The elephant-ears earmuffs of State Rep. Mat Dunaskiss (R-Lake Orion) came from Phoenix, Ariz. They were a gift from his parents who live there.

Inauguration realities

State Rep. Mat Dunaskiss was there

By Carolyn Walker

Imagine being invited to the presidential inauguration in Washington, D.C.

Imagine riding in limousines, wearing an expensive tuxedo or dinner dress, and hob-nobbing with the international elite.

Imagine being a part of history in the making.

Now, imagine standing in line, in the cold, in Georgetown, wearing your earmuffs and chatting with Erma Bombeck.

Such was the fate of Mat Dunaskiss, (R-Lake Orion), our state representative, who has only one word for the experience, "tremendous."

Dunaskiss and his wife Diane arrived in Washington Jan. 19 for three days of partying, before watching President Ronald Reagan take his oath of office from a television at the Capitol Hill Club.

"We drove to Washington to watch it over TV," said a joking, but thrilled Dunaskiss.

The great variety of people impressed him most.

Minorities, young people, old people, men in tuxedos and punks were all there "having a great time," he said.

There were numerous public and private functions throughout the city Saturday night, according to Dunaskiss.

He and his wife attended a dance at Blackies restaurant where Dunaskiss estimated there were 1,500 people in attendance.

Sunday, they had brunch at an elegant hotel called the Mayflower, he said.

People dined from two 20-foot-long serving tables while listening to the music of an eight-piece string band.

Limousines were filed three deep, for two blocks in front of the Mayflower, he said.

Dunaskiss said he and his wife never caught a glimpse of the president during their three-day stay, although they did encounter Erma Bombeck while shopping in Georgetown.

He praised the syndicated newspaper columnist as a gracious lady, before admitting he was wearing his elephant-ears earmuffs (much to his wife's horror, he said).

Most people, high on inauguration fever, gave the thumbs up sign for the Republican symbol, said Dunaskiss, who summarized the event as "a salute to Reagan."

Saturday's Ground Hog Day

Move over Phil, Sherman's in our spotlight

By Dan Vandenhemel

While Punxsutawney Phil is grabbing the national spotlight this Saturday on Ground Hog Day, Sherman is more likely to be grabbing for a carrot.

Sherman, a 5-year-old groundhog, is Independence Oaks County Parks' answer to his celebrity counterpart.

While news media and many spectators await Punxsutawney Phil's prediction if winter is ending, Sherman will be the center of attention at the Sashabaw Road park's interpretive program that day. The program is free.

Assistant parks naturalist Kathy Thomas said the program tells the history, legends and facts about the groundhog, also called a woodchuck.

Sherman resides at the Lake-Orion home of Thomas and her husband Bill, an assistant naturalist at the Stoney Creek Metro Park. His name reflects the tendency to go through things instead of around them.

"He's built close the ground and is kind of broad so we named him after a tank," Thomas said of the animal brought to them as an orphan.

"A woman saw some people smoking out the burrow of the family. When the mother came out of the hole, they shot her. Sherman stayed in the hole but suffered a lot of lung damage from the smoke. We took him to the vet and we had to give him shots every day. With all the handling he had, we couldn't let him go back into the wild."

The average groundhog weighs about 12 pounds, but Thomas warns that her seven-pound animal is still wild, just calmer. She also said many animals that people think are orphans, are not.

"Take the rabbit, for example," she said. "The mother is only at the hole twice a day, once in the morning and once at night. That way it's safer for her bunnies. But people watch the hole for an hour and when the mother doesn't come back, they think they're orphans."

According to the legend of Ground Hog Day, the groundhog pops out of his hole and looks for his shadow. If he sees it, there'll be six more weeks of winter. If no shadow can be found, spring is on its way.

That's not likely, said Thomas. Groundhogs are true hibernators and are usually not awake early in February.

Sherman is much more interested in his carrot than predicting the end of winter.

Thumbs down for Siberian tiger

By Carolyn Walker

Her many friends couldn't sway government policy. Athena the tiger must go, said the Independence Township Zoning Board of Appeals.

After virtually no discussion at a special meeting Jan. 23, board of appeals members unanimously agreed not to grant a variance to allow Douglas Murdoch to keep the 300-pound Siberian tiger and a 15-pound bobcat at his parent's Allen Road farm in Independence Township.

A circuit-court ruling on the tiger's fate is expected in early February.

Board of appeals members postponed their decision to Jan. 23 after listening to three hours of testimony Jan. 16.

Statements came from a zoo official, the township planner, and the township building and planning director. Over 30 of Athena's neighbors were also there, the majority of whom wanted the tiger to stay.

In November, Circuit Court Judge Frederick Mester directed the board of appeals to interpret two township ordinances pertaining to large animals.

On Jan. 16 after the board of appeals ruled the ordinances did not include the tiger and bobcat, Murdoch based his request for a variance on hardship.

"The only undo hardship is a self-induced hardship," said Chairman John Dunlop, as he handed down the Jan. 23 decision.

Murdoch, who said he has invested over $10,000 in Athena, cited financial and emotional hardship as his reasons for wanting to keep the tiger.

Dunlop told observers, including the Murdochs, that their request constituted a "(land) use variance." He said such a request was not under the scope of the zoning board of appeals and belonged before the planning commission.

Should the planning commission hear the issue, it would then be referred back to the zoning board of appeals, which would make sure the planning commission acted properly, Dunlop said.

After the vote, Dunlop said, "As a person, frankly, I'm not too opposed to this."

After the meeting, township attorney Gerald Fisher acknowledged that allowing the Murdochs to keep Athena might set a precedent for others.

Township officials, who consider Athena to be dangerous, and the Murdochs, who say she is "domesticated," have been debating the cat's right to live in Independence for nearly a year.

Fisher said he would ask Judge Mester for an official ruling regarding Athena at an early February court hearing.

The Murdochs have the right to appeal, he added.

The Murdochs declined comment after the meeting.

Board recommends denial of Clarkston Surgical Center

By Carolyn Walker

Undaunted by a CHPC-SEM rejection, Dr. James O'Neill is looking to the state health department for approval of his Clarkston Surgical Center certificate of need.

O'Neill, following accepted procedures for obtaining a state mandated certificate of need, outlined his proposed $3.4 million surgical center to the regional board of CHPC-SEM at a Dec. 19 meeting in Detroit.

CHPC-SEM, a board comprised of medical providers and consumers, makes certificate of need recommendations to the State Department of Public Health.

Confused by O'Neill's plans to include a fire station and medical office in the center, regional board members requested that O'Neill revise the presentation.

When contacted at his office Dec. 19, O'Neill said, "We'll give them what they want."

He subsequently decided, however, not to make the revisions, saying, "They (CHPC-SEM) were nipping us to death. They knew what the heart of the project was."

As a result, the CHPC-SEM executive committee at a Jan. 9 meeting, recommended that the state deny the certificate of need.

Under state public health regulations, a certificate of need must be issued before medical centers and hospitals can be built.

The state can issue a certificate without approval from the CHPC-SEM committee; however, they typically concur with CHPC-SEM recommendations; said Donald Lamb, director of CHPC-SEM's Project Review.

The project might have gotten CHPC-SEM approval had O'Neill made the requested changes, said Lamb, who added state officials follow the recommendations of CHPC-SEM 90 percent of the time.

The Michigan State Public Health Department is currently reviewing the center's financial aspects, according to a state spokesperson.

The proposed center will be the subject of several more meetings before state officials recommend denial or approval of the certificate of need, the spokesperson added.

A state decision is expected in March.

The proposed Clarkston Surgical Center would provide outpatient surgery such as: arthroscopies, cystoscopies, biopsies and X-rays, and psychiatric day care, according to O'Neill.

Proposed for 6 acres behind O'Neill's pediatric office, it would supplement physician services and work in cooperation with the Clarkston Ambulatory Care Center, he said.

Pending state approval, O'Neill plans to open the center in 1986.

Damage was minimal from a fire in a storeroom of the closed Cookery restaurant Jan. 24 in the Clarkston Mills Mall. Twenty-six firefighters from the Independence Township Fire Department answered the call. "We moved the whole group in because we didn't know what we had," said acting fire chief Dale Bailey.

Arson suspected in mall fire

By Kathy Greenfield

A full case of champagne and four glasses found in the parking lot behind the Clarkston Mills Mall may hold a clue to the fire found Thursday, Jan. 24, in a storeroom of the mall's closed Cookery restaurant.

The fire is believed to have been started intentionally, said arson investigator David Pement of the sheriff's department fire investigation team.

When Independence Township firefighters answered the 8:45 p.m. call from a mall store owner working late, the corridors were filling with smoke.

"Our biggest problem was finding (the fire)," said acting fire chief Dale Bailey.

There are cut-throughs for pipes throughout the mall, "raceways, we call them, so smoke can travel throughout that building," he said.

Firefighters had to break into the restaurant to put out the fire in paper goods, restaurant supplies and cleaning chemicals in a storeroom behind the restaurant and under Sadows Auction Gallery.

The fire had spread to insulation material over an old staircase connected to the storeroom that had been boarded up.

"There's a lot of cement down there, so there really wasn't much damage," said Bailey.

The mall was open the following day, with little if any smoke damage to merchandise, he said.

The box of champagne, believed to have been taken from the restaurant, is a key piece of evidence because it was snowing.

"There was no snow on the champagne at all," said Bailey.

When firefighters arrived, the restaurant was locked, indicating that whoever took the champagne had a key.

"Apparently there's a whole bunch of keys out, so we have to interview the people who have the keys," he said. "We don't know if the locks have been changed since The Cookery closed. We have to see if we can get it narrowed down a little bit."

Among on-call firefighters on the scene is township Supervisor Frank Ronk, the former fire chief who was elected supervisor in November.

