5 file for 6 village offices

All 5 are Republicans

By Carolyn Walker

Five Village of Clarkston residents submitted petitions Monday for six two-year terms on the village council.

All are seeking election on the Republican Party ticket. The positions of president, treasurer, clerk and three trustees expire at the end of 1986.

Sharron Catallo, whose trustee position is due to end, is the sole candidate for president. She resides at 29 Buffalo.

Clerk Norma Goyette, of 149 N. Main, and Treasurer Artemus Pappas, of 55 W. Washington, are seeking re-election to their posts.

Frank Millard, of 168 N. Holcomb, and Eric Haven, of 62 Robertson, are seeking election to the village council for the first time.

Trustees Jon Gaskell and Ethel Sinclair are not seeking re-election, nor is President Carol Eberhardt, who announced last week that she would not attempt to retain her office.

Because there are only two candidates for the three trustee positions, it is possible the third position could be filled by a write-in candidate, Goyette said.

Raup resigns

One more council seat opens

David Raup, a village trustee, announced his resignation from the Clarkston Village Council Dec. 9. It will become effective in January.

"I do not feel I'm giving it (the council) the kind of time I feel is needed to be a village trustee," he Increasing work obligations led to the resignation, Raup said.

In August, he purchased a second Hallmark store. He had been a sales representative for Hallmark for 12 years before becoming a store owner.

"It's a big change in my life," he said after the meeting. The establishing the second store demands much of his time, he added. "It's our first experience at running the whole show... a learning process."

Raup, who has served on the council for just over four years, was elected to his current two-year term last April

The decision to quit was "really agonizing," he said. "I've learned a lot. It was a very rewarding experience."

COURT TO CLOSE FOR MOVING DAY: On Dec. 27, when the 52nd District Court moves from Dixie Highway to 5850 Lorac, east of M-15, the court will be closed. The closing is an unusual event, and special permission had to be received from the state court administrator, said Jill Palulian, 52nd District Court administrator. Those who have tickets to pay on Friday, Dec. 27, will receive a grace day without penalty, she said.

Township explores 'downtown development'.

By Carolyn Walker

New office and commercial developments in Independence Township have spurred the township board to consider developing a Downtown Development Authority (DDA) district.

A DDA is a specially designated district in which the State Equalized Valuation (SEV) for taxes is "frozen," according to Treasurer John Lutz.

School mission

A mission statement has been adopted by the Clarkston board of education.

Superintendent Milford Mason presented the statement at the Dec. 9 board meeting.

"We intend to use this statement as our direction for efforts from this point forward," he said...

The wording was approved in a 6-0 vote after member Carolyn Place's motion to replace "the opportunity" with "an equal opportunity" failed for lack of support.

Board President Janet Thomas said she had no problem with the concept, but that the word equal could be defined in many different ways.

"I prefer to leave it as it is. . . . The rest of the statement explains the kind of opportunity we want to offer," she said.

After the meeting, Place further explained her request. "We're still doing battle over a lot of things" in special education, she said. "I think the opportunity is not always there."

The district's mission statement follows:

"The primary mission of the Clarkston Community Schools is to ensure the opportunity for each student to attain the skills, knowledges, and attitudes necessary as a foundation for successful living in a changing society. Teaching will be directed and resources utilized to challenge all students to reach their highest academic, social, emotional, physical, and cultural potential."

After the SEV is frozen, the taxes raised by new businesses built in the district are paid directly to the DDA for a limited period of time. The authority, whose members are appointed by the township supervisor, then uses the money to benefit the DDA district.

In that way, tax money is kept in the district and is not paid into the general fund, police funds, fire funds or other funds like the taxes from previously established businesses, Lutz said.

According to township planner Richard Carlisle, the potential benefits of a DDA could include drainage improvements, the planting of trees, or street lighting.

Carlisle cited an example to help clarify the workings of a DDA.

If, hypothetically, the proposed Clarkston Surgical Center property on M-15 were declared a DDA district, the taxes generated after development would go to the DDA.

In turn, the DDA would return the tax money to the district, possibly for drainage improvements along M-15, he said.

In looking toward a DDA, members of the township board voted unanimously on Dec. 3 to transfer funds from the 1983 Community Development Block Grant street funds to the planning and management funds.

A $2,500 portion is to be used to hire Carlisle at $1,000 and engineering firm Hubble, Roth and Clark at $1,500 to investigate an area suitable for designation as a DDA.

"It's a very good concept," Lutz said, adding that there is no cost to anyone. "The community can actually benefit the greatest from this."

According to Carlisle, no area has as yet been designated as a DDA district. One site under consideration, he said, includes the southern end of M-15 and, portions of Dixie Highway where development might take place.

There are no specific criteria for establishing a DDA, Carlisle said, adding that practicality will play a significant role.

"You want to make sure you can get all properties that can benefit;" he said.

DDA districts must not be too big, or too small, said Carlisle, but must be adequate enough to generate funds for proposed improvement projects.

The selection of a DDA district is expected to take several months, he said.

Building of offices encouraged

New master plan approved for township

By Carolyn Walker

A new master plan that discourages strip developments and encourages offices has been approved for Independence Township.

On Dec. 12, members of the township planning commission approved the new plan, said Chairman Neil Wallace.

They had spent over a year developing the proposal and had planned to act on the matter last month, but tabled their vote to consider suggestions made by two residents at the Nov. 21 public hearing.

