to a Free Press/WDIV-TV survey that showed Detroit to have the worst national image of any large city in the U.S. Young blames the local media for that muddy image and, as with rapes of schoolgirls and the theft of entire neighborhoods, he's not going to take it anymore. He will go to the summit one more time.

At this writing, it's not known if the City Council will go with him. The mayor has a plush limousine to take him to the summit meetings, but the best that council members can squeeze out of stingy taxpayers is Plymouth Gran Furrys, and they're unhappy about it.

"I'm not sitting in a car that you have to lie on your back and drive again . . . You're looking up at the ceiling," Councilwoman Barbara-Rose Collins complained when it was revealed that the city was going to buy her another Gran Fury. And she was talking about ordinary flatland driving. If she were driving up to a summit meeting, she might slide headfirst through the back window.

Council President Erma Henderson added that council members should be supplied cars that, unlike the Plymouths, "are reasonable and accommodating." It might be suggested that Detroit's image is damaged when Chrysler products are publicly criticized by the city's top officials, but it should be noted that the council's cars are undoubtedly sabotaged by newspaper reporters disguised as Lee Iacocca.

ANYWAY, at the media summit, it is expected that Mayor Young will announce that a police mobile strike force has been assigned to make unannounced searches of newspaper, TV and radio reporters, and their work areas, and confiscate all mud and straw found in pockets, purses and desk drawers. No attempt will be made to prevent the reporters from reporting and writing the news, but they will be unable to sling mud and construct straw men without the necessary material.

Howard Simon, executive director of the Michigan chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union, will protest that the crackdown violates the reporters' constitutional right to be free from unwarranted searches. And Mayor Young will answer that the searches are warranted because Detroit's horrible image nationally gives the government probable cause to search the people and property in areas where it is known that such images are regularly made out of mud and straw, and one of those areas is certainly the Anchor Bar.

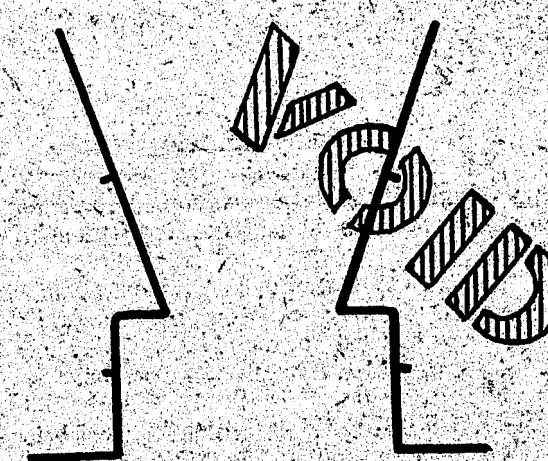

Curtis Sliwa will show up at the media summit and volunteer the services of the Guardian Angels in protecting Detroit's image from the media. Mayor Young will order his bodyguards to throw Sliwa off the summit.

The next day, the media will report that Mayor Young's summit on the media produced no viable solutions to the problems of Detroit's muddy image. And a straw man was knocked down on the yellow brick road by Barbara-Rose Collins driverless Plymouth Gran Fury.

It's kind of an unwanted, useless feeling.

Mail thefts anger woman

By Kathy Greenfield

While out walking her dog Monday, Barb Deegan found Christmas cards that were apparently taken from mailboxes in her Thendara Park subdivision.

"They're just all muddy and ripped. Some were torn to bits and some were left whole," she said.

The next morning she found more cards someone had apparently rifled through and discarded. There were about 15 in all.

Deegan placed those she could identify as belonging to her neighbors in their mailboxes and called the post office.

She was told tampering with mail is a federal offense. She said she planned to put that warning on the lineup of mailboxes.

Because the cards had been mailed to people, Deegan said she suspected youngsters were involved in the crime.

"I don't know which kids are doing it, but I thought parents could be told to watch for extra money or kids coming home late," she said. "It's only Christmas cards, so I'm sure they're looking for money."

She also suggested that people who live near mailboxes keep watch.

"Anyone who has a house might look out when the buses go by," she said. "I think it happens when the kids get home. That's when the mailboxes are full."

$73,000 computer purchase studied

By Carolyn Walker

The old bookkeeping machine has been retired and township officials are exploring the option of buying a computer system for township records.

Peter Prychodko, a representative of Doeren, Mayhew & Co., a Troy accounting firm, detailed the pros and cons of owning a $72,970 computer to Independence Township board members Dec. 4.

"The township should look seriously at purchasing their own computer," he said. "It would become cost effective in five to seven years."

Doeren, Mayhew & Co. is currently under contract with the township to compute payroll, water, assessments, and general ledger records and print bills at an estimated cost of $30,000 a year, said Peter Dobrzeniecki, township finance director.

Dobrzeniecki noted that the Phillips ledger card machine formerly used for those functions cost the township nearly $30,000 in 1974.

Township Clerk Richard Holman recently advertised the Phillips machine as being for sale in two municipal want ads, but there were no inquiries.

Board members authorized him to offer the machine to local vocational education classes.

"If they don't want it, we have someone else who will take it off our hands," he said.

Holman said the interested party wished to remain anonymous to avoid conflict of interest.

Getting better

By Charlotte Wall
Lake Orion Review Editor

Scott Rajala, the victim of a hunting accident a little over a week ago, is on the mend, according to his father Ruben Rajala.

Rajala, 19, was hunting with two friends Dec. 1 in a field near Baldwin and Waldon Roads when the accidental shooting occurred.

The gun carried by Eric Fields discharged as the trio trudged single file through the field.

Rajala's parents credit the action of the friends with saving their son's life.

One went for help and the other stayed with Rajala, until help arrived.

His mother, Janie, said Rajala may be in a wheelchair by this weekend.

"He's been moved from Pontiac Osteopathic's intensive care unit to room 249, bed 1," says Janie.

The parents said they hope Scott will be home soon, but they acknowledge that his hospital stay will most likely "be a while yet."

"We thank everyone for their prayers and cards," said Janie.

In addition, she and Rajala are grateful to the firefighters who helped locate Scott in the field and get him to the ambulance.

The young man was in the field for at least an hour after the accidental shooting, awaiting aid. The Independence Fire Department was the first on the scene, and the first to locate Rajala.

However, according to Orion Township Fire Department Station No. 3 Lt. Ken Gorris, the Independence squad was not the only department on the scene.

Gorris said firefighters from that station manned radios and walked the wooded field in search of the victim.

"We are thankful we could do our part in saving him, and we are thankful that he is doing well," said Gorris.

Township declines land offer

By Carolyn Walker

Land formerly used for mining by the Stolaruk Corp. will not be turned over to the township.

Board members at the Dec. 4 meeting voted unanimously to reject Stolaruk's offer to deed the property to Independence Township.

The Stolaruk Corp., which abandoned the 23-acre Stickney mining pit in 1982, had offered the property to the township in an effort to end legal action regarding the land's reclamation.

"Independence Township has no need for the land," said Clerk Richard Holman, when contacted at his office. "We don't want a white elephant. We're not in the land development business."

In 1979, Stolaruk representatives and township officials agreed on an Oakland County Circuit Court-sanctioned consent judgment on how the property should be restored.

Stolaruk failed to meet a 1982 reclamation date and forfeited a $20,000 bond to the township, which is not enough to cover the cost of reclamation, according to township officials.

"I recommend that we leave them as owners and attempt to modify the consent judgment so they can develop it into only four parcels, if they develop it," said Supervisor Frank Ronk.

Board members unanimously approved Ronk's suggestion and authorized township attorney Gerald Fisher to pursue an amendment to the consent judgment.

Developer, township disagree

Tax issue involves $50,000

A $50,000 difference in tax calculations has sent the Edward Rose Building Co. to the Michigan Tax Tribunal Tax Court and the Independence Township Board to an outside appraiser for a second opinion.

The two sides reached different assessment values on 100 undeveloped lots owned by the builder in the Lake Oakland Woods subdivision off Maybee Road.

At the Dec. 4 board meeting, township assessor Dave Sherrill asked board members to approve hiring the outside appraiser.

"It is critical that we not gamble and risk lowering of the assessed value," he said.

When contacted at his office after the meeting, Sherrill noted that the difference of opinion stems from the approach taken when assessing property value.

"We assess each separate lot," he said. "Rose assesses the property as a whole unit. There is where the difference comes in."

Rose's appeal covers property assessments made between the years 1981 and 1984.

The matter is scheduled for hearing in March.

"The tax tribunal will determine the property value," he said.

Board members unanimously approved his request for a second appraisal.

"It's the first time we've ever felt it necessary to hire an outside appraiser," said Supervisor Frank Ronk.

'If my boy falls . . . I'll sue'

Rocks blocking Deerwood path debated

By Carolyn Walker

Motorized vehicles have no place in a Deerwood subdivision well site, agreed subdivision residents and township board members at the Dec. 4 township board meeting.

"I think the consensus to this point is that we should continue to not allow motor vehicles," said Frank Ronk, supervisor. "We should make it strictly a walking path."

Last August, after receiving complaints from Deerwood residents, township employees placed large rocks in the easement in an effort to control motor traffic, according to Gerald Schroeder of Fawn Valley Drive, whose property adjoins the easement.

He was one of four residents who expressed concerns at the meeting.

