Gas station liquor request fuels controversy

By Carolyn Walker

Concerned about what she calls "the ultimate opportunity to drink and drive," Independence Township Trustee Carol Balzarini has raised questions about the state granting a service station an SDM liquor license.

At the center of the controversy is the Dandy Oil Station at the corner of Sashabaw and Maybee roads.

The owners of the station, which was formerly a Union 76 station, have converted the building into a convenience store/gas station and have applied for an SDM license to sell packaged beer and wine.

"This is bizarre," said Balzarini. "It goes against all campaigns out there about drinking and driving."

State law prohibits gas stations from selling liquor but does not prevent a separate business from such sales, said Roger Rosendale, director of liquor enforcement at the state level.

Dandy Oil is being considered for a SDM liquor license because owner Dan Huffman plans to lease the convenience store to his daughter A.L. Wilson, according to Det. Sgt. James Fisk of Oakland County Liquor Enforcement.

"Technically they are separate businesses, so they meet the requirements," Fisk said.

All final state and county inspection requirements were met by Jan. 9, according to Rosendale, who said only the filing of last-minute forms was required before the license would be issued.

The only provision is that they keep the two businesses separate, he said.

"It seems a sham," said Neil Wallace, chairman of the Independence Township Planning Commission.

When the planning commission issued a special land use permit, they did so with no conditions because the owners had represented to the township that no liquor would be sold, Wallace said.

The planning commission would not have issued the permit, or would have issued it with the condition that no liquor be sold, had they known of their intentions, Wallace added.

Members of the planning commission intend to send a letter of opposition to the state liquor enforcement commission, Wallace said.

Independence Township Supervisor Frank Ronk said he was not sure there was much the township could do about the situation.

Fisk agreed. Local officials don't have much to say about SDM licenses, they can only monitor building requirements, he said.

Independence opens land for tree dumping

By Carolyn Walker

Township officials have begun looking at the monumental task of clearing the township of debris in the wake of the New Year's Day ice storm.

Independence sustained an estimated $10,000 in damages, said Supervisor Frank Ronk at the Jan. 8 township board meeting. ... He was responding to Trustee Daniel Travis' concerns about fallen and broken trees.

What can we do to be of help to community residents?" Travis asked. "I don't want to set a precedent, but this is a precedent-setting situation.

Toma to speak in Clarkston

Popular substance abuse speaker David Toma, whose life as a policeman was the role model for the television series "Toma" and "Baretta," has been scheduled for Feb. 19 and 20 appearances at Clarkston High School.

Members of the Clarkston Area Youth Assistance Committee and the Chemical People of Clarkston have joined forces to raise funds to cover

Toma's $6,000 fee. Toma, who writes and speaks from experiences in his family and work life, is tremendously effective in reaching students with drug problems, according to Marilyn Case, Chemical People spokesperson. During his stay in Clarkston, he will address students in grades seven through 12 and parents at day and evening meetings, she said.

Case asked for assistance with the expense at the Jan. 8 Community Development Block Grant public hearing by the Independence Township Board.

She was told by Betsy Reich of the Oakland County Community Development Division that the event is an "eligible type activity," but no commitment for funds was made by the township board.

The Chemical People and Youth Assistance plan to seek contributions from area businesses, churches and clubs in an effort to offset the expenses, Case Tough-talking Toma will discuss drug abuse in Clarkston.

Ronk said he filed an incomplete damage list with Oakland County on Jan 8; and opened up the Department of Public Works area on 6050 Flemings Lake Rd. for citizens to bring tree brush.

"We will build up a humungous pile, I'm sure," Ronk said.

The township is on the edge of another serious problem, said Travis, referring to lines still covered by broken branches and the threat of snow.

This township has gone the extra mile, already," said Richard Holman, township clerk. "The job of cleaning up is a mammoth one.

The township is in a holding pattern, waiting for word from the governor regarding assistance funds and the county emergency status, Holman added.

"Our position right now is to input to the county and state as much as possible, and 'squeaky wheel it,' " said Supervisor Ronk.

"We're looking at at least three weeks down the road for answers.'

Township officials encourage residents to call the township with any cleanup problems they may have.

Robbery charges

Two Sterling Heights men have been bound over to circuit court on charges of armed robbery with intent to do great bodily harm less than murder.

The charges against Laurence Stenquist and Douglas Jablonowski stem from a November 1984 incident which took place in Independence Township.

They are accused of stealing a wallet from Vijay Behl, also of Sterling Heights, and attempting to run over him with a car.

They allegedly threatened the victim with an unseen gun or knife, according to a district court spokesperson.

At their preliminary exam Jan. 8, 52nd District Court Judge Gerald McNally ruled there was probable cause that a crime had been committed, Stenquist and Jablonowski are scheduled to appear before Circuit Court Judge George La Plata on Jan. 28.

Welfare recipients tellown tales

By Kathy Greenfield

An editorial reprinted from the Lapeer County Press in the Jan. 2 Clarkston News wask taken personally by members of the Community Service Corps working in the Clarkston area.

It related the story of a woman-who refusred at $4- to $5-an-hour job at the weekly newspaper because she could make more money with less effort if she stayed on welfare.

'Unfair" and "stereotyping" were the reactions of these Independence and Springfield township residnets on public assitance and not liking it. Most people on welfare need it, they said, and their side of the story deserves to be told.

"I really like working. I would have worked all this time. I would have dug a ditch if I had a way to get to the job."

They're participating in the Community Service Corps, a program funded by the State Department of Labor to give welfare recipients some work ex-

They've agreed to give up their welfare checks in exchange for minimum wage jobs in the public sector (government and schools). Funding for the program ends Jan. 30.

Mary Swett, 26, rents an apartment in Independence Township. Divorced, she's the mother of a 7-year-old child. Her experience with ADC began in the summer of 1980.

'I was abused for four years," she said, "and I had to go to a domestic violence center to get away from my husband. I didn't have a car. I didn't have a house. I didn't have anything, but I couldn't take it anymore.

Swett is vehement when it comes to her feelings about being on ADC.

"I hate it," she said. "I really like working. I would have worked all this time. I would have dug a ditch if I had a way to get to the job."

The story of the woman unwilling to get off welfare made her angry.

"Lwas angry because it's stereotyping," she said. 'In general, people aren't like that on welfare. They feel bad about ADC. They want to get off as soon as possible.' Swett breaks into a face-filling smile when she talks about her service corps job as a building aide at Pine Knob Elementary School.

'I love it. I don't want to go home at night," she said. "It's a many-faceted job and it's a challenge to get everything done in the space of six hours."

Then she talks about the possibility of facing unemployment again.

"Rather than go back on ADC, I'd rather work

Mary Swett fills out an resume form at the Clarkston Community Learning Center where members of the Community Service Corps gathered last week to prepare for job searches—and put an end to their dependence on welfare. "You can put right under there, 'This person needs a job," she says after the photograph is taken.

for minimum wage_($3.35 an hour) than nothing," she said. The pay would bring in about $6 a week more than ADC provides.

If I have to back to that apartment I'll be climbing the walls," she said. "I just don't want to go back there. I'd rather do a lot of things than just sit all.

She receives about $354 a month from ADC and $315 of that goes for rent. Food stamps help, but her life-style is difficult.

"You do without stuff like aluminum foil, soft toilet paper, clothes," she said. "You do without any sort of entertainment like going to a movie or McDonald's. You do without buying any gifts for Christmas or birthdays.'

Tom Dotson, 36, rents a room in an Independence Township house. Single, with no dependents, he lost his job as a service manager at a car dealership about two years ago. He's received public assistance for a little over a year, following the end of his unemployment benefits. Once upon a time, I had $400 a week and a brand new car to drive," he said. "There's no way I'm happy on $5 a day."

He talks about a job search with dozens of resumes, but only a handful of interviews—and no job

As a member of the service corps, he's working as a custodial aide at Clarkston High School.

Before I started that, it was a day-after-day thing of watching soap operas, sending out resumes and hoping the phone would ring, without much results," he said.

"I'm not afraid of work. I'd rather work for $3.35 an hour than not work at all."

