Vandals, thieves plague neighborhood park

By Carolyn Walker

"Out-and-out thievery" is how Timothy Doyle classifies problems at Sashabaw Plains Park.

The Independence Township neighborhood park off Maybee Road has been the site of numerous thefts and vandalisms since its opening last fall, according to Doyle, director of the township's parks and recreation department.

Frustrated by the destruction, Doyle asked the township board to approve fall soccer league play at the park. He contends that increased activity could stem some of the property abuse.

On Sept. 3, board members voted to approve his request.

League play was denied by previous township officials because of the philosophy that this was a neighborhood park, Doyle said.

The 15-acre Sashabaw Plains Park is the only park in the township to experience thievery and vandalism to such a degree, Doyle said, attributing the problem to lack of activity.

"The other parks are very busy," he said.

Stolen items include two picnic tables and a grill, which were hauled out by truck, according to Doyle.

"That wasn't kids," he said.

In addition, two sets of climbing ropes, four to six inches in circumference, have been stolen. A third set was burned off after park employees welded them to the equipment to prevent theft, he added.

The ropes cost $275 per set, according to Doyle, who said the township does not get reimbursed for the loss because it carries a $1,000 deductible insurance policy. Such a policy mandates that the township pay the first $1,000 on any claim.

Coupled with the thefts, vandalism of the sprinkling system and torn fences have caused Doyle to delay installing additional equipment.

Originally, the township intended to add spray posts, which spray water for play during hot days, and a three-walled racquet ball court, he said.

Fear of graffiti and the potential for increased vandalism have prevented their installation, he added.

Sashabaw Plains Park is the first of 10 to 12 neighborhood parks planned for Independence Township, Doyle said, adding that the thefts and vandalism could jeopardize future developments.

"It's a problem," he said.

Figures show decline slowing

Declining enrollment in the Clarkston school district continues, but indications are the drop won't be as high as expected.

Early tallies show a decline of about 120 pupils. Earlier projections had placed the number at 187.

Assistant Superintendent Mel Vaara presented the tentative enrollment figures to the board of education Monday night. They show a gain of 25 elementary pupils and a decline of 145 junior and senior high school pupils.

The official pupil count, used to determine state aid, occurs on the fourth Friday after school begins.

This year the date is Sept. 27.

"Remember, this is only tentative. We still have two weeks to go," Vaara said.

Full speed ahead

It's football season at Clarkston High School and the Wolves started the season with a 13-6 victory over Romeo. Senior running back Jeff Davis helped the Wolves win with 50 yards rushing. Dan Jokisch and Craig Chamberlain scored the two touchdowns. The Wolves' next game is at home against Sterling Heights Stevenson, Sept. 13 at 7:30 p.m.

Butzine is social worker of the year

Clarkston schools' social worker James Butzine is the 1985 Michigan School Social Worker of the Year.

He was chosen for the honor by the Michigan School Social Worker Association (MSSWA).

"I think being recognized by colleagues is the best way to be recognized," he said. "I'm very pleased."

Nominees for the annual award are judged on their professional contributions, community involvement, leadership and several other qualities, according to a letter from R. Gordon Reinel, awards chairman.

Butzine, who has been with the Clarkston School District since 1974, will represent Michigan when the Midwest School Social Work Council honors winners

Nunn group, township come to terms in suit

By Carolyn Walker

A lawsuit filed against Independence Township by the Nunn group is on the verge of being settled through a consent judgment, according to township attorney Gerald Fisher.

On Sept. 3, members of the township board approved signing the judgment, 6-0, pending a review by the Oakland County Road Commission. Trustee Dale Stuart was absent.

The issue stems from a denial of the Nunn group's request to remove sand from property near Sashabaw Road, Fisher said.

The township has concerns about the number of trucks to be used in hauling, and related traffic hazards, he added.

In the early 1980s, Robert Nunn and his associates proposed developing some 50 acres for light industrial use behind the Cowan Chiropractic clinic.

The development required improving the slope of the property by removing sand, according to Nunn's attorney Allen Greene.

"The only way to put the property to any use is to grade it," he said, adding the sand would most likely be sold or given to companies paving Dixie Highway or I-696.

Early in their negotiations with the township, the zoning board of appeals (ZBA) granted Nunn the right to remove sand under the old mining ordinance, said Fisher.

The economic recession then delayed Nunn's plans to carry out the project.

In the interim the ZBA's approval expired, the township board became the governing body and the mining ordinance was made more restrictive, according to Fisher.

Nunn subsequently lost the right to remove the sand, he said. The lawsuit followed.

Under the guidelines of the proposed judgment, Nunn would be allowed to remove sand subject to the road commission's determination that their efforts would not endanger the public health, safety or welfare, according to Fisher.

In addition, the judgment would prevent Nunn from processing or refining the sand on his property.

The terms of the judgment, a legally-binding agreement between the opposing sides, "closely mirror" the township's gravel mining ordinance, Fisher said.

Greene and Fisher agree that the judgment is designed as a protective device in the event of future problems.

"The township has a number of concerns on how the operation is to be conducted," said Greene. "Basically, all we're doing is working out a consent judgment with workable solutions for any problems. (It's a) series of safeguards and controls. A structured type of arrangement."

Plans are for the Oakland County Road Commission to examine the judgment this week, Fisher said.

Voting for the motion were Supervisor Frank Ronk, Clerk Richard Holman, Treasurer John Lutz and trustees Carol Balzarini, William Vandermark and Daniel Travis.

Secretary promoted to deputy Secretary Rita Burdick is an exemplary employee, according to Independence Township Supervisor Frank Ronk, who recommended her promotion to deputy supervisor.

Praising her for performing her tasks "above and beyond" the job requirements, Ronk asked for a promotion for Burdick at the Sept. 3 meeting of the township board.

In a 6-0 vote, board members approved Ronk's request. Trustee Dale Stuart was absent.

Under her new classification, Burdick is to attend some meetings in Ronk's absence and do increased follow-up work and inner-office communications.

Her promotion brings the total number of township deputies to three. The others are Rosemary Howey, deputy clerk, and Lillian Jawlik, deputy treasurer.

Burdick's wages will be $20,500 a year, an increase of approximately $3,000.

Car ordered

A new car has been ordered for the Independence Township Building and Planning Department.

On Sept. 3, the township board approved the purchase of a 1985 Chevrolet Cavalier for $7,521 from John Bowman Chevrolet.

The old car, a 1977 Chevrolet, needed extensive engine repair at a potential cost of $1,000, said Supervisor Frank Ronk.

The car is to be used by employees of the building department for job-related traveling.

Board weighs expensive question

By Carolyn Walker

A $417,000 question concerning a pay back for sewers in the Deerwood subdivision faces Independence Township.

At the Sept. 3 board meeting, John Helveston and his attorney E. Michael Morris asked the township to pay $417,000 to Helveston for sewers he constructed in the subdivision during the 1970s.

After an hour-long debate, the board tabled the matter in order to seek more information from former township officials.

The issue revolves around sewer lines Helveston ran from Deerwood, off M-15 near Cranberry Lake Road, to lines previously installed by the township south of I-75, according to township attorney Gerald Fisher.

"That was the big expense," said Fisher, after the meeting. "It's clear that had he not come along and done that, that portion of the sewer system would not have been done today."

At the meeting, Morris alleged previous township officials entered into a pay-back agreement with Helveston and said the planning commission made the sewers a condition for approval of the subdivision.

George Anderson, director of the department of public works, denied that an agreement exists, however, and said Helveston had the option of installing a septic system at the time.

"The township did not force Mr. Helveston to put in a sewer," he said, adding that making a pay back would be equivalent to using taxpayers' money to subsidize a private development.

"Mr. Helveston walked in with his eyes wide open. In theory a developer could be double-dipping," Anderson said, referring to a developer's ability to profit through sales and again through pay back.

"At no time did the township tell him that a sewer system was required to develop that property," he added. "Mr. Helveston put them in at his own option."

Anderson told the board Helveston could have serviced 500 lots with a septic system, but chose sewers instead. Two phases of the planned 500 lot subdivision have been developed, or approximately 300 lots, according to Anderson.

Morris disagreed, calling double-dipping "an absolutely incorrect statement of the issue."

"The issue is not how much profit is realized, (it is) whether an agreement existed," he said. "We're talking about cost."

Morris indicated the issue could lead to further expenses for the township if not resolved at a board meeting.

"Mr. Helveston was required to build something much larger than he needed," Morris said. "Why don't we arrive at a figure rather than go through litigation?"

Following the hour-long debate, members of the board voted to table the issue, pending input by previous officials and a search for further information.

"Hearsay is not going to work," said Trustee Daniel Travis.

Board members voted 6-0 to table the issue and ask for statements from township officials who were in office when the subdivision was developed.

Voting for the motion were Travis, Supervisor Frank Ronk, Clerk Richard Holman, Treasurer John Lutz, and trustees William Vandermark and Carol Balzarini.

Trustee Dale Stuart was absent.

Center suit, hearing delayed

By Carolyn Walker

Plans for the Clarkston Surgical Center are continuing even though two hearings regarding the status of its certificate of need have been postponed.

An appeal instituted by the Comprehensive Health Planning Council of Southeastern Michigan (CHPC-SEM), previously scheduled for Sept. 4, was delayed until January, according to developer Dr. James O'Neill.

A lawsuit filed by Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital against the center requesting that its state-issued certificate of need (C.O.N.) be revoked, has been postponed from Sept. 6 to Sept. 13.

Late last year CHPC-SEM, a recommending body comprised of professional and lay people, recommended denial of the C.O.N. to the Michigan Department of Public Health. A C.O.N. is mandated by the state for development of any hospital-type facility dealing in third-party insurance.

Following CHPC-SEM's advice, the state denied the C.O.N. in April, reversing its decision and approving the C.O.N. in July.

In August, Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital (POH) filed a lawsuit against the Clarkston Surgical Center.

The suit was postponed because of a lengthy murder trial being conducted in the Ingham County Circuit Court, O'Neill said.

The trial is scheduled in Lansing because Gloria Smith, director of the department of public health, is also named in the suit.

In their suit, POH says the C.O.N. should not have been issued because the center proposes duplicating services currently available at area hospitals.

POH had proposed building a 120-bed annex in Independence Township, but was denied a C.O.N. by the state last year.

POH also contends the surgical center should have participated in a comparative review with seven other proposals (including POH's) last year.

The proposed center is to augment services currently available, from area physicians and at the Clarkston Ambulatory Care Center, with outpatient surgery, psychiatric day care and possibly a new fire station, according to O'Neill.

The six-acre site is located behind O'Neill's pediatric practice on M-15.

He plans to present the concept to the Independence Township Planning Commission in October.

