Boy's death means life for three

By Carolyn Walker

Sometimes, out of the greatest human tragedies come the greatest acts of courage, love and unselfishness.

The untimely death of 11-year-old Shantan Simper is a testimony to that notion. For out of his death, and a mother and father's love, three people have been given a chance at life.

Shantan, a Pine Knob Elementary student, died June 11 of a ruptured aneurysm in the brain. An aneurysm is a ballooning of a blood vessel, often present from birth.

Shantan had been sustained by life support systems since the previous Saturday, when he underwent five-hour emergency surgery to clip the aneurysm.

Following Shantan's death at 1:45 p.m. at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Pontiac, his heart, lungs and kidneys were removed for transplantation into three individuals.

A 14-year-old girl received Shantan's heart and lungs at the University of Pittsburgh Presbyterian Hospital in Pennsylvania, in what is believed to be the first such transplant between children, said Sonja Berry, a spokesperson for St. Joseph's.

Approximately 50 adults have undergone such a transplant nationwide, she added.

A 7-year-old Owosso girl, Kelly Aymor, received one of Shantan's kidneys at Children's Hospital of Michigan in Detroit. A 27-year-old Grand Rapids woman was scheduled to receive the other kidney.

"Shantan's family was extremely receptive and

Class outstanding

The members of the Clarkston High School Class of 1985 marched to the beat of "Pomp and Circumstance" Sunday at Pine Knob Music Theatre.

CHS Principal Dom Mauti, who's retiring at the end of this month, had good things to say about the just-under 470 graduates.

"It's just an outstanding class," he said. "They've been very involved in school matters. It looks like they're going to go down the final line as one of our best."

New vaccine prevents number-one cat killer

By Carolyn Walker

A breakthrough vaccination, developed only a few months ago, may add years to your cat's life.

The new vaccine, given in three stages, will ward off the deadly Feline Leukemia, number one killer of cats, says Dr. Howard Schwartz, of the Clarkston Veterinary Clinic.

Feline Leukemia is a contagious virus, spread through secretions, which causes an immune deficiency in cats, making them susceptible to secondary infections and cancer.

After 10 or more years of research at Ohio State University and Norden Co., the vaccine was released last winter, Schwartz said.

"The vaccine is safe. The vaccine is effective," he said. "Now finally after years of expensive, very intensive research, the vaccine is available. Vets are jumping up and down with glee."

Cats that roam outdoors are more susceptible to the disease, he said, but all cats should be vaccinated.

Kittens should be at least nine weeks old before vaccination occurs.

After the initial shot, a second shot is given in two to three weeks, followed by a third in two to four months. Annual booster shots are given, thereafter.

Schwartz recommends that cats be tested for the disease prior to vaccination because the vaccination is not effective in a cat that is a carrier of the disease. There is no known cure for Feline Leukemia, he adds.

Carriers are "time bombs" for other cats, he says.

Of those cats who become infected, 30 percent or more die within the first year. Eighty percent die within three years of contracting the disease.

Area veterinarians Dr. Paul Cunningham of the Springfield Veterinary Clinic and Dr. Bruce Harlton of the North Oaks Animal Clinic say they see between two to four cases monthly.

Harlton said he sees Feline Leukemia much more frequently than other diseases. He has seen no feline distemper in the past three years, six cases of canine (dog) distemper in the past year, and no cases of rabies, he said.

All of those diseases have vaccine prevention, he added.

Cunningham said Feline Leukemia is a leading killer of cats that come to his practice.

Vaccinations for cats average between $15 and $20 dollars a shot locally. Blood tests for the disease are comparable in cost.

Lack of support shuts down Post

The 10-issue-old newsletter in Springfield Township is getting set for its last issue.

The Post is a project organized through Neighbor for Neighbor, a non-profit group established to help residents of the township.

Up to now, the Springfield Township Board has been covering the costs of the paper that is mailed to most of the township residents.

Lack of community support prompted township officials to halt backing of the paper.

"There hasn't been much input to Neighbor for Neighbor or the township board," Walls said at the June 12 board meeting. "And I don't see any reason to have the board continue paying for it."

The Post started in August of 1984 and asked the township board for initial funding of $750 to get the operation going. Walls said the board has contributed $3,900 to the project.

With the help of donations from businesses and individuals, there is enough money for one more issue.

"I agree that there's a need of a publication. I feel it should have happened a long time ago," Walls said. "Maybe the absence of The Post might prompt some concerns around the community on why it's not there."

"This board can't ever stop trying to communicate with the residents, but I don't see anything different now than I did eight months ago."

-Corrections-

The announcement of a 15-year class reunion in last week's Clarkston News should have said the party is planned by the Clarkston High School Class of 1970.

Mediplex plans new senior center

Expiring certificate of need causes pressure

By Carolyn Walker

A new senior citizen complex may be in the works for Independence and Springfield townships.

Mediplex Group Inc., of Newton, Mass., recently announced intentions of building senior citizen housing units and a nursing home on 26 acres off Dixie Highway near I-75.

The property crosses the Independence-Springfield boundary and is the site of the former Clarkston Place, proposed two years ago by developer Hugh Garner and Dr. James O'Neill.

Mediplex proposes to offer both skilled and non-skilled nursing care for the elderly.

According to Collin Walls, supervisor of Springfield Township, Mediplex has entered into a conditional purchase agreement with the owners, which is contingent upon site plan approval.

Their purchase follows a lengthy and complicated civil suit which was filed against Garner and O'Neill in 1984.

At that time, Garner and O'Neill changed the location of their $30-million-project from the Dixie Highway site to Maybee Road. They and their corporation, Deer Lake Retirement Village Inc., were subsequently sued by the owners of the Dixie property.

Those owners include Mahlon Benson, Lloyd Kirby, Edward McNamara, and John Smith.

Circuit Court Judge Hilda Gage gave the owners several months to resell the property, while holding on to the certificate of need mandated for the nursing home portion. She dismissed the charges against O'Neill.

The new buyers of the property will receive the state issued certificate of need if all goes according to their plans. The certificate of need, however, is scheduled to expire Aug. 6.

Because of the threat of the certificate's expiration, Mediplex petitioned the Independence Township Planning Commission to "move quickly," said Chairman Neil Wallace.

They made an informal presentation of the project at the June 13 commission meeting, and will most likely request conceptual site plan approval within the next month, Wallace said.

"The project seems on the surface to be desirable. There's a lot of things that have to be worked out," Wallace said, adding that the project is much larger than the one formerly proposed by Garner.

The plans for the Mediplex project will be available for public inspection at the township building department beginning June 19.

"I think it's important to have the public have input," Wallace said.

Independence Township has a "substantial" interest in this project, he added, indicating that the bulk of the building would be in Springfield Township.

Some zoning variances may be needed in Springfield, he said, adding that none would be required by Independence.

According to Walls, the zoning changes recently enacted considerably change the density of multi-zoned areas for the elderly.

The new changes will allow for more parking and open spaces for today's mobile senior citizen, Walls said.

The planning commission appointed Wallace, John Gray and David Katz to a special subcommittee to work co-operatively with representatives from Springfield Township.

1985-86 school budget OK'd

By Kathy Greenfield

Preliminary budgets totaling $20.85 million were approved for the 1985-86 school year by the board of education last week.

Superintendent Milford Mason stressed that the budget cannot be final until enrollment figures and the amount of revenue per pupil provided by state funding are fact rather than conjecture.

"The two key factors in reality aren't present, so we're working on estimates," he said. "In all likelihood it will be November before we bring the real budget to you."

Mason also mentioned three items that could bring significant change to the budget—"one, reduce staff; two, go to voters; and three, print money."

Board President Janet Thomas said the figures are generally close to the actual budget and that the district is not expecting any windfalls.

The preliminary budget includes revenue of $16,782,101 and expenditures of $17,201,595 in the district's K-12 general fund. Estimates included a general fund surplus of $1,068,136, slightly below what district business manager William Jackson said he recommends to avoid borrowing when cash flow is lowest between tax collections.

The building and site fund budget includes an estimated $28,500 in revenues and $30,090 in expenditures, leaving a fund balance of $26,441.

