Levy may buy Salem pit

By Carolyn Walker

The Edward C. Levy Mining Co. may find itself mining for gravel in Independence Township after all. Levy was denied the right to mine 300 acres near the headwaters of the Clinton River by the State Department of Natural Resources and the Army Corps of Engineers in 1983.

The company is currently negotiating a purchase of the Alabama-based Blount Materials of Michigan, according to Douglas Fischer, vice president of Levy.

If Levy completes the purchase, it will take over all of Blount's mining operations in Michigan, said James Scott, operations manager for Blount.

Included in Blount's holdings is the 200-acre Salem Sand and Gravel Construction Co. near Oak Hill and Dartmouth roads.

Completion of the Levy-Blount negotiations is expected in the next one or two months, said Fischer, who would make no comment on Levy's intentions for mining the Salem parcel.

"I'd really prefer not to say anything else," he said.

A 1960 consent judgment between Blount and Independence Township permits mining at the Salem site through 1986.

In May, the township board agreed to sign an amendment to that consent judgment, which would extend mining another four to six years. The judgment also provides for land reclamation during that period.

Under the guidelines of the amendment, the board is to monitor Salem mining on a yearly basis.

According to Scott, who says he will continue as Salem's operation manager under Levy, mining and

Join the parade

If you're planning to participate in Clarkston's Labor Day Parade, the Clarkston Rotary Club wants to hear from you.

The Monday, Sept. 2, event sponsored by the Rotarians is to begin at 10 a.m. This year's theme is "We Are the World."

Encouragement to join the parade comes from Gerald McNally, parade chairman.

"It's a good opportunity to make the community aware of your club or organization," he says.

There'll be awards for the best parade entry in each category. All participants must be registered. Call McNally at 623-1734.

Questions raised about class overcrowding

By Kathy Greenfield

Class size and split classes were again discussed at the Clarkston board of education meeting Aug. 12, and the issue instigated comments on enrollment, remedies for overcrowding and redrawing school boundaries.

Eric Haven, representing Parents for Quality Education from Clarkston Elementary School, asked if any conclusions had been reached at the board's July 25 special meeting, called to study the issue.

"The board didn't really make any decision, except to say what we did in the past—to keep class sizes as small as possible and to eliminate as many splits as possible," said board President Janet Thomas.

Thomas added that there will be some split classes in the district, but the number could not be determined until enrollment is known.

Haven assured the board that the parents he represents from Clarkston Elementary are concerned about splits and class sizes, but "we're coming in a spirit of cooperation. We're not being antagonistic at all."

"Your problem is a concern of ours, it's a major concern. But it is not the only major concern," Thomas said. "We agree with you, we would like to see class sizes at 15, but as I've told you before, that's not possible."

Haven and members of the parent group have attended monthly board meetings since May, repeatedly stating their objections to split classes, particularly at Clarkston Elementary, and to large classes in the early elementary grades.

Thomas chastised Haven for not staying at the meetings when budgets were discussed and, therefore, not learning some of the reasons why splits are sometimes necessary.

Haven said the important thing was "that we were heard."

"I feel satisfied, as a board member, that we have done what we can do to alleviate the problem," said David Kithil.

Allen Bartlett, president of the Clarkston Education Association, asked if the board had recently discussed remedies for situations when bulges at certain grade levels result in larger than normal class sizes.

The remedies remain the same, as written in the CEA teachers' contract, said Thomas: additional materials, additional time off for planning and a teacher's aide if necessary.

"If, indeed, the enrollment is higher this fall than projected, would that also include recalling more staff or hiring more staff if necessary?" Bartlett asked.

"We always do that if it is warranted," responded Thomas.

Bartlett also asked about redrawing school boundary lines.

Pit negotiations

reclamation as dictated by the consent judgment will not be affected by Levy's purchase of the property.

Following a dispute between Independence Township and Levy over the proposed mining of the 300-acre parcel in 1983, the township purchased 80 acres off Sashabaw Road.

After lengthy negotiations, the township purchased an additional 40 unmined acres from Levy last May.

In addition, Oakland County purchased 184 acres for annexation to the Independence Oaks County Park off Sashabaw Road.

The Detroit-based Levy mining company is over 70 years old, and maintains several different businesses, according to Fischer.

Among those businesses are the contracting of mill services to steel industries and the selling of sand and gravel to construction companies, he said.

"That's always a possibility. (But) frankly, that's not one of my favorite possibilities, because everybody wants redistricting as long as 'my child doesn't have to go to another school,'" Thomas said. "That's never a popular solution."

"We've attempted not to redistrict," she added. "I can't say it's never going to happen, but we're not going to redistrict for the next two years."

Fire injures one

One employee was injured when a fire erupted at a building owned by Cummings Cement at 5904 Dixie Highway, Independence Township, Aug. 13.

James Atchison, 49, a Drayton Plains resident, was burned on his left knee and hand when a flammable fluid ignited, according to Gar Wilson, assistant chief of the Independence Township Fire Department.

Atchison was transported by Fleet ambulance to Pontiac General Hospital.

Wilson said smoke and fire in the building caused an estimated $3,000 in damages.

Mixed reviews over increased school income

By Kathy Greenfield

News of an increase in income over last year for Clarkston schools was mixed with dismay over school district funding when lobbyist Kerry Kammer made a report to the Clarkston board of education last week.

Kammer, a former state senator who resides in Springfield Township, works for the school districts of Berkley, Clarkston, Ferndale, Pontiac and Waterford and for Oakland Community College.

The Clarkston school district has paid an annual fee of $6,800 to Kammer's firm, Kammer/Michigan Consultants Inc., since 1983.

Superintendent Milford Mason said he invited Kammer to make a report to the Clarkston school board to remind them and the public about the disparity that still exists in funding Michigan school districts. In-formula districts including Clarkston generally receive far less money than out-of-formula districts.

"We are still in the position in Oakland County where some districts have about twice as much money (per pupil) to spend as we have to spend," said Mason after the meeting.

He also commented on the "excellent job" Kammer has done for the district.

"Legislators are continually made aware (by Kammer that) there's a tremendous disparity," Mason said. "If you don't have that voice there, they forget it."

Mason said he would like to form an association of in-formula school districts to seek reformation of the present system, which allows areas with large tax bases to become out-of-formula and, therefore, have larger amounts of money.

For the 1985-86 school year, all in-formula school districts in the state receive a base rate of $303 per pupil plus $68.50 per mill levied in the district per pupil. Out-of-formula districts work with the actual amount of money levied by their millage rates. They are out-of-formula because the tax money generated is higher than the money allotted per pupil by the state.