Board guards last license

Down to their last Class C Liquor license, Independence Township officials have decided to wait before granting any requests for the coveted item.

Their decision came after Rochester businessman Paul Holler wrote board members asking for a license for a restaurant proposed for 6975 Sashabaw Road, near Clarkston Road.

The remaining license, one of 14 allotted Independence by the state in 1980, is Independence's last until 1990, according to Clerk Richard Holman.

At the Jan. 15 meeting, board members agreed to add Holler's name to a list, saying that he, as well as any other petitioners, must present actual building plans before they will be considered.

Guess the classified ads, win up to $100

"Ozzie Owl" wants you to win at least $50 in The Clarkston News classified ad contest.

And if the contest winner has a News classified running or has had one published within the last 30 days, Ozzie Owl will pay the fortunate soul another $50... for a grand total of $100.

There are five runner-up prizes, each worth $10.

Sound interesting? Here's what you have to do:

*Guess the total number of classified ads that will appear in the Feb. 27 issue of The Clarkston News.

The total number should include all ads run in the classified section, regardless of size. Each ad counts as only one.

*No purchase is necessary.

*Only one entry per envelope or postcard. Be sure to mark each entry "Ozzie Owl Contest" and include your name, address and telephone number.

*Send as many entries as you like, or bring them into The Clarkston News, 5 S. Main, Clarkston, MI, 48016. Office hours are between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m.

*Contest entries must be postmarked no later than midnight Sunday, Feb. 24 or brought into the office no later than 5 p.m. Monday, Feb. 25.

Employees and immediate families of The Clarkston News are not eligible.

The entry with the correct or most nearly-correct number will be the cash prize winner. The next five closest entries to the winning guess will receive the runner-up prizes.

Mentorship defined

Monica Miles

School's a lot of fun when you're a ninth grade GATE student at Sashabaw Junior High.

We have a bit of variety in our week, instead of a normal, seven-class day.

Two Wednesdays a month the 12 of us participate in the mentorship program, each working with a professional or business person in our community in a special area of interest.

We have goals that are set by both the mentor and ourselves.

We feel that the mentorship program is a great experience and an interesting method of learning about the various careers available.

On these Wednesdays we go to school as we would on a normal day. We go to our first three classes and then we eat in the first of three lunch periods.

After we finish, we wait in the school lobby for our transportation, which is provided by parents, to take us to our destinations.

We meet with our mentors on these days from noon to 3 p.m. Then we are returned to the school in time for the bus ride home.

We still have the responsibility of getting the homework from the classes we missed.

Our interests include photography, engineering, pediatrics, journalism, law, and more.

I work with The Clarkston News and have learned quite a bit about journalism. I take pictures, watch interviews and work on a column.

Overall, I like working here very much. I really appreciate having the opportunity to learn about something that I enjoy.

Tribute to grandma

We would like to thank the Goyette Funeral Home, Joseph C. Bird Chapter No. 294, everyone who made memorial donations to the church and for the floral tributes for our mother and grandmother, Helen Gundry.

Your kindnesses will always be remembered. We'd also like to share the poem written by her great-granddaughter Juli Parke.

Family of Helen Gundry

A TRIBUTE TO MY GRANDMA

By Juli Parke

I remember a child sitting on Grandma's knee. But look how the years have flown, for that child was me!

The cookies and the candy and boxes filled with toys. A trip to your house Grandma, was a trip with endless joy.

The paleness of your fragile skin, the gentleness of your touch. The way you used to laugh and sing, are things we miss so much.

We can't say goodbye Grandma, for it hurts to let you go. I wish we could've told you, that we love you so.

A part of us will always be missing, now that you are gone. But we'll do our best to make you proud, to end the tears and carry on.

Thank you to all

A personal "Bouquet" to all the relatives and friends far and near who sent "Greetings" to our 96-year-old mother. Made her day, fantastic!

Our thanks—
Uldene and Bob Jones

They merit thanks

We owe it all to the fire department. When we had the ice storm, the fire department knew they had a lot of work to do. I should know, my brother is on the Independence fire department. He did not sleep for two days. When he did come home, he smelled of smoke and was tired. All the guys spent a lot of time away from their families so they could help out those who needed it.

I was real proud of my brother and the rest of the fire department those few nights, and I think we owe them a lot, even though they were just doing their job. Thanks a lot.

Dee Daniels, age 12

Good to be home

Dear Friends,
How nice it was to come home to Clarkston last weekend.

Playing in the Silverdome against the Detroit Pistons was thrilling. All the familiar faces in the crowd brought back memories of my high school and college years.

It was great seeing all of you. Thanks for your continued support. I'm proud to be from Clarkston.

Tim McCormick

Guess what?

Kathy Greenfield

Rhetorical questions are on my mind. They're a wonderful device, these questions that answer themselves, simply cannot be answered or have only one possible answer and don't need a response.

"Where's the beef?" from that famous hamburger ad is such a question. "Wouldn't you really rather drive a Buick?" is another classic example.

"May I help you?" when you're standing at a store counter looking desperate also applies.

Have you ever tried walking into an empty house yelling "Is anybody home?" just to see if the cat learned to talk?

And usually "How are you?" counts because people expect nothing more than a cheery "Just fine, thank you." Worth mentioning are "Wouldn't you like to win the lottery?" and "Do you mind if I smoke?"

Lately, at home, I've been confronted with a slightly less common rhetorical question: "Why did you leave the garage door open?"

I've tried to answer it. "I thought I might have to go out tomorrow" was one bad answer. "It was dark" was another.

"Did I really?" attempted the answer-a-question-with-a-question ploy.

"I forgot" was the bare truth. Which brings forth another question I ask only myself: "How could you forget during that short walk from the garage to the back door?"

Stress attack!

Jim's Jottings

'Cheaters' delights audience

Jim Sherman

Jimmy Launce is my favorite WJR radio personality. His comments are short, he has lots of 1-liners, and he's fresh.

Of course, anyone who just works between 10 a.m. and noon shouldn't be too tired, especially when time is deducted for news and commercials.

For some years now he's been involved with the dinner theater. His first, I believe, was at Somerset in Troy, and now he has a second theater in Dearborn.

Launce acts in some shows, directs some, and produces more.

One of his productions, Cheaters, is at Somerset, and we were in the audience on the coldest night of the year. It wasn't cold inside, and it was more than the furnace that made it comfortable.

The hospitality of the hosts and theater people after the show was also warming.

It was our first dinner-theater. For those who haven't attended, let me run through the schedule. If it sounds like a commercial, so be it. We enjoyed it thoroughly.

First, reservations are a must. Seating is probably around 100. It's intimate. People sitting stage-side are so close they take bows at intermission.

The person making reservations for our group of eight had likewise never been to a dinner theater. LeeAnn Hiatt asked for front row balcony. Balcony is an 8-inch step. Naturally, our hostess said it was the best seat in the house.

Tables are named for actors and actresses. Groucho Marx was one, ours was Michael Caine. Dinner is buffet. No big deal, but tasty and certainly sufficient. A voice calls you to eat by speaking the name of your actor-table.

The $18 program says, "Cocktails: 7:00; dinner: 7:30; show: 8:00." We arrived at 6:45, the doors opened at 7:10 and cocktails came after 7:30. The cold night must have gotten to the service department.

But, if that's our only complaint, you can tell how we liked the evening.

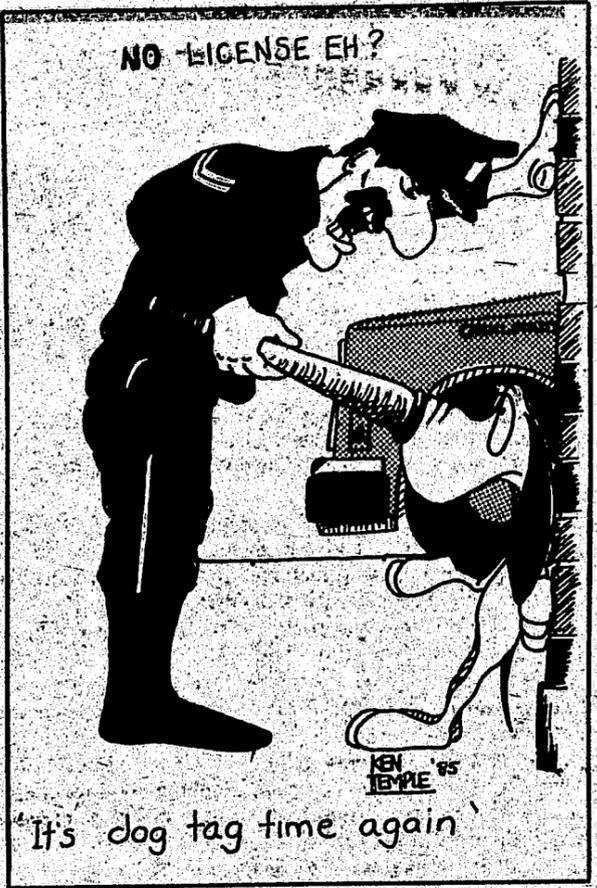

Cheaters is a story of two couples cheating on each other, with each other, while all the time one couple's daughter is dating, seriously, the other couple's son.

It's billed as a comedy and it certainly is. After the show, to our pleasant surprise, the three actors and three actresses came to each table to exchange comment and invite reaction. They are just people, who like to act on stage, just like some people like to show off elsewhere.

Closing questions: Wonder if Florida resorts, which have special (higher) "winter" rates, reverted to summer rates when winter hit there last week? Sure they did!

Is the first shoelace to break on a left-hander's pair of shoes, in the left shoe, just as a right-hander breaks the shoelace in his right shoe first?

