Carbon monoxide kills 3 family members

By Carolyn Walker

Carbon monoxide poisoning is being blamed in the accidental deaths of three Independence Township family members last week.

William Clarke, 45, his wife Linda, 40, and their son Brian, 16, were found dead at their home on Mary Sue Street at 1:50 a.m. Saturday, March 15, after a friend became alarmed when he could not reach them.

Police do not believe the deaths were the result of a suicide gone awry, said Det. Sgt. R. Manning of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

The Clarkes' daughter Melinda, 19, was not at home at the time of the incident. She had left for a Florida vacation on Friday morning from Michigan State University, East Lansing, where she is a student.

The bodies were discovered by officers of the sheriff's department and friend, James Houghton, who had called police.

Clarke was discovered in his car in a garage attached to the house. His wife's body was found on the floor of the garage near the car and Brian's body was located in a hallway.

According to Manning, the events leading to the deaths began to unfold Thursday evening when Clarke returned to the home after an evening of bowling.

"It was a combination of a terrible bunch of circumstances," Manning said. "I have no doubts at this point (that the deaths were accidental)."

Clarke had worked all day, gone bowling and then drinking at a bar with his bowling team, Manning said. Clarke was not believed to be intoxicated, he added.

Upon arriving home he apparently pulled into the garage and closed the overhead door with an electronic opener while still seated in the vehicle.

Firefighters deliver eager baby

Little Colleen Rachel Fell came into the world by way of Independence Township Firefighter Bob Cesario's hands early Monday morning.

Colleen, the daughter of Timothy and Patricia Fell of Summerhill Road, Independence, was born at 5:37 a.m. at home. She weighed 7 pounds and 7 ounces.

Cesario, a paramedic, delivered Colleen with an assist from fellow firefighters Jack Bailey and Capt. Gordon Mason.

Mother and baby were transported by Fleet Ambulance to William Beaumont Hospital in Royal Oak.

"We were very grateful," said Patricia of the firefighters the following day, adding that she was surprised by the home-bound delivery. "They came right away."

Colleen was Cesario's third delivery. "The mother actually (did the work)," said Cesario. "I caught."

"It's always exciting," he added.

Firefighters are also emergency medical technicians trained to deliver babies and have working experience in hospitals, Mason said.

Besides her parents and the firefighters, Colleen was welcomed by her sister, Shannon; grandparents, Pat and Ed Fell and Elaine and Ross Bergeon; and great-grandmother, Ruth Ross.

Egg hunts planned

The Easter Bunny is helping three groups hold Easter Egg hunts this year.

The Springfield Township Parks and Recreation is having a hunt on Saturday, March 22, starting at 10 a.m. Bags will be provided.

The site is the Karl Shultz Park (Dilley Field) on Dilley Road and Davisburg Road in Springfield Township. There are three age divisions for this hunting spree: preschool, 5-7-year-olds, and 8 years old and over.

The Clarkston Area Jaycees also set Saturday, March 22, for their annual event.

They start at 10 a.m. at Clintonwood Park, 5980 Clarkston Rd., Independence Township. Several age groups will be scurrying around for candy and prizes.

The third Easter Egg Hunt is Saturday, March 29, at the Sashabaw United Presbyterian Church, 5300 Maybee Rd., Independence Township.

The hunt begins at 11 a.m. for preschoolers to sixth-graders.

Three in family die at their home

Manning, who is investigating the deaths, theorizes that Clarke fell asleep in the car while it was still running. Manning said fatigue from working, bowling, driving in Thursday's heavy fog and consumed alcohol were probably contributing factors.

A quarter tank of gasoline was found in the car, and antifreeze on the garage floor indicated the car stalled, said a sheriff's report. A key was in the "on" position in the ignition.

Sometime later in the night, Linda apparently woke up and went to the garage, Manning said. "She got the car door open and was apparently overcome."

When Linda went into the garage, she left the door leading to the home open, Manning said, allowing fumes to escape into the residence.

Brian also woke up and walked into the hallway from his bedroom where he succumbed, Manning said.

On Friday morning, friends had arrived at the residence to meet Clarke who was to fly with them to Georgia.

When they could get no response at the house, they assumed Clarke was delayed and left to catch their flight, Manning said. They called Houghton to check on him after arriving in Georgia.

Houghton spent Friday trying to reach the Clarkes and when he could get no answer by night, he contacted police at approximately 1 a.m.

Officers from the sheriff's department arrived at the home and, after finding the lights out and no signs of a forced entry, determined that everything was in order, Manning said.

The family cars could be seen through a garage window but the position of Clarke's and Linda's bodies precluded them from being viewed by observers, he said.

Nevertheless, Houghton remained convinced that something was wrong and asked officers to stand by while he broke into the garage.

After opening a garage window and shining a light into the vehicle, officers were able to observe Clarke's body, Manning said.

Deputies William Dugan, James Peloquin and Don Smith then entered the garage, where they became ill after inhaling carbon monoxide fumes. The three were treated and released from Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital, Manning said.

Police believe the three Clarkes were dead some 18 hours before they were discovered.

"It is a tragedy, it is a pure tragedy," Manning said, adding that the deaths of Linda and Brian might have been averted had she opened outside windows and doors before entering the garage. "(They were a) highly-respected and beautiful family."

Carbon monoxide is an odorless gas present in all exhaust fumes and can travel wherever air travels, Manning said.

Symptoms of carbon monoxide poisoning include headache and disorientation. Victims generally lose their ability to reason before becoming unconscious, he added.

Whenever a person plans to enter a room suspected of containing carbon monoxide that person should ventilate the room before going in, Manning said.

Clarke was a maintenance painter at Pontiac

Motor Division. Mrs. Clarke was an insurance clerk for a medical office and Brian was a high school student at the Clarkston Learning Center.

Following autopsies at the Oakland County Medical Examiners office, where the carbon monoxide was confirmed as the cause of death, the three were taken to Coats Funeral Home, Drayton Plains.

The Clarkes are survived by their daughter, Melinda Ann; Linda's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth McKenna; her brothers, Robert and Jesse; and her sister, Mrs. Nelson (Margaret) Plude.

They are also survived by William's parents, William A. and Evelyn L. Clarke; his sisters, Mary Ellen Turner and Mrs. Michael (Gay) Werner; and his brothers, Robert, Roger, Paul and Ronald.

Services for the three Clarkes were scheduled at Coats Funeral Home on Wednesday with burial to follow at Ottawa Park Cemetery, Independence Township.

Firefighters' warning: Dangerous ice

Two dogs that broke through thin ice on Woodhull Lake and the Clarkston Mill Pond have prompted firefighters to issue a warning: Stay off the ice of area lakes and ponds.

"The ice definitely won't hold anybody. The ice is very, very dangerous now," said Independence Township Fire Marshall Gar Wilson, who is concerned that children may venture onto the unsafe ice of various lakes and ponds.

Firefighters were able to rescue a German short-hair pointer from the Mill Pond on Tuesday and a mixed breed from Woodhull Lake Monday, but they broke through the ice in the attempt, Wilson said.

The firefighters were wearing new cold-water rescue suits when they retrieved the dogs and there were no human injuries, he said.

-Correction-

A story in the March 12 edition should have said the Independence Township Board approved a landscaping ordinance amendment.

In addition, the temporary sign amendment has not been passed as reported, but has had its first reading.

The temporary sign and the ground sign amendments are to be voted on by the township board on March 25.

Man charged in knifing incident

By Carolyn Walker

A 21-year-old Independence Township resident has been arraigned in connection with the knifing of two men at the Knights of Columbus hall on Maybee Road Saturday night.

Anthony Kinkle appeared before 52nd District Court Judge Gerald McNally on Monday, where he was charged with two counts of felonious assault with a knife.

Kinkle pleaded not guilty to the charges, said a court spokesperson.

He was apprehended at 2:40 a.m. Saturday by officers from the Oakland County Sheriff's Department when he pulled in front of them while exiting the hall's parking lot, according to a police report.

Thinking he was a drunk driver, the officers pulled Kinkle over only to be told by a person who arrived in a second car that he had been involved in a knifing at the hall.

The officers then returned Kinkle to the site of the incident where he was identified by witnesses, according to the report.

Victims Douglas Lysak of West Bloomfield and Steven Garland of Union Lake were stabbed in the hands by a six-inch "Rambo" style knife, the police report said.

They were treated at the scene by the Independence Township Fire Department before driving themselves to an area hospital, the police report said.

Kinkle was arrested at the scene and charged with felonious driving.

McNally set bond at $1,000 and scheduled a preliminary hearing for March 27.

Surgical center hearing on

By Carolyn Walker

As spring approaches, plans are moving ahead for the Clarkston Surgical Center despite an appeal of its certificate of need in the Michigan Court of Appeals.

The center is being developed by Dr. James O'Neill and his partners Kerry Kammer, Tom Rabette and Bill Huffman, who hope to begin construction in a few months.

A public hearing, the first of several meetings needed for final approval of the center, is planned April 10 before the Independence Township Planning Commission.

The public hearing will address a request to change the site's zoning from commercial status to Planned Unit Development (PUD).

A PUD classification allows for a variety of zoning uses on a single parcel of land, according to planning commission Chairman Neil Wallace. It also requires more preparation and approval of building materials and aesthetics, he said.

The four men propose building the surgical center on some 6 acres behind O'Neill's current M-15 pediatric practice.

It is to house outpatient surgical facilities, an emergency room and a psychiatric day care center.

The 8,000-square-foot, three-floor facility will complement current physicians' practices and the Clarkston Ambulatory Care Center, according to O'Neill.

Citizens interested in asking questions about the facility or who wish to voice concerns may speak at the hearing.

The hearing is to be held in the Independence Township Hall annex building on Main Street at 7:30 p.m.

As the planning commission meetings get under way, Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital (POH) has filed an appeal to the Michigan Court of Appeals to revoke the center's state-authorized certificate of need.

A certificate of need is mandated by the state before any hospital-type facilities using third party insurance can be built.

The appeal challenges a decision by Ingham County Circuit Judge Thomas Brown last December to dismiss a similar lawsuit.

POH administrator Jack Whitlow would offer no comment on the appeal other than to say it had been filed and was awaiting a court date.

Meanwhile, POH officials are continuing their appeal of a department of health decision that denied them a certificate of need for their proposed satellite on Dixie Highway, Whitlow added.

In a related matter, O'Neill is awaiting word on a Comprehensive Health Planning Council of Southeastern Michigan (CHPC-SEM) appeal of the certificate of need. CHPC-SEM had recommended denial of its issuance last year.

"I'm positive that's going to be a very favorable decision," he said.

Petitions available for school board

Clarkston school district residents who want to serve on the board of education have until April 7 to file petitions for the June 9 election.

Two seats are up for election, a four-year term and two years of the four-year term of a board member who resigned.

Candidates must indicate which office—the four-year or two-year—they are running for when turning in their petitions.

The petitions must have at least 20 verifiable signatures of registered school district voters and must be returned to the district's administrative offices by 4 p.m. on April 7.

Mary Jane Chaustowich's four-year term is up this year, and she said she will be running for office again.

The unexpired term (two years) of the seat formerly held by David Kithil will be on the ballot as well.

John Needham was appointed by the board to complete the current year for Kithil, who resigned because of an out-of-state job promotion.

According to a member of Needham's family, he also plans to run for a seat on the school board.

News reporter wins award

Carolyn Walker was among 14 award recipients at the Association for Retarded Citizens/Oakland County annual awards dinner March 14.

Walker, a staff writer at The Clarkston News,

Clarkston News staff writer Carolyn Walker displays the media award she received from the Association for Retarded Citizens.

was selected as a winner in the media category.

"It was an honor to receive it," she said of the glass award embossed with a dove.

This is the first year the media award has been given. It was established to recognize persons from the media who have brought about better understanding of persons with mental retardation.

Walker's selection was based on her "many articles on the special education millage, community placement and sharing her own feelings as the mother of a handicapped child," said Dr. James Graves during the presentation at the San Marino Club in Troy.

Honors also went to Bob Talbert, Detroit Free Press columnist, for Distinguished Service; State Sen. Doug Cruce for Public Official; Ron Cornelison, director community services for Macomb-Oakland Regional Center, for the Agnes I. Wisner Professional Service Award; Joe Dzenowagis for Media, TV programming; Mary Jankowski and Jane Murphy for Volunteer of the Year; Robert Wootton for the Hugh Graham Inspiration Award; Groveland II Home in Davisburg for Community Home Award; Carmen Totten, case manager for the Macomb-Oakland Regional Center for Technician; Michael Bliss from the Einstein Center for Severely Mentally Retarded for Teacher of the Year; Champion Spark Plug Co. for Contractor; Fr. Pere Marquette Circle Squires for the Youth Volunteer; and Freedom Work Opportunities for Employer of the Year.

