Surgical center denied

By Carolyn Walker

The proposed Clarkston Surgical Center certificate of need has been rejected, leaving the future of the center in limbo.

Clarkston pediatrician James O'Neill, M.D., had proposed building a $3.4-million outpatient surgical center, which would complement the year-old Clarkston Ambulatory Care Center with surgical and mental health facilities.

He requested a certificate of need for the project from the state last January and received word April 3 that his bid was denied for six reasons.

Those reasons are:

- The applicant (O'Neill) has not demonstrated a need for the facility.
- The project is inconsistent with Michigan Department of Public Health policies pertaining to surgical and outpatient facility plans.
- A more efficient alternative to this project exists by more fully using the outpatient and surgical capacities in the Pontiac area.
- Additional urgent care services proposed by the project do not appear needed based on declining utilization of existing emergency rooms.
- A need for a psychiatric day care program has not been demonstrated.
- The Comprehensive Health Planning Council of Southeastern Michigan (CHP-SEM) recommended denial.

A certificate of need must be obtained from the state before a medical facility such as a hospital or outpatient center can be constructed.

O'Neill, who had proposed building the center on six acres near his pediatric practice on M-15 in 1986, has been in the process of securing the certificate of need for several months.

He received a rejection from CHP-SEM in December.

Members of the CHP-SEM board, who typically make recommendations to the state, asked O'Neill to modify his plans, which included office space and a fire station, areas not covered by a certificate of need.

Though O'Neill initially refused to make the changes, he later complied.

O'Neill alleges the state department made its decision without reviewing the requested alterations and attributes the denial to "politics" within the health care system.

"We did amend all the concerns CHP-SEM and the health department had," he said.

According to O'Neill, many hospitals are looking to the Independence area to build satellites.

"There's a lot of competition among hospitals. They want to consume us," he said. "We're saving the health care system a h--- of a lot of money."

The rejection left O'Neill surprised but undaunted.

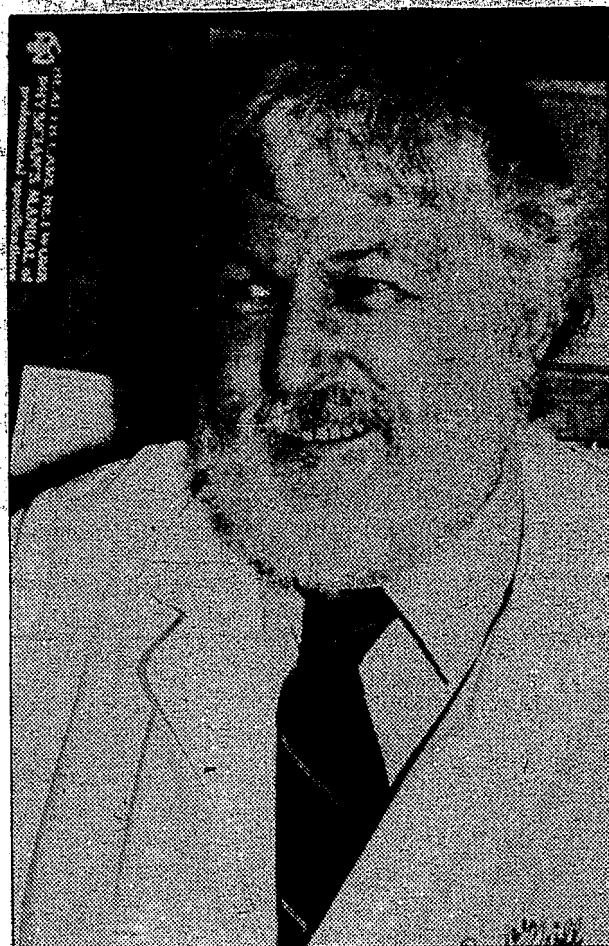

He plans to pursue the certificate of need through channels of appeal at the state level.

If O'Neill's appeal is successful, he said he will pursue building the hospital to include outpatient surgical procedures such as biopsies, arthroscopies and ultrasound.

If not, he plans to expand the current Clarkston Ambulatory Care Center to include minor surgical procedures and mental health services.

O'Neill is optimistic that his certificate of need will ultimately be awarded.

"I think it will take about a year longer," he said.

Dr. James O'Neill, M.D., is a graduate of St. Louis University School of Medicine.

Doctor's dreams delayed by state

By Carolyn Walker

A 19-year-old James O'Neill left his hometown in North Dakota and entered medical school with a dream: To doctor in a small community and get involved in that community's needs.

In 1961, he brought that dream to Independence Township, where he nourished it faithfully with long hours in his pediatric practice and community commitment.

On April 3, the state of Michigan obstructed that dream.

"I was surprised," O'Neill said Thursday. "Of course I was hurt."

"I honestly don't know (why they rejected it). It's a new concept...an innovative idea. Its time will come."

The Michigan Department of Public Health, after several months of consideration, informed O'Neill last Wednesday that they were rejecting his bid for a certificate of need for his proposed Clarkston Surgical Center.

A certificate of need is mandated by the state before facilities being reimbursed by third-party insurance can be constructed.

O'Neill had proposed building the center, which he called "a hospital without walls" near his M-15 pediatric practice.

It was designed to complement area physician services and the existing Clarkston Ambulatory Care Center; and help offset patient costs by providing outpatient surgery, and mental health day care treatment.

The concept of comprehensive community health care came to Independence with O'Neill from his birthplace, Williston, N.D., where it was practiced during the late 1940s and early '50s and where it continues today.

Williston, O'Neill said, "had an excellent level of care" without big facilities.

A community of 15,000, with the nearest town 150 miles away, Williston had two hospitals, according to O'Neill.

One of the hospitals was turned into a senior citizen facility, and seriously ill patients were referred to Mayo Clinic or other similar centers, he said.

The idea was to stop duplicating services.

In that way, major facilities were used properly and patients saved money, he said.

"They (Williston) don't turn their people,

(seniors, ill or mentally impaired) out to pasture," O'Neill said. "It would be the envy of any place you can imagine."

O'Neill, 50, said he always wanted to be a doctor and never lost sight of that style of practicing medicine.

And he is not one to let his dream die.

"When you get something like this (rejected), you just work harder," he said, adding that he plans to go forward with his efforts to start a senior citizen housing complex on Maybee Road.

O'Neill remains optimistic that he may still be able to obtain the coveted certificate through an appeals process.

"We're going to avail ourselves to every avenue of reconsideration," he said, adding that the appeal at the state level could take about one month.

The denial could have potentially long-reaching effects on the township, according to O'Neill, who said there is tremendous competition between hospitals to build satellites in the Independence area.

Politics, he said, are at the heart of the matter, because the state didn't want to "buck" the local health care institutions.

"They shoot good ideas down," he said. "If institutions can't have it (satellites), they don't want anybody else to have it."

"You have to grow into these things slowly," he said, anticipating that large hospitals could come into the area and make changes in the nature of community health. "They (can) get outside groups in here that bring in corporate health-care plans."

The problem is from without not within Independence Township, O'Neill said. "I think the community really supports this. It makes it (the rejection) a little easier."

"Traditionally, a community doesn't plan their own health care," O'Neill said. "We're trying to get people to do things together."

O'Neill and the other physicians involved in the Clarkston Ambulatory Care Center have been recruiting specialists to Independence Township.

"Getting the doctors to come to the patients," as O'Neill calls it. "It's the natural progression of what we've done since we've started."

Administration and politics are frustrating areas which must be addressed and overcome, according to O'Neill, who adds that taking care of patients "makes everything else OK."

"I will continue doing all the things I have planned. I will not be subdued," he said.

Signs halt U-turns on Main Street

Eleven "no u-turn" signs along M-15 north of Waldon Road in the Village of Clarkston make the announcement: U-turns are now illegal.

The signs were installed along the state highway in mid-March at the request of the Clarkston Village Council.

The call asking for the signs was made in January, said William Drongowski, traffic engineer for the State Highway Department.

"We don't advocate u-turns on state trunklines, so whenever we get a request like that we go along with it," Drongowski said. "We don't like to see people making u-turns, especially on a heavily travelled road like M-15."

Village Marshall Chuck Smalley filed the request.

"I think they're the greatest thing that happened down there," Smalley said. "It's going to lessen the chances of a fatality. There were people who were taking too many chances."

Group home court battle stopped

Township won't appeal to supreme court

By Carolyn Walker

Independence Township's court battle against high group home concentration is over.

On April 2, the township board voted unanimously not to pursue its lawsuit in the Michigan Supreme Court.

The Michigan Court of Appeals rejected the township's bid for a rehearing on the concentration issue on March 21, and an appeal to the Supreme Court might prove financially fruitless, said attorney Gerald Fisher.

"The ultimate solution is going to be in the hands of the legislature," he said.

Board members in turn, unanimously approved a motion to halt further legal action.

"It's (the lawsuit) been expensive for this township," said Trustee Daniel Travis. "We've come a long way."

In January, the Court of Appeals dismissed a lawsuit brought by the township against the Department of Social Services (DSS) and the Michigan Department of Mental Health (MDMH).

The lawsuit looked at the entire scope of excessive concentration of group homes.

Following the lawsuit, the DSS agreed to consider excessive concentration when placing group homes.

At the April 2 board meeting, Sam Cataldo of United Neighbors of Independence Township (U.N.I.T.) presented an update on his recent visit to Lansing, where he talked with senate aides and legislators about group home concentration.

He said several legislators, including Rep. Mat Dunaskiss, who represents Independence Township, are busy pursuing legislation which addresses the issue.

In 1984, Cataldo led a 35-member coalition to block a group home from entering his neighborhood and has been encouraging the township board to address the concentration issue with the state.

"I think the only thing that's going to work is a reasonable approach," he told them. "We need a standard."

Cataldo said he wants group home concentration in a community to be based on the natural occurrence of mental retardation in life.

Currently, the only state law governing the placement of group homes says the facilities can not be placed closer together than 1,500 feet. Representatives of the DSS and MDMH were not at the board meeting.

However, in a phone interview, James Quigley, director of the state division of adult foster care licensing, said that in a 1970 census, mentally retarded citizens accounted for 3 percent of the population, or a total of 6.1 million citizens nationally.

Foster care homes have been in existence for approximately 10 years, he said, and have been the focus of much legislation and debate.

"None of the lawsuits have prevailed," he said.

Many communities have filed appeals in the supreme court regarding group home placement, he said.

Currently the DSS looks at two criteria for establishing group homes, according to Quigley. They are: 1,500 foot distancing radius between group homes, and the determination of whether new homes would contribute to excessive concentration.

Voting to halt legal action were: Supervisor Frank Ronk, Treasurer John Lutz, Clerk Richard Holman, and trustees Carol Balzarini, Daniel Travis and William Vandermark. Trustee Dale Stuart was absent.

Carver to start job April 22

By Carolyn Walker

William Douglas Carver Sr., of Petosky, will assume his duties as chief of the Independence Township Fire Department on April 22, if all goes according to plan.

He will be placed on a one-year probation period, and be required to sign a job description agreement before assuming the $31,000-a-year post, as agreed upon by board members at the April 2 board meeting.

The letter of agreement includes such details as Carver's employment relationship with the township, objectives, responsibilities, and clarifies his one-year probationary status, according to township attorney Gerald Fisher, who drafted the document.

The agreement is based on a similar, "fairly detailed" document used in Orion Township, although it is Independence Township oriented, said Fisher.

Carver has a history of back problems and was required to pass a doctor's physical and sign a waiver relieving the township from any responsibility for future back-related injuries before he could assume his new position.

He received a clean bill of health from an internist and an orthopedic surgeon who examined him as required, according to Clerk Richard Holman.

"Mr. Carver is in A-1 condition," said Holman, who had been in contact with the physicians.

He was selected for the fire chief position over three other candidates during a 4-3 vote at the March 19 board meeting.

Before board members finalized Carver's appointment to the post last week, Supervisor Frank Ronk told them that acting as contact person with Carver put him in a "tough position."

Ronk said all decisions will be made by the full-time people (Treasurer John Lutz, Holman and Ronk).

"I don't want to give people the idea I'm still running the fire department," he said after the meeting. Ronk held the position of fire chief until his election as supervisor in November.

Carver's appointment was finalized unanimously by board members Holman, Ronk, Lutz, Carol Balzarini, William Vandermark and Daniel Travis. Trustee Dale Stuart was absent.

"I don't want to give people the idea I'm still running the fire department," he said after the meeting.

Carver's appointment was finalized unanimously by board members Holman, Ronk, Lutz, Carol Balzarini, William Vandermark and Daniel Travis.

Trustee Dale Stuart was absent.

Clintonwood Park hunt rescheduled

The Easter Bunny will hop one more time.

Due to soggy conditions at Clintonwood Park, the Clarkston Area Jaycees postponed their annual Easter Egg Hunt to Saturday, April 13.

"When the people showed up, we had a box of candy, gave them a handful and said, 'Let's try it again next week,'" said Jaycee Tim Lekander.

The hunt is to begin at 10 a.m. at the park at 5980 Clarkston Rd. in Independence Township.

Candy plus special prizes for finders of lucky eggs await hunters in several age divisions. Call 623-7405 for more information.

More money available from CDBG

More money has been made conditionally available to Independence Township through the Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) program, according to Treasurer John Lutz.

Lutz told board members at a special meeting March 26 that the township may be eligible for a portion of $96,927 from the Oakland County Community Development Jobs Bill.

After the meeting board members selected two possible projects, Lutz said.

They include therapy exercise equipment for the senior center and a drainage study for the Sunny Beach area off Clarkston Road.

According to Lutz, 48 communities are competing for the funds aimed at creating jobs.

"If the money is out there, we should try our best to get it for our community," Lutz said.

He added that the amount to be awarded to each community (if any) will be contingent upon the community's ability to "earn points."

Points are given to those who can meet CDBG guidelines.

Community Development Block Grant funds, which are made available by the federal government and funneled through the county, are geared for low to moderate income areas, senior citizens, the handicapped, and slum and blight prevention, according to Lutz.

Last January, the township applied for a share of $69,000 in CDBG funds under the recently increased restrictions imposed by the federal government.

Submissions for the new funds must be made by April 1, and accepted projects must be under contract by June 1, with a proposed completion date of Dec. 1.

If a project costs more than the allotted CDBG amount, the township must make up the difference in cost, Lutz said.

Closing delayed

There's been a delay in the previously reported closing date of the bridge crossing Upper and Lower Silver Lakes on Silver Lake Road in Waterford Township.

