Pay raises rejected

There'll be no raises this year for Independence Township board members.

Approximately 40 voters at the March 30 annual meeting of Independence Township approved a motion to maintain township officials' wages at the current rate.

It was the first decision to deny raises since the fiscal year of 1982-83.

The motion, made by resident Harold Goyette, followed a brief warning by Supervisor Frank Ronk that wages could not be lowered.

"You can not decrease at this time any elected official's wages," Ronk said.

Following that comment, and with no discussion, Goyette made his motion, and the members of the audience voted unanimously to maintain the current rates.

Previous raises have been as high as 10 percent or as low as 5 percent, according to a spokesperson at the township hall.

Currently, the supervisor is paid $36,590 a year. The clerk and treasurer each make $33,543 a year, while trustees are paid $4,857 annually.

The issue of officials' pay is decided each year at the annual meeting.

Egg hunts on

Clarkston area kids can hop on over to two Easter egg hunts on Saturday, April 6.

The annual Clarkston Area Jaycees' egg hunt is to begin at 10 a.m. at Clintonwood Park, 5980 Clarkston Rd., Independence Township.

There will be several age divisions, and the organizers promise lots of candy plus special prizes for the finders of lucky eggs. Call 623-7405 for more information.

The annual Easter Egg Hunt on the lawn at the Sashabaw United Presbyterian Church is to begin at 11 a.m.

The church is located at 5300 Maybee, Independence Township.

The hunt is for preschoolers to sixth-graders. There'll be candy, eggs and prizes.

Contributions of hard boiled eggs and/or individually wrapped candy are welcome and may be brought to the church before 10 a.m. Saturday. Call 673-3101 for more information.

Citizens question fire chief choice

Controversy ignited by hiring

By Carolyn Walker

A recommendation by Clarkston resident Harold Goyette that Independence Township officials hire township residents for future job positions triggered a lengthy debate at the March 30 annual meeting.

The debate centered on the recent selection of William Carver Sr. of Petoskey for the position of fire chief.

Many of the 40 residents in attendance appeared angry over the board's selection of Carver over acting chief Dale Bailey, a 32-year employee of the department.

"I feel...that the people from the township should be considered over outsiders," Goyette said.

"If we look outside the township, I think we're hurting ourselves."

Township resident James Bickford echoed Goyette's feelings, asking the board members to explain why they voted as they did on the issue.

The board members, who appeared uncomfortable at the request, complied.

Trustee John Lutz told the audience he voted for Bailey.

"I thought he could do the job," Lutz said, adding that since a decision had been reached, "the show should get on the way" and residents should be supportive of Carver.

Arguments flare over chief post

Trustee Carol Balzarini, who also voted for Bailey, said, "I personally felt...Dale Bailey was (the best choice)."

Trustee Daniel Travis said he voted for Carver because he was impressed with his educational background. "I voted with my heart," he said. "It was a tough decision."

Travis added that he talked to two firefighters before making his decision.

Supervisor Frank Ronk, the former fire chief, also voted for Bailey. "I think everybody knows where I'm coming from," he said, adding that he intends to co-operate 100 percent with Carver now that a decision has been reached.

Clerk Richard Holman, who voted for Carver, said "This decision for me was the most difficult I've ever made on the board."

Holman said he had talked with five full-time firefighters, fire commission chairperson Dr. James O'Neill and Treasurer John Lutz, who had spoken with many firefighters, before reaching his decision.

"I made my decision without any animosity to Bailey or the department," Holman added.

Trustee Dale Stuart reiterated much of what Holman said. "This decision was not an easy decision to make," he said. "It was a matter of trying to find...the best person to manage this department."

"I don't take anything that I do on this board lightly," he added.

Trustee William Vandermark, who also voted for Carver, was not at the meeting.

The board members' explanations for their votes triggered much discussion among audience members.

"I do feel Dale Bailey should have been the chief," said Pat Stitt.

Firefighter Michael Fahrner commented that many changes were expected in the department during the next year, including the building of two fire stations.

He added that Bailey had 32 years with the fire department and that he should have been allowed at least a year to try to guide the department through the changes.

Fahrner and firefighter Dave Johnson said the morale of the department had gone down.

"All you're doing is tearing apart the department," Johnson said.

Finally, before the meeting's end, Bickford asked Ronk how a recall drive could be started.

Ronk responded by telling him to contact the Oakland County election office.

After the meeting, Bickford declined comment on whether or not he would pursue a recall.

Tom Ritter joins insurance firm

Former congressional candidate is undecided about future politics

By Carolyn Walker

Tom Ritter, former candidate for the United States Congress, still calls Clarkston home.

And he still dabbles in topics that affect the American people.

Ritter, who lost his bid for congress to incumbent Bob Carr (D-6th District) in November, is now employed as manager of government and industry relations for Alexander Hamilton Life Insurance Co. in Farmington Hills.

He was recruited for the job last year by former gubernatorial candidate Richard Headlee, who is president of Alexander Hamilton, he says.

When Headlee ran for governor, Ritter volunteered his time as Headlee's treasurer and director of finance.

Ritter says he likes the job, which he started in January.

"I have specific responsibilities for tracking legislation that impacts on the insurance industry," he says.

He is also responsible for dealing with insurance departments and insurance commissioners, he adds.

One focus of Ritter's job is a pending federal taxation proposal; and it has him concerned.

The proposal, made by the United States Treasury Department, would provide for the taxation of employee benefits and the taxation of "inside build-up" of insurance policies, he says.

Calling it a threat to "hundreds of thousands of policy holders," Ritter says the proposal, if approved, would allow taxation of any cash value created by an insurance policy.

"That's never happened before," he says.

Ritter, the former owner of Ritter's Farm Market on Dixie Highway, believes that work within the insurance field can possibly counter such a taxation.

"We (the insurance industry) think we're going to be able to get it stopped," he says.

Ritter switches easily from talk of his new business to talk of his old.

He misses the market.

Or more specifically, the friends he made while its owner.

But he still sees many of those friends around town, he says.

Ritter and his wife, Karen, continue to live in Independence Township, after selling their historic home on Dixie Highway, which has since been moved to Main Street in the village.

Ritter and his family now reside in a rented house on Clarkston Road.

"Clarkston is our home," he says, adding that he likes the people and the area.

When the subject turns to Ritter's political ambitions, he is a little reluctant to talk.

Having assessed "the positives and the negatives" of his last bid for office, Ritter says he will wait for the right time to make any further political commitments.

"My decision at this point in time is to not make a decision," he says.

CHS is second in first Quiz Bowl

By Kathy Greenfield

Clarkston High School's Quiz Bowl team made it all the way to the top before losing the final match to Utica Eisenhower High School.

"We won the semi-finals. We beat Lakeview High School (of St. Clair Shores), 275-205," said team coach Larry Mahrle, CHS social studies teacher.

"And then we ran into a machine, a phenomenon, a young man who is a genius. I think he answered every question for his team but three. He was great."

The final tally was Utica Eisenhower High School 375, Clarkston High School 105.

The last two contests in the Quiz Bowl series were held Saturday at the Tribune/United Cable Communications studio in Royal Oak.

Mahrle, who coached the team with fellow CHS teachers Mike Kaul and Cindy Wauer, was pleased with his team's performance in the Clarkston High School's first participation in the Quiz Bowl.

"I'm extremely proud of the kids," he said. "They did great—far beyond our expectations."

"Our original goal was to win one game and then we made it all the way to the finals. It was unfortunate we ran up against this one team."

Representing CHS were seniors Susan Colwell, Ken Creech, Mike Weber and team captain Steve Willis.

"These four, I think, really learned a lot. It was just a good experience, an excellent experience for everyone," Mahrle said. "They learned how to keep their poise under stress and competition."

The team also included CHS seniors Trisha Johnson, Debbie Darnell, Dan Peters, Susan Haase, Shari Ashton, Ken Fenton and Wendy Learmont, and junior Beth Greiger.

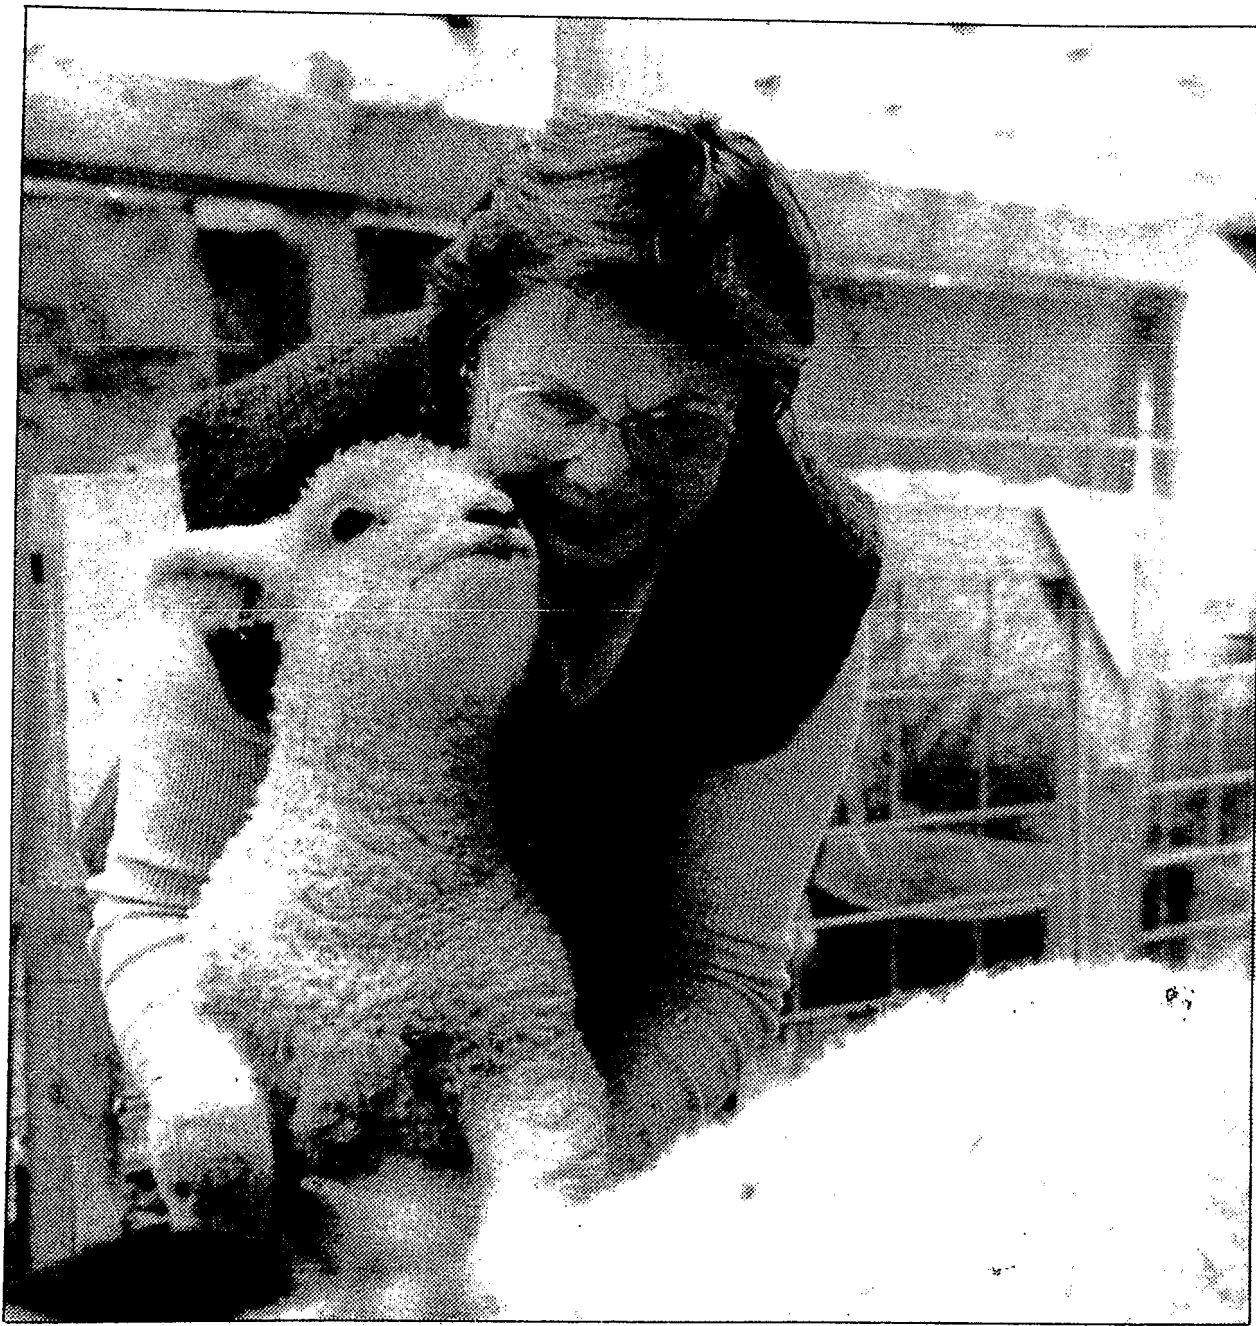

During the last three weeks before the finals, they didn't meet for practice matches because they'd covered all the study questions purchased by the school, Mahrle said.

Team members Creech and Willis, however, formed a study group and went to the library frequently.

"Those two really went out of their way," Mahrle said, noting that if the team had won the state finals, they would have travelled to Dallas, Texas, for the national Quiz Bowl contest.

"They would have liked to go to Dallas, but such is the life," he said.

The final match is to be broadcast on Tribune/United Cable Communications channel 2 on Tuesday, May 28.

Fires destroy barn, garage

Two separate Independence Township fires on March 27 resulted in the complete destruction of a barn, and several thousand dollars in damages to a garage and its contents.

The barn fire, which occurred in a vacant barn north of Maybee and east of Clintonville roads, was well underway when firefighters arrived, said an Independence Township fire department spokesperson.

Firefighters do not know who the owners of the barn or its surrounding property are, she said, adding that firefighters did not have a financial estimate on the damages.

The cause of the blaze has not been determined. There were no injuries.

The garage fire in the 5100 block of Frankwill began when a pilot light ignited a gas leak coming from a camper's refrigerator, she said.

The camper was parked in the garage.

The fire resulted in over $39,000 in total damages including an estimated $25,000 in damages to the garage, with $14,000 in content damages and $2,100 in damages to a truck parked near the garage.

The owner of the house was able to get a car out of the garage, she said. There were no injuries.

STATE FINALISTS: Sashabaw Junior High is headed for the state finals of the Science Olympiad. They finished second in the regional contest on March 23. They also placed second in the Oakland County Science Challenge the weekend before. The state finals are April 27 at Michigan State University. Team members are Jennifer Fauss, Jeff Alkire, Bret Cottick,

Bridge closing

The bridge crossing Upper and Lower Silver Lakes on Silver Lake Road will be closed beginning Monday, April 8, according to Dennis Pajot of the Oakland County Road Commission.

