Seat belts denounced for buses

By Kathy Greenfield

The Clarkston board of education turned thumbs down on seat belts for school buses following a report by transportation director William Dennis Monday night.

A formal vote was not taken regarding the administration recommendation not to install seat belts or order them on new buses, but board President Janet Thomas indicated agreement with the conclusion.

"Thank you for that report because that (the question of seat belts) comes up every time we talk about school buses," she said.

Dennis introduced the report as "a defensible position" on the anti-seat belt stance.

At the heart of the report was a video tape titled "Transport Canada Presents School Bus Collision Tests." The film included data and pictures of tests on large and van-size school buses as they crashed into a solid concrete wall at speeds just under 30 mph.

Passengers were represented by dummies with sensors to record impact and determine head injuries. Half wore seat belts.

In every case, according to the film, head injuries were much more severe and would have been fatal for most passengers wearing lap belts, while those not restrained would have survived with less severe injuries.

Following impact, the restrained passengers were

PUD ordinance in limbo

Village council and commission don't agree

By Carolyn Walker

The proposed Planned Unit Development (PUD) ordinance for Clarkston continues to bounce from village council to planning commission.

After repeated rejection of the currently proposed PUD ordinance by the commissioners, the village council voted unanimously Monday night to send it back with a request for specific recommendations, in writing, on how the PUD might be improved.

Their decision followed a lengthy discussion on the merits and demerits of the proposal with three members of the audience voicing objections. There were about 10 residents present.

The PUD ordinance was proposed approximately one year ago for two reasons, according to President Carol Eberhardt: to keep the village in step with surrounding Independence Township, which has adopted a PUD ordinance, and to facilitate the building of proposed condominiums by developer

Frank Walker near Deer Lake.

Last month, the council conducted a public hearing, at which many village residents spoke out against PUD.

Council member Fontie ApMadoc reiterated the general public stance.

"I've had calls from both sides of the street. People are very worried," she said. "I think there are too many people who are really unhappy about it. The PUD ordinance is frightening too many people."

Also during the meeting, Eberhardt read from a letter sent to the commissioners by the Clarkston Community Historical Society. The letter expressed fear that a PUD ordinance would endanger historic buildings.

The letter encouraged a PUD provision that would ask developers to demonstrate that they were not demolishing or altering historical structures over

Subject: Safety

Safer neighborhoods in Independence Township are the subject of a general meeting featuring Oakland County Sheriff John Nichols on Nov. 18.

Nichols and a sheriff's officer are scheduled to be at the township hall annex at 7:30 p.m. to discuss neighborhood watch programs with interested residents.

They will answer questions and offer advice on how citizen watch programs can be instituted in subdivisions and other neighborhoods, according to township Treasurer John Lutz.

During recent months, breaking and enterings and residential robberies have been serious problems in the township, Lutz says, adding that all township residents are encouraged to attend the meeting.

Officials will ring on modernized telephones

Several advantages are expected with the purchase of a new Toshiba telephone system for Independence Township offices.

Modernized equipment will accommodate the proposed 911 emergency system, provide improved voice quality and allow calls within township hall without using an outside line, according to Treasurer John Lutz.

The current 10-year-old system has been an increasing source of frustration as voices "fade in and out," Lutz said.

On Nov. 5, the board voted unanimously to spend approximately $22,000 for new systems from Competitive Telephone Systems (CTS) of Pontiac.

The modernized phones are "needed to make our operation more meaningful," said Clerk Richard Holman. "No other system was able to touch them in the matter of price."

The systems are to be installed in the township hall and hall annex for $13,446; and in the three township fire stations for $9,080.

According to a memo from Supervisor Frank Ronk, the board received bids from nine companies before selecting CTS.

The board sent the project to bids late this summer after receiving several complaints about the current 10-year-old system's quality and the inability to obtain replacement parts.

One factor influencing their decision was Trustee Daniel Travis' observation that the old system would not accommodate the proposed 911 emergency system, should the township decide to participate in the emergency plan.

The new systems are to be purchased from the improvement revolving fund, with charge-backs to the various departments, and from the fire fund equipment account.

Proposed PUD stirs controversy

50 years old, principally for economic gain.

That request prompted Trustee Jon Gaskell to comment, "What's left, altruism?" Other council members said money was the main driving force behind most people's actions.

John Stuetzer, a member of the planning commission, said the commission rejected the PUD based on some current wording.

"What are these wrinkles. What should we be looking for?" asked Gaskell of Stuetzer. "It's been a year now."

Thirty-year village resident Jerome Wilford asked the council if the PUD would encourage new developers and speculation.

"It's my concern that a new approach will open the door to people to speculate," he said. "As the PUD stands, I'm very much against it."

Eberhardt responded by saying that the PUD gives the council more control over developments than the current zoning ordinances. "I guess the thing I find so appealing, myself, is the control," she said.

"You're putting the future in the hands of councils you don't know," Wilford replied.

Resident Richard Weiss agreed. "I think it's just opening up a Pandora's box. I just can't see PUD at all. I see no merit in it."

After listening to the citizens' input, council members continued to emphasize that the proposed

PUD would be an amendment to the current zoning ordinance and that projects would require public hearings and village council approval.

"The PUD gives us the availability to look at specific requests. It doesn't automatically assume that you're going to get it," said Eberhardt. "The PUD ordinance allows us the luxury of looking. It's just that simple. It also allows the luxury of rejection."

Tri-party plot

The pressure is on to re-authorize the Oakland County Tri-party Road Program, which expires this year.

The Independence Township Board unanimously agreed Nov. 5 to adopt a resolution endorsing the program that pays for road improvements by splitting costs equally between the county road commission, county board of commissions and municipalities.

The township board is asking the county board of commissioners to re-authorize the program for five years and to increase funding 50 percent.

The road commission has already passed a resolution for the extension. But the board of commissioners and the municipalities must also agree before an extension can be made, said Independence Township Clerk Richard Holman.

Citizens can comment, question

Master plan revised; public hearing planned

By Carolyn Walker

The encouragement of research and corporate offices is the most significant difference in the proposed Independence Township master plan, says Richard Carlisle, township planner.

At a Nov. 21 public hearing, to be held in the township hall annex at 7:30 p.m., members of the community can make comments and ask questions before the township planning commission votes on the amended plan.

Recognizing the township's strategic location within the county for corporate and research/offices,

Carlisle says, the commission proposes setting aside three areas for such use: the northwest quadrant of M-15 at I-75, the southwest quadrant of Sashabaw at I-75 and Dixie at White Lake roads.

"We want to promote more of an office-type development toward I-75," Carlisle says. "The plan strongly maintains the existing residential low density and small-town character of the Clarkston area."

Discouraged will be strip development on Sashabaw Road and northern Dixie Highway, according to Carlisle.

The plan also strives to protect the Clinton River.

"The idea is to maintain low density and the environmental features of the Clinton River corridor," he says, adding the the Village of Clarkston atmosphere would be likewise protected.

Planning commission Chairman Neil Wallace agrees.

"In many ways, the village sets the tone for the rest of the community," he says, adding that although the commission considers the village atmosphere in its work, the township master plan does not include the parcels within the village limits.

According to Wallace, the master plan is a general plan, or guide, for land use in all of Independence.

It was last reviewed about 10 years ago, with a major amendment being instituted in the form of the Sashabaw Corridor plan about four years ago, Wallace says.

He characterizes this year's proposed changes as "adjustments."

"Taken as a whole, I don't think there's any significant changes," he says. "We have started with a clean slate and given a lot of thought as to what's happened since the last master plan."

The commissioners undertook the master plan task because they "didn't want to just react to the pressures that occur," Wallace says. "If we plan, we can have orderly growth which will be sound and beneficial for everyone."

SWEET SOUND OF MUSIC: Kristina Anderson, 8, and Jenna Smith, 12, sing the lyrics of "Do, Re, Mi," one of the Rogers and Hammerstein songs they perform during "The Sound of Music." Kristina plays the role of Gretl, the youngest daughter in the Von Trapp family, and Jenna plays her older sister, Brigitta. The play, with a cast of 23 main characters, will be presented Friday, Nov. 15, by members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints (Mormons) at the Clarkston Chapel, 5464 Waterford Rd., off Maybee Road, Independence Township. Curtain time is 8 p.m. Tickets, available at the door, are $3 for adults, $1 for students and $10 a family. Several local people perform in the play including Kristina who lives in Brandon Township, and Jenna, an Independence Township resident.

CHS gym floor repairs begin

Gym floor repair crews are shooting for an early December completion date—in time for the first Clarkston High School boys' varsity basketball game Dec. 6.

"If at all possible, we're going to have it done," said William Dennis, director of auxiliary services for the school district.

High moisture content in the gym floor caused buckling Oct. 10, and virtually shut down the gymnasium. Since then, no student activities have been allowed inside including gym classes, assemblies and girls' varsity basketball games.

Meanwhile, the search continued for the source of the moisture. No one would authorize repairs until it was found.

"We've come to the conclusion, 99 percent sure, it was leaks that caused this problem," Dennis said.

Following roof repairs, "the moisture level has gone down in all but one area of the gym," he said. "Even after all this rain, the moisture content still went down."

Parts of the floor must be replaced and the entire surface stripped down, sanded and refinished with game lines repainted before repairs are complete.

Funds reallocated

A public hearing conducted by the Independence Township Board to discuss the use of Community Development Block Grant funds drew no comments from the audience Nov. 5.

Following the hearing, the board voted to re-allocate funds from 1982, 1983 and 1984 to avoid losing them.

According to Treasurer John Lutz, the following re-allocations were approved:

- $670 to be moved from the 1983 street improvement fund to the 1983 senior center fund.

- $2,914.48 to be moved from the 1983 contingency fund to the senior center fund.

- $2,574.03 to be moved from the 1984 contingency fund to the planning and management fund.

- $346 to be moved from the 1982 contingency fund to the 1982 recreation facility fund.

In addition, $6,134.55 was retained in the street improvement fund pending further research by the treasurer.

Party quandary

What's a body to do?

A governmental body, that is.

It seems Independence Township is due to celebrate its sesquicentennial, or 150th anniversary, soon. But when?

The township was officially incorporated March 22, 1836, according to Clerk Richard Holman.

But the founding farmers were so busy working, they didn't have time to hold their first governmental meeting until 1837, he says.

One-hundred-and-fifty years later, their oversight is causing our modern-day officials a modicum of distress. Should they schedule celebrations for 1986 or 1987?

"When do we want to celebrate?" asks Holman, summing up the general consternation.

Members of the township board discussed the dilemma at their Nov. 5 meeting. And though they have not resolved the issue, they have made several suggestions, including a year-long hoopla, or series of events, to begin in March.

The possibilities include a marathon, activities at the park and a birthday bash at a local restaurant.

New clerk hired

Susan Wagner, formerly a part-time employee for Independence Township, has been hired to fill a full-time Clerk I position with the treasurer's office. Wagner's hiring, at $7.40 per hour, was approved by the township board Nov. 5.

She replaces Linda Richardson, who recently transferred to a superintendent position at Lakeview Cemetery.

Described as an excellent worker by Treasurer John Lutz, Wagner has been with the department three years.

Sign up now for 'Super Saturday'

Members of the whole family can sign up for "Super Saturday" on Dec. 7.

Activities are planned from 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. at Clarkston Elementary School. The day-long event is sponsored by the Clarkston Community Education Department's Youth Enrichment Program.

Brochures on "Super Saturday" will be sent home with elementary school pupils on Friday, Nov. 15.

Registrations will be taken Nov. 18-21 at the five elementary schools in the Clarkston district. Advance registration is required. Call 674-3141 for more information.

