Fund formed to help ailing boy

Independence tot to receive mom's bone marrow

By Carolyn Walker

Thousands of miles across the United States, a 21-month-old Independence Township boy and his parents are gambling for life; while here at home residents are collecting money on their behalf.

Bryan Michael Weightman, the son of Michael and Nancy Weightman, was born with congenital acute lymphocytic leukemia—a potentially fatal disease.

Although Bryan has outlived doctors' predictions, endured chemotherapy and bounced back from three relapses, doctors have told his parents that his only hopes for long-term survival lie in a bone marrow transplant.

To that end, the Weightmans left Sunday for Seattle, Wash., where Bryan is to receive bone marrow from his mother in a procedure at the Fred Hutchinson Cancer Research Center.

The center has a very high success rate, according to George White, principal of Pine Knob Elementary School where Nancy is a special education teacher.

Estimates are that the surgery and its accompanying transportation, housing and medical costs will run some $100,000.

To help cover their expenses, the Weightmans have established the Hope for the Future Fund, a non-profit corporation, in Bryan's name. Any money remaining in the fund after Bryan's hospitalization will be used to further research and help other families in the same situation.

Bryan was diagnosed as having leukemia shortly after birth, said Donna Rudolph, family spokesperson and a teacher's aide in Nancy's emotionally-impaired classroom.

He had brushes with death at Halloween time and again over Christmas but he pulled through. "He's a real fighter," she said.

The decision to take bone marrow from Nancy came after doctors were unable to locate a donor whose cells were an exact match to Bryan's. Both parents had 50-percent cellular matches and Nancy was chosen to donate, Rudolph said.

Nancy must be quarantined for three to four weeks to ensure she is disease-free before the surgery. It will take approximately four months before it is known if the procedure is successful, Rudolph said.

Bryan's and Nancy's stay in Seattle is expected to take four months, forcing them to lease an apartment in Washington. Michael, who is employed at Manley, Bennett, McDonald and Co. in Rochester, has taken a six-week leave from work to join his family.

Doctors have given the procedure a 40-percent chance for success and it can be repeated if necessary, Rudolph said.

"They're a very special couple and so is their little

Resident voices complaints

By Carolyn Walker

Ticket scalpers and peddlers congregating near the Pine Knob Music Theatre off Sashabaw Road have spurred Frank Campanaro to seek help from the Independence Township Board.

Campanaro, a Mt. Tremblant Trail resident, appeared before the board Jan. 7 to voice concern about the nature of some concerts held at the theater and the accompanying police protection.

He told the board he has had problems in the past with concert-goers urinating on his lawn and throwing litter in his yard and that he had been approached in the street to make purchases of tickets and a watch.

Campanaro then asked the board to confer with Pine Knob management about redistribution of police officers from inside the facility to Sashabaw Road, specifically for the purpose of arresting ticket scalpers.

Supervisor Frank Ronk responded by saying he would be willing to work in cooperation with Pine Knob management and Oakland County Sheriff's deputies in addressing the matter.

Trustee Daniel Travis agreed with Campanaro's complaint that the crowds are sometimes difficult to handle. "You channel them. You don't control them," he said.

Calling Pine Knob Music Theatre "a community rape," Campanaro said the problem was directly related to the nature of some heavy metal bands that appear there. They contribute to a negative image for Pine Knob and subsequently Independence, he said. "When they're done, it's like 'Who let the zoo out?'" he said.

Following the meeting, representatives of Pine Knob and the sheriff's department expressed their views during phone interviews.

George White, director of community relations for Pine Knob, said the problem of ticket scalping was addressed last season when it appeared to be escalating.

"The issue was handled," he said, adding that deputies asked scalpers to leave the area and that patrols were doubled or tripled for heavy metal concerts. "There were no incidents. It's not as though we're operating with our heads in the sand."

In addition, he said, the nature of performances mellowed with concert-goers' tastes. "It's what folks are listening to," White said, referring to acts such as Phil Collins and Journey.

Lt. Henry Hansen of the Oakland County Sheriff's detective bureau, who scheduled deputies for last season's concerts, agreed with White.

No ticket scalping arrests were made last year, he said, but scalpers were told to leave.

"We didn't have enough people to go into surveillance," he said, adding that undercover officers must make a "buy" in order to make an arrest.

Hansen agreed that the nature of a group can affect the behavior of concert-goers and that heavy metal groups sometimes result in difficult crowds.

For the Bill Cosby concert (a sold-out show), nine officers were used, he said. Seven for traffic control and two for inside the theater.

For the Willie Nelson concert, 10 were used.

For heavy metal band Arrowsmith, 60 were used, he said. They included 29 paid officers, a posse and reserve officers.

In addition, many auto accidents typically accompany large concerts, Hansen said, and require most of the services of officers, thus limiting their availability for other problems.

-Corrections-

In the Jan. 8 issue of The Clarkston News, Lubomir Hewko was inadvertently called a Russian. In fact, Mr. Hewko's country of origin is the Ukraine and Mr. Hewko is a Ukrainian. The News regrets the error.

The story on the appointment of John Needham to the Clarkston board of education in the Jan. 8 edition of The Clarkston News should have included the following information.

In an informal polling, four board members indicated their preference for Needham and two indicated their preference for candidate Dr. Bruce Harlton.

Upon official motion, the board unanimously approved Needham for the six-month appointment.

The prediction story in the Jan. 1 edition of The Clarkston News erroneously indicated that area leaders were responsible for a decision not to install a traffic signal at Waldon Road and M-15.

In fact, the decision on a traffic signal at that location would have to be made by the State Highway Department.

1986 growth predicted

By Carolyn Walker

Michigan is being hailed as the "comeback state" for growth and development and Oakland County is paving the way, says Brent Bair.

A new member of the Independence Township Planning Commission, Bair is the director of planning and development for the Oakland County Road Commission.

Oakland County secured two-thirds of the state's new businesses in 1985, Bair told fellow township commission members Jan. 9.

Township officials agree that Independence is caught up in the county-wide boom but project the majority of 1986's growth in new residences rather than commercial developments.

"They want to live here, but they don't want to work here," says building and planning Director Kenneth Delbridge, referring to executives who reside in Independence but work in the southern portion of the county.

Delbridge says he foresees offices and several "professional" projects such as medical, dental or legal complexes coming into the township, but not large commercial developments such as those seen in Troy.

Many of those complexes to be constructed in 1986, such as the Grovecrest of Clarkston nursing home, were given building permits in 1985, he says.

Calling Independence a "bedroom community" Delbridge says the township's rural atmosphere attracts people, who in turn want to see that atmosphere preserved.

The commercial area of Independence is well established south of I-75, he says, and township planners intend to preserve the residential nature north of I-75.

He predicts that many platted but undeveloped subdivisions will see activity in 1986. The subdivisions include a new one off Waldon Road and extensions of Deerwood, Bitterbush, Deer Lake and Chestnut Hills.

"I believe the residential activity is going to stay the same or a little better," he says. "People have got money and they're spending it. I look for a good year."

Neil Wallace, chairman of the planning commission, concurs. The post-recession slack in residential developments will be taken up with the completion of subdivisions that have stood dormant for several years, he says.

In addition, Wallace says township officials will begin seeking out and encouraging desirable businesses to come to Independence.

He emphasizes that township growth and change must be done in an orderly fashion to preserve "the value and desirability (of the township) as a place to live."

'85 growth leap; trend to continue

Construction in 1986 will equal or possibly exceed that which took place in 1985, predicts Kenneth Delbridge, director of the Independence building and planning departments.

The growth trend follows a recession that struck in 1979, when interest rates shot up, and lasted until 1982, he says.

He bases his promising forecast for the new year on figures he compiles annually. Those figures include permits for residences, commercial developments, housing additions, swimming pools, garages and sheds.

The growth seen in 1985 over 1984 was tremendous, Delbridge says, attributing the trend to lower interest rates.

In 1984, the building department issued building permits for residences, additions and businesses with valuations totaling some $8 million. That figure zoomed to over $20 million in 1985, Delbridge said.

The valuation figures represent the estimated value of the projects upon completion and are based on a figure of $35 per square foot.

Property taxes are then based on valuations of the buildings made by the township assessing office, which may run a little higher, Delbridge said.

Three commercial permits and 74 residential permits were issued in 1984. The figures more than doubled in 1985, when 166 residential and seven commercial permits were issued.

Wallace stays at helm

Officers for the Independence Township Planning Commission were elected at the Jan. 9 meeting.

Re-elected to his position as chairman was Neil Wallace, who has chaired the commission five years.

Wallace was appointed to the commission six years ago.

Re-elected as vice-chairperson was Holly Stephens. Joseph Figa was voted secretary.

Building's up in Springfield

Springfield Township is growing.

The number of building permits issued in the township keep going up.

The fiscal year runs from March 1 through the end of February and during the first 10 months of this period, there was a substantial increase.

So far for the 1985-86 period, 188 permits have been issued compared to 124 for the full year in 1983-84.

