Lights out: Rotary blames Edison

By Kathy Greenfield

For the first time in about 30 years, Christmas decorations won't shine from the 11 light poles in downtown Clarkston.

The decision was made by the Clarkston Rotary Club, the organization that provided and hung the holiday ornaments all those years.

Detroit Edison is to blame, says Rotary president Tom Murphy, because the company refuses to allow the installation of electrical outlets on the poles.

Edison considered the request to electrify the poles and rejected it for several reasons, says Glenn Poisson, acting service planner for Independence Township.

PARTY PREPARATION: Clarkston Rotary Club member Vance Moore rises to flag-top height to place the Christmas star atop the tree at Main and Washington streets in downtown

Clarkston. Carolers from the community are invited to gather round the tree Friday from 7 to 8 p.m. There'll be free donuts and cider, compliments of the Village Business Association.

"We decided if Edison would not put up electrical sockets on poles, we would have to stop doing it. This is kind of a showdown," says Murphy. "Edison is the one that won't light the lights."

2 Sections#44 Pages

The dispute began when the Rotary club made plans to replace worn out decorations with new and discussion turned to replacing the worn out extension cords used to plug the decorations into plugs at businesses and residences adjacent to the poles.

Stringing the extension cords has always been a time-consuming problem in addition to having to rely on individuals to turn the decorations off and on, Murphy says.

"They would be half on and half off. People would forget to turn them on at night," he says.

"It has not been a problem of money. We have the money set aside, in fact, for the lights," he adds.

According to Murphy, the club is willing to spend up to $200 to have the work done on each pole, an expense members believe they could raise money for.

Rotary members have talked about light pole sockets present in other communities—and they cannot understand why Edison won't agree to do the work.

"We just hope it will get out in the community," says Murphy. "I think the people, when they see they're not going up, they'll get ahold of somebody."

. . . But banners bring Noel cheer

Christmas ornaments won't hang from the light poles on downtown Clarkston, but the town is not without decorations.

Upon learning that the Clarkston Rotary Club had decided to douse the holiday lights, the Village Business Association took action, says Joan Kopietz, co-owner of Tierra Arts & Design with her husband Buck.

The association purchased the bright red Noel banners now hanging from the poles for about $580.

"We wanted something on the poles and we figured even if the Rotary eventually did put something on the poles, they could work around them," Kopietz said.

In lieu of the pole decorations, the Rotary Club agreed to hang lights on the pine tree located on the northwest corner of Main and Washington streets.

The tree's lights are to shine beginning Friday, Dec. 6, during the village's annual family night.

Officials' salaries would be reduced

Village ponders hiring part-time 'manager'

ed) to buttone By Carolyn Walker

A proposed part-time "manager" position for the Village of Clarkston met with general approval at the village council meeting Nov. 25.

Council members agreed the proposal had merit but tabled action pending further review.

The position was one of two recommendations made by a four-person committee of village council members and the second sec

If a manager were to be appointed by the council, he or she would assume all the duties of the village secretary plus many obligations of the president and

But because the village is governed by general law (rather than charter status), a president and full council must be maintained, according to committee member Jon Gaskell. Manager is merely a title and denotes no governmental responsibilities, he said.

The manager would be paid $8 an hour for a 20-hour work week and would be accountable to the council.

In turn as their responsibilities dropped, the president's salary would be lowered from $1,200 to $600 a year and the clerk's from $5,900 to $3,000 a year. The secretarial position would be eliminated.

As an alternative to the manager suggestion, the committee proposed doubling the president's salary to $2,400 and lowering the clerk's to $4,700, thus reflecting a shift in duties but not a major departure from current expenditures, said Gaskell.

Also under proposal two, the president would be compensated for attending meetings other than those of the council.

"We decided we'didn't want to recommend spending more money overall for administrative functions," said Gaskell. "We kind of thought it was fair if the council wants the president to go to a meeting for them, that the president ought to get paid for it."

In addition to Gaskell, the committee included Fontie ApMadoc, Sharron Catallo and David Raup.

To run, or not to run: that is the village election question

Of the six village officials whose terms of office end next year, only two have definitely decided to re-run for office.

Treasurer Artemus Pappas, who has been treasurer since 1972, and Trustee Sharron Catallo say they will seek to maintain their positions.

President Carol Eberhardt, Clerk Norma Goyette and trustees Ethel Sinclair and Jon Gaskell remain undecided.

On Nov. 25, Eberhardt and Goyette said their indecision stems from proposals regarding officials' salaries currently before the council. Sinclair and Gaskell gave no reasons for why they remain undecided.

The two proposals seek to change the clerk's and president's wages and possibly to add a "manager" to help with their duties.

Eberhardt and Goyette said their decisions about re-running would be based on the council's decision about amending salaries. That decision has been postponed to December.

People wishing to run for any of the six, twoyear terms must present petitions with a minimum of 15 signatures to the clerk's office by 4 p.m., Dec. 17, Goyette said.

Petitions can be obtained at the village offices on Depot Road between 11 a.m. and 2 p.m., on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

If two or more persons from the same party run for the same office, a primary election will be held in February, according to Goyette. If only one person per party runs, there will be no primary.

The general election is to be held in March.

POH lawsuit dismissed

Surgical center plans move ahead

By Carolyn Walker

Work on the Clarkston Surgical Center can start

A lawsuit against the center and the Michigan Department of Public Health has been dismissed by Ingham County Circuit Court Judge Thomas Brown, who issued a restraining order in September preventing construction of the facility.

The suit, brought by Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital (POH), sought to have the center's stateauthorized certificate of need (CON) revoked.

POH, which was denied a CON for a proposed Independence Township satellite, had said in its suit that the center should be denied a CON as well, and that the center should have been part of a comparative review process with POH and six other hospitals.

After receiving the judge's decision on Nov. 25, a jubilant Dr. James O'Neill, developer of the $3.4 million Clarkston Surgical Center said, "What a nice way to start Monday morning. They (POH) have no standing at all. It's what I've said all along.

'He (Brown) issued an order and he's dissolved that order.

O'Neill's attorney, Thomas Rabette, agreed with O'Neill and said the POH suit "lacked substance."

The surgery center, Rabette said, had met federal and state mandated review programs to receive its CON.

He compared POH's suit to a hypothetical case in which one bar owner would sue another bar owner for obtaining a liquor license from the liquor control com-

"Nowhere is someone like POH given the standing to control whatever decision is made by Comprehensive Health Planning Commission of Southeastern Michigan (CHPC-SEM) or the Michigan Department of Public Health." Rabette

Goals addressed

By Kathy Greenfield

When the Clarkston schools' board of education discusses goals at the Monday, Dec. 9, meeting, the groundwork will be laid for seeking support from

The board met in a special meeting Nov. 25 to shorten a list of goals suggested at an earlier workstudy session.

Major goals established for 1985-86 include facilities, promotion and rentention, and the impact of declining enrollment.

The majority of discussion at the special meeting involved the needs of school buildings and grounds.

Board member Stephen Werner said one possibility was to ask voters to approve a millage for outdoor work on baseball fields, the track and football field during this school year and to seek a bond issue for additional renovations after a study is com-

Superintendent Milford Mason indicated that a study on the buildings would take about 15 months and would involve an audit of existing buildings, committees within each building to study needs and an achitectural audit of such systems as heating and electrical.

"We're at a point with the general fund where it can only handle day-to-day operations," said Mason after the meeting. "We don't have sufficient money to handle major repairs.'

New roofs, for example, cost between $200,000 $250,000, he said.

In addition to roofs, boilers and worn out floors in some buildings, the 26-year-old high school's list of needs includes expansion of the media center, updating of science labs, more locker room space and the possibility of an auxiliary gymnasium.

"We believe very greatly in the benefit of forward planning. It's provided us with several benefits in the district," said Mason. "We're trying to get education up to '85 and beyond."