The debt retirement fund revenue estimate is $576,206 with expenditures expected to be $595,961, leaving a fund balance of $56,919.

Revenue for the maintenance, equipment and repair fund is estimated at $232,500 with expenditures of $228,500, leaving a fund balance of $99,500.

Food service fund revenue is estimated at $915,811 with expenditures of $926,862, leaving a fund balance of $133,296.

The athletic fund estimated revenue and expenditure figures match at $154,827.

Funds for the Northwest Oakland Vocational Education Center are provided by Oakland Schools and administered by the Clarkston school district, making them part of the district's budget. The revenue and expenditure estimate is $1,712,757.

Layoff list shrinks to nine names

The layoff list of 15 teachers from the Clarkston school district announced in April has dropped to nine names.

Six instructors were recalled from the 1985 list and two from previous layoffs by the board of education last week.

The recalls were due to retirements, leaves of absence, a resignation and the need for additional teachers for the new physical education program for elementary schools to begin this fall, said Administrative Assistant Conrad Bruce.

Recalled from the April list were elementary school teachers Marion Buchbinder, Mary Ann Dedrick and Bonnie Valuet; high school teacher Betty Duris; media specialist Beatrice Cohen; and elementary school music teacher Laura Woolard.

Added to the recall list as physical education teachers were Darrell Marsh and Carla Teare. Two additional teachers are to be hired for the program.

The layoffs represent a loss of 10.5 teaching positions due to declining enrollment, Bruce said.

felt it was a good thing to do," Berry said. Arrangements for the transplant were made through the Organ Procurement Agency of Michigan, an independent agency. Doctors said it would be months before it is known if the transplants were successful. According to Shantan's mother, Diane King of Independence Township, the tragedy began to unfold Saturday morning when Shantan awoke with a severe headache. "Friday he was fine," she said. "He came home from school. He was in a wonderful mood. What a shock it was to us all." After complaining of the headache, Shantan collapsed as his mother followed him to his bedroom. She then took him to the Clarkston Ambulatory Care Center, where he was diagnosed and treated with oxygen and cortisone to shrink swelling in the brain, she said. He was then immediately transferred to the hospital by ambulance.

Mrs. King characterized her decision to authorize transplant surgery as very difficult, but said it was made easier by the support of family members. "My first thought was I was reluctant," she said. "I couldn't imagine his little body cut. Now I'm so (glad) that they helped me make this decision. It just seems like such a wonderful thing." "If it had been the other way (around)...," she said, her voice trailing. "I hope everything is successful." "Maybe this will help some other people think about it."

She describes her son as being a good student and a devoted athlete, who loved the Detroit Tigers and had his sights set on being a major league baseball player.

"He was a beautiful child. I'm really proud of him. It seems like everyone he touched he brought joy to," she said.

Shantan's fifth-grade teacher, Len Loveless, expressed similar thoughts.

"He was one of those rare individuals," he said. "The most well-liked child in the room. A gifted athlete. An excellent student."

Mrs. King's decision to donate her only child's organs was described as an act of great love and unselfishness by Dr. James O'Neill, Shantan's pediatrician.

"She's just an incredible woman," he said. "She was comforting the staff. She's got to have loved that kid an awful lot. It was inspirational."

Mrs. King's mother, Elaine Mackela of Clarkston, said her daughter was a hard-working single mother, who eked out a living as a waitress after being laid off two years ago from her job at AT&T.

Shantan Simper wanted to be a major league baseball player. He had memorized statistics about members of the Detroit Tigers and knew the team's history, his mother said.

She was separated from Shantan's natural father when Shantan was five months old, and remarried approximately six weeks ago.

Shantan was her strength and her life, and the donating of his organs made the tragedy bearable for his family, Mrs. Mackela said.

"Donating made us all accept this. It was so unacceptable," she said. "This has helped so much."

A memorial fund has been established in Shantan's name at Pine Knob Elementary. The fund will be used to purchase baseball equipment, such as a backstop, for the school.

Donations may be forwarded directly to the school, with checks designated for the fund.

The funeral service for Shantan was held June 14 at the Lewis E. Wint & Son Funeral Home.

In addition to his mother, Shantan is survived by his father, Anton Simper, of West Bloomfield. He is also survived by his step-father, Randy King; step-brother, Tony King, 4; and step-sister, Stacy King, 1; and grandparents, Lionel and Elaine Mackela of Clarkston and Frederick and Dody Simper of West Bloomfield.

Party paranoia

Kathy Greenfield

We parents spent hours planning the party at the beach for our three 1985 Clarkston High School graduates in the neighborhood.

Party supplies included bright gingham paper tablecloths for the tables, crepe paper streamers in blue and gold, and balloons to fly in the gentle breeze. An awning was in place for shelter from the hot sun.

At the first of the week, we listened intently to weather forecasts. We'd have rain mid-week and Sunday would be sunny and warm, they'd say. But Saturday, the day of the party, was identified as an unknown—shifting weather fronts or some such blather.

The volleyball net was put in place. The life guard duty was assigned. Boat keys were organized.

Early Saturday morning, every sign indicated rain, but we still hoped. It seemed to clear a bit.

Tables were carried down to the beach. Paper was spread out. Vases of daisies were put in place.

Then it started to rain. The daisies blew over. The paper quickly got soaked. We moved the party to the house of one of the graduates. It was a wise decision—the weather steadily worsened.

As it turned out, we all had a wonderful time. But the next time any of us plans a party, we'll have all sorts of alternative plans.

And, as someone reminded me, it could have been worse. Right in the middle of one of her graduate's parties, a tornado warning emerged.

Everyone headed for her basement. It was the one place in her home that wasn't sparking for the festivities.

In Michigan, you have to be paranoid about the weather to make comprehensive party plans.

Enough is enough!

Letters to editor

'Realities' real

The article on "Realities" by Carolyn Walker in the May 29th issue of The Clarkston News couldn't have been better written.

How true, once we have reached our quota of "Retards," really God's special people, we must send the others away—anywhere as long as they are not in our community.

Oh, when will we open our hearts to all human beings who need our help, our understanding and our love?

Mary Hennig

SCAMP praise

Our involvement with SCAMP during the recent house tour was indeed a pleasure.

The people from SCAMP we were in contact with were organized, hard working, co-operative and, in addition, very understanding of our "in renovation" condition of the John Green House.

Our community is very fortunate to have the people and organization with the commitment to help others.

Jennifer and Hank Radcliff

Sewer solution

If the sewer department would pay back the monies "borrowed" from the Clarkston Gardens water system, with interest, the reserve fund would be established and water rates could be reduced.

This money was used to make a sewer study about 20 years ago.

Jim's Jottings

Jim Sherman

Last week I told you about my non-fishing trip to Drummond Island. Because I limit the space I allow myself for Jottings, many important, interesting, exciting, and educational things were left out.

Furinstance I didn't tell you of the nighttime mosquito attack, the Antlers, and the lilacs. The latter is not for smelling. Lilacs, like cows, are signals for fishermen.

When the lilacs are in bloom, the Tiger pike are biting. Never mind that there are no Tiger pike in the waters hereabout. If there were, they'd be striking your lure.

While we were at Drummond the lilacs were blooming beautifully, and I assume the Tiger pike were leaping into boats. Trouble is the wind was too strong to allow chicken fishermen to venture out. So, neither Tiger pike or perch were in our pan.

What about the cows, you asked? Well, when cows are standing up the fish are biting. I never saw a single cow on Drummond Island, so next time I'll take my own. What's one more thing in my tackle box?

As for the mosquitos . . . one night the thermometer dipped to near 40, causing mosquitos to seek warmth. Just as mosquitos do in the Lower, those in the Upper can find the tiniest crack in one's armor. It's amazing how those saucer size fliers can get through a solid wall.

The first one through lets out a whistle, and relatives from as far as Brevort come running. I woke up when three of them suckers pulled back my covers and saw a dozen of them flipping coins to see which got my tenderest spots first.

Now I know why Paul Bunyan carried that big axe. I used to think it was for chopping down trees.