More at eleven.

Commentary

Is bombing the answer for today's abortion dilemma?

This past Tues. was the twelfth anniversary of the landmark Roe vs. Wade decision, in which the U.S. Supreme Court paved the way for legal abortion on demand.

There are two things happening on this twelfth day, one that disturbs, and one that gives hope the chasm between the opposing factions, on this most sensitive of issues, might close - and real dialogue begin.

The one that disturbs me is the recent rash of bombings of abortion clinics around the nation. Granted, abortion foes believe a war is on to save the unborn child, who cannot act or speak for itself. But, is violence the answer? Has it ever been?

Just like returning to prohibition would never stop someone from getting a drink, bombing abortion clinics will never stop abortion. All it will probably do is make pro-abortion groups dig their heels in further.

Consciousness cannot be forced.

Bombing abortion clinics isn't the answer any more than bombing the Russians is. We must evolve past the conditioned behavior that lashes out to eliminate our opposition. Gandhi and Martin Luther King both knew this, and would not be provoked to violence, by the violence hurled upon them.

They both non-violently protested to change people's consciousness - and they succeeded. They won the only battle worth winning.

What gives me hope is the numbers of women, doctors and nurses that are beginning to speak out against abortion from personal experience - not religious dictates.

Until recently, you rarely, if ever read a woman's negative comments on abortion. Perhaps it has taken time for the inevitable pain and guilt to surface and need to express itself.

In our private lives for years, women have been hearing both sides of the issue from family and friends. The voices I carry within me express very different attitudes toward abortion.

Recently, an old friend of mine confided in me she had an abortion years ago when she was single. She said it was the worst experience of her life, and it still, and always will haunt her. She regrets it.

Another, who was told she had to have an abortion because the child might be deformed and her life could be endangered during the pregnancy, still has nightmares about it, and can't, no matter how hard she tries, shake her guilt.

Neither one attributed their feelings of anguish and remorse to religious beliefs. It was something much deeper with which they didn't even have words to describe.

I shared their pain with them as much as I could, but I don't claim to really know it, as I have never been faced with their situations. I knew I had no right to pass a moral judgement on them. And even though I didn't agree with them I was glad they didn't have to go to a butcher.

Years ago, an old school chum laughed at me when she found out I had never had an abortion. In fact, she wouldn't even believe me as she said she never knew anyone who hadn't had at least three or four. For her it was a form of birth control, and aborting was synonymous with having a wart removed.

Personally, no amount of talking will ever make me believe the unborn child is just another part of my body. I find it hard to believe that any woman, who has experienced pregnancy and birth, could be so detached.

I was overwhelmed with the individuality of all three of my children, the first time I saw them. As I recall, they were even individual while in the womb.

In recent years, doctors and nurses, who worked for years giving abortions, have quit, saying they have had a change in consciousness. Some of the nurses were admitted atheists. In each case, something deep within them could no longer be silenced, and they became convinced an atrocity was happening.

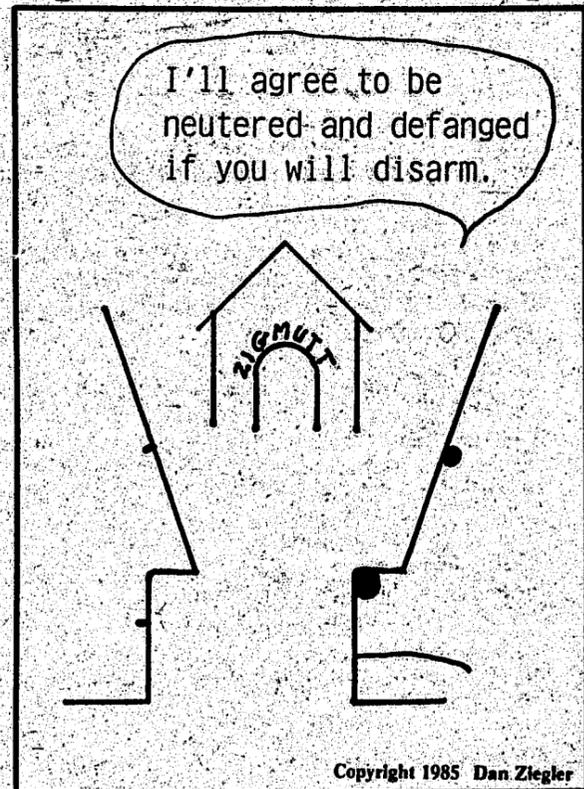

Something is askew when more than "a quarter of all pregnancies now end in abortion." And, the figure of aborted fetuses tallies higher than all of our losses in all the wars we have fought - 15 million.

The figure is especially disturbing when you consider the means of birth control available to everyone today. And, the long lists of men and women waiting for a child to adopt.

A recent Detroit Free Press story revealed the feelings of women, who felt they had been victimized by the casual attitude toward abortion.

The article mentioned WEBA, Women Exploited by Abortion, a support group that was founded in 1982 for women who were now experiencing the negative side effects of abortion. The organization claims 30,000 members in the U.S., Canada, Australia and New Zealand. That's a lot of remorse.

It seems people are beginning to recognize how destructive a casual attitude toward life can be - just as those that mindlessly jumped on the sexual revolution bandwagon came to realize it wasn't really just like changing your socks - it too had side effects no one envisioned.

The pendulum, once again, has had to swing way out before it began to yearn to return to the center. It seems to me real reverence for life always dwells in the center.

And speaking of reverence, I can't forget a comment made by a woman about the lack of reverence involved in picking up a plastic bag of aborted fetuses. It seemed to her, and to me, these small lives deserved better. Some images words give us seem to stick.

I'm not for a return to the days of the backroom abortionist. All that will do is eliminate the option of abortion for those who can't afford to fly out of the country. But, I do believe a re-evaluation of what we are really dealing with is in order.

Primitive tribes have always used abortion as a means of controlling population - but they didn't have birth control, and it was an issue of survival, not convenience.

The eskimos left the female new born babies in the open door of their igloo to freeze to death, because having sons meant survival to them. It seems their reasons for such drastic measures were far different from ours.

What comes to mind when I try to see and hear both sides of the issue is a quote from a Tai Chi teacher, "Real prayer is not a petition for results, but for a place from which to see."

I think it's time we put away our bomb-mentality forever and began to talk, really talk to one another. And perhaps we should pray for a clearer place from which to see, for our own sake and especially for the sake of our greatest natural resource, the child.

'If it Fitz . . .'

Tax dollars at work

Jim Fitzgerald

The only reason I'm sorry I didn't watch the Super Bowl on TV is that I missed the $1 million-per-minute commercial that I helped buy for the U.S. Marine Corps.

The irony is sharp. Because I was hanging out with a bunch of peace-game players Sunday night, I didn't see a tax-financed war game, the object of which was to recruit young men to defend New Jersey by bravely invading such fearsome totalitarian empires as Grenada.

Just a few years ago, for fear of trashing my reputation as a macho jock fan, I would have hesitated to admit publicly that I intentionally skipped the Super Bowl. But lately I've noticed something strange about a few of the football players on TV: They think they're playing baseball.

WHAT I MEAN is that the quarterbacks, when the enemy is about to tackle them, slide safely to the ground without being touched, just like Kirk Gibson stealing second base for the Tigers. Either that, or they run out-of-bounds and up in the grandstand to hide behind women. Sometime, to escape damage to his valuable body, I expect to see a quarterback hail a taxi.

I grew up admiring such quarterbacks as Dutch

Clark, who was a Detroit Lion long before that team regressed to playing with a ball of yarn. In those days, every offensive player, including the quarterback, fought to gain every last inch, break every tackle, always plunging forward, always pushing the opposition backward. If Dutch Clark ever had flopped on the ground on purpose to avoid bodily contact, local fans would have demanded that he be traded to a ballet company.

I'm not saying it's wrong for today's quarterbacks to protect their billion-dollar limbs at any cost to their manly pride. It's good business. I am saying that if a young, husky, overpaid football player can take a dive to avoid a bruise, a flabby, middle-aged journalist should be allowed to ignore the Super Bowl for the first time in 19 years without being called a wimp.

WHILE THE MARINES were helping Ford Motor Co. and other well-heeled sponsors bring the Super Bowl into millions of living rooms, I was in a church playing peace games with about 100 people attending "an evening of comic relief" sponsored by the local chapter of Physicians for Social Responsibility.

The social responsibility, on this inaugural weekend, was to playfully - but pointedly - protest the Reagan administration's intense devotion to building more and more horrific weapons to kill more and more people. My main function was to auction off authentic facsimiles of Pentagon hardware. I got $25 for a coffee maker that was worth $7,400 to our military leaders. These appliances are used in the Pentagon by generals who need a coffee break from the tough job of buying $582 screwdrivers to use for screwing taxpayers.

These peace-game players work, yearn - even pray! - for the day when no government will spend $1 million-per-minute to play war games on TV. Plainly, they are dangerous subversives, similar to the nuns and priests recently called communist conspirators by an Oakland County judge for protesting nuclear weapons. One of them even gave me a kiss to give my grandchildren, an obvious attempt to use deadly germ peace-fare.

Moral: In the Super Bowl of life, when confronted by a peace-game player - slide! If you try to break the tackle, you're liable to get a fatal face mask full of love and kisses.

Julie Kiser

The winter blahs.

It's a condition that students seem to suffer from this time of year. Christmas is over, and Easter vacation seems too far away. This social gap and its accompanying dullness should be dealt with before it gets really serious.

Winterfest '85 is one way that CHS Student Council is attacking this problem. We have activities on our agenda that we hope will break up the monotony of the school schedule.

Winterfest '85 takes place Feb. 4-8. It starts with Spirit Week, which will end on Friday with Toga Day.