The bridge, located between Walton Boulevard and Dixie Highway, will be closed for six weeks beginning April 29.

"It's a long story, mostly red tape," said county road commission spokesperson Dennis Pajot about the three-week delay.

Detour signs will be installed, directing traffic to use Sashabaw Road.

M-15 to be widened to five lanes

By Carolyn Walker

Plans to widen M-15 in 1987 are becoming a reality.

It has been determined that M-15 will be widened to five lanes, said Independence Township Supervisor Frank Ronk at the April 2 board meeting.

Ronk spent several hours in Lansing April 2 discussing the issue with members of the Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) before updating the board.

The widening will include two driving lanes, two right turn lanes, and a center turn lane, Ronk said.

Independence Township has been investigating widening M-15 for approximately 12 years, with little progress.

The widening is contingent upon drainage improvements along the stretch from Dixie Highway to Paramus.

According to Ronk, the drainage costs, estimated at $453,000, will be divided three ways between the state, Oakland County and the township.

Independence will be required to pay approximately $160,000 toward the drainage costs, he said.

Federal Revenue Sharing money has been set aside by the township for the financing of the drainage improvements.

In addition, Ronk told board members that 12 business owners along north M-15 had recently responded to a township survey about the improvements.

Nine advocated the widening to five lanes, adding that anything would be an improvement, he said.

Three responded by saying that a three-lane widening would be sufficient, and expressed concern over the possible ramifications to Main Street.

Although residents and business owners along Main Street in the Village of Clarkston have shared that concern, state and township officials have said in the past that widening M-15 to five lanes would not present problems, or a "bottleneck" to Main Street because the lanes would be narrowed at Paramus.

Ronk said he had hoped to have the work done in conjunction with the widening of Dixie Highway in 1986.

That possibility was vetoed by the state.

"That area (near the intersection of Dixie and M-15) is going to be under constant construction" during 1986 and 1987, he said.

No formal action was taken by board members April 2, but action is anticipated at the April 16 meeting, Ronk said.

Trouble Sleeping

Do you have trouble falling asleep, sleeping, or just feel like you could get a better night's sleep?

L-tryptophane, an essential amino acid, is used by the brain to synthesize the vital brain chemical serotonin. Serotonin is a neurotransmitter that carries messages between neurons, and one of the biochemical mechanisms of sleep.

Unlike sleeping medications, L-tryptophane does not alter the normal stages and cycles of sleep. A tryptophane supplement should be taken a half-hour before bedtime with water or juice (no protein).

L-tryptophane can also be taken to calm your nerves and just relax you. If taken in the daytime its effects do not make you drowsy so you can still drive and do such things.

When I take L-tryptophane before bed I take 3 tablets 867 mg. each and go to sleep. When I wake up I feel like I really got a good night's sleep, and usually don't awaken during the night. I have no trouble sleeping normally but use tryptophane when I really am tired or want a good night's rest.

Letters to editor

Citizens should give their input

Our political process provides us citizens the opportunity for participation in all levels of government decisions; on the township level, we have perhaps more opportunity than anywhere else.

As candidates, our township officials are accessible to the public and can be pinned down on specific issues and general theory.

As elected officials, they still work, shop and play in the same places we do, and they read the same newspapers.

As decision-makers, they sit in public session, encourage public discussion, and vote by roll call.

When we worked hard to elect, and decisively voted for, this board, we placed our trust in them to make decisions in our best interests, as they saw them.

Thus, I view with concern the issue recently made in the press and elsewhere over the board's selection to fill the big boots of Tink Ronk as fire chief.

While we cannot expect to agree with every decision of the board, we have had the fullest opportunity for input, the decision has been made, and our attention should now be directed to the future rather than isolating and criticizing past actions.

That trust was obviously well-placed, as the board acted conscientiously and judiciously in planning and following a selection process, including a review and recommendation of candidates by a fire committee, and personal interviews and independent fact-finding concerning the finalists.

Had the board done otherwise, we could complain; but our leaders continue to deserve our support.

Our energies should now be directed to giving constructive input to the board on immediate and distant decisions that will affect our futures in Independence Township, and to working together to encourage the participation of all citizens in the political process.

I almost always read all-state selections for football and basketball. Primarily, I look for their school rather than individuals.

However, miserable weather last Sunday coaxed me into more reading time. So, I read the names, schools and answer to one other question in write-ups about each player in all four classes of Michigan high school boys' basketball.

The one question was: What do you do outside basketball?

"Outside basketball" answers vary greatly between Class A all-staters and Class D all-staters.

Here's Class A's rundown on the top five: parties and church, arcades and playing cards, listen to music, parties and bowling, disco music and running.

Class B: soul to jazz music, sleep and music, movies and video games, gym and movies, music and movies.

Class C: music, camping and fishing, music and running, dances and movies, downhill skiing.

Class D, read this: soccer, part time job in gas station, aking-golf-work at lumber yard, eating and video games, time at beach.

Looks like the smaller the school, the less time spent on music, movies and arcades.

Did you hear about the new restaurant on the moon? Good food, no atmosphere.

Surely, by now we've heard of GM's new car with no top and no pistons. They call it "Silverdome".

To deter people from getting preconceived ideas about who should wear their men's clothes, Spiegel's, in their fall-winter catalog, showed the outfits and accessories on hangers instead of models.

When the results were tallied, two advertising pages that would normally generate $450,000, accounted for $1 million in sales.

With results like that, will women's clothes be shown on hangers in the next catalog?

State Senator Rudy Nichols (R-Waterford) has introduced legislation requiring mandatory minimum jail time or community service for a second drunk driving offense.

The Senate approved it 32-0.

So, who needs judges? With legislatures and Congress making punishments mandatory, instead of judges shouting for more judges to lighten loads, citizens should be asking for the closing of courtrooms, and fewer judges.

Doesn't the action by Nichols and his colleagues show a disregard for, and lack of confidence in, the judiciary?

How did National Wildlife magazine find out it takes about 120 gallons of water to produce an egg?

Trip tales

Our flight was delayed, almost 24 hours as it turned out, and we hopped on a chartered bus in Norway and headed to a hotel for dinner.

After we were all seated, the bus driver picked up a microphone and told us, in perfect English, where we were going.

He was dressed in a uniform appropriate for a high-ranking military officer in the United States—polished shoes, creased pants, and so on. We sat back for a very smooth—and quiet—ride.

The next day when we arrived in New York, another chartered bus took us from Kennedy International Airport to LaGuardia for our flight back to Detroit.

The bus driver chatted the whole time. He told us he was a former truck driver and that he had stayed with the airline charter service "so long" because they were good to him. How long? Nine months.

Cruising along the expressway, he called the driver of a car going awry a "meathead." He sang an airline advertising jingle. He was a character.

I couldn't have dreamed up more appropriate symbols of the differences between our vacation and getting back to our real life if I tried.

We were back home. It felt good. But even after a short 11-day stay, there were things to miss about Norway.

We went there with a group of 16 people, the vast majority of whom are avid cross country ski-racers.

All but three of us diligently waxed skis, donned back packs weighing about 14 pounds and skied 36 miles over a mountain in the Norwegian's Birkebeiner race.

My husband was a racer. I took photographs. I'm not sure which of us enjoyed the experience more.

"What did you like best?" people ask about our adventure in a foreign land.

I liked the shopping (not a usual favorite of mine), the food (even the strong coffee) and the scenery (despite the deep snow).

But as I try to pinpoint favorites, I keep thinking of time I spent sitting in the lounge at the mountain lodge where we stayed and the time we spent walking along the busy streets of Oslo.

In the lodge, people speaking different languages were everywhere. Our group became quickly known as "the Americans." While I could understand very little of what was being said in German, Norwegian and other Scandinavian languages, it was very pleasant.

I have always liked visiting cities, and Oslo was no exception. The people bustling along the streets were dressed very fashionably. The city, despite the cold, was alive with activity and such surprising things as outdoor fruit and vegetable stands.

The bread was better than I've had anywhere—but they didn't ever have any with dinner. Instead, what we'd call dinner rolls were served with breakfast. At lunch, the same type of rolls would be sliced in half and topped with sliced cheese, shrimp or quiche and served open-faced.

The chocolate was magnificent and it was sold everywhere.

Norwegian television is on only five hours a day and TV features many programs imported from other countries including the U.S. When we walked into a hotel lobby one afternoon, "The Greatest American Hero" was on—in English.

I can count on one hand the number of people I saw who were overweight. I can't help but feel that's somehow related to lack of overwhelming interest in the passive entertainment offered by TV.

And speaking of English, almost everyone did. One man said he began studying our language when he was age 6. His grammar was perfect, his accent slight.

These are my memories. I can't think of anything I didn't like, with the possible exception of pickled herring for breakfast.

Someone asked if we wanted to stay. There's no way to answer that question using a vacation as a guideline.

I could easily adjust to the unrealistic parts like someone cleaning my room each day, cooking my meals and doing the dishes, while I devoted all my time to recreational pursuits.

Fire board need

The appointment of the new fire chief has caused a great deal of controversy in the community.

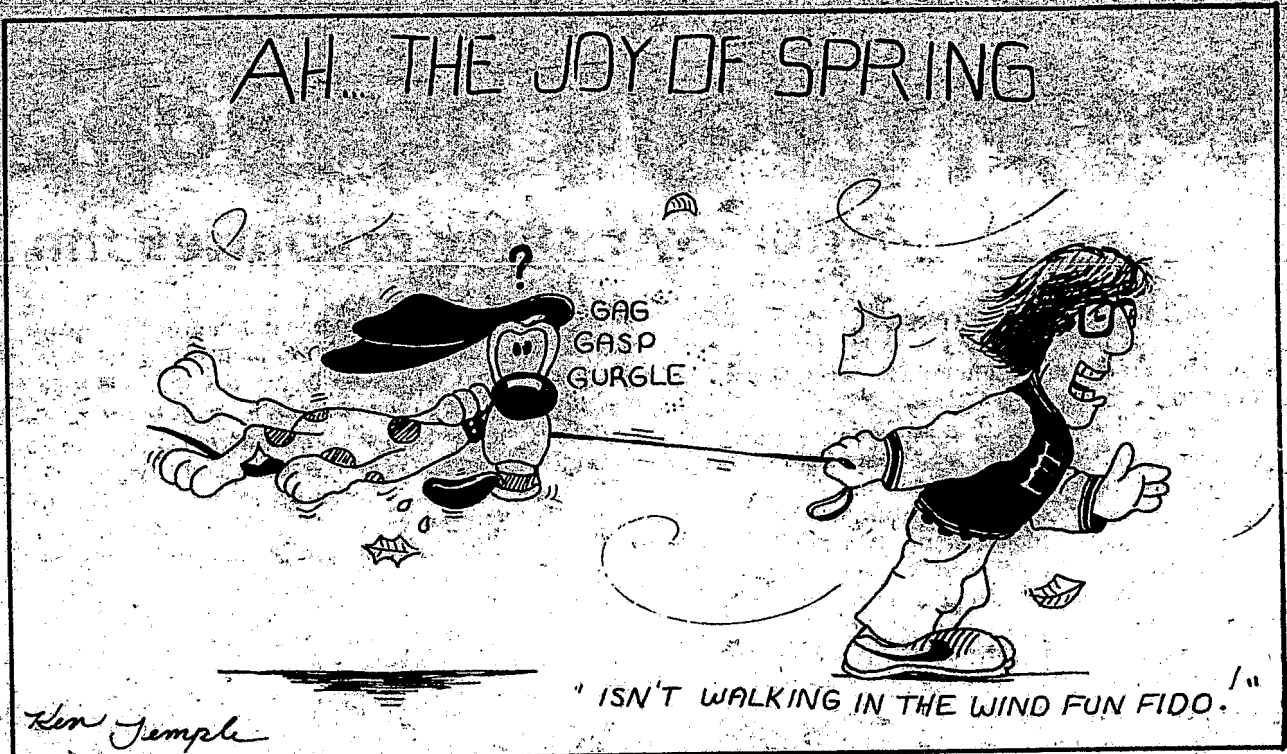

At this time, the pros and cons of the appointment are a moot point. They do not point out that the issues involved were greater than the board's (specifically four members) ability to handle.

The fire department needs, concerns and issues are too great for the board to devote the quantity of time needed for this single department and its impact on the community.

Now is the time for the formation of an autonomous fire board. This was suggested by the P.A.S. fire study, it's allowed by state law and it works well for a neighboring community.

We have a fire committee which has done an excellent job. We should expand the committee into a recognized authority to oversee the efficient running of the department for the citizens of Independence.

He saw Caribbean cruise differently

I have just read your article (by J.A.S.) in the Clarkston News about cruising the Caribbean with much interest. My wife and I have just returned from sailing aboard the "Song of America" on her 119th voyage.

It was our first cruise and we too thoroughly enjoyed ourselves. Everything was great from the dining experiences to the shows aboard the vessel.

I do take exceptions to a few things in your article though.

First of all the picture you show is not a view looking toward the stern. It is looking forward towards the bow. It doesn't show the grand Viking Crown lounge, 120 feet above the water.

I do not believe the "Song of America" has 12 sleeping decks - the R.C. brochure shows only 6 decks with cabins for passengers, but I guess you could fall asleep on any of her 12 decks.

How about the cabin stewards, didn't they do a great job? It seemed everytime we stepped out of our cabin the steward was in there replacing damp towels and straightening up the room.

I don't recall the cruise director pushing any particular stores, in fact I remember him saying they do not endorse any particular stores. And as for the "fashion place" our "Cruise Compass" daily paper listed only 3 evenings as suggested jacket and tie evenings.

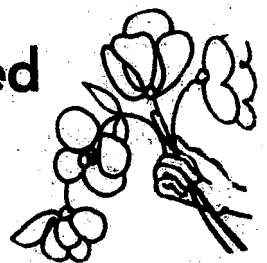

In closing I would like to say it was a beautiful ship and a wonderful week - we too will do it again.

Good-hearted young men

I want to thank Tom Lowrie and his crew from Lowrie's Landscaping Inc. for taking two big loads of tree limbs from my back yard, the results of the ice storm, in his new truck last Saturday afternoon.

I really appreciated it. I'm glad we have such good-hearted young men who would do this on a cold Saturday afternoon.

Editor Helmut Tuscavaara regarded himself as a creative writer, despite the routine reports of bake sales and Circle meetings that took up most of the space in his Upper Inwood Bugle-Advertiser, and he was smiling as he read through what he regarded as his masterpiece, written at the pinnacle of his career.

