Noisy youths behind rule

Cinema adopts new policy

By Carolyn Walker

Noisy and sometimes rowdy youths are behind a new rule recently implemented at the Clarkston Cinema.

Dean and Diane Kitchen, two-year owners of the theater on Dixie Highway, are now requiring that students under 16 years of age be accompanied by adults to movies shown Friday and Saturday evenings.

Driver's licenses proving that students are at least 16 are required by those who are unaccompanied.

The rule is in effect on Friday and Saturday nights only. All ages are permitted without adults at Sunday through Thursday night showings and matinees, according to Diane Kitchen, who says that Fridays and Saturdays are the 266-seat theater's busiest nights.

The rule came about because parents were dropping large groups of young teens off at the theater, Dean Kitchen says, and the teens, sometimes as many as 150, subsequently created disruption for adult and family viewers.

The owners tried for two years, unsuccessfully, to caution the noisy offenders during movies and to have parents vouch for their children at the door, he says.

Kitchen says the new rule has been good for business and that he regrets not implementing the

Robbers make off with checks, cash

Robbers wearing ski masks fled with over $20,000 in cash and checks Saturday after assaulting two Food Town employees at the Pontiac State Bank on Sashabaw Road.

The robbers made off with $6,500 in cash and $14,021 in checks after hitting Chester Jeffrey and Robert Saul on their heads with a tire iron, according to a report at the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

The robbery took place at 8:07 a.m. as the men prepared to make a deposit in the night deposit box.

After hitting the victims, one of the two suspects fled with the money bag while the second suspect followed.

New wells

Road salt blamed

By Kathy Greenfield

About a year and one-half ago, Dr. Marvin Persky noticed his well water wasn't wonderful anymore. It had gone from "really marvelous" 13 years ago when he moved to his Sherwood Road residence in Springfield Township to having "an off-taste," he said.

Persky blamed runoff from road salt stored at the Oakland County Road Commission garage located three-eighths of a mile from his home.

Water tests confirmed that Persky's suspicions were probably correct, and Persky, along with 13 neighbors, have been or will be offered deeper wells paid for by the road commission, according to Robert Long, supervising sanitarian for the Oakland County Environmental Health Division.

A political science teacher at Mott Community College in Flint, Persky credits his knowledge of government with helping the cause.

First, following a tip from a neighbor, he had his well water tested. The results confirmed higher than normal salt and chloride levels.

He began carting water home from the spring in Davisburg and from work. Then he installed a small water distiller in his home.

Meanwhile, Persky wrote letters. Among recipients were the county road commission, Gov. James Blanchard, County Executive Daniel Murphy and State Rep. Mat Dunaskiss (R-Lake Orion).

"I don't know who got things going," he said.

Persky's letter concerning the area was the second to arrive at Long's office.

"We were getting ready to sample when his complaint came in," Long said.

But, according to Long, Persky's approach was correct.

Following the incident, the victims returned to the Food Town where they called police, the report said. The sheriff's canine unit was called to the scene.

Later that same day, residents on Waterford Road notified the sheriff's department that they had found partially burned checks on their front lawn.

Police are investigating the possibility that the found checks are connected to the robbery.

One suspect in the robbery is described as a male, about 6-foot-2 with light brown hair. He was wearing a black ski mask with white trim, gray pants and a blue jogging jacket, according to Lou Marsh, special investigator for the sheriff's department.

No description of the second suspect is available.

Salt problems lead to new wells

"That's how we become aware of any concerns like this, once we start getting some complaints," he said.

Members of Long's staff and the Michigan Department of Natural Resources began by testing water samples from nearby Dixie Lake and from residences "literally all around the lake" on Rattalee Lake Road, Dixie Highway and on King, Sherwood, Patrick and Shore roads.

In all, 35 to 40 wells were tested, as was the surface water in Dixie, Susin, Bridge and Deer lakes, Long said.

While the salt level was higher in Dixie Lake than the others down the chain, the level was within the normal range, Long said.

But higher than normal levels of sodium and/or chloride found in residences on Sherwood and Patrick roads resulted in resampling.

Geological studies have indicated the sodium and chloride were carried to the residences in water flowing under Dixie Lake, according to Long.

"It appears the salt plume actually goes under the lake. There's a water-bearing strata that is physically separate from the lake itself," he said.

Long credits the practice of storing salt in a pile in the road commission parking lot about 10 years ago with creating the problem.

A wood-sided storage shed constructed in 1978-79 should have alleviated the salt runoff, he added, and the salt dome under construction behind the garage which will hold 5,000 tons of salt should eliminate any possible problem.

When the new wells are dug, they will be between 50 to 70 feet deep. Some of the existing wells are less than 20 feet deep, and at that level, "it could take another 10 years for it to clean itself up," Long said.

Because of the geology of the area, any matter would move fairly rapidly through the low-level water, change sooner.

His wife agrees.

"The ones who are responsible for the rule know who they are," she says. "There were enough of them to make it necessary. The only thing we're sorry about is that we didn't do it a long time ago."

"We haven't had any problems with business at all. We've gotten nothing but support. We feel very strongly that we will never change the rule."

according to Long. He noted that the residents are lucky an industry using toxic chemicals was not located at the road commission garage site.

"I'm not trying to downplay the severity of the salt, but it could have been a lot worse," he said.

Long also praised the road commission for its approach to the salt problem.

"The road commission has pretty well documented that they are the ones that caused it and I think they're taking some pretty prudent measures," he said.

Persky agreed with Long's assessment.

"I'll give them credit for that—they didn't try to duck it all the way," he said.

In trade for the well, which has not yet been dug, Persky said he signed a document agreeing to relinquish any further claim on the road commission.

"I'm not interested in recovering damages," he said, noting a $200 expense for the water distiller and time spent "lugging water in plastic milk bottles."

"My feeling was I'd rather get things settled and get the well in and be done with it," he said. "I'll be satisfied when I get the water and know there isn't any salt in it."

The salt dome under construction dazzles in the sunshine. The wood-sided shed at left contains the remains of last year's salt supply, which will be moved into the finished dome, and the shed will be used to store chlorided sand, says garage foreman Bob Thomas.

New dome houses season's salt

By Kathy Greenfield

A winter of lumpy-free salt lies ahead for the Oakland County Road Commission crew.

When the snow flies, they plan to dig into a 5,000-ton pile of road salt stored in a glistening white dome under construction behind the George "Bud" Keyser Garage off Dixie Highway in Springfield Township.

The $180,000 salt dome built by Porter Grain Systems of Rensselaer, Ind., is expected to be completed in mid-November. Similar structures are used to keep grain dry in farming communities.

"It's the best kind of storage you can come up with to protect the environment," said Dennis Pajot, spokesperson for the road commission.

The project includes an asphalt pad, drainage system and retention basin. The dome measures 99 feet in diameter and stands 41 feet high.

"In this particular construction technique, I'm told, they inflate this balloon, spray concrete on the inside and leave the balloon as a cover," Pajot said.

The dome will hold the majority of the 7,500 pounds of salt normally used by the garage's 17 salt spreading snowploughs during a winter season.

The garage services county and state roads including I-75 in Independence, Springfield, Brandon, Groveland, Holly and Rose townships.

"This will allow us to have our winter supply in stock—and then we're good and dry," said Bob Thomas, a garage foreman.

"Before, we used to put a pile in here and they used to cover it with a tarp. When you got into that pile, it was a hassle to cover it back up, and the cost of that covering was quite high. One year we had to have (the tarp) replaced when the wind got to it."

Keeping the salt dry will also eliminate wet weather creating a salt runoff, he said.

Salt domes currently exist at three of the six road commission garages, in Pontiac, Orion and Southfield. A dome planned for the Milford garage was delayed due to the community's height restrictions. In Troy, salt is stored by other methods and a dome is not necessary, Pajot said. Countywide, about 50,000 tons of salt are used annually.

When the dome is completed, 100 trips by 50-ton delivery trucks will be required to fill it.

This year, the road commission accepted a bid of $19.50 a ton from the Morton Salt Co. of Canada, which taps into salt mines under the Detroit River, Pajot said.

County-wide solid waste plan proposed to township board

By Carolyn Walker

Plans for joining a proposed county-wide solid waste disposal program are currently under consideration by the Independence Township board.

On Oct. 15, board members listened to a presentation about the program by George Schutte, superintendent of the Oakland County Solid Waste Unit.

No action was taken at the meeting, although a decision of whether or not to participate in the project is needed by Dec. 13, said Supervisor Frank Ronk.

A cost estimate for joining the plan is not available because financing is to be based on the number of communities involved, according to Schutte.

The proposal was initially approved by the board of commissioners, department of natural resources and other governing bodies in 1983. During the same year, two-thirds of the county's municipalities also approved the plan, Schutte said.

Under the plan, several strategically located landfills would be used and two incinerators would be constructed for the burning of non-toxic refuse.

"The idea is to try to minimize the material going into landfills," Schutte said.

Municipalities have the option of participating in the plan. It is designed to reduce the number of landfills and is considered more ecologically sound than current disposal methods, Schutte said.

"With this program, we would have a network of programs. We'd keep an eye on their (landfill) capacity," he said, calling the proposal a "benefit to citizens, industry and commerce."

Existing landfills in Lyon Township, Waterford and Rochester Hills would be used under the proposal.

In addition, landfills are under construction in Auburn Hills and Orion Township, according to Schutte, who said one is also planned (although there is litigation to stop it) in Holly Township.

The incinerators are to be built in Wixom and at the county service center, he said.

Municipalities that have their own facilities, such as Pontiac, could join the county plan once their own landfills were completely filled.

Currently, homeowners in Independence contract individually with haulers for the removal of their refuse, which is then deposited at various landfills.

Communities that participate in the plan will be asked to designate a representative to sit on the county solid waste board.

Plan financing, operations and materials would be proposed by the county executive, Schutte said, then sent to the board for approval.

"A partnership is what we're striving for here," he said.

A total of 600 tons of refuse must be generated daily by the communities for the plan to be effective, according to Schutte.

If it is not generated, the plan will be stopped or revised, he said.

Schutte added that he expects the figure to be met, because there are currently about 2,400 tons of refuse generated per day "out there."

What's in a name?

Kathy Greenfield

I don't remember thinking about my name much until I was in third grade.

At the beginning of the year, the teacher announced that if we had nicknames, they would belong to us during school hours, too.

I remember being most pleased with the thought. No longer would I be "Kathleen" in school—and nowhere else.

The teacher began calling us up to her desk, in alphabetical order. I couldn't wait for my turn.