"The rocks have done a good job keeping the motorcycles out," he said. "But we really don't want any type of cycles, not even bicycles in there."

Art Trowbridge of Deerwood Road cited the potential hazard in using rocks as an obstruction.

"If my little boy falls and hits his head, I'll sue," he said.

Free changes

A Dallas, Texas firm will handle your Social Security name change for $10, a service the Social Security Administration provides free.

"What the company is doing isn't illegal, but why pay to have something done when it's free?" said a spokesperson from the Pontiac field office.

People changing their name because of marriage, divorce, court action, etc., should change their name on the Social Security records, he said, adding offices in Oakland County are in Pontiac, Royal Oak and Farmington.

Ronk said the rocks, which are on property owned by the township, are approximately three feet high.

When contacted at his office after the meeting, Ronk discussed the township's potential liability.

"I don't anticipate a problem. But if one should arise, we will have to fence it in," he said. "The township will work with the residents to find the least objectionable answer. We'd like to make it as reasonable there as we can and make everybody happy."

Board members unanimously approved a motion by Trustee Dale Stuart to continue with the rock obstructions pending an investigation of the township's liability.

The easement will continue to be available to foot traffic, said Ronk.

Board OK's demise of 1947 house

A house on 80 acres owned by the Clarkston school district is destined to be demolished.

The board of education voted unanimously at Monday night's meeting to dispose of the house built in 1947 at the southwest corner of Rattalee and Reese roads on the Baynes farm.

"My thinking right now is, if approved, we would offer the building to the Independence Township Fire Department for a training exercise," said Superintendent Milford Mason. "Then the cost to us would be bulldozing to return the property to its original state."

The board supported Mason's idea.

"I really think we should give it to the fire department," said board member Mary Jane Chaustowich. "I think that's a good idea."

Board member Stephen Werner asked if any architectural items could be saved, but was told the list of salvageable materials included two metal doors and a water heater.

The school district purchased the 80 acres in 1966 and since then a succession of tenants have lived in the house. Now vacant, it is in disrepair, Mason said.

The possibility of selling the two acres where the house sits was considered, but the property is more valuable if the 80 acres are kept intact, he said.

"It doesn't sound like the kind of house you'd want if you were going to enhance that property," said board President Janet Thomas.

Two stay on payroll

Two park employees are staying on the job during the winter months.

At the urging of Independence Township Parks and Recreation Department Director Timothy Doyle, the township board voted unanimously Dec. 4 to keep Mike Turk and George Thompson on the payroll.

Board members and Doyle agreed the employees could be shared between various departments instead of being laid off.

"They will do general repair work for different departments, such as the department of public works or the township hall," said Ronk after the meeting. "The departments which utilize their services will pay them."

"In this way we will avoid laying them off, and also avoid having to hire different employees for the maintenance work."

No luck for Wolves in opener

Shamrocks control game, 78-56

By Dan Vandenhemel

John McIntyre and Co. put on a show. Unfortunately it was at the expense of the Clarkston Wolves basketball team.

The Wolves started their season at Detroit Catholic Central, Dec. 7, and found out how good McIntyre, a returning All-Stater, really is. His Shamrocks came away with an easy 78-56 in the opening game for each team.

The show started with the Shamrocks' annual pre-opening game theatrics that had the huge crowd, including the contingent from Clarkston, roaring with laughter.

Slow start for wrestlers

Coach still optimistic

By Dan Vandenhemel

The wrestling season didn't start just the way new coach Greg Gwisdalla had hoped.

The Clarkston Wolves started their current campaign Dec. 6 with a meet against Milford. The result wasn't a favorable one. They lost, 54-12.

The only points for the Wolves came on pins by Rocky Tucker at 105 pounds in 19 seconds and Brent Gwisdalla at 132 pounds in 2:31.

After that loss, the Wolves moved to the Grand Blanc Invitational tournament two days later and finished eighth out of eight teams.

The highest finisher for the Wolves at the tournament was Jack Basham at 145 pounds in third place. Marc Morales at 119 pounds placed fourth. Rob Lund at 126 and Troy Castle at 167 came away with their first varsity wins.

But the outlook isn't as dismal as it seems for the grapplers. Gwisdalla is pointing toward some encouraging things.

"We saw some improvement in basic winning attitudes," he said. "They're a lot more sure about themselves. We were more aggressive in Grand Blanc than at Milford. We hustled and wrestled better."

The coach is implementing a wrestler of the week award to give the Wolves added incentive. For the first week, Basham won it with a 3-2 record and the third-place finish in the tournament.

But Gwisdalla said the wrestlers have realized what they have to do to become successful.

"They're much more realistic about conditioning," he said. "I'm not kidding when I say they're not in shape. They have to push themselves. Some, the practices kill them and others can glide through them. It's an individual effort. One senior came up to me and said he was out of shape and is starting running laps on his own. They know what they need to do."

Birtsas packs bags

By Dan Vandenhemel

The major leagues might be one step closer for Tim Birtsas.

The Clarkston native was traded Dec. 8 to the Oakland A's as part of a seven-player deal with the New York Yankees.

Going to the A's with Birtsas are Jay Howell, Jose Rios, Erik Plunk and Stan Javier. In return, the Yankees picked up speedster Rickey Henderson and Bert Bradley.

Birtsas, a Clarkston High School graduate, signed with the Yankees in June 1982. He has piled up some impressive stats in the minor leagues. In 1983 the 6-foot-6 left-hander had a mark of 12-8 and a 2.36 ERA for the Fort Lauderdale Yankees, their class A minor league team.

This year, after returning from a spring training knee injury, Birtsas was 5-1 plus two wins in the playoffs to help Fort Lauderdale win.

Gus Birtsas, Tim's father and principal at Sashabaw Junior High School, said everyone is excited about the deal.

"He's just so happy with it," the elder Birtsas said. "He had an excellent season this year and is near the top in the winter leagues in ERA."

The 24-year-old Birtsas was on the 40-man roster for the Yankees last spring when he hurt his knee playing basketball and needed surgery.

"There's a possibility that he'll also be placed on the A's 40-man spring training roster," his father said.

The only thing Gus Birtsas found wrong with the deal was the distance. With the Yankees, he was at the Triple A level team in Columbus, Ohio. With Oakland, he could be in Tacoma, Wash.

"He'll be a long way away—but if he makes the bigs, the A's will come this way," Birtsas said. "We're delighted he's so excited about going to Oakland."

The good times ended quickly for the Wolves' fans as the Shamrocks built a 10-0 lead.

That streak, started by a 20-foot jumper within the first seconds of the game by McIntyre, was the difference in the opening quarter. The Wolves came back, but still trailed, 24-18, after eight minutes of court time.

The remaining 24 minutes of the game belonged to the Shamrocks. They led, 48-34, at the half and increased that to 67-44 by the third quarter.