One more story from the Hilltop Bar on Sugar Island, then on to the Antlers. The barkeeper said an older man was in the bar last fall when a young islander came in with a 2-pound perch. That's a mighty fine perch. The lad wanted to show it off before having it mounted.

The senior visitor kept offering more and more money for the perch. When it got to $50, the lad gave in.

The new-perch-owner entered "his catch" in a contest in Wayne county and won a boat and motor.

If you're anywhere near Sault Ste. Marie, go to The Antlers on Portage Ave. It's old, it's rustic, it was once nicknamed the Bucket of Blood, it's Irish, and it's great.

People named Kinney have owned The Antlers since 1949. Through the years they accumulated about every furry animal in the Upper and they surround the rather small dining room and hang from the ceiling.

Behind the bar are four ropes, each attached to a bell or whistle. They are sounded depending on the occasion. It's full of up-north atmosphere. There's also a lot of blarney. There's a sign denoting the number of days until St. Patrick's Day.

Above all, the food is good and not expensive. It's a family place that welcomes businessmen and even shut-out fishermen.

Stop in, eat, and read the Irish toast on the placemat: May you be in heaven an hour before the Devil knows you're dead.

We get together sometimes and reflect on high school, the way old friends do. We dredge up the classes that we hated and speculate on the fates of old classmates.

Then, we talk about Mr. Lewis Hayner and sixth-hour English...and how we laughed until we cried. "I loved that man," somebody'll say. And we all nod in agreement.

Mr. Hayner was an imposing figure with a subtle wit and a deadpan delivery. Combining his unusual humor with a love of logic and a flair for theatrics, he laughed us into learning.

Booming his lectures from a long-legged stool (the one he said he got from Perry Como), he would praise the pithy paragraph while condemning puppy love; then turn abruptly to address the steer skull laying on his desk. "Alas! Poor Yoorick. I knew him, Horatio."

His unorthodox methods were part of his appeal. Nothing was sacred. He'd stumble over our names, make ridiculous puns, then talk about our thirst for knowledge.

He'd allude to the fates and the Greek gods and challenge us with, "Catch the logic here." Or, correct us with a thundering, "That's absolutely wrong!"

Whenever someone made an especially astute observation (or embarrassing mistake) he would gesture wildly and say, "That deserves a 222 Rouser."

Named for his room number, the Rouser was akin to applause and involved cheering, pounding and stomping by the entire class under his leadership.

It was the highest Hayner honor.

Unchecked student egos were his favorite target. I learned one day, much to my public embarrassment.

We had been given the task of writing a paper, which we were to correct and revise the following afternoon in class.

I had not yet learned the value of a re-write.

He handed my paper back to me and I looked it over with confidence.

After much consideration, I walked quietly to his desk and asked in the lowest voice possible, "Mr. Hayner, what if we don't think our paper needs a re-write? What if we like it the way it is?"

Mr. Hayner was quick with his response. He belted for the entire room's benefit as well as my own, "Why Miss Crawford (me), if I were you, I'd go to the highest peak of Mt. Olympus and praise the gods that I had been blessed with this wonderful ability."

I slinked back to my desk having learned the importance of a re-write and humility; two of a writer's most valuable assets.

In his unique way, Mr. Hayner increased our appreciation for literature, language and life. Mr. Hayner had a contagious enthusiasm which captured our hearts and imaginations. He eased us through English on the wings of humor.

Alas... I knew him, Horatio. Thank God.

'If it Fitz ...'

Tigers win; he knows why

Jim Fitzgerald

When I saw the man with the portable radio, I knew my strategy was in danger of upset. This was last Saturday at the apartment swimming pool, and my strategy was to totally ignore the Detroit-Toronto baseball game that afternoon.

For the Thursday opener of the four-game series, I'd become completely involved in the televised action, even to the point of embarrassment. But the Tigers lost and I made a fool of myself for nothing.

It was in the 10th, bases loaded and the score tied 0-0, that I lost control. As the winning run crossed the plate for Toronto, Detroit barely converted a double play—and the run didn't count. I shouted "OH MY GOD!" leaped out of my chair, stumbled over the footstool, and fell face-first on the floor.

Emily, the three-year-old granddaughter, was there. She has been instructed by her mother that it's OK to say "God" when she is talking to Him or Her, but not as part of an exclamation, which is swearing. The next morning, when her Popsicle broke, Emily shouted what she'd heard Grandpa shout. And when she was chastened, Emily said: "I was talking to God, saying oh my God, thanks for the warm weather."

That explanation makes more sense than a grown man falling down screaming over a stupid baseball game. It also makes more sense than a moment for silent prayer in school, this nation's phoniest important issue. How many kids are clamoring to pray in school? How many parents think it's crucial?

The school-prayer issue is strictly for the Bible-thumpers and demagogic politicians. And they should shut up before some educational fanatic demands a moment for silent spelling in church.

But I digress. After Thursday's game was an embarrassing failure, I took a different tack. As Friday's game was about to start on TV, I took Emily out for dinner at the Traffic Jam, which is near Wayne State University and full of worldly professors who have better things to do than fret about the Tigers. My plan was to return home about the sixth inning, when the Tigers would surely be far ahead. I would have been spared the worry of watching them get there, and the Tigers would have been spared the terrible jinx that so often results from my presence in their audience.

When we got home, Toronto was ahead 8-0. The final was 9-2. So for the next afternoon's game, I went all-out strategy-wise and went swimming. I was determined to ignore one game at a time. The man with the radio was a threat. Although I could hear Ernie Harwell's voice, I couldn't make out what he was saying. But by the way the man was looking at me, I could tell he was dying to tell me the score.

I kept sticking my head underwater. By the time Emily was asking why my red nose had turned blue, I could hear Paul Carey's voice and knew it was the middle innings. The man with the radio still hadn't told me the score. I couldn't understand it. No matter how many times I looked at him, he didn't tell me the score. Did he know I was the Tiger jinx?

When Harwell's voice returned, I switched tactics for the late innings. I sauntered by the man and offhandedly asked who was playing. He said the Tigers were ahead, 10-1.

"OH MY GOD! Thank you for letting my strategy work," I said.

For Sunday's game, I clearly switched channels between the baseball and basketball games so that I never once saw Toronto bat, only the Tigers, and they won again. I should have them turned completely around by next weekend and will once again be able to watch an entire game.

Clarkston school staff members applauded

The extra efforts of five Clarkston Community Schools employees were applauded at last week's board of education meeting.

William Holmes, Janis Madden, William Neff, Tony Stachurski and Jean Thompson received Employee Recognition Awards of certificates and engraved Cross pens.

Holmes, the metal machine trades instructor at the Northwest Oakland Vocational Education Center, presented each school board member with a clear plastic cut-out cube made on a computer-operated CNC Milling Center.

Nominated for the award by NWOVEC Principal Dan Manthei and Assistant Principal Doug Pierson, Holmes was praised for developing a program of instruction for the CNC.

"Based on a follow-up study of his 1984 graduates, 83 percent are working related; 25 percent are school related; none are unemployed," the nomination said. "Bill is a dedicated educator and very worthy of special recognition."

Madden, the music teacher at North Sashabaw, Clarkston and Pine Knob elementary schools, was nominated by 77 fellow employees.

She is leaving the school district this year because her husband has taken a job in Georgia.

"She is known by colleagues and parents alike as being an effective, dedicated teacher," the nomination form said. "Mrs. Madden is truly irreplaceable. She shall be missed."

Tony Stachurski, a science teacher at Clarkston Junior High School, was nominated by CJHS Principal Duane Lewis and Assistant Principal Vince Licata.

They cited Stachurski's sponsorship of student trips to Washington, D.C., and Toronto; and his work with this year's county and regional first-place Science Olympiad team from CJHS.

"It is for his commitment to academic excellence in his students and his willingness to offer opportunities for academic competition on his own time that we recommend Tony Stachurski for this recognition," the nomination form said.

Jean Thompson, the secretary in charge of student services in the administration office, was nominated by junior high school principals, Gus Birtas and Duane Lewis; CHS assistant principal, John Kirchgessner; and her supervisor, Barb Cowen.

They praised her efforts to ensure "timely progress reports, report cards and schedules."