Located between Walton Boulevard and Dixie Highway in Waterford Township, the bridge is to be closed for a period of six weeks for repairs.

Detour signs will be installed, directing traffic to use Sashabaw Road instead.

Pajot emphasized that the bridge is not dangerous.

"The bridge isn't in any danger of coming down," he said, adding that it will be closed only to protect the workers doing repairs.

Forgery charges

A Sterling Heights man has been arraigned on charges of forgery and embezzlement in 52nd District Court, according to a court spokesperson.

Charles Arthur Clark, 25, appeared before Judge Gerald McNally on April 1, on charges that he forged a $1,950 check while employed by Joseph and Mary Cook of Independence Township during January of 1984.

Clark, who was charged with forgery and embezzlement over $100, stood mute at his arraignment, according to the spokesperson.

A plea of not guilty was entered in his behalf.

Clark is scheduled for a preliminary examination before McNally on April 12.

Bond was set at $50,000 and Clark was remanded to the Oakland County Jail, the spokesperson said.

Board urged to reconsider lunch

We are thankful for the long-awaited multipurpose rooms added to each of the Clarkston elementary schools.

However, we feel that not using it as a lunchroom is a great injustice to the students. Just to name a few of the reasons: unsanitary conditions; much needed time away from classrooms and teacher; and, of course, the voters were under the premise that the multipurpose rooms would be used as lunchrooms among other things.

Children use paste, crayons, etc., at their desks each day.

I am sure after the use of these items, every student doesn't wipe off his or her desk before eating, making this an unsanitary condition. Waste baskets in the rooms should not be used for discarded food.

Children need time away from the classroom environment and teachers.

If a lunchroom was available, children would be able to sit with various classmates each day promoting new friendships and healthy peer relationships. We feel the children should realize the classrooms are for learning, and socializing should be done elsewhere.

When we voted "yes" to the proposal, it was under the impression the multipurpose rooms would be used for a variety of activities including the use as a lunchroom.

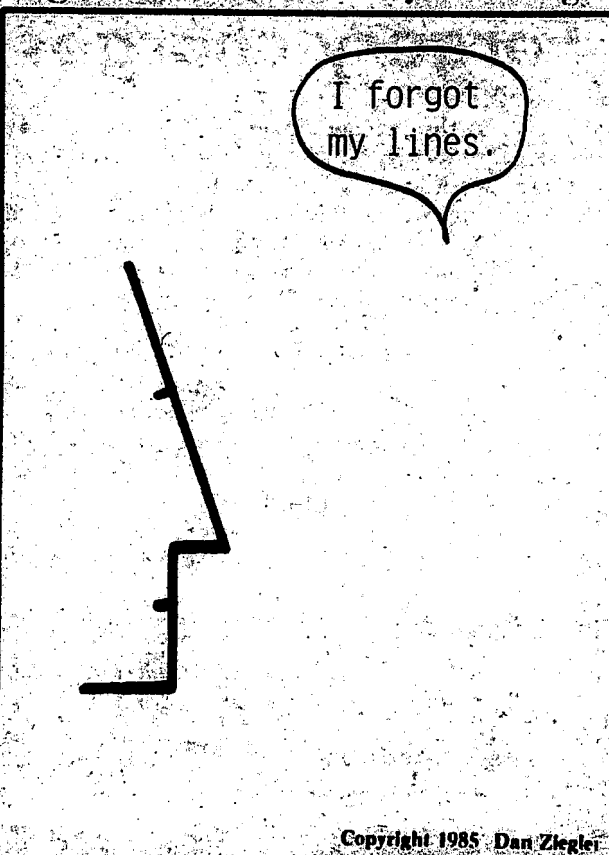

We believe most of the people voting yes were under the same impression. This was, in our opinion, one of the main reasons the proposal was passed.

It's for all the reasons mentioned above we strongly recommend the board reconsider its position on the use of the multipurpose rooms being used as lunchrooms for the 1985-86 school year.

We urge the board to study this matter further for the good of our children.

Credit where due

At the annual meeting we were chided several times, like uneducated school children, by Supervisor Ronk for not voicing our opinions to the township board prior to the selection of a new fire chief.

His memory can't possibly be that short—what about the period of time between the fire commission's recommendation and the actual hiring?

The people were amazed that the township board did not take the recommendation of the fire commission. Was the township board that oblivious to what the people were saying? I hardly think so.

Mr. Holman said he selected the new fire chief because our fire department isn't any good and the new fire chief will make it better.

Mr. Holman apparently knows nothing about the fire department or he would be aware of the fact that one man does not make a good fire department.

Let's give credit where credit is due. We already have an excellent fire department and neither Mr. Holman nor the new fire chief had anything to do with it.

Jim's Jottings

Jim Sherman

The snow is gone, my yard looks like a disaster area, and I don't have urge number 1 to clean it up. I'm hoping for more snow to re-cover it.

I think we should have had a January thaw, followed by a February thaw, then have Spring arrive when the calendar, stars and weatherman said it should.

I'm blaming the lack of Spring for my lack of enthusiasm for cleaning my yard. It's Hazel's house, my yard. I'm also blaming missing springtime weather for economic doldrums being experienced by numerous businesses.

Buyers need nice weather, or at least a spurt of it, to give them hope God hasn't forgotten to change the sun's route. Sunshine opens purses. You can quote me.

However, a man of my age shouldn't have to wait for good weather to entice him to do the inevitable. I should be able to talk myself into cleaning up all the debris of New Year's Day ice storm.

After all, if I clean it up when weather is inclement, I'll be more ready to hit the links, the lakes, and the streams. So, why not get to it, boy?

Because it's going to be a lot of work.

God must have wanted my yard to look like that or he wouldn't have grown tree tops and branches over the entire 3 acres.

He didn't give me time to clean up the tree that He blew over two years ago in my yard. Don't you just love hearing a lazy man make excuses?

(We interrupt this diatribe to ask if you heard about the guy who said to his friend, "I got a set of golf clubs for my wife." The friend responded, "Sounds like a good trade.")

Don't get upset ladies, just change the gender and tell it your way.

Where was I, oh, yeah. I got the tops of two 25 ft. cedar trees, plus half another cedar, branches from maples, branches from junk trees, and considerable roadside debris beckoning me from outside the house, and silent urging from inside to get the mess cleaned up.

I'll tell you how I usually clean up my yard in the Spring. Generally, of course, there's just twigs and leaves. I put old blades on my lawn tractor and shred (mulch) everything in sight.

I remember reading once in a Michigan State University "care of your lawn" release, that mulch and grass clippings make for healthy lawns. And, I believe them. I tend to believe just what I want to.

Right now I believe I better get out there and get that lawn cleaned up. God has that look in Her eye.

RARE FRIENDSHIP

By Brad Baker

I got in a fight with my friend today, and I was really hurt.

We yelled and drug each others' feelings roughly through the dirt.

I regret every moment of everything I said. I really didn't mean it when I said I wished he was dead.

We used to be inseperable; we were two of a kind. I loved him from the bottom of my mind.

Oh, I couldn't see him, but I knew he was there. The bond we had between us was very, very rare.

I said something I shouldn't have, and he got mad; went away. Who will I talk to now; who will I obey.

I was really scared that he was leaving; I felt inside a drain. He said without him I would surely go insane.

I knew he was right; my friend is always right. I begged him to come back; never again would I fight.

We were once friends but we parted as foes. Now what I'm to do with my life nobody, nobody knows.

Record request

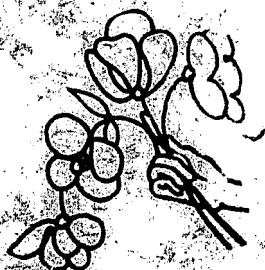

In view of the controversy regarding the selection of the fire chief, I think it only fair you print Dale Bailey's qualifications as you did those of Mr. Carver last week.

P.S. The "volunteer" firmen are paid by the hour for their dedicated service.

Editor's note: Captain Dale Bailey joined the department as an on-call firefighter in 1954. He became a full-time firefighter in 1974, and acting fire chief in November 1984. Bailey attended Michigan State University one year and has taken about 28 classes related to his firefighting duties. They include law enforcement, arson seminars, state fire instructor, advanced first aid and cardio-pulmonary resuscitation.

Spring greetings from Florida

We send our spring greetings from Fort Myers, Fla., where we are spending the winter in the Orange Harbor Mobile Home Park.

This past week, we joined about 80 of the park's Michiganians for a pot luck supper. Thirty-one other states are represented among the folks who live here!

We're fortunate to be in this very unique park. It is located on the mile-wide Caloosahatchie River, the winter home of the endangered manatee.

The Caloosahatchie is part of a cross-Florida waterway that enables craft to cross the state from the Gulf to the Atlantic. Park residents can watch the passing yachts, cruise ships, barges and a variety of other boats as they move to and fro in the rivers.

As for the manatee: The park has one of the few locations in Florida where one can see these gentle, ungainly, huge "sea-cows" that can weigh up to a ton!

They gather in the warmed waters of the Caloosahatchie and its tributary the Orange River to spend the winter months to have their calves.

The weather front that moved in the past weekend to bring tornados, death and destruction to Venice, a town 30 miles north of here, brought welcome one-inch rainfall to the park here to break the months-long drought that had plagued the area.

Daily temperatures in the park at this season are in the 80s. The birds are nesting, trees are growing new leaves and the air is fragrant with the scent of orange blossoms.

Cheer up! Spring is on the way! See you about the first week in May.

Election apathy

I noticed with interest a recent newspaper report that the Clarkston Village Council had discussed a possible change from the annual election of three trustees for two-year terms to the biennial election of three trustees for four-year terms.

The reported reason for the change under consideration was the cost of holding annual elections when seats were often uncontested and voter apathy resulted in low voter turnout.

Although public satisfaction with a current council could just as easily account for the lack of opposing candidates and low voter turnout, rather than what is normally considered voter "apathy," I believe the council is justified in trying to avoid needless expense in the election process.

However, if the fact that an election is uncontested is itself the reason for low voter participation, then a change to four-year trustee terms would, in my view, only compound the problem.

Most persons will not run for local public office unless they believe they can fulfill their obligation to the electorate and serve the entire term for which they were elected.

Thus, persons willing to commit their time for a two-year term may well be dissuaded from candidacy by a four-year term.

However, there is another option apparently available to the council. The statute authorizing the change to four-year terms also appears to allow, as an alternative, the biennial election of all six trustees for two-year terms.

This option would allow the fiscal savings to be realized while avoiding the disincentive to candidacy of four-year terms.

As some trustees always run for re-election, con-

Vacation highlights

Jim Fitzgerald

The highlight of my vacation was sitting by the swimming pool in Ft. Myers Beach, in 84-degree sunshine, and reading in the newspaper that back home the snow was so heavy it caused the Silverdome roof to cave in.

Misery loves company, and happiness loves to gloat about escaping misery. But the escape wasn't clean. I drove over 3,000 miles to Florida and back, but I didn't drive 50 of them before the red "Check Engine" sign began flashing on my Oldsmobile dashboard, causing my stomach to shrivel. This was less than 24 hours after I paid $103 for an engine tune-up.

The temperature outside, where the engine needed checking, was near zero, but inside the warm car I was dressed for a southern destination, in short pants and open-toed shirt. Yes, I know the Auto Club and other fluffy travel experts advise motorists to always carry snow boots and St. Bernard dogs in the trunk, in case of a cold weather emergency. But I never pay any attention to that advice because it is always my intention, in case of car trouble on the freeway, to immediately commit suicide, which requires no special costume.

BESIDES, WHAT DOES that red sign mean by ordering "Check Engine"? The demand seems to be that I immediately park and look at the engine. I did that once, but I didn't know what to do next. According to my check, the engine was where it belonged, below the hood, but so what? No matter how many "Exit" signs he reads, a man alone inside a theater, and too dumb to operate doors, is doomed to eat popcorn off the floor.

Because of experience, and despite the protests of my wife and my shriveling stomach I decided to ignore the "Check Engine" sign, even though it flashed on every few minutes for several days. It had happened before, and my favorite Olds dealership had assured me by phone that it was probably some kind of electronic screwup not worth bothering them about, at least not until next year when the service department might not be so goldarn busy.

I figured I wouldn't care if the engine blew up and killed me because, as mentioned previously, I had no desire to live in the same world in which there was a blown-up engine belonging to me. And if the dashboard sign didn't really mean what it kept saying, I would complete my trip safely and perhaps live to see the day when my favorite Olds dealership is destroyed by a rampaging wolf whose arrival was forecast by a little boy who was ignored because he had cried "Check Wolf" too many times when he was really only screwing up.

ANOTHER VACATION lowlight occurred on the tennis court where, dressed spiffily in my white tennis shorts and open-toed shirt, I somehow managed to defeat Terrible Jean, my much older but stronger sister. But my triumph was ruined when Terrible Jean turned to several attractive women waiting to use the court and instructed them to notice that the legs of my underwear shorts were drooping way below my tennis shorts.

Mostly, however, it was a grand vacation, thanks to the snow that fell on the Silverdome, not me, and also thanks to granddaughter Emily, who made the trip by air to remind me that three-year-olds always talk better sense than cliché-spouting oldsters.

She didn't want to, but Emily had to leave for home two days before I did. "Emily, what am I going to do without you?" I asked.

"Get me," she said. Certainly I thought about Emily's unhelpfully succinct answer often on the long drive home. While the dashboard cried wolf, it helped a lot.

Residents OK property purchase by township

By Carolyn Walker

Officials of Independence Township have the go-ahead by residents to make two property purchases.

Approximately 40 residents in attendance at the annual meeting March 30 authorized the purchase of 40 acres from the Edward C. Levy Mining Co. on Sashabaw Road, as well as property for Fire Station 1.

A special meeting was held immediately following the annual meeting to formalize the purchase of the Levy property, because Levy had to be notified the same day of the township's decision.

Independence Township has been negotiating with Levy for several years to purchase the property, but the purchase had to be authorized by a vote of the people. Levy had originally proposed using the property for gravel mining, a request denied by the state.

The property is near the headwaters of the Clinton River and Independence Oaks County Park and adjacent to approximately 180 acres recently purchased by Oakland County Parks and Recreation for annexation to the park.

Many residents at the meeting expressed concern that such a purchase by the township would pave the way for other mining threats, thus forcing the township into more land purchases.

But, township officials did not agree with those worries.

"The major objective of this (purchase) is not to stop mining, but to preserve wetlands," said township attorney Gerald Fisher, explaining the position of board members.

Supervisor Frank Ronk agreed. "We are dealing with this piece of property only," he said. "We got into this because of the resistance to gravel mining. We're not going to become land barons."

The township bought 80 acres from Levy in 1983 following approval by voters.

Under the provisions of the purchase agreement, the township will buy the additional 40 acres and a deed restriction will be placed on 20 more acres across Sashabaw Road.

The restriction will prohibit mining on the 20 acres, which Levy still owns, Fisher said.

