Governor picks Kammer for DNR

By Kathy Greenfield

Kerry Kammer, a former state senator, has been appointed to the seven-member Natural Resources Commission, which oversees the Michigan Department of Natural Resources.

Kammer learned of the appointment Jan. 16 when Gov. James Blanchard telephoned his Springfield Township home.

"He asked me if I was still interested. I assured him I was," said Kammer. "It's one of the more prestigious assignments in Lansing and I feel flattered by his confidence in me."

The commission is a civilian body that establishes natural resource policies for the state, Kammer said.

It meets formally once a month with special meetings scheduled as necessary. Kammer will be paid per meeting.

"I'm not even sure what (the pay) is," Kammer said. "I'd be very surprised if I get two or three thousand dollars a year."

Natural resources have long been an interest of Kammer's. While a state senator, he was responsible for the establishment of the Kammer Land Trust Fund for purchasing environmentally significant property and was chairperson of the committee that oversaw the DNR budget.

He also sponsored the Wetlands Protection Bill and the WORC Opportunity Resource Bill, which put young people to work on state property.

In addition, Kammer is an avid sportsman with interests ranging from bass fishing (he was the state champion two years ago) to bow hunting.

Preserving Michigan's natural resources for present and future generations is important, Kammer said.

"We have exceptional natural resources in this state and I want to see them continue to be protected," he said.

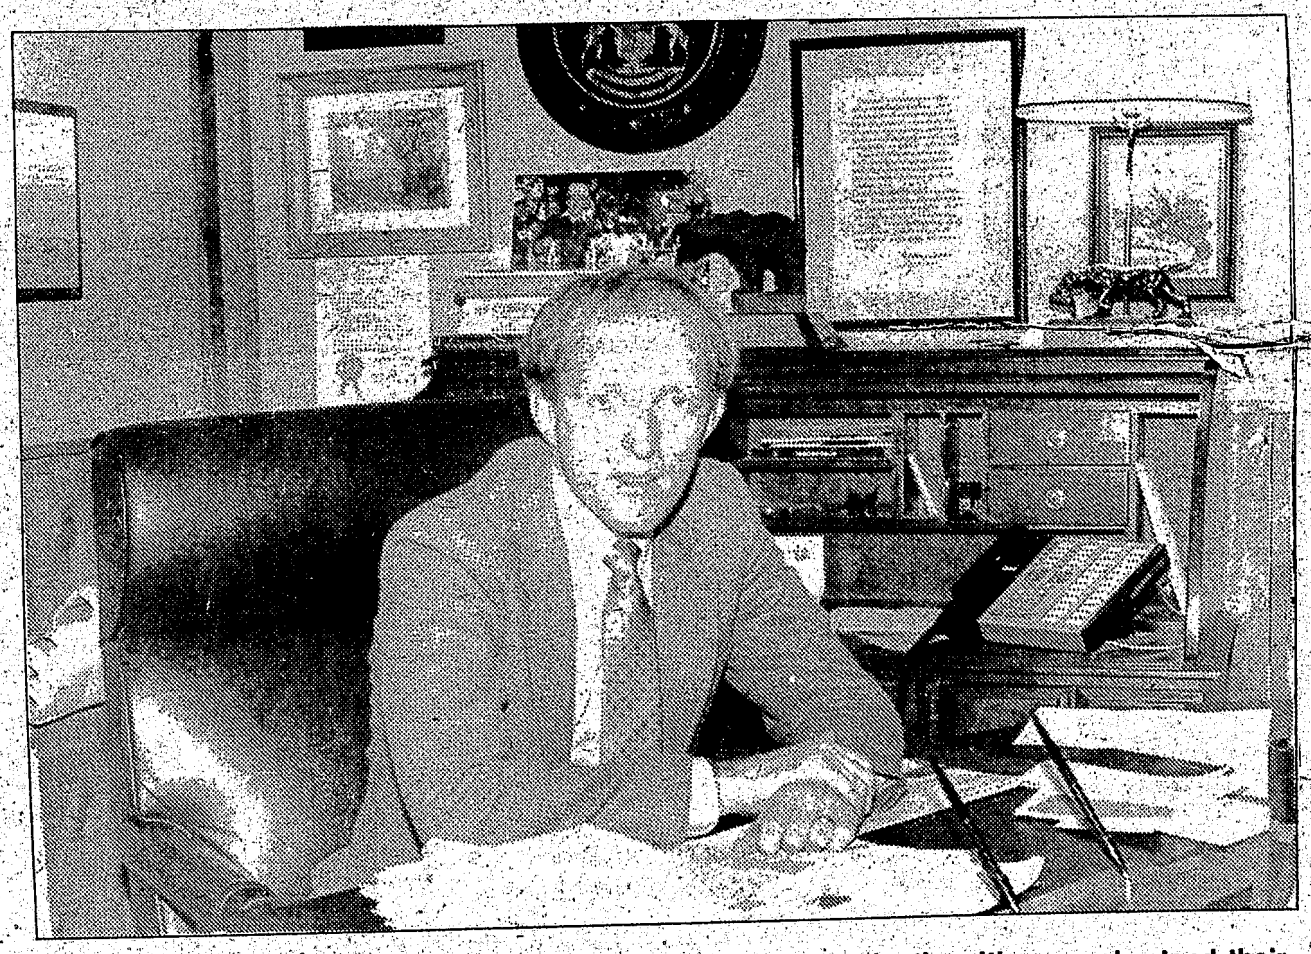

The DNR is unlike any other state agency, Kammer said, because it includes such diverse responsiblities as cutting snowmobile trails, toxic waste, fish contamination, licensing charter boat captains, planting fish and tracking moose.

"I'm going to try to help the governor in terms of making the DNR a model for natural resource departments across the country," he said. "It's not just an appointment to me, it's an appointment in an area I have a special fondness for. I'm very much excited about it."

Kammer will fill the unexpired term of former state senator Stephan Monsma of Grand Rapids, who resigned upon accepting a state Department of Social Services post.

He will become the fourth Democrat on the commission, which, by law, can have no more than four members from one political party. Rounding out the commission are one Republican and two independents.

[See KAMMER, Page 12]

One goal Kerry Kammer has as a new member of the Michigan Natural Resources Commission is to "make the citizens understand their input is important."

11 tied to township break-ins

By Carolyn Walker

The recent arrests of six adults and five juveniles should contribute to a dramatic decrease in the number of Independence Township break-ins, said Lt. Glenn Watson of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

The 11 were arrested during the past two weeks after being trailed by officers from the Oakland County Sheriff's Department and Michigan State Police.

"(The arrests will) probably almost eliminate your break-ins," Watson said.

There were 40 break-ins in Independence in December, "which was a h--- of an increase," he said.

Arrested were Gary Saintamant, 19, of Waterford; Darren Goodman, 17, of Pontiac; Denny McCowan, 17, of Pontiac; Michael P. Powers, 19, of Pontiac; Terry L. Garten, 19, of Waterford and Timothy T. Henry, 18, of Independence Township.

They have all been connected to break-ins in the Independence/Springfield area and were arrested after an investigation by Det. Doug Hummel. Five juveniles were also arrested.

Saintamant, Goodman and McCowan were arrested by a surveillance team after they broke into a Scott Road, Springfield Township, residence on Jan. 10.

Garten and Powers were arrested Jan. 13 after they had allegedly broken into a residence in Lapeer County, Watson said. They had been involved in a subsequent auto accident and were arrested when property, allegedly stolen, was found in their car, he added.

Henry was arrested by Oakland County deputies on Jan. 16, after Michigan State Police assisted in trailing him.

All have been arraigned before 52nd District Court Judge Gerald McNally and are currently being held in the Oakland County Jail on bonds ranging from $35,000 to $200,000, Watson said.

Caverly continues caring crusade

By Kathy Greenfield

In what she calls a "continuation of trying to get safety for our area," Iva Sommers Caverly has started another petition drive.

This time, Caverly is gathering signatures of support for completion of the I-75/Sashabaw cloverleafs and for a full traffic signal to replace the caution signal at M-15 and Waldon Road.

Caverly's last petition drive involved a request for a traffic signal at Sashabaw and Waldon roads. Caverly and friends gathered 3,664 signatures for that project. She presented the petitions to the township board, which in turn submitted them to the Oakland County Road Commission.

The Waldon-Sashabaw traffic light began operating Jan. 16.

Caverly said she plans to conduct her latest petition drive in similar fashion, with petitions "anyplace that will take them. There were 50 different places and people last year."

And she plans to work on the project until "I run out of energy," she said. "I never have been one (who keeps) quiet to get what I want. My mother said I talked before I walked and I never quit."

Caverly is a life-long resident of the community. She graduated from Clarkston High School in 1939 and her parents lived in Springfield Township from the territory days, she said.

A former teacher, she attended Michigan State Normal College. Among her fondest memories are taking flying lessons and co-owning an airplane with a friend in 1944.

Over the years, she's been active in the community. She's written petitions for other causes including one with 800 signatures gathered in eight days asking that surplus money in Independence Township be used to pay the sewer ad valorem tax.

Caverly also helped get signatures on petitions asking the state Legislature to remove sales tax on food. And she ran for the Clarkston board of education twice.

For her latest project, Caverly said she needs volunteers to gather signatures and support from members of the community by signing them.

The petitions read: "We, the undersigned, petition the Oakland County Road Commissioners and the State Highway Department to complete the I-75-Sashabaw colverleafs and to replace the M-15-Waldon caution light with a full traffic signal.

"We plead such—because the 1985-86 traffic has so greatly increased in Independence Township that we need more help in its management before any more are maimed and/or killed."

Because the petitions are making a request, anyone can sign them, said Caverly.

"They don't have to be voters or live in the area," she said. "They just have to be alive and want to stay that way."

Those who wish to help can contact Caverly at 625-2465.

Correction

An article in the Jan. 15 issue of The Clarkston News should have said if pay rates for Independence Township Board members are changed by a vote of the board, the new rates would become effective on a date set by board members. The raises would not be retroactive to Jan. 1, 1986.

Upgrading CHS football field and track OK'd

By Kathy Greenfield

The go-ahead to renovate Clarkston High School's football field and running track at an estimated cost of $132,000 was granted by the board of education Jan. 13.

In a 5-0 vote, the board approved hiring Anderson Lesniak & Associates of Royal Oak, a landscape architecture firm, to draw the plans, prepare specifications, take bids and oversee the project.

Once the work is completed, the field will only be used for actual meets and performances. Practice sessions for the band and athletic teams will be banned, said Superintendent Milford Mason.

"If you're going to protect the investment, it's going to be necessary," he told the board.

The field work would include the addition of fill and top soil, storm drainage, field sodding and an automatic sprinkler system, for a total estimated cost of $86,300.

In addition, maintenance costs will increase, Mason said.

"It's not a matter of throwing a couple hands of grass seed. It will really require semi-professional help to keep it maintained," he said.

Track work estimates for patching, resurfacing and relining totaled $20,000.

Mason indicated that the estimates could be high. When bids are taken for the work and approved by the school board, the actual cost will be known, he said.

Work is expected to begin in the springtime with completion in time for fall sports.

As a result, the girls' soccer team games and boys' and girls' track meets this season will be scheduled at schools in other districts.

During discussion, it was noted that the track team will probably have to practice at a neighboring school district.

"If we take the position the track is unsafe to use, then there's no other answer," said Mason.

Also discussed was the possiblity of improving the parking lot adjacent to the football field.

"It seems a shame to have a terrific field and parking in the mud," said board member John Needham.

Major changes to the parking area are not planned, Mason said, because the master plan calls for it to be used as a practice field, but grading would be possible.

Money for the field and track renovations will come from the district's general fund equity. The expenditure will lower the equity to about $1.2 million, said William Jackson, district financial manager. The figure is the surplus amount the board has agreed to maintain in order avoid borrowing money between tax collections.

New building planned for Clarkston

By Carolyn Walker

A new building may soon overlook downtown Clarkston from the site of the historic Plum House on Main Street.

On Jan. 13, representatives of the Commercial Property Investment Group presented plans for the proposed facility to the village council.

They were directed to the planning commission, where they must obtain variances, said President Carol Eberhardt.

The group intends to demolish the house to make way for a proposed 1,000-square-foot, office/retail building, said David Plautz, spokesperson for the group.