The school board directed Mason to propose a ourse of action at the Dec. 9 meeting to include a time line. The board meets at 8 p.m. in the district administration building on Clarkston Road...

"He (O'Neill) came out on top in this case. He's very happy and he should be."

POH has the right to appeal the case to a higher court, according to the hospital's attorney Kenneth Frankland. They have 21 days to file their appeal should they decide to do so, he said.

'I guess that's the way it works out," said POH Administrator Jack Whitlow, adding that hospital officials are undecided about appealing the issue.

O'Neill said he plans to present conceptual site plans for the project, which is scheduled to offer outpatient surgery and mental health services, to the township planning commission, possibly in December.

He has already begun clearing the ground at the site, located on six acres behind his M-15 pediatric

The 80,000 square-foot, three-floor center is to complement the services currently provided by area physicians and the Clarkston Ambulatory Care

Plans include an emergency-type floor, an outpatient surgical floor and a day-care mental health floor.

Among the procedures to be performed at the center are arthroscopies, biopsies and eye operations.

Boards agree to agree

Mediplex amendment endorsed

By Carolyn Walker

Plans for the Mediplex senior citizen complex are moving ahead following a joint meeting of the Independence and Springfield township boards and representatives of Mediplex.

At a meeting at the Springfield Township Hall Nov. 26, board members agreed informally to new wording of a consent judgment amendment governing Mediplex's 26-acre site off Dixie Highway.

The site, which is proposed for a three-phase senior citizen housing complex, straddles the Independence-Springfield borderline.

Both boards must officially approve the amendment at board meetings before it is signed and becomes official, according to Independence Supervisor Frank Ronk.

Final site plan approval for the complex must be obtained from each township as well.

The wording to be changed in the amendment focuses on the "residual" use of the facility.

It says that in the future, if the facility fails for seniors and the owners wish to convert it for some other use, they will be expected to comply with zoning requirements in effect at the time of the conversion.

It appears there were no other outstanding problems," said Ronk of the agreement, following the meeting. Ronk said he is anxious for the issue to be resolved and building underway.

Collin Walls, supervisor of Springfield Township, expressed similar views during the

"I think we're just beating this thing to death," he said. "It seems to me that there's an underlying current that they're going to fail."

In seeking quick action on the amendment, Mediplex representatives said they were faced with a tight time schedule because a certificate of need for the facility is due to expire in February. The certificate of need is mandated by the Michigan Department of Public Health for construction of medicaltype facilities.

In November, Mediplex attorney Charles Clippert requested the joint meeting because, he said, Mediplex representatives felt like "pingpong balls' going between the two townships for approval.

The Mediplex project is to include a 60-bed home for the aged, a 120-bed convalescent center and apartments for the elderly.

Santa Claus: Is he man or n

By Don Rush Oxford Leader Staff Writer

Santa Claus—children and adults debate whether he is man or myth.

Who is this joyial, fat fellow who wears a red pair of long underwear, and prances around with wee little chaps described by some as elves?

Whoever he is, over the years his love, generosity and night-time antics have made him the most celebrated, transcontinental figure in holiday history.

Santa Claus, as he's known today, is an American—that is, his costume and appearance were conventionalized by two 19th century American writers: Washington Irving in his Knickerbocker's History of New York, 1809; and Clement C. Moore in his 1822 poem which begins. "Twas the night before

Before the two writers wove their yarns however?" Santa Claus was known by many names throughout

According to Collier's Encyclopedia, the man from whom Santa originated happens to be one of his aliases-St. Nicholas.

St. Nicholas, a real fourth-century person, was a Roman Catholic bishop.

St. Nicholas had a reputation for his generosity and kindness; Legend has it that St., Nicholas, once gave a bag of gold to each of three daughters of poor parents. The gold was used as dowries and kept the girls from shame and slavery

On another occasion, the good saint was supposed to-have restored the lives of three young students who were butchered by an evil innkeeper. Because of those and other deeds of good, by the early medical. period, St. Nicholas had become the patron saint and guardian of young children.

The hishops of Europe wore white robes or red robes, the latter is how the tradition of a Santa in "red" came in be.

The name Santa Claus came to America through the enrig Dutch settlers of New Amsterdam. The Dutch celebrated a teast in honor of St. Nicholas. On Dec. 6, gifts were given to the children. From the Dutch, St. Nicholas was Nicolause. That became-San Nicolaus, which in some Dutch dialects was Sinterklads. That became the basis for Irving's add Moore's "Santa Claus." ...

Another alias of Santa is Kriss Kringle. Collier's Pheyelopedia attributes Kringle to Norse of Scanding vian influences.

Detroit 'Bah-humbug!' Edison

The Village of Clarkston without illuminated holiday decorations hanging from the 11 downtown lamp posts is like.... Christmas without carols.

The lights were doused this holiday season—for the first time in over 30 years—because of a dispute between the Clarkston Rotary Club and the Detroit Edison

Edison has refused to allow the plugs in the poles. Rotarians are tired of stringing extension cords all over the village.

The club wanted to buy new decorations this year and decided to take care of the problem in one mighty expenditure. They were even willing to spearhead a fund raising effort to pay for the plugs as long as the cost didn't go above about $200 apiece.

Edison wants nothing to do with the project. The company's reasons are many: liability if a decoration fell, no way to meter the power used, no way to police the plugs for unauthorized usage and a not-powerful-enough underground cable that feeds the street lights.

We have problems with three of the four

In order to hang decorations, Rotary has to provide proof of liability insurance, something the club has done for years. Why should this be any different? We call it jumping on the insurance controversy bandwagon.

The village pays for street light electricity, which is also not metered. Why couldn't the power used for decorations be estimated? We're sure someone would be willing to pay the bill.

Policing the plugs doesn't seem like it would be difficult—unless someone has invented an invisible way reach the plugs that would stand way up high in the open. Then, too, there would have to be a way to reach the source without attracting attention.

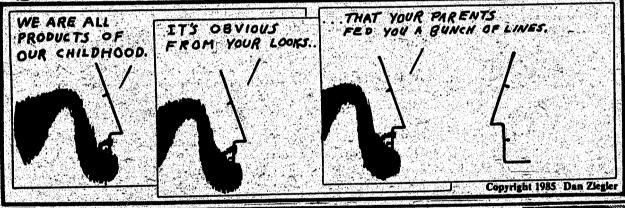

The fourth reason—not enough power—would make more sense to us if all the other reasons hadn't entered the picture. In this case, one reason would have been enough, but four provide doubt.

We applaud the Rotarians for taking a stand against the utility company. But from here, it looks like Detroit "Bah-humbug!" Edison isn't going to budge.

This is a case of a utility company not utilizing a wonderful community relations opportunity

Cod liver lesson

We were talking the other day about some horrible tasting medicine a child had to take—and I remembered the times I are paper towels.

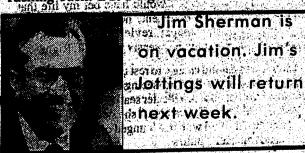

As an adult, I shudder at the thought. As a child, it seemed like the perfect solution.

I'm not sure why my mother had decided my older sister and I would be much healthier if we drank a spoonful of cod liver oil every day.

It could have been that we had a lot of colds that year. It could have been a popular home remedy for what alls you.

What I do remember is that my older sister didn't mind taking it—and I hated the stuff.

Now, if anything tastes the slightest bit like strong fish; memories of the cod liver oil come rushing back. But I digress.

Back then, after taking my medicine like a brave big girl, my next mission in life was getting rid of the taste.

I tried several things. Bread. Fruit. Cookies. Somehow, I hit upon the paper towel idea. After mom popped the old cod liver oil in my mouth, I would slip back into the kitchen and snatch a bit of paper towel—and eat it. It killed the taste instantly—probably had something to do with absorbency.