Kammer also spoke about the disparity at the meeting.

"It is distinctly unfair for one district to spend two or three more times on kids than other districts," he said, adding that he believes the courts will eventually decide whether to force a change in the in-formula, out-of-formula situation.

Kammer also reported on several items which effect the amount of money coming into the Clarkston school district for the 1985-86 school year. The list included the following:

- A $10,000 to $12,000 grant for foreign language studies applied for by Curriculum Director Alberta Ellis. The money will be used to offset the costs of introducing conversational foreign language at the elementary school level and for adding one foreign language at the two junior high schools.

- An incentive increase of $28 for every pupil enrolled in the district because six hours of instruction a day are offered at the high school level.

- An incentive increase of $6.11 for every pupil enrolled in the district because class sizes in kindergarten and first grade are 25 or below.

- An $8,000 grant for a gifted and talented education.

Enrollment on the fourth Friday is used by the state to determine state aid. According to the formula approved by the legislature, there will be about $2,916 per pupil enrolled in Clarkston schools.

Because the Clarkston district already established the programs for which the legislature is providing incentives, the money is a bonus of sorts.

But for other districts, the money would fund only a portion of changes, and that could be a problem, according to Kammer.

Rather than mandate programs, which the state would be required to fund under the Headlee Amendment, the state has opted to provide incentives.

"The tendency in this direction is going to put boards in ever increasing awkward positions," Kammer said. "In the practical sense, it's not always easy to say no when someone is funding 25 percent" of a program that would benefit children.

Kammer also commented on the effect an improving economy has had on the funding of education by the state.

"I think we've done well," he said. "I become nervous when I hear about downturns in the economy. It's easy to do things when you have money. It's much more difficult when you don't."

Latchkey program gets underway this fall

One-half kindergarten, one-half day care

By Kathy Greenfield

The need for day-long care for kindergartners has prompted the Clarkston school district to implement a new program this fall.

Beginning Sept. 3, children can attend one-half day of kindergarten at Pine Knob Elementary with the remainder of the day spent at the school in day care through the Latchkey program.

"There seems to be a great need," said Jeanne Molzon, director of the Latchkey program through Clarkston Community Education. "A lot of parents have called in and said, 'You have latchkey, but why don't you have that for kindergartners?'"

Molzon said such a program was not possible until a classroom opened that could be used all day. She learned Friday that a portable classroom was available at Pine Knob Elementary because the academically talented program was moved to North Sashabaw Elementary.

"I think there are people in other schools because the parents need this kind of service," said Molzon. "We're hopeful they'll return to Clarkston schools when they learn we have that kind of service here."

Care for children enrolled in the latchkey-kindergarten program will be available from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. When not attending a regular kindergarten class, the fee for child care will be $1.50 an hour. The latchkey teacher has 11 years' experience in a private latchkey kindergarten program, Molzon said. The children will be able to purchase school lunches. Bus transportation will not be provided.

This is the first year latchkey will be provided in Clarkston's five elementary schools for first- through sixth-graders. [See related story on Page 34.]

The kindergarten-latchkey program will be held at Pine Knob Elementary for any child who resides within the Clarkston school district.

Registrations, which are limited, are now being taken at the Clarkston Community Learning Center,

Breakfast starts day

Events planned for Labor Day

The Labor Day holiday is lurking just around the corner. There are some special events planned in and around Clarkston to celebrate the occasion.

At noon on Sunday, Sept. 1, the Independence Township Fire Fighters Association will sponsor a waterball competition with fire departments from other communities. The event is scheduled in the Clarkston Village Park parking lot on Depot Road.

On Monday, Sept. 2, the firefighters' association will hold its annual Labor Day Pancake Breakfast at a new location.

Formerly at the Church Street Fire Station, the breakfast is planned this year in the Clarkston Village Park on Depot Street from 7 a.m. until 10 a.m.

The price of $3 for adults and $2 for children includes pancakes, sausage, milk, coffee and juice. Proceeds will go to the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

Following the breakfast at 10 a.m. will be the annual Labor Day Parade sponsored by the Clarkston Rotary Club.

At noon the same day, the American Legion Campbell Richmond Post 63 plans to hold its annual corn roast. The legion hall is located at 8041 M-15, north of the village and north of I-75.

New program goal: more school volunteers

By Kathy Greenfield

Jeanne Molzon envisions a school volunteer program staffed with adults of all ages who can provide one-on-one attention when needed.

The board of education took the first step toward that goal Aug. 12.

In a 5-0 vote, the board approved a plan under the Clarkston Community Education Department to work toward initiating a volunteerism program in all district schools and appointed Molzon coordinator.

"I'm very glad to see this come about," said

Mary Jane Chaustowich, who made the motion.

Molzon will continue as coordinator of the after-school enrichment classes and as coordinator of the latchkey program. The addition of volunteer coordinator duties will move her job into the full-time category, she says.

Eventually, she would like to work full-time as director of volunteers overseeing a coordinator in each school building with an active program in each school.

Her goals this year are threefold:

- Growth of existing programs and encouraging volunteer programs in each building.

- A joint meeting with existing building volunteer coordinators to share ideas and work together.

- The recruiting of more senior citizens to work as volunteers.

"The board's action the other night is just the first step," says Molzon. "There's a lot of work and a lot of development. It will take several years for what we want to accomplish."

The district is expected to approve more stringent promotion and retention policies this year. The plan is to work gradually toward requiring mathematic and English competency for pupils before they can graduate. The testing and remedial instruction are to begin in elementary school and continue throughout a pupil's school years.

"The teachers are going to have more and more need for tutors and reinforcement," says Molzon, "and there will be a great need for volunteers."

Members of the community interested in school volunteer work can call Molzon at 674-3141.

Layoff list falls

The teacher layoff list for Clarkston schools keeps decreasing.

The board of education approved the recall of Debra Latozas on Aug. 12 due to the retirement of Virginia Myers.

The first layoff list for the district coincided with the downturn in enrollment about five years ago, said Conrad Bruce, administrative assistant.

"This is the lowest (number on the list) in four or five years," Bruce said.

Latozas is to teach at North Sashabaw Elementary School. Last year, she taught at the junior high school level.

"Before that, she taught at the elementary level," Bruce told the board. "She did a fine job for the district."

The layoff list now includes six elementary school teachers, three special education teachers and eight secondary teachers.

Bruce said he expects at least one more teacher to be recalled before school starts this fall because high school teacher Betty Duris has also resigned.