Here's what he had written:

"Ho ho," said Robert Roberts, popping some Sen Sen into his mouth and twirling his yo-yo, "even though I'm feeling so-so I want to chart a course from Baden-Baden through Walla Walla to Bora Bora, where they practice lomi lomi, accompanied by my very chi chi girl friend Zsa Zsa, about whom I am ga-ga because she is a go-go dancer who looks nice in her tutu, and her dog Fifi, while avoiding exposure to beri beri, the germs of which are found mostly in the doo doo of the Dodo, which would enable me to give a rah rah cheer before saying ta-ta."

Helmut's problem was how to work this gem into the next issue of the paper, but he was interrupted in his thoughts by Stacey Goodfill, who came bursting through the door into the Bugle-Advertiser office.

"Hey Helmut," he shouted. "Can I rent your garage? I'm going into business and I need some working space."

Well naturally Helmut had to find out what sort of business Stacey had in mind, and it turned out that he was going to start making broomsticks.

"Good ones, out of hardwood," Stacey explained. "I've got this little wood lathe and I figure I can turn out 50 a day, and at 50 cents each we're talking big money."

Helmut was no fool. He could hear opportunity when it knocked, and not only did he agree to rent the garage for $5 a month but sat down and knocked out a news story about the new venture, which he put in that week's issue.

Wanting to dress up the story he described the broomstick as the Simplified Anti-Twist-Universal Rigid Number, or SATURN for short, named the operation the Saturn Corporation, and described Stacey as the plant manager.

Helmut had no idea the story would create such a sensation. As usual, Speed Riggs of radio station WOOP in Nahma Junction picked up the article from the paper and read it as part of his noon news, somebody from Rapid River heard it while driving along US-2 and called the Associated Press where it went out over the national wire.

Talk about excitement! The next thing anybody knew there were all kinds of people running around Steuben and Upper Inwood, causing almost as much commotion as the Opening Day of the firearm deer season.

Most of them were journalist-type people, and they were easy to identify because they all wore trenchcoats and had their hair sprayed and were looking for Stacey Goodfill. Most of them descended upon the office of the Bugle-Advertiser, but it didn't take Helmut long to figure out that they were all on expense accounts and subscribed to the old journalistic adage of in vino veritas, so he adjourned the proceedings next door to the Aragon Ballroom and Billiard Parlor, where he held court at their expense.

Stacey was nowhere to be found, so Helmut had to act as company spokesperson.

"What will this do for the economy of Upper Inwood?" asked one reporter as the TV cameras whirled.

"Well, it means five big ones a month for me," said Helmut.

"Exactly where will the plant be?" asked another.

"Out there on my property," said Helmut, and they all wrote that down.

"What about production?" asked another.

"Stacey figures 50 a day," said Helmut, and they all gasped and wrote that down too.

"Can you give us any figures on employment?" he was asked.

"My, it certainly is thirsty in here," said Helmut, and all the reporters rushed to the bar, fighting over who was going to buy the next round.

Just about then Stacey himself wandered in. He had been ice fishing over on Big Murphy Lake and was wearing his Goldseals, bib overalls and plaid shirt, and the reporters found it difficult to believe that he was the plant manager of the new Saturn Corporation.

"Yup, I am," he said. "It certainly is thirsty in here."

They couldn't get him a drink fast enough, but for some reason they all lost interest when he started telling them about his little wood lathe and the broomstick business.

"Hey, where did everybody go?" he asked as the room cleared. "I was just gonna tell them I might be expanding into ironing boards."

"Hey," said Helmut. "That's big news. Let me write that down now and I'll put it in next week's paper."

Well he did, but he also raised Stacey's rent to $6 a month to cover the ironing board expansion.

Some village ordinances unlawful

Attorney's study organizes the 130 laws

By Carolyn Walker

Some of the ordinances used by the Village of Clarkston are archaic, humorous, or even illegal, according to attorney James Dietz.

Dietz, who was hired by the village council approximately three months ago, recently completed two-and-one-half months of poring over the ordinances in an effort to organize and update them.

Dietz says he plans on recommending to the council, through council member Jon Gaskell, that the ordinances be repealed and a code adopted in their place.

A code would be a "trimmed" version of the old ordinances and could be much more efficiently organized and maintained, Dietz says.

The current 130 village ordinances are kept in a loose-leaf-style book, and arranged into 19 chapters.

Dietz says he does not know how many ordinances he will recommend be pulled from the file, because many are redundant, outdated, or were never officially signed.

But, among the outdated ordinances Dietz plans to recommend for repeal is Ordinance 7, which reads in part: "That no person or persons shall hitch any horse or horses or other animals to shade or ornamental trees, or permit such horse, horses or animals to stand within reach of said trees in said village."

He also plans to recommend that the village do away with Ordinance 12, which Dietz deems archaic. It reads in part: "That it shall be unlawful for any person or persons to permit any chickens or other fowl owned by them or in their possession to run at large within the corporate limits of said village."

In addition, on the repeal list is Ordinance 25, written in 1923, which reads in part: "The president and trustees shall each receive a sum not less than one dollar for each meeting and not to exceed twenty-five dollars in any one year."

Dietz also plans on recommending the repeal of Ordinance 42, Section 11, which he says may violate the 1st Amendment. It reads in part: "Every person or company operating under this ordinance and in whose place of amusement or exhibition shall be displayed moving pictures of any character, kind or description shall present the pictures, films, or plates, so sought to be displayed to the chief of police for his inspection...

"...said chief is hereby authorized...to inspect...said pictures...and if in his judgment they are indecent or immoral, he shall reject the same and notify the person...that the same cannot be used..."

Such an ordinance, in addition to its possible violation of the 1st Amendment (which protects freedom of speech), gives too much authority to the police officer, Dietz said.

He refused to comment on any other ordinances, which in his opinion may be illegal.

The recommendations by Dietz, will not become official until acted upon by the village council, according to Norma Goyette, village clerk.

One outdated ordinance prohibits hitching horses or other animals to ornamental trees or shade trees, according to attorney James Dietz who recently codified village ordinances.

Water fees rise in Independence

By Carolyn Walker

Water rates in Independence Township are going to more than double.

At their April 2 meeting, board members authorized the rate increases recently recommended by Bendzinski and Co., a firm which studied the financial troubles of the township water department.

Last month, Bendzinski and Co. suggested that water rate increases as well as a .35 mill sewer ad valorem tax be instituted to offset maintenance costs.

Much to the surprise of some board members, no township residents turned out to discuss the proposed water rate increases and sewer tax at the April 2 public hearing.

Although the water rate increases were approved, no action was taken on the proposed sewer ad valorem tax.

An ad valorem tax is one that is levied township wide and not specially assessed, according to Clerk Richard Holman, who said the township has not had such a tax for approximately two years.

According to Ron McRae of Bendzinski and Co., the township does not have a sufficient customer base to cover the cost of maintenance and repair of the water system.

"You do not have the customers to spread the cost," he said.

Some 1,185 customers are currently hooked up to the Independence system.

McRae told the board that if the township had a 50-percent increase in customers, the rate adjustments would not be necessary.

The township has no choice but to institute the increases, according to Supervisor Frank Ronk.

"We're in bad financial straights right now," he said.

The increase will mean raising rates from the current $9 flat-fee-per-quarter, which includes the first 1,000 cubic feet of water used, to $11.80 ready-to-serve fee, with no water usage included.

The water consumption charge will jump from the current 45 cents per 100 cubic feet to $1.02 per 100 cubic feet.

These charges will only be instituted against persons hooked up to the township water systems in subdivisions.

"We're in bad financial straights right now"

—Supervisor Frank Ronk

George Anderson, director of the township's department of public works, told the board members the water department had not been solvent for the last six years.

"At one time it was solvent," he said, attributing the problems to an increase in energy and maintenance costs. "It's very expensive maintenance, very."

Labor costs have remained the same for five years, he added.

Anderson told board members that the township has sustained a $90,000 debt to the water department in the past nine months.

Trustee Daniel Travis expressed concern that by increasing the costs, Independence Township would become less competitive with other communities.

Anderson responded by saying Independence Township's rates are "very low," and that even with an increase, the rates would be competitive with other communities.

If the township were to have its debts paid, and a cash reserve, the rates could be reduced, Anderson added.

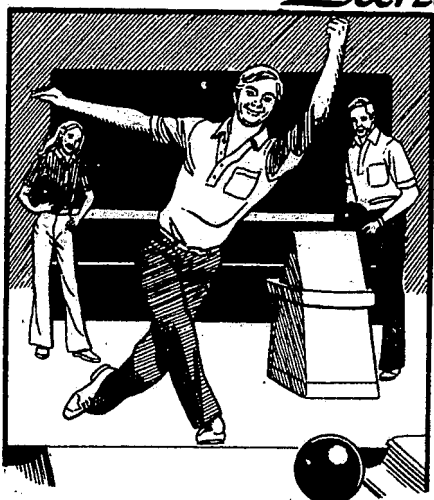

"I think we have to be cautious and not price ourselves out of business," Travis said.

Trustee William Vandermark made a motion to authorize the increases, saying that after a $300,000 balance had been reached, the issue should automatically return before the board for review.

The board approved the motion, agreeing to look at the situation annually.

Voting for the motion were Supervisor Frank Ronk, Treasurer John Lutz, Clerk Richard Holman, and trustees Carol Balzarini and William Vandermark. Trustee Daniel Travis abstained without comment. Trustee Dale Stuart was absent.

Clarkston man drowns in fishing accident

A fishing accident near Lake Huron claimed the life of an Independence Township father and his fishing companion.

John Harms, 33, and Flushing resident James Bluhm, 34, died April 1, according to Sgt. Edward Polack of the East Tawas Michigan State Police Department.

Harms' body was recovered on April 3 after 11 a.m. in approximately 10 feet of water, 100 feet off shore in Lake Huron.

Rescue efforts by divers from several counties had been hampered by the extremely cold and dark water, Polack said.

Bluhm's body was recovered on April 2.

Both men, wearing waders, had been fishing in the east branch of the Au Gres River, when one of them apparently stepped into the water and was caught by the swift current, Polack said.

Because of conflicting witness reports, it is not known which man went into the current first, but the remaining fisherman tried to help and both were swept away into adjoining Lake Huron, according to Polack.

A bystander, Thomas O'Neal of Royal Oak, attempted to rescue the men with a boat he found on shore.

O'Neal, who had no oars and was paddling by hand, also had to be rescued when he drifted approximately two miles off shore.

According to Polack, Harms and Bluhm were experienced fishermen.

The Au Gres River and Lake Huron are "very high this year," have extremely swift currents and water temperatures of about 34 degrees, he said, and the cold water probably played a significant role in the men's deaths.

Divers from Arenac, Saginaw, Iosco, and Bay counties assisted police divers in the search for the men.

Harms is survived by his wife, Judith, and daughter, Maia Laine, age 4.

Other survivors include his parents, John and Joyce Harms of Flushing; brothers, Robert of Flint and Douglas of Flushing; a sister, Lisa Harms of Flushing; grandmothers, Ina Harms of Tucson, Ariz., and Julia Dorr of Flushing; his "little brother" Richard Evans of Lake Orion; and father- and mother-in-law, Richard and Sarah Marshall of Flushing.

Funeral arrangements for Harms were handled by the Rossell Funeral Home in Flushing Michigan.

In lieu of flowers, the family suggests contributions to a trust fund being established for Harms' daughter.

Pitchers hold hopes for Wolves

By Dan Vandenhemel

Pitching is always the determining factor for a high school softball team. Clarkston High School coach Carla Teare sees that and has the Wolves working extra hard.

Four of the pitchers started throwing in mid-January in preparation for the April 16 opener.

Jody Law, Terri Sherman, Melonie Upcott and Chris Jarrett, who should be the main mound performers for the Wolves, have been putting in many hours of practice.

"They've got two or three pitches," Teare said. "Jody and Terri are our two pitchers. The Others will get some pitching in, too, along with Laura Hurren. But practice is a lot different than game situations. There's a little more pressure."

The Wolves are facing some pressure of their own as defending district champions. They finished last year with a 22-8 record, good for second place in the Greater Oakland Activities League (GOAL). The eighth loss ended the season in the first round of the regionals against Bay City Central.

Last year, the Wolves depended on their hitting and defense. This time around, Teare hopes the defense and overall depth will carry the team.

"We're going to be a solid softball team," she said. "We've got a lot of good athletes and that really helps. They can make the outstanding play in the field that can lift the team up."

On the roster for the Wolves are seniors Roseann Hirneisen, Jill Griffis, Kristin Tiahrt, Hurren, Law and Upcott. Juniors are Sue Stefanski, Ellen Fleming, Joanie Leightnam, Kelly Cruz, Sue Lovelady, Tammy Pittman, Sherman and Jarrett.

Teare admits the Wolves' goals are a little different than other teams—winning the league title is secondary.

"We want to advance in post season play," she said. "We'd like to win the district title and go on in the regionals. I feel the league prepares us for post-season."

The league has strong teams at Waterford Mott, Waterford Kettering and Clarkston. Besides the competition in the GOAL, the Wolves also participate in the Royal Oak Dondero Tournament and the Chelsea High School Tournament.

"I did the scheduling this year and we really have some tough schools to play," Teare said. "Our overall record is not a big concern, but it is important. It shows how we're playing."

Practicing inside can be tough at times, but the Clarkston High School softball team puts in plenty of offensive practice with the batting cage and batting tee.

Taking the court

Basketball was never intended to be played this way, and Clarkston High School is going to find out why.

The school is holding a donkey basketball game between students and teachers, April 17 at 7:30 p.m. in the high school gym.

The rules of the game say the player can only shoot while sitting on the donkey. When chasing a loose ball, the players can leave the animal but never let go of it.

The event is sponsored by the junior class. Tickets are $2.50 at the school office or at the door.

Softball openings

Openings are still available on the Clarkston Senior's Class A softball team.

The slow-pitch league is open to men over 55 years old. The games are Wednesdays at 9:30 a.m. Home games are played at Clintonwood Park in Independence Township.

For more information, call 625-5083 or 625-2119.

The inclement weather is keeping the Wolves' softball team in the gym. Until the weather breaks, a lot of batting practice will be indoors.

State titles for wrestlers

By Dan Vandenhemel

One season is over and the next is about to begin. The Clarkston Freestyle Wrestling Club is still glowing over its performance at the state championship.

Six wrestlers grabbed first place and another six finished in the top four at the Southeast Michigan Association of Grapplers finals, March 29 and 30 in Hazel Park.