They have no projected date for construction because they must obtain parking variances and site plan approval and work with the Clarkston Community Historical Society, said Plautz, who would not release the names of his partners.

Plautz is the former owner of the Pine Knob Professional Plaza and the Clarkston Professional Center.

The Plum House, a 660-square-foot former residence has housed businesses in the past and now stands vacant. It has been condemned, said Phyllis Braun of Max Broock Realty. Braun handled the sale of the property, which had been on the market for over one year.

The purchase of the site by the investment group is contingent upon village approval of their plans, she said.

Vice presidency goes to Place

Carolyn Place was elected vice president of the Clarkston board of education Jan. 13.

The election followed the acceptance of David Kithil's resignation in a 4-0 vote and the swearing in of Kithil's successor, John Needham.

Kithil resigned the post because of a job promotion with Eastman Kodak Co. and a planned move to the firm's Rochester, N.Y., office.

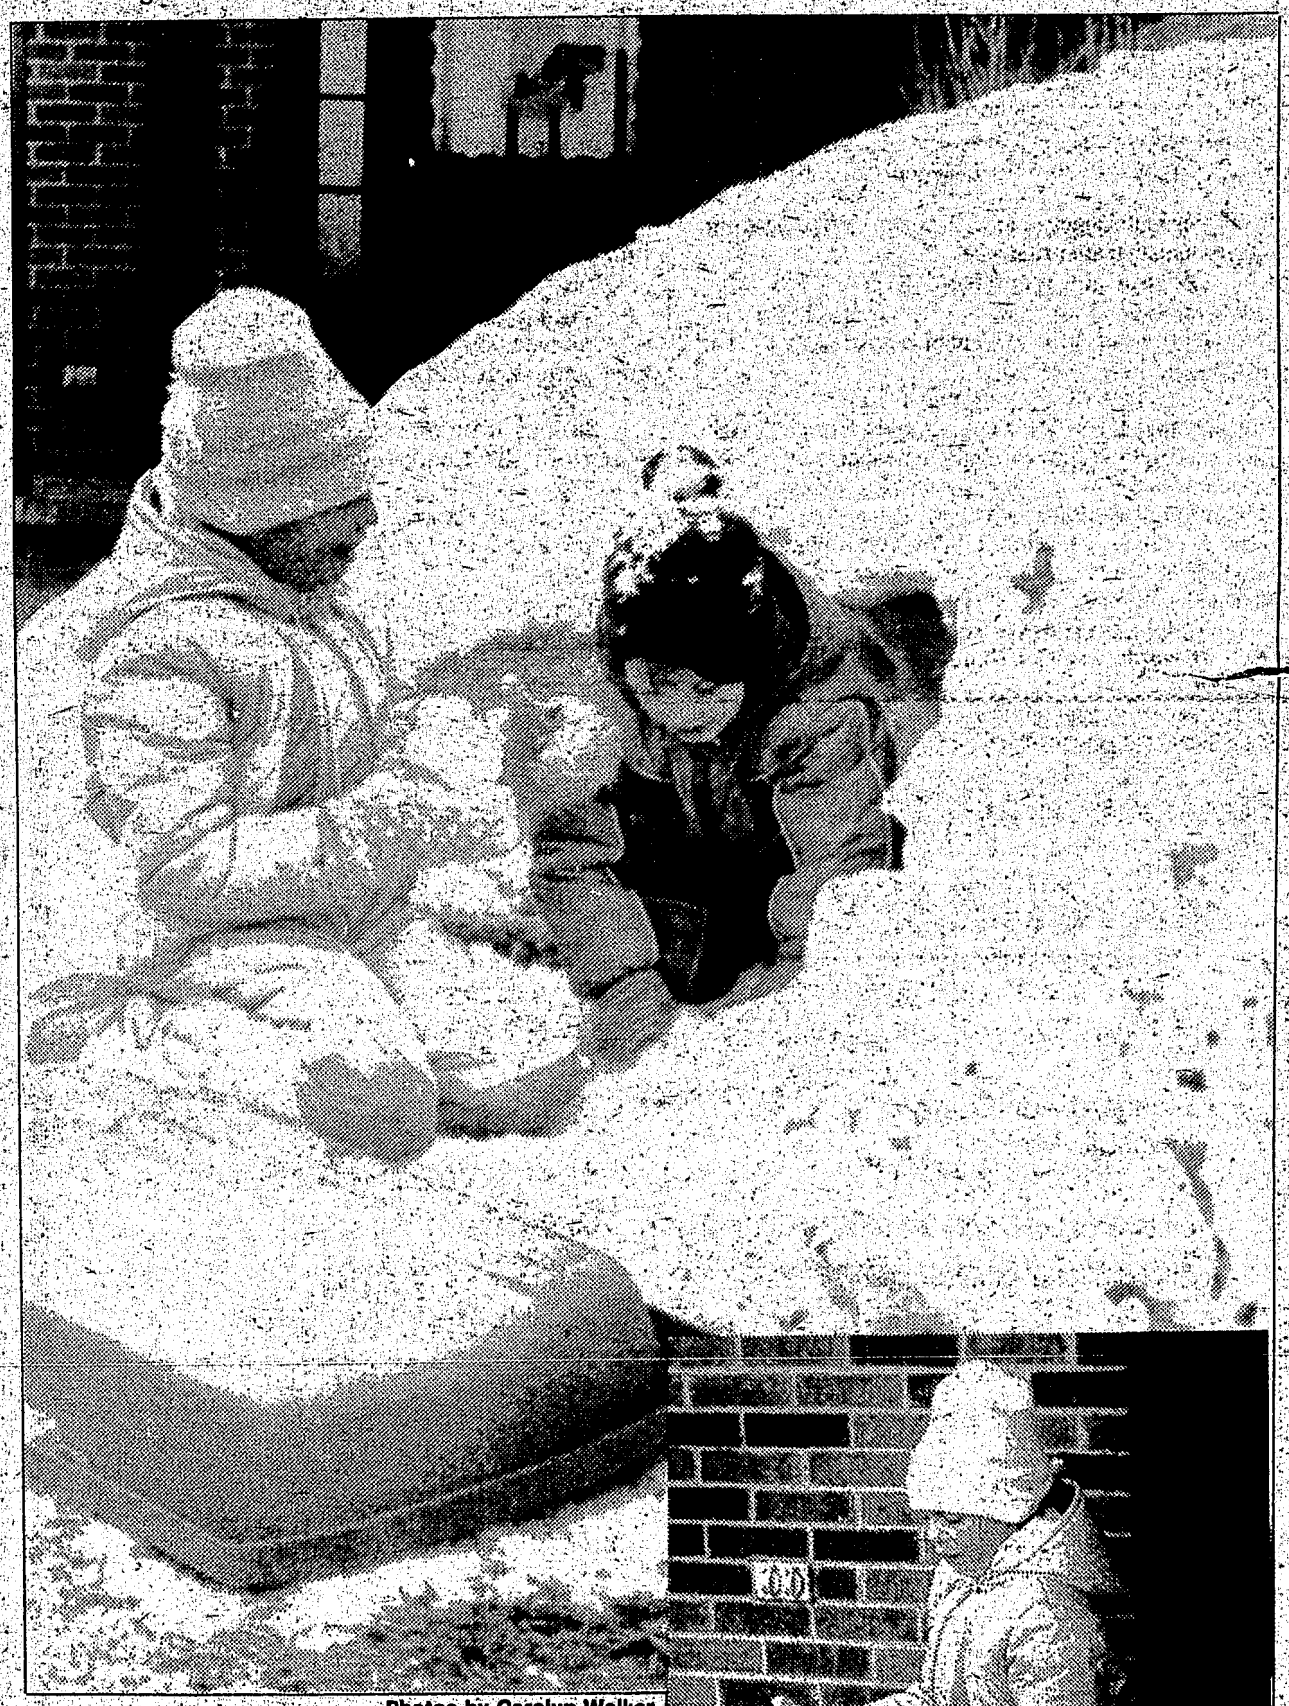

Needham was selected to replace Kithil at a special board meeting Jan. 6. His appointment is in effect until the June school election when the remaining two years in Kithil's four-year term will be on the ballot.

The school board's officers are elected by the board each year. Because Kithil was vice president, the board filled the vacancy his resignation created.

Board member Stephen Werner made the motion nominating Place for school board vice president.

"She is one of the board members with a great deal of experience and I think she could capably serve in (board President Janet Thomas') absence," Werner said.

The board agreed in a 5-0 vote.

Winter remains

A warm spell over the weekend melted most of the area's snow. But an igloo in the Independence Township yard of Holly and Joshua Holewinski was spared. The two engage in a little mischief, like brothers and sisters do, before Holly returns to the front porch and her new puppy, Ginger. Ginger doesn't venture off the porch. Perhaps she likes the view better from Holly's lap.

S'no place to ride snowmobiles

By Carolyn Walker

Winter brings snow, and with it snowmobiles and problems for the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

Although snowmobiles are plentiful in the county, places to ride them legally are not, said Sgt. Charles Williams of the traffic division.

"You can't ride a snowmobile much of anyplace in Oakland County," he said. "Down here, ... there is no place to ride a snowmobile unless you have permission."

Only a handful of state parks offer riding facilities, he said, adding that snowmobiles can be legally driven on the snowmobiler's property or lakes where it is not necessary to trespass in gaining access.

It is illegal to ride the machines on roads, road right-of-ways, sidewalks, public property or within 100 feet of a fishing shanty or skaters, he said.

Children under age 12 operating snowmobiles must have the direct supervision of a parent or legal guardian, Williams said.

Youths between ages 12 and 16 must operate their vehicles under the direct supervision of an adult and have a snowmobile certificate. They must be on their own property or property where they have obtained written permission to ride.

Williams says the proliferation of snowmobiles is a real problem for sheriff's officers. Many people buy them without realizing there are few places to ride them, he says.

Violators face not only a citation, but having their vehicles impounded and storage fees charged against them, he added.

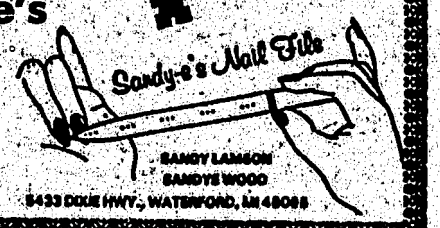

In addition to riding machines where they are not allowed, snowmobilers can be cited for reckless driving or disturbing the peace if they are riding in subdivisions or neighborhoods, he said.

3 seek council trustee position

Three Village of Clarkston residents are being considered to replace Trustee David Raup on the village council.

Raup's resignation from his post, which he has held for four years, was official Jan. 13. He announced his resignation in December, citing business and time restraints as his reasons for stepping down.

Being considered as his replacement are Don Borngesser, a Buffalo Street resident; William Basinger, an East Washington Street resident; and Douglas Roeser of East Church Street.

A decision is to be made at the Jan. 27 meeting, said President Carol Eberhardt. Other interested residents can apply for the position before then, she said.

Eberhardt will make a single recommendation from those indicating an interest and the council will then approve or reject her recommendation, she said.

The appointment runs the duration of Raup's two-year term. Raup was re-elected last April.

Kammer great commission choice

Our congratulations to Kerry Kammer on being appointed to the Natural Resources Commission.

Too, our congratulations to Gov. Jim Blanchard on appointing a person so qualified to this post.

It is all too often that a political appointment is made only to satisfy the 'party'. The Natural Resources Commission membership is made up to allow such a division . . . four from one party is permitted.

And, while Kammer is a Democrat (former state senator and candidate for governor in 1982) and will be considered a political appointment, his background is strongly for preserving Michigan's natural resources.

His leadership in the senate brought about the Kammer Land Trust Fund for purchasing environmentally significant property, such as the parcel on M-24 in Lake Orion, now being considered for a jail. If the jail is located elsewhere it'll be due to the Kammer Land Trust Fund purchase.

Kammer's interests in the outdoors are the same as most of us who hunt, fish, stroll, observe, and smell out-of-doors. He wants clean air, land and water. He wants us to enjoy the seasonal activities.

He wants the land preserved so generations yet to come can enjoy it just as much as we have.