Dwellings have seen the biggest increase—34 permits were issued for new homes in 1983-84 and 64 during 1985-86.

"I think there has been a lot of pent-up demand," township Supervisor Collin Walls said. "I think the interest rates for mortgages have a lot to do with it. They are dropping and people can afford to build a house now."

The total estimated market value for the new permits in the township has doubled. New permits totaled $2.9 million in 83-84 and $5.7 so far in 85-86.

Walls sees the general economy as the reason for the increases. But he is not all that happy about the growth.

"I'm not really excited about the growth process," he says. "I grew up here and there was just one farm on the road. I'm not excited about seeing Springfield become a bedroom community. The businesses aren't rolling in. A boom time for us is two."

The number of commercial business building permits has risen from none in 83-84 to seven this year. Industrial permits have dropped from two in 83-84 to zero for the 10 months of this period.

The total number of building permits issued in Springfield Township includes garages, pools, decks, sheds and barns, along with the dwellings and industrial and commercial buildings.

Tots, lighter behind house fire

Toddlers are believed to have started a fire at a Glenalda Street residence Jan. 11, according to Gar Wilson, assistant Independence Township fire chief.

"I investigated the fire. It was started, we're almost positive, by kids playing with a lighter," Wilson said.

The fire was reported at 2:45 p.m. Damage estimates were $20,000 to the structure and $18,000 to contents.

There were no injuries, although the children's father singed his hair when he tried to put out the fire, Wilson said.

"He got the kids out and went back for water, and by the time he got in there, he said, the whole bedroom was on fire, so he just left," Wilson said.

The blaze was confined to the children's bedroom, Wilson said, and there was "very little structural damage but the whole (interior) is covered with black."

Elected officials ponder their pay

Independence board seeks public opinion on proposed salaries

By Carolyn Walker

A list of possible salary adjustments for elected officials are being considered by the Independence Township Board.

On Jan. 7, the board briefly discussed recommendations made by a five-member salary compensation committee before unanimously agreeing to postpone a decision until the Jan. 21 meeting.

They chose to wait so residents of the township could make comments on seven proposals offered by the committee.

The proposals include:

- No change in salaries.
- Raises of approximately $1,000 each for the clerk and treasurer and approximately $1,500 for the supervisor.

- Five-percent raises for any officials, including trustees, if they are elected to second terms. Trustees currently are paid $4,857 a year.

- Two-percent raises for any full-time official who obtains a master's degree or higher or an advanced degree the equivalent of a master's and related to his or her occupational duties.

- The allowing of a $600-per-year raise to any full-time official who voluntarily chooses not to be covered by the township's health insurance program.

- Compensation for trustees on a per-meeting basis starting with those elected in 1988. The dollar amount would be comparable to those of other Oakland municipalities.

- A proposal that trustees become independent contractors rather than township employees. This recommendation would reduce the cost of fringe benefits and social security to the township.

If implemented, all the raises would be retroactive to Jan. 1, 1986.

Since Independence became a charter township last year, voters are no longer required to set officials' salaries at an annual meeting.

Under the charter policy, the board may vote their own raises or adopt an ordinance and act on the recommendations of a board-appointed commission. Annual meetings are no longer required.

Rather than be confined to the regulations of an ordinance, or to the outright establishment of their own salaries, the board chose to appoint the committee rather than a more powerful commission last November.

The committee includes Robert Olsen, Robert Beattie, William Jackson, Charles Phyle and Kenneth Winship.

Supervisor Frank Ronk, who recommended the delay in voting, said he would be willing to hear citizen and board comments on the matter before the Jan. 21 meeting.

New and old faces for boards

Several appointments and re-appointments of individuals to various boards have been made by the Independence Township Board with the advent of the new year.

On Jan. 7, board members unanimously approved the following recommendations:

- Clarkston School Board President Janet Thomas is to replace school board member David Kithil as the liaison to the Independence Township Cable Casting Board. Kithil left the position after accepting a job transfer out of Michigan. Thomas is to complete Kithil's term which expires in August.

- Brent Bair, an employee with the Oakland County Road Commission and a resident of Timber Ridge Road, is to replace Lubomir Hewko on the Independence Township Planning Commission and fill Hewko's position as commission representative to the zoning board of appeals. Hewko chose to resign the position because of business commitments, said Supervisor Frank Ronk. Bair's is a three-year appointment.

- In addition to Hewko, planning commission member David Katz is resigning. Board members agreed not to replace Katz following a suggestion by Ronk that the position be left vacant to reduce the number of commissioners to seven.

- Joan McCrary, a resident of Rattalee Lake Road, is to replace Roy Haeusler on the Independence Township Zoning Board of Appeals. Her term will run three years.

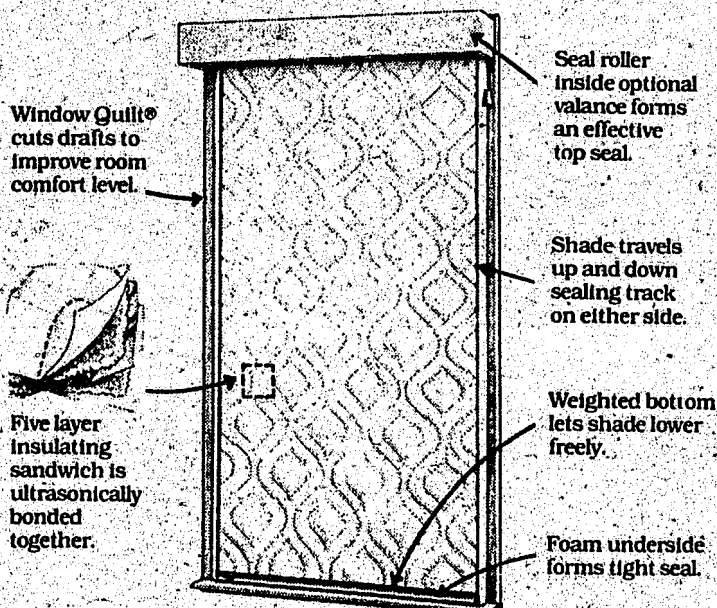

- ZBA Chairman John Dunlop, whose term was due to expire, was re-appointed to his position following praise for his work by Ronk.

- Nancy Woodruff and Sandra Sanford were re-appointed to four-year terms on the Board of Canvassers following a recommendation by Clerk Richard Holman. The Board of Canvassers consists of four individuals who double-check vote tabulations following elections.

In addition to the appointments of the above individuals, Ronk read a letter of resignation from the Economic Development Corp. member Martha Wheeler.

Wheeler recently retired from her job as vice president and manager of the Clarkston Pontiac State Bank, and the change necessitates her resignation from the EDC, Ronk said. No one was appointed to assume the position she is vacating.

Up My Alley

Tiger talk

Dan Vandenhemel

Hail, hail, the gang's all here.
Well, most of them are here.

Kirk Gibson and Tom Brookens are still Detroit Tigers, at least that's what their contracts say for the moment. Most of the 1985 Tigers are back in the fold. Gibson and Brookens made sure they'd be back by inking contracts seconds before a midnight deadline.

For weeks prior to the D-day of Jan. 8, the media in Detroit hammered the issue, centering mostly on Gibson.

There were stories about the contract, the money, the Gibson-less Tigers, his double wedding, his agent and the lack of offers from other teams. There was even a story about Gibson's option to try football again.

The situation was milked for all the information possible. Even this column is feeding off it. I just think too much was made of the whole thing.

Let's set something straight. I'm a baseball fan and a life-long follower of the Tigers. And baseball is just a game.

Having Gibson back on the team is great, but if he had gone to another team, he would have survived as would the Tigers.

The man is a solid baseball player. Strictly on his baseball performance, which at times can be shaky, Gibson would be an asset on any team.

I've never met Gibson so I can't say what he is like personally. I've heard people swear at him and call him a jerk for something they heard he did.

I'm not going to blast someone for anything unless I've seen it. Then there might be a good reason for it.

I'm awfully forgiving.

Anyway, the over-coverage of the contract signing was put very nicely by Channel 7 sports reporter Steve Garagiola on his Jan. 8, 11 p.m. broadcast.

Garagiola seems to have a sarcastic sense of humor and tied the midnight signing deadline to the more anticipated deadline at New Year's Eve.

A film clip of hundreds of people waiting for the silver ball to descend as the midnight hour drew nearer was the perfect touch.

Garagiola gets a small round of applause for making light of a situation blown out of proportion.

Snowflakes

Kathy Greenfield

I used to collect snowflakes on my mittens and wish the works of symmetrical art would never melt.

Years have passed since then. Usually the closest contact I have with snow these days makes me grumble.

I scrape it off my car's windshield; it makes walking slippery and my feet fall in mush that leaves salt lines on my boots.

The awe-inspiring mitten collections were forgotten until I volunteered to make large paper snowflakes to hang from the ceiling to decorate for a club party.

The idea had come from a classroom similarly decorated with Andersonville Elementary school children's cutouts.

I gathered scissors and paper, sat down at the dining room, folded up a piece of paper and began clipping. My first effort looked like a rectangular doily, an ugly one at that.