Brett Walters won his weight class in the 8-and-under division and Jerry Anderson, Ruben DelosiRois and Jeff DeRoseau took first in the 9-10-year-old class. Tony Miller for the 11-12-year-olds and Todd George in the 13-14-year-olds also brought titles home.

Other top finishers were Kevin Allen, third, and Chad Granlund, fourth, in the 8-and-under division; Scott Eggleston, fourth in the 9-10-year-old division; John Anderson, fourth for the 11-12-year-olds; and Mark Smith, second, and Mike DeRoseau, third, in the 13-14-year-old bracket.

Club president Bob DeRoseau said over 800 wrestlers from Michigan competed in the state tournament and that having six champions from one club is great.

"We started out with 68 wrestlers and we've got about 25 left now," he said. "Many of them leave to play baseball or soccer. The kids that are left, there's a good chance they could be in the top six of the county at the junior olympics."

The club is starting to prepare for the United States Kids Federation tournaments that lead-up the U.S. Junior Olympics in July.

The five-state qualifying matches begin April 13. Wrestlers from Michigan, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky and Wisconsin will be trying to reach the championships on May 24.

"The junior olympics are really something," DeRoseau said. "They parade the kids in just like the Olympics—I'd say there were about 2,500 wrestlers at it last year. It makes you feel good to make it there."

DeRoseau gives credit for the wrestlers' achievements to the coaches. Head coach Craig DeLowe is assisted by Jeff Valenzuela, and Brian and Mark Reed.

"They've done it all. The parents have helped a lot, too, and the schools," he said. "Craig and the other coaches have put in a lot of time with the kids."

Bonds OK'd for Clintonville Road nursing center

Financing and the final plans for the proposed Grovecrest Care Center were approved, 6-0, April 2 by the Independence Township Board.

The 120-bed, skilled care center is to be built on 19 acres off Clintonville Road.

There was virtually no public comment at the public hearing held as a prerequisite for formalizing a bond issue for the proposed center.

A public hearing is required by the state when bonds are being issued, according to Paul Wyzgoski, who represented VerLee Associates, owners of the facility.

The VerLees anticipate issuing not more than $4.5 million worth of bonds by the Independence Township Economic Development Corporation (EDC) for the financing of their proposed center.

According to Paul VerLee, co-owner of the facility, bonds will be issued at $4.5 million to cover any potential increase in expenses for the center, which is estimated to cost $3.5 million.

The EDC helps create jobs and increases the tax base (with taxable facilities) in communities, according to Martha Wheeler, EDC committee member, who added that the EDC also provides for financing at a lower interest rate.

Co-owner Paul VerLee has said in the past that he hopes to begin construction in July or August, with completion scheduled for October 1986.

Up My Alley

Make it stop

Dan Vandenhemel

Will it never end?

I seriously think this will go on forever.

The THIS is a college education. It's years of sweat, time, and money, lots of money.

Many students take more than four years to get that precious piece of paper. Sometimes work, cash or both eat into a full schedule of college classes.

The piece of paper I'm waiting to get my hands on is almost in reach. Just seven more classes and I'll be a former student at Oakland University. It only has taken me six and one-half years to get this far.

With a degree so close, panic sets in when something goes wrong with the number of credit hours you've tallied.

But the worst thing is getting bounced around by the institute of higher learning.

To complete the grade, you have to put up with the idiosyncrasies of the individual professors. This, no doubt goes on at all levels of schools.

Some don't want papers turned in with plastic covers, some only want 400-word essays, some only want what they want in essay answers even though it could be contrary to what the textbook says, some don't give tests until the final.

As students, we have to juggle all these together to try and please them which is rarely easy. Many times, we're at their mercy.

It's stupid to depend so much on one or two papers to determine a grade in a particular class, but that's life and not much can be done to change it.

It all adds up to handing in flimsy pieces of paper while trying to get a single framed piece of paper stating you know everything you need to know.

It just doesn't make any sense, but what else is new from an institution that requires a student to pay for tuition, services, enrollment, lab fees, books or anything else that might fall into the category of needing to be paid for.

Alaskan travels follow tradition

Edward Kuhn looks over a scrapbook he keeps on his 28 visits to Alaska. Trip 29 is coming up.

By Carolyn Walker

A thrill of a lifetime can be contagious.

Edward Kuhn got his thrill as an 11-year-old youth, when in 1935 Canadian George Buchanan took him and several other boys on an adventurous trip to Alaska.

When Buchanan died in 1939, people thought his dream of sharing the wilds and beauty of Alaska with American and Canadian boys had died with him, after 16 years of annual trips.

But they were wrong.

Kuhn, 61, of Independence Township, remembering his wonderful childhood experience, picked up where Buchanan left off.

He will be making his 29th annual trip this June with about 10 boys.

In 1957, Kuhn began taking boys to Alaska following the same manner Buchanan had used.

"I never want to make one cent for conducting these Alaska trips," he says. "I am only interested in building citizenship and character in the lives of our youth."

"...I am taking boys to Alaska because of the kindness of one man, Buchanan, who brought the greatest joy to my life."

Boys age 11-18, who wish to go, are told they must earn one-third of their expenses. Their parents pay the remainder of the costs.

"It's to teach boys to save for things worthwhile in life," Kuhn says, adding that the boys experience a feeling of accomplishment.

Kuhn, a social studies teacher in Hazel Park, believes life's quality experiences are passing many children by.

"What a lot of wonderful things...people are missing," he says.

He hopes to share some of those adventures with boys, and sometimes girls and adults, too.

Kuhn permits girls to make the trips when adult women are present for supervision. Occasionally, he has taken whole families.

The participants disembark from Detroit to Windsor and then Toronto where they board a pullman train bound for Alaska.

Later in the trip, the youths spend several days aboard a cruise ship, where they dine in style, spend time with the captain, and fish.

During the trip, Kuhn takes the boys on tours of an authentic turn-of-the-century village, an Indian long-house, the Canadian Rockies, Glacier National Park, Fraser Canyon, the site of the Klondike Gold Rush and many other places.

The experiences provide a different outlook, adding quality and responsibility to the boys' lives, Kuhn says.

"You can never take away your experiences," he says. "They don't forget. There's a lot of wonderful things in this world."

Kuhn has taken 430 individuals to Alaska during the past 28 years, and says he won't stop until the cost becomes prohibitive.

"To me, travel is the finest education a person can receive," he says. "It broadens the mind and outlook on life and gives life a richer and fuller meaning."

Ritter's expansion put on hold

By Carolyn Walker

A proposal by the new owner of Ritter's Market on Dixie Highway to add on to the store drew several concerns from Independence Township Planning Commission members March 28.

Property owner Charles Bowles, of C.B. Custom Builders Inc., requested conceptual site plan approval for a two-story, 8,800-square-foot office and retail building, which he proposes adding on to the current Ritter's Market.

Commission members, concerned about Bowles' planned heavy use of asphalt surrounding the store and the potential use of an alley behind the store, tabled any decision on the matter, advising Bowles to submit some modifications to his project.

Bowles' plans include the addition of a meat market and fish store, which he said would complement the current fruit market.

The outside of the entire complex (including the current Ritter's) is to consist of brick and wood, and the roof is to be shingled.

Most of the commissioner's concerns stemmed from Bowles' plans to put asphalt parking facilities in the front of the building extending around and behind the Burger King Restaurant, which adjoins the property.

"One of our functions is to beautify Dixie," said commission member Holly Stephens, calling the area around Ritter's a "sea of asphalt."

Stephens told Bowles she would like to see the parking eliminated in the front of the store and landscaping provided.

Commission Chairman Neil Wallace concurred with Stephens, adding that he was concerned about the use of an alley behind the store, and its related safety.

"It's quickly becoming another road," he said.

Too much store is being "shoe-horned" onto too small of a lot, said Wallace, who added that either the building was too large for the lot, or that there was too much business for the available parking.

"This is a lot of use on this site," said township planner Richard Carlisle, who agreed with Wallace.

After the meeting Bowles expressed surprise and anger at the commission's decision.

"I wasn't happy," he said. "I had no idea they would pick my whole concept apart."

He also added that closing the alley would be detrimental to the businesses housed in his building.

A large number of shoppers from the Maybee Road area use the alley, he said.

Bowles said it was his first appearance before the planning commission, adding that he had previously worked in residential construction, but that this was his first commercial venture.

A motion by Stephens to table the issue was approved unanimously by the commission.

Bowles was advised to make modifications to his plans regarding parking, safety and landscaping, and to then resubmit them to the commission.

When contacted after the meeting, Bowles said he would make some modifications, especially in landscaping, as requested by the commission and present them next month.

Car sales approved for Dixie

Independence board signs consent judgment amendment

An amendment to a 1974 consent judgment, signed by the Independence Township board, paves the way for new- and used-car sales on Dixie Highway.

The consent judgment governing the use of the land was initiated after a lawsuit prohibited building a K mart on the property, which abuts the House of Maple and Pine.

Board members agreed to the amendment following a presentation by attorney Gerald Fisher at their April 2 meeting. The vote was 5-1, with Trustee William Vandermark voting no.

The amendment requested that the allowed use of the property be extended specifically for vehicle sales rather than a number of new uses, according to Fisher.

After the lawsuit, the property was divided into two zones, the front commercial and the back multiple family dwelling.

Since that time, the zoning ordinance governing the parcel has been changed.

The new C-3 zoning regulates only a portion of the 50-plus acres.

The property owners must appear before the planning commission for site plan approval of their proposed car sales business. They are scheduled to request conceptual site plan approval from the commission April 11.

An Apple
for the Teacher

Holly Stephens, biology teacher at Clarkston High School, was born and raised in the city of Detroit.

She graduated from Denby High School, also in Detroit. Holly's post-secondary education consists of a bachelor of science degree from Wayne State University, where she earned her degree in biology. In addition to her major, she completed a minor in chemistry.

Holly's work experience in teaching is varied. In the past, Holly has taught at Eastern and Cass Tech high schools in Detroit. She has also worked for Warren public schools and Pontiac schools' adult education program.

Finally, Holly has been with Clarkston Community Schools for the past 10 years.

She is an active member of several educational organizations, which include the National Science Teachers Association and the Michigan Biology Teachers Association.

Aside from professional activities, Holly is very active in local politics. She is the vice chairperson for the Independence Township Planning Commission, chairperson of the Wetlands Board (an ecology preservation group) and the treasurer of the local Republican Club.

Along with her teaching duties, Holly finds time to work with several student groups. She is the faculty sponsor of the Science Club, Computer Team and co-sponsor of the junior class.

In the past, she has been the faculty chairperson for the Science Club on trips to Toronto and Chicago, senior class trip to the Bahamas and, this year, she will travel with the French Club to France over Easter vacation.

When asked why she chose teaching, Holly responded by saying, "Back in the sixties, teaching was an acceptable profession for women who also wanted to raise a family."

Holly has a very positive attitude toward her teaching, and states, "I enjoy being around today's young people; they are so innovative and creative with their ideas. I truly enjoy the kids, and that's why I teach."

Editor's note: An Apple for the Teacher is provided through a committee of the Clarkston Education Association.

This week's author is Ned Burdick, Clarkston High School mathematics and physics teacher.

"I truly enjoy the kids, and that's why I teach."

Sheriff's deputy added this year

One more Oakland County sheriff's deputy will be patrolling Springfield Township this year.

The township board presented a budget at its Annual Meeting March 30 with funding for a fourth deputy. The almost 70 residences in attendance unanimously approved the increase.

The 2-mill levy is an increase from 1.6 mills last year. The .4-mill addition means 40 cents for each $1,000 of assessed property valuation.

The police fund budget calls for $212,000 for the four deputies. Each officer costs $53,600 per year. The figure includes all equipment and supervisory costs.

"We've got a verbal agreement for the fourth contract," Supervisor Collin Walls said at the meeting. "We'll have coverage of 20 of the 21 shifts in the township."

"The third deputy that we got last year did help," he said. "I think it helped; I've noticed some changes. Crime seems to be stable in the community."

Non-union workers given raises

Salary increases averaging 5 percent were awarded to township non-union salaried employees last week.

Independence Township board members, authorized the raises at the April 2 meeting.

They are effective April 1, 1985.

Two individuals will receive more than the recommended 5 percent increase.

The salary of Finance Director, currently held by Peter Dobrzeniecki, will be raised to $30,000 from $24,950 during the fiscal year of 1985-86.

The supervisor's secretary position is to be upgraded, with a specific proposal to be presented to the board at a later date.

Dobrzeniecki is credited by Clerk Richard Holman as doing an exemplary job.

Dobrzeniecki is also working extra hours because of the arrival of new township computers, Holman said.

Board members present unanimously approved the raise in a 6-0 vote.

Township budget given the OK

The $3.7 million budget for 1985-86 was formally approved by the Independence Township Board April 2.

Board members voted on the various budgets separately and also authorized Supervisor Frank Ronk to make decisions independently on any expenditures under $1,500 during the year.

According to Clerk Richard Holman, who made the suggestion regarding the supervisor, such a provision was used last year.

Purchases over $1,000 must go to bids, they agreed.

At the township's annual meeting March 30, the about 40 residents in attendance voted to recommend approval of the budget.

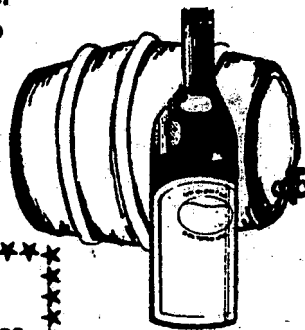

The following budgets were formally approved last week:

- General fund, $1,697,782.
- Fire fund, $1,224,350.
- Police fund, $323,678.
- Library fund, $160,695.
- Safety path fund, $9,000.
- Property purchase fund, $88,300.
- Federal Revenue Sharing fund, $201,250.

Dixie Baptist founder tells story

By Carolyn Walker

A sense of humor and pious convictions blend amiably in Dr. Paul Vanaman, pastor of Dixie Baptist Church.

Vanaman, 57, exudes enthusiasm, laughs heartily at many of his past experiences, and then switches quickly and earnestly to talk about God and the Bible and their effects on his life.

The Bible always takes you up, it improves your life and society, it takes you to God, he says.

He entered the world as one of nine children, and was left fatherless at 11 months of age during the depression.

The first of his family to attend college, Vanaman worked his way up from novice pastor at a North Carolina church, from which he was fired, to become founder of Dixie Baptist Church and its accompanying Springfield Christian Academy School in Springfield Township.

His relationship with Christ began when he was 14. "I fell in love with Jesus Christ," he says, adding

"We're sitting in the midst of a miracle"

that he pledged himself to God's work at that time. "It made a difference to me."