Five appointees

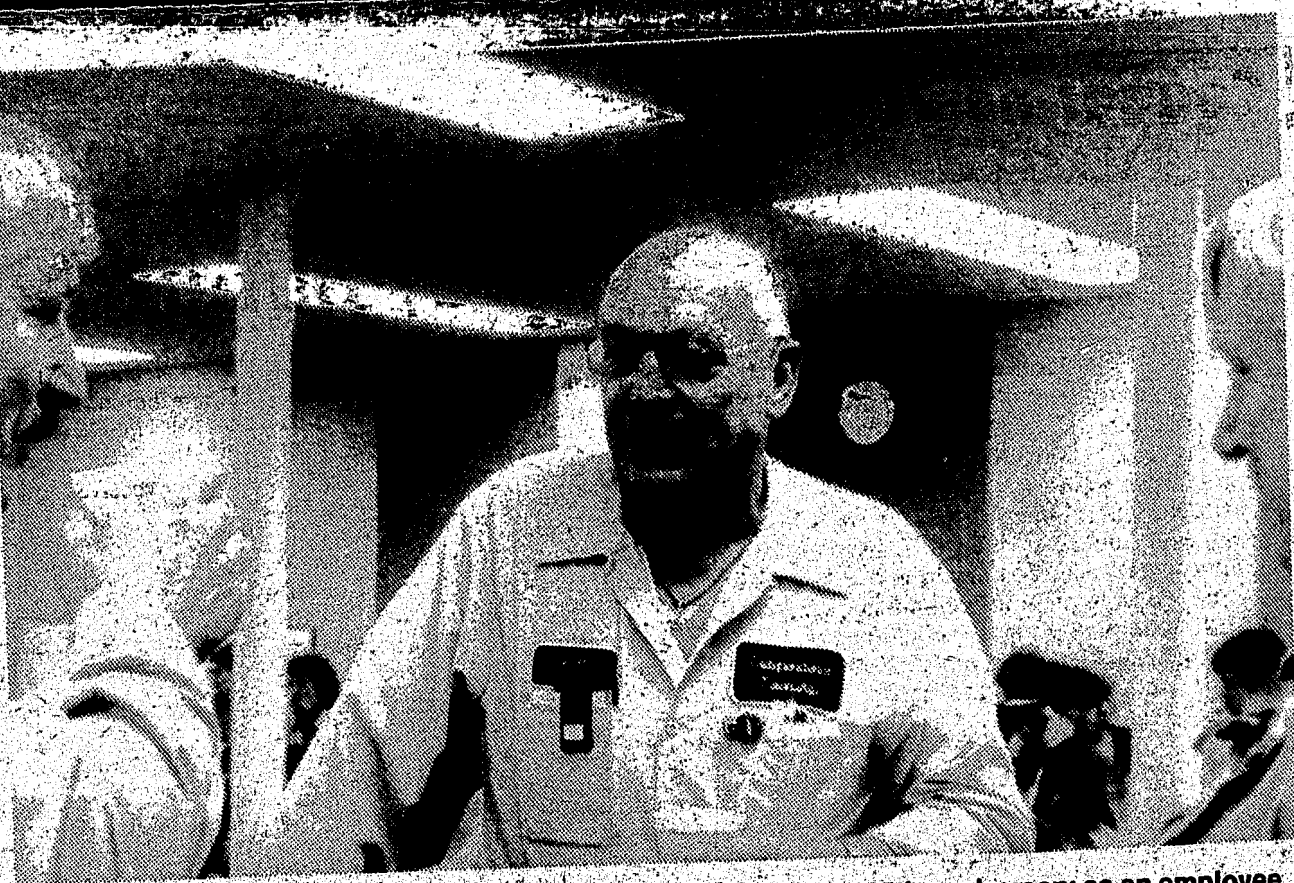

Five new members have been appointed, and two reappointed, to the Independence Township Safety Path Committee.

The committee was recently reorganized because of declining interest or scheduling conflicts on the part of former members, according to a memo from Supervisor Frank Ronk.

On Oct. 15, the township board approved the following appointments to the committee: Larry Rosso of Delmonico Road, Dan Manthei of Clarkston Road, Richard Greenfield of Robertson Court, Lawrence Johnson of Green Haven Court and Don Balzarini, of Reese Road.

Reappointed to the committee, which oversees the overall planning of safety paths in the township, were J. Douglas Roy of Morningstar Road and Paul VanKlaveren of Woodglen Road.

VanKlaveren will also serve as chairperson, replacing former chairperson Joseph Figa.

November is REACT Month

November is National REACT Month, and Orion Township resident Dale Schelske wants area residents to know what REACT could mean to them.

Although the organization may be best known for its Safety Break program, providing coffee to motorists along expressways during holiday weekends, Schelske says there are other advantages to having a REACT group within the community.

Members of Oakland County REACT, Inc. monitor emergency channel 9 on citizens band radios.

Schelske says that even if a distressed driver doesn't have a CB radio in the car, a passing motorist who does have a radio could relay an emergency message through Channel 9.

Once local REACT volunteers pick up the call, they notify the proper authorities—police, fire, ambulance or road service—of the problem.

But, REACT members don't stop at helping motorists. They also radio police departments when they see crimes in progress, or call the proper authorities if there is a boating mishap.

Each REACT call includes a description of what is happening and the location of the situation.

REACT members average eight hour of volunteer service each month.

"The only thanks they get is the gratification and sense of accomplishment that comes from helping someone," Schelske says.

New members are needed if the Oakland County organization is to maintain its current level of achievement.

Schelske says the volunteers aid in monitoring community functions. Recently, the county REACT team assisted with the USA Bud Light Triathlon in Waterford and at the Clarkston SCAMP Walk.

In recognition of its service, REACT has received the US Presidents Volunteer Action Award and the United Kingdom's Prince Charles and Lady Diana Award.

For further information, or to volunteer, contact Schelske at Oakland County REACT, Inc., 5640 Williams Lake Road, Drayton Plains, MI, 48020; phone, 673-9683.

Helping others

For the past week, Sashabaw Junior High has been taking donations for UNICEF. Sashabaw collected $134.95 over the five days.

UNICEF (United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund) was created in 1946 to help hungry or homeless children after earthquakes, floods, hurricanes or wars.

UNICEF provides these children with milk, blankets and medicines.

UNICEF also helps many countries to build factories, hospitals and clinics for children and their mothers. The factories are used to pasteurize milk.

UNICEF is a helpful and useful organization and Sashabaw Junior High is very proud to help.

Neumeier named new church Rector

The Rev. Mark Neumeier was recently named Rector of St. Mary's-in-the-Hills Episcopal Church on Joslyn Court, Lake Orion. He will conduct his first service as rector of the church Sunday, Dec. 8.

Neumeier is currently the Associate Rector at St. John's Episcopal Church, Saginaw where he currently resides with his wife Ann. His duties at St. John's will end Dec. 2.

Reared in Escanaba, Mich., Neumeier received an accounting degree from Michigan State University in 1972. Following a brief business career, he enrolled in the Divinity School at Yale University. He obtained a Master of Divinity degree in 1979.

Ann is also a graduate of MSU. She holds a Master's Degree in sociology from the University of Michigan. Currently, she is employed as a counselor in the Saginaw area, and teaches in the Church School at St. John's.

According to Leonard Willis, Senior Warden of St. Mary's, Neumeier's qualifications meet the needs of the church. "His leadership will bring us (the parish) to new heights of achievement," said Willis.

The gorp solution

Kathy Greenfield

I thought for a while that I was the only mother facing conflicting emotions over so-called "care packages."

The term goes way back. They existed and were called the same thing when I lived in a college dormitory. They consist of packages filled with goodies from home.

My problem with the kinds of things that are usually found in care packages—candy, cookies and so on—has to do with guilt.

How, I ask myself, can a caring parent send sugar-laden mostly junk food to someone who should be eating fruits and vegetables and other healthy things for optimum performance?

Being an avid reader of "advice to parents" articles when my children were younger, I frequently came across suggestions on ways not to encourage bad eating habits.

You know the kind of stuff: Don't reward with dessert. ("If you eat all your spinach, you can have a big piece of chocolate cake.") Don't soothe with sugar. ("Don't cry; here's a lollipop.")

Some of it was easy. When my children fell down, I did exactly what my parents did—I offered them a glass of water.

I never gave up loving to bake, however. And I never celebrated birthdays and holidays with sugar-free Jello.

Several interesting things have happened in the care package department during first couple of months my daughter has been away at school.

The first has to do with literature received from campus organizations. When the "send your child a basket of fruit during final exam time" offer arrived, my daughter happened to be home.

"Would you like to receive fruit?" I asked.

"No," she said. "I would just spoil and I hate to waste food." I was impressed with her logic.

Then she left, and the mail kept coming. Next in line was an offer to send cookies or decorated cakes from the school's bakeshop.

The most recent arrival was called a "Final Survival Kit," to be sent by the student alumni association as a combination good deed and fund raiser during exam time.

Items inside included crackers, soup and beverage mixes, cookies, chips and several kinds of candy—plus a pen, pencil, test booklet and a bumper sticker.

It's probably a good idea, but I've come up with something better—it's called gorp.

Gorp is a concoction cross country skiers pack in little plastic bags and put in their pockets for quick energy on the trail.

It's a mixture of dried fruit, nuts and candy (two out of three isn't bad). My daughter's favorite grouping is raisins, redskin peanuts and M&M's (or chocolate chips, the kind you use for cookies).

We arrived at gorp as a good alternative to cookies, et. al., during the same weekend the fruit offer arrived.

We also talked about care packages in general and it was then that I realized I wasn't the only mother concerned about the kind of love expressed with a batch of fudge.

She said the most common items arriving from homes were bottles of vitamins.

Some serious and not so serious notes on the passing parade.

When we were in Lansing a few weeks ago listening to heads of state departments, the phrase "comeback state" was repeated a few times by those who lead.

The inference was that leadership in the state's highest office is bringing Michigan's economy back, with no mention of industry.

I believe the economy is being revitalized by GM, Ford, Chrysler, EDS, and other high rollers, and their activity stimulated the buying public which has proven Governor Blanchard's income tax increase was unnecessary.

I think the legislature should now lower the rate, not to just the 4.6 percent of the pre-Blanchard days, but to 4 percent because it will still bring in more than enough to provide above average state services.

They can even make it a "temporary" 4 percent.

One more, not on the Capitol visit, and you'll read no more from me. The day before we went to Lansing, the Senate voted 15-13 supporting Howard Cosell and his right to free speech. It came at the time Cosell's latest book was introduced.

I wrote down some cynical comments along the line of the Senate not having much to do, and that the part-time legislature would still be more representation than the voters need.

Then majority leader Engler explained "It was just another recognition vote," and they have hundreds while they are in session.

I'm going to retrieve my cynical comments.

I called Michigan Bell several times trying to order a call-forwarding service. The recorded response on 456-9800 was "All our representatives are busy."

Ma Bell should call AT&T and get some more lines, or Kelly Services and get some more representatives. Must say, they were pleasant once I got 'em.

John Tait, former Detroit News employee now with Consolidated Newsprint out of Chicago, sent me a copy of Harold Geneen's book "Managing".

Geneen headed IT&T from 1959 to 1977. When he joined the company sales were $765.6 million with profits of $29 million. When he left sales were $16.7 billion and earnings $562 million. He had bought, merged, or absorbed 350 different companies in 80 countries.

Obviously, he was a very busy man. But, now to my point of mentioning Geneen. He devoted a whole chapter to "The Cluttered Desk Executive".

He wrote, "When I come upon a man who has a gleaming, empty, clean desk top, I am dealing with a fellow who is so far removed from the realities of his business that someone else is running it for him. Of course he is the last one to realize it."