Levy is asking a total of $132,600 for the 40-acre parcel, according to Ronk, who called the cost, "a pretty good-sized chunk of change."

Ronk said he was uncertain how the property will be used, adding that it is possible the back portion of the land, which is wetlands, will be deeded to the county.

Board members also discussed the option of selling the property for development, with a provision that it not be used for mining.

No decision was reached on how the property would be used.

In addition to the Levy land purchase, the citizens authorized the township board to purchase property for a new fire station.

Fire Station 1, on Church Street, has been deemed unsafe by members of the Independence Township Fire Committee, who recommended that a new station be built.

Site and price for the new station have not been determined, according to Ronk.

The resolution approved by the people provides that the purchase be made at "fair market value."

Voters approve $3.7 million budget for '85-86

The $3.7 million budget for Independence Township received a stamp of approval from residents at the annual meeting March 30.

The about 40 residents in attendance voted to approve the proposed 1985-86 budget of $3,705,055 as presented by Clerk Richard Holman.

Holman briefly explained the workings of various funds and how money was collected before a vote of the people was taken.

He told the residents there was a possibility Federal Revenue Sharing funds could be eliminated in 1986 as proposed by President Ronald Reagan.

Approximately $201,250 in federal revenue funds are available this fiscal year.

Township officials anticipate that the federal revenue funds will be used in the widening of M-15, according to Supervisor Frank Ronk.

In addition, a property purchase tax approved by voters in 1979 for five years has reached its end, according to Holman.

Approximately $6,000 in interest generated from that tax remains in the proposed budget, he said.

The property purchase fund generated approximately $104,000 (including interest) during the fiscal year of 1984-85, Holman said.

According to Holman, a rainy day fund of $43,886 was not used last year, so that money will be carried over to this year.

The general fund is the major fund available to the township for expenditures, Holman said.

There are, however, other funds with specific purposes. The two largest include:

•Fire fund, proposed at $1,697,782 for 1985-86 from which fire department salaries and expenses are paid. A portion of the fund will be used to build a new Fire Station 2, Holman said.

•Police fund, proposed at $1,224,350, which constitutes a contract for police services with the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

Other funds include the library fund, safety path fund and the improvement revolving fund, from which an IBM computer was purchased for township offices this year.

Clarkston ponders election change

A proposal by Village Clerk Norma Goyette to increase the length of trustees' terms from two years to four years saw no action at the March 25 Village Council meeting.

According to President Carol Eberhardt, Goyette suggested the increase in terms because of the cost surrounding elections.

The average village election costs approximately $400, according to Eberhardt.

Eberhardt said some of the expenses "might not be totally necessary."

She added that the issue would probably be addressed again at the April 8 meeting.

No action was taken on the subject at the March 25 meeting because trustees Sharron Catallo and James Schultz were absent, Eberhardt said.

Lengthen terms?

tinuity of government would not appear to be a problem with the two-year option.

In any event, any change in the timing of elections or the terms for trustees directly affects the frequency with which the electorate can exercise their most fundamental right.

For such reason, I would urge that the opinion of the electorate on this issue be sought by holding a formal hearing, or in some other manner, even though the council is statutorily empowered to enact the change without such prior input.

HYPERACTIVITY
REFINED SUGAR
By Tanya Luchkovitz-Weeder

Over ten years ago, Dr. Benjamin Feingold published material indicating food additives as a possible cause of hyperactivity in children. By eliminating foods containing such additives, demonstrable benefits were achieved.

But did Dr. Feingold overlook another cause, refined sugar?

Many of the refined-sugar foods also contain the most additives. When these foods are eliminated, you're eliminating the additives and also a major source of sugar.

Results of clinical work-ups done at the University of South Carolina, using 5 hour glucose tolerance test, found that 74 percent of the hyperactive children studied showed abnormal patterns in their blood sugar responses to glucose.

They also observed that hyperactive behavior, particularly destructive, aggressive behavior and restlessness, was much worse following high sugar snacks or meals.

Substituting nutritious snacks or meals provided measurable improvement immediately.

These studies imply that your child's social and academic success may well depend on your controlling the amount of sugar in his/her diet.

Mid-term raises illegal for Clarkston Council

Plans by the Village Council to vote on raises were thwarted at the March 25 meeting.

Attorney John Steckling informed members that state law prohibits the giving of raises in the middle of a member's term.

According to President Carol Eberhardt, the issue of raises is placed on the agenda at the end of every March.

Raises have always been considered (though not always implemented) annually, she said.

"It was a total surprise," Eberhardt said of Steckling's announcement. "When you have a job, you deserve to get a raise."

According to Eberhardt, the trustees have not received raises in 11 years.

"We have to reassess our pay scale," said Eberhardt. "I feel there's a real gross inequity there."

Since one-half of the board would be ineligible for raises under this rule, the council decided not to issue any raises.

Under the state regulation, trustees David Raup, Fontie ApMadoc and James Schultz would have been eligible for raises because they were re-elected and began new terms this month, Eberhardt said.

Trustees Sharron Catallo, Ethel Sinclair, Jon Gaskell, Eberhardt, Treasurer Artemus Pappas and Clerk Norma Goyette would not have been eligible this year because they are in the middle of two-year terms.

Trustees are elected to two-year terms, with alternating elections every year.

Currently, trustees earn $20 per meeting, the president earns $50 per meeting, and the clerk is paid $5,900 from the general fund, according to Eberhardt.

The treasurer is paid $5,600 from the general fund, with an additional $1,000 coming from the sewer fund, Eberhardt said.

In addition, unlike township trustees, council members are only paid for meetings they attend, said Eberhardt, who wanted to boost the trustees' pay to $35 per meeting.

Scholarship takes McKoin to Texas

Basketball career sets up business career

By Dan Vandenhemel

Four years of basketball, a broken nose and a college education give Scott McKoin no reason to regret going to the University of Texas at San Antonio.

The 1981 graduate of Clarkston High School is finishing his degree in business management in May at the university. One of the major reasons he decided to go to Texas was the offer of a full basketball scholarship.

Basketball paved the avenue for the southern education.

"I was really impressed with the school, the coach and the area when I went for a visit," McKoin said by phone from San Antonio. "If I didn't come down here, I probably would have gone to Michigan State or Michigan like everyone else."

McKoin played every position on the court for the Roadrunners, a fact that gave him plenty of court time. His senior year, he averaged close to six points a game and three rebounds. The 6-foot-5, 215 pounder netted a career-high 17 points against the University of Texas at Arlington.

Defense was McKoin's calling card. Many times he'd find himself playing center against opponents five inches taller and 50 pounds heavier. He credits his strong defense to his days at Clarkston High School.

He was a junior on the team led by Tim McCormick that made it to the state semi-finals. That year the Wolves finished with a 26-1 record. McKoin was the second tallest at 6-foot-5 on that team to the 6-foot-10 McCormick.

"I've got to give Tim a lot of credit," McKoin said. "I always had to guard him in high school. I've always had a knack for playing defense."

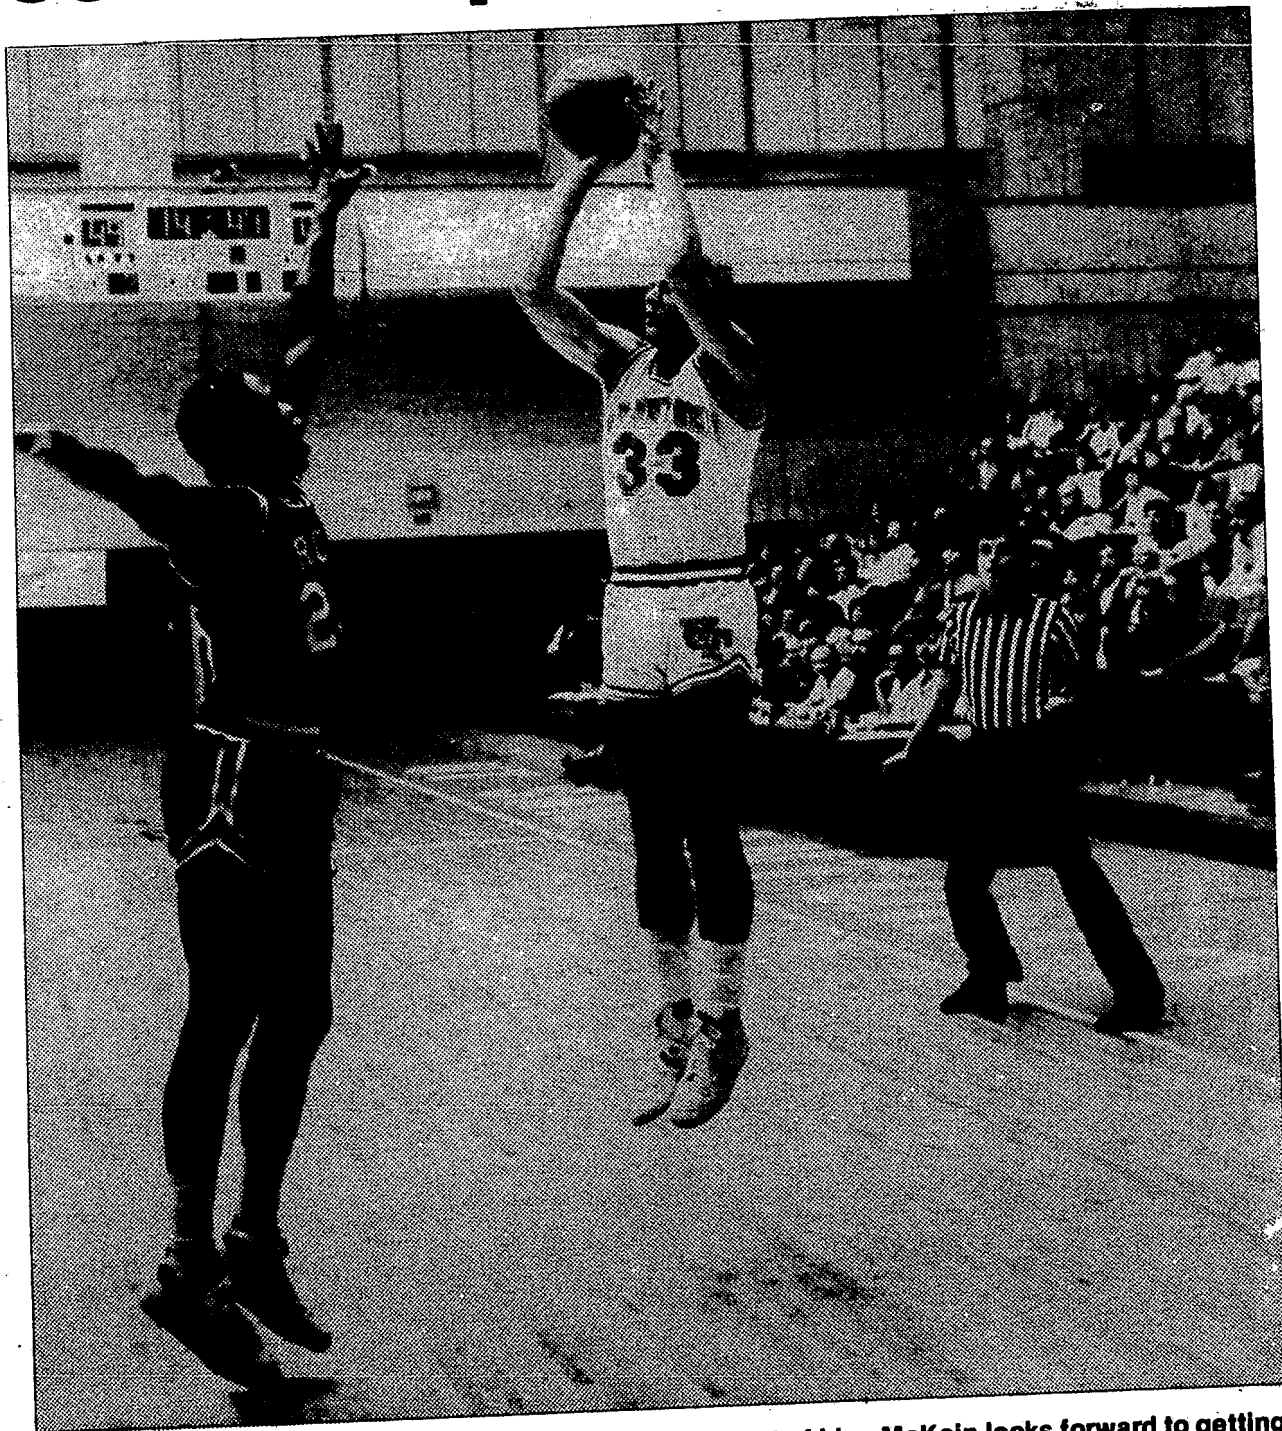

While playing against the bigger opponents, McKoin didn't always come out on top. He suffered a cut on his head that required 10 stitches to close and a broken nose that had to be set three times. Both injuries came from the elbows of bigger players.

"I really didn't have a true position," he said. "They played me all over, it was weird. We had a unique team."

Now that the season is over and the Roadrunners finished with a 18-10 mark, McKoin can't see himself pursuing his basketball career.

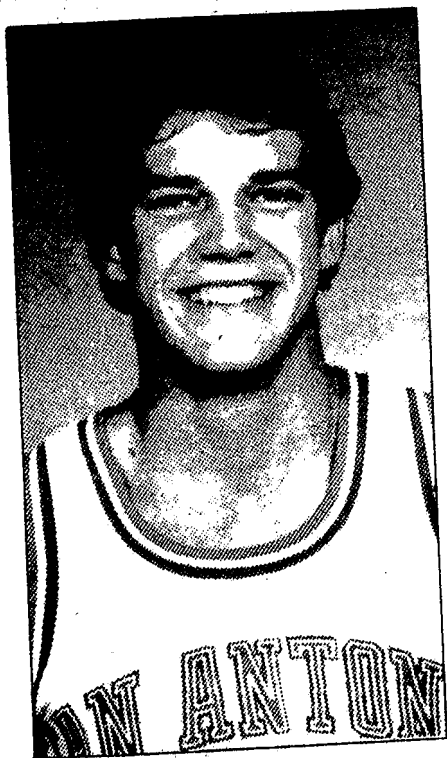

"I think it's pretty much over. The pros are out of the question," he said. "For my size, I don't have enough skills. Some people have mentioned playing in France or Italy, but I don't think so."

"I'm thankful of what I got out of playing basketball," he continued. "I'm sorry to see it end, but I'm looking forward to starting my business career."

Scott McKoin goes up for two of his eight points against Rice University. With graduation in front of him, McKoin looks forward to getting into the business world.

"I'm thankful of what I got out of playing basketball. I'm sorry to see it end."

Up My Alley

Opening day thrills

Dan Vandenhemel

Ready or not, the baseball season is here. No more hide and seek, no more groping for information about the National Pastime.

April 8 marks the first of 4,212 regular season major league baseball games. The Detroit Tigers will be one of the feature opening acts this year.