Pine Knob job applications

As warmer temperatures approach, so does the increase in summer job opportunities.

Summer job applications for Pine Knob are available at The Clarkston News.

The applications can be picked up, one to a person, Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Completed applications are to be sent to Pine Knob by mail.

Graduation competency tests start in '87-88

By Julie LePere

Beginning in the 1987-88 school year, general education students will be required to pass competency tests for graduation and promotion in the Clarkston school district.

The Clarkston board of education first proposed the promotion, placement and retention program in June 1985, but did not approve it until further cost considerations could be made, said Superintendent Milford Mason.

Mason again recommended the plan at the Feb. 10 board meeting, this time with several changes for a lower cost. It was approved at the March 10 meeting. "I recommended that it become operational in the 1987-88 school year," said Mason after the meeting. "It will take most of next year in fine-tuning the procedures."

The board approved the revised plan, 6-0, at last week's meeting. John Needham was absent.

The policy requires students to pass 75 percent of the test objectives in reading and mathematics, and the Michigan Education Assessment Program (MEAP) will be used for testing, said Mason.

Initially, all fourth-, seventh- and 10th-graders will be tested. If a student passes the first time, he won't be tested again until the next scheduled point. If a student does not pass, he may have to enter remediation and then retake the test at the end of the grade in which the testing took place.

Students will have to meet the minimum level of competency to move from ninth to 10th grade, and they will have to meet the minimum level of competency to graduate with a regular diploma.

"This is a new step for us in trying to assure quality for our graduates," said Mason.

The modifications recommended by Mason included:

1. Eliminate all reference to special education in this policy as these students are covered by the board approved graduation plan.
2. Initiate the plan at the fourth, seventh, and 10th grades in the first year, 1987-88. The next year would include grades 4, 5, 7, 8, 10 and 11, and in the third year implement all students in grades 4 through 12.
3. The kindergarten through third-grade segment would not be initiated at this time.
4. The guidelines for adult education and alternative education will not be implemented until further information is available.

New special education plan

Special education students will have a formal, written curriculum guide and graduation plan beginning in the 1987-88 school year.

The Clarkston board of education approved the plan presented by Robert Brumback, director of special services, on March 10.

The plan gives students curriculum guides for graduation with either a regular diploma or a certificate of completion, said Brumback.

To graduate with a regular diploma, students will enter a normal course of study. They must meet 75 percent of the minimum competency levels by studying in a general education curriculum or in a special education curriculum.

The extent to which a student needs special education programs and services will be determined by an Individualized Education Planning Committee (IEPC), according to Brumback.

Students who are unable to complete the minimal requirements for receiving a regular high school diploma will enter the alternative course of study.

"We've been required to do it (have a written plan) by law, and it's hard to do it because the rules are always changing," Brumback said.

"This will help parents sit down in the ninth grade and plan a student's graduation plan. Parents can see it more clearly."

CHS accounting test winner

Stacie Cool, a CHS student, placed first of 91 students taking the beginning accounting test sponsored by the Detroit College of Business-Flint.

Stacie Cool's speed ensured her first place finish in an accounting test.

Staci, a student of Eugene McCurdy's business class at Clarkston High School, scored the highest score, 47 points out of 52. But so did two others. Stacie received the first place award because she finished before the others.

"I was nervous at first," said Staci. "I did it really fast. It was all multiple choice."

Staci received $75 and a plaque for her performance.

"And the school gets a plaque or a trophy or something," said Staci.

The sixth annual Detroit College of Business-Flint Accounting Test Program tested 137 students representing 25 high schools.

'Purge of Passion' is hot winner

By Julie LePere

Bill Genshaw's Media II class at Clarkston High School must have used the same creativity in the production as they did in the title.

"The Purge of Passion" took top prize at a recent video festival.

The media class won two awards in the First Annual Oakland Schools Student Video Festival.

Jeff Huber and Mildred Edwards accepted the Grand Trophy for "The Purge of Passion."

"It's a soap opera written, directed, filmed and acted by students," said Jim Vonderhaar, access director at Tribune—United Cable Communications.

The soap has already aired on the local cable channel and will be shown again. Viewers should watch the billboard on Channel 11 for the date and time, said Vonderhaar.

Bill Phipps, Dan Sartor and Tom Myers received a second place plaque in the Entertainment category for "Testing, Testing."

"The high school students are involved in programming over here (Tribune-United office)," said Vonderhaar, who is also technical adviser for the students.

"As part of their curriculum, they work on what we call personal projects," he said. "I'm very impressed by these kids. The quality of work at this level is outstanding."

The class spends four 40-minute class periods during the week at Tribune-United.

"The students do all the work themselves. Normally, they will submit a program proposal for Mr. Genshaw and myself. Generally speaking, it's minimal supervision."

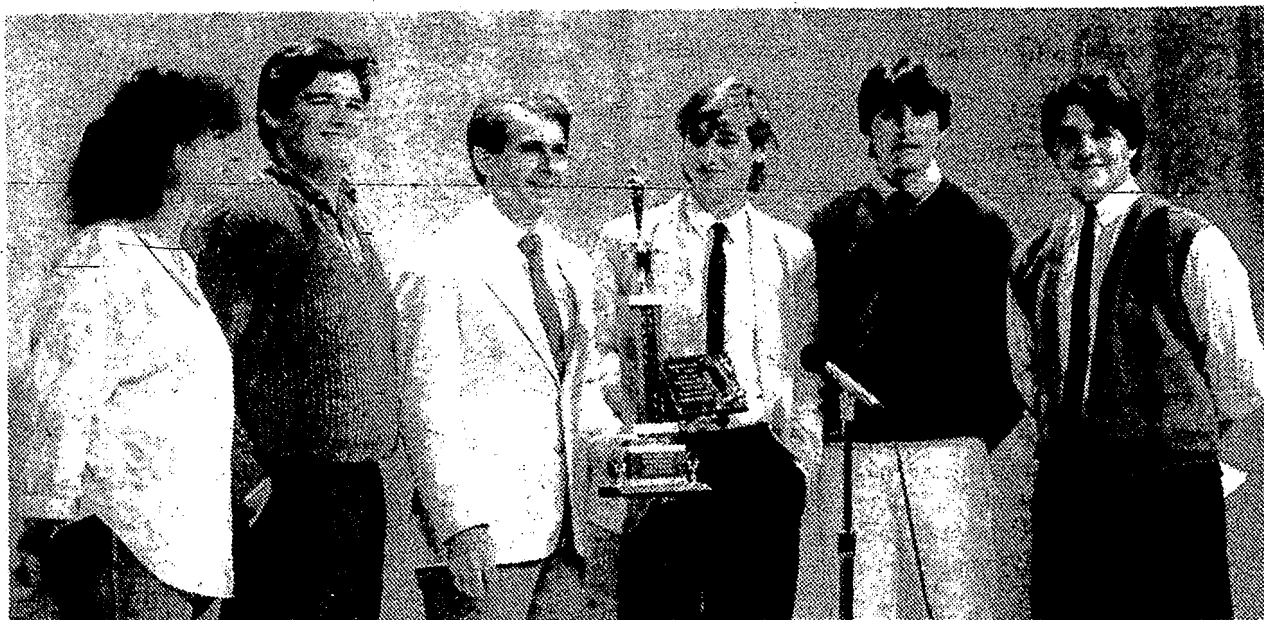

Patrick Mardney, video production coordinator for Oakland Schools, was also impressed with the quality of Clarkston students' work.

"The programs put on by Clarkston High School were far superior to the others. We asked, 'Is this really a student made film?'" said Mardney after presenting the awards.

He was assured they were.

"We want to have Bill (Genshaw) come back and put on an in-service for the other teachers in the county," said Mardney.

The judges for the festival were chosen from industrial, cable and higher education sectors. The criteria for judging were originality, story, information content, and camera and editing techniques.

Two bands to share concert

The neighboring high school bands of Clarkston and Brandon are planning to perform in concert Tuesday, March 25.

The program at Brandon High School on M-15 will feature the Clarkston High School Wind Ensemble under the direction of Clifford Chapman and the BHS Band under the direction of Roy Johnson.

Each band will present its winter festival repertoire.

The two bands will combine to perform under the direction of guest conductor Professor Russel Reed of Eastern Michigan University, Ypsilanti.

The 7:30 p.m. program is open to the public.

Carolyn Walker

For the past six months, my oldest daughter has responded to the question "How old are you?" with the following: "Almost 13."

Though she has been 12 for nearly a year now, she hasn't owned up to that fact for the longest time.

She'll tell you face to face, over the phone or through the mail that she can hardly wait to be a teenager. To her, being a teenager means being closer to coveted adulthood.

Little does she know the toll it is taking on me. Another passage. Another reminder that nothing stands still—especially a growing child.

Just since Christmas, it seems, she has acquired the three inches she needed to look me square in the eye while standing.

She's asked to borrow my curling iron and some of my clothes, and even lent me a few—all but her boots, which are too big for me.

It doesn't seem possible that nearly 13 years have passed since I first held her, a tiny miracle.

It seems only yesterday that I brought her home from the hospital on a sunny Good Friday.

It was so warm that we didn't need to wear coats. An oversized sleeper, blanket and my arms were all that she needed to protect her.

As I sat waiting for my husband to bring the car around, a man walked by me, smiled and said, "Isn't it a beautiful day?"

It was more beautiful than he could have imagined. A new child made it so.

If we lived in a tribal society, say in Africa or South America, my daughter would face an elaborate ritual at this time which would officially make her a woman.

As it is, we are Americans, where the passing of the child into the adult body is marked only by an emerging interest in the opposite sex, a dislike for bedroom cleaning and a fascination with rock and roll.

Dear daughter: As you turn this corner in your life and set your sights on becoming a teen, I offer you these thoughts:

Do not wish the little girl in you away. Do not let her go easily.

Fight to hold on to her, for it is through her that you see the world wonderously.

It is the little girl's eyes that behold life's goodness. Its simplicity. Its innocence. Its hope.

It is she who trusts and loves unconditionally.

The little girl has not yet learned prejudice, contempt or anger. She prefers to dream.

Let her dreams shape the woman you will become. Give them reign.

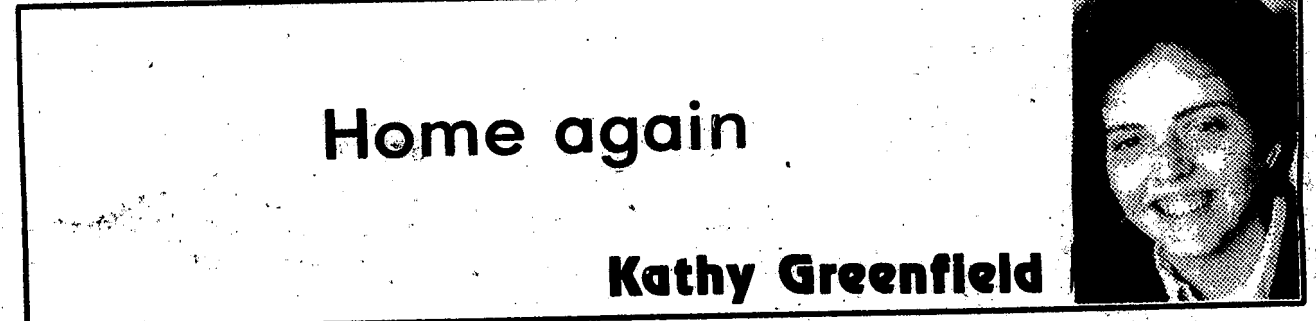

Let them mold your life and make a contribution to the lives of others. After all, the world was built on dreams.

Daughter, it may be the adults of the world who make decisions and shoulder responsibilities. Who do the things you wish you could.

But it is the children, the boys and girls like yourself, who give it its laughter, its peace.

It is the children, who in their excitement to grow up and face life's challenges, offer hope.

Do not hurry.

Home again

Kathy Greenfield

I never make resolutions of the New Year's kind, but I always make post-vacation resolutions.