The new plan includes a modification based on a suggestion by resident Ed Cox. It designates the site of a gravel pit at Waldon and Sashabaw Roads for research office designation, said township planner Richard Carlisle.

That parcel formerly called for multiple residential development.

The new master plan is an overview of how the commission would like to see the township develop, according to Wallace. It is a guide for land use throughout Independence and does not constitute a change in zoning.

At the Nov. 21 hearing, Carlisle and Wallace said they foresee the majority of new development potential to be near I-75/Sashabaw Road and north of

M-15 along Dixie Highway. In developing the master plan, the commissioners considered Independence's strategic location along I-75, Carlisle said.

The new plan calls for more research office development and discourages intense commercialization in those areas.

It is the first to be adopted in over 10 years. The former master plan-was revamped about four years ago to include the Sashabaw corridor.

Village OK's emergency 9-1-1

Following the lead of the Independence Township Board, the Clarkston Village Council voted to agree in concept with the proposed Oakland County E-9-1-1 emergency plan.

They voted unanimously to sign a resolution of agreement Dec. 9, although some council members said they felt comfortable with emergency services currently available to the village. "At this point we have a decent system," said Trustee Sharron Catallo, who questioned whether E-9-1-1 would be an improvement over existing telephone services provided by the Independence Township Fire Department and Oakland County Sheriff's Department. She said the necessity of going through a county "middleman" could create confusion for those placing emergency calls.

Currently, people experiencing fires or medical emergencies can dial the fire department directly.

Under the county proposal, calls would be routed through a dispatcher, possibly with the aid of computers located at the Oakland County Sheriff's office. Installation of the system is to be funded by the county for about $3.4 million.

Recurring costs of some $580,000 for maintenance would be divided in half between the county and each of 63 participating communities on a yearly basis.

ed cost for the village would proximately $600 annually, according to Paul Phelps, division manager of EMS and disaster control for the County representatives have said the success of the program depends on the cooperation of bordering municipalities because in some instances, their phone number

telephone exchanges overlap. 'We all can't sit around waiting for everybody else to decide," said President Carol Eberhardt.

In November, the board of Independence Township, which surrounds the village, approved a resolution of intent to join the program.

Clothing may replace Harvey's

A fire gutted Harvey's Restaurant on Dixie Highway in May and owner Harvey Render is planning to recoup with a new business at the site.

On Dec. 12, he petitioned the Independence Township Planning Commission for conceptual site plan approval for a men's sports-clothing store, said Chairman Neil Wallace.

The commission tabled action on the matter after making several suggestions.

"It was a very good discussion," said Wallace.

"It was tabled, but we gave him an awful lot of information."

Render could not be reached for comment.

Wallace said it is conceivable that if Render heeds the suggestions he could receive both conceptual and final site plan approval in January.

Suggestions made by the commission included increasing the landscaping along Dixie Highway, omitting parking directly in front of the building, and placing a berm at the rear of the property along Rockeroft Road, a residential street, Wallace said.

Village council raises president's salary

By Carolyn Walker

A $2,300 raise has been granted the position of president on the Clarkston Village Council.

After a complicated discussion about the management of village affairs, the council voted 4-2 to bring the president's salary to $3,500.

The raise is a compromise between the former $1,200 salary and a $5,000 proposal made that evening by President Carol Eberhardt.

The issue of officials' salaries was raised recently by Eberhardt, who contends the president's increased workload merits higher pay.

On Nov. 25, a council salary subcommittee proposed lowering the clerk's salary and responsibilities and doubling the president's salary to $2,400. They also proposed hiring a village "manager." Neither of those proposals was acted upon.

The decision to raise the president's salary followed a heated, sometimes emotional debate between council members and included insinuations that personality conflicts were at the heart of the issue.

3 recognized by school district

Keith Conklin, Chris Krueger and Gretchen Reeves are the latest Clarkston school district staff members to receive Employee Recognition Awards.

The trio was presented with certificates and engraved Cross pens at the board of education's Dec. 9 meeting.

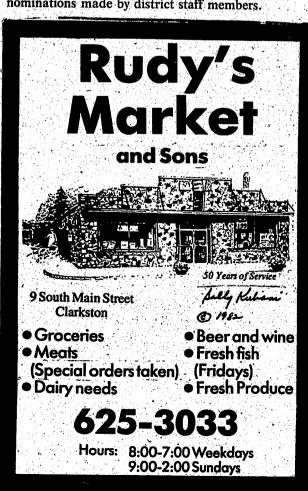

Conklin, a teacher at Clarkston schools for 18 years, was nominated by fellow Clarkston Junior High School teacher Charles Keegan and Principal Duane Lewis. Conklin was praised for personal time spent serving on committees, coordinating ninth-grade career day and co-sponsoring the ski club.

Krueger, a mathematics teacher at Sashabaw Junior High School, was nominated by Assistant Principal David Reschke. Among Krueger's contributions to the school is the cougar face he painted on the surface of the gymnasium floor.

Reeves, a therapist with special services, was nominated by speech teacher Jan Kirchgessner. Reeves has helped Kirchgessner develop an exercise regimen for her pupils. She was also recently named Outstanding Occupational Therapist in Michigan by the Michigan Therapy Association.

The Employee Recognition Award was established last year to praise district employees for work above and beyond the call of duty.

