Judge stops surgical center

By Carolyn Walker

Work on the Clarkston Surgical Center has been stopped.

The halt in activity follows a temporary restraining order issued against the proposed center by Ingham County Circuit Court Judge Thomas L. Brown.

The restraining order, which prevents building on the center for an unspecified time, was issued Sept. 13 pending a future court date, according to Dr. James O'Neill, M.D., the center's developer.

It comes in the wake of a lawsuit filed against the center and Gloria Smith, director of the Michigan Department of Public Health, by Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital (POH).

"I'm very disappointed," said O'Neill of the restraining order. "It was discouraging to say the least."

For the past few months, O'Neill has been in the process of clearing the land off M-15 for the center and meeting with architects and builders on the project.

The restraining order should not prevent him from continuing with architectural-type meetings, but prevents any actual construction, said O'Neill's attorney Thomas Rabette of Bloomfield Township.

It is intended to maintain "the status quo" most likely for the duration of the hearing process, Rabette said, adding that he plans to appeal the order.

Rabette also said the losing party in the suit could appeal the case, with litigation possibly going on for a lengthy period of time.

According to O'Neill, the show-cause hearing scheduled Sept. 13 didn't materialize because the

Insurance costs triple for schools

By Kathy Greenfield

Some insurance costs have nearly tripled for the Clarkston school district—for an increase of $126,496 over last year.

The change was briefly discussed at last week's board of education meeting when board member Carolyn Place questioned the line amount before expenditures were approved.

After the meeting, district financial manager William Jackson elaborated.

"Out of the 33.33 mills that we receive in property taxes, a little over one-half mill is going just for insurance," he said.

"It bothers me as a business manager because there is no way I can control the cost," he added. "By law, we have to have insurance. It takes a very innocent thing to go wrong and you find yourself with a very costly lawsuit."

Ric Huttenlocher of Huttenloch's Kerns Norvell Inc. of Pontiac is the district's insurance agent.

"It's a sad commentary when they jump it that much in one year, but they had it way low," he said. "Now (the insurance companies) are saying, 'We aren't going to lose money any more. We are going to charge what it costs.'"

There are only three or four insurance companies that will write policies for school districts, he said, because they have lost money.

He cited the Insurance Company of North America, which carries the Clarkston district's fleet policy, as an example. The firm, he said, lost $55 million across the United States and $5 million in Michigan last year.

Formerly there were more insurance companies bidding for school insurance, which caused price wars, but now the number of companies has decreased and the costs are more in line with the expenses, Huttenlocher said.

And, he said, things could be worse.

The increase in "Clarkston isn't quite as great as some of them," Huttenlocher said. "Some of them went up as much as four times."

The three policies involved include:

- Liability and property damage insurance through the Pacific Employers Insurance Co., up from $38,383 last year to $114,182. "It's the same type of insurance you would have on your house," said Jackson. "If somebody falls outside, you're covered. If somebody steals something from your yard, you're covered."

PUD ordinance public hearing set for Oct. 21

By Carolyn Walker

A public hearing concerning a proposed Planned Unit Development (PUD) ordinance in the Village of Clarkston has been scheduled Oct. 21.

The hearing comes in the wake of recommendations made to the village council by village planners

Vilican and Leman of Southfield, who examined the proposed ordinance at the council's request.

A PUD ordinance allows cluster-type housing, creative use of the land during development, and permits several different uses on a single parcel.

The village PUD proposal is based on a similar ordinance adopted by Independence Township.

It has been suggested for use in a condominium project proposed by developer Frank Walker.

The condominium issue has been repeatedly discussed by the council since 1981 when Walker first proposed a 27-unit condominium near Deer Lake off White Lake Road.

Currently there are no ordinances which address condominiums in the village and Walker has yet to have his proposal officially approved.

In July, the council asked Vilican and Leman to review the PUD ordinance and fill in several blank spaces regarding density and other specifications.

The firm's recommendations were presented to the council on Sept. 9. They include having the council and village planning commission work cooperatively on any PUD developments.

At a public hearing in May, several members of the planning commission expressed concerns about the PUD proposal and how it would affect village control of developments, with one member describing it as a "can of worms."

The public hearing must be held before any action can be taken on the PUD ordinance.

Lawsuit stops surgical center

judge had not read the briefs concerning the case. A new court date has not been set, he said.

"The judge was just inundated with pleadings, motions and briefs," said Rabette, explaining the reason for the postponement. "It is not unusual for a judge not to have reviewed a file—especially a brand new case. We intend to bring the matter back before Judge Brown and ask him to reconsider."

In the suit filed last August, POH asked that a certificate of need (CON) for the surgery center be revoked. A CON is mandated by the state for any hospital-type facility dealing in third-party insurance.

POH contends the center should have been part of a comparative review with seven other hospital proposals including one by POH for an annex in Independence Township.

POH was denied a CON for its proposal last year. "If we've got to go through the process, then we think everyone should go through the process," said Jack Whitlow, administrator of POH, referring to the comparative review. The hospital is currently in the process of appealing its CON denial, he added.

POH's intentions are to build a hospital in Independence Township, Whitlow said. Planned for 112 beds off Dixie Highway near I-75, it is to offer outpatient surgery, emergency services and "all that stuff," he added. "It will be an extension of this hospital."

In July, O'Neill was granted a CON for his Clarkston Surgical Center when the state reversed an earlier decision to deny it.

O'Neill plans to build the three-floor center on approximately six acres behind his current pediatric practice.

It is to offer outpatient surgery as well as outpatient mental health services, and is to augment current services available from area physicians and the Clarkston Ambulatory Care Center.

-Correction-

A vote taken at the Sept. 3 meeting of the Independence Township board was incorrectly reported in last week's Clarkston News.

Voting to enter a consent judgment with the Nunn group were Supervisor Frank Ronk, Clerk Richard Holman, Treasurer John Lutz and Trustee Daniel Travis.

Trustees Carol Balzarini and William Vandermark voted against the issue.

Trustee Dale Stuart was absent.

Andrea: 'She's so willing to learn'

Editor's note: Andrea Aranosan's story is the first in a three-part series by Clarkston News staff writer Carolyn Walker. Because a special education millage election is scheduled Oct. 7, the series is designed to explore what special education encompasses and illustrate how it helps disabled and home-bound students.

By Carolyn Walker

Nine-year-old Andrea Aranosan tackles the world and dreams her dreams from a wheelchair.

She plays from it, eats from it and learns from it. She also shares her secrets from it: Her love for school and classmate Pablo and her appreciation for dance class.

Andrea was born with spina bifida, a birth defect which can leave its victims with varying degrees of mental and physical disabilities. In Andrea's case, those disabilities include mental impairment, paralysis from the chest down, an inability to sit alone and some physical handicaps.

Andrea Aranosan has many loves. Among them is an abiding affection for newscaster Mort Crim, whom she met at an Easter Seal Telethon.

Though Andrea is limited by her disease, her hopes for the future are not.

Andrea wants, like most people, to be all that she can be, according to her mother, Pat.

Together, with the help available to them through Michigan's special education program, Andrea, Pat and Andrea's father Dr. Robert Aranosan, D.O., are reaching for their goals—goals which mean Andrea will be able to maximize her skills and live her life to her fullest potential.

Andrea's introduction to the educational system began when she was 6 months old.

With the help of Waterford Schools, Andrea was placed in an infancy program at Easter Seals until she turned 4 years old.

While there, she was taught pre-readiness skills designed to enhance her learning and prepare her for school.

Her experiences included therapy, visual and sensory stimulation, hand-eye coordination and play opportunities she would have missed because paralysis prevented her from playing on the floor like most children.

It also provided a much-needed social setting for the friendly youngster.

"I think it's great for that," says Pat, emphasizing the positive role socialization plays in the lives of handicapped individuals and their potential independence. "They (the handicapped) have just as much of a right as anybody else to become independent."

After leaving the Easter Seals program, Andrea was placed in a classroom for the physically impaired in the Pontiac school system.

Upon moving to the Clarkston school district this year, she was transferred to a center program for the trainable mentally impaired in Waterford.

Center programs are provided in centrally located districts, such as Waterford, for children who can not be serviced in their home districts.

Andrea proudly shows her printing and spelling pages as she talks about her teacher Miss McMann. Mathematics, reading and dancing are her favorite subjects, she says.

The road toward independence has been long and troubled for Andrea, according to her mother.

"She's had probably 12 surgeries," Pat says, adding that many of them involved complications. "Sometimes you feel like nothing's ever going to go right."

The operations included the placing of a shunt in her head to drain water from the brain when she was only 2 weeks old, as well as six operations on her back, her mother said.

Teachers of the classes Andrea has attended, as well as specialists in speech and physical therapy, have helped mother and daughter cope, Pat says.

They have also given them hope for a future which will see Andrea functioning to the best of her ability.

"Eventually, at least I pray, maybe she'll be able to work in a sheltered workshop," Pat says.

"She would go (to school) seven days a week if she could. I'd much rather have her be that way than to have to fight with her to get her to go," she says, musing about the love many handicapped children feel for school.

"They're like a piece of clay. They just need someone to mold them. If they don't get the right someone, nothing's going to happen."