Myers' decision to retire following legislation signed by Gov. James Blanchard in mid-July, Bruce said.

The act allows state employees to retire beginning in January with full benefits when their ages plus their years of employment add up to 80. Previously, full benefits became available when employees reached age 55 with at least 30 years on the job.

In addition, the act covers 90 percent of health insurance for the subscriber and dependents. Previously, cost for dependents was not covered.

The school district added to the retirement incentive by agreeing to pay Myers $5,000 and to hire her as a substitute teacher for 17 days at North Sashabaw Elementary School before Dec. 20 so she would meet the state requirements.

Myers worked 29 years in the Clarkston school system. Most recently, she taught fourth and fifth grades at North Sashabaw Elementary School.

Limb meets car

A sudden crash destroyed an otherwise quiet evening for the Merediths, not to mention the family car. About 10 p.m., Aug. 14, a limb of one of the many trees in the Princess Lane, Independence Township, address fell on the 1981 Pontiac Phoenix sitting in the driveway. The limb was about 18 inches wide at the base and nearly a foot wide for the bulk of its length. Phyllis Meredith said there is no explanation of why the branch fell, because there weren't any winds or a storm at the time. Insurance adjusters had yet to look at the damage to the car and to the garage that was slightly damaged in the incident. [Photo by Dan Vandenhemel]

Springfield ponders tougher junk ordinance

By Dan Vandenhemel

The rewriting of the junk ordinance in Springfield Township is important enough not to rush at this point, says Supervisor Collin Walls.

Part of the plan is to change the name of the regulation from junk to outdoor storage in order cover more material, he said.

Discussions about changing the ordinance started in the spring of this year. Walls said he hopes the board can formally put the new ordinance into effect by the November meeting.

The township board referred the issue to the planning commission and is expecting a report by the October meeting.

"This could affect more of the residents of the township than any other ordinance," Walls said. "There are things that everyone will have from time to time that will fall under this."

The list includes boats, campers, junk, litter, building materials, snowmobiles and ATVs.

"Basically this is a generalized control of storage outside," Walls said. "We'll allow certain things to be screened off from sight."

"There's an appeal mechanism for people to obtain permission for certain items. For instance, if someone has a snowmobile stored behind the garage and it's on 10 acres it might not be bad, but it might be if it's on only a 40-foot lot."

The advance of technology and the population increase since the 1970 have outdated the original ordinance, he said.

"There are lots of things that contributed to (the revision)," Walls said. "The population of the township is at least double and things like ATVs and snowmobiles are more common. A lot of things result from the change of a community. It's a little hard to understand right now because it's not completely written."

Industry spurs fear

Once a law is in effect for a time, the routine of obeying that particular law becomes easier. You may not like the law, but it doesn't seem such a hassle to comply.

Take for example the returnable bottle bill. While it is a big pain to retailers, the customer has moved into a routine of taking the containers back to the store for deposit credit. It is interesting to read some of the comments made in Virginia which, for the fourth time, lawmakers turned down a returnable bottle bill similar to Michigan's law.

Among the arguments listed in newspapers as opponents' arguments were:

(From a Coca Cola official): "The most you could possibly reduce litter would be 15 percent."

(From a Reynolds Aluminum official): "Reynolds would be forced to shut down its recycling centers."

(From an Owens-Illinois bottle-making employee): "I lost my job in Michigan because of the bottle law and had to move to Virginia."

(From a legislator): "I don't want my three daughters out on the highways picking up bottles so they can get ten cents if they return them. We have enough problems with children being assaulted without having them out on the road."

As one Michigan weekly newspaper publisher commented, "Michigan's bottle law, just about everyone agrees, has done a lot to clean up our roadsides and parks. It hasn't driven stores out of business. And it certainly hasn't brought children out scrounging for bottles. Michigan's returnable bottle law is probably one of the most widely approved things the legislature has done in the past 10 years."

To cut down on traffic mishaps involving school buses, motorists and student pedestrians are advised to follow certain safeguards.

Michigan law requires motorists in both directions to halt 10 feet on either side of a stopped school bus displaying flashing red lights.

Students should always cross at least six feet in front of the bus in clear view of the bus driver and be alert for all traffic.

Seven persons died in accidents involving school buses during the 1984-85 school year. AAA and the Michigan Association for Pupil Transportation are co-sponsoring a series of statewide traffic safety education programs on school bus safety.

Cooking wonders

Kathy Greenfield

For Mother's Day, my daughter bought me a card that identified me as "the apple crisp of TV dinners."

She probably wasn't aware of how much significance that card had for a person of my age.

I remember when I first became aware of TV dinners. They were advertised on TV, and children of our generation wanted to join Tony the Tiger in eating Kellogg's Corn Flakes and we wanted to try those delicious-looking TV dinners.

I don't remember ever asking for a toy advertised on TV—a common occurrence now. But I do remember begging my mom to buy TV dinners.

My mother is one of the best cooks and bakers around. My dad always plants huge gardens.

When I was growing up, among the goods we canned during summer months were tomatoes, pears, peaches and grape juice.

Homemade soups, biscuits, cakes, pies, stews and spaghetti sauce were regulars on our dinner menus.

I did, however, somehow talk my mom into letting us try TV dinners. I didn't like them—except for the apple crisp. I was surprised then. I'm not now.

This train of thought began with a conversation around a picnic table. Spouses who both work made up the group. The discussion touched on typical dinners and turned to the merits of frozen entrees including which brands and which specific dishes were the best. Everyone joined in the conversation.

About a week later, my parents invited us to pick fresh vegetables in their garden. While there, we ate lunch.

The potatoes for the potato pancakes were dug that morning. Also just picked were the tomatoes, cucumbers and lima beans. The fresh-from-the-oven buttermilk biscuits were served with grape jelly and raspberry jam made by my mother.

My parents wouldn't have been able to share their personal experiences with frozen entrees. They never eat the stuff.

At the house of my husband and me, dinners are best characterized by the term split personality.

I do some of each type of cooking.

Lately, I've noticed that when things swing too much to the frozen food side I feel compelled to relax with a cooking binge of the other kind.

I wonder how our children will choose to prepare their meals.

Nothing too serious, please.

On a recent drive I noticed if it wasn't for bumper stickers and decals with radio call letters to hold 'em together, some cars wouldn't be on the road at all.

I'm never going to believe World War II ended August 15, as celebrated last week. Where I was, off Guam, it was August 14.

On the same day I got a letter from JCPenney acknowledging my 59th birthday, I got a letter from Jim Whittington saying he can pray for me 24-hours a day.