"Because of the extra amount of time and effort spent beyond her regular work assignments we feel she is, indeed, a worthy recipient of the Employee Recognition Award," the nomination form said.

Placement report reflects the changing times

By Kathy Greenfield

Higher employment with emphasis on the need for technical skills stands out in this year's annual placement report from the Northwest-Oakland Vocational Education Center.

"There's a significant change," said NWOVEC Principal Daniel Manthei, noting that employment is higher than it has been in a six-year period. "The economy's that much stronger, I guess."

Over the six years covered in the survey, unemployment for students who had attended NWOVEC varied from 9 percent in 1979, 12 percent in 1980, 15 percent in 1981, 13 percent in 1982, 8 percent in 1983, to the low of 5 percent in 1984.

Of the 424 students from 1984 sought for the survey, 241 had completed one- or two-year programs and 183 had not completed their programs of study. A total of 414 students were located for the survey, done in March.

Total placement in jobs, further education or military service was 86 percent; with related placement at 71 percent for those who completed courses.

Unemployment was 3.3 percent for completers and 6.3 percent for those who did not complete their courses.

"In comparison, for the month of March 1985, the state's unemployment rate was 10.5 percent for Oakland County in the month of December 1984, it was 8.1 percent," said Neal Sage, NWOVEC placement coordinator, in the report's cover letter.

There are 17 programs offered at NWOVEC, which serves students in Clarkston, Brandon, Holly and Waterford public high schools and students from Our Lady of the Lakes Catholic High School.

Diesel mechanics had the highest related placement percentage at 93.8. The lowest was major appliance repair, at 16 percent.

"The major trend is we're getting away from vocational and moving toward technical," said Manthei, stressing that students need a solid academic foundation to be able to read technical data and write reports.

"Even when you go to get your car fixed, somebody has to write a report," he said. "It isn't LOF anymore—lube, oil, filter."

The vocational school is phasing out appliance repair, and that is a reflection of more reliable manufacturing of large appliances and the "throw-away" habits of society, Manthei said.

He also notes additional trends, including the influence of temporary employment agencies.

"We cannot provide enough people for these agencies. That's a major trend," he said. "For years, futurists have predicted we there would be a shortage of youths for employment...and I think we're seeing that occur."

Lot owners must agree to funding

Walter's Lake cleanup may be scrapped

By Carolyn Walker

Nearly 125 people packed a public hearing June 11 to debate the issue of de-weeding Walter's Lake. The focus of the controversy involves the distribution of funding for a clean-up project.

Members of the Walter's Lake Improvement Board, who held the hearing, were unable to obtain a citizen consensus or a firm decision on how the problem will be solved, said Clerk Richard Holman, a member of the lake improvement board.

It is possible that a program designed to clean the lake will be abandoned, he said.

A serious weed problem is jeopardizing the future of the Independence Township lake, which abuts the Thendara Park and Sunny Beach subdivisions.

Residents of the subdivisions and lake-front property owners cannot agree on who should be financially responsible for a weed cleanup, he said.

Holman is the township representative to the five-member Walter's Lake Improvement Board, which was formed in 1983 following a citizen petition. The petition requested the formation of a lake board to protect property values and preserve natural resources.

Other members of the board are Oakland County Commissioner Richard Kuhn, Oakland County Drain Commissioner Jim Lueders, Department of Natural Resources representative Howard Wandell, and Tom Gregory, a lake-property owner.

The board is authorized, under a 1960s' state act, to levy taxes to maintain the lake.

But members decided to do nothing unless they can obtain an agreement from the majority of the 98 lake front property owners to fund the cleanup.

The cleanup would cost $600-$620 per improved lake front lot over the next two years, Holman said. They also agreed to levy a one-year, one-time-only, special assessment against lake front property owners to reimburse a county lake improvement revolving fund, which financed an independent study of the lake last year.

It will cost the 98 residents approximately $78 each to reimburse the $6,700 Cleary Engineering economic study, Holman said.

The board's proposal would remove Thendara Park and Sunny Beach residents, who do not have lake-front property, from any financial responsibility, he added.

"We ran into some very interesting problems," Holman said of the board's search for a solution.

Residents of Thendara Park have subdivision-owned beach front property, he said, but it is inaccessible because of a cliff. The residents presented a petition with 85 signatures at the public hearing protesting any financial responsibility on their part.

Other problems included lake front property owners who do not have improved lots, subdivision owned beaches, and off-beach-front lot owners.

Originally, the board proposed a five-step funding plan which would hold all the above financially responsible, based on their accessibility and use of the lake, Holman said.

That plan was abandoned following citizen outcry.

Under the five-step plan, residents in Thendara Park would have been special assessed $16 per year for cleanup, Holman said. Lake front property owners would have been assessed $160.

Now, the lake front owners will be assessed approximately $300.

"Clearly, the people who benefit from that lake the most are the lake front property owners," Holman said.

During a show of hands, 24 people in the audience said they owned lake front improved lots and agreed to the proposed, two-year special assessment.

Eight lake front improved-lot owners dissented. "If we don't get a stronger consensus, the project dies," Holman said.

Board members anticipate having the results of the survey by the end of the month, he said.

Man bound over in arson case

An 18-year-old Waterford man has been bound over to Oakland County Circuit Court on a 10-year felony charge of burning real property.

The action follows the recommendation of 52nd District Court Judge Gerald McNally following the preliminary hearing June 14.

The 18-year-old will be arraigned before Judge Alice Gilbert on June 27.

The charges stem from the Nov. 26 burning of a vacant house located at 6080 Dixie Highway, Independence Township. The house is located on property near a cabin from which a woman and her infant were removed last winter.

The defendant is believed to be the father of the infant, said Oakland County Investigator Donald Pebbles.

It is alleged that he set the fire in retaliation for the mother breaking up with him.

At the time of the blaze, Oakland County arson investigators determined the fire had been set using an unknown substance in at least two locations in the house.

Community education named best in county

3-year-old department now boasts 26 programs and 88 staff members

By Kathy Greenfield

"Euphoric" is the word Kathleen O'Donnell selects to describe her reaction to a recent award won by the Clarkston Community Education Department.

O'Donnell, director of the department, and school board president Janet Thomas recently accepted the annual award for Best Community Education Department in Oakland County from the Oakland Schools Community Education Association. Co-winner was the West Bloomfield school district.

Twenty-eight districts in Oakland County have community education departments. Clarkston was nominated for the honor by "a peer in another school district," O'Donnell said.

"I'm really proud of my people and proud of being part of Clarkston schools, because it never could have happened without leadership from the top," she said, including Superintendent Milford Mason and the school board in her compliments.

Thomas praised the program during last week's school board meeting. She said the department not only pays for itself, but contributes additional money to the district's general fund.

"Not only do we know Clarkston's Community Education Department is doing a fine job, but their peers in Oakland County recognize they are doing a fine job," she said.

The community education department was established by the Clarkston school district three years ago and O'Donnell was named director.

It started with five or six programs and has grown to 26 including an alternative high school, youth enrichment in all five elementary schools and two junior highs, latchkey for children of working parents, a pregnant teen program and infant care center, adult basic education for literacy in English as a second language and work toward equivalency diplomas, adult education for high school completion, a special needs program for the trainable mentally impaired, a career center to service the employment needs of youths and adults, custom training for adults by working with businesses, government contracts for classes through the Jobs Partnership Training Act, an adult vocational education program, adult enrichment courses and a district-wide newsletter.

The community education department staff now has 20 full-time and 68 part-time employees.

Teacher, 80, named top educator

Louise Russell has been named the Best Adult Education Instructor in Oakland County by the Oakland Schools Community Education Association.

The 80-year-old part-time teacher of English as a second language is a Clarkston resident. She was nominated for the honor by the Clarkston Community Education Department.

"There are teachers nominated from every school district, and she just won it hands down," said Kathleen O'Donnell, director of the department.

Mrs. Russell received two other awards this school year.

The United States Department of Education honored her for making an outstanding contribution to the field of adult literacy, and she won a Clarkston school district Employee Recognition Award.