If we were in a position to appoint a person to one of the seven positions on the Natural Resources Commission (they oversee the DNR), we'd want them all to be like Kerry Kammer. JAS

Food for thought

Kathy Greenfield

The other night we were straining our brains, trying to think of a Michigan food specialty while sitting in a restaurant.

All native Michiganders know about Vernors gingerale, Sanders hot fudge and Faygo red pop, but the task at hand was to think of a luncheon or dinner dish found at restaurants in the area and unsurpassed anywhere else in the country.

We could think of foods we couldn't go without in other states and cities, but aside from the Michigan pastie, which is not available nearby other than in frozen food departments of grocery stores, we had problems.

We started considering what grows here—apples, cherries, potatoes, sugar beets, beans . . . and gave up.

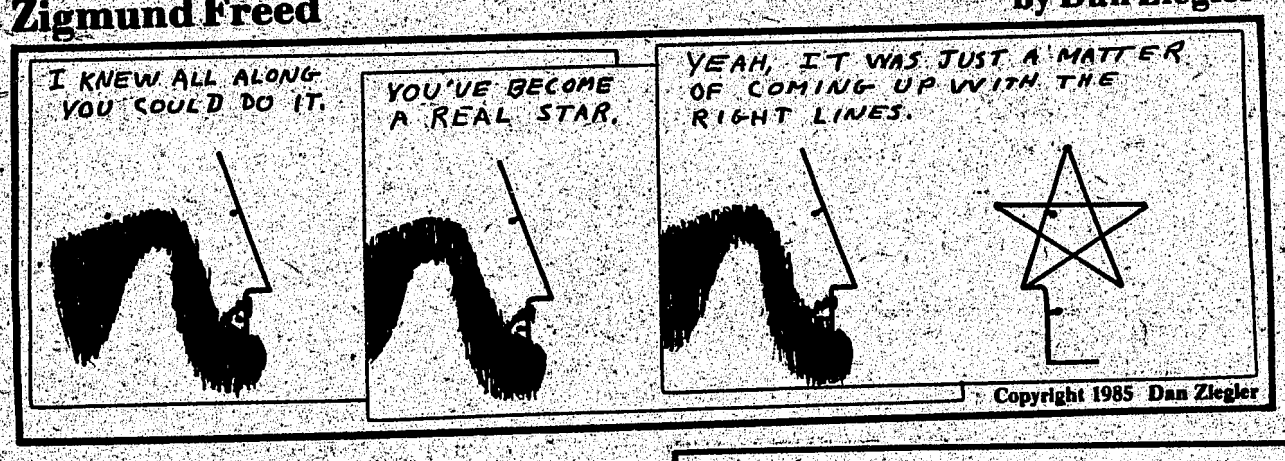

The dinner entrees aside, apple pie is American, ditto cherry pie. Think potatoes and Idaho comes to mind. Boston bakes beans. And sugar is used everywhere.

We passed by venison and rabbit dishes because they are uncommon favorites and decided lake fish falls into the category of most "seafood"—it's flown in fresh all over the place.

A few days later, we considered apples anew. Cider, we decided, is popular and prolific in this part of the state. And there, sitting in a bowl on my kitchen counter, were some grand examples of red delicious apples.

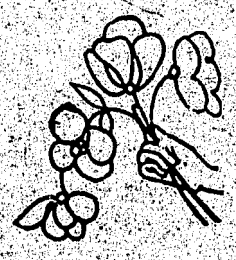

Each wore a tiny label. A closer look. A groan. The apples were from the state of Washington.

Religious freedom threatened

Editor's note: Dr. Paul Vanaman is the president of the Michigan Association of Christian Schools. He is the pastor of Dixie Baptist Church and director of the Springfield Christian Academy, both located on Dixie Highway in Springfield township.

By Dr. Paul Vanaman

The Michigan Supreme Court is, currently, determining its decision upon a case which will, I believe, have extensive consequences upon the cause of religious freedom.

Involved is the "Bridgeport Case." The First Baptist Church and Sheridan Road Baptist Church, both of Bridgeport, conduct, as extensions of their ministries, a Christian day school.

Over five years ago, the Michigan Department of Education attempted to enforce upon these churches the exclusive hiring of state certified teachers. Failing to comply meant the schools must close their doors, they were told.

These churches, in turn, sued the Department of Education for the right to hire teachers who meet the religious, moral and educational qualifications of the churches and to keep their doors open. The Michigan Supreme Court is determining if they have this right.

Our most precious national document guarantees that right. "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof."

The schools involved at Bridgeport cannot be separated, severed or divorced from the overall ministry of these churches since they represent the "free exercise" of religion.

We believe God to be the Author of all truth. Education is the teaching and learning of truth. Jesus said, "Go and teach all nations." He authorized Christians to teach. Nowhere in the Bible does God authorize the state to teach.

The state may teach, but Jesus, whom we believe is God incarnate, commanded the church to teach—and that includes all truth in, no matter, whatever area.

All truth comes from God and relates to God. It is to be taught and learned so that He may be glorified through the one in possession of truth.

Teachers are the key to education. No teacher can teach without imparting the values he has accumulated.

Those trained in state schools are subject to the values of state schools. It is just as impossible for a school to be neutral toward God as it is for an individual.

Jesus said, "If you are not for Me, you are against Me." The U.S. Supreme Court has ordered God out of the public schools, including colleges and universities. The values system of humanism has filled the void.

Certification in Michigan requires credentials from an accredited school where the values of humanism predominate. The values of God and humanism are incompatible.

Why must churches be shackled with a law which inhibits the free exercise of religion and forces upon them teachers who have been trained in a values system which rapes the consciences of those who chose Biblical values?

Now, if you wish to compare results and effects, we are happy to do so.

Students in Christian schools consistently score a higher average in standardized tests than their counterparts in public schools.

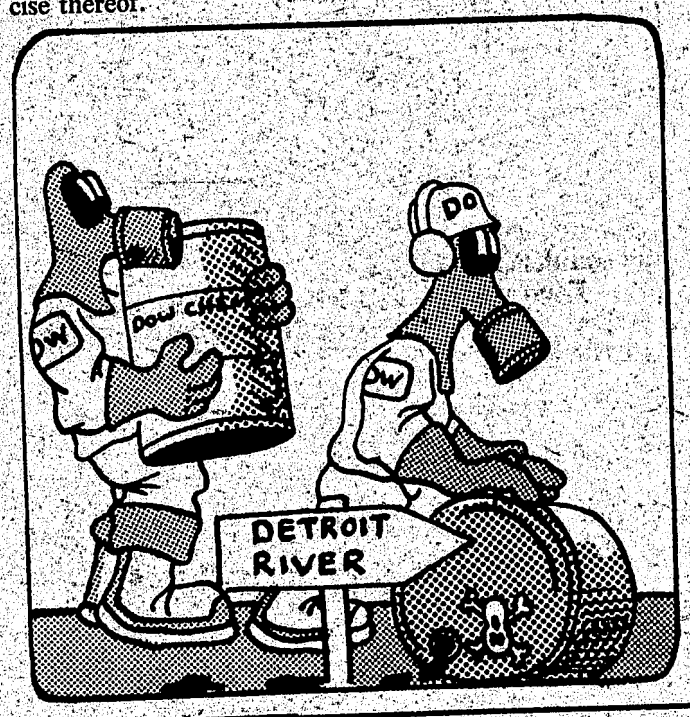

If teacher certification is the guarantee to quality education, then how is the lower performance in public schools to be explained?

We are convinced that quality of education is not the reason teacher certification is forced upon us, but rather, state control.

If removing religion from public schools is separation of church and state, then, in the name of right and fairness, should not the removal of state entanglement into a church's ministry be considered the same?

Should it not be as rigidly enforced?

If the state reserves the right to restrict the values of Christianity from its schools, is there, then, no right reserved to a church to restrict humanistic values from its schools?

VCR craziness

Jim Fitzgerald

"I did it to make my wife crazy."

That's what I say when people ask why I finally bought a videocassette recorder. I once wrote I'd never own a VCR because I'd rather see movies in theaters, and there's nothing on TV that I mind missing.

But I didn't get a VCR to make tapes for later viewing of shows originally telecast while I'm sleeping. If a show is any good, it will be rerun for endless summers, from here to eternity (starring Brooke Shields and Montgomery Clift), so who needs homemade tapes?

Also, for me, an evening at the theater, followed by dinner and a piano bar, remains eminently preferable to small-screen viewing and indiscreet scratching at home.

ADMITTEDLY, I RENTED several bags of movies my first week as a VCR operator. For $3, instead of an $80 night out on the town, I finally discovered why critics called "Heaven's Gate" the most expensive and irritating flop in the history of super-pretentious movies. That is exactly what it is.

For a similar bargain price, I also discovered why Elmore Leonard warned me not to waste money on the movie that actor-director Burt Reynolds made from Leonard's fine novel "Stick." For what Reynolds did to "Stick," it would be a worthwhile public service if he fell deep into his own smirk and was never seen again.

However, I didn't purchase a VCR to gain cheap access to worthless movies. I did it in emulation of a good old movie - "Gaslight" - in which Charles Boyer tried to drive his wife crazy so she'd be institutionalized and he'd be free to hang around poolrooms.

The way I make my wife crazy is to spend $500 in five minutes. I bought the first VCR the Highland Appliance salesman showed us. I don't believe in wasting time shopping. I once bought an Oldsmobile in three minutes. It takes my wife three weeks to pick out a pack of gum.

She said we'd surely find a better deal if we looked at every VCR in every appliance store in town. I said I had to get home to see a football game on TV. She said it was an insult to our parents, who lived through the Great Depression, to spend $500 so quickly. I said I had the keys to the car.

She didn't start sobbing until, on the way home from Highland Appliance, we passed a store with a big sign saying: "Give Us Highland's Price and We Will Beat It!"

TWO WEEKS LATER, despite a direction book the size of a phone book, we still can't figure out how to make the VCR tape a TV show while we're not home. My wife keeps saying we should have gotten one with bigger knobs. I keep saying I don't want to tape any shows anyway; I just want to keep renting bags of movie cassettes, which are easy to play on the VCR.

What I like most is you can freeze the VCR picture so you don't miss anything when you go the bathroom or answer the phone. Just the other night, when the phone rang, I asked my wife to push the freeze button on the remote control device. She pushed it several times, but the picture kept running.

I mentioned that it always worked fine for me, which she had to concede. I didn't mention that we were watching regular TV, not the VCR, and she was punching the wrong remote control device.

She's beginning to twitch a lot.

I figure I'll soon be shooting pool with Charles Boyer.

A good sport

Carolyn Walker

Every year about this time, ice-cold blood courses through my veins and I get a yen to mount skis, take to the slopes and relive my family's sporting days.

1967 was the year mother encouraged us to try downhill skiing as a family project.

It was also the year I learned why mother didn't name me Grace.

Our weekly skiing lessons offered more than schooling in the proper usage of chairlifts and stances for snowplow turns.

They included: concern for others ("Watch it! Gang way!"), tolerance of children ("Hey, half-pint, where's your poles?") and appreciation for nature ("Yee gad, look at that gully.").

Mother was ingenious when it came to outfitting the four of us for the sport. She hit all the neighborhood garage sales, choosing for me a $10 pair of warped, used skis in fashionable baby blue. I also got matching used boots.

Poor father, who was just a little reluctant about the endeavor, was decked out for each lesson in a manila-colored car coat and fur-lined fishing hat, with flaps.

To this day, I can still see father snowplowing down Mt. Christie, arms wide-spread, forming a perfect "T" with his body, buttons done up to his neck, ear flaps flapping.

The lessons began thus:

Never grab the tow rope emergency cord.

After watching me inch my way uphill with my poles and skis dug into the snow, mother encouraged me.

"Why don't you try the tow rope?" she asked. "Just be sure you don't get your scarf caught in it, or you could strangle."

Thus inspired, I took hold of the tow rope, felt the mighty jerk that accompanies too tight a grip, and found smooth riding until the time came to let go.

Fearing I would slide backward, I grabbed the electrical cord that shuts off the machine during an emergency and made a stunning dismount from the rope.

Behind me, a chorus of curses went up. The six people still holding on found themselves sliding backward downhill, falling like dominos, the steadily drooping tow rope clutched in their mittens.

Look out for, but do not watch, other skiers.

Having conquered the ride uphill, I determined there was only one way down. I took my skis off and started walking.