The haberdasher is selling life insurance these days, thus the letter telling me to buy death insurance (they call it life) "at a monthly premium that will never be lower than right now."

One side note on life insurance . . . I was recently exposed to a policy that said (in less dynamic terms) "you have 15 years to live". There must be more than that. I just got here.

Pastor Whittington, who calls me partner, says he calls his office every time he stops to eat, sleep, etc. to learn who wants to be prayed for, and he immediately bows his head.

He wants to hear from me, and pray for me. That's fine. I have just two problems with that: 1. I think he's the guy who gets in front of TV cameras at golf matches and shines his gospel-chapter t-shirt, and: 2. I don't want to be called partner.

Gambling makes me nervous. At the big saloons in Las Vegas and Atlantic City I've risked (and lost) as much as $10 a day. Top bet in golf is $2. So, you can see the state budget-balancing act with lottery runs a deficit with me.

I must admit when Lotto got to $15 million I lost $2 on my kids' birthdays.

It took retired editor-investor Bill Myers to put the $15 million and the state of Michigan into perspective. He said the three winners get their share, but it's spread over 19 years, with no provision for interest on the unpaid balance.

He said, "assuming a 10 percent rate (government bonds pay more than that), it will cost Michigan only 37 percent of the alleged $15 million to pay its 19 annual installments."

"A little over $5.5 million, which the state has already collected from the non-winners, will finance the payout of what it claims is $15 million."

"If private business tried to get away with a scam like that, there'd be a Congressional hearing."

Myers lives in Florida and can talk a lot, but I wonder if he wouldn't be tempted to risk a couple bucks if he were here, regardless of interest.

Letters to editor

Double standard

Reading about the request by Congressman Bob Carr for a waiver for drinking beer at Clintonwood Park, it seems to me that the township board is allowing a double standard to take place by not enforcing the ban during ball games.

People supporting the township by playing softball and watching the games are able to drink not only beer but other alcoholic beverages throughout the evening and no enforcement of the ban has taken place. In the past, beer was sold at the park during SCAMP tournaments.

It really seems unfair that Congressman Bob Carr's representatives have gone through the proper channels, yet were denied.

The township might consider researching the feasibility of allowing the drinking of beer at Clintonwood Park.

Coverage thanks

Don and I appreciate the coverage The Clarkston News gave to our son Andy's recent auto accident.

Aside from reporting the news, you also kept many concerned people informed—people we could have never contacted personally.

We have always known that Clarkston was a caring community, but never realized to what extent until this unfortunate accident. We're convinced that all of those many prayers were a factor in Andy's recovery.

We're happy to report that he's traded his wheelchair for a crutch and has had the cast removed from his arm. Although he's not completely back to normal, the worst seems to be over.

Thank you again.

Tiger comments

I love watching wild birds! In fact, I enjoy them so much that I would like to have a Kirtland's Warbler, a Whooping Crane and a Bald Eagle of my own.

I would give them appropriate names, large enclosures, lots of food and undivided attention.

In fact, I would justify their captivity by inviting school groups, scout troops and senior citizens to come and view them through the cages, and if they held their hands up carefully they might even get to touch one of them.

Of course, I would make this a real educational experience by filling these people's minds full of facts and figures of the life histories of these animals. I am a "good person" and would be a most responsible pet owner of these birds.

Why shouldn't I do this? Because a judge in a court has said that it is "against the township ordinance" to have such birds on my property or that it might be dangerous to other humans? No!!

The reason I should not and would not keep wild animals (especially an endangered species) captive is that it would be ethically wrong!

I would be denying those animals their basic rights to life, liberty and the pursuit of their kind of happiness! What? You think only humans should have those rights?

We humans have too long taken the attitude that wildlife is something with which we can do as we please regardless of the ramifications to the animals and the environment.

We are now reaping the results of this egocentric attitude in a diminished diversity of wildlife, environmental degradation and spiritual alienation from the biosphere.

Why were Siberian tiger Athena and Bobcat Cassandra at an Independence Township residence in the first place?

Why have these wild animals been denied their rights to perpetuate their dwindling numbers in their own habitats? Is it to satisfy their owners?

Humans have tampered, by selective breeding, with the genetic makeup of domesticated animals to the point where they are our creations.

But wild animals (including tamed ones) have been finely tuned by thousands of years of natural selection for their own niches in life, and by removing

'If it Fitz...'

How Coach Perles shapes up

Jim Fitzgerald

Not all jocks make money by advertising beer. Michigan State University football coach George Perles is currently advertising medical insurance for Blue Cross & Blue Shield of Michigan. In newspaper ads and on TV and radio, he asks if your mother's cherry pie is "really worth seven extra miles."

The correct answer is no, according to Perles. "It's much easier to say 'no' to sweet desserts than it is to exercise off those pounds," he says.

It's even easier to eat the pie, screw the exercise and take a nap. But that's my opinion, and the Blues won't buy it. You probably haven't noticed, but I don't possess the muscular qualifications of a Big Ten football coach.

"I have the privilege of working with people in near-perfect physical condition. So I have to stay in the best shape myself," Perles says in the Blues' ads.

Perles is referring to the happy—for him—coincidence that all the students who enroll at MSU for the agricultural and veterinary curricula, and later, while walking across campus, notice the school has a football team and decide to play a little on Saturdays—all those students have no necks.

The Blues obviously believe Perles' close association with well-built athletes make him an expert on how to stay healthy—and out of hospital rooms that Blue Cross might have to pay for. Maybe it is good for a person's health to hang around people whose income (room, board, tuition, Lear jet) depends upon their being healthy enough to withstand blocking, tackling and cortisone shots.

But I just read about a party held at the New Orleans Recreation Department pool to celebrate the city's first drowning-free swimming season in memory. Over 100 certified lifeguards attended, and one of their guests drowned.

It is something for the Blues to think about. Perles claimed "you have to run four miles to work off a cup of ice cream." But people who eat ice cream out of a cup instead of a bowl probably jog in a fog and wouldn't recognize a real glutton if he ate their sneakers.

I can't help remembering that in 1983 the Blues used Joe Muer and his famous seafood restaurant in their advertising. Every time I saw one of those yummy insurance ads, I rushed to Muer's and charged lobster tails drenched in butter to my Blue Cross card.

Now, only two years later, the Blues are using a football coach to urge me to "switch over to whole wheat bread."

The purpose of the Blues' Joe Muer ads was to point out that a restaurateur smart enough to sell billions of calories every week was also smart enough to provide Blues' insurance for his employees. The purpose of the Perles ad is to keep you from eating too many calories, getting sick and filing insurance claims.