Vanaman admits, however, that he was unsure about his future when he was a youth.

During 1945, at 17, Vanaman says his "strongest ambition" in life was to turn 18, join the United States Marines and go to war.

But, his plans were thwarted when the United States dropped the atomic bomb on Hiroshima, and the Japanese surrendered before his 18th birthday.

However, God stepped in with timely influence, he says.

Vanaman had no plans to pursue a college education; but was inspired to attend Bob Jones University in South Carolina when he read an ad for the university in a magazine.

The ad shared Vanaman's beliefs, espousing the Bible as God's final authority, along with old-fashioned religion.

"It seemed as though God put his finger on that cover," he says.

Two months later, in August of 1946, Vanaman was a student of divinity at Bob Jones University.

After graduating from Bob Jones University, Vanaman took a position as pastor at a church in North Carolina, from which he was subsequently fired.

Vanaman laughs about the experience. "I didn't know anything about pastoring a church," he says, adding that as a novice, all he could do was preach.

He subsequently came to Michigan to visit a pastor friend, who led him to a position at Andersonville Community Church.

"Dead broke," he anxiously gave a sermon one evening for $10.

That sermon led to a request for more, and ultimately a job offer.

A Baptist by conviction, Vanaman felt uneasy taking a position with a different denomination and said he would pray about the offer, admitting that he already knew the answer.

"The answer was no," he says, again laughing at his own audacity in pre-guessing God's will.

Nonetheless, after serious praying, Vanaman felt led by God to take the job, much to his chagrin, he says.

There were only 13 people in attendance his first Sunday in 1953, so Vanaman began knocking on

Dr. Paul Vanaman, pastor of the Dixie Baptist Church in Springfield Township, received his bachelor's degree in 1949, master's degree in doors and telling people about the church.

He recruited over 200 people in six months.

As the church grew, Vanaman experienced strained relationships with some of his parishioners who wanted to keep the church small.

Believing that he should preach the Word of God to more people, Vanaman became convinced that a Dixie Highway location would be the answer to his prayers.

Vanaman says he wanted to follow God's will for his life, and establish a church where God wanted one.

At 26, he put God to the test by setting two criteria: If God would provide him a building on Dixie Highway, rent free and available, Vanaman would know it was God's will that he establish a church at that location.

Starting south on Dixie from Davisburg Road, Vanaman got only as far as the current I-75 intersection, when he found a vacant building.

He approached the owner, who never asked for money.

The owner told Vanaman that he was convinced some young man would eventually show an interest in the property.

Vanaman stopped him. "I am that young man," he told the owner, trying to guess what the terms for purchase might be.

"What arrangements do you want to make?" the owner asked, never mentioning money.

Vanaman offered to improve the building with paint and fix up the exterior and landscape.

The deal was enacted with that agreement.

The parishioners of Dixie Baptist Church worshipped in that building rent free for three years, before purchasing adjoining property from the same owner and constructing the current church.

Thirteen people attended the first service in his church and four were family members.

Since that time 30 years ago, Vanaman has seen his church grow to the current 2,000 members and an attached school with 625 students.

Springfield Christian Academy, begun in 1972, is now entirely debt free, according to Vanaman.

Parishioners, through contributions, enabled the church to pay off by 1981 six mortgages totaling $512,000 in 1977, he says.

Vanaman estimates that the total church and school complex, along with another building the church owns on Dixie, are worth over $4 million.

In 1983, Dixie Baptist added a new $609,000 gymnasium with 90 percent of the cost coming from contributions of less than $100, he says.

His plans for the future include building a 12-room school annex.

Reflecting over his years as a struggling pastor and a growing Christian, Vanaman muses, "This is here because of struggle, sweat, tears and hard work."

He gives the ultimate credit to God, however.

"God is good to me," he says. "We're sitting in the midst of a miracle."

NWOVEC students sweep awards

The Commercial Arts program at the Northwest Oakland Vocational Education Center has reason to be proud of its students. The top three prizes in an art contest went to people in the program.

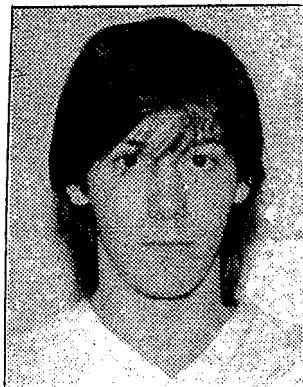

The Michigan Wildlife Art Festival poster contest awarded first place to Brent Harris of Waterford Kettering High School, second place went to Melissa Werzynski of Brandon High School and third place to Joe Hutchinson of Clarkston High School.

Dennis Fijalkowski, the executive director of the Michigan Wildlife Foundation, presented the students with checks for $100, $50 and $25. Entrants were judged on creativity, commercial design, theme and visual impact.

The reason for the contest was to make young people—and others—aware of the environmental problems, he said.

Larry Keech, the commercial arts teacher at NWOVEC, offered the contest to his class as a project. All schools in Oakland County were eligible to participate in the contest, held in conjunction with the Michigan Wildlife Art Festival in Southfield in March.

NWOVEC art students took all three prizes in the the Michigan Wildlife Art Festival Contest for high school students. Clockwise from upper left are first-place winner Brent Harris, second-place winner Melissa Werzynski and third-place winner Joe Hutchinson.

runner-up Paul Reading and seventh-grade runner-up Ingrid Larson. Others in the final 10 were Clare Hulleza, Steve Doolittle, Katie Hopson, Christi Johnson, Marcie Spiece and Missy Spiece.

Three-island stop in the West Indies

By JAMES A SHERMAN

Many years ago a friend returned from a vacation in St. Thomas, Virgin Islands, West Indies and told what a delightful and beautiful place it is.

His enthusiasm for the island impressed me so much I wanted to make sure any Caribbean cruise we took included St. Thomas.

That was my only instructions to the travel agent. To get there, without making daily stops, we went via Royal Caribbean's Song of America which stops at Nassau, San Juan and St. Thomas.

With Nassau just an overnight run from Miami, that was our first stop on our 7-day cruise. Having "done the island" once, we didn't hurry off the ship.

But, because I would be reporting on the cruise, I did want to visit Nassau's famous straw market. It's indoors now. It used to be in a park. It's just as big, congested, and confusing as we remembered.

Nassau is not impressive. It's old and looks it. The supreme court and legislature were both in session . . . in buildings in need of a paint job at least.

Bright, white-jacketed police were everywhere, mostly behind wrought iron fence, away from sign-toting pickets across the street.

Store fronts show wear, as do board floors on the inside. One good thing, there was no unfriendliness, as we had witnessed before.

Our stop was only six hours. We reboarded at 3 p.m. It was two days to Puerto Rico, where we could go ashore from noon to 1 a.m.

Two shore excursions were offered aboard ship, a trip to the El Yunque rain forest or a city tour of old and new San Juan. We chose the latter.

One of the people we ate with aboard ship, Al Duell of Burton, MI, had been in San Juan as a serviceman. Through his advice, we made sure we were on deck when we neared San Juan so we could see the old fort that guarded the harbor.

Ft. El Morro took 146 years to build and was completed in 1783. It has massive thick walls and was built with slave labor. It also did not stop the enemy.

The tour, which cost $14 each, stopped at a public beach for no apparent reason, then took us to what the driver said was sold and new San Juan. We couldn't tell the difference.

Like Nassau, it's old and shows it. Streets are so narrow that when the driver tells you, "That's St. (something) Church, the oldest on the island," you're so confined in the bus you can't see above the doorknob on the church.

We did enjoy a tour of Ft. Morro. We met a couple who had honeymooned there 49 years ago, and they said the fort had been kept in identical condition.

San Juan is a popular spot for cruise ships, and it appears the economy depends on them. The narrow streets, with cubicle stores are busy, busy. They do, however, have an adequate number of clerks.

There is 16 percent unemployment in San Juan.

We got to St. Thomas at 8 a.m. the next day. What a magnificent port. The half-circle harbor is filled with sail boats and motor boats. The land goes up from the sea to over 1,500 feet and the hillsides are dotted with white houses with bright red tile roofs.

The green foliage, white and red, highlighted with a bright sun is a sight to remember.

The United States bought St. Thomas from Denmark in 1917, but the Danes kept the waterfront dock area, which the guide said was the most valuable.

American presidents appointed governors until 1970 when St. Thomas elected their own.

Our island tour took us up a winding road over 1,000 feet, and at each turn you could look down at the beautiful harbor and city.

Once over the crest, Megan's beach can be seen. National Geographic rated Megan's as one of the 10 most beautiful beaches in the world. It did look beautiful from our vantage point.

The tour also took us to Coral Sea World, where we watched a scuba diver feed manta rays 15 feet underwater. Fascinating.

We'd saved our shopping dollars for St. Thomas. Though crowded with ships' passengers and tourists, the 20x20 store cubicles are clean, help is courteous, and variety aplenty.

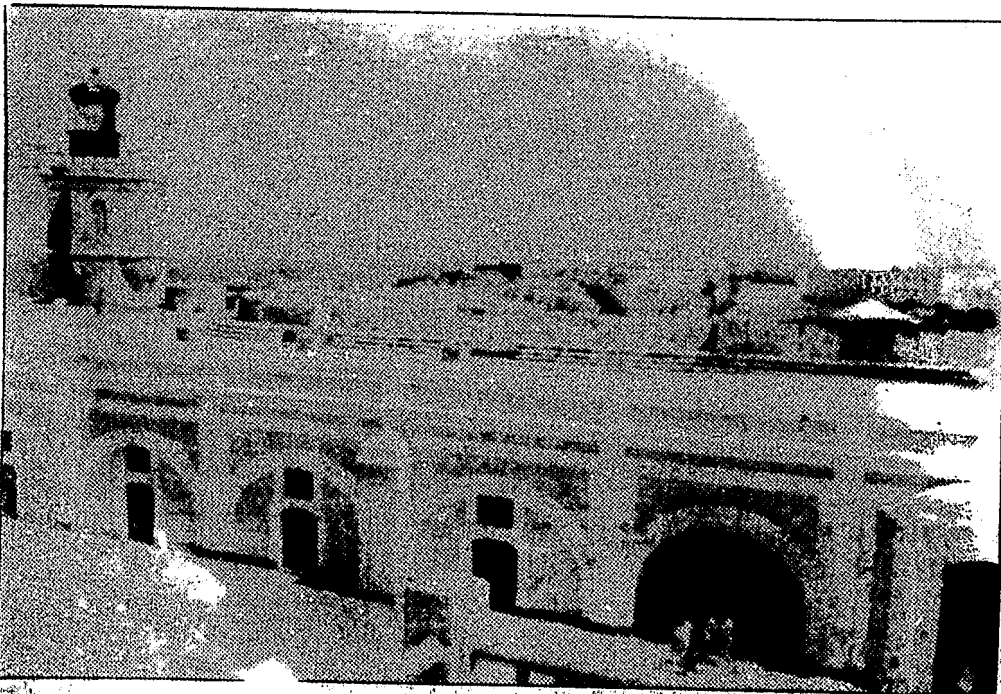

The stores are as if gold is the national stone. Gold chains are sold by the inch off rolls like chains in hardware. Pearls are quoted by the inch.

There are so many very expensive ($4,000 or more) watches, Concord to name one, that they lose their singular beauty. You also begin to wonder if there really is any savings from back home. After all, there are Sieko watches in many price ranges, whose to say which is which locally.

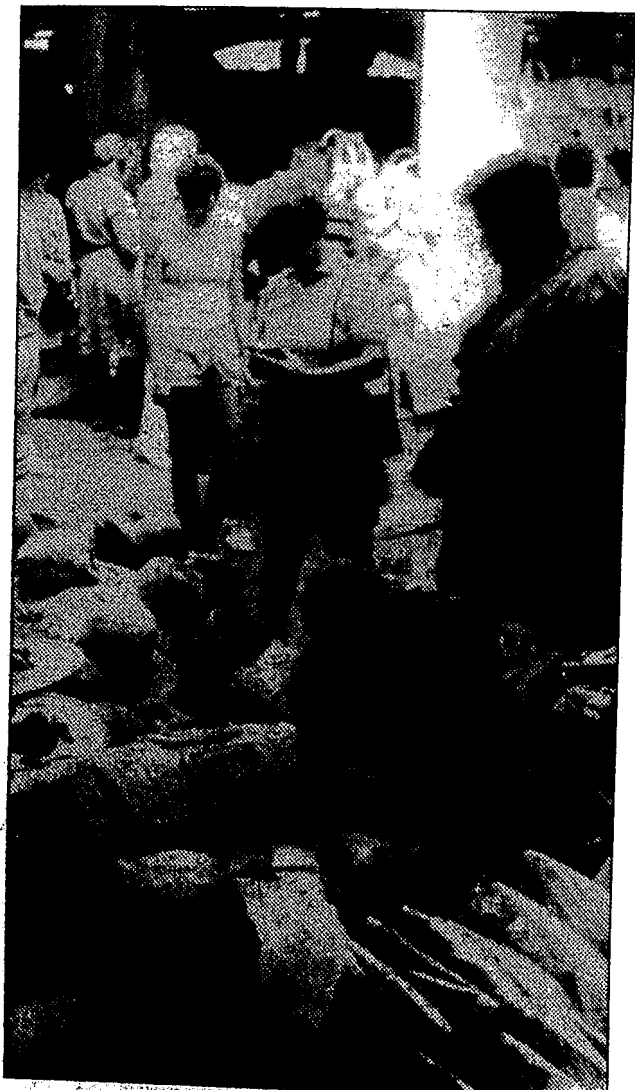

But it's fun on the 2-ft sidewalks and 6-ft streets. Store ownership is undergoing changes in St. Thomas. We were told the big Riise stores were recently sold to men from India. The influence is evident in other stores, too.

St. Thomas has 45,000 inhabitants with eight percent unemployment. It's a friendly island, picture postal card pretty, and has temperatures that don't vary more than 12 degrees from 78 year around.

It's a place that is just as nice and beautiful as my friend described it several years ago.

Looking down at the courtyard and over the wall of Ft. Morro, San Juan.

Prices in the strawmarket of Nassau are in the minds of the tenders.

A first price is quickly followed by a lower price, which may be followed by an even lower price if you want to dicker.

Dear Cat Paw:
What is the maximum amount of alcohol the body can take before dying?

Signed, Wonderer

Dear Wonderer:
There are six stages of alcoholic influence. In the second to last stage, or the fifth, the BAC (Blood Alcohol Concentration) is .30 to .45. The person is completely unconscious and in a coma approaching death. In the sixth stage, the BAC is over .45 and death occurs from respiratory paralysis.