I could feel mother's eyes piercing me from below. Succumbing to her will, I held my breath, re-entered my bindings, pointed my ski tips at the lodge, and shoved off.

Half way down the hill, I looked to my right just in time to see an advanced skier take an unplanned flight over a cliff.

It was not a pretty sight. Frightened, I continued on, skiing directly over the skis of a man standing in line and coming to rest on my back in a drift by the fence.

Do not ski over tow ropes.

It was now time to learn the tricky, but ever-popular, snowplow turn.

My instructor addressed me. "Carolyn," he said, "I want you to show me a right, snowplow turn."

I pushed off, knees knocked, ankles rolled, and went right . . . and went right . . . and went right. "How do you stop these things?" I called back, my voice fading in the wind.

"STOP, Carolyn," I could hear him yelling. "STOP."

Losing momentum, I finally stopped after sking over a tow rope that was running but not in use. Ooh, the vibration.

I never bothered to try the chairlift. It's anybody's guess what type of disaster might have taken place.

Thus it was that I learned to ski with my family in 1967. I never really mastered the sport (I faked it once on a date. That was the one and only time I ever went down an advanced hill—misery in motion.)

Someday, I'll tell you about the time mother taught my sister and I how to run a sack race.

Mother isn't named Grace either.

$6,000 switched from street improvement

Senior center roof, guidebook for builders and downtown development study to benefit

By Carolyn Walker

A public hearing mandated by Oakland County for the reallocation of Con munity Development Block Grant (CDBG) funds drew no public comment Jan. 7.

But it did pave the way for the Independence Township Board to move $6,804.82 from the 1983 street improvement fund to three other 1983 funds.

The reallocations were required to keep the township from becoming more than two years behind in its records, said Treasurer John Lutz.

Acting on a recommendation by Lutz, the board approved, 6-1, the transfer of $670.27 to the senior center fund for roof repair, $2,500 to be paid the township planner and engineers to investigate the feasibility of a downtown development authority and $3,634.55 to publish a township builders' guidebook proposed by the planning commission.

Voting against the motion was Trustee Dale Stuart, who questioned the need for the guidebook.

The guidebook was designed this year by a planning commission subcom ittee and is geared toward helping developers understand community goals in aesthetics, landscaping and building requirements.

Stuart said the topics the guidebook covers should be addressed by the building department.

"I personally think that allocating $3,000 to $4,000 (for the guidebook) is a waste of money," Stuart said. "The guidebook sounds like it will attempt to do what our building and planner are supposed to do now."

Trustee Carol Balzarini, who represents the board on the commission, responded that the book speaks to the "What do you want?" question commonly raised by frustrated builders at commission meetings. "It's more than it seems," she said.

The county requires a public hearing for the reallocation of funds as a part of the strict guidelines governing CDBG money, Lutz told the board.

Funneled through the county from federal grant money, CDBG funds are geared toward low to moderate income residents, the handicapped and senior citizens, and slum or blight conditions.

Kammer tapped for DNR post

Pertaining to the significance of his political party in the appointment, Kammer said, "I'd hope very little. I've tried to stay remote from that. I don't think there ought to be political considerations in the protection of the state's natural resources."

Kammer served as a state senator from 1975 to 1982. He ran unsucessfully for governor in the 1982 Democratic primary.

He works as the claims consultant manager for Kammer & Associates Inc., a Clarkston insurance agency.

In 1983, he founded Kammer Michigan Consultants, through which he works as a Lansing lobbyist and consultant representing the public school districts of Clarkston, Waterford, Pontiac, Ferndale and Berkley; Oakland Community College; and the Oakland County Parks and Recreation Department.

He is also part owner of the Clarkston Surgical Center currently under development at M-15 and Dixie Highway. His partners are pediatrician James O'Neill, attorney Tom Rabette and Bill Huffman, a Lansing lobbyist and consultant in the public health area.

Kammer's appointment to the Natural Resources Commission begins immediately. If the state Senate does not act to reject the appointment within a specified time period, the appointment is automatically confirmed.

Leaders of both parties have offered congratulations, Kammer said, so he expects his appointment to stand.

ALL FOR NAUGHT: While the temperatures were still frigid on Wednesday, Independence Township employee George Thompson put in some hours preparing two rinks on Clarkston's Mill Pond for ice skating and hockey practice. Thompson smoothed the rinks with a snow shovel, then sprayed them down with water while ice fishermen Eric Bringard, wearing the white hat, and Greg Schook fished for pike and bluegills nearby. On Thursday, some ice skaters took advantage of the rinks. By the weekend, skaters and fishermen had vanished—just like the snow that melted when temperatures reached the 40s and 50s. Grid star named All-American

By Dan Vandenhemel

Playing on the championship Hillsdale football team has paid off for Kurt Norman.

The Springfield Township resident was selected to the All-American First Team. Officials for the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletic (NAIA) voted on the all-star team after the season.

Hillsdale College became the co-national champions with the University of Central Arkansas. The two schools tied in the final game, 10-10 on Dec. 22.

Going all the way to the finals was a big help in becoming an All-American linebacker, says Norman, a senior at Hillsdale.

"I really don't think I would have been selected if we weren't in the playoffs," the 22-year-old said. "In two of the three playoff games, the All-American committee was watching. Being in the playoffs gave me the publicity I needed."

Not that this 6-foot-2, 230 pound student went around touting himself. Norman said being named was a real shock because he recently started playing the position.

When he graduated from Clarkston High School in 1982, Norman went straight to Hillsdale as a defensive nose guard. The switch to the linebacking post occurred in the spring of his sophomore year.

"We play spring football and the coaches liked my quickness and suggested the move to linebacker," Norman said. "I played there in the spring game and all but three games my junior year."

In his junior year, Norman was selected to the All-Conference team in the Great Lake Intercollegiate Athletic Conference.

Norman can conjure up from memory almost every game he has played in, especially the national finals with the tie score.

"I had this blank feeling," he said. "I had never been in a tie before. I didn't know how to feel. Central Arkansas tied for the national championship the year before, too. All I know is that we're the national champions.

"I can remember all the games because they're all special. You only play 11 games a year in football, not like basketball where you play 20, or baseball. One day I know my career will be over. I want to remember it."

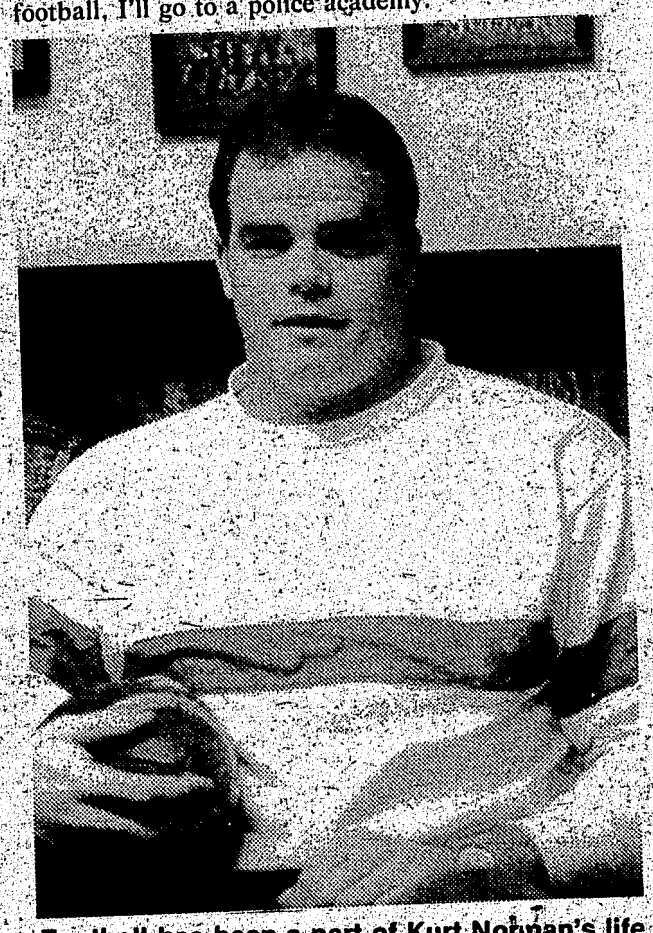

In May, Norman will have a degree in health and physical education and psychology. His career goal is law enforcement, but something may stand in his way—professional football.

The National Football Scouting Agency, which works with 20 professional teams along with the Detroit Lions and Dallas Cowboys, has expressed an interest in Norman.

He's taking the interest in stride.

"I can't bank on playing football," he said. "I want something to fall back on; that's where my college education comes in. If you're not a superstar, you have to sit and wait, but so are a million over guys.

"The teams will contact me in February," he added. "This is something that if you don't try, you'll never know if you could do it. If I don't make it in football, I'll go to a police academy."

Football has been a part of Kurt Norman's life 11 years. If he misses the opportunity to play professionally, Norman plans to hang up the spikes and pin on a badge.

Wolverines move ahead

By Dan Vandenhemel

It was a near miss for one team while another struggled to get on track.

At the Sashabaw Junior High Invitational Volleyball Tournament, Jan. 18, the Clarkston Junior High Wolverines were one victory short of going for the championship. The host Sashabaw Cougars were fighting the flu and didn't fare as well as their cross-town rivals.

The Wolverines lost in the semi-finals to Berkley, 3-15, 15-11 and 13-15.

"I didn't expect us to play as well as we did," Wolverine coach Jeannie Odell said. "They were really depressed when we lost. We improved a 100 percent just by being there."

Odell said her team has had trouble serving the ball all year. They had a 1-3 record going into the tournament. She said extra work paid off as Laurie Peel, Coy Carlson and Kari Abbott all served well. Eyonne Atkins was the power hitter for the Wolverines while Jenny Grohs set the ball well all day.

"I didn't expect us to play as well as we did."
—Jeannie Odell

The Wolverines finished first in the five-team pool play and received a bye in the quarterfinals before playing Berkley.

Sashabaw coach Sue Koslosky felt bad about her team's performance but didn't want to make excuses.

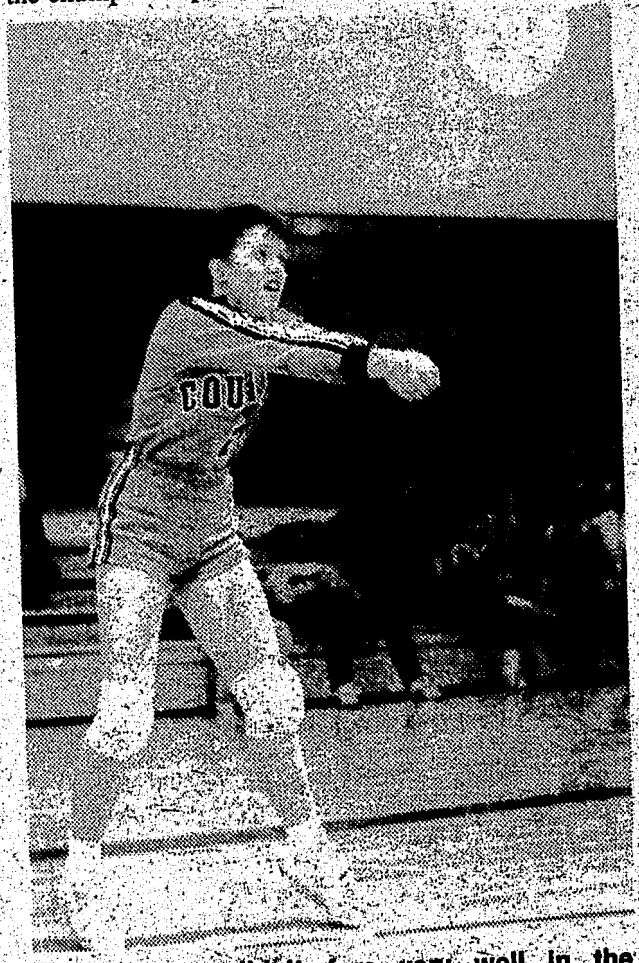

Two of the Cougars' starters were unable to play because of the flu, Koslosky said.

"The kids off the bench helped us out. They played pretty well," the coach said. "Nancy Rush played all the way around the court. She hadn't done that before this year and she missed two days by being sick, too. The flu is going around, so everyone has to deal with it, not just us."