Some picky people might see a slight inconsistency between the two series of ads. They might even see inconsistency in an ad that, in the interest of good health and lower medical bills, extols the health habits of young men playing a game that regularly produces a large excess of torn hamstrings and broken collarbones.

But that's not important. The important thing is that Blue Cross-Blue Shield continue its long-alleged policy of cost containment. It is recalled that when MSU hired Perles for $95,000 a year, the university also had to pay $175,000 to mollify his ex-employer for luring their coach into breaking his contract, plus $19,000 in legal fees to quash a $1 million lawsuit.

It is hoped that the Blues didn't lure Perles away from Actna, and that his huckstering fee fits a cup, not a bowl.

Friendship endures the test of separation

For four years, I have been away from the small town of Clarkston, only being home on visits.

I have noticed many changes, improvements and some personal disappointments. But for the most part, Clarkston has managed to keep that homey atmosphere, that small-town look and the good people hospitality.

These are some of the things I have missed most while being away. But there is always one thing that keeps me coming back to my home town, and it's none of the aforementioned. It's friendships.

Clarkston has always been a great place to meet people and establish friendships: Friendships that have lasted through wars, depressions, recessions, college, employment on the east and west coast and also abroad.

I don't believe that anyone can really put a universal definition on the word friend or friendship, it can only be defined by the specific individuals involved in the individual friendship.

Six years ago, I met a young man who was introduced to me as a vocalist in the Clarkston High School Music Department.

This young man sang in the tenor range as did I. We were trying out for two slots with the CHS Madrigal Singers.

I was nervous due to my inexperience with the music department and the unfamiliar faces in the room at the time of our audition. He, on the other hand, appeared calm, cool and collected due to his experience and general disposition.

We ended up getting the two slots as tenors with the Madrigal group and thus our friendship began.

As time went on through school, we became closer and closer. We enjoyed many after-school activities such as concerts, cast parties, hay baling at Territown and late night sings at the Clarkston Big Boy.

After our graduation from CHS, we were like brothers. I felt he was the brother I never had, the best friend-type brother, the one you could confide in.

Guest commentary

September came along and he was off the the University of Michigan to study music and I was off to serve my country with the United States Army.

This was a time when I felt uneasy. I felt that now that we were apart, the closeness in our relationship would be hampered.

I must have spent $100 a month on pens, paper and stamps writing to him and all my other friends and family. This, I thought, would cut down on the loneliness of being away from home.

Well, my mother and grandmother were about the only good correspondents. The others would write after I sent them a nastygram until I stopped writing to them altogether. All except my brother-like friend.

He would always return a letter, always answer my questions and advise me on my problems. He was always there for me and I for him whenever we needed each other.

Since that September, I have seen this friend during a total of six trips back to Clarkston. I feel our relationship has grown tremendously since then, even though there were thousands of miles separating us.

This is basically a thanks to a man I feel deserves it, not for anything outstanding that he has done, but for just being himself.

No one can give a universal definition to the word friend or friendship, but I can give my personal definition, which is: The willingness to give up your own life for the life of a friend.

Mr. Jon Territo, you are my friend. May God bless you forever.

Author Steven Percival, 22, is stationed with the United States Army in Stuttgart, Germany, where he serves with military intelligence. He graduated from Clarkston High School in 1981.

them from their environment we are denying them their nature-given rights.

The decision for the removal of Athena and Cassandra from the Independence Township residence was correct—the judge's reason was wrong, ethically.

Budget dinner

Members of the Independence Township Board and department heads met over dinner Aug. 12 for a budget study session.

"We (the board) felt and everyone there felt it was very productive in that we could talk one-on-one with each other," said Supervisor Frank Ronk.

First-quarter updates on the budgets were discussed with each department director or acting director, Ronk said, and a question-and-answer session followed.

The purpose was to "keep the trustees basically involved in the budget workings" and "just a little more communication," he said.

The dinner in a meeting room at the Deer Lake Racquet Club for six township board members (Trustee Daniel Travis not present) and seven department heads cost the township $240.

U-D courses at Colombiere

Computer, business communication and foreign language classes are scheduled to be among the offerings this September by the University of Detroit, Clarkston Campus continuing education program.

The university is offering continuing education for the first time this year at the Colombiere Center on Big Lake Road in Springfield Township.

Evening and day-long non-credit computer training seminars will be available for interested adults.

In addition, classes will be offered in Japanese, French, German and Spanish. Featuring the Dartmouth-Rassias method of teaching, the classes are scheduled for Monday and Wednesday evenings from 6 p.m. until 9 p.m. beginning Sept. 16. Up to three academic credits are available for some language courses.

The Dartmouth-Rassias method provides rapid acquisition of fluency with emphasis on speaking skills, according to a press release from the University of Detroit.

Non-credit classes in oral and written communication skills for business persons are also scheduled to be held at the Colombiere Center. The eight-week course will meet on Monday nights beginning Sept. 16.

Registration information for all courses is available by calling the University of Detroit's Division of Continuing Professional Education at: 927-1025.

Opened in 1983, the University of Detroit Clarkston extension offers bachelor's degree programs in business, administration and liberal arts.

Fast accounts

The Clarkston school district is no longer relying on the mail for delivery of the expected $4.5 million in state aid payments this year.

Instead, a "Lansing Lock Box" method of receipt has been approved by the board of education.

"The State of Michigan sends money to a bank's post office box in Lansing and the bank wires it to Pontiac State Bank to our account," said William Jackson, Clarkston school district financial manager.

In the past when state aid checks were mailed, it usually took three to five days for the district to receive the money.

"We're (now) able to get our hands on the money the same day the check is issued," said Jackson.

The bottom line is more money for the district. In October, a state aid payment of $900,000 is expected. Three additional days of investment time should net about $550 in interest, Jackson said.

Road repairs set

Responding to a long-term concern of residents, the Springfield Township Board plans to spending over $14,000 on a stretch of Hillsboro Road.

Supervisor Collin Walls said the 1,800 foot section between Neilson and Claypool roads will be worked on this fall.

Total cost of the project is around $20,000 with $8,000 of the expenses covered through the tri-party road repair fund. The $8,000 is split between the township, Oakland County and the Oakland County Road Commission. Springfield Township will pay the addition $12,000 out of its budget, Walls said.

Draining, ditching and graveling of the road should begin by October, Walls said.

THE FACT THAT MIDAS STOCKS 1025 DIFFERENT GOLD MUFFLERS IS SOMETHING THE COMPETITION WOULD LIKE TO KEEP QUIET.