And, "It is practically impossible for a top management man, or even middle management, to be doing the degree and level of work that he should be doing and, at the same time, have a clean desk."

I want to thank John Tait for taking away the guilt feeling I've harbored for not having a clean desk.

Alternative plan

I have sent the following suggestion to the Oakland County Road Commission and I would like to share it with the readers of The Clarkston News:

I would like to propose an alternative to the proposed widening of highway M-15 north of Dixie Highway.

I believe that M-15 (northbound) could be routed up Dixie Highway to its entrance on southbound I-75. M-15 (northbound) would then follow south I-75 to the next exit (No. 91, Clarkston).

At that exit, a left turn would allow merging with the existing M-15. Southbound M-15 would exit to North I-75 at the existing mile-91 entrance and exit at the mile-93 exit and turn left to merge with southbound Dixie.

Total requirements to effect this proposal would be improving two I-75 exits: the southbound one at mile-91 and the northbound one at mile-93 plus the addition of traffic lights at those two exits to facilitate left turns.

I believe this proposal offers significant advantages over the current plan to widen M-15.

The advantages would be reduced total cost, less disruption due to the construction south of Clarkston, reduced traffic and congestion through Clarkston due to the removal of the M-15 traffic and the opportunity to preserve the current village atmosphere in Clarkston.

I hope this suggestion will receive your serious consideration.

Take a stand on ducks

We frequently see people feeding the ducks along the shore of Clarkston's Mill Pond at the edge of the parking lot at Main and Washington streets.

While it's fun to watch the delight of little children as the birds swim closeby, the little children's parents are obviously ignoring the posted signs that clearly request the ducks not be fed.

Former Village President Keith Hallman, now a Florida resident, offers some food for thought on the matter.

He sent a clipping, which we've abridged, from the Plantation Golf & Country Club newsletter. Ducks apparently can be a problem—in the north and south.

TAKING A STAND ON DUCKS...

Some of our residents have recently noticed that we have taken steps to reduce and relocate the duck population in our lakes here at The Plantation.

This has been done for reasons of public health and population control.

The average 3-pound duck discharges in his feces approximately 11 billion coliform bacteria each day. Coliform bacteria are responsible for some infectious diseases of humans.

Bellyaches, stomach cramps and intestinal flu are associated with various coliform bacteria.

To put duck coliform bacteria into perspective, consider that one 3-pound duck produces each day the same amount of bacteria into the environment as the following: six sheep, two cows, six adult humans, 46 chickens, 85 turkeys.

The best population control mechanism is the duck's food supply. A typical 10-acre lake produces enough food to support from two to four ducks—not more.

These ducks will not be concentrated in one area, so they are never a problem.

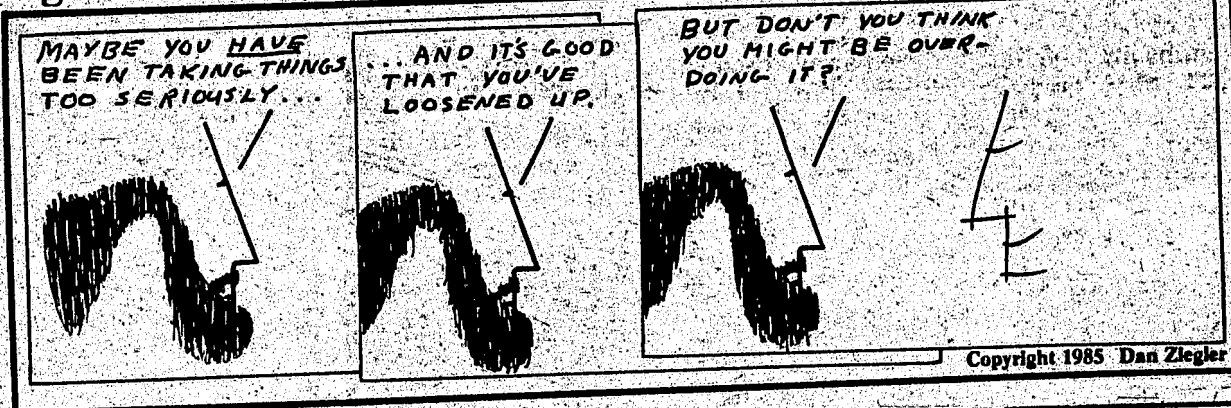

It is only when Mother Nature's food supply is augmented that a duck population can grow too large.

If lake owners feed the ducks, augmenting the natural food supply Mother Nature provides, they ultimately can cause injury to people and to the ducks themselves. Therefore, people should avoid feeding the ducks, as this might even draw them from other lakes.

The natural population will re-establish itself quickly.

Favorite college sport

Jim Fitzgerald

The University of Detroit recently edged the University of Kansas in the opening round of an exciting contest that promises an important breakthrough in my second favorite big-college sport—word-breaking.

My first favorite is cheating.

Usually, it's coaches who shine brightest in these two sports. Whenever you read about a great violation of league rules, or a remarkable breach of contract, the credit is given to a coach.

When it comes to cheating, most of the glory goes to the coach with the poorest eyesight. He can't see the cars and money given to his football stars by local alumni. He uses the Braille system to discover what a lucky coincidence it is that all those young men who enrolled because of the university's outstanding Renaissance Languages program have no necks.

The most talented coaches can do more than simply be blind to recruiting violations. They also use practice regulations to further their reputations as top-level cheaters. Apparently, a fine example of this was recently provided by Moe Iba, basketball coach at the University of Nebraska.

NCAA rules forbid basketball practice before Oct. 15. But on Oct. 7, the Nebraska student newspaper made tape recordings of Iba and his assistants shouting instructions to players who were bouncing basketballs inside a locked gym with towels covering the windows.

Coach Iba denied he was successfully cheating on his opponents.

As for the sport of word-breaking, it is generally regarded as more difficult than cheating. In word-breaking, coaches have a big advantage over players because coaches usually sign employment contracts while players are bound to their colleges only by the old school spirit.

It takes no great talent for a player to quit the old school team, especially if his home is 2,000 miles away and he never gets off the bench. He isn't breaking anything more important than a flimsy verbal promise, plus bruising the ego of the alumnus who loaned him a MasterCard for making that promise.

On the other hand, a really talented coach must often break a lawyer-anointed contract with two more years to run at $200,000 per year. It's either that or pass up the chance for $300,000 for four years and his own TV show at another university.

It isn't easy for a big-college coach, often the best-known man in town, to publicly admit his signed word isn't worth dog poop. But a few of them manage to do it, and I've always regarded their achievement as the zenith in the sport of word-breaking.

However, the current confrontation between the University of Detroit and the University of Kansas promises to produce even more thrills. The two schools signed a contract to play a non-televised basketball game Jan. 6. Now Kansas wants to break the contract so it can play latecomer Louisville on national TV without exceeding a 27-game schedule limit.

Remember, this isn't just one coach attempting to break his word. It is an entire state university representing thousands of esteemed educators and honorable citizens.

Last week, a circuit court ruled that Kansas must honor the contract. But Kansas still has options. It can appeal to a higher court, or play Detroit but break a contract with another school.

Last week, a circuit court ruled that Kansas must honor the contract. But Kansas still has options. It can appeal to a higher court, or play Detroit but break a contract with another school.

The excitement mounts. I'm looking forward to a new zenith in the sport of word-breaking, especially in an educational, character-building setting.

The triumph

Carolyn Walker

Sometimes, it seems the most insignificant occurrences open our eyes to the wonders of God and the potential goodness of humankind.

Such happenings took place Saturday at the Special Olympics bowling tournament.

On that day, the West Bloomfield Lanes bowling alley was crowded wall to wall with crippled and retarded children and adults. All winners.

Picture the scene: People in wheelchairs. Children on crutches. Smiles everywhere.

Gutter balls drew cheers and hugs. Single pins down caused standing ovations.

During the excitement, unbeknownst to some, several people were holding their breaths near lane 37 as a limping girl worked her way toward the alley, clutching her bowling ball like a basket of eggs.

She eyed the pins, drew back a twisted arm and with all her might, rolled the weighty ball toward her objective.

She watched.

The ball turned in slow revolutions down the aisle, edging toward the gutter. Always the gutter.

Collectively, her observers gritted their respective teeth, pinched their eyes closed, praying, hoping against hope and whispering in low tones, "Come on, ball."

Hands waved the air as if to fan the ball back on course.

On it went, ever slower toward the gutter. At last, it hit the edge and teetered, rolling for what seemed an eternity on the brink of failure.

Time stopped.

Suddenly, as if by the hand of God, the ball went back onto the lane, knocking down not one, but three pins.

The crowd roared.

O thou of little faith, wherefore didst thou doubt? Matthew 14:31

That girl was not alone in her experience, nor were the observers.

Every bowler had his or her share of gutter balls and near misses, of answered prayers and quiet human support.

Volunteers with seemingly endless supplies of patience held ramps, rounded up balls, tallied scores and dealt out good will.

There was a ribbon for every competitor, based on scores earned. Each awarded with pomp and praise.

After the bowlers had received their ribbons, they were ushered into a room where a table full of trophies awaited them.

As the bowlers grasped their prizes and proudly displayed their ribbons, the eyes of volunteers and parents grew misty. They realized the true triumph of the day: That there are no defeated dreams, only timid dreamers. That kindness, sharing and caring do exist. Mankind can be good to his fellows. Prayers can be answered.

O thou of little faith, wherefore didst thou doubt?

Time ticking away as Mediplex moves along

By Carolyn Walker

The pressure is on for the Mediplex Group Inc. They are faced with the possible expiration of their state-mandated certificate of need (CON) in February.

With that in mind, Mediplex Project Manager John Truslow, at the Nov. 5 Independence Township board meeting, urged members to quickly amend a consent judgment governing 26 acres for Mediplex's proposed senior citizen complex.

But the board, as well as Supervisor Collin Walls of Springfield who was in attendance, are proceeding cautiously, concerned about the future use of the facility should it fail as a senior complex.

Independence attorney Gerald Fisher suggested that Mediplex consider development under the township's Planned Unit Development (PUD) ordinance, which would be included in the judgment's amendment.

Under those circumstances, the use of the facility could be designated for senior citizens only and would not permit other options, Fisher said after the meeting.

If approved, the amended judgment would govern the issues of future use, number of units and parking spaces, thus overriding any site plan review powers held by the two townships.

No official action was taken at the meeting, which was closed to the public after the hour-long discussion.

Before the meeting was closed township planning commission Chairman Neil Wallace cautioned the board that amending the judgment would limit the townships' power of review over major issues.

"The judgment would control those major components it spoke to," Wallace said after the meeting. "I just wanted them to understand the effect."

The site plan reviews would address those issues not covered in the amendment.

The 1976 judgment, amended in 1982 for a proposal by developer Hugh Garner, must be re-amended to specifically address the Mediplex proposal, said Truslow, who attended the meeting with attorney Charles Clippert.

"We have to weigh what's really important and what isn't," Truslow said. "I think we're at the point now where we need to bring this approval (to completion)."

Mediplex proposes building the senior citizen complex on property which straddles the Independence-Springfield boundary line.

Began in Oxford

A car chase that began in Oxford ended in Independence Township Oct. 30.

William Donald Brown of Oxford, who was arrested in connection with the chase, pleaded not guilty during his arraignment Nov. 6. He turned himself into the Oxford police after a warrant was issued for his arrest.

The 18-year-old is charged with unlawfully driving away an automobile, a five-year felony, and failing to obey a police officer's signal, a one-year misdemeanor.

Brown's preliminary examination date is Nov. 14 before 52-3 District Court Judge Robert L. Shipper. He was released on $10,000 personal bond.

According to Oxford police reports, at 2:30 a.m. Oct. 30, police received a tip concerning a possible stolen 1985 Chevrolet Celebrity. Sgt. Jack LeRoy spotted the car and began to follow it.