Jason Green of Independence Township demonstrates the bubble gum blowing technique that won a first-place trophy and blue ribbon at the Michigan State Fair.

This winner blew his chance

Award-winning bubble gum blower Jason Green has his mom to thank for the blue ribbon and first-place trophy, his first ever.

The 7-year-old pauses between chews on the gum he's preparing for a demonstration and explains how he happened to enter the 1985 Bubble Gum Blowing contest Aug. 29 at the Michigan State Fair.

"First I didn't want to, then my mom made me," he says. "I said, 'Maybe I might lose.' But I won!"

About 30 children entered the category for 6- to 7-year-olds. With a three-inch bubble, Jason made the blow-off with four other finalists.

After the diameter of each child's bubble had been measured during the finals, the judge placed his finger on top of Jason's head.

He's all smiles as he remembers his victory words: "I said, Mom, look at this!"

Jason doesn't hesitate to share the technique he used to create the winning four-inch bubble.

"I just stick my tongue out with the gum," he says, "and when I blow, I pull my tongue back in and fill it with air."

A second-grader at Pine Knob Elementary School, Jason has been blowing bubble gum bubbles so long he can't remember when he learned how. Over the years, however, he has developed a preference.

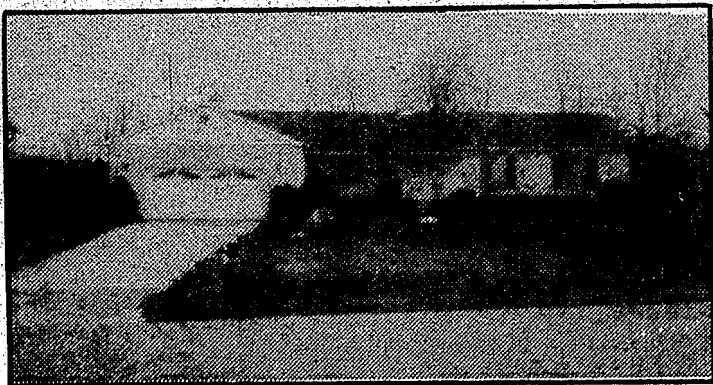

"I like red the best," he says.

from neighboring states in Indianapolis in September. Butzine will also be honored at an awards banquet during the annual MSSWA conference in October.

In addition to his work with the schools, Butzine has worked with the Clarkston Area Chemical People and served as director of the Clarkston SCAMP organization for 11 years.

He resigned from that position this summer to pursue other activities including opening a private counseling practice in Ortonville.

Butzine has been an asset to the district, according to Milford Mason, superintendent of schools.

"Jim richly deserves the honor that's been bestowed upon him by his colleagues in his profession," Mason said. "He's to be really congratulated."

Butzine, 39, is a resident of Independence Township. He is married to Sheryl and they are the parents of three children.

Humid musings

Kathy Greenfield

It was so humid the salt turned to mush and decided to stick around inside the salt shaker.

It was so humid all opened crackers, chips and cereal lost their crunch. Forever.

It was so humid my neighbor unearthed his one pair of summer shorts from storage. And put up with the teasing about the pure white color of his legs immediately forthcoming from his teenage son.

It was so humid mosquitoes immediately quadrupled in numbers—but they sometimes drowned in body sweat before they took a bite.

It was so humid Brandy, our water-loving Irish setter, lasted about two minutes after a swim before blasting us with panting hot breath, tongue hanging out, and the nonverbal desire to get back down to the lake.

It was so humid the flowers growing in our gravel-filled yard looked healthy without being watered twice a day.

It was so humid the thought of going to work in an air-conditioned office beat the heck out of thoughts of a weekend without paperwork.

It was so humid the "wet head look" enjoyed a revival. People either sported the natural, sweaty look or dunked their heads in water to cool off.

It was so humid you could see the grass grow.

It was so humid moss circled the trunk of the tree in our front yard and others in neighbor's yards. If I get confused, the moss method is shot for deciding which way is north.

It was so humid I cared, for the first time, that the air conditioner in my car died last summer.

And how was your weekend?

Jim's Jottings

Jim Sherman

A few years after President Kennedy was killed, a piece of trivia was circulated on coincidences between him and President Lincoln.

Recently, it crossed my desk again. In case you missed it or forgot, here it is:

Does History Repeat? Abraham Lincoln was elected president of the United States in 1860. John F. Kennedy was elected president in 1960.

Abraham Lincoln was slain on a Friday in the company of his wife. John F. Kennedy was slain on a Friday, also in the company of his wife.

Lincoln was succeeded by Andrew Johnson, born in 1808, a southern Democrat who had served in the United States Senate. Kennedy was succeeded by Lyndon Johnson, born in 1908, also a southern Democrat who had served in the United States Senate.

Lincoln was slain in a theatre by a man, born in 1839, who sought refuge in a warehouse. Kennedy was slain by a man in a warehouse who then sought refuge in a theater. He was born in 1939. Both men were in turn slain before a trial could be held.

Lincoln's secretary advised him not to go to the theater where he was slain. Kennedy's secretary advised him not to go to Dallas where he was slain.

Lincoln's secretary was named Kennedy. Kennedy's secretary was named Lincoln.

It's too bad the author of this poem is unknown. He/she could sell it to coaches for pep talks:

If you think you are beaten, you are,
If you think you dare not, you don't.
If you'd like to win, but you think you can't,
It's almost certain you won't.
If you think you'll lose, you've lost,
For out in this world you'll find Success begins with a fellow's will—
It's all in the state of mind.

Full many a race is lost
Ere even a step is run,
And many a coward falls
Ere even his work's begun.
Think big, and your deeds will grow;
Think small, and you'll fall behind;
Think you can, and you will—
It's all in the state of mind.

If you think you are out-classed, you are;
You've got to think high to rise.
You've got to be sure of yourself before
You can ever win a prize.
Life's battles don't always go
To the stronger or faster man;
But sooner or later the man who wins
Is the man who thinks he can.

More than sports

This letter is in response to the $922,000 that is estimated for the sports facilities' repair in the Clarkston school district.

I think sports are great activities for those who get involved, but sports are not the only organizations at school; for instance, drama, media, science club and band. Each of these organizations has a fund raiser to keep the organizations going.

Media this past year was almost cut from the budget, but thanks to the kindness and generosity of Milford Mason (superintendent of schools), it stayed.

I would like to know why the school system can not seem to find any money for other organizations in a proposed bond issue for almost a million dollars for the sports department.

The other organizations are just as important to their members as to the people in sports.

Other programs in the school live without Class A equipment and facilities, but always do their best to strive for a Class A job.

Athletes can live without level football and soccer practice fields ($281,000), just as other groups suffer.

If they must still ask for the same amount, then split about $281,000 on the other organizations so they will not crumble while the athletic department receives a new facelift.

Guard gratitude

On behalf of the residents of the Lake Oakland Woods subdivision, the North Sashabaw PTO would like to convey our deepest thanks to Mr. Mason and Mr. Ronk for all their hard work which has culminated in the hiring of a crossing guard for our children.

Because of their efforts, many parents will rest easier knowing their children will have safe passage across Maybee Road before and after school.

It's wonderful to see the township and school board united together. While we know they both have budgets to meet, it's reassuring as citizens and taxpayers to know there truly are people in politics who care.

Our heartfelt thanks,

'If it Fitz...'

Dollar talk over eggs

Jim Fitzgerald

It was partly due to a geographical goof that I agreed to eat my first business breakfast. My host was Robert J. Mylod, chairman of Michigan National Bank Corp., the current target of a hostile takeover.

I always try to dodge the business lunch because it hurts my business. My business is writing, and I usually start around 11 a.m. It is frustrating, an hour later, to interrupt business in the middle of a paragraph to have a business lunch with people I will never write about.

When I get back to business about 2 p.m., I've forgotten how I was going to finish the interrupted paragraph and it takes valuable time to remember if I was headed for a question mark or an exclamation point. Also, I often get a bellyache from eating the typical business lunch prepared by a gourmet chef who, just the day before, was a bus driver. Naturally, I blame the people who invited me to a business lunch, which is why I don't write about them.

I never eat a pleasure lunch, either, not even a sandwich at my desk. That's because, when people invite me to a business lunch, I can't be rude enough to accuse them of trying to hurt my business. So I simply say, in a weak voice, that my doctor put me on a non-lunch diet, an explanation invariably accepted with warm concern for my health. My fear is that one of these rejected business-lunchers might accidentally pass through my office some noon hour and demand an explanation for the hamburger on my video terminal. This would be embarrassing, especially if the hamburger-spotter sent me a get-well card, so I usually eat no lunch of any type.

Breakfast I always eat, strictly for pleasure. It is only lately that I discovered there is such an absurd thing as the business breakfast, eaten around 8 a.m. Because I'm under doctor's orders to stay in bed until at least 9 a.m., I'm usually reluctant to eat a business breakfast. But it seemed fairly reasonable to make an exception for Michigan National Bank.

Chairman Mylod suggested we eat at bank headquarters at 8:30 a.m. Most mornings I walk through downtown Detroit's financial district, and I figured it would be little trouble to — just once — do it 90 minutes earlier than usual. Too late I learned Michigan National headquarters are in Bloomfield Hills. I had to get up at 7 o'clock, for lord's sake. My doctor won't be surprised to hear that I broke into a feverish sweat while crossing Eight Mile Road.

However, breakfast is curatively classy in Michigan National's corporate dining room. The eggs were just right and the two of us had one whole waitress all to ourselves. Mylod was charmingly concerned about a recent column in which I implied it was mostly to protect his job that he was vigorously battling a hostile takeover by Comerica Bank.

Mylod, who is 45 and looks 30, said Comerica's offer is insultingly low, he's fighting it for the financial good of his shareholders, and if Comerica did take over, Mylod's history indicates he'd have no trouble finding another corporation to run.

It is easy to believe Mylod's talents are valued in financial circles. According to a recent newspaper article, Michigan National pays him $281,667 annually and he could collect performance bonuses rising from $133,333 to $141,000 each year of his five-year contract. Also, he stands to earn thousands more from stock options if a $3 million-plus package, no matter who wins the takeover battle.

Yeah, but how many business breakfasts and lunches does he have to eat every week?

The Davis Hall Theorem, 1968: All mothers learn their skills and obtain their instincts at THE GREAT SCHOOL IN THE SKY FOR MOTHERS.

When I was a student at Western Michigan University, my two roommates and I hit upon the above theory.

It stemmed from several unrelated incidents during which our mothers, who had never met each other, displayed like traits while separated by hundreds of miles.

Included in said traits were obsessive worrying, uncompromised cleanliness, neatness to the point of fanaticism, and a shared, pet phrase, "What will people think?"

Uncannily, at one time or another, each mother made statements on a par with: "You're not wearing that pair of underwear with the holes in them are you? Suppose you're in an accident and have to go to the hospital."