Midas manufactures and stocks more different mufflers than any other muffler chain.

And when you have that many mufflers, it's no wonder our competitors would rather we keep quiet.

Because unlike Midas, they can't assure you they'll have the muffler that's made to the exact specifications of your car.

Nor can any other muffler chain back its mufflers with a guarantee that's good in as many locations as Midas.

If anything should ever go wrong with your Gold Muffler, Midas will replace it free for as long as you own your car.

At over 1400 locations. In all 50 states.

So if you want the right muffler for your car, come to Midas.

With 1025 different mufflers in stock, we should have no problem keeping your car quiet. Which is something our competition would rather not hear.

6 receive raises

A three-year contract with the Cook Managers Association has been ratified by the Clarkston board of education.

The agreement with the six-member association includes an average salary increase of 5.6 percent a year, which amounts to $1.25 an hour over the three years, said Conrad Bruce, administrative assistant and chief negotiator.

In addition, the contract increases the uniform allowance by $25 to $175 the second year and adds 1 cent an hour in each of the three longevity steps.

"It was a fair and equitable contract for both parties and I ask for your ratification," said Bruce.

The board responded by approving the contract, which runs through June 30, 1988, in a 5-0 vote.

Weight room not just for football players

The weight room at Clarkston High School isn't just for football players anymore as Marni Banker (left), Kara Kruz (top) and Jenny DuPree prove. The CHS cheerleaders are working out with the weights because their latest routines require more strength.

By Dan Vandenhemel

A familiar sound of metal striking metal rings from the weight room at Clarkston High School.

This is part of many high school sports to help players build-up for the grind of the football field or maybe the basketball court.

Twice a week, starting at 7 a.m., the room is filled with non-typical athletes. The Clarkston High School cheerleaders push the weights for two hours, toning and getting stronger.

"It really helps if the mounts aren't shakey."

—Jan Fife

"Sue (Jorgenson, varsity coach) started the idea last year," said JV coach Jan Fife. "It strengthens their arms and legs. The routines are getting complicated."

The varsity squad has qualified for the National Finals competition at Walt Disney World in December. The junior varsity just missed a similar opportunity.

"We're doing a lot more advanced mounts. We need to be stronger," Fife said. "I'm sure that's part of the reason for the weights. It really helps if the mounts aren't shaky."

"Cheerleading is much more involved now," she continued. "The cheerleaders are more into gymnastics and dancing. The competition is much tougher now."

Olympic coaching post possible

By Dan Vandenhemel

By 1996, Stu Hastings is hoping to be the coach of a new Olympic sport, racquetball.

The Springfield Township resident and his wife, JoEtta, just returned from the second annual Elite Training Camp. The three-week clinic was at the Olympic Training Center in Colorado Springs, Colo. He coached and she was a player.

The American Amateur Racquetball Association is trying to push racquetball to the Olympic Committee and Hastings thinks it will be introduced to the games in 1988.

"It's been proposed to be an exhibition sport," the 33-year-old Hastings said. "Racquetball is starting to spread. Right now it's in the PanAm games and the World Games in London. These tournaments are a way of exposing the sport to the world."

One thing a sport needs to become part of the Olympics is world-wide appeal. A certain number of countries must play the game before it can be introduced. Hastings said about 40 countries are playing the sport.

"It was actually developed in the United States, here in Ann Arbor, around 1972," he said. "The more popular it gets, the more money there will be available to put back into it."

The camp at the Olympic Training Center invited 40 top players for each of the three weeks and about seven instructors. Hastings thinks he has a good shot of becoming an Olympic coach.

"They recommended that I become one of the permanent coaches at the camp," he said. "The first year, I went as a player and was voted MVP for the week. With that, they invited me to coach this year. A goal of mine is to be the Olympic coach. When it does become a sport in 10 years, I'll be too old to compete."

Hastings is a management, law and retail teacher at Sterling Heights Stevenson High School and he teaches racquetball at three clubs. His wife works for General Motors in Flint. They play in tournaments all year and are near the top of their game.

"They invite the top players to these camps," Hastings said. "It's inevitable racquetball will be an Olympic sport. We'll just plug in the top players."

Stu Hastings, just returned from the Elite Training Camp for racquetball in Colorado Springs, Colo. The game has a chance of becoming an Olympic sport, he says.

Wolves put in extra work during breaks

By Dan Vandenhemel

On Monday morning at 8, a soccer field full of Clarkston High School players work on different playing skills.

They run two miles to build endurance. They weave back and forth between orange highway construction cones. They pass and dribble soccer balls all over the field.

Varsity coach Neil Granlund has his squad at one end of the field while Lynn Mead oversees the junior varsity team.

By 10, the squad is ready for a 15-minute break.

Midway through the rest, a number of varsity players get back up and start on the next drill.

"They really like that rapid-fire drill," said Granlund, watching from a distance. "This is really the first cool day we've had to practice. Normally during the break they just sit."

About 10 minutes earlier, Granlund talked about how the players are coming together as a team.

He hollered over to his returning goalie Tom Purves that practice ends at 12:30 every day, no matter what.

"I kid with him about that because the other day we were scrimmaging and we were playing so well as team that I didn't notice what time it was," Granlund said. "Tom came up and said it's 1:15 and he had to get to work. We're working better."

Besides Purves, other returning letter winners are Derek Brown, Ron Forbes, J.R. Keelin, Tim Mahler, Miles Radcliff, Steve Zoss and Grant Reading.

In only the third year of the soccer program at CHS, 42 hopefuls came out for the team, the largest turnout.

"This was the first time I ever had to cut players," Granlund said. "It's not easy to do that. I even had to cut some seniors from the team. We should be one of the more competitive teams in the North Oakland Soccer League."

The NOSA, with teams in Lake Orion, Oxford, Milford and Lakeland along with Clarkston, is entering its second year.

Granlund believes the players are getting more experience in the summer youth leagues of Independence and Waterford townships. This is the first time every one of the 17 players he kept on the team has played soccer before.

"A lot of the players went to camps and did a lot of individual work during the summer," the coach said. "The Independence program is really helping. I love that because the players are more experienced."

Forty-two players tried out for the CHS varsity soccer team, and coach Neil Granlund had the luxury of cutting people from the squad for first time in the program's three-year history.

School stereotypes

Dan Vandenhemel

Confusion is more than a state of mind, it's a fact of life.

Why else would people be happy and upset about going back to school in a couple short weeks?

Clarkston schools are set to open Sept. 3 for pupils. Children of all sizes and ages will be herded into classrooms and force-fed information.