The paper towel solution was working so well that I finally decided to tell my mother about it.

She was, in a word, horrified.

In fact, I probably would have forgotten all about cod liver oil if she hadn't been so upsetbut-understanding, a reaction much more effective than anger.

As I remember, we stopped having to take it shortly thereafter, although I do remember cod liver oil in capsules at some later date.

You couldn't taste it going down but it came up later, if you know what I mean.

I never tried paper towels for that—actually I have never used them for anything since other than the usual external purposes.

Carolyn Walker

In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth. . . .

On Christmas Eve 1968, as our family traveled from a holiday party, we heard those words and the biblical passage that follows them, come across our car radio.

It was one of those bitter-cold; clear winter nights.

Overhead, a sky full of stars twinkled and a brilliant moon shone down onto the Michigan landscape. The words came: And the evening and the morning were the first day.

The voice we heard was that of American astronaut Frank Borman as he and his fellow crew members, circling the moon in the Apollo 8 spacecraft, read the Genesis story of creation.

The message was charged with emotion, especially at Christmas time: And God said, Let us make man in our image, after our likeness.

As the full reality of that very special moment struck, father slowed the car and we listened silently in awe.

Mittened hands went to the car windows to clear fog created by our breath and we all peered up at the moon.

"Imagine," we said one after the other,

"men are really up there.

In our family, as across much of America, the travels of the astronauts were enthusiastically followed.

If a splashdown was scheduled for the same time as dinner, mother would break a family rule and place a television in the kitchen so we could view the event as we ate.

We followed intently the exploits of Alan Shepard as he went aloft, John Glenn as he circled the earth, Ed White as he walked in space tethered to his ship by an air hose.

We wept inside when White and his fellow astronauts Virgil Grissom and R.B. Chaffee were killed in an Apollo ground fire.

It seems now that space journeys no longer constitute front-page news. For some, the mystique, the aura and the heroism of the astronauts have faded.

But not for me.

I remember, happily, the '60s as days when children dared to dream they might grow up to join the astronauts' ranks.

I had such a fantasy. Along with digging for dinosaurs and deep-sea diving, I longed to travel among the stars.

Next year, NASA plans to send a journalist into space aboard a United States space shuttle. But that journalist is expected to have five years' experience:

It seems, because I am new to the field, I will automatically be deemed ineligible.

I hope NASA doesn't choose to send on that ride some young, upstart reporter whose memory falls short of the times when liftoff was a national event.

I say go for the journalist who has a seasoned appreciation of America's space-travel heritage. One who joined his fellow Americans to gather around tables, televisions and radios with fingers crossed for luck, praying for the words, "We have splashdown."

My application is forthcoming.

Supreme Court applauded

As president of the Lutheran Social Services of Michigan (LSSM), which operates facilities for the developmentally disabled in Clarkston and Troy, I applaud the recent State Supreme Court decision allowing group homes of six or fewer to be in communities without local government approval, but still abiding. by certain restrictions.

LSSM manages 15 group facilities in 11 cities in Michigan which serve all levels of developmentally

We see people blossom who did not have the opportunity before of one-on-one care. Even the most severely impaired gain self-help skills.

Without mainstreaming, without the placement in the community in these smaller, intensive care homes, these persons would not have had the opportunity to become the best they can be within a family setting.

The Supreme Court decision undergirds the constitutional right of the handicapped to live in the midst of society with the temporarily abled.

It also backs something we have maintained all the time—that these homes are not abnormal, but create a family atmosphere and so, have a right to be in the midst of other families.

I wonder if the public furor over these homes would have been so great if the unrelated individuals in one household were not disabled.

It appears more that the emphasis on the legality of the relationship really was a smokescreen to coverdiscrimination against the disabled.

The ruling, it appears to us, also protects the rights of the neighbors and the rights of the community. There should be appropriate placements and there. should not be clustering of group facilities in any one area. That just creates another ghetto...

LSSM has had a lot of experience working with the developmentally disabled and communities:

When we begin management of a facility, we meet with churches, the community and neighbors to introduce them to the program and, eventually, to the residents.

Often we find first-time reluctance and antagonism changes when they have an opportunity to know the residents as persons and lose their tear of

Incidentally, for those who bring up property values, we had the experience in the Detroit metro area where a house was sold at a profit next to one of our group homes in a prime neighborhood,

In other areas, where the group facility was built first, other homes are quickly being built—with no apparent reduction of prices in the land or fear of loss. Mainstreaming is not always easy, but it benefits

For the future, we would be dismayed at any attempt to overthrow this court ruling through other restrictive legislation. The regulations and legislation are sufficiently strict to protect everyone's rights including those of the disabled and the community

For the future, we would wish there could be a plan of allocation of resources to various areas around the state where the disabled would have the mobility to move to lesser and lesser restrictive environments as they gain skills in living.

Until that happens, I am pleased that their current mobility is protected by the State Supreme Court.

It was cold outside, so we wore heavy coats. It was warm inside, so I carried the coats. I also carried the dolls, the pillow and Emily's purse. In the pet store we bought a

In the restaurant, Emily didn't finish her French fries, so she took them with her. I carried them. Emily never carries anything because she needs both hands free to keep from falling down on the escalator.

I never ride the escalator. While Emily goes up and down, I stand at the foot of it and do my astonishing imitation of a cluttered closet.

As we walked toward the theater, a waitress burst out of a restaurant and approached me. Then she suddenly stopped and looked embarrassed. "I was going to tell you that's no way to carry a baby," she said.

I was carrying Michael between my left elbow and side, with his head pointing to the floor. I thanked her for being willing to get involved.

I'm not making any of this up.

At the theater, the ticket taker had to take the tickets out of my mouth. At the popcorn counter, our order was two boxes of popcorn, two cups of Coke and a bag of candy that looked suspiciously like the rubber ice cream cone.

I had to carry all that food, along with two coats, two dolls, Emily's purse and a bag of pet toys. I stuffed the retaurant French fries in the purse and Michael's pillow in my back pocket.

Supreme Court applauded

As president of the Lutheran Social Services of Michigan (LSSM), which operates facilities for the developmentally disabled in Clarkston and Troy, I applaud the recent State Supreme Court decision allowing group homes of six or fewer to be in communities without local government approval, but still abiding by certain restrictions.

LSSM manages 15 group facilities in 11 cities in Michigan which serve all levels of developmentally disabled.

We see people blossom who did not have the opportunity before of one-on-one care. Even the most severely impaired gain self-help skills.

Without mainstreaming, without the placement in the community in these smaller, intensive care homes, these persons would not have had the opportunity to become the best they can be within a family setting.

The Supreme Court decision undergirds the constitutional right of the handicapped to live in the midst of society with the temporarily abled.

It also backs something we have maintained all the time—that these homes are not abnormal, but create a family atmosphere and so; have a right to be in the midst of other families.

I wonder if the public furor over these homes would have been so great if the unrelated individuals in one household were not disabled.

It appears more that the emphasis on the legality of the relationship really was a smokescreen to cover discrimination against the disabled.

The ruling, it appears to us, also protects the rights of the neighbors and the rights of the community. There should be appropriate placements and there should not be clustering of group facilities in any one area. That just creates another ghetto...

LSSM has had a lot of experience working with the developmentally disabled and communities.

When we begin management of a facility, we meet with churches, the community and neighbors to introduce them to the program and, eventually, to the

Often we find first-time reluctance and antagonism changes when they have an opportunity to know the residents as persons and lose their fear of them.

Incidentally, for those who bring up property values, we had the experience in the Detroit metro area where a house was sold at a profit next to one of our group homes in a prime neighborhood.

In other areas, where the group facility was built first, other homes are quickly being built—with no apparent reduction of prices in the land or tear of loss.

Mainstreaming is not always easy, but it benefits everyone.