A committee chaired by Assistant Superintendent Mel Vaara selects the award winners from nominations made by district staff members.

"I, for one, do not see raising the president's salary to $5,000 per year," said ApMadoc. "The next guy might not be worth it. That's unrealistic. .... A manager you hire, a manager you can fire."

Eberhardt, in turn, asked how setting a salary for the president was any different than setting the salaries of clerk and treasurer when the person filling those offices could change.

"You're saying one thing for part of an elected office and another thing for another part of an elected office," Eberhardt said. "What we should be looking at is what that job requires."

"I think the president's job is very involved and, frankly, deserves more money," said Trustee David Raup. "Our job isn't to decide who's good or bad. Our job is to decide what the job's worth. We expect an awful lot of the president."

A motion to table the issue for reconsideration by the salary subcommittee died for lack of a second.

Voting for the president's raise were trustees Ethel Sinclair, Raup, James Schultz and Sharron

Voting against the motion without comment were trustees Jon Gaskell and Fontie ApMadoc.

Facilities study authorized by school district

By Kathy Greenfield

The Clarkston board of education has agreed to spend about $70,000 on a facilities study expected to lead to a request from voters for financial support.

The study is part of one of five goals approved in a 6-0 vote by the board Dec. 9.

Superintendent Milford Mason recommended to the board that the goal of "proper facilities for students, programs and services be given the top

The study of indoor and outdoor facilities is to be performed by the architectural firm of Charles Sherman Associates, the same firm that designed the district's elementary school multipurpose rooms.

In about 12 months, the firm will report its findings to the school board "in a graphic and written form defining existing conditions in both positive and negative conditions," Mason said.

At the same time, staff members are to compile educational needs.

The two reports are to be combined to recommend needed alterations, modifications and options for improvements.

The list of goals approved "to prepare for the late 1980s and beyond" follows:

1. Provide proper facilities for the students, programs and services now and in the future.

Some people go through a whole life without giving themselves a bonus . . . an award for achievement, true or fancied.

On the other hand, many of us over-award ourselves. I'm one of those. Because we had to cancel plans to attend a press convention in September, a special gold star award was earned.

Something that would satisfy and ease the pain and suffering; the aggravation, the depression, insomnia, and nose bleeds . . . to say nothing of the loss of consortium.

Oh, this was going to be an award that would more than make up for all the great things I could even imagine I might gain at a press meeting.

How about seven days in Arizona in December to make up for losing three days in Minneapolis? Sounds just to me.

It's almost (not quite) sinful to have the thoughts I had in 70 degree Arizona as the TV weatherman told of snow storms sweeping southeast Michigan.

Here we were gliding across the desert, dipping once in a while for the "washes," while snow plows, snow shovels, and snow throwers were making paths in Michigan.

But it wasn't all fun and reflections. One time my golf cart driver, Chuck Drumheller of Oxford, drove too close to a cactus and I scratched my leg. My irritation was short lived as I thought of how my whole body would be aching if I were in Michigan pushing and shoveling.

That's enough. I'm here now with the rest of the Michiganders who boast of "loving the four seasons,"

We had been in Arizona four years ago. And while we were there when the desert was in bloom and enjoyed the countryside, it was something less than a love affair.

On the most recent visit we took a closer look. The desert has fascination, but it doesn't fully compare to a field of clover or wild mustard in bloom.

It does compare favorably, however, when you're in the foothills, and the sun comes up on the mountains, and the sky is clear, the air clean, the wind slight, and the pressure gone.

It compares favorably when you know the temperature is going to let you play golf, tennis, walk, fish, hike, or otherwise amuse yourself outdoors in December and the rest of winter.

We/were in the Phoenix-Scottsdale-Mesa-Carefree area. We were told 80,000 people moved to that area in the last year. At first we scoffed at the number, but after spending the best part of two days driving around we wondered if the figure wasn't low.

Large residential and commercial (no industrial) developments are everywhere. Huge Mc-Cormick Ranch subdivision is full, and the cities keep pushing limit signs further in every direction.

Certainly Americans have done well in retirement. From what we could learn, that's what all the building is for, and it doesn't look all bad.

Tree confessions

Kathy Greenfield

We walked through their door and sat down in the family room where a humungous Christmas tree dominated one corner.

Even on the lowest levels, its branches reached halfway to the ceiling.

"I have to tell you about our tree," said our host with an apologetic tone.

On one of the coldest days this year, the story went, he traveled to a cut-your-own tree farm with his two youngest sons.

After viewing all the specimens, they decided to try a second spot, farther north, where our host had read bargain trees were available.

The proprietor told the trio to trek through the pine forest filled with trees too tall for any house and to top any tree they wanted.

After coming close to death by freezing, they made the agonizing choice, chopped off the top and headed for home.

The rest of the family wasn't thrilled. There were a few gaps between the sprawling branches. Suffice it to say a puppet fashioned from a grocery sack and tucked near the trunk was on full view.

Our host said some members of the family had threatened to erect a screen in front of the tree so no one could see it.

While we were there, a teenage member of the family and some of his friends gathered round the tree and broke into song: "O Christmas tree! O Christmas tree! How beautiful thy branches . . ."

Despite its lack of perfection, the tree was spectacular and glittery and everything a tree should be—especially fun.

There's at least one member of our menagerie that never utters negative expressions about our trees.

This year, the minute our tree was put up, the cat performed her traditional season greeting.

