Detroit arrested for crime

Police have arrested a 28-year-old Detroit man in connection with the breaking and entering of an Independence Township residence last month.

On Oct. 14, Randall Dale Carter was arraigned on charges of breaking and entering with intent to commit larceny before 52nd District Court Judge Gerald McNally, said Oakland County Sheriff's Det. Doug Hummel.

A preliminary exam, to be heard by McNally, was set for Oct. 17.

In the interim, Carter was remanded to the Oakland County Jail, where he remains. Bond was set at $5,000 on the recommendation of police, McNally said.

According to Hummel, police are continuing their search for an accomplice who acted with Carter. Carter's arraignment stems from an incident in which the home of Cheryl Walter was entered while she was at home.

During the robbery attempt, Walter remained in the house and called police from a bedroom phone. The suspects fled when they attempted to enter the room where Walter was, and heard her screams.

Carter was on parole from Jackson State Prison at the time of the incident, Hummel said.

In 1983, he had been convicted of two charges of breaking and entering, one stemming from an Oakland County incident, the other from a robbery in Wayne County, Hummel said.

Carter is being investigated for approximately 30 other north Oakland County breaking and enterings since February, Hummel added.

Watch it! (The rubber birdy)

It was a hoot for the audience when Clarkston Village Council member David Raup acknowledged the purchase of seven rubber owls for warding off pigeons in Rudy's Market and Sons' parking lot Monday night.

"I have these rubber owls coming," he said to a round of laughter, "which I put on my VISA."

Council members hope the inflatable owls will scare off the pigeons that return faithfully each day to Rudy's parking lot for food.

The pigeons, which Rudy has fed for 50 years, have been deemed a hazard to the public health by the Oakland County Health Department.

Three owls will be placed on Rudy's roof, two on the Clarkston Mills Mall and two on the Pontiac State Bank roof.

Solving one problem created another, however, said Raup, who adds that installing the owls could be hazardous because of slippery roof conditions.

"There isn't just any place to put these owls," he said.

An anonymous voice from the audience volunteered an alternative.

"A couple of sharpshooters would be better," it said, adding that many Canadian Geese which frequent the area could be used in place of the owls.

"I'd rather have a pigeon on a roof than a goose," retorted council member James Schultz.

Settlement

Quadraplegic collects cash

By Carolyn Walker

A 40-year-old man, who became a quadraplegic following a 1983 auto accident on Big Lake Road at Andersonville Road in Springfield Township, has received an out-of-court settlement from the Oakland County Road Commission.

The commission's insurance company, Cigna Insurance of North America, agreed to pay a cash settlement of $525,000 to victim Roger Pearson and $75,000 to his 8-year-old son Skye, according to commission attorney Gerald White. In addition, Pearson is to receive $102,000 annually for as long as he lives, White said.

According to Dennis Pajot, spokesperson for the commission, the commission must pay the first $150,000 before the insurance company takes over the payments.

"It was a sympathy settlement for a very seriously injured man," White said, maintaining that the intersection is widely traveled and safe. "I still continue to believe it was a safe intersection. I disapprove because the settlement (indicates) the road commission was at fault."

In suits brought against the commission and William Halsey, the driver of another car involved in the accident, Pearson alleged that poor road design and limited sight distance at the intersection caused the accident, said White.

The suit against Halsey was settled out of court, White added.

Before the road commission settlement was reached, the suit was heard before Oakland County Circuit Court Judge Hilda Gage and a jury for approximately three weeks, White said.

Because the settlement was made before the trial ended, the jury was not asked to rule on the issue.

James Brescoll, attorney for Pearson, could not be reached for comment.

Teachers, board squabble over recess and gym time

By Kathy Greenfield

The Clarkston board of education turned thumbs down on a grievance presented Monday night by the Clarkston Education Association (CEA), but softened the blow by scheduling a work-study session.

The issue involves the elimination of one recess on the two days a week elementary school pupils have physical education classes.

The practice was debated for about 1½ hours during a grievance hearing between the school board and representatives from the teachers' union. About 30 teachers attended the hearing.

Thomas Brown represented the CEA as grievance chairperson. The CEA claimed the teachers' contract was violated by eliminating planning time which recesses normally provide.

Brown called the elimination a violation of past practice because recesses were not eliminated for music, band, special choirs or learning support sessions. He cited stress on pupils and teachers, and asked that teachers be allowed to choose whether or not to have recess.

"There are teachers with 10, 15, 25 years' experience in this district," he said. "These teachers are expert teachers who can make that decision."

Conrad Bruce represented the board as chief negotiator for the school district.

"We told the teachers that (physical education periods are) to be used as their planning time," he said. "Physical education is 25 minutes, so we feel we're adding to the planning time by adding 10 minutes in the morning and five minutes in the afternoon."

Morning recesses are 15 minutes long and afternoon recesses 20 minutes. In addition, the pupils have a 30-minute recess period at noon. Teachers must accompany their pupils to and from gym classes but not recess.

Over the course of the debate, Bruce asked the board several times to only consider the grievance question of whether or not the contract was violated.

Several board members also commented on the purpose of the formal grievance hearing.

"I think there have been very pertinent issues raised in one form or another, but I don't think they are germane to the issue," said Mary Jane Chaustowich.

"I'm just going to look at it strictly contractually," said Thomas Bills. "I personally do not see any violation to the contract."

"I agree with Tom," said David Kithil. "I don't see any violation of the contract. I think the current program is better."

After the board voted 7-0 to deny the grievance, first-grade teacher Pat Smith made an emotion-charged appeal.

"I would invite you to come to my classroom if you think this is an improvement," she said, adding that young children not given a recess break "might as well be out on the playground—they might as well be on the moon. . . . A 6-year-old child can't stay on task for two hours."

Smith said her anger stemmed from "love and devotion."

Bartlett also appealed to the board to deal with the issue and he warned that the teachers and board could enter "an era of confrontation."

The board ended the discussion by scheduling a study session on Monday, Oct. 21, at 7:30 p.m. at the administration office. Board President Janet Thomas said the purpose of the session is to identify areas that need further study.

O'Neill unveils plans for center

By Carolyn Walker

Working within the confines of an Ingham County Circuit Court restraining order, James O'Neill, M.D., continues to make plans for the Clarkston Surgical Center.

On Oct. 10, O'Neill shared his concept of the center with the Independence Township Planning Commission. He told the commission members he was not requesting formal action, but asked their advice regarding the 80,000-square-foot, four-floor facility.

The commission seemed receptive to the proposal, offering suggestions about parking and height restrictions, which currently exceed the 35-foot township limitation on two sides of the building.

Five residents of Hidden Lane, which abuts the Dixie Highway site, were also in attendance to express concerns.

In explaining his proposal O'Neill said, "What we would like to do is tie together the medical services in Clarkston. The need is in this community."

"It will have all the appearances of an emergency room," he said. "We would just enhance what we have. I think what we're doing is really doing something innovative. People will only be paying for what they get."

O'Neill proposes building the center on approximately six acres behind his current pediatric practice off M-15. It would complement the services of area physicians and the Clarkston Ambulatory Care Center.

The facility would potentially house four floors, O'Neill said, including an emergency-type floor, an outpatient surgical floor, a day-care mental health floor and a floor for offices.

O'Neill explained that many different kinds of outpatient surgical techniques, including biopsies, eye surgery and arthroscopies could be done at the center.

"We're not talking about minor procedures. We're talking about major surgery," O'Neill said. "There's quite an array of surgery that can be done on an outpatient basis. We've also developed a concept of bringing to Clarkston specialists . . . people we feel would be able to enhance our community. It's going to be a very busy place."

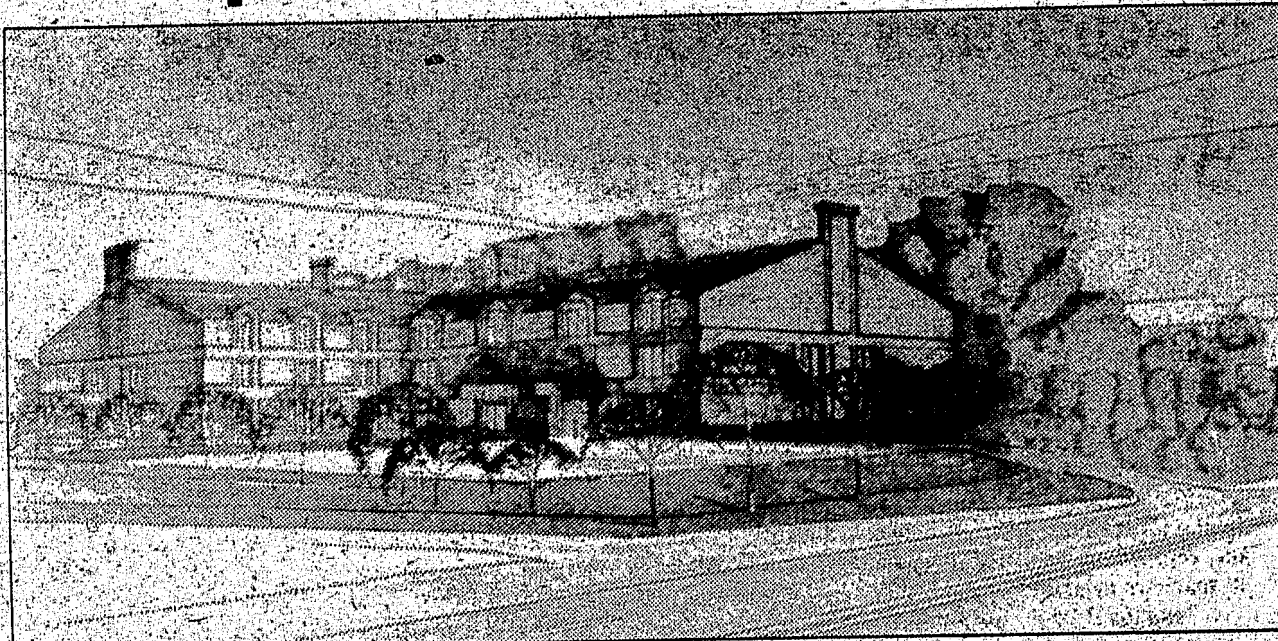

Several commission members raised questions about the potential "intensity of use" at the site.

Commission Chairman Neil Wallace expressed concerns about the building's height, caused in part by the construction of the fourth floor.

"It creates a wrong impression about what is and isn't acceptable in the community," he said, asking O'Neill to consider a change to three floors.

He also voiced concerns about the intensity and the need to bring more specialists to the area.

"(It's) the busiest area in the community, bar none," Wallace said. "I realize that you're changing the concept of health care . . . but normally no matter firm specializes in medical facilities and has previously done design work on Detroit Receiving Hospital and Providence Hospital.

where a hospital goes doctors' offices seem to crop up like mushrooms."