For the future, we would be dismayed at any attempt to overthrow this court ruling through other restrictive legislation. The regulations and legislation are sufficiently strict to protect everyone's rights including those of the disabled and the community.

For the future, we would wish there could be a plan of allocation of resources to various areas around the state where the disabled would have the mobility to move to lesser and lesser restrictive environments as they gain skills in living.

Until that happens, I am pleased that their current mobility is protected by the State Supreme Court

Carl E. Thomas, President Lutheran Social Services of Michigan

Grandpa gets loaded-down

There are physical limitations to how much even the rubber ice cream cone, healthiest grandfather can do for his granddaughter. I take home for Emily's realized this at a shopping mall where Emily and I went to rubber balls, which I also see "Rainbow Brite and the Star Stealer."

I knew I was healthy because I'd passed a stiff physical examination earlier that day. The doctor put the earplugs of a stethoscope into my ears and screamed into the end usually pressed against the patient's chest.

"Did you hear that?" asked Emily, the only fouryear-old doctor I know. I said yes. "You're fine, let's go to the movie. It has new characters and new songs," she

PUD concerns

A recent publication of The Clarkston News contained an excellent article regarding the proposed Planned Unit Development (PUD), which is receiving serious consideration by members of the village council.

Obviously, the author of the article, Mr. Jerome Wilford, has a genuine interest and concern for the future of the Clarkston community.

The article was interesting and informative.

In Mr. Wilford's editorial opinion, he offers several conditions to the village officials and citizens of the Clarkston community.

One of the serious concerns to the proposed PUD ordinance was expressed by his statement, "The PUD ordinance would provide a process which would be an invitation to professional developers to circumvent the present zoning ordinance."

At this point, I wish to make reference to a statement appearing in the Nov. 13 edition of The Clarkston News

In this publication, Carol Eberhardt, village council president, was quoted as aying that one of the reasons for proposing the PUD was to facilitate the building of proposed condominiums adjacent to Deer Lake by developer Frank Walker.

Isn't this a precise example of Mr. Wilford's expressed concern?

As Clarkston area citizens and property owners are well aware, the Walker proposal referred to by Mrs. Eberhardt has been denied by both independence Township and village officials.

The property in question is zoned single family residential. During recent months, Mr. Walker has appeared before township and village boards requesting zoning changes which would allow for his development. Many concerned citizens and property owners attended these meetings and expressed their opposition to such a variance.

I believe the records will indicate that for very legitimate and valid reasons, his requests have been denied time and time again—by both the township and village.

After reading the recent articles regarding the PUD ordinance and attending several meetings legarding zoning change requests, several questions have surfaced.

I believe that our elected/appointed officials would be doing this community a real service by using this forum to publically answer these questions/concerns.

1) Would the proposed PUD ordinance allow individuals and/or developers the legal means by which to circumvent current zoning ordinances?

2) Is it true that the protection and control assured by current zoning ordinances to individual property owners would be relinquished to the present/future village council if the proposed PUD ordinance were adopted?

3) Haven't the guidelines established by current zoning ordinances proven to be in the best interest of individual property owners as well as the Clarkston community?

4) If the present/future village council used an adopted PUD ordinance to circumvent an existing zoning ordinance for one individual or developer, how would the same board/council deny any request for zoning variances?

To all the current and future elected/appointed officials who are capable and willing to separate their personal interests in publically serving and representing the community at large for the preservation and betterment of the Clarkston community, I wish to express appreciation.

West Church Street Resident (Name withheld by request.)

Rachel Glanakos

The holiday season has finally arrived, and Christmas is only a few weeks away.

Every year, many people tell themselves they will get all their Christmas shopping done early so they will have time to relax when they finally get a day or two off from work.

Many of these people also have teenagers who they find almost impossible to buy for.

Not that they don't have enough ideas of what they want, but they are afraid to buy clothes for them.

From past experiences, parents fear their teens won't like their new clothes, and will never wear them.

To save time, here are a few of the brand names and styles that most teenagers this year like.

"For girls :

1. Benetton.

2. Guess.

- 3. Stretchy stirrup pants with oversized shirts to
  - 4. Baggy stirrup pants.
  - 5. Paisleys and plaids.

For guys .

- 1. Levis 501 button fly jeans.
- 2. Sweat pants.
- 3. Guess jeans.
- 4. Leather shoes.

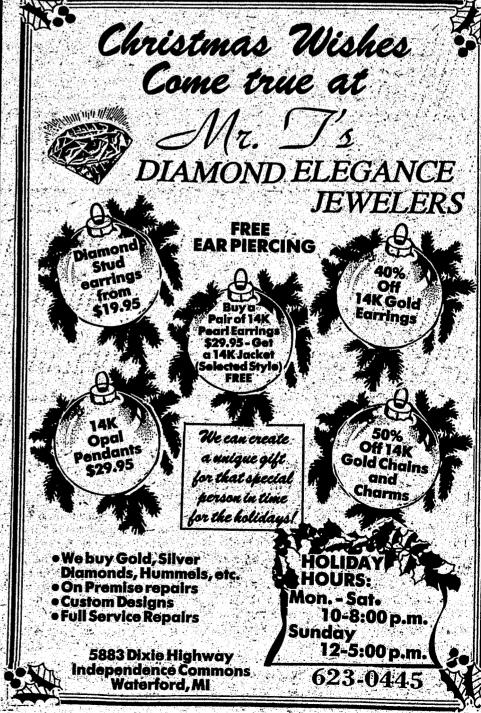

Many of you will be shocked when you see the price tags on some of these brands, but it is better to pay more for clothes your kids will like than to waste your money on things they won't wear.

Rotary's request to electrify the poles was sent to the Edison's vice president's office in Februray 1984, says Poisson.

After checking the system and consulting with the the company's legal department, the request was denied, but there were some alternatives proposed, he says.

Included in Poisson's reasons for the denial are legal questions—"With these decorations attached to Edison poles, should we have an ice storm where the decorations became weighted and fell on a vehicle or something, the Edison Co, would be responsible because they were hanging on our poles"; and lack of metering—"We would have no way of recording electricity used."

But, he says, the main reason has to do with the capability of the underground cable that provides electricity for the street lights.

"Our street-lighting system wasn't designed for, any additional loads," he says. "Christmas tree lighting doesn't sound like much . . . but it could who was unable to attend their meeting. Treasurer Artemus Pappas acted as adviser.

The committee was established last month after President Carol Eberhardt suggested the pay rate for president should be raised because the work involved had increased:

Of the proposed manager position she said, "I like the idea. I like the basic concept."

Council member Fontie ApMadoc agreed. "I personally think this is a more efficient way," she said.

The council's discussion of the proposal included questions about replacement procedure if the manager did an insufficent job, whether residency in the village would be required and the possibility of augmenting the position with a part-time co-op student for typing.

Clerk Norma Goyette, a non-voting member of the council, expressed the only dissent with the proposals, suggesting that not all future presidents or managers would be as efficient as Eberhardt.

Of the second recommendation she said, "I cansee you freezing a clerk's wage but not lowering it. The clerk's work is still the same. There's a lot of you who don't come down here and know what goes on."

Council member James Schultz expressed concerns that village residents would want contact with the president and not a manager.

People, when they have problems, they want to go to the head person," he said, "I don't think they're going to come talk with the manager.

The matter is expected to be on the agenda of the Dec. 2 meeting.

Season ends in overtime loss

By Dan Vandenhemel

It took six extra minutes for the Waterford Kettering basketball team to win the district finals Nov.

The Clarkston Wolves were the reason for the delay. The Wolves took the Captains into double overtime before coming out on the low side of the contest, 52.48

The Wolves finished their season with a 13-9 record, while the highly ranked Kettering kept going with a 22-0 record. The Captains move on to the regional tournament at Plymouth-Canton.