"When are you going to clean this room?"

"You cannot go out with Raoul until I have met him. (This statement was frequently followed by, "Call me when you get there and call me when you leave so I know you're all right.")

"What do you mean you turned the dormitory dryer on 450 degrees and scorched your clothes?"

"Here's money."

"Why don't you wear socks?"

The primary incident from which our theorem was born involved my mother who put the straw to the camel's back, so to speak, with a phone call before the eve of Little Sisters' Weekend.

On the day of the call, Mother Nature had blessed us with perfect weather. The sky was a brilliant blue and from our third-floor Davis Hall window not a cloud could be seen for miles.

The phone rang.

It was mother, who during her Sky School studies had learned to doubt nature as well as fraternity parties, panty raids, kisses on first dates, co-ed dorms, and student demonstrations. She was calling long distance.

"Carolyn," she said, "I'm bringing your sister up a day early for the weekend. The weatherman is forecasting a blizzard."

I stood at the window, stunned.

"Mother," I said, questioning her common sense, which had been nurtured with years of training and experience, "when was the last time you looked outside?"

The Walker corollary to the Davis Hall Theorem, 1985: All women who become mothers attend THE GREAT SCHOOL IN THE SKY FOR MOTHERS where they come to understand their own mothers, while attempting to understand their children.

No it did not snow, it did not even rain that entire weekend. But I now regret ever having doubted my mother's wisdom.

After all, it was she who transported me to and from high school when we moved so that I could graduate with my friends.

She who waited up nights for me to return home from my evening job, tolerated my unusual procession of boyfriends, bought me my beloved clarinet . . . and listened to me practice.

Now that I have daughters of my own, I appreciate her in an enlightened way.

I find the pattern repeating itself. "Call me when you get there so I know you're safe," I say. "When are you going to clean this room?"

I see the same look of disbelief in my daughters' eyes that I once reserved for my mother. I suspect they're thinking, "Here she goes again."

But that's OK. I know they'll understand someday when they have children of their own.

I'm not sure when I found the time to attend THE GREAT SCHOOL IN THE SKY FOR MOTHERS.

But I know, now, that I was there and that I joined an illustrious class.

School district to share crossing guard cost

The Clarkston board of education agreed Monday night to share the cost of a school crossing guard at the Lake Oakland Woods subdivision on Maybee Road.

Earlier this month, the Independence Township Board voted to pay the entire cost of the guard, between $2,500 and $2,700, but indicated the school board would be asked to share the expense.

Superintendent Milford Mason told the board of education that he recommended approval of the request.

"The building of new homes (in the subdivision) has been proceeding at a rapid rate," he said. "It appears somebody has opened a hand and scattered seeds for homes."

The township has to hire the guard, because it has the power to give the crossing guard authority to stop vehicles and the school district does not, Mason said.

After the board unanimously approved paying an amount "not to exceed $1,500" the first year for the guard, President Janet Thomas said she expects the Village of Clarkston to make a similar request for the guard it pays to cross children on M-15 and Middle Lake Road.

Mothers' march OK'd by township

Mothers fighting against birth defects will be canvassing Independence Township early next year.

On Sept. 3, the township board granted the March of Dimes permission to hold its annual Mothers March Campaign from Jan. 15 to 31.

During the campaign, volunteers will seek donations from approximately 20 homes in their neighborhoods.

According to a letter to the board from coordinator Betty Gehringer, "Independence Township did an outstanding job for us last year."

School district, bus drivers continue contract talks

By Kathy Greenfield

Contract talks continue between the Clarkston school district and its 34 bus drivers, now working under a two-week contract extension which expires Sept. 22.

Rosie Grable, president of the drivers, said she expects the contract to be extended in two-week blocks until it is settled. A strike is "at this point not a consideration," she said.

The district and drivers have agreed on non-economic articles of the contract and are now working on benefits and wages.

One area of disagreement, Grable said, has to do with special bus trips.

"Bus drivers want to do all special trips, so that seems to be an issue," she said.

Formerly a local bargaining unit, the drivers joined with the Michigan Education Association (MEA) this year. They are being represented by Ed Meissner of the MEA.

"It always takes a long time because the union likes to get a lot of changes in wording," said Conrad Bruce, Clarkston school district administrative assistant.

Grable said the drivers joined the MEA because of the assistance available for contract negotiations. Teachers in the district also belong to the MEA.

"It just got to be too much as housewives trying to negotiate a contract by ourselves," she said. "We just felt we needed professional help."

Bruce explained the reason a bit differently.

"Why people join unions? I suppose there's volumes of books written on that," he said. "The bottom line is, I suppose, that they think they'll do better in negotiations. I'm not sure that's true..."

Interviews planned

Four assessor applicants have been selected for interviews by the Independence Township Board.

Narrowed from a field of 14 applicants in August, the four were chosen by the assessor's search committee during interviews Sept. 3.

The committee consists of Clerk Richard Holman, Treasurer John Lutz and Terry Haran, an Independence Township resident.

The assessor's job was vacated in July by David Sherrill, who moved to another state.

The township board plans to interview the four Sept. 9, with hopes of having a new assessor in place by Oct. 1.

Employee Marge Mallett has been acting assessor in the interim.

The Wolves line up for a new football season. The Clarkston High School team is undefeated so far with a 1-0 record. They opened the year in Romeo with a 13-6 victory. Touchdowns by Dan Jokisch and Craig Chamberlain made the difference in the game.

Wolves open with a victory

By Dan Vandenhemel

The Wolves literally had to sweat out their first victory of the fall.

The Clarkston High School varsity football team held on for a 13-7 victory over the Romeo Bulldogs in the opening contest of the season for both schools.

Besides the close game, the weather gave Wolves' coach Walt Wyniemko plenty to worry about. A pre-game temperature of over 80 and a wet field from a week's worth of rain made the conditions hard to handle.

"With the heat and humidity as bad as it was, it's a big factor," the coach said, making his way toward the team bus for a long but happy ride back to Clarkston. "You have to play tough. Both sides had to live with it."

If the temperature was a factor, the scoring could be the proof. All the points were tallied in the first half before the players began to tire.

The Bulldogs came out wanting to bury the Wolves. They scored less than three minutes into the game on a 42-yard run by Joe Brewer. The Wolves missed a couple of tackles as the senior rambled toward the goal line.

It took the Wolves only five minutes to knot the game at 7-7.

Junior receiver Dan Jokisch made two juggling catches during the scoring drive, the last one for a 25-yard touchdown strike from quarterback Bob Laporte. Jokisch caught four of the five completed passes for 41 of the 44 yards in the game.

Now that the offense had made its mark in the game, the defensive and specialty teams took over.

Early in the second quarter, the Wolves' defense forced the Bulldogs to punt deep in their own end. When Craig Chamberlain caught the kick at the 50-yard line, he took off to the left side and didn't stop until he passed the goal line. For the night,

Chamberlain ran back three punts for 94 yards.

The Wolves had a total of 137 yards on offense to the Bulldogs' 100.

"The specialty teams won the game for us," Wyniemko said. "They're all part of the victory."

With most of the action coming in the first 24 minutes of the game, Wyniemko wasn't happy with the third quarter.

"In the second half, we just didn't do some things and that hurt us," he said. "The fourth quarter is where you win the ball game. I'm just glad we came up with a win, especially on the road."

Young cagers coming along

By Dan Vandenhemel

Having players with varsity experience is not a luxury enjoyed by Wolves' coach Dave McDonald.

When the Clarkston High School girls' varsity basketball team opened its season on the road against Rochester, only one player had a lot of varsity playing time.

When the final buzzer sounded, the Wolves were on top for a 53-49 victory over the favored Falcons.

"We're really green," McDonald said. "(But) we're better than I thought we'd be. We're a little more poised. There are still a lot of teams that will be able to take us apart."

Michelle Taulbee is the only returning starter from last season. She posted 23 points and hauled in 15 rebounds against Rochester. Sue Lovelady came up with 10 points while Missy O'Dell added eight points and 12 rebounds. Besides Taulbee, O'Dell saw limited playing time last year for the varsity squad.

The Wolves trailed 29-27 at the end of the first half, but an 18-7 spurt in the third quarter put Clarkston on top to stay.

Though a win is a win, McDonald can see room for improvement.

"That's a lot of points to score in an opening game," he said. "When two pretty good teams get together, it's usually low scoring. We didn't shoot all that well but we had a good free-throw percentage."

The backcourt came through for the Wolves. Guards Lovelady and Lisa Ladd ran the offense and

"We're really green.
(But) we're better than I thought we'd be."

—Dave McDonald

kept the Falcons on the defense.

"They really handled the pressure well," McDonald said. "Ladd only had one turnover and seven steals. Lovelady just had a great game."

"This was really good game to open with," the coach said. "They were rated fifth in the county and we were sixth. I didn't think we were that good, but maybe they know something I don't."

Kickers show progress in first two games

By Dan Vandenhemel

The soccer season started with a flourish for the Clarkston Wolves as they scored 10 goals in their first two games.

Unfortunately for them, their record is only 1-1.

In the season opener against highly regarded Rochester Adams, the Clarkston High School varsity team lost, 4-3, on Sept. 4. The next day against Lapeer West, the Wolves won, 7-1.

Coach Neil Granlund said his third-year team has improved enough to compete against a team like Rochester Adams.

The Wolves were leading 2-0 in the first half of the game on goals by Philippe Duchene, an exchange student from France. Adams scored late in the half to pull within one, but the first 10 minutes of the second half were the Wolves' downfall.

"They (Adams) scored three goals in a hurry at the beginning of the half and we couldn't catch up," Granlund said.

J.R. Keelin scored the Wolves' last goal in the second half.

Adams finished last year rated sixth in the state by the coaches' association. They were the opponents in the Wolves' first game three years ago and trounced Clarkston, 9-1.

"That first game, we had three shots on goal. This time we had 14," Granlund said. "We had 34 shots on goal against Lapeer West. We didn't have 34 shots on goal all last year."

Duchene, who speaks very little English, set a school record against Lapeer West with four goals. Matt Beamer, Grant Reading and Ron Forbes each added a goal in the game.

Granlund said Lapeer West is a first-year team and he knows what it's like to be on the losing end of big scores. He knew some teams lightened up on the Wolves their first year and he did so for Lapeer West.

"We were in that position, too," he said. "It's not always nice."

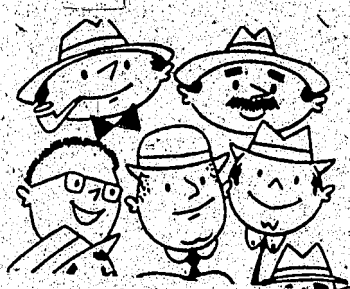

The Wolves' defense played a big part in keeping the varsity soccer team close to Rochester

Adams in the opening game of the season. The Wolves lost the game, 4-3.