O'Neill addressed the intensity issue by saying that the offices and facilities would be operating at varying times during the day. His architect, Tom Gunn, also stated that portions of the building would be used for storage and medical equipment.

Other commission members, including Carol Balzarini, Joseph Figa and John Gray said the landscaping should be expanded to provide sufficient greenery. In addition, Gray and Figa expressed pleasure in the proposal.

"It does seem like an excellent concept," Figa said.

"I think it's a very reasonable and very constructive use of the property," Gray said. "I'm willing, personally, to do whatever I can to proceed with this."

Two residents of Hidden Lane, who represented the three houses in their neighborhood, told O'Neill and the commission that they were worried about drainage from the parking lots and traffic overflow.

"We're really interested in the drainage problem," said Roger Olney, adding that he has concerns about flooding and pollution to Dollar Lake, where the drainage will be directed through closed pipes.

O'Neill said he would be willing to work with the commission and neighbors to avoid any problems.

He added that a certificate of need (CON) appeal instituted by the Comprehensive Health Planning Council of Southeastern Michigan and a lawsuit filed by Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital in Ingham County Circuit Court to revoke the C.O.N. are still pending.

Solid waste plan tempts Springfield

By Dan Vandenhemel

Springfield Township has agreed to participate in the planning stages of an Oakland County solid waste program.

Township Supervisor Collin Walls said Dec. 13 is the deadline for the planning aspect of the agreement.

On Oct. 9, the board voted to participate.

"This is just the very first step of a very long process," he said. "We have no obligation to go into the plan, but sooner or later Springfield Township is going to have to be a part of something."

The cost to the township was estimated at $5,200. Every municipality entering into the agreement will have a representative to check the costs. Walls said he believes the estimate is high, because the plan includes more engineering time than necessary.

For the project to be financially practical, enough state municipalities would have to sign the agreement to generate 600 tons of solid waste a day, said Walls.

"That's the minimum amount of the waste needed to economically incinerate the waste," Walls said.

"I have no idea how much Springfield generates," he said. "Right now, I think there are six or seven companies hauling out of the township. The closest landfill I know of is in Waterford. Some of the companies go to Grand Blanc, South Lyon and Livingston County."

Weekend crime high

A rash of residential and business breaking and entering struck Independence Township over the weekend.

Between Friday and Sunday, Oakland County Sheriff's Department officers responded to nine breaking and enterings in the Sashabaw-Maybee-Clintonville roads area, according to special investigator Lou Marsh.

There are no suspects in the incidents, although police suspect two groups are responsible because of differing methods of operation, Marsh said.

There have been 17 breaking and enterings in Independence Township this month, Marsh added.

Police are continuing their investigations into the crimes.

District switch up for vote

A request from a local developer to transfer a portion of the Lake Orion school district to the Clarkston School system will be decided by the Oakland Intermediate School Board.

The Lake Orion Board of Education voted to deny Frederick Jacobites request to remove a portion of Clarkston Estates subdivision from the Lake Orion schools during its Oct. 9 meeting. Following the decision, Jacobites said he would appeal the local decision at the intermediate board.

Jacobites of Jacobites and Schultz Realty said the firm was requesting the transfer of 13 homesites within the plat to Clarkston Schools.

Most of the subdivision, located south of Clarkston Road off Easton Road, lies within the Independence Township and Clarkston Schools boundary. There are 97 lots in the plat.

Three years ago, the Intermediate District approved the transfer of 40 homes from Lake Orion to Clarkston. Those residences were located in Thendara Park, situated north of Clarkston Road off Easton Road.

Prior to the decision, Superintendent Fred Ehman said Jacobites had approached him a year ago with the request.

"At that time, I told him I couldn't recommend this change, and I still can't recommend the boundary change, so I told him to bring his case to this board," Ehman said.

Jacobites said there are currently no children residing in the homes located in the Lake Orion schools section.

However, he said the change would be in the best interest of children who may live there in the future.

"If you were doing this now (placing the boundary lines between the two school districts), I doubt that you would draw a line separating the 13 homesites from the other 84," Jacobites said.

Springfield starts suit against state

Charges discrimination

By Dan Vandenhemel

A billboard in Springfield Township is leading the township board into court against the State of Michigan.

Township Supervisor Collin Walls said the lawsuit against the state stems from a billboard owned by Golden Media Inc. of Southfield. The structure is located near East Holly Road and I-75 on the property of Russ Elkins.

Walls contends Golden Media constructed the billboard without seeking approval from the township board.

The lawsuit against the state came about in a dispute over zoning jurisdiction for billboards.

"The state law says all municipalities, counties, cities, villages, charter townships and general law townships under 30,000 people, have jurisdiction," Walls said. "We don't fall under that because we're a general law township under 30,000. We and other small townships have no input. It's discriminatory."

The 1980 census listed Springfield Township with a population of 8,295 people.

The township board unanimously approved the motion to file the lawsuit against the state at its Oct. 9 meeting.

Springfield Township has a separate suit in Oakland County Circuit Court against Golden Media. That hearing is pending the resolution of the dispute between the township and the state.

"The township has asked for a state hearing twice, in October of 1984 and July of 1985 and both times the state has refused," Walls said.

Walls said the Golden Media billboard doesn't meet the township zoning regulations about the size and location.

Richard Bisio, attorney for Golden Media Inc., said the lawsuit between the township and Golden Media has a hearing set for Oct. 17 at Oakland County Circuit Court.

Bisio said the court action is to determine the township's rights concerning the regulation of billboards.

Puttin' on the dog

Kathy
Greenfield

When nature called amid sleeping time the other night, I arose in the pitch blackness, rounded the corner of my bed and bumped into Brandy.

After I tripped over our dog, I fell. We spent a few seconds in a pile on the floor. Then he got up, shook himself (with dignity, I imagine, although I couldn't see him) and headed for the bed he's called his own since our daughter left for college.

That's why I was surprised, I guess. Brandy rarely (before this, I would have said never) sleeps at the foot of our bed anymore. He's found comfort in a whole bed to himself down the hall.

Actually, he may never sleep at the foot of our bed again. Brandy's no dummy. The next night, he paused from bounding up the stairs at bedtime to turn around and make sure I was there. Then, he headed directly for the safe room.

As we're making the adjustment to a member of our family being away at school, the list of things that are changing grows daily.

Most are subtle. Letter writing has become an essential part of the week. I bathed the cat for the first time, a job normally performed by our daughter. There's one less person to ask before establishing the time for dinner. Disputes over car use have all but disappeared. I buy three pork chops instead of four.

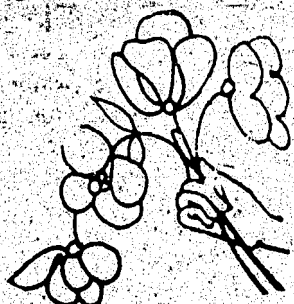

And Brandy seems to be enjoying the opportunity to have a whole bed to himself. Yes, we do have the world's most spoiled dog. No, I don't regret for a minute the love he shares with us all.

When I mentioned the middle-of-the-night crash to my husband, he let me know that the fiasco had, indeed, awakened him.

"You're lucky he didn't bite you," he said. "You're lucky he isn't King Boots."

Jim's Jottings

Men should always have projects, if not a written list, at least a mental one.

Certainly, women have lists for their men--honey-do's some call them.

Actually, men should have more than one list. Rainy days and sunny days, short and long term, personal and family, and the four seasons can all have lists.

The lists should all be as flexible as possible--assuring that a nap, a beer, a visitor, a book or a ballgame won't cause brain damage or create too much marital discord. Nothing wrong with a little marital discord, however.

Naturally, I have such lists or I wouldn't be writing about, and recommending them. One note on one of my lists even says "see other lists."

When I see the other lists I update. Odd how so few things need to be crossed off. My lists remind me of what the late Oxford businessman Harold Campbell said one day after he retired: 'I start out the morning with a whole list of things to do and at the end of the day I'm not even half through.'

Men who keep doing this will never get to the end, and there will always be something for the next generation to do. My kids are going to have lots to do.

Maybe one of them will get the brush burned that I've been going to get rid of since 1981, or refinish a carpet sweeper that I've been 'getting to' for over 10 years, or repair the screen on the corn crib--14 years. That's the corn crib I gave Hazel for Mother's Day, 1971. She never did fix it up one bit.

Seasonal lists are the ones that get done, maybe late, but done. You can only put off storm windows so long. The snow blower is a poor lawn mower. Undrained hoses freeze and burst. Leaves just don't disintegrate in one winter.

Out-of-sight projects are on my most tattered list. I've been finishing our basement at least eight years. No one sees it but family so why go to all that work? Where was that reasoning when I bought the material?

The most talked about list in our family is my Christmas and birthday lists. I not only start them the day after, but I save them from year to year, crossing off my wishes as they are filled.

Not only that, I save the lists of all family members, except Hazel. She likes us to make out a list, but, like all stereotyped mothers, she 'doesn't want anything this year'.

Come to think of it, I spend more time making lists than I do trying to complete a project.

Where lost things go

Carolyn Walker

Our family couch preceded the blond furniture craze of the late 1950s.

It was big and brown and lumpy, with lots of tiny golden-threads running through it for decoration. I remember that I was afraid, or at least very wary, of it.

And though most likely fashionable in its day, it began to sag and smell old with the years.

Using the couch as a standard, I could measure time's passage, and my growth, by the length of my legs and the proximity of my feet to the floor, when I sat on it.

I thought the couch ugly. But that was before we found the treasure in it. By that time, my feet reached the carpet.

Mother bought the couch in the early 1950s and created a whole room around it with companion chairs and matching wallpaper. (She liked to create rooms around things. She once made father paint the kitchen walls to match a parakeet's blue-green belly.)

Mother showcased the couch by positioning it against the longest wall of the living room, where she referred to it as The Davenport.

She would say things like: "Get your shoes off The Davenport!" or "Don't bounce on The Davenport!" to my sister and I.

There were some good things about the couch. Its two cushions were comfortable and my sister and I could stretch out on it, end to end, and not touch one another, which is very important when you are young and related.

Other times, we snuggled up together, against the couch's big arm, to watch scary movies. All the while, as the years passed, we were quite unaware that we were sitting on a very special secret.

The day of discovery came in the early 1960s when mother decided The Davenport had served its purpose and that a thorough cleaning was in order before it was relegated to the dump.

A rainy day, my sister and I groaned at the thought of HOUSEWORK.

Mother began by removing the cushions and running her hand under the base of the seat. Amid the years of dust and fuzz she found a single pair of scissors, the first find in a vein of gold.

There was more: Pencils, combs, quarters and a Three Stooges ring (with a picture of Curly that changed when you wiggled it) came out in her fist.