For those of you who have no idea what a toga is, it is a sheet that is taken and wrapped around your body. It has become a very popular tradition at our school.

For some reason, wrapping a sheet around yourself in freezing temperatures turns out to be one of the most enjoyable times in high school.

At the end of this day, we have a Field Day Assembly. Here the three classes compete in games for the Spirit Award. We also pick the King and Queen Togas, judged on their outfits.

Then there is the toga game, followed by the toga dance in the high school cafeteria. These events cap off Winterfest '85.

We certainly hope this year's Winterfest will cure what the students dread most—the winter blahs!

Gas station can sell beer and wine

Liquor license approved but law to change

By Carolyn Walker

A SDM liquor license was issued Jan. 23 to the owners of the Dandy Oil Station at the corner of Sashabaw and Maybee roads. Formerly a Union 76 Station, the remodeled convenience store/service station became the subject of a recent controversy when it was discovered the owners would be selling gasoline and packaged beer and wine.

Although the liquor license has helped improve business, owner Dan Huffman is upset about the attending publicity.

"People don't get a six-pack of beer and drink it on the way home," Huffman said in a call to The Clarkston News. "We stayed within the law."

Michigan law does not allow gas stations to sell liquor, said Roger Rosendale, director of the Michigan Liquor Control Commission.

But, separate businesses located in the same building are allowed to sell liquor if they maintain separate records, Rosendale added.

The state granted the Dandy Oil application when the owners (Huffman and his daughter A.L. Wilson) separated the two businesses on paper as required by law.

Members of the Independence-Township Planning Commission, who claim Dandy Oil misrepresented themselves when applying for a special land use, sent a letter of protest to the Michigan Liquor Control Commission in January.

Huffman denied the allegation. "We told them we would do whatever the law allowed," he said.

Local officials do not have any recourse, said Rosendale.

A new state law, which will prevent convenience stores from selling gasoline and liquor, even if they maintain separate records as Dandy Oil is doing, is due to go into effect in about two weeks, Rosendale said.

Michigan communities with less than 3,000 residents will be exempt from the new legislation, and all convenience stores that received approval before the law will be allowed to continue liquor and gasoline sales, he said.

The addition of convenience items has been beneficial to sales, according to Huffman.

"We're doing a super business," he said. "The people are very happy with this situation."

200 affected by tax delays

Independence man concerned about his loss of deductions

By Carolyn Walker

Delayed payments of 1984 winter taxes angered at least one of nearly 200 Independence Township residents who do business with Empire of America; and prompted a Detroit congressman to begin a letter-writing campaign with the IRS.

Eugene Bagans of Independence Township was all ready to work on his federal income taxes, when he was cut short by several news reports last week.

Detroit papers and television news programs reported his mortgage company, Empire of America, delayed 1984 tax payments on Detroit HUD homes, as well as homes in other communities, Bagans said.

Concerned about the status of his taxes, Bagans contacted Independence Township Treasurer John Lutz only to learn his 1984 taxes had not been paid until Jan. 24, making it too late to file a tax deduction on his 1984 income tax return.

"There's going to be an awful lot of people concerned," said Bagans, indicating Empire of America was responsible for the tax payments of several Independence Township residents.

Many don't realize they are affected, according to Bagans.

"We'll all be penalized with no deductions," he said. "I need the deductions this year. I don't know how that will affect me."

Lutz, who said the situation was allegedly caused by computer problems at Empire of America, concurred with Bagans.

Between 175 and 200 people had their 1984 taxes paid Jan. 24 by Empire of America, Lutz said, when contacted at his office.

Homeowners typically pay their taxes with their house payments, while it is not unusual for lending institutions to save the money (collecting interest on it) until Dec. 31, Lutz said.

Though the payment is not considered late, those homeowners will not be able to deduct their taxes on their 1984 income tax forms, he said.

In an effort to rectify the situation, which includes thousands of Detroit area homeowners, State Rep. Dennis Hertel (D-Detroit) is petitioning the IRS to allow affected homeowners to make their tax deductions this year.

Hertel has asked all Michigan senators and congressmen to write letters citing extenuating circumstances to the IRS, said Ray O'Malley, administrative assistant to Hertel.

O'Malley said he did not know if the IRS would agree, since they rarely make exceptions.

Hertel should have a reply in about two weeks, O'Malley said.

Seattle's super to McCormick

Clarkston native takes on Pistons at Silverdome

By Dan Vandenhemel

It was a sweet and sour homecoming for Tim McCormick.

Since joining the Seattle SuperSonics of the National Basketball Association in September, McCormick hadn't had a chance to come home to Clarkston.

Jan. 26, the SuperSonics were in Pontiac to take on the Detroit Pistons—a meeting McCormick looked forward to.

"I've had dreams of coming back to play the Pistons," he said from his parents' house in Springfield Township the following day. "It was a great thrill, something I'll always remember."

Stepping onto the Silverdome court may have been memorable, but the final score wasn't. The Pistons won the game, 132-113. The 6-foot-11 McCormick saw some action and came through with eight points. So far during his rookie year with Seattle, McCormick is averaging just over five points while playing about 12 minutes a game.

"I played pretty well," he said. "It was a lot of fun to see my friends and family in the stands. It was fun."

After leading Clarkston High School to the state quarterfinals during his senior year in 1980, McCormick went to the University of Michigan where he played three years. He led the Wolverines to the National Invitational Tournament title his final year before being drafted by the NBA.

Being in Seattle couldn't be nicer for McCormick, although the team is struggling with a 20-26 record.

"I love it. Seattle's a great town, a great organization. I've learned a lot," he said. "I'm getting increased playing time, and more results. I'm more aggressive too. I've improved each aspect of my game since coming here."

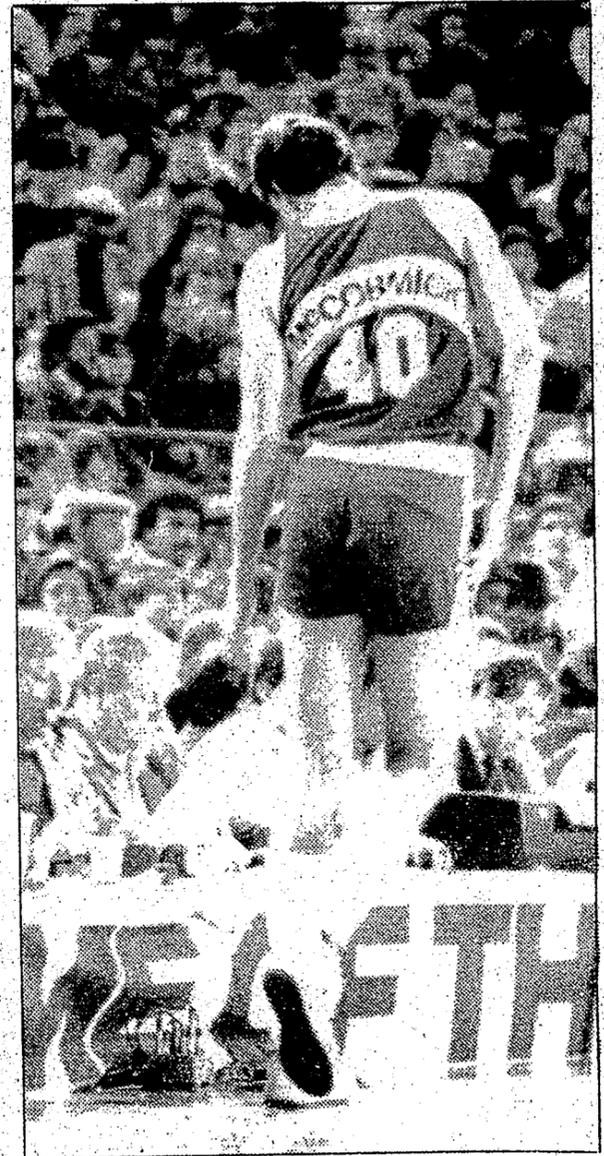

The Pistons' game was the last in a long road trip for the West Coast team. During the stretch, they played in Cleveland, New York and Boston before coming to Detroit.

McCormick's parents, Tom and Terri McCormick, traveled to the three games prior to the Pistons.

"They've watched me play basketball since I was a youngster," the 22-year-old said. "They bought a satellite dish so they can watch more of my games. They see about 65 of the 82 games we play."

McCormick visited with his family Saturday and Sunday before boarding a plane Sunday evening. Going back to his Seattle townhouse was a welcome thought.

"It's been a long road trip. I'll be glad to get back home. I love Seattle," he said. "It's just a great town."

Looking way down to the scoring table, the 6-foot-11 McCormick checks into the basketball game.

Tim McCormick gets a little advice from coach Lenny Wilkins during their game against the Detroit Pistons, Jan. 26. McCormick scored eight points in Seattle's 132-113 loss.

OT loss 'tough' for Wolves

By Dan Vandenhemel

Cars were parked on curbs and on the lawn. The parking lot outside the Clarkston High School gym was filled to capacity.

Inside, enthusiastic fans of the Clarkston Wolves' basketball team jammed three of the four sets of bleachers. The fourth set belonged to Huskie faithfuls and it was over half full.

They were on hand for the biggest game of the year to date for the Wolves. The varsity team was taking on Pontiac Northern for the early season bragging rights to first place in the league.

For the moment the Huskies own that right with a 65-64 overtime victory, Jan. 25. That gives them a 4-0 mark in the Greater Oakland Activities League and 9-2 overall. The Wolves have 2-1 and 8-2 records.

"It was a tough game to lose," Wolves' coach Dan Fife said. "We had a great effort out there. Now we're 8-2 and maybe that'll give us some more incentive."