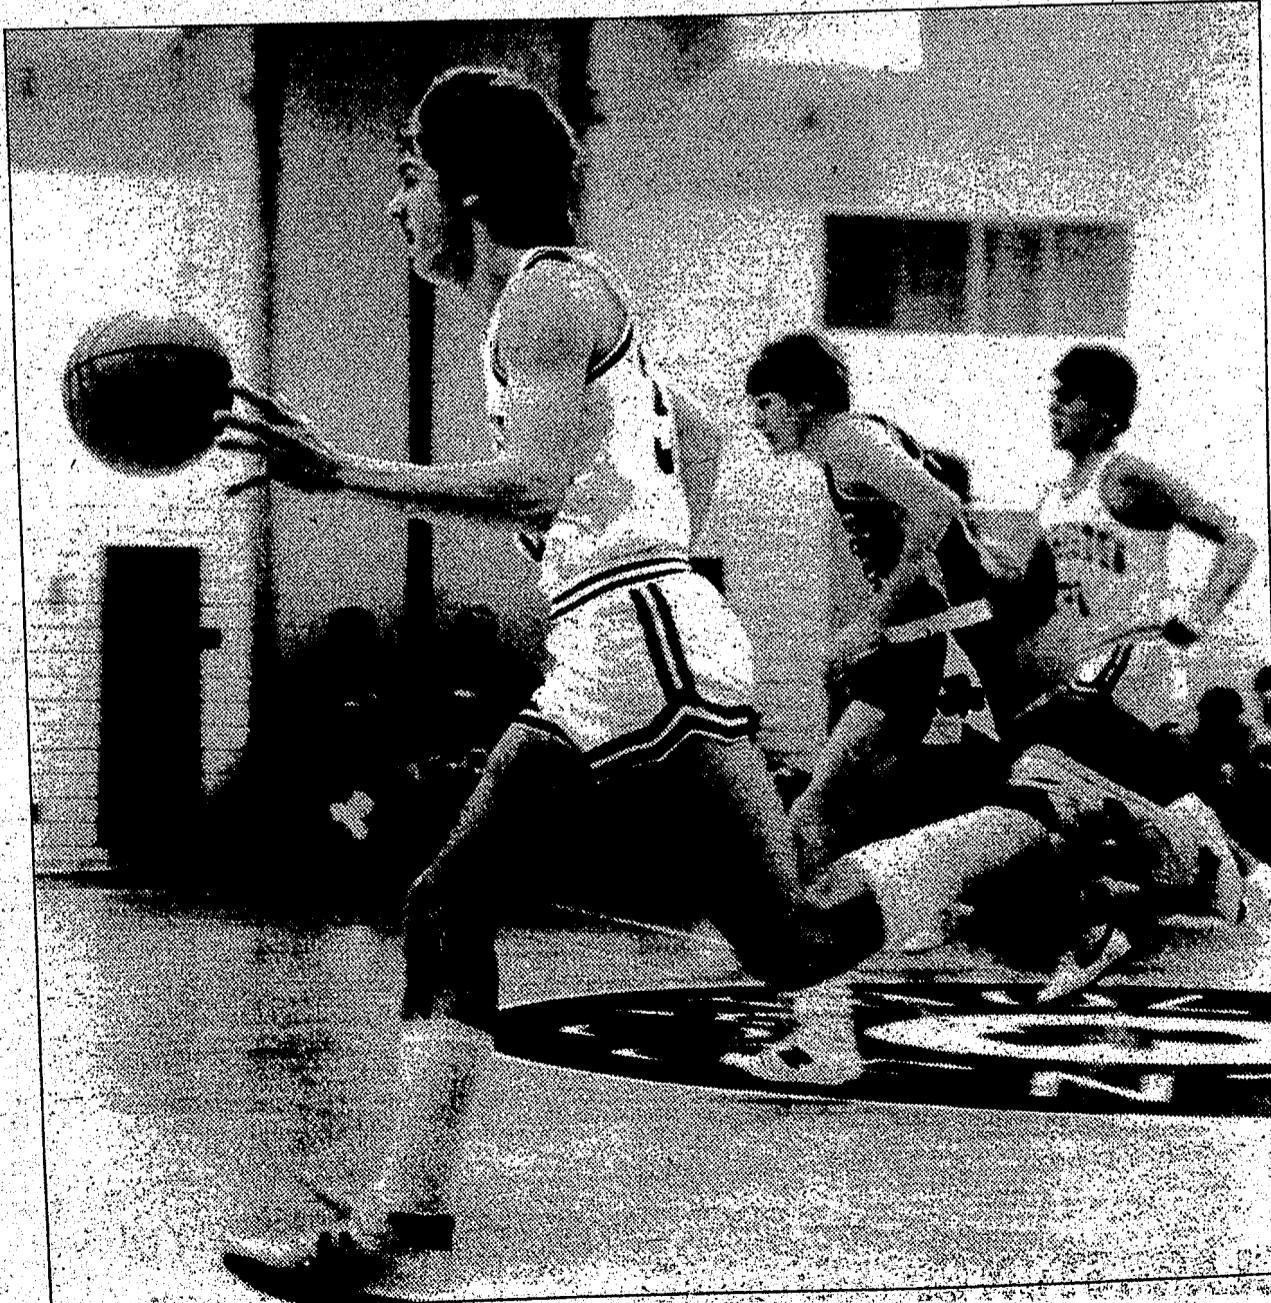

The main reason for the dominance over the Wolves was not McIntyre, but the Shamrocks' defense and the Wolves' passing.

The Wolves couldn't break the Shamrocks full-court press regularly and when they did, they threw the ball away.

Wolves' coach Dan Fife, upset with his team's performance, was at a loss for words after the contest.

"We were outplayed, out-hustled, out-coached. There's not much else you can say," he said on his way to the locker room.

On the bright side for the Wolves, they got the scoring they expected from senior Erik Kline with 16 and sophomore Dan Jokisch with 20. The Shamrocks were led by McIntyre with 31 points. The senior has already signed a letter of intent to attend the University of Detroit next year.

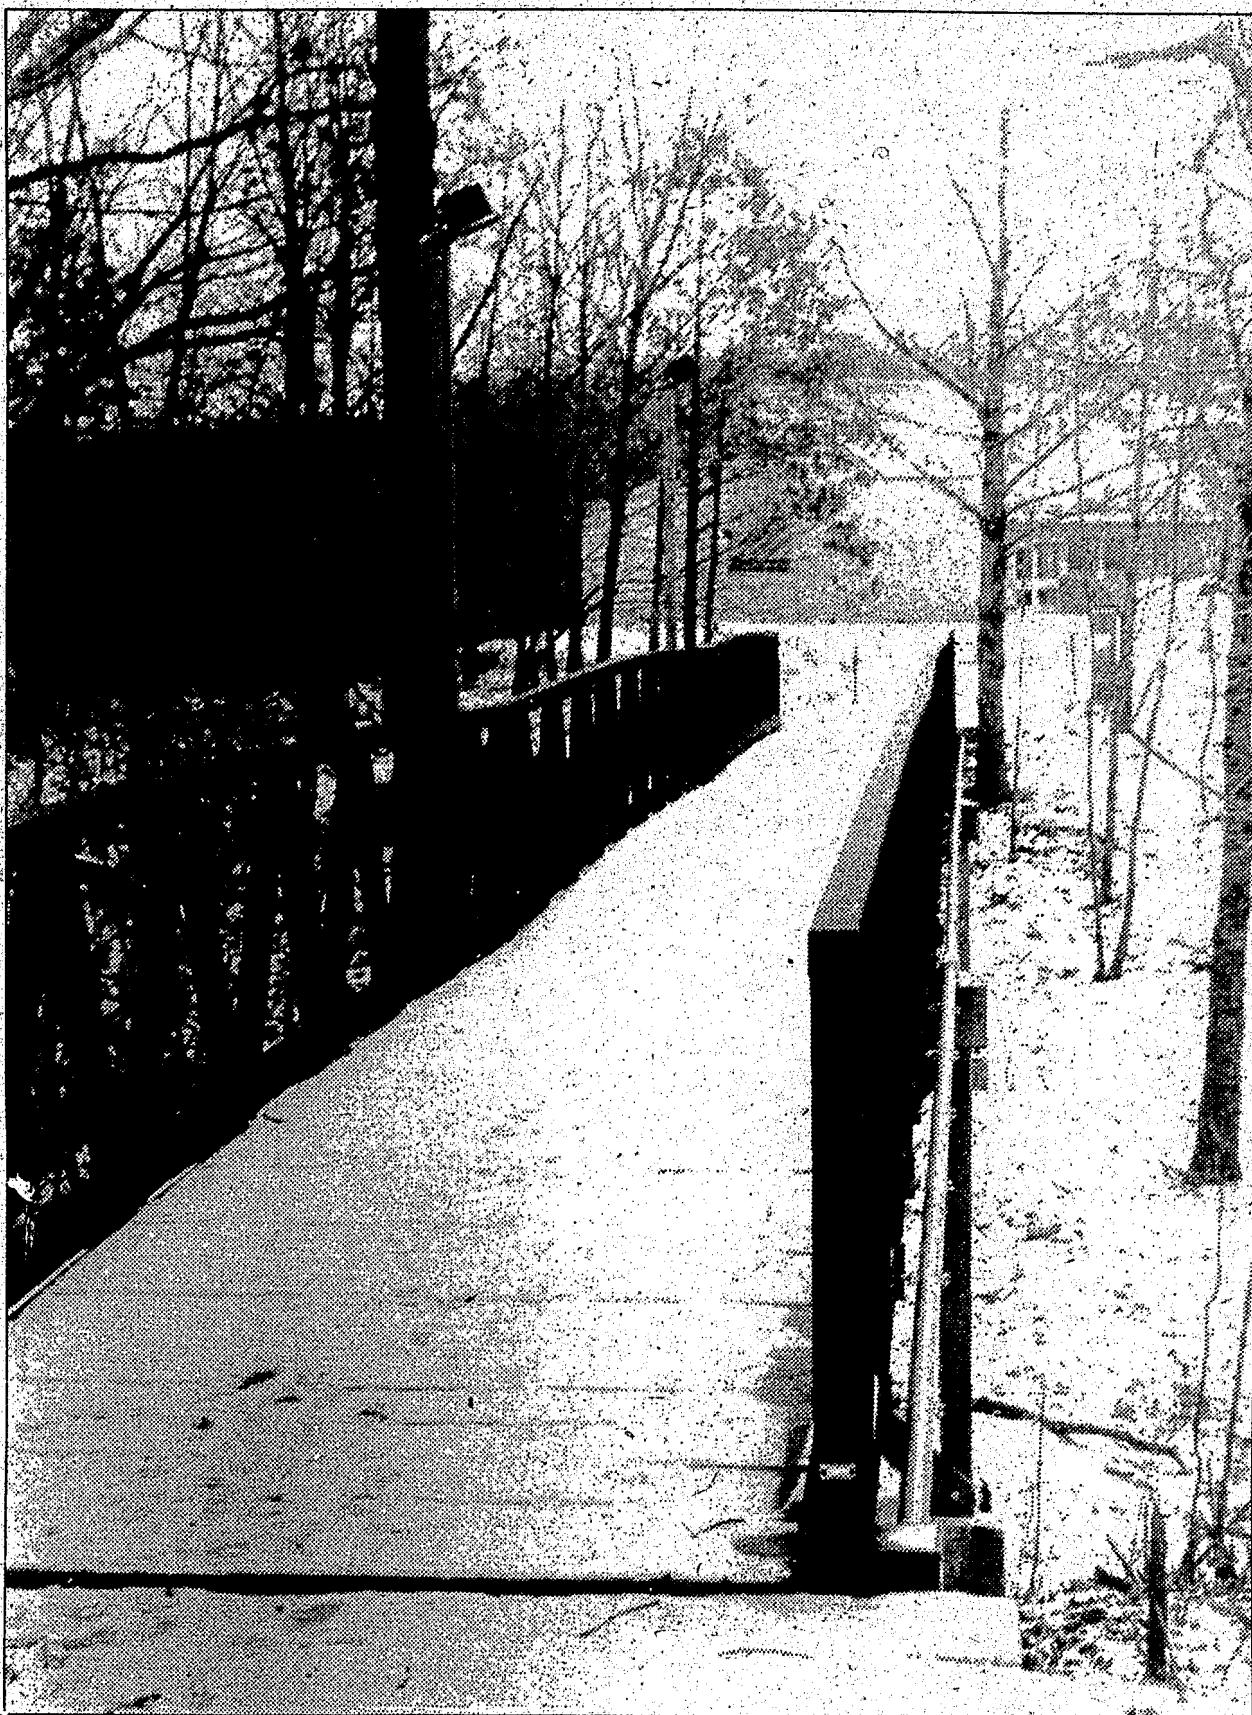

Moving the ball up court was one things the Wolves had trouble with against a tough Catholic Central defense. Here, Ed Whitaker crosses half court and looks to the basket.