I recognized the ring. "That's mine!" I said. "I haven't seen that ring in years."

The search went on with a vigor.

Encouraged, mother mounted The Davenport, trod the seat up and down and gave the command for action. "Shove your hands in there girls and see what else you can find."

We went about our task with renewed enthusiasm. After two hours of work, The Davenport yielded 12 pairs of scissors (mother had belonged to and hosted a sewing club), 11 combs, many pens and pencils, wooden marbles, $2-plus in petty change, rings and a weather detector given me by Dale Meredith in the fifth grade.

The detector showed blue, a prediction of rain under the cushions.

After the cleaning, the old couch went the way of doomed furniture. It was replaced by a fancy, modern model.

But the new one was never called The Davenport. It never had a room created around it. It never busied little girls on a rainy day.

And it sure never turned out a treasure.

Praise for series on special ed

Dear Ms. (Carolyn) Walker:

I would like to share with you my personal admiration for your excellent pieces regarding young people who are benefited by the special education programs available in Oakland County.

I know you wrote three articles about that subject.

I still can't get the one about Andrea Aranosian out of my mind. It was a beautiful, touching and accurate portrayal of the importance of the special education programs in making Andrea's life better.

You are an outstanding writer. I would certainly hope that your talents can some day be shared with a larger metropolitan daily so that many others would have the opportunity to enjoy your talent.

Lucas doesn't stay and pay

Jim Fitzgerald

Last month, I rapped the William Lucas administration for allowing Wayne County to fall months behind in paying its bills.

One example was a sand company still waiting in July for $3,500 owed since November. I said there was no decent excuse for forcing suppliers to wait that long for money they need to pay their own bills.

This interesting response came from a Livonia woman:

"I sent an overdue tax check for more than $700 directly to the Wayne County Treasurer on July 24, 1985. Last Thursday (Sept. 5), I asked my bank if this check had been cashed yet. It had not. A clerk in the Livonia Treasurer's office told me: 'Don't worry, Wayne County takes eight to 10 weeks to deposit checks.'"

"I can't help wondering how many uncashed checks there are at the Wayne County Treasurer's Office. If there were only 10 at $700, that would equal twice the amount needed to pay the sand company."

County officials have blamed a new accounting system for overdue bills. Perhaps, under this new system, uncashed checks have nothing to do with slow payment. I don't know. I do know that County Executive Lucas probably has more important things to worry about—getting elected governor, for instance.

Unpaid bills are a comparatively small problem. It is easy to take advantage of a few suppliers, reluctant to gripe for fear of losing county business. Also, because most taxpayers aren't personally affected by this sloppy handling of their money, it is easy to understand why there is no great public outcry against an attitude that says: "We're big government and we're too busy to worry about the little guy. Let him wait; he'll get paid when we get around to it."

What is more difficult to understand is why taxpayers aren't more visibly outraged by the fact that they elected a Democrat to run the county and got a Republican running for governor.

Perhaps I'm overly sensitive about officials who flagrantly neglect the job they were elected to perform. Perhaps my parents were wrong to teach me that an employee owes his employer a full day's work. Whatever the reason, I've always been an obnoxious bug on the subject.

Several years ago, when then-Gov. George Romney was campaigning endlessly for president, I wrote a fiery editorial demanding that he resign as governor. I said it not only would be the fair thing to do for Michigan taxpayers, it would also improve his chances of winning the presidential nomination.

In 35 years of editorializing, I've written similar diatribes against dozens of elected officials who spent much of their time in one office running for a higher office. Most of them retorted that I should be proud that my representative was qualified to move up in the political world. As a taxpayer paying for two-day workweeks, I didn't feel proud, I felt screwed.

For several months, as an unannounced gubernatorial candidate, Bill Lucas has been traveling all over the state, with county taxpayers paying his executive's salary and, often, his travel expenses. He says he's not seeking votes for governor, he's improving Wayne County's image. If you believe that, please get in line to buy the Zilwaukee Bridge.

On the day he officially announces for governor, Lucas should resign as county executive. The last thing he should do before leaving office is make sure all our past-due bills are paid.

As a county taxpayer, it's bad enough to be a sucker. I don't want to be a deadbeat, too.

Lights flash cars to stop

STOP! when you see a school bus with red lights flashing. It's the law.

Most deaths and injuries involving school buses occur after the pupil leaves the bus and is struck by a passing vehicle, according to Secretary of State Richard Austin, chairman of the Michigan Safety Commission.

Michigan law requires motorists to stop within 10 feet of all school buses with red lights flashing no matter which side of the road the bus is on.

The only time a motorist does not have to stop for a school bus with flashing lights is when the bus is on the other side of an impassable median of a divided highway.

God, family count with mom of 9

By Carolyn Walker

Some people lift you up.

Callie Johnson is one of those people.

A woman of fundamental convictions, she's optimistic, friendly and compassionate. The good times have made her thankful. The bad times have made her strong.

In September, the Michigan Women's Christian Temperance Union, of which Callie is a member, honored her, her husband of 30 years, Walter, and their nine children with the title "Family of the Year."

One conversation with Callie in her living room, and it is easy to understand why they were chosen. Their lives are exemplary of "clean living" as she calls it, faith in God, hard work and love of family.

She settles onto a comfortable-looking couch and speaks openly of her philosophy as well as her past. As the story unfolds, the people in the numerous family pictures who smile down on her from the living room walls take on life. A proud life.

Callie talks simple truths: God. Family. Friendship. Prejudice. Faith. Work.

An only child, she was left fatherless at age 4. She married early, at 16, and had five children before marrying second-husband Walter, and adding four more children to her brood.

She looks toward the floor and mentions her mother, who died when she was 20.

"A big family . . . it's happy," she says. And with eyes twinkling adds, "Having children isn't the worst thing that could happen to you. I always felt that's what women were put in the world for, having children."

"I know I won't fit in with this women's lib. Somebody had to do it," she says, then adds as an afterthought, "I feel like I've been liberated all my life. I've done everything I wanted to. And I believe that's what liberation is."

Callie and Walter came to Springfield Township in 1955.

They were in search of a good life and a good education for their children, she says. "That's why I brought them out here."

At the time, a friend who worked construction in Pontiac told them a subdivision for black people was being built in the area. They sought it out.

Callie Johnson espouses love and faith in God. Without the Lord, you can't do anything," she says. "First, seek the Lord."

Millage rate increases in Springfield

By Dan Vandenhemel
Taxpayers in Springfield Township are going to see an increase in their 1985 tax bills.
The township board approved a raise from 3.1 mills to 4 mills at its Oct. 9 meeting.
The .9 mill increase is 90 cents for every $1,000 of assessed property valuation. For a property owner with a home assessed at $40,000, or one-half market value of $80,000, the change will mean a tax increase of $36.
The board upped the police protection millage from 1.6 to 2 mills and the general fund millage from .5 to 1 mill. The fire department rate stays at 1 mill.
"From the opinions the board received at the public hearing last month, the taxpayers do not want to increase taxes, even if it will go toward improving the roads," Supervisor Collin Walls said.

At the public hearing, raising the general fund to 1.41 mills was discussed. Part of the money in that fund goes toward repairing the township roads.
The police fund increase covers the cost of the four contracted Oakland County sheriff's deputies. The cost per deputy is slightly more than $56,000, which includes vehicles, equipment and supervision.
The annual cost for the Springfield Township Fire Department is about $110,000, Walls said.
Along with the maintenance of two fire halls and the equipment, 25 on-call firefighters are on staff. They are paid by response at a rate of $6 to $10 an hour, depending on experience and training, Walls said.

A preliminary examination was scheduled before McNally on Oct. 24, the spokesperson said, adding that bond was set at $1,000.

The accident, which sent Balzarini, 19, to the hospital with several injuries, occurred on Clarkston Road near Sashabaw Road.

Balzarini's passenger, John Robenault, sustained minor injuries.

Beaumont was uninjured, according to the police report.

Wolves fall short of upsetting Captains

By Dan Vandenhemel

Two points are all that separated the Clarkston varsity basketball team and the state's fifth-ranked team.

The Wolves, unranked in the state, lost to Waterford Kettering, 58-56, on Oct. 10.

The Captains are 9-0 while the Wolves drop to 6-4.

The game may have been close, but Wolves' coach Dave McDonald said he couldn't tell how well the Wolves match up with the Captains because of two pre-game surprises.

The game was scheduled at Clarkston High School, but warping of the gym floor moved it to the much smaller Sashabaw Junior High gym.

Water had seeped under the CHS gym floor and raised it in two spots, McDonald said his team won't be able to play at CHS the rest of the season.

The other surprise was that Kettering's all-state player Cindy Lyons did not dress for the game because of disciplinary action.

"It was a great game, but I'd rather we play on a bigger court," McDonald said. "Their press is their strength and it's our weakness. I think we handled it pretty well, though."

With the Captains not letting the Wolves bring the ball up the court freely, the pressure fell on senior guard Sue Lovelady.

She worked the ball up the court with little trouble and netted a game-high 19 points and five assists. Michelle Taulbee pitched in with 14 points and 10 rebounds. Michele Wyniemko hauled in 13 rebounds.

"The girls lack a little in technique, but they kept their cool very well and went out and did the job," McDonald said.

The switch to Sashabaw Junior High slowed the effectiveness of Lovelady against a defensive press. With more room to maneuver, McDonald said Lovelady and the Wolves can spread out the opposition and that leads to easy baskets.

Sashabaw's gym is 20 feet shorter and eight feet narrower.

"I didn't like it," McDonald said. "We practice all the time on a bigger floor and to come here is a lot harder."

Michele Wyniemko (No. 34) does her share against Waterford Kettering by bringing in 13 rebounds. The Wolves end up losing to the Captains, 58-56, at Sashabaw Junior High.

Big plays produce victory

By Dan Vandenhemel

Wolves' running back Mike May isn't going to forget last Friday night too quickly.

The senior helped the Clarkston varsity football team upset Dearborn High School, 20-7, Oct. 11.

May scored two touchdowns, neither of them ordinary. The first was a 35-yard interception return early in the first quarter from his linebacker position.

His second touchdown easily was the outstanding play of the game, if not the season, for the Wolves. Midway through the second quarter, May took off around the left side of the line for a 61-yard touchdown run.

May zig-zagged across the field and left would-be tacklers lying on the ground as he crossed the goal line.

The rest of the Wolves congratulated May by burying him in a mass of bodies in the back of the end zone.

"That was the most exciting play I've ever seen in high school football," coach Walt Wyniemko said. "When there are 10 players having a shot at tackling him and end up on the ground, it's exciting. I've never seen anything like it."