This year, I have decided to never eat again, to get my possessions down to a suitcase size-limit and to change careers.

First, the food problem. When I stepped on the scale conveniently located in my bedroom at home (I avoided the scale in the exercise room at the place we stayed; actually, I avoided the entire room); the dial revealed a 5-pound gain.

It could have been the cheese danish that filled the plate at the Italian restaurant; it could have been the Hawaiian fruit drinks served on crushed ice; it could have been the cake-of-the-day with two kinds of frosting; and so on.

Hunger is beginning to gnaw, so on to the next vow.

For 10 days, I managed very nicely on the contents of one large suitcase. At home, clothing is stashed in my dresser, my closet, the trunk and the garment bags stored in the basement and other places.

I can envision getting rid of all the storage-type furniture and operating out of a suitcase stored under the bed.

There's still hope, I tell myself, for I have seriously considered parting with one of my sweaters.

On to the final goal. I've narrowed my possible job titles to "woman of the beach" or "professional whale watcher."

I was doing just fine exploring the first career when I broke out into a rash from all that sun. My Michigan born and bred skin is entirely too used to gray skies.

The whale watching, however, has possibilities. I can imagine myself, camera poised for action, riding on a sailboat for days on end... as long as the water stayed relatively calm.

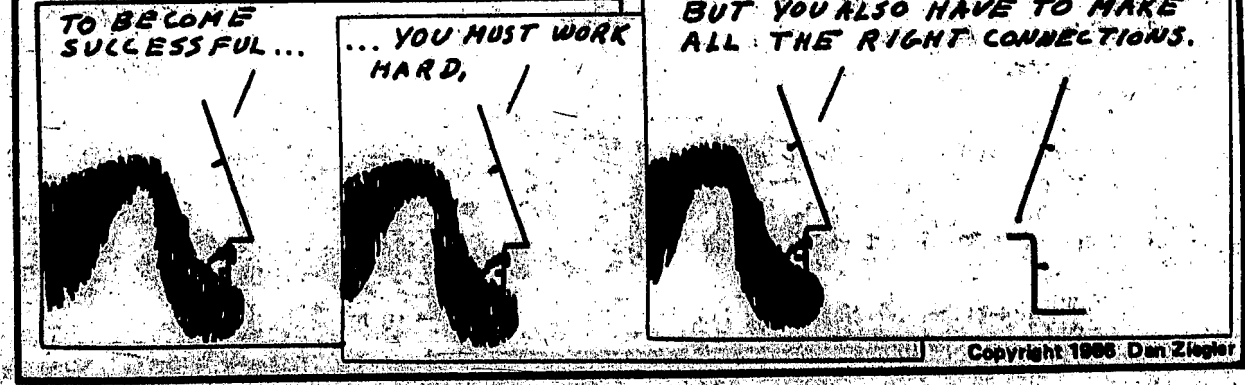

But the real problem is figuring out a way to make such activities pay rather than cost.

Jim Sherman is on vacation. Jim's Jottings will return next week.

Heartfelt thanks

Every once in a while, you make a decision that you know from the very beginning is correct. That's the way we felt from the moment we moved to Clarkston.

This feeling has been reconfirmed during our current struggle for our son Bryan's life.

Although many, many miles separate us, we still feel the warmth and caring of our community, out here in Seattle. It is felt in the many wonderful and unselfish acts to help us.

All of those who have lost faith in the goodness of people, look around you.

We could never find the words to adequately express our thanks for the beautiful cards, positive thoughts, prayers, fund raisers and generous donations to Bryan's fund.

It is very comforting to us to see such generosity and kindness, often-times from complete strangers.

Your gifts of love have helped both financially and emotionally, more than you'll ever know. We hope that someday, some way, we'll be able to repay this kindness.

A special thanks to Mr. Conrad Bruce, Mr.

Robert Brumbaek, Mr. George White, Mr. and Mrs. Len Loveless, Mrs. Jackie Pascoe, Mrs. Donna Rudolph, Mrs. Lee Brown, Mrs. Sally Seaman, Mr. John Kalinski, The Clarkston Schools Credit Union and the Clarkston school district for their hard work on Bryan's behalf.

Your kindness will never be forgotten! May God bless you with a healthy and prosperous year.

Gasoline glut?

I have learned that the Boron Oil Co. is anticipating re-opening its gasoline station on the corner of Sashabaw and Maybee roads. I would like to voice my negative feelings regarding this possibility.

If this were to happen, residents of Clarkston would have three retail gasoline stations within a mile of each other. This is an overabundance of a necessary evil.

I will certainly agree that we all need gasoline for our automobiles, but what the Clarkston residents do not need is an oversaturation of unsightly gasoline stations in our lovely community.

I for one will be at the planning commission meeting on March 27 at 7:30 p.m. and hope others of our community will take the time to voice their opinions.

Leaving it to others usually results in the large companies getting what they want and the local residents putting up with the end results. Like it or not!

A concerned resident,
Karol P. Massaccesi

Ownership query

I have spent all my life living and working in Clarkston.

My family has been here since the beginning of the town and I know there are many older and extremely interesting people remaining in the village.

I appreciate the articles on the Ford farm, as I remember it as a child also.

I am curious, though, as to whom exactly The Clarkston News is owned by. I thought possibly Dr. O'Neill might have some shares in it, as almost every issue has an article about him or has an article with his opinion expressed.

There are many new and old competent physicians in Clarkston of whom I seldom see articles on or hear their opinions.

The Clarkston News is a great paper and usually very informative, and with Clarkston's great birthday this year, I know there will be many good articles and I hope there are many opinions from other people in the village.

Thank you for letting me express my opinion.

Virginia (Vliet) Radtke

Publisher's note: Dr. James O'Neill is an extremely active person in the Independence community. The News believes in balance and does not go to extremes to get the doctor's name in the paper; however, we can't ignore his exposure and prominence. O'Neill's investment in The Clarkston News is limited to an annual subscription.

Praise for writer

I want to thank Julie LePere for the excellent article that appeared in The Clarkston News about me on Wednesday, March 5.

It was a very well-written article . . . clear, concise, accurate and honest.

From the many pages of notes which Miss LePere took during our interview, she fashioned an article that had unity, coherence and emphasis—all the signs of good journalism.

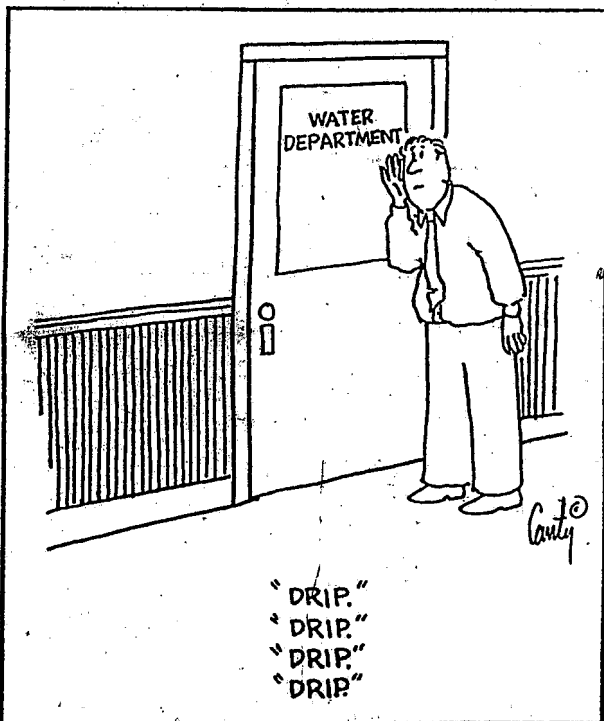

I was especially appreciative of the accuracy of the last half of the article. That is the kind of material that can be easily misquoted, but her handling of it was expert.

Many people here have congratulated me and at the same time remarked what a fine article it was.

I wish Miss LePere every measure of success and God's blessing on her future work as a journalist. She is capable of doing much good in that field.

'If it Fitz . . .'

Dropout chastised by readers

Jim Fitzgerald

Catholics have greatly improved their fund-raising techniques since the long-ago days when school nuns assigned me to sell my parents raffle tickets on their own groceries. That is encouraging.

Recently I wrote something dumb that upset several Catholic readers who immediately mailed me sorrow for my soul. I wrote that I left the Catholic Church 40 years ago after having a dismaying experience with a racist priest.

The reaction of Ann MacKercher of Farmington Hills was typical. "You admit things are different today. How do you think this came about . . . by the faithful dropping out? No, it was by nuns, priests and lay Catholics marching in protest and taking part in demonstrations. You chose to drop your beautiful church and let others correct things. Much still has to be done, but you are not one of the doers in this world. I will never read your column again."

Yes, The active position of the Catholic Church (and most other churches) on racism is much more Christian today than in 1945. And mostly it was the active members of these churches who changed things, not dropouts like me. Ann MacKercher was absolutely right — what I wrote was stupid. I will never read her letters again.

Actually, I should have written more. I shouldn't have given the impression that I walked away from 12 years of Catholic schooling simply because of one racist priest.

As an anonymous reader said: "Don't give up your church because you don't like a priest, any more than you would go home and starve because you didn't like the grocer."

I should have mentioned the many other reasons the Catholic Church didn't suit me 40 years ago. And I should have admitted that my reluctance to join any church since then has much more to do with my apathy toward organized religion than with the individual doctrine of any particular religion. For me, it's more comfortable to keep religion inside me, and call it conscience, than to parade it on church aisles. But to each his own. Some of my best wives go to church every Sunday and take me with them.

Unfortunately, one of the things that bugged me most about Catholic doctrine in 1945 remains unchanged today. Recently in India — one of the world's most overpopulated countries — Pope John Paul II once again preached that discipline and self-control are the only acceptable means of birth control. He said this in Bombay where the streets are crowded with starving children.

The pope should not only allow contraception, he should encourage it — especially in under-developed nations — as a means of expressing love without creating mouths that can't be fed. Of course, many sophisticated Catholics use contraceptives no matter what the pope preaches. I used to call them hypocrites for picking which sins are OK, and which aren't. But perhaps, as suggested by Ann MacKercher, I should call them progressive in hopes that they are working from inside the church to eliminate the birth-control ban.

I just read that several area Catholic schools are raising money by staging a calendar lottery offering $103,700 in prize money. The calendars cost $25 and first prize is $50,000. In 1935, my parents could win a bag of groceries if they first donated the groceries to St. Stephen School and then bought the lucky raffle ticket for one cent.

That's what I call high-tech progress in money raising. From the outside, I am rooting that Catholic insiders accomplish similar progress in birth control.

Planners recommend rezoning for carwash

By Carolyn Walker

A carwash that bears a resemblance to the much-acclaimed new 52nd District Courthouse may soon find its way to Dixie Highway.

On March 13, members of the Independence Township Planning Commission voted to recommend a zoning change for the facility to the township board.

The 120-foot-long carwash, called a "modified courthouse" by Chairman Neil Wallace, is proposed for property on Dixie near Parview Road by Frederick and Sheila Ritter.

The Ritters are residents of Independence and Frederick is a former member of the board of trustees. If authorized by the board, the zoning status would change from commercial to Planned Unit Development (PUD).

Ritter sought the change to PUD, which allows a variety of uses on a single parcel of land, to avoid going before the zoning board of appeals for required variances, he said.

A PUD allows the township some "flexibility" said commission Chairman Neil Wallace, but requires more information than other zoning statuses.

The motion for approval was reached with many stipulations from the commission, which had listened to comments of two residents at a public hearing before casting their votes.

The residents voiced concern that the carwash would generate too much traffic for Parview and Dixie and would create icy conditions on the road during the winter.

Ritter responded that he foresees the traffic flow at approximately 200 cars per day and said heating devices and a gully could be built into the drive to eliminate ice and the flow of water onto Dixie.

Before voting, several commissioners expressed concern about an on-site retention pond and its surrounding fence.

They suggested that Ritter use a 4-foot cyclone fence or decorative fence where there is a drop-off rather than the 30-inch rail fence he proposed.

They also voiced worries that the township could be liable in the event of an accident.

The commissioners approved a PUD recommendation with the following stipulations:

- The type of brick and building materials to be used must be specifically identified in the final site plan.

- The in and out driveways must be designated one-way.

- The ground sign must conform in height to the township's 6-foot-high standard.

- The exit drive must include sufficient measures and grooves to help eliminate water dripping onto the road.

- The site is to be used as a car wash only and there is to be no pumping of gasoline or other fuels or other auto services.