Summer camp serves ages 10 to 15

Slip and slide your way through a summer of fun at the Waterford Oaks County Park.

The park will be the site of "Life, Be in it" beginning July 8, and running throughout the summer.

The six camps, scheduled for one-week sessions, give participants a chance to experience various activities.

They include swimming at the Wave-action pool and Slidewinder waterslide, roller skating, soccer and tennis, bicycle motocross, softball, volleyball and a day at Independence Oaks County Park for boating, fishing, nature activities and a picnic.

The events are open to boys and girls ages 10-15.

The cost of a one-week-session is $50 per child, and $42.50 for each additional child in the family. The camp runs from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. each day with transportation available from designated sites.

Week-long sessions begin July 8, 15, 22 and 29, and Aug. 5 and 12.

Registration continues until the Monday two weeks prior to each session's starting date.

Waterford Oaks County Park is on Scott Lake Road, between Pontiac Lake Road and Dixie Highway, in Waterford Township.

Subcommittee plans new area brochure

The newly developed Community Interest Committee is moving full-speed ahead.

They have added three new members and are actively pursuing the development of a brochure to attract new families to the area.

The committee was developed approximately two months ago to act as a liaison between the Independence Township board, the Clarkston school board, the Clarkston Village Council and Springfield Township.

Their primary goal is to attract new families, says its chairman, Mary Jane Chaustowich, adding that the school district is losing approximately $500,000 in revenue because of declining enrollment.

The brochure, which is still in the planning stages, will be done in conjunction with area realtors, Chaustowich says.

The Clarkston (Mich.) News Wed., June 19, 1985 13

Realtors have expressed an interest in having community information to share with prospective clients.

The brochure will describe such areas as community recreation facilities and the school system and is expected to be available by fall.

The members of the committee are: Carol Balzarini and Carol Stickley, representing the township; Norma Goyette, representing the village; Barbara Banker and Chaustowich representing the school district; and Collin Walls, representing Springfield Township.

Fans follow favorites to finals

Parents and friends made the trip to East Lansing to cheer the Wolves on to a possible state championship. The crowd didn't have much to cheer about as the Wolves fell in the semifinals to L'Anse Creuse North, 4-1. The Crusaders eventually won the title.

Wolves' pitcher Terri Sherman pitches a strong game in the semi-finals. The junior hurler allows the Crusaders seven hits. The Wolves finish the season with a 23-11 record.

Right fielder Joanie Leichtnam has plenty of chances in the field and makes every one cleanly.

Title hopes slip by

Wolves lose 4-1 to eventual champions

By Dan Vandenhemel

The third time wasn't the charm for the Clarkston Wolves' softball team.

They suffered the third loss in five years in the state Class A semi-finals to the eventual champion. This year it was 4-1 to L'Anse Creuse North at Michigan State University, June 14.

"I don't think we're doing anything wrong once we get there," coach Carla Teare said. "There are only four teams left and they're all good. You just need a little luck."

Part of the Crusaders' luck was a bloop base hit in the fourth inning that helped put them in the lead. They scored three times and were able to play more relaxed.

The Crusaders were led by pitcher Chris Harms. She struck out nine and allowed only one hit, a single in the sixth by Missy O'Dell. The Wolves' third baseman scored the lone run for Clarkston on a wild pitch.

Harms has been the pitcher of record in all 28 games for the Crusaders. They have won 22 of the 28.

"She is an excellent pitcher," Teare said. "It wasn't how fast she was, but she changed speeds and that made it tougher. We tried to slap bunts past them but they got certain breaks."

Just getting to the state semi-finals is a feat Teare doesn't take lightly. The Wolves finished with a 23-11 record including a stretch in the middle of the season where they weren't winning.

"Some people don't realize the accomplishment of getting there," she said. "Our mid-season record wasn't that good and to get there is great."

"What made this team nice is that we did it with no specific person carrying us. Laura (Hurren) had by far the best stats, but the rest of the team was all bunched up together with good stats. That's why we went so far, because it was a total team effort."

Laura Hurren, along with most of the Wolves were frustrated by Crusader pitcher Chris Harms. The Wolves managed only one hit, a single by Missy O'Dell.

One of the three runs the Crusaders score in the fourth inning is on a bloop double to center.

Center fielder Jill Griffis dives for it, and the ball glances off her mitt.

Sports

Tournament effort ends baseball season

By Dan Vandenhemel

The Clarkston Wolves had to scratch and claw for most of their runs this season, says coach Roy Warner, but they still managed to score over six runs a game on their way to a 16-7 record.

The Greater Oakland Activities League title also belongs to the Wolves with a 6-2 mark.

"We hit .315 as a team and did a lot of bunting to try and make things happen," Warner said. "We were a little more consistent in hitting this year than in the past."

While the offense was running up the score, the pitchers benefited from the outbursts, but they were a little shaky, Warner said.

"It was an excellent team effort," Warner said. "We had to do a lot of things because we really didn't have a stopper on the pitching staff."

Pitchers Todd Olsen and Ed Adkins paced the staff with 6-1 records and Steve Atkinson followed with a 3-2 mark.

Adkins had the best ERA with a lofty 3.06 ERA with Olsen next with 3.40 and Atkinson with 3.43.

The sparks for the offense came from the top two hitters, Dean O'Neil and Randy Bailey. They, along with Scott Giroux, were named to the All-County and All-League first teams.

Giroux was mostly the Wolves' designated hitter and filled in at third base. He led the team with a .449 average and hit three homers, had 17 RBI's and scored 18 times.

O'Neil, a senior left fielder, hit .357, scored 24 runs, stole 16 bases, walked 25 times and struck out only five times. Bailey followed O'Neil in the batting order with a .338 average, 21 RBI's, 17 runs and eight stolen bases.

The All-League teams have been selected by the GOAL coaches and 11 Wolves made the teams.

Besides O'Neil, Bailey and Giroux on the first team, Atkinson and third baseman Jim Ruelle were voted to the second team.

Making the honorable mention list were Adkins, Olsen, catcher Robert Newblatt, second baseman Scott Carter, shortstop Mike Walters, and right fielder Tom Ruelle.

Coaching switches at CHS

There's some shuffling going on in the coaching ranks at Clarkston High School.

Gordy Richardson, who coached junior varsity football, junior varsity volleyball and girls' track, has been reassigned to a physical education teaching post at the elementary school level.

The former health instructor at Clarkston High School has lost his position as football coach and could also lose the other two positions.

Clarkston Athletic Director Paul Tungate said the reason for the changes is the difference in school ending times.

The elementary schools end anywhere from 3:15 to 3:45 p.m. The high school lets out at 2:22 p.m.

"With JV football, there are something like 50 kids and no way can we have that many sticking around after school waiting for a later practice without supervision," Tungate said.

"Gordy's definitely out for football but we don't know about volleyball or track. Once we get a time

"I'd like to be the coach."

schedule, maybe we can work something out. No way do we want to lose Gordy or Carla as coaches."

The new junior varsity coaches are John Craven and Steve Pearson. Last year, they coached Clarkston Junior High and Sashabaw Junior High respectively.

"This is affecting a lot of people," Gordy Richardson said of the teaching reassignment. "Obviously I'd like to be the coach, but it's kind of up in the air."

Richardson and Carla Teare (varsity softball coach) are the only two teacher-coaches involved in the switching.

Teare has been recalled as a physical education teacher for the elementary schools, but her job as softball coach is still intact.

Wolves close up-down year

By Dan Vandenberg

This was a streaky season for the junior varsity Wolves of Clarkston High School.

They started with eight straight victories and ended with seven wins in a row. The middle of the season was much different. The Wolves struggled through four games, losing three.

"Basically we played very good all year," coach Kurt Richardson said. "We hit a slump and lost three out of four. Then boom, we came out of it."

In that stretch of losses, the Wolves lost to Waterford Mott and Kettering. Later in the season, the Wolves turned that around and beat both teams handily to finish in a tie for first with Kettering in the Greater Oakland Activities League with 6-2 marks. The Wolves were 15-3 overall.

This was Richardson's sixth season at Clarkston and it was the fourth time his team has won 15 or more games. The Wolves hold a 83-26 record under his helm.