I'm certain the routine would not have become a lasting memory if everything had gone smoothly. But when I stood at the desk and made my request to be called "Kathy," it was denied.

"I'm sorry. Somebody else already asked to be called 'Kathy.' It would be too confusing to have two people with the same name. You'll have to use 'Kathleen.'"

In that short time between the A's and the G's (my maiden name began with the same letter), someone had claimed my name. It was terrible news.

As it turned out, I only had to tolerate half of that school year as "Kathleen." We moved—and my new teacher had no problem with my nickname.

Looking back over the years, I can recall several events influenced by the name incident.

First, there was the naming of my own children. I don't remember dwelling heavily on selecting names that could not be shortened—but I remember thinking I was glad the names we liked stood alone.

About 10 years ago, I worked with a woman whose first name was identical to mine. She introduced herself as Kathleen. I called her Kathy. She fell apart.

"Never call me that," she said. "My name is Kathleen."

Reacting to such decidedly strange behavior, I spent some time finding out why she wanted to be called something only a third-grade teacher could love.

Kathleen was in the midst of a divorce. With her new status as a single woman, she sought a new identity. Kathleen, she said, was much more sophisticated. "A rose by any other name . . ." I thought—but didn't say. Besides, she dripped with sophistication when necessary.

I tapped the memory again a few years ago when reading an article titled something like "Name Your Baby for Success."

Never, never, never give your daughter a name like Buffy or Mindy or anything else that ends in a Y sound, it said, because she won't be taken seriously in the business world.

The author must have been related to my third-grade teacher.

Letters to editor

Letter response

I am responding to Bruce Stewart's letter defending murderers with a history of mental disorders.

Ron Bailey, the accused murderer of Shaun Moore, is being tried for the murder of a child, a heinous crime not to be confused with being tried for mental illness.

Murder in any form should not be tolerated. If convicted, Mr. Bailey, and others like him, should repay in kind; with their own lives.

Michigan should reconsider the death penalty.

Jim's Jottings

Jim Sherman

For weeks now the greeting between many men has not been, "How are ya?" It's been, "When ya leaving?"

Yes, it's that season again. The time when men make grand plans to go north in search of the bushel-basket racks. The time when stubbled faces mark men who "ain't gonna shave until I get my buck!"

It's the time of year when men become men, meaning they don't bath regularly, punctuate their remarks much more frequently with curses, and sleep in the woods.

Get the women and children off the streets north of Gladwin, here come the unkempt, too loud, DNR critics—the deer hunters.

Except for the stubble face, I fit the description, though I need a few more adjectives, like: bragging, lying, insulting, and over indulgence.

Actually, my enthusiasm for hunting has waned considerably since my first hunt in 1949. That's the year I went from honeymoon to deer hunting in three weeks and found them both exciting. It's also the last time my bride went along.

This will be my 35th trek to the land of 700,000 red coats, each with just enough fluorescent orange to scare the deer. And, going into the woods on that first cold morning isn't a high priority item.

Part of this feeling has to do with three decades of experience of listening to chickadees and breaking twigs, and moving nothing but my eyeballs at the flicker of a dead fern in a slight wind.

And, part of it probably has to do with shooting my first buck, a 4-pointer, last season. That had to be one of the most unexciting events of my life.

Here I've spent 34 seasons, creeping, stalking, and tracking, and apparently all I ever really had to do was stop at the right time in the right place and have a buck walk up on me.

Another thing I did right was to be close to a trail and the car. A half hour before, I was way back in the woods without knife or dragging rope.

I still didn't have them after I got my buck, so I walked to the car. I found myself hoping someone would steal the buck, thus saving a cleaning experience. I didn't tag it either, like you're supposed to. However, no one relieved me.

This season I've toyed with the idea of carrying a camera instead of a rifle. I've also thought about dropping the "hunters" in the woods and heading for Sault Saint Marie and lunching at The Antlers restaurant.

I've rejected staying in the cabin and cooking for that bunch of ingrates.

One thing I have not considered is not going north. For while my interest in stalking deer is gone, my love for the accessory activities remain strong, Burp!

Ode to a Burgundy Burger

Carolyn Walker

Oh Burgundy Burger
In my frying pan,
Wouldst that you had been
A steak, a roast or ham.

Oh Burgundy Burger
Lonely on that plate,
Where are all the hungry mouths
That said they couldn't wait?

Oh Burgundy Burger
In the kitty's bowl,
Snubbed by all the hungry mouths.
Hear the kitty's tummy growl?

Burgundy Burgers. In my household those are fighting words. I now use them as my Grade A, prime (pun intended) secret weapon when the family assaults me with complaints about meals and my lack of imagination.

When the complaint "we always have the same things over and over and over for dinner," echoes off the kitchen walls, I simply smile maternally and respond, "Burgundy Burgers."

Silence invariably follows.

The very hint that Burgundy Burgers could be featured at the evening's meal serves to raise burnt chicken legs or steamed wieners to new heights in dining pleasure.

When the children whine, "Oh no, not bean soup again," I threaten them with Burgundy Burgers.

When The Perfectionist turns up his nose at baked white fish, I say with gloat (that's gloat not bloat), "It could be Burgundy Burgers."

When the cat turns his back on day-old, dry, boxed cat food, I say, "Just be glad it isn't Burgundy Burgers."

Simmered in mushrooms and burgundy wine, the Burgundy Burger may be considered a gourmet delicacy, an epicurean delight or a tempting morsel by some, but not, as you may have correctly assumed, by my family members. They hate the little devils.

The one and only day that I cooked Burgundy Burgers, in answer to pleas for "something different," has now gone down in family infamy. My just deserts, I suppose, for seeking out new recipes in the mail, of all places.

The Perfectionist resurrected the topic of Burgundy Burgers while we dined on warmed-over vegetable soup the other day.

Addressing the children he said, "Girls, you should have been there the time your mother fixed Burgundy Burgers."

Addressing me he said, "Remember how the cats wouldn't even eat them? You had so much pride you were actually going to eat them, rather than admit they were awful."

(Round of groans, laughter and "gross" from the table.)

I paused to consider a new tactic.

"It could be worse," said I. "You could be going hungry."

ALL ABOUT TOWN

SWAN SONG?: Neighbors on Cecelia Ann Road in Independence Township gather around a swan in distress. The apparently ill swan walked all the way down the street before sitting down mid-lane. A nudge from a passerby, concerned about oncoming traffic, convinced the swan it was safer in the grass. Alas, calls for help to area veterinarians, police officers and nature centers went unheeded. The bird finally wandered off into the woods, its fate unknown, according to one of the observers. [Photo by Carolyn Walker]

'If it Fitz ...'

The cellular connection

Jim Fitzgerald

"We have been married too long," my wife said. We were discussing communication while sitting on a boat in the middle of the Detroit River.

To show off, I'd just phoned our son-in-law in Lapeer, which is in Area Code 313, the same as Detroit, but I still had to dial 313 because the phone thought it was in Chicago, which is Area Code 312.

The world of wireless communication becomes more bewildering every day, especially for an anti-progress ingrate like me who thinks it wouldn't hurt Jack Nicklaus one bit to go into the house and talk on an ordinary phone.

We were aboard the Star of Detroit, a floating restaurant, for the first birthday party of Ameritech Mobile Communications, the people who put a cellular phone in my son-in-law's car, enabling his wife to not only call my wife from home to talk for four hours but also from the freeway to talk for 240 miles.

On the irregular occasions when they meet face-to-face, they never know when to stop talking because they can't hear a dial tone.

When my Olds emerges from the repair shop or car wash, the radio is always tuned to a weird station, so I'm determined to somehow struggle through life without a phone in my car. As for keeping up with my son-in-law, I figured he'd be suitably one-upped to answer the phone and discover his father-in-law was talking on water.

Ameritech brought several cellular phones aboard ship, and party guests were encouraged to use them. When I couldn't understand why I had to dial 313, it was explained that my phone was borrowed from an Ameritech office in Chicago, and cellular phones never forget their roots. Area Code 312 phones lured into the 313 area do not weakly succumb to the easy life enjoyed by native phones. They remain faithful to 312 and will not phone 313 unless 313 is dialed. They may be portable, but they're not disloyal.

I was touched.

Also, I was reminded of my favorite portable wireless phone story. Around 30 years ago, for a reason now forgotten, but probably liquid, a newspaper publisher named Ganeway cut the wires attaching a phone to a New York hotel and hid it in my luggage. We drove back to Michigan through Canada and, although the customs inspector didn't discover the phone under my dirty shirts, I had the perfect explanation ready:

"I'm expecting an important call."

A few months later, the stolen phone—now illegally installed in my basement—was used by a furnace repairman to make a long distance call. We lived in a tiny town where three-digit phone numbers were common, so the operator was surprised to hear the repairmen read the label on the phone and say he was calling from Murray Hill 236-8972, Room 934.

It was funny at the time because it happened long before phone calls could be made from a suitcase. The fact that it's not funny today is just another example of how new technology ruins old jokes. When's the last time a traveling salesman stayed at a farmhouse?

Anyway, there is another form of wireless communication that perplexes me. After the Ameritech cocktail party, my wife and I were to go out to dinner. The question was, where? The game we often play is she tried to guess which of several dozen eligible restaurants I have chosen in my mind. She always gets it right on the first guess.

How does she do that? She says it's because we've been married so long. But I can't read her mind. The truth is that wives are automated as spookily as portable phones that remember their roots.

In fact, I made a marvelous discovery the other day while she was talking to me face-to-face. I absent-mindedly began to hum, and she automatically stopped talking.

She thought she heard a dial tone.

MAIM shows up too

Doctors answer the call at Lansing rally

By Carolyn Walker

Many local doctors and legislators are hailing last week's physicians' rally in Lansing as a success.

Held to draw attention to the problem of increasing malpractice suits and insurance rates, the Oct. 22 rally attracted an estimated 10,000 supporters, including most of Clarkston's doctors, according to Dr. James O'Neill.

The supporters included physicians, medical personnel and family members, who spent the day advocating legislative relief.

Also present at the rally were representatives of MAIM, a Michigan organization of patients who claimed to have been injured by medical personnel. Many members of MAIM brought their handicapped children.

There were no confrontations between the two groups, according to Rick Simonson, administrative assistant to Sen. Richard Fessler (R-West Bloomfield) who characterized the groups as well-behaved and organized.

According to O'Neill, approximately 85 percent of Clarkston's doctors joined in the event. "It was very, very good," he said. "It was to the point, concise, brief. You couldn't help but be moved."

Simonson agreed with O'Neill.