Clarkston coach Dave McDonald said his team played the best they could but missed a couple of easy baskets that could have made the difference.

"It was one of the those games where anything can happen," McDonald said. "I thought our stars equaled their stars, but they have more depth than we do and it showed."

The score was knotted at 42-42 at the end of regulation and at 46-46 after the first three-minute overtime period.

Senior guard Sue Lovelady led the Wolves with 15 points, junior Missy O'Dell came up with 10 points and 16 rebounds, and senior Michelle Taulbee had nine points and 19 rebounds.

The Wolves held a slim, 26-25, lead at halftime and Kettering was able to pull even at the third quarter, 38-38. The pressure began to mount in the fourth quarter as each team only scored four points.

"There were two good teams out there," said McDonald, "Neither one wanted to make a mistake that would mean the ball game. Both teams played great defense. I thought if we'd hold them under 50,

"I feel good about the game but I feel bad that the season is over."

Taulbee was the only returning starter for the Wolves from last year's team and McDonald said that is one of the reasons the team didn't start playing well until later in the season.

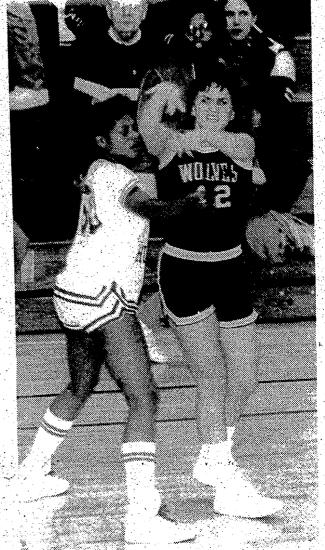

Besides Taulbee, the Wolves' starters for most of the year included Lovelady, who didn't see much playing time last season; O'Dell, who saw time on varsity and junior varsity last year; Michelle Baker, a sophomore guard; and Michele Wyneimko, a junior transfer student from Warren.

"We were a set team last year," he said. "It took awhile to settle into playing as a team this year. Nobody was used to playing with anyone else."

With the juggling of the starting five players, the Wolves still had a 6-2 record in the Greater Oakland Activities League. That was second to Kettering's perfect 8-0 mark.

"Second in the league isn't bad when the team ahead of you is undefeated," McDonald said.

"For the last two years, we've have a 12-4 record and finished second to Kettering both years. We beat them once last year and that gives them a 15-1 record, so I figure second isn't too bad."

Clarkston's Missy O'Dell and the rest of the Wolves have no trouble in the semi-finals of the district basketball tournament against Pontiac Northern. The Wolves win, 56-34.

The bench does its best to help the Wolves against Waterford Kettering in the district finals, but Clarkston eventually loses, 52-48, in double overtime to the Captains.

Cagers look to first game

By Dan Vandenhemel

The Clarkston Wolves' first home basketball yame will be away.

The Wolves open their season against Redford Catholic Central at the Waterford Township Community Center on Crescent Lake Road and M-59, Dec. 6. The junior varsity game starts at 6 p.m. and the varsity game begins about 7:30 p.m.

The old Waterford Township High School has been the practice court for the Wolves since the CHS gym floor buckled in October. Repairs to the floor should be completed before Christmas.

In the meantime, coach Dan Fife has had to choose a team and get used to having "away" practices.

"The obvious problem has been getting to the practices." Fife said. "I don't have a problem with that, but it could be for the kids. I think the parents have been great in getting the kids here."

This year's version of the Wolves features some high-reaching players. Dan Jokisch tops the list at 6-foot-6. Other high-risers are Steve Secatch, 6-foot-5, and Ed Whitaker and Chris Poulos at 6-foot-3. The rest of the squad includes, Mike Walters, Kevin Pitcher, Dave Baran, Dave Lederman, Craig Chamberlain, Jim Hall, Keith Mercier and Jeff Billig.

The first five on the court for the Wolves against Catholic Central could be Jokisch, Whitaker,

Tickets on sale

Tickets are limited for the Clarkston High School basketball game on Dec. 6 at the Waterford Township Community Center.

The varsity and junior varsity games against Redford Catholic Central have been moved to the Waterford location because of repairs under way on the Clarkston High School gym floor.

The community center, formerly Vaterford Township High School, seats only 900 people.

Tickets are $2. They can be purchased at the Clarkston High School main office from 7 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Walters, Pitcher and Secatch. But Fife says this is not cemented yet.

"Our strength will be our strength," Fife said. "We're physically stronger than last year, but not as quick. We won't have the depth we had last year,

The Wolves went through a scrimmage at Fenton and a number of other high schools last Saturday. Just prior to the the scrimmage, Fife said a couple of polls ranked the Wolves very high.

The kids went into Fenton with slightly swelled heads," Fife said. "We did all right, but we need work. We've got to get used to running the offense. It's the little things that need touching up.

All the touching up better be done by the Greater Oakland Activities League opening game against Lake Orion, Jan. 3, because Fife said the GOAL could be the best balanged it has been in years.

"You have to prepare for the GOAL teams three times, twice during the year and once in the playoffs, Fife said. "The rivalry is very strong and it seems everyone gets up for Clarkston. If we have an offnight, anyone can knock us off. The GOAL won't be a cakewalk."

Have you heard about the new SNOW SCOOP? It isn't really new they've sold about 500,000 in Canada in the last few years: SNOW SCOOP eliminates lifting completely, you merely slide the snow where you want it and with practically no effort, the SNOW SCOOP dumps itself. The body of the SNOW SCOOP is made of lightweight, unbreakable "Space Age" composite material 22 inches wide for quick, effective snow removal. It can do an average driveway in about the same time as most small snow blowers. The best part is no maintenance, no fuel to mix and store, and the SNOW SCOOP costs less than 10% as much as a snow blower.

Hard work ahead for volleyball teams

Volleyball hopefuls go through a practice session at the Clarkston Elementary School.

By Dan Vandenhemel

"Practice, practice, practice." The words of Clarkston varsity volleyball coach Nancy Fostér voice her concerns over a shorter preseason.

The volleyball season has been delayed because the girls' basketball team reached the district finals. Foster said a number of the basketball players wanted to go out, so she pushed the tryouts back.

Another factor is a Christmas tournament. The Dec. 28 tournament at Oakland University is the earliest the Wolves have ever played.

"The skills' level is good, so I think we will be OK." Foster said. "The younger players have to get used to the speed of the ball. It's a lot faster on the varsity level.

The Wolves will need the heighth and the strength to keep opposing teams ducking at the net. Because of the makeup of the players, Foster said she is switching part of her coaching philosophy

She always stresses defense on the varsity level, while Gordy Richardson pushes offense with junior varsity

"I think we'll be a lot stronger hitting the ball." Foster said. "Some strong players are coming up from the JV. Last year, they had some very hard hitters, almost as hard as some varsity hitters. We're going to go with more offense than in the past."

Because of the repairs of the high school gym floor, the volleyball teams are practicing at Clarkston Elementary in the multipurpose room. Foster said the space would be perfect if it wasn't for a few things.

"One is the tile floor," Foster said. "I'm afraid someone is going to get hurt. Another thing is the room isn't that big. I can't really put 30 girls through conditioning in this small a space, plus they can't really run on the tile."

Once the varsity and junior varsity squads finalize their rosters, the teams will split and practice at different times at Clarkston Elementary.

Wolves wrestling program on the upswing

By Dan Vandenhemel

Wrestlers are out in masses for the Clarkston (High School team.

Coach Greg Gwisdala says the large number is proving the wrestling program is growing again.

Over 60 grapplers signed up with the squad. Through the traditional weeding out process, the number is down to 42 after four weeks of practice. Still, the roster is bigger than it has been in the past.

'I don't cut anyone from the team. I don't believe in it," says Gwisdala, who is entering his second year as coach. "The kids cut themselves either by not attending or the hard work."