The Wolves hardly needed anything to motivate them against the Huskies. Last year, Northern beat Clarkston twice during the season while the Wolves downed them in the district opening round.

The Wolves got an outstanding performance from Ed Whitaker. The junior guard tallied 26 points for a game high.

With leading scorer Erik Kline out of action for up to three weeks with a stress fracture of the leg, the Wolves had to rely on a number of players to put points on the board. Besides Whitaker in double figures, there were Matt Riddle with 13, Mike Walters with 11 and Dan Jokisch with 10.

"All the kids picked up for Erik," Fife said. "Colling, Ladd, all of them."

Doug Colling and David Ladd each scored two points but more importantly, they are the heart of the Wolves' defense.

Throughout the game, the defense was able to hold the Huskies to outside shots. What they couldn't handle were the fast breaks that led to easy baskets.

"The transition really hurt us," Fife said. "We knew we couldn't get into a running game with them."

Sports

The Seer

Found in the Clarkston News mailslot Monday morning . . .

Seer here. Great game. To bad someone had to lose between Clarkston and Pontiac Northern.

From a fan's viewpoint, the 65-64 overtime triumph by Northern was outstanding. But from the Wolves side of the court, it wasn't so good.

Despite not having your leading scorer in Erik Kline, you hoseheads put on quite a show. Everyone who stepped on the court for the Wolves put out his best effort. But, alas, you still lost and now can only hope someone else in the league can knock off the Huskies and revive your title hopes.

The powderpuff schedule begins again this week and next week. The next "real" opponent is Lake Orion in two weeks. But first, Avondale.

Avondale at Clarkston, (Feb. 1): Not much to look forward to against Avondale. They can be tough, but don't count on it. Clarkston is going to be looking for revenge against everyone after the one-point loss to Pontiac Northern. The Wolves seem to be getting better each time out on the floor. Ed Whitaker and the rest of the Wolves are putting the ball in the hoop. In the last meeting between Clarkston and Avondale, the Wolves won by 32 points. It won't be much different this time. Clarkston by 21.

Up My Alley

Nothing to sniff at

Dan Vandenhemel

Sight, smell, touch, taste and hearing. Those are the big five when it comes to the human senses. Some claim to have a sixth one but that's another story.

Those five little elements are very important to us. They help make life a little easier, more pleasant. But so often with something that is good, people take their senses for granted.

There are millions of people who are lacking part if not all of one of the five.

The senses are nothing to take lightly. My ability to smell is finally coming back to me after four months of wondering what was the matter. A sinus infection was as much of the problem as not going to doctor in the first place.

That's four months of not being able to smell chocolate cookies baking or a turkey roasting in the oven.

That's four months of not detecting a scent of flowers or perfume.

That's four months of not getting a whiff of morning coffee. Though I don't drink it, it still smells good. Other pleasant aromas I missed were a fresh cut Christmas tree, the wind blowing off the lake, walking through a woods and walking into a bakery.

And when your sense of smell is gone, so is part of your taste. Everything was running together.

But when you lose part of a sense, the others often become more aware, more powerful.

I couldn't smell the food but my eyes sure could. All those cookies, all those turkeys ached to be smelled, tasted. But it wasn't by me.

By going without one of the senses, it (pardon the expression) opened my eyes to them.

People with vision problems can't see some things we take for granted. The same goes for the hearing impaired.

Most of us can look at a bright orange sunrise or a full moon with a zillion stars spotted along the heavens and not think too much about it.

What about hearing a playground full of kids laughing, or the crackle of an open fire?

Those who are lacking one of the senses aren't lacking in appreciation for what they have.

Wrestling club places high

By Dan Vandenhemel

The Clarkston free-style wrestling club got the season off to a solid start.

The club placed 12 of its 15 wrestlers in the top three of the Van Dyke Invitational Tournament in Warren, Jan. 20.

The wrestlers are divided in classes by age and weight. They range from 5-year-olds to 14-year-olds.

In the 8-year-old and under class, Chad Granlund took a first place, Ryan Mick and Kevin Allen each placed second, and Armin Michelsen came in third.

For the 9-10-year-olds, Jeff DeRoseau, Brett Walter and Jerry Anderson all finished first.

Robbie Wilson took a second in the 11-12-year-old division.

In the 13-14-year-old class, Todd George placed first, John Anderson and Jim Allen each had a second place finish, and Ruben DeLoRosa came in third.

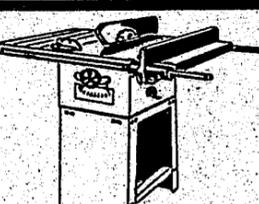

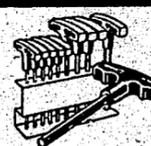

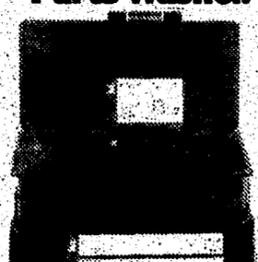

This was the second of nine tournaments for the club. Points are totaled at the tournaments for possibly making the Junior Olympics.

Residential, commercial building on rise

By Carolyn Walker

An economic recovery is credited for the current upswing in business and residential construction in Independence Township.

The township is experiencing an increase in commercial permits, as well as restored activity on existing subdivision plats, according to local officials.

Many of the plats were started in the late 1970s before the recession.

"People are looking to do something," said Independence Township Planner Richard Carlisle.

Developers are coming forward with plans for office and medical buildings and other community developments, he said, and an increase in commercial developments demonstrates an improvement in the economy.

Residential planners tend to follow, he said.

Developers are eager to put their ideas into action, said Carlisle, a planning consultant for 30 Michigan communities.

"I see a continuing trend toward improvement," he said.

Neil Wallace, chairperson of the Independence Township Planning Commission, concurs.

"There certainly is a lot more interest," he said, citing increases in business speculation.

Beverly McElmeel of the Independence Township Building and Planning Department agrees.

"We are on an upswing from 1983," she said, referring to the number of requests for building permits.

Seventy-four new residence permits were issued in the township in 1984 compared to 54 in 1983 and nine in 1982, she said.

Among the notable building permits issued in 1984 were for a $300,000 nature center at Independence Oaks County Park, Dr. Jack Shader's $200,000 office building on Sashabaw Road and the Burger King Restaurant currently under construction on Dixie Highway.

In addition, several businesses including Mario's on Sashabaw Road, Dandy Oil on Maybee and Sashabaw roads, and Pine Knob Ski Lodge on Sashabaw Road received permits for renovation and improvements.

There were no multiple dwelling permits issued for Independence Township in 1984.

Secretary on the job

Pen in hand, Arvalyn Stegeman recorded her first minutes at a special board meeting Jan. 21.

Soon to leave a temporary secretarial position with the Village of Clarkston, Stegeman was hired by township officials to fill the newly created position of recording secretary at board meetings.

Clerk Richard Holman, who has been keeping board records, requested a recording secretary at the Jan. 8 meeting.

Board members unanimously agreed to hire a recording secretary for a three-month trial period.

Holman will maintain ultimate responsibility for the minutes.

Stegeman lives on Almond Lane, Independence Township, with her husband Earl and their children, Keri, 14, and Patrick, 8.

Ski patrol sponsors beer tent

Hot wine, sausage and beer will greet Pine Knob skiers and visitors this weekend.

Members of the National Ski Patrol System are sponsoring a beer tent Saturday and Sunday to raise funds for the Pine Knob branch of the ski patrol.

Hours are Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sunday from noon to 5 p.m.

Saturday, representatives from several ski companies including Olin, K-2, Dyna Star and Solomon are to be at Pine Knob.

Interested skiers will be allowed to test equipment, said John Lutz, a member of the ski patrol.

In addition, basic ski-patrol testing is scheduled Sunday.

The tests are available to those who have completed two-year courses in first aid and hill training including toboggan usage, Lutz said.

Money raised from the food and beer sales will be used to update Pine Knob's patrol equipment and furnish a new ski patrol trailer, Lutz said.

Honors

Andrea McLaughlin is on the dean's list for the fall term at Northwestern Michigan College, Traverse City.

A 1981 Clarkston High School graduate, she is a senior majoring in the executive secretarial program at NMC.

Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. William McLaughlin of Deerwood Road, Independence Township.

Five Clarkston area students are on the dean's list for the fall semester at Central Michigan University, Mt. Pleasant.

The dean's list for the fall semester at Bowling Green State University, Ohio, includes Mary Barnes.

A sophomore at the university, she resides on Boyne Highland Trail, Independence Township.

College notes

Doug Downey traveled to the Dominican Republic over the Christmas holidays through Anderson College's Tri-S (Student Summer-Service) program.

Working with the Church of God in the Dominican Republic, Downey and 16 others finished a church construction project by pouring a cement floor, painting and landscaping. They also took part in a youth revival by singing and giving testimonies.

Downey, of Snowapple Drive, Independence Township, is a Clarkston High School graduate. He's majoring in education at Anderson College, Indiana.

He has been named to the dean's list, the Alpha Chi honor society and the all-conference tennis team for two years. He is also a member of the Booster social club.

Recipe file

Repeat request

By Lorna Bickerstaff

I've had several requests to repeat the Vegetable Salad recipe given to The Clarkston News by Marie Harper of Waterford Township.

VEGETABLE SALAD

Layer in order:

- 1 head lettuce, broken into small pieces
- 1 spanish onion, sliced thinly with rings separated
- 1 green pepper, diced or sliced
- 1 pkg. frozen peas (cooked and cooled)
- 3 tablespoons sugar
- 3 ribs celery, cut small
- 1 cup shredded cheese
- 1 pint Miracle Whip (she uses a little less)
- Bacon pieces on top

Put ingredients in bowl in order given; do not stir until serving. Cover and refrigerate overnight. When ready to serve, toss lightly.