When the Cleveland Indians come to town for a 1 p.m. starting time on Monday, sitting about eight rows behind the third base dugout will be me.

Being excited about attending is an understatement.

This is my first Opening Day in three years. Prior to that, I made five straight. I'm sure it's not a record, but helping to usher in the season is becoming a tradition.

In those five straight early April ball games, events have ranged from the freezing to the frustrating.

The dates are as cloudy as the skies have been, but the happenings are etched in stone.

One year, three of us were sitting in the first row of the upperdeck in right field throwing snowballs at the Texas Ranger right-fielder. Game-time temperature was 36 degrees and the wind was blowing straight into our faces.

The winter parkas and the scarves didn't help but we didn't care—it was Tiger Opening Day.

Another time, eight of us left school early for a day in the sun.

This is what spring is supposed to be like. With the mercury pushing 70, we started the day with a rousing game of whiffle ball. After a couple of half-hearted innings, we left for our great seats near the third base dugout.

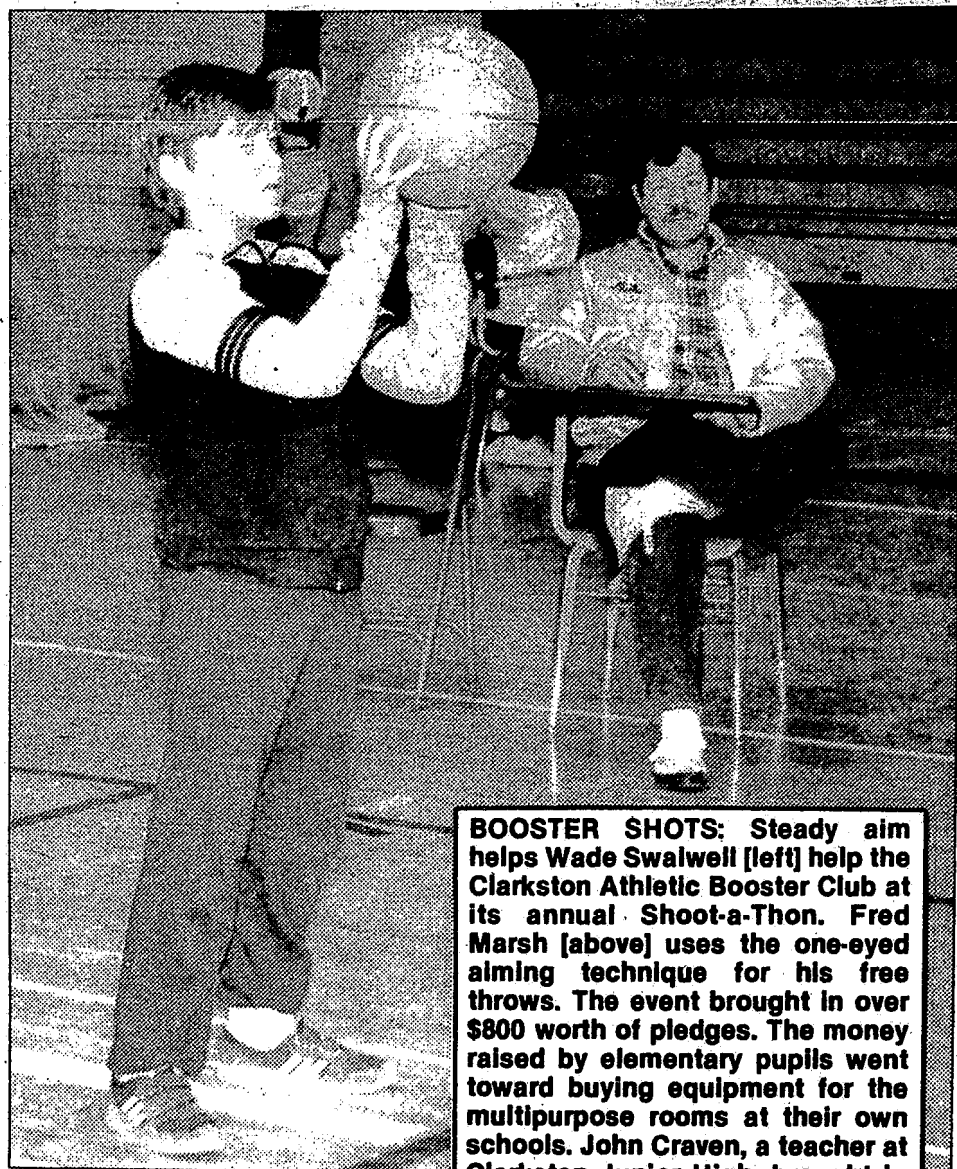

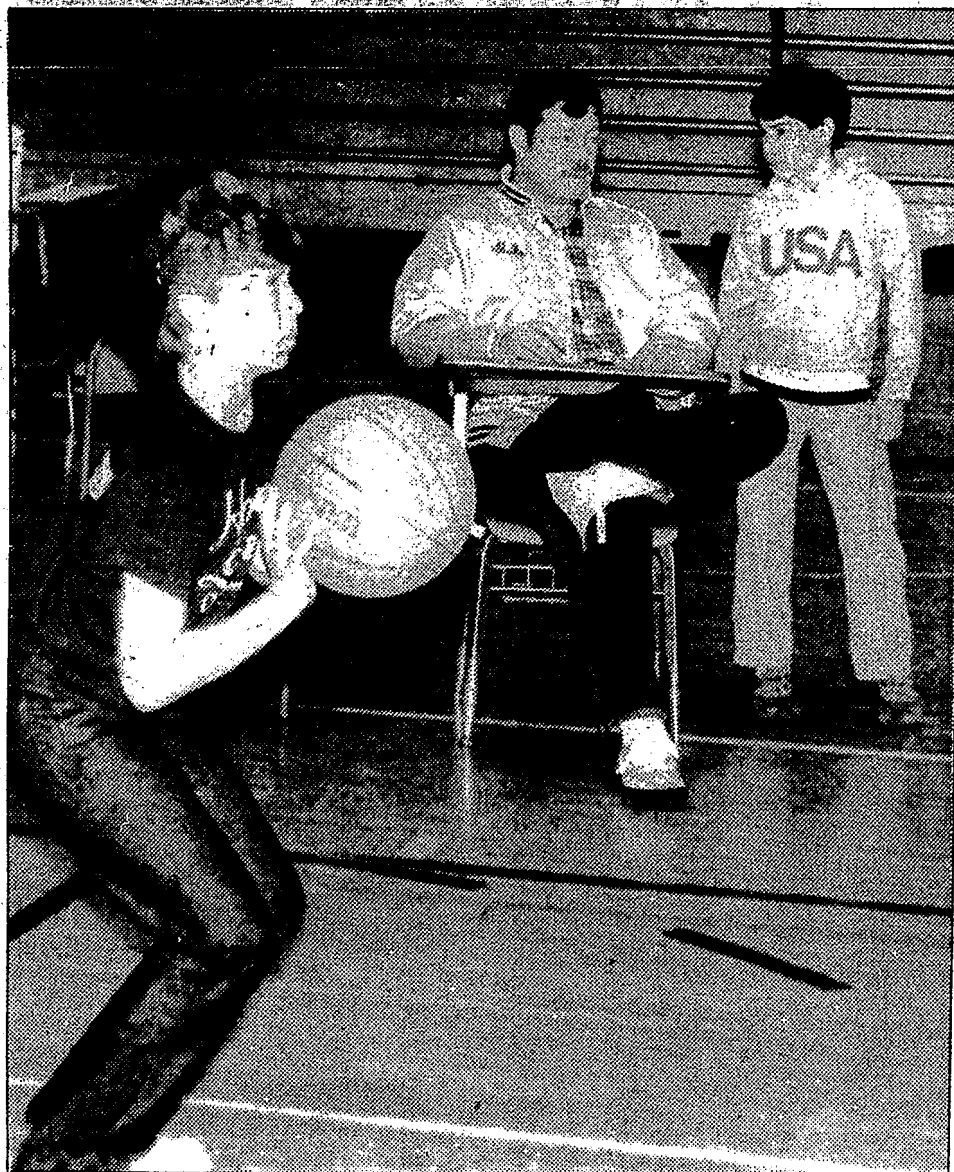

Around the third or fourth inning, a friend and I took off for a concession-stand run.

Just before ordering six hot dogs and two knockwursts, we heard a roar from the field, which was followed immediately by a moment of silence.

As we ran up the ramp and could see the field, we saw the opposition outfielders were retrieving the ball that Jason Thompson just deposited off the right-field roof.

For years the two of us have been razed by the rest of the group.

Who knows, maybe this year Kirk Gibson will hit the roof or Alan Trammell will hit a grand slam while I'm chasing down some nachos.

The event brought in over $800 worth of pledges. The money raised by elementary pupils went toward buying equipment for the multipurpose rooms at their own schools. John Craven, a teacher at Clarkston Junior High, brought in the most money with $119.85. Jeff Tungate sank the most shots with 88 out of a 100.

Electronics program wired to win

The Industrial Electronics program at Oakland County's four vocational education centers is a winner.

The United States Department of Education selected the program as the Michigan winner of the "Secretary's Award for an Outstanding Vocational Education Program."

Donald Peters, electronics instructor at Clarkston's Northwest Oakland Vocational Education Center, is pleased and proud of the honor.

"It's nice," he said. "Hopefully it will serve to reach out to the (high) schools and show some of the quality programs that we do have here."

The award was formally presented March 1 by David Howell, educational officer of the U.S. Department of Education, Region V, Chicago, to Dr. William Keane, superintendent of Oakland Schools.

Howell said that accessibility of the Industrial Electronics program to the county's high school juniors and seniors was a key factor in the award selection.

The winning program is offered at vocational centers in Clarkston, Pontiac, Royal Oak and Wixom, providing 232 students enrollment opportunity in the program from the county's 28 local school districts and 37 private schools.

State-of-the-art equipment in classrooms plus individualized teaching methods were cited as important elements in the evaluation.

Oakland's winning vocational program is known nationwide for its innovative approach.

In the summer of 1982, it offered the nation's first "Introduction to Robotics" program. Since then, Oakland vocational has pioneered "Computer Electronics" for high school students, "Introduction to High Technology" and "Career Exploration in Electronics."

Receiving the award for NWOVEC were Kristine Buda and Michael Angus, students in the program; Peters; and Daniel Manthei, principal.

Attending the ceremony were Clarkston schools Superintendent Milford Mason and school board president Janet Thomas.

Joseph Jisa, an electronics student at NWOVEC from Brandon High School, works on a lab assignment. The course work in the In-

we've drafted a new name. . .

Publishers of:

- The Oxford Leader
- The Clarkston News
- The Lake Orion Review
- Ad-Vertiser
- Penny Stretcher

Why a new name?

Logical question. And, we have a logical answer . . . at least it's logical to us. The name we've had since our incorporation in 1966, The Oxford Leader, Inc., just became awkward for people working out of other offices.

Editors, sales people, reporters, and office personnel at The Lake Orion Review and The Clarkston News, when explaining who they worked for had to say The Oxford Leader, the name of another newspaper. Now, when they say Sherman Publications, the confusion of naming two newspapers is gone.

There is another reason, maybe even stronger. We do more than run newspapers. Seventeen percent of our business is commercial job printing. We print publications for the Boy Scouts, Pioneer Historical Society of Oakland County, a paper in Auburn Hills, and several more periodicals. We are newspapers, printers, and publishers.

While Sherman Publications may create a certain image in the reader or viewer's mind, it isn't as limited as saying the name of a newspaper.

One other tidbit. If you're wondering why we picked a triangle to show our logo it's because surveys have proven the public remembers triangles longer than any other shape.

Hope you're one who remembers triangles, too.

OLYMPICS OF THE MIND WINNERS: A junior division team of sixth-, seventh-, and eighth-graders from Sashabaw Junior High placed fourth at the Olympics of the Mind Regionals, March 23. The senior team, made up of ninth-graders Lisa Langdon, Amy Laidler, Laurie Clements, Shannon Donkerbrook, Jody Bouck, Carrie Mallett and Ann Mudge, took first place at the March 23 event. They're going to the state finals at Michigan State University on May 4.

Puppy love: training Leader Dogs

By Dan Vandenhemel

A person can get attached to a bouncing bundle of fur called a puppy. Raising them from the time they're 7 weeks old until they're 13 months old, then having them taken away can be especially hard.

People who raise dogs for Leader Dogs for the Blind train puppies for one year before returning them to the Rochester, Mich., program.

Diane Smith and Wendy Rollins of Springfield Township know what it's like to have a perspective Leader Dog in the house.

The two Andersonville Road neighbors each took puppies from the same litter. Wendy's dog, Sadie, is still under the watchful eye of the Rollins family.

Polo, Diane's puppy, had to be sent back because of a bone deficiency in his back leg.

"His leg wasn't growing properly and he was limping," said the Clarkston High School sophomore. "My mother took him back while I was at school. It was hard letting him go. The people at the school took him away from the counter real fast. I guess a lot of women tend to cry then."

Polo then went to a family on a waiting list to receive a dog that didn't make the grade to be a Leader Dog.

Diane doesn't think she'll get another Leader Dog puppy because soon after that her family got another dog.

Trainers like Diane and Wendy take the dog out in public to get them used to crowds.

"You have to socialize them," said Wendy, a Clarkston High School junior. "They can't be scared of cars or loud noises. We take them to malls and have them walk around on a leash."

German shepherds, Labradors, and golden retrievers make the best Leader Dogs because they are easier for a blind person to take care of, Wendy said.

"We don't do a lot of training, just the basics like walking next to you," said Wendy. "To see if the dog passes, they walk the dog down the middle of Rochester Road to see if he can handle the cars."

Once the dog passes all the tests and becomes a Leader Dog, the person that did the early training gets a picture of the dog and its master.

Diane Smith and Wendy Rollins flank Sadie, a perspective Leader Dog for the blind. Wendy is raising Sadie for the Leader Dogs for the Blind program of Rochester, Mich.

Storytelling is a chance to act

Detroit Story League was founded in 1912

By Dan Vandenhemel

The flare for the dramatic, the urge to perform; two qualities that weigh heavily in membership to the Detroit Story League.

Bruce Smith of Clarkston fits the personality sketch. For the last five years, Smith has delighted nursery schools, libraries and business clubs with his stories.

The Snowapple Drive, Independence Township, resident explains, however, that he is not a typical club member.

Of the over 50 storytellers, only eight are male.

"A lot of the members are teachers or librarians," said Smith. "A lot of men feel they're too busy working and having a family. Maybe they think it doesn't fit the macho image."

Having the time isn't a major consideration for the 36-year-old Smith. He averages around seven "performances" a year. Those and monthly meetings don't take up much of his time.

The Detroit Story League was founded in 1912, as part of the National Story League, to preserve the art of telling stories.

Smith said he joined to fill a void in his life. He was a drama and speech teacher at Richmond High School for 10 years before leaving to open an employment agency. Today he's in charge of quality control for Florist Transworld Delivery (FTD).