- Landscaping is to be added near the rear corner of the property.

- An appropriate design must be submitted designating the facility's lighting.

If Ritter receives the PUD change from the township board, he will be through with the site plan phase and will not have to appear again before the planning commission. He will still have to obtain a building permit.

After the meeting, Ritter said he hopes to begin construction of the carwash this spring.

The motion was passed 4-0 by Chairman Neil Wallace, Joseph Figa, John Gray and Brent Bair.

Commissioners Carol Balzarini and Holly Stephens were absent. Commissioner Robert Dieball resigned his post this month because of job commitments.

Springfield supports county

Springfield Township has agreed to lend its support to Oakland County in a lawsuit involving the Walled Lake school district.

The township board voted 4-1 on March 12 to support the Oakland County Municipal Treasurers Association in the suit. Supervisor Collin Walls cast the lone "no" vote.

In agreeing to support the county, Springfield Township might have to help pay for part of the legal services.

"With the support goes helping with the cost if it's necessary," Walls said. "The township may not have to pay anything. We won't know until a decision is made."

The suit is filed in the Oakland County Circuit Court. The school district is asking for the interest earned from investment of school taxes collected by the county last year.

Walls said an appellate court decision in Grand Rapids is the basis for the Walled Lake lawsuit. The ruling in Grand Rapids stated that the interest collected by the City of Grand Rapids had to be paid to the school district.

Walls voted "no" on the motion to support the county because the case deals with more than just school taxes.

"The suit contains the taxes collected by the state, the sales tax, the income tax, all of them," he said. "I don't think the two issues should come down at the same time. I don't think the state taxes should be brought into it."

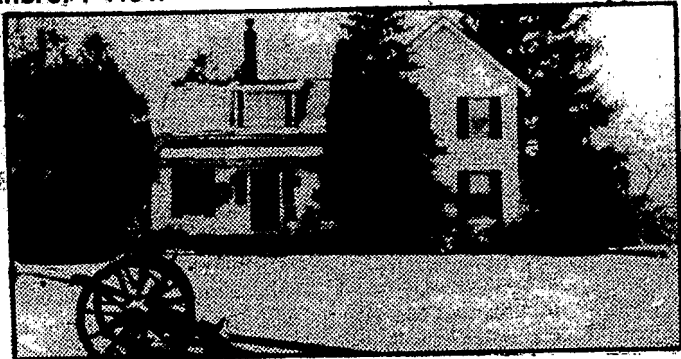

In giving the support to the county, the township board agreed that the interest from the collected taxes should stay with the taxing body, Walls said.

The Michigan Township Association is also lending its support to the county in the suit, he said.

Council seeks withdrawal of cash for curbs

By Carolyn Walker

Word that the Oakland County Road Commission plans to re-pave some Clarkston roads came too late, said Clarkston Village President Carol Eberhardt.

The commission notified the council this week that they intend to improve conditions on portions of White Lake Road, Holcomb and West Washington streets.

The village council had already approved spending $10,000 in tri-party funds and county tax credits for curbing on West Washington when they received the news, said Eberhardt.

Now they would like to back out of that commitment and, since curbing is to be a part of the commission's project, re-allocate village money for a different project, she said.

On March 11, council members agreed to ask the commission to release them from their commitment.

"They could just hold us to that agreement," Eberhardt said.

But Dennis Pajot, spokesperson for the commission, said the commission will have to re-evaluate the project and other options before a decision can be reached.

"It's going to take an entire re-evaluation," he said, adding that the commission had included the village's money in funding plans and only intended to pay over and above that amount.

The $21,000 Washington Street portion of the project was to be paid with over $16,000 of county bond money, $3,831 of village tax credit and tri-party money, and $1,800 in tri-party money from the county and the commission, according to Pajot.

The entire White Lake Road, Holcomb Street, Washington Street project is estimated at $135,000, he said.

"In effect, they're saying they're going to pull out of this project," Pajot said.

He does not know when the county will reach its decision, Pajot added.

Annual meeting set

What could be the last annual meeting in Springfield Township has been set for March 25 at 7:30 p.m. in the township hall.

The township approved switching from a general law township to a charter township at its Feb. 12 meeting.

Under charter guidelines, which go into effect April 1, the township can eliminate the annual meeting to discuss the budget and officials' salaries.

When the township first agreed to go to the charter system in December 1985, Supervisor Collin Walls said he thought they still might hold an annual meeting to get the residents' input.

Traditionally, the annual meeting has been held on the last Saturday of March. The switch was made to Tuesday evening because Easter falls on that weekend.

The law requires the annual meeting be held during the last week of March.

"With Saturday falling on the Easter weekend, we felt having it on Tuesday night would have the most people attend," Walls said.

Triathlon planned

The 150th birthday of Independence Township is to be celebrated with a triathlon in August.

On March 4, members of the township board approved a resolution authorizing parks and recreation director Timothy Doyle to get an Oakland County permit for the triathlon.

The permit allows racing on a county road. The event will feature a four-mile run, 17.3-mile bike race and a swim in an as yet unchosen lake.

In a related motion, the board approved a sesquicentennial budget of $7,500. The money is to be taken from the general fund, said Clerk Richard Holman, and used for sesquicentennial promotions.

The township begins its official celebration with a birthday bash at Clarkston Mills Mall on March 23. The party is open to the public.

Other events are being planned throughout the year to mark the occasion as well.

Students face fewer electives

The number of credits for graduation will remain the same, but Clarkston High School graduates will soon have fewer choices.

Graduation requirement changes, which involve fewer electives, are to begin with 10th-graders starting this September. Ninth-graders will also be affected.

The changes had already been approved by the board of education, but the original plan called for a five year phase-in time.

"Because of the new state-required graduation requirements, our date did not coincide with theirs, so we thought we would speed up the process," said Alberta Ellis, curriculum director.

There is still a 16-credit requirement for grades 10-12, said Ellis. "The bottom line is we're requiring more classes in certain areas and decreasing the number of electives."

An additional 1/2 credit in each area of math, science and computer will be required.

"For the computer requirement, students will have several options," she said. "They can take the specially designed computer class, and we will also accept those classes that have a heavy computer user component."

Next year's ninth-graders will be the first to participate in a 9-12 graduation plan.

"Some of the classes that a ninth-grader takes are also taken in the high school," said Ellis, citing examples of foreign language and accelerated math.

"I think it will make our whole process more efficient having a 9-12 curriculum."

Heartbreaker ends hoop year

By Dan Vandenhemel

A good bounce here, an extra free throw or a lay up over there and the Clarkston Wolves would have netted the biggest upset of the season.

Would have is a very big phrase in sports. It nearly equals the other overused words, if only.

The Wolves dropped a double overtime loss to Flint Northwestern, 71-65, at Flint Central High School on March 12.

The Wildcats are working on their third straight state Class A basketball title. Playing the Wolves in the opening round of the regional competition may have been a blessing for them.

Three years ago, the last time Clarkston advanced to the regionals, they lost to Flint Central, 81-45. Central went on to win its third straight championship.

This year's contest was much closer. With a minute and a half left in regulation, the Wolves led, 60-56. Northwestern rallied to knot the score at 60, giving the Wolves the ball with 47 seconds left.

A shot at the buzzer by Ed Whitaker over a swarming defense banged off the rim, sending the game into overtime.

The story was pretty close to the same in the first extra period. Craig Chamberlain put the Wolves up, 62-60, with a pair of free throws and the Wildcats charged right back to tie the score again at 62-62.

Whitaker controlled the ball for the final seconds and again his shot missed the mark.

Northwestern's defense put the pressure on Whitaker and the entire team, forcing the bad shots.

The decisive second three-minute overtime was put away by the Wildcats with a couple of steals and easy baskets.

Ending the season in such a dramatic fashion was difficult for the Wolves. They finished the season with a 21-3 record.

"I'm crushed," Wolves' coach Dan Fife said in the tomb-like-quiet lockerroom after the game. "Especially with the good effort we gave."

The Wolves did everything in the game they wanted—except win. Size-wise, the Wolves matched up with the Wildcats. Quickness and jumping ability were other matters.

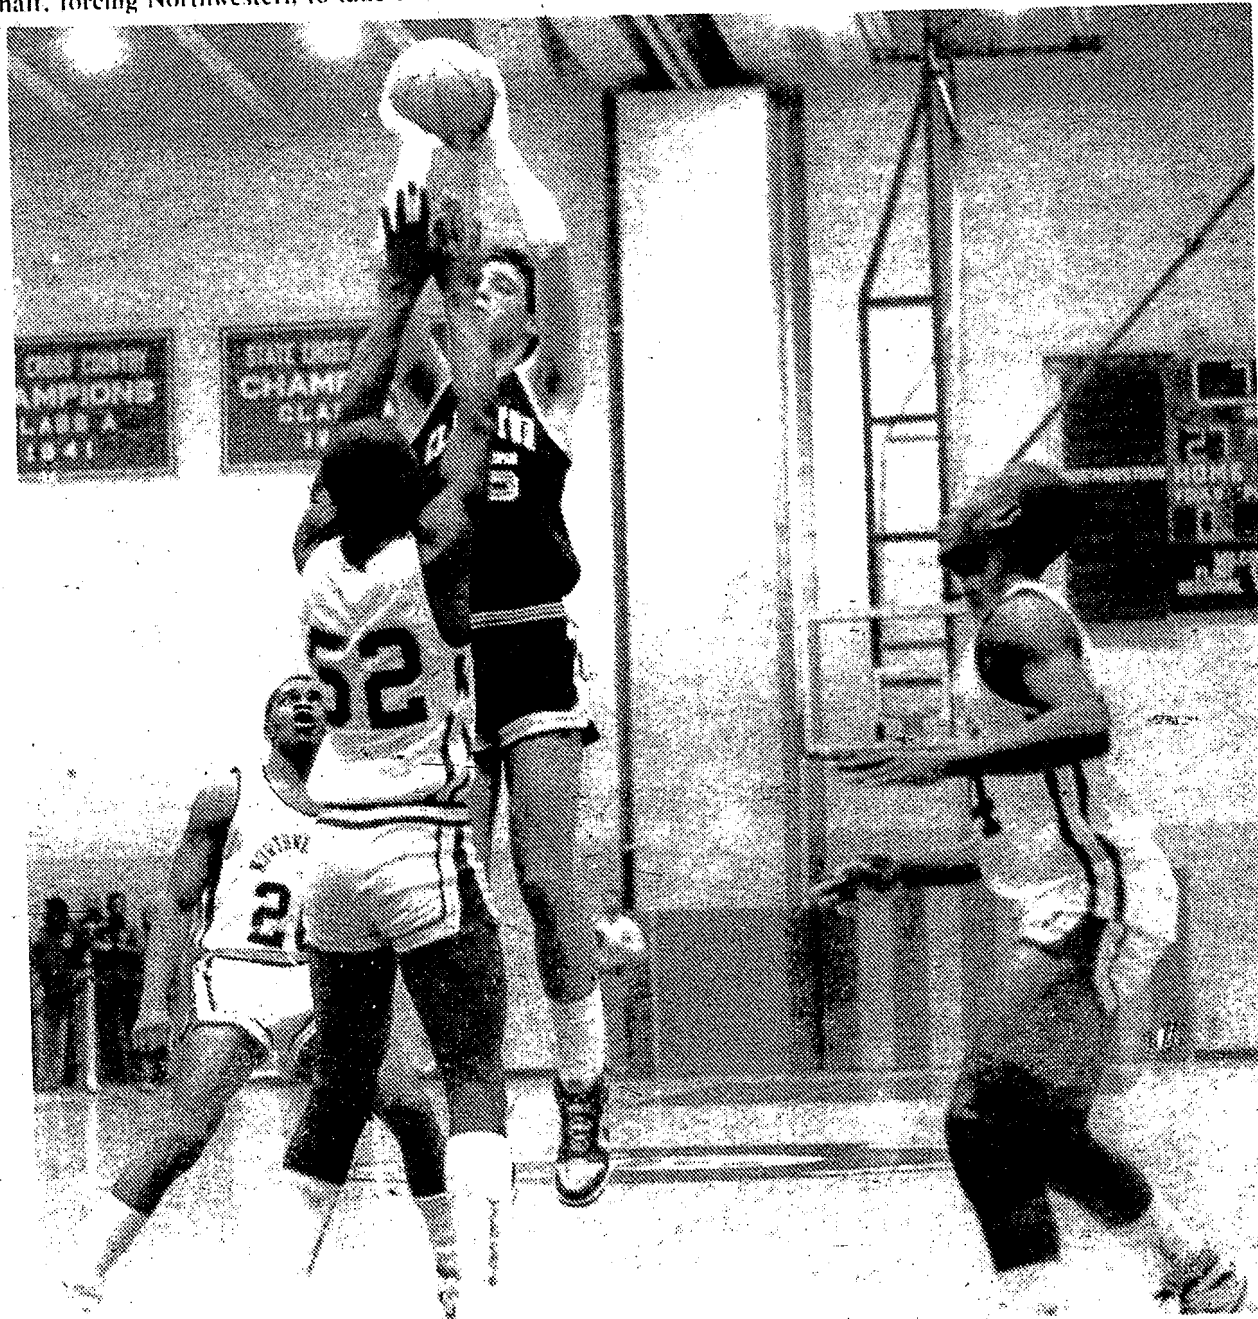

Clarkston controlled the boards much of the first half, forcing Northwestern to take the outside shots.