Naturalist readies for center's opening

The bridge leading to the nearly completed Nature Center at Independence Oaks County

Park is expected to see a lot of traffic once the building opens.

By Dan Vandenhemel

The new nature center at Independence Oaks County Park is nearly completed. Bird feeders stand outside its windows. Paper hawk figures are taped to the glass to prevent collisions.

There are no exhibits in the center yet, no wildlife—except for the turtles in the restroom.

Newly appointed assistant parks naturalist Kathy Thomas said the turtles are there because it's warmer in the smaller room.

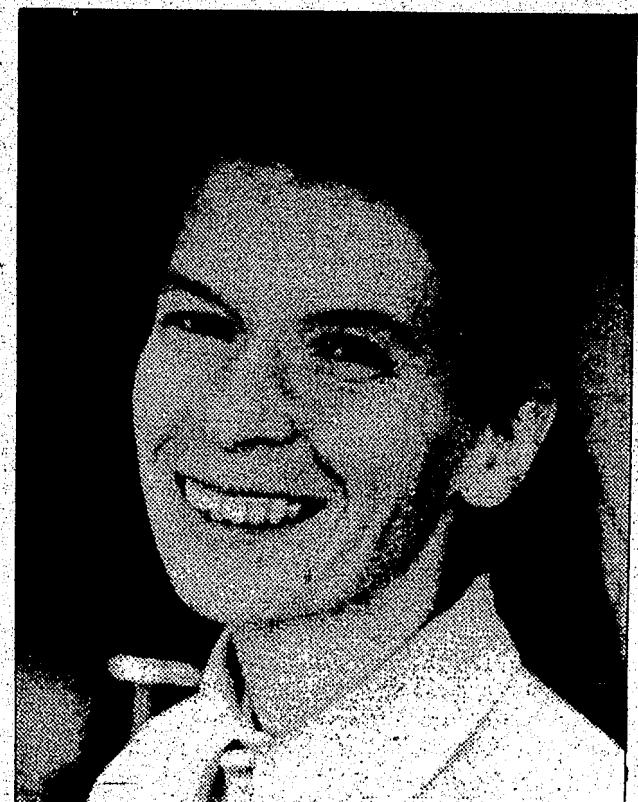

Thomas, with fellow assistant Lynn Conover and naturalist Kathleen Dougherty, will maintain the nature center in the park on Sashabaw Road once it's finished.

Oct. 11 was the first day on the job for Thomas. Feeding the turtles is not her only job.

"I'll be working with groups coming in, planning field trips and working with the outreach program to community schools," said the Lake Orion resident. "It's out of our hands when the center will open, but we'd like to open it as soon as possible."

With past work experience with the Bloomfield Hills school system's Farm and Nature Center and a year at Carlsbad Caverns National Park in New Mexico, Thomas is looking forward to her full-time position.

"I've been in this type of work all my life," she said. "My whole family is interested in outdoors. My husband (Bill) is an assistant naturalist at Stony Creek Metro Park."

Kathy Thomas is a new assistant naturalist at Independence Oaks County Park.

New park assistant at Oaks

By Dan Vandenhemel

After 15 years in the Texas and Arizona, Jay Phelps is getting used to Michigan winters all over again.

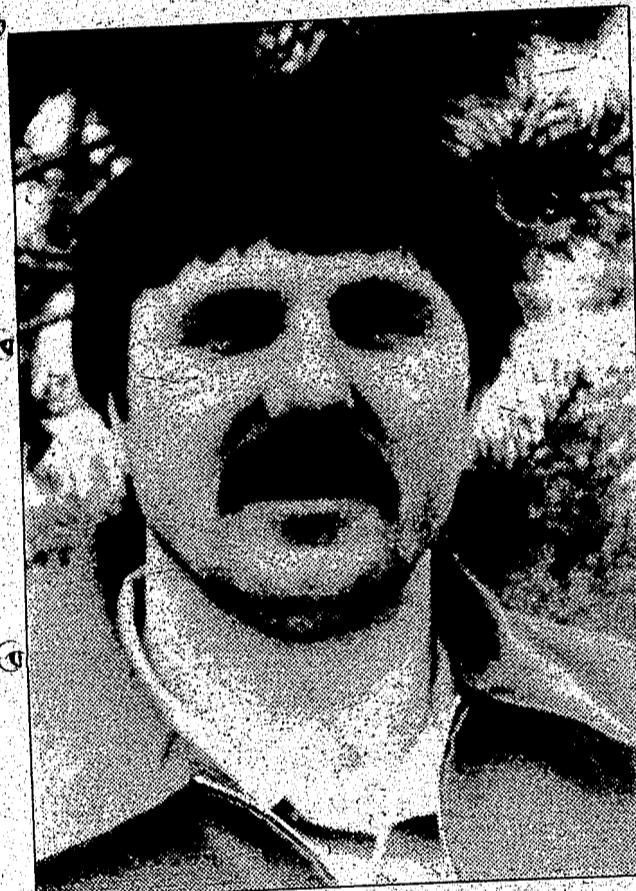

Phelps is the new assistant park supervisor at Independence Oaks County Park on Sashabaw Road. He fills the position left by Gerry Lee who resigned in June for a job as recreation supervisor in Royal Oak.

"Really, this is the best time for me to come in," Phelps said. "Even though we're busy getting things ready for the winter activities, it's better because we're busier in the summer."

The Rose Township resident's main concern now is to prepare for use the cross-country ski trails that crisscross the park's 830 acres.

He is also responsible for anything that has to do with the park when supervisor Ray Delasko is gone.

Phelps returned to Michigan with his wife Deborah after working for parks in Phoenix and Dallas. His degree in municipal parks and recreation came from North Texas State University in Denton, Texas.

The cross country ski season is coming up and new assistant park supervisor Jay Phelps is going to be busy readying the trails at the Independence Oaks County Park.

JV Wolves make mark in opening game

By Dan Vandenhemel

The score indicates more than just a victory for the Clarkston Wolves' Junior Varsity basketball team.

The Wolves beat Detroit Catholic Central, 51-38, Dec. 7 in the opening game for both squads. By allowing only 38 points, coach Tim Kaul is hoping the defense continues to carry the team until the offense begins to click.

"We've got a lot of good athletes on the team but we don't shoot very well," Kaul said. "We'll be OK. Having good athletes will help us defensively."

The game with the Shamrocks was much closer than the 13-point margin shows. The contest was divided by only four points much of the second half until the Wolves wore down the Shamrocks with a full-court press midway through the fourth quarter.

"The difference was the last three minutes. Our defense won the game for us," Kaul said. "They (Catholic Central) scored only five points in the fourth quarter. I was kidding Mercier (Keith) because he outscored them, 8-5, in the final quarter. I think we were in a little bit better condition than they were."

Mercier led the Wolves with 12 points, with Jim Hall following with 11 and Dave Baran with 10. Craig Chamberlain pulled in 10 rebounds and added five points.

Baran is the only junior on the 14-member team. He's joined with sophomores Mercier, Hall, Chamberlain, Matt Beamer, Jeff Billig, Brian Galley,

The number of players gives Kaul plenty of options on the kind of lineup he puts on the court.

"We've got the big kids in there now for the rebounding," the coach said. "We need the better rebounding, at least until we start shooting better. I've got kids how are better defensively that can go in. I've got a lot of role players. We could be a good JV team."

"Right now they know we've got to play good defense, because I won't stand for it if they don't."

The Seer

Found in the Clarkston News mailslot Monday morning...

Seer here. It's hard to be humble when you're as perfect as I am. After a 6-0 record in football forecast, it's one-in-a-row in hoop action. But, boy, did I underestimate how good Detroit Catholic Central is.

I've pondered questioning the talent of the Wolves, too, but being the genius that I am, I realize one game does not really prove anything. All-everything John McIntyre did get his 30 points, and Central controlled both ends of the court.

After the Central game, you basketball brains need an easy opponent, which isn't going to come too quickly. Read on for details.

Pontiac Central at Clarkston (Dec. 14): As with Catholic Central and Milford in the past, this game with Pontiac proves to be a big challenge.