I decided I had to get serious and think about how snowflakes really looked. Outside, it wasn't snowing. Rats.

Eyes closed, I tried to think about snowflakes on mittens. Instead, I remembered a snowflake gift tag from Christmas just past. I found it and began clipping anew.

My daughter, the college kid, wandered through. She created a few before her time for such stuff was up. My son wandered through, asked what I was doing and kept going.

A day and some 24 snowflake facsimiles later, the task was done. The unfolding part was the best. OK, I admit it, I had fun with what I had begun calling the "little kid project."

When the snowflakes were hung from the party site ceiling, they looked great.

It was my husband's suggestion that the party-goers try their hands at creating snowflakes of their own.

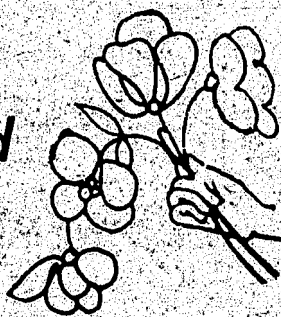

One woman made a circle of skiers, paper doll style. Another made a snowflake just like one I had envisioned but couldn't create. A man had so much fun, he asked for more paper and ended up clipping three wonderful works of art.

Why, I wonder, do we ever say goodbye to things we enjoyed as children.

Still, the memories are waiting to be rekindled. My next plan involves finding some mittens. Let it snow!

ALL ABOUT TOWN

Jim's Jottings

Jim Sherman

I always read the lists of ten mosts. I also always read what's in and what's out. Partly it's because I'm fascinated, partly because I want to keep up-to-date, and mostly because I read just about everything in newspapers.

The ins and outs of 1985-1986 have left me with a smaller wardrobe and much confusion. The worst thing about reading this list is it really sticks in my mind, and affects my routine.

Take for instance, paisley. It's out. I received a beautiful paisley tie for Christmas and I feel everyone is looking at me and pointing out what a nerd I am. So I wear it with only a little showing. I cover the rest with a sweater, but not a ribbed one they're out.

Black is out, and white is out, yet black and white are in. That's confusing, and so is fitted clothes being in along with bellbottoms. Sweater sets are ok, and layered look is out. I always figured sweater sets were layers.

Considering what Americans are thought of in head-wrapping countries, I'm a little surprised to learn wrapped-heads are in. I think that's a bad guess.

I'm very pleased to see Dr. Ruth is out; she has been with me for some time. Any person who talks like that in living rooms across America should be out... out in the woodshed.

Her head should be wrapped, without the 'w'.

It doesn't surprise me that Nancy Reagan and Princess Di are out. I love someone's line about the First Lady... At times she looks almost lifelike.

Ethnic foods being out is ok with me, but why chocolate chip cookies? Why did they put the out tag on velvet and the in label on denim?

Miami Vice is out, and that's all right, too. Never did like to see men go without socks. The few times I've done it the insoles come out with my sweaty toes.

The list makers put potted delphiniums on the in side. They certainly should be. I never met a potted delphinium I didn't like, and that goes for potted geraniums, too. Potted people didn't make either list.

Hopefully, some of the things on the lists are not for men. Like bare shoulders and midriffs, short bangs, slingback flats, hoop earrings, print blouses and structured handbags on being in for 1986.

Mind you, I'm not sure they are women things, because skirts for men are out.

As usual the lists have things I don't understand at all. Like Whoopi Goldberg and Oprah Winfrey, Poison by Christian Dior, and Princess Gloria von Thurn und Taxis. By the way, they are in.

The last thing on the list I wholeheartedly agree with. Classic good looks are in... as long as I don't wear paisley.

FANTASY SLEEP

By Julie Garten

As I lie here
Trying to find sleep
I wander to it
Like a lost sheep

Off far away
To dream land I go
A land of make-believe
Where magical flowers grow

What a wonderful place
At least to me it is
Where everything is purpose
Everything is mist

Anything can happen
In this land so far away
People can fly
To music, buildings sway

So as you can see
What I said is true
Anything can happen
It's all up to you

SUMMER MORNING

By Julie Garten

As I wake up
On this morning anew
Walking outside
I feel the morning dew

The sun is as clear
As a newly made mirror
And is so beautiful to me
I think I can feel a tear

Fresh air coming into my nostrils
As I pass my open window
It fills my lungs and refreshes me
What a divine creator to make all this

Julie Garten resides in Independence Township.

I was dismayed to read in the Jan. 8, 1986, issue of The Clarkston News an erroneous referral to me as being a Russian. I am a Ukrainian and my country of origin is not Russia but the UKRAINE.

I thought I made this clear during our interview, but apparently I failed.

Although dismayed, I am not necessarily surprised that this error occurred in your article. There seems to be a tendency in the U.S. to use the names "Soviet Union" and "Russia" interchangeably, thus labeling everyone in the Soviet Union as Russians.

I suspect this comes from our tendency to think of the people living in the different republics in the Soviet Union as we think of people living in different states of the U.S.A. This is grossly incorrect.

In the United States, the population is a relatively homogeneous mixture of persons of various national extractions who voluntarily came here and created a free American nation. Thus every U.S. citizen is called an American.

This is not so in the U.S.S.R. The Soviet Union is comprised of 15 Republics, which historically represent 15 individual, territorially defined nations, whose people speak distinct languages and have a cultural heritage that is separate and different from Russia.

These non-Russian Republics, of which the Ukraine is the second largest (44 million people), in not too distant past were independent and sovereign countries for hundreds of years (Ukraine since early 7th century).

Unfortunately the Russians, being the largest state (125 million people), under the rule of Czars have subjugated their 14 smaller (including Ukraine) neighbors. They forcibly annexed them to their "Czarist Russian Empire." Constant uprisings and attempts of independence were crushed by the Czars.

During the Communist Revolution, when the Czarist rule disintegrated, Ukraine as well as other subjugated states immediately broke away and created their own free and sovereign states independent of the Russian state.

However, one of the highest priorities of Lenin, the leader of the Communist Revolution, was to assure that the Russian Empire remain intact. A strong Russian Communist army was dispatched to crush the newly born free Ukraine.

By 1923, the power of the Russian Communists was consolidated in the form of the Union of the Soviet Socialist Republics.

Today the non-Russian Republics of the Soviet Union, Ukraine included, constitute the de-facto Russian colonies. The slightest tendency of the Ukrainian people toward independence is severely punished by imprisonment in concentration camps or even death.

In addition to economic exploitation of the people, the Ukrainian language and culture are slowly and systematically curtailed and the Russian language is introduced throughout.

Although Communist propaganda would have everyone believe otherwise, the U.S.S.R. represents today the only, still-existing colonial empire.

It would be a gross inaccuracy to call Ukrainians, Armenians, Latvians, Lithuanians, Estonians and other Soviet minorities Russians. The only thing they have in common is that they are all citizens of the U.S.S.R. and are striving for their national freedom.

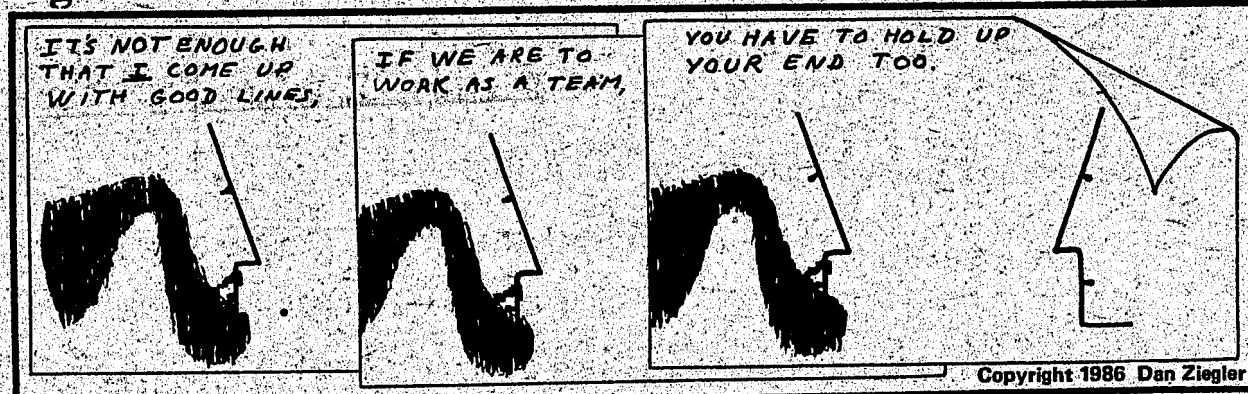

I hope these remarks clarified the difference between Russia and Ukraine and explained that Ukrainians are not Russians.

Emily meets Patricia

Jim Fitzgerald

A few slightly astonishing things happened during the nine months-plus leading up to this.

Last April, for instance, my daughter Ferd looked at Carmen Harlan, the WDIV-TV (Channel 4) anchor, and said: "Carmen's pregnant again. I can tell by the look on her face."