Note: Like all cooks have the tendency to do, I changed the original recipe slightly to suit my tastes. I leave out the green pepper and sugar, and do not cook the peas—just let them thaw.

Keep the recipe file growing by sending your favorite recipes to Lorna Bickerstaff, in care of The Clarkston News, 5 S. Main, Clarkston, MI 48016. Be sure to include your telephone number in case there are questions.

Two local boys on Carr's academy lists

Two Clarkston students are among 33 young people recommended for positions in United States service academies by Congressman Bob Carr (D-Okemos).

Michael Galley is on the nomination list for the Military Academy, West Point, and Erik Kline is on the list for the Merchant Marine Academy.

Each U.S. representative and senator is officially limited to five cadets at each of the service academies, the Military Academy at West Point, the Naval Academy at Annapolis and the Air Force Academy at Colorado Springs.

This year, Carr had three vacancies for appointments and he nominated young men from Mason, Pinckney and Union Lake.

Galley is among the 27 others named to the qualified alternate pool of applicants who may be invited to attend.

The Merchant Marine Academy has a slightly different admissions procedure under which all students are considered as nominees.

Carr's recommendations were based on the applicants' high school records, letters of recommendation, college entrance examination scores, and extra-curricular and civic activities.

Clarkston area resident Dennis Kuechle was on the 24-member academy screening committee, which conducted a personal interview with each candidate.

Bear facts on Pine Knob's bear jamboree

By Kathy Greenfield

Puns flew between teachers and staff last week in the media center at Pine Knob Elementary School.

And media specialist Bea Cohen wrote them down in honor of the Teddy Bear Jamboree:

"Grin and bear it."

"I can't bear it any more."

"Bear up friends, we've 'bearly' touched the 'bear' essentials."

These are the bare bear facts: The jamboree was a prelude to the school's Teddy Bear Book Fair this week, which features items with bear themes as well as the usual school book fair fare.

By Thursday, Cohen estimated there were over 100 bears snuggled into a corner of the media center—and the number was growing by the hour.

There were bears in bibs, bonnets and blue jeans; bears wearing beads, barrettes and sweatbands; and bears with babies. There was even a ballerina bear.

A contest accompanied the event, with prizes of book fair certificates for the bears deemed the biggest, best-dressed, with the funniest name, the most unusual and the smallest.

The reason for the jamboree was simply that Cohen has always liked bears, a fondness apparently shared by the youngsters at Pine Knob.

"We have a group of children who bring their bears home every day because they sleep with them," she said.

The group of first- and second-graders gathered together to pose with the bears bared their innermost feelings.

"I usually sleep with him. I take him everywhere

I go," said first-grader Scott Hill about Bouncy Panda, so-named because "when we go on trips he bounces around in the car."

First-grader Tim Wasilk dressed his Bad News Bear in a Detroit Tiger hat and special sunglasses. "He stays on my table and sometimes he sleeps with me," said Tim.

First-grader Nancy Nienstedt's bear Bo-Bo was a Christmas present made by her aunt last year. He wore a pair of rubber baby pants. "He just came with a bow and I just put these on. He looks cute in them," she said.

Second-grader Jeremy McMahan's bear was also named Bo-Bo after the little girl's bear on the Bill Cosby Show.

"It's my sister's. She let me borrow it," said Jeremy. "He sits in the corner in my bedroom."

THANKSGIVING NOVENA TO ST. JUDE

O Holy St. Jude, Apostle and Martyr, great in virtue and rich in Miracles, near kinsman of Jesus Christ, faithful intercessor of all who invoke your special patronage in time of need, to you I have recourse from the depth of my heart and humbly beg you, to whom God has given such great power, to come to my assistance. Help me in my present and urgent petition: In return I promise to make your name known and cause you to be invoked. St. Jude, pray for us and all who invoke your aid. Amen. (Say three Our Fathers, Hail Mary's and Glorias.) Publication must be promised. This Novena has never been known to fail. I have had my request granted. (Say 9 consecutive days.) L.M.P.

INDEPENDENCE TOWNSHIP PUBLIC NOTICE OF BUDGET HEARING FOR FEDERAL REVENUE SHARING

Independence Township will hold a Public Hearing at 7:30 p.m. on Tuesday, February 5, 1985, at the Independence Township Annex, 90 N. Main Street, for purposes of hearing written and oral comments from the public concerning the proposed Annual Federal Revenue Sharing Budget for fiscal year 1985-6, and the use of Federal Revenue Sharing Funds as contained in that budget.

General Revenue Sharing is a program of general fiscal support from the Federal Government to State and Local Governments, with only limited federal requirements on how the money should be spent. Decisions on the use of these funds are made at the local level by the Township Board and persons closest to local problems. Revenue Sharing regulations require a hearing on the proposed use of these funds in relation to the annual budget before its adoption.

All interested citizens, groups, senior citizens, and organizations are encouraged to attend and submit comments.

ANALYSIS OF FEDERAL REVENUE SHARING FUND
Fiscal Year 1985-86

Beginning Fund Balance	$129,166
Add: FRS Entitlements	78,515
Interest Earnings	12,000
Subtract: Proposed Expenditures	199,000
Ending Fund Balance	20,681

The primary uses of Federal Revenue Sharing Funds have included the following: police protection, dust control, spring cleanup, park improvements, road improvements, community promotion.

A copy of this information is available at Independence Township Clerk's Office, 90 N. Main Street, from 9:00 a.m. - 5:00 p.m., Monday through Friday.

LOOK IN THE WANT ADS FOR GARAGE SALES, FURNITURE AND EVEN MORE...

Preclassical songs at mall

A concert by Les Flutes Deuces features preclassical music on the harpsichord, recorder and viol, with the musicians dressed in period outfits.

The group has been playing at the Clarkston Community Historical Society parties for three years, said Ivan Rouse, director of the Clarkston Conservatory of Music and sponsor of the concert.

The music is to begin at 4 p.m. on Sunday, Feb. 3, in Sadows Auction Gallery in the Clarkston Mills Mall, 20 W. Washington, Clarkston. Tickets, to be sold at the door, are $4 for adults and $3 for students.

Concertgoers are encouraged to bring hors d'oeuvres to pass.

"We're hoping to have an Elizabethan bash in the corridor," said Rouse.

For more information, call the Conservatory at 625-3640.

Classes offered

Want to whip up something a little different in your microwave oven? Or how about some fresh bread in your conventional oven?

You could learn how to cane a chair, or make a ceramic piece to brighten your home.

Microwave cooking, breads, chair caning and ceramics are among Boredom Buster classes offered by the Clarkston Community Education Department.

They begin the week of Feb. 3. Call 673-7756 or Lynda Lawson at 625-0904 for more information about these and other classes with openings.

License reprieve

Michigan residents temporarily living outside the state may now renew license plates within a six-month period before the plates expire.

Previously, individual vehicle owners could only renew within a 45-day period.

A new Michigan law, effective Jan. 1, enables the Department of State to renew vehicle registrations early.

This early registration is expected to be more convenient to workers, students, retirees and others who are out of state for extended periods of time, said Secretary of State Richard Austin.

Cars start and stop along this stretch of M-15 north of Dixie Highway as they travel in and out of the numerous businesses and medical offices. State transportation department projections say over 21,000 cars a day will travel this section of road by the year 2000.

M-15 traffic woes await township's attention

By Carolyn Walker

Traffic congestion on M-15 near Dixie Highway has reached nightmare proportions, according to business owners along the southern stretch of the state owned road.

Most owners say road renovations need to be made, though they sympathize with their associates in the Village of Clarkston who expect negative repercussions from a widening of M-15.

Resolutions to the problem, however, are at a standstill.

"As far as the department is concerned, the job is inactive," said Michael Flajole of the Michigan Transportation Department.

Township board members have been pondering improvements to M-15 for over 10 years, said Clerk Richard Holman, who indicated the board will review solutions within the next six weeks.

In the past, the transportation department advocated widening M-15 to five lanes, while local officials favored three lanes.

A recent survey of several businesses along the southern stretch of M-15 (also known as Ortonville Road, or Main Street in the village) indicated serious, potentially dangerous conditions exist.

Everyone contacted agreed that left turns onto

Managing Mansion's a challenge

By Dan Vandenhemel

The building is empty. The sounds of footsteps echo though the elegant surroundings. In a few hours, diners will be waiting for tables in one of the elegant rooms of the Mansion Restaurant at Pine Knob.

These quiet hours before opening serve as productive hours for the manager, Dan Schwartz: Deep in the recesses of the building, beyond the kitchen, lies the tiny office of the new manager. Schwartz took the post in October.

"I usually get in around three (in the afternoon)," Schwartz said. "I'm pretty busy before we open at five. I'm trying to plan promotions, book parties, place orders, go over the menu. It's pretty challenging."

After growing up in Clarkston and graduating from Clarkston High School in 1973, the 30-year-old

Schwartz, a Clarkston native, has been manager of the business four months.

WHAT'S NEW IN BUSINESS

In October, Mary Beth Rodriguez became manager of the Clarkston branch of Manufacturers Bank of Southfield.

Banker returns

A promotion to branch manager brought Mary Beth Rodriguez back to Manufacturers Bank of Southfield at the corner of Bluegrass Drive and M-15.

She's pleased for more than one reason.

From December 1979 to June 1982, she served as assistant manager at the Clarkston branch. Then she worked as an assistant manager in Southfield. She never thought she'd return to the Clarkston.

"It was a very pleasant surprise," she said. "I live in Keatington, so it was very welcome—and especially as manager. The majority of the employees are the same people and many of the customers are the same."

"I love it here. I think it's a very special community. One is able to get to know people out in Clarkston, more so than you can in a city like Southfield or Bloomfield, just because it is such a small, close-knit community."