"It went very well," he said. "We had not seen as many people on the front of the state capitol since Magic Johnson (and the Michigan State University basketball victory)."

According to Simonson, the physicians spent the day listening to comments from Gov. James Blanchard, House of Representatives Minority Leader Mike Busch and other doctors and in discussions with various legislators.

Fessler and Simonson talked with 471 doctors from Fessler's district alone, Simonson said, adding, "It was a busy, busy day."

"I think we've accomplished a lot."

—Dr. Frederick Minkow

Mat Dunaskiss (R-Lake Orion), concurred, calling the event "The largest rally that's ever taken place."

Dunaskiss said he spent the day conversing with approximately 60 area doctors.

Doctors from across Michigan, charging that there have been an excess in frivolous lawsuits, have blamed the malpractice situation for an exodus of physicians to neighboring states.

It is hoped the rally will encourage a change in state laws which will stabilize insurance rates and enable physicians to maintain their practices, according to Dr. Frederick Minkow, president of the Oakland County Medical Society, who was a speaker at the rally.

Minkow is also chairman of the Legislative and Regulations Committee for the state and a partner with Dr. Stephen Werner, an Independence Township resident. They practice hand surgery in Bloomfield Township.

"I think we've accomplished a lot," Minkow said. "It was just a show of concern. It went off just like clockwork."

Dr. John Naz, an Independence gynecologist, concurred. "Something has got to come out of it because it's disastrous what's happening now," he said. "I don't think physicians are asking for the whole ball. What they're asking for is something we can (all) live with."

Just a few days prior to the rally, the Michigan

Senate passed a 19-bill package which would regulate malpractice suits, dram shop act suits (against bar owners) and government liability suits, Simonson said.

The package, to go next to the state House of Representatives, addressed three main areas, according to Simonson. They were: a statute of limitations for filing suits; a proposal which would break down settlements based on responsibility (called joint and several); and a proposal which would prevent patients from collecting money from their insurance company and a lawsuit for the same complaint (called double-dipping).

Approved in the package, was a $250,000 cap on non-economic pain and suffering damages. Such a limit was recently endorsed in California and by the United States Supreme Court, Simonson said.

The $250,000 cap is expected to meet with opposition in the state House, according to Dunaskiss.

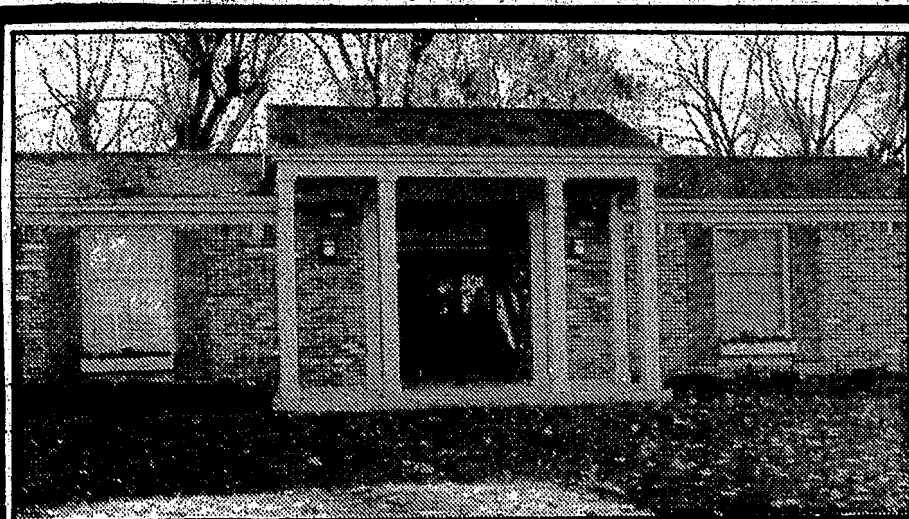

The House is expected to act on the package before Christmas. "This is the number one issue we're going to tackle," Dunaskiss said.

According to Minkow, if the $250,000 cap is made law, the results would be immediate stabilizing of insurance rates and the lowering of insurance rates over a period of time.

No limit has been proposed for recovering economic losses, such as the loss of wages or medical bills, Simonson said, thus enabling patients to seek large sums in the economic area of lawsuits.

Minkow said osteopathic doctors, orthopedic doctors, cardiologists and neurosurgeons currently pay $89,000 annually for $1 million policies. Only three insurance companies (including two which are physician owned out of Ohio) will insure doctors in Michigan, he said.

"It's a hopeless situation right now, the way it is," he said.

Courthouse public hearing planned

The new 52nd District Courthouse has taken one step closer to becoming a reality.

On Oct. 1, members of the Independence Township board unanimously established Nov. 5 as an Economic Development Corporation (EDC) public hearing date for the proposed project.

At the hearing, to be held in the township hall annex, members of the community will have the opportunity to voice concerns and ask questions about the project plans, bonds and building to be located off M-15.

The new courthouse is being built by the Rademacher Group. It is expected to be completed by Dec. 31.

Wellness classes are scheduled at center

Let your body do the talking.

Health care workers at The Clarkston Ambulatory Care Center are now planning a "Wellness Program" aimed at letting bodies tell their patients what they need to feel good.

The series of health-related workshops and programs is designed to enhance life, according to Beverly Walters, R.N., spokesperson for the center.

The program "deals with all aspects of health," she says. "I think the whole push toward preventive medicine is a strong one... being in touch with yourself."

The center intends to offer the following classes on a regular basis, annually, during the fall, winter and spring seasons:

- Diet Workshop. Ongoing classes meet Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights at three locations; $12 registration fee; $6 weekly fee.

- The Back School. Physical therapists from Prescription Fitness evaluate well and injured backs and teach patients how to cope with and prevent back pain; individualized assessments; two Wednesday sessions at 7:30 p.m. beginning Nov. 6 at the office of Drs. O'Neill, Yee and Kernis; $885 M-15; $10 fee.

- Freedom from smoking. The American Lung Association presents classes to help smokers quit; two manuals; classes meet every Tuesday for four weeks beginning Nov. 19 at O'Neill's office; $25 fee.

- Free Blood Pressure Screening. Readings taken any evening from 7 until midnight or weekdays from noon until 8 p.m.; Clarkston Ambulatory Care Center, 5905 M-15, Independence Township.

A stress clinic and a "wellness" class have already begun.

To register for classes or for more information about further sessions, call 625-CARE.

Runners race to championships

By Dan Vandenhemel

When the starting gun sounds in Flint this Saturday, two runners from Clarkston will be chasing runners from rest of the state.

Clarkston High School cross country runners Kathleen McInnis and Jeff Toretta qualified for the state finals Nov. 2 at the IMA Brookwood Golf Course in Flint. This is McInnis' second trip to the finals and Toretta's first.

The two runners made the grade at the state regional meet at Marshbank Metropark near Orchard Lake, Oct. 26.

McInnis, a junior, finished third out of nearly 100 runners with a time of 20:06 for the 5,000 meter course. Laura Matson of Bloomfield Hills Andover won the race in 19:32.

Toretta, a senior, also placed third with 16:57, 38 seconds behind winner Cliff Dwell of Lake Orion.

Teammate Melissa Elfes missed making the finals by seconds.

"She was probably the most sick and disappointed runner there," coach Mike Kaul said. "She ran a 21:56 which put her in 21st place and 20th was the cutout. I don't know the time, but it was only three or four seconds."

Only the top three teams qualify for the finals. For individuals, the top 10 runners who are not on any of the three qualifying teams also earn a trip.

Coaches Kaul and Mike Taylor said they thought McInnis and Toretta would make the finals but were surprised at how well they did.

"With Jeff, we were ecstatic," Kaul said. "That was the first time he's broken 17 minutes at Marshbanks. He's peaking at the right time. He's had a great year and is still improving."

McInnis was slowed by a leg injury that kept her from practicing much the week prior to the race. Running with pain is something McInnis isn't used to, said Kaul.

"It was about 30 seconds off her best time," he said. "She's not used to having aches and pains. The injury might have slowed her down some, but it's only a minor thing."

Jeff Toretta and Kathleen McInnis will be running a little harder than this picture shows when they compete in the state finals for cross country in Flint, Nov. 2

Defense supports Wolves

By Dan Vandenhemel

One more shutout by the Clarkston Junior Varsity Football Team and two coaches will be whiskerless.

John Craven and Steve Pearson told the Wolves if the team holds West Bloomfield scoreless in the final game of the season, Oct. 31, they will shave off their mustaches.

"It's just a little incentive to get the kids up for the game," Craven said.

Of the Wolves' last four games, three have been shutouts. They Wolves are riding a five-game winning streak to bring their record to 6-2.

The latest victory was a 15-0 whitewashing of Avondale on Oct. 24.

"The game was a classic case of winning ugly," Craven said. "We had a lot of turnovers. The offense could've scored 40 points."

Keenan Powell scored the first touchdown for the Wolves against Avondale on a six-yard run. Josh Newblatt added the extra-point kick to put the Wolves up to 7-0. The final touchdown came on a one-yard run by quarterback Vince Vacante. Vacante also ran in the two-point conversion.

When talking about the 1985 Wolves, it doesn't take long for Craven to start bragging about the defense.

"We've given up 88 points in eight games and 60 of them came in our two losses" to Sterling Heights Stevenson and Pontiac Northern, Craven said. "They've carried us all year because the offense can't get on track."

Mark Oswald led the team with eight tackles on defense and made the big play of the game as far as Craven is concerned.

"In the middle of the first quarter, Avondale's quarterback was scrambling and Oswald caught him and that knocked him out of the game," Craven said. "That was the key play for us. The quarterback is all right. He had a concussion, but he'll probably play in their next game."

Ski meeting set

Clarkston High School students should start to wax their downhill skis.

The boys' and girls' ski teams have their first practice set for Friday, Nov. 1, at 3:30 near the high school office.

Athletes should have physicals before they participate in the practice.

I.M. KICKING: Intramural soccer in Clarkston and Sashabaw junior highs is reaching competitive levels. In two games this year, Sashabaw won the first game, 2-0, and Clarkston won the second game, 3-1. Clarkston has about 20 seventh, eighth, and ninth graders in its program. Sashabaw has about 30. This is the first time in the six-year program that the schools are playing against each other three times. [Photo by Dan Vandenhemel]

Up My Alley

Turn signals are a sign of weakness

Dan Vandenhemel

The wit and wisdom of John Gillaugh did more than help two often-lost travelers, it might have saved them.

The bit about saving might be a little extreme, but his tips were very helpful.