Gwisdala uses the number of wrestlers at the season's end as the real yardstick to the sport's popularity.

Two years ago, less than 10 wrestlers finished the season. Last season, 28 stuck it out until the end. With the number out this time, Gwisdala hopes the trend continues.

With only four weeks of practice prior to the opening matches, there isn't much time for the coach to judge what kind of team he'll have.

Clarkston opened the season at Milford on Dec. 3 against Milford, Hazel Park and Warren Fitzgerald. The results were not available prior to press time.

Milford and Hazel Park are perennial wrestling powers, a tradition Gwisdala would like to see come to Clarkston.

'With Hazel Park, wrestling is life or death," he says the weekend before the matches. "We've got a good program here, a good tradition.

"I'd have to say we're an average team with the potential of being a good team. We'll be able to tell after Milford."

Gwisdala points to extra meets during the season for a possible reason more wrestlers are coming out. The more matches, the better the chances of an athlete earning a varsity letter, he says. "Why practice

Recent Oakland University graduate Scott Strickler is Gwisdala's assistant coach. He wrestled at O.U. and Saginaw Valley State-College. Strickler's experience is warmly welcomed.

He comes from a wresiting family," Gwisdala "Scott and I complement each other on our strong points and our weak points. He's going to help quite a bit."

CJH names team

The ninth-grade volleyball team has been named at Clarkston Junior High School.

New coach Jeannie O'Dell selected the 15-girl squad Nov. 27.

'I wanted to have the team together for a couple of weeks before our first match," O'Dell said. 'Because of the Christmas break, we'll only have about three weeks before our first match."

The Wolverines open against Mason Jan. 9 and then meet the Sashabaw Cougars Jan. 10.

More information about the Clarkston-Sashabaw match will appear as the season draws nearer.

The Wolverines for this season are Kari Abbott, Evonne Atkin, Dana Austin, Kerry Campbell, Coy Carlson, Holly Edmunds, Deanna Green, Jenny Grohs, Shawna Jordan, Tammy Lynch, Charlotte Neighbors, Laurie Peel, Angela Robinson, Stacy Roy and Jenny Shoff.

over-He has wrestled in matches, has had only 4 decisions go against him, has never been pinned, and he is only 10-years-old.

Jeff DeRoseau, of Brandon Township, is a 5th grader at Brandon Middle School, and is entering his 3rd year of wrestling. He wrestles in the Clarkston Free Style. league,

And, after the Junior Olympics last summer, he has been accepted as a member of the United States All Star Wrestling Team. Jeff will be the only wrestler representing Michigan on the team.

The team travels to 5 different states: New Jersey, California, Texas, Oklahoma, and Missouri. The team will spend 10 days in each state wrestling that region's top grapplers.

The program starts June 19 and runs until August. "It's like a foreign exchange program," Bob DeRoseau, Jeff's father, said.

If Jeff does well enough in the "exchange program", he may be asked to start training for the 1988 Summer Olympics

'I'm amazed that they (college and olympic scouts) watch the kids at such a young age, but they do,

And, what does the 60 pounder-Jeff think of all this?

"I like it. It's fun, I like to travel," he said. But the DeRoseau's have one slight problem.

It is up to the individual to pay for the trip," DeRoseau said.

We received a letter from the All Star committee, and they said to go to the public. The money is not paid to Jeff, checks are made payable the team. We've talked about this, and Jeff is going to have go out and knock on doors for himself. He'll know what he is getting into," DeRoseau said.

The eternal sign of frustration.

Apartment hunting is tougher than I ever thought it would be. It's even harder when most of the apartment complexes are open 9 to 5 during weekdays

For most couples just starting out, renting an apartment is a very big step.

We have to live close enough to work and be the same distance from both sets of parents. Of course the cost is important, as is the size of the place.

For Peg and I, children are not a consideration right now and won't be for a couple of years, but a two-bedroom apartment is almost a must. We need the second room for her teddy bear collection and my bowling ball collection.

Since both of us work and I'm just finishing up school (Dec. 16 is the last day), the weekend is about the only time we can go apartment hunting.

A Sept. 27 wedding is planned and we're probably jumping the gun some on looking for a place to

Most apartments are on six-month or one-year leases, we figured, so why not put our names on a waiting list now and wait for a September opening?

That was our goal last Saturday. That goal was never reached.

A target area of the I-696 area between I-94 and 1-75 was established. We did more driving by apartment complexes than we did stopping and looking.

Closed offices far outnumbered open ones. Three Leotards - Stirrup Tights - Footed Tights - Headbands &

No-fail acorn theory

NAME OF TAXABLE PARTY OF TAXABLE PARTY.

Bill Morse stopped by to tell us his acorn theory is still working.

Morse, who lives on Glenburnie in Independence Township, came home with a six-point buck this year.

Ever since he developed his theory, Morse says he hasn't failed. The six-point catch was significant because it filled in the gap—his list of successes now includes bucks with points numbering five; six, seven, eight and nine:

In a nutshell, here's Bill's acorn theory: "Just go out in the woods and act like an acorn and make about as much noise as an acorn—and wait for the buck."

Friends off, rivals on

The unpredictable world of girls basketball featured at least one guarantee when the district finals were completed. The winning coach was an Independence Township resident.

The finals on Nov. 26 pitted rival teams Clarkston and Waterford Kettering and rival coaches Dave McDonald for the Wolves and Charlie Shires for the Captains.

Coach Shires and his still undefeated team won the championship against McDonald's court-siders in double overtime, 52-48.

Off-court, McDonald and Shires are friends, and they both call the Clarkston area home.

"It's a nice friendly rivalry," McDonald said.
"Charlie's done a nice job over at Kettering and I think Clarkston and Kettering are the two best programs in the area. When the two teams meet, you know it's going to be a close game."

Fitzgerald's book

A selection of Jim Fitzgerald's columns have been published in a book.

Out just in time for Christmas, the book is offered in an advertisement in this issue of The Clarkston News.

Fitz was editor of the weekly Lapeer County Press from 1961 to 1976. He is presently a columnist for the Detroit Free Press.

His columns have appeared in The Clarkston News for more than a dozen years.

What I meant was

Her intentions were good.

On Nov. 23, members of the Clarkston Village Council voted to raise Treasurer Artemus Pappas' annual salary by $275.

Pappas, whose duties include managing the village's general budget and sewer accounts, said with tongue-in-cheek that he was "thrilled" with the council's decision.

Currently, $5,625 is paid toward his salary from the general fund, with an additional $1,000 in salary coming from the sewer fund. His $275 raise is to come from the sewer fund as well.

Said council member Sharron Catallo with trailing voice as she made the motion, "The $275 will be reflected in the sewer... Oh, that sounds awful."

Surely she was going to say "reflected in the sewer fund."

Playing with words

The final precise wording for a Clarkston school district motto has yet to be approved, but Superintendent Milford Mason presented an idea to the board of education last week.

"Challenge today—success tomorrow" was the contribution of Clarkston Junior High School Assistant Principal Vincent Licata, Mason said.

"Of course, if you look at it another way, 'If you're successful today, you'll be challenged tomorrow,' " quipped school board member Stephen Werner, M.D.

-Correction

The name of sixth-grade poet Tina Nolen was incorrectly spelled in last week's Clarkston News, Tina's version of concrete poetry, in the subject's shape, was a kite.

Good sports, and they're married too!

By Kathy Greenfield

When the snow flies, Tim and Dana Boals will be ready for the races:

They've prepared for cross country ski races as members of the Ulir Ski Club by training together on roller skis, Rollerblades and mountain and touring

The Clarkston couple have plenty of friends involved in competitive sports as well, but few are married couples and fewer still are couples who both exhibit their intensity.