"She's so willing to learn."

Special education millage election

On Oct. 7, residents of Oakland County will be asked to vote for a ¼ mill increase for special education.

The millage question will be the only item on the special election ballot. If approved, the increase would raise the current millage from 1 to 1.75 mills, meaning that taxpayers would pay $1.75 for each $1,000 of assessed property valuation for special education.

The increase would help offset the growing costs associated with educating physically and mentally impaired students as well as those with emotional disabilities, learning disabilities or health problems.

Since its inception in 1973, Michigan's special education law has mandated schooling for all pupils, regardless of their disability.

Over the years, costs of the program and the number of students and programs have increased, while state funding has decreased, necessitating the current millage increase request, according to Clarkston Special Education Director Robert Brumback.

Auto parts store gets final site plan approval

By Carolyn Walker

Developers of a proposed auto parts store on Maybee Road plan to demolish a house and break ground for the new building this week.

Rudy Mazza and Thomas Toteff received final site plan approval, subject to landscaping changes, for an auto parts store at the Independence Township Planning Commission Sept. 12.

The landscaping improvements were requested following concerns by the commission, and agreement by Mazza, that the proposed landscaping was "amateurish," said Chairman Neil Wallace after the meeting.

"It was obvious he (Mazza) was willing to cooperate," Wallace added.

The landscaping improvements are to be reviewed by commission member Joseph Figa, who was appointed by the commission to oversee any changes.

The store is to replace an existing house next door to the Pine Knob Wine Shoppe, east of Sashabaw Road, and will be built on approximately one-half acre of about 10 acres owned by the men, Mazza said.

Mazza and Toteff have been seeking final site plan approval for approximately one year.

In July, the township board voted 6-0 to rezone the site from C2 (planned shopping center) to C1 (local business district).

The rezoning followed the recommendation of township planner Richard Carlisle, who characterized C1 as a "less intensive commercial district than C2" in a letter to board members.

The proposed building will be approximately 5,000 square feet in size and will offer the sales of imported and American auto parts, but no auto service, Mazza said.

He projects the business will be ready to open within 60 days of ground breaking, if all goes according to schedule.

He estimates the business will employ six workers.

At present, there are no plans for the remaining nine acres, but Mazza has said in the past that a shopping center may be proposed at a future date.

Clarkstons schools' teacher layoff list shrinks

By Kathy Greenfield

The layoff list for elementary school teachers in the Clarkston district has dwindled to zero.

Seven high school teachers and three special education teachers remain on the list, but all have specialized skills, says Conrad Bruce, Clarkston schools administrative assistant.

Bruce predicts in the not-too-distant future there will be bidding wars for teachers with mathematics and other in-demand degrees.

Since school began in Clarkston, four teachers have been recalled from the layoff list. Three were approved at last week's board of education meeting, Jean Bierlein, Nancy Dion and Natalie Hewko. The fourth, Doris Bonnell, who is also on the job, is expected to be officially recalled at the October school board meeting.

Remaining on layoff status are three high school industrial arts and three social studies teachers, both fields with an excess number of teachers, Bruce said. The seventh teacher is qualified in the vocational education areas of business and marketing and sales.

Of the three special education teachers, two are speech therapists and one is a social worker. The biggest demand in special education is for teachers of the learning disabled.

In Clarkston, the list has decreased mainly because of retirements, leaves and resignations. It was at its highest in 1981 with 39 names.

"We're still losing enrollment, (but) not as much as expected," Bruce said.

Clarkston hired only three new teachers this year—a school psychologist, elementary physical education teacher and part-time elementary school foreign language teacher.

Compared to several other school districts in Oakland County, the new-hire number is low.

Bruce's list includes 15 in Waterford, 19 in Farmington, 23 in Ferndale and 25 in Royal Oak.

"Most larger school districts south of us are in the hiring position," he said. "Math and science are very scarce and it will get worse before it gets better."

In Clarkston, many teachers are nearing retirement age and some may retire sooner due to early retirement incentives approved this year by the state legislature.

"In the next five years, we're going to lose a lot of teachers," Bruce said. "The colleges aren't graduating anywhere near what they used to. It's just a very small percentage in teacher education."

Indications are, however, that many teachers are looking for jobs. In Clarkston, 819 applications are on file, but there are gaps.

"If we do have a few (applications from math teachers), the teachers are probably already taken," Bruce said.

Districts are now starting to plan recruiting for teachers at universities, he said.

"That's the first time I've heard that mentioned since I've been in this business," said Bruce, a 13-year school administrator.

School insurance costs rising

Fire Insurance Co. which extends the limit of liability and property damage coverage from $1 million to $5 million, up from $5,291 to $20,790.

Fleet insurance from the Insurance Company of North America, up from $16,693 to $50,891. The policy covers 71 vehicles including buses, driver education cars and other vehicles owned by the district. "It's the same kind of thing that you're required to have when you drive an automobile, only our liability is a little greater because of 60-kids as (bus) passengers," Jackson said.

The policies have minor changes this year and all are through the same insurance companies as last year, he said.

One change involves the addition of five multipurpose rooms and the physical education program added to the elementary schools. The addition had little effect on insurance costs, he said.

The other change is a pollution liability exclusion. The district had to sign the exclusion or purchase coverage for pollution liability in order to get insurance, Jackson said.

"Our agent didn't think it was worth the money," he said. "I don't think it's a big thing for us. That's why we went ahead and signed it. We're not Union Carbide."

Bailey's back

Fire Chief Dale Bailey, of the Independence Township Fire Department, is back on the job following major surgery.

Bailey returned to work Monday after a one-and-one-half month's absence following surgery to remove a kidney in July. He has been recuperating from the surgery at home.

During his absence, assistant chief Gar Wilson ran the department.

Bailey says he is feeling "great" and adds that he is glad to be back on the job.

"I was ready (to return to work)," he says. Any restrictions on his activities?

"Only from my wife, of course," jokes Bailey.

Programs in place, incentive money en route

By Kathy Greenfield

The paperwork is ready to receive an extra $195,000 from the state for the Clarkston school district.

On Sept. 9, the board of education unanimously approved resolutions of compliance for two incentive programs offered by the state legislature.

For Clarkston both programs were already in place, making the money a bonus of sorts.

"I'm pleased the incentive money didn't force adjustments. We were already there," said Superintendent Milford Mason after the meeting.

The money will be spread over the state aid payments received by the district every other month during the school year. The precise amount will be determined when enrollment is official following the fourth-Friday count on Sept. 27.

It includes $28 for each pupil in the district for providing a full school day for ninth- through 12th-graders. This is the second year the incentive has been in place and the second year Clarkston is to receive the money.

"The main thrust is to try to get students off the five-hour day, to try to get them to a six- or seven-hour day," Mason said. "I have to really toot our horn to this extent. In our deep money time, we didn't cut the length of the school day."

In addition, the district will receive $8.35 for each pupil enrolled for providing a teacher-pupil ratio of 1 to 25 or less in kindergarten and first grade. The incentive program is new this year.

Preliminary counts have put Clarkston's teacher-pupil ratio in the two grades at 22.4 to 1, a number Mason said he expects to stay about the same.

"Starting last January, the board had some study sessions to do what we could to try to reduce class sizes in the early grades," Mason said. "That discussion by the board took place before there was any money available."

The expected $195,000 will go into the K-12 general fund. It is an addition to the $2,916 in state aid to be received for each pupil enrolled this year. The K-12 general operating budget for the 1985-86 school year in Clarkston is $17.2 million.

The incentive payments approved by the state legislature are the result of an effort to improve education throughout Michigan. In January 1984, the legislature began working toward the goals outlined in "Better Education for Michigan Citizens: A Blueprint for Action," a report prepared by the Michigan State Board of Education.

Sandy

Carolyn
Walker

When the sun shines down onto Sashabaw Road it is nighttime in Thailand most likely. Thailand is home to Sandy now. Sashabaw used to be, when we were little.

That was back when we were braid wearing second-graders bound by a love of marbles, Nancy Drew and climbing trees.

At that time, going to Sandy's was the greatest thing that could happen in my life.

Sandy and I became best-friend tomboys over graham crackers and marble games. When she moved from our neighborhood in Sylvan Village, my mother and hers pledged to keep our friendship going across the miles.

On a regular basis, mom would make the half-hour drive to her country home so I could spend the night with my friend.

We would climb into our '55 Pontiac and listen to Frank Sinatra sing "High Hopes" over the radio en route.

A long half-hour later, when we reached the gray "haunted house" near Whipple Lake, I knew we were almost there. We'd round a curve and count the three hills which preceded her driveway before her white frame house would come into view.

Adventure always awaited this city girl at Sandy's farm. There were fields to roam, animals to watch, brothers to tease and secrets to share.

At night, we would listen to her father's even snoring, which rumbled through the house and up through the vent in her bedroom floor. Sometimes her brother's dog, Jinx, would join us when we slept.

During the day, when we would go into the basement to play, her mother would caution us not to lean on the bark-covered beams which supported the house. We could knock the house off its foundation, she would tell us.