Through his own experience and from learning about the others in the service corps program, Dotson

Welfare. Public assistance. Aid to Dependent Children. Whatever the name, they would really rather not be on it.

Members of the Community Service Corps, these 10 Independence and Springfield township residents are working hard to step off the welfare merry-go-round.

Beginning in September and October, they exchanged their welfare checks for 30-hour-a-week jobs paying minimum wage ($3.35 an hour).

Funded through the State Department of Labor, the jobs of Clarkston school district custodial and classroom aides and Independence Township office aide are in force until Jan. 30.

"Not all welfare recipients are deadbeats the way some people think they are," said Darrell Marsh, the community education placement specialist supervising the Community Service

"I've found these people really need some help as far as work experience. I see self-confidence within themselves, making them feel good about themselves. I see a lot of positive attitudes, a lot of skills coming out they didn't think they had.

Speaking with their supervisors in these work sites, they're very pleased with the work they're do-

In addition to the service corps placements, the participants receive help with job interviewing skills, resume writing and telephones they can use for job-hunting through the Clarkston Community Education Department, which oversees the program locally.

Efforts are also made to seek out employers willing to give them a chance.

"We are trying very hard to get them all per," said Raphara Barlon said Barbara Banker, community services coors dinator community education.

"It's the motivation that I think would be a benefit to the employer. They really want to work."

Welfare system called Catch-22

"I think there's a lot of misinformation being put out by the media about what the welfare system is," he said. "You have to go through it to understand what it's like.

"I found, myself, the welfare program is really a Catch-22. You get on it and you almost can't get off it.

"In my situation, I get a grant of $72 every two weeks, which figures out to a little bit over $5 a day, which makes it almost impossible to go out for a job

Expenses for gasoline to drive to an interview in Flint or Detroit are about $10.

"If you don't get the job, that two days of your grant are down the tube," he said.

The story of the woman who refused the $4- to $5-an-hour job is credible, he said, but not the norm.

"What's really impressed me are the amount of women working in this program trying to better themselves," he said. "They have to offset the one that goes up to the Lapeer County Press."

Erma Pelshaw of Springfield Township is the mother of two children, ages 10 and 12. She said she was "just a housewife and a mother" before her divorce seven years ago.

"I got married when I was 19," she said." "I thought it was for life at that age. When the break-up of my marriage came. I had no choice (but to accept ADC). I was left with no transportation, no food for my children and no (job) skills.

"It's not where I wanted to be, but it's where I ended up."

If her ex-husband provided child support, Pelshaw said she probably wouldn't have to receive public assistance.

"It's ridiculous. There's too many fathers getting off scott free," she said.

Pelshaw said she looks for jobs everytime she gets a newspaper. She's also participated in other programs designed for welfare recipients, including the successful completion of a two-year course in medical assisting at Oakland Community College.

She became a member of the service corps as a teacher's aide in the medical assistant course at the Northwest Oakland Vocational Education Center in order to improve her chances to be hired.

Last year, she received $5,000 from ADC.

"It's very hard, especially trying to raise two kids alone," she said. "People look down on you because you're a single mother."

In her case, Pelshaw said a minimum-wage job would not provide enough income to care for her children, and she's making every effort to be eligible for a job that would pay at least $1 more an hour.

And although her experiences as a single mother are difficult, she's optimistic about opportunities that may come because of her experience with the service corps program.

"I'm just getting tired of the life. I've been tired for a long time," she said, "but I just didn't know how to get out of it. Now that I know, I'm just waiting for somebody to give me a chance and hire me full time.'

Charlene Petty, 36, lives in Independence Township. Divorced, she's the mother of two children, ages 12 and almost 13. She's received ADC for almost two years.

"My husband walked out between the holidays in 1982 and refused to pay anything," she said. "If I wouldn't have gotten (ADC), I would have lost everything,

She had worked as a nurse's aide, but when she applied for a similar jobs her lack of recent work experience made her incligible.

"I've been looking, and everytime somebody tells me about a job, I go down and apply," she said, 'When you don't have experience, it's hard to get a

"And then, a lot of people discriminate against you when they hear you're on ADC. A lot of people want you on minimum wage. Being a single parent, you can't raise children on minimum wage."

The $4,200 Petty received in ADC payments last year had to cover her house payments, all utilities, clothing for the children and automobile

'You have barely enough. You don't get any extras," she said. "I've had to cut down on everything."

As a member of the service corps, she's working two part-time jobs, as a custodial aide at Sashabaw Junior High School and as a teacher's aide in the Latchkey program.

'It's not like we're not trying," she said. "We're all going back, doing things. We're all trying to better ourselves.

Petty called the story of the welfare woman who would not accept a job unfair.

'Some people are on ADC for generations," she said, "I only needed it to get back on my feet and I don't want to be on it any longer than I have to be. It was hard for me to even go apply for it."

POH pursues satellite appeal

A 100-bed, $34-million satellite proposed by Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital for property along Dixie Highway in Independence Township has been put on hold, while hospital officials await yet another review of its certificate of need 5

The Michigan State Board of Health weighed an appeal for the certificate of need at a meeting in Lansing on Jan. 7; according to hospital spokesperson Cin-

No decision was reached, Territo said. "It's stagnant at this point," she added. "Nothing has been resolved."

The certificate of need was first denied in September 1984, when state officials determined there was no need for inpatient beds in northern Oakland County.

The state also denied a certificate of need to six other hospitals applying for certificates, including Crittendon and Harper-Grace.

POH officials had originally planned to open the facility in 1986 with inpatient and outpatient care, 24-hour emergency facilities, a laboratory, radiology and rehabilitation.

Assistant Attorney General Marvin Bromley said several more meetings would have to be held at the attorney general's office before a decision would be reached.

Firefighters to film at accident, fire scenes

By Carolyn Walker

Independence Township firefighters will soon be the featured stars of on-location video films.

Their rescue efforts and "house burns" will be filmed for educational purposes, according to Dale Bailey, acting chief of the Independence Township Fire Department.

At the Jan. 8 township board meeting, Bailey received authorization to spend $2,791 on a Panasonic camera, portable deck video cassette recorder and 19-inch color monitor.

Bailey compared video films to instant replays of athletic events.

"We feel we could save a lot of time," he said. Effective training would be more than doubled, said Roger Gillespie, an Independence Township oncall firefighter who is employed as a photographer at the General Motors Proving Grounds in Milford.

"The more you use the system, the greater the payback," he said.

Trustee Dale Stuart questioned the potential use of the equipment, noting that 60 hours of classes would involve at least 30 tapes.

"Is there enough activity to justify the camera in on-scene problems?" he asked.

Gillespie responded that a video camera allows the filming of circumstances, which cannot be repeated, such as tearing apart a car.

The camera would also enable firefighters to film cardio pulmonary resuscitation (CPR) in its actual environment, instead of in classrooms where the technique is not as realistically duplicated, he said.

Supervisor Frank Ronk, former township fire chief, said doctors from the area have offered to give time for medical training and the camera could be used for filming those sessions.

Board members voted unanimously to approve the purchase from City Animations of Troy.

When contacted at his office, Bailey said he did not know when the equipment would arrive, but said he hoped to have it for a "house burn" in late February.

For himself, the designer said, "People who dress in blue jeans and ragged clothes act accordingly." -

One more comment on clothes. This has to do with the modern merchandising theory that goes: Build for the average and ignore the rest.

Sad closing for park

The closing of the $63 million Auto World theme park in Flint has elicited sadness from many headquarters including this one.

The venture, which opened amid hoopla six months ago, closed its doors temporarily last week. Such a move has a dramatic impact, not only in the Flint area but in nearby communities as well.

We sincerely hope the officials in charge of Auto World's fate do some serious thinking and pursue each and every avenue to make the 22-acre park a success.

Unfortunately, those same officials, we feel, have not done their utmost in assuring the facility's success in the past. It seems to have escaped those same officials that nearly 50 percent of Auto World's financing has come from either public funds or is backed by the full faith and credit of either the city of Flint or the state of Michigan.