"This gives me a chance to perform," he said. "A lot of people have a creative need to fulfill and this gives them a chance to do it."

When Smith learns a new story, his six children

"I read the story to get the idea and then take it as my own... I'm very animated and like to do character voices" and wife, Gerry, often hear the first performance.

—Bruce Smith

"They make a good sounding board," he said. "I'd rather tell a story to younger children—I really like them."

Smith's favorites involve animals with human traits in stories that teach the listeners something.

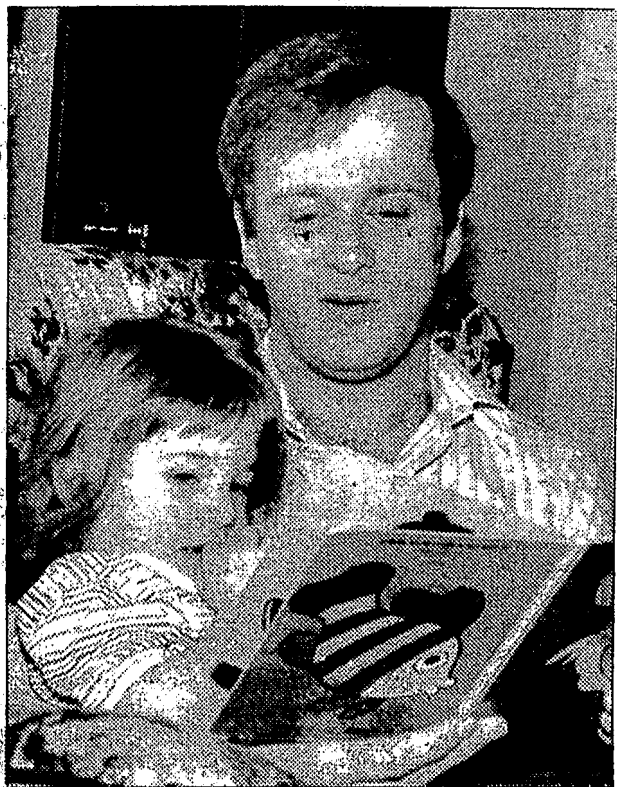

"I read the story to get the idea and then take it as my own," he said. "That's why I like the stories that are handed down from one to another."

"If someone wrote a story and saw me perform it, they would shudder. Some of the storytellers memorize it and vocalize it. I'm very animated and like to do character voices."

One of his memorable performances was at a businessmen's luncheon.

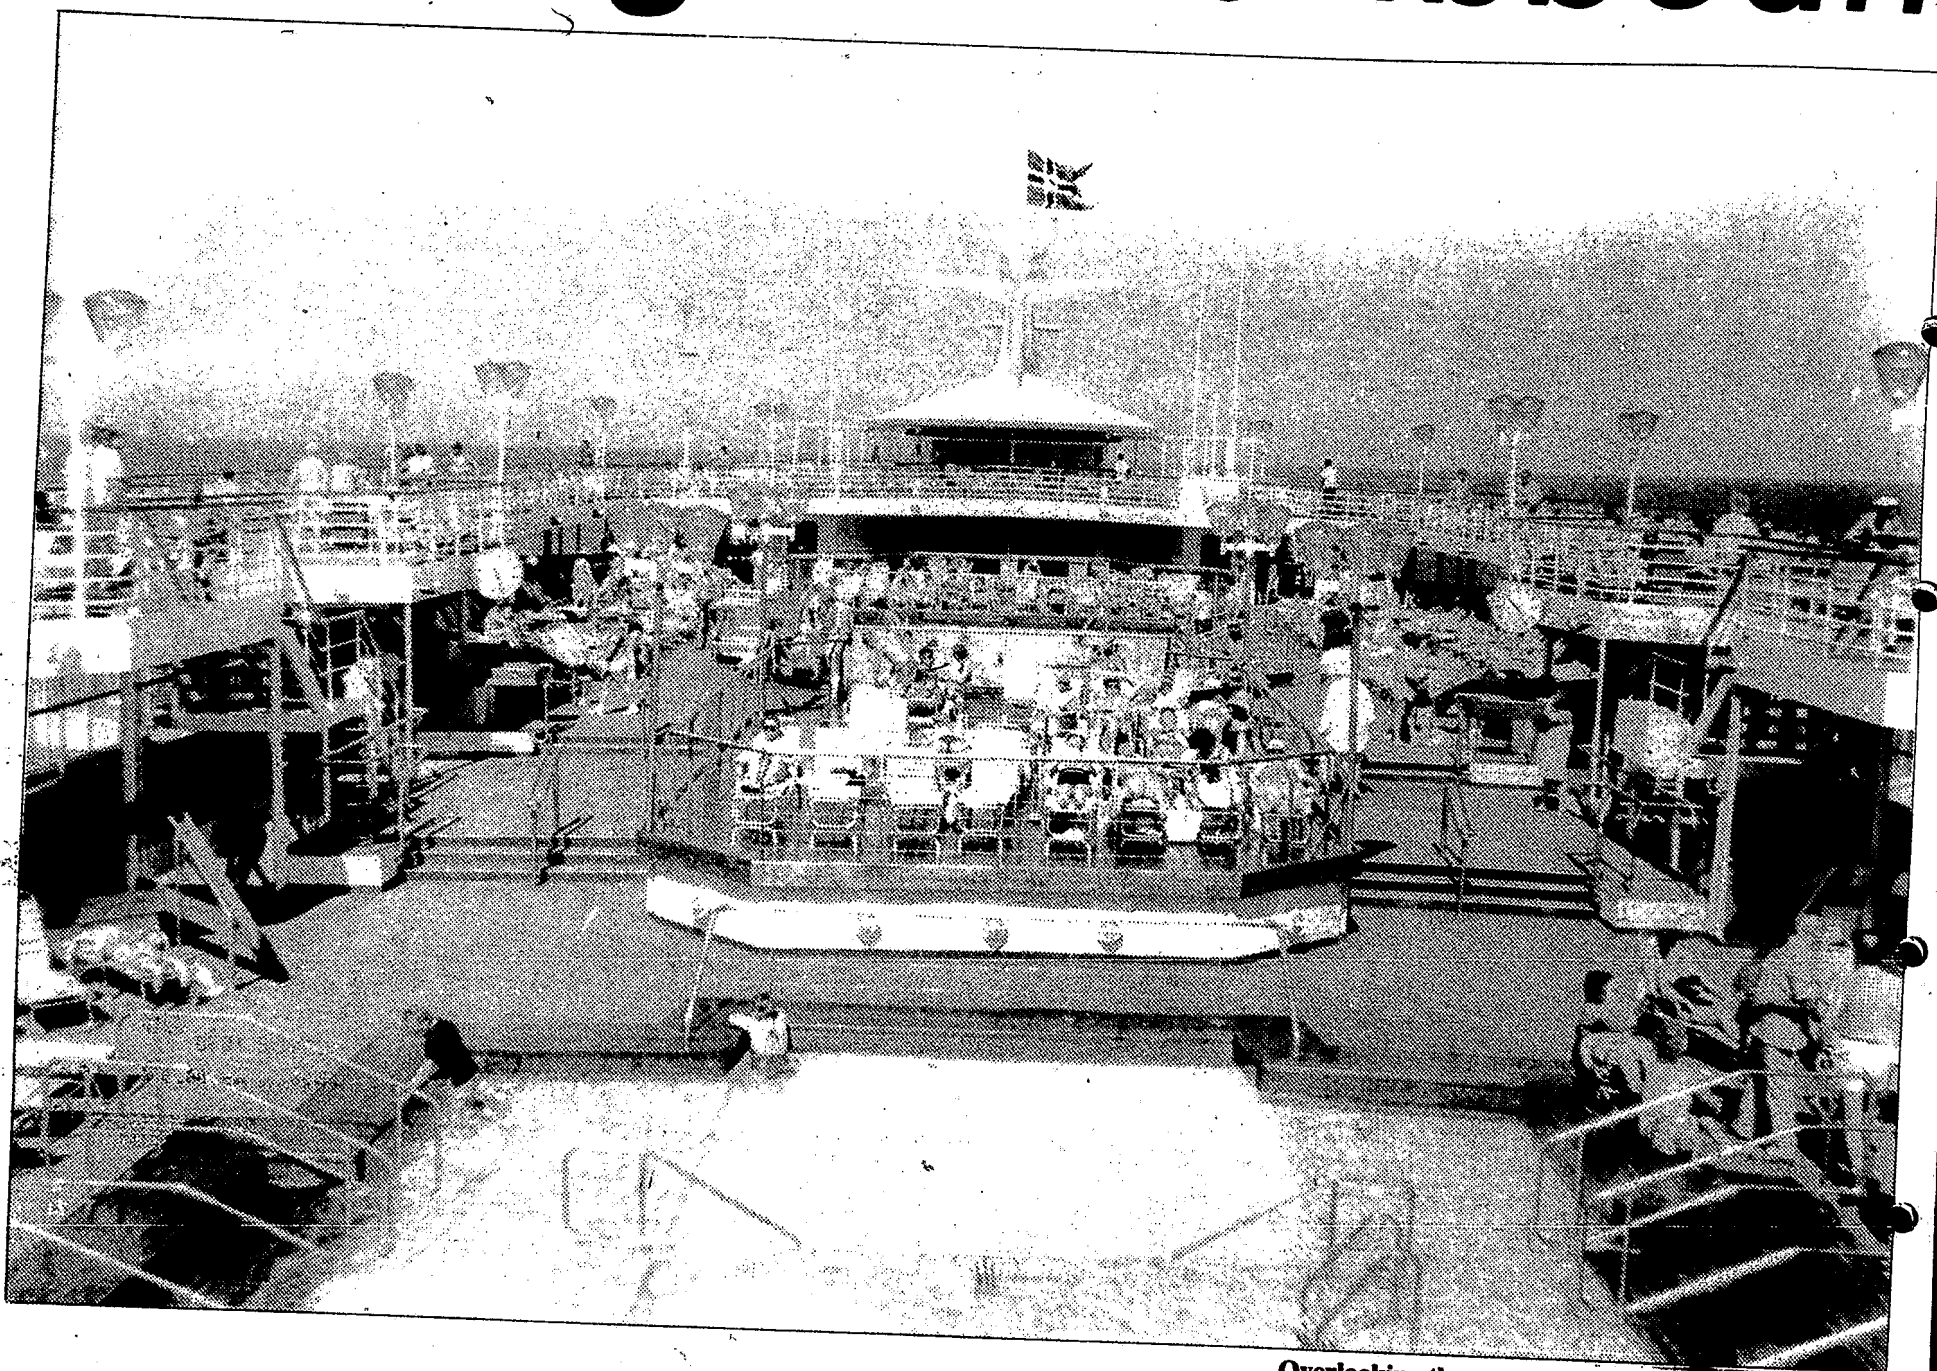

"I was really nervous. I didn't know how they would react," Smith said. "I must have done a pretty good job because they asked me to come back again."

Smith said the Detroit Story League is always looking for new members. For membership information or how to get a storyteller for a function, call 625-9325.

Lisa is spellbound by her father, Bruce Smith's storytelling. Smith is working to keep the art of storytelling alive through membership in the Detroit Story League.

Cruising the Caribbean.

By JAMES A. SHERMAN

Being aboard a passenger ship in the Virgin Islands in March is a whole 'nother world.

It's slowed-down living on sun-drenched seas. It's being waited on through days of carefree luxury.

It's fat city, and Coladas, and friendliness, and ports of call where jewelry stores seem to do 90 percent of the commerce.

For Hazel a cruise was bound to be a joy. For me, well I was just hoping the sea sickness that had plagued me since 1944 had been outgrown.

Weather has so much to do with most vacations, and we had the best possible. Seven days of full sunshine, with seas reaching no more than 5 feet. Our 705 ft. ship rarely tipped.

Knowing we'd someday take a cruise, I've read every article in Michigan Living magazine for two years on the subject, as well as 'going with' Rick Sylvan on his Detroit Free Press trips.

In the end, however, it was a matter of taking the suggestion of a travel agent. My only stipulation was that it be a big vessel and that it stop in St. Thomas.

Royal Caribbean's Song of America fit the need. Only two years old, it's said to be the largest cruise ship in the Caribbean, with the largest lounge, largest dining room, and carry the most people, 1,414.

It has sailed at capacity each week since its maiden voyage in Dec. 1982.

We'd been told staterooms could be small, but found our 7'4" x 16'4" room more than adequate. After all, you're seldom there.

Various questionnaires aboard ship make comparisons to hotels. They should drop that. A ship and a hotel are so different competition is nil for the vacationer's buck.

Royal Caribbean has three other cruise ships that date to 1970. It's a Norwegian company. We were told most cruise ships are registered in Norway.

Song of America has 12 sleeping decks. The one recommended for us cost $1,500 each. We could have paid $1,140 to $2,180.

For that you get all the food you can eat 24-hours a day, though they recommend the dining room seating hours. Two seatings are offered, main and second. Main is 7:30, noon and 6:30. Second, the one we chose, is 8:45, 1:30 and 8:30.

If you miss any of them you can have room service or eat out on the verandah (Sun Deck). Of course, every night at 12:30 there's a buffet. On Song of America this buffet had a theme each night, Mexican, Italian, etc.

The last night buffet is so elegant the first half hour is just for photographers. A half hour later the magnificent buffet tables look like disaster areas.

I was amazed at what lengths the hosts went to maintain a clean image. New carpeting was installed in some areas during our week, all the wood railings, steps, and pool decks were re-varnished, and painting was constant.

There's everything or nothing to do

Bare metal and rust are prohibited. As soon as the shore lines were drawn aboard, a painter covered the scraped area within minutes.

Our ship carried a crew of 500. Our waiter, you get to know him quite well, partly because he wants to impress enough to earn a big tip, I'm sure, was English.

He said most of the waiters were English, most cooks and bartenders Jamaican, most wine stewards Italian, beauticians were English, and Chinese manned the laundry... just like stereotyping.

All work. Waiters put in 90-100 hour weeks. He talked of burnout. Among the things that keep him busy is folding napkins. They are different each dinner. One night it took him an hour and a half to fold 28 napkins. They were fancy.

Overlooking the sun-swimming pool deck. The pools, filled with salt water direct from the sea daily, are popular mostly to lie around. This picture looks toward the stern. The highest set of windows is a bar featuring a 360 degree view. It's height is equivalent to a 12 story building.

When you first board ship you get a dining table assigned. It never changes. We were seated with Al and Betty Duell of Burton and Don and Twyla Grovom of Clio, both delightful couples, who did much to make our cruise more enjoyable.

There were several other Michigan people aboard, and there were over 40 states and countries on the roster.

Tables seat from six to a dozen. The larger the table the more people you meet, if that's your wish.

The breakfast menu is the only one that doesn't vary. But, everything is on it... rolls, bagels, toast, beverages, fruits, meats, fish, eggs benedict or any other way, pancakes, waffles, grits, etc.