Koslosky also praised Stacey Grutza, Wendy Shrokman and Cindy Beal for their good play during the fifth annual tournament.

The Cougars were unable to make it out of pool play. One of their losses came from the eventual tournament winner, East Detroit Oakwood.

This is the only ninth-grade volleyball tournament in the area, Koslosky said. It serves to introduce younger players to tournament play in preparation for the junior varsity level.

The Cougars didn't fare very well in the Sashabaw Junior High Volleyball Tournament, but the rival Clarkston Wolverines did better by reaching the semi-finals before losing.

The Seer

The Seer continues to slip predictions through the mail slot in the front door at The Clarkston News. We found this one Monday morning:

Jan. 24, Pontiac Northern at Clarkston—What can the Seer do for an encore? For three straight weeks, the Seer has missed the exact spread by one point.

Las Vegas is calling to find out the outcome of the Super Bowl.

Meanwhile, back to this week's game. The Pontiac Northern Huskies come to town to defend their league crown for the third year.

This game will be a game of contrasts with Clarkston playing a slow, deliberate game while Northern plays a fast-break, up-tempo game.

Returning Huskie star Tony Howard will make it difficult for the Wolves. Northern has a history of winning close games against Clarkston.

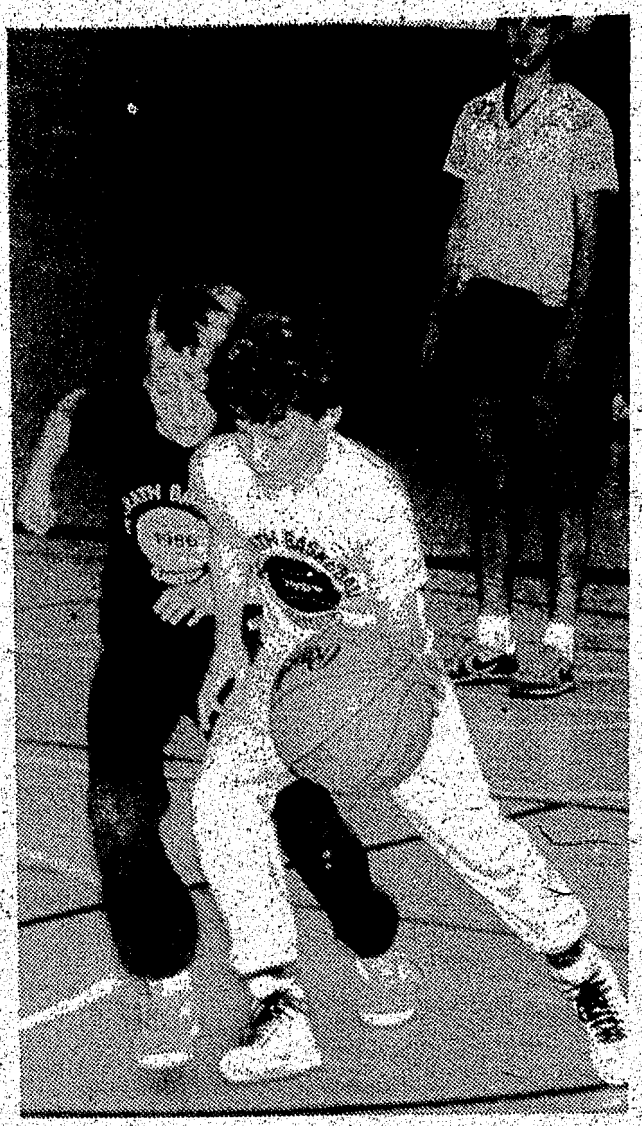

But Clarkston will shoot 10 to 12 more free throws than Northern, and that will provide the difference.

Another key is the new high school rule of keeping the coaches on the bench instead of jumping up at every foul. No coach is as emotional as Northern's Sy Green. He gets his players and the crowd into the game. This rule should take him out of the game.

Watch for the Wolves' Keith Mercier to play a key role in the fourth quarter: Clarkston by six.

Hoop hopefuls

The players get to show their stuff and improve their skills during the basketball program. Each year more youngsters have turned out. This year, 150 signed up.

Director George Porritt [left] keeps his eye on the action during the McGrath Basketball League. This is the fourth year of the program for boys and girls in grades four through eight. The program is 11 weeks long and meets on Saturdays, usually at Clarkston High School.

The Wolves' Mike Barnes peeks around a defender during Clarkston's 47-30 loss to Waterford Mott. The Wolves scored only one point in the fourth quarter.

JV hoopsters miss the rim

By Dan Vandenhemel

Coach Tim Kaul compared the second half of the Clarkston junior varsity basketball game against Waterford Mott to a bad dream.

The Wolves lost at home Jan. 17 to the Corsairs, 47-30. Clarkston scored just nine points in the second half and only one in the final eight minutes.

"It was a nightmare shooting for us," Kaul said. "We were stone cold in the second half."

The team made only four of 25 shots from the floor and one free throw in the second half. The Wolves led, 21-19, at halftime.

Kaul said the team's shooting percentage has been around 30, which is average for a junior varsity team. The 20 percent for the Mott game left the coach confused.

"If you have one or two players who aren't shooting, you can explain it. But not everybody," Kaul said. "This took me by surprise."

The Wolves have a 5-3 record. The team's lowest point total before the Mott game was 49 in a victory over West Bloomfield.

Jeff Billig and Jeff Tungate were the leading scorers for the Wolves with 11 and eight points respectively. Both have seen time on the varsity squad this year.

Billig, a junior, started out on the varsity level before moving to the JV team for more playing time. Tungate, a sophomore, played the first two games under Kaul and the next six for the varsity before returning in time for the JV game against Mott.

Tungate and Billig are the leading scorers on the JV squad, averaging over 14 points a game. Next on the list of scorers are Josh Newblatt with 11 and Mike Barnes with nine.

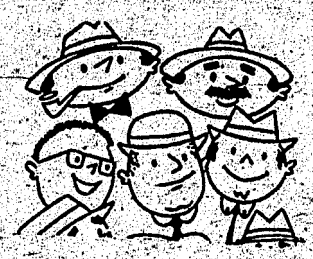

With the shifting of players between the teams, Kaul said the rest of the players have to work a little harder.

"It was a nightmare shooting for us."
—Tim Kaul

"It's tough to take the leading scorer out of the lineup. Everyone has to shift to pick up the scoring slack," Kaul said.

"At the JV level, the first thing you have to do is take kids who played at Clarkston and Sashabaw and meld them into a unit," Kaul said. "The second is to teach them the system for those who are going on to play at the varsity level."

Wolves hustle to sixth straight victory

By Dan Vandenhemel

Dan Fife thinks his Wolves are becoming more relaxed on the basketball court, but that doesn't mean the wins are getting easier.

The Clarkston varsity basketball team battled Waterford Mott for a 60-47 victory at home, Jan. 17. The triumph lifts the Wolves' record to 8-1 overall and 3-0 in the league.

One of the Wolves Fife praised was junior Dan Jokisch. The 6-foot-6 center led the Wolves with 23 points and 14 rebounds.

"Danny had a tremendous game," Fife said. "By becoming more relaxed, he's playing more like he's capable of playing."

Another performance Fife liked came from guard Keith Mercier. He tossed in eight points. Mike Walters was also a top scorer for the Wolves with nine points.

"Keith has played well all year and is getting better every day," Fife said. "He's very smart, a 4.0 point student."

Mott played solid defense throughout the game. The Wolves didn't open the game up until the third quarter when they spurted ahead for as many as 16 points. Clarkston held a slim 28-24 halftime lead and increased the score to 46-34 at the end of the third quarter.

Much of the fourth quarter, Fife had his troops slow the ball game down to eat time off the clock.

The coach expected a low scoring game because of what he knew about the Corsairs.

"This isn't the same Mott team as in the past," Fife said. "They're a tall team and they come at you. They did a nice job of containing Eddie."

Despite the Corsairs keeping a close watch on senior Ed Whitaker, he managed 16 points and nine rebounds.

Fife was happy with what he saw.

"It was nice to see a player go out and put those 30-point nights out of his mind and help the team like he did," Fife said.

One sour spot in the victory was the Wolves' free-throw shooting. They missed a number of foul shots and Fife said there will be extra practice coming up for the team.

"Free throws have been killing us," he said. "We haven't been a good free-throw shooting team all year. That's the one thing you have to do if you're going to win. It takes concentration and you have to get a rhythm to be a good free-throw shooter."

Up My Alley

Weak week

Dan Vandenhemel

This was the week that I wish wasn't.

If you can follow that sentence, then you can understand the kind of week I've had.

I just can't seem to do anything like everyone else. While some people are having bad days, I'm having bad weeks.

Take this last week, PLEASE.

It started the weekend of Jan. 11, and it's still going as of this writing Jan. 18.

First I started to sniffle and then cough and then feel blah and then, forget it. I had what is commonly called a cold.

It seems like this Friendly Little Germ (FLG) jumped around the office since October and hit most everybody, some twice. I somehow kept ducking it.

FLG finally caught up with me and landed a couple of quick jabs before going for the knockout.

When I get sick, I don't fool around.

Monday I went home early for a sound 16 hours of sleep.

After all the sleep Monday, I stayed home Tuesday and Wednesday and should have done the same on Thursday. In the back of my mind, I could see all the work piling up on my desk.

On Friday, I started to feel better, at least until late in the afternoon. That's when my car started to make a new noise and decided not to steer very well.

A quick call to a repair station and my car was being looked at. Since it was near closing time, not much could be done other than the mechanic saying that it's a car and it doesn't work right.

No kidding, and I bet he went to school for that.

Why is it cars always break down just before the weekend, near closing time, 50 miles from home?

The car can be fixed, but my wallet may never recover.

Then driving home that Friday evening with a borrowed car, I realized that I didn't have any way to get into the house.

My house key and electric garage door opener were still in my car in the repair shop.

My parents were gone for the evening so I had to break into the garage, where we have a spare house key stashed.

It seemed not much went right last week. And by the way, I still have my cold.

And that's no clowning!

SCAMP funding director talks about love

By Kathy Greenfield

He's not in it for the salary.

Instead, says Homer Biondi, his new part-time position as executive director of the SCAMP Funding Corp. has to do with community service—and love.

"Once you open yourself to these kids, once you allow them to enter your hearts, that's it," he says.

Biondi began his job Jan. 1. He will oversee the raising of at least $55,000 annually for Clarkston SCAMP, a five-week summer camp program for handicapped children, youths and young adults from northern Oakland County.

The money comes from service group donations, foundation grants and fund raisers including the Walk for SCAMP, SCAMP home tour, SCAMP Ski-a-thon and bazaars.

Biondi also works as a sales representative for a Texas manufacturing firm that supplies the automotive industry.

An Independence Township resident since 1958, his activities in local service projects began shortly after he, his wife Vi and their children became residents.

"A person that I knew suggested that a way to get to know the community was to serve on a kind of public service and Boy Scouts was suggested," he says. "I just wanted to get involved in the community. It sounded like a good idea and boy, it never quit—it just never quit."

Biondi served as awards chairman for Boy Scout Troop 126. In later years, his activities included appearing on stage with the Clarkston Village Players and clowning. He was one of the founders of the Oaklowns, a group of volunteer clowns connected with the Oakland County Parks and Recreation Department.