As LeRoy pursued the car, it ran several stop signs before reaching South Washington Street in Oxford. The chase began.

The reports show LeRoy chased the car south-

To be located off Dixie Highway, it is to include a 60-bed home for the aged, a 120-bed convalescent center and apartments for senior citizens.

Officials of Springfield Township have agreed to enter the consent judgment to facilitate the construction.

An extension on the deadline for Mediplex's CON has been granted by the state public health department once and a second extension is unlikely, says Truslow.

Car chase comes to township bound on M-24, at times reaching speeds over 115 mph. The chase continued through Lake Orion to southbound I-75 from M-24.

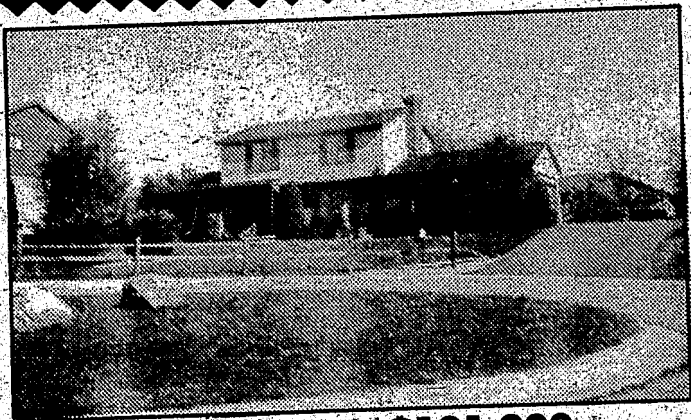

The Auburn Hills Police Department assisted with a roadblock in the area of University and Featherstone roads. The Celebrity made a U-turn across the median to northbound I-75 when nearing the roadblock.

At that time, police reports show LeRoy's police car ran out of gasoline, having burned one-half tank from Oxford to I-75. Auburn Hills police then picked up the chase, but lost the Celebrity when it exited back onto M-24.

Michigan State Police and the Oakland County Sheriff's Department were notified.

The OCSD picked up the chase on northbound I-75 near the weigh station. The pursuit continued to the Sashabaw Road exit, where the OCSD lost the Celebrity.

The vehicle was later found abandoned on the dead-end Flemings Lake Road in Independence Township.

Buses on order

Five new buses have been ordered for the Clarkston school district fleet.

The board of education unanimously approved the expenditure Monday night by accepting a bid of $212,070 from C&S Motors Inc. of Flint.

Bids were taken from four firms for the 72-passenger Carpenter school buses with International Harvester chassis. The C&S bid was the lowest, at $42,414 each.

When delivered in July or August 1986, the buses will replace five of the existing 39 buses in the district fleet.

Independence adds support

The Independence Township Board is adding its clout to the City of Birmingham's and other communities in the war against teenage alcohol abuse.

In a unanimous decision Nov. 5, the board agreed to endorse a proposed Michigan House of Representatives bill, which would revoke the licenses of proprietors who sell packaged liquor to minors for consumption off the seller's property.

Birmingham forwarded a copy of their endorsement and asked for Independence Township's, said

Clerk Richard Holman, in what he characterized as the "common practice" of municipalities seeking the support of other governmental bodies.

The proposed bill includes several steps before an offender's license could be revoked including three citations in one year and public hearings at the community and liquor control commission levels.

Currently, there is a law in effect that prohibits the sale of packaged liquor to minors for consumption on a proprietor's property.

Kids on buses won't buckle up

thrown forward into the rear of the seat in front and their heads took the entire blow. For those not restrained, the impact was tempered by other parts of their bodies.

Dennis also reported that three public school districts in Michigan have received qualified approval from the State Department of Pupil Transportation for the use of seat belts for their buses—Oxford, Rochester and Dearborn.

One problem, he said, is that "what the districts are doing may not satisfy federal standards when and if they finally emerge."

Of the 50 states, only North Carolina has passed seat belt legislation for school buses on a limited basis beginning this year, so data was not available, Dennis said.

In addition, he noted that the Michigan State Police Department has publicly opposed the use of seat belts on Class I school buses, which weigh over 10,000 pounds, "because the annual safety records show the student to be safest on a school bus when compared to any vehicle used to transport personnel."

In the last 30 years in Michigan, there have been no fatal injuries to students while riding on Class I buses, Dennis said. All deaths have resulted from accidents occurring during loading or unloading.

In the Clarkston school district during a typical year, buses travel over 9 million miles transporting students. If each student were counted for each trip, the total would be 1.7 million.

"In the past 17 years, and the reason I used 17 years is that's the as far back as Mr. (Superintendent Milford) Mason's and my memories go, there hasn't been a serious injury to any student while being transported," Dennis said.

He concluded the report by saying the district should:

- Continue to replace buses manufactured before 1977 when federal law required "departmentalization" of seats with higher backs and more padding;

- Continue to address safety factors such as back-up alarms and sensing devices and external PA systems;

- And continue strict adherence to bus driver training and performance expectations.

There are presently 39 buses in the district fleet and 20 were manufactured before 1977. Eight of the buses are used as back-up for emergencies.

The six van-size special education buses are equipped with seat belts which include shoulder harnesses, making them more effective than lap belts, Dennis said.

Lawsuit possible over volleyball

By Dan Vandenhemel

There is a chance the Clarkston High School girls' volleyball team could go co-ed.

Two boys, senior Jeff Toretta and junior Jeff Funck, are trying to get the opportunity to play on the team. The Clarkston school district is not allowing the two to participate in any of the preseason drills.

Mrs. Sue Toretta, Jeff's mother, said the family is undecided whether to take the issue to court. If they do go to court, only the Toretta family will be involved.

"Jeff Funck is only a junior in high school and we don't know if there will be any negative repercussion from a court case," she said. "We wouldn't want to make it tougher on him next year."

Mrs. Toretta said a decision will probably come by the end of this week. She would not comment on the reason for waiting.

Toretta and Funck's interest in volleyball started at Sashabaw Junior High. They have built on that interest by managing the junior and senior high school teams. Toretta attended a summer volleyball camp at the University of Michigan to prepare for this season.

Conditioning for the Clarkston High School volleyball team started Oct. 28. Practicing and tryouts are scheduled to start after the completion of girls' basketball. The earliest starting date could be Nov. 25.

Clarkston Superintendent Milford Mason said it was the board of education's decision to not allow the two boys to participate in the practices or tryout for the team. He said that similar situations in Grand Rapids and Traverse City came out in favor of the school districts.

"The chief reason for the denial is it is a girls' sport," Mason said. "I checked with the Michigan High School Athletic Association (MHSAA) and had our legal counsel check into it and came up with our decision. There is no law, rule, anything that says equal means exactly equal. There are alternative sports in the winter for the boys. If this goes to court, we'll have to defend our position."

Jeff Toretta said they asked a lawyer about the chances of the boys playing volleyball this year. "It's less than 50 percent," he said.

"The lawyer said he could get a restraining order from a judge so we could play until a decision is made," Toretta said. "I think I'm inclined to go through with it."

He did not want to say who the lawyer was until the family decides if they will take the issue to court.

"I'm kind of upset about all this," said Jeff Funck, 15. "I feel very strongly about going to court but dread the costs."

If the boys are allowed on the team, they will not be able to participate in any tournaments because of an MHSAA rule.

Suzanne Martin, assistant director of the MHSAA, said her organization's regulations do not permit boys to compete on a girls' team in state tournaments. They have no rule regarding the regular season.

Title IX, adopted in 1972, gives girls an opportunity to participate in athletics on an equal basis with boys.

"Because of Title IX, there are sex specific sports like football and volleyball and there are equal opportunities for both," Martin said. "If boys play on a girls' volleyball team, then they are taking an opportunity away from the girls."

Currently there are no high schools in Michigan with a boys' interscholastic volleyball team. Martin said Monroe High School and Ann Arbor Huron are the only two she knows of that are checking into the possibility of forming a boys' team.

Kettering prevails, 67-55

Wolves fall in GOAL race

By Dan Vandenhemel

Despite the high temperature inside the Waterford Kettering gym, the Clarkston Wolves got off to a frigid start against the Captains.

With two minutes left in the first quarter, The Wolves were looking at a 15-1 deficit. Kettering breezed to a 67-55 basketball victory over the Wolves Nov. 7.

Missy O'Dell takes careful aim on a free throw attempt for the Wolves against Waterford Kettering.

The home court advantage for the Captains didn't concern Wolves' coach Dave McDonald as much as the Captains themselves.

"We just got beat. We had that cold start and it's very hard catching up to a good team like Kettering," McDonald said.

The Wolves pulled within one point, 20-19, during the second half but couldn't keep the momentum going.

"We made a good comeback, but when Kettering went back up, it was our fault," McDonald said. "It's kind of deflating for the girls when you come back like that and then the other team pulls back in front."

Kettering held a comfortable 31-22 halftime lead and the Wolves never challenged in the second half.

Sue Lovelady led the Wolves with 15 points. Missy O'Dell also racked up the statistics with 11 points and 18 rebounds. Michelle Taulbee added nine points and 10 rebounds.

McDonald said he wasn't pleased with the referees at the game, but he said they were consistent.

"The refs called a very sloppy game," the coach said. "It got so bad you didn't want to watch the game. They missed a lot of calls on both sides. I'm sure Charlie (Shires, Kettering coach) would have been screaming, too, but you don't do that when you're up by 15 points."

The Wolves drop their record to 10-7 overall and 4-2 in the Greater Oakland Activities League. The Captains are 17-0 and 6-0 in the league.

"Kettering is the best team around," McDonald said, "but we'll beat most teams that we play."

Wrestling sign-in Practice and registration for the Clarkston Wrestling Club are under way.

Registrations are being taken Nov. 18 and 20 at Sashabaw Junior High School.

Wrestlers can sign up between 6 and 8 p.m. The cost is $10 for one athlete and $15 for two in the same family. The club is open to anyone over age 5.

For more information, call Cheryl Walter at 625-7356 or Carla Endreszl at 394-0587.

Mustaches disappear in shutout victory

John Craven's children don't recognize him anymore.

Craven shaved his 11-year-old mustache off after the Clarkston junior varsity football team shutout its final opponent.

Craven and fellow coach Steve Pearson each bared his upper lip in the lockerroom following the Wolves' 21-0 whitewashing of West Bloomfield, Oct. 31.

"My own children haven't seen me without a mustache," Craven said.

The Wolves' final 7-2 record includes winning the last six games in a row. Four of the six were shutouts.

This is the first year at the helm of the junior varsity team for Craven and Pearson. Craven came up from the Clarkston Junior High ninth-grade team and Pearson from the Sashabaw Junior High School football team.

"I also told my teams if they went 9-0 or 8-1, I'd shave my mustache off," Craven said. "When we had three games left, I told them if they win by shutouts the last three games, Steve and I would shave. I thought it was a pretty safe bet. Doggone it if they didn't go and do it!"

With the defense holding opponents to 22 points in the last six games, the offense was busy racking up the points.

For the last six games, the offense averaged 24 points a game and over 18 for all nine games.

Keenan Powell was the biggest offensive weapon with 362 yards rushing and a 6.1 average. Stacey Turner, who split his time with the varsity squad, totaled 460 yards for a 7.2 average.

"The running carried us," Craven said. "We had about 200 yards rushing a game."

Defensively, Eric Hutching, Mark Oswald and Matt DeBoer led the team in tackles, while Josh Newblatt and Powell each collected five interceptions. David Thompson led the sacking-the-quarterback charge with nine.

"Our defense was small and quick, but they loved to hit," Craven said. "Our aggressiveness really set the tone of the game."