Sandy's was where I learned to identify wheat stalks and milk snakes, dared to climb over an electric cow fence, braved a trip up the "fallen down tree" and pitched knives under the huge, landmark pine that stood in front of her house.

She was the finest friend a child could want and her farm home was equal to my childhood fantasies.

We grew and our friendship endured, as our mothers had promised, though for a time Sandy and I followed different paths.

Early in the 1960s, childhood's passing was finalized when Sandy's house burned to the ground in a quick 15 minutes.

The fire maimed, but did not destroy, the landmark pine which had overseen our adventures.

When we met again as adults, Sandy had answered the call of God. Her pursuits as a missionary led her to Thailand, where she works to teach the people of little-known tribes about Christianity.

Sometimes, now, I make the drive out Sashabaw Road and pause before the scorched landmark pine. It is all that is left of that by-gone time.

As I sit there I picture her running through the fields, her braids blowing in the wind, blue eyes shining.

The garbage monster

Kathy Greenfield

In my mind's eye, I can see the monster. It seems to do the most damage after nightfall, for sparkling mornings showcase the results.

After dark (no doubt), the creature cruises the Village of Clarkston in a much rusted junkmobile, spewing fast-food sacks, paper cups with plastic tops, hamburger wrappers and foam food containers.

Later, near the midnight hour, it roams the village streets, burping gum wrappers and cigarette butts—all brands—and regurgitating bits and pieces of cupcakes, sandwiches and such.

Finally, it visits the flower barrels lining Main Street. Unable to resist defiling natural beauty, it digs deep into the rubble-filled pockets of its soiled dungarees and selects something disgusting for each—cigar butt here, soft drink cup with drool-covered straw there, and so on.

The clock creeps to the wee hours of the morning. All is quiet. An eerie voice rings out into the night. Listen. "I love Clarkston. The atmosphere. The quaintness. The simple charm."

Out of the other side of its mouth, the monster burps again. This time a used disposable diaper drops in the parking lot.

No one can stop this massive creature and, alarmingly, no one has seen it. But its existence is without question.

More-caring creatures try to fix the damage.

They pick up the beast's rejects and carry them to trash cans located within a few steps of virtually anywhere on Main Street. Merchants get out their brooms and dust pans and sweep the sidewalks.

It is impossible to wipe out the damage.

We've heard of some women who follow the monster's trail along White Lake Road. During frequent early morning walks, they carry trash bags and quietly contribute to making it all better.

It's a shame these people are the exception. The beast is all around us. The monster is us. When will we ever learn?

Timely light

Editor and M-15 Drivers:

Hallelujah! A full traffic signal will soon be at Sashabaw and Waldon. The construction has started.

It took 3,664 signatures of frustrated drivers to get adequate attention of our county road commission to get it approved by the state highway department.

While the work is going on here, traffic on M-15 will get worse for a while. The drivers, then, should rush to sign a petition for another M-15 traffic signal—out of sheer increased anger.

Some of you all, with enough gumption, should write the petition, get it circulated and signed.

We know we surely appreciated all signatures of last winter—but we can not work at this petition like we did then, but we could help.

MDA work rewarding

To Clarkston Area Residents:

I have had the honor of being a part of the Muscular Dystrophy Association for over 20 years. For the past two years, I have directed the Clarkston area pledge center during the annual Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon.

In all honesty, the past two years surpass the previous 20 when it comes to enjoyable experiences.

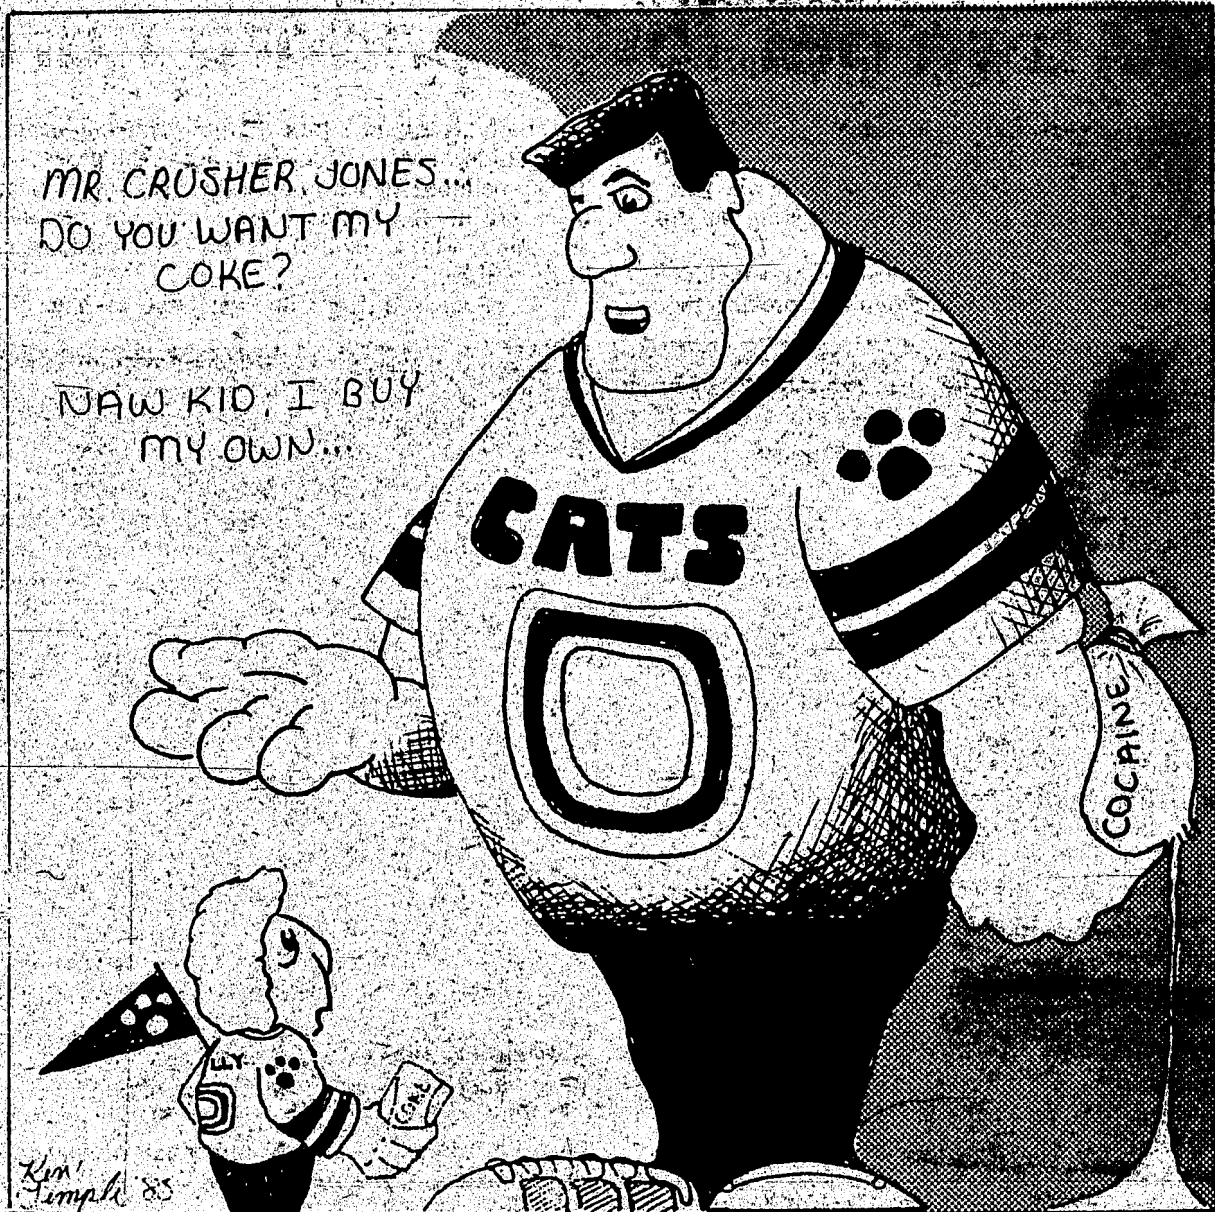

We at MDA wish to thank the residents of Clarkston and the surrounding communities for their support and pledges to help Theirs and Jerry's kids.

A special tip of the hat to John Bowman, who allowed us the use of his dealership for our pledge center and also to the employees of Bowman Chevrolet who helped answer phones and set up the center.

It is a pleasure indeed to experience the hospitality and generosity of local merchants and residents who joined together with us for a common cause.

Words alone are not quite enough. Perhaps we will be able to rejoice in the near future over a cure being found for a child-killing disease.

Make believe phone makes sense

Jim Fitzgerald

"Here, it's for you," Emily said, handing me her shoe.

It was embarrassing. Just a few seconds earlier, I'd been pushing a Goodyear tire with Evita Adora stuffed inside it, out of sight, and now I was talking into a shoe. We were in a park, and strangers could see us.

Wherever we go, unless it's snowing, Emily takes her shoes and socks off. This was a horribly humid day, and she also wanted to shed her shirt. I hesitated because I wasn't sure her mother would approve of her romping topless in public. I told Emily about my doubts.