Rodriguez, 30, has worked for Manufacturers Bank of Southfield for eight-and-one-half years. She began as a teller, became a general teller, taught teller training and then moved into management.

"It has become more and more interesting as time has gone on," she said. "What's happened is that with the deregulations we're offering more and more services, and competing with institutions that we weren't previously competing with. It's exciting to be in an industry that's involved with change."

She attended Wayne State University and is presently working on her bachelor's degree in business administration at Lawrence Institute of Technology, Southfield.

She and her husband Eddy have lived in Keatington four years.

Rodriguez became the Clarkston branch manager in October. Upon her return, she found many similarities to the past but there were some differences in the community.

"Things are much more up than when I left. With the recession, things slowed down around here. There are more new businesses," she said.

Former Clarkston branch manager Ted Wharry was transferred to the Rochester office of Manufacturers Bank of Detroit.

Ritter's Farm Market owner Sam Binno demonstrates the new display tables that put the fruits at arm's reach. Binno's owned the market on Dixie Highway since Oct. 10.

Sam Binno: Ritter's new owner

By Kathy Greenfield

Standing there, among the apples, oranges, grapefruit and other good-for-you things, Sam Binno admits he doesn't eat as much fruit as he should.

He laughs and comes across as a regular guy—the kind of person who's been so busy taking care of business that he's not had time, to coin a phrase, to "stop and munch an apple."

In October, Binno became the owner of Ritter's Farm Market on Dixie Highway in Independence Township. He's been there every day, seven days a week, when the store opens and closes—and most of the time in between.

Working with store manager Bob Radoye, he's redone all the produce tables, putting everything at arm's reach; expanded the wine department to fill a wall; and added a line of grocery items.

The ice cream selection is greater, more varieties of cookies have been added and soon, shoppers at Ritter's will be able to choose from a larger selection of sandwiches and salads in the deli department.

"It's going very good. So far I'm happy," he says. "I have a few more odds and ends to do."

His primary objective is to "make sure the customers are happy, the place is clean and my employees are nice to the customers."

Now 32, Binno's been in business since age 18 when he began taking some of the responsibilities in a party store owned by his family in Detroit.

Before Ritter's, he owned a small market for eight-and-one-half years in West Bloomfield.

Binno and his wife, Deborah, live in West Bloomfield with their three children, Angela, 5; Jennifer, 3; and 1-month-old Michael. In a year or two, they would like to move to the Clarkston area.

His plans for Ritter's involve expansion of lines and better organization.

"As far as the fruits and vegetables, that's always going to stay," he says.

To keep the produce fresh, Ritter's maintains its own purchasing department with at least three trips to market in Detroit each week and up to five or six trips in summer months.

An effort is made to offer more than standard fare. This week in the produce department, nestled among the carrots, parsley, lettuce, Brussels sprouts and other regulars, sits bok choy. In the fruit department, mangoes, kiwis and other exotic items can be found.

Binno's message to customers: "I want them to know I'm trying to make this place a nice place to shop."

MONTH IN REVIEW

A New Year's Day ice storm cripples the Clarkston area, shutting down homes and businesses when the power goes out. Independence Township Supervisor Frank Ronk estimates the loss to the community at $9 million including loss of wages for marooned residents, closed businesses and storm damage from fallen branches and power outages.

Some businesses thrive because they keep power when few others do. Sales double, for example, at the Village Bakeshop, Little Ceasars Pizza and Harvey's Colonial House.

Other businesses in the Sashabaw-Maybee Road area and along Dixie Highway shut their doors for up to five days. Some places, including Pacesetter Bank and Pine Knob Pharmacy, open despite lack of heat and lights and staff members wait on customers as best they can.

The Cookery restaurant closes its doors and becomes the third eatery since 1981 to leave the Clarkston Mills Mall. Ned Barker, the owner of the Cookery, is unavailable for comment, but Mills landlord Ed Adler says, "They might have been a little too expensive for the area. I think he gave it a good try."

1985's going to be a very good year, according to local government officials. Village President Carol Eberhardt says, "Things haven't looked this good in 15 years." Independence Township Supervisor Frank Ronk says he's "looking forward to increased growth." And Springfield Township Supervisor Collin Walls says he expects more people to be back to work. But, cautions Walls, "Interest rates will dictate how 1985 goes."

An application for a liquor license to sell packaged beer and wine at a convenience store/gas station fuels controversy. Independence Township Trustee Carol Balzarini calls it "the ultimate opportunity to drink and drive" after the matter comes before the township board in an information letter from the Oakland County Liquor Enforcement Division. The station, located at the corner of Maybee and Sashabaw roads, is eligible to apply because the convenience store and gas station are technically separate businesses, says a state official.

Appeals continue for the satellite hospital proposed by Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital for the corner of White Lake Road and Dixie Highway in Independence Township. POH officials originally planned to open the 100-bed, $34-million satellite in 1986. A final decision on the necessary certificate of need is pending several more meetings at the state attorney general's office, says Assistant Attorney General Marvin Bromley.

Condominiums proposed by developer Frank Walker on property adjacent to Deer Lake Beach prompt action by the Clarkston Village Council. The council directs the village attorney and township planner to propose a zoning ordinance amendment to allow condominiums on village property. Before the change can be made, public hearings must be held and the council must vote to approve the amendment.

welcomed the chance to return.

Schwartz left Clarkston in 1975 to attend Michigan State University. He's now living in Sterling Heights with his wife Bernie.

Restaurant work is all Schwartz has ever done. While attending college as a psychology major, he worked as a cook and waiter at various restaurants during the summer.

Two years ago, La Veranda Restaurant, also on the Pine Knob Resort property, hired Schwartz as a waiter and then he was promoted to day manager.

"I always came back to the restaurants," he said. "It's exciting, never dull."

According to Schwartz, there's no such thing as a normal work day.

"There's nothing typical about a day in a restaurant. Organizing this place is a challenge," he said. "Saturday nights it's filled. It's important to me to have things run smoothly."

Not always do things go as scheduled. When something goes wrong, like the computer breaking down or something breaking in the kitchen, it's usually on a busy night, Schwartz said.

The Mansion seats 225 people in its numerous rooms and another 50 outdoors on the patio during the summer. With the elegant furnishings and the constant challenges, Schwartz likes where he's at.

"A lot of things make it nice to work here. It's rewarding when we've got a party going on in one of the rooms and the people say they'll be back again," he said. "I'm very happy here; it's not your typical restaurant."

M-15 are next to impossible.

There was no consensus on how the problem might be solved, but most favored five lanes.

"It is a safety problem we're very concerned about," said William O. Kinsley II, postmaster of the Clarkston post office at 5886 M-15.

The right turn arrow at Dixie Highway and M-15 provides a constant flow of traffic, he said.

Kinsley estimates "several hundred cars a day" use the post office parking lot, with peak traffic from 8 to 10 a.m. and 2 to 5 p.m.

The addition of another lane would not necessarily cause serious problems for the village because many cars turn right on Waldon, Kinsley said.

Problems could be reduced by widening M-15 to include a turn lane, said Betty Cole, business manager of Dr. Charles Munk's orthodontic practice at 5825 M-15.

She estimates 200 cars a day use the lot behind Munk's building.

Conard Fulkerson, owner of True Value Hardware at 5800 Ortonville Rd., envisions a different solution.

"They're going to have to do something. We have accidents here all the time."

—Dr. Bruce Harlton

"I don't believe that (five lanes) will alleviate the problem," he said.

A stop light to actively control traffic flow is needed, he said.

"We feel just as strongly as the village that we don't want a boulevard through Clarkston," said James O'Neill, M.D., owner of a medical building at 5885 M-15. "But, they're going to have to do something."

O'Neill, who estimates as many as 2,000 cars travel in and out of his parking lot in a single day, advocates consolidating driveways and installing a blinking light.

He also sees "internal roads" between businesses as a potential solution.

Dr. Bruce Harlton, whose veterinary practice is across the street from O'Neill's, concurs with the pediatrician.

"They're going to have to do something," he said. "We have accidents out there all the time."

Too many driveways coupled with no provisions for turning increase the problem, he said.

A member of the village M-15 monitoring committee, Harlton does not have any ready-made solutions.

"It (M-15) can only be improved upon," he said.

Lewis Wint, owner of Wint Funeral Home on M-15 and chairperson of the M-15 task force appointed by the township five years ago, said improvements to south M-15 would not have a detrimental effect on the village.

Studies done by the task force and BRW, a Minneapolis consulting firm, indicate most traffic does not go through the village, but only to specific businesses such as the post office, Wint said.

Additional traffic would not be generated by an increase in lanes, Wint added.

State records indicate over 17,000 cars traveled M-15 in 1980, with projections showing an increase to 21,000 cars by the year 2000, Flajole said.

The state would pay for paving if the road is widened, he said, but action has been delayed by a township drainage problem in which land drains onto the highway right-of-way.

"The department is charged with providing safe transportation," Flajole said. "Until they (the township) get the ball rolling, we're just waiting and waiting to proceed."

Tax technique establishes children's trust fund

Editor's note: This is one in a series of articles by attorney Robert Delisi on personal tax and estate planning topics to appear monthly in the Business & Finance section of The Clarkston News.

The objective is to offer the legal fundamentals of the topics discussed. This series is not intended, nor should it be construed, to comprehensively cover all the factors that must be considered when addressing a particular individual's circumstances. For further information, one should consult with his or her attorney.

FOR ADULTS ONLY

THE FOLLOWING MATTER CONTAINS SUGGESTIVE MATERIAL AND SHOULD NOT BE READ BY MINOR CHILDREN.