Wolves JV cagers 'tired'

By Dan Vandenhemel

The long season is starting to grind on the Clarkston High School junior varsity girls' basketball team.

The Wolves have already played 17 games with three more to go. Coach Larry Sherrill said he has a tired team on his hands.

"Two games in a row we've been flat, really flat," Sherrill said. "We talked after the Kettering game and the kids told me they're tired. They're not used to the pressure or number of games."

When in junior high school, the basketball team members played a maximum of 15 games a season.

Even though the Wolves say they are exhausted, they've pushed their record to 12-5. Against Waterford Kettering, Nov. 7, the Wolves were blown out, 8-29. The Tuesday before, they edged Bloomfield Hills Lahser, 39-37.

"Against Lahser, we were really flat but we were able to stay with them and take it in the end," Sherrill said. "With a team like Kettering, you can't let them get away from you. We tried to stay even but couldn't."

Saying the Wolves didn't shoot well against Kettering would be an understatement, he said. As a team, they made only nine of 52 shots from the floor for a 12 percent success rate.

"Our defense did a nice job, but we couldn't score," he said. "We did everything with them, rebounding, steals. I expected the game to be closer."

Jane Selent led the Wolves with nine points against Kettering, while Ali Fedie added seven and Shannon Kilcline scored six. Against Lahser, Lorette Ulasich came up with nine points and held the team together late in the game. Selent had eight points in that game.

Soccer program has future

By Dan Vandenhemel

There will be a boys' junior varsity soccer team at Clarkston High School next fall.

The future of the team hinged on the establishment of junior varsity programs in other high schools. Wolves' coach Lynn Mead said junior varsity programs are starting up in Brandon and Waterford next season.

This season, the third for the soccer program at CHS, was one of the more difficult. Opponents were hard to come by. At one point, the Wolves went two weeks between contests.

"We had a long time between games this year," Mead said. "We never had a planned schedule. Other schools just didn't have a J.V. program. We had to scramble to find teams to play."

The Wolves managed a 3-6-2 record, which included teams from Troy, Lapeer and Waterford.

"We just wanted to give the kids some playing time," Mead said.

The Wolves had 17 players on the squad. Bill Cashin was the leading scorer with nine goals and Charles Ottman was second with five. Teammates voted Mark Colwell the most valuable player and Mark Whitcomb the most improved player.

During the season, the Wolves scored 32 goals and gave up 41.

"We've got a solid base for the future with our program," Mead said. "We've just got to get more opponents to play. The spotty schedule hurt us because we couldn't get anything going. The kids would come out to practice and train and train and not have any games to use it in. The morale got pretty low. There was nothing to challenge the kids."

said she would have mixed emotions, if Toretta and Funck were allowed to try out for the team.

"I feel kind of stuck," she said. "I don't think it's fair the boys don't have a team, but boys being on a girls' team doesn't seem fair either. If they do come out and make the team, I know I'd still take 12 girls, the same number I always have. I wouldn't want any problems about cutting a girl to make room for a boy."

One consideration if the boys make the team is, what will opposing teams do? It has been suggested that the opposing team may walk off the court or make Clarkston forfeit the match.

"I know I'd notify the other team before we were supposed to meet," Foster said. "This is really hard for me because when I was in high school, our volleyball team played a team with two boys on it. It felt strange walking into the gym and playing them. But the boys didn't hurt us as much as the 6-foot girl they had."

Toretta and Funck agreed that if the opposing team tried to force Clarkston to forfeit, they would be happy to just sit on the bench.

"We don't want to put the program in jeopardy," Toretta said. "We're not trying to prove a point. We just want to play volleyball."

Up My Alley

Stepping out

Dan Vandenhemel

It takes a lot of guts to want something so badly that you're willing to step away from the crowd.

Doing this is a test of a person's will. Stepping out comes in many forms—clothes, hair styles or being a part of an out-of-the-ordinary group.

Two students at Clarkston High School are trying to buck tradition.

Jeff Toretta and Jeff Funck want to play on the girls' volleyball team at CHS. Both have been involved with junior high and high school volleyball teams as managers but never as players.

In talking with them, I believe they just want to play volleyball. They are trying to bring attention to a sport that both sexes can play competitively.

Nowhere in Michigan is there a boys' high school interscholastic volleyball team.

Toretta and Funck may be able to play this season—but if they do, the courts will have to grant permission. If the issue goes that far, it may hurt more than the two boys. It might bring down the volleyball program, too.

If the two make the Wolves' volleyball team, opponents may walk out of the gym or the Wolves may have to forfeit matches.

I'm glad Toretta and Funck are trying to play volleyball. But on the other hand, they shouldn't take that opportunity away from girls.

For now, volleyball is basically a girls' sport in high school, just like football is for the boys.

Girls have played football, so why can't boys play volleyball?

Toretta said he doesn't want to hurt the program in any way. If he thinks that will happen, he and Funck will back down.

I'll give a lot of credit to most people who try to be different.

Toretta and Funck are facing quite a bit of pressure in making decisions about playing volleyball.

Maybe what they are doing is putting a bug in someone's ear that there are some boys interested in playing volleyball.

They're underdogs trying to do something no one else has wanted to do.

Waterford Kettering 67, Wolves 55

Nov. 7—The Captains jump out to a 15-1 lead before the Wolves begin to move the ball. The Wolves pull within one point in the second quarter but can not hold the momentum. Sue Lovelady hits for 15 points for the Wolves and Missy O'Dell comes through with 11 points and 15 rebounds. Michelle Taulbee is the next highest scorer with nine points and 10 rebounds. The Wolves' record is 10-7 overall and 4-2 in the league.

Bloomfield Lahser 57, Wolves 49

Nov. 5—Taulbee has 25 points and 15 rebounds in the loss to Lahser. Lovelady chips in with eight points and Michelle Baker contributes seven.

THIS WEEK: Clarkston at Brighton, Nov. 16, 8 p.m. NEXT WEEK: Clarkston at Pontiac Northern, Nov. 19, 8 p.m.

Clarkston High School junior varsity

Waterford Kettering 48, Wolves 29

Nov. 7—The Wolves are never in the game with Kettering as Jane Selent totals nine points for the Wolves. Ali Fedio with seven points and Shannon Kilcline with six points lead the rest of the Wolves in scoring. The Wolves' record is 12-5.

Wolves 39, Lahser 37

Nov. 5—Nine players score for the Wolves in the close game. They trail, 19-15, at the half. Lorette Ulasich holds the team together down the stretch with her nine points. Selent has eight in the victory.

THIS WEEK: Clarkston at Brighton, Nov. 16, 6 p.m. NEXT WEEK: Clarkston at Pontiac Northern, Nov. 19, 6 p.m.

Sashabaw Junior High Cougars

Cougars 35, Lakeland 30

Nov. 7—The Cougars push their record to 6-12 with the win over Lakeland. Kelly Avenall scores 12 points, Cindy Beal follows with nine and Karrie Woolley adds seven.

Lake Orion 44, Cougars 38

Nov. 5—Beal is the highlight of the game for the Cougars with her 17 points and 17 rebounds. Avenall is the next highest scorer for the Cougars with six points.

THIS WEEK: Mason at Sashabaw, Nov. 14, 6:30 p.m.

Clarkston Junior High Wolverines

Wolverines 45, Pontiac Northern 37

Pies and cakes at bazaar

Mary Kuson crochets a bright red scarf.

Surrounded by items for the "Holiday Bazaar," Rose Jacks keeps on knitting a soft white baby afghan. If it's done in time, the afghan will be sold at the bazaar, she says.

Hundreds of cakes and pies are among the delights to be found Friday and Saturday at the "Holiday Bazaar" sponsored by St. Daniel's Rosary Guild.

The annual bazaar features all hand-crafted items made by parishioners including wooden kitchen accessories and cradles, and Christmas ornaments and gift items.

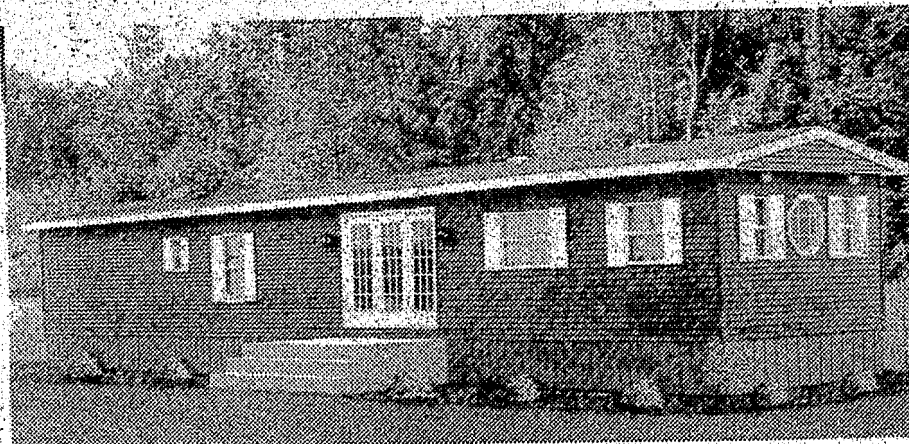

There will also be a Grannie's Attic rummage sale and a luncheon on Friday from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. The cost of $3.50 covers the complete meal.

Chairpersons of the bazaar are Esther Thomas and Carolyn Hunt.

Hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Nov. 15 and 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Nov. 16 at St. Daniel's, 7010 Valley Park Dr., at the intersection of Holcomb Street and Miller Road, Clarkston. Call 625-4580 for more information.

Insurance commentary

By William A. Myers

Before you hop onto the insurance industry for the sky-high costs of liability policies, consider:

1. In 1984, the average product liability award was $1.07 million — three times as high as 10 years before.

2. Average medical malpractice award was $950,000.

3. In 1983, there were 360 personal injury cases with awards over a million each. In 1975, there were 27 such million-plus awards.

4. In 1984, personal lawsuits were twice the number 10 years before.

5. In 1984, insurance companies paid out $1.16 in claims and costs for every $1 received in premiums.

6. Many doctors in branches such as orthopedics, surgery and gynecology say their insurance premiums are soaring to $100,000 a year. If a doctor has 200 patients, say, who are treated each year, that means it costs each patient $500 for the doctor's insurance.

7. In spite of such high fees, insurance companies paid out $150 in claims and costs for each $100 in premiums. Result: Many companies are simply refusing to write any more insurance — a decision they're a little late in making.

8. Auto liability, homeowners' liability — there are similar stories. One of two things going to happen soon: Rates will go up, or you can't get any insurance.

And don't let your hair grow until state legislatures do something about these ridiculously high damage awards.

Meanwhile, if you've got an insurance company that will continue to cover you, hang onto it. It's easier than to find another company where you'll be a new customer.

I've always had a tender spot for the companies that have boosted dividends every year. Some of them I've recommended in this column, such as Josten's and DeLuxe Check Printers, have done very well indeed.

The only complete list of such dividend boosters I've seen has been put out by Quick & Reilly, the discount stockbrokers. I had to open an account with them before they'd send me the list. No freebies with them — and that's one of the reasons they've become so successful.

There are over 200 stocks in the list, and all are on the New York Stock Exchange. Here are some with familiar names, and their records:

Stock	1974 Div	1984 Div
Abbott Labs	.17	1.20
Amer. Express	.30	1.30
Amer. Home Prod.	.78	2.64
Ball Corp.	.28	1.22
H&R Block	.38	2.32
Borden Inc.	1.25	2.65
Bristol-Myers	.38	1.50
Campbell Soup	1.18	2.28
Citicorp	.80	2.06
Combined Intl.	.53	2.06
Dayton Hudson	.15	.65
DeLuxe Check	.23	1.56
Dun & Bradst.	.47	1.81
Eckerd Drug	.15	.98
Gannett Co.	.18	1.33

That's enough for now.