The Wolves were leading Rochester Adams before the hot weather and the experience of the Adams team took over.

THE FACT THAT MIDAS STOCKS 1025 DIFFERENT GOLD MUFFLERS IS SOMETHING THE COMPETITION WOULD LIKE TO KEEP QUIET.

Midas manufactures and stocks more different mufflers than any other muffler chain.

And when you have that many mufflers, it's no wonder our competitors would rather we keep quiet.

Because unlike Midas, they can't assure you they'll have the muffler that's made to the exact specifications of your car.

Nor can any other muffler chain back its mufflers with a guarantee that's good in as many locations as Midas.

If anything should ever go wrong with your Gold Muffler, Midas will replace it free for as long as you own your car.

At over 1400 locations. In all 50 states.

So if you want the right muffler for your car, come to Midas.

With 1025 different mufflers in stock, we should have no problem keeping your car quiet. Which is something our competition would rather not hear.

Up My Alley

Grid iron return

Dan Vandenhornel

Aggressive football is back in town. Jitters, nerves, enthusiasm, whatever you want to call it dominated the first game for the Clarkston High School varsity football team.

Some extra shoves along with a few not-so-nice words could be seen and heard on the field. Football is a game of emotions, controlled emotions. A few complaints about the officials made the night that much more real.

How could it be football season if no one yelled at the referee?

Which way to the pool?

It was hot enough and wet enough for a little swimming instead of football.

The pre-game temperature was above 80 and the humidity had to be double that. The officials even called a number of timeouts so the players could have drinks of water.

It was soooo hot, the Wolves couldn't use the locker room at halftime because of the heat and humidity; not to mention it smelled like a locker room.

All the rain Mother Nature dumped on Michigan before the game didn't help matters, either. The grass at the football field was ankle deep and the dampness took little time traveling through the shoes and up the pants.

What else goes with a late summer evening of humidity and gallons of rain water? Mosquitoes, of course.

Between thuds and crunches on the football field, there were smacks and swings going on along the sidelines and in the stands.

The mosquitoes were attacking anything that didn't smell like a football player.

They had plenty to feast on. A number of the Wolves' followers made the 40-minute trek to Romeo for what's becoming the traditional opening game for the schools. Even a cluster of scouts (spies) from the Wolves' next opponents, Sterling Heights Stevenson, were there.

What everyone saw was two different ball games. The first half was clean and aggressive and the second half was sloppy and aggressive. The bottom line is still what counts: Wolves 13, Bulldogs 7.

Independent view Copier woes

"We're going to do the department shuffle," said Independence Township Clerk Richard Holman with a twinkle in his eyes as he introduced a plan for acquiring a new copy machine to the township board.

The plot is devised to keep a Xerox lease/purchase contract with the township intact.

According to Holman, the plan is as follows, (see if you can keep up):

For $6,434, the offices of clerk, treasurer and supervisor would buy one new Savin 5030 to replace two Xerox machines, a 3400 and a 2350, currently owned by said offices.

In turn, the building and planning department would purchase the Xerox 3400 and the water and sewer department would purchase the Xerox 2350.

The existing copier in the planning and building department would then be sold to the fire department, Holman said.

Under the proposal the water and sewer departments and the fire department would dispose of their old copiers.

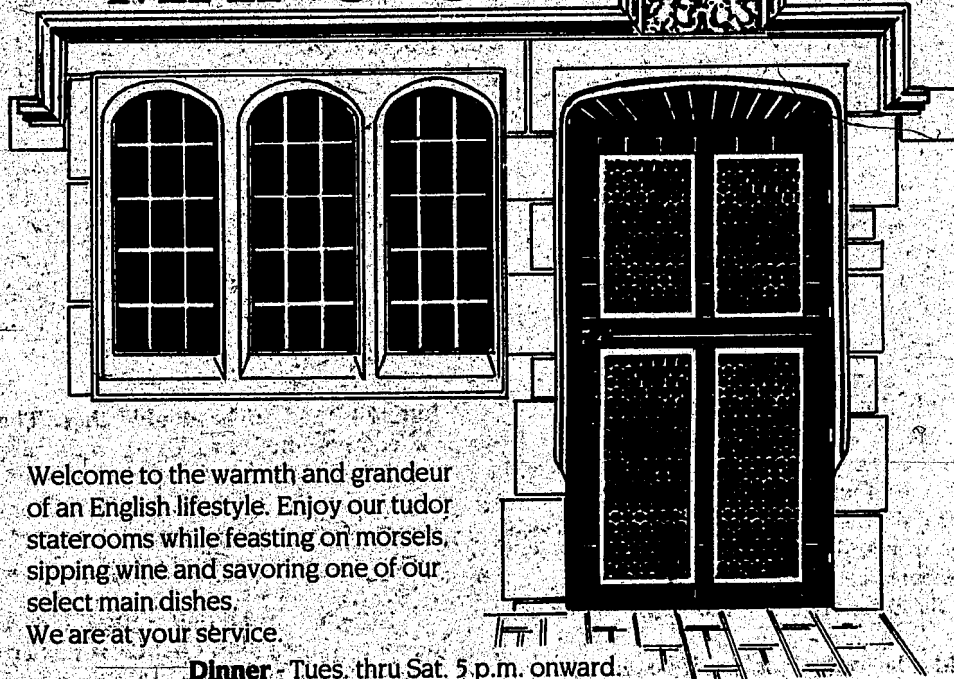

The motion to make the shuffle-accompanied purchase was unanimously passed by the township board Sept. 3, with only one question, meekly asked by Supervisor Frank Ronka.

"I have a question," he said. "What if the departments don't buy the used machines?"

No choice there, intimated Holman, as the twinkle returned to his eyes. "Everybody will be happy," he announced.

Sudsy success

All is not serious when it comes to car washes. The Sashabaw Junior High cheerleaders got themselves as wet as the cars during their Sept. 7 fund raiser. The squad has qualified for the National Grand Open Championship in Nashville, Tenn., Dec. 28-29. They won the honor by placing first at the International Cheerleading Foundation Summer Camp at Ferris State College, Aug. 4. So far, there are five money raising events scheduled to help fund the trip. The cheerleaders are Joelle Choomps, Margot Coxen, Kelly Kurz, Jodi Lawrence, Kim Morris, Tina Sheppard, Tammy Smith, Angle Strevel, Stacey VanDeberg and Emily Winfield. The manager is Nicole Hocking and the coach is Pat Andrus.

Fund raisers like this carwash help pay travel expenses for the national competition.

Society readies for Crafts & Cider Festival

By Betty Duris

The Clarkston Community Historical Society's new banner went up last Thursday, heralding the society's 11th annual Crafts & Cider Festival.

Unheralded until now have been the behind-the-scenes activities of the many dedicated members of the historical society who have worked this past year to put together what promises to be a three-day celebration of the arts and community spirit.

The '85 festival, scheduled for Sept. 20, 21 and 22, began forming last October immediately after the close of Crafts & Cider '84.

Committees were outlined and responsibilities shared in the months subsequent, as members accepted the following chairs:

Publicity—Judy Medlin, Freda Meyland
Posters/Banner—Barb Zabel, Betty Duris
Raffle—Betty Smith, Sharron Catallo
Merchandise—Barb Johns

Membership/Newsletter—Karen Weaver, Marilee Cook

Setup—Marilyn and Dick Weiss, Jennifer Radcliff

Education Tent—Denise Symons, Susan Basinger

Cable—Susan Basinger

Volunteers—Patty Barnett, Barb Zabel

Signs—Emerson Brown, Gary Symons

Walking Tour—Jane Frick

Craftspeople—Emily Hemendinger

Civic Groups—Betty Duris

Cleanup—Sally and Bruce Robertson

Transportation/Supplies—Marilyn and Dick Rosner

Finance—Irene Russell

(Special thanks go to Bob Glover in obtaining this year's Crafts & Cider banner.)

Seventy-five craftspeople and six civic groups will participate in this year's fair. Emily Hemendinger, who has been busy this past year handling craft applications, reports this is our largest number of artist participants.

Clarkston community civic groups will also be at the park to provide sandwiches, soft drinks and desserts in their individual fund raisers.

The society has enlisted its volunteer membership to man the different historical society booths and to pour cider and sell donuts at the main tent.

All of this once-a-year fund raising effort goes toward making a Local History Room addition to the library a reality in the near future.

It's a team approach. A full membership effort. And, hopefully for the society, another "banner year."

Editor's note: Betty Duris is president of the Clarkston Community Historical Society.

Emergency plan

For the second year in a row, Independence Township will participate in the Oakland County Emergency Operations plan.

On Sept. 3, members of the Independence Township board voted 6-0 to authorize the signing of a plan resolution by Supervisor Frank Ronk.

The plan constitutes an agreement with the county for assistance in an emergency the township cannot handle alone, Ronk said.

Should the county be unable to cope with an emergency, such as a tornado, the state would be called in.

"It's a chain of events to handle a disaster," Ronk said.

Last year, the township took advantage of the plan to call in county assistance following the New Year's Day ice storm.

Such agreements are signed annually, Ronk said, adding there is no cost involved.