"Tim and I are kind of a unique combination," says Dana. "We have limited time, we want to be together, so we exercise together-I think it strengthens our relationship.

'We're both the kind who don't like to do something halfway," she adds.

While both agree Tim is the most serious about ski racing, he views their togetherness in the fitness department with humor, at times.

"We're both real weight conscious, so that's a motivating factor," he says.

The Boalses, who have been married four-andone-half years, trace their interest in sports back to their respective high school days.

Tim was an all-conference football player at Elk Rapids High School near Travis City, but he remembers liking basketball better. Dana competed in the free-style category on the Northville High School swim team.

When they met, they were Michigan State University students on summer break in Traverse Ci-as a property manager for Comerica in Auburn Hills. Fim, 27, sells agricultural chemicals in southeastern lichigan for FMC Corp.

In addition to their careers, Tim puts in 12 to 15 hours a week on physical conditioning exercises and Dana works out 10 to 12 hours a week

He was the first of the two to become interested in cross country skiing. He began racing about four years ago.

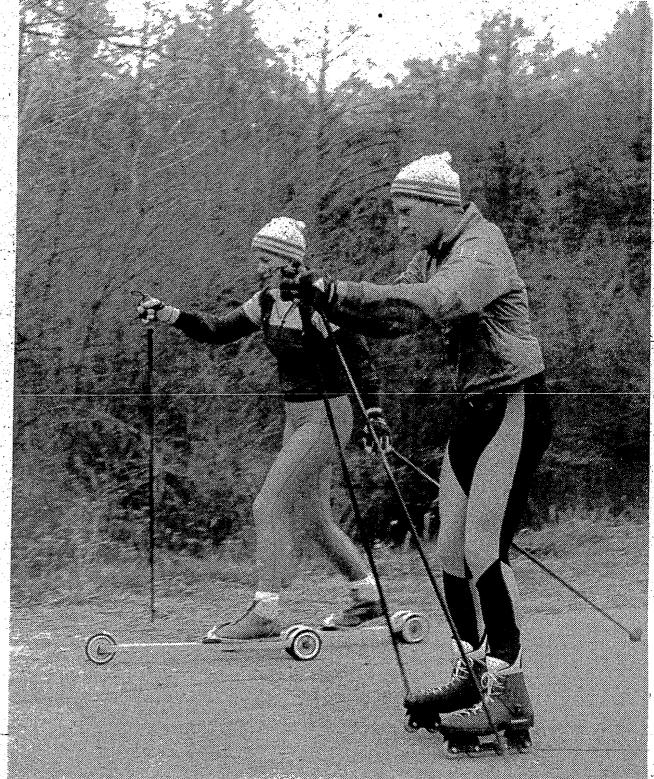

"I got into it because he encouraged me to try racing," Dana says. "He always has more confidence in me than I do in myself, He said, 'You'll do fine.' "

This summer, Dana became interested in triathlons. At first, Tim agreed to go along and help her with equipment switches.

"I couldn't get enthusiastic about going to a triathlon and just being a pit crew," says Tim, so he decided to enter the competitions himself.

For Tim, the biking and running portions of triathloning were fine-but the swimming was a pro-

"For triathlons, she had to teach me how to wim," he says. "I grew up around water, so I could eep from drowning, but I couldn't swim a lap in a pool."

Tim and Dana Boals train for cross country ski racheted wheels to simulate ski wax catch races on the eight-mile bicycle path at Indian Springs Metropark. Dana's roller skis have

"I just basically taught him how to do a stroke better," says Dana. "I think more the way I taught him was I was so much better than him. Every few weeks, he'd say, 'OK, let's race,' and I'd win."

The challenge continued until Tim emerged the

"I still maintain I could beat him in a short race," Dana says. "It's just distance where he gets me.'

She mentions height as a factor—Tim stands 6-foot-2 as compared to Dana's 5-foot-6.

They entered two triathlons this summer and finished about in the middle.

"This year, I'll ski better for having trained for the triathlons," says Tim.

on the snow. Tim's Rollerblades simulate skiing with narrow, single line wheels.

Dana, too, is looking forward to racing this winter. It will be her first year on the cross country ski racing circuit, because her former job as an accountant required weekend work during the winter tax

"Last year, it was so hard," Dana says. "Tim would go away for the weekend to race. I never resented it, but I wished I could go. It will be nice to have a winter when we can be together."

Artist meets many challenges

Chairman of the Davisburg Christmas Craft Fest

By Carolyn Walker

Joyce Hovis will tell you she likes a challenge. And you will think in response, "It's a good thing," because her life has been full of them, big and Those challenges have made her a woman for the '80s: wife, mother, businesswoman, artist.

As a part of her many accomplishments, Joyce has overcome the disability of deafness.

With a permanent hearing loss of 75 percent in one ear and 35 percent in the other, she faked her way through grade school by mastering lip-reading, she

Her subsequent confidence after conquering the obstacle has been the springboard from which Joyce has gone forward.

This year, in addition to running her Davisburg household and her store, Our Special Touch, she is chairman of the fifth Annual Davisburg Christmas Craft Fest, where she will display and sell her handmade flower arrangements and wooden wares.

She says she is thinking of stepping down from the chair's position next year, however, due to obligation overload.

"I like a challenge," she says, laughing at herself. "But, let's not get carried away, Joyce."

Nestled among the creations in her downtown Davisburg store, Joyce talks about her life and her work, and the challenges from which they evolved. "I work very hard," she says.

Her craft efforts began several years ago when she taught herself to make silk tlowers and create arrangements for friends' weddings.

"I've never taken classes," she says, adding that she gradually expanded her creations to include egg baskets, wreaths, candle holders and other items.

After working for General Motors and Utley-James, she began selling crafts from her home approximately eight years ago while she awaited the birth of her daughter.

She opened the store one year ago.

"This is something I've always wanted to do." she says, gesturing at the store's craft-covered walls. "This is my-school, my college."

Joyce says she made 75 percent of the items sold in the store. The remainder include antiques, candy and some items crafted by friends:

The candy table was started in the store especially for children. Joyce says she told her child-patrons at the outset that they had to be honest with her.

They are allowed to pick their candy but are expected to deposit the proper change on the cash register counter.

If she is ever cheated, she will close the counter to all, and the children realize that, Joyce says.

The children have not only accepted the challenge, but many of them have thanked her for her

TEENS AND SENIORS TEAM UP TO HELP: Each year, Clarkston High School students collect canned good donations and deliver them to the Independence Township Senior Citizen Center where holiday baskets are put together for needy local families. This year, between 1,500 and 2,000 Items were collected for the cause, says Amy Eiden, chairperson of the student council committee that oversaw the project. As an incentive, the student council awarded a pizza party to the fourth-hour class with the most cans collected per person—and the winners were the students of Jan Modesitt, with 19 cans apiece. Student council members lifting bags of goods into cars before heading to the senior center Nov. 25 include J.R. Keelin and Amy Eiden. [Photo by Kathy Greenfield]

Patrick and Lee McNew, owners of the Clarkston Cafe, announce the birth of a son, John Patrick, on Nov. 23.

John was born at William Beaumont Hospital in Royal Oak: Heaweighed 9 pounds 3 ounces and measured 21 inches long.

The McNews are residents of Lake Angelus, where sister Sarah awaited John's arrival.

Grandparents Mr. and Mrs. Leon McNew of Royal Oak, grandfather Donald Hayes of Lake Angelus and great-grandmother Thelma Murphy of Grand Blanc also welcomed John.

The way they were: the Rushes 25 years ago.

Rushes celebrate

Donald and Shirley Rush, residents of Independence Township 14 years, celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary Friday with a party at the Spring Lake Country Club. The celebration was arranged by their four children, Donald Patrick, Barbara Ann, Patricia Loretta and Nancy Christine. The Rushes were married Nov. 12, 1950, at St. Christine's Catholic Church in Detroit.