"This team is as good as any team I've ever had," the coach said. "We were very strong up the middle. This team combined with what Roy (Warner, varsity coach) will have coming back, they'll have a very good varsity team."

Shortstop Keith Mercier and pitcher Jeff Billig were the Wolves' co-MVPs. Mercier held down the tough position of shortstop and led the team in runs and stolen bases. Billig hit .442 and tied Mercier in the team lead with stolen bases. He also posted a 4-1 pitching record with a 1.35 ERA.

The Wolves mound corps was close to perfection. Al Logan marked a 5-1 record with a 1.05 ERA and Scott Harvey was 4-1 with a 1.43 ERA.

"We had strong pitching, strong defense and strong hitting. We were well balanced," Richardson said. "We had 16 class young men out there."

Kathleen McInnis was another record breaker for the Clarkston High School track team. She broke the mark in the 2-mile run. In the other track records mentioned last week, Wendy Cohoon's 880-yard run was also omitted.

Former quarterback tries hand at defense

Kendra Kurz

Clarkston News Special Writer

Craig Kulaszewski, a 1984 star quarterback at Clarkston High School, is now attempting to make it as a Big Ten university walk-on football player.

Craig, the son of Mike and Virginia Nurmikko, of Deerhill Drive, will be a sophomore next fall at Michigan State University majoring in business management.

After an outstanding career as a quarterback in high school, Craig was recruited to Central and Western Michigan universities; however, he chose MSU because of its academic excellence.

Because of his strong desire to play, Craig walked on to MSU's football team last fall. But 12 quarterbacks preceded him in experience, so Craig's position was changed to strong safety.

"Michigan State has been a big adjustment for me socially, coming from a small town," said Craig. "Football has been tough, too. They make it hard for a walk-on."

After seven seasons of quarterback, from junior high to high school, Craig sometimes has a hard time hitting hard because he is so conditioned to running away from tackles.

"I'm not the most physical guy out there," said Craig. "I want to hit hard but sometimes my subconscious won't let me."

Despite his subconscious, Craig made two solo tackles and assisted in five others during the Green and White game, May 11, which marked the end of the team's spring practices.

The competition for strong safety is probably the toughest on the team. There are 18 men, including Craig, and four recruited freshmen coming in next fall. Craig is now tied for third string in his position.

Now, however, Craig is considering the position of outside linebacker, that is if he gains weight over the summer, because he would have a better opportunity to play at this position.

"I plan to gain 15 pounds of muscle over the summer and work out about three hours a day for six days a week so that I can improve my chances to play next year," said Craig.

"I really love football a lot, but the practices take up too much of my studying time and I work too hard to not play. So I'll just stick it out and see what happens."

He expects the team to do well next year and for certain play in a bowl game. He predicts their record to be 8-3 or maybe 9-2 if they stay injury free.

There's one thing he can count on: Clarkston football fans of Michigan State University hope to see number 36, Craig Kulaszewski, play next year.

Adult Tennis Lessons, one night a week for six weeks, one and one-half hour lessons, $15. Beginner and intermediate lessons, 6:30-8 p.m.

Another class may be opened for advanced tennis lessons if there is enough interest.

In addition, the parks and recreation department in co-operation with Heather Highland Golf Course and Springfield Oaks Golf Course will offer a six-week Junior Golf program for 8- to 18-year-olds.

The program will begin July 17 and run through Aug. 21.

Lessons will be given the first two weeks at the Heather Highlands Driving Range on Wednesday mornings from 9-11. The lessons will be followed by four weeks of league play at Springfield Oaks Golf Course on Wednesday evenings from 6-8.

The fee for the six-week program is $10.

Participants must provide their own clubs and balls for league play. Balls will be provided for the lessons at the driving range.

Payment and registrations are due prior to the first lesson. Refunds will be given only if a class is canceled.

For further information, contact Sherry Swindell at 625-4802 or 634-3111.

Up My Alley

Changing views

Dan Vandenhemel

The morning ritual on the way to work is slowly changing.

After the customary breakfast and cleanup, it's out to the car for the long drive to Clarkston.

First, the garage door goes up. Then into the car I climb and start the engine. While driving down the road, I discover something's missing.

No, it's not my glasses or wallet, it's the seat belt.

The seat belt seems to be the forgotten equipment in automobiles. Not until Gov. James Blanchard signed into law that wearing them is mandatory starting July 1, did the majority of drivers discover them.

I had to reach down behind the seat and came up with the seat belt along with a couple gum wrappers and two ink pens.

It feels strange not wearing it on long drives. I still don't strap it on on short trips. That'll be awhile yet until it becomes a habit.

Ten years ago, even five years ago, a seat belt was, a, nerdish. Only grandparents and paranoid drivers wore them.

Cars full of teenagers would pass a seat-belt-clad person and roar with laughter.

Today, with the help of the new law, and an advertising campaign proclaiming their safety, more drivers are buckling up.

That doesn't come from a scientific poll, just the observation of someone who logs 700 miles a week all over southeast Michigan.

Old people, young people, teenagers are all strapped in for the ride. To me it doesn't seem like a bad thing to do anymore.

What's going to be hard is just remembering to reach over your shoulder to grab the strap and buckle up.

An architectural rendering of the proposed addition to the Episcopal Church of the Resurrection on Clarkston Road in Independence Township.

tion illustrates what the Rev. Alexander Stewart calls "a completely the new look" for the church. "It will be more impressive, more massive," he says.

Church breaks addition ground

Ground was broken Sunday for the $100,000 addition to the Episcopal Church of the Resurrection on Clarkston Road in Independence Township.

"We're looking forward to it," said the Rev. Alexander Stewart. "It will change the whole look of the church completely and, of course, it will give us needed space."

Plans include enlarging the worship area, a passive solar corridor on the south, a new meeting room, and expanded offices and kitchen. An entirely new gable roof will replace the existing flat roof.

"Emphasis is being placed on energy conservation and maintenance-free design," said Stewart. The project is a joint venture between the architectural office of Gary Jackson and Alpha Design. Robert Kozloski is the senior designer. Both men are Clarkston area residents.

Frank Rivers is chairman of the church's building planning committee and John Baker, junior warden of the parish, is supervising the construction. "Whenever possible, local tradesmen will be employed on the project," Stewart said.

Construction is expected to be completed this fall.

Vacation file

Vacation bound? Arm yourself with advance knowledge by doing some research at the Independence Township Library.

A vacation section has recently been included in the library's information file. It contains up-to-date places to go and things to do in many parts of the United States and Canada.

The booklets are for reference only and must be used in the library, but copies may be made.

The library is located at 6495 Clarkston Rd., Independence Township.

Clarkston teacher earns Ph.D.

By Dan Vandenhemel

Ruth Duling, Ph.D.

After over six years of working toward doctorate degree in curriculum, Duling has graduated from Michigan State University.

The English teacher at Clarkston Junior High School is the first employee of the Clarkston School district to earn a doctorate.

"The six years wasn't an abnormally long time, especially since I worked full time," Duling said. "I have a friend who did it in two and a half years."

With the degree in hand, Duling doesn't see any immediate rewards, including a pay raise. She said there isn't a salary scale in the district for doctorates because there never have been any before.

"Hopefully it's going to open some doors for me," she said.

Those doors might include teaching night courses or extension classes for colleges and universities in the area, she said. Starting in the fall, she'll be the Language Arts Coordinator for the Clarkston School District.

The 37-year-old Duling earned her master's from Wayne State University in 1972 and her bachelor's from MSU in 1969. She decided to go after the degree to stop what she called, "teacher burnout."

"You were hearing a lot about teacher burnout in the mid to late 70's," she said. "I had to do something and this was something radical like quitting."

"Going for my Ph.D was in the back of my mind for a long time—you'd laugh if you knew how long. I had those six or seven years off between degrees to do other things."

Most of the work in reaching the doctorate involved teaching theory and practical uses of the information.

"It was a lot of course work," Duling said. "A lot of it is relative right away. It satisfied a desire in me."

Ruth Duling finishes her degree.

Exchange student off to Orient

By Kathy Greenfield

Five weeks of living in Japan with a Japanese family is in store this summer for 13-year-old Jennifer Schneider.