She threw herself under its branches and purred.

Our dog is another story,

This year, he plopped himself right next to the tree to be close to the activity of decorating—and got yelled at...

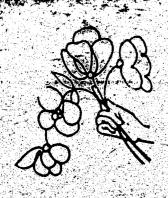

That must be the reason he regularly and furiously wags his tail and backs into the greenery, swooping off masses of ornaments in his wake

When I was telling a friend about how I move ornaments around our tree until I find the perfect spot, she came back with an observation.

"Kathy, you edit your tree!" she said. Good grief, it's true.

Here in the Fort Myers, Fla., area, we have a ceremony to welcome back the manatee. Hundreds of those huge, ungainly, endangered creatures seek the warm waters of the Orange River near Fort Myers to spend the winter months and rear their young.

A fitting ceremony seems in order. So, each year on an October evening, a "Welcome to the Manatee" is held.

A small flotilla of boats follows a lighted barge on which is mounted a lighted, animated outline of a manatee up on the Caloosahatchie River to where a sculptured "Shrine to the Manatee" is mounted on pilings at the juction with the Orange.

Appropriate music comes from the barge as it makes its 12-mile round trip.

We Clarkston residents, Marian and Lyle Abel, have the opportunity to watch the ceremony from a dock in the Orange River Mobile Home Park; where we spend our winters.

from the Catholic Church because Archbishop Szoka. I apologize for my poor grammar, especially to those belongs to a private club that won't accept blacks as members."

I knew the Grosse Pointe woman was elderly because she said no private club member should be forced to associate with "ragamuffins." I hadn't heard that termsince my paternal grandmother died almost 50 years ago.

After I played in a mud puddle, Grandma would say I. looked like a ragamuffin. But I knew she loved me anyway. I wouldn't feel loved if I were barred from the Detroit Golf Club because of the mud on my pants.

My dictionary says a ragamuffin is "a ragged notice disreputable person." I assume that's who the cultured Grosse Pointe woman doesn't want in her private club, although she-declined to mention names. Surely she didn't mean the well-groomed mayor of Detroit.

I knew she was cultured because she pronounced "privacy" to rhyme with "privy cee." To me, that sounds like the victim of a collapsed backhouse: 'He was privy-ceed to death in his own backyard?"

But what do I know? Last month, I wrote "it is Fred, not me, who is so dumb he can't spell ... " Several readers pointed out my mistake; it should have been "I," not "me."

readers so dumb they think a person has to be smart to be a columnist. And I apologize in advance if it is correct everywhere - not just in Grosse Pointe-to seek privycee in a backhouse.

Anyway, I'm happy to accommodate the woman from Grosse Pointe. She is perfectly right in saying people have a perfect right to seek privacy from ragamuffins in a private club. Legally. Morally is something else, of course.

Which brings us to the Warren man. He, like the Grosse Pointe woman, was responding to a recent columnin which I had a little fun suggesting that, if Mayor Young's membership application were approved by the Detroit Golf Club, it would be the first time in 80 years that Detroit's black community has accepted a member from the Detroit Golf Club.

Noting that the white Roman Catholic archbishop of Detroit belongs to the no-blacks-allowed Detroit Golf Club — it even withheld membership from a black lawyer who later qualified for the state Supreme Court — the Warren man asked if I'd protest by resigning from the Catholic Church.

For a few months in 1945, I was assistant to the Catholic chaplain at Ft. Polk, La. He was white, of course. And when I asked him why he didn't preach against the segregation that forced black soldiers to worship in a crummy chapel in the back of the camp, rather than in the main church with the white folks; he said I was a fool.

That is when I left the Catholic Church.

And no one has to tell me that almost all white churches were racist 40 years ago. Or that the situation is greatly improved today. I know that.

What I don't know is how a Christian leader like the Most Rev. Edmund Szoka could join the Detroit Golf Club. However, it is nice that he is currently supporting Mayor Young for membership in the club, and has implied he will resign if the mayor is turned down.

Ragamuffins everywhere should take heart - and get elected mayor.

Santa Claus pulled through in 1957, just when I thought I couldn't face my peers or my oxford saddle shoes again.

At the tender age of seven, I had never put my 10 piggies inside tennis shoes, penny loafers or slip-ons.

Incredibly flat-footed and knock-kneed, I had envied from afar my mates who had perfectly formed, highly-arched soles.

In self-defense, I had mastered shoesalesman terminology like, "corrective shoes," "arch supports," "wedges" and "hammer toes" to explain to my friends why my shoes were so glaringly different from theirs.

More times than I cared to think about, I had sat in Stapp's shoe store trying to choose between black saddles, brown saddles or blue saddles. Yuck.

During the Christmas season of my seventh year, I pounced on Santa's lap for what may have been the last time, looked into his kindly eyes and said, "Please Santa, I want a pair of cowboy boots."

Santa listened well.

On Christmas morning, mother made the discovery after we had opened our presents from under the tree in our living room. After my hopes had dimmed. 'Carolyn," she said in a mock-surprise voice. "There's a package here for you under the orange chair on the porch. It says it's from Santa Claus.'

My heart pounded. Could it be?

I tore into the box.

There they were, the coveted black cowboy boots-all leather-tooled and wonderful.

by Dan Ziegler

I recall that mother wouldn't let me wear them with my dress that night to church or to grandma's annual dinner. Nor would she let me wear them to bed.