"I just wanted to get involved in the community. It sounded like a good idea and boy, it never quit—it just never quit."
Homer Biondi

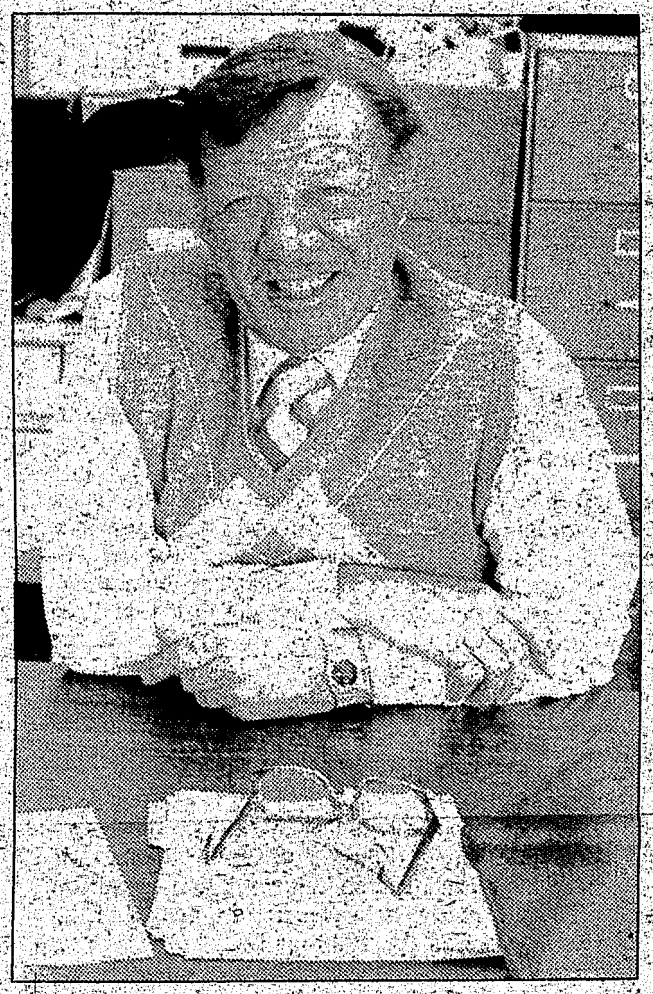

As Sandy the Clown, Biondi first met SCAMP-goers at a party sponsored by the Clarkston Rotary Club.

"I was like a lot of people and probably like most people—you're aware of a program and you know it serves handicapped people. You say, 'That's fine, that's good,' but you never really get into it personally," he says.

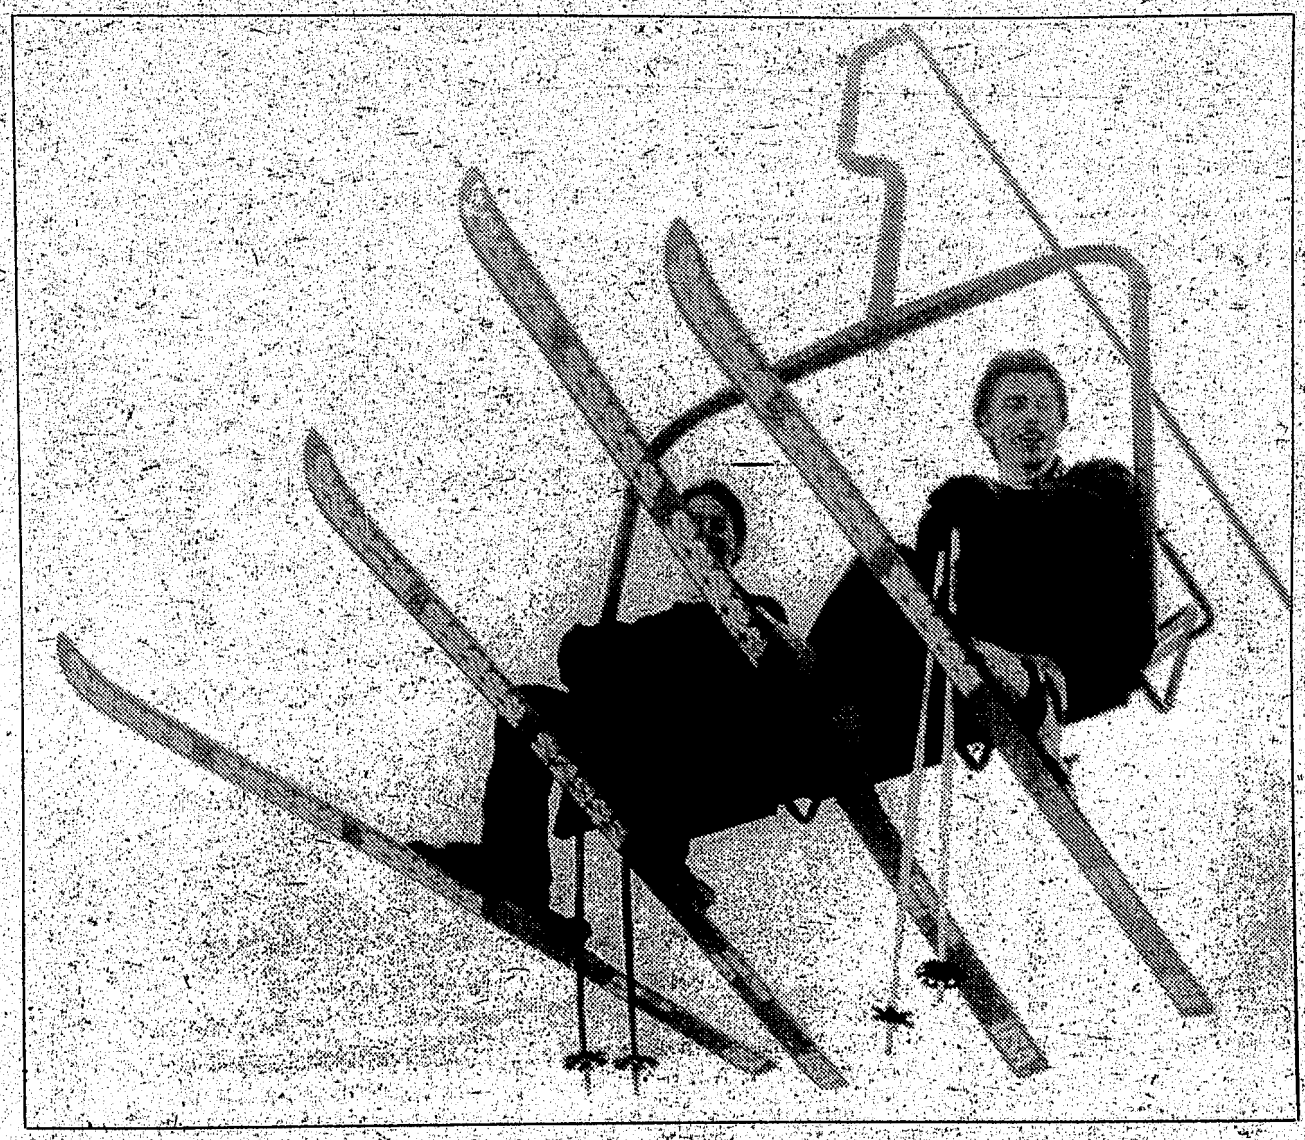

But after meeting the SCAMPers, Biondi wanted to contribute more.

Now, he says, "I finally feel I've reached the point in my life where I can really do something."

Biondi would like to share the feeling with more groups and individuals, and he extends an invitation: "If you have an idea or if you or your group has an idea for a fund raiser, we sure would like to talk about it."

"I think a person derives a great deal of life satisfaction by becoming involved in community service," says Homer Biondi. "It's sounds a little hokey, but I believe it."

Riding the Pine Knob chairlift through the mist are Jeff John [left] and Matt Ritter. They were among about 30 skiers participating in the SCAMP Ski-a-thon Saturday.

Skiers make $$$ . . . on the run

Undaunted by melting snow and heavy mist, the skiers pursued their goals of 40 runs for Clarkston SCAMP.

The annual SCAMP Ski-a-thon sponsored by Clarkston High School's ski teams was held Saturday at Pine Knob Ski Resort.

It was a day for spring skiing, and no one was complaining about the changing snow. In fact, said ski team coach Don Balzarini, the weather meant fewer skiers and shorter waits in the chairlift line.

The skiers took pledges-per-run to raise money for Clarkston SCAMP, a five-week summer camp program for handicapped children, youths and young adults.

Most of the skiers were members of the CHS ski teams. The exceptions were Independence Township Treasurer John Lutz, a member of Pine Knob's Ski Patrol, and Amy and Doug MacAlpine, ages 10 and 9 respectively.

Lutz was the top pledge-getter with $148. Two ski team members had pledges topping $100, Kelly Cook and Lori Walker. The total pledges were approximately $1,240.

Pine Knob donated pizzas and hot chocolate for the skiers and prizes were donated by the Clarkston Big Boy, Coach's Corner, Hallman's Apothecary and Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital.

Board fears exotic entertainment, denies license

Fear of exotic forms of entertainment coming to Independence Township led to denial of an entertainment license to Pine Knob restaurant owners Borg-Warner Equities.

Also on Jan. 7, the township board approved a Class C liquor license transfer for the same petitioners.

In a unanimous vote, the board agreed to transfer the liquor license to NALII, Ltd., a subsidiary of the Delaware-based Borg-Warner Equities, current owners of LaVeranda Ristorante and Mansion restaurants and the Pine Knob Golf Course.

The license is being transferred from Charles Collins, who was appointed the restaurants' trustee when Pine Knob went through bankruptcy before the Borg-Warner purchase.

Borg-Warner requested the license in conjunction with the liquor license transfer in order to provide entertainment at private parties, such as weddings or golf outings, at their facilities, said Clerk Richard Holman.

A letter from Borg-Warner said they foresaw providing such entertainment infrequently, Holman said.

In making the decision to deny the request, several board members noted that a potential for "exotic" entertainment could accompany the license.

There are no township ordinances that address entertainment because the topic is protected by the first amendment, said township attorney Gerald Fisher, comparing dancing to freedom of speech. Different concepts of entertainment can be individually interpreted, he said.

Holman agreed, saying that mud wrestling or wet T-shirt contests, for example, could fall under the category of entertainment. They are not, he added, necessarily good for the township.

Commission rejects zoning change

A request to rezone 29 acres off Clarkston/Sashabaw road from single family homes to offices received thumbs down from the Independence Township Planning Commission.

On Jan. 9, the commission voted 6-1 to recommend denial of the zoning change to the township board.

Petitioner Sharon Alexander, who inherited the property from her father, and her agent Tom Bosco requested the zoning change to facilitate the property's sale.

They have interested buyers who, in the future, would like to construct offices at the site that abuts Pine Knob Music Theatre, said Bosco. He would not name the interested buyers.

"We want to utilize the land," Bosco said. "We want to be constructive."

In voting to deny the request, commission members cited the lack of sewer facilities. They also said they were not convinced such a change was warranted and that office use would be too intense.

The new master plan, voted into effect by the commission in December, calls for the property to remain residential.

In addition, the commissioners said they would like to see solid proposals before considering a rezoning recommendation.

"(We) need to see something a lot more concrete," said Joseph Figa.

Voting to deny the request were Chairman Neil Wallace and commissioners Holly Stephens, Carol Balzarini, Robert Diebal, Brent Bair and Figa.

Commissioner John Gray cast the dissenting vote after saying it was unlikely anyone would want a home next to Pine Knob.

The rezoning request will automatically be referred to the township board, which can uphold the commission's recommendation or grant the zoning change.

Village seeks cash for sidewalks

Village of Clarkston safety paths continue to be the focus of Community Development Block Grant funding requests.

Four projects, including paths along Holcomb Road near Deer Lake, are being submitted to Oakland County for consideration in the 1986-87 CDBG program.

The village is eligible to receive some $7,500, said President Carol Eberhardt.

On Jan. 13, the council agreed to submit requests for the following projects: sidewalk improvements, $2,000; safety path improvements, $3,000; drainage improvements, $1,500 and public service programs, $1,000.

Requirements of the program mandate that the funds be used to benefit low or moderate income residents, handicapped or senior citizens or for the prevention of slum and blight.

"We're very restricted as to where we can spend our money," said President Carol Eberhardt.

Some of the projects under consideration are the resurfacing of a safety path between Holcomb Road and Deer Lake, and village beautification, she said.

The village council also intends to give $1,000 to the Independence Township Senior Citizen Center, Eberhardt said.

Last year's funds were allotted for drainage improvements along Holcomb Road. Those improvements are scheduled to begin this spring.

Celebrating Americanism Month

February is a month dedicated to Americanism by the American Legion, and the Chief Pontiac Post No. 377 provides several ways to celebrate.

Post Commander Lee Puckett begins by extending an invitation to all eligible veterans of Oakland County to be legionnaires.

He also invites members of the community to participate in an Americanism Dinner-Dance planned at the post at 4819 Englewood, Independence Township, on Saturday, Feb. 15.

At the event, an Americanism Medal, the legion's top honor, will be presented to a member of the community and veterans and the flag will be honored.