I like companies like this because there is a powerful lot of pressure on current people in command to continue this unbroken string. Take an outfit like Josten's (school jewelry, annuals, graduation invitations), that has been boosting dividends (and earnings and sales and book value) for over 20 years. Suppose you were the boss at Josten's. Your name would go down in history if you let that company have a bad year. Why, the shareholders and people in the company would run you out of the country — and maybe tar and feather you on the way out.

Obviously, these perennial dividend boosters have basically a good product, and one that doesn't have boom and bust years. They've got a proper balance sheet, with strong finances, and they're not up to their ears in debt.

If you're bound to buy stocks, you could do worse than stick to such companies.

William A. Myers is a retired Lapeer County editor and investment manager.

Penned poetry

Watching the waves roll up on shore, And Seeing the dog chase them back down.
Seeing the people walking over the sun-bleached
White sand.

Collecting shells as they walk along.
Thinking of the sad day
When I know I must leave
And go back to the cold air o' winter.
Wendy McFada

Fall makes me think of:
The winter that's coming,
And the summer that's going.
Of the wind that's blowing
And the flowers not growing.
Fall—it makes me feel good.
Leslie Grant

I was thinking about
How the flowers bloom,
How the butterflies zoom.
All of that was going
On in my mind.
For I thought
It was springtime.
I opened my eyes,
And all I saw was the
Snow on the ground,
And frost all around.
Gina Schilling

Curtain up!

Basinger as Cinderella, Anthony Thompson as the Prince, Heather Flor as the Queen, and Leslie Morand and Melissa O'Dea as paiges.

Junior Theatre is "an excellent program to go along with the enrichment program," Krontz says, "because it's an enriching event. It's actually enriching them culturally."

—Kathy Greenfield

With golden hair and magic wand, Wendy McFalda fits the role of the Fairy Godmother.

A pumpkin-turned-carriage isn't the only vehicle in the Clarkston Junior Theatre production of "Cinderella."

The play itself serves as a vehicle for "a theater experience" for the 31 pupils enrolled in the six-week after school enrichment class offered through the Clarkston Community Education Department, says instructor Mark Krontz.

"When I think of 'theater experience,' I think of a total look at a program, a total overview type thing," Krontz says. "A theater experience isn't just acting on stage. There's memorization of parts; there's blocking; there's makeup of sets, lighting..."

The class members, from Andersonville, Bailey Lake, Clarkston and Pine Knob elementaries, will put on two free shows: on Tuesday, Nov. 19, at 7:30 p.m. at Bailey Lake Elementary; and on Saturday, Dec. 7, at 1:30 p.m. at Clarkston Elementary.

"I think it's going to be good," says Krontz.

But he's even more enthused about the class participants viewing other plays, because they have learned what it takes to put on a show.

In the tradition of the Shakespearean era when men played all the roles in plays, Brad Sadler is the haughty stepmother.

Cinderella's friends gather round to look at the mice she keeps for pets. The trio of friends are

TOGETHERNESS: As minutes pass, 8-month-old Katie's reactions to her mom the Rev. Jenny Schram's sewing vary from disinterest to sliding finished bibs off the table. But work continues on items for the Christmas Bazaar in the Sashabaw United Presbyterian Church's historic building. The bazaar is planned Saturday, Nov. 16, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. with eight colorful booths and a soup and sandwich luncheon. Among goods on the sale list are candy, baked goods, yarn, baby items, toys, wooden items and Christmas trims. There will also be a Trinkets and Treasures Shoppe. The church is located at 5331 Maybee, between Sashabaw and Clintonville roads, in Independence Township.

At school

Eric Peterson was selected as resident adviser of Harvey Hall at Western Michigan University, Kalamazoo.

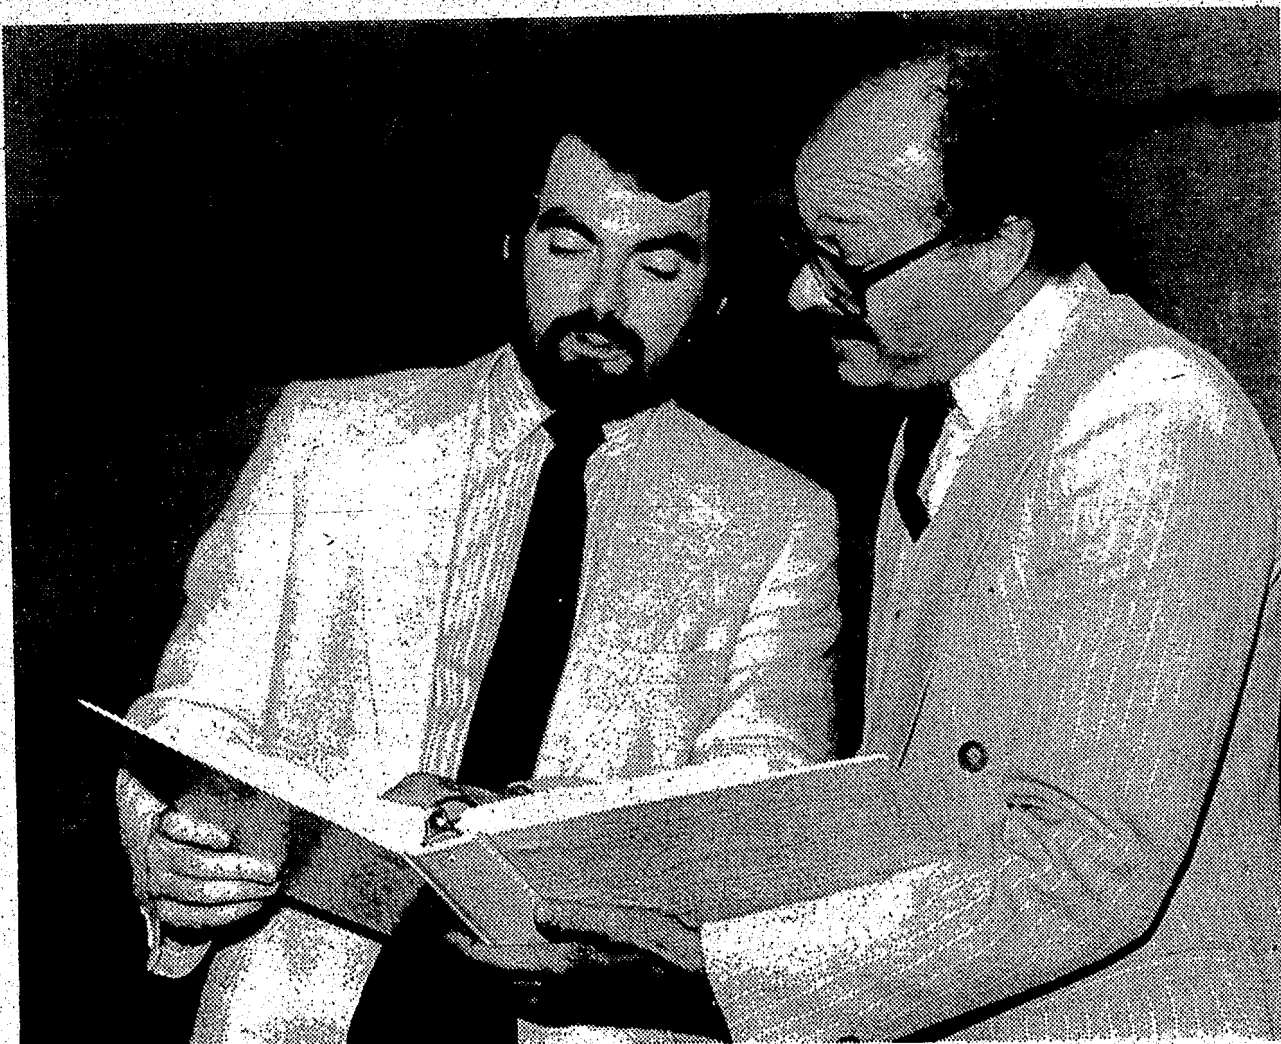

Peterson, a 1983 graduate of Clarkston High School, is majoring in health education at the university.

He is the son of Ken and Elaine Peterson of Shelley Drive, Independence Township.

Lussier-McKinnon

Robert and Norma Lussier of Greenview, Independence Township, announce the engagement of their daughter, Sabrina, to Stephen J. McKinnon, the son of Ronald McKinnon of Vancouver, British Columbia, and the late Mrs. McKinnon. The couple plan to be married at St. Trinity Lutheran Church in December.

THEY'RE ON STAGE: Independence Township residents Doug Fuller (left) and Rudy Youmans appear in the Lakeland Players' production of "Shay." The comedy-drama, written by former Waterford resident Anne Commire, is the story of a woman who lives in Michigan and who has agoraphobia, the fear of going out in public. Tickets at the door are $5.50 for adults and $4

McLeod, Baron exchange vows

Sheryl McLeod and Thomas J. Baron exchanged wedding vows at the Calvary Lutheran Church, Independence Township.

The Rev. Robert Walters performed the candlelight ceremony from an altar decorated with magenta carnations, white mums and heather.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. John McLeod of Deerhill Drive, Independence Township. She graduated from Northern Michigan University in 1985.

The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Edward Baron of Woodhaven. He is employed as a service representative by the Highway Service Co.

The bride wore an ivory satin bridal gown trimmed with alencon lace. Her crown headpiece was worn by her mother when she was married 25 years ago. The bride carried a cascade of roses, stephanotis and ivy.

Maid of honor was Laura Kotila of Royal Oak. Bridesmaids were Linda Savelly, the bride's cousin, of Royal Oak; Carole Pumarejo, the bride's aunt, of Texas; and Kathy Baron, the bridegroom's sister, of Ann Arbor.

They wore floor-length teal satin gowns with jackets and carried arm bouquets of mixed flowers and heather.

The bride's cousin Aimee Pumarejo of Texas was flower girl. She wore a floor-length ivory dress of eyelet made by her mother and carried a basket of mums, carnations and heather.

Mrs. Michael Green served as soloist.

Best man was David Baron, the bridegroom's brother. Groomsmen were Craig McLeod, the bride's brother; Philip Giles, the bride's cousin; and John Bodary of Chicago.

The wedding reception was held at Santia Hall in Keego Harbor. The bride's great-uncle, Arnold D.B.

October wedding: Sheryl and Thomas Baron.

Wylie of Scotland, added to the festivities by greeting the bridal party and guests with bagpipe music.

The couple took their wedding trip to Bermuda. They are residing in Trenton.

No. 40 for Smalleys

Charles and Betty Smalley of Independence Township celebrated their 40th wedding anniversary Nov. 6.

The Smalleys, who have lived in their home on Sashabaw Road 33 years, are the parents of Sandra DiPonio, Cindy Smith and Susan Smalley and the grandparents of David, Gina and Christopher.

In service

Airman Kirk Capistrant has been assigned to Lowry Air Force Base, Colo., after completing Air Force basic training at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas.

He will now receive specialized instruction in the supply field.

The son of James and Pamela Capistrant of Blue Water, Springfield Township, the airman is a 1985 graduate of Brandon High School.

Club notes

Auxiliary members of Chief Pontiac No. 377 American Legion traveled to the Battle Creek Veterans Hospital to assist with their bingo party and hospitality party.

The prizes and treats were donated by the American Legion and Auxiliary.

Members attending were Vi Asplund; Theresa Meersseman; Ivy Lee, Bonnie and April Reinhardt; and Legionnaire Earl Reinhardt.

A visit was also made to the Legion Villa to visit with the veteran the Junior Auxiliary has adopted.