The Independence Township teen, who will be a ninth-grader at Marjon High School, Birmingham, this fall, is one of 31 Michigan residents participating in an international exchange program through 4-H.

"I'm very excited. I can't wait to go," she says. "I think it will be a really good experience for me."

Jennifer received the trip as a Christmas present from her parents, Tom and Brenda Schneider.

Since then, she's been "reading up on" Japan, learning some basic Japanese language skills and working on special gifts for her host family.

"It took me awhile to figure out what to do," she says, before she decided to make some pillows with Early American designs and some candles.

Jennifer recently received a letter from her host family, and there were some surprises.

Their English skills were excellent, she says, and "the penmanship was really nice. It would make you sick—it was better than we could do."

She plans to be in Japan during July and August.

The cultural exchange program is coordinated by the LABO International Exchange Foundation and the Michigan State University Cooperative Extension 4-H Youth Program.

It includes a visit to the Schneider home on Greene Haven Drive by a member of the Japanese family next summer.

ApMadoc, plants calling for water

New flowers planted in barrels along Main Street, Clarkston, need water.

Fontie ApMadoc, village trustee in charge of beautification, requests that store owners water the flowers regularly.

She also has a plea for people who have new, young trees in their yards planted by the village: "Please soak it good."

The flowers were planted by students from the Northwest Oakland Vocational Education Center.

Microwave-plus

Microwaving meats

Betty Wagner

Often microwave oven advocates will cook anything but meat in their ovens.

Meat is expensive, so fear of ruining a good piece of meat prevents people from learning to cook it in the microwave oven.

Time savings of nearly two hours and a moist, juicy product should tempt you to learn meat techniques. Micro-roasting also removes more fat from meat than conventional roasting.

Follow these steps for successful micro-roasting:

•Meat must be completely defrosted before cooking in the microwave oven.

•Shielding may be necessary to prevent overdone or hard spots on unevenly shaped roasts. To shield, place a small piece of foil over the area that has cooked enough. Be sure the foil is one inch from the top, sides and bottom of the oven. Never shield more than one-quarter to one-third of the entire roast area.

•If using a temperature probe, select 70 percent power or roast. High power may cause a slight burned spot next to the probe.

BONELESS TURKEY BREAST

4-pound frozen roast

Defrost turkey in microwave oven at 30 percent power for 3-4 minutes per pound. Let stand for 10 minutes or until roast is completely thawed throughout.

Place turkey roast on bacon rack or on a microproof roasting rack set into a Pyrex baking dish. Cover with plastic wrap and micro-roast at 70 percent power with the temperature probe set at 170 degrees, or for 9 minutes per pound.

The turkey is done when juices run clear and the internal temperature registers 170 degrees. Allow the roast to stand covered with foil for 10 to 15 minutes before slicing.

ROLLED BONELESS BEEF ROAST

Choose an evenly rolled and tied top round or sirloin roast of beef. Place the fat side down on a bacon rack or on a microproof roasting rack set in a Pyrex baking dish. Cover the roast with a white, unrecycled paper towel.

Cook at 70 percent power for 4-5 minutes per pound for rare, 5-6 minutes per pound for medium and 6-7 minutes per pound for well done. Baste off juices. Turn meat over and around.

Insert temperature probe horizontally, with the first inch in the thickest part of the roast, but not resting on fat. Cover with paper towel.

Roast at 70 percent power with the temperature probe set at 120-125 degrees for rare, 130 degrees for medium and 140 degrees for well done.

Allow the meat to stand covered with foil for 15 to 20 minutes before slicing. The internal temperature will rise 15-20 degrees as the meat finishes cooking and the juices will reabsorb into the meat.

Meats that stand are easier to slice.

Tip: Cook the meats the day before a party and ask the butcher, where the meat was purchased, to slice them thin. Serve slices cold or reheat in the microwave oven. While reheating, place a round of foil in the center of pink or rare slices to maintain the color.

Home economist Betty Wagner, an Independence Township resident, is a graduate of West Virginia University. She teaches microwave cooking classes at Sears in the Oakland Mall and through the Clarkston Community Education Department.

28 graduates share tears and dreams

'Ready to conquer the world'

By Carolyn Walker

Amid tears and laughs aplenty, the 28 graduates of the Clarkston Adult Education program accepted their diplomas June 12.

A standing-room-only crowd of family members and well-wishers cheered the recipients on as they took their final steps toward achieving their goal of obtaining a high school education.

Four of the graduates shared their feelings about their accomplishments and dreams before the diplomas were handed out.

"I was hoping today would come," said Diana Baur. "We were always comfortable learning and sharing with each other. I'm really glad I could graduate with all yous."

Fifty-one-year-old June Gadberry brought the house down with laughter as she addressed the audience.

She was encouraged by her adult son, Frank, who shouted from the audience, "Go Ma!"

"I'd like to thank my producer, director and all the little people who helped make this possible," said June. "Who'd have guessed...certainly not my mother. Where's my watch, mom?"

A tearful Maureen Smith from the alternative education program followed with, "I'm really excited that I've finished school."

The final speaker, Edward Wentz, summed up the feelings of the graduates when he spoke. "Coming back to school has given me the courage to set goals and go for it," he said. "Now I'm ready to conquer the world."

The graduates included: Martin Arpoika, Diana Baur, Gwendolyn Boggs, Kenneth Caverly, Nonnie Caverly, Brian Dennison, Kathleen Donoghue, Cheri Eakin, Cynthia Feet, Karrie Fry, June Gadberry, Sue Garten, Sherry Hensley, Patricia Higginbotham, Steven Holler, Donna Huston, Kenneth Justice, Kyrk Lafoy, Roberto Moya, Elizabeth Prieto, Tera Ratliff, Maureen Smith, Pamela Warfield, Edward Wentz, Michael YHoung, Deborah Zoldos, Steven Johnson, Judy Webber.

The students barely betray their nervousness as they wait to receive their high school diplomas. Twenty-eight adults received graduation degrees during the June 12 adult education ceremony held in the Clarkston High School Little Theatre.

June Gadberry cheers her fellow students on.

Edward Wentz is a graduate and a speaker.

Steve Johnson adjusts his cap as he prepares to walk down the aisle and receive his diploma.

Student body praises and surprises teacher

By Kathy Greenfield

The last few days of school were filled with surprises for Clarkston High School English teacher Betty Duris.

First, she was selected by the student body and the National Honor Society as "Teacher of the Semester."

"I was flabbergasted to say the least because I'd only been here one year... It was a shocker," she said. "You can't help but be flattered, but I'm more surprised than flattered because there are a lot of deserving people on the staff."

Mrs. Duris has taught English for about 12 years. After staying home to raise her children, she returned to school and received a bachelor's degree from Oakland University, Rochester, in 1972 and a master's degree in literature from OU in 1981.

Her years of teaching include one in Oxford, five in Birmingham and two in Grand Blanc.

Previously, she taught two semesters of English in the Clarkston school district. This year was her first as a full-time teacher at CHS.

As frequently happens to teachers with little longevity, Mrs. Duris received a lay-off notice for the 1985-86 school year. Last week, she was among the teachers recalled by the district due to retirements and year-long leaves of absence.

Most of her students didn't know she had been recalled, and their farewell tributes poured in during the last few days of school.

One class presented her with a dozen roses. A computer print-out banner tacked on a bulletin board declared, "We'll miss you Mrs. Duris." There were more flowers from individual students and a huge cake. And there were the notes and cards.

The students thanked her for caring, praised her teaching and some even mentioned a word rarely directed toward high school teachers—love.

"It's always the kids," she said, defining the best part of teaching, and their reactions add credence to her statement.

The "Teacher of the Semester" award is determined by a vote of the CHS student body, with the final selection made by National Honor Society members from the top vote-getters. It includes a certificate and a dinner for two at the Clarkston Cafe.

"I think it's kids saying, 'Hey, we appreciate teachers,' which I've seen with kids more this year than ever before," Mrs. Duris said. "I think there's really good communication between students and teachers here."