Lunches go to salads, but always there's soup, choice of 5 or 6 entries, beverages, vegetables, and deserts.

Dinner is positively gluttonous. Waiters will bring you everything on the menu if you wish. Two deserts and two meat-fish orders were common. There was much sampling. At least two salads, two soups and four vegetables were offered.

Entrees were two fish, duck, chicken, steak, ham, chops, etc. just what you'd expect in a restaurant with a choice of five each night. If there was any part of any serving you didn't like, the waiters practically plea to correct it.

Desert offerings are a shame. I practically never eat desert in real life, but never turned it down aboard ship.

There were flambe deserts, chicken shaped pastries with ice cream, pies, cakes, eclairs, parfaits and puddings. Inevitably someone at the table would look around and say, "Oh, that looks good over there", and the waiter would bring one.

It was awful.

But, immediately after dinner, a show would start in

Caribbean quiet most of the time

The high bow of the Song of America.

one of the lounges (Song of America has three large lounges) and three bands.

Entertainment was great. There are eleven people in the Song of America cruise staff, all sing, dance, or both. Too, a comedy team, juggler, and world's fastest banjo player were aboard.

One night passengers entertained, quite well, too.

There was also star gazing, movies, a library, store, slot machine room, and four decks to walk. Or, you could go to the exercise room, have a sauna and massage, shoot skeet, hit golf balls, putt, play ping-pong and shuffle board, shoot basketballs, play bingo, take an exercise class, learn yoga, dance, swim in one of the two pools, lay in the sun or drink in one of the nine bars.

The ship did not lack for something to do. A passenger could do as much or as little as he/she wished.

One could even avoid steps if they had enough patience to wait for one of the six elevators. Few did, and the steps are many and often.

A schedule of events is provided daily, and you are otherwise made aware of happenings, including what to expect at the next port.

These information sessions, while being some help, at times give the impression the cruise director is just a pitch man, trying to sell certain items from particular stores. Maybe it was just my skeptical ear.

One thing you get very little of aboard ship is news. A single sheet of paper has some news each day, but very little. My portable radio didn't work, and the ship's stations didn't carry news.

The cruise director almost blushed as he brought up the subject of tipping, but he discussed it thoroughly. Too, there's a printed card in your dresser suggesting amounts. It says $2.50 per person, per day for both the cabin boy and waiter, plus $1.25 a day for the waiter's helper. Tipping is mentioned as a possibility for the maitre d', the wine steward and cruise staff.

Of course, you are expected to tip waiters and bartenders in the lounges and on decks.

I mentioned the casualness of cruising, but that doesn't extend to the dining room. That's a fashion place. The posted dress code listed dinner jackets or ties for men five nights. I don't object to being or seeing people dressed up, just point it out.

As you can see, we had very little to complain about on our first cruise. It was the first time Hazel and I have spent a week by ourselves since our honeymoon, and we'll do it again.

I didn't mention the islands we visited, but I will in another issue. Particularly, I want to take you around St. Thomas, Nassau and San Juan in another category. Stay tuned.

Microwave-plus

Quick chocolate

Betty Wagner

Spring brings thoughts of colorful eggs and chocolate bunnies. This spring fill your baskets with your own homemade molded candy and use the microwave oven as your able assistant.

The microwave oven melts chocolate quickly, eliminates the need for a double boiler and greatly reduces the possibility of burning and scorching. You can even melt the chocolate in a plastic squeeze bottle, like a catsup container, and then squeeze the chocolate into the mold. This is especially helpful for filling intricately shaped molds.

True chocolate, containing a high percentage of cocoa butter and chocolate, needs to be tempered; that is, heated to a specific temperature and then cooled to a lower temperature, to produce acceptable molded candy. It is easier to work with chocolate coating, sometimes referred to as "summer coating" or dipping chocolate. It can be melted and then poured immediately into the mold of your choice. Milk chocolate coating and dark chocolate coating is sold in specialty stores and can be purchased either as a block or in pellets or caps. The pellets or caps are easier to use if you are planning to mold a small amount at a time.

When working with chocolate or coating, avoid having either come in contact with water, even a wet spoon, or it will form a tight mass. Overheating will also cause the coating to stiffen up. If the coating does "crumb" or form into a tight mass, add one to two tablespoons or shortening (I like the butter flavored) to six ounces of coating. This will loosen it up to a pouring consistency.

Prepare plastic molds by washing with hot water and wiping dry with a clean, soft cloth. Do not use soap or detergent when washing the molds as the residue could cause a dull finished product. After removing the candy from the mold, take care not to handle the right side of the candy as finger prints will smudge the shiny surface. Wrap the finished candy in plastic wrap to protect its sheen.

MOLDED CANDY SUPPLIES

1 pound dark or mild chocolate coating
4 cup glass liquid measure
Wooding spoon or wooden chop stick
Clean candy mold
Microwave oven
Various colored coating or butter flavored shortening
White coating and liquid or paste food dyes
Small custard cups or a microwave muffin ring
Shallow container for hot water
Wooden spoons or wooden chop sticks for stirring
Small fine tipped paint brushes
Paper toweling of clean soft cloth
Plastic wrap

MOLDED CANDY

One pound (about three cups of pellets or caps) of chocolate coating can be melted in a four cup pyrex measure or a one quart glass bowl either at high power for 1 1/2 to 3 minutes or until pouring consistency or, to avoid the danger of overcooking, at medium or 50 percent power for 3 to 5 minutes. Stir twice during the melting time to even out the heat. Chocolate and chocolate coating may retain their shape and give the appearance of not being melted when they are very soft and able to be poured into a mold. Use a wooden spoon or chop stick to stir the coating. If you choose to melt the coating in a squeeze bottle, the wooden chop stick works especially well. The chop stick can also be used to move the chocolate into small areas of the mold if it is poured from a liquid measuring cup.

Chocolate coating comes in a variety of colors for adding accents to molded candy. White coating can be colored with paste or liquid dyes. Sometimes colored coating does not melt well, yellow can especially be stiff. If this happens, add shortening in the proportion of one to two tablespoons per six ounces of coating, and stir until fluid.

A microwave muffin ring is useful for melting small amounts of coating. Then set the ring into a shallow container of hot water being careful not to let water touch the coating. Small custard cups also work well for melting colored accent coating.

With a fine tipped paint brush, dab the eyes, ears, mouth, feet, tails, or bows of the mold with the desired color. Let harden in the refrigerator for a few minutes before pouring in the melting chocolate coating. Tap the filled mold on the counter to eliminate air bubbles. Set the mold in the refrigerator to harden. Pop out the molded candy onto a flat surface covered with paper toweling or a soft cloth. Store in plastic wrap or plastic bags in a cool dry place. Moisture or heat may cause "bloom" or grey discoloration to form on the candy.

Some people can't eat chocolate, but like molded candy. Sweetened carob chips can be melted in the microwave oven to a pouring consistency if one to two teaspoons of solid shortening is added to 1/2 cup of chips. Without the addition of the shortening, the carob is too stiff to be poured into anything except a simple egg mold. Several drops of oil of peppermint, added after melting, greatly improves the flavor of molded carob candy.

Home economist Betty Wagner is a graduate of West Virginia University. She teaches Microwave cooking classes at Sears in the Oakland Mall and through the Clarkston Community Education Department. She resides in Independence Township.

Century celebration

Independence Township resident Donald Rosenfield, recently helped celebrate his grandmother's 100th birthday in Chicago, Ill.

The spry grandmother still plays poker and dances, according to Rosenfield, who said his grandmother was married in Kiev, Russia, in 1900.

Rosenfield had only one complaint about the affair, which was acknowledged by President and Mrs. Ronald Reagan along with other assorted politicians and celebrities.

There just aren't any birthday cards that read: "Happy 100th Birthday," he said.

125 at birthday bash

It was a birthday celebration Robert John Matthews won't forget.

His 90th birthday party was attended by 125 people at the American Legion Post No. 63 on M-15.

In attendance were his 92-year-old sister from Battle Creek, his sons, James and Robert, and his three grandchildren, Robert John, Barbara Anne and John William.

Gifts included a letter from Gov. James Blanchard, an autographed baseball from the Detroit Tigers and a framed tribute from State Rep. Mat Dunaskiss.

The guest of honor has lived in Clarkston with James and Mary Lou Matthews for the last seven years.

Born in Durham, Ont., in 1895, Matthews came to the United States in 1912 and received his citizenship in 1916 before serving for the U.S. in World War I.

"He really enjoyed the party," Mary Lou said. "That framed tribute was especially nice. He was thrilled."

One student's success story

By Carolyn Walker

Teacher Jesse Riojas calls Randy Young a success story.

Randy, he says, is what the Northwest Oakland Vocational Education Center (NWOVEC) is all about.

Randy, 18, is a former student of Riojas who came to the center in his junior year with a dislike for school, and uncertainty about his future.

He graduated from Riojas' Heating, Air and Refrigeration program in 1984, bound for college with straight "A's" and a service job at Nichol's Heating and Cooling.

"His thinking is rare," says Riojas proudly of his ex-student.

But, Young is humble.

"I wouldn't have been able to do it without Mr. Riojas," he says.

Riojas counters such a statement by saying that he told Young "to take advantage of what you're getting."

And Young complied, working hard to enter an area with tough competition.

Young got his job in his junior year, which is very unusual, says Riojas, who has been teaching heating, air and refrigeration at NWOVEC for almost three years.

His main objectives, he says, are "to try to teach them (students) pre-entry skills to make them more employable."

"I see the program growing in the number and quality of students," he adds.

Riojas is modest about his success. "You get a really good feeling," he says. "You're a hero or you're not."

Young, who is currently a student of Climate Control at Oakland Community College, says he might like to follow in Riojas' footsteps and be a teacher.

In the meantime, he works full time at his job, attends college on a part-time basis, and contributes as an adviser to the NWOVEC Heating, Air and Refrigeration advisory committee.

Young is the only student on the committee, which works to keep Riojas informed about current trends in the trade and industry.

The committee helps ensure that the program is guiding the students in the right direction as demanded by the industry, Riojas says.

"Heating and refrigeration is a very wide field," says Riojas.

Students who graduate from his two-year program have been exposed to residential machines, including furnaces, central air conditioning, and refrigerator or freezer repair.

Students interested in pursuing a college education may participate in an "articulation agreement" with Oakland Community College or South Macomb Community College, according to Riojas.

An articulation agreement allows a student to take a test and place out of up to nine college credit hours.

Such an agreement, helps keep students in the area for their educations, he says.

Songsters join annual chorale

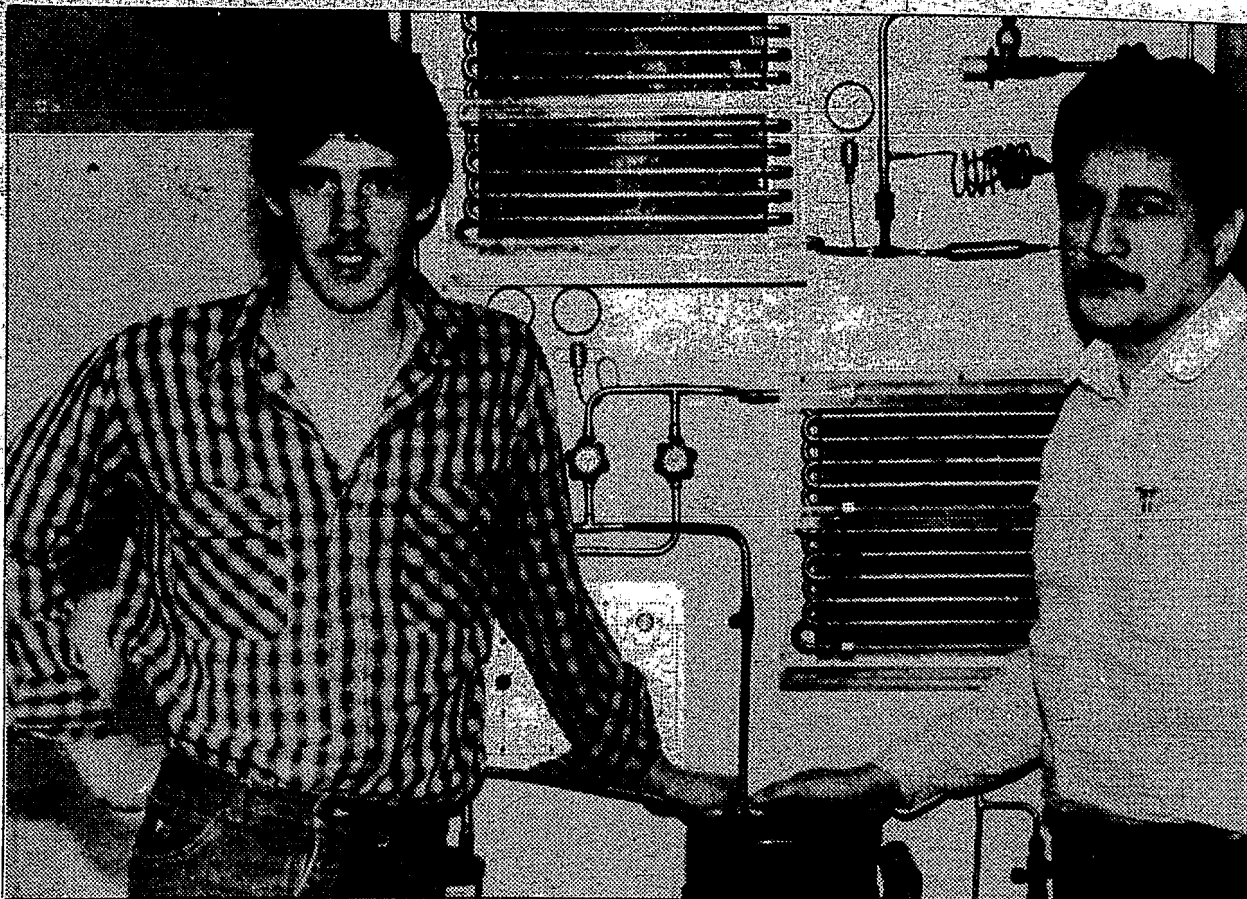

Some local voices will be on stage April 13 in "Industry Sings" at the Ford Auditorium in Detroit.

The annual choral event features the Gentlemen Singers, the General Motors Employee's Chorus, the Detroit Edison Glee Club, the Ford Chorus and the Advance Medical & Research Center Chorale.

Singers who live in the Clarkston-Davisburg area include Pete and Steve Antos, Chris Shlagor, Dorri Rowe, Dan Doty and Ken Davis.

This year's concert includes a tribute to Fred Waring during the show's final 30 minutes. It will conclude with a 250-voice rendition of "Battle Hymn of the Republic."

Tickets are $4. Call 373-9116.

Teacher Jesse Riojas is proud of student Randy Young (left). After graduating from Riojas' Heating, Air and Refrigeration program, Randy has gone on to earn straight "A's" in college and join a Northwest Oakland Vocational Education Center advisory committee.