Both teams held a brick throwing contest in the first quarter, giving the Wildcats an 8-4 advantage. The margin stayed the same at halftime with Clarkston trailing, 25-21.

Fouls and free throws kept the Wolves in the contest. They made 23 of their 32 shots from the charity stripe, while Northwestern connected on 11 of 19.

Only five Wolves scored in the game, led by Dan Jokisch with 26 points. Mike Walters was next with 15, followed by Whitaker with 14, Chamberlain with six and Steve Secatch with four.

"I thought we could play with them," Fife said. "I was concerned about the intimidation. But we weren't afraid of them, not in the least. We just came out on the short end."

The Wolves' hopes were high going into the regional game with Flint Northwestern. Dan Jokisch led the charge with 26 points as they lost in double overtime.

Sports

The Seer

Found Monday morning underneath the mail slot in the door at The Clarkston News:

The Seer had a fantastic season, winning nine and losing only one.

Before I sign off for the year, I want to share some thoughts for the upcoming 1986-87 basketball season.

Clarkston had a fine season, but they can help themselves in the state tournament by playing a more difficult schedule.

They should drop Davison, Milford, West Bloomfield and Andover. These teams have been very weak over the years and do not help them as the season wears on.

Clarkston should switch schedules with Pontiac Northern.

They play Saginaw twice, Flint Northwestern, Inkster, Ferndale and probably the Class B state champion Detroit Northern for their non-league games. If Pontiac Northern can schedule these teams, so can Clarkston.

The Saginaw Valley Conference, with the Flint Saginaw schools, was down this year and looks to be about the same for next year.

This is an excellent opportunity to win a regional title.

To do this, Clarkston must play some tougher teams. Not only will this help the team, but it will give them outstate exposure.

Even Waterford Mott plays Inkster and Sterling Heights Stevenson for a couple of non-league games.

For the next season, watch Clarkston have another good year, but struggle in the district. This can be prevented with a tougher schedule.

Clarkston will go at least 15-5. Remember, you read it here first.

2nd-half surge stands out

By Dan Vandenhemel

At the halfway point in the season, the Clarkston High School junior varsity volleyball was treading water.

After one tournament and seven matches, the Wolves logged in with only a 5-5 mark.

Nothing to that point had indicated what kind of second half the team was going to put together.

After the Lansing Waverly tournament in late January, where the Wolves lost three times to give them a 5-5 record, the team went on to win nine of the next 11 matches. The 14-7 final record gives coach Gordy Richardson something to talk about.

"I'm never thrilled about a 14-7 record," the coach said. "I always hope for a better record."

Richardson points to one main reason for the midpoint turnaround—players learning their roles on the team.

"Everyone came on and played well," he said. "They knew what they were supposed to do and they did it. We made tremendous progress. The kids really played super."

Top players were hitters Jessica Shoup and Igne Selent and setters Beth Tilley and Jackie Patrick.

Shoup and Tilley were the only juniors on the squad.

"Tilley came down from the varsity about halfway through the season," Richardson said. "She really helped on the floor with her leadership. Patrick played strong the whole year as setter."

The change from the first half to the second half was exemplified with the match at Clarkston against Lake Orion.

The Wolves won the Feb. 12 meeting in three games, 9-15, 16-14, 15-11. The victory was sweeter than usually because the Dragons disposed of the Wolves quickly in their first match.

"It was the highlight of the year for the kids," Richardson said. "It was our biggest win of the year. The statistics proved that we played great."

"It was real nice to see the improvement we made," he said. "Not just a couple of kids, all the ' in general."

History, pitching concerns softball coach

Last year, the Clarkston varsity softball team advanced to the state semifinals. In fact, they've gone three times in the last five years.

Clarkston softball coach Carla Teare hopes history doesn't repeat itself.

Teare is entering her sixth year as coach of the Wolves.

In her first, third and fifth years at the helm, the team has come within two games of winning a state championship.

The even-numbered years, they've played good, even winning a district title in the fourth year but not to the magnitude of the others.

"I don't know why it's ended up that way," she said. "I hope it doesn't happen that way again this year. I wouldn't mind going there again."

Early practice and a lot of running give the Wolves a competitive edge that Teare thinks will help during the long haul.

Practice started the last week in February with the team narrowed down to 13 a couple weeks later. So far, all the work has been in the gym at Clarkston High School.

Some coaches dislike spring practices indoors because they feel more can be accomplished on the field.

Not Teare. Though she wants to get outside quickly, she treats the gym work as precious moments.

"When you're indoors, it's hard to tell what your team is going to be like," she said. "I am impressed on how hard they're working."

"We've got a lot to cover in a short time," Teare continued. "It's better to teach them inside. We can cover everything in the gym, it's just not realistic. We can go over every situation. When we get outside, we just move to the right distances."

Traditionally, the pitchers are ready for the season faster than the hitters. This year, Teare is putting the ball in the hands of Terri Sherman, Missy Odell and Melanie Upcott.

"I'll pitch whoever is ready to pitch," the coach said. "I don't believe in pitching one person unless it is necessary."

Pitching in general has had a stronger effect on softball than any other aspect.

Coaches and players are learning more about the techniques of pitching. Almost every team is going to have a good pitcher, but it's the rest of the team that produces a winner.

"I think pitching is taking over the sport," Teare said. "A team with a good pitcher is going to win a lot of games, but a good overall team with a good pitcher is going to make it to the districts and the regionals."

Running, and lots of it, keeps the varsity softball Wolves busy during early spring practices.

Coach Carla Teare says hard work now will pay off later.

Hard ending

Dan Vandenhommel

There was an eerie silence in the Clarkston Wolves' lockerroom following the game that ended their season.

The only sound coming from the lockerroom was coach Dan Fife's voice as he answered a few questions.

There was no laughter or loud voices, as there were when the Wolves won the district final in three overtimes from Pontiac Northern.

Lift raises funds

The sixth annual Lift-a-Thon at Clarkston High School is history. A total of $1,767.10 came in through pledges to help supply the weight room and the first aid room at the school.

Lifters from the high school, along with graduates and students from Sashabaw and Clarkston junior highs competed for trophies March 14.

Mickey Simpkinson won a trophy in the 144-pound class. He pushed an even 200 pounds. Jim Turk won the 159-pound division with a lift of 260 pounds.

K.C. Baran came away with the honors in the 174-pound class with a lift of 245 pounds. Matt DeBoer raised 275 pounds to win the 198-pound class.

For the 204-pound division, Jon Mahler lifted 285 pounds. Jim Ruelle broke the record in the 205-pound division with a lift of 365 pounds.

The alumni division was won by Thomas Evans with a lift of 320 pounds.

Bringing in the most money in pledges was CHS junior Mike Norman with $332.30.

Soccer sign-up

The soccer fields are drying up and soon the season will start.

Practices for the Clarkston Women's Soccer team begin Thursday, March 20. Practices are held at Clarkston High School at 8:30 p.m.

The team is open to any woman over 19 years old. Coach Hana Olsen said age is no object in the league. "We're out there for fun and exercise," she said.

For more information about the league and the team, call Olsen at 625-1985.

Pinning honors

Eight wrestlers from the Clarkston Wrestling Club returned from the Anchor Bay High School meet with honors.

The tournament in New Baltimore on March 15 saw six Clarkston grapplers place first in their divisions.

In the 8-and-under class, Ryan Mick at 45 pounds and Mark Erdreszl at 55 pounds each took first place.

In the 9-10-year-old division, Brett Walter at 55 pounds and Corey Grant at 65 pounds placed first. Armin Michelsen at 65 pounds finished third.

In the 11-12-year-old class, Rueben DeLosRios at 100 pounds and Damon Michelsen at 112 each finished first. Sean Mick at 70 came in third.

The players had their coats on, over their uniforms, waiting for Fife to finish and head to the bus. Many of them stared at the floor, some with watery eyes.

The Wolves fought the two-time defending state champions for 32 minutes of regulation and for an extra six minutes in two overtime periods March 12. Flint Northwestern edged Clarkston, 71-65.

After an emotional contest, you usually have to move closer to hear the hoarse voice of Clarkston's coach—not this time.

Fife kept his eyes on his players as he talked about the loss in the opening round of the regional competition.

He was looking at some of the seniors who finished their high school careers the hard way. He was also looking at the players who will return next year.

A combination of seniors and juniors kept the Wolves in the game. All season a mix of older and younger players carried the team.

Fife said he wanted the win for the team and for the community.

Over half the bleachers were filled with blue-and-yellow clad Clarkston supporters. They were loud, enthusiastic, and proud of the effort their kids put out.

The cheers were never louder than when the Wolves took the lead for the first time near the end of the third quarter. When the game was down to its final minute and the Wolves were still leading, the noise was nearly deafening.

The residents of Clarkston turned out in droves. For the fans of Clarkston basketball, it was a long ride home along I-75.

If they were pure basketball fans, they were only slightly disappointed. They saw two teams play their hearts out.

As a reporter, it was a great game. As a reporter from Clarkston, it was a greatly disappointing game.

By Tanya Luchkovitz-Weeder

Maxidopholis is a good bacteria like acidophilis only much more potent. Maxidopholis is guaranteed 2.5 billion organisms (good bacterias) per gram. It is good for a variety of problems such as infections, diarrhea, digestive disorders, heartburn, gas, constipation, cancer, well being, etc. Maxidopholis actually replaces good bacteria in your body that has been destroyed when taking antibiotics. The antibiotics kill the good & bad bacteria so it is good to replace the good bacteria to help your body fight the infection.

What maxidopholis does is replaces the proper bacteria to your digestive tract that the antibiotics & hormones kill that is found in meat products, eggs, milk, cheeses. These antibiotics & hormones cause an imbalance to your intestinal flora causing candida albicans, which is a yeast (like a fungus) that messes up your digestive process. Also reduces your ability to break down protein, calcium, and your ability to produce enzymes, it also impairs B Vitamin absorption.

Candida albicans feed on high carbohydrate foods so eating alot of high carbed foods would make this yeast worse.

Maxidopholis comes in a powder form - suggested usage 1/4 teaspoon daily on an empty stomach.

Watch for Oxford Lumber's Home & Builder Show May 3rd & 4th

A film strip of test drivers catches the fancy of first-graders Dawn Jackson and A.J. Townsend. "My goodness!" is A.J.'s reaction to cars driving through water-covered roads. The program was part of a career exploration unit.

Shannon Crutchfield shares her delight with a photograph in "60 Years, General Motors Proving Grounds."

Packets of materials are distributed to the first-graders by test driver Mary Lou Kolodziejczak.

Career tips for students

When the first-graders at Pine Knob Elementary reacted to a classmate's career choice by telling the boy he couldn't be a nurse, student teacher Rhonda Alexander went into action.

She scheduled a presentation by Fleet Ambulance paramedics.

And last week, General Motors Milford Proving Grounds test driver Mary Lou Kolodziejczak served as an avenue to "understand the concept that women can do 'men's jobs,'" said Alexander, a Michigan State University graduate.

Seven years ago, women did not test drive cars, Kolodziejczak told the pupils. She has been a test driver six years, and she now estimates the ratio of men to women at about 50-50.

Kolodziejczak's job entails driving on the 128 miles of test roads designed to simulate virtually every condition.

An employee of the Hydromatic Division, she tests transmissions on vehicles ranging from pickups to Trans Ams. In addition, she changes tires, oil and brakes when necessary, and drives car haulers on occasion.