Assessing trip

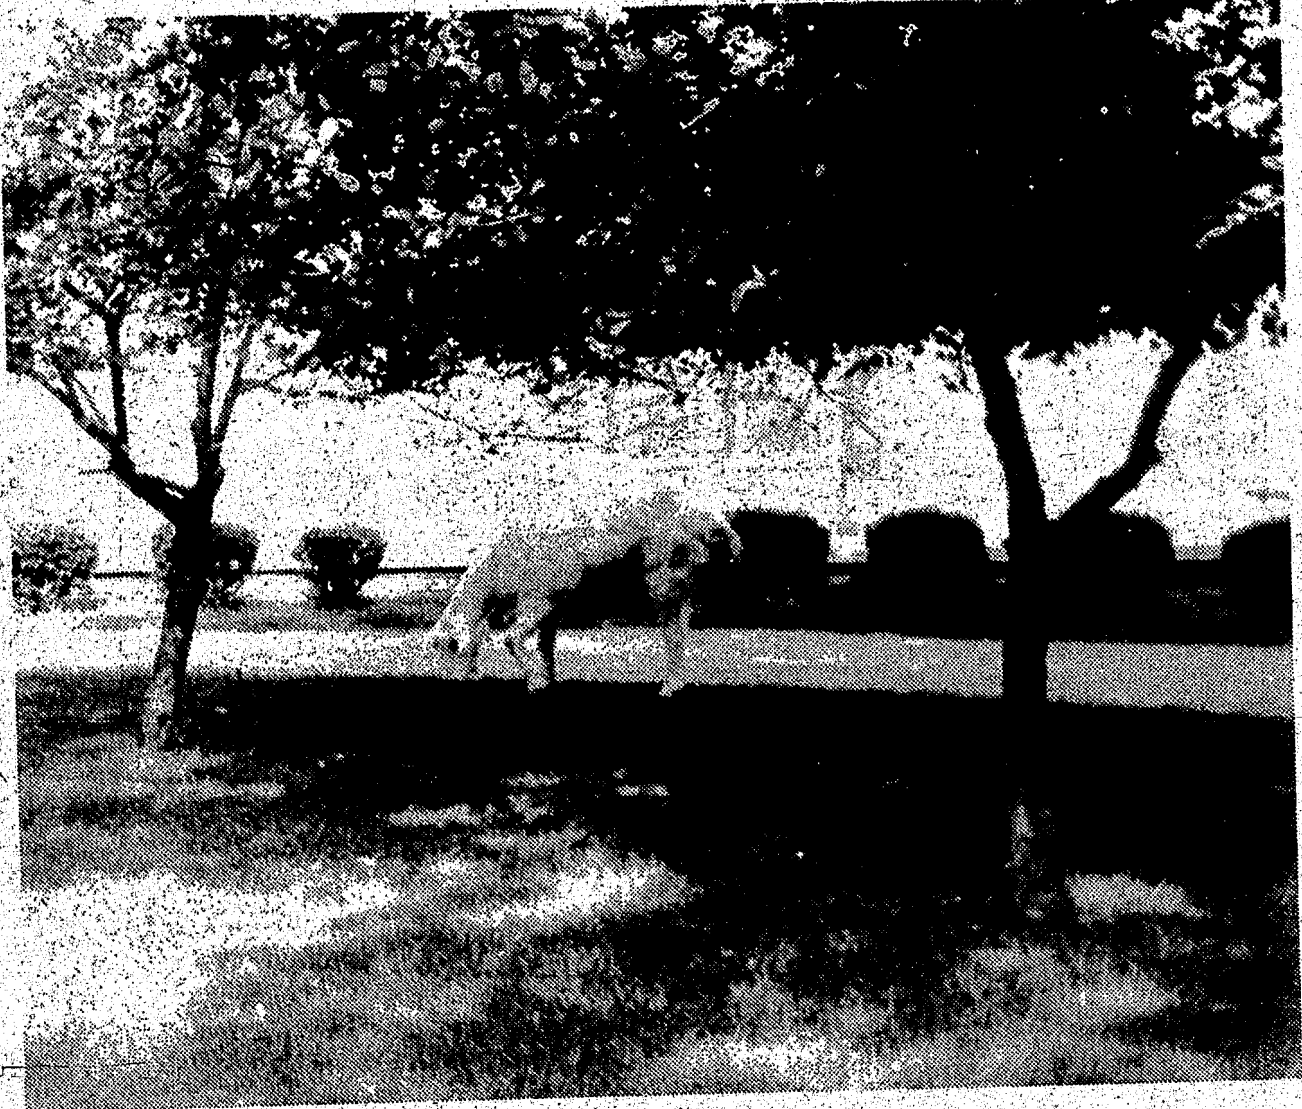

Two members of the Independence Township Assessing Department plan to improve their skills at upcoming conferences.

The township board, on Sept. 3, granted Kim Furguson and Marge Mallett permission to attend conferences and voted to allot them each $250 in expenses.

The money is to cover lodging, food and travel.

Furguson is to attend short courses for assessing personnel in Ann Arbor on Sept. 17-19. Mallett plans to attend similar courses in Grand Rapids on Oct. 9-11.

At the conferences, the two will learn about recent developments in the assessing field.

Jason Ward, a second-grader at Pine Knob Elementary School, is the proud owner of a baseball autographed by Tiger Kirk Gibson. He got it the hard way.

Barb Gibson's delighted the baseball finally found its way back to Jason Ward.

Foul ball connects with Tiger fan

By Kathy Greenfield

The foul ball slugged by Kirk Gibson that hit 7-year-old Jason Ward that Barb Gibson took to have her son autograph has finally found its way back to Jason.

The happy ending wasn't without some anguish. Jason checked the mailbox at his home on Felix Drive in Independence Township every day for its promised return. Barb, a Clarkston High School teacher, moved in the interim—and lost Jason's name and address.

The saga began Aug. 4. Jason, 7, who lives in Independence Township, went to a Tiger baseball game in Detroit with his dad, Pat, and grandfather, Bob Foster.

Out of nowhere in the second inning of the first game of the double-header came the flying foul.

"They said nobody saw the ball coming," said Jason's mom, Andrea. "When he got hit, nobody knew what happened to him. They took him to medical."

Barb Gibson happened to be sitting nearby in Tiger Stadium.

"I went up to him and asked him if he was all right," Barb said, "and I said, 'If you give me the ball, I'll have Kirk sign it for you.'"

Jason's arm glowed a bright, burning red where the ball landed, but by the next day the pain had subsided, his mother said.

A month later, Barb had given up on finding Jason's address. She called The Clarkston News.

"I thought, 'How am I ever going to find this darling boy?' and I thought, 'I know, I'll see if I can put something in the paper,'" she said.

Meanwhile, Jason had all but given up hope.

"Every time the mail would come, he'd go out to the mailbox," said his mom. "He'd come back, head would be hanging, and say, 'It's not there.'"

Said Jason: "I thought, 'I'll probably never get that ball.' I was mad."

Having graduated from Clarkston High School, Andrea knew Mrs. Gibson taught school there.

"I asked my dad, 'Are you sure that was Mrs. Gibson who came over to get the ball?' My dad said, 'Yes.' He had seen her plenty of times before."

Andrea told Jason she'd wait until school started and call the school, which she did.

Barb then called the News. "I'm delighted," she said about finding Jason.

And Jason? He summed up how he feels about owning a baseball signed by Tiger star Kirk Gibson in a word: "Good."

Guest commentary

If September comes . . .

by Betty Durlis

President, Clarkston Community Historical Society

Reflections on the veracity of the TV weatherman while contemplating the "Best of Summer."

"It promises to be a dry September. . . ."
Just last week the weatherman said so.

I remembered that when I awoke the first morning afterward to the tap of soft rains on my windowpane.

And I remembered it again the morning following when the clap of thunder and flash of lightning scared the dog and jolted me upright out of bed.

I thought of it in near panic during the newscast reporting the torrential rains that caused flooding that inundated Flint . . . through Elena . . . and during each daily rainstorm since.

RAIN!!

The Clarkston Community Historical Society's volunteers are assigned. The craftsmen are ready. The donuts are ordered. The apples are being milled into cider.

And the banner went up last Thursday. The reality of Crafts & Cider '85 is here.

"The 11th annual Crafts and Cider," the press releases say. It really should get easier; 10 tries out and you should know what you're doing.

But this is my first. First as general chair of the festival. And I think I need a dry September, at least a dry and sunny Sept. 20, 21 and 22, the weekend of the fair.

Problem is, I remember the past five or six Crafts & Ciders when I was involved simply as a volunteer member of the historical society. The rain wasn't my responsibility.

But each year the rains came—right on cue, at least one day of the three-day event. Burt Lancaster surely seemed to have a way with that drum, because each year we got it. One day out of three—washout.

Not this year. This year I'm responsible for the weather, too. And I put in for "the first annual NO-RAIN Crafts & Cider Fair."

Oh, it was OK for soft rains last Thursday. It was even OK for an occasional thunderstorm this week, this early in the month.

But come Friday, Sept. 20, and the Saturday and Sunday following, "it's going to be a dry September. . . ." (It's got to be.)

Remember, you promised.

Microwave-plus

Peachy delights

Betty Wagner

When we buy Michigan food products, we accomplish two things: 1. We support the Michigan farmers and growers; 2. We treat ourselves to very fresh products and tastier foods.

Michigan peach season, usually from August to mid-September, began around the second week of July this year due to an early spring. So we will be deprived of these luscious treats two weeks earlier than most years.

Peaches appear on the preferred shopping list of the American Institute for Cancer Research because they have a respectable amount of vitamin A and potassium in proportion to the calories. And only a trace of fat is found in them.

The following recipes use fresh peaches, but because the season is fast eluding us, I have included preserved peaches as substitutes for the long months that we are without juicy Michigan peaches.

A favorite brunch selection is Ashton Orchard's Big Peach Dumpling, which I cook in the micro/convection oven in 20 minutes rather than for 35 to 45 minutes in the conventional oven.

The micro/convection oven combines the cooking speed of the microwave and the browning and crisping of the convection for a quick, attractive baked product. I operated the oven I used at 50 percent microwave energy and 350 convection heat for combination cooking.

ASHTON ORCHARD'S BIG PEACH DUMPLING

1/2 cup butter or margarine (1 stick)

3/4 cup flour

3/4 cup sugar

3/4 cup milk

1 teaspoon baking powder

4 cups skinned, sliced fresh peaches (about five medium) or one 29-ounce can sliced peaches, drained

Topping

1/2 cup rolled oats

2 tablespoons brown sugar

Place butter in a 2-quart Pyrex casserole dish. Melt butter at high power for 60 seconds.

Place metal rack on lower guides of micro/convection oven and preheat to 350 degrees.

Mix together flour, sugar, milk and baking powder. Pour over butter and gently stir with a fork or wire whip. Add peaches. Mix rolled oats and brown sugar together and sprinkle on top.

Place dish in preheated oven and cook (micro/convec) for 15 minutes. Turn, using hot pads, after 7 minutes and 30 seconds. Continue cooking (micro/convec) for the remaining 7 minutes and 30 seconds.

Reset oven temperature to 400 degrees and cook convection for 5 minutes or until brown on top. Center will be soft and creamy. For an elegant touch, serve with vanilla yogurt or warm cream.

PEACH PECAN BREAD

2 eggs, beaten

1/2 cup vegetable oil

3/4 cup sugar

1/2 teaspoon vanilla

1 1/4 cups pureed fresh peaches, about 3 medium peaches with skins (use food processor) or 1 1/4 cups Gerber Junior Peaches

1 1/2 cups all purpose flour

1/2 teaspoon baking soda

1/8 teaspoon baking powder

1/2 teaspoon salt

1/2 cup chopped pecans

Beat together eggs, oil, sugar and vanilla. Mix in pureed peaches. In a separate bowl, mix together flour, soda, baking powder and salt. Gradually add to the peach mixture. Stir in nuts.

Pour into a 6-cup microsafe bundt dish. Elevate on a microsafe rack—a microwave muffin ring will do.

Microwave at 50 percent power for 10 minutes. Turn as needed to even the cooking pattern. Microwave at high power for 5 to 7 minutes. Allow to rest for 10 minutes before turning out.