"Give me a break," she said, "I'm only a little kid."

And I'm only a grandfather. The shirt came off. Adults who play with a three-year-old should always play by the child's rules. It is healthy exercise for the imagination. I'd rather stretch my world than my muscles any day.

Several years before Emily was born, there was a TV sitcom starring a spy whose right shoe was a phone. Her parents say Emily never saw "Get Smart" in reruns, so I guess she noticed for herself that a shoe is shaped something like a phone.

Emily answered the shoe almost before it rang. Holding the open side of the shoe against her chest so the caller couldn't overhear, she asked me if I wanted to talk to my wife. I grabbed the shoe. We'd been in the park for two hours and I was more than ready to go home. I figured this was my chance to be devious.

"You say we have to come right home because dinner is ready?" I said into the shoe, "OK, we're on our way."

"Give me that shoe," Emily interrupted, and snatched it from my hand. "We can't come home right now, Grandma," Emily said with her nose under the Velcro strap, "Evita Adora wants to swing some more."

Evita-Adora is a Cabbage Patch doll. When people ask what the doll's name is, Emily always heads off the inevitable second question by saying: "Evita-Adora-she-came-with-that-name."

Anyway, before that day, neither Evita Adora nor Emily had seen a swing made the old-fashioned way—out of a car tire. Evita Adora was especially pleased because her hands are small and she has a tough time holding on to the chains while being pushed on a modern swing. She rode snug and safe inside the tire and didn't have to worry about falling.

And that's why, on Sept. 4, 1985, several people went home from the playground next to the Belle Isle Zoo and told their incredulous families that they'd seen a crazy old guy pushing an empty tire and talking into a small shoe.

It isn't always just Emily, Evita Adora and me. Sometimes Michael James comes along, with me pushing him in Emily's old stroller. Michael James is the size of an average six-month-old baby and is always fully clothed in the latest infant fashions. People we pass in the park often smile kindly at the grandfather and his two pretty grandchildren.

Or they gasp if they're looking when Emily instructs me to carry Michael James because she is carrying Evita Adora, and I pick him up with one hand, by the head.

But even though Michael James is only a doll, I'm not always careless of his physical well-being. Whenever he's in the car, for instance, I fasten his seat belt. Otherwise, Emily refuses to go with us, and that wouldn't be any fun. I'd rather leave home without Karl Malden and everybody else in the world.

150 turn out for Thendara Park road meeting

By Carolyn Walker

It was standing room only for nearly 150 residents of the Thendara Park subdivision who turned out for a road improvement meeting at Independence Township Hall Sept. 10.

The general information meeting also included some township officials in addition to representatives of Hubble, Roth and Clark, the township engineers.

Residents of the subdivision are in the process of having petitions signed to have their roads converted from private to public status, according to Steve Wicklund, who described the two-hour meeting as "very positive."

A previous attempt one year ago to have the roads converted "stalled," Wicklund said, adding that residents have resumed their efforts to make the change.

While most residents seemed in favor of the change, approximately four citizens raised questions about how the change would affect the value of their homes, said township Treasurer John Lutz said.

If converted to public, the roads will be maintained by Oakland County. Before the conversion, they must be upgraded and paved under a special assessment.

"Private roads must first be brought up to full county standards at the expense of the people," Wicklund said.

The roads cannot be made public until petitions representing 51 percent of the total property owners and 51 percent of the owners abutting the roads have been accepted by the township.

Once that has happened, the project must then be submitted to the county for consideration, Wicklund said.

Approximately 263 property owners would be affected by the change, which includes some five miles of roadway in the subdivision and on Algonquin Road.

Cost estimates for the entire project, including drainage improvements, curbing and blacktop are $1.5 million, Wicklund said.

Residents could be special assessed for the project over 10 years, he said, adding that the expense to the average property owner would be $5,703.42.

All property owners with less than 191.7 feet of property would be assessed $5,314, he added.

Signatures must still be obtained from residents representing six streets before the petitions can be reviewed, Wicklund said.

"We're out getting signatures right now," he said. "I think it's just a matter of time."

Estimates are that it will take approximately 13 months to complete the conversion, Wicklund said.

Karen MacAlpine, chairperson for the project, could not be reached for comment.

Springfield Township to act on tax Oct. 9

Millage increase plan draws residents' ideas

By Dan Vandenhemel

Over 40 Springfield Township residents filled the township hall Sept. 11 to share ideas about a proposed property tax increase.

The public hearing was held to discuss the millage rates for the fire, police and general funds. Currently the rates are 1 mill for the fire department, 1.6 mills for police protection and 1 mill for the general fund.

The proposed increases are 2 mills for the police and 1.41 mills in the general fund. The fire would stay the same.

One mill is $1 for every $1,000 of assessed property valuation.

If the new levels were adopted, taxpayers would pay an average of a 2-percent increase.

The current rate for police coverage does not cover the cost of the four Oakland County Sheriff deputies that patrol the township. The cost per deputy is slightly more than $56,000, which includes vehicles, equipment and supervision.

Some of residents criticized the amount of police coverage the township gets.

"How can we justify an increase if we never see them patrol?" asked Don Hessler of Waunegah Road.

The four deputies cover 20 of the 21 shifts during the week. One patrol car covers the township during the shift.

The raise in the general fund would go toward township road repairs.

Some of the residents were not happy with the current condition of the roads and also the work that has been done in the past.

"The taxes we pay now should pay to keep the roads up," Bob Wilton of Rattalee Lake Road said. "Why should we have to pay more?"

JoAnn Sprague of Bridge Lake Road said the only way to improve some of the roads is to pave them.

After the meeting, Supervisor Collin Walls said he couldn't speculate on the other board members' opinions but he felt there would be some increase.

"At least in my opinion, the police millage can't stay at the 1.6 it is now," he said. "There was a lot of mixed emotions at the meeting.

"The bottom line is things aren't going to get better unless you pay for them."

The township board will weigh all the comments and make a decision at its October 9 meeting, Walls said.

Ownership of Pinehurst Bridge still unknown

By Carolyn Walker

A recent title search into the ownership of the Pinehurst Bridge has uncovered some clues but no known owner of the bridge.

The final key to the years-old puzzle may lie in an unplatted road, cut across a private park in Clarkston Estates Subdivision, according to village President Carol Eberhardt.

The road through the park runs between Park Lane and Pinehurst Street, which the bridge crosses.

If the owner of the road in the park can be determined, the ownership of the adjoining bridge may be determined.

To that end, on Sept. 9 the village council asked attorney John Steckling to further investigate the issue.

According to Eberhardt, the "officialness" of the road through the park is in question because it has never been platted.

Old, unspecified laws may make whoever maintains the road the responsible party, she says.

The private park is jointly owned by residents of the subdivision near Middle Lake Road.

For over 10 years, village officials and residents of the subdivision have been debating ownership of the 50-year-old timber bridge for purposes of maintenance and repair work. All agree that the bridge is in disrepair.

Saying the village owns the bridge, Pinehurst Road resident Bud Campbell, 75, has asked the council several times to make repairs to the bridge, Eberhardt says.

Campbell says he is too old to continue its upkeep, she adds.

The council, on the other hand, contends that the bridge is privately owned and that taxpayers' money cannot be used for improvements.

Rather than allow the debate to go on, council members decided to have a title search done this fall.

In August, JCK and Associates, consulting engineers for the Village of Clarkston, completed the title search.

According to a letter from JCK to Eberhardt, Oakland County records show the roads in the subdivision were dedicated as public roads in 1964.

"In this document, all streets within Clarkston Estates were made public, including Park Lane," the letter says. "It will be up to your attorney to decide whether this includes that portion of Pinehurst Street which goes through the private park."

The question is whether or not the dedication included the unplatted road through the park, says Eberhardt, adding, "The way it looks now, it's still all private."

Council members declined any action on the issue directing the village attorney to investigate whether or not the unplatted road was part of the public dedication.

Drainage plaguing project

Drainage problems are still plaguing the Ritter house project but appear to be under control, says Village Council President Carol Eberhardt.

The council, Independence Township Building and Planning Director Kenneth Delbridge, house owners Hank and Jennifer Radcliff and others took a brief on-site tour of the house before being rained out Sept. 9.

At the meeting, which reconvened at the village hall, the council determined the Radcliffs had met the conditions of their $25,000 performance bond and that the bond would not be forfeited, Eberhardt said.

Last year, the Ritter house was moved from Dixie Highway to its current location on Main Street in the village.

New owners, the Radcliffs, are renovating the historical building for office use.

They have placed straw bales along the property in an effort to curb the drainage problems, which result in water running onto the property of the Main Street Antiques building, according to Eberhardt.

The village engineer and Delbridge believe the drainage system will work when grass, a central ingredient to its success, has grown in, Eberhardt said.

"Hopefully, with what he's done . . . the drainage problem will be solved," she said following the meeting. "Right now it's difficult to judge if the system is working."

Wolves stay undefeated

By Dan Vandenhemel

The Wolves are off and running with a 3-0 start. The girls' basketball program at Clarkston High School usually has a strong winning tradition. So, winning the first three games of any particular season shouldn't be out of the ordinary, right?