As I reflect, I think that year's Christmas must have been the best in my life, all that the day should be: family, church, fulfilled dreams.

In the days that followed, I hated to leave the house unbooted for fear that they wouldn't be there when I returned.

I remember parking them neatly beside my bed when I retired each night, polishing them from the picnic bench in our back yard, wearing them in 96-degree hot, summer weather and losing them for good in deep mud.

During that same year, I had a 7-year-old friend, who undoubtedly celebrated Christmas too.

I cannot recall her name. But I can still see her, in my mind's eye, walking along the dirt road to school, smiling, swinging her leg braces in a steady, even rhythm.

She was one of the last few children afflicted with polio in the 1950s, just before the vaccine was discovered.

I never thought to ask, but I wonder now if she climbed on Santa's lap that season, possibly for the last time, and said, "Please. Santa, I want cowboy boots for Christmas.

I wonder if Santa Claus was listening. I hope

She was named the Outstanding Occupational Therapist of the Year by the Michigan Occupational Reeves has a master's degree in occupational therapy and counseling.

"I've had to study a lot about the central nervous system for this," she said. "You have to understand how the nerves work before you can deal with them."

The room where Reeves works looks like a wonderful place to play: Mats are on the floor, and swings and nets are hanging from a beam in the middle of the room.

Village agrees to join in solid waste plan

By Carolyn Walker

The spending of $680 is acceptable, say Clarkston Village Council members who want an equal voice on the Oakland County Municipal Solid Waste Board (MSWB).

On Dec. 9, the council voted unanimously to sign a resolution of intention to participate in the proposed Oakland County solid waste plan.

This does not mean that we are totally commiting ourselves to the program. This gives us the option of representing the village on the solid waste board," said President Carol Eberhardt, who express-"I've got some real major ed some reservations. concerns because of so many unanswered questions. We just can't get a (future cost) figure."..

The resolution entitles a village spokesperson to join other representatives on the solid waste board and to participate in financial planning. It also obligates the village to pay $680 to the county for its preplanning expenses.

Those expenses have already amounted to over $1.4 million, according to audience member Edward Thomson, who expressed displeasure at the way the project has been planned thus far.

"The study was not well done," said Thomson, who was chairman of the Independence Township Solid Waste Task Force from 1980 to 1984, the years of the project's planning.

To make his point clear after the meeting, Thomson told of a study by an independent firm hired by the county to study the proposal.

Using out-of-date maps, the firm suggested putting a landfill where a subdivision stands, he said.

He added, "There is going to be, and nobody will deny it, a very substantial increase in cost."

The increase will come with the implementation of the program and the change from using landfills to using incinerators, he added.

After the meeting he clarified his stance. didn't think the plan had been particularly well thought out," he said.

Environmental benefits are the single plus to the project, he added.

Oakland County proposes building two incinerators for solid waste and reducing the need for

The plan is ecologically superior to the current mass-use of landfills, although some landfills will still be needed, said George Schutte, superintendent of the Oakland County Solid Waste Unit.

In a phone conversation after the meeting, Schutte explained why the costs of the plan could not be precisely determined.

'We never claimed we would know solid waste' costs at this point," he said, adding that the expense would be based on the number of participating municipalities. "It's always been difficult . . . because we never knew how many would be a part.

"Incineration is more costly than landfill. But who's to say about the future?

Like all projects, the people that use it pay for it. It's true. But not so as to be unbearable."

By Dec. 16, Schutte said, 27 municipalities, generating 1,000 tons of waste per day, had signed resolutions of intention. That tonnage exceeds the 600 tons per day required to undertake the program, he

If, after the financial package has been drawn participating communities find the costs prohibitive, they can withdraw, Schutte said.

Independence OK's Oakland County plan, too

By Carolyn Walker

At a special meeting Dec. 10, members of the Independence Township Board voted 5-1 to sign a resolution of intent to join the Oakland County solid waste plan.

By signing the resolution the township agrees to pay $13,791 to the county to help defray pre-planning costs, which have thus far totaled some $1.4 million.

The resolution also permits the township to have representation on the Municipal Solid Waste Board and allows the township to help develop a financial plan for the program with other participating communities.

Members of the board have informally agreed to use money, soon to be refunded to the township from taxes saved by the county, to cover the $13,791, said Clerk Richard Holman.

Trustee Dale Stuart voted against the motion and explained his reasons after the meeting.

"There is not enough definitive information from the county as to what other costs will be to the various tonwships and their citizens for the charges in processing solid waste," he said. It is possible, said Stuart, that processing costs will be charged back to municipalities, which will in turn have to create taxes to cover their bills.

"We don't really know what's going to end up," he said. "We're really not in any great jeopardy by staying out. We can be on the sidelines and know what they're discussing."

what they're discussing."
Stuart said Independence Township's stance at solid waste board meetings might not carry the same weight as other, larger, governments.

He also questioned how communities could monitor their citizens' participation, which would be required under the agreement.

"The concern is ... we have to agree that all solid waste goes through the system," he said. "Obviously, if we make an agreement, we have to make people comply. It's a very complicated procedure and a very complicated program. It just bothers me that there's so many unknown answers to so many questions."

At a Dec. 3 board meeting, Margaret Godfrey a spokesperson for Oakland County Taxpayers Against Garbage Administration, said her organization is against the county-wide proposal and supported Stuart's questions. The financing of the program would ultimately come from the taxpayers, she said.