Three weeks later, it was announced that Carmen would indeed have a child in November. How did Ferd know so soon?

"It takes one to know one," she explained.

That was the first I knew I was going to be a grandfather again.

Several months later, everyone knew, if they saw Ferd. She was that big. Except one evening there was a special night out and she wore a maternity dress that beautifully disguised her condition.

People meeting her for the first time said how nice she looked, and I could tell they didn't know she was pregnant. So I told them.

And I actually blushed when a little voice inside my head suddenly said: "My God, you are such a big fool you brag about your grandchildren even before they're born."

I was so embarrassed I didn't utter another public word about the impending birth until this week. And it was this week that I was most astonished by some circumstances surrounding the arrival of another woman in my life.

When my first four grandchildren were born, I wasn't on the scene. But this time I made it, and it was my first appearance at a birth since my youngest child was born more than 27 years ago — in the same hospital. There have been some astonishing, and marvelous, changes made in the maternity ward rules.

Among the family members waiting for Ferd's latest was her older sister, whose nickname rhymes with Ferd and Nerd and starts with T. Hanging in my home is a treasured photo taken in my wife's hospital room as she and I cooed stupidly at one-day-old Nerd. One other face can be seen, pressed against the outside of the window. It belongs to T. She was standing on a kitchen stool dragged from our home across the street.

She was eight years old at the time, too young to be allowed inside the hospital to see her new little brother.

The scene shifts from 1958 to 1986. Patricia Karen Smith was born a few hours before the Detroit Free Press published her grandfather's column saying she wasn't born yet.

And five minutes later, a nurse came into the waiting room and asked: "Is there an Emily Smith here?"

There was. Emily is Patricia's four-year-old sister. You should have seen Emily's face as she was the first person ushered into the room where Patricia (10 pounds, 22 inches) and parents waited.

Emily held her sister's hand. She stared in amazement at the funny clothes her dad wore to assist in the delivery, and at the ugly hospital gown on her mother. She laughed, and everyone laughed, and I cried.

Oh boy.

Patricia Karen Smith was born the same day President Reagan called Moammar Khadafy a flaky barbarian and the world worried that one more war might be on the way.

What's really astonishing is what fools we mortals be.

Monday two separate, unrelated incidents took place in the cafeterias of area schools. They went mostly unnoticed.

Perhaps the two episodes meshed only in my mind because my daughters were involved. I hope not. They could have involved anyone's children; right, wrong, vulnerable, selfish or indifferent.

I am convinced that similar events transpire every day in not only student cafeterias, but in board rooms and meeting places the world over—wherever people gather to make decisions affecting their own lives as well as the lives of others.

I am going to share the incidents with you for two reasons: 1) I feel strongly about the messages that are inherent in what happened. 2) The actions of the children mirror human nature and lessons they have learned from their parents and other adults who influence their lives—people like you and me.

The first incident actually began to unfold last week. On Friday, I gave my youngest daughter ice cream money as I do each week.

As I handed it to her, she said, "That's for P---."

With a start, I realized that P--- had probably been taking her money from her weekly to buy his own ice cream.

On Monday, my daughter received the following letter from P--- along with $1.15:

Dear (daughter),

IM sorE for taking yor ICE crem MONY. here is 40$. i ernerD iT By shovling sonow. im sad. i wot tak yor mony anyMore. P---

Even as I read the note that same day, my eldest daughter, a junior high school student, relayed the following:

"There's this girl in my school named M--- and she has kidney failure. She has to have dialysis and she's weak and the other kids pick on her."

"Today this other girl named S--- drank M---'s milk when she got up to get something. I told S--- that was wrong and she said, 'I don't care.'"

"When M--- came back to the table, I gave her 25 cents to get something else."

"Mother, why do people do things like that?"

People do things like that, I tell her, because society tolerates injustices.

And, there are other reasons, I say. Too many people are like S---, they are self-serving and don't care about the feelings of others.

There are too few people like P---, who will admit it when they have done something wrong and then say they are sorry.

There are even fewer people, I tell her proudly, who, like you, have the courage to step forward publicly and decry that which is wrong then go one step further and offer help.

Can you picture these same children dealing with apartheid, nuclear arms, world hunger, abortion or prejudice in the future? Will they have learned from the examples we set or do a better job than we have done?

Let's hope that by the time they are adults they will have learned to say in unison, "That's wrong. We're sorry. We'd like to help. We care."

Wolves shine at invitational

The Clarkston High School varsity squad shut down all comers and came home with the championship of the Bloomfield Invitational Tournament, Jan. 11.

The finals pitted a conservative Grosse Pointe North team against the hard-hitting Wolves. Clarkston won, 15-13 and 15-7.

"We had total control of the match," Foster said. "It seemed like Grosse Pointe was always trying to catch up to us. I felt like it was our match the whole time."

Foster said Grosse Pointe's good defense helped them reach the finals of the 10-team tournament.

"They were a very controlled team," she said.

"We just kept hitting the ball at them."

To reach the finals, the Wolves got past North Farmington, 13-15, 15-5 and 15-10.

Senior Michelle Taulbee got both the Wolves and the crowd going with her thunderous spikes, Foster said.

"Michelle was awesome," the coach said. "Everytime she hit the ball, the crowd would yell 'Boom.' Against North Farmington, she had 17 spikes and 10 went straight to the floor. Her hand was bruised the whole day because she was hitting the ball so hard."

Along with Taulbee, Foster said Sue Kithil, Wendy Cohoon and Maggie Gdula played the best for the Wolves.

Kithil tallied 60 perfect serves during the day. Every one of her serves during the tournament were in play. Gdula missed only one of her serves. Cohoon's hitting and blocking made her a standout.

Foster said she was getting frustrated because of the Wolves' third-place finishes in the tournament the last two years.

"It seems like we played well before but couldn't get past the semi-finals," she said. "If you lose in the semis, you have a one-game playoff for third place because the third place team gets medals. I told the kids that if that happened to us again, we'd give the third-place medals to the other team even though we won. I didn't want to come out of there with third again."

Sports

Wrestlers win

The Clarkston Wrestling Club pinned down 10 medals and ribbons at the club's first tournament of the year.

The meet on Jan. 12 in Roseville saw five of the free-style wrestlers place first.

The wrestlers are divided by age, weight and experience.