Auto World investors have seemed to ignore that fact in dealing with both the media and the public. Spokespersons for Auto World discontinued releasing attendance figures, feeling the public would misconstrue the information and think the park was in trouble.

That was the wrong thing to do. Provide the information, and allow the people to make up their collective minds.

More recently, the officials announced a cutback in hours for Auto World. At that time, they denied any possibility of closing the theme park. Less than a week later, the park closed.

Honesty is most important, especially when $31 million in public funds is involved.

Other changes will be necessary to make Auto World a success. Many have voiced disappointment in the number of items which will entertain children.

Others have expressed reservations about the high price, the location, the long lines and the perception that it was an amusement park, something it was never intended to be.

We are firm believers that no problem is too large to overcome. And, Auto World's troubles are no exception. We sincerely believe that, with patience, a critical analysis and an honest approach, Flint's newest tourist attraction can be resurrected.

We also believe that a good place to begin woold be the financial status of Auto World.

The public deserves that much as part of its $31 million investment.

Malpractice raises health costs

The recent unfortunate and excessive court ruling against Dr. James O'Neill clearly demonstrates one of the growing problems we have in our state concerning malpractice insurance suits.

Malpractice is one of the primary reasons we find health care costs rising.

This past year, health care cost containment has been a major topic of dicussion with the Prudent Purchaser Arrangements (PPA's) being passed.

During these discussions, it was brought to our attention that 20 to 30 percent of our entire health care bill is due to our doctors practicing defensive medicine; over testing; over X-ray; over prescribing in order to protect themselves against this type of lawsuit.

Five to 6 percent of a physician's overhead is in malpractice insurance, and it is 20 to 30 percent for an obstetrician and a surgeon.

To point out how out of hand this has become, statistics indicate that in 1977 per every 100 physicians there were 218 malpractice suits filed, with the average award being $4,500. In 1982, there were 1,483 suits filed, with the average award being $45,000

This dramatic increase is not a result of increased medical imcompetency, but rather a result of the substantial increase in the amount of money awarded.

In order to help contain the cost of health care in our state, the malpractice suit awards must be reduced and capped at an amount that is fair to the patient, but not so lucrative that they invite suing for profit.

Other proposed legislative solutions include mandatory payment of court costs and legal fees by clients who bring frivolous lawsuits, and phased payment of awards

We all pay for frivolous suits and outrageous awards, through health care costs, and this problem must be addressed by the legislature in the coming year.

TV makes life funnier

Jim Fitzgerald

"Dynasty" is a spoof. Please agree with me on that. I watch it to laugh at the sheer ridiculousness of the rich-trash characters and the I-married-my-father's-daughter plot. No one old enough to be awake at 9 p.m. could possibly take that stuff seriously. Please.

"Dynasty" is a parody of every soap opera that came before it, so actually it is spoofing spoofs. There never was a soap opera that mirrored real life. People don't watch them to see their reflection. They want to see unbelievable situations. Exaggeration is the prime ingredient. In real life, a woman might run into her husband's ex-wife once a year in the supermarket. In "Dynasty," they live in the same house and wear designer gowns for every-morning confrontations in the upstairs hallway.

MY PROBLEM with "Dynasty" is that it mustkeep topping itself to retain my interest. I always read while watching TV, and look up from the newspaper only when something really fascinating is happening on the er screen. During football games, I look up only when the announcer announces an instant replay. I figure if a pass or run isn't interesting enough for TV to show twice, it isn't interesting enough for me to watch once.

During "Dynasty," I look up only when it is announced that another long-misplaced child of Blake Carrington and Alexis Carrington Colby Dexter has been found in the Carrington's spare living room where she (he?) has been living incognito for 15 years, disguised as a coffee table. I am always interested in seeing who will play the role of the coffee table.

That has been the most fascinating aspect of "Dynasty." It hires old familiar faces to play unlikely roles, such as Diaham Carroll as "the first black bitch on television," as she describes her character. But even imaginative casting can become ho-hum stuff without regular infusions of brilliant innovation. That occurred to me just last Wednesday when I found myself unwilling to look up from my newspaper to see Rock Hudson become the father of an Arabian colt.

And that's when I began wishing the powerful people who run "Dynasty" would do something they'll the first and a said as as as as as as as as are a said as a never do! I wish they'd spoof themselves, which would be a spoof of a spoof of a spoof. I know just how they could do!!

Recently it was revealed that Blake Carrington's father is still alive and will soon be introduced to viewers. Blake is a grandfather, at least 60 years old, so his daddy has to be an old guy. Who will play the role? Who will be revealed as the great-grandfather of all those little babies who live together in one room of the Carrington mansion?

PICTURE THIS SCENE: Blake Carrington flies to the other side of the world to visit his father who is holed up in a dark corner, something like Marlon Brando in "Apocalypse Now." It is several minutes fefore the camera finally penetrates the murk to reveal that Old Man Carrington is...

Dick Clark.

A triple spoof. I love it. Life would be a lot funnier if the people in power would only do what I wish they'd do.

I am also dreaming of a mini-series in which it is revealed, in the final episode, that Boy George's parents are Liberace.

Onward and Upward.

Cars must stay in lot at night

Township employees may use department vehicles, but must return them to the township hall parking lot at night unless given special permission to do otherwise.

Members of the Independence Township Board established a new policy on the issue after debating the township's liability at the Jan. 8 meeting.

During a discussion about township-owned vehicles, Kenneth Delbridge, director of the township's building and planning departments, said one of his inspectors occasionally drives a staff pickup truck home to prevent it from being vandalized in the parking lot.

His comment prompted Trustee Dale Stuart to express concern.

"I don't think township vehicles should be taken home," he said. "Except for those who have evening hours."

Stuart also said township employees should not be allowed to take cars home when elected officials, with the exception of the supervisor, do not have staff cars as a part of their benefits.

Trustee Carol Balzarini took exception to Stuart's remarks.

Employees taking vehicles home helps "free up" the parking lot and prevent vandalism, she said.

She voted against the motion to restrict staff vehicle usage to business hours, saying, "I'd like to look at it all together."

All other votes supported the motion.

Department heads and the supervisor may continue to take their cars home.

Highland Township in court battle

Springfield backs neighbor

By Dan Vandenhemel

Springfield Township has joined Highland Township in its fight against a lawsuit by American Aggregates Corp. of Oxford.

The gravel company started a lawsuit against Highland Township in 1977 for not allowing the rezoning of the northwest corner of the township, near Clyde Road and Hickery Ridge, for mining. The court ruled in favor of Highland Township and the case is now in the Michigan Court of Appeals.

Springfield Township attorney Gary Dovre said Highland requested the board add its name to the legal brief being prepared for the case...

The initial request was made in December, but Springfield Supervisor Collin Walls said they needed more imformation before making a decision.

Formal approval to add Springfield's name to the case was unanimous at the Jan. 9 board meeting.

One concern the board-had was its legal obligation. Dovre said the township isn't legally liable for lending its support to Highland.

"Basically what this does is counterbalance the names on American Aggregates side,!' he said after the meeting. "It's not going to cost the township

Highland Township Supervisor Tom Dunleavy said they requested support from 18 townships in the Oakland County Association of Township Supervisors, but Springfield was the first to respond.

The proposed site is roughly eight miles from Davisburg. Walls said the area is part of a known

Watsons face charges

Davisburg residents John Watson and his wife Patricia face a federal grand jury indictment for allegedly falsifying bank loan statements through the Manufacturers National Bank of Detroit.

The 60-count indictment was issued Jan. 8. The Watsons were arraigned Jan. 10 by Judge Thomas Thorton:

Included in the indictment are charges of Watson using false information on a bank loan statement while buying Heather Highlands Golf Course in Springfield Township.

The 58 counts of false bank statements each carry a maximum penalty of two years in prison, a $5,000 fine or both, as does the false bank loan charge. The interstate charge has a maximum penalty of 10 years in prison, a $10,000 fine or both.

The Watsons are the owners of Lumberjack Builders in Lake Orion.

Watson and his attorney James Howarth failed to return calls about the charges...