CHS "Teacher of the Semester" Betty Duris and her husband Joseph have lived in Clarkston eight years. They have five children.

In addition to home and work activities, she was recently elected as the 1985-86 president of the Clarkston Community Historical Society.

Audition time coming for play

Teacher dedication

by Barbara Glover

It has been a privilege and a pleasure to have known and worked with Janis Madden these past four years.

Her work is a reflection of her philosophy of bringing out the very best in each child. Devoted to excellence, she feels that music is a discipline and that performance in concerts encompasses both discipline and excellence.

"Children are so very bright and capable that not to challenge them is an injustice to them," she said.

This devotion to giving the best possible performance is well-remembered in her role as musical director of "The Wizard of Oz" two years ago.

In the many months we spent together on this production, we worked in an atmosphere of harmony and cooperation with never a harsh word. I can think of no finer accolade to extend to a teaching colleague.

Jan worked this year in conjunction with Tom Brown at North Sashabaw Elementary on a production of "H.M.S. Pinafore," another rewarding experience for all concerned.

Jan was born in Missouri and moved to Illinois in her senior year of high school. She graduated from Eastern Illinois University with a bachelor's degree in music education and a major in voice and piano.

A teacher for 12 years, she has taught vocal music in public schools in Louisiana, Mississippi, Tennessee and Michigan. She has also taught piano in North Carolina and Pennsylvania.

Jan has quite a background in performing herself. She has sung in civic choruses in every state in which she has resided. In Pittsburgh, she sang with the Mendelssohn Choir conducted by Andre Previn.

Other special interests of hers are drama and traveling. Two years ago, Joe and she traveled to England to visit daughter Kerry who was studying there.

Jan and her husband Joe have been married for 25 years and have four lovely children who are involved in many interesting activities.

Kerry, a graduate drama major at the University of Tennessee, is currently producing and directing her own play.

Duffy is a junior at Central Michigan University. His first love is writing lyrics for country-western music.

Casey will be graduating from Troy High School in June and intends to enter college in the fall.

Keely, entering her senior year of high school,

"...not to challenge (children) is an injustice to them."

Janis Madden

has been accepted at the High School for the Performing Arts in Atlanta, Ga., where she will major in drama.

Joe has been in coaching for 18 years. He was a special teams coach for the Detroit Lions and is now with the Atlanta Falcons.

So in June, the Maddens will be heading to new and rewarding adventures in Georgia.

"Moving does not bother me," Jan said. "Hard though it is to leave friends, it brings new adventures and new challenges."

With such an upbeat attitude, it is not hard to see why knowing Jan Madden has been such a happy experience.

Editor's note: An Apple for the Teacher is provided through a committee of the Clarkston Education Association.

This week's author is Barbara Glover, a sixth-grade teacher at Clarkston Elementary School.

Rookie of year

The honor of being named the "Rookie of the Year" by the Clarkston High School Marching Band belongs to Lori Stenborg.

A ninth-grader at Clarkston Junior High School during the school year that just ended, Lori took home a plaque announcing the achievement.

The title of rookie belongs to the few ninth-graders in the high school band and to the 10th-graders who are first-time members.

"All the kids voted for who they felt was the rookie of the year," said Lori's mother, Gail Stenborg. "Being she was a ninth-grader, I think that was the first time it happened" that a ninth-grader won.

Lori also received additional honors this year. She won an award at the annual Clarkston Area Youth Assistance youth recognition banquet for her work at Clarkston SCAMP, and received an instrumental music certificate from Clarkston Junior High School "in recognition of musical achievement and outstanding service."

Her parents are Peter and Gail Stenborg of Church Street, Independence Township.

Dear Cat Paw:

Why are so many people in this world getting high by taking drugs and drinking alcohol when life itself is high on happiness if you let it—not that I think anyone can answer.

Dear Whoever:

There are many reasons for today's drug problem. Let me briefly touch on the major ones.

Our society has a drug mentality. There is a pill for every problem. Just watch TV and look into the magazines and you will see.

We teach our children to look for a chemical cure for any disorder. Our "faith" in drugs doesn't stop with physical ailments. We also look for drugs to help us mentally. If we are depressed, we not only have a drink but also a Valium.

I think it is up to each one of us to take a long, hard look at our own use of tobacco, alcohol or tranquilizers.

We must watch our unspoken messages about drugs and teach children medicine is to be used only in case of illness and then with caution. When possible, try non-chemical solutions to problems with a doctor's OK.

There have also been changes in the family. We are the first generation in history to try to raise children without the help of grandparents, aunts and uncles.

Today, the challenge of parenting often falls on a single parent who also has the responsibility for earning a living, running a home and maintaining a personal life. When there are two parents, chances are good both are out of the home working.

The time parents can spend with children is limited and overhung with fatigue and harassment. Rapid changes have outdated parents. We are no longer the experts in the ways of the world.

Parents no longer teach children an occupation—few young people take up their parents' professions.

Children who come from strong, cohesive families are much less likely to get into trouble with drugs.

There have also been changes in the community. Today when a child gets into trouble, the residents probably won't even know him. He's much less likely to encounter a friend of the family.

Among the people we do know, many of us are too eager to keep up appearances to discuss our problems.

Today, we can't count on the community to look after our kids. Everyone seems to have perfect children!

Families also used to spend a lot of time together in essential activities like gardening, canning, sewing, etc. Children were necessary for economic survival.

Today, we don't seem to need kids for anything. Kids need to be needed.

There are few natural opportunities for young people and adults to come together around important activities. Kids turn to each other sooner than they used to.

Adolescent society is growing stronger—children who reach adolescence find a full-blown youth culture with its own clothing, music, language and values.

During the years when humans are most curious and less cautious, our kids are influenced mainly by each other and confronted by intense peer pressure, and that peer pressure is, unfortunately, pro-drug.

School is the headquarters for adolescent society. Schools are beset by problems.

Teachers deal with many different children each hour and can't begin to know them all well. Budget cuts are compounding the difficulties.

It is necessary that we realize the schools need our support and help to try to solve the community's drug problem. Drugs are abundantly available to children.

An obvious course is to step up law enforcement, but we can't look to the police any more than to the schools for a complete solution. Our law enforcement agencies are already overloaded.

We must accept the fact that drugs are not going to be stamped out soon enough to matter to the current crop of children.

The challenge to parents is to prepare children to handle themselves even when they are surrounded by drug use.

Latchkey camp offered for kids at Camp Oweki this summer

By taking advantage of Camp Oweki's latchkey program, working parents can send their children to day camp from July 8 through July 26.

Camp Oweki, located on 120 acres off Sashabaw Road in Independence Township, has been operated by Camp Fire for 33 years.

The camp site includes a lake for swimming and boating, and among additional activities are crafts, games, nature awareness and Red Cross swimming.

Day camp sessions for kindergarten through sixth-graders are planned July 8-12, July 15-19 and July 22-26. A Special Education Day Camp is planned July 29-Aug. 2. The fee is $35 for non-members and $25 for members.

Youngsters in grades seven through 12 may serve as junior counselors and attend camp for free except for a $2.50 membership fee.

Children need not be members of Camp Fire to attend Camp Oweki. All camp sessions are open to boys and girls.

For working parents, the camp offers a latchkey program from 7 to 9 a.m. and 3 to 6 p.m. for $1.50 an hour for one child or $2 for two or more children.

Horse Camp sessions for boys and girls in grades four through 12 are offered Aug. 5-9 and Aug. 12-16. The cost is $65 a week for non-members and $55 a week for members. The fee includes bus transportation to Foxe Pointe Farm Stable in Union Lake.

The first session is for novice riders and the second session for the advanced rider.

For more information and a camp brochure, call the Camp Fire-North Oakland office at 338-4036.

Members of the post's auxiliary, along with boy and girl scouts from the area presented the flags during a solemn procession. One by one the flags were handed over to be burned as onlookers stood quietly at attention.

Retiring Old Glory

Photos by Carolyn Walker

Kerosene is poured over the flags to help them burn more effectively.

Henry Wiltfang touches a torch to the flags as a fellow veteran salutes in the background.

Twenty-seven Old Glories go up in a rage of flames and smoke.