Her career tips to the pupils included maintaining a good driving record and learning about computers. She also shared a safe driving suggestion.

"The number one thing at the proving grounds is safety first," said Kolodziejczak. "You always have to wear your seat belt."

Baptist church and Eagles face off

Plans to put a Baptist church on Maybee Road have been temporarily stalled because of the neighboring Eagles Lodge.

Representatives of the Waterford Baptist Church sought to have the Maybee Road property re-zoned from commercial to residential at the March 13 meeting of the Independence Township Planning Commission.

If they obtain the rezoning, they plan to construct a church on some 5 acres abutting the Eagles Lodge and the Sashabaw Plains Park.

The commission tabled action on the request when two men from the Eagles asked if the church could prevent some of their summer activities, which include the serving of alcoholic beverages.

The Eagles renew their liquor license annually, said Floyd Sergeant, past president of the post.

They must obtain a special land-use permit to hold outdoor events each year, he said, adding that the church would have to give its OK before the township could issue the permit.

Taking the Eagles' concerns under advisement, the commission voted to table the matter and asked the two groups to try and solve their problems before a vote would be cast.

"It seems to me that a new development has to be compatible with the existing development," said Chairman Neil Wallace.

Jehovah's Witnesses gain approval

A new church will soon be located on Clarkston Road.

On March 13, the Independence Township Planning Commission approved a final site plan for the Drayton Plains Congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses.

The 5,000-square-foot structure is to hopefully be under construction in the spring, said Eric Beitler, the building's developer.

The commission granted approval following very few comments and with only a few stipulations.

According to a motion by Chairman Neil

Wallace, bonds and assurances guaranteeing the landscaping must be posted before a building permit can be issued.

In addition, the landscaping must meet the approval of an administrative review and must include a headlight buffer and minimal removal of natural vegetation along the roadway.

Voting to approve the motion were Wallace, Brent Bair, Joseph Figa and John Gray.

Commissioners Carol Balzarini and Holly Stephens were absent.

Basketball shooters to earn money

Free throws are going to add up to money for athletic equipment in the Clarkston School District.

The Clarkston Athletic Boosters are holding their annual Basketball Shoot-A-Thon on March 22 at Clarkston High School from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Each participant will shoot a maximum of 100 free throws and will collect pledges for each shot made.

The event is open to anyone and all proceeds will go to the participants' own school.

An open division for graduates is also available with monies going into the booster club general fund.

For more information, contact Mike Luchenbach at 623-9469 or Dave Yarber at 625-1424.

A salute to energy awareness

An open house at Cedar Crest Academy on Friday, March 21, marks National Energy Education Day.

The private school's passive solar classroom building at 8970 Dixie Highway, Springfield Township, will be open for inspection from 2:30 to 3:30 p.m.

The builder, Joe Duran, will be present as well as pupils to discuss the passive solar energy efficiency of their school.

Pupils and parents will also celebrate the day by participating in Cedar Crest Energy Surprise, the launching of 200 Energy Balloons with messages of awareness regarding energy day.

The launching is planned at 2:30 p.m. at the school.

Now they can visit their homeland

Filipino family plans to return after nearly two decades in U.S.

By Julie LePere

For the first time in 17 years, Trophy Hulleza plans to go back home to the Philippines for a visit.

"Having all my relatives in one place, it makes me homesick," she said.

When Trophy was a young girl, the Philippines was a country struggling for economic stability.

It was a time of high unemployment and great gaps between social classes. The country lacked several conveniences common in the United States at that time—no electricity, no inside bathrooms, no washing machines.

Trophy, now an Independence Township resident, was raised in a small village. Her father was the mayor, and her family had money enough for servants, for one vehicle and for all seven children to attend college.

So it was a big shock when Trophy and her husband, Gene, came to the United States for a temporary visit in 1969 and found they could not return.

Although they did not leave the Philippines for political reasons, politics influenced their decision to stay.

"This year, I'm so excited, I want to go home. It's my parents' 50th wedding anniversary, and this year, the government changed so we can go home."

They had left three children, Cora, Charo and Hernando, at home with Trophy's parents, intending only to work for a short time and then return.

"(Coming to the United States) was my dream since I was a child. We didn't intend to stay; that's why we left the kids," said Trophy.

At that time, Ferdinand Marcos was just elected president of the country for his second term.

"He was pretty good at first," said Trophy. "I voted for him. My father was for Marcos, too, until he found out about all of this (corruption)."

But in just a short while, Marcos made a turn for the worse. His military governing of the country made the Hullezas choose to remain in the U.S.

Now that martial law is gone, and Corazon Aquino is in power, the Hullezas hope to return for a visit.

"This year, I'm so excited, I want to go home. It's my parents' 50th wedding anniversary, and this year, the government changed so we can go home," she said.

They are unsure of how Aquino will perform as president, though.

"It's too soon to tell. We are still hoping it will get better and better," Trophy said. "She is the first woman president of the Philippines."

"She never had any political experience. She had always been a housewife. They (the Aquinos) lived like ordinary people. They had a good business, a lot of money, and most of it was taken by Marcos."

"My sister was working in New York (as a lawyer in 1973 when Marcos declared martial law). They were with Mrs. Aquino. The husband owned the law firm. He was alive then."

"When they went to the Philippines, my sister came to Michigan. (She has since married an American and moved to California.) When he got shot, we all cried."

"He was planning to overthrow the government even then. My sister is so happy now that Mrs. Aquino is president because she knew her personally."

"There was a problem, that Mr. Aquino wouldn't listen. They tried to stop him from going home, but he ended up being a martyr. If he was still Trophy and Gene Hulleza moved from the Philippines to the United States in 1969 and to Independence Township in 1978. Although they miss their country and hope to visit soon, they have compared countries and concluded that "this is the best one to live in," says Trophy.

didn't see anyone above me, and then I thought, 'This must be snow.' "

The weather in the Philippines is either dry or wet, and either way, it is hot, said Trophy.

"I used to watch 'Little House on the Prairie' and I thought, 'That's the Philippines.' "

"Growing up in the Philippines (in the way I did) and then living here—that made my adjustment quite difficult."

Her father has visited the Hullezas several times since they've been here, but the last visit lasted for a year. The country was too dangerous, especially for politicians, even a former mayor, said Trophy.

Still, Trophy is anxious to go home.

Now, martial law is gone. The roads are paved, and her father has electricity in his house.

Trophy remembers life in the Philippines well.

"When I left the Philippines, I had a steady job. I was a teacher then," said Trophy.

In the United States, her first job was as a maid in Detroit.

"In the Philippines, we had servants, and I was used to telling someone else to scrub the floor. Now I had to do it myself," she said.

Her second job was in the cafeteria at Oakland University, and her next was as an elementary school teacher in Flint, where she lived apart from her husband and saw him only on weekends.

Next, she went to Pontiac for a job in a library and finally to a job as a postal worker in Pontiac, where she currently works. Her husband works for General Motors.

"When I first came here, I cried every night because I left my baby. We petitioned the three kids. It was quite hard. (Eventually), I had to write the Philippine Embassy. It took more than a year."

The children arrived in 1973. By that time, the youngest Hulleza, Claire, was born in the U.S.

At first, life in the United States was difficult for Trophy.

"The first time I saw winter, I remember, I was in my apartment in Flint. I looked out the window, and I thought people were shaking their pillows. I miss their country and hope to visit soon, they have compared countries and concluded that "this is the best one to live in," says Trophy.

"Having your own car is a big difference, doing everything yourself instead of having your own maids.

"We are all the same here, but in the Philippines, there is a big gap. Either you are upper class or lower class.

"In the Philippines, you don't need a permit to build a big house. You don't have a lot of taxes to pay. It's different here. You have cars and insurance to pay. You don't even need cars there. Only the wealthy had cars.

"It's easier to live there, in my own opinion, as long as you have a job."

However, they appreciate the U.S.

"When you go to other countries, you compare. In my opinion, this (U.S.) is the best one to live in."

That opinion caused Trophy and her oldest daughter, Cora, to become U.S. citizens.

Living in the United States has Americanized the Hullezas to some degree.

The two youngest children, Hernando and Claire, prefer hamburgers and pizza to the traditional Philippine meal of rice, vegetables and seafood. And although her husband, Gene, does not like American food, he loves the sports.

Microwave-plus

Spring cuisine

Betty Wagner

Celebrate spring with fresh pork roast and accompaniments of rosy applesauce and new potatoes and peas in cream sauce.

To complete the meal, add fresh bakery rolls reheated in the microwave until warm to the touch and a dessert of fresh fruit compote or tart.

It is recommended that pork be cooked in the conventional oven at low, slow temperatures to ensure evenness of cooking and reduce shrinkage.

Now microwave owners can safely cook fresh pork in their ovens in nearly half the time.

The Pork Industry Group of the Meat Board recommends that pork be cooked at 30 percent or lower power in an oven cooking bag or a covered container.

Both methods will produce a vaporous atmosphere that will ensure even cooking of the meat and produce minimal shrinkage and a tender, delicious roast.

The internal temperature of the pork roast needs to reach 170 degrees for optimum taste, juiciness and tenderness. It's wise to check the temperature in three places with a quick-reading thermometer.

Actually, trichinosis, a harmful organism that could infest pork, is destroyed when pork is cooked to 140 degrees internal temperature.

Pork roast continues to cook after the 170 degree temperature is reached. Let it stand 10 minutes, covered. This also allows time for the juices to be reabsorbed into the meat and makes carving the roast easier.

Many people bypass this nutrient dense food because of the "porky pig" label; fear of a high-fat food. Thirty years ago, pork contained 50 percent more fat than it does today.

Pork contains high quality protein and is loaded with B vitamins, especially thiamin, niacin, riboflavin, B6 and B12. These vitamins are essential for efficient energy usage, growth and the nervous system.

*BONELESS PORK ROAST

Place 2 to 3½ pound evenly shaped roast, less than 4 inches in diameter, in oven cooking bag in microsafe dish.

Sprinkle with gravy mix or herbs. Secure bag with plastic closure, string or strip cut from bag.

Microwave at 30 percent power (low or defrost) for 22 minutes a pound or until internal temperature reads 170 degrees.

Turn roast over and around half way through cooking time. Let stand, covered with foil, for 10 minutes.

For pork center roast or pork shoulder blade Boston roast, follow the directions for boneless pork, except microwave 20 minutes a pound at 30 percent power.

*APPLESAUCE

6 cups cooking apples, cored, sliced and peeled

½ cup water

1 tablespoon lemon juice

¼ cup sugar or red cinnamon candies

Mix apples, water and lemon juice in a 2 quart microsafe casserole dish. Microwave at high power for 10 to 12 minutes or until apples are tender and can be mashed.

Stir in sugar or candies. Microwave at high power for 1 to 2 minutes, or until sugar and candies melt.

Sprinkle with cinnamon or nutmeg if sugar is used as a sweetener. Serve warm or cold.

NEW POTATOES AND PEAS IN CREAM SAUCE

Scrub 1 pound new red or yellow potatoes. Pierce potatoes with a toothpick or peel a strip in the center of each.

Cover tightly. Microwave at high power for 6 to 8 minutes. Stir, from the outside to the center, half way through the cooking time.

FRESH FROZEN PEAS

Pierce the box with a long tined fork. Remove wrapper, if foil. Place on a microsafe paper plate lined with a paper towel. Microwave at high power 4 minutes. Combine with cooked potatoes. Stir in white sauce.

BASIC WHITE SAUCE

2 tablespoons butter or margarine

2 tablespoons butter or margarine

2 tablespoons flour

1 cup milk

¼ teaspoon white pepper

¼ to ½ teaspoon salt, if desired

Melt butter at high power for 20 to 30 seconds in a 2 cup Pyrex measure. Blend in flour. Microwave at high for 20 to 30 seconds, or until bubbly.

Stir in 1 cup milk. Microwave at high for 1 minute. Stir. Microwave for another minute or until thickened, stirring every 30 seconds.

Goerss-Beattie

Mr. and Mrs. William G. Goerss of Lake Shannon announce the engagement of their daughter, Amy Elizabeth, to Thomas James Beattie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Beattie of Clarkston. Miss Goerss is a senior at Western Michigan University majoring in business management. Mr. Beattie is a 1984 graduate of Michigan State University. He is employed at the Materials Management Group, A.C. Spark Plug Division of General Motors Corp. A June wedding is being planned.