Glaze with 1/4 cup Gerber Junior Peaches and 2 tablespoons confectioner's sugar that has been microwaved at high power for 45 seconds to 1 minute.

Home economist Betty Wagner, an Independence Township resident, is a graduate of West Virginia University.

DIRECT ROUTE: Workers have begun construction along Clarkston Road between Clintonville and South Eston roads. The Oakland County Road Commission is working toward modifying two curves. Total cost of the project is expected to be $782,000, which includes engineering, right of way and the construction.

The first few days of the project had crews of chainsaw wielding workers and bulldozers clearing trees from the Clintonville Road intersection. Work is expected to be completed by the end of November. The road is expected to remain open during the construction period. [Photo by Dan Vandenhemel]

On campus with . . .

Key Ellis

As I drove up the driveway that early Thursday morning, I was met by two large barking dogs. I had to slow down so I wouldn't hit them.

They followed the car until I parked, then checked me out.

I held out my hand to the beige dog, but he backed away. The black dog came up to me, decided I was OK and left. The other dog followed me down to the float.

There, I discovered Jacqui Bell lounging on the beach wagon.

"Where's everyone else?" I asked.

"They haven't arrived yet," she said.

If you were involved with building the University of Detroit-Clarkston's float for the 4th of July parade, this is the scene that greeted you at 8 in the morning on the 4th.

About 12 to 15 people worked on the float. One of the wagons was decorated as a beach scene with sand, lounge chairs, beach toys scattered around and Beach Boys music blaring out of the portable tape player.

The other wagon was decorated with white-capped waves and a borrowed wind surfer. At the head of this procession was a gray Ford Mustang convertible, decorated with flowers and signs.

Did all this work pay off? You bet! The U of D float took first place for the second year in a row.

Key Ellis, a Lake Orion resident, is a freshman attending the University of Detroit's Clarkston Campus.

Can you become an alcoholic by drinking a lot?

Dear Cat Paw:

Is it true people start shaking when they go through withdrawal?

Concerned

Dear Concerned:

It is true with certain drugs like alcohol, narcotics and barbiturates. Each drug has its own set of withdrawal symptoms. You will have to identify the drug in question for me to tell you exactly what the symptoms are. Write back! 🐾

Dear Cat Paw:

Do you feel that since the Toma speech was given the people who quit will stay off the drugs?

Beaver Cleaver

Dear Beaver:

Toma made Clarkston aware of its drug problem. People had their eyes opened. Some saw themselves or family members as part of the drug scene. Some didn't hear him at all.

Many quit drugs but were unable to quit for long (addiction, peer pressure, no involvement from family, no professional help, etc. . . .).

Hopefully, many who were in the experimentation stage with drugs were swayed to quit.

Because the abuse and knowledge of abuse of drugs is confidential, we will probably never know for sure. We can only hope for our future generations.

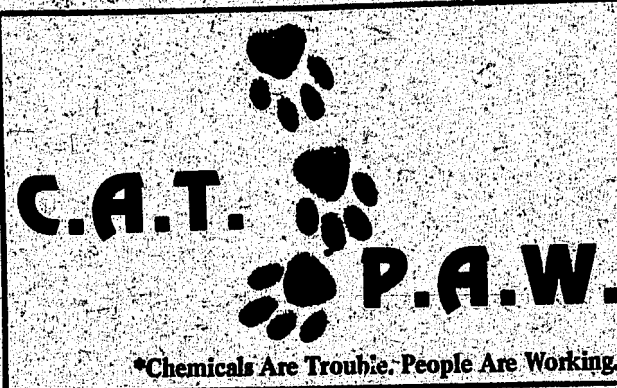

I personally like David Toma and I like what he stands for. He reached so very many of CHS students because he truly cares about them.

I really do feel he will always be a part of every student who talked to him that day. He is a difficult man to forget.

He has made a difference in Clarkston and, therefore, he must have made a difference in at least a few lives. 🐾

Dear Cat Paw:

Could the use of narcotics and alcohol at the

Copyright 1985 Jeanette Sanders same time be fatal?

Spock

Dear Spock:

Yes! Alcohol and narcotics are both depressants. As the amount used goes up, there is an increased danger of death due to depression of breathing. 🐾

Dear Cat Paw:

Is it true that if you are a drug addict and conceive a child, that child could be a drug addict at birth?

Concerned

Dear Concerned:

If the mother is a drug addict, the child she is carrying is also addicted to drugs. 🐾

Dear Cat Paw:

When you drink a lot, is it true you become an alcoholic?

The Wondering Person

Dear Person:

Alcoholism research shows more and more clearly that for some people, that first drink will never lead to any pathology because they lack what is necessary to make them into alcoholics.

For others, it is likely to lead to alcoholism because they possess several predisposing factors.

Alcoholism is a condition characterized by the drinker's inconsistent inability to choose whether to drink at all, or to stop drinking when he or she has obviously had enough.

In general, people are said to have a problem with alcohol or to be alcoholics if they cannot control their drinking, if they are dependent on the drug and if their drinking has a negative impact on their families, friends and job. 🐾

Mail letters to Cat Paw to The Clarkston News, 5 S. Main, Clarkston, MI 48016. They need not be signed.

'Born with a silver pencil in her mouth'

by Dorothy Leaming

An Apple for the Teacher

Jackie Pascoe has been teaching learning disabled students at Pine Knob School most of her 10-year teaching career.

She decided to become a special ed teacher when, as a high school senior, she was a volunteer aide in the room for mentally impaired students.

She was very impressed with the honesty, openness and genuine attitude of these children and gives them full credit for a decision she has never regretted.

Jackie's flexibility, patience, responsible attitude and general outlook on life are qualities that equip her well for her job.

Jackie was born and raised in Lake Orion. It could be said she was born with a silver pencil in her mouth in that her father has been on the educational scene for 29 years as a teacher, coach and administrator and her mother is in her 18th year of teaching fourth- and fifth-graders.

Her in-laws have been involved in education in Detroit; her father-in-law as an administrator and her mother-in-law as a middle school secretary.

Jackie and Bruce have three children: Brett, 5½; Leeya, 3; and Kipp, 1. Jackie and Bruce adopted Leeya, a Korean child, when she was 8½ months old. With the hope of keeping Leeya acquainted with her roots, the Pascoes sponsor a fourth-grade Korean boy.

Jackie graduated from Central Michigan University, Mt. Pleasant, with a bachelor's degree in special education. She earned a master's degree from Oakland University, Rochester, where she specialized in teaching the learning disabled.

Summers found Jackie working in Head Start or supervising a playground.

She is enthusiastic about her involvement in a substance abuse program for the Pine Knob sixth-graders that she and two colleagues devised.

She also helps sponsor an Alateen-Alatot group for children of parents or extended families with substance abuse problems. She became involved in this through a student she wanted to understand and help.

"Jackie's flexibility, patience, responsible attitude and general outlook on life are qualities that equip her well for her job."

Her main philosophy with her students is: "If they feel good about themselves, their work will noticeably improve."

Editor's note: An Apple for the Teacher is provided through a committee of the Clarkston Education Association.

This week's author is Dorothy Leaming, a school social worker.

Bus driver Pat Bennett counts kids and puts names with faces as kindergartners board her school bus. The children's houses are represented by tiny dots on the map she holds.

Busing tales

Blending their mothering instincts with professionalism, the female bus drivers of Clarkston schools have stories to tell. Stories that attest to nerves of steel and patience of saints.

They throw their heads back, gesture dramatically and laugh heartily as they recount the trials and tribulations of transporting kindergartners to and from school.

Children's first rides on school buses are especially traumatic, they say. As one bus driver put it: "You have to peel them off their parents. The umbilical cord is severed for keeps."

The cries of countless 5-year-olds echo the same for each driver. "But this isn't the way to my house," some kids reportedly say. "Bus driver, bus driver... my house is back there."

Michigan has no law governing how large a crowd can ride a school bus, says Jenny Sansom, who has transported as many as 93 pupils at one time.

"I had one kid, I went by his house three times and he didn't know where he lived," she says, shaking her head in amazement.

Pat Bennett counters with her tale of a 5-year-old who liked riding the bus so well that he wouldn't get off.

"I'd passed his house three times. I even called his name three times," she says. "His mother called in and wanted to know where he was at."

Sandy Miller nods with understanding. "I had a heart attack twice yesterday," she jokes.

The drivers have methods for coping, however. Driver Betty Mulherin and Sansom have their passengers sing.

Sansom taught her students 25 songs last year. "You run out of songs after a while," Mulherin says.

A pause intrudes upon the conversation and the drivers sit in silence for a while, contemplating their charges and the responsibility of safely transporting other people's cherished children.

Miller sums it up with a positive notion: "We have more good kids than we have bad."

—Carolyn Walker

During their first week of school, kindergartners boarding a noon bus for the ride home from Clarkston Elementary School are a study in contrasts. Papers, coats and bags in hand, there are smiles and frowns and side-long glances. And miles to go before they sleep.

Interior painting is underway.

Jennifer's father, Conrad Loock, has overseen much of the work on the house.

The aluminum siding is gone from the Radcliff house. That was the first step in restoring the Time is taken to fill in the tiniest cracks.

Radcliff House nears completion

Preservation of 125-year-old farmhouse keeps its new owners busy

By Dan Vandenberg

In November 1984, a two-story historic Italianate home made the trek from Dixie Highway to its present location on Main Street in downtown Clarkston.

Since the move 10 months ago, the house owned by Hank and Jennifer Radcliff has seen some major changes, but none that takes away from the historic value.

The 125-year-old farmhouse was white when the Radcliffs bought it from the Tom Ritter family.

The aluminum siding was removed, and the new three-tone taupe color scheme provides the most visual change. The oil-based paint acts as a preservative for the exterior wood.

When the house was bought and moved, the Radcliffs knew exactly what they were getting into, a lot of work.

Some windows had to be replaced as did much of the indoor plumbing and wiring.

"We knew it wouldn't be easy," Jennifer Radcliff said. "We had a very realistic idea of what it would take. We're real close to budget. If you want to do a job right, it's not cheap. The worst thing you can do is underestimate what you can or can't do."

The house survived the trip pretty well, with very little structural damage.

When the interior ceilings were lowered to their present level of nine feet, some of the supports were removed and had to be replaced.

The final interior design depends on the use of the two levels.

The original plan was to house offices in the lower level and apartments upstairs. With the interest that has been shown, the Radcliffs are considering offices for the upper level as well.

"That depends on if we get the barrier-free exemption," she said. "That will make the decision a lot easier."

With most of the exterior finished, the interior, parking lot and the landscaping are all that remain.

"The weather held us back for some time," she said. "The contractors couldn't do the grading because the ground was too wet. We couldn't pave so we moved inside."