Workshop for college bound

Clarkston area students from public and private schools who are college bound can take an A.C.T. preparation workshop sponsored by Clarkston Community Education.

The A.C.T. workshop has been planned to help prepare students for various sections of the exam, which include English, math, social studies and natural science.

Time-saving techniques, test-taking strategies and study hints will be included. Batteries of tests will be used during the class and additional practice tests will be included in the text for home use.

The A.C.T. workshop will be facilitated by Karen Davison, college counseling consultant, and the fee is $16, which includes the text.

Registrations are now being taken at the Clarkston Learning Center, 5275 Maybee Rd., Independence Township.

Students should register for one of the two workshops offered on Monday, May 6, and Monday, May 13, from 5:30 to 8:30 p.m. at Clarkston High School.

The deadline for registration is May 1.

Parent meeting

Parents of kindergartners-to-be in September 1985 may attend a meeting, which will cover pre-school screening, developmental kindergarten and regular kindergarten programs.

Meetings are scheduled at Clarkston and Pine Knob elementary schools on April 23. At Clarkston Elementary, the meeting is to begin at 7:30 p.m. Starting time at Pine Knob Elementary is 8 p.m.

Contest winner takes $400 prize

Although she's only 13, Carrie Slade is stacking up money for her college education.

For the second straight year, Carrie won the Waterford Optimists' Club speech contest—and a second $400 college scholarship.

"It was two years in a row, so I was surprised," said Carrie. "I was happy, excited."

An eighth-grader at Clarkston Junior High School, Carrie entered the contest both years at the suggestion of her English teacher.

She likes to give speeches and enjoys "getting up in front of people," she said, and aspires to major in music in college and to have a performing career in singing and acting.

She's a member of the CJHS Ovarions, a select choral group, and is active in theater arts in school.

The theme of the Optimists' oratorical contest was "I Think the Best, I Expect the Best." A total of six students competed for the prize by giving four- to five-minute speeches for the Optimists on May 20.

"I just talked about how we have to have optimism, that we have to think the best," said Carrie. "We have to expect the best out of everyone."

She plans to compete April 20 in the zone contest in Flint against other local winners. The winner of that contest will proceed to the state level competition.

Carrie Slade's speech-giving talents have resulted in a total of $800 in college scholarships for the 13-year-old.

Dixie to potholes: Carr responds

Congressman Bob Carr (D-6th District) flew in from Washington to discuss area road problems with local citizens.

By Carolyn Walker

Topics ranged from Dixie Highway to potholes on Rattalee Lake Road to the Detroit People Mover when United States Congressman Bob Carr (D-6th District) paid a visit to Independence Township recently.

Carr joined members of the Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) at a meeting sponsored by the Business Association of Independence Township on March 21.

The main focus of the meeting was the impending widening of Dixie Highway scheduled for 1986.

But, the conversation quickly turned to problems with many area roads, including proposed construction on M-15, and side roads with treacherous potholes.

After a one-hour delay at the airport, Carr joined the already-in-progress meeting, to add his views to those of Edward Dieblar of MDOT, Supervisor Frank Ronk of Independence Township, Supervisor Collin Walls of Springfield Township and Sharron Catallo of the Clarkston Village Council.

"This is virtually the only state in the midwest that has unimproved secondary roads," Carr told the audience of approximately 40 people.

Carr has been instrumental in obtaining approximately $12 million in federal appropriations for the improvement of Dixie and other area roads.

Of that $12 million, Dixie has first priority, he said.

Carr estimated that about $3 million of those

"You needn't fear that federal dollars are going to force themselves on Independence Township. This is your community."

Congressman Bob Carr

funds would be left over from the Dixie improvements and that Walton Boulevard was second in line for funding.

When Carr made that statement, Warren Newsted, owner of the 52nd District Court building, asked, "Not the people mover?"

Carr, calling the people mover "a $200 million amusement ride for downtown Detroit," said no more federal money would be given to the Detroit project.

Dixie has "enough claim" on the funds for completion, he added.

The proposed improvements for Dixie Highway include widening the existing 10-foot-wide lanes to 12 feet, and adding a center left-turn lane, according to Dieblar.

"This is the single biggest improvement of the whole project," he said. "What's out there now is a wide-open, free-for-all."

The construction is proposed from Telegraph Road in Pontiac to I-75 in Springfield Township.

They begin marketing spun wool

Down on the farm with Gloria and George

By Dan Vandenhemel

All hours of the day, an open intercom keeps tabs on the activities inside the barn on the farm of George and Gloria Bellairs.

The sheep on the Big Lake Road, Springfield Township, property have the owners working around the clock because of the time of the year.

"It's lambing season," says Gloria Bellairs. "This is when the lambs are born. We're used to the sounds coming from the barn, but when something is different, we pick it up right away."

Since the first of February, 64 lambs have been born, bringing the total to 170 Romneys on the farm.

Romney is a specific breed of sheep that produces a long, stronger kind of wool for the Bellairses' business.

This year is the first time their wool is being commercially marketed. In the past, hand-spun wool has been available at a store located on the farm. Now in limited supplies, it's at the Quiltery in the Clarkston Mills Mall on Washington Street, Clarkston, and at Wagner's Knit Studio on Sashabaw Road, Waterford Township.

Skeins and cones of the wool in natural colors of creamy white, black, brown and gray cost about $1.25 for one ounce.

Twice a year, the sheep are sheared and the wool is sent to Pennsylvania to be carbonized, which burns out any foreign material, and to be washed. The next stop is a town in New York to be spun before returning to Michigan.

"The wool yarn is much fresher than other yarn," Gloria says. "Our wool is less than six months old because we shear the sheep twice a year. The yarn

The wool from some their Romney sheep has put Gloria and George Bellairs in the commercial market.

Their farm is on Big Lake Road in Springfield Township.

A $3-million mall wins final site plan approval from the Independence Township Planning Commission.

The Northcreek Shopping Center, a project headed by developer Ron Helin of Independence Township, is to be built on about 5 acres south of I-75 at M-15 and Northview Drive.

The 51,000-square-foot shopping mall will outsize the 38,000-square-foot Clarkston Mill's Mall.

Construction is to begin this spring.

Universal Data Inc. plans to take over the former People's Furniture store building, which has been vacant four years.

The firm's business includes the repair of micro-computers, and research and development.

Charles Phyle represented the firm's owners, CFK Investments, at the Feb. 28 planning commission meeting.

All commission members present voted to approve the conceptual site plans for the building located on M-15 south of I-75.

Independence Oaks County Park adds 184 acres of wetlands to its boundaries, making it the largest park in the Oakland County Parks Department system.

The property, once part of a gravel mining operation proposed by the Edward Levy Co., was purchased for $435,000.

Sixty-five percent of the money came from a Michigan Land Trust Fund grant with the remainder from the parks commission.

The new land is expected to be used for nature trails, observations and cross country skiing.

The park now consists of 1,034 acres.

Only the formalities remain for approval of the proposed $3.5 million Grovcrest Care Center of Clarkston. A public hearing was to be held on the facility Tuesday night.

The center, to be built on 19 acres off Clintonville Road south of Maybee Road, includes 120 beds designed for people who need skilled nursing care.

Co-owner Paul VerLee said plans are to begin construction in August.

Grant attains award

Bud Grant, a Clarkston agent for State Farm Insurance Agency Companies, has been named a bronze tablet member, one of the firm's most prestigious awards.

Only about 4 percent of State Farm's agents qualify for the Bronze Tablet.

To qualify, agents must consistently achieve high standards in all aspects of the insurance business, especially regarding the quality of their business, over a five consecutive year period.

This is the third year in a row Grant has qualified for the Bronze Tablet award.

Grant has represented State Farm since 1956.

GMC promotes Butler

John Butler was recently promoted to director, Arbitration and Contract Administration, by the General Motors Corp.

Butler, 37, resides in the Clarkston area.

He joined GM as a college graduate in training at the Chevrolet-Flint Metal Fabricating Plant in 1969, and subsequently served in various labor relations, equal employment opportunity and production capacities at that plant.

He later served as supervisor of labor relations and assistant plant personnel director at the Chevrolet Gear & Axle plant in Detroit and became a specialist in arbitration and contract administration on the Industrial Relations staff in 1979.

He was serving as general supervisor of salaried personnel at Pontiac Motor Division when he was named manager of Arbitration and Contract Administration at GM's central office in 1983. He was promoted to assistant director of that section in May 1984.

Butler holds a bachelor's degree in economics and a master's degree in industrial relations, both from Michigan State University.

Needham serves Delta

John H. Needham has been re-elected to the Delta Dental Plan of Michigan's Board of Directors.

Needham, an Independence Township resident, is director of salaried personnel of Rockwell International, Troy.

He is a graduate of Cornell University with a degree in industrial and labor relations and has done graduate work at West Virginia University.

Delta, a nonprofit service corporation, administers prepaid dental benefits programs for over 1.7 million people in Michigan including employees of the state of Michigan and the UAW-bargaining employees of General Motors and Chrysler. Its headquarters is in Okemos with a branch office in Southfield.

Meeting a star

Jim Huttenlocher of the Huttenlocher-Kerns-Norvell Insurance Agency is greeted by Raymond Burr. Huttenlocher attended the 87th annual Meeting of the Independent Insurance Agents of Michigan in Dearborn in February. Burr, known for his television portrayals of Perry Mason and Ironsides, is the national advertising spokesperson for Independent Insurance Agents.

Assuring safe drivers

To support the campaign against drunk driving, free soft drinks are offered to designated drivers in groups visiting the Clarkston Cafe.

On request, the Cafe's staff will issue a button labeled "Designated Driver" to identify the person responsible for others' safety on the return trip.

The wearer of the button will receive drinks free of charge, as long as they are non-alcoholic.

The Cafe is located at 18 S. Main, Clarkston.

Dixie widening, road problems prove timely

The improvements will also include safety paths from just south of M-15 to White Lake Road, Dieblar added.

Many of the citizens in the audience had questions about the future of their driveways along Dixie, the possibility of added traffic signals, and how traffic would be rerouted during construction.

Dieblar said some businesses would be asked to share driveways, but there is not enough existing room for service drives or inter-locking roads between businesses.

In addition, during construction, traffic will be limited to a single lane each way, he said.

Newsted told the men that the curve and grade on Waterford Hill pose a serious hazard to drivers; and asked that a light be installed at the intersection of Waterford Road and Dixie Highway.

Dieblar responded by saying, "This particular section is still in the preliminaries."

He added, however, that most likely no new traffic signals would be installed.

He did say, however, that a modification of the current green arrow at Dixie and M-15 is planned.

That intersection will take on more of a "T" shape, he said, adding that adjustments would be made which would allow left turns onto M-15 from Dixie for traffic going south.

Dieblar refused to comment on any proposed changes in the widening of M-15. "There are a number of unresolved issues," he said.

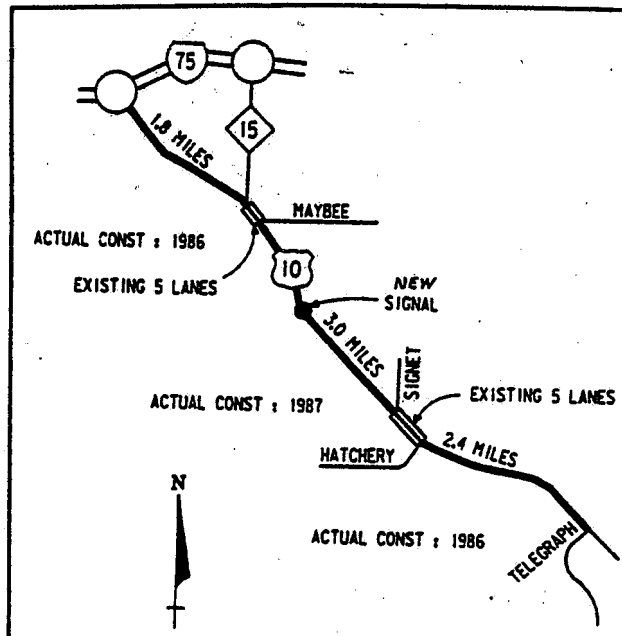

Local officials, along with state representatives, propose widening M-15 to five lanes.

That widening is contingent upon drainage improvements along M-15, according to Ronk.

Ronk told the crowd that he expected a decision on M-15's widening within a month.

He then asked Carr if the M-15 drainage problem was eligible for federal funding.

Carr responded by saying that he would be willing to meet with Ronk and other officials on the issue.

This section of Dixie Highway is scheduled for widening during 1986 and 1987.

Ronk had originally hoped to have construction on M-15 take place at the same time as that on Dixie, to avoid having the area "torn up" more than once.

"I think something ought to be able to be worked out," he said.

That, however, will most likely not be possible, as M-15's work cannot begin until 1987, he said.

Many people attending the meeting had questions about Rattalee Lake Road, which is county owned.

"The road's literally gone," said one resident. "You literally, at times, can't drive down the road."

Carr said he had no jurisdiction over county roads and advised the residents to consult with their township supervisors about any complaints they might have.

He was, however, inspired by their questions to discuss general road situations in Michigan.

He said many of Michigan's problems, especially in the lower peninsula, resulted from freeze and thaw conditions. And that, currently, federal legislators are attempting to address the issue with new proposals.

He was cautious, however, to ensure the people that their wishes were of primary importance.

"You needn't fear that federal dollars...are going to force themselves on Independence Township," he said. "I don't want to tell people what to do. This is your community."

On the farm

isn't standing around in some warehouse."

A normal number of sheep on the farm is about 50. During the lambing season, the amount can grow to close to 100. The commercial marketing has tripled the number of animals, along with the work for the couple.

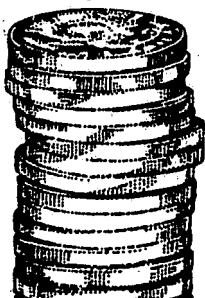

"This time of year it always intensifies," Gloria says. "We're putting in 26 hour days."

George retired from Michigan Bell over a year ago. He says a good many of the sheep are sold to breeders around the country.

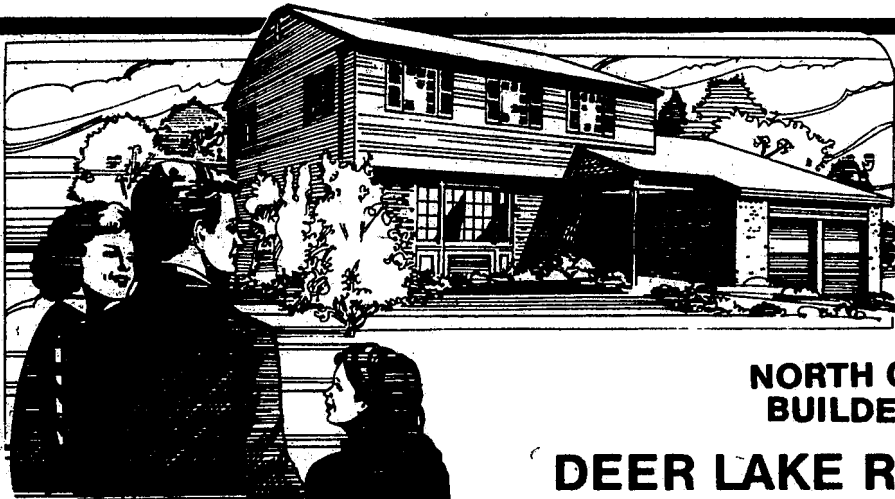

"The farthest we sold east has been Vermont," he says. "Minnesota is the farthest west. On a trip to Vermont, I could probably be there and back in about three days, with drop-offs."