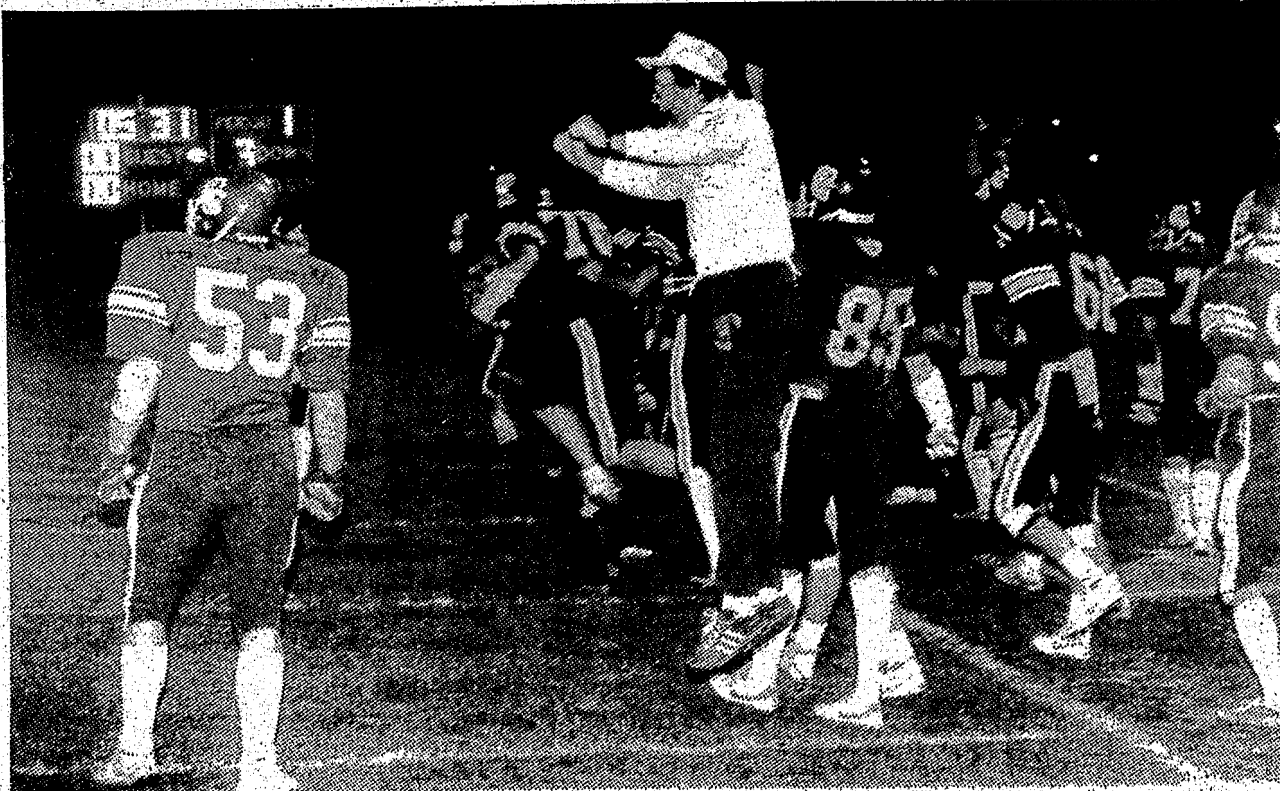

Jeff Davis added the final touchdown in the fourth quarter to secure the victory. The Wolves lift their record to 4-2 and drop Dearborn's to 4-2. The Dearborn defense had given up only one touchdown in the previous five games.

"Dearborn's a very good football team," Wyniemko said. "But the big test is this Friday."

The Wolves play Lake Orion in their Homecoming game, Oct. 18. If the Wolves win, they'll share the Greater Oakland Activities League championship with Lake Orion. Both teams would have lost once.

"It all comes down to the next game," Wyniemko said.

Sports

Wolves' assistant coach George Porritt reacts to Mike May's 35-yard interception return for a touchdown in the first quarter. The play put the Wolves up to stay over visiting Dearborn.

Mike May sets his sights on reaching the end zone at the start of his 61-yard run.

Overtime spells defeat for JV cagers

Shannon Kilcline keeps her eye on the ball during the Wolves' 60-57 overtime defeat by Waterford Kettering. The loss drops the Wolves' record to 7-3, while Kettering moves to 8-0.

By Dan Vandenhemel

Waterford Kettering's junior varsity winning streak is still intact at 8-0. But the Captains' eighth victory wasn't the least bit easy.

The Clarkston Wolves lost in overtime to the Captains, 60-57, Oct. 10 at Sashabaw Junior High.

The Wolves stayed with the Captains the entire game and led, 23-21, at halftime. The contest was knotted at 51 at the end of regulation.

"This is the best game we've played all year," Wolves' coach Larry Sherrill said. "Everyone played well."

The Wolves had three players with season high scoring totals. Kris Castillo with 16 points, Gina Houch with 14 and Jane Selent with 11 led the Wolves. Ali Fedio came up with eight points, 17 rebounds and five blocked shots to set the tone of the game.

"Ali's blocked shots were a big thing early in the game," Sherrill said. "With the way she played early, that stopped Kettering from going inside to their big girl."

With Fedio controlling the inside, Castillo took the reigns for running the offense and setting up the defense.

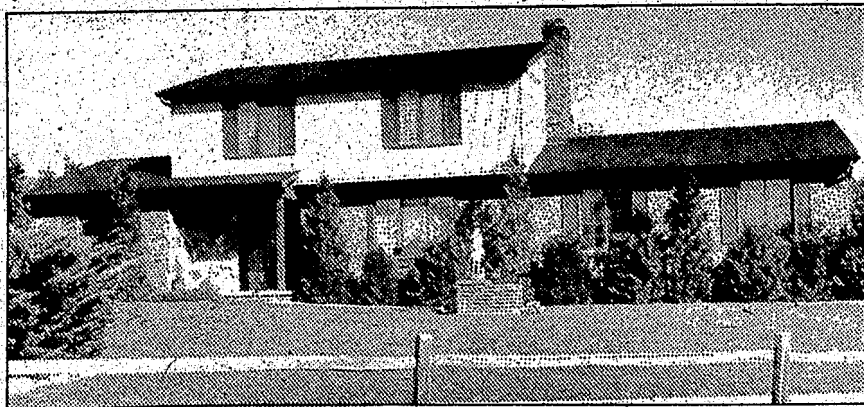

"Castillo played the best she has all year," the coach said. "She's developing into a real good point guard."

Sherrill said he and Tom Price, the Captains' junior varsity coach, were talking after the game and compared their game to a varsity game.

"It's not that they played as well as a varsity, but we were very impressed with their composure," Sherrill said. "No one really panicked during the overtime. We just didn't take advantage of the breaks and they did."

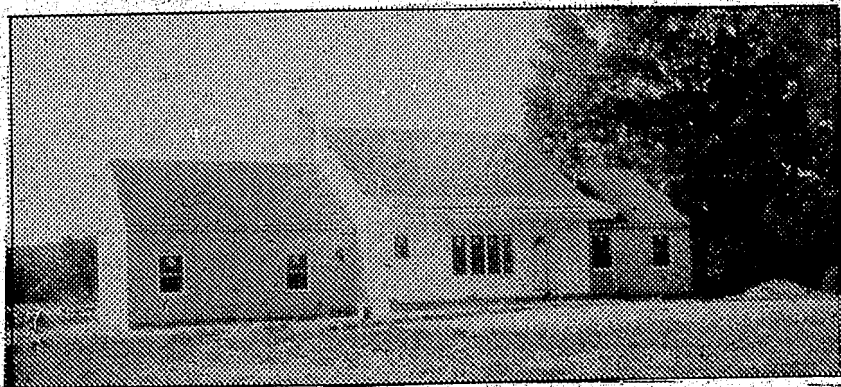

The loss drops Clarkston's season record to 7-3.

Sophomore shines in tennis regional

By Dan Vandenhemel

A sophomore shined for the Clarkston girls' tennis team in the state regional tournament.

Ashley Adams, playing No. 1 singles for the Wolves, won two matches in reaching the semifinals, Oct. 11.

She was knocked out of the tournament when she was paired with the No. 1 seeded player, Kristin Ashare of Bloomfield Hills Lahser. Adams lost in start sets, 6-0, 6-0.

To reach the semifinals, Adams had to get by a player who beat her three times this season. Kelly Mc-

Coy of Waterford Mott was seeded No. 3 and Adams overtook her, 6-2, 3-6, 6-4.

Another sophomore for the Wolves, Shelly Rood, picked up the only other victory for Clarkston with a win in the first round at No. 4 singles.

"By the time Ashley played Ashare, she was wiped out," Wolves' coach Dick Swartout said. "Ashley had played five sets before meeting her. She only had 25 minutes to rest between the matches. Ashare only played two before the match."

The top four seeded players receive a bye in the first round of the tournament. If Adams had beaten Ashare, she would have returned the following day for the finals.

Swartout didn't know the final results of the regional but knew the Wolves finished with three points and were ahead of Pontiac Northern, Waterford Mott and Milford.

Adams was the only Clarkston tennis player to finish the year with a winning record. She was 14-4 with the four losses going to Ashare and McCoy.

"The one thing about seeds is it makes a player work harder in the winter to become one," Swartout said. "Ashley played a lot more aggressively than she did earlier in the year. She did a good job in reaching the semis."

Cancer Myth #1

"Everything causes cancer."

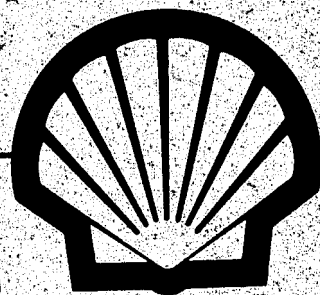

Today many people will tell you that "Everything causes cancer." That's a myth. It's not true. Actually, only a few causes of cancer in humans are known, even though a number of other causes are suspected. Scientists continue trying to identify all cancer causes. Morgan walks through races

By Dan Vandenhemel

What started out in high school, seven years ago, has taken Gary Morgan to Japan and all over the United States.

Morgan is a race walker. The 25-year-old Springfield Township resident returned from Tokyo where he finished second in a 20-kilometer race on Labor Day.