The dinner-dance is to begin at 6 p.m. Admission is $5 a person. Call Bea Richardson at 335-4805 for reservations.

"Our motto is Americansim," says Puckett, and the legionnaires observe the philosophy by observing holidays, flag etiquette and display, and with programs designed to meet community needs and to provide patriotic activities for youth.

How long does smoke from pot stay in your body?

Dear Cat Paw:
Does marijuana cause brain damage?
Don't Believe It

Dear Don't Believe It:
You'd better believe it! Hospitals are full of people who had just one too many joints.

Dear Cat Paw:
Why do pharmacists give drugs to people? If they're bad, why do they?
Wondering

Dear Wondering:
Pharmacists give drugs to people by prescription only. In other words, a doctor has to prescribe a certain drug to help a sick patient.

Such drugs are generally safe when taken as prescribed by the persons they are prescribed for in the manner instructed by the doctor.

When directions on the prescriptions are followed, the patient should recover and become healthy again.

On the other hand, when a well person uses drugs of any kind, that person upsets the natural balance of the body and causes serious problems with his or her health.

Drugs are designed to make a sick person well, not a healthy body sick.

Dear Cat Paw:
How long does smoke from pot stay in your body?
Puffing

Dear Puffing:
The total effects of marijuana stay in the body approximately one month.

Dear Cat Paw:
How many drugs are really in one joint?
Smoker

Dear Smoker:
Before a match is put to a joint, there are close to 100 chemicals in the marijuana. The minute a joint is lit, the number of chemicals increases to more than 400.

We don't even know all the damage those chemicals are doing. We know the most about THC. If more than one marijuana cigarette is smoked every six or seven weeks, the THC accumulates in the brain, liver, kidneys, glands and reproductive system, damaging the body the whole time it is there.

Dear Cat Paw:
What is the most common used drug in Clarkston?
Student

Dear Student:
Clarkston is no different than any other town in America. Alcohol is first, followed by tobacco, then marijuana. Cocaine is the up and coming drug presently and it may be running equal to marijuana at times.

Sewer bill aid

A new computer is in store for the Village of Clarkston.

On Jan. 13, members of the village council voted to allot $3,000 for the purchase of an IBM-XT computer to aid Treasurer Artemus Pappas in preparing sewer bills.

The council approved taking $1,500 each from the sewer fund and the village hall equipment fund for the purchase. Approximately $2,500 will go toward the computer with the remainder for supplies.

"It saves a lot of time and gives us better records," said Pappas, who has been posting the village's bills by hand.

The purchase is expected to be made within the next month.

Fatal accident

Snowy roads may have contributed to a 10:35 a.m. auto accident in which a Union Lake man was killed Jan. 14, said a report at the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

Raymond Frederick Thompson, 37, was killed while a passenger in a vehicle traveling northbound on Dixie Highway near Foster Road, Independence Township.

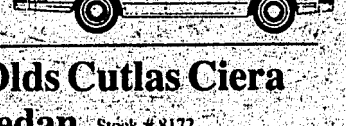

According to the report the car, driven by Greg William Doty, 41, of Birmingham, crossed the center line and struck a truck driven by Thomas Vincent Guigar, 30, of Brown City.

Doty was transferred to St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Pontiac where he was treated for injuries. Guigar was uninjured in the accident, the report said.

Ordinance aims at antennas

By Dan Vandenhemel

A law regulating satellite antennas is under consideration by the Springfield Township Board.

The topic first came up at a planning commission public hearing in November. The commission recommended approval of the ordinance as written.

On Jan. 8, the township board voted unanimously to send the proposal back to the planning commission to determine if it discriminates against satellite antennas as opposed to ham radio and TV antennas.

The possible ordinance could regulate locations of dish antennas and limit the height to 15 feet, said Supervisor Collin Walls.

Currently there are no regulations in the township covering any form of communication antennas. Walls said such an ordinance for satellite dish antennas could discriminate against them.

"I think the only way there can be any regulation is if it incorporates all other types of antennas," Walls said. "The earliest we could see getting something back is for the March meeting."

The planning commission's recommendation must first go to Oakland County for review, then the county sends it back to the township.

Only three residents attended the planning commission's public hearing in November, but since then, a number of people have expressed their opinions to Walls.

"Not that they are calling the township offices to voice their complaints, they are coming up to me on the street, in the store, in Clarkston," he said. "And all but one of the people were completely opposed to any regulation. One said he could see not allowing the antennas in the front yard, but only if a zoning variance could be granted in some cases."

Winter classes aim at health

Help with New Year's resolutions can be found through wellness programs offered this winter by the Clarkston Ambulatory Care Center.

The list includes a diet workshop, stress management, life-style awareness, advice and exercises to avoid back pain and injury, classes to help quit smoking, sports conditioning and free blood pressure screening.

The classes meet weekly with beginning dates ranging from January through March. Blood pressure screening is available from 7 p.m. to midnight weekdays and from 1 to 8 p.m. weekends at the center.

"This whole approach we've started this fall is a new thing, just dealing with preventive medicine," said Beverly Walters, R.N., director of nursing at the center. "Preventive medicine is an important area in medicine these days—preventing illness before it starts."

There is a nominal fee for each class.

"We're trying to keep the cost down so people can come and partake in the classes," Walters said. "We look at it as a community service."

All of the classes are conducted at the Clarkston Professional Building (offices of Drs. O'Neill, Yee and Kernis), 5885 M-15, Independence Township.

Free brochures with class descriptions are available at the clinic and O'Neill's office, or call 625-CARE.

Dance has heart

The second annual Valentine Dinner-Dance sponsored by the International Sorority Beta Sigma Phi looks at love two ways.

The first involves a celebration of Valentine's Day with a party at the American Legion Post No. 63 on M-15 in Independence Township. The event is planned Saturday, Feb. 8. Tickets are $15 a person.

The second involves sharing the proceeds with Multiple Sclerosis and the Statue of Liberty restoration project.

Tickets should be purchased in advance. Call 673-3445 for more information.

90-day suspension

The license of George Krull, D.D.S., has been suspended for 90 days by the Michigan Department of Licensing and Regulation.

The suspension began Dec. 2, 1985, following the removal of a stay entered by Ingham County Circuit Court where the suspension has been under appeal since Oct. 3, 1984.

Krull, whose dental office is on M-15 in Independence Township, voluntarily lifted the stay and accepted the 90-day suspension because back surgery has forced him out of work for approximately 90 days, said his attorney Kelly O'Dea.

"So if, in fact, (the judge) does rule against us and Dr. Krull decides not to appeal, he has served the suspension," O'Dea said.

"It (the suspension) is not to be construed as any indication whatsoever that we've accepted the decision of the state," he said, and stressed that the state's decision would continue to be appealed.

The suspension resulted from Krull's examination of a patient and her mother for chest congestion, which is "not a recognized procedure for a dentist," said Robert Ulieru, a spokesperson for the Bureau of Health Services, Department of Licensing and Regulation.

Village looks at liquor responsibility

By Carolyn Walker

An ordinance that would hold adults legally responsible for serving liquor or drugs to minors in their homes is being considered by the Village of Clarkston.

On Jan. 13, the village council agreed to have its attorney examine the proposed ordinance following a request by the Clarkston Area Chemical People.

If the ordinance is passed, adults serving minors at parties could be subject to arrest, said President Carol Eberhardt.

The proposal is based on similar ordinances adopted in communities including Rochester Hills, Lake Orion and Farmington Hills.

The ordinances have been successful deterents in those communities, she said, adding that graduation parties are the primary source of problems.

"It really helps to have some adult ultimately responsible," Eberhardt said, adding that minors drinking at parties are a problem in the village.

The Chemical People have also asked Independence Township officials to consider such an ordinance. The topic is scheduled for the Jan. 21 agenda.

Eberhardt said she hopes the village and township will act cooperatively in adopting ordinances, but that the village is prepared to take the first step.

"Rather than wait for the township, we're just going to go ahead and take the initiative," she said. The council hopes to have the ordinance in place before 1986 high school graduation parties, she added.

The party is planned Jan. 25

Cooks preparing lots for Rathskeller feast

Two days before the 20th annual Rathskeller, the home-style cooking will begin.

To prepare for Saturday, Jan. 25, party, about 14 women will gather in the kitchen at the Pope John, Council No. 5436 Knights of Columbus Hall on Maybee Road.

They'll make over 1,200 meatballs, 400 stuffed cabbages and 25 recipes of spatzles, using 50 cups of flour. They'll peel enough potatoes to prepare four roaster pans full of German potato salad. And they'll bake lemon cake.

Among the women present will be Mary Methner, Eleanor Kerzka and Theresia Csiki, who gathered together last week to talk about the Rathskeller.

Mary's involvement in the food preparation spans 14 years and Eleanor's seven years. Theresia is president of the Columbelles, the Knights of Columbus women's group that does most of the cooking.

The Rathskeller was founded by Betty and Henry Ricksgers. The couple still participate, and Henry will, as usual, prepare the three roasters full of sauerkraut and pork hocks for the feast.

The party is always a sellout, the women say, and only part of the reason involves the authentic ethnic food.

They agree that the band is exceptionally good, praise the decorations and say that some lucky party-goers will win ceramic beer steins made by Columbelle member Ceil Marchand.

"It is something like if you would go to an Oktoberfest in Europe," says Theresia.

Tickets for the Rathskeller at the K of C Hall are $25 a couple. The price includes dinner, dancing to the music of The Internationals, beer and setups. Doors open at 7:30 p.m., dinner is served at 8 p.m. and the dancing is from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m.

For ticket information, call 625-3772 or 625-4993.

As a preview for the 20th annual Rathskeller, [from left] Mary Methner, Eleanor Kerzka and Theresia Csiki pose with some of the ingredients they'll use to help prepare the feast.

Prevent Colds & Infections With Vitamin C

Vitamin C can help defend us against viruses and bacteria, plus reduce the symptoms and duration of any infection. Some animals produce Vitamin C internally, in the liver or kidneys although humans do not. The amount of Vitamin C found in the average diet is nowhere near the amount we require for optimal health. If we attempted to obtain all our C from dietary sources we would quickly consume enough calories to make us obese.

Dr. Pauling recommends that all adults take a preventive dose of 10 grams (10,000 milligrams of Vitamin C daily. In his research, Dr. Pauling has discovered that high doses of C could destroy harmful microbes. Vitamin C comes in tablets, capsules, crystals and liquid form. We carry all kinds. Natural sources of Vitamin C are tomatoes, citrus fruit, rose hips, corn, broccoli, etc.

United Way funds available

Funds for new programs that serve the north Oakland County area are available through the United Way of Pontiac-North Oakland's Demonstration Grant Project Fund.

The announcement was made by United Way of Pontiac-North Oakland Board of Director President Aleck Capsalis, executive vice president, First of American Bank-Oakland, Macomb, N.A.

Capsalis said a successful fund drive has enabled the organization to set aside $85,000 to allow both non-United Way and United Way agencies to experiment with new programs designed to address local needs.

The grant program was began in 1978, and many of the projects funded have resulted in ongoing community programming, according to Capsalis.

Any organization may apply for funding, provided it meets the following criteria:

*The agency must be a non-profit organization and be certified as tax exempt by the Internal Revenue Service.

*The proposed service must attempt an imaginative approach to a specific problem, and be a new service, not duplicating existing programs.

*The proposed project should address a community problem, demonstrate a potential for making an immediate impact on the persons being served and, where appropriate, have potential for a long-range effect on the problem.

*The applying agency must demonstrate that a substantial number of citizen volunteers are concerned about the problem and are committed to the solution suggested. The proposal will require approval of the requesting agency's board of directors.

*The proposed program must serve the residents and employees of the United Way of Pontiac-North Oakland's service area, which includes Brandon, Independence, Orion, Oxford and Waterford townships and the cities of Auburn Hills and Pontiac.

The grants are for a 12-month period, from August 1, 1986 to July 31, 1987.

Applications will be accepted through Feb. 28. They must be submitted in writing on forms available through the United Way office.

Requests for applications can be made by writing the United Way of Pontiac-North Oakland, Demonstration Grants, 50 Wayne Street, Pontiac, MI 48058, or by calling 456-8805.

Beautification remains goal

The beautification of downtown Main Street continues to be a goal of the Clarkston Village Council despite the denial of a Michigan Department of Commerce grant last week.