Boy not charged

No charges will be filed against the stepson of Oakland County Prosecutor L. Brooks Patterson.

The 17-year-old youth must instead abide by the terms of a "pre-trial diversion agreement," according to Bloomfield Hills attorney George Googasian, special prosecutor in the case.

The 12-month agreement demands that the youth not break any federal, state or local laws. If he is arrested or questioned he must notify his probation officer, Googasian said.

He must also continue to attend school or work upon his graduation, live with his mother and stepfather, and report to his pretrial service officer (from 1) the probation department) as directed.

The case involving the youth stems from an Oakland County Sheriff's report of finding a stolen credit card in the youth's wallet when investigating a car thought to be abandoned in Independence Township.

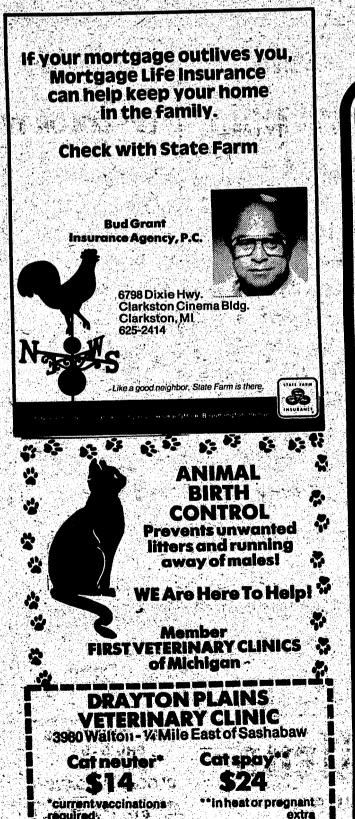

The youth was with other boys one evening when they removed mail, including the credit card belonging to Dr. David Swayze of Independence Township, from mailboxes, Googasian said.

The credit card was never signed nor used,)

Googasian added.

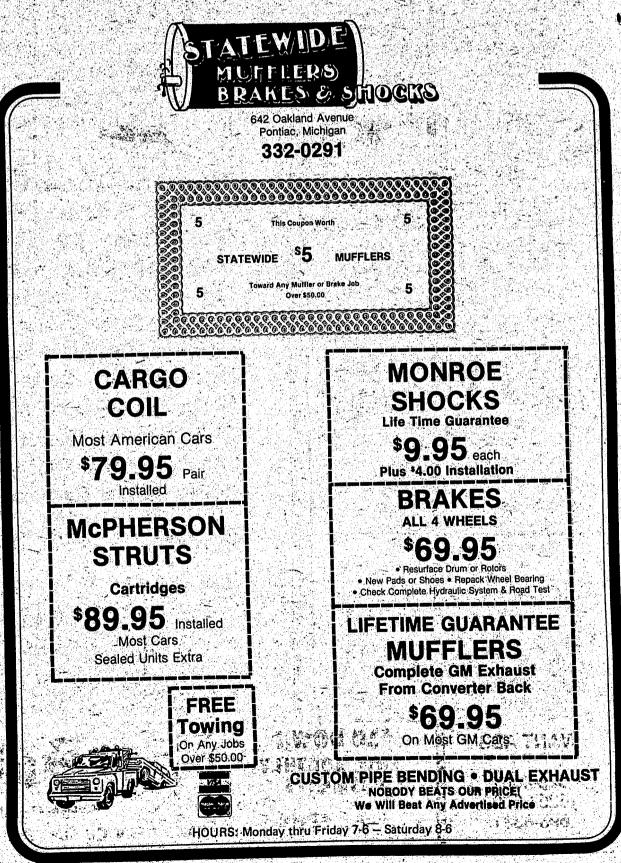

Googasian said mail tampering is a federal offense, and added that he had turned the matter over to the United States Post Office, and the U.S. Attorney General.

No mail tampering charges will be filed against the youths because they are under 18 years old, Googasian said.

The most exciting part of many basketball games are the final moments. But in the Clarkston-Waterford Kettering contest, only the first five minutes mattered.

In the opening minutes the game was close, but the last 28 minutes proved why Clarkston is a strong basketball team. The Wolves handled the Captains with ease, 73-45, Jan. 11 for their fifth straigth win after an opening-game loss to Catholic Central.

The Wolves' strong point this season is depth. Eleven of the 13 players on the bench scored.

Leading the way was Erik Kline with 20 points, Mike Walters with 11, Dan Jokisch with 10 and Ed Whitaker with nine.

For all intents and purposes, the game was over after the first quarter. The Wolves led, 20-10, then built a 31-14 halftime advantage. The victory didn't surprise Wolves' coach Dan Fife as much as the winning margin against Ketter-

"I think they're a better ball club than that," Fife said. "They've lost their last five ball games by 16 points, two coming at the buzzer. All they need is a little confidence and they'll be better."

Although the game was out of hand in the second half, with the Wolves leading by as much as 25, they didn't stop hustling. Kline and Doug Colling were all over the court on defense.

"Erik just played an outstanding game. Douger's (Colling, 5-8) a smurf. He's got to play like that. For us to win, we've all got to play hard," Fife said.

The triumph gives the Wolves their first win in the Greater Oakland Activites League and a 5-1 overall record. Kettering falls to 1-6 overall and 0-3 in Clarkston's bench played as big a role as the starting five-and Fife knew it.

"At the beginning of the year I said we've got eight or nine players that could start for us," he said. "The bench busts their butts when they get a chance to play. Brian Lewis came off the bench and helped against Avondale and Mike Walters played a strong

Seer here, Hose heads. You really goofed up on the Waterford Kettering game. You were supposed to lose because of overconfidence. The Wolves-Captain rivalry was to produce a close game with Captains pulling an upset in the Wolves' gym. To top it off, David Ladd was hurt and didn't dress for the game and Erik Kline was limping toward the end-and you still won. You hosers should have paid attention to the all-knowing Seer.

Kettering didn't turn out to be much of a test; neither will Waterford Mott this week. There's no rivalry, and no worries for the Wolves. Read on . . .

Clarkston at Waterford Mott (Jan. 18): The Wolves are rolling with five straight wins (not including Tuesday's game with West Bloomfield) and Mott is standing weak with a 1-6 record. Clarkston hasn't been pushed to the limit since the Pontiac Central game back in December and won't be again until late in January when Pontiac Northern comes to town.

The game with Mott will be over early. The Wolves could put the cheerleaders on the court if they wanted to and still win. Wolves by 25.

Reaching toward victory

The Wolves tean against Waterford Kettering all night including this action under the basket with Doug Colling and Jim Acton waiting for a rebound. The Wolves take care of the Captains with ease, 73-45, in varsity basketball action Jan. 11. The victory pushes the Wolves' record to 5-1.

Spikers take third place

Coach pleased with play

By Dan Vandenhemel

For the first volleyball tournament of the year, Clarkston varsity coach Nancy Foster was a little disappointed.

The Wolves finished third in the Andover Invitational Tournament Jan. 12. The place the team finished in was upsetting to Foster but not the way they

The 10-team tournament was split into two fiveteam pools with the top two teams advancing to the semi-finals. Clarkston won its pool easily, then faced North Farmington in the first round of the finals. They won the opening game, 15-13, but lost the next two games, 15-13 and 15-9.

We played well the whole tournament," Foster said. "We were hitting the ball real hard and blocking everything. We were the hardest hitting there by far.

But a strategy chanced by North Farmington spoiled the long day for the Wolves.

Their coach called a timeout and told the players to not hit the ball so hard and get the ball just over the blockers," she said. "I guess we'll have to get used to junk."

The day started at 7:30 a.m. for Foster and 8:30 a.m. for the players and ended just before 8 p.m. for Clarkston. The team left before the finals between North Farmington and Grosse Pointe North.

Foster liked what she saw from her players. She raid Laura Hurren played an excellent game, as did Wendy Learmont and Beth Springer. One player, Roseann Hirneisen, got hurt in the semi-finals but is OK

"She dove for a ball and hit her cheekbone just below her eye," Foster said. "Her face was a little numb at the time and she had a pretty bad headache. She sat out a game and took herself out another one. She was pretty tired, too. It's a long day, no matter what."