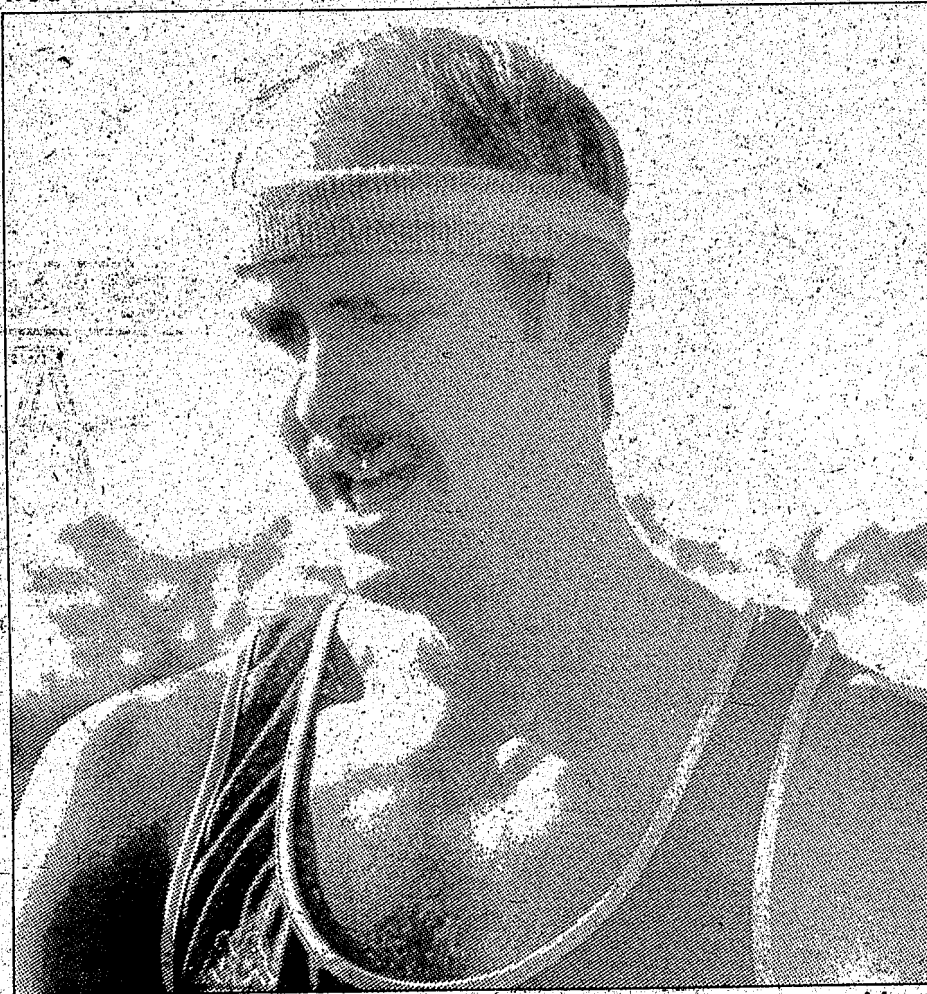

"That trip was quite a trip," Morgan said. "That was my first trip with the U.S. national team."

Race walking is more work than jogging, Morgan says. In competition, one foot must be on the ground at all times and the knee must lock on each step. An athlete can receive three disqualification cards before he or she is out of the race. Most races are 20 kilometers. A few go to 50 kilometers.

"Someone told me at high school (Pontiac Central) that I walked down the halls pretty fast, so I might as well try it," Morgan said. "It takes a while to get use to it's like running; it's a lot of work."

"It takes a while to get use to. It's a lot of work."

—Gary Morgan

Gary Morgan's race walking career began seven years ago in high school. He hasn't slowed down yet, recently placing second in an international 20-kilometer race in Tokyo.

Being a cross country runner in school, Morgan progressed to maraton running including the prestigious New York City Marathon. In 1980, he took part in the Detroit Free Press International Marathon as a race walker.

Part of Morgan's training is running to work. He is an electrician at Pontiac Motors. He drives to 1-75 and Baldwin Road and runs the remaining seven miles.

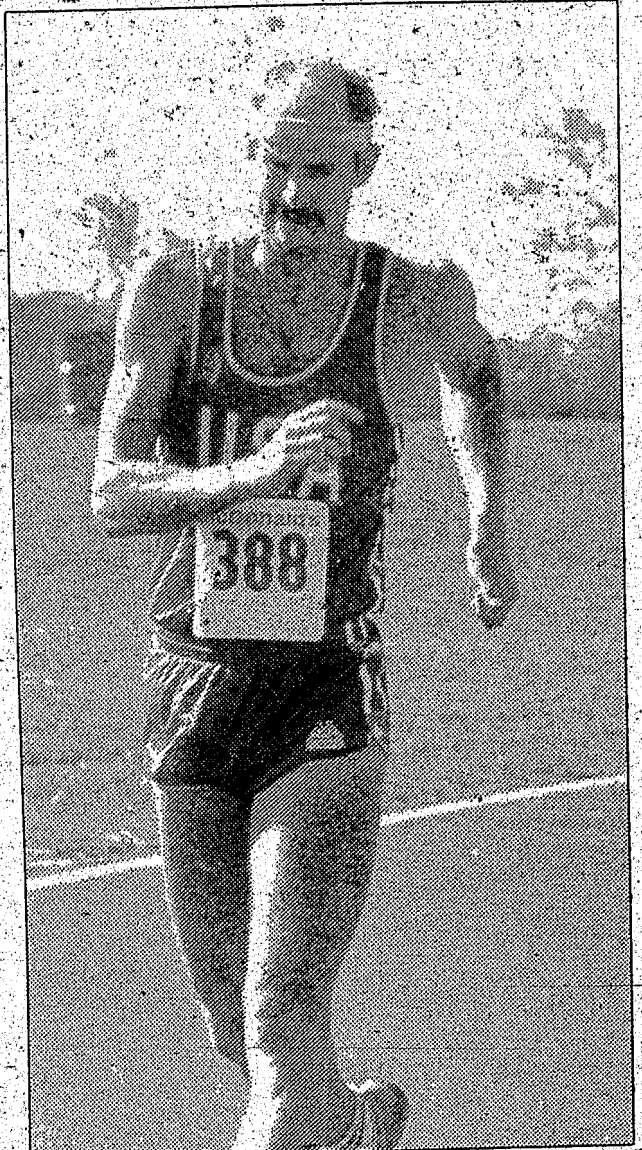

Walking, running, or exercising between one or two hours a day keeps Morgan in shape for his sport that might lead to the Olympics.

"I'd love to make it," he said. "I'll put everything into it to try and make it. I'm going to go for as long as I can."

In 1984, Morgan was sick for part of the summer and was not in the best condition when he ran in the Olympic Trials. His finish was far below the qualifying mark.

Race walkers are at their peak years at around age 30, Morgan said. The international powerhouses of the sport come from Mexico, East Germany, Italy and Russia.

"They seem to have better coaches and are able to work at it more," Morgan said. "Race walking is a pretty low-key sport. It's not publicized that much, but that's the way it is."

Morgan uses his race walking skills at the Springfield Township Walk/Run at Indian Springs Metropark.

Here's the solution to the historic conflict between life insurance and investing.

Before the Farmers Universal Life Plan, you had two choices.

One - you bought whole life, which provided good insurance protection and guaranteed savings with a conservative return.

Two - or you bought term insurance and invested the difference. But most people who tried this failed to continue investing the difference, or couldn't find investments that provided a competitive return.

Now, finally, with Farmers Universal Life Plan, you have a superior combination: a life insurance policy with both cash values and a savings fund, each with a yield equal to most investments in the money markets (currently 12%) and varying with those markets. The cash value portion is guaranteed to earn at least 4 1/2%.

Flag football

Dan Vandenhemel

The big game is over. The annual Big 10 football game between the University of Michigan and Michigan State University ended in a slaughter, 31-0.

Saturday before the game started, in the drizzly morning around Clarkston, MSU out-flagged U-of-M, 2-1. Indiana University tied Michigan with with one flag flying in the village. Central Michigan University was a no-show for Oct. 12. Normally, the gold and crimson colors are flying high on Washington Street.

This is not a full scale investigation of which school flag waved the most in Clarkston, just a random check of proud alumni.

The entire week prior to THE GAME was filled with hype. Every tidbit of information spilled forward about the coaches, the players, the schools and the history of THE GAME.

Being a sports fan and a semi-true follower of college football, THE GAME has always caught my eye. I guess it's rivalries in general that are exciting: Michigan-Ohio State, Nebraska-Oklahoma, Army-Navy, Southern California-UCLA.

At the high school level, standouts are Clarkston-Waterford Kettering, Flint Northern-Flint Central, Algonac-Marine City.

Rivalries build excitement even if one or both of the teams are horrible. If both of the teams are strong performers, the rivalry is that much better.

Michigan-Michigan State, supposedly had that going for them. Going into THE GAME, the Wolverines were off to a perfect start by winning their first four games. The Spartans held a 2-2 mark but were coming off a near-upset of No. 1 rated Iowa.

The performers were there, the hype was there. The only thing that was missing was a close game. The Wolverines made it a fun and exciting day for their followers and a fun and disappointing day for the Spartan fans.

Even though their team lost badly, the Spartan football followers still had a good time at the stadium. Good for them.

Residents debate PUD ordinance with council

By Carolyn Walker

A controversy continues to reign around the proposed Village of Clarkston planned unit development (PUD) ordinance amendment.

At a village council public hearing Oct. 14, approximately 20 village residents turned out to voice their concerns about the proposal.

The PUD ordinance was first introduced to the village this year as a device which might facilitate the building of condominiums along White Lake Road as proposed by developer Frank Walker. The condominiums have not as yet been approved.

Since that time, council members have also considered the possibility that the PUD ordinance could be used to rejuvenate downtown buildings by allowing mixed uses or mixed ownership.

Council members had expected a quorum of planning commission members to be in attendance at the hearing so a vote could be taken by the council.

Only two commission members were present, so no official action was taken on the PUD issue.

By law, a public hearing must now be held by the commission before the council can vote to approve or disapprove the PUD ordinance amendment, according to President Carol Eberhardt.

At the hearing, several residents raised concerns about the purpose and the need for the PUD ordinance, calling its enforcement "subjective" on the part of the council.

In turn, Eberhardt explained that PUD provides for creative use of the land, mixed usage (such as business and residential in one building), and permits the developer to work with the topography of the land.

"All this is, is giving the village the use of some creative development," Eberhardt said. "I think it allows creative rehabilitation. I think it just gives us another avenue. It allows us the option of looking at something... in a creative manner."

Village attorney John Steckling agreed that the PUD is subjective, but explained that going before the zoning board of appeals for variances, as people must currently do, is also subjective.

"Right now we have nothing. It's just whim and personalities," he said, adding that to obtain a variance, people must prove a hardship, which he said is difficult.

Currently, most village property is "nonconforming" in size and village officials must "break existing ordinances" for individuals wanting to develop or modify their homes and property, Steckling said.

The PUD ordinance would not replace, but simply augment, the current zoning ordinance, he said.

He added that there are many protective checks and balances built into the PUD ordinance, such as the requirement of public hearings for any proposals, the need for the developer to convince the council of a proposal's merits and the need for council approval for all projects.