The Clarkston Village Players are in the process of casting for their next play.

There are many roles for women and a few for men in "Come Back to the Five and Dime, Jimmy Dean, Jimmy Dean."

If interested, call director Marilyn McCafferty for more information at 627-4400.

The play is to appear on stage at the players' Depot Theatre in Independence Township on Feb. 7, 8, 14, 15, 21 and 22.

Road paving OK'd

A paving project for Drayton, Road has been given the go ahead by the Board the Oakland County Road Commissioners.

Funding for the paving, which is to be done on Drayton Road between Maybee and Pelton roads in the Drayton Heights subdivision, is to be provided by a special assessment of the road's residents, according to Dennis Pajot, of the commission's public relations

The expected cost of the project is approximately $89,168, said Pajot, who says work is scheduled to begin in May.

The decision to pave the road was reached after residents petitioned the commission for the project.

A majority of the front-footage property owners had to agree to the paving before a special assessment could be levied.

Although the money comes from Drayton Road residents, the bidding and administration of the project are handled by the commission, according to Pa-

Schools foot bill for community brochure

By Kathy Greenfield

In an effort to attract more families to the Clarkston area, the board of education has approved. spending $3,500 for at least 10,000 copies of a community brochure.

"Anything beyond two students, we gain something for this district," said board member David Kithil, referring to the state aid received for each pupil enrolled, "I think it's a winner."

The board approved the expenditure in a 5-0 vote at a special meeting Nov. 25.

The brochure is presently in the design stages. A portion of the money, up to $500; will be used to hire a photographer to take color photos for the planned 9-by-12-inch tri-fold brochure:

It is expected to be completed this summer, said board member Mary Jane Chaustowich, chairperson of the Common Interest Committee planning the

"We hope to put out a first-class product that: will go down well with real estate people, and so forth," she said. "We are encouraging families to move in. We feel this is a family oriented community and we have a lot to offer families.

The committee also includes Independence Township Board Trustee Carol Balzarini, Margaret Bloom representing Springfield Township and Joan Kopietz representing the Village of Clarkston.

Because the school board authorized the publishing of a brochure, it agreed to ay the expenses, Chaustowich said.

The committee was an outgrowth of discussions on ways to combat declining enrollment due to a lower birthrate. Since 1973, enrollment in the school district has declined by over 1,500 pupils, from 7,099 to 5,588 for the current school year.

We are going to be out of business unless we can attract some new houses and new families in the school district," Chaustowich said.

Kuhn elected chief judge

Judge Richard D. Kuhn, 56, a resident of Independence Township, has been elected Chief Judge of the Sixth Judicial Circuit Court for Oakland Coun-

Kuhn, a judge for 13 years, is to begin the twoyear term in January. He was elected to the post by his fellow judges. "I feel very good about it," says Kuhn, whose duties will include chairing the Oakland County Circuit Court judges' meetings. He will also be responsible for maintaining docket control to make sure cases are tried in a timely manner, he says.

Kuhn has resided in Independence Township with his wife and four children since 1974.

He is a graduate of the Detroit College of Law and was a practicing attorney in Pontiac before becoming a judge.

In 1961, he represented northern Oakland County as a delegate to the Constitutional Convention in Lansing, where he helped pen the new state constitu-

Making candy is easy with a microwave oven

Get a quick start on the holiday season with 3 candy treats

A microwave oven can aid those who find making time to prepare holiday treats a problem.

Used most often to defrost or reheat foods, a microwave oven is ideal for making candy, a task many shy away from because of the time involved.

Thanks to the speed and versatility of today's ovens, many steps can be combined and clean-up simplified, as often just a microproof mixing bowl, spoon and baking sheet or pan are all that's needed.

Most candy recipes can be adjusted to microwaving by following basic microwave methods and times. No change in ingredients is needed.

To get started, keep these tips in mind:

*Always use a large bowl for sugary mixtures as they boil high in the microwave oven. The container should be two to three times as large as the volume of candy.

*Cook peanut brittle and other sugary mixtures on high (100 percent power), but reduce the power for chocolate, which is sensitive to microwave energy.

*Stir candies a few times during cooking. Frequent stirring is not necessary because mixtures will not scorch

*Use a special microwave candy thermometer or the standard cold water test for candies. Do not use a conventional candy thermometer inside the microwave

To test candies using the cold water test, drop a small amount of mixture into a dish of very cold tap water. Shape into a ball.

Soft ball (234-240 degrees F) will flatten when removed from water. Firm ball (244-248 degrees F) does not flatten. Hard ball (250-266 degrees F) should feel very firm, but still pliable.

If you've never made candy before, the following recipes are an easy way to get a quick start on the holiday season:

ALMOND BARK

1 cup whole blanched almonds 1 teaspoon butter or margarine : 1 pound white chocolate

Place almonds and butter in a 9-inch glass pie plate. Cook on HI (max power) four to five-and-one-half minutes, or until almonds are toasted, stirring twice during cooking. Set aside.

Place chocolate in large microproof mixing bowl and cook on 50 (simmer) four to five minutes, or until softened. Stir in almonds and pour onto waxed paper-lined baking sheet.

Spread to desired thickness and refrigerate until set. Break into pieces.

Yield: 1 1/2 pounds.

PARTY MINTS

2 cups sugar

1/4 cup light corn syrup

1/4 cup milk

1/4 teaspoon cream of tartar

Peppermint extract

Red or green food coloring

Combine sugar, com syrup, milk and cream of tartar in a two-quart glass measure. Cook on HI (max. power) five to six minutes, or until a few drops of mixture in cold water form a soft ball. Let stand three minutes to cool slightly.

Beat with electric mixer until creamy. Flavor with eight to ten drops of peppermint extract and color with food coloring.

Drop mixture by teaspoonfuls onto foil. Cool until firm. Store in airtight container.

Yield: 36 candies.

We'll lend an ear. Your ideas make good stories. Give us a call at The Clarkston News 625 3370

RICH CHOCOLATE FUDGE

I package (12 ounce) semisweet chocolate chips I can (14 ounce) sweetened condensed milk 1/4 cup butter or margarine I cup chopped nuts

Combine chocolate chips, condensed milk and butter in a well-greased 8 x 8-inch baking dish. Cook on 50 (simmer) three to five minutes, until chocolate chips are melted, stirring once or twice during cooking stir in nuts.

Spread evenly in pan and refrigerate until set. Cut into squares.

Yield: 36 pieces.

Icy roads shut down schools

Clarkston school district records indicate that winter weather is, indeed, striking early. The observation followed the cancellation of school Nov. 26 due to icy back roads.

The earliest I can remember in the last 10 years is about the first week or so of December," said William Dennis, director of transportation for the Clarkston school district. Dennis and bus garage supervisor Gary Bliss made the decision shortly after they began checking roads between 4 and 4:30 a.m.

"It was strictly the back roads. They were all ice covered. They were really bad," Dennis said.

Dennis and Bliss-discovered gravel road conditions that varied without warning from clear to a glare

"You get a 20,000 pound bus on a glare of ice and it just goes where it wants to go, not where you want it to go." Dennis said. "I decided I wasn't going

Facing the crowd

A hungry Gretel, played by Lisa Carter, discovers her brother Hansel, played by Jeff Waite, has just left their only food scattered throughout the forest.

Cast as the Wicked Witch, Jeremy Hargis uses his hands and face to present the proper image. The 14 student actors and actresses in Junior High Drama, an after-school enrichment program class, present their talents Friday, Dec. 10, in "Whatever Happened to Good Old Ebenezer Scrooge" and "Hansel & Gretel and Friends." Curtain time is 7 p.m. at the Clarkston Village Players' Depot Theatre on White Lake Road in Independence Township. Admission is free. Sandy Sanford serves as director for the plays.