Grad

Gina Thomas graduated in December from Michigan State University, East Lansing, with a bachelor's degree in communications.

She is the daughter of Michael and Janet Thomas of Independence Township.

Dearborn-Andrews

Harry and Delores Dearborn of Independence Township announce the engagement of their daughter Michelle Marie to Steven Thomas Andrews of Kalamazoo. Steven is the son of Vincent and Clare Andrews of Gaylord. Michelle is a staff nurse at Borgess Medical Center in Kalamazoo and Steven is an assistant controller at Three Rivers Hospital. An August wedding is planned.

Satterlee, Wells exchange vows

Shannon Mae Satterlee of Milford and Thomas Michael Wells of Drayton Plains were married Sept. 21 at the Academy of the Sacred Heart in Bloomfield Hills.

The bride, a charge nurse at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Satterlee of Hummingbird Lane, Independence Township.

She wore her mother's wedding dress of satin during the ceremony.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Wells of Drayton Plains. He is employed at Tandy Corporation.

The maid of honor was Dianne Tetreault of Boca Raton, Fla., who wore a pink crepe and lace, tea-length dress.

Other attendants included Sue Dickson of Waterford, Nancy Diederich of Clarkston, Jennifer Arvanigian of Portage and Jennifer Wells of Drayton Plains.

The best man was Christopher Dempsey of Clarkston. Groomsmen included Kyle Satterlee, Douglas Dickson and Jeffrey Hendershot.

A reception attended by 275 guests was held at the Deer Lake Racquet Club.

The couple enjoyed a one-week honeymoon in Toronto.

They will reside in Milford.

Shannon Satterlee married Thomas Wells at the Academy of the Sacred Heart in Bloomfield Hills.

Honors

Marcia Veltre was among 10 students from Adrian College selected to participate in the annual Michigan Intercollegiate Band Festival on Feb. 8 at Albion College.

The honors band was composed of the finest instrumentalists in nine small college bands, said Richard Blattie of Albion, coordinator of the festival.

Veltre is a senior majoring in education at Adrian. A 1982 Clarkston High School graduate, she is the daughter of Renold and Gene Veltre of Allen Road.

Several Clarkston piano students of Melissa's Keyboard Classics received high ratings at the Michigan National Junior Festivals.

Highest ranked was Holly Zorka, who received 97 points out of 100 for a superior rating.

Other superior-rated students were Denise Caston and Erica Nienstedt.

Other participants included Chris Truba, very good rating, and Amy Taylor, excellent rating.

Doreen Fraser has been named to the dean's list at Midwestern Baptist College, Pontiac.

A first-year student at the college, she is the daughter of Floyd and Doralee Damitz of Gladwin. Her home church is Dixie Baptist Church, Springfield Township.

Robert Cogswell has been named to the dean's list at the University of Detroit.

A freshman at the university, he is a liberal arts major.

Charles Labash is on the dean's list for the first semester at the University of Connecticut, Storrs, Ct.

He resides on Phelan Court, Independence Township.

MacDormott, Nordman are married

Kathryn Mary MacDormott and Bruce Anthony Nordman were wed Nov. 8 at St. Daniel Church, Clarkston, with the Rev. Charles Cushing performing a candlelight mass.

Kathryn, a 1980 graduate of Clarkston High School, is employed at K mart world headquarters in Troy.

Bruce, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Nordman of Huntington Woods, is a 1981 graduate of Berkley High School and is employed as assistant manager of John Kent Stores for Men of Flint.

Kathryn, the daughter of Tim MacDormott of Mayville and Gerry MacDormott of Independence Township, wore a white satin gown trimmed with bows at the shoulders.

Marabou, crystal and seed pearls adorned her headpiece with bead-scattered veil. She carried a marabou muff.

Her matron of honor was cousin Elana Bacalia of Ferndale. Bridesmaids were Debbie Ploskonka of Ferndale, Jackie Kraljeu of Pontiac and Peggy Zehender of Colorado.

All attendants wore long satin gowns of dusty rose and carried beige muffs pinned with orchids and ivy.

Junior bridesmaids were Ines Barnes of Huntington Woods, Joy Falker of Berkley and Andria Rakus of Ferndale.

They wore gowns matching the bridesmaids' and carried assorted flowers of beige and dusty rose. Their hairpieces were ribbon circling their hair.

Flower girl Amanda Alexander carried a basket of silk flowers.

The groomsmen wore black cutaway coats and gray striped pants.

Newlyweds: Kathryn and Bruce Nordman.

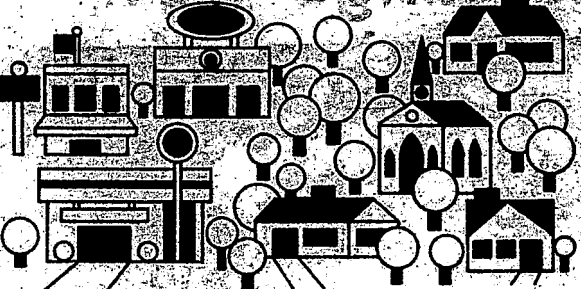

The best man was Rob Gordon of Oregon. Groomsmen were Tom Richardson of Southfield, Doug Kopel of Livonia, Blake Nordman, the bridegroom's brother, and the bride's brothers Mike MacDormott of Germany, and Jamie and Danny MacDormott of Independence Township.

A pillow with rings was carried by the bride's youngest brother, Kevin MacDormott.

Over 300 family members and friends joined the couple for a reception at the San Marino Club in Troy.

The couple are now residing in Troy.

What's in a locker?

By Sally Dunham

Footsteps click in the empty hall, echoing a rising fear.

As the footsteps round the corner, they suddenly quicken to a jog, now a terrified sprint.

It is too late. She is being drawn toward that thing, that terrible thing! She cannot escape its clutches, no matter how hard she tries.

Who can guess the fate of this young woman? Stay tuned for part two of: "The Locker That Ate New York."

Well, this feature was not intended to be a horror story, but from what I've seen in some of the lockers at Sashabaw Junior High, it just might turn out to be one.

Has it ever occurred to you that some lockers have minds of their own?

For instance, just the other day I found an important science assignment in my locker that was due two months ago.

In addition to that, I found my entire pen and pencil collection (lost since the third week of school) under all of my books.

Even though some people have locker problems, there are still others who have a unique relationship with their lockers.

Those certain people put their personalities on display.

A rock music fan will most likely tape up pictures of his/her favorite groups. Or the loyal sports fan will definitely have to have pictures of his/her favorite teams.

A person with many hobbies and interests will have a combination of different pictures.

To sum it all up: Locker interiors are unique in styling and design due to the individual tastes of their owners.

Author Sally Dunham, a ninth-grader, is a member of the Sashabaw Junior High School media class taught by Dick Swartout.

Celist to perform

The music series at the Clarkston United Methodist Church continues next week with a recital by cellist Laura Deming.

Deming is to appear at the church at 6600 Clarkston Rd. on Sunday, March 23, at 3:30 p.m. The donation is $5, with tickets available at the door.

A 10-year member of the Lyric Opera Orchestra of Chicago, she is a graduate of Northwestern University. Deming has done post-graduate work at the International Cello Centre in Scotland.

During the opera season, she resides in Chicago and also performs with the Orchestra of Illinois. She is married to the Rev. Jack Stubbs, pastor of the Oak Park United Methodist Church in Flint.

Pianist Jessica Paul will appear with Deming. A native of Chicago, she performs as accompanist and coach for opera companies throughout the United States and for the International Institute for Chamber Music Studies in Munich, Germany.

The program will consist of works of Scarlott, Mozart, Beethoven and Martinu. For advance ticket information, call 625-2192.

CHS '76ers to meet

A reunion of the Clarkston High School Class of 1976 is planned Sept. 13 at the Deer Lake Racquet Club.

For information, write to Mike O'Neill at 3325 Wallingford Dr., Grand Blanc, MI 48439 or call 694-3836 or 625-2621.

If it's a major fire or a minor oddity, we want a call at The News. Phone 625-3370.

DO AS THE PIONEERS DID: Almost 30 people turned out to the Independence Oaks County Park program on making maple syrup the natural way. Park naturalists told how the pioneers collected sap from maple trees and boiled it down over an open fire.

How does speed affect at person's body?

Dear Cat Paw:

Do you think everyone who drinks is an alcoholic?

Ham

Dear Ham:

No, some people possess predisposing factors that lead to alcoholism, and some do not.

Dear Cat Paw:

How does speed affect a person's body?

Curious

Dear Curious:

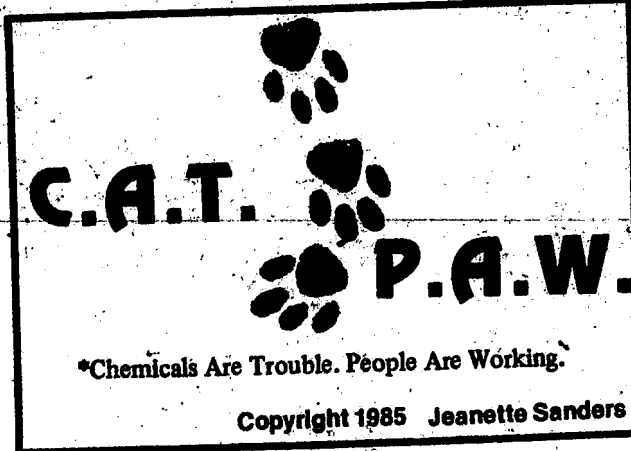

Amphetamine users experience insomnia and a loss of appetite. They appear excited and talkative, and have rapid pulse rate, increased blood pressure and dilated pupils.

Outbursts of anger and irrational behavior are common, as are dizziness, flushed skin, excessive perspiration, bad breath, body odor and panic.

Dear Cat Paw:

Do drug abusers get AIDS more frequently than non-drug users?

Want to Know

Dear Want to Know:

The limited research available in this new area seems to indicate—YES!

Dear Cat Paw:

How long does alcohol stay in the bloodstream?

Drinker

Dear Drinker:

It takes the liver approximately one hour to metabolize one ounce of liquor or four ounces of wine or 12 ounces of beer.

Alcohol is metabolized by the liver at a steady rate. This rate of metabolism is not affected by the amount of alcohol in the bloodstream. Nothing can speed up this process.

-Obituaries-

Wilda I. Schmidt

Wilda I. Schmidt, 86, of Clarkston died March 13.

She is survived by her brother, Raymond Weber of Clarkston, and several nieces and nephews.

The funeral service was held March 16 at the Lewis E. Wint & Son Funeral Home, Independence Township, with the Rev. Beryl Hinz officiating. Burial followed in Ottawa Park Cemetery, Independence Township.

Mabel R. Thompson

Mabel R. Thompson, 78, of Clarkston died March 15.

She is survived by her husband, John W. (Jack) Thompson Sr.; son, John W. Jr. of Pontiac; grandchildren, Cindy Fuller of Columbiaville and John R. Thompson of Twining; and three great-grandchildren.

The funeral service was held March 19 at the Goyette Funeral Home, Clarkston, with the Rev. Jim Rupert officiating. Burial followed in Ottawa Park Cemetery, Independence Township.

CLARKSTON COMMUNITY SCHOOLS Regular Meeting - March 10, 1986

Approved minutes of the February 10, 1986 regular meeting and February 17, 1986 special meeting.
Approved expenditures in the amount of $1,646,906.97.

Employee-recognition awards were presented to Sandra Nelson, substitute teacher, William Dennis, administrative assistant, and Jeanne Molzon, supervisor of youth programs for Community Education.

Approved the graduation requirement changes recommended by Alberta Ellis to become effective 1988-89. The change requires an additional 1/2 credit each in mathematics, science, and computer education, with the total credit requirement remaining at 16.

Approved the Curriculum Guide and Graduation Plan for special education students presented by Bob Brumback. The plan will be implemented in 1987-88 to be consistent with the Promotion, Placement and Retention Program.

Accepted the revised March, 1986 Promotion, Placement and Retention Program recommended by Mr. Mason. Separate drafts will be presented at a later date for adult education and alternative education.

Approved and signed the resolution presented by William Jackson to call the annual school election on June 9, 1986, with the last day for voter registration to be May 12, 1986.

Nominating petitions are available at the administrative office for anyone interested in becoming a board member candidate. There will be one four-year term and one two-year term on the ballot. The petitions have to be returned to the administrative office by 4:00 p.m. on April 7.