Wrong. Since Dave McDonald took over as coach in 1978, the Wolves have never done it before. He's trying to keep everything in perspective.

"I'm telling the girls not to get too high over this because that makes the bottom too far down," he said after the team's third victory.

The Wolves squeaked by Rochester Adams, 46-44, in their first game at home, Sept. 12. They had already beaten Rochester, 53-49, and West Bloomfield, 60-54.

Leading the pack for the Wolves is senior forward Michelle Taulbee. She is averaging over 18 points a game and that's with only a nine-point effort against Adams. She recorded duplicate numbers in the first two games, 23 points and 15 rebounds.

"I warned her that other teams were going start guarding her closer," McDonald said.

McDonald is quick to point out the 3-0 start is not all Taulbee's doing. Junior guard Sue Lovelady has averaged over 11 points a game and junior forward Missy O'Dell is also ringing up some impressive numbers.

"She's averaging 13 rebounds. And against West Bloomfield she had 12 points and 20 rebounds," McDonald said. "Melanie Upcott did a great job off the bench against Adams and had nine points. This team has a lot of character. We were down 20-10 early in the second quarter against Adams and came back to trail by one at half time."

A girls' team averaging 53 points a game early in the season has McDonald astonished.

"You see a lot of first games and they're 33-32, 40-35," he said. "I think we're going to get better as the season goes on. We've got a lot of potential, but you're always hearing about potential. We're riding a pretty good clip right now. I'll take it while we can get it."

Wolverines maul Cougars

By Dan Vandenhemel

It was more like a track meet than a football game as both Clarkston and Sashabaw junior high ran up and down the field all night.

Unfortunately for the Sashabaw Cougars, they were chasing the Wolverines. Clarkston trounced Sashabaw, 49-14, Sept. 11.

The Wolverines rang up 327 yards in total offense with the bulk coming on the ground, 237 yards.

And the Wolverines weren't too greedy. They split the work load up between Neville LaMotte (58 yards), Mark Hetherington (48), Rob Brown (45) and Erik Mackson (42).

LaMotte led the parade into the end zone with three touchdowns. The other four came from Kevin Dunlop, Brown, Brad Erickson and Hetherington.

"I was surprised how easy we were able to move the ball," Wolverine coach Dave Smith said. "I had heard Sashabaw had a great defense. We moved the ball pretty much all night long."

Smith feels his team has a more balanced offense than just the rushing team. Quarterback Scott Oppman totaled 90 yards passing.

This is the second straight game the Wolverines have buried their opponents. They beat Lakeland, 40-0, in the opening game.

"I had a feeling we were a good team, but I'm not really sure how good we are," Smith said. "I know Sashabaw's a better team (than the score indicates). We made a couple of mistakes and it cost us two touchdowns."

"But when we got up 17-0, I knew it would be hard for them to come back," he added. "They're not the type of team to score a lot of points. I think they pride themselves on having a good defense. We just wore them down."

Sports

Sue Lovelady looks a little crowded by a Rochester Adams basketball player, but not enough to stop her from scoring 11 points and dishing out six assists in the Wolves' victory.

The Sashabaw Cougars made little progress against the Clarkston Wolverines. The Wolverine defense shut down the Cougars for most of the game, while their offense kept busy pushing up the score to a 49-14 victory in the season's first football contest between the schools.

Firsts fill CJH-SJH basketball rivalry

By Dan Vandenhemel

A couple of firsts came up at the Clarkston-Sashabaw junior high basketball game.

The first involved the coaches. Sashabaw's coach Jayne Bannister played for Clarkston coach Denny Bronson 12 years ago. Bronson said he never had to coach against a former player before.

The second was a record-breaking 33 points scored for Clarkston by Jenny Grohs during the 48-32 victory by the Wolverines.

Grohs, a transfer student from the Waterford Township school system, broke the record first set by Annette Ulasich and later matched by Michelle Baker.

"She's been playing since the third grade," Bronson said. "The Waterford basketball program begins long before ours—of course the players are going to be better. We just have to try and make the best of what we've got, and usually our program is pretty good."

The ninth-grader had help with the scoring against the Cougars from Deanna Green, who had nine points.

Leading scorers for the Sashabaw Cougars were Kelly Avenall with 13 and Karrie Woolley with 12.

"My girls learned a lot from that game," first-year coach Bannister said of the contest against Clarkston. "Both teams played hard but we didn't come together until late in the game. They learned you can't take anything for granted."

Neither coach took for granted the other team's coach.

When girls' basketball began in the Clarkston school district in the 1974-75 school year, Bronson took the helm of the Wolverines and has been there ever since. On that first team was Jayne Lafnear.

"The girls use to call her Moose," Bronson said. "I'm not really sure why. All the girls came up with nicknames in the seventh and eighth grades and that just stuck. She was kind of tall. I bet she's really going to appreciate I said that."

Bronson said he had hoped for a close game. "I really like coaching against her," he said. "But once the game goes on, I don't think about it."

New coach is part of team

By Dan Vandenhemel

Welcome to the world of coaching basketball.

Jayne Bannister is the new coach of the Sashabaw Junior High girls' basketball team. The second game her team played was against cross-town rival Clarkston Junior High. CJH just happens to be the school Bannister went to and played basketball for under current coach Denny Bronson.

Despite losing to the Wolverines, 48-32, Bannister liked coaching against her former coach.

"This is the first time I've coached anything," she said. "The first game I was thrilled to death. I had so many goose bumps. It was fun. I really wanted to win."

Sashabaw Junior High is the first teaching assignment for Bannister, a special education instructor. She graduated from Clarkston High School in 1978 and went on to graduate from Central Michigan University in 1982. She and her husband, Bill, live in Grand Blanc.

What the 25-year-old Bannister brings to the court is her knowledge of the game and that of her past coaches.

"I always knew I'd be coaching some day," she said. "Some of these girls have never touched a basketball before. But it's fun teaching them the game. I have to be pretty basic sometimes."

During a practice, it's not uncommon to see Bannister playing offense or defense, or leading the pack in laps around the gym.

"It helps me keep in shape, mentally and physically," she said. "I think it helps to show the girls I'm not just a instructor but a demonstrator."

Jayne Bannister even participates in practices with her girls' basketball team.

Sashabaw and Clarkston junior high basketball players go up for the ball, but only one comes down with it. This time, the Wolverines win, 48-32.

CHS starts 3-1

Golfers swinging into season

By Dan Vandenhemel

There's a lot more to golf than swinging a club at a little ball and the player with fewest strokes wins.

Clarkston High School golf coach Jim Chamberlain says players have to work at the game and be mentally prepared to play.

This year the Wolves have a 3-1 record but Chamberlain said they are not playing good golf.

"I don't think many of the players worked all that hard on it over the summer," he said. "Some of the kids are treating it as a recreation. They're really unaware that at this level, golf is very competitive."

The Wolves beat Romeo, 171-179; Waterford Mott, 165-168; and Lapeer East, 165-169, before losing to Waterford Kettering, 167-175.

"Shooting 160 for a team makes you a good average team," Chamberlain said. "Someone like Brother Rice is at 145 or under 150. That's outstanding."

The Wolves' best golfer is Gunnar Karlstrom. He's averaging just over 39 in the four rounds to date. Chamberlain says he can tell Karlstrom had a busy summer.

"He's the only one that's taken a lot of time to work on the game," the coach said. "Players should be on the putting green for an hour, or hitting 100 balls with the four iron and then hitting another 100 with the six iron."

Karlstrom is the only returning golfer from the Wolves' state final team of a year ago. Three of the graduated golfers are going on with the playing careers in college. Rich Lay is in the PGA school at Ferris State College, Steve Willis is trying out for the golf team at the University of Michigan and Chris Hunter is trying to make the squad at Michigan State University.

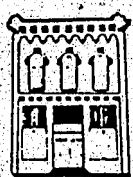

"This year's team isn't playing as well as last year's team yet. We have to develop some consistency," Chamberlain said.

The practice putting green fills up with activity before a Clarkston High School match. Ken Mercier takes careful aim during the practice while his teammates work in the background.

Up My Alley

First annual

Dan Vandenhemel

This is going to be pretty ugly. It's going to be a genuine imitation column on piglets.

Piglets are unnecessary verbiage in sentences. At least that's what radio station WRIF's morning personalities J.J. and the Morning Crew call them.

Jim Johnson and George Baier, the voice of characters Richard T. Bruiser, George Fell and Al Foulne among others, came up with the definition last week during their 6 to 10 a.m. air time.

J.J. and The Morning Crew say they will eventually write a book about them. Well, I'm just trying to help the cause.

Some examples of piglets are "pretty ugly" and "genuine imitation." Between listeners and the two disc jockeys, they came up with quite an impressive list.

Take a look at these: a semi-boneless ham, as the Bruiser described it, "either it has a bone or it doesn't"; a whole half-chicken; hot water heater; first annual; jumbo shrimp; pre-recorded; irregardless; and tuna fish.

There are also "new and improved" as opposed to "new and worse off"; dry gas; evaporated milk; the permanent press setting on an iron; and a neighborhood garage sale.