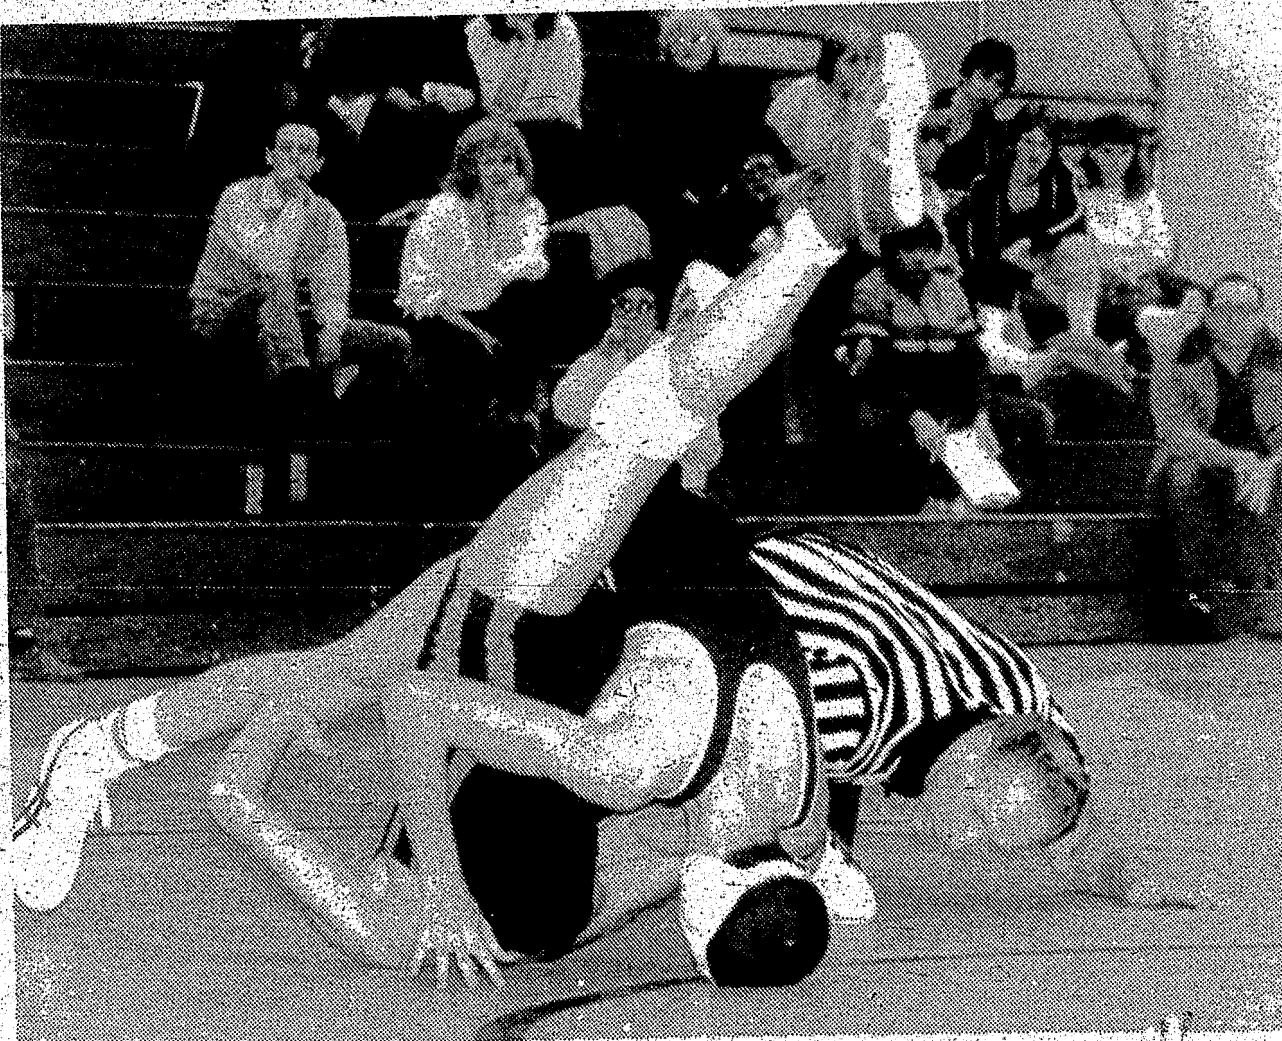

In the 8-year-old and under division, taking first places were Dennis Busch, in the novice division for 50-pounders; and Mark Endreszl in the advanced division for 55-pound wrestlers. Jason Tiefenbach, at 45 pounds, took a second place in novice.

In the 9-10-year-old class, firsts went to novice Corey Grant at 60 pounds and Brent Walter at 55 pounds. Second-place finishes went to novice Jayme Mutter at 55 pounds and novice Bryan Ladd. Taking third places were Chad Granlund at 50 pounds and Eric Endreszl at 70 pounds.

In the 11-12-year-old division, Jeff DeRoseau was first in the 60-pound class, Ruben DeLosRios was second at 108 pounds and Kevin Heidisch was third, also at 108 pounds.

Damon Michelsen at 112 pounds and James Young at 119 pounds each took third in the 13-14-year-old division.

For the 15-16-year-olds, Lyster Ladd finished second at 192 pounds.

This turn of events occurs just moments before Don Spring wins the match under the watchful eye of the referee. Spring is the wrestler with his head on the floor in the foreground.

Grapplers make the grade

By Dan Vandenhemel

The wrestling Wolves just completed a very good week. They won four meets and lost one.

The Clarkston High School grapplers beat Waterford Mott on Jan. 9. Before that, on Jan. 6, the Wolves defeated Grand Blanc, Springfield Christian, Fairlane Christian and lost to Burton-Bendell. The week raised the Wolves' record to 5-6.

A couple of quick pins were featured in the win at Waterford Mott. During the 45-18 win, Don Spring at 112 pounds pinned his opponent in 31 seconds and Rick Sedorchuk at 138 downed his man in 26 seconds.

Others winners against the Corsairs were Brent Gwisdalla, Scott Emery, Mike Noel, Matt Stark and Mike Norman.

Against the four schools on Jan. 6, a number of wrestlers notched multiple victories. Mark Ice and John Knibbs led with three wins while Emery, Stark, Mark Oswald, and Dennis Conway each had two triumphs. Other winners were Jim Tedder, Gary Bosdock, Rob Lund, Jason Kunsu, Brian Fausett, John Mahler, Spring, Gwisdalla, Sedorchuk, Dan Southeaver and Norman.

Wolves' coach Greg Gwisdalla is more than happy with his team's willingness to work hard.

"You can tell we're much improved from last year," said the second-year coach. "Some of the guys are willing to make an effort, to sacrifice and cut the weight. Then again, some of them aren't willing."

Three wrestlers are staying at the top of the win-ing list for the Wolves. Brent Gwisdalla has a 11-5 record, Matt Stark holds an 10-6 mark and Scott Emery is at 8-6.

Emery is the pleasant surprise for the Wolves. "Emery wasn't even a varsity wrestler last year," the coach said. "He's coming along real good."

The Seer

The Seer continues to slip predictions through the mail slot in the front door at The Clarkston News. We found this one Monday morning:

Jan. 17, Waterford Mott at Clarkston—After 10 months of vacation, the Seer has come through for the second straight week, just missing the exact score of last week's game by one point.

There's really no need to attend Friday's game. All you have to do is read this column.

This Friday, Waterford Mott comes to Clarkston High School. No team in Oakland County hustles as hard for 32 minutes as Mott's Corsairs. This is a tribute to their coach, Ray Robinson.

Mott will bring to Clarkston one of Oakland County's top juniors and forwards, Gene Seets. Mott will hold its own up front with Jamie Stowe and Ned Windeler.

The breakdown will occur in the guard position. Ex-Mott player Ed Whitaker will be too much for Mott to handle. Look also for Clarkston's Mike Walters to have a big game.

This game will be tougher than people think, but Clarkston will pull away in the third quarter: Clarkston by 12.

Two CHS juniors push idea

Girls' golf team possible

By Dan Vandenhemel

After a two-year absence, Clarkston High School could be fielding a girls' golf team.

Two juniors, Teresa Hofman and Jenni Hardy, are trying to tee up the idea to school administrators.

"We put a sign-up sheet in the office before Christmas and we got 12 girls who were interested in playing," said Hofman. "There are a lot of girls who don't play basketball or softball but want a chance to get a varsity letter."

Hofman and Hardy started playing golf over two years ago.

"I enjoy playing golf. I think it's fun," Hofman said. "I want to improve my golf game and play competitively."

The girls' golf team's last season was the spring of 1983. The team had existed since 1974.

"The reason the school dropped the sport a couple years ago was because of the lack of interest," Hofman said.

Clarkston athletic director Paul Tungate said that because the sport has been offered in the past, there wouldn't be any trouble starting the program again.

"If there is enough interest, we'll have a team," Tungate said.

To have a team, Tungate said there should be about 10 golfers because of vacations, injuries and players working. Tungate set a deadline of Jan. 31 so he can set up a schedule and get a coach.

"The scheduling wouldn't be a big thing because Pontiac Northern is the only other team in the league that has a team. We'd have to just pick up other schools," he said.

In the past, Spring Lake County Club served as the home turf for the Clarkston High School golf teams. Tungate has not been in contact with owner Dan Fife about the possibility of the team returning.

"Having a golf team isn't expensive," Tungate said. "The school would pay for green fees and some golf balls and the coach's salary. The green fees and equipment would be about $250 and about $500 for a first-year coach."

Jenni Hardy and Teresa Hofman are hoping to rekindle interest at Clarkston High School for a girls' golf team this spring. The last season for a girls' golf team was 1983.

Hit the ice!

Mill pond skating rinks to open

Plans are to open two ice skating rinks on Clarkston's Mill Pond adjacent to the village parking lot at Main and Washington streets.

The rinks, a circular one for free skating and an area for hockey, are a joint effort between the village and township, said Timothy Doyle, director of the Independence Township Parks and Recreation Department.

Once the village DPW crew removes snow with a small tractor, the township crew plans to take over.

"We'll shovel them and rebank them and do whatever is necessary," Doyle said.

Last week, the circular area was cleared and work would be done to smooth the ice underneath, Doyle said.

The township has made an effort to provide cleared ice skating areas over the years, Doyle said. At one time, skating rinks were provided on Deer Lake but the abundance of ice fishing made maintenance difficult, he added.

Women's clothing store planned for Harvey's

By Carolyn Walker

A new clothing store may soon rise from the ashes of the old Harvey's Colonial House.

On Jan. 9, businessman Harvey Render received conceptual site plan approval from the Independence Township Planning Commission to put a clothing store on the Dixie Highway site.

The Colonial House burned in a May 2, 1985, fire, Render said, adding that he intends to replace it with a 2,600-square-foot store that will feature women's clothing and possibly jewelry and cosmetics. He is considering selling men's clothing in the future, he said.

Several stipulations accompanied the preliminary approval including engineering inspection and approval of portions of the old building for incorporation into the new building and increased landscaping. The commission also suggested that Render replace his Harvey's sign with a ground sign.

Footings from the old restaurant remain and are usable, Render said.

After the meeting, Render said he must also go before the zoning board of appeals seeking a request for 22 instead of 26 parking spaces and a variance in the front yard setback requirements. The setback is the distance from the property line to the building's footings.

Construction is planned to begin as soon as he can obtain a building permit, Render said. The permit can not be issued until final site plan approval has been granted by the planning commission.

Render can seek final site plan approval at the Jan. 23 meeting if revised plans are submitted to the township building department by Jan. 13, said Chairman Neil Wallace. Render indicated during the meeting that he would attempt to make the requested revisions soon.