Resident William Basinger disagreed. "What does this do for Clarkston as far as the buildable land that's left?" he asked, adding that most village land was already developed and that the PUD was originally authorized by the state for use in large projects. "I just don't see the need for it," he said.

Resident Jennifer Radcliff, who with her husband Hank obtained variances to move the Ritter house from Dixie Highway to Main Street, agreed.

"If we use the PUD as a way to be creative about pieces of property that we should be protecting, then we would be shooting ourselves in the foot," she said, alluding to the notion that some historical buildings could be leveled and replaced with new ones. "They must be protected from the greed of some people."

Eberhardt responded by saying that current ordinances do not necessarily protect some old buildings in the village.

"It's strictly another tool," Eberhardt said.

Council member Jon Gaskell agreed. "I see this ordinance as something where we are attempting to vote with a little bit of foresight," he said. "(It's) a widely useable format for many types of development."

The council agreed to send the PUD ordinance back to the planning commission for a public hearing, with some recommendations for setback and density requirement adjustments.

A planning commission public hearing date has not yet been set.

Board delays decision

Scout land may get rezoning

By Dan Vandenhemel

The future of 188 acres in Springfield Township depends on pending rezoning.

The Metro Detroit Girl Scout Council applied for a zoning change for its property on Hillsboro Road between Shaffer and Crosby Lake roads. The application requested a change from recreational to residential with a minimum of one acre lot sizes.

On Oct. 9, the township board opted to delay a decision on the zoning change. The board referred the item back to the commission.

Supervisor Collin Walls said the planning commission is studying zoning changes for that area of the township.

"We're asking them (planning commission) for some direction on what they are moving toward," Walls said. "The Girl Scout land could be affected or maybe not at all."

The planning commission will meet Oct. 29 at the Springfield Township Hall at 7 p.m. to discuss the rezoning application and other zoning changes.

The land surrounding the Girl Scout property is zoned residential with lot sizes of one-half acre. Walls said most of the property in the area is zoned for 5 or 10 acre lots.

"Environmentally the larger lot sizes would be better because there are a lot of wetlands in the area," Walls said.

Over 240 acres are owned by the Girl Scout council in Springfield Township. Close to 50 acres are already rezoned for the one acre residential. Of the other 188 acres, another 50 is wetlands and is to stay as is, said William J. Reddish, director of properties and purchasing for the Girl Scouts.

Reddish said the rezoning is being pursued so the property can be sold.

"If the land is zoned recreational, we'd have to sell it to another non-profit organization and no one has come up to us," Reddish said. "This is just another delay for us. It's been going on for several months already."

The property was originally owned by the South Oakland Girl Scouts. That council merged with the Metro Detroit council in 1980. South Oakland maintained a camp there until 1979, when it closed.

Count on Count Spooky for scares

By Kathy Greenfield

Steve Ogg wants to haunt you. He wants to baffle you with magic, entertain you with music and then send you on a trip through the Haunted House Experience.

It's all in the name of charity. For 11 years, Ogg has been the spirit behind haunted houses all over Waterford Township.

For the past six years, he's spooked to benefit programs at Oakland Community College including the Women's Fastpitch Softball Team he coaches.

This is the third year Ogg's bag of Halloween illusions has been nestled in a vacant building at 141 Cass Lake Rd., across from the 300 Bowl in Waterford Township.

"This is the first year we're going to do Count Spooky, who is me!" he said.

With Count Spooky's Magic and Music Show, Ogg will entertain those waiting to get into the haunted house on busy nights.

His experience as a magician goes way back. Now 31, he began doing card tricks at 14. ("I used to play bridge with my parents and that's what got me into cards.")

Three years later, thanks to tutoring by Mr. Fox, the owner of a magic shop in Detroit, Ogg began doing his own shows.

"At one time, I had this Doug Henning dream of being a big shot," he said. Accordingly, he performed at dinner banquets, breakfast banquets and VFW halls. "But then I got married, needed Blue Cross, had kids . . ."

Now his performances are limited to charity, parties for family and friends and an occasional banquet for softball teams.

Much of Ogg's love for magic has been rechanneled into the Halloween haunted houses. This year's rendition is "the best we've ever done," he said.

"Ours is different than most haunted houses. In most haunted houses, they jump out and scare you 12 different ways. In our house, we take you like a group and there's a different show in each room. . . . They also do the normal haunted house stuff in between, so you kind of get both."

"Actually, I like Halloween more than Christmas sometimes, because I'm giving on my own."

—Steve "Count Spooky" Ogg

Ogg estimates there are $12-15,000 worth of materials in the haunted house. Much of the money has been spent creating illusions: O.T. (the other extraterrestrial) comes alive in a jungle; Spider Woman

(with a spider's body and woman's head) dangles from a giant web; the Talking Head performs from a table top.

There's more, with 14 major exhibits and a two-story slide leading to a giant maze of rooms with many doors. A large tent will protect visitors from the elements while they wait their turn. Trips through the haunted house take 20 to 25 minutes.

When he's not performing magic shows, Ogg plans to offer quick magic tricks while mingling with the crowd waiting in line.

As Count Spooky, he'll be dressed to look like Dracula with a voice to match, although he'll switch characters via hats when he introduces the show and sings with his guitar.

For Ogg, it will be a celebration of one of the best times of the year.

"I like the colors and the leaves. Actually, I like Halloween better than Christmas sometimes," he said, "because I'm giving on my own."

Magic and spooks at haunted house

The "Haunted House Experience" awaits at 141 Cass Lake Rd., across from the 300 Bowl, in Waterford Township.

Admission is $3. The haunted house is open from 7-10 each evening Oct. 18 through Nov. 2, except Oct. 20 and Nov. 1 when it will be closed.

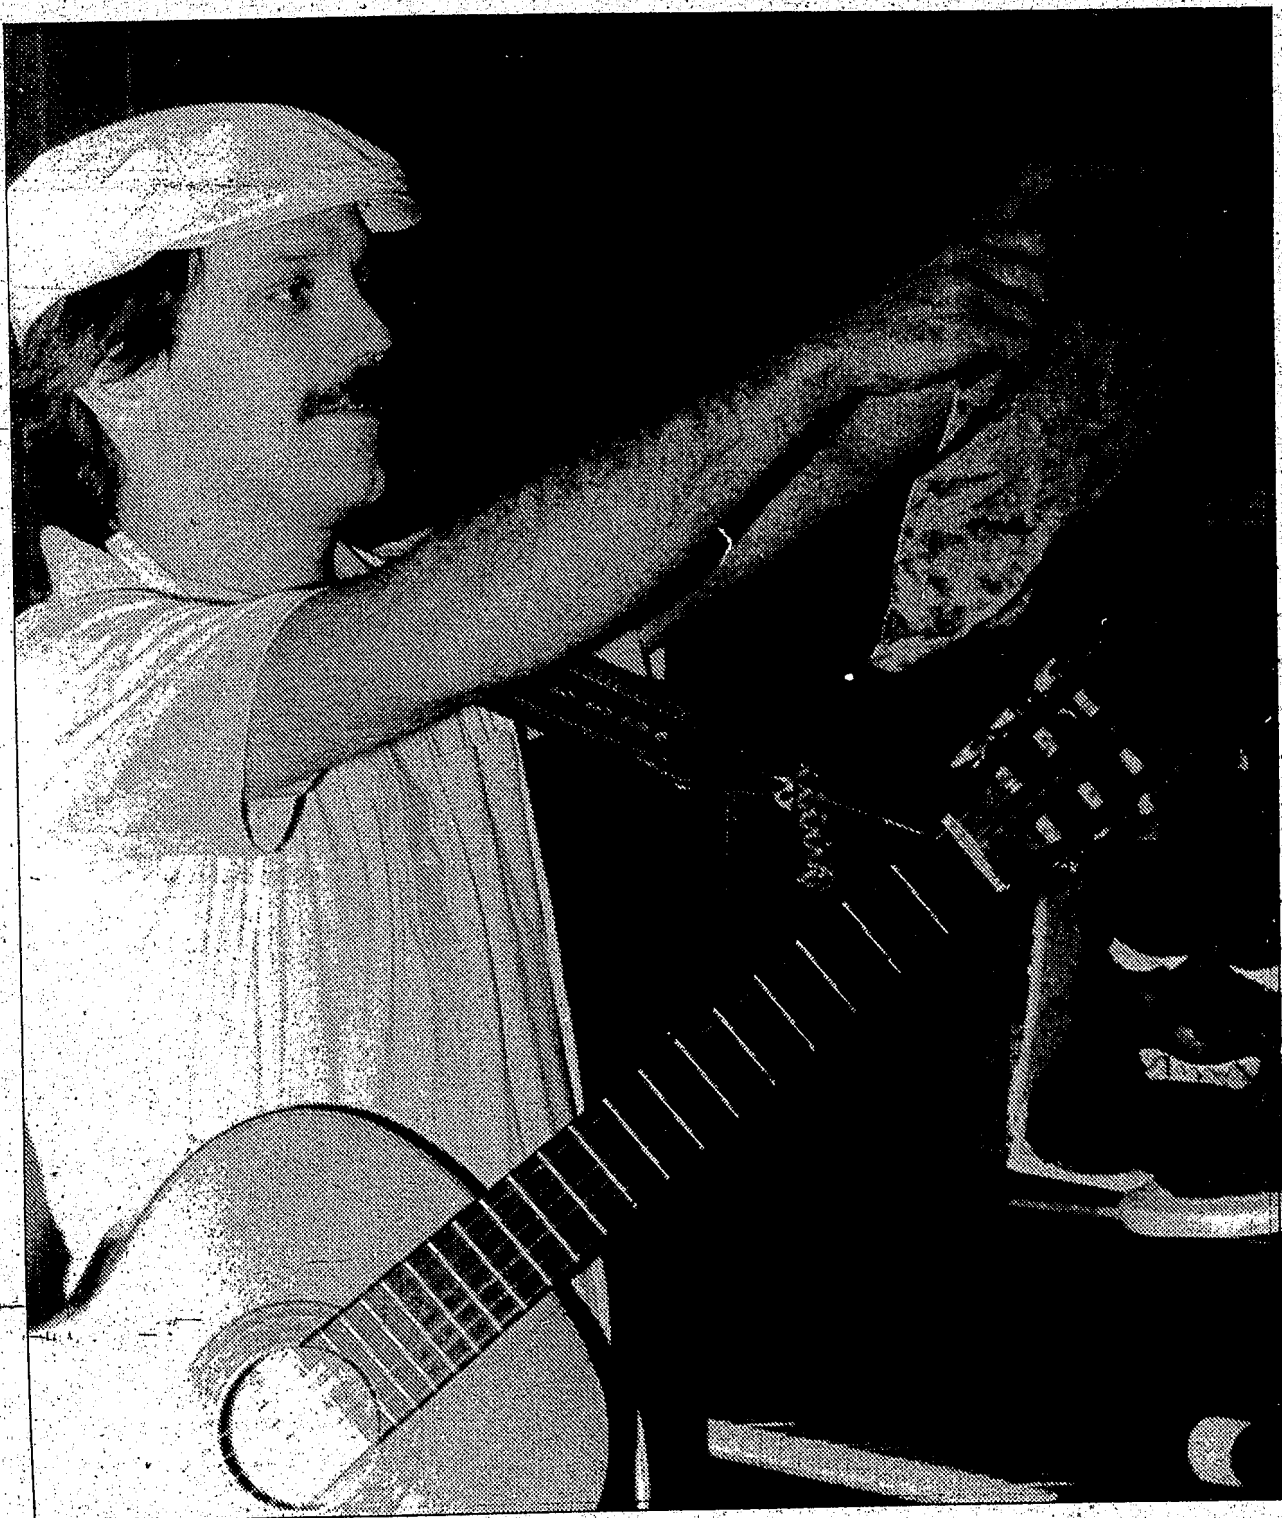

On Saturday, Oct. 19, a grand opening party is planned with Count Spooky's magic show at 7:30 and 8:45 p.m. and door prizes.