Up My Alley

Getting older

Dan Vandenhemel

Just 354 days.

That's it before my next birthday. I'll be (gasp) an antique.

It's a ritual of mine to announce the celebration a few months in advance.

This past event happened to fall on a Saturday so, of course, it lasted until Monday.

At times the weekend was a little more interesting than usual. It ranged from free dessert to bowling out of my mind.

Dinner at an expensive restaurant featured an unfortunate floor show. Just after we started the meal, a women walked through the dining room and passed out next to our table.

Practically before she hit the floor, a student nurse and an off-duty police officer came to her aid. The women as OK and refused treatment from the

For our help, the restaurant gave us a free dessert. They didn't have to do anything, but since we were stuffed, they could have taken a few bucks off the bill.

The next day, we had a great turkey dinner at my parents' home. It had the works, from the stuffing (that I'm not fond of) to cranberry sauce to the dirty

I'm not sure what prompted me to do this, but I washed the dishes. I don't do them during the week, or the rest of the year for that matter, but I did them on my birthday.

The other strange thing during that weekend happened in one of my bowling leagues.

This may come over as bragging, but I hope not. I'm proud of going nuts and bowling the best ever.

In the Sunday night mixed league, I shot a 772 three-game series. That's 200 pins over my average. The high individual series in the league was 708 and I've been shooting for that since September,

About three hours after games of 279-214-279, I was finally able to hold a glass of water without spilling it all over myself.

I bowl a lot and if I did something like that often, it wouldn't be that big a deal. But I beat my personal best by more than 50 pins.

All these things along with an umbrella hat I got at my office party made my birthday very enjoyable. We'll have to do this again next year...

Got the chills? Be alert to "hypothermia."

For millions of Americans, the chilling winds of winter mean more than snow and icy roads. They also bring the danger of "hypothermia." That's a fancy word for the condition in which the body loses heat to a cold or cool environment faster than the heat is replaced.

Most vulnerable to hypothermia are the chronically ill, infants and the very old—in other words, those whose systems are generally not strong enough to conserve body heat when the temperature drops. If undetected, hypothermia can quickly prove fatal.

Fortunately, awareness of the condition and its symptoms plus can prevent the worst from happening.

Hypothermia means low body temperature, typically 95°F or lower. And temperatures in the immediate surroundings do not have to fall below freezing for hypothermia to occur. Even household temperatures close to 70° can lower body temperature below the normal 98.6°.

confusion and reduced alertness; trembling on one side of the body or in one arm or leg; shivering, in the early stages, but absence of shivering as the condition worsens; cold and stiff muscles. cold abdomen and back; difficulty in speaking; slow breathing; bloated face, pale and waxy skin; forgetfulness; drowsiness; unconsciousness; low body temperatures.

Anyone displaying these symptoms should be gently wrapped in a warm blanket and emergency help should be summoned immediately.

Staying warm involves more than throwing another log on the fire. To guard against hypotherne commonsense precautions mia, older persons should maintain a good diet because food provides necessary fuel and heat for the body. They should also drink plenty of liquids, but refrain from alcohol, which speeds up heat loss and makes it very hard to keep warm. Rest is also important, balanced by a moderate amount of exercise.

Indoors, loosely layered, dry clothing will help trap heat around the body. Outdoors, a hat Loss, of body heat dulls, the and scarffwill cut down on heat

More stringent rules guide use of $69,000

By Carolyn Walker

Tighter restrictions on Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) funds may make it difficult for some projects proposed by residents to obtain a share of the $69,000 grant.

The funds, which have been used to improve area roads and parks in the past, have been earmarked for senior citizens, low income families and the handicapped, said Betsy Reich of the Oakland County Community Development Division, who addressed the township board at a Jan. 8 public hearing.

"There's going to be some major changes this year," Reich said, explaining that CDBG money comes from Housing and Urban Development (HUD) at the federal level and is distributed through the county to townships.

Projects approved for grants will have to meet one of three criteria: at least 37.96 percent of those benefitting are in the low to moderate income range ($26,000 for a family of four); urgent need (such as for toxic waste); or slum and blight prevention.

The requests must also coincide with a broad list of eligible activities, Reich said.

Township Clerk Richard Holman called the new regulations "extremely restrictive."

An attempt would have to be made to use the money to help the most people, said Trustee Dale

Of the 30 people at the hearing, five asked for funds for specific projects.

They included residents of Meyers and Drayton roads seeking road pavings, representatives of the Chemical People of Clarkston who want to bring speaker David Toma to Clarkston High School, and Iva Sommers Caverly requesting a street light for the Sashabaw-Waldon intersection.

James Evans of the Consortium for Human Development also asked for money to help offset patient expenses.

In addition, township officials are exploring the option of using some of the funds to make public buildings barrier free, said Treasurer John Lutz.

A second public hearing is scheduled Jan. 15, immediately followed by a board decision on how to spend the money.

Aid information

An information night on financial aid for college is planned Wednesday, Jan. 16, at 7:30 p.m. in the Clarkston High School Little Theatre.

Parents of seniors and seniors planning to enter college next year should attend for help in answering questions on the Financial Aid Form, which must be filed in January to qualify for some of the financial aid

Protein

Everyones protein requirements are different. For an adult you would multiply your body weight by 0.36. The result will be your daily protein requirement in grams.

All proteins are not the same, though they're manufactured from the same twenty amino acids. They have different functions and work in different areas of the body. There are basically two types of protein, complete & in-

Complete protein provides the proper balance of eight necessary amino acids that build tissues, and is found in foods of animal origin such as meats, poultry, seafood, eggs, milk and

Incomplete protein lacks certain essential amino acids and is not used efficiently when eaten alone. However, when it is combined with small amounts of animal-source protein, it becomes complete. It is found in seeds, nuts, peas, grains, and beans.

Mixing complete & incomplete proteins can give you better nutrition than either one

A good rice and bean dish with some cheese can be just as nourishing, less expensive, and lower in fat than a steak.

New youth chorus is their goal

By Kathy Greenfield

Dennis and Donna Morgan envision a community youth chorus made up of 6- to 18-year-olds that could grow to hundreds of members.

They're holding auditions Saturday, Jan. 19, from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. at their Independence Township home, 6619 Roselawn, at the corner of Church Street across from Clarkston Junior High School. Although appointments are not neccessary, they may be made by calling 625-7354.

The $15 fee for three months of Saturday practices covers the cost of purchasing musical arrangements and paying musical director Sharon Thomas, who works with Pontiac Theatre IV, is a voice teacher and is musical director at a Bloomfield Hills church.

"We're looking for anybody who can carry a tune, and also we're looking for youth accompaniests," said Donna.

When the Morgans moved to Clarkston in June 1983, the lack of such a group was something they deeply missed.

Two of their four children had been part of the Singing Angels, a 300-member international youth performing and training chorus based in Cleveland, Ohio; Denys, now 16, for one year, and Deborah, 11, for four years.

They originally started out (20 years ago) sort of like we are," said Donna. "It was such a success it grew into a showpiece organization. That's our inspiration.'

The Singing Angels have appeared at two presidential inaugurations, on a Bob Hope Christmas special and have sung for the Pope.

"They had very strict discipline. They had very high standards of performance," said Dennis. "They expected a lot from the kids, and one thing that's always bothered Donna and I is the direction of society. There's not a whole lot offered to kids today that gives them a standard of excellence to shoot for."

The Morgans are involved in church singing activities and their children at home are all musical students in school.

Denys, a junior at Clarkston High School, is a member of the CHS Drama Club and the varsity chorus. Dennis, 13, is a band student at Clarkston Junior High. Deborah, a sixth-grader at Clarkston Elementary, is a member of the band and the special chorus. Their oldest child, Destiny, 20, is a Russian linquist in the United States Navy stationed in Dennis is an account manager for personnel at General Motors Truck and Bus. Donna, a registered nurse, works part time from a medical personnel pool.

Once the youth chorus is underway, the whole family plans to participate, with duties ranging from organization to choreography to accompaniment.