"Everybody is assuming all these things. Nobody has asked the taxpayer," she said. "How can we agree to something when everything is an assumption?"

The board tabled a vote after her comments to consider the ramifications of joining the program.

The Oakland County Solid Waste Plan is designed to minimize the need for landfills and is considered

Cougars control Wolverines

At the moment, Doug Lederman of Sashabaw has the advantage over Clarkston's Chris Luzi, but Luzi wins the match, one of only a few captured by the Wolverines.

By Dan Vandenhemel

Sashabaw Junior High was the out-and-out winner in wrestling against Clarkston Junior High.

The Cougars outscored, and outnumbered the Wolverines on Dec. 13, 59-27.

Every time a Cougar grappler got close to pinning his opponent, the Clarkston gym echoed with chants of pin, pin, pin. The volume was directly related to the number of teammates.

Sashabaw coach Jim Banes said he has 71 seventh-, eighth- and ninth-graders on the team.

Besides the 15 first-string wrestling matches, there were 22 exhibition matches between the two schools.

"We could have had more exhibition matches, but that's all Clarkston had," Banes said of the extra wrestlers for Dick Moscovic's team. "We could have had double that. We take everyone to a meet because we want to make them feel part of the team, to feel important to the program."

Winning for the Cougars were Chris Briney, Eric Wall, Joe Kilgore, David London, Jerry Lawrence, Jamie Flanigan, Tom Benedict, Rich DeCiantis, Lyster Ladd, and Chris Parker.

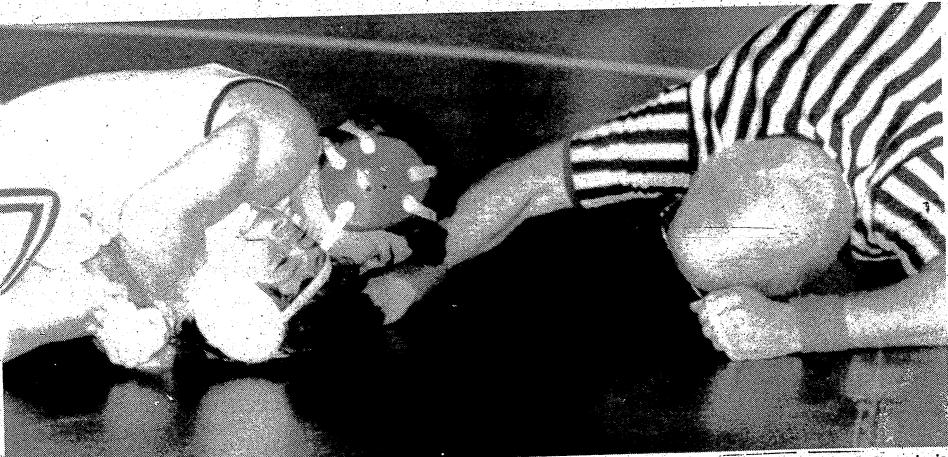

Banes joked that he hoped "the charismatic coach" was the reason for the large number of wrestlers, but added that wrestling seems to be winning out over basketball.

"Once the program started to win a couple of years ago, the numbers started to increase," he said.

"Another thing is a Rambo mentality. Wrestling is a macho sport, it proves your manhood," he said. "It takes intelligence, skill and courage. I think it's more demanding than basketball. Wrestling is a team sport that takes an individual effort."

The rivalry between the two junior highs is a friendly but fierce one, says Banes.

"It's a real wholesome rivalry, high-spirited," he said. "Dick and I are friends, and we tell the boys to give all they've got, but not to be nasty. Someday they'll be on the same team."

The referee does his best to call this match during the Sashabaw-Clarkston junior high wrestiing meet. The Cougars easily won the Dec. 13 meet, 59-27, at Clarkston Junior High. There were also 22 exhibition matches between junior varsity wrestlers.

Skiers turn out in mass for CHS team

By Dan Vandenhemel

Bigger isn't always better when it comes to the ski teams at Clarkston High School.

Coach Don Balzarini said 78 skiers tried out for the team. So far, that number has been trimmed to 45 and time trials in January will clip the number even more.

"The fact that we've been winning the last couple years and that there are a lot of good skiers around is probably why so many came out," Balzarini said.

Up My Alley Gift wishes Dan Vandenhemel

This is going to be one of those rare holiday seasons where everything happens at once.

Well, almost at once.

In the span of less than three weeks, I'll graduate from college, celebrate Christmas and turn, gasp, 25 years old.

First, Dec. 16 was my last day of school. I've looked forward to that day for six years.

Second is Christmas. A time for giving and sharing.

Third, Jan. 5 is my birthday. That is the day I become an antique. Not a true antique but one in age only. To be classified as an antique, 25 years of existence must be surpassed.

With these three dates duly noted, I will now express my gift wish list. These are items that can be given, or things that can happen. (Presents can be sent to The Clarkston News in care of this writer.)

To have the Detroit Tigers sign Kirk Gibson.
Not to receive any more glow-in-the-dark ties.
Any Bloom County cartoon paraphernalia.

A book on how to pull practical jokes on your friends—past and present.

A pair of boots that don't look like rejects from * Herman Munster.

Typing lessons.

To be able to dunk a basketball.

To be able to watch Bill Laimbeer of the Pistons dunk a basketball.