Moving day was Dec. 27 as employees of the 52nd District Court set up shop in the new courthouse off Citation Drive in Independence Township. They made the move from the old building off Dixie Highway just in time for the Dec. 31 occupation deadline. "I told you I'd get it done," said a glowing Charles Bowles, builder of the facility as he surveyed his accomplishments. A few finishing touches on the exterior and interior have yet to be completed, but court is in session.

Microwave-plus

Dieter's best friend

Betty Wagner

One of the most common New Year's resolutions is to lose weight. Even the most conscientious eater among us seems to add a few extra pounds during the holidays.

Enter the microwave oven, one of the dieter's best friends.

Why? Because quick meal preparation leaves less time for snacking on high-calorie foods. Many foods can be tastily prepared without the addition of extra fat. Vegetables retain more nutrition and texture when microcooked. And microwaving meat renders out more fat than conventional roasting and cooking.

After many holiday meals of turkey and ham, it's time to welcome a menu featuring a low-calorie beef dish.

Add one slice of whole wheat bread with a pat of margarine and a tossed green salad with a low-calorie dressing to complete the meal. It all adds up to less than 500 calories.

Cauli-Broccoli Soup

8 servings, about 50 calories per serving

- 1 10-oz. package frozen cauliflower
- 1 10-oz. package frozen chopped broccoli
- 1/2 cup chopped onion
- 2 teaspoons instant chicken bouillon granules
- 1 1/2 cups water
- 1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
- 1 1/2 cups skim milk
- 1 tablespoon cornstarch
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- Dash pepper

Place frozen cauliflower and broccoli and chopped onions in an 8-cup Pyrex measure or 2- to 3-quart round Pyrex casserole dish.

Microwave at high power for 4 minutes. Stir from outside to inside and microwave 4 additional minutes at high power.

Place cooked vegetables in a food processor and process until the mixture is smooth. Add nutmeg and 1 1/2 cups water while processing.

Return vegetables to casserole or Pyrex measure. Combine cornstarch with 1/2 cup milk. Add to vegetables and microwave at high power for 8 minutes, stirring every 2 minutes.

Add remaining 1 cup skim milk and microwave at high power for 4 additional minutes or until serving temperature, stirring every 2 minutes.

Beef and Tomato Curry

Serves 6, about 194 calories per serving

- 1 to 1 1/2 pounds flank or lean round steak, thinly sliced
- 1/4 cup thinly sliced celery
- 1/4 cup chopped onion
- 1/4 cup chopped green pepper
- 1 tablespoon cornstarch
- 1 14 1/2- to 16-ounce can whole tomatoes, juice reserved
- 1 teaspoon curry powder
- 1 teaspoon salt, optional
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper

In a 2-quart casserole, combine steak, celery, onion and green pepper. Microwave at high power for 7 to 11 minutes or until meat is no longer pink and vegetables are tender, stirring 2 to 3 times during cooking.

Blend cornstarch into reserved tomato juice. Add cornstarch mixture, tomatoes, curry, salt and pepper to meat mixture. Stir to break apart tomatoes. Microwave at high 7 to 12 minutes or until meat is tender and flavors blended.*

If desired, serve over 1/2 cup cooked rice. There are about 100 calories per rice serving.

Lime Souffle

Serves 4, about 61 calories a serving

- 1 cup diet lemon-lime soda
- 2 tablespoons cornstarch
- 1 tablespoon lime juice
- 1 tablespoon grated lime peel
- 1 tablespoon fructose
- 2 to 4 drops green food coloring
- 1 egg yolk
- 3 egg whites

In a small bowl or 2-cup Pyrex measure, combine diet soda, cornstarch, lime juice, peel, fructose and food coloring. Microwave at high power for 2 1/2 to 5 minutes or until thickened, stirring 2 or 3 times.

Beat egg yolk in small bowl. Stir 1 tablespoon of hot lime mixture into egg yolk; blend yolk mixture back into hot lime mixture. Set aside.

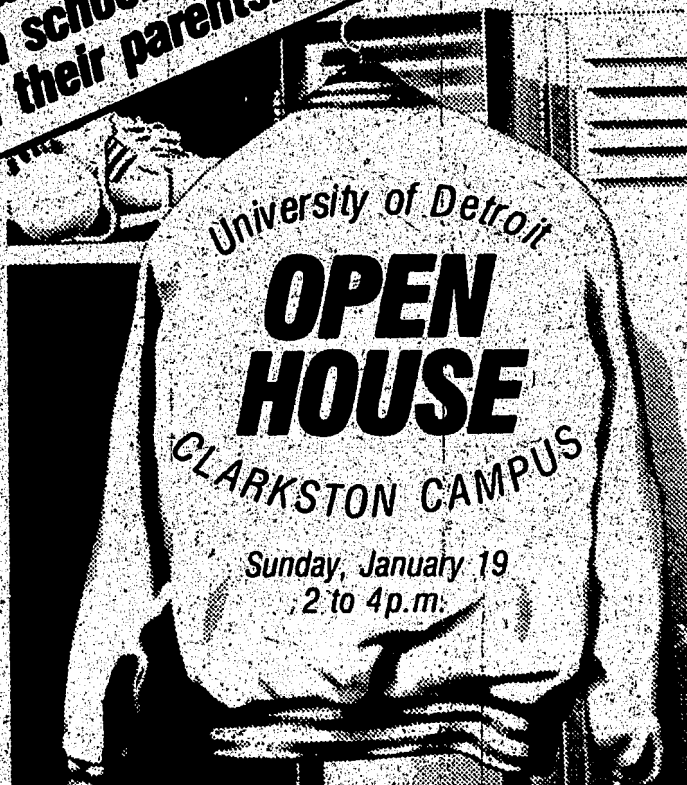

In medium bowl, whip egg whites until soft peaks form. Fold lime mixture gently into whites. Pour into 1-quart casserole.

Microwave at 30 percent power (defrost) for 9 to 12 minutes, or until set, rotating 1/4 turn every 2 minutes. Serve immediately.*

Club notes

The juniors of Chief Pontiac No. 377 American Legion Junior Auxiliary were very busy being Santa's elves.

They took candy, fresh fruit, toys and socks for 40 handicapped boys to the Oakdale Center in Lapeer. Santa Claus accompanied them and presented each boy with a toy. Pizza, punch and cookies were served.

April Reinhardt, senior miss poppy, and Samantha Morley, junior miss poppy, presented the staff with a wreath decorated with poppies. They also presented a wreath to the Battle Creek Veterans Hospital and one to Legion Villa.

The girls also visited their "adopted" grandparents at a local nursing home where they gave gifts, fresh fruit and candy and sang carols. In addition, they took gifts, fruit and candy to the veterans at Clinton Valley.

A party was held at the post home for 140 veterans' children. A play was put on, gifts, candy and fruit were given and cookies, ice cream and hot chocolate were served. Of course, Santa was present. The girls also sent gifts to their "adopted" grandfather, a veteran at Legion Villa.

A Christmas party was held at the home of auxiliary president Bea Hockey, where they had a great time.

The Juniors and Sons of American Legion recently bowled in a Special Education Bowlathon to raise money for handicapped bowlers from local schools. They raised over $1,200. Rick Lund of Drayton Plains raised the most money.

Jr. Miss ready for state finals

By Kathy Greenfield

Clarkston's Junior Miss is ready for the next step—a chance at the Michigan Junior Miss title.

Dana Hocking, who was chosen for the local title Nov. 2, will leave Jan. 20 for a week in Marshall, Mich., and she's looking forward to the experience.

"I'm really excited to meet all the girls. I'm really going to have a fun week," she says.

The only drawback involves a time conflict with finals at Clarkston High School where Dana is a senior. But she's scheduled three tests before she leaves and one when she returns.

"That's an extra headache for me," she says, but adds that it's under control.

In Marshall, Dana will live with a host family for the week. Activities include a tour of the city, career seminars and one day to practice for the Friday and Saturday pageant. Judging for the title is based on scholarship, an interview with judges, a physical fitness routine and a talent presentation.

Dana plans to perform the a jazz dance routine to "Don't Lose My Number" by Phil Collins, the same routine she performed in the Clarkston Junior Miss program.

"I can't consider it a competition. I still can't," says Dana, even though she won the title in Clarkston and $1,425 in scholarships. "Here, it was like just getting together with a group of girls and putting on a show, try to better yourselves by building the girls' confidence and working for scholarship money."

At CHS, Dana is secretary of the senior class, a member of student council and a member of the pom pon squad.

She's active in "anything to do with music," she says, including two dance classes a week and playing the flute, which she does on occasion at her church, Our Lady of the Lakes.

Dana would like to attend the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor and become a psychoanalyst.

"I'm really curious about the mind and why things work like they do," she said. "I'm really excited about college. I went up to U of M this summer and had a really good time, so now hopefully I'll get accepted."

Only a couple of months into her reign as Clarkston's Junior Miss, Dana has been surprised by the amount of time it has taken.

"It doesn't seem like a lot, but it's just all this paperwork you have to do," she says. "I know all my hobbies and everything by heart."