Dear Cat Paw:
What is hash?
I like it but don't know what I'm smoking?

I Like It

Dear I Like It:
Hash is the dark brown resin that is collected from the tops of potent "Cannabis Sativa" or marijuana.

It is at least five times stronger than marijuana; the effects are stronger and more intense and the danger of side effects are greater.

It also occurs to me that you should be concerned with what you are doing to your body. Learn the facts and weigh them carefully—it's the only life you have.

Dear Cat Paw:
Isn't it true that alcohol is good for your health and also fattening?

Light drinker

Dear Light:
Alcohol contains about 70 calories per ounce but has no nutritional value at all!

Dear Cat Paw:
What is the best way to quit smoking? I've tried many times.

Still Puffing

Dear Still:
When you really want to quit, you will find your own way to take control over your own body, and you'll do it!

It sounds to me like you haven't convinced yourself that quitting cigarettes is the best thing for you.

Dear Cat Paw:
Does switching drinks make you drunker or make you sick?

Gag

Dear Gag:
The answer is no to both questions. Changing from one alcoholic drink to another drink to another shouldn't make much difference—it's the alcohol that makes you drunk.

It is also the alcohol that makes you sick. If you drink too much, you get drunk and you'll probably have a hangover—no matter what you drink.

Spelling wizards

As sometimes happens to good spellers during nerve-racking spelling bees, Clarkston Junior High School eighth-grader Matt Plec erred on a usually easy word—surround.

"I spelled it with one 'r,'" he says, then laughs at the mistake.

Ben O'Rourke took it from there, spelled surround correctly, then spelled compass to win the Clarkston Junior High School spelling bee May 19.

"I was kind of excited," says Ben, then makes the sentiment stronger: "I was really excited. I was just so happy."

For one thing, it was an upset for a seventh-grader to win over an upper classman, he says. And "in elementary, I always came in second and I could never beat this girl. She always beat me. This was the first time I came in first."

Ben received the list of words to study just two days before the district contest for northern Oakland County junior high schools held May 21 at Brandon Township. The spelling bee was sponsored by the Lawrence Institute of Technology, of Southfield.

Ben said he was surprised to find out everyone else in the contest had the list since February. He managed to put in only about six hours of study.

But he was pleased with his finish. Out of 23 competitors, Ben came in sixth.

—Kathy Greenfield

Clarkston Junior High's super spellers are Ben O'Rourke (left) and Matt Plec. Ben won the school spelling bee and the seventh-grade contest. Matt won the eighth-grade bee.

Musician to travel to Scandinavia

By Carolyn Walker

Distant drums are beckoning to Jennifer Danielson; calling her to foreign shores.

Soon she will join over 200 other American high-school-aged students as they parade their talents in three Scandinavian countries.

Jennifer, a 15-year-old, clarinet player from Independence Township, has been selected to join the Blue Lake Fine Arts Camp International Exchange Program in June.

The program offers young musicians and singers a chance to perform and view concerts in other countries.

The students will make approximately 10 stops in Denmark, Norway and Sweden, Jennifer said.

And, while the American students are overseas, several students from Europe will come to the United States.

Jennifer began playing the clarinet in the 4th-grade, when she got an eyeful of a neighbor's band awards.

Jennifer decided she wanted some too.

Her efforts have paid off in not only a large variety of band medals, but in special experiences as well.

"She works hard for it," said her mother, Jan Danielson.

The 9th-grade student at Sashabaw Junior High School had her first experience at Blue Lakes Band Camp at Twin Lakes, Michigan last summer. She participated in the camp's concert orchestra, the symphonic orchestra, and the wind quintet.

After securing "second chair" in the summer band, Jennifer was notified she was eligible for the exchange program.

Jennifer anticipates the trip with excitement, and says she is looking forward to meeting other people and "seeing everything."

They will be hosted by families of the countries they stay in, and will give concerts for the public, she says.

During their stay, the students will take bus tours around the countryside, she adds.

In addition to her Blue Lake Band activities, Jennifer is active in many other areas.

She rides horses, and participates in 4-H, a mime troop, student council, the junior high band, the high school equestrian team, and she also shows her dog, Autumn.

She is also a member of the Bloomfield Hills Youth Symphony.

The soft spoken Jennifer is modest about her many accomplishments.

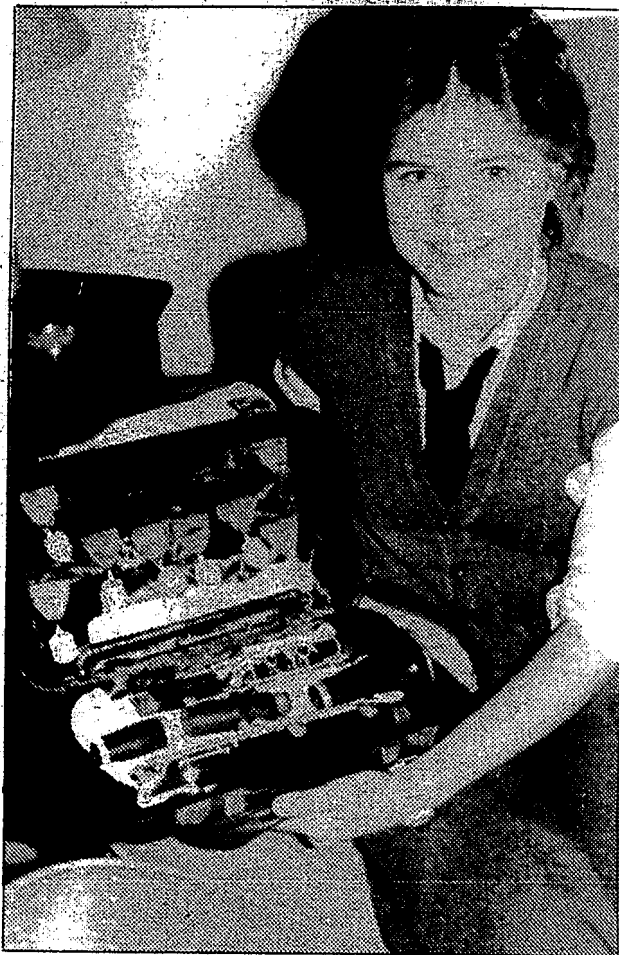

"I don't want to brag or anything," she says. "It feels good."

Jennifer says she wants to be a surgeon when she is older. But adds that she won't abandon her talent as a musician.

She would also like to join the Detroit Symphony Orchestra "as a side thing."

Then she smiles.

Jennifer Danielson displays the medals she won in various band competitions.

Community cable guide

Three programs are scheduled this week on cable Channel 11, broadcast from the Clarkston studio of Tribune/United Cable Communications.

Wednesday through Friday
April 10 through April 12

7pm—"Cell of Hope" is this week's episode of the "This is the Life" series sponsored by the St. Trinity Lutheran Church of Independence Township. The program tells the story of the struggle of two men, one black, one white, in a prison cell. Tough, forgiving love overpowers cold and selfish cynicism. Includes an introduction and conclusion by the Rev. Michael Klafehn, pastor of St. Trinity.

7:30pm—"The Governor's Report," a weekly series featuring Gov. James Blanchard talking about concerns in Michigan.

8pm—Oakland County Parks and Recreation presents "Bicycle Motocross," an informative segment on BMX racing.

Next Week, Monday through Friday
7pm—"Number One" is next week's episode of "This is the Life." In a fantasy where time is suspended, a selfish man's philosophy of life is put on trial.

Programs on cable Channel 11 begin at 7 p.m. weekdays only. Other times, the station features a billboard with community service announcements and the schedule of the evening's programs, updated daily at 2 p.m.

Warm thoughts

Monica Miles

Now that spring is here, summer will soon follow. Many people are looking forward to summer because with summer comes summer vacation.

Some people get into the summer spirit early. For example, my school is into track, baseball, softball and intramural tennis.

There is also the academic side of things. The sixth-graders and their parents have already toured our building.

The Clarkston (Mich.) News Wed., April 10, 1985 43

And the seventh- and eighth-graders have decided on their classes for next year.

Students are also planning how they are going to spend summer vacations.

Some intend to swim, sunbathe, exercise, go to the movies or go roller skating. Summer has many options.

It also has many advantages and disadvantages. One advantage that summer offers students is the later hours of daylight.

A disadvantage is parents can kick us outside when they want to because the weather's nice.

Another advantage of summer vacation is we can sleep in because there is no school.

Overall I think that summer is, without a doubt, the best season of the year.

Monica Miles, a ninth-grader at Sashabaw Junior High School, is working with The Clarkston News this school year as part of the mentorship program.

Sweet music for talented teens

By Kathy Greenfield

The talents of two Clarkston High School music students brought special honors following the state solo and ensemble festivals.

Dan Travis, a vocal music student, was named one of the top 12 singers in the state and given an opportunity to audition for singing with the Michigan Arts Youth Orchestra.

Victoria Geyer, a violinist, was selected for membership in the Youth Arts Festival Orchestra comprised of the finest high school instrumental music students in the state.

Dan, a junior at CHS, learned of his award on his 17th birthday.

He was pleased with the superior I Rating he received at the festival and went home to celebrate his birthday. When the party was going on, CHS vocal music director Grayce Warren called to tell him of the higher honor.

He responded by not being able to say anything for a few moments.

"I was a little excited, you might say. It's a great honor," he said.

Since he won the distinction, Dan's begun rethinking his career goal. Before, he was considering pre-law courses in undergraduate school.

Now, "I'm looking at singing as a possible career," he said. "I would like to perform. I would like to be an artist, but it's a very small field. It's still a dream."

Victoria, 15, is a sophomore at CHS. She has been taking violin lessons since age 6½.

She learned about her selection as a member of the Youth Arts Festival Orchestra the day after the state solo and ensemble festival.

CHS band director Clifford Chapman handed her the forms and said, "Congratulations."

Victoria describes her feelings: "I said, 'Oh my gosh.' I just sat there all hour and said, 'Oh my gosh.'"

The same reaction accompanied the honor of her superior I Rating at the state festival.

"So it was 'Oh my gosh' twice—or thrice," she said. "It's just really neat to be included in these kinds of things."

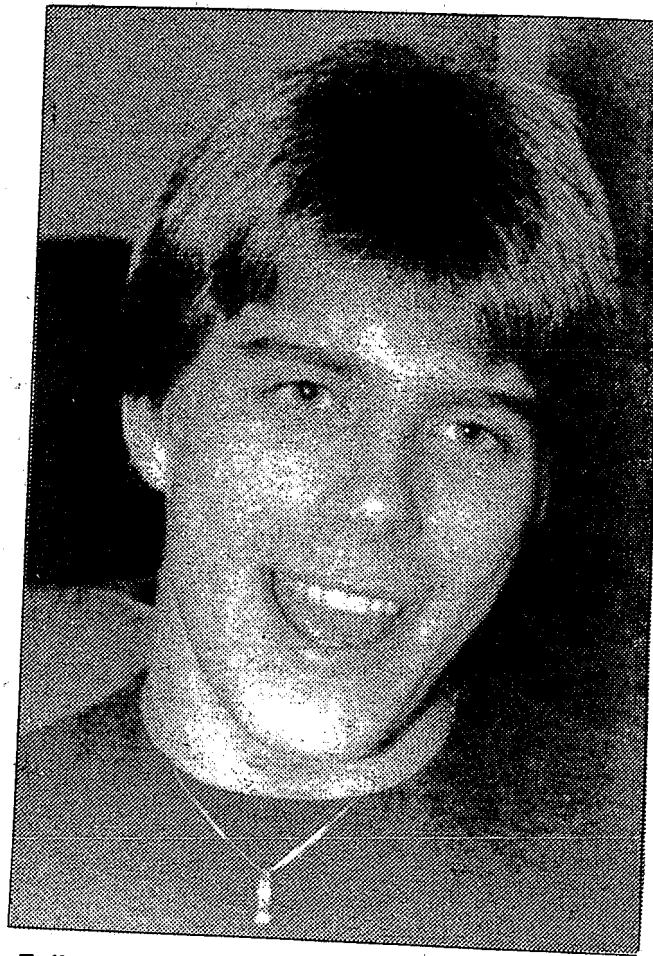

The honor fits in very nicely with her career goals.

"I think it's going to be one big step in my career because I do plan to be a violinist," she said. "I want to be one of the best in the world, but we'll see."

Victoria is also a member of the University of Michigan Youth Symphony, which meets in Ann Arbor.

Both students ask that their mentors be given some credit for their success.

Dan wants to thank Ms. Warren, and Victoria wants to thank Robert Murphy of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra "for all the help and patience" during the eight-and-one-half years he's been her violin instructor.

Following selection as one of the 12 best singers in the state, Dan Travis says he's rethinking his career goals.

Victoria Geyer's talent as a violinist won her a spot in the Youth Arts Festival Orchestra, comprised of top high school instrumental music students in the state.

School musicians awarded

Students attend state festival

Band students from Clarkston High School brought home awards to be proud of from the State Festival in Howell.

Ratings were earned at the March 23 competition for performance of solo and ensemble literature reflecting the highest level of high school instrumental music achievement.

The students participating in the festival qualified by earning First Division Ratings at the District Solo/Ensemble Festival held in February.

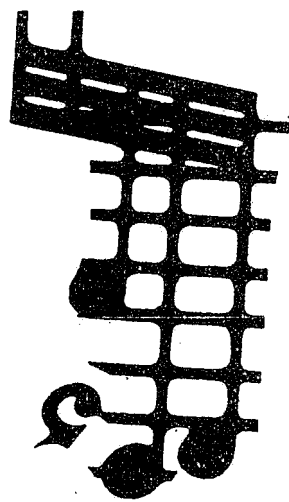

Based on her performance in the state festival, Victoria Geyer, a sophomore violinist, was selected for membership in the Youth Arts Festival Orchestra, comprised of the finest high school instrumental music students in Michigan.

CHS band director Clifford Chapman announces the following award-winners:

I Ratings—11th-grader Erin Dupree (clarinet), 12th-grader Margaret McInnis (piano), 10th-grader Vicki Geyer (violin), 11th-grader Kim Millard (piccolo), and percussion ensemble members 12th-grader Chris Sorgatz, 11th-grader Darren Verbouw, 11th-grader Jennifer Farough, 11th-grader Amy Isbell, 10th-grader Rod Swanson, 12th-grader Mike Zabel, 11th-grader Beth Hunn and 10th-grader Vicki Geyer.