Johnson and Baier have been at WRIF since July 16, 1979, and in those six years, they have done many things to get listeners to respond. Everything from Detroit Tiger teaser questions to their annual go-cart race in conjunction with the Detroit Grand Prix.

By the way, I've never been able to get through to them about the go-cart races.

Getting back to the piglets, I guess they are related to sniglets. They are special words made up for unnamed things, similar to the last picture on a roll of film that you waste just to finish the roll. Johnson wasn't sure what the word is for that particular thing, and I'm even less sure.

For two days, Johnson and Baier were asking listeners to help out with their list of piglets. If any reader has others, I'm sure they would like to hear about them.

Others could be military intelligence, reasonable work hours, rich reporter and good morning. There have to be thousands of phrases that fall into this category but the lack of space, time and imagination do not permit them all to be printed.

Accident claims township man

Leo Edward Sweat, 67, was killed following a chain of accidents on M-15 in Independence Township at 5:27 p.m. Friday.

Sweat, an Independence Township resident, was driving on M-15 near Hubbard Road when his 1983 vehicle left the road, striking a tree.

After hitting the tree, Sweat emerged from the car and walked into the path of a southbound car on M-15 driven by Oxford resident Kelly Boatright.

Sweat was slightly injured when struck by Boatright, according to an Oakland County Sheriff's report.

While being assisted by Boatright, Sweat bolted from her and was struck by another car driven by Sharon Bond, 31, of Ortonville, the report said.

Sweat was pronounced dead at the scene. According to Kim Rossman, traffic officer for the sheriff's department, it was the second fatal accident to occur at that site in three months.

Alcohol was not a factor in the accident and no tickets were issued, the report said.

Prevent Colds & Infections With Vitamin C

Vitamin C can help defend us against viruses and bacteria, plus reduce the symptoms and duration of any infection. Some animals produce vitamin C internally, in the liver or kidney's although humans do not. The amount of Vitamin C found in the average diet is nowhere near the amount we require for optimal health. If we attempted to obtain all our C from dietary sources we would quickly consume enough calories to make us obese.

Dr. Pauling recommends that all adults take a preventive dose of 10 grams (10,000 milligrams) of Vitamin C daily. In his research, Dr. Pauling has discovered that high doses of C could destroy harmful microbes. Vitamin C comes in tablets, capsules, crystals and liquid form. We carry all kinds. Natural sources of Vitamin C are, tomatoes, citrus fruits, rose hips, corn, broccoli, etc.

CHS celebrates 25th homecoming

Editor's note: This is the first in a series of four articles on Clarkston High School's Homecoming prepared by members of the CHS student council.

By Cheryl Andryco

Special to The Clarkston News

The homecoming at Clarkston High School is special this year. It commemorates the opening of the new high school 25 years ago.

In 1960, the old high school, which is now Clarkston Junior High, was replaced with a new and bigger edition, CHS.

There have been many changes in the last 25 years at CHS. For example, six years after the opening of the high school, due to the growing number of students, a new addition was built in the back of the school. The range of grades changed, too, from nine-12 to 10-12.

Homecoming has also changed through the years. Floats and a parade have been replaced by the field day competitions. Having a homecoming king in addition to a queen is a fairly recent change.

But one thing has remained the same: There is still a semi-formal homecoming dance for the students to enjoy on the Saturday following the game.

The homecoming activities this year begin on Sept. 27 with a pre-tapping assembly to select candidates for the homecoming court. The final tapping assembly will be held Oct. 4 and on Oct. 18 the full assembly will be held.

This assembly, or field day, will consist of activities in which each class competes for a trophy including the Powder Puff Tug-o-War. A presentation of the homecoming court in their formals concludes the assembly.

The student council at Clarkston High School is hard at work on preparations to make this year's homecoming a memorable one.

The theme we have chosen is "Back in Time." Current projects range from a line of former queens to a decorated platform at the game.

The homecoming football game is Friday, Oct. 18, at 7 p.m. The student council will hold an informal reception at the field for all alumni. Refreshments will be served.

An exhibit of CHS's past 25 years with pictures, game scores, old faces, etc., will be on display.

We are looking forward to a terrific homecoming this year, so come out and support your alma mater!

Students work toward silver anniversary

Under the direction of chairpersons Cheryl Andryco and Maggie Sans, a CHS Student Council committee of eight is at work writing a series of four articles for The Clarkston News.

Their topic is homecoming, an event they plan to make better than ever this year in celebration of their building's 25th anniversary.

"We need a lot of publicity if we want it to go over," says Cheryl, a senior at CHS and secretary of the student council. Maggie is CHS junior.

Two members of the committee have been assigned to write each article—and Cheryl says she's excited about the work that's being done.

Next week, the topic is teachers who have taught all 25 years at CHS. Work is under way on a story about homecoming queens featuring the queen from 25 years ago and there will be a story about the 25-year history of homecomings at CHS.

"This is what homecoming needs to (get) off the ground," says Cheryl. "I feel like I'm making it start happening. It's turning out good, I'm having fun, I like it."

Cheryl also wants to make sure some credit for the homecoming writing project goes to the teacher-advisers for student council, Mike Kaul and Cheryl Seelbinder.

"Mr. Kaul and Miss Seelbinder, they're really enthused about it," she says. "They've come up with a lot of great ideas and they're doing a lot."

CHS senior Cheryl Andryco is co-chair of the student council committee writing stories about homecoming for The Clarkston News.

Enrich yourself

A preview of the Fall Enrichment Classes being offered at all the elementary and junior high schools in Clarkston will be shown on Channel 11 cable TV this week.

The program will feature highlights of several of the classes, information concerning field trips and registration schedules. The classes are offered by Clarkston Community Education.

The shows are broadcast from the Clarkston studio of Tribune/United Cable Communications.

Programs on cable Channel 11 begin at 7 p.m. weekdays only. Other times, the station features a billboard with community service announcements and the schedule of the evening programs, updated daily at 2 p.m.

Crafty seniors needed

Senior citizens with art and craft talents are wanted for the Camp Fire North Oakland's Oweki Fest on Saturday, Oct. 19.

The craft tent has spaces available for the seniors to sell their wares. For rental information, call Barbara Burge at 625-5975.

The Oweki Fest is planned from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. at Camp Oweki located off Waldon Road west of Sashabaw Road in Independence Township.

Festival kicks off this Friday

Clarkston's Depot Park comes alive this weekend with Crafts & Cider '85 on Friday, Saturday and Sunday. Hours are noon to 6 p.m. each day.

The 11th annual Clarkston Community Historical Society fund-raiser features the works of 75 artists and craftspersons—and much more.

Fourteen free walking tours conducted by society members will wind through the Village of Clarkston from 1 to 4 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. Participants must sign up for tours, which have a maximum of 15 persons, at the festival.

Four cable TV programs produced during the past year by society members will be available for viewing at the park.

During the festival, a program for cable TV will be taped. It will include on-the-spot interviews of craftspersons and fair-goers.

Fresh cider and donuts will be sold by the society as well as stationery featuring Clarkston homes, a full color poster of architectural highlights of Clarkston and the "Heritage" book about the community's history.

Food items sold by five civic groups include honey, herbal teas, hot and cold sandwiches, baked goods and apple products.

For the society's annual drawing, a maximum of 1,600 tickets will be sold. Prizes include an overnight stay at the National House-Inn-in Marshall for bed and breakfast, a $50 gift certificate for the Clarkston Cafe, four tickets for Sunday brunch at the Deer Lake Racquet Club, a decorative-decoy duck from Aura Fine Arts, pottery by Chris Anthony who has appeared regularly at Crafts & Cider and 12 items donated by the historical society ranging from notecards to "Heritage" books.

Volunteers Betty Smith and Sharron Catallo, both Clarkston residents, were responsible for the selections for the drawing.

"They're all going to be fun things and there are enough of them so you have a good chance of winning," said Sharron.

"We wanted it to be something people will be interested in," added Betty.

Clarkston Area Youth Assistance recalls 'good' year

Awards given, officers named at luncheon

By Kathy Greenfield

Comments on their work to prevent juvenile delinquency and the introduction of new officers highlighted the annual Clarkston Area Youth Assistance luncheon.

About 70 people attended the hour-long event Sept. 16 at the Clarkston United Methodist Church.

The new officers, introduced by outgoing chairperson Ken Leslie, are Chairperson Betty Kozma, Vice Chairperson Janet Rose, Treasurer Kay Robertson and Secretary Jackie Fromm.

Leslie also talked about the February visit of substance abuse crusader David Toma to Clarkston High School.

"I can think of no finer reward than you and I can say, 'We helped keep a kid out of Jackson Prison.'"

—Judge Eugene Moore

"We had a good year, '84-85, and one good thing that took place was the Toma Experience. As you know, we co-sponsored it with the Clarkston Area Chemical People," he said. "I saw the Clarkston community really come alive to the problem."

The Chemical People have since joined Youth Assistance as a subcommittee. Of the $20,000 raised to fight substance abuse in conjunction with Toma's visit, $12,000 remains. The money will be used to continue the battle, Leslie said, and will be kept in a separate account for that purpose.