The Chiefs seem to be in the same boat the Wolves are, solid talent but no big star. This game will come down to who gets the good bounces.

The Wolves are going to have to worry more about scoring than fancy passes to get by the Chiefs. They, too, can dish it off with a blur of hands—but the object in basketball is to get the ball in the hoop.

I can see the Wolves playing up to their potential against the Chiefs. I'm not sure that'll be enough though. Pontiac Central by five.

Baseball fix

Dan Vandenhemel

Talk like that keeps the heart going in bleak winter months.

But what about other dealings in the baseball world?

Last week I thought the Blue Jays would win the world series next year. Now tell me what you think after they acquired bullpen specialist Bill Caudill from Oakland. Caudill is comparable to Willie Hernandez and if Willie waves bye-bye to the Tigers, the Tigers could be looking up the standings toward Toronto and maybe New York.

The Yankees just bought a new lead-off man in sprinter Rickey Henderson. They gave up practically nobody with a lot of experience and a whole lot of money for Henderson.

The one person I'm really rooting for is Clarkston's Tim Birtsas. He was part of the Henderson deal between the Yankees and A's. He hasn't pitched an inning in the majors yet, but he's got three things going for him.

He's big, 6-foot-6 and 235 pounds.

His fastball pushes 95 mph.

And the most important is he's a left-handed starting pitcher.

There are so few starting southpaws in the majors that everyone is looking for one. That just might give him a step up to the majors this year.

REMNANTS OF SUMMER PAST: No one's eating at these picnic tables or fishing from this dock at the Independence Oaks County Park now, and the "no swimming" sign seems redundant. Winter has come and put an end to such warm-weather activities. With an early December snowfall, tables, trees, fields, homes and roads are covered with the powder. The picnic baskets, the fishing poles, the baseball gloves have been put away. It's time for the skis, the skates, the boots and, alas, the shovels. For now, the park is empty—but within weeks, hundreds will be gliding past these sights while cross country skiing. [Photos by Dan Vandenhemel]

D'Amico returns to Colombiere

By Carolyn Walker

Father Robert D'Amico experienced the call of God during the summers of his youth.

"I can clearly see that the idea of becoming a priest was planted at summer camp," he says, stressing that God works through everyday experiences. "I attended a camp, which was run by diocesan seminarians."

"I was a pious young boy and wanted to teach and be of service to others."

D'Amico decided to join the Society of Jesus, Jesuits, because of their strong link with education.

"I can clearly see that the idea of becoming a priest was planted at summer camp"

He came to Colombiere, a Jesuit seminary on Big Lake Road, Springfield Township, in 1961 as a novitiate.

After 12 years of studying, three years of service in an inner city parish in Cleveland, and six years on an annulment tribunal, he came full circle by returning to Colombiere as director this year.

D'Amico walks the solemn halls of Colombiere with a quiet step, his dark eyes searching for those who know him.

His strikingly handsome features belie his 41 years.

"The Society of Jesus was founded by Saint Ignatius of Loyola in 1540," he says, explaining their history. "The Jesuits take vows of poverty, chastity and obedience."

"There can be difficulties and struggles. But, there is also growth."

Administrator of Colombiere and its 35 resident priests, he is responsible for overseeing the spirituality center and conducting retreats for the wider community.

Colombiere, which was affiliated with the University of Detroit during its years as a seminary school, switched to being a retreat center about 1971.

"Groups such as Insight now use the halls which once housed seminary students," he says.

Insight is an adult residential facility for treatment of alcohol abuse.

A University of Detroit extension campus, where students may earn a four-year degree in business administration, is also located at Colombiere.

Looking quietly out a window, D'Amico sweeps his hand over the great expanse of Colombiere's 400 acres, and comments on its peaceful surroundings.

"People come here because of its serenity and beauty," he says. "It is conducive to spiritual growth."

He pauses a moment.

"I have enjoyed my years as a priest," he says. "A life of service is very satisfying."

Father Robert D'Amico, who taught high school in Cleveland, has a master's degree in mathematics from the University of Detroit. He became director of Colombiere Center this year.

Justin Segula of Oxford and Jeffrey LaBrie of Clarkston quietly watched the skit. The program had gone on for two weeks, and after the skit the two youngsters demonstrated that they remembered much, joining classmates in a discussion of the program.

Puppets show protection from sexual abuse

Representatives from Haven, the Oakland County Domestic Violence Shelter, recently conducted two programs at Alpha Montessori, explaining methods the young students could use to protect themselves from sexual abuse.

Using puppets, Jane Flaharty, Betty Clark and Diane Bailey told the children that no one has a right to touch private areas of their bodies.

Exceptions are seeing a doctor, or being washed by a parent, the women said.

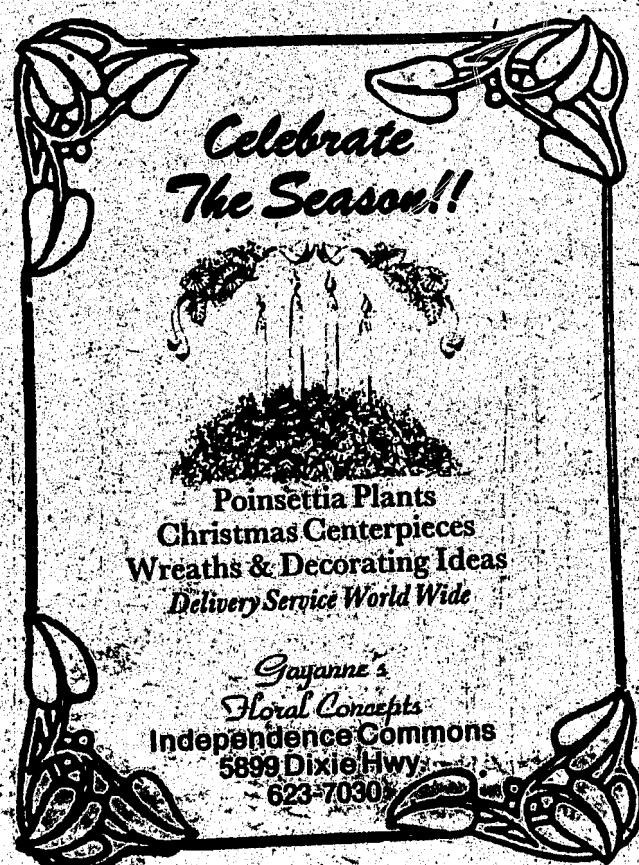

The children were instructed to tell a parent or other trusted adult if someone should attempt to touch them in ways that make them feel uncomfortable.

"You have the right to say 'no,'" said Clark.

She told the children not to obey if the abusing adult tells them to keep the incident secret.

Explaining that some secrets can be fun, they told the children that abuse should be reported.

They taught the children an emergency yell, and throughout the program, focused on letting the child know that abuse is not his or her fault.

Couture house 'worth saving'

Barn and shed to be torn down

The Couture house on park property off Clarkston Road is worth saving, but a 100-year-old barn and a shed are not, said Timothy Doyle, director of the Independence Township Parks and Recreation Department.

Doyle indicated the post-World War II house can be brought up to code, and outlined costs for the proposed project in a Nov. 30 letter to township board members.

He estimated renovations including new bathroom fixtures, drywall and carpeting would cost $6,325.

At the Dec. 4 meeting, the township board directed Doyle to supply more information on the cost involved, and to investigate what other communities are doing in similar situations.

Doyle recommended the house be used as a caretaker's residence.

"I am concerned about the potential liability the township might have for the caretakers and their guests," said Supervisor Frank Ronk.

Doyle also expressed concerns about a deteriorating barn and shed on the property. Trustee Dan Travis said the barn is over 100 years old.

"The existing two outbuildings need to be removed as quickly as possible," Doyle said, adding that the wood may be valuable but hazardous to remove.

"I was in one the other day, and my foot went right through the floor," he said.

The board agreed unanimously to have Doyle and Ronk explore the options of burning or dismantling the outbuildings.

Friendship thrives, thanks to PLUS

Program brings people together

By Kathy Greenfield

When 6-year-old Peter Bertling says "good," he smiles. And when he's talking about his PLUS match with Ken Peterson, he uses the word over and over again.

Ken and Peter have met weekly for over a year. Their friendship came about through the PLUS (People Listening, Understanding and Sharing) program sponsored by the Clarkston Area Youth Assistance Committee.

The program is designed to provide youngsters with an adult role model of the same sex.

"As they point out, it isn't with the idea that they expect you to use money or do something special all

"I'd forgotten how much fun little ones could be" the time," says Ken. "It's just spending time with your match. It's been special for us."

—Ken Peterson

Ken describes a typical Saturday, the day they usually meet.

"We usually start off with me doing my errands and he tags along. And I usually get hungry and we go out for lunch," he says.

They have a mutually satisfactory arrangement of taking turns choosing where that lunch will be.

So, as Ken says, when it's his turn he selects "someplace other than what Peter chooses."

And Peter? He grins as he says, "like him," agrees that he means someplace other than what Ken chooses, and admits his choice is almost always McDonald's.

Their Saturday routine also includes doing chores together, such as washing the car. Right now they're working a bicycle for Peter that was a gift from friends of the Petersons who bought a new house, found the bike in the garage and thought Peter might like it.