I think students are broken down into three very general categories: the good, the bad and the who cares.

The good are those students who couldn't be more content with their noses in a book and 11 other texts under each arm. These types tend to try to "know all there is" while in school. There is nothing wrong with that philosophy. Someone has to do it.

They're the ones you can find in the library during any free time they might have, possibly reading Time or Newsweek.

The bad are those who plead temporary amnesia when it comes time to turn in homework. Now this has to happen on a regular basis, like three, four times a day. This particular type of student also seems to very concerned about the amount of sleep he or she is getting, either that or they can see through their eyelids.

Now comes the most populated category, the who cares. That phrase can either be a question or a statement which involves the masses. These are the students who muddle through their school careers.

They know enough to pass and maybe try a little harder in an interesting subject.

You want these people on your Trivial Pursuit team. They seem to know what no one else cares about.

These categories are mostly for the junior high and high school level.

The pupils in elementary go to school and don't worry about it. Maybe that explains why administrators long ago decided to add a little confusion.

You've got to wonder what the powers were thinking of when they came up with the names of the elementary schools in the Clarkston district.

Since I'm not from the area, there may be some outlying reasons for the confusion in street names and school names.

Other school districts use famous people as names of the buildings. Some use special features from the area or from the historic background. Then there is always the use of street names.

That brings us to Clarkston—tell me if I'm going too fast.

North Sashabaw Elementary School is on Maybee Road, east of Sashabaw Road; Pine Knob Elementary is on Sashabaw Road; Bailey Lake Elementary is on Pine Knob Road, a mile from Whipple Lake; Clarkston Elementary is on Waldon; and Andersonville Elementary is on Andersonville Road. How did that one get in there?

Summer learning

Kelly Hartley peers intently into a magnifying cube filled with pond water.

Plenty of rewards came the way of children in the Springfield Township Summer Reading Club last week. They dined on hot dogs at Indian Springs Metropark, received certificates and paperback books for reading 12 books over the eight-week program, listened to a presentation about the wildlife at the park and enjoyed a short pond study session. With the park's nature center in the background, a group of the children prepare to dip into the pond for water and pond-life samples. Carrying the nets are Shane Ward and Christine Toth.

Grant money geared for drain changes

Drainage improvements may be around the corner for a portion of South Holcomb Road in the Village of Clarkston.

Approximately $5,000 in 1985 Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) funds may be used for two new catch basins on Holcomb between West Washington and West Church streets, said village council President Carol Eberhardt.

"We really felt this was a high priority," she said of the section, which frequently floods during thaws and heavy rains because it is located at the bottom of a hill.

The project is contingent upon Oakland County's approval of a CDBG fund transfer from the safety path and sidewalk accounts to the drainage improvement account.

The Clarkston (Mich.) News Wed., Aug. 21, 1985 23

According to new federal government rules regulating CDBG funds, the money must be spent in areas where there is a high incidence of low to moderate income families, senior citizens or handicapped residents, or for slum and blight prevention.

The Holcomb Road section was selected by the county, which delegates the funds, because it met CDBG low-to-moderate specifications, Eberhardt said.

Bids must be sought and accepted for the project before construction can begin, she added.

In her role as camp cook, Natalie Burge [left] intimidates some of the boys attending Camp John Smith including Brad Sadler [center] and Shawn Oswald.

Curtain up

This trio of young lads, [from left] Andy Harp, Deron Lash and Gordon Meyer, put in a sterling performance of the old camp song standby "I'm a Nut."

When it comes to a vote, the girls at Camp Pocahontas wholeheartedly support letting the Camp John Smith boys live at their camp a day or two during a cleanup of the boys' camp.

Summer entertainment awaits by the Clarkston Village Players' Summer Youth Theatre. Children and teens play all the roles in "Krazy Kamp" by Tim Kelly.

The cast of 50, under the direction of Sandy Sanford, will present the story of some whacky events that follow the merging of Camp Pocahontas, an exclusive resort for young ladies, and Camp John Smith, inhabited by a wild bunch of unruly boys.

Play dates are Friday and Saturday, Aug. 23 and 24. Showtimes are 7 p.m. in the North Sashabaw Elementary School multipurpose room off Maybee Road in Independence Township.

*Chemicals Are Trouble. People Are Working.

Copyright 1985 Jeanette Sanders

Dear Cat Paw:
What do diet pills do to you? And how do they affect you?
Scared

Dear Scared:
Stimulants or amphetamines are a category of drugs which act by stimulating the central nervous system. Medically they are used as appetite depressants, although they are no longer prescribed as such.

Repetative administration develops into a continuing binge known as a run that often lasts as long as the supply of drugs is on hand.

That may mean days on end without sleep or food for the user, until the body's supply of stored energy is depleted.

When the abuser can no longer withstand the effects of sleeplessness and malnutrition, he or she will crash and sleep for as long as 18 hours or more.

If this pattern of abuse continues, severe habituation results. Also, noticeable aging of several years can occur in a matter of months.

Abusers experience insomnia and a loss of appetite. They appear excited, talkative, have a rapid pulse rate, increased blood pressure and dilated pupils.

Outbursts of anger and irrational behavior are common, as are dizziness, flushed skin, excessive perspiration, bad breath, body odor and panic.

When withdrawal from amphetamines occurs, abusers lapse into a state of deep depression. They suffer from severe anxiety, appear irritable and disoriented and may be suicidal.

These symptoms vary with the abusers' degree of tolerance and habituation and may persist for weeks or months. Professional medical supervision during the withdrawal period is critical.

Dear Cat Paw:
I have a problem with chewing tobacco. I chew it in school and I get in trouble for spitting it on the floor. What should I do?
Catalina

Dear Catalina:
Quit chewing tobacco and quit spitting on the floor! Chewing tobacco leads to oral cancer!

Dear Cat Paw:
My brother has a problem with smoking pot, but he doesn't think it's a problem. My family and I have talked to him about it but he just doesn't seem to care!
What else should I do?
Worried Sister

Dear Worried Sister:
People who smoke pot are using over 400 drugs with each joint they light and smoke. The THC accumulates in the brain, liver and reproductive organs and stays for at least a month.

The drug is so potent that if you use it just once a month, you have an active poisonous chemical in your body 24 hours a day.

Obviously, the brain is affected. Memory is the first thing usually to go. Users often deny any problems. They need professional guidance and care.
Why not try to get him some?

CORRECTION: Due to a typesetting error, the response to a letter in last week's Cat Paw column was incorrect. The answer should have said the person could be psychologically, not physically, addicted to marijuana.