The Gillaughs are residents of Ridgefield, Conn. Ridgefield is not to be confused with Richfield, which we did and promptly got lost.

My fiancée and I had the pleasure of getting to know the Gillaughs because I was a best man in a wedding out there.

Larry (the new husband) and Karen (the new wife) had enough trouble planning the wedding in Connecticut with most of guests coming from Michigan and Indiana without worrying about two often-lost travelers. That's where the Gillaughs came in.

I repeated the often-lost part because we were often lost while trying to find our way around Connecticut.

All the roads in the tiny New England state seem to run in circles. Driving a boat of a rent-a-car didn't make matters any easier, either. The numerous hills and the trees forced the road to swerve back and forth as the streets we were looking for zipped by.

It was the third day of the vacation before we mastered the roads around Danbury and Ridgefield. A trip to the coast was planned for Saturday, the third day. We drove on all the right roads except the next to last one. That took us into downtown Norwalk. I mean DOWNTOWN.

I don't think it would have been so bad if the burned buildings and broken glass had not spilled over into the streets.

The trip to Norwalk was mild compared to The Adventure in New York City.

When John Gillaugh said, "Turn signals are a sign of weakness," he wasn't kidding. Even though we were there on Sunday, the traffic was incredible.

Peg described the landmarks as they flipped by while I tried to keep my eyes on the road. If I had looked at something as we passed it, there would probably be a Honda hood ornament on the Ford we were driving.

We saw most of Manhattan, Brooklyn, Queens and even some of New Jersey (by mistake).

Brooklyn is a different column in itself but I'll just hit the major event—a street fight.

A big group of people, two fighters and even a couple of policemen did a not-so-friendly dance for the benefit of a couple of often-lost travelers.

Also memorable were our trips across the Brooklyn, George Washington, Manhattan and Queensboro bridges. A couple of the crossings were accidental—and we did the George Washington Bridge twice.

Race or swap a snowmobile

The fourth annual Snowmobile Swap and Sale is planned Nov. 9 and 10 at Addison Oaks County Park.

A sanctioned Dry-Grass Drag Race takes place the same weekend.

The swap and sale, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., features dealers and individuals who trade and sell snowmobiles, equipment, suits, helmets and trailers.

Door prizes, games, food, concessions and dealer exhibits will also be available at the park, which features 13 miles of groomed trails during winter months.

The Dry-Grass Snowmobile Drag Race is sanctioned by the Michigan Snowmobile Drag Race Association. Participants can compete in the categories of stock, improved stock, modified stock and open. Cash prizes will be awarded for first, second, and third place in each category.

Entry fees range from $10 to $25. Races begin at 11:30 a.m. on Saturday and Sunday. Rain dates are Nov. 16-17. Spectator seats will be available.

There is a park entry fee of $3 a person or $8 a car for the race or swap and sale.

Addison Oaks County Park is on West Romeo Road, nine miles north of Rochester, in Addison Township. For more information, phone Rob Coffey at 858-4942.

Despite loss, Wolves pass expectations

By Dan Vandenhemel

Basketball coach Dave McDonald admits the Wolves most recent game wasn't much of a contest.

The Clarkston Wolves lost to Flint Powers, 64-45, in Flint on Oct. 22.

"They just beat us," McDonald said. "They were 12-1 going into the game and took it to us. They got up by 10 early and slowly pulled away. We didn't stink the gym up; they just beat us."

The loss moves the Wolves to 8-5 overall, which is better than McDonald ever thought they'd be. He hoped his team would win half its games.

"I'm just tickled. We're rated fourth in the county in the coach's poll," he said. "Basically, I've got to credit the seniors for the success we're having."

Seniors Sue Lovelady and Michelle Taulbee are consistently the leading scorers for the Wolves. Against Flint Powers, Lovelady had 14 points and Taulbee had eight. Missy O'Dell, a junior, added 10 points in the defeat.

"Lovelady has been playing outstanding. She just has been running the team," the coach said. "Melanie Upcott is another senior who is playing great. She also has a great game. Not all five starters are going to have a good game. Maybe Melanie is pushing them along."

In the Greater Oakland Activities League, the Wolves hold a 2-1 record. The only setback came from top-rated Waterford Kettering.

The other two teams ranked ahead of Clarkston are West Bloomfield and Farmington Mercy. West Bloomfield's only loss was against Clarkston in the second game of the season.

"We should be OK the rest of the year," McDonald said. "The only team in the league that should beat us the rest of the year is Kettering."

Senate Majority Leader John Engler told the press very few people get to sit in the Senate chamber, as they are doing above. The 38 senators are in session 110 days a year, but committee work takes many more days, Engler said.

Susan Work Martin, Revenue Commissioner, promises a crackdown on tax fraud, delinquencies, and cigarette bootlegging. She also said, "We will be uniform, consistent, and we will be fair." Her's will be a people-to-people relationship she said.

Getting briefed at the Capitol

About four dozen Michigan newspapers now have a better understanding of how some state departments operate.

Eight directors of divisions of state government reviewed their functions for the press at an all-day conference Friday.

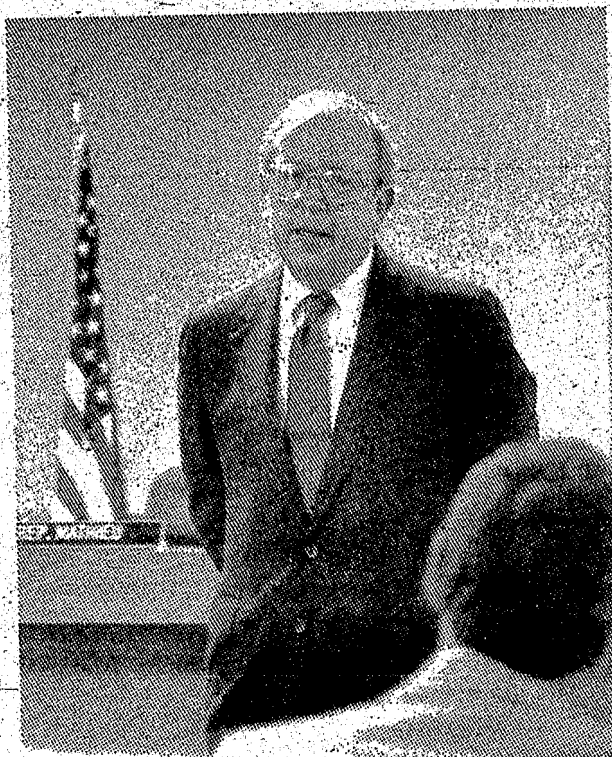

The occasion was the 3rd annual Governor's Michigan Press Association Government Affairs Day. The briefing took place in the House Appropriations Complex of the Capitol in Lansing.

The lunch interruption took the press to Warnton Performing Arts Building at Michigan State University, where MSU president John DiBiaggio spoke.

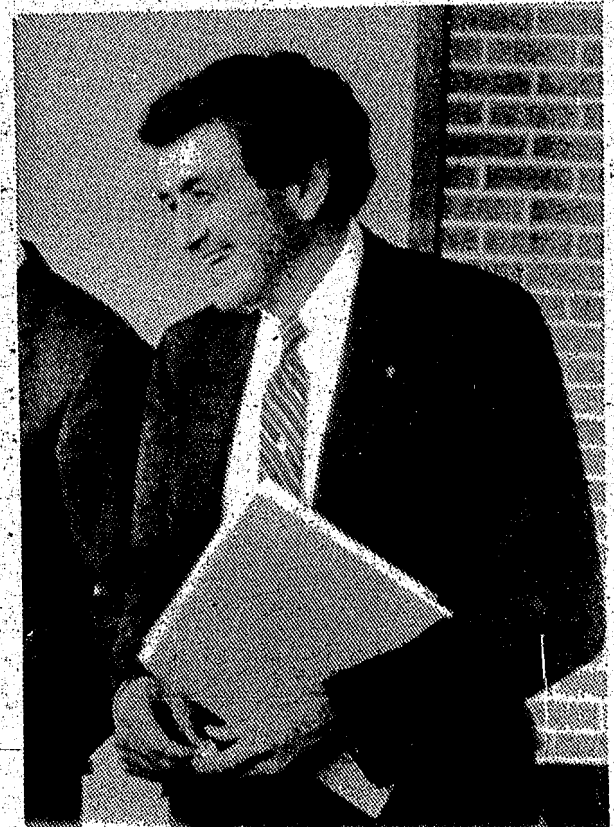

Governor and Mrs James Blanchard hosted the press at the governor's residence to close out the day.

For the most part one has to be impressed with the appointed department heads. Treasury director Susan Work Martin, Labor director Betty Howe, and Michigan Ombudsman Dick Allen seem particularly suited for their jobs. Newly appointed State Insurance Commissioner Herman Coleman, stepping into an extremely controversial situation, seems very well suited, and, of course, William Cahalan will do a fine job as racing commissioner.

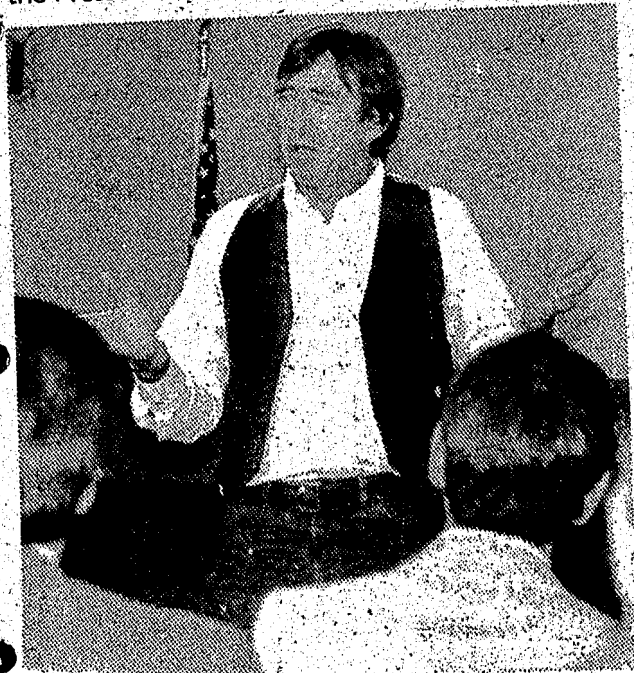

All expenses for the day were picked up by the Press Association. JAS

Racing Commissioner Cahalan doesn't know why $2 million of horse racing revenue goes to the Silverdome. He said, "Michigan ranks high in standard breds, trotters and pacers, but has to attract more thoroughbreds."