They've cleaned it up, painted the handlebars and are in the process of replacing the kickstand.

They usually find time for games as well. Favorites are darts and Score Four, a board game of sorts.

Peter looks at Ken when asked what he likes about the Saturdays and says, "seeing him."

He also says, "It's fun"; "It's good"; and that his favorite activity is "going out for lunch."

"Peter looks at Ken when asked what he likes about Saturdays and says, 'seeing him'"

Peter is Ken's second match through the PLUS program. His first was with a 13-year-old who later moved to another state. They still maintain a friendship—on his 15th birthday the boy called Ken and he recently sent him some poems with the appropriate themes of love, caring and understanding.

Because he had worked with an older boy, Ken hesitated before accepting the match with a then kindergartner.

"My first reaction was, 'Oh, what do I do with a 5-year-old?' " he says. "Actually, I'd say if anything it's been more rewarding in some ways because you don't have to look for things to do. With a 5- to 6-year-old they're just happy doing what you're doing."

"Our children are so much older, I guess that's what makes the relationship special. I'd forgotten how

To illustrate one of their regular Saturday activities, Peter and Ken play a favorite game. They also run errands together—some of much fun little ones could be."

Ken and Elaine Peterson have two children, 19-year-old Eric and 22-year-old Kari. The entire family shares the friendship with Peter, who says he's Peter's most memorable visits have been to the junk yard and a flea market, places he'd never been before.

looking forward to his second gathering to decorate the Christmas tree.

"Any time you spend time with children, you get more than you give," says Elaine.

PLUS needs a few good men

The Clarkston Area Youth Assistance Committee (CAYAC) is looking for men who would like to join the PLUS program and share some time with boys.

PLUS stands for "people listening, understand and sharing," and that pretty much sums up the requirements.

"The goal is to provide these youngsters with an adult role model of the same sex that they do not have at home," said Garry Pullins, child welfare worker for CAYAC.

"(The adults) always ask, 'What kinds of things to we do?' and I always encourage them to bring the boy back home. The boys like to participate in the family. Just that camaraderie between the boy and the man really seems to have an effect."

About 25 children and teens up to age 17 have been matched with single and married adults since the program began in the Clarkston area about five years ago.

Interested adults must fill out an application and be interviewed. A police check is done and references are called. They also must attend training sessions before a match is made.

The program has been very successful in the Clarkston area, Pullins said. There was only one match that didn't work and the adult was later matched successfully with another child.

"We've had some of our matches, three or four, going on now for three or four years," he said. "Sometimes they develop close friendships."

There is a particular need for men in the PLUS program, because there are presently nine boys on the waiting list. Their ages and interests follow:

•Age 15—reading, computers, video games, music, drawing, movies, fishing, swimming.

•Age 15—Soccer, football, horseback riding, swimming, fishing, camping, comics.

•Age 15—Rock collecting, fishing, TV, movies, bike riding, likes to work with hands.

•Age 8—Tools, video games, swimming, hiking, gardening.

•Age 13—Bike riding, go-carting, bowling, camping, movies, roller skating, swimming, shot gun.

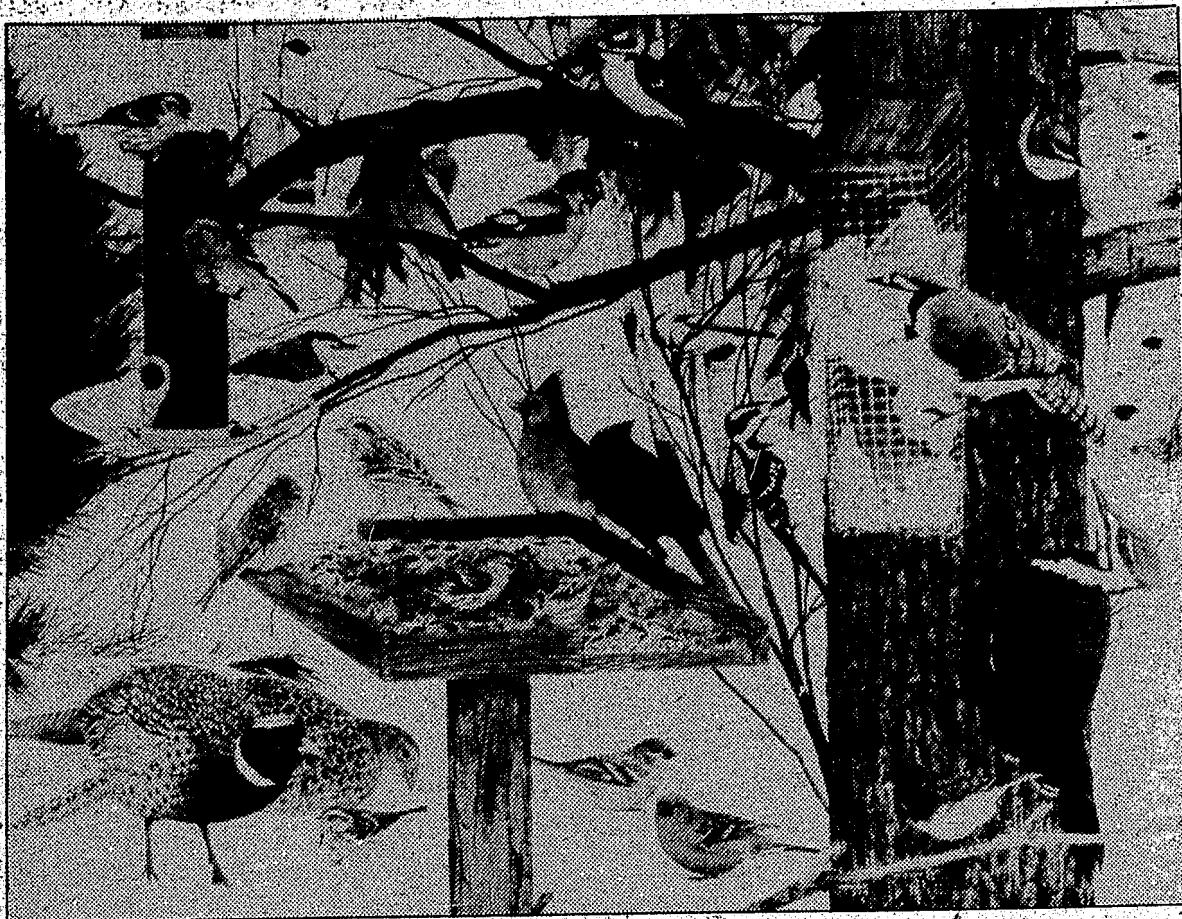

•Age 5—Movies, bike riding, drawing, hiking, TV, video games.

•Age 8—TV, swimming, movies, baseball, tools, drawing, reading, bike riding, video games, likes to work with hands.

•Age 9—Baseball, roller skating, swimming, football, soccer, movies, ice skating, sledding, biking, walking.

•Age 14—Football, basketball, soccer, archery, TV, bowling, biking, spectator sports, video games, movies.

Schools reward employees

Donovan, Keegan and White honored

Three Clarkston school district employees received tribute Dec. 10 for jobs well done.

Michael Donovan, Chuck Keegan and Laura White each received a certificate and an engraved Cross pen, presented by board of education President Janet Thomas.

Donovan, the media director at Clarkston Elementary School, was nominated by his principal William Potvin for an "outstanding job as media director" and extra efforts in coordinating the computer program.

Keegan, a Clarkston Junior High School teacher, was nominated by fellow teacher Linda Palace for his devotion to teaching and willingness to take on additional tasks for the benefit of the students.

Wrote Palace: "He is one of the best-liked teachers because of his positive attitude and good natured personality."

White, a CJHS secretary, was nominated by CJHS teacher Ruth Duling for her "dedication and spirit (which) make her an invaluable staff member and one who certainly deserves public recognition."

The committee that accepts nominations and chooses the award recipients is chaired by Assistant Superintendent Mel Vaara, who read the nominations during the presentations.

Meet the new pastor of the First Church of God at the Sunday, Dec. 23, services.

Dr. N. Edward Ross is moving to the Clarkston area from Sonora, Calif. He recently returned from missionary work in Haiti. Although he is not a missionary, he has made 20 trips to Haiti taking adults and youths on work camps.

Ross and his wife, Kathy, have three small children.

His main emphasis is to reach the unchurched, and he has been successful in church growth at the churches he previously pastored, said a church spokesperson.

Ross takes the place of the Rev. Herb Thompson, who has served as interim pastor since June.

The First Church of God is located at 6300 Clarkston Rd., Independence Township.

Mix all together, stirring after each addition. Refrigerate.

TOPPING

1/2 cup sugar

2 tablespoons flour

2 tablespoons butter

1 cup pineapple juice

1/2 pint whipping cream (whipped)

*Chemicals Are Trouble. People Are Working.

Dear Cat Paw:

I was wondering what someone should do if they are taking drugs and can't tell anyone, but can't stop. Wondering

Dear Wondering:

You can get help without anyone knowing it by calling the free Teen Hotline number, 1-800-552-1183. They will talk to you and get you the help you need in this community.

Drug counselors do not discuss their casework with anyone since they are professionals and honor anonymity, as do groups like Alateen.