For good luck for all the programs at Clarkston High School, not just the sports.

To become a professional bowler. I can dream, an't I?

To learn to like diet pop.

To never have to take another linguistics class.

To have a happy life.

To own a no-maintenance-needed car.

10 own a no-man C-oline lessions

Speling lessions.
To inherit the Velcro fortune.

To watch the Red Wings have a winning season.

To watch the Lions make the playoffs.

To see Dwight Gooden in a Tiger uniform.

To see Tom Brookens at third base for the Tigers until he retires.

To have it 80 degrees and sunny right now.

To have Clarkston coaches return my calls.

To be done with this column.

Another possible reason is the snow. The enthusiasm of skiers is much higher when they get an opportunity to get on the slopes.

Last year, the Wolves were practicing at Pine Knob Ski Resort in the early part of December, but the weather turned warm and the snow disappeared. That forced the Wolves to drier ground.

"Last year the snow melted," the coach said. "Hopefully we'll be able to stay on it all season. Right now there isn't enough snow for us to put the gates in. We're just going through conditioning."

Orange road pylons in a zigzag course down one of the hills at Pine Knob serve as a training ground for the Wolves. The few inches of snow covered with ice are greeted with a variety of remarks.

Other skiers at Pine Knob besides the Wolves are saying they don't like the icy conditions because they make the course too fast.

Balzarini said that during the Olympics, the slopes are actually watered down to create a faster

Winning has been a tradition with the boys' and girls' teams at Clarkston High School for the past three seasons.

The girls have tallied a 23-1 record and a first-and second-place finish in the regional tournament.

The boys are 22-2 and have finished second and third in the regional tournaments.

Returning skiers who will help the Wolves continue their winning ways are Lori Walker and Jennifer Farough for the girls and Steve Zoss and Mike May for the boys.

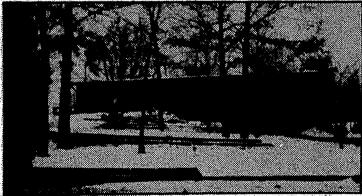

"We're going to be competitive, but it's going to be tougher," Balzarini said. "The other schools are getting tougher and we're building."

Springfield Township goes charter

By Dan Vandenhemel

Springfield Township is switching from a general law township to a charter township.

The board voted unanimously to approve the change at its Dec. 11 meeting. Supervisor Collin. Walls said the decision won't have much of an impact. "In Springfield, there will be very few changes, he said. "The way we have responsibilities set up around here, there won't be a major change except that those duties will be in writing.'

One of the concerns that prompted the switch involves the powers of a general law township.

"An example could be the jurisdiction a charter township has," Walls said. "With the issue over billboards not meeting township specifications, a charter township has jurisdiction over them, a general law township doesn't

Walls said annexation was not a concern of the board when they considered becoming to a charter township, but changing to the calendar year will help with cash flow.

'Right now we're coming up to the end of the fiscal year and the treasurer is collecting the money," he said. "Under the charter, we'll be collecting money at the start of the fiscal year and not at the end."

Regarding the salaries and the annual meeting, Walls said his personal opinion is the board may still have what could be called a annual meeting.

"The reason for the meeting is to get the electorate's ideas and input," Walls said. "We'd listen to what they have to say, just like we do now, but they couldn't vote.'

Residents can voice their opinions on Springfield Township going to the charter township system by filing a petition of disagreement with the township by Feb. 9.

The petition must have signatures totaling more than 10 percent of the votes cast for the supervisor in the most recent election. In 1984, Walls received 293

by many to be more ecologically sound than the current systems, according to George Schutte, superintendent of the Oakland County Solid Waste

Under the proposal, two incinerators would be built in strategic locations and their use would be augmented by some landfills,

A decision on the type of incinerators to be used has not been made, although many have been considered, Schutte said.

After the Dec. 10 meeting Holman said of the vote, "The entire board had reserve."

The "true test," he said, will follow the drafting of a financial plan. At that point, the township will have the option of agreeing to join the county's plan or withdrawing from it.

Voting to sign the resolution of intent were Supervisor Frank Ronk, Treasurer John Lutz, Holman and trustees Carol Balzarini and Daniel Travis. Trustee William Vandermark was absent.

CHOCOLATE TOWN: "I think it's wonderful," says kindergartner Nicholas Tucker about the chocolate Christmas village his parents Clifford and Mary Tucker purchased for his Balley Lake Elementary School class. "I like the chocolate and Santa Claus," he adds, and then he points to a large red and white house. "And I would like to eat the whole house." Which part of the village they'll eat is a topic of conversation in the meeting kindergarten classes of teachers Chick Omans and Sharon Thomas, for the children base been promised bites of the candy before winter break begins. Sharon Dennis of Flint, a fellow worker with Nicholas' parents at the GMC Orion Plant, spent 12 hours creating the Christmas wittage, said Mrs. Tucker.

1'm pregnant and drink about four drinks a day . . .

Dear Cat Paw:

You talked about drug addiction and tolerance to drugs. What's the difference?

Wondering

Dear Wondering:

The term "drug addiction" has been popularly used to describe physical dependence on a drug. The term is gradually being replaced by the more neutral "drug dependence."

Tolerance is a state that develops in users of certain drugs and requires them to take larger and larger amounts of the drug to produce the same effect. Tolerance often, but not always, occurs along with physical dependence.