John DiBiaggio, MSU president, exudes warmth and humility. He's bound to do an outstanding job for Michigan State, just as promised by Gov. Blanchard when introducing DiBiaggio at his open house recently. He jokingly (I think) remarked, "It might help a student graduate if they have a vowel at the end of their name."

Former senator, former representative, veterinarian Dick Allen, Ombudsman.

Governor and Mrs Blanchard greet Mr and Mrs Greg Deliyanne. He's publisher of the State Journal in Lansing

Trick-or-treat

tips and tidbits

Beggars, goblins and ghosts will be out for goodies on Halloween night.

The official township begging time has been established for 6-7 p.m. on Oct. 31 by the Independence Township board.

The following safety tips are recommended by the Consumers Product Safety Commission and the township fire department:

- Children should not eat any of their treats before they get home, where treats should be thoroughly examined by an adult.

- Costumes, masks, beards and wigs should be labeled "flame resistant." Flimsy and baggy costumes should be avoided to minimize contact with candles or other flames.

- Costumes should be light and bright enough to be clearly visible to motorists and decorated with reflective tape, which glows in the dark.

- Costumes should be short enough to prevent children from tripping or falling. Children should also wear safe and sturdy shoes.

- Cosmetic designed faces are recommended over loose masks, which might restrict vision and breathing. If a mask is worn, be sure the eye holes are large enough to permit a normal field of vision.

- Swords, knives and other accessories should be flexible.

- Small children should be accompanied by adults. All children should use sidewalks and should walk, not run, from house to house.

- Children should be cautioned about running between parked cars or across lawns where furniture, clotheslines or ornaments present a hazard.

- Children should only go to homes where residents have lights on as a sign of welcome. Children should not enter homes unless accompanied by an adult.

- Those receiving trick-or-treaters should remove any obstructions from steps, lawns and porches.

- Candlelit pumpkins should be kept away from landings and doorsteps where costumes could come into contact with the flame. Indoor jack-o-lanterns should be kept away from curtains, decorations or other furnishings.

Following trick or treating, McDonald's of 6695 Dixie Highway and McDonald's of 5625 Sashabaw Road will offer candy checks by officers from the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

The candy checks are scheduled from 6:30-8:30 p.m.

Healthy holiday eating

Methods for keeping off extra pounds during the holiday season make up a class offered at Clarkston High School on Wednesday, Nov. 6.

"Fun, Healthy, Holiday Food for Your Family" is to be offered from 7 to 8 p.m. by St. Joseph Mercy Hospital's Department of Outreach.

The class is designed to help participants think slim and healthy by learning how to change traditional recipes to lighter, more nutritious ones.

The class will also be offered at the hospital on Nov. 4 from 7 to 8 p.m.

Advance registration is required and class size is limited. The fee is $4 a person. To register or for more information, call 858-3155.

Marty Johnson and Al Bartlett play a middle-aged couple working to put some spice into their lives by following the taped instructions of a marriage counselor—of sorts.

Can this marriage be saved?

Only the Clarkston Village Players know for sure . . .

The Clarkston Village Players open their silver anniversary season with an evening of adult contemporary theater in "Three One Acts."

Scenes in the play pictured are from the third performance, "The Need for Less Expertise." Marty Johnson and Al Bartlett star as a middle-aged couple in need of new life and spark in their marriage.

The opening one act is "Something to Eat," the story of two upwardly mobile young people, played by Marilyn McCafferty and Tim Lekander, living together in New York.

The middle performance stars Dave Mills and Lee Ann Woolcox in "Enchanted Mesa," a play about an all-too-common married life situation.

Judy Rood and Al Bartlett direct the "slices of life" and Karen Staenke is producer.

Play dates are Nov. 8, 9, 15, 16, 22 and 23 at the Depot Theatre on White Lake Road in Independence Township. Tickets are $5. They may be purchased at Tierra Arts & Design, 64 S. Main, Clarkston, or by calling 363-0188. Curtain time is 8 p.m.

Ultimate team teaching

By Cydney Schilling
and Kristen Martin

Mrs. Dodgers, who teaches special education here at Sashabaw Junior High, is the newest "team teacher."

She is following in the footsteps of the "Dynamic Duo," Mr. Kaul and Mr. Krueger. However, her partner only stays with her for nine months.

Mrs. Dodgers' child is due in about two weeks.

She plans to take an eight-week leave from school, but she still has to decide whether to come back to school from January to June, or stay home and spend time with her baby.

She is constantly receiving questions from her students concerning the formation of the baby and how women can handle pregnancy along with a job.

"It's not a crippling disease that makes you stay home in bed all the time," she says.

She doesn't care what sex the baby is as long as it's healthy. She has considered the names Amelia Kate for a girl and Anthony Charles for a boy.

Mrs. Dodgers lives in an old farmhouse and she is presently refurbishing the baby's room. She thinks it will be much easier to refurbish the room before the baby is born.

During the summer, she was busy canning and freezing food so it would be simpler for her husband to prepare meals while she's in the hospital.

By the time Friday rolls around, she's definitely ready for a long rest.

Living out of a locker

By Rob White

Carpeting, mirrors, mugs, stickers, pictures... If this sounds like home, it really may be. Student lockers at Sashabaw Junior High School contain these items and much more.

A student locker may be a second home.

They decorate them the way they want, not mom or dad's way. Like a fellow student said, "I want to make it a little like home."

Students use their imaginations to decorate their lockers. Whether it is a picture of Tony Dorsett, Huey Lewis, Madonna or Kirk Gibson, it reflects student's personality.

WONDER DRUGS

How do mixed drinks compare to straight liquor?

Dear Cat Paw:

Does alcohol content affect your body differently by your weight and height?

Skinny

Dear Skinny:

Yes. The rate at which alcohol is absorbed into the bloodstream and its effects on the individual are influenced by a number of interacting factors.

A person's weight, how fast he drinks, whether he has eaten, his drinking history and body chemistry, and the kind of beverage used are all influential.

Dear Cat Paw:

How do people get addicted to drugs and liquor and/or weed?

Wondering

Dear Wondering:

Dependence occurs first when the user has a physical or psychological need for a drug caused by its chronic and continued use.

Addiction results when the user administers drugs continuously. Addiction is a physical dependence on a drug and an inability to discontinue its use due to discomforting and often dangerous withdrawal symptoms.

Dear Cat Paw:

How do mixed drinks compare to straight liquor?

Drinker

Dear Drinker:

The concentration of alcohol in a drink determines how rapidly it is absorbed.

The higher the concentration of alcohol, the more rapidly it is absorbed. The greater the volume of nonalcoholic substances, such as water, the more slowly the alcohol is absorbed.

Letters to Cat Paw, which need not be signed, should be mailed to The Clarkston News, 5 S. Main, Clarkston, MI 48016.

Cat Paw author Jeanette Sanders, a Springfield Township resident, is a member of the Clarkston Area Chemical People, an organization devoted to the prevention of substance abuse among the community's young people.

Concerns special education

Board adopts new curriculum

By Carolyn Walker

A written special education curriculum guide has been adopted by the Clarkston School District, according to Special Education Director Robert Brumback.

On Oct. 14, the school board voted unanimously to adopt the guide following a presentation by Brumback.

It outlines requirements in personal adjustment, pre-vocational education, vocational education and physical education as offered to special education students who spend over 50 percent of their time in special education and who will receive a graduation diploma, Brumback said.

The guide comes in the wake of a complaint filed by a parent against the Clarkston district over a year ago, Brumback said after the meeting.

"We were already working on it when we got it (the complaint)," he said. "It probably made us do it faster."

"It's new from the standpoint that we have it in writing," he said, adding that Clarkston has followed the guide's educational specifications for years. "It really describes what we have already been doing."

Special education students in the Clarkston district receive a regular diploma upon graduation.

Those who fall into the trainable mentally impaired category and are bused to a center program or who have other severe impairments, such as autism, receive a certificate of completion upon graduation.

Students who do not receive a diploma are entitled to educational help until age 26.

44-year MOMS member shares her memories

By Carolyn Walker

Suppose you were a lonely serviceman, stationed in a country far from home following the horrors of WWII and a group of well-intentioned mothers mailed you a set of women's underwear.

What would you do?

Maybe you would be offended that they mistook your name for a woman's. Maybe you would be grateful that you had been remembered at all.

Or, maybe you would laugh and return them, as a serviceman did some 40 years ago.

That is one of the memories that brings a hearty laugh to Ferne Baker.

"I really got a bang out of it," says the 77-year-old Ortonville resident as she slaps her thigh and recalls her affiliation with MOMS, Mothers of Men in Service.

As Ferne relaxes in her living room and remembers MOMS' efforts on behalf of service personnel, she pulls out several pages of brown, worn minutes and recounts the years—years when it was hard to raise the 5 cents in monthly meeting dues but not hard to raise servicemen's spirits.

MOMS was, and is, a labor of love, according to Ferne, a past-president of the organization.

Founded by mothers who were united by a mutual concern for their sons in service, MOMS has shown its patriotism and appreciation for United States servicemen since 1940.

Their purpose is to raise funds for personnel who are children of MOMS members, Fern says. Originally a national organization, it is now a statewide group.

MOMS contributes to all of the veterans' hospitals in Michigan, as well as Children's Village in Pontiac, and sends money to servicemen who need help, Ferne says.

In addition to sending money, they have sewn lap blankets and slippers for veterans who are hospitalized and have remembered weary soldiers with Christmas and birthday gifts.

Baker, who has sent two sons off to the service, has been active in MOMS since 1942.

At that time, her two sons, Bill and James, had joined the Army. Though neither served in WWII, Bill spent time overseas in Germany and James served during the Korean conflict.

She is proud of her work. "I don't believe I have ever missed a dozen meetings," she says, looking back. "I think, 'What a wonderful thing we've done.'"

As the women of MOMS have done every year since founding of their group, they will continue their efforts at fund raising with a bazaar in Ortonville this Saturday.

The bazaar is planned from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m. at the Ortonville Masonic Hall, South Street, Ortonville. Call 627-2446 for further information.

In addition, MOMS welcomes new members from the northern Oakland County area, Ferne says.

Ferne Baker has been a member of MOMS for nearly 43 years.

College pressures

Exams. They were on the minds of students during the last week of September and the first week of October.

At this time, our professors at the University of Detroit Clarkston Campus decided to test our knowledge on various subjects.

Some of the moanings heard were: "I stayed up until 2 a.m. studying," "I just don't know this material" and "I am going to fail this exam."

Before exams started, however, some jokers in the freshman class found comic relief at the expense of Father Art McGovern, philosophy professor.