They plan to be finished with the project in mid-November.

"I had to do a lot of research to do about the house," she said. "It's a Victorian house and we want to keep it that way. I had to make out reports to the Michigan Bureau of History to prove that the house was worth saving."

"When the Green family built in 125 years ago, it was the center of a working farm. Some of the reports had to show exactly what we were going to do to the house. They wanted to know if we were going to pull down any historical plaster that we didn't have to."

Cover photos show interior and exterior views

The men they have hired are helping the Radcliffs maintain the historical value of the house.

"The workers we have are real craftsmen. I expected that if we wanted to have quality artisan work, the workers would have to be over 70 years old. But everyone is under 35," she said.

"They know they just can't throw their knowledge away. For those of us who are preservationists, that's really encouraging."

Restoration is family project

Restoration of the Radcliff house is a real family affair.

The 125-year-old house, moved from Dixie Highway to its current Main Street location in November 1985, is scheduled to be finished this November.

In addition to owners Hank and Jennifer Radcliff, working on the project are their children, Miles and Rebecca, and Jennifer's father, Conrad Look.

"I'm very comfortable with construction," Jennifer said. "I grew up with it because of my father. I can't remember him not having a well-equipped woodshop."

While Hank takes care of the plumbing, electrical, heating and cooling, and the paving, Jennifer handles the painting, wood and design aspects of the project.

"Miles (17) and some of his friends helped with the work," Jennifer said. "He's the strong back. He put in about 30 hours a week for the last four or five weeks. He just started school again and asked me what happened to the summer."

Rebecca, 8, contributed in other ways.

"She was our back-up," Radcliff said. "If we needed something, she went and got it. She carried a lot of pop."

Home-grown birdseed

Stop pinching flower buds!

Late summer/early fall is the one time of year we can easily provide home-grown seed for the birds.

No need at this time of the year to rely solely on the vast sunflower, millet and milo fields of Nebraska or the Dakotas or the cracked corn acres of Nebraska, Kansas or Iowa.

Mid-October (and even later) is time enough to start buying birdseed.

Right now, look to your own garden. Resist, if you can, the summertime habit of pinching off fading flowers to keep your plants in full bloom.

Instead, let the flowers wither, the seeds swell in their pods. You'll have birdseed to spare, plus enough seed for next year's generation of plants. You'll also have plenty of bloom until frost.

What kinds of plants produce good birdseeds?

Sunflowers, of course, and others in the same daisy family, including Mexican sunflowers (Tithonia).

In my own yard, I let several flowers go to seed near the end of the season. My cosmos and zinnias (the open-pollinated kinds) grow well in the poor soil I am blessed with around my Virginia home.

They do triple-duty: They provide color, they attract butterflies, and when they and some other flowers finally go to seed, they keep my fading garden lively with juncos and finches and several types of sparrows.

Marigolds, too, are multipurpose. They not only brighten the flower beds, they act as "companion plants" in the vegetable garden (protecting the vegetables from some pests) and eventually produce seed the birds love. All, that is, except "mule marigolds," which, like many hybrid plants, rarely produce much good, meaty fertile seed.

Four o'clocks, with flowers attractive to hummingbird moths, produce seeds that birds will eat. Cardinals especially seek the large, black four o'clock seeds that look like tiny hand grenades and probably contain even more kernal than sunflower seeds.

Petunias draw birds to the hundreds of small seeds in their substantial seed pods. In my yard, I've watched many a junco hop on a stocky pod, pop it open and gulp down the tiny seeds.

St. John's-worts (Hypericum) give a profusion of yellow flowers throughout summer and, later, offer a great many seeds.

Wherever prickly pear cacti (Opuntia) grow, they may attract woodpeckers and sometimes cardinals and a few other birds that vie for the juicy pulp and the large seeds inside the cactus fruit.

Letting plants go to seed may give your garden a slightly disreputable look for a short time, but if you can hold off uprooting your annuals until mid-December, you'll give your birds a treat—and yourself a brief respite from garden chores and birdseed-buying expenses.

A wooden table graces the Weston dining room, which overlooks the back porch. Wood throughout the home adds to the country look and feel of the former cabin on Deer Lake.

A wooden hutch with knickknacks and pictures is the focal point of Anita's country-style kitchen.

This Cabbage Patch Doll feels right at home in the master suite. She accents the whites and cream colors.

Photos by Carolyn Walker

Anita Weston poses on her stairs, which are covered with a blue oriental rug.

A large wooden deck off the rear of the house holds planters, picnic tables and lounge chairs. The wood theme is carried throughout the house in wooden floors and a back porch with wicker furniture.

Cozy comfort

Deer Lake home once a cabin

By Carolyn Walker

The cedar shake home of Aaron and Anita Weston boasts a little of the old and a little of the new.

Located along Deer Lake in Independence Township, the house has had three owners, each of whom made changes in the former cabin.

"It's my dream house," says Anita, who has added her personal touch to each room with old family photos, dolls, a pet kitten and artwork.

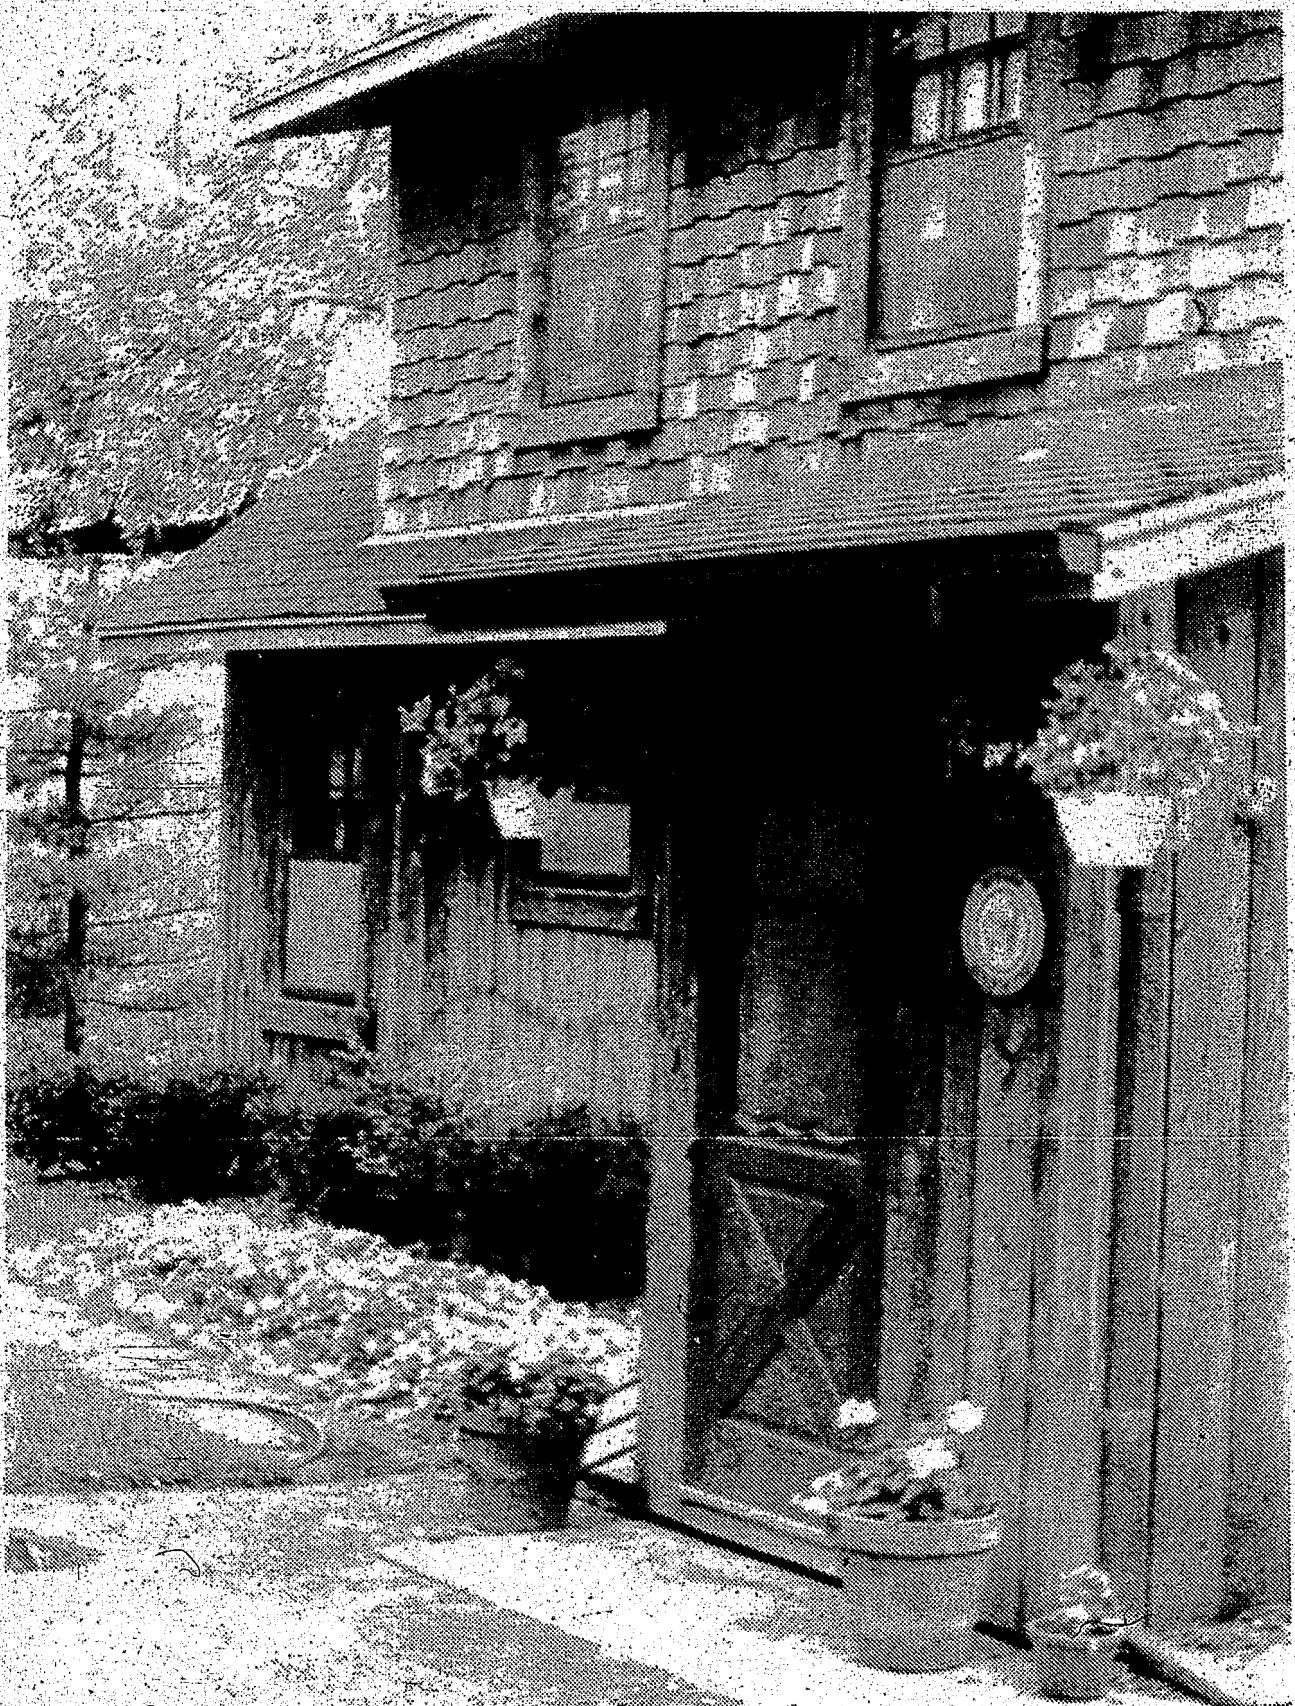

The exterior has remained much the same as it originally was, according to Anita. But many changes have taken place inside.