"It is a very, very important program that goes on in our community," he said.

In addition, Leslie spoke about the PLUS (People Listening, Understanding, Sharing) program, which is similar to Big Brother/Big Sister.

"We need male volunteers. I can't emphasize that enough," he said. "It's not only a problem in our community, it's countywide."

Praise for Youth Assistance came from Oakland County Probate Judge Eugene Moore, the luncheon speaker.

He called Youth Assistance, an Oakland County program with branches throughout the county, "more successful than any other program I know that works in the area of prevention of juvenile delinquency."

Eighty-five percent of the youngsters who are helped by Youth Assistance following police contact do not end up in Juvenile Court for repeat offenses, he said.

"I can assure you it is worth it with an 85 percent success rate of keeping a child out of court by what you do," he said. "I can think of no finer reward than you and I can say, 'We helped keep a kid out of Jackson Prison.'"

In the Clarkston school district, Youth Assistance programs last year included counseling for 47 youngsters by social worker Garry Pullins, financial aid to send 103 people to camp, a Youth Recognition Banquet to honor 26 youngsters who contributed to the community, career exploration with a field trip for 42 junior high school students, shoplifting prevention with a program for all fifth-graders in the school district and two family education sessions.

All members of Youth Assistance are volunteers. On staff, paid by Oakland County, are the social worker and a part-time secretary.

Youth Assistance programs are funded mainly by donations from Independence and Springfield townships, the Village of Clarkston and the Clarkston school district and the annual Bowlathon fund raiser.

Last year, $15,415 of the $20,074 cash-budget was spent, leaving $2,519 in the camp fund and $1,979 in the general fund.

Outgoing Clarkston Area Youth Assistance chairperson Ken Leslie was presented an engraved plaque with a golden-colored gavel at the organization's annual luncheon. After the

Different technology seen in rural community

Growing up in a rural community, technology, and all the wonderful things that go with it, was a world away. Sure, we had indoor plumbing, electricity, and color television on which to view the two stations that broadcast to the area.

We also had a dishwasher (with two legs-me), and country air-conditioning. (Having a pig farm down the road conditions the air in a way most city folks will never understand.)

However, garages with doors that opened automatically, microwaves, video cassette recorders and computers were as foreign as the idea that people could mow their lawn with something less than a John Deere.

When I left the nest, and started my own in a place where it was possible to have a pizza delivered after 10:00 P.M., I followed my older sister's examples and purchased some "hi-tech" appliances. Nothing too fancy mind you—just a microwave with a timer and intensity dial, a 47 speed blender, and a VCR allegedly so simple that even a two-year-old could figure out how to record "World News Tonight" next weekend.

I am pleased to say that I have mastered the microwave, and can now scorch food with the best of them. The blender was a bit more difficult, I never knew whether to puree, whip, or frappe, the banana, but have managed to make milkshakes anyway. The VCR is quite another story, I fear anything with more buttons on it than a shirt.

Friday night found me very tired, with a strong desire to watch "Dallas," and to get in bed before 8 P.M. With my husband miles away and the nearest two-year-old down the street, I was left alone to figure out how to use the VCR.

Armed with a 44 page manual written in French and English and a blank tape, I sat down on the floor beside it. If nothing else, perhaps we could at least be friends.

I looked at the VCR. It looked at me. I told it what I wanted it to do, it gave me a look blanker than the tape. I told it what I wanted it to do in French, it winked its digital indicator panel lights back at me. This was not going to be easy.

With the "Dallas" hour fast approaching and my bedtime-hour fast slipping away, I put pride aside and called up a few friends with VCRs. Two of them had a different brand and couldn't help at all. My engineering friend was out for the evening, according to a perky voice on the automatic phone answering machine. I left a message to call if he returned before 9 p.m. Anyone that can figure out how to use an answering machine can certainly figure out a VCR.

With only twenty minutes left, I tackled the recording project with renewed vigor. I hooked up the auxiliary charging connector, the video input connector, the audio input connector and the VHF connecting cable, and told it with all those cords the least it could do was record.

It did nothing.

So, I suggested that with all those cords, the least it could do was hang itself. It did nothing. I read it the nineteen easy steps for setting the timer, in French and English. It did nothing. I tried to follow the nineteen easy

A Clarkston area resident and Waterford Kettering High School Media Specialist, Condon won the award for her work on an Oakland County Parks and Recreation Commission series, "Around the Year... We're Right Here."

In addition, Condon has been responsible for about 35 programs which have been cablecast on community access channels throughout Oakland County. She has written scripts, directed, handled cameras and edited.

"Expanding Career Options," another series she directed and produced, was selected earlier this year to be shown at a Detroit Area Film Teachers Conference.

Toma to visit

Substance abuse crusader David Toma, who spoke at Clarkston High School in February, is coming to Lake Orion.

As in Clarkston, Toma plans to present programs for students. His talk for parents, planned Tuesday, Oct. 1, at 7:30 p.m. at Lake Orion High School, is open to the public.

Tickets may be picked up at the Lake Orion Township Library-Main Branch, 845 S. Lapeer Rd., from 9:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. on Sept. 27-29. There is a limit of four. Special groups may contact Roz Mermell at 391-1416.

In conjunction with Toma's visit, a substance abuse seminar is planned Sept. 24 from 7 to 9:30 p.m. at the Lake Orion Middle School. For more information, call Mermell or Tim Fagan at 693-6271.

Football laundry

Football season means lots of action in the laundry room as well as on the field.

But getting the mud, grass stains and blood out of uniforms doesn't have to be a major production. Elaine Glasser, Oakland County Extension home economist, says understanding the various types of stains and their treatments can save time and money.

"Mud stains are complex stains," Glasser says. "First, brush to remove dried-on mud. Then soak in cold water and rinse out as much dirt as possible before washing."

"Wash in warm water with heavy detergent and normal agitation. Rinse in cold water. Repeat if necessary."

Grass stains are dye stains. Glasser advises pre-treating by rubbing heavy duty liquid detergent into the dry fabric. Then wash in warm water, using an all fabric bleach and regular detergent.

If both mud and grass stains are present, presoak in cold water before doing anything else.

Blood stains are protein stains, Glasser says. Soak and rub in cold water before washing. Hot water will cook this stain permanently in the fabric. Normally, cold water will soften these stains if they are fresh. If they are old, detergent or an enzyme soak may be helpful.

Basketball deadline

The deadline to register for the fall recreation basketball league is drawing near.

The games are played Wednesdays at Clarkston High School at 6:30 and 7:30 p.m.

Four leagues are available: men's 30 and over; men's 6-foot and under, men's open and women's open.

Pat Brumback takes office

New SCAMP director named

By Carolyn Walker

Pat Brumback, who has devoted much of her working life to children with special needs, has been named the new director of Clarkston SCAMP.

A special education teacher with the Clarkston school district, Brumback will replace James Butzine, who resigned this year to pursue a private social work practice.

Brumback, wife of Clarkston's Special Education Director Robert Brumback, has been a teacher with SCAMP since its inception 10 years ago.

Among her new responsibilities will be interviewing and hiring staff, working with fund raisers and tailoring the program to meet the needs of students.

SCAMP is a five-week summer day camping program for children and young adults with handicapping conditions or other special needs.

Held at Sashabaw Junior High School and Independence Oaks County Park, SCAMP enriches the lives of approximately 200 northern Oakland County students each year by providing camping, educational and hands-on experiences for the campers.

Brumback, 35, sees her role as director as a continuation of her role as teacher.

"We have a big commitment to help those kids," she says. "It has to be the kind of program that can be flexible enough to meet the needs of the community."

Included in her goals for SCAMP are plans to continue with the preschool program and to start a program for group home residents and adults over 26 years old.

SCAMP, she says, plays an important role in the continuing education of impaired youngsters as well as helping preschool students cope with the challenges of school.

An Independence Township resident, Brumback brings years of experience and an extensive education to the job.

She has a bachelor's degree in special education

(specializing in emotionally impaired students) and elementary education from Michigan State University.

In addition, she has 40 graduate hours in administration and a master's degree in early childhood education.

Her goals include working on a doctorate.

Brumback says Butzine left "big shoes to fill" and praises him for a job well done. She also credits her associate Greg Seaman, SCAMP staff and the community for the success of SCAMP, which is funded entirely by donations.

"If there wasn't a Clarkston, there wouldn't be a SCAMP," she says. "I feel like we see the cream of the crop."

Costume. Costume.

Wherefore art thou?

A fashion show of costumes from Meadow Brook Theater performances and scenes from "Romeo and Juliet," the theater's opening play, are part of Luncheon on the Aisle.

The sole fund raiser by the Meadow Brook Theater Guild is to begin at noon Friday, Oct. 4, at the Meadow Brook Theater on the Oakland University campus. The luncheon menu includes chicken croissant, fruit compote, Greek salad and petite pastry.

Tickets are $13, with a discount available for groups of 25 or more. The deadline for reservations is Sept. 27.

For further information, call Anne Parsons at 651-0889 or 370-3316.

Patricia Brumback has been named the new director of Clarkston SCAMP.