On Monday, Oct. 21, a special children's night is planned for 5- to 12-year-olds with no adults admitted unless accompanied by a child. ("It will be real less scary. You'll be able to see behind the scenes. Nobody will jump out at you," said organizer Steve Ogg (who is also Count Spooky).)

Count Spooky will perform a magic show at 7 p.m., people can bring cameras and there will be 50 door prizes and a coloring contest with entries to be returned on or before Oct. 31.

On Nov. 2, there's a costume party for all ages with judging at 7:30 p.m. for youngsters and 9 p.m. for oldsters with cash prizes for first-place winners. Also planned are the announcement of the coloring contest awards at 7 p.m., a Count Spooky show at 8 p.m. About 50 door prizes will be given away.

Proceeds from the haunted house will go to the Oakland Community College, Highland Lakes, recreational department, playcenter, community services and women's fastpitch softball team.

Steve Ogg poses with a few magic props in the living room of his Independence Township home. When he appears at the "Haunted House Experience," he'll be Count Spooky with full Dracula regalia including white face, fangs and a black tuxedo.

Craft-A-Rama showcases talents

By Kathy Greenfield

The women behind the new Clarkston Craft-A-Rama met while doing volunteer work for the Bailey Lake School Fair.

The friendship of Laura Kerwin, Yvonne Lampela and Annamarie Raymond blossomed into a business venture called The Centerpiece—and this year, they're putting on the craft show Thursday and Friday, Oct. 24 and 25, at the Oakland County Sportsmen's Club.

Their purpose is threefold: to showcase their talents, to offer works from about 25 additional artists and to benefit the Montgomery Developmental Center.

They're pleased with the lineup of items available at their show. The list includes country crafts, doll clothes, hand-woven doll cradles, stained glass, cross-stitch pillows, dried apple wreaths, cut lampshades and pottery.

Their expertise comes in with silk and dried flower arrangements, baskets by Annamarie, wreaths of all types and Victorian Christmas tree ornaments.

During the 14 years she has been participating in arts and craft shows, Yvonne has seen some changes.

It used to be that "anyone who could crochet, knit or glue" was found at such events, she says, but "now it's getting to the point where the public demands a higher quality in the crafts."

"You have a lot of talented artists, is what you have," adds Annamarie.

Their business involves many hours of work as they prepare for the Clarkston Craft-A-Rama show plus seven others in six weeks.

The women show no sign of weariness despite workdays that end in the wee hours of the morning. The positive aspects of their business are on their minds.

"I get to do something that I like to do. I get to do it when I want to do it. I have the summer to be with my kids. And I make people happy," Yvonne said.

"It is so rewarding when someone picks something up that you've done for them and says, 'Oh, I love it!'" said Annamarie.

"A lot of people benefit from it, which is nice,"

At work in the portion of Annamarie Raymond's home set aside for their projects are The said Laura, referring to their suppliers—including the man who makes the wooden hearts for their family and welcome wreaths.

They also talked about their plan to help pay for playground equipment at the Montgomery Training Center with proceeds from an Amish quilt raffle and the admission donation of 50 cents for their craft show.

The training center provides an education for students from the Clarkston, Waterford and Brandon school districts who are severely mentally impaired and physically impaired.

Hours of Craft-A-Rama are noon to 8 p.m.

Thursday and 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Friday.

A luncheon featuring ham and cheese croissants, chicken salad plate, cheese-broccoli soup, chili, and fresh baked pies will be available Thursday all day and from noon to 5 p.m. Friday.

On Friday evening, craft show-goers can dine at the weekly fish and chicken fry put on by the Sportsmen's Club from 5:30 to 8 p.m. Open to the public, the dinner costs $3.95 for adults, $3 for 6-12-year-olds. There is no charge for children under age 6.

The club is located at 4770 Waterford Rd. (turn east off Dixie Highway and follow the signs) in Independence Township.

Anniversary service at St. Trinity Lutheran

A worship service to observe the 100th anniversary of St. Trinity Lutheran Church and Martin Luther's reformation in 1517 is planned Sunday, Oct. 20.

The 600-member St. Trinity's was founded May 31, 1885, on the southeast side of Pontiac. Ten years ago, it moved to 7925 Sashabaw Rd. in Independence Township.

The service at 2 p.m. will be conducted by the Rev. Dr. Walter Maier Jr., third vice president of the more than 2 million-member Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod.

Maier's sermon, "Thank God for Our Reformation Heritage," is based on Psalm 105:1-2.

The Concordia College Choir from Ann Arbor will also sing.

Coffee and dessert will be served following the service in the fellowship hall of the church. The public is invited at no charge.

The worship service is the third of three centennial celebrations this year at St. Trinity.

Assignment in Haiku poetry

Here's a sampling of Japanese-style poetry about nature written by Jackie Hoisington's fifth-graders at Bailey Lake Elementary School.

The three-line poems contain five syllables in the first line, seven in the second and five in the third.

Days are getting short,
When I get up it is dark,
I even hit walls.
—Kyle Powell

Deep within the lake
A frog is sleeping, dreaming
For it is winter.
—Josh Laycock

Winter is over,
The birds are flying back home,
Just to say hello.
—Paula Manzo

The birds go away,
They are going south again.
They will be back soon.
—Erika Srugis

Days are getting short,
The leaves are turning colors.
Winter is coming.
—Sheila Bookie

Leaves are scattering,
Weeds going from side to side,
Squirrels collect nuts.
—Rita Frechette

Days are getting dark,
Days are going faster now,
And it's getting cold.
—Heather Waller

Obituaries

Sherman Lowery

Sherman Lowery, 78, died Oct. 10. A life-long resident of Clarkston, he was a retired custodian for Clarkston Community Schools.

Following his retirement about 13 years ago, Mr. Lowery devoted some of his time doing jobs in Clarkston including sidewalk snow removal, first by shovel and then with a small tractor.

He was a regular customer at the Village Bakeshop and he attended virtually every concert offered by the Clarkston Conservatory of Music.

Director of the conservatory Ivan Rouse fondly recalls Mr. Lowery's observance of values including hard work, honesty and integrity.

"He was the last of a 1910 breed, perhaps he was the last . . .," Rouse said.

Rouse remembers a major ice and snowstorm a couple of years back—and Mr. Lowery coming into a local restaurant in the midst of clearing snow and doing an Irish jig.

And he remembers that despite illnesses in his later years, Mr. Lowery was "terribly triumphant."

"Each one of us can summon gloom or summon joy, and he never summoned gloom," Rouse said.

Surviving Mr. Lowery are his step-children, Kent, Francis and Nathan Riffe, Thessally Miller and Janie Wells; and brother, Ray Lowery of Midland.

The funeral service was held Oct. 12 at the Lewis E. Wint & Son Funeral Home, Independence Township, with the Rev. Douglas Trebilcock officiating. Burial followed in Davisburg Cemetery.

Memorial tributes may be made to the Clarkston Conservatory of Music restoration fund.

He was also a member of the Pontiac Area First Friday Club, Naim Club, Eagles and a veteran of World War II.

Surviving are his wife, Manda; parents, Nat and Caroline Tersigni of Clarkston; children, Mrs. Rod (Karen) Mersino of Oxford, Cindy of Waterford, Thomas of Texas, Teresa of Utica, Tony of Texas, Lisa of Highland and Todd, Ted, Tim and Mary, all at home; step-children, Mrs. Richard (Carolyn)

Why is alcohol bad for teens?

Copyright 1985 Jeanette Sanders

Dear Cat Paw:

What effect does marijuana have on your eyesight after four to five years of use, averaging one to two joints a day?

Blurred Vision

Dear Blurred Vision:

I heard David Toma speak at Lake Orion Oct. 1 and he mentioned an alarming rise in the number of marijuana smokers who complain of blurred vision, blindness and numbness of the body.

Marijuana affects the nervous system, along with many other systems. The optic nerve is part of the nervous system.

With the amount you smoke, you are considered a heavy drug user. I hope it isn't too late for you to reverse the symptoms your body is showing. (There is a point of no return when permanent damage occurs.)

Stop right now—don't smoke another joint. Your body is telling you that you are playing a dangerous game. It takes at least a month to get all the THC out of your body and to be completely drug free.

Get some professional help and save yourself. It's not going to be easy, but you are certainly worth it. Write back and let me know how you're doing.

Dear Cat Paw:

Which is worse, smoking a joint or a cigarette?

Unsigned

Dear Unsigned:

They are both killers, so it is hard to say which is the worst.

Dear Cat Paw:

Can taking too many drugs kill your brain cells and give you a bad heart?

Wondering

Dear Wondering:

Yes, but you don't have to take too many drugs to accomplish this. Any street drug alone will kill brain cells and damage your body.

Dear Cat Paw:

Why is alcohol bad for teenagers, especially if you don't drive?

Young Driver

Dear Young Driver:

There are many reasons. Alcohol is addictive and people can get "hooked." Alcohol has the property of tolerance—with regular use it takes larger quantities to produce the same effect.

Regular alcohol use often interferes with learning and social adaptation both crucial activities in teenage years.

Alcohol greatly intensifies the effects of other drugs when taken near the same time. While moderate drinking increases risk-taking behavior at every age, it greatly increases risk taking among teenagers.

Perhaps the most serious risk any drinker runs is the possibility of developing alcoholism. Alcohol impairs absorption of many vitamins and minerals needed for healthy bodies.