Anita, an interior designer, and Aaron, an attorney, have carried the theme of woods and country throughout the house with wooden furnishings, plants and antiques.

Several windows and a skylight add to the atmosphere.

The two spent six months adding a master-suite bedroom to the second floor, according to Anita. Highlighted with a sitting area and fireplace, the room is her favorite.

"That's where I go to relax," she says.

Black-and-white pictures of her children, along with black furniture and a hat rack with old hats add to the atmosphere of Weston's cubbyhole studio.

The Weston cedar-shake house on Deer Lake was a former cabin. It has been owned and renovated by three families, according to Anita.

The country coziness is enhanced by woods and lake.

Ponds built from scratch can enhance homes

By Dan Vandenhemel

Man-made ponds or backyard fountains can enhance your property, but building one isn't as easy as it seems, says Wayne Nierman.

Nierman is the director of the Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service of Oakland County.

"Either Mother Nature or other people are working against you when you're building a pond," he said. "You're putting something in that's not natural. The surrounding environment has a lot to do with it."

When starting a major pond project many considerations come into play: the soil, the slope of pond and the surrounding areas.

"Things like this," he said, pointing to an outdoor fountain at the Ozawa Bonsai Garden in Springfield Township. "They attract birds and the bird droppings give added nutrients that create algae and weeds."

Too many nutrients also come from fallen tree leaves. As weeds grow and then die, the bottom of the pond starts to fill in. Animals, while feeding on the shore, can break down the banks.

"It's all in the cycle balance of the ecosystem and the food chain," Nierman said. "And there's also something called lake aging, a normal process of filling in a body of water. Pond sediment is the same thing."

But while Nierman points out some of the negative aspects of creating pond, he still likes the idea of them for recreation.

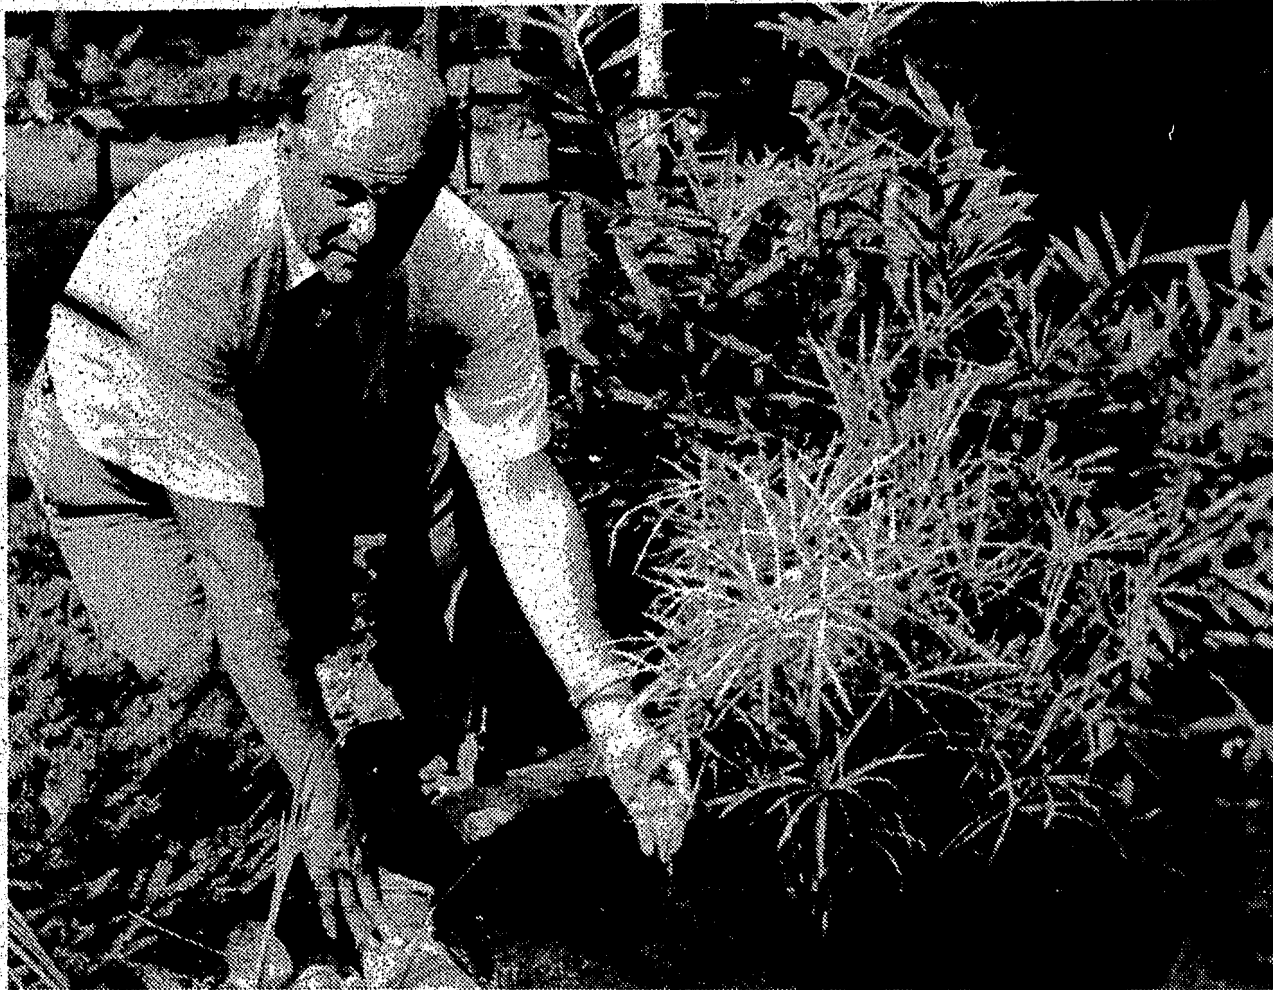

There are ponds for different uses and the construction can vary for each type. Artificial waterways can be for summer or winter fishing, for boating or swimming or for ice skating.

The end result can be worth all the work, he said.

Indoor and outdoor fountains are basically large scale aquariums, Nierman said. With a pump and synthetic lining, the water usually has to be changed.

Cement and plastic linings are common for the fountains. Algae-eating fish and a water pump that circulates the water can help keep them clean.

"It's basically a juggling act to keep everything in balance," he said. "But before anyone starts a project, they should check with the local unit of government to see if any permits are needed."

Wayne Nierman shows some of the things Mother Nature can introduce to pond or fountain like these at the Ozawa Bonsai Gardens in Springfield Township.

Make or buy?

Points to ponder on cleaning

Literally hundreds of different brands and types of cleaning supplies are available in the average supermarket.

Trying to choose can make you wonder if it would be simpler and cheaper to make your own.

Some household cleaning jobs can be tackled with inexpensive, common materials if you know what kinds of materials work best on what kinds of soils.

For example, alkalis remove soil and grease and rinse away with clear water. A mild solution of water and baking soda—a mild alkali—can be used to clean appliances, metal sinks, fiberglass tubs and other surfaces. Because it's mild and nonabrasive, it won't damage those surfaces, either.

Ammonia, a stronger alkali, can be dissolved in water and used to clean painted surfaces, greasy film on windows or other glass, or grease on range burners and ovens.

Laundry detergents, which are also alkaline, can be used for similar cleaning tasks. These products are all relatively inexpensive and can be made into different strength cleaning solutions for specific tasks when needed.

Inexpensive mild acids, such as vinegar, can be used to remove soap film and mineral deposits left by hard water. Mixed with water, they can be used to clean window glass. When heated, they can dissolve lime from teakettles and pans.

Chlorine bleach makes an excellent disinfectant and mildew remover and can also be used to remove many stains, if used carefully.

These "home" cleaners may require more time and energy to mix and use than the quick, commercially produced cleaners, but they cost less to use.

Families need to weigh one scarce resource against another. That is, time against money. Which does your family have more of? Is it practical to mix your own cleaners, or too costly to buy specialized products?

Perhaps you can compromise. Stir up a baking soda or ammonia solution for everyday cleaning, but buy furniture wax because it would be too time consuming, costly and hazardous to make at home.

Follow these safety tips from the Wood Heating Alliance

Before You Buy:

1. Know your local fire and building codes. Check for requirements from your insurance company for wood heating.

2. Note the areas to be heated in cubic square feet to determine the size stove best suited to your needs and if it will be a primary or supplementary source of heat.

What is the decor of the room where your stove will be installed? Today's models come in a variety of styles and designs.

3. Make sure a stove is safety tested by a recognized agency such as Underwriters Lab.

Consider other stove functions: Cooking, Water Heater, Coal Use, Catalytic.

Before You Install:

4. Plan your installation. Remember that the chimney should extend three feet higher than the roof, it penetrates and two feet higher than any other roof or combustible within 10 feet.

5. Read the manufacturer's instructions thoroughly. Note clearance standards from combustible areas and comply to the inch.

6. Do not substitute or leave out any parts. Use only recommended chimney materials for venting.

7. Use recommended floor protection.

Use and Maintenance

8. Never use kerosene or lighter fluid to start a fire.

9. Use seasoned wood, don't burn trash in the appliance, and avoid long, smoldering fires to reduce creosote buildup.

10. Install a smoke detector and keep an ABC-rated fire extinguisher nearby.

11. Have your chimney inspected and cleaned if necessary at least once a year. Examine woodstove connections regularly—every two to four weeks when the stove is new or when you get a new load of firewood.