On Sept. 19, the Varsity News (the U of D newspaper) came out with a picture of Father McGovern hitting someone in the face with a pie during the "Farewell to Summer '85" party on the main campus.

The jokers cut out the picture and taped it to the blackboard. Then they created a "wanted" poster around it. According to the poster, there is a $100,000 reward for the man "armed with lethal pies."

Mini-notes: Happy birthday to Joe Schlegel, Anne Frisch and Joe Boyle, our favorite waiter down at the Rat. . . Good luck to Allison, our librarian, who is being transferred to the library down on main campus. . . Welcome to Joe D'Elia, our new librarian. . . To celebrate Halloween, the student body got together for a costume party and a midnight hayride on Friday, Oct. 25. . . Happy Halloween!

Kay Ellis is a freshman at the University of Detroit's Clarkston Campus at the Colombiere Center in Springfield Township. She resides in Lake Orion.

Holiday classes

Add that personal touch to the holiday season by learning to make candy, evergreen wreaths, gift wrapping and more.

Classes are planned Mondays and Wednesdays at the North Oakland Community Center (CAI), 5640 Williams Lake Rd., Waterford Township.

Registration is $3 a class. Material costs vary. Call 674-4881 for more information.

Scouts plan sales

Scouts will be out selling popcorn and calendars as their annual fund raisers.

The Girl Scouts are selling the calendars from Nov. 2-30. They cost $1.25 for wall or pocket styles.

The girls plan to have a calendar booth open on Saturday, Nov. 2, in front of Pontiac State Bank's downtown Clarkston branch and on Saturday, Nov. 9, at the Food Town grocery store at Sashabaw and Maybee roads.

The proceeds benefit the Northern Oakland Girl Scout Council's programs and individual troop programs.

The Boy Scouts from the Clinton Valley Council, which includes the Clarkston area, are selling buckets of Trail's End Gourmet Popcorn now through Nov. 15.

Proceeds will benefit camping programs and individual Boy Scout units.

Hmmmm, the eyes go here. Too young to handle a knife, Phillip Jacks paints a face on his pumpkin. Mother Tana's hovering hand points him in the right direction.

Brian Ginn uses a knife to put the finishing touches on his pumpkin's ears. A pumpkin-carving contest, sponsored by the In-

• Building booms for Bowles

Courthouse, Ritter's Country Square, new homes keep builder busy

By Carolyn Walker

Clothed in blue jeans, black jacket and tinted glasses, with a cigarette dangling from his hand, Charles Bowles bounds up his office stairs to grab a persistently ringing telephone.

He does not look the part of Independence Township mover and shaker; but he fits the bill.

Bowles, who co-owns C.B. Custom Builders on Dixie Highway with his wife, Carol, is on a construction "high" as he oversees the remodeling of the former Ritter's Market, the building of the new 52nd District Courthouse and the construction of several new homes.

His office above Ritter's Market is brand-spanking new, filled with the blueprints of pending projects and kept on schedule with a clock trophy he won from the Warwick Hills Golf Invitational.

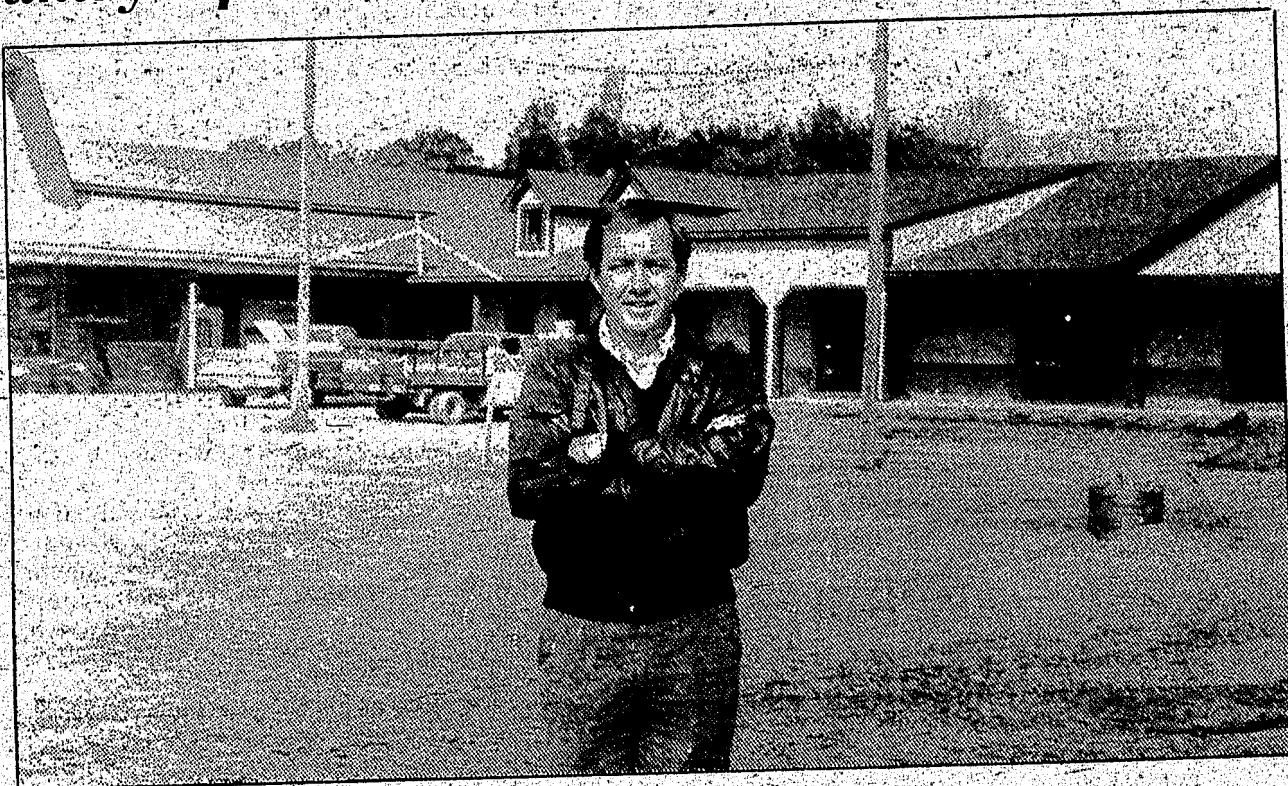

It is here that he recalls his business with relish. The 40-year-old Springfield Township resident says he has successfully marketed his talents as a carpenter and builder of over 200 houses in Independence since founding his company approximately 10 years ago.

He attributes his success to honesty. "Do what you say you're going to do, when you say you're going to do it, at a reasonable price," is his philosophy.

During the recession he flourished while other builders sat silently when he undertook repair jobs for insurance companies.

"My business doubled every year . . .," he says. "I made more money in the recession than I ever did as a builder."

Bowles purchased Ritter's Market from Tom Ritter last fall. His plans for expansion were tentative at of only a few who had faith in the new structure. Too many others, he says, are afraid to have a vision.

that time, he says, adding, "It was just an investment."

The investment has paid off, Bowles adds. He has plans to enlarge the market, under the new name

Ritter's Country Square, in honor of what he calls a township "landmark."

Designer creates originals in Independence Township home

By Kathy Greenfield

The word designer conjurs up visions of a workroom equipped with sketch pads, paint brushes, oil-based colored pencils, airbrushes and illustration boards.

But designer Cindy Berg's supplies include none of the above.

She usually creates her exquisite hand-knit sweaters, dresses and coats—sold under the Cindy B and Bobbi G label at such places as Saks Fifth Avenue-Fairlane—while sitting on the couch in her Independence Township living room.

She spreads out a batch of many-colored yarns of cotton, silks, linens, angoras and mohairs, and picks up her knitting needles. Cindy used to work from her own sketches, but they became an unnecessary step.

"I find I may have an idea, sit down with that idea and what I come up with is totally different," she says. "You never know where inspiration is going to come from."

One successful transition began when she noticed the formation of shining water beads on a plastic foam cup and ended in a white angora sweater with crystal beads.

Cindy first began selling her work to exclusive women's shops and boutiques on a one-of-a-kind basis. That has changed since she joined into a partnership with Bobbi Gotfried of Southfield about two years ago.

"Bobbi had a company, but needed a new direction with designs. That's how we hooked up. She found me," says Cindy. "She oversees production and has design input. My strengths are sales and design."

Once Cindy completes a prototype, her creation is reproduced by a staff of 25 women who knit in their homes. All live in the Detroit area except for one Tennessee resident.

The Cindy B and Bobbi G line consists of about 20 pieces that include coats, jackets, pullover sweaters and dresses. Most boutiques carry two or three items and some shops stock 15 to 20. They range in price from $350 to over $700.

"They're not for everyone. They're for someone who wants to be noticed—likes to dress."

Most of Cindy's designs fit loosely in the popular oversize style, they are frequently colorful and

IRAs offer chance to save a lot

A question for those ages 25 to 30 earning $25,000 to $30,000 a year:

Which would you prefer when you retire:

1. $108,714

or

2. $74,342?

Both amounts are after tax, assuming an income tax bracket of 25 percent.

Would you believe that three out of four people in the age group specified are not choosing the $108,714? All because they're not taking advantage of IRAs—Individual Retirement Accounts.

So why aren't they taking advantage of the IRA plan? Don't they know about it? Or can't they save less than 10 percent of their income? Or what?

Assume they don't know. Then tell them, for heaven's sake. Tell them they can invest up to $2,000 a year in an IRA plan and deduct this from their taxable income. It goes on earning, deferring tax until they take it out, which can be as late as 70 years old. Then they do pay tax on amounts taken out.

So you convince them to put in $2,000 this year. Put it in zero coupon government bonds earning about 11 percent. In 40 years, the $2,000 becomes $144,952. As it is withdrawn, pay the 25 percent tax. That shrinks it to the figure above—$108,714. This, mind you, is saving and investing that $2,000 just this one year, 1985.

Another choice is not to do the IRA plan, but to leave the $2,000 in the income pile and pay the 25 percent tax on it now. So there is left $1,500 to invest.

The $1,500 can be put in zero coupon tax-exempt paying 10 percent. No tax as years go by, no tax at maturity. Since they are tax-exempt, these bonds yield less than the taxable zero coupon governments, which pay about 11 percent.

In 40 years, the investor has $74,342, with no tax to pay.

It's still pretty good, but not as good as putting the $2,000 in an IRA and postponing tax on the earnings for 40 years.