Don't be afraid to get help. Eventually your use won't be a secret to anyone anyway. Drugs always get the best of the user. Good luck.

Dear Cat Paw:

Does smoking pot always have an effect on newborn babies?

Curious

Dear Curious:

There is clear evidence that THC and other ingredients of pot enter the bloodstream of an unborn child. There is also clear evidence now that people who do not smoke but are in the same area with a smoker are also harmed.

Marijuana is known to have over 400 chemicals, all of which are harmful. It is becoming increasingly clear that marijuana is much more dangerous than anyone ever thought.

Dear Cat Paw:

Do people find taking drugs a pleasure or a habit?

Confused

Dear Confused:

The main reason kids start using drugs is to feel good. The second reason is because their friends do it. They may start to use drugs for pleasure but it soon turns into a habit they can't break, and then it gets the best of them like everyone else.

Dear Cat Paw:

How does a person convince a friend to get help because they have a disease called alcoholism when they deny having a problem with alcohol?

Concerned

Dear Concerned:

Go to Al-Anon! They will teach you what alcoholism is and much, much more. One of the main things you will learn is how others enable the alcoholic or drug user to continue the habit without facing the consequences of addiction.

This does not mean he or she will be cured, but at least you won't be used and will make the person's use more difficult.

Editor's note: The author of C.A.T. P.A.W. is Jeanette Sanders, a Springfield Township resident.

Choir to perform holiday opera

The Christmas opera "Amahl and the Night Visitors" is the holiday offering by the music department of All Saints' Episcopal Church, Pontiac, on Saturday, Dec. 15, and Sunday, Dec. 16.

The cast includes a 12-year-old boy as Amahl. Among the shepherds, members of the All Saints' choir, are Steve Barnes of Independence Township and Jerry Wilford of Clarkston.

Written for television, the musical premiered in 1951. It's the story of a crippled boy and his mother who live in poverty among shepherds. Their lives change dramatically when three kings, on their way to Bethlehem, stop at the rude hut for shelter, food and entertainment by the local shepherds.

The performances are scheduled to begin at 8 p.m. in the church at Williams and West Pike.

Tickets purchased in advance are $5 for adults, $4 for students and seniors, and $2.50 for children under 12. Call 334-4751.

Prices at the door are $7, $5 and $3.50.

Ann's ark

A special gift

Ann Glenn

The angel atop our tree will have special significance this year and in the years to come.

I walked into a local gift shop to look for the usual Christmas cards and clever gifts. Upon entering, I went over to a Koestal Angel on the shelf.

I have always wanted one of these angels to top our Christmas tree. However, there were always more important places for that kind of money at Christmas time.

I looked around, bought some cards and a present for my grandson and began to leave, returning for one more look at the angel before I walked out the door.

I had not been home long when the phone rang. It was the shopkeeper where I had looked at the angel. He said, "I want you to have the angel from me in memory of the two dogs you lost this year." I was stunned.

My memories rushed back to Champion Rolling Glenn's Dresden, an exquisite white maltese who was himself an angel and the fulfillment of so many hopes and dreams—his loss is like losing a chapter in my life.

He was our daughter Shelley's dog to show: He died days before the birth of her first child.

Animals have a strange way of selecting their moment of death. Our 19-year-old Calico cat died a week before our daughter Heather's marriage. She was Heather's cat.

My very first maltese was ill but hung on until another maltese was giving birth to a long-awaited litter of puppies.

Rolling Glenn's Bathsheba was known to all as "Afghan," so-called by our third daughter, Lisa, whose first sentence was, "Here comes the afghan!" as the wild dog would barrel through the house, knocking everything down in sight.

Afghan had taught us so much about how one must deserve respect and compliance to rules. She grew to be the most trusted, gentle, sweet dog, obedient and clean after a few years of being a real h—raiser.

She so rewarded our patience. She taught us so much about afghans and about life. Another chapter gone. She died days after Lisa left for college.

The Christmas tree angel bears spirits so great and moving in our lives. This angel will represent a kindness reaching out to us forever after, a symbol of these kinds of rewards and treasures in life from generation to generation.

Life is so full of treasures. And my mind goes to other angels.

I am a lover of dogs and mine have come to me at times when my new struggling family could not spend the sum necessary for their quality.

My first maltese was a gift for delivering puppies in the night. Then we had a house fire and lost a litter of pups.

A previously unknown party from across the country sent me a champion maltese male—he was so gorgeous when he arrived on the plane that I could not believe my eyes.

His name was American, Canadian and Mexican International Champion Fairy Fay's Peter Pan. What a fairy tale! I could not comprehend the generosity.

This party then later sent a beautiful and very independent female named Kristi, who has marked our lives and all her progeny with her spirit.

An old afghan—Bathsheba. She came also at the time of our house fire as members of the dog club chipped in to help me acquire her. The ones I have left are her children or grandchildren.

So that angel on our tree has special significance tied up in family memories and dog memories and of the spirit of giving that this season is all about.

A special thank you and blessing to the man who generated all these marvelous memories and may the spirit of the holidays warm all of you and your furry and feathered friends.

Don't try to compare ordinary water conditioners with a Kinetico Water Processing System.

This one is unique.

No electricity.

A fully automatic control valve measures all water used and regenerates only when necessary. Unlike electric, fixed-time softeners, the Kinetico water conditioner reduces salt consumption and eliminates costly electronic repairs.

Twin resin tanks.

The revolutionary Kinetico water conditioner provides soft water continuously. When single tank softeners regenerate, only hard water is available for use. The Kinetico unit simply switches to a fresh tank and automatically recharges its twin with soft water.

With clarinet in hand, DuPree heads to U-M

By Dan Vandenhemel

Six years of clarinet practice paid off for Erin DuPree.

The 16-year-old junior at Clarkston High School is one of 80 members of the University of Michigan Youth Band-Wind Ensemble. The symphony annually selects students from around the state to perform concerts.

Erin auditioned near the end of September and a week later received a letter telling of the good news.

"I was really happy to make it," the Holcomb Road, Springfield Township, resident said. "It's hard to get into. It's something you work for."

"I'm doing this for myself," she said. "I'm doing it because it's fun and I enjoy it."

The first of three concerts is Dec. 15 at 8 p.m. in the Hill Auditorium in Ann Arbor. One of the concerts is in Chicago.

Being selected to the symphony doesn't mean Erin is going to continue playing her clarinet after graduation from Clarkston.

"I'm not planning on going into music. I plan on majoring in pre-med," she said. "It's hard work being a musician."

Besides the clarinet, Erin plays and teaches piano. With sisters Jennifer and Kelly and brother Devin, the whole family of Louis and Brenda DuPree is musically inclined.

"Mom (Brenda) got us started on the piano," Erin said. "She used to play the clarinet and piano, too."

Cougar commentsDrinking myths*Monica Miles

If you think drinking and driving don't mix, here's one of the main sources...teenagers and alcohol.

First, teens have many pressures. Peer pressure is probably one of the biggest.

If a teen tries to drink away his problems, it won't do him much good. Alcohol is a depressant, and it will only make his problems seem worse.

Secondly, if a teen drinks because he wants to feel like an adult, from my viewpoint, he's just pushing himself closer to the other end of the scale; immaturity.

A teen should have the common sense to know that if he expects to get anywhere in life, alcohol won't get him there.

It will only give him more trouble.

Thirdly, there are many myths about alcohol.

Many think fresh air, black coffee, and cold showers will sober a drunk up. That's not so.

Only time will sober them up.

Lastly, alcohol kills brain cells. After the age of five, your brain cells stop growing.

With college and careers based on grades, a teen really can't afford to drink, even at home.

As part of the mentorship program at Sashabaw Junior High School, ninth-grader Monica Miles is working a few hours every two weeks at The Clarkston News.

Sally Schmidt leads Tequila Bug, and her 4-year-old niece Margo Chisolm, through paces at the Oxford Music Club Parade of Horses. They are wearing authentic Indian costumes.

Horse saddles championships

Awards mount for owner

By Carolyn Walker

Tequila Bug is not an exotic drink from Mexico. She's a champion horse from Springfield Township.

"She is a halter champ; and at 2 years of age, has qualified for the Texas World Champion Show," said Sally Schmidt, Tequila Bug's owner. "That's quite an accomplishment for such a young horse."

Sally has been breeding horses for 18 years.

She and her horses have won numerous awards. Among them are the Breeders Futurity Award, which included horses from the tri-state area, and the Michigan State Fair Costume Class Competition.

Sally and Tequila Bug sometimes wear an authentic Indian horse and rider costume during their competitions.

Made of leather obtained from Canadian Indians, the outfit is the creation of Livonia resident Dianne Gardner, who spent 1,000 hours over a seven-year period sewing and hand-beading the costume.

"It is an exact replica of clothing worn by the Sioux tribe and includes a sundress, cape and leggings as well as ornamental pieces and furs for the horse," Sally said.

Solid waste task force trio resigns

The resignations of three Solid Waste Task Force members were accepted by Independence Township board members Dec. 4.

William Basinger, Ted Thomson and Fred Hancock submitted letters of resignation to the board on Nov. 13.

"They felt the new township board should start with a new slate," said Frank Ronk, supervisor.

The three were appointed to the task force in 1980.

"These people did a super good job for us," said Ronk after the meeting. "I hope the next people will do as well."