There, mom and dad, let it be said that I did my utmost to prevent your children from hounding you to take action concerning the following tax matter.

The tax technique, which is sure to strike your children's fancy, is the making of lifetime gifts to them. Before you dismiss this device as foolhardy because you know your Johnny or Mary will squander your gifts, consider the following specifics.

Financial gifts to a minor child can result in significant tax savings since that income earned by the gifted property will be taxed to the child who is generally at a significantly lower tax rate than you are.

This tax savings, if allowed to accumulate, can create a significant pool of assets for the child, which, for example, can help pay for his or her college tuition.

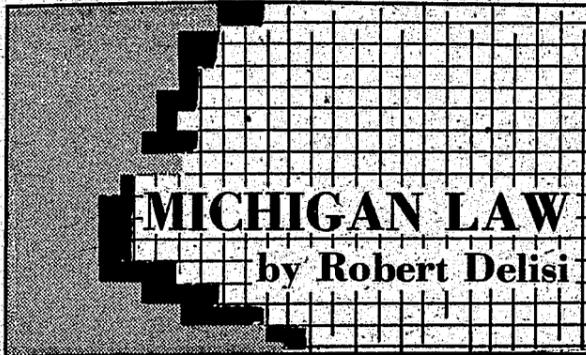

For the 1984-85 school year, the approximate average tuition, room and board cost to attend the University of Michigan is $7,000 a year.

The creation of a Clifford Trust or the use of a custodial account are two legal devices that can capitalize on this marginal tax rate savings but still afford you some measure of control over the gifted assets.

A Clifford Trust is a short-term trust in which parents may place any income-producing asset, such as cash, real estate or securities. The child is named as a beneficiary and a third party (neither parent) is the trustee.

The trust must last for a minimum of 10 years and one day, and during the term of its existence earnings from the assets accumulate in the child's name.

These earnings are made available to the child during the term of the trust, but when the trust is dissolved ownership of the principal reverts to the parents.

One disadvantage is that while the earnings can be reinvested in the child's name, in order to avoid a gift tax on trust creation the child must have the right to spend the trust earnings each year as he or she sees fit.

The requirements for the creation of a Clifford Trust do not allow any income generated by the trust to be used for the child's actual support (food, clothing and housing).

Because the income from a Clifford Trust will be earned over a minimum 10-year-and-one-day period and taxed at the low rate applicable to the child, a relatively small initial contribution is needed and it is certainly less painful to make since you get it back in just over 10 years.

Here is a brief look at what a Clifford Trust can do: If a parent could afford an opening contribution of $25,000 and the annual return for the minimum 10-year term of the trust is 10 percent compounded quarterly, the earnings that will accrue to the child will amount to just over $42,000.

Although the child will pay some tax, approximately $4,000 on the $42,000 of earnings, the remainder of the $38,000 will pay for a fairly substantial four-year college education and the parents will still have their $25,000.

If the money had simply been placed by the parents in an account in their name bearing 10 percent interest compounded quarterly, the total earnings would be the same, but the tax bite at the parents' rate would likely reduce the net after-tax earnings by almost half.

The principal and interest after taxes would approximate $46,000. If the total college bill for four years is assumed to be $38,000, this strategy would leave the parents with $8,000 after paying the tab.

With a Clifford Trust, earnings after taxes would have permitted the child to pay the entire cost of his or her education while leaving the parents with the return of their original $25,000 investment.

An easier means of accumulating capital for your children's education is to place some of your assets in a custodial account in your child's name under the Uniform Gift to Minors Act. A parent can give each child up to $10,000 per year ($20,000 per couple) without incurring any federal gift tax.

A custodial account requires no special legal work since all it requires is that you obtain a social security number for your child and open an account in his or her name and number to hold the assets until he or she reaches the age of majority.

The assets given to the child and placed in the account can be cash, bonds, stocks, rental property or any other income producer.

The child pays no taxes at all until such time as she or he receives $1,000 of unearned income a year. Then, the taxes paid by the child will be very low, and the parent continues to be able to claim him or her as a deduction on his or her own taxes.

A custodian must be named to look after the account until the child reaches the age of the majority (18 in Michigan). If both parents are donors to the account, then a relative or friend should be named.

Remember, the custodian should never be the donor since the IRS could claim that the donor actually retained effective control over the assets.

Unlike a Clifford Trust, it is important for you to remember that once the assets go into the custodian account, they belong irrevocably to the child.

Judy Roberts and State Rep. Mat Dunaskiss pose for a photograph inside their new business, Fantastic Sam's. The shop is already involved in community activities, offering coupons to eligible organizations, which receive $1 for each one turned in by a customer.

Fantastic Sam's opens nearby

Rep. Mat Dunaskiss owns portion of franchise

State Rep. Mat Dunaskiss (R-Lake Orion) joined the business community this month with the opening of Fantastic Sam's, a family haircutting salon in Waterford Township.

His partners are all Lake Orion residents, his wife Diane, Judy and Ron Rogers, and silent partner Tom Sampey, the owner of a landscaping business.

Judy Rogers manages the store. The former manager of a business brokerage office in Troy, which handled the sale of ongoing businesses and new franchises, she discovered the Fantastic Sam's opportunity.

A national franchise, Fantastic Sam's has over 450 locations across the United States and a shop is opening in Japan this year, she said. Michigan has 22 shops and they're opening at the rate of two a week.

"Last spring we went out to the first Fantastic Sam's that had opened in Michigan," she said. "This has been a ground floor opportunity to get in on."

They plan to open three more shops in northern Oakland County, including one in Lake Orion. Further expansion will depend on their success.

"I really believe it's going to be the McDonald's of haircutting," said Dunaskiss.

The franchise is the brainchild of Sam Ross, a

Memphis, Tenn., construction business owner who had a heart attack and listened to his doctor's advice to leave the stressful business.

Ross subsequently attended barber's school and went to work in a small barber shop. When the owner decided to sell the shop, he was able to put his ideas into action. Ten years ago he began selling franchises.

All the Fantastic Sam's operations share a bright decor (orange, red, yellow and white). A Fantastic Sam Machine provides video cartoons for kids and a door where they put a lock of hair following a haircut, turn around three times and say "Fantastic Sam's," and open the door to find a little toy.

The beauticians are hired for their technical skills and their ability to work with children, and each assumes a nickname from a list provided by the franchise including Daisy, Butter Cup, Peaches, Pumpkin and Sunshine.

There is special attention for adults, too.

"We greet all the guests," said Roberts. "We offer them coffee. We talk to them about how they would like their hair. We are interested in people leaving here with good styles and healthy hair."

The shop is located at 5034 Dixie Highway, next to Dunham's and north of Williams Lake Road.

The Importance of Water

Water is our most important nutrient. One half to three-fourths of the body's weight is water.

A human being can live for weeks without food, but only a few days without water.

Water is the basic solvent for all the products of digestion, and is essential for removing wastes.

There is no specific dietary allowance since water loss varies with climate situations, and individuals, but under ordinary circumstances six glasses daily is considered healthy. Water regulates body temperature, keeps all your bodily functions functioning, aids in dieting by depressing appetite before meals, helps prevent constipation.

The deficiency disease is dehydration.

Best natural sources: drinking water, juices, fruits and vegetables.

There is no known toxic effects but an intake of one and a half gallons in about an hour could be dangerous to an adult. It could kill an infant.

If you're running a fever, be sure to drink lots of water to prevent dehydration and to flush the system of wastes.

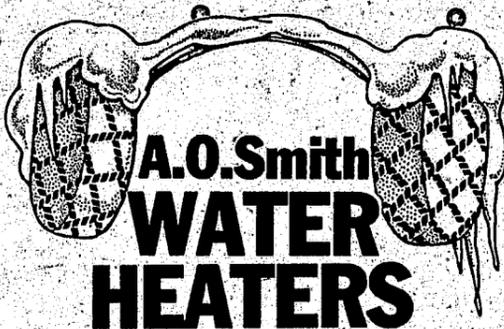

If you live in an area where there is hard water, you're probably getting more calcium and magnesium than you think.

Flower sales boost SCAMP

By Dan Vandenhemel

Pounding on neighborhood doors while trailing poinsettias enabled two eighth-grade entrepreneurs to raise a little extra cash for Christmas.

The 13-year-olds, Amy Keller and Brooke Teets, spent the week following Thanksgiving asking their neighbors in the Deerwood subdivision area to buy the plants.

The pair of Clarkston Junior High Students sold 47 plants at $6 each.

For their effort, they made $80 in profits, $20 of which went to Clarkston SCAMP, a summer camp program for handicapped children and youths.

"My dad (Jeff Teets) came up with the idea," Brooke said from her Marshwood Court home. "He said we could learn how to handle money and have some responsibility and make some money at the same time. He said if we do something, we'd have to give part of it to charity."

It was Amy's idea to give the money to SCAMP. She had participated in the Walk for SCAMP fund raiser in the fall.

"It was a fun experience," said Amy, who lives on Perry Lake Road. "I think we'll do something like this again."

Brooke Teets (left) and Amy Keller go over a list of the people who bought poinsettias from them after Thanksgiving. The extra money they raised went for Christmas gifts.

OK, kids e'mon back

The parents are no longer the taxpayers on the earnings, and when the income is reported to the government, it is reported under the child's social security number and taxed at the child's tax rate.

Although the parents cannot regain the assets for their personal use or use them to pay for items that constitute ordinary parental obligations (food and clothing), the assets can be used for financing a college education.

This is true because in most states including Michigan a parent is not obligated to pay for a college education unless such a requirement is specifically agreed to in a divorce settlement.

Mom and dad, it is now safe for Johnny or Mary to return to your reading chair.

Next month the employee pension rights required under the recently enacted Pension Equity Act will be discussed.