It had been hoped the grant would help finance a planning consultant, said council President Carol Eberhardt.

"Everyone agreed the idea should be pursued," she said.

The proposed business district improvements include tree planting, sidewalk modifications and pedestrian lighting.

Estimates show the planning phase of the project could cost about $6,000, she said. The council intends to incorporate that phase into the 1986 budget.

The council intends to solicit bids and hire a planner in April, after the budget has been completed.

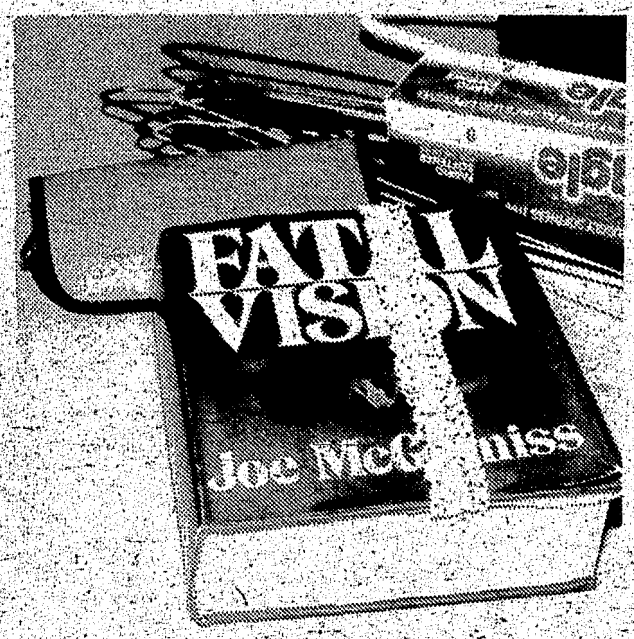

In the interim, they plan to develop specifics for the project so they can apply for other grants.

"Having something more complete is to our benefit," Eberhardt said. "In order to apply for grants, you really have to have something concrete on paper."

State's best harness race horse

Shiaway Timber was trained at township's Shelmar Farms

By Dan Vandenhemel

Lance Baylis couldn't be more proud. He was the trainer of the top harness race horse in Michigan last year.

Shiaway Timber won 11 of his 31 races for purses totaling $104,000. The award comes from the Michigan Harness Horsemen's Association. Baylis received a gold plaque with a clock on it for his work.

"This is a special award," the 26-year-old Baylis said. "Some years, there isn't even an award because there wasn't an outstanding horse. It's great because I've only been training for three years. There are some people out there training for 30, 35 years, and we got the award."

The vote was based soley on the horse's performance during the year.

One of the races the horse won was the $84,700 Michigan Bred Paramutual at Saginaw Valley Downs on Aug. 18. Shiaway set a track record in winning the race.

Another big win was at Jackson Raceway in the $20,000 Leon Slavin Memorial Pace on Sept. 29. In that race, only the top eight pacers in the state receive invitations and Shiaway was the youngest of the eight.

"Only three horses in the state won $100,000 last year out thousands and thousands of horses that started the year," Baylis said who works for North Oakland Home Health Care. "The money is nice, but it was the actual winning that I liked. Winning that big race, I can tell you, was the happiest day of my life."

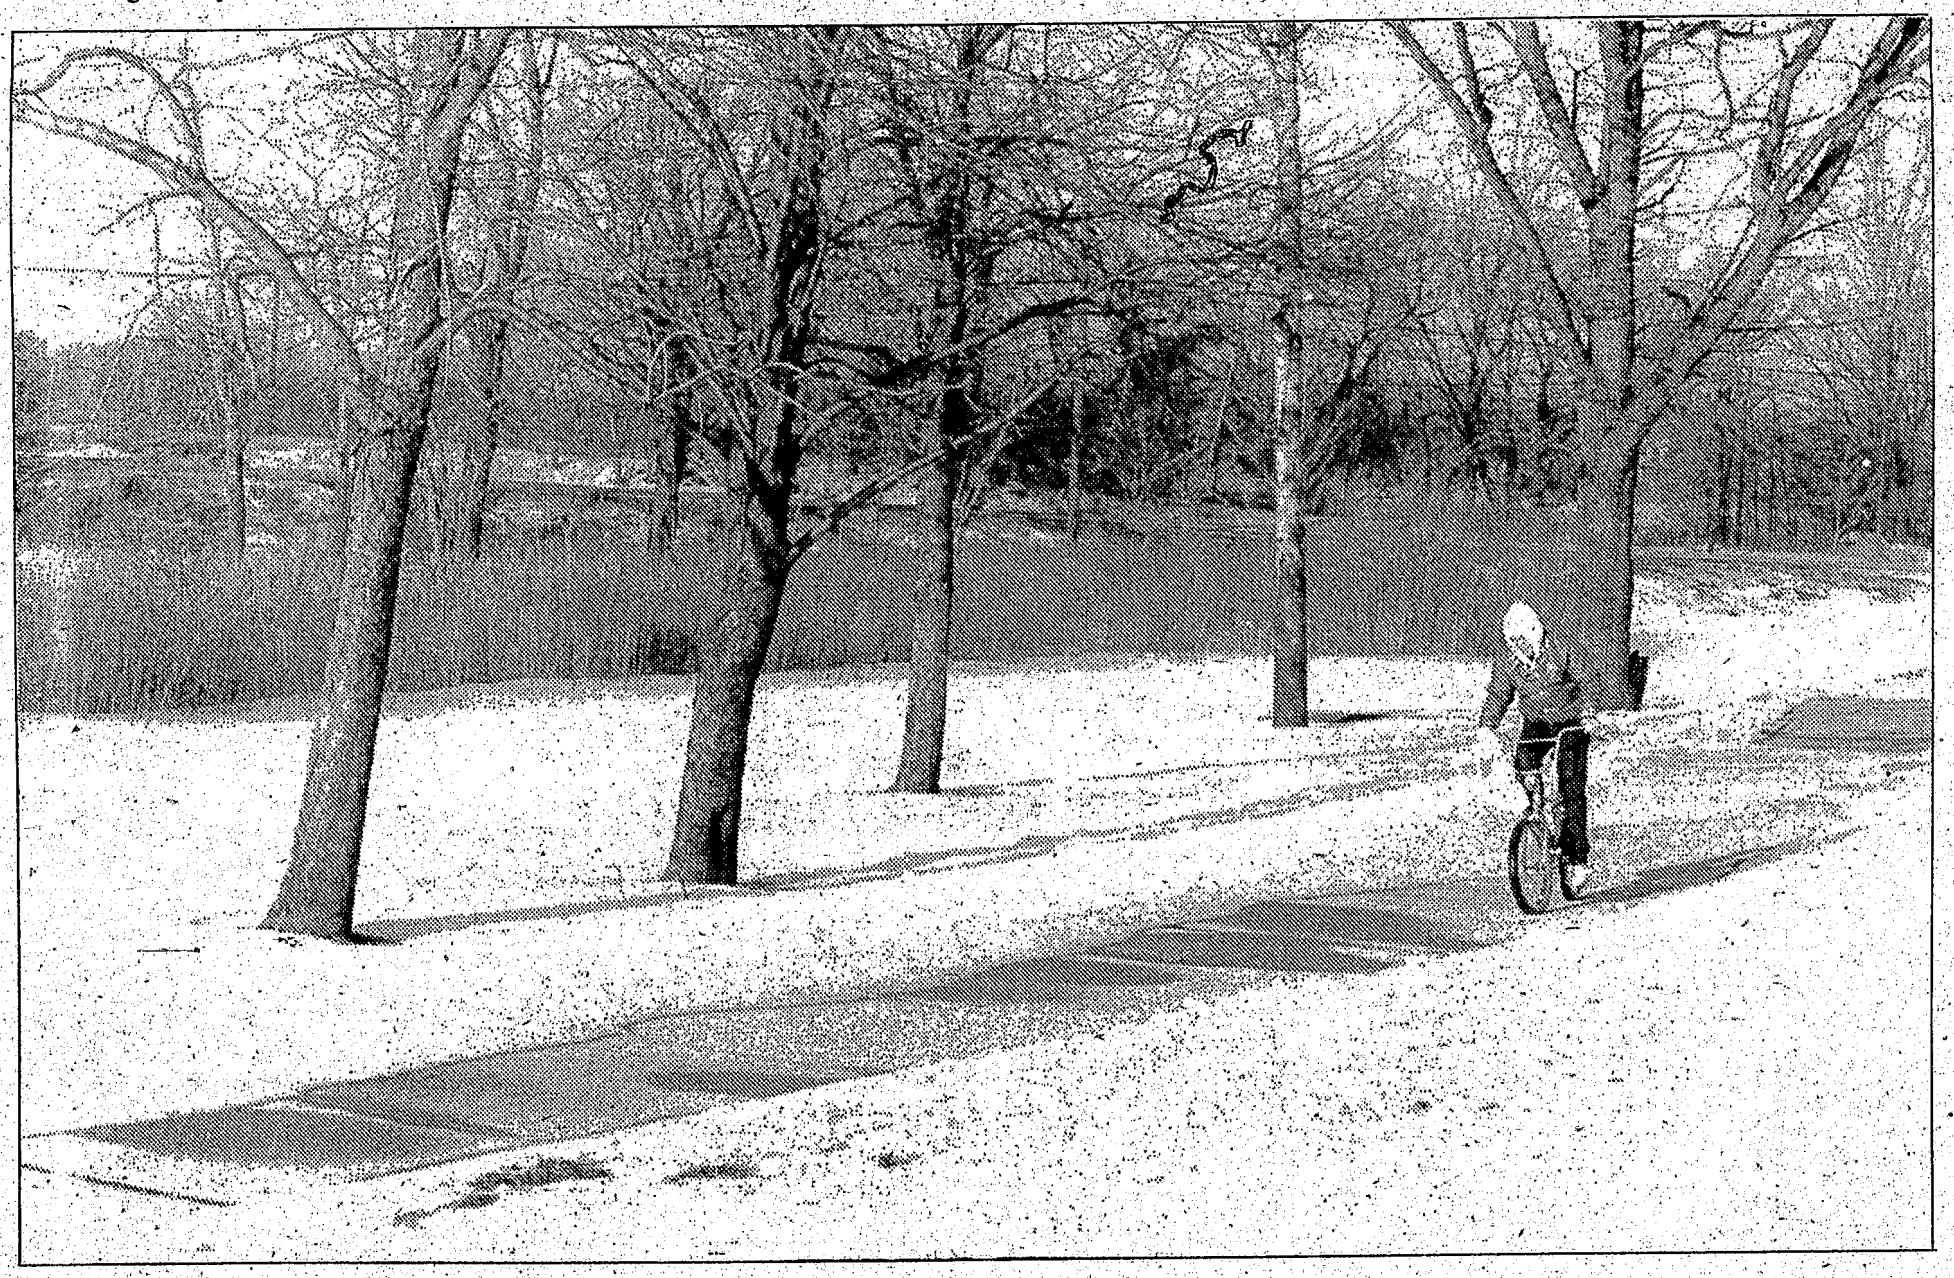

Shiaway was trained at the Baylis family's Shelmar Farms on Ortonville and Hubbard roads in Independence Township. Lance's parents Shelby and Maria Baylis owned Shiaway Timber. The horse was sold in October to Charles Day of the Day's Inn motels.

Selling the 4-year-old horse bothered the trainer for a while, but he snapped out of it.

"The week after he was sold, I just sat around in the chair. I was bummed out," Baylis said. "I had to look at the future and to younger horses. I own his brother and my father owns his mother. I had to kind of replace him."

The Baylises bought the horse in 1982 for $4,600. For 14 months, Baylis trained Shiaway everyday. The three-hour-a-day routine started to drag Baylis down.

"It was a lot of hard work," he said. "A lot of late nights, a lot of hours. All the pressures that went with races. I was almost getting burned out."

Lonely cycler

Following some struggles to pull his bike through drifted snow, Jeff Waite is off on a trip to the Independence Township Library. He heads west on the safety path as it loops behind a pond on the Clarkston school district administration office on Clarkston Road. This photo was taken Jan. 11. If Jeff had waited a week, the snow would have been gone. [Photo by Kathy Greenfield]