Auxiliary members recently attended the 18th District membership luncheon held in Farmington. Attending were Vi Asplund, Bea Hockey, Theresa Meersseman, and Ivy Lee and April Reinhardt.

Senior activities to begin in Springfield

On Thursdays, retirees and people age 50 and up can join a new program at the Springfield Oaks Activities Center.

Kay Ellis

If you looked hard enough, you could find the Blues Brothers. Rambo was there, too. And if you felt like getting something off your chest, there was not one, but two priests to listen to your troubles. The time: 10 p.m. on Friday, Oct. 25. The scene: the annual U of D-Clarkston Campus Halloween Party.

This party has become a tradition for the Clarkston students. Every year, there are no other parties held until this one has occurred.

Of course, not everything is fun and games at college. There is, however, an effort on the part of our student council to liven up our lives so we don't become bogged down in our studies.

This year, the juniors serving on student council are: Jacqui Ball, president; Frank Gorski, treasurer; and Tracey White, secretary.

There are also three sophomores on the council.

They are Joe Schlegel, vice president; Bob McMillan, sergeant at arms; and Curtis Gilbert.

This group has aided the university in its first open house of the year.

Student council members aren't the only ones who help the university with informing prospective students about the programs offered.

Some members of the student body have helped Deldre Corbett, admissions counselor, with her presentations at the alma maters and at college nights.

I, as a freshman, look back and say, "Was I in that type of situation a year ago?"

Kay Ellis is a member of the freshman class at the University of Detroit's Clarkston Campus at the Colomblere Center in Springfield Township. She resides in Lake Orion.

School mentorship geared at career interests

By Rachel Gianakos

There is a new program for 19 students at Sashabaw Junior High School called the mentorship program.

It is offered to Mrs. Sue Kiser's first hour social studies-GATE class. Mrs. Kiser started the program last year for her GATE students, and with its success, she decided to continue it. GATE stands for gifted and talented education.

Students in the program were given a list of personal interests that they might like to pursue as careers in the future.

With the students' choices, Mrs. Kiser worked hard to find people who would work with the students and teach them what their profession was all about.

One goal of this program is for the students to receive a good hands-on learning experience, which will allow them to make decisions and teach them responsibility.

When writing about the program, Mrs. Kiser said she also hoped the students would become aware of the important things that can be learned outside the classroom and would develop a positive self-image because of their contributions to a community business.

At the end of the program, the mentors will be asked to evaluate the students' progress through the weeks.

Some students are now taking computer robotics courses at the Northwest Vocational Education Center and others are into dentistry, photography, veterinary study, gourmet cooking and journalism.

Mrs. Kiser said she hopes this program will be successful enough to continue for many years.

Rachel Gianakos, a ninth-grader at Sashabaw Junior High School, is working with The Clarkston News every other Wednesday afternoon through the SJHS Mentorship Program. "I'm learning the different kinds of writing you can do for a paper and to be a better writer," she says.

Kelley Miller's assignment in the SJHS Mentorship Program is with Flower Adventure on Main Street, Clarkston. Part of her work is waiting on customers. Kelley's mentors are shop owners Marianne Gaulin and Judy Galley.

'Many smokers complain of loss of memory'

Dear Cat Paw:

What are the laws about drugs not yet recognized as illicit, i.e. the newly created synthetic drugs?

Update

Dear Update:

The United States Justice Department has proposed an amendment to the Controlled Substances Act which calls for a 15-year prison term and a $250,000 fine for persons convicted of producing or distributing designer drugs.

Underground chemists make designer drugs by slightly altering the chemical composition of illegal drugs, such as cocaine or heroin. Under present laws, the drugs are technically legal.

The U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration can now use emergency powers to temporarily ban certain drugs, but it seeks a more permanent solution with this amendment.

The U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration has banned two heroin look-alikes, MPPP and PEPAP, in a growing effort to control the designer-drug phenomenon. Both of these drugs destroy brain cells and cause an illness identical to Parkinson's disease.

Dear Cat Paw:

Why is it most people who use drugs or drink alcohol are never aware of what it does to them?

Drinker

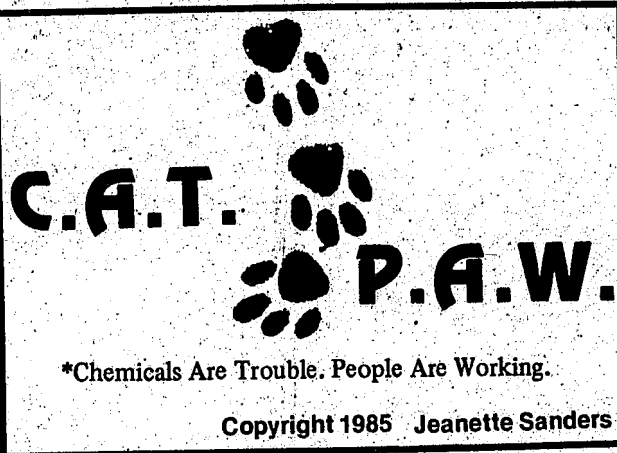

Dear Drinker:

Drugs—alcohol is included in that category—affect our sense of awareness and judgment. People on drugs do not understand who they are or what is going on around them.

Dear Cat Paw:

Does drinking really give you hangovers if you're around too much smoke that night?

Puffing

Dear Puffing:

Smoke does a great deal of damage to the body, but it does not give a person a hangover. Alcohol causes the hangover.

Dear Cat Paw:

Why is marijuana illegal if it's not as harmful as cigarettes or alcohol?

Wondering

Dear Wondering:

I can't imagine where you got your information. Marijuana is extremely dangerous. Some experts in the drug field say it is the most dangerous drug around today.

With each joint you light and inhale, you are transporting more than 400 different poisons into your body. We don't even know all the damage those chemicals are doing yet.

Pot can damage your brain, speech, heart, lungs and liver. It can give you a heavy dose of cancer-causing hydrocarbons since one joint contains more tar than a carton of cigarettes.

Please understand that I am not advocating cigarettes or alcohol in any way. Both are big business, but both are dangerous drugs.

Dear Cat Paw:

Is it true that if you smoke marijuana it affects your brain, as in thinking skills?

Wants to Know

Dear Wants to Know:

Yes. Many smokers complain of loss of memory.

Dear Cat Paw:

Why don't drugs and alcohol mix? Pot is inhaled and alcohol is drunk.

Doesn't Make Sense

Dear Sense:

When alcohol is used with sedative-hypnotic drugs, the other drugs are metabolized only after the slow process of alcohol metabolism is completed. A large enough dose can depress your breathing to the point of death.

It does not matter how the drug gets into your body—your body has to metabolize the drug.