II Ratings—11th-grader Kristen Whisner (clarinet) and clarinet quartet members Ruth Webb, Kristen Bas, Kristen Reid, Michelle Sexton and Kenlea Pebbles, all 10th-graders.

Soloists,

state
winners

Eight soloists and the Madrigal Singers from Clarkston High School sang their way to numerous awards at the recent state Solo & Ensemble Festival.

"All of the kids, I thought, did an outstanding job and represented our school in a first-class fashion, and it's really quite an accomplishment," said Grayce Warren, CHS vocal music department director.

The students were eligible to participate in the festival March 30 at the University of Michigan-Flint campus because they received superior I Ratings at the district level competition.

At the end of the day, the judges at the two competition sites (Flint and Traverse City), selected 12 outstanding vocalists who will again compete March 12 at Western Michigan University, Kalamazoo, for possible selection to sing with the Michigan Arts Youth Orchestra on May 12.

"We are very proud and pleased that Dan Travis was chosen to be one of these top 12 singers in the state of Michigan," Warren said.

A list of the students and their awards follows:

I Rating in performance—10th-grader Jennifer Fenton, 11th-grader Mike Peterson, 11th-grader Jackie Roberts, 11th-grader Dan Travis, and 11th-grader Kris Whisner.

I Rating in sight reading—Mike Peterson, Dan Travis, Kris Whisner and the Madrigal Singers.

II Rating in performance—10th-grader Michelle Blomberg, 11th-grader Julie Monroe, 10th-grader Lori Neff and the Madrigal Singers.

*Old wood siding—why
it merits saving*

by Susan Basinger

Wood siding provides a pleasing contrast with neighboring masonry materials, as seen in the old Methodist parsonage on Buffalo Street and the adjoining church. Much of the charm and dignity of small houses like these in Clarkston derives from simple wood clapboard siding.

Man those rakes, scrapers and paint brushes. It's spring!

Spring in Michigan seems to come for two-day stays, followed by snow, and sometime in May, summer. But in any event, these two-day intervals provide wonderful opportunities for sprucing up the yard and exterior of your house.

Sprucing up. Webster says this synonym for making something "neat and trim" is derived from "Prussian leather," a particularly fine, elegant leather.

Since spruce, as in a spruce fir tree also comes from "Prussian fir," I'd like to think that "sprucing up" is derived from fine, elegant wood, as in the wood siding used in indigenous American architecture.

So, it's time to "spruce up" your fine wood siding.

While you may feel that you'd rather spend your time doing anything else, maintaining wood siding and trim may cheer you if you consider their value aesthetically and economically.

Wood clapboard covered by flaking, chipping or peeling paint may look sad, but it's as valuable as gold.

According to the Detroit Historical Society, the timber cut in Michigan alone during the "Green Gold" Rush (about 50 years in the 19th century) exceeded the cash value of all the gold discovered during the California Gold Rush by a billion dollars.

Virtually all of the best of this timber, the "Cork Pine" cut from the 150- to 300-year-old white pine trees which covered 20 percent of Michigan's forests, was gone by the 1880s.

Having exhausted the supply of "ideal wood"—so named because it was feather-light and clear, extremely workable and easily cut, and took fine finishes well—without thought to future generations, the lumber industry went on to cut down much of the rest of Michigan's forests.

Today we still feel the effects of the thoughtless policies of the lumbering industry. After all, you can't replace 300-year-old trees overnight, and there was no replanting program undertaken.

So, since 1900, the quantity and quality of building lumber has continued to decrease while the price of this important material has continued to increase.

Many of the buildings in America's small towns were constructed of the finest wood then available, an irreplaceable material.

Today, buying enough knot-free two-by-fours for the entire framework of a house is not only expensive but virtually impossible, while in the 1920s and 1930s builders, in ads, offered customers $1 for every knot found in their structures.

'Buildings which retain their value... are uninjured'

Early settlers in the New World had the opportunity to use wood with abandon never possible in their European homelands where lack of the precious commodity led them to construct by in large in masonry.

The availability of inexpensive lumber allowed colonists to translate the architectural styles familiar to them in their homelands to wood.

The workability of this material contributed to the development in the 19th century of the first truly American architecture, Greek, Gothic and Italian Revival.

While these were also interpretations of European masonry styles, they were American originalities.

America's late Victorian styles, the Queen Anne, Stick and Shingle styles, relied on the flexible, workable properties of wood for their designs.

The spontaneity and creativity of the picturesque Queen Anne style was due to the fact that wood may be used in many forms—split and cut for shingles and siding, and bent, pierced or turned for spindles, railings and window trim.

The inspiration for the Stick style was the wooden framework of a house, while the Shingle style, as the name states, came from the wood shingles which covered the exterior of the house.

The integrity of all these styles in even the simplest forms depends on the maintenance of all the original integral parts, the doors, windows, roof, foundation, framework and siding material.

Integrity is the "state of being unimpaired," according to the dictionary, which also defines impair as "to diminish in strength, value, quantity or quality. Synonym: injure."

As with artworks or antiques, the buildings which retain their value are those which are uninjured.

While a copy of a Rembrandt or a Tiffany lamp may be the same, the price is never as high.

This Victorian house, typical of the late 19th century, is located on East Church Street.

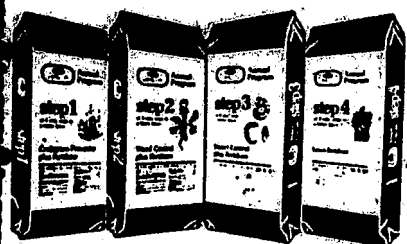

Preserving the original siding maintains the special character of this house.

Ticktock: Keeping time with some creative clocks

By Dan Vandenhemel

Just about everything centers around time. It's time for dinner, time to go to work, time to relax.

There are 24 hours in a day and 60 minutes in an hour. With people trying to keep track of what time it is, clocks are taking up a variety of shapes.

Tom O'Brien, an industrial arts teacher at Sashabaw Junior High, is incorporating a hobby into his woodshop class.

For almost two years, O'Brien's been making clocks out of an assortment of materials.

Frying pans, saw blades, old books and custom blocks of wood are all liable to turn into timepieces.

One of O'Brien's students' favorite styles is a plaque with the border of Michigan cut out.

"I'd say about 50 percent of the students want to make a Michigan clock," he said. "It doesn't take that long, about four or five hours."

Some of the designs are hanging around the O'Brien home in Independence Township. A worn-out saw blade once destined for the trash pile is now a clock adorning his fireplace mantle.

"A friend of mine gave me the idea for the saw blade," O'Brien said. "I've just tried different things, some have been pretty simple."

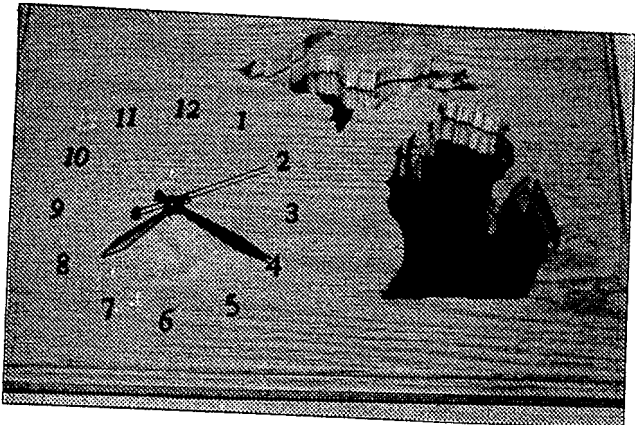

He said the frying pan clock would make a good piece for a kitchen.

"I didn't like it, it didn't cook very well. I talked my wife (Judy) out of it. Now we've got to get a new frying pan," he said.

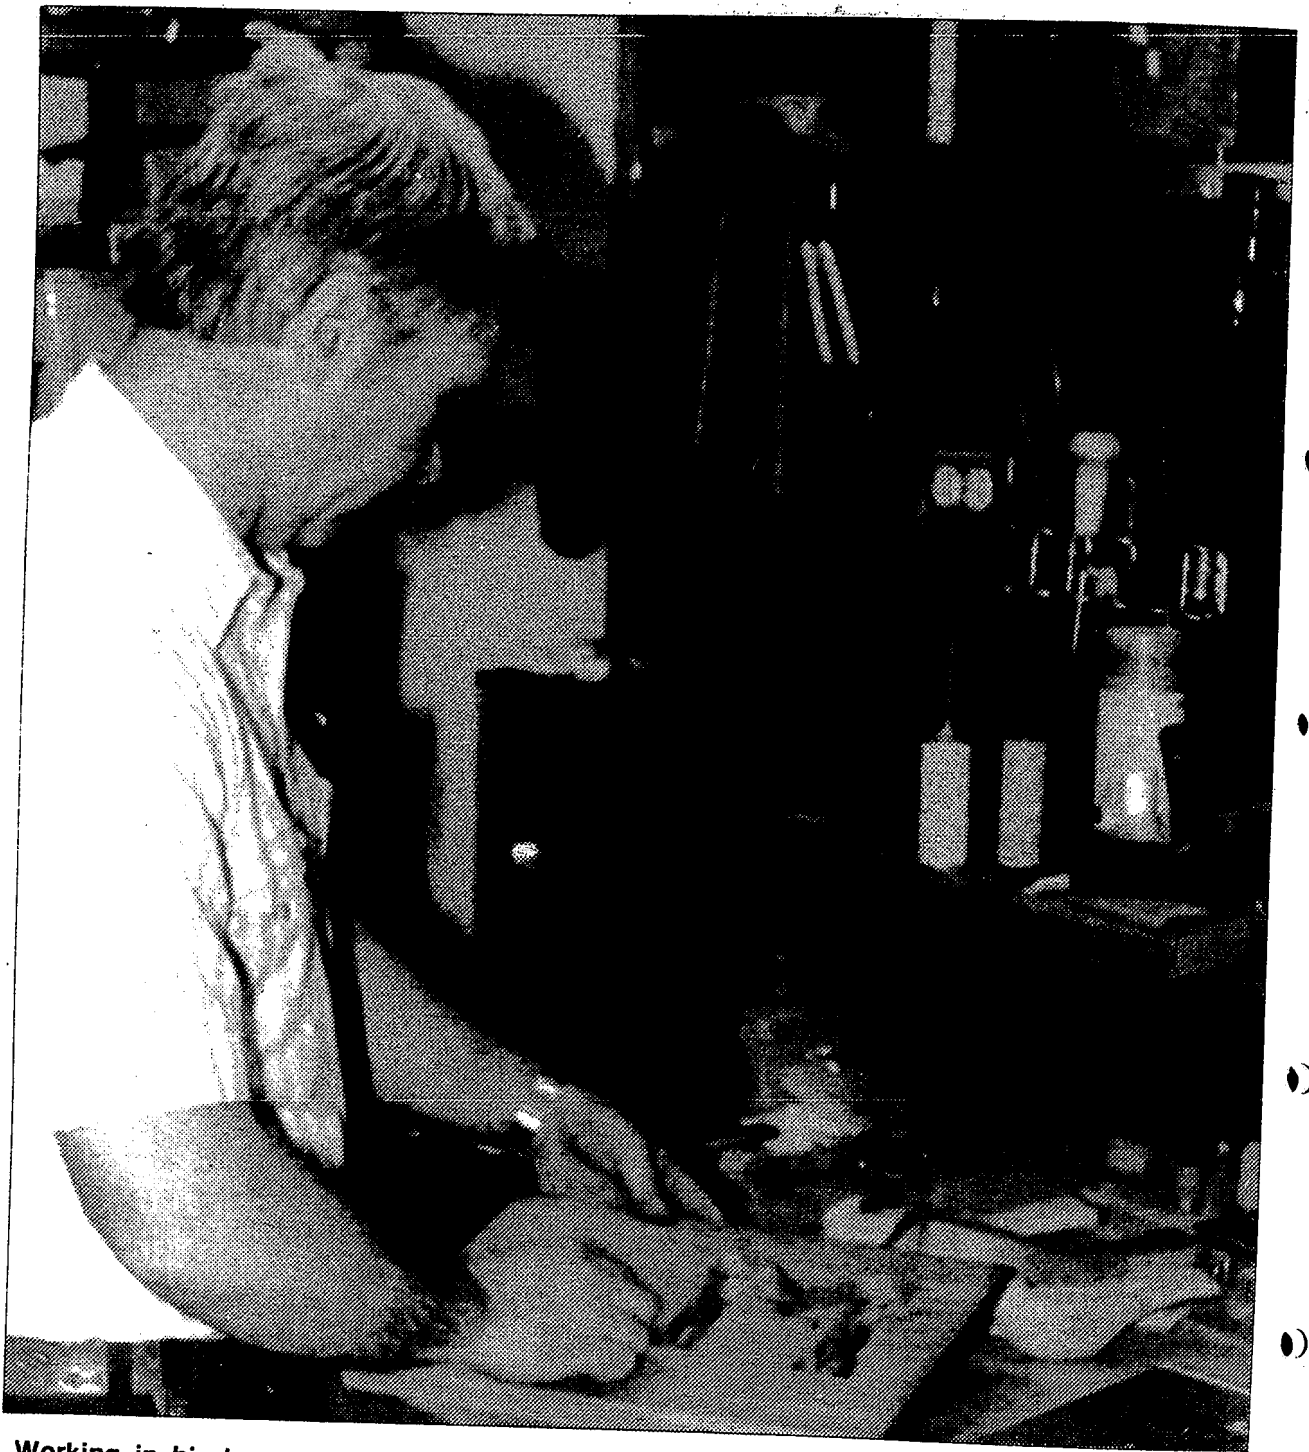

The clocks are all battery driven and the mechanisms O'Brien uses come from a company in Wisconsin. He said anything can be used to make a clock.

His tools are a drill, jigsaw, sandpaper, stain, wood, sandpaper and plenty of elbow grease.

"There's catalogs out on how to make your own clocks," O'Brien said. "I'm just tinkering in it to try and find something for the kids to do."

A cut-out of Michigan is a popular style of clock for students at Sashabaw Junior High.

Working in his basement shop, Tom O'Brien says he tinkers with different designs for clocks. He's made clocks out of frying pans, books, saw blades and plaques.

It's the finishing touches that make a house a home. Let us create that special look just for you.

EXCELLENCE IN CABINETRY
FIELDSTONE

Earthworms may do wonders for soil outside, but don't let any stay in potted plants. As they burrow in and around roots, they sometimes do more harm than good.