The chorus is not meant to replace other activities. In their experience with the Singing Angels, the Morgans saw the participants excel in other areas-from school work to leads in school plays.

"You'd see this kids coming out at the end (of a performance) saying, 'I can do anything,' " said Donna. "It just made them excited about life and involv-

This sense of excitement is what prompted the Morgans to take steps now to start a youth chorus. They had been talking about it for a year when a recent report on the high rate of teenage suicide prompted action. "We think it's just another way we can do something together to make a difference to people around us," Donna said. "We know what a sense of specialness they had about themselves being involved in this group.

"We'd just like to start out with whatever resources we get and develop a group we can take out. Maybe all we'll do in the beginning is travel around to nursing homes and bring a little cheer," added Dennis. "Maybe some day it will grow into the Singing

Skaters enjoying the pleasures of a frozen Clarkston Mill Pond may be unaware of a potential hazard: fishing holes in the ice. Steven Nicholson, a Clarkston resident who recently fell through a hole up to his knees, is so concerned about the problem that he brought it to the attention of the village council at the Jan. 14 meeting. He is worried that a youngster might not be so Village Clerk Norma Goyette concurred. "Some holes are big enough a small child could go through,'

Nicholson has observed as many as 60 children and adults skating on the pond at one time, surrounded by fishermen.

The Departmen of Natural Resources (DNR) does not require fishermen to mark their unattended holes, Nicholson said, and asked council members to notify pond residents of the problem.

In addition, he requested that homes along the pond provide safety equipment, including ropes.

Council members said they were unsure of their responsibility in the matter, because the Clarkston Mills Mall owns the water rights to the pond.

They agreed to pursue the matter of safety equipment with the Independence Township Fire Department.

The Morgans gather round the family plano for an impromptu singing session. Standing [from

Dieball fills board opening

Has 20 years experience as planner in Waterford

Robert Dieball of Sugarloaf Trail, Independence Township, has been appointed to fill the remaining position on the Independence Township Planning Commission.

Dieball, who has worked as a planner for Waterford Township over 20 years, was appointed in a 6-0 vote after recommendation by Supervisor Frank Ronk. Trustee William Vandermark was absent.

Dieball's appointment completes the planning commission changes made following the November election. New members on the commission are Joseph Figa of Snowapple Drive and Charles Robertson of Hummingbird Lane.

They replaced Walter Eidam and William (Ed) Cox, who indicated at the Dec. 18 meeting that he wished to continue on the board. Cox was not reap-

Newly elected Trustee Carol Balzarini will continue to serve on the planning commission, although she now represents the township board. She was appointed to replace Trustee Daniel Travis who said he no longer wished to serve on the commission.

Clerk's note-taking worries gone

A secretary will be hired to take minutes at future Independence Township board meetings.

Township board members approved the request by Clerk Richard Holman at the Jan. 8 meeting.

Safety display

Child Passenger Safety is the topic of a display and demonstration at the Summit Place Mall from Jan. 24 through Feb. 3.

The various models of child safety seats will be on display, literature will be available, and demonstration and instruction will be given on the correct usage of child safety restraints.

Hours are 10 a.m. until 9 p.m. Monday through. Saturday and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday. The mall is located at 315 N. Telegraph, Pontiac. For more information, call Eva Clark at the Oakland County Health Division. (858-0213)

Holman told board members he has difficulty concentrating on issues while trying to take minutes.

"I currently spend between 10 and 12 hours on preparing the board minutes," he said in a letter to board members. "I feel this time could be more productively spent on other township business."

Holman surveyed 21 townships in Oakland County before approaching the board.

Of the 21, 12 have recording secretaries.

Holman will first attempt to secure a secretary from among township employees. Failing that, he will advertise for a qualified applicant.

Board members discussed the possibility of paying the secretary $35 for the first three hours of work and $5 for each additional hour, but did not reach a decision.

They approved Holman's request with the provision that he maintain ultimate responsibility for the minutes, and that the recording secretary pass a three-month trial period.

Sheldon-Spevock

Mr. and Mrs. John Sheldon, formerly of Clarkston, now residing in Arlington, Texas, announce the engagement of their daughter, Terl Lyn of Buffalo, N.Y., to Michael A. Spevock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael R. Spevock of Fairmont, W.Va. The bride-to-be is a graduate of West Virginia University and is currently employed by Marine Midland Bank as a public finance banking officer. Her fiance graduated from Fairmont State College and received his master's degree in business from West Virginia University. He is a mortgage banker for First Mortgage & Investment Inc. of Greensboro, N.C. A June wedding is planned.

How they weathered the storm

Phones rang on

Before we say our final good riddance to the Ice Storm of '85, there's a question to answer:

Why did our most of our telephones keep working despite the power failure?

Vincent Fordell, Michigan Bell's corporate affairs manager for our area, provided the answer.

"One big reason is we put all our central offices on separate generator power," he said. "We can run all of them on generator power."

So, when Detroit Edison pops out, the generators automatically pop on and provide the electricity needed to keep telephones ringing.

The only parts that don't work are things like lighted dials powered by electricity and not batteries, as in some newer telephone models.

Fordell termed the job of keeping fuel in the generators as "considerable, but part of the job." At least two of the central offices in the Clarkston, Holly areas were kept operating with generator

When cables and poles were down, telephone service was affected, but overall the generators did their job and kept service "pretty near normal," he said

Bickerstaffs used coal to heat their house

With an "Oh no, it's happened again," our electricity went out about 3:50 a.m. New Year's Day 1985.

In 1976 we were out for several days, and every time the wind blows we seem to lose power in our neighborhood.

Two years ago on the 4th of July we were out for several hours. Neighbors were walking down the street with wet hair to attend the local parade.

Summer time is one thing, but in the winter—heat is the main problem. All New Year's Day we fed wood into the fireplace.

Finally, I said to David, "Remember last time? We bought coal." The coal burns slower and provides a hotter fire.

We originally got the idea for the coal burning while visiting Dave's Aunt Nettie in Troon, Scotland. She had a bag delivered every week.

Tuesday morning we found coal at Clarkston Lumber. Mr. Kelly said some of the bags were broken, but we said, "No problem. We'll bring garbage bags."

By Thursday we were really beginning to get organized for camping in our home. We had jugs of water and bags of coal. Dave also went out and bought two kerosene heaters, which heated the area better than firewood or coal.

Our neighbors, the Futrells, had a generator and said we could hook up if we had a 100-foot extension cord. The cord was borrowed that belonged to the Fahrners and had just been returned by the Greenfields who regained their current.

Dave walked over to the Futrells' about 4 p.m. Thursday to hook up.

More than light . . .

Candles give off enough heat to warm a bathroom, says Judy Pittman, a Clarkston area resi-

Pittman used the technique to keep at least one room warm during the recent ice siege.

"It does make a difference," she said.

She figures five large candles will heat the average bathroom, and provide comfort during the cold days of a power shortage.

During a previous power outage, she kept her pet bird warm by hanging its cage in a candle-warmed As he approached, he noticed their generator was not running. Sheryl Futrell said the current had come on about 3 p.m. Not wanting a power surge, we had shut everything off.

ICE IS NICE By Greg Sanders

Ice is nice
as it falls softly at night on grass, trees, and shrubs clinging tenaciously to every branch, twig & stem.

Ice is nice
placing heavy kisses on every hanging bough, electric lines snapping & cracking under the strain
choking community power in its soft embrace.

Ice is nice glistening in the dazzling sunlight a panorama of sparkling light a world turned crystal.

Ice is nice
as candles, firewood and kerosene reshape the local economy and society spins on a thread.

Ice is nice
necessitating a whole new way of life, developing new muscles at centuries-old tasks,
fostering a pioneer-type neighborliness & caring.

Ice is nice
as the family plays games around a candle seeing each other with whole new eyes, and technology with renewed appreciation.

e is nice
as one of God's special favors, but, Lord, in case you have forgotten . . .
it's electricity that runs my shaver!

WHAT CAUSES By Greg Sanders

What causes
The world of green & brown to bend, crack & fall to the ground?