The meeting adjourned at 8:43 p.m.

Army wants you Senior center sets events

The United States Army is looking for short-term recruits—men and women who would like to see a little bit of the world while expanding their funds for a formal education.

Two-year tours of duty are available to high school graduates who want to do something different between graduation and college.

"It's a short commitment with a big return," says Staff Sgt. Randy Miller, station commander of the army-recruiting station in Waterford.

A high school graduate who scores in the top half of the military aptitude test and chooses one of the army's critical skills is eligible for the G.I. bill plus army college fund entitlements of $17,000 with a two-year enlistment.

A student who possesses all those qualifications with 60 college semester hours or the equivalent will take $21,000 back to school at the end of a two-year enlistment.

Interested high school students or those out of high school can obtain complete information about the program at the army recruiting station 5888 Dixie Highway, Waterford or by calling 623-7287.

The Springfield Township Senior Citizen Program still exists, says Sherry Swindell, director of the parks and recreation department.

Located on Andersonville Road, the center hosts a "Young at Heart" group every Thursday.

"There are a lot of people that were under the impression that the center was closed," said Swindell. The rumor apparently began when the neighboring Holly-area senior center dissolved.

Several events are scheduled for the rest of March.

The seniors are making Easter bunny faces out of construction paper to help with Springfield's March 22 Easter egg hunt.

The hunt is sponsored by Springfield Township, the Davisburg Scotties and both Clarkston McDonald's.

The event is set for 10 a.m. at Karl Schultz Park, on Dilley Road, just off Davisburg Road.

Other events for the "Young at Heart" group include a special Easter Dinner on March 27. Reservations and a $1 donation are asked.

Bingo will be played on March 27, and they will be making Easter candy March 20 at 1 p.m.

Exercise class, cards or crafts, and potluck luncheons are also scheduled, and there is a new support and social group for widows and widowers.

For more information or to make reservations for the Easter dinner, call Sherry Swindell or Dorothy Venezia at 625-4802 or 634-3111.

Got her start in Clarkston

Grad cheers Spartans

By Kristin Weichel

A 1983 Clarkston High School graduate finds fulfillment as a cheerleader for the Michigan State University Spartans.

Kendra Kurz, 20, an MSU junior and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Kurz of Snowapple Drive, began cheering for the MSU Spartans in September 1985.

The benefits of cheerleading outweigh all the hard work and sacrifices involved, she says.

Kendra was a cheerleader in grades nine through 12 and was a varsity cheerleader her junior and senior years at Clarkston. She was also a pom pom girl her sophomore year at MSU.

To become a cheerleader, she had to endure three rigorous tryouts and compete against 50 other women for four open positions on the squad. The tryouts involved dancing and gymnastics skills.

"They really stress gymnastics a lot," says Kendra. "It's a lot harder than high school cheerleading."

Kendra practices an hour before each basketball game and for a couple of hours on Sunday. Since the team is expected to improve throughout the year, she also belongs to the Gymnastics Club, which meets twice a week.

The cheerleaders also make appearances at banquets and fund raisers as representatives of MSU. Since the school provides the cheerleaders with money for uniforms, all their fund raisers are to help other organizations raise money.

The team doesn't have a coach, so they must learn the routines on their own by attending summer camps. Last summer, they went to a camp in Tennessee, which hosted schools from all over the nation.

The cheerleading team also participates in competitions throughout the year. They recently attended the National Cheerleading Association Nationals in Florida. Although they didn't place, they gained valuable experience, Kendra says.

Cheerleading consumes a great deal of time, but Kendra says it's worth it.

"I really enjoy how you get to meet a lot of different people," she says.

She was especially interested in meeting MSU President DiBiaggio. "DiBiaggio is a really nice person and it's a nice feeling to know the president of the school," she says.

Kendra also credits cheerleading with greatly enhancing her social skills. She has learned to speak to important people and large groups without becoming nervous or uncomfortable, she says.

Another positive aspect of cheerleading involves attending away games. In December, Kendra and her teammates traveled to Alabama to cheer at the All-American Bowl.

They were guests at various banquets and they held a pep rally for the football team.

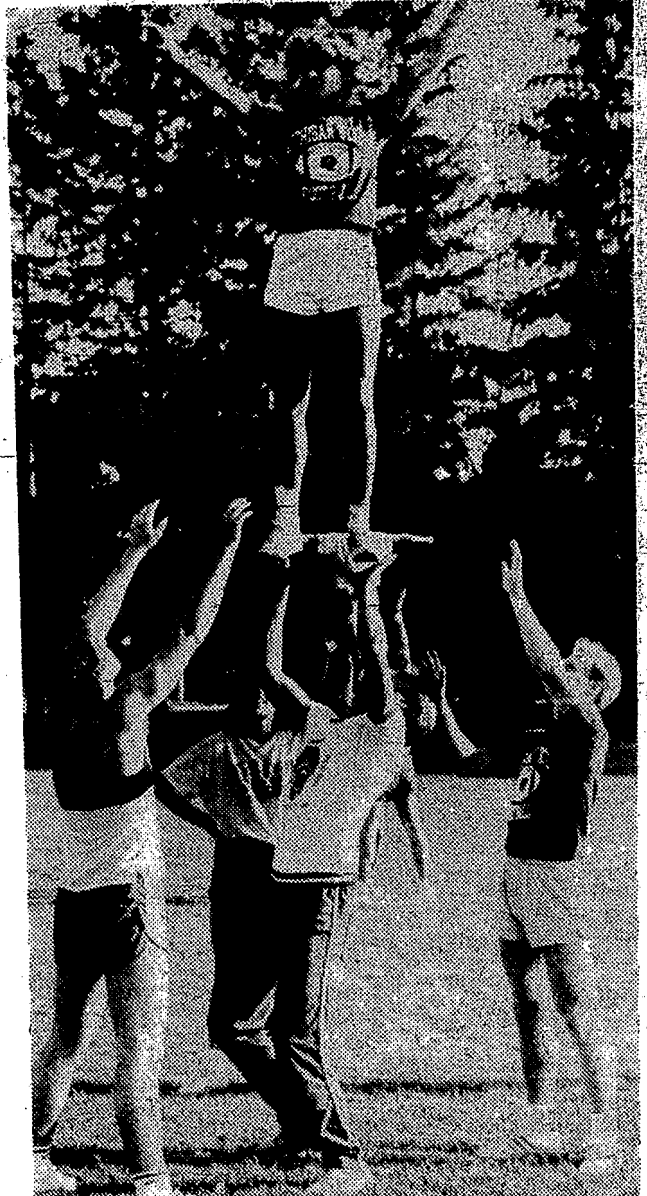

Kendra sees traveling as a chance to see other Big Ten schools and to compare them with MSU. She exhibits her school spirit by saying, "I've always thought that MSU was the best out of all the other Big Ten schools."

An added bonus is the opportunity to stay in shape due to all the dancing and gymnastics involved, Kendra says.

An advertising major, she has improved her course grades since becoming a cheerleader.

"I've learned through cheerleading to use my time more wisely," she says.

Kendra would consider coaching for a high school cheerleading team sometime in the future. But for now, she is expressing her school spirit and love of MSU by cheering for the MSU Spartans.

MSU cheerleader Kendra Kurz sharpens a routine during a fall term practice session.

Village protection Catallo's goal

By Carolyn Walker

Marcus the pug puppy crawls on Sharron Catallo's lap and looks at her fondly with his wide-set eyes.

Sharron, seated on a fireplace hearth amid a menagerie of pets in the old church she calls home, makes a dog joke directed at herself.

"What's good for (United States) first lady Nancy Reagan is good for the first lady of Clarkston," she says, laughing.

It is a reference to Nancy's penchant for being photographed with her dogs and Sharron's recent election as president of the Village of Clarkston.

Unimpressed by the comparison, Marcus jumps down and Sharron goes back to the topic at hand: her role as leader and her plans for Clarkston's future.

"I feel real protective about the village," she says. "It's something special."

Sharron, her husband Clarence and their children, Curt, 18, and Cara, 16, have lived in the historic former Methodist-Episcopal church on Buffalo Street four years.

A village council trustee for two years, Sharron was voted into the two-year term of president on March 10.

She says she hopes to continue pursuing some of the topics she and the council have addressed during the past—street lighting, traffic control, historic preservation and improved relations with Independence Township.

In addition, she is concerned, she says, that too many retail businesses are selling out to offices in the commercial district and that the fire station currently located on Church Street not be moved from the village. She would like to devise a way to make them stay.

"We've always been able to count on them being there," she says. "It's a real comfortable feeling."

All of these matters, and especially increased traffic in the village, are being directly affected by the dramatic growth-spurt going on in the township, according to Sharron.

"I think we have to be aware of the growth," she says. "(The township) makes decisions that affect us all the time. I think it's really important that we keep in close touch."

One of Sharron's pet projects, the planned placement of pedestrian lighting and trees along Main Street, will help control the atmosphere of the village and slow down the pace of traffic, she says.

"You create more of a pedestrian atmosphere so that people can safely cross the street.

"I feel very strongly about this (historic atmosphere). The village has stood for so long. It has a certain integrity about it.

"I think people are beginning to see the value of

it. What's a town without a Main Street?"

Sharron says she also hopes to see the completion of the village park gazebo while she is in office.

The 42-year-old chose to seek the presidency because she felt the council should be headed by someone with local government experience, she says.

Four of the trustees are newcomers and Sharron says it will take a few weeks of working together before any plans for the village can be solidified.

The four include Frank Millard, William Basinger, Eric Haven and Douglas Roeser. Other members are Clerk Norma Goyette, Treasurer Artemus Pappas and trustees James Schultz and Fonic ApMadoc.

New Clarkston Village President Sharron Catallo will be sworn into office in April. She poses here in her Buffalo Street home. Her pet cat seems oblivious to Sharron's victory.

Nominations for 'Outstanding Woman' needed

Do you know a woman who deserves recognition for her contributions to the community?

The Waterford-Clarkston Business and Professional Women's Club is seeking nominations for its annual Outstanding Woman award.

Any woman living or working in the Waterford-Clarkston area is eligible. She can be a business woman, professional or non-professional. There is no age limit and nominees need not be members of the club or affiliated with any other club or organization.

Nominees will be judged on their contributions to the community's welfare, evidence of leadership ability, ability to get along with others, evidence of upholding a wholesome family life and progress in personal or business achievements.

Nominations may be made by organizations or individuals. A panel of judges will make the final decision from a study of all the applications.

The deadline for nominations is April 1. To receive a nomination form, call award chairman Joan Kopietz at 625-2511 weekdays between 9 a.m. and 8 p.m.

Birthday party on Sunday

By Carolyn Walker

Party time is just around the corner.

Independence Township will celebrate its 150th birthday with a bash in the Clarkston Mills Mall restaurant area on Sunday, March 23. The mall is located off West Washington Street in the village.

Area dignitaries and members of the public are invited to attend, said Rita Burdick, a member of the sesquicentennial committee.

Tickets are $1 and may be purchased at township hall, One More Time resale shop and Tierra Arts and Design on Main Street, or the township library on Clarkston Road. They will also be available at the door.

The party is scheduled from 5 to 9 p.m. Birthday cake, coffee, punch and balloons will be offered.

Party-goers are encouraged to dress in costume or "antiquated clothes," Burdick said.

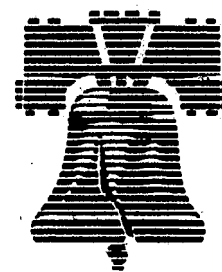

Music is to be provided by the Clarkston Jazz Band. And a photographer will be on hand to take old-fashioned-style photos of those who are willing.

In addition, specially bound books of handwritten school minutes and photos from the old Hunter School will be sold.

The Hunter school stood on the Sashabaw Plains area off Maybee and Sashabaw roads, said Connie Lektzian, a member of the committee.

The minutes were discovered in the Oakland County Pioneer and Historical Society archives and date back to the mid-1800s, she said.

SESQUICENTENNIAL

This is the logo, designed by Independence Township resident Ron Wagner, to be used for the township's sesquicentennial. It will appear on posters, T-shirts, balloons and other items of celebration throughout the year. Wagner, a graphic artist who owns Producers Graphic Services in Royal Oak, spent approximately four hours making his design. "I just took what I thought were important elements," he says. "I thought it was important to use the Liberty Bell." Wagner, 43, is a member of the township's sesquicentennial committee.