Besides this brief moment of fear, Joni Manley of Bloomfield enjoyed herself at the opening day of the Michigan Renaissance Festival. She volunteered to help fire torch jugglers and came out of it without a scratch. She did get a balloon dog for helping.

"I'm excited but not really. I'm not ready to start working again. The summer was too short."
Sue Kithil
12th Grade
Clarkston High School

Teacher quiz: What did you do over the summer?

“ Basically I did some carpentry work. I did some remodeling, kitchens, some concrete work. When I started college, I was an industrial arts major. I guess this is just a carry-over. I don't do as much work as I did in the past. I also do a lot of work with snowplowing in the winter. It's almost like three jobs. I was also an assistant baseball coach with Dean Callison. We had games on Tuesday and Thursday. It was a lot of fun watching the kids. ”

Bill Mackson
Biology Teacher
Clarkston High School

“ We had a chance to visit some old friends and we spent some time sitting around our pool. Now we're busily getting ready for school. We put off the projects until now. We're doing things around the house, the yard, painting, repairing. We watched a lot of baseball and didn't do much else. We just relaxed and tried to rejuvenate ourselves. ”

Sue Koslosky
Physical Education Teacher
Sashabaw Junior High

“ Usually during the summer we like to travel but my wife (Mary) and I had a son in January. My wife works so I'm playing the role of Mr. Mom. Mainly I've been taking care of Steven. I've never done this before. I'm really enjoying it—it's rewarding. We have done a little traveling: Canada, Higgins Lake. ”

School days

The Roaring '20s, Clarkston-style

By Carolyn Walker

Elra and Mabel Amidon quit school as children. Fell in love in Michigan's lumber country. Married as teenagers. And had four children, the oldest a daughter, Clarabelle, my aunt.

Farmers, they found themselves moving from home to home.

At some point in their travels and in their search for work, they settled in Clarkston where Clarabelle graduated from high school in 1925.

She was, most likely, the first in her family's history to receive a diploma.

Perhaps she realized the significance of her achievement, for she documented each friend, each dance, each ball game in a scrapbook entitled MY HIGH SCHOOL DAYS.

Photographs she saved attest to the fact that those days were truly "the good ol' days."

Carefree and fun, the lives and times of Clarabelle's 13 classmates were soured only by the tragic death of 16-year-old friend and co-Clarkstonite, Myra Walter, in an auto accident.

Myra's name is listed among Clarabelle's favorite schoolmates.

Also among the mementos she saved are ticket stubs, commencement programs, news clippings and a tongue-in-cheek will of her fellow students' creation.

Sixty years later, following her death in April, we found her treasured scrapbook among her belongings.

It tells a tale of the graduates of Clarkston High School, Class of '25.

Looking at high school from the '60s to the '80s...

By Dan Vandenhemel

Cars, jobs and money are all related—and that's the big difference in high school students today, say Larry and Kathy Mahrle.

The Mahrles are teachers at Clarkston High School. Their views of today's students are compared to times in the 1960s when they attended high school.

"I've got to say that automobiles are the big thing," said Larry, a history and government teacher. "When I was a senior, I had one, but that was a rarity. Have you seen our (CHS) parking lot? It's jammed."

A spinoff of student-owned cars is less time spent in school.

Larry, a 1970 high school graduate of Waterford, said there seem to be less school activities now.

"We had a lot more clubs," he said. "Your social life centered around school. Friday night WAS the football game. We didn't go out to McDonald's for lunch."

Kathy, a 1965 graduate of CHS and an English teacher there, said with an open campus, students zip out for lunch more.

"It's tough for them to run to McDonald's and get back in 25 minutes," she said. "The car is the big thing. We didn't skip that much. You couldn't walk that far. If we did skip, it was a big thing to go up to the Dairy Queen."

The Mahrles also say pep assemblies aren't fully attended and half-days are common among seniors.

As a senior in high school, Larry had a full schedule until the second semester.

"I know a lot of that today has to do with the kids working," Larry said. "I think working is not bad. It's a positive experience. Fortunately there is a Pine Knob to employ a lot of the students."

"In our day, there weren't all the fast food places to work at either," Kathy added. "It's all related. More places to work, more money, and automobiles. And the amount of money leads to spring break."

Kathy's senior trip wasn't to a beach in Florida.

It had to center on an educational event. Her class went to New York City for the World's Fair.

"On our senior trip, we could have fun but we had to have some education with it," she said. "We never thought about a Florida trip. It ties in with the money and cars."

"They would rather spend a day at the beach than a day in a museum," Larry said.

Clarkston college student heads west to California

By Kathy Greenfield

In February while winter's icy winds and snowstorms still blew, David Zawacki devised his California break-away.

A commuter student at Oakland University in his sophomore year, he'd been thinking about transferring to another Michigan university.

After visiting friends, he yearned for a taste of college life available to students who live on campus. But tuition at the other universities was higher, and the move from his parents' Independence Township home would add dorm expenses.

A poster on the National Student Exchange program hanging in the student center provided the answer.

He applied and was accepted to his first-choice school, Sonoma State University located north of San Francisco in the Napa Valley in a town called Rhonert Park.

Now a participant in the one-year exchange program, he left for California Aug. 17.

"I originally planned to attend Oakland University and get my degree from there, and then I either wanted to go to the South or the West to get a job or just travel and see the countryside," he said.

"This way, I get to combine the two. I get to go to school and see the West."

In April, David visited his brother who lives in San Francisco.

Among the places they visited was Sonoma. The liberal arts university is about the same size as OU. The main differences involve the terrain and the climate.

"It's small, but nestled in some mountains. It's all in the vineyards," David said. "They don't see any snow or bad weather of that sort."

The exchange program allows students to attend a college in another state for one year while paying in-state tuition.

David also applied for a co-op job in a university cafeteria which will decrease his food and housing costs by 40 percent.

Using his earnings from a summer job sewing seat cushions at Sea Ray Boat Co. in Oxford, he has been able to split college expenses about 50-50 with his parents and buy a new car of his own.

At Sonoma, David plans to continue his business major and is thinking about trying out for the cross-country team.

He predicts his major adjustment will involve living on campus.

"I've never done that before, so I'll have roommates to contend with," he said. "Kids just getting out of high school and going to college have these things to worry about, and here I am a third-year student. I feel like I'm going backwards."

"It's just a change. I don't care for Michigan winters. I'm just going to go out there and have fun."

David Zawacki stands next to the car he'll use to head for California, where he plans to attend

Sonoma State University as an exchange student from Oakland University.