What causes
Men who love leisure & family to work 16-hour shifts to re-stabalize society?

What causes
Normally tranquil hardware stores to boil with 50-person, 3-hour kerosene lines?

What causes
Firewood, candles & batteries to become overnight best-sellers?

What causes
Every eye to gasp in wonder and the world to bow in homage?

What causes
All of this?
Why, ICE, of course!

Cake favorite

By Lorna Bickerstaff

This recipe was given to me many years ago by Nancy Babbitt, who now resides in Norfolk, Va. The cake is may favorite for birthdays because it makes a large, delicious, moist cake.

ICE CREAM CAKE

2 cups sugar 1 scant cup butter

4 egg yolks

1 teaspoon vanilla

1 cup milk 2½ cups flour

2 teaspoons baking powder

3 egg whites (beaten and folded in last)

Cream butter and sugar together. Add the egg yolks, well beaten. Add milk and then the flour and baking powder, sifted together twice. Next. put in vanilla and beat cake well.

Fold in gently the three egg whites (whipped to form peaks). Bake in two 9-inch layer cake pans about 20 minutes, or until done.

Help keep the Recipe File going! Send your favorite recipe to Lorna Bickerstaff. in care of The Clarkston News, 5 S. Main, Clarkston, MI 48016; or stop by the office. We're

Old car equals new for official

Kenneth Delbridge stifled a chuckle when township board members told him he could have Supervisor Frank Ronk's old car.

Delbridge, director of Independence Township's building and planning departments, asked for a new car for his department at the Jan. 8 board meeting.

It would be more economical to buy a new vehicle than to repair the currently used 1979 pickup truck, he said.

Board members seemed ready to OK the request when Trustee Dale Stuart said, "It's more appropriate that if there's going to be a new car in the township, the supervisor should be driving it."

Delbridge laughed and said he was going to suggest the same thing.

Board members unanimously approved Stuart's recommendation that the supervisor's car, a 1982 Chevrolet with 19,000 miles, be transferred to the building department; where job-related trips place more physical demands on cars.

Bids on a new automobile for Ronk will be presented to the board at the Jan. 15 meeting, Ronk said after the meeting, and the actual purchase should take place in about two months.

Cookie time again

The girls in brown and green begin taking preorders for Girl Scout cookies Jan. 19 with delivery scheduled March 1-17.

Seven types of cookies from Little Brown Bakers are available, all priced at $1.75 a box.

The North Oakland County Girl Scout Council is a participating United Way agency and the sale supplements that allocation, in addition to supporting individual troops and the council's camping program.

Find that missing pet

Lost Dog. You never thought it could happen; the dog never leaves the yard.

But it can happen if a gate is left open or your dog digs a hole under the fence. A child may let the dog out the front door, unaware of the dangers to the dog; or a child can fall in love with your cat or dog and spirit it away.

First and foremost, your dog should be wearing an up-to-date license and identification tag. Second, it is not a bad idea to have your social security number tattooed inside your dog's hind leg.

Your course of action to find the animal should •Call the Oakland County Animal Control department (391-4102), call your veterinarian and others in your local vicinity and call emergency veterinary clinics.

 Spread the word the minute you realize your pet is gone. Tell your mail carrier, newspaper delivery person and anyone else who is in your neighborhood on a regular basis.

Design a poster with a photograph of your missing pet, a thorough description and a reward.

•Have 1,000 copies printed and distribute them in at least a 20-block (10-20 mile) radius from where the animal was lost.

 Visit the shelters in your area daily and look at each animal carefully.

 Check with the Humane Society and law enforcement officials to see if there is a ring of people stealing animals for research, etc.

Run newspaper ads.

 Station someone at your phone 24 hours a day to take messages regarding leads.

•Be cautious when you arrange to meet someone who says he or she has your pet. Be sure you have the pet before you hand over the reward money.

CONTROL OF THE PROPERTY OF THE

If all these suggestions are implemented and do not meet with success, you can hire the dog detective named John Keone who will give a satisfactionguaranteed consultation anywhere in the United States and will provide worried pet owners with is tips for finding pets, all for a $50 fee.

He will look for pets in San Francisco for a $50-per-hour fee and $450-per-day on the road. Keone says that only 3 percent of the people "out there" really care about your lost pet and the secret of return involves understanding marketing and adver-

His clients have ranged from Morice Rich with a pomeranian named Faulkland to a distraught truck driver who lost his cat.

Keone, known as Sherlock Bones in San Francisco, has persisted through the ups and downs of a small business, and his beautiful instinct about all living creatures has made him persevere.

On the Johnny Carson show, he said, "I have come from being an eccentric looking for lost animals to the guru of the missing pet world."

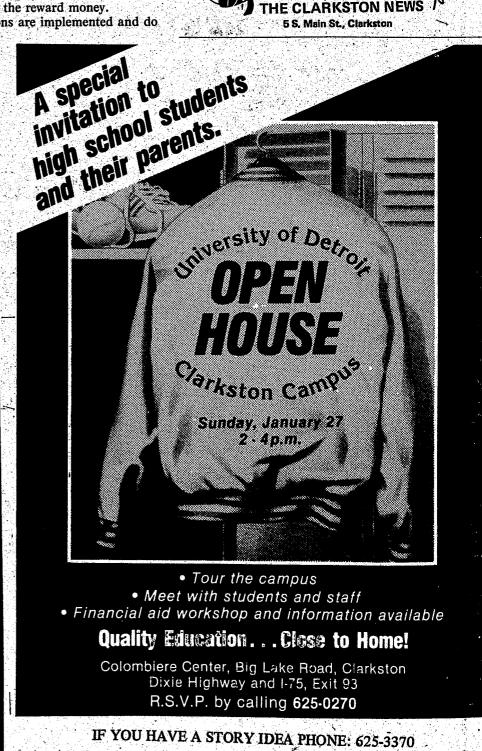

If you still do not have your pet, you might consider giving him a call in California.

Painter challenges sight, sound

By Carolyn Walker

To step into Lawrence Keech's classroom is to step into a world of color and sound.

The bearded, earringed, bespectacled Keech is a contemporary artist and teacher of advertising design, at the Northwest Oakland Vocational Education Center (NWOVEC) on Big Lake Road in Springfield

He has covered the walls, doors, ceiling and nooks and crannies of his classroom with paintings, student drawings, and posters from the 1960s.

Rock and roll permeates the busy room. It is here that he talks about his talent and his art.

"I've been in art my entire life," he says, adding that he has been doing advertising design since 1965.

Taxes in limbo

Three 1983 tax refund checks to Clarkston mailing addresses were returned to the Internal Revenue Service as undeliverable.

In an attempt to locate those taxpayers still due refunds, the IRS has provided a list of the 1,479 checks worth more than $673,000 returned by the postal service. The refund checks range in amounts from $1 to $19,227, said Charles Parks, IRS District Director for Michigan.

The Clarkston portion of the list includes: Ronald F. and Barbara M. Crites, Sandra Eaglen, and Andrew E. Sanford/Kerry L. Gross.

Persons due a refund from their 1983 federal tax return may contact the IRS at 1-800-424-1040.

Keech, an Independence Township resident, has employed his skills designing album covers, menus, games, brochures and illustrations which have appeared in a variety of national magazines including Sports Illustrated.

He currently has a one-man show featuring 24 of his acrylic paintings at the Oakland County Galleria.

They are large, approximately 4 to 6 feet in depth and width and irregular in shape, feature lots of color and show sharp, angular objects along with large circles, airy clouds and sky-type backgrounds.

"I don't paint from a psychological standpoint," he says. "I basically am working at good, strong com-

People always want to know "what it all means," Keech says, and one of the most enjoyable aspects of his work is stepping back and listening to observers and their efforts to fit the paintings to such titles as "Barrier" and "Dozer."

Keech said there is no commercial artist who has not been insulted by at least one public comment.