Recently published figures show that only one person out of four earning between $15,000 and $30,000 a year is smart enough or frugal enough to stash away some money in an IRA plan.

Get into the higher-earnings group of $50,000 a year and half these people are in IRAs.

I have an idea most of the young people in the 20-30 age group put savings-if any in a bank or money market fund. A money market fund now pays about 7 percent, a bank account about 5.5 percent. Income for either of these is taxable each year, so discount the net return by 25 percent and you have left 5.25 percent in money market earnings and 4.13 percent in bank interest. That's a far cry from the 10 percent and 11 percent returns from zero coupon bonds described above.

There is, of course, another choice, and surely there is quite a crowd in this group: Don't save anything. Live from one payday to the next. Keep this up until retirement age and then cry that the government ought to do more for you.

The government is doing something right now for every wage and salary earner through the IRA plan. What a beautiful time to take advantage of it—when interest rates are high, when earnings are high and when gilt-edge bonds, which do their own re-investing, are all available.

When today's retirees were in the 20-30 age bracket, good earnings were maybe $5,000 a year. (They were in my case, at least.) So I saved, as I always have, 10 percent or more a year. In those days, if there had been zero coupon bonds, they would have paid 2.5 percent.

My $500 invested at that rate of 2.5 percent for 40 years would have become $1,350.

Compare that to saving today even less than 10 percent of comparable income, for an investment of $2,000 which will become $108,714 in 40 years.

Those were the good old days?

Young ones today have a marvelous opportunity. Never before has there been such a future for men and women who want to save money for their retirement days.

Legal questions and answers

Q. How do I know if I need a lawyer?

A. Whenever you enter into a transaction that is important, you should consider if you need an attorney to act on your behalf.

Before you decide the answer to this question, it is best to first contact two or three attorneys to discuss your circumstance, since often there are important subtleties which the average person is not aware of.

Most attorneys are willing to briefly discuss your situation without charge, but be sure to first confirm this policy.

Be sure, too, to discuss your situation with attorneys who actively handle the area of law for which you need help. Their advice is only as good as their experience.

Q. How to I select a lawyer?

A. Carefully. Two considerations are most important: competence and conscientiousness.

The attorney you choose must be knowledgeable in the area for which you will retain him or her. You should ask about prior experience and educational background.

Also, you must assess whether or not he or she is a conscientious individual. You do not need an attorney who will only give attention to the big cases. What you need is an attorney who gives attention to all his or her cases.

To start your search, you should talk to your friends, neighbors or acquaintances about who they have retained in the past and what their experience was.

In addition, you can call the Oakland County Bar Association at 338-2100 for a list of attorneys who handle your particular area of need and who are located near you.

Do you have a question related to Michigan law? Jot it down and send it to The Clarkston News, 5 S. Main, Clarkston, MI 48016.

Sharon Marsden, a Clarkston area resident, has been selected as First Lady 1984 by UndercoverWear Inc.

Marsden joined UndercoverWear as a sales agent in May 1981 and has since moved up the ranks to her current status of Chief Executive C.I.A.

Marsden is the fifth First Lady chosen since the company's inception in 1977. Among her awards are $1,000 in UndercoverWear Sample Cents, the complete 1985 holiday line of lingerie worth over $1,200, a trip to Boston to attend the company's annual "Rendezvous" and a trip for two to Rio de Janeiro.

UndercoverWear has become a leader in the party plan industry with lingerie sales of over $40 million in 1984. The firm's corporate offices are in North Reading, Maine.

Carr makes appointment

Felice to represent businesses

Paul Felice, an Independence Township resident, has been named to the 1986 White House Conference on Small Business by United States Congressman Bob Carr (D-6th District).

Felice, 59, co-owns Felice Quality Market in Waterford with his brother James.

He says his duties will include meeting with owners of small businesses throughout Michigan as well as going to Washington for the conference.

He anticipates his experiences as former chairman of the Oakland County Chamber of Commerce and as a member of the State Chamber of Commerce will provide beneficial background for the position.

Rieds offer security, phones

Quietly, a replica of the Maltese Falcon stands guard on a file cabinet in Burke Ried's office.

Ried and his wife Margie opened Ried Security International Inc. and Clarkston Cellular System on M-15 in Independence Township near Dixie Highway in July.

The Maltese Falcon perched in the office is a symbol of Ried's occupation and of his admiration for Humphrey Bogart.

"Every private investigator shouldn't be without a Maltese Falcon," Ried said, referring to the figure in one of Bogart's movies.

To install and respond to the burglar alarm systems for his security business, Ried holds a burglary installation license and a private investigation license.

He has made a career out of security. After graduating from Wayne State University, Detroit, in 1968 with a degree in police administration, Ried served in the Air Force. Then he settled in as chief of security of the Chrysler Defense Division for 12 years.

"This business is just an outgrowth of my career," he said. "The switch has been made from the public aspect to the private."

Cellular phones came on to the scene when a friend asked Ried to sell the phone system in his spare time for Midwest Communication in Southfield.

The wireless phone system for homes, businesses and vehicles covers a 47,000-square-mile radius from Port Huron to Flint and down to Toledo.

"The area might open up to Lansing and Grand Rapids," Ried said. "This (Cellular phone) grew out of a long-term friendship. I was designing communication links for corporations and this was a natural shift."

Burke Ried says every investigator should have a Maltese Falcon. His is sitting over his shoulder on a file cabinet.

Yesterday and today merge at Cedar Crest

Bette Moen and Dolores Imbrunone take a moment out of their teaching schedules to pose in the hallway of the new Cedar Crest Academy school building, dedicated this month.

By Carolyn Walker

It could be said the beauty of the past meets the challenge of the future on the grounds of Cedar Crest Academy.

The old farmhouse and the new passive-solar-energy school which occupy the site's 107 acres provide a contrast in architectural styles. But a peek into the dreams of founder Bette Moen shows the two symbolize complementary halves of a whole.

"Education is part of understanding the old, but looking toward the future," says Moen, 39, explaining that the two buildings illustrate, in part, Cedar Crest's philosophy about learning.

"The idea is to learn from your environment and learn from the world. It's a very progressive building, for a very progressive school, for a very progressive thought," she says.

The Dixie Highway school, designed by architects Joe Duran and Don Spangler of Drayton Plains, was built this year adjacent to the Springfield Township farmhouse of former owner Dr. O.J. Fusilier, a dentist who also grew Christmas trees.

With its solar windows facing south and west, the building's straight, poured walls on the north side overlook a lake and fields of trees. It is there that pupils are taught about nature and their environment in addition to elementary courses for kindergarten through eighth-graders.

Cedar Crest, founded by Moen of Independence Township and associate Dolores Imbrunone of Waterford, was dedicated in a ceremony featuring speaker W. Edwards Deming, Ph.D., Oct. 12.

Following the dedication, and the completion of a full day's work in the energy-efficient structure, Moen enthusiastically explains the focus of the school and how it came to be.

"I couldn't remember when I didn't want a school," she says, referring to her days as a neuropsychologist in Washington, D.C.

Moen, who was in private practice with a neurosurgeon until her move to Michigan four years ago, believes her understanding of neurological functioning enhances her abilities as a teacher.

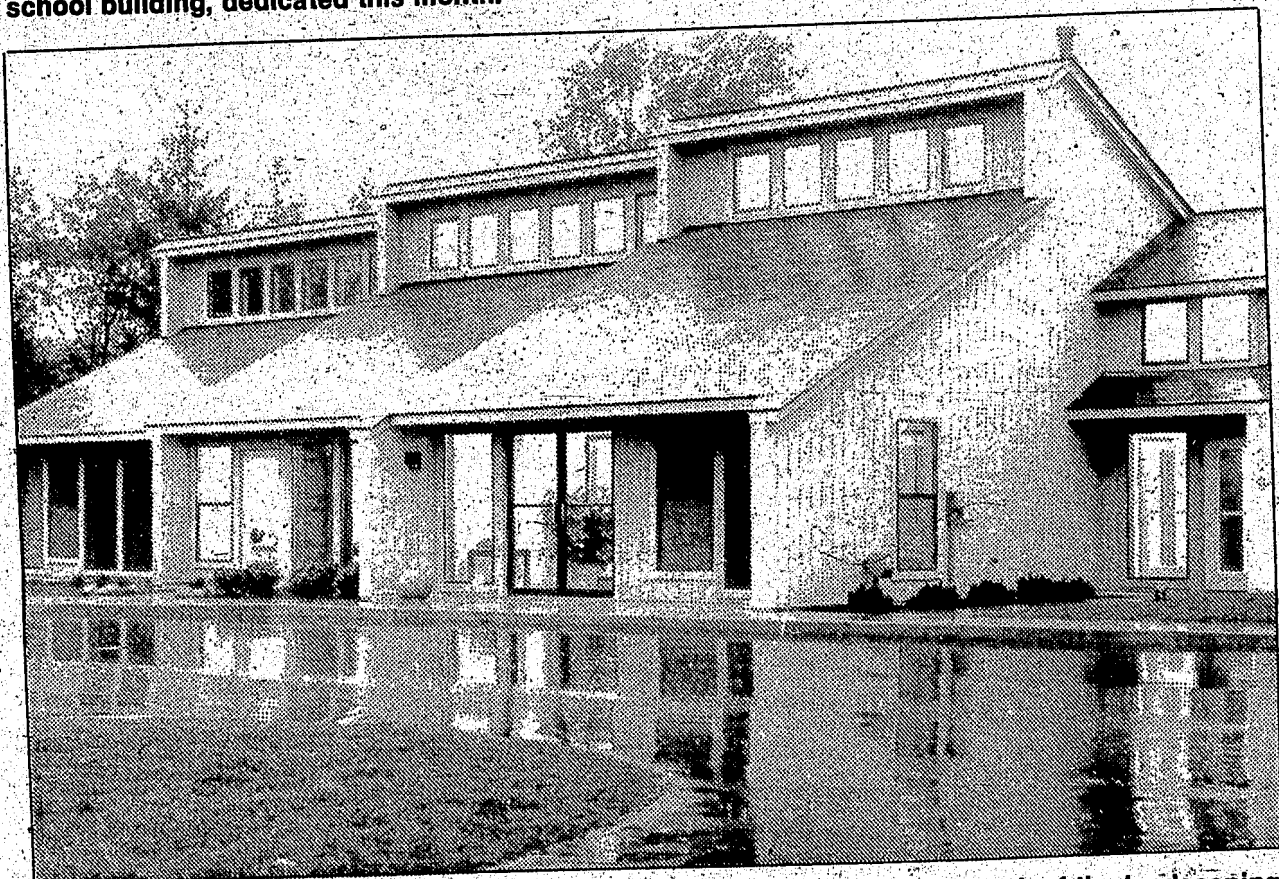

She combines her skills with those of Imbrunone, a 46-year-old social worker and teacher. Kindergarten is taught by Kathleen Williams.