Don't take your chimney for granted

Everyone loves the warmth generated by a cozy fireplace or woodstove, but to keep the fire friendly, it's important to maintain your woodburning appliance and your chimney.

Studies from the Consumer Product Safety Commission show that home fires related to woodburning most often originate around the chimney or stovepipe.

You can avoid the threat of such fires by following a few guidelines:

1. Use only the chimney and stovepipe specified in the installation instructions. Factory-built fireplaces always come with a chimney designed for use as an integrated part of the fireplace system, and stove manufacturers will specify the kind of chimney to be used with their stove. Be sure that the chimney you choose is approved by the local code officials.

2. If you are using a metal chimney, make sure it's not installed too close to combustibles. If you've added insulation in your home, check your attic to see that the insulation is not resting up against the chimney.

3. Keep the chimney at least three feet higher than the place where it exits the roof and two feet higher than any roof within 10 feet. (That is a minimum, and it could be increased.)

4. Don't overload your chimney by building too large a fire.

Installing the right chimney the right way is just the start. You must also keep that chimney clean to keep it safe.

Creosote is an unavoidable by-product of wood combustion, and as you use your woodburning appliance, creosote will build up on the sides of the chimney and stovepipe.

Creosote is highly flammable, and if allowed to build up, it may ignite, causing a full-scale chimney fire.

To avoid such fires, have your stovepipe and chimney inspected regularly (especially if you change the kind of wood you burn or if someone new is operating the stove and fireplace), and have the chimney cleaned when creosote accumulates from one-eighth to one-quarter inch.

Using chemicals or burning particular kinds of wood will not prevent the accumulation of creosote. But you can reduce creosote formation with the following burning techniques.

- When lighting a stove or fireplace, make a blazing fire for about 30 minutes to bring all surfaces up to operating temperatures. Some creosote is vaporized during this warm-up period.

- Burn short, hot fires as opposed to long, smoldering ones.

- When loading fresh fuel, burn it hotter in the beginning. This will wrap each wood piece with a high-temperature charcoal layer and help it burn cleaner.

For more information on chimney safety, write to the Wood Heating Alliance, the trade association for the residential woodburning industry, and request their pamphlet "How Does Your Chimney Stack

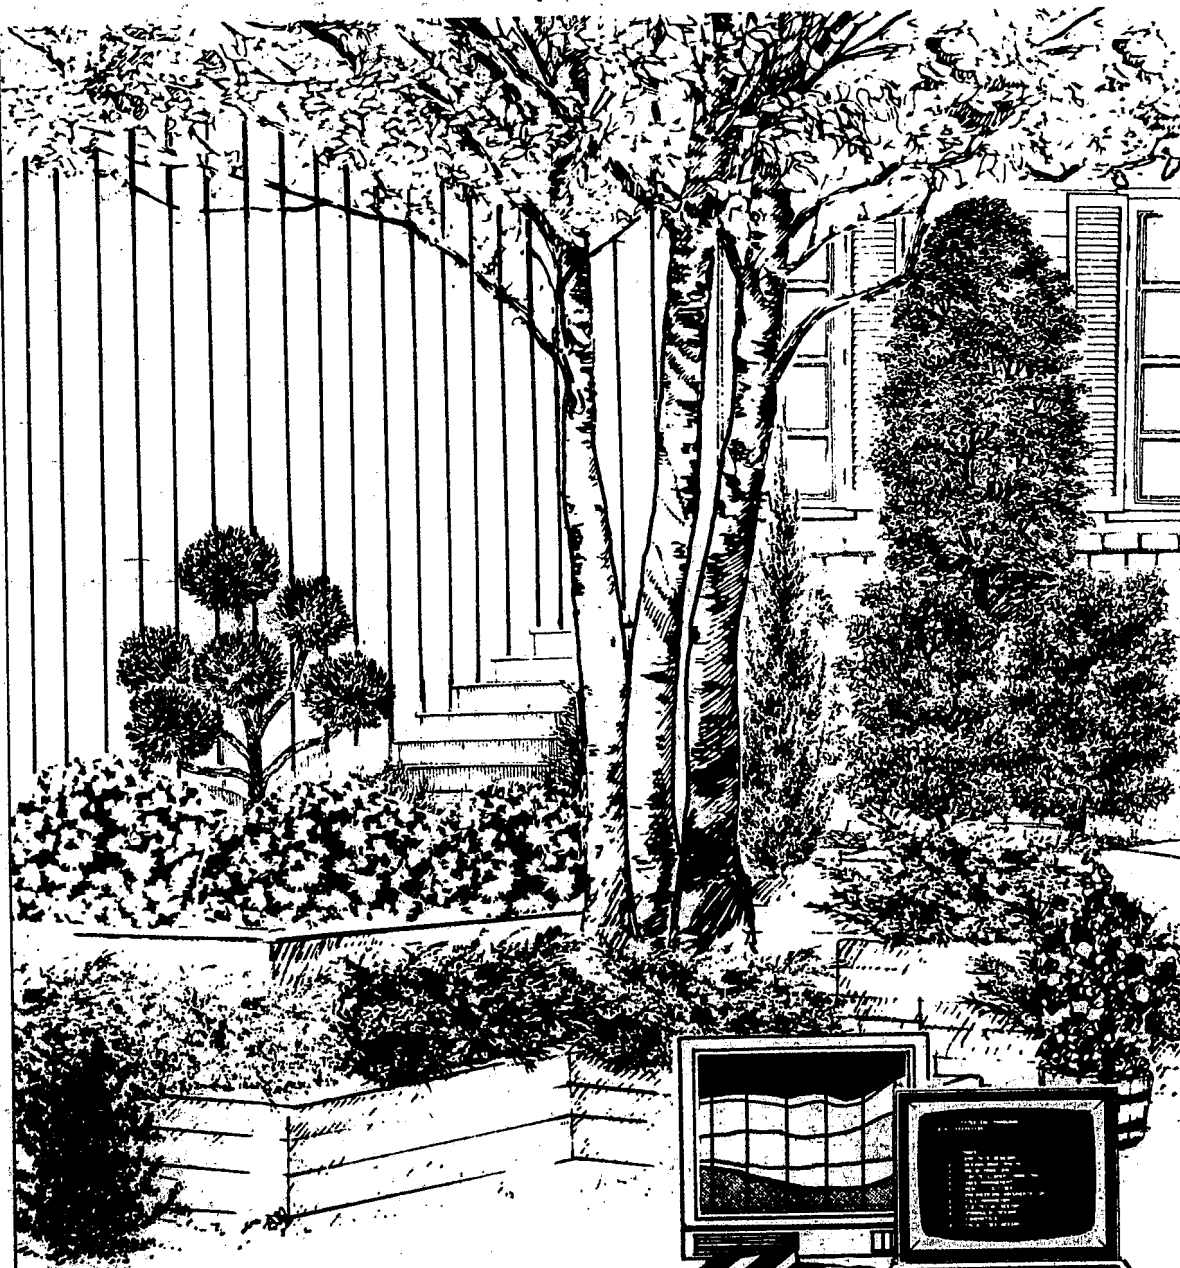

Up?"

Send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to WHA, Dept. WB, Suite 700, 1101 Connecticut Ave., NW, Washington, DC 20036.

Damaged trees need special care

By Kathy Greenfield

A tree damaged but still standing after last winter's ice storm could come crashing down the next time severe weather hits.

"Just because you cleaned up all the debris on the ground doesn't mean you shouldn't think about other repairs," says Gregory Patchan, Michigan State University extension service horticulture agent in Oakland County.

To assess winter damage to trees, Patchan suggests looking up.

"If you have broken stubs (3-4 inches in diameter or larger), torn bark or splits, these are the kinds of things that should be looked at by a professional arborist—a tree doctor or tree surgeon," he says.

The first decision to make involves the tree's value, says Patchan, who notes that a person with 40 acres of tree-filled property would probably let nature take its course.

But, he says, persons with a few precious trees in their yards should not hesitate to seek professional advice.

Repairs that can be made using a step-ladder or by standing on the ground could be handled by property owners, he says, but anything higher up could be dangerous: "It's easy to fall, have a limb hit you."

People trained to care for trees have the proper equipment, they can usually make repairs quickly, and they charge far less than people imagine, according to Patchan.

"It doesn't cost anything to have somebody take a look if you're concerned," he says.

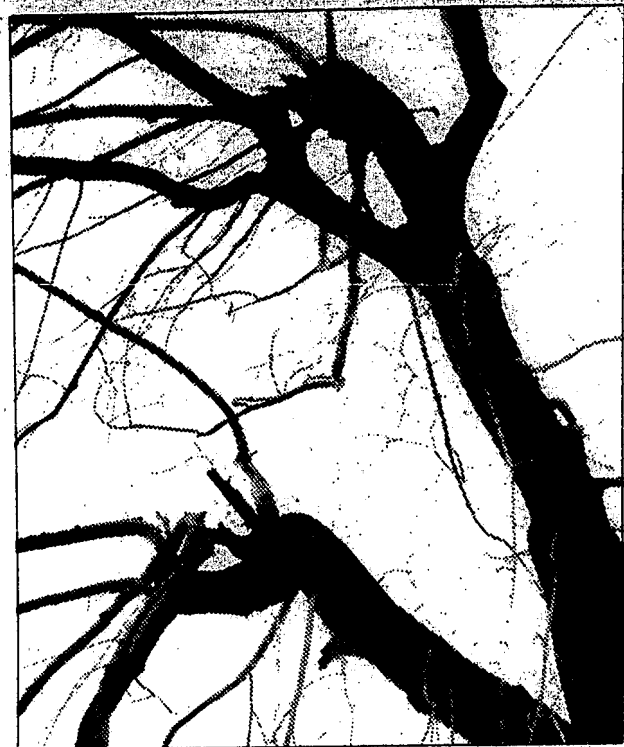

Patchan also offers a long-term solution to avoiding tree damage: It's best to think sturdy when purchasing trees.

"People are planting the wrong kind of trees," he says. "For the most part, damage was greater on weak-wooded and less desirable trees."

"People often plant these trees because they grow very rapidly, but there's a price to pay and the price is they don't hold up as well."

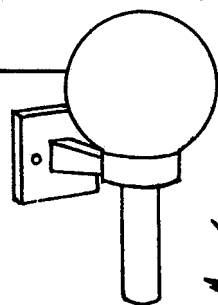

His list of recommendations includes oak, hickory and any variety of maple, with the exception of silver maple.

For more specific information, residents can call the extension office at 858-0887 for free advice.

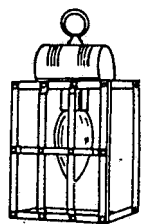

Looking up into trees is the best way to assess the severity of winter damage, says Gregory Patchan. If problems are visible, he suggests calling a tree surgeon.

Wood care is 'worth the effort'

From the grandest example, a Rembrandt, to the most utilitarian, a button hook, it is the original which is sought, and so it is with structures.

Now that you're convinced that maintaining and preserving wood is worth all the effort, how do you begin? It is hoped future articles will provide you with some answers.

If you would like more information on specific architectural styles, the Independence Township Library has books dealing with the styles individually and with Victorian architecture in general.

Susan Basinger is a Clarkston resident and member of the Clarkston Community Historical Society. Architecture is her hobby.

The workability of wood provided unique opportunities for artisans to craft charming designs. Such details are often the first to disappear.

'Late bloomer' shares her expertise

'Know and Grow Center' provides answers to gardeners' questions

By Kathy Greenfield

Kathy Gunn's ready to answer your questions about house, yard and garden plants, garden planning, soil testing and proper fertilizers, and plant diseases and pests.

A Michigan State University senior working on a bachelor's degree in horticulture, Kathy's working this summer in the "Know and Grow Center," a pilot project at Bordine's Better Blooms of Clarkston on Dixie Highway in Springfield Township.

A joint effort between Bordine's and MSU, the center is designed to increase the availability of the resources and knowledge of MSU horticultural experts. If the center proves successful, it will be offered in more locations in the future, says Gregory Patchan, MSU extension horticulturist.

Kathy, 26, could be called a late bloomer in the horticulture field.

She already has one bachelor's degree—in psychology from Auburn University, Alabama—and her previous work experience includes radio advertising sales and bank teller.

While a horticulture student, she's worked for a wholesale greenhouse business, for a florist and in grounds and golf course maintenance at a country club.

"I didn't want to go on for a master's degree in psychology. I decided that was not my interest. I started thinking about different things I might be interested in," she said.

"I'm very much an outdoor person. I enjoy hiking, camping and bicycling. I wanted a job I would enjoy, that would fit in with those interests."

And Kathy's pleased with her second career choice.

"It combines working with living things and working with people," she said. "You can never learn everything about horticulture. There's always something new. It's a challenge, especially the diagnostic part."

The "Know and Grow Center" will be open during business hours at Bordine's. Kathy plans to be there from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. weekdays. Lisa Ferris, assistant to the general manager at Bordine's, will staff the center during evening hours and on weekends.

Kathy has some tips for people who seek answers to plant, tree or gardening problems.

- Bring in samples of live as well as diseased parts of the plants.

- If you can see insects that could be causing the problem, try to collect some in a jar.

- If your problem is with a house plant, bring in the entire plant so roots and soil can be checked.

With the exception of laboratory soil testing, all diagnostic work is provided free of charge at the center.

The center includes a computer with free print-outs on specific plants, video tapes with mini-lessons on flower gardening and other topics, and nearly 100 Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service publications for sale for 10 cents to $3.50.

On-the-spot soil tests, which are free, include PH level and soluble salts. Gardeners should bring in a one-half to one pint of soil for the tests, which can be used to determine necessary soil additives.

Residents can also bring in a one-pint sample of soil for testing in the Michigan State Soil Testing Laboratory. There is a fee for the carton and mailing costs.

The lab provides a complete analysis of nutrients in the soil and the soil type. A written interpretation of the report is provided, free of charge, by the center. It can guide planters with such information as which fertilizers to use and which plants will grow best in specific soil.

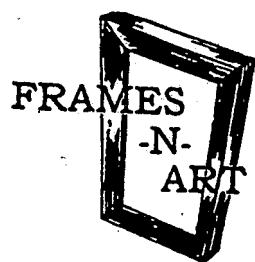

The "Know and Grow Center" opened last week at Bordine's, with a grand opening planned April 12.

Horticulture intern Kathy Gunn is ready to provide answers to questions about plants. She's working this summer in the pilot "Know and Grow Center" at Bordine's.

Once residents know the services are available, Kathy expects to be busy. After being on the job only a few days last week, she had helped a hand full of people who happened upon the center.

"It was fun," she said.