Parents to meet

Are you concerned about your child's choice of friends, curfew, school performance, misuse of privileges, mismanagement of money or moodiness?

Beginning second semester, the SEARCH Program at Clarkston High School will offer a Parent Group on the first and third Wednesdays of each month.

SEARCH has been in operation at CHS for one semester. The primary focus has been to offer education for faculty and students on chemical-related issues such as the effects on schoolwork, families, emotions, motivation and relationships.

Many students have these concerns and, consequently, parents are also dealing with similar issues. It is difficult for parents to know what to do in these situations or know where to go for information.

The first meeting of the Parent Group is planned Feb. 5 at 7 p.m. in Room 323 at the high school.

For more information, call Linc Smith or Katie MacKay at 625-0900, ext. 22, between 7 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. weekdays.

Dana Hocking makes sure to include praise for Barbara Hamaker, chairperson of the Clarkston Junior Miss program. "She does so much work," Dana says. "She's great, she really is."

$5,000 computer purchase planned

Delbridge to Holman. Delbridge to Holman. Those words may soon appear on Independence Township Hall computer screens as Kenneth Delbridge, director of the township building and planning department, becomes the recipient of an IBM Personal Computer.

Following a recommendation by Clerk Richard Holman, the township board voted unanimously Jan. 7 to spend no more than $5,000 for a building department computer.

The purchase is to include a printer and initial software for setting up operations, Holman said.

According to a memo from Delbridge, he expects building and planning department productivity to increase with the computer.

The computer could be used to store licensing files and to track the progress of developers, Delbridge said.

It could also be linked electronically to the township's recently installed System 36 computer.

About $5,000 has already been appropriated for the purchase from the 1986 equipment account and if purchased directly from IBM, as planned, a 30-percent discount would be made available to the township, Delbridge said.

Is it easy to get hooked on cocaine?

*Chemicals Are Trouble. People Are Working.

Copyright 1985 Jeanette Sanders

Dear Cat Paw:

Does marijuana have the same effect on the people that smoke it for medication compared to the people who smoke it for the buzz?

Buzzing

Dear Buzzing:

I am assured by one of our local doctors that it does not. Marijuana is given to cancer patients to ward off nausea from cancer therapy.

They are given marijuana that is grown under controls and is pure (not dipped as street joints are). The quantity of joints is also controlled since the only purpose in smoking marijuana for these patients is to ward off nausea.

Dear Cat Paw:

Does alcohol directly affect your liver?

Slipper

Dear Slipper:

Alcohol can damage the heart, brain, liver and other major organs when taken in large amounts over long periods of time.

Dear Cat Paw:

Is it easy to get hooked on cocaine?

Wondering

Dear Wondering:

Yes. Cocaine addiction is defined by the same behavioral criteria that apply to alcohol and heroin abuse.

- Loss of control—the inability to resist the compulsion to use cocaine.

- Continued use in spite of the consequences—the inability or refusal to resist the compulsion to take cocaine despite damaged or lost relationships, threats of financial ruin, loss of one's job, threat of legal punishment, sickness or even death.

- High involvement with the drug—cocaine becomes the central and most important focus of the addicted user's existence. It is his first priority, above everything, including his own survival.

Dear Cat Paw:

My 22-year-old daughter lives at home. She is unemployed and using all the money we give her for cocaine and other drugs. What can we do?

At Wit's End

Dear At Wit's End:

Stop giving her money for anything. Do it immediately. Since she is living under your roof, you can make the rules. If she doesn't like it, tell her she can leave, but be prepared to follow through.

Dear Cat Paw:

Is it true drugs can affect your memory?

Forgetful

Dear Forgetful:

Yes. Drugs can cause brain damage affecting memory.

Send letters to Cat Paw in care of The Clarkston News, 5 S. Main, Clarkston, MI 48016.

Cat Paw author Jeanette Sanders, a Springfield Township resident, is a member of the Clarkston Area Chemical People, an organization devoted to the prevention of substance abuse among the community's young people.

Reason to like winter

Now that Christmas has passed and the new year has finally started, many people are beginning to think of spring and summer.

Lots of students are getting sick of school and homework and wishing the school year would hurry up and come to an end.

It seems just about the only good thing left that goes with winter is skiing. Many people ski because it is a great time to be with friends and meet new people.

It gives people who don't like winter a reason to enjoy it.

There are many different ski clubs you can join if you're not an experienced skier and would like to take lessons to become better.

If you haven't tried skiing, you should. It can make winter less boring, and it's not as hard as many people think.

Rachel Gianakos, a ninth-grader at Sashabaw Junior High School, is working with The Clarkston News this school year as part of the SJHS mentorship program.

School crossing guards sought

The search is on for a crossing guard and an alternate to escort students across Maybee Road during morning and afternoon school hours.

The Independence Township Board approved the new positions in cooperation with the Clarkston school district but have had no applicants, said Supervisor Frank Ronk.

The job requires three hours of work a day when school is in session, from 8-9:30 a.m. and 3:15-4:45 p.m.

The township is also seeking a second person for backup, Ronk said, because the post should be covered each day.

"It is important that once we commit to the guard program that we have a guard on duty at the proper times each and every day there is school in session," he said.

Anyone wishing to apply for the position should contact Rita at Independence Township Hall, 90 N. Main, Clarkston, between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. (625-5111)

A short training class will be required and the pay is negotiable, Ronk said.

Cash for cards

Junior high school students can win "Cash for Your Heart's Desire" in the latest contest sponsored by the Independence Township Library.

Participants can submit valentines in three categories: using original poetry or an adaptation of a poem, art work, and wit and humor.

A bag of bucks—silver dollars—will be awarded to the winner in each category.

The deadline for entries is Feb. 12. For more contest details, visit the library at 6495 Clarkston Rd.

Experience counts toward high school diploma

New adult education program in Clarkston school district

By Carolyn Walker

Education and life go hand in hand for the students of Clarkston's Adult Performance Level (APL) Classes.

Now in its first year in the Clarkston school system, the APL diploma program incorporates previously gained knowledge and experiences of high school dropouts and gets them back in line for graduation.

By taking advantage of their life experiences, students are not required to meet traditional graduation requirements, although there are several stipulations for program completion, says Marilyn Allyn, adult outreach supervisor. The program has been in existence nationwide for 10 years.

"It's all pertinent to their lives," she says. "Why should an adult sit through three years of school if they already know the information?"

Students entering the program must be at least 20 years old, be able to read at a seventh-grade level, and take five competency tests at the beginning and end of the program. The tests have three levels of performance.

To graduate with a degree from Clarkston High School, students must pass the tests (government, health, consumer economics, occupational knowledge and consumer resources) at level three and do an independent study. They must perform 45 life skills both written and oral. They must also pursue either homemaking, or vocational classes, or SAT or ACT testing and apply for college.

Vocational education credit can be given to students who are employed in their area of choice, Allyn says.

The classes are designed for students who need a lot of requirements to graduate and can take from one semester to one year for completion.

"A lot of this is self-will... the drive," she says, emphasizing that students can work at their own speed, often doing some of the work at home.

In the relaxed atmosphere of teacher Jan Rathburg's day class, several students discuss their reasons for returning to school and why they appreciate the program.

Some are single parents, but all are returning to improve their lives, they say.

"I promised my mom I'd go back," says Pam Bennett, who quit school and married in her teens and is now the mother of two. "It makes me feel good. You can work it around your own schedule."

Mother Joy Jidas tells a similar story. "It took me two years to decide (to come back) because I don't have any confidence in myself," she says. "This class has given me some. I had mixed feelings. School was never this much fun."

Sandy Drew agrees, "It's all everyday education that we've been through some time in our lives," she says, adding that she and her fellow students have taken field trips to funeral homes, savings and loans, car dealerships, real estate offices and the like.

On the trips, students are required to go through the motions of taking out loans, purchasing cars and other activities they might be faced with in their lifetimes. They must also apply for credit, learn about income tax forms and study American history.

After graduation the students are ready to face the world, their chosen careers or college, according to Allyn.

They have solid reading and writing skills, interviewing abilities, and a boost to their self-esteem, she says.

The women agree that school enhances their personal lives and their confidence.

To shovel or not to shovel?

Independence ponders the question

By Carolyn Walker

Snow and ice covered safety paths were the source of a 30-minute debate between township board members and a resident last week.

At the Jan. 7 board meeting, Frank Campanaro of Mt. Tremblant Road requested that the township adopt a policy for maintaining safety paths during the winter.

But the board, concerned about a potential for lawsuits and high maintenance costs, would make no commitment pending review of the issue by the safety path committee.

At the board's direction, the committee is to look into potential maintenance costs following written advisement from attorney Gerald Fisher about possible legal ramifications.

"They're neglected all winter long," Campanaro told the board, adding that a lack of plowing defeats the safety paths' purpose by forcing residents to walk in the streets.

"I don't understand it at all," he said.

Fisher responded that by assuming responsibility for the paths' clearing the township could become legally liable.