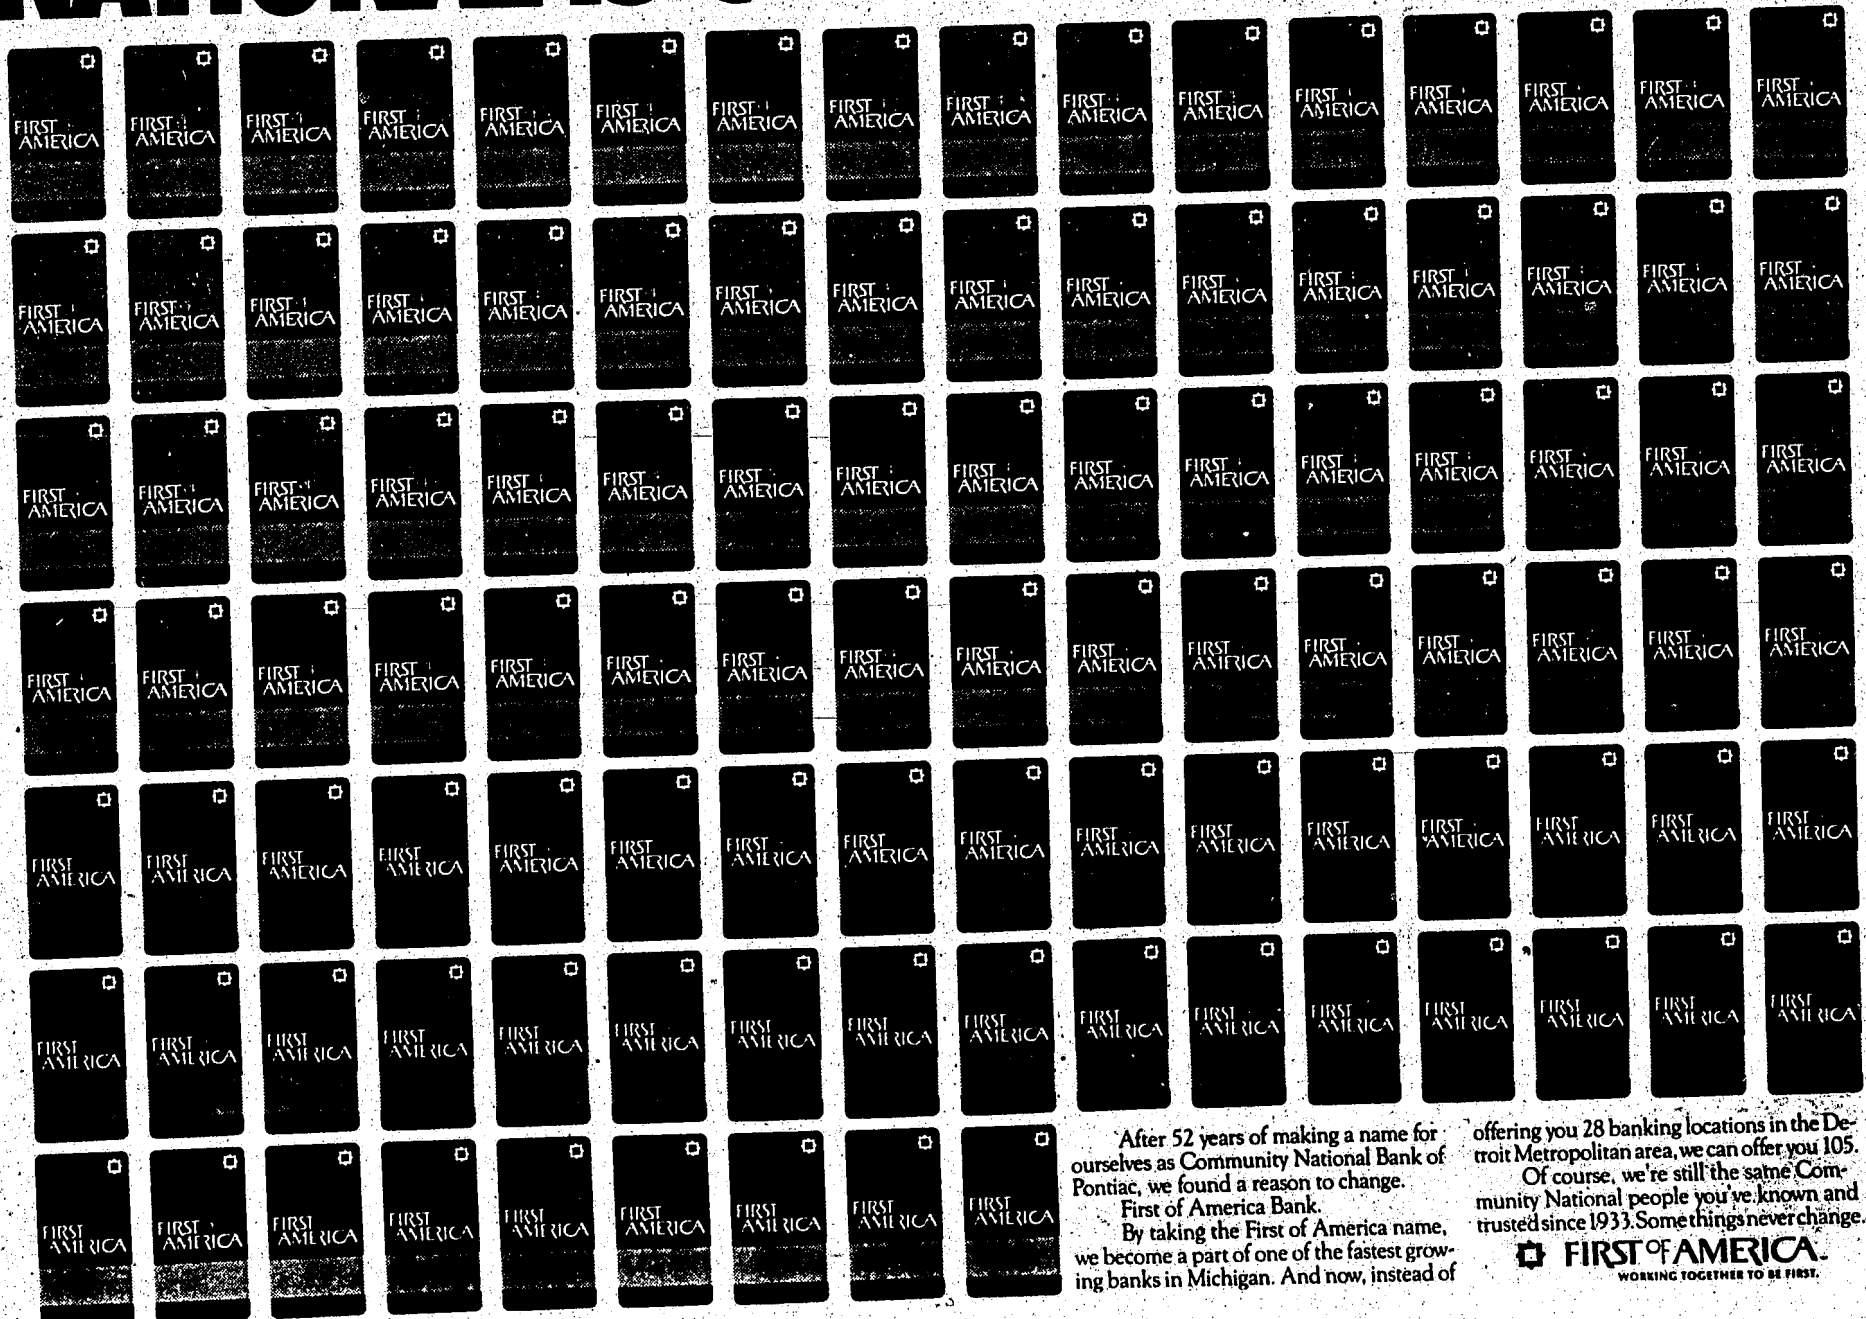

Send letters to Cat Paw in care of The Clarkston News, 5 S. Main, Clarkston, MI 48016.

Cat Paw author Jeanette Sanders, a Springfield Township resident, is a member of the Clarkston Area Chemical People, an organization devoted to the prevention of substance abuse among the community's young people.

105 REASONS WHY COMMUNITY NATIONAL IS CHANGING ITS NAME.

After 52 years of making a name for ourselves as Community National Bank of Pontiac, we found a reason to change.

First of America Bank. By taking the First of America name, we become a part of one of the fastest growing banks in Michigan. And now, instead of offering you 28 banking locations in the Detroit Metropolitan area, we can offer you 105.

Of course, we're still the same Community National people you've known and trusted since 1933. Some things never change.

All-terrain vehicles are sportsman's fancy

By Dan Vandenhemel

One of the newest racing fads may not be a passing fancy, says Gene Grabowski.

Grabowski says the popularity of all-terrain vehicles (ATV) has replaced that of motorcycles.

"The ATVs are the only things keeping some motorcycle dealers in business," the Hubbard Hills, Independence Township, resident said.

The four three-wheeled machines in his garage attest to the Grabowski's affection for the sport.

Derek Grabowski's custom-made ATV from California has helped the 15-year-old win a number of his 31 trophies in two years of racing.

ing. Derek is a sophomore at Clarkston High School.

Derek, 15, and Christiaan, 10, are the only racers in the family of four. Father Gene travels with the two boys to all the races. Mother Marleen doesn't like the racing and stays at home, her husband says.

"ATVs can be dangerous if the riders don't know what they are doing," Grabowski said. "All the safety equipment is a must. The hardest thing to remember is that the back wheels are 48 inches wide. If the front wheel goes through an area, that doesn't necessarily mean the back wheels are going to make it."

Derek and Christiaan have been racing for two years and their bedrooms are adorned with 59 trophies.

The family can find a race almost every weekend throughout Michigan.

"I finished seventh in July at a national race in Ohio," Derek said. "There must have been 35 riders from all over for that."

The Grabowskis got into the sport when Christiaan received an ATV for his birthday a couple years ago.

"It's a unique sport. The boys are really into it," Grabowski said. "ATVs could be around quite awhile because they are more family orientated. Whole families come to the races. You never see a person come alone to race."

Practicing riding can cause minor problems because it is illegal to ride an ATV on a road. The Grabowskis have permission to ride on private property.

The cross country trails of the practice course provide a perfect test for upcoming races. Hills, jumps and turns make up a good portion of the track.

"The tracks are like typical motocross courses," Grabowski said. "I tried racing once last year and they had to help me off the bike. It's physically demanding. It's definitely for younger people."

Holiday goodies at church bazaar

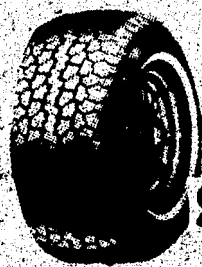

Ellen Burns pauses from her task of sewing lace on soft-sculpture bells to give a pat on the head to Lady Duke of Clarkston. The fluffy canine belongs to the ministers of the youth group, Mark and Mary Krantz.

As the dates near for the "Winter Wonderland" Christmas bazaar at the Clarkston First Church of God, members of the youth group finish up a wooden novelty basket project. Pounding nails in place are Phil Burns (left) and Matt Hargett. The bazaar is planned Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 14-16, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Members of the youth and women's church groups have joined together for this year's bazaar to offer a selection of crafts, baked goods and special booths. Lunch, pies and coffee will be available. The church is located at 6300 Clarkston Rd., Independence Township. [Photos by Kathy Greenfield]

Rev. F. J. Delaney

The Rev. Frederick J. Delaney, the founder of Our Lady of the Lakes parish, Waterford, and St. Daniel parish, Clarkston, died Nov. 11 at Mercy Hospital, Port Huron. He was 79.

The Rev. Delaney was ordained in 1932. His first parish was Christ the King, Detroit, where he served from 1932-39. From 1939-44, he served at Visitation Church, Detroit; and from 1944-48 at Sacred Heart Church, Roseville.

In 1948, the Rev. Delaney founded St. Patrick's Church in Union Lake and Our Lady of the Lakes Church in Waterford. He established St. Daniel Church in Clarkston in June 1961.

He was the brother of the late Sister Gertrude Dolores, IHM, and Mary Barko; and the beloved friend of the Briody family.

Visitation hours are 1 to 9 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 14, and 9 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Friday, Nov. 15, at the Lewis E. Wint & Son Funeral Home, Independence Township. The Rosary service is planned Thursday at 7:30 p.m.

The Transference Service is scheduled Friday at Our Lady of the Lakes Church at 2 p.m., where the Rev. Delaney will lie in state until 9 p.m. The Scripture Service will be at 7:30 p.m.

The Mass of the Resurrection is to be held Saturday at 11:30 a.m. Interment is to follow at Holy Sepulchre Cemetery, Southfield.

Memorial contributions may be made to Our Lady of the Lakes Church.

Eleanor M. O'Leary

Eleanor M. O'Leary, 44, of Springfield Township died Nov. 6.

Surviving are her children, Cheryl Ragatz of Auburn Hills, Renee of Japan, Robert of East Lansing and David and Beth, both at home; father, Floyd Worthington of Detroit; grandchild, Kerri Deana; brothers and sisters, Barbara Worthington of Dearborn Heights, Donald Worthington of Farmington Hills, Timothy Worthington of Livonia and Debra Walski of Livonia; and many nieces and nephews and dear friends.

The funeral mass was held Nov. 9 at Our Lady of the Lakes Catholic Church, Waterford. Burial followed in All Saints Cemetery, Waterford.

Baskets reflect imagination

By Kathy Greenfield

Each miniature basket she weaves has its own personality, says Jan Seifert.

And she tells the stories of several picked at random from the collection she's preparing for the Santa's Workshop Craft Show at Clarkston High School on Saturday, Nov. 16.

"This basket is soft and warm," she says about an oval design in two shades of blue, "and a little girl would really appreciate putting a little doll in that basket."

Next, she talks about a bronze and natural combination: "I tried to copy an Indian basket that I had seen in Wyoming a few years ago and I kind of imagined, without a handle, this would be sitting by a fireplace somewhere in the 1800s."

Another natural colored basket features an aqua strip and it's one of her favorites, she says. "The minute I saw the color, I knew I should make a little squatty basket so the color would show up."

Jan began learning her craft about two years ago. "I'm a Weight Watcher and I was having trouble following the program because I was bored," she says. "I had to find a hobby . . . so I'm weaving baskets—and I've lost 42 pounds."

She took lessons from a woman who learned basket weaving from a Cherokee Indian and that influence can be seen in her work, she says.

Almost all her baskets were large until an automobile accident in May forced a change in direction.

Jan still wears a back brace which hinders her mobility. Instead of giving up a hobby she enjoyed, she turned to miniature baskets because most of the movement required is in the fingers.

She plans to have about 100 miniatures made for the craft show. They range in size from round shapes about 1½ inches in diameter to oval shapes about 3 inches in diameter.

"So far, I've never had two baskets turn out the same," she says. "The miniature basket weaving is a challenge to me. I enjoy it more. There are no teachers, so I'm teaching myself."

Handles and material can be purchased for the large baskets, but with the miniatures, Jan has to cut her own material and make handles.

She does all her own dying by using clothing dye with vinegar and salt added or natural dyes she makes from walnuts, grape juice and beets.

Santa's Workshop will be Jan's first craft show. "It just got to be a very expensive hobby, so I realized if I was going to make all these baskets, I'd have to stop giving them away as gifts," she says.

In addition to the miniatures, Jan also makes and will sell candle wreaths, door hanging baskets with grape vine handles, onion and garlic baskets and heart-shaped baskets.

"I create baskets," she says. "I don't make them. I guess that's what it's all about."

Jan's miniature baskets come a variety of shapes—and no two are alike, she says.

As the time for the Santa's Workshop Craft Show nears, Jan Seifert finds most of her time filled with basket making. Her miniature baskets will be priced from $5.50 to $6.

Ho! Ho! Ho! for show

Over 100 exhibitors are expected at the annual Santa's Workshop Craft Show sponsored by the Clarkston Area Jaycees on Saturday, Nov. 16.

Among items expected in the sale are tinwork, doll clothes, honey, rocking horses, Christmas decorations, toys, clocks, paintings, baked goods and baskets.

Hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. at Clarkston High School, off Waldon Road between Sashabaw and M-15 in Independence Township.

Modern models in biblical clothes

Katie Deland wears clothes similar to those worn by little girls in Christ's day.

Lorraine Studebaker wears the dress of Sarai sewn by Irene Foster, who made all the biblical fashions.

Terri Braunscheidel as Rebekah wears a veil to cover her face and large amounts of jewelry. She carries a red vase as Rebekah would have to fetch water for family use.

Yvonne Sampson's gown is made of purple and lavender materials. She was one of 13 models to wear biblical fashions at the Church of the Resurrection show Monday night.