'Twas three days before Christmas

A short story for the holidays about Jennifer and the doll of her dreams

By Donna Lessel

It was evident, just by looking, that Christmas had finally arrived in the small town of Clarkston.

The streetlights were brightly decorated with green and red strips of fresh garlands. People with laughing eyes and warm hearts bustled to and fro, their arms loaded with packages.

Warmly dressed, rosy-cheeked children ice skated and frolicked in the snow down at the park. Store windows displayed cheery holiday paraphernalia.

The welcoming aroma of hot coffee and fresh-baked gingerbread floated through the air outside the village bakeshop.

A pleasingly plump Santa, all decked in bright red flannel rang his bell and greeted each passerby with a hearty "Meerrrrryyy Chriistmaassss!"

In Jennifer's house, the cookie jars overflowed with decorated sugar cookies in the shapes of pine trees, presents, stockings and Santas.

Their huge Christmas tree stood proudly in the family room and sported silver tinsel, colored blinking lights, candy canes, hand-strung popcorn and multitudes of Jennifer's homemade ornaments. Their fuzzy red stockings hung unfilled on the mantel. A massive, warm fire roared in the red brick fireplace below.

The very contented 8-year-old sat munching on cookies in front of the television set. Jennifer had shiny, golden-touched blond hair that glistened with each blink of the tree's luminous lights.

Her button-shaped nose was scarcely visible due to its minuscule size. She had creamy, smooth skin and her yet unfreckled cheeks glowed a warm-pink color.

Her tiny, pink mouth ambitiously tried to engulf more cookie than it could handle, stuffing her cheeks until they looked like a chipmunk's. Her funny, crooked teeth left curious, zig-zag imprints on the delectable holiday treat.

Her boney knees were tucked under her and a large patchwork quilt helped keep the rest of her 40-pound frame toasty warm. Her dark, almond-shaped eyes focused intently on the TV screen, her long lashes breaking the deep concentration now and then with a quick blink.

Finally, the commercial Jennifer had been waiting for appeared. Oh, how she longed to have such a beautiful baby doll to love!

Baby Bessy was the most precious doll she had ever seen. She had short, wavy blond hair and big, crystal blue eyes.

Her petite mouth was round and shaped like a raspberry. It moved in such a mechanical way that made feeding from a small bottle possible. Her cheeks were chubby and blushing, adding human qualities to her overall look.

Baby Bessy was the most precious doll she had ever seen. She had short, wavy blond hair and big, crystal blue eyes.

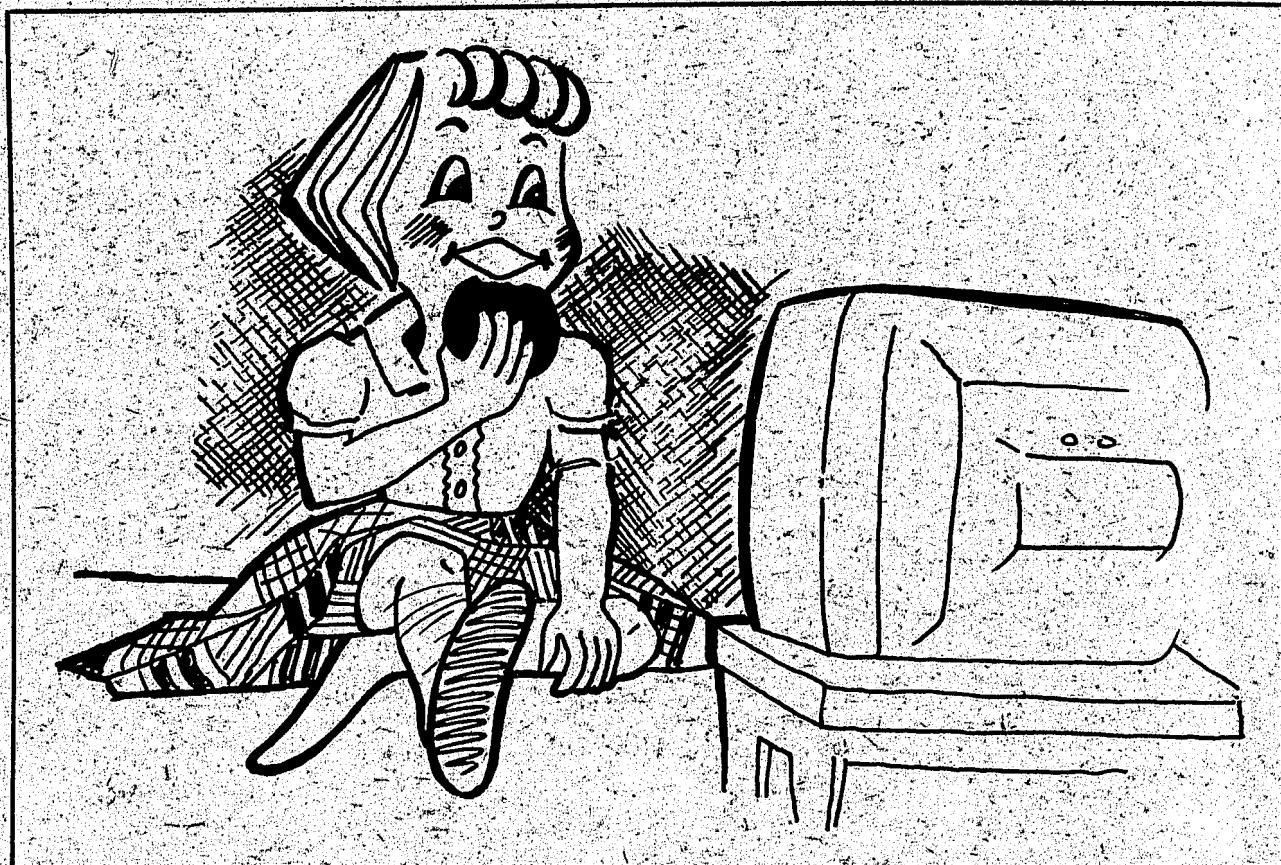

Jennifer listened as the announcer promised Baby Bessy to come complete with 10 miniature, quilted, machine-washable diapers and two small plastic baby bottles.

Her wardrobe consisted of two beautifully delicate cotton and lace dresses; one soft pink, the other crisp white.

The little girl watched enchantedly, careful not to breathe too loudly until the advertisement ended.

She wondered then if her biggest Christmas wish would be granted and she'd receive Baby Bessy. Surely, it was clear by then to everyone how much she wanted the doll; she dropped very obvious hints to everyone at each opportunity.

She hadn't stopped chattering about it since the commercial first appeared at Halloween. Every time the advertisement came on, she would shout, "That's the dolly I want! That's Baby Bessy! See? See?"

Now, all that remained was waiting three long days until St. Nick's Day.

The little girl watched enchantedly, careful not to

She went through the never-ending days methodically. Each day she woke, dressed and ate.

Playing in the newly fallen snow almost seemed worthless. Her feeble attempts at recreating Frosty the Snowman produced a creature without a corn cob pipe, or a button nose, and only one eye made out of coal.

Not even her favorite television special, "Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer," could snap her out of such a state.

Christmas Eve, usually a time of great excitement for Jennifer, was much less than jolly. After two days of ongoing anticipation, she was emotionally drained.

She stuffed her face unhappily with chocolates and fruitcake. She tried roasting a marshmallow in the fireplace, but it caught fire and turned into a hunk of black, bubbly, sticky ash.

When it was finally time for bed, she tried envisioning dancing sugar plums and counting sheep, but nothing helped to put her to sleep.

On the eve of the biggest day of the year, her mind just flitted wildly, wondering if Baby Bessy was waiting downstairs to be unwrapped.

As I lay there sideways in the too-small cardboard box, I wondered if anyone was ever going to rescue me.

I was desperate to know if I was destined to remain there for all eternity. I had been stuffed into that contraption at least a month before, after being purchased from a window of some toy store.

The hasty cashier had sloppily taped my golden locks to my head, which wasn't extremely comfortable. That was nothing compared to when the dowdy guy stuffed me, head first, into the heavy paper cubicle and slammed down the lid.

I was tossed around for a while and heard the rustling of paper in my not-so-far-away surroundings.

Finally, I came to rest in that sideways position and caught the aroma of fresh pine tree that soon became familiar. Before long, I gave up hope of ever being freed.

One morning, I heard a great commotion around me. It sounded like large sheets of paper continuously being ripped and wadded up.

I couldn't help but hope that someone would tear away the paper that surrounded my dwelling and set me free. I heard a lot of human gibberish that continued for a long time.

Then, I felt myself—box and all—being lifted and heard the splendid sound of paper being ribbed. Suddenly, light flooded into the carton and the soft hand of a child reached in.

Gently, it extracted me from the box. I was suspended in midair, facing a young girl's large excited brown eyes and I was very much obliged. She placed her velvety finger on my polished and chubby plastic cheek.

Carefully, she removed the itchy tape and fluffed my matted, shiny dress. Her little pink finger met my white lace dress, smoothing the wrinkles that had formed during my captivity.

I knew I had a new home and an adoring new mom.

I noticed a tiny tear glistening in the corner of her affectionate eyes. I realized that the two of us had been waiting a long time for this joyous day.

Suspended there in front of her, I was the Christmas wish come true, and she was my precious yuletide savior.