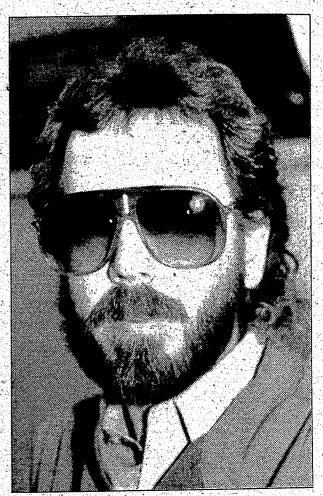

"People get upset at things they don't understand," he says.

Keech, 37, who calls himself a self-taught artist, has been teaching at NWOVEC 13 years. He has a bachelor's degree in vocational education from the University of Michigan and is working on a master's degree in fine arts at Wayne State University.

He says he must be "in the mood" to paint and that his paintings take on aspects of his life.

The Oakland County show is his second, following a one-man exhibition at the University of Michigan-Flint.

The exhibit is open weekdays through Feb. 13 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Oakland County Executive Building, 1200 N. Telegraph, Pontiac.

Artist Lawrence Keech has recreated the aura of the '60s in his classroom at the Northwest Oakland Vocational Education Center.

A great coach

By Clarkston Junior High Journalism Students

Here is the exam schedule for the first semester exams on the days of Jan. 15-16.

On Tuesday, Jan. 15, these classes will be having exams: mathematics, English, vocal music, environment, theater 1 and 2, and ninth-grade drafting.

On Wednesday, Jan. 16, these classes will be having exams: social studies, science, instrumental music, Spanish and industrial arts.

Students will follow their regular schedules these two days. This list just explains what day the subjects will be tested.

The tests will be on what the student learned over the semester. The tests are for the teachers to know how well the student has learned his/her studies.

This year's CJHS ninth-grade volleyball team is ready to play their rivals and win!

Mrs. Griggs is the great coach, and out of the 40 girls who tried out, the following girls made it: Sandy Coulter, Betsy Darnell, Ali Fedio, Laura Gauss, Kristy King, Kathy Lamphere, Tina McConkey, Sue Meeker, Theresa Nowicki, Amy Rice, Melissa Stark, Jane Selent, Nikki Storrs, Valerie Walton and Debbie

The managers are Lisa Irwin and Michelle Coxen.

When asked what their goal for 1985 would be, Mrs. Griggs replied, "Our goal is to teach our team members a basic defense and offense. We're also working on fundamentals that will help them become better prepared to play on the school teams.'

To help them with the fundamentals, they attended a Saturday clinic run by the Clarkston High School varsity and junior varsity coaches and team members.

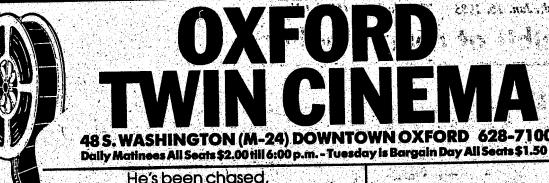

The team has been working very hard to prepare for their 17 games and their tournament on Jan. 26 at CHS. The tournament is sponsored by Sashabaw and Clarkston junior high schools.

With the help of their coach and fans with school spirit, they should have no trouble beating their rivals.

Contributors to this week's column were Tara Carneross, Kris Szislowisz and David Saffron.

Provide the state of the state Skiing for SCAMP

Riding high on the Pine Knob chairlift, ski team members John Ketvirtis [left] and Alex Yarber begin the descent up the hill toward another ski run to benefit SCAMP.

Jennifer Farough uses the snowplow position to slow down before she glides into line to make yet another run for SCAMP down the advanced hill at Pine Knob.

on Balzarini came up with an idea to help both the Clarkston High School Ski Team and SCAMP. The CHS ski coach thought they could raise money for SCAMP, the summer camp for handicapped children and youths, and get the team a lot of time on the slopes at the Pine Knob

The lack of snow has keep the Wolves off the hills so far this season, but Jan. 12 they raised almost $1,900 for SCAMP.

Pledges were gathered from 31 skiers with awards going to the top collecters. Sophomore Karen Barna was pledged $169.10 and received a free pair of ski poles donated by Dunham's Inc. of West Bloomfield. John Luvera and Kelly Cook were the next highest with $159.69 and $150.50 each. In all, eight skiers had over $100 in pledges and received turtle neck sweaters.

"They came up with the idea," said Betty Haran of SCAMP. "It was really nice and a good winter fund raiser.'

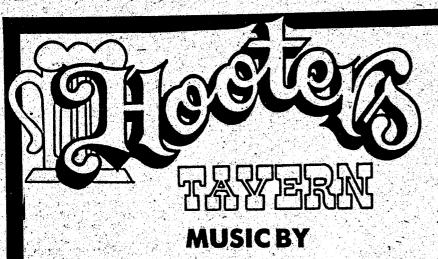

Balzarini said he'd like to see the event become an annual one.

"We're involved with the community and SCAMP is a worthwhile program, a program that helps people," he said. "It's a good conditioning thing for the kids, too. Pine Knob gave the kids a whole bunch of hot chocolate and Dunham's donated the ski polls. It was just a nice activity.'

Springfield to Use $27,450 on park building

By Dan Vandenhemel

The Mill Pond Park in Springfield Township is going to receive the bulk of the township's Community Development (CD) allocations.

The township Board voted 4-1 to spend 75 percent of the $36,600 grant on the existing building. The other 25 percent is earmarked for a historic building Supervisor Collin Walls cast the lone "no" vote. "I didn't feel the historic research needed that much," said Walls after the Jan. 11 board meeting. The first phase of the research is for the downtown Davisburg area only. The way I read the motion is that the board wanted the entire township done.

Walls said the study would cost about $2,000 for the Davisburg area and between $8,000 and $10,000 for the township. The portion of CD funds works out is little more that a storage area now. The board wants to heat and partition the building to give civic groups a place to meet.

The 5,000-square-foot building at the Mill Pond

"We've discussed either having one large room or giving it movable partitions," Walls said. "The park commission said if the board committed some of the money to the building, they would contract an architect out of their budget.

At the earliest, the work is expected to begin in June or July when the CD funds are available.

PRAYER TO The Holy spirit. Holy spirit, you who make me see everything and who show me the way to reach my ideal, you who give me the devine gift to forgive and forget the wrong that is done to me and you who are in all instances of my life with me. I, in this short dialog, want to thank you for everything and confirm once more that I never want to be separated from you to be seperated from you, no matter how great the ma-terial desires may be. I want to be with you and my loved ones in your perpetual glory. Amen. Thank you for your love towards me and my loved ones. Pray this my loved ones. Surrounded by other North Sashabaw pupils in costume during a rehearsal last week, first-grader Joey Diliegghio practices his solo of "The Wonderful Thing About Tiggers."

It's obvious Jaime Kenyon likes to sing as she practices for the "Talk to the Animals" concert with fellow North Sashabaw pupils.

Jeremy Fife of North Sashabaw Elementary puts his heart and voice into a song about animals during a rehearsal last week.

Clarkston Elementary pupils bedecked in concert costumes give their all during a practice session. In the back row [from left] are Jessica

Musical quest

While raising their voices in song, the music pupils of Janis Madden plan to raise money to adopt an animal at the Detroit Zoo.

Called "Talk to the Animals," their winter concerts feature the talents of the first- and second-graders and the fifth- and sixth-grade special choruses at North Sashabaw and Clarkston elementary schools.

"They're really excited," said Madden. "They want to adopt an elephant, but that costs $1,000."

The North Sashabaw concert is Tuesday, Jan. 22, and the Clarkston Elementary concert is Thursday, Jan. 24. Both begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Clarkston High School Little Theatre.

Admission to the concerts is free, but donations will be taken for the pending adoptions. Those who cannot attend a concert but wish to contribute may contact either elementary school.

The animals selected depend on the amount of money collected. Prices for annual care at the zoo range from $15 for a bird to $1,000 for an elephant, Madden said.

A plaque at the zoo will credit the elementary school with adoption and a print of the animal will hang in the schools, which brings up an amusing aside

"Some of the kids thought we would really adopt an animal and asked where we would keep it," Madden said.

In the new multipurpose room additions?