If alcohol were discovered today, it is likely that it would not pass safety tests and would not be sold because of its toxicity.

Letters to Cat Paw, which need not be signed, should be sent to The Clarkston News, 5 S. Main, Clarkston, MI 48016.

Cat Paw author Jeanette Sanders, a Springfield Township resident, is a member of the Clarkston Area Chemical People, an organization devoted to the prevention of substance abuse among the community's young people.

Costumes are optional, but those who come dressed for Halloween can vie for prizes in the categories of scariest, funniest, best 1950s' theme and best space theme.

School reflections

Road construction, class meeting, student IDs. If you attended U of D-Clarkston the first two weeks of class, these were just some of the things that happened.

The first week of classes started out with everyone avoiding the obstacles put up by the road construction crew. If you looked at the bottom of a lot of cars, you would find traces of fresh tar.

Students also were buying books that they didn't pick up on the day of registration. The room next to the student lounge was transformed into a temporary book store.

I ended up spending more on books than I expected, but I discovered that my textbooks had been reissued and I could only buy them new.

On Wednesday, Sept. 4, the university called its first and only class meeting of the year. We were told the procedures of the university in regard to solving problems.

Also, we found out there are two juniors, two sophomores and two at-large members on the student council. The two freshman members are elected by their classmates in January.

There is also an internship offered through the university starting this year. It is with the Oakland County Chamber of Commerce and Frank Gorski, a junior at the campus, is the first recipient of this internship.

The first two weeks ended down on the main campus of U of D. The main campus was celebrating its annual Titanfest, and as part of the university we are invited to all events.

On Thursday night, a group of us went down to the Rat (a popular gathering place) and relaxed from the pressure and responsibility that had built up in the first two weeks of a new term at Clarkston.

Kay Ellis is a freshman at the University of Detroit's Clarkston Campus. She resides in Lake Orion.

TOPS program hits new heights

Physical and course content alterations have changed the Total Office Procedures (TOPS) program at the Northwest Oakland Vocational Education Center.

"We have 11th- and 12th-grade students with a wide variety of background skills and abilities," said Paul Witek, TOPS instructor. "The new changes will allow us to better meet individual needs."

This summer, the room was divided, the walls covered and the floor carpeted to make two attractive and functional instructional areas.

One area houses basic skill development, which continues to be the TOPS program. The other room is equipped to teach information processing/word processing through the use of over 20 pieces of state-of-the-art word processing equipment.

More equipment is on order, Witek said.

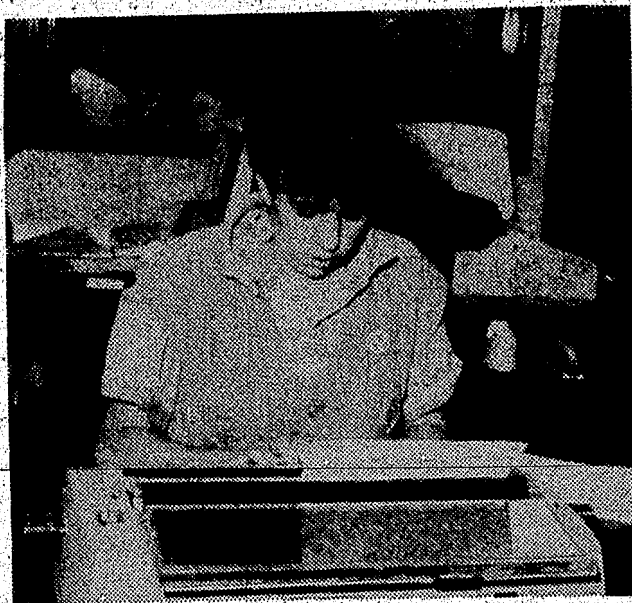

"It's not going to be a static program," he said.

"We will continue to make changes."

The curriculum revision reflects the changes in the physical makeup. It is based on job titles. Skills and tasks are identified and course materials developed to teach students for specific jobs.

With the changes, TOPS can now serve students interested in traditional, general clerical office skills in a one-year program or those interested in more advanced word processing occupations in a two-year program.

There are presently about 80 students enrolled in TOPS. The instructors are Witek and Louise Dube.

Clarkston High School senior Whitney Williams works to sharpen her clerical skills in the newly revised TOPS classroom.

Football fun

Here's a chance for boys and girls, ages 8 to 13, to test their football prowess.

The annual Punt-Pass-Kick competition sponsored by the Clarkston Area Jaycees is planned at 10 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 19, at the Clarkston High School football field off Waldon Road.

The event is free and participants can register at the gate. It will be held rain or shine.

Awards in separate age categories include six trophies. According to Jaycee Tom Lowrie, the trophies are worth shouting about.

"These things are just humongous," he said.

Safety counts for SCAMP walk

A cautious approach is planned when the Walk for SCAMP takes place Saturday, Oct. 19.

Plenty of volunteers will be working to assure the safety of walkers, says Betty Haran, coordinator of development for the North Oakland SCAMP Funding Corp.

"Waves" of walkers begin leaving Clarkston's Depot Park at 10 a.m. for three- and 10-mile hikes to benefit Clarkston SCAMP. The walkers are sent out in groups of 30 to 50 and an effort is made to include adults in each wave, Haran said.

In addition, six locations have been established along the 10-mile walk to be staffed by 12 volunteers from Northern Oakland County REACT, a CB club; and additional volunteers have been recruited from the Explorers scouting group sponsored by the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

SCAMP also provides a circulating van, with an identifying sign, to pick up weary walkers.

"We want to assure parents... their youngsters are safe on the walk," Haran said.

During the seven years there have been large groups of people walking for SCAMP, "we have never had trouble, frankly," she added.

Last year just under 600 people participated in the fund raising effort. The proceeds go to Clarkston SCAMP, the five-week summer camping program for handicapped children and youths from northern Oakland County.

This year, for the first time, fingerprinting will be offered at the park for children waiting to walk. Parents are to keep the prints for identification purposes.

Wolverine howls

As most of us know, our gym floor was recently redone due to the excessive amount of water from roof leaks which caused the floor to swell.

Foster Flooring did an excellent job in repairing our gym floor. It took four weeks to complete the job, but hopefully it will last 55 years like the old one did.

The school paid $5,000 for the work and the insurance company paid $15,000, bringing the total to $20,000.

Have you noticed the new textbooks in math and English classes? We asked our principal, Mr. Duane Lewis, about the textbooks to find out more about them.

We found out the funding for the textbooks came from the general fund for the school district. It is not taken from the teachers or after-school activities. Those classes that did not receive new textbooks this year may receive them in the next few years.

There is a process to review all textbooks at the end of every school year to see if they need rebinding or repair.

The cost of textbooks for the building cost somewhere around $17,000.

We know you are all dying to know what happened to the old textbooks. You will be happy to know they were destroyed, although some were sold. There was one classroom set saved of each title.

Here are some of your own comments.

"Better than before," said Brian Polley.

"They are harder," claimed Nicole Oswald.

"They smell better than last year's did," added Erich Becker.

This week's column was written by Laura Wendt, Nancy Carosella, Jenny Futrell and Kelly Jones, members of the journalism class at Clarkston Junior High School.

Springfield satellite attracts seniors

Square dancing, trips, exercising, crafts and cards could fill the agenda for senior citizens in Springfield Township.

For the first time in the township, seniors participated in organized activities sponsored by the Holly Area Senior Center and the Springfield Township Parks and Recreation Commission.

The five-hour program Oct. 10 was held at the Springfield Oaks Activities Center on Andersonville Road.

The gathering drew 30 residents over 50 years old.

"This is the first satellite program from the Holly Area Senior Center," said coordinator Delora Navarra. "I'm very pleased with the turnout for the first meeting."

The group met at 10 a.m. to discuss desired activities. After lunch, they began square dancing, one of several activities the seniors requested.

"We're not here to duplicate other activities in the area," Navarra said. "We want to come up with the things they want."

Some of the suggestions on the questionnaire the seniors filled out included trips, crafts, exercise, bounce volleyball teams, monthly speakers, camping, painting, bowling and dancing.

The Holly Area Senior Center covers residents in the townships of Springfield, Holly, Rose, Groveland and the Village of Holly.

Navarra said the 1980 census report listed 2,200 residents age 60 or older in the area.

"People are living longer and are healthier and more active than they've ever been," Navarra said. "They want to stay active in society and be a part of the community."

Navarra and Sherry Swindell of the Springfield Parks and Recreation Commission are in charge of coordinating the program at the activities center.

"Normally they (Oakland County) do not lend their buildings out, but they like what we're doing," Navarra said. "We're looking for a home right now. They granted us use of the building through March of next year."

Lyle Covert and his wife Virginia keep smiling as they square dance at the Springfield Oaks Activities Center.

Timely scratch, lucky ticket lead to money

The discovery that Paul and Marie Wilmot won $10,000 in the Michigan Lottery Instant Game was fraught with drama.

Following an established routine, Marie had purchased the instant game ticket at Hallman's Apothecary in Clarkston along with two Lotto tickets.

It was a Wednesday, the day the mid-week Lotto numbers are announced.

"I just happened to pick (an instant game ticket) up that day and I just put it with the other tickets," she said.

That night, the Wilmots gathered round the TV in their Independence Township home to listen to the announcement of the winning Lotto numbers.

Meanwhile, their 10-year-old daughter, Amy, scratched the coverings off the instant game ticket.

"Nobody paid attention to her, and she was having a fit all over the kitchen saying, 'Three aces! Three aces!'" Mrs. Wilmot said.

The next day, Mr. Wilmot, a self-employed builder, took the ticket to Lansing where he was told there would be a two- to three-week wait for verification and the issuance of a check.

About two weeks later, the money, less taxes, arrived in the mail.

The Wilmots, who have four children, plan to use their winnings to pay bills.

Other than an occasional free ticket or $2 prize, the win was a "first time ever" for the Wilmots.

"It does kind of renew your faith in (the lottery), because I often wondered what they do with the money," Mrs. Wilmot said.

Fun camp inside...

The hunt is on for what the owl ate last. Shawn Lambouris (left) and Mike Elgie compare the bones of animals found in a barn owl pellet with pictures on a diagram.

These Clarkston Junior High School ninth-graders are deeply engrossed in finding out what's inside a barn owl pellet. The pellets were flown to Camp Tamarack from Washington, where barn owls flourish. The CJHS ninth-graders spent a week at camp from Oct. 7-11.

...and outside

Photos by Carolyn Walker

Rainy autumn weather presents no problem for these Clarkston Junior High School ninth-graders. All decked out in camouflage fatigues, they learn how to find their way with the aid of a compass.

Nan Borgesser kicks off her shoes and enters her canoe with little trepidation. A cloudy, rainy day doesn't interfere with the fun.