Snow clearing could lead to a need for salting ice-covered paths, said Fisher, emphasizing that many lawsuits have been instituted statewide by people who have been injured in falls on ice.

"Are you saying that a lack of maintenance is a prevention of a lawsuit?" Campanaro asked. "It doesn't make sense to me. Isn't it a policy that when you build something, you maintain it?"

Campanaro went on to say that other municipalities such as Rochester Hills and the Village of Clarkston clear their safety paths.

The discussion ended when the board unanimously approved a motion to have the matter considered by the safety path committee.

CPR classes offered

CPR classes are available the third and fourth Thursdays of each month from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Pontiac.

Class size is limited and advance registration is required.

125- CARD OF THANKS

A THANK YOU to all our friends who sent such lovely cards and letters for our 50th Wedding Anniversary! It's really wonderful to know there is still so much love and caring for friends. We enjoyed our many years of living in Lake Orion and making so many friends. Now, enjoying our new home here in Florida with so many wonderful friends. This was an occasion that you have to experience to appreciate. We cannot begin to express our appreciation to all for sharing and making our Anniversary a truly memorable event. It was so thoughtful of our family to announce it in the Review. Once again we thank you for caring. Ray and Dorothy Simms. ILLX2-1*

Two sessions are planned on Thursday, Jan. 23, from 10 a.m. to noon and from 1 to 3 p.m. The fee is $3 a person.

The program provides basic lessons for beginners. Rental equipment will be available.

Ski clinics are also planned for seniors Wednesday, Jan. 15, at White Lake Oaks near Pontiac.

In addition, clinics for the blind are planned Jan. 25 and Feb. 8 from 1 to 3 p.m. at Glen Oaks in Farmington Hills. The fee is $2.

People interested in volunteer work are needed for the Haven center, Oakland County's only domestic violence and sexual assault counseling center.

Volunteers are needed in the following areas: telephone crisis work, clerical work, individual counseling, group counseling, working with children, presenting sexual abuse programs to Oakland County schools, making presentations and speeches to community organizations and clubs, and victim advocacy.

Screening is under way for the next volunteer training program to begin Jan. 17.

Activities of the "Young at Heart Group" begin at 10 a.m. and continue into the afternoon. Highlights of this month's weekly meetings include guest speakers on back problems and a Caribbean cruise with slides, a potluck luncheon and bingo games.

A new group is in the planning stages. Called GOALS (Getting on After Losing a Spouse), the group is expected to meet once a month. Persons wishing to help get the group started or to share ideas should call.

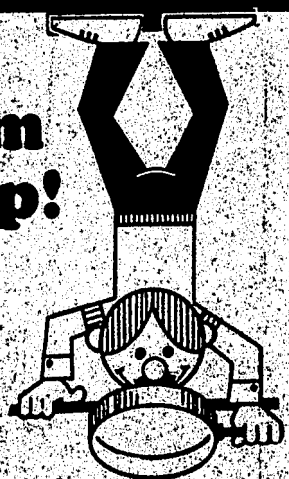

The center is still in need of many items including serving utensils, pots and pans and craft materials.

Space camp adventure:

An 'I'd love to be an astronaut' dream come true

By Carolyn Walker

Barbara Koscak never really went up. But for a woman with her feet on the ground, she is mighty high.

She's a graduate of the Adult United States Space Camp in Huntsville, Ala. She's got her wings and she's proud of them.

The holidays are in the air as Koscak, 35, welcomes a visitor to her newly built Independence Township home. She greets her visitor while wearing an official, blue NASA space suit.

Her visitor speaks: "Tell me what it was like." And Koscak goes off into an hour-long dissertation on her love of the American space program.

She recites a litany of wishes that included wanting to become an astronaut (and considering a more practical position as stewardess) before opting for marriage, motherhood and a teaching career.

"Wanting to go in space would be my ultimate thrill," she says.

"It all started when I was 12 years old in 1962. I wrote to NASA and asked them what I needed to become an astronaut." They responded that women were not being considered for their program at that time.

"So then I thought, 'OK, I'll be a stewardess.' But then I met a husband who was in the Air Force and followed him instead."

Eventually, Koscak became an elementary school teacher before registering for a course in aero-space education at Oakland University in 1985.

"It was so-o-o inspiring. It was so-o-o exciting," she says, looking skyward. She and her fellow students learned to build kites, rockets and paper planes and to send them aloft, she says.

She then accompanied fellow teacher Mary Serzke to Huntsville Oct. 13-15 after learning of the camp from her professor Dr. David Housel.

"It was probably one of the greatest experiences I have been through," she says. "It was so unique."

The camp, held at the Alabama Space and Rocket Center, was originally designed for children. But response was so terrific among parents that a three-day program was later added for adults.

Forty adults go through the space program at a time. They are divided into two teams of 20 and put through the rigors of space travel and mission control. Each team experiences the two facets including making decisions about life-threatening, computerized problems.

Lift-off, a space walk to build a tetrahedron (Tinker Toy-like space station), weightlessness and other outer-space sensations are simulated, she says, adding that each participant is assigned a role based on ability.

Koscak was a pilot on the Discovery mission, the second in command.

"I was nervous and afraid," she says. "I felt that I was taking the whole mission on my shoulders. You must do the equipment or you blow up and fail. The mission was three hours long."

After safely returning to Earth, Koscak's team of three men and 17 women performed the tasks of ground control.

"Something I was very proud of... our discovery group worked as a team. There was such a oneness between us in our group. It takes everybody to do their part to get that shuttle up and back safely," she says.

In real life 400,000 people are involved in a single space mission from astronauts to maintenance workers, she adds.

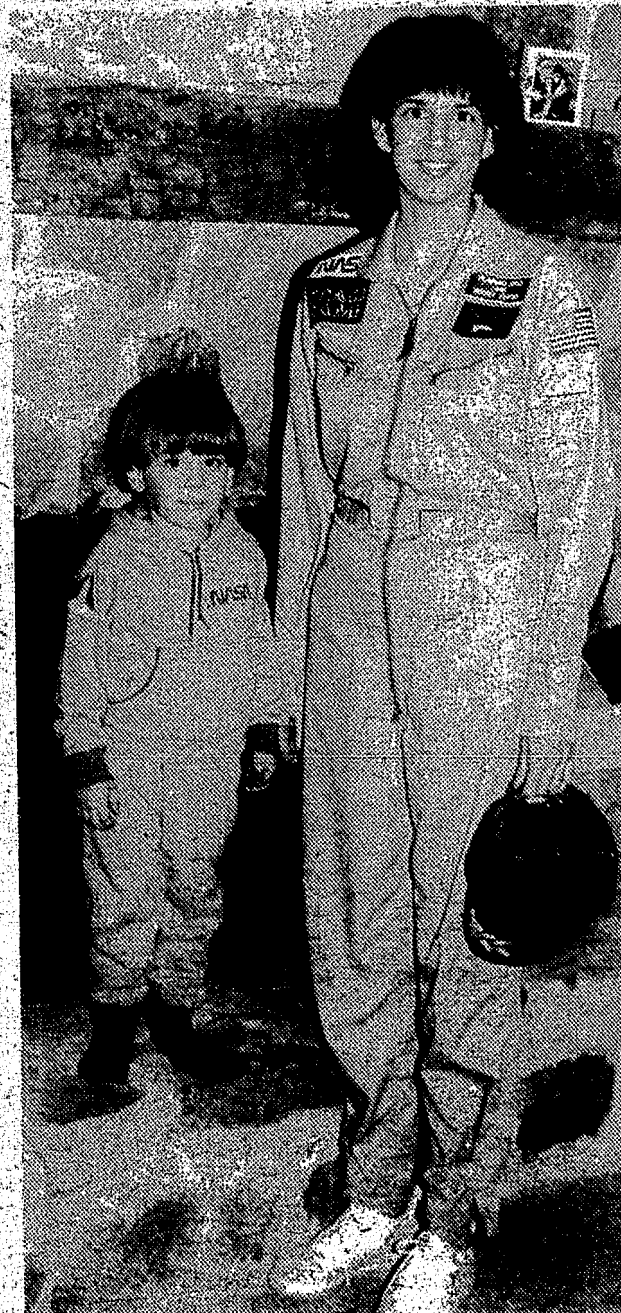

Koscak was sent to space camp by the Utica school district, where she teaches second grade at Schuchard Elementary School.

She now shares her enthusiasm with her pupils who, she says, have grown up experiencing space flight as a natural part of television events.

Koscak is attempting to teach them an appreciation for all the space program entails from balloon travel, to Russian cosmonauts who reportedly died in space, to moon landings and space shuttles.

"I can remember praying in front of the television when (first United States astronaut) Alan Shepard was up," she says, adding that her students take space travel for granted. "How sad that they don't have this feeling of how many people sat in front of television praying for the astronauts."

"We've got to educate the children."

"Everything is Velcro in space," says Barbara Koscak, who poses here in her NASA space suit with her son, Keith. Koscak applied to be the first teacher in space but did not get the appointment.