Dear Cat Paw:

I'm pregnant and drink about four drinks a day. Not much! Will this affect my baby?

Mom to Be

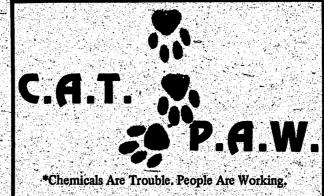

Dear Mom to Be:

Yes! Recent studies show that women who drink heavily during pregnancy—more than 3 ounces of alcohol a day (equal to about two mixed drinks)-run a higher risk than other women of delivering babies with physical, mental and behavioral abnormalities.

In addition, women who drink heavily are more likely to smoke heavily, eat poorly and neglect their health in general.

All of these factors can affect the outcome of pregnancy. Why not discuss this problem with your doctor?

Dear Cat Paw:

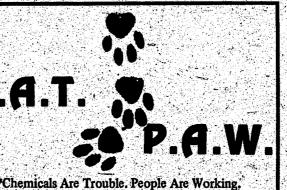

Isn't it true that drugs are an aphrodisiac?

Dear Wants to Know:

No drug seems to be a true aphrodisiac, although various substances have been considered to be

How do you know you're an alcoholic?

Drinker

Dear Drinker:

In general, people are said to have a problem with alcohol, or to be alcoholics, if they cannot control their drinking, if they are dependent on the drug and if their drinking has a negative impact on their families, friends and jobs.

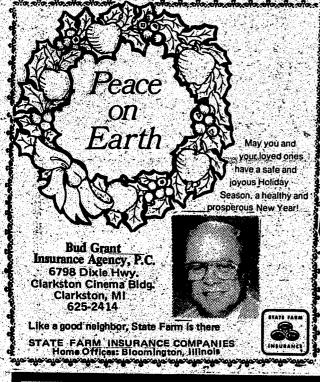

By these criteria, about 10 million Americans are problem drinkers or alcoholics. The reason people abuse alcohol and how seriously that abuse affects their lives may be more important in determining alcoholism than how long or how much they drink.

If you have any doubts about yourself, visit an AA meeting.

Items selected by PTO members were priced from 15 cents to $5 and arranged on tables—one for mothers and grandmothers, another for fathers and grandfathers and a third for brothers and sisters.

Santa's Shed was a team effort. The children made paper snowflakes to hang on the shop's ceiling and pawprints for the school hallway walls that led to the portable classroom outside the main building.

Some parent volunteers decorated the room, and even hung red-and-white checked curtains at the win-

Other parents made checked caps and aprons for the volunteer salespeople, and still others helped the children with their selections and budget keeping.

In all, between 50-60 parents volunteered, said Gretchen Reeves, PTO spokesperson.

The project was expected to raise about $1,000 toward a new sound system for the school's multipurpose room, and everything went so well, Santa's Shed will probably be repeated next year.

"It was a pretty rousing success," Reeves said. The children agreed.

As he walked toward the door with a grocery sack of purchases, third-grader Richie Bevins paused to list his gift recipients-to-be: "Myself, my dog, my mom, my dad, my two grandmas and my grandpas

And then Richie offered high praise, child-style, for the shop: "It's pretty neat."

Do you believe?

Can you remember ever believing in Santa Claus? I never really believed in Santa Claus, but I pretended to so I wouldn't hurt my parents' feelings.

I thought it was kind of weird that he was supposed to come down the chimney when we always had a fire burning in the fireplace on Christmas Eve.

I also thought it was impossible for deer to fly and that they would have made a lot of noise on the roof when they landed.

I even got in trouble for telling other kids that there was no Santa Claus.

Do you remember how you felt when your mom or dad told you there wasn't really a Santa Claus?

Some kids take it very hard when they find out that the Santa they had believed in since they were old enough to remember isn't real.

I have been told psychologists say this helps children to accept easier the death of a relative or friend in the future.

I don't think parents consider this when they tell their kids about Santa Claus. I think they pretend just for fun.

Goyette, Clerk COMMUNITY BOARD GAME: Helen Vergin poses with a sample of a Springfield Township board game, called Wheeler Dealer, developed by Michael Glenn Productions of Allen Park. The game was produced in conjunction with the township's sesquicentennial, to be observed in 1986. It features many area businesses and is much like Monopoly, says Vergin, chairperson of the sesquicentennial. The game includes money, wooden men and a commodities exchange. It may be purchased for $12.95 at several Springfield businesses, including the Whoopee Bowl, the Davisburg Candle Factory and the Springfield Veterinary Clinic.

Santa Claus helps Nelson Whitener and his mother, Amy Pennington, select $20 worth of presents from the Dixie Highway K mart. All 2,100 K marts participated in a shopping extravaganza to benefit children for the first time this year, said co-manager Paul Dickson. The morning event featured presents from Santa, breakfast and a shopping spree before official shopping hours.

Shopping spree

Baby Jessica Grattop's curiosity about what's inside her package doesn't measure up with her fascination with the present's red ribbon. Mother April Tinsler is a student in the Clarkston Alternative Education program.

Melyssa Weislo wears a Christmas bow on her head as her mother Laura (back to camera) and a friend help her with a present from Santa. Melyssa and Laura were participants in a Dec. 14 shopping extravaganza sponsored by K mart, 5100 Dixie Highway. Santa presented gifts to 21 children whose parents are students in the Clarkston Alternative Education program.