Believing that children enjoy learning, the three women have high expectations for their pupils. They stress problem solving, individuality, self-esteem, quality and fun in their classrooms, Moen says.

"The concept of Cedar Crest is pretty proper," she adds. "We're not interested in keeping children conformed to grade levels. It's strictly an individualized approach. A lot of the ideas are very creative. It's very important to listen to children. They're hungry to learn. When you're not learning, you're not fulfilled."

Thirty-four pupils now attend the private school, which is designed to hold as many as 75.

Much of the work on the new building can be attributed to dedicated parents, who helped lay sod, plant trees and paint. "They're a tremendously committed group of people," Moen says, adding as an afterthought, "We do have fun."

This is the look of the recently constructed Cedar Crest Academy. The school building, dedicated in a ceremony this month, uses passive solar energy. Much of the landscaping and paint work were done by parents of the school's pupils.

Tables that talk to you

Paula Blanchard

I confess that I have this thing for butcher block tables.

I am captured by their exquisite beauty, particularly when they are done in my favorite wood, pale red oak. When I see one, I seem to hear this voice saying, "Paula, you don't just want this table, you need it!"

And it's not just me. I took one to Japan recently for a made-in-Michigan trade exhibition and it drew crowds of people just like me. The Japanese may be inscrutable, but I could tell that many of them were hearing that same voice.

As a result, the manufacturer—Michigan Maple Block Co. of Petoskey—has sold a lot of butcher block tables in Japan.

The people in Michigan's trade office in Tokyo also liked the table at the Exhibition. They liked it so much, in fact, they kept it for their office, where it continues to draw admiring glances.

The company—its mill has operated along the banks of the scenic Bear River for 100 years—is the nation's oldest and largest producer of butcher block products.

Butcher block products are, by definition, an artful assembly of many pieces of wood. But they become something more—an inseparable homogenous mass—as they go through the company's patented "wood welded" lamination process.

The special glue that bonds the pieces is not just dried, it is bombarded with super high-frequency sound waves that magically "weld" the glue to the wood, and vice versa, producing an inseparable seam.

Virtually all of the wood used in Michigan Maple Block products comes from the abundant hardwood forests of northern Michigan. And they use a lot of it—about 12,000 board-feet a day, enough for 1.3 million board-feet of finished butcher block a year.

The company's foremost product is the classic butcher block table—the big, heavy kind you see in meat markets—made of hard maple slabs laminated with the end-grain up. They may not be pretty, but chances are they will last forever.

The firm also produces a range of other butcher block products, in red oak and maple, which are constructed with the edge-grain up, to let the delicately shaded graining show off.

They include industrial work benches, cutting boards, shelving, bakers' tables and, as mentioned earlier, those beautiful designer tables for the home and office that make you hear voices.

In any case, let's keep making it—and buying it—in Michigan.

Paula Blanchard, Michigan's first lady, grew up in Clarkston and graduated from Clarkston High School.

With knitting needles in hand and yarn nearby, designer Cindy Berg does most of her work while sitting on the couch in her living room. Usually classical music fills the room, but Cindy admits that late in the afternoon, she sometimes peps up with a little rock 'n' roll.

sometimes include leather, suede, crystal or lace accents.

"They're not for everyone," says Cindy. "They're for someone who wants to be noticed—likes to dress."

An interest in unusual clothing is what led to Cindy's career in designing. A visit to Toronto with her mother and sister about five years ago changed her life.

They found a shop filled with sweaters by Norma, whose designs have since gone national. Cindy remembers being impressed with the designer's "vivid, bold colorations and textures."

"I had never seen knits handled like that and I didn't know how to knit," she says. "So my next step was learning how, and everyone teased me because they didn't think I would be a knitter—you know, you have an image of what a knitter is like."

Cindy found her mentor, Mary Mack, in a knit shop the woman owned in Bloomfield Hills.

At that time in her life, Cindy worked as a freelance illustrator. She would draw a picture of what she wanted and Mary Mack would figure out the patterns.

"I would spend the day with her, sit there for eight hours," Cindy says. "I was truly obsessed."

Her first efforts were sweaters.

"They were very tiny. I used to make them too small. We used to call them Barbie Doll sweaters," she says.

There was also admiration for Cindy's work among her family. Her sister, a Traverse City resident, took a batch of the sweaters to a shop in the Somerset Mall—and Cindy had her first retail outlet.

Recognition from her peers has followed. Cindy is now the president of the Design Alliance in Detroit. She's especially proud that she was one of the Detroit designers featured in the August edition of Women's Wear Daily.

Cindy gives some of the credit for her success to her husband, Mel, the owner of a Flint-based wholesale foods firm.

"He's a very hard worker and I can see hard work pays off," she says. "He has a lot more respect for me now, and I think he takes me more seriously. He sees I'm committed."

When she isn't knitting—it takes 40 to 45 hours to complete a dress design—Cindy spends some of her time selling her products.

Her list of accounts in Michigan includes Saks at Fairlane, the Plum Cache in Troy, Janet Varner's in Rochester, Haute Stuff in Grosse Ile and Quintessence in Southfield. She's working on breaking into the market in Chicago and New York.

Her business is a success, she says, and she wants it to grow while quality is maintained in design and production.

"I want to develop slowly and be good at what I'm doing," she says. "I never really had goals or planned my future, but when you're in business you have to."

Cowan predicts blend of philosophies

A new era of cooperation between chiropractors and medical doctors was predicted by Dr. John Cowan, speaking at the National Legislative Conference in Washington, D.C. "I predict that within three to five years, the public will demand that doctors of chiropractic and doctors of medicine work together," he said. He gave strong support to legislative bills, including House Bill 2410, which would include chiropractic students in the Health Professions Student Loan Program, and Senate Bill 1100, which would make chiropractic colleges eligible for federal grants earmarked for geriatric care training. An Independence Township resident, Cowan's chiropractic offices are located on Sashabaw Road. He is a board member of Chiropractic 1st America and president of the Michigan Chiropractic Council.

25-year switch for Rich Plan leader

A career change after 25 years with one company resulted in Gary Castle joking with his wife that his plan was to change jobs every quarter-century.

The Roseville resident now holds a management position with the Rich Plan of Clarkston.

"I worked for Mellville Shoe Co., Thom McAn for 25 years and I couldn't go any higher in the company unless I moved out of the state," Castle said.

The Main Street location is the second office in Independence Township for the food delivery service. The business moved to its current location in April from Dixie Highway.

The Rich Plan has been around since 1948. The company has a food processing plant in Fraser and has 14 offices nationwide. Castle said plans include opening an office in Novi and another in northern Oakland County.

The main service is to deliver food and stay within each family's food budget. The only products not included in the plan are paper, milk, eggs and bread.

"Instead of going to the grocery store, the food is brought to the home," Castle said. "This is nice for working families. It may cost just a little more the first time because we have food analyzers go into the home to see what the family uses."

Once a family signs up with the company, food analyzers go over the family's budget to determine what food they need and use over the six-month contract period. The food is delivered every three months.

Lists of prospective customers are frequently provided by present customers for the Rich Plan, says manager Gary Castle, so the phone is always busy at the Main Street office.

Dr. Daniel Bielak moves practice across town

Dr. Daniel Bielak's Clarkston Family and Sports Medicine Clinic made a cross-town move about two weeks ago from Sashabaw Road to Dixie Highway. The new site provides triple the space, says Bielak, and will offer room for the addition of more diagnostic equipment.

Since arriving in the Clarkston area seven years ago, the osteopathic physician's practice has placed more and more emphasis on preventive medicine. The first step was giving patients "exercise prescriptions."

"We encouraged people to become more active," he says. "That was the beginning of what I consider sports care."

Now such advice is a matter of course for patients who visit Bielak's clinic.

"Literally everyone walks out of here with some kind of exercise program—even a little old lady with arthritis," he says.

In conjunction with the move of his practice, Bielak's staff has grown. Now working with Bielak and Michael Theriault, director of sports medicine for the clinic, are certified athletic trainer Gordon Martel and certified athletic trainer and physician's assistant Nancy Hall.

In recognition of his move, Bielak compiled a list of his achievements over the past seven years. His list includes:

- Origination of the concept of a "wellness clinic" for the prevention and early detection of illnesses six years ago.
- Introduction of the role of the athletic trainer to the community.
- Establishment of educational conferences, coaches' clinics and newsletters to improve the quality of supervision of adolescent athletes.
- Origination of the concept of free injury evaluations and coordination of rehabilitation programs at the school level to improve patient care and reduce the cost of medical services.
- The creation of an athletic trainer internship at Clarkston High School in conjunction with Central Michigan University to improve medical care to local athletes.
- Encouragement for the establishment of a physical therapy unit in Clarkston to provide complete rehabilitation of injuries, reducing the need to travel

15 to 20 minutes for care. (Physical Therapy Services, formerly in the Clarkston Mills Mall, is now located in the office adjacent to Bielak's.)

• Introduced the role of the sports psychologist to the community and provided for those needs.

Bielak also says he's pleased with the atmosphere he's fostered in the treatment of teens.

"They've been made to feel comfortable here," he said. "They need someplace to turn and that's where we've filled a void."

Bielak's philosophy of preventive care is one that is gaining popularity across America, with more and more people showing concern about diet and exercise.

"I think we're going to see that show some nice, positive results in the years to come," he said.

An atrium creates a peaceful setting in the lobby outside the new office of Dr. Daniel Bielak in Pine Ridge Place, 7650 Dixie Highway, Independence Township.

Bowles: 'It all kind of lucked out' believe the difference you're making in that barn," he says.

The new shopping/office center is scheduled to be finished and partly occupied by Nov. 15.

"When the walls went up, I rented the whole thing out in a week," he says, his voice showing amazement at his success.

Two of the stores scheduled to relocate at Ritter's are Country Cords, currently on Main Street in Clarkston, and Joy's Hair-Racquet, currently at Deer Lake Racquet Club. Pete's Coney Island of Pontiac is to open a second restaurant at the square.

As he contemplates the completion of Ritter's Country Square, he is adamant that the courthouse will also be finished by its Dec. 31 deadline.

"They will be in Dec. 31 come h--- or high water," he says.

His determination to succeed seems an amusing contrast to the way he sums up his business experience: "It all kind of lucked out."