Later this year, when the Frankenmuth Woolen Mill opens, the Bellairses' wool won't be going out of state for processing. It will go to Frankenmuth.

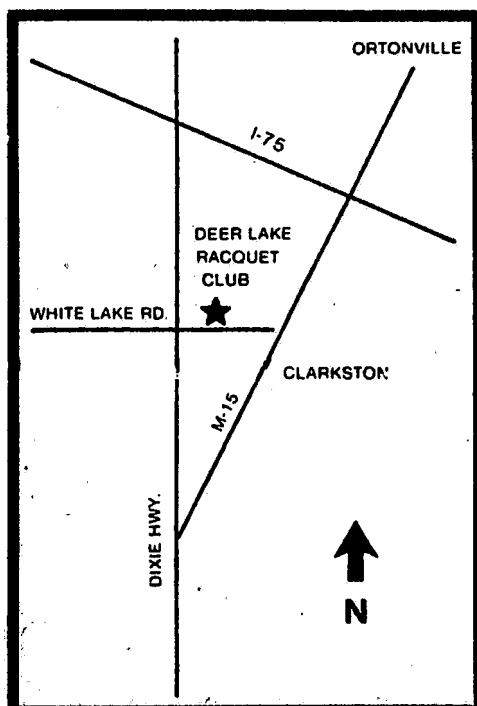

"Right now the wool is in limited supply," Gloria says. "By August it should be in full supply."

How to avoid the surprise inheritance tax law

Editor's note: This is one in a series of articles by attorney Robert Delisi on personal tax and estate planning topics to appear monthly in the Business & Finance section of The Clarkston News.

The objective is to offer the legal fundamentals of topics discussed. This series is not intended, nor should it be construed, to comprehensively cover all the factors that must be considered when addressing a particular individual's circumstances. For further information, one should consult with his or her attorney.

The death tax, which is little known but which affects most of us, is the Michigan Inheritance Tax (MIT).

Although the MIT is a property transfer tax, it may best be regarded as a tax imposed upon individuals who die within Michigan or individuals who die with property within Michigan.

The tax is applied separately to the value of each share of property received by a beneficiary after allowance for any applicable personal exemption.

Each beneficiary's share is divided into brackets or classes and the tax assessed at the rates ranging from 2 percent to 17 percent. The rates vary with the value of the legacy and the relationship of the beneficiary to the decedent.

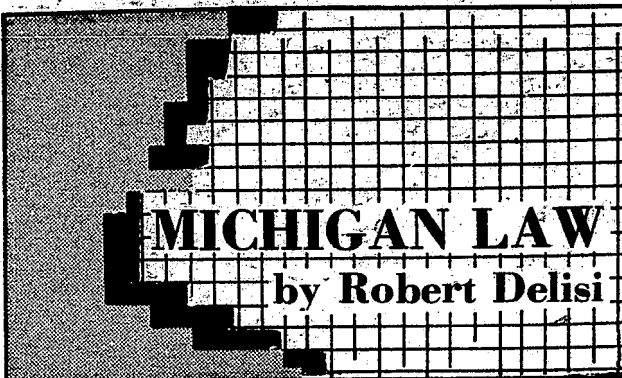

The rates are reproduced in the chart that accompanies this article.

Class 1 beneficiaries include: husband, wife, grandparents, parents, children, brothers and sisters, wife or widow of a son, husband of a daughter, adopted child, a mutually acknowledged child, and lineal descendants of the decedent.

Class 2 beneficiaries are all persons not included in Class 1.

A widower or widow is allowed an exemption of $65,000. A widow receives an additional exemption of $5,000 for each minor child to whom no property is transferred.

All persons in Class 1 are allowed an exemption of $10,000. Persons in Class 2 are not allowed any exemption.

As a practical matter, there are a number of specific exemptions which can be utilized to limit the property subject to MIT.

1. Proceeds of insurance payable to a Trustee for the benefit of beneficiaries named in a Trust instrument are exempt from the tax. There is a conflict of opinion as to whether insurance proceeds payable to named beneficiaries other than through the medium of trust are taxable. The majority of opinion is that they, too, are excluded.

2. Another exclusion from MIT is property subject to joint ownership or ownership as a tenancy by the entirety (owned solely by husband and wife). Joint ownership and ownership by the entirety with full right of survivorship are based on the theory that upon the death of one of the joint tenants, the property becomes the property of the survivor, not by transfer but rather by the right of survivorship. Since there is no transfer, no tax can be imposed. The fact that one party contributes all the joint property held and has, by the nature of the ownership, a right to invade the assets for his or her own use (i.e., a joint bank account) does not disturb the non-taxable status of the property.

3. Retirement benefits are also not subject to MIT.

4. Another means of limiting inheritance taxes is where the specific beneficiary of the property is unknown and the group of possible beneficiaries consist of both Class 1 and Class 2 or beneficiaries with different exemption amounts. For example, a gift may be held in trust at a bank for both the decedent's spouse and children. If the spouse needs the money, the tax will be one amount; if the children need it, the tax will be another amount.

If left to its own devices, the Michigan Inheritance Tax examiner will characterize the circumstance so as to maximize the tax due.

However, if one objects to this self-serving behavior, the tax examiner, in the interest of expediting the completion of its examination, will be willing to negotiate a compromise.

It has been said that there are two things in life one can count on: death and taxes.

Without careful use of the exclusions and methods of limiting the Michigan Inheritance Tax, most individuals can be assured these two uncertainties of life will occur simultaneously.

Next month, the benefits of incorporating a business will be discussed.

Readers are encouraged to forward to the editor of The Clarkston News, 5 S. Main, Clarkston, MI 48016, any questions concerning the topics discussed.

The author will attempt to respond in writing directly to the questioner. If an abundance of questions arise concerning a particular area of the law, he will address this area in a subsequent article.

Author Robert Delisi, an attorney with Barbier, Goulet, Petersmark, Tolleson, Mead & Paige, P.C., of Birmingham, is an Independence Township resident.

An architect's rendering of how the Calvary Lutheran Church will look with the proposed $435,000 addition shows the module at left, which would house the new fellowship hall and classroom, and the small square addition at the right, which would house additional office and lounge space. The church is located on Bluegrass Drive in Independence Township.

Calvary plans church addition

By Kathy Greenfield

The 6,260-square-foot addition planned for Calvary Lutheran Church will almost double its present size, says the Rev. Robert Walters.

The congregation has grown accordingly in the 11 years Walters has been pastor of the church, from 206 confirmed active members (over age 15) in 1971 to 512 such members at the end of 1984.

Plans include the addition of a fellowship room for banquets, large group meetings and wedding receptions; a classroom; more lounge space; a larger church vestibule area; and two new offices.

"Education is the major goal, partly because we have as our policy all members of our church should learn and worship, so we don't have simultaneous worship and Sunday church school," Walters said. "Right now we need more classroom space. We don't really have room for adult classes and there's a need for that."

The formal fund raising program for pledges from church members ended last week.

The goal was to raise three-year pledges to be donated weekly and one-time major gifts totalling $435,000.

Walters said he expects construction to begin before the end of the three-year pledge period, but he could not be more specific.

"We can't say for sure. It depends on fund raising and financing," he said.

The original church at 6805 Bluegrass in Independence Township was built in 1962. A second unit was added in 1978. The same architect who did those plans has prepared the blueprints for the latest addition.

"The proposed plan really fits nicely into the present style," Walters said.

VIEWPOINT

Another point against personal computers

by Jim Sherman

Clarkston News Publisher

There's still another reason now why I'll not get a personal computer — the government.

In all its august wisdom, Congress has written into its new 1000-page tax "reform" bill that you can deduct part of the depreciation of a personal computer — only if you keep a record of the time it is used for business purposes and the time it is used for personal problems.

This record must be kept in the form of a "log" showing date, number of minutes used and nature of use (that is, personal or business, and if business, the details.)

I use it to balance the household checkbook, March 11, 1985 (the entry goes), balancing checkbook (personal) 3:30 to 4:15 p.m., total 45 minutes.

Next day I tap in an interest problem on an investment account. March 12, 1985 — interest calculation, 3 minutes.

This sort of thing goes on for a year as part of your income tax figures. How would you like to add up all those entries and figure the percentage of time for business use? Then apply that percentage to the depreciation figure for the computer, then enter the result on the business expense part of your return . . . then someday justify all this to the IRS auditor.

This year, no reason why these characters in Congress won't apply the same rule to the use of your typewriter and make you keep a log of how many times you tap the keys on business and how many times for personal letters. Lordy, Lordy!

One of the two things is going to happen: You're going to 1. ignore this silly ruling, make a guess at the percentage of time the gadget was used and depreciate it accordingly, or 2. not claim anything in the way of expense.

In either case, your regard for your government is going to drop, and that's not a good thing in a democracy. You must have reasonable confidence in the people running the country, or in the long run, there's trouble. Already, citizens'rate Congressmen in the same category as used car salesmen.

This nonsense about tax breaks on personal computers is one more reason, as I said, why I don't plan to get one. Unless a person wants to play with one for amusement, I see no reason to put out a couple of thousand dollars for one of the things. I really think they're a fad, like hula hoops.

Mind you, this doesn't apply to commercial computers. Many businesses simply couldn't compete today without computer systems. Banking, brokerage houses, retail inventory control, manufacturing, navigation, engineering. Did you know that the drawings and drafting of giant air-craft are done by computers? The results are far better than mere mortals could ever do.

BILL MYERS

Shelter scheme: Free lunch or pie in the sky?

Bill Myers is a retired Lapeer County editor and investment adviser now in the Virgin Islands

Has the free lunch finally been found?

A couple of enterprising and imaginative boys selling tax shelters think they've discovered this long-sought pot of soup at the end of the rainbow.

USA Today described the stunt, as sold to customers by the president of two firms peddling tax shelters. Here's the idea:

You, as the investor, have $10,000 looking for a home. You take $7,000 of it and buy one of these oil drilling partnerships, which will run for about 10 years.

With the other $3,000, the promoters suggest you buy 10-year zero-coupon bonds. Ones at 12.5 percent, which are taxable, sell at about 30 cents on the dollar. So in 10 years, you get $10,000, your original total investment.

The $7,000 in the tax shelter drilling enterprise may give you as much as $3,500 in tax deductions the first year. That's assuming you write off the whole thing and your tax bracket is 50 percent, also assuming the tax shelter will be approved by the IRS, which is getting picky about such things.

(Writing off the full tax shelter in one year is highly unlikely under the new IRS rules. A recent article in Barron's listed a half-dozen new regulations which stymie such schemes. Even if you can get around them, your return on your money is still not good. Read on.)

Let's say you get the $3,500 tax saving the first year. So you've really tied up a net of $6,500 ($10,000 less the tax savings). Put the $3,500 in some more zero-coupon bonds; added to the $3,000 already there, that will give you a total of $6,500 riding there. They'll mature in 10 years and be worth about $21,000.

Suppose you compound the $3,000 they suggest at the start and use the $3,500 tax saving to get more of the same bonds. The result in 10 years is far different from the over-triple return they mention.

Why? Because your after-tax return on the zeroes is 6.25 percent, not 12.5 percent. (Remember, to get the full $3,500 tax saving, you have to be in the 50 percent tax bracket.) Instead of $6,500 turning into $21,000, the result 10 years out is a shade under $12,000.

You get your $10,000 back, plus $2,000 more. Trouble is, it takes 10 years to do it.

Maybe the drilling deal will work out and maybe it won't. With oil prices dropping, wildcat wells aren't so attractive anymore. Of course, any gains from the drilling will be taxable.

Personally, I'm not the Las Vegas type. I'd take the $10,000 available to start with and plop it into tax-free bonds at 10.25 percent. In 10 years, I'd have $26,532 with no taxes due and none having been paid in the meantime.

In the beginning, we assumed optimistically that the investor in the oil drilling scheme would retrieve the tax benefit from a full write-off the first year. That would make his cost basis zero from then on. If the venture was successful, any gains would be taxed.

He also would have had himself an investment which could be very hard to sell. Figures often quoted range around a 30 percent discount — if you can find a buyer.

So unless you hit oil, the return on $10,000 under the tax shelter scheme is $2,000, vs. $16,500 from investing the whole thing in safe and sound tax-free bonds.

Tax-free bonds give you a liquid investment which can be cashed in anytime. No 30 percent discount when you sell them. No hassles with the IRS. No sad tales of dry holes.

Or you can go for the tax shelter, but you may find that this free lunch is only pie in the sky.

Bostons' tea party

In my role as Michigan's products reporter, I rang up the Michigan Department of Commerce office in Detroit and asked if anyone there was a sailor. "We've got a fellow who wears Topsiders summer and winter," the secretary said. "You must mean him."

Sure enough she had found me a sailor. "Say mate," I said, trying to sound properly salty (which can be a neat trick if you're from land-locked Pleasant Ridge). "What's the name of the little company in Mt. Clemens that makes the great sails?"

"Well, there are a couple," he said. "But if you want the little company that makes great sails that are used for racing and cruising sailors all over the world, that would be Boston."

As I learned later, Mr. Topsiders was right (starboard?).

Sails and sailing—it's all in the family for the Bostons of Mt. Clemens. The family has been making state-of-the-art sails and boats since the 1930s, doing business as Boston Sails Inc. The main loft is in Mt. Clemens. There are others in Holland, Mich.; Sarnia, Ontario; and Newburn, N.C.

Howard Boston, patriarch of the clan and founder of the company, was a racing sailor—a regular Barnacle Oldfield. He liked to go fast on the water, even when it was frozen. He began making his own sails because they made his boats go faster than the sails he could buy.

The Clarkston (Mich.) News Wed., April 3, 1985 7

His sons, Charles (Skip) and William (Spike), proved to be chips off the old block and buckle. They raced sailboats and iceboats and mastered the sailmaker's art. Their sisters—Sue, Nancy, Julie and Kay—also work at the company's lofts.

Howard's wife, Lolly, has always been part of the company, ashore and afloat. She calls her sailboat, all 39 feet of it, Boston "Tea Party." Her car, a Mercury sedan, also is easy to spot. The license plate reads "T Party."

Last year a "J-20" sailboat powered by Boston sails won the world's speed championship in Sweden. Nice going Skip, Spike, Lolly, Sue, Nancy, Julie, Kay and the other artisans who design and make Boston sails.

Keep making it in Michigan!