Tickets benefit club

Tickets are for sale for "Day in the Country," the annual fashion show of the Lake Orion Women's Club.

The luncheon is planned Thursday, Sept. 26, at noon at Addison Oaks, 1480 W. Romeo Rd., Addison Township.

The $10 ticket donation benefits the club's scholarship fund.

Reservations must be made before Sept. 14. Call 391-1549, 693-2296 or 693-2666.

Could past drug experience still affect you?

Dear Cat Paw:

I'm writing about a letter and your response that was printed in the July 17 issue of The Clarkston News.

Yes, I believe parents have an obligation to monitor their children when it comes to drugs or alcohol, but they need to be honest about it.

What if nothing is found by the snooping parents? The parents would feel satisfied, but the children would think they weren't trusted.

Bad feelings might grow between the "good" kids and their parents. I feel all solid relationships are formed with trust, not deceit.

Kids have rights, too.

Former Kid, Future Parent

Dear Former Kid, Future Parent:

The statistics point to 93 percent of our kids being involved with drugs. Therefore, "good" kids use and/or experiment with drugs.

I personally believe that more than 7 percent of our youth is "good." Last February, I met a lot of great kids at CHS who were and some unfortunately still are into drugs.

Drugs get a hold on people without them realizing what is happening. Drugs cloud reality. The user uses deceit and any other method to continue using drugs.

Parents should control what goes on in their homes. Kids do have rights, but those rights do not include creating turmoil within the family or using drugs.

By the time parents suspect drug abuse in their home, as the parent did in the letter of reference, the user has created turmoil within the family unit and exhibited bizarre behavior.

I still believe parents not only have the right but also the obligation to go through their kids' stuff if they suspect drugs. The alternative is too great to discard. If a parent is educated on drugs and knows what to look for, it isn't that difficult to confirm drug abuse.

The abuser is unable to help himself and needs professional help along with the entire family.

Parenting is a forgiving profession. Parents can make mistakes and kids can and do forgive. I would much rather be a "snooping" parent who saved a life than one who lost a child to drugs without trying to intervene.

Dear Cat Paw:

If you had experience with drugs before, could that cause brain damage or anything that would affect you after you took the drug?

Concerned

Dear Concerned:

Yes. Drugs can and do cause brain damage as well as damage to the rest of the body.

Dear Cat Paw:

What is the worst thing that can happen to a person who drinks, smokes pot and sniffs cocaine all at the same time?

Buzzed

Dear Buzzed:

Take your choice: You could be a "vegetable" in a coma for years in a hospital, as Karen Quinlan was, or you could die.

Letters to Cat Paw should be mailed to The Clarkston News, 5 S. Main, Clarkston, MI 48016. They need not be signed.

Cat Paw author Jeanette Sanders, a Springfield Township resident, is a member of the Clarkston Area Chemical People, an organization devoted to the prevention of substance abuse among the community's young people.

VILLAGE OF CLARKSTON SYNOPSIS

Meeting called to order by President Eberhardt at 7:40 p.m. followed by the Pledge of Allegiance to the flag. The Council members had met at the Radcliff Project before the meeting.

Roll - Present: Schultz, Raup, Sinclair, Gaskell, ApMadoc, Catallo, Eberhardt.

Absent: None.

Minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. The agenda was added to and approved.

ApMadoc made a motion not to pay the Vilcan-Leman and Associates, Inc., bill totaling $285.00 until we receive a letter from the company explaining what was done totaling $285.00. Seconded by Sinclair. Motion carried.

Motion by Raup to but the bills totaling $35,540.42. Seconded by ApMadoc. Motion carried.

The Council reviewed the Radcliff project. ApMadoc is worried about the drainage problem at the sidewalk and Antique Shop. The village is responsible for the sidewalk replacement. The Engineer and Ken Delbridge said there has to be a swail put in the north lot line to take care of the drainoff. The Council feels the Radcliffs have met the conditions of the bond. Mr. Radcliff suggested that maybe the village would like to share in the expense of the lot line between his parking lot and the village parking lot and put a liner down and gravel over so the weeds will not grow.

Catallo made a motion to appoint the clerk to sign Building Permits during the absence of the President. Seconded by Sinclair. Motion carried.

Raup made a motion to allow the ABWA to have a raffle in the Village September 20, 21 and 22. Seconded by Sinclair. Yes: 6 and No: 1. Motion carried.

Motion to adjourn at 10:00 p.m. by Sinclair. Seconded by Gaskell. Motion carried.

Norma Goyette
Village Clerk

Facing defeat, I frapped a banana in the blender with a little orange juice, and sat down in the easy chair to watch "Dallas." The VCR flashed its little indicator lights mockingly. I decided not to take such abuse from the machine. Picking up the manual I flipped through the pages, determined. No, I never figured out how to record. However, I did figure out how to render the VCR powerless...

Craftsman works in sassafras

By Kathy Greenfield

Retirement—and the Crafts & Cider Festival—brought out the craftsman in Jim Freel.

The 71-year-old Independence Township resident sells his woodworks exclusively at the Clarkston Community Historical Society's annual festival. His appearance there Sept. 20, 21 and 22 will mark his eighth year of participation.

He works almost exclusively with sassafras wood, most of which grew on a friend's 40 acres in Lake Orion.

The bit of bark he leaves on the finished product and the orange tone that results from his method give Freel's items an unusual finish.

His wife, Clara, takes some of the credit for the look of his creations that range from covered bowls, vases, candlesticks and egg cups to holders for kitchen utensils, toothpicks, rings and pencils.

He was working on his lathe one day when Clara called him in for lunch. He brought along the candlestick he was working on, noting that some of the bark had yet to be removed.

"I said, 'Well, gee, that looks pretty on there. Why don't you leave it?'" Clara said.

Freel's glad he took her advice.

"I have absolutely no competition, and I've been across the country and pretty nearly in every state," he said.

A carpenter who became a commercial construction supervisor and home builder, Freel was too busy with his career to do much handwork before he retired about 12 years ago.

Now, he creates about 500 pieces annually for the festival.

"Most of the time, I go out to (the woodshop) and fool around every night," he said. "I could work 10 to 12 hours a day—but (Clara) bothers me three times a day to come in and eat."

Freel figures it takes about three years plus two-and-one-half hours to finish the average piece.

The three years are for the sassafras wood to dry, he said, and the remainder of the time includes the shaping, sanding and eight coats of varnish.

Freel doesn't forget to add some compliments for the trees.

"You've got a lot of good trees and wood out there, and how else are you going to preserve that wood's feeling and display it?" he said. "I could burn it, but it would be gone."

Pieces of wood waiting to become creations by Jim Freel are found stacked neatly in the woodworking shop adjoining his Independence Township home.

Woman adds enthusiasm to festival work

By Kathy Greenfield

For five years, Emily Hemendinger has served a behind-the-scenes role in bringing the Crafts & Cider Festival to life.

As a volunteer with the sponsoring Clarkston Community Historical Society, she works all year overseeing the selection of craftspeople and artists who will appear.

This year the number is an all-time high of 75—and the park will hold no more.

Her rewards for diligence go beyond remuneration. In Emily's words, "I love it."

She says the secret to success is organization, a task that begins the month after Crafts & Cider when invitations go out to participants to return the next year.

The festival is in its 11th year. Emily began the present practice of making Crafts & Cider a juried show which requires the craftspeople to submit slides of their work and be approved for participation by a committee.

Emily is not a member of the committee, which she selects based on their artistic knowledge. She will not reveal their names "for obvious reasons," she says. She collects and presents entries for their consideration.

"If you want to get good artists to come and participate in your show, most of them won't come unless it's a juried show," she says. "If they've got good, quality work, they usually don't mind having it juried."

Once the show begins, Emily says her work is done—almost. She's at Depot Park bright and early (the mornings of the three-day event, on Sept. 20, 21 and 22 this year, to greet the craftspeople and assist with selection of sites.

During the festival, she and five others check the booths for such items as condition and attitude of the salespeople to determine who will be invited to participate the following year.

"We have been very, very lucky in that almost everyone agrees (on who should return) and almost everyone has been invited back," she says.

According to Emily, Crafts & Cider is popular among the artists because "the people who come to the show, they buy."

The weather is good all three days, 10,000 people—10 times the population of the village—visit the festival.

Emily stresses that the festival is a cooperative effort of all the historical society members who volunteer to help.

And she's pleased the event has become a Clarkston tradition, a fact she illustrates with an anecdote.

This particular year, the festival was over and Emily was among historical society volunteers working to clean up the park.

Joining them on the trampled grass was an employee of the village, one of the men who had worked on park improvements including the playground area and flower beds.

She shares the conversation that ensued: "I said, 'The park is so beautiful... and it's just a shame this has happened.' He said, 'No it isn't. It's just the grass. It will grow back. (Crafts & Cider) is a nice thing for Clarkston and for us.'"

"And it's true," says Emily. "We do have a nice thing."

Emily Hemendinger offers a salute to Crafts & Cider. When the festival began 11 years ago, it was held in Rudy's Market Parking lot, she says. Now the craftspeople are juried and the festival commences each fall in the Village of Clarkston's Depot Park.
