Plans under way for wider I-75

By Carolyn Walker

Proposed improvements for I-75 should make traveling easier for motorists but have very little impact on the community, according to an official at the Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT).

The department of transportation proposes widening I-75 from Square Lake Road in Bloomfield Township to M-15 in Clarkston. Dates have not been set.

The proposal calls for the addition of a single lane in the north- and southbound-lanes from M-24 to M-15.

Between Square Lake Road and M-24, the addition of two lanes, each way, is planned.

If implemented, the changes would make I-75 a six- or eight-lane highway from Detroit to Flint.

Now in the preliminary engineering stages, a date of construction has not been selected, said Lee Daniels, supervisor of the Metro and Flint Unit of the Community Co-ordination and Federal Compliance Division of MDOT.

Funding for the project is expected to come from federal aid and state funds, according to Christopher Mann, state transportation planner with SEMCOG.

SEMCOG, which acts as the Metropolitan Planning Organization, is currently notifying municipalities of the plans and seeking their reactions.

Independence Township will not be required to help fund the project, Daniels said, because townships are exempt from such charges.

Cities and villages are expected to help pay, but the Village of Clarkston should not be charged because I-75 doesn't run through the village limits, she added.

"I think there'll be very little impact on the area," Daniels said.

When the construction takes place, it is anticipated that bridges along I-75 will be improved, she said, adding that MDOT will be looking at cloverleaf and interchange upgrades.

Daniels said she doesn't know if the cloverleaf at Sashabaw Road will be constructed as part of the project.

"It is a complete interchange as I remember it," Daniels said. "It isn't a cloverleaf. We'll look at it."

The improvement was recently requested in a petition signed by over 3,000 people and circulated by resident Iva Sommers Caverly.

Say no to calls for fire money

By Carolyn Walker

People pretending to be affiliated with the Independence Township Fire Department are using telephones in attempts to dupe the public of money, according to Fire Marshall Gar Wilson.

This year, as in previous years, would-be thieves are calling residents in the area and asking for donations, Wilson said.

He wants it known that neither the township fire department nor the union that represents it is soliciting funds over the phone.

"It's not the Independence Professional Firefighters or the township fire department," Wilson said. "I want to bring it out to the people that we're not soliciting money."

The fire department never solicits money over the phone, he added.

This year's problem came to light when a local

Writers to visit

By Julie LePere

Clarkston students will get a chance to see and hear published writers this spring as a result of three grants received from Michigan Council for the Arts.

Poet Jim DeWitt has already visited the junior high schools and the high school. He will visit kindergarten through second grades in the district after spring vacation.

In addition, non-fiction writer Carolyn Vosberg Hall will speak to third- through sixth-graders after spring vacation.

"I'm glad we got them (the grants)," said Ruth Duling, chairperson of Clarkston Junior High English department and language arts coordinator for the district. "I hope it turns out to be a good experience for the kids."

The grants are through the Creative Writers in Schools Program. They cover 29 days of visits.

When Duling first heard of the program last fall, she asked for interested teachers to respond to the idea.

"We had so much interest," she said.

As a result, applications were made for three separate grants because "there are certain limits to how many classes you can take a writer to."

The writers will be working in classes, sharing their own work and encouraging student expression through writing. The grants pay the writers $125 a day for participating in workshops and classroom and community sessions scheduled by the school district.

Duling is pleased with the program.

"It's something (the students) wouldn't get to see otherwise," she said.

Fire department not behind calls woman, whom Wilson did not identify, reported to the department that she had received a call for money.

The man on the phone allegedly said he represented the "professional firefighters of Clarkston," a non-existent group, Wilson said.

During the call, the man told the woman she had donated $25 the year before, which was not true and she questioned his motives.

The man became abrupt with the woman when she asked questions, Wilson said, and she subsequently reported the matter to the fire department.

People receiving similar requests by phone are asked to get as much information from the caller as possible and then report the incidents to the fire department at 625-1924.

Village to regulate satellite dishes

An ordinance amendment to regulate the placement of satellite dishes was unanimously adopted by the Clarkston Village Council on March 24.

According to President Carol Eberhardt, the new ordinance will treat satellite dishes much like other outbuildings.

Satellite dishes are large, circular antennas that receive television station signals from space.

Permits will be required for the placement of the dishes in the village and owners of "defunct" dishes will be required to remove them within one year of their disuse.

In addition, the ordinance permits dishes to be placed on roofs if the owner has obtained a variance from the zoning board of appeals.

"All it does is assure neighbors that dishes will be given the same consideration as outbuildings," she said after the meeting.

People do not want one outside their kitchen windows, she added.

Voting to pass the ordinance were Eberhardt, and Trustees Sharron Catallo, James Schultz, Fontie ApMadoc, Jon Gaskell, Ethel Sinclair and Douglas Roeser.

Boron Oil's public hearing tabled

A public hearing for rezoning a Boron Oil service station was tabled at the Independence Township Planning Commission on March 27.

Boron is seeking to rezone property at the corner of Maybee and Sashabaw roads from commercial to a zoning designation permitting a service station and adjoining carwash.

A former service station at the corner has stood vacant for several years.

Representatives of Boron withdrew the request from the agenda after a private discussion with Chairman Neil Wallace regarding the creation of a possible nonconforming lot at the site, which is against township zoning standards.

According to Wallace, the petitioners plan to seek advice from their legal counsel, consult with the township attorney, and return to the commission April 10 for a public hearing.

At the public hearing, members of the community can ask questions about the matter and voice their concerns.

The public hearing is to be held in the township hall annex off Main Street at 7:30 p.m.

Independence moves toward park purchase

By Carolyn Walker

Nature lovers will be happy to hear that Independence Township wants to add to its collection of park grounds.

At a special meeting on March 27, members of the township board voted to approve a resolution to seek a Michigan Land Trust Fund grant for the purchase of Bay Court Camp off Andersonville Road.

The cost of the purchase and terms of agreement have not yet been decided, said Supervisor Frank Ronk, emphasizing that the resolution is an early step toward the purchase.

The Michigan Land Trust Fund was initiated by former state Sen. Kerry Kammer, a Springfield Township resident. It helps provide funds to municipalities for the purchase of property in environmentally significant areas.

If authorized, the grant would provide 75 percent of the funds necessary for buying the 48.9-acre camp which abuts Greens Lake.

The township would be responsible for the remaining 25 percent of the costs, which have not been determined, said Ronk.

It will probably take a year to go through all the formalities of receiving the grant, he said.

According to Ronk, the township has held an option to buy the park for several years.

The park has been made available to the township but has not been put on the market for sale, he said.

The park has been incorporated into the township parks' master plan since the 1970s.

It is currently owned by United Community Services, a division of the United Foundation and was formerly a Boy Scout camp.

"We're, at this point, in the very beginning of this thing," Ronk said, adding that in buying the Bay Court Camp, as viewed from Andersonville Road, includes this castle-like main structure and several smaller-sized cabins on the treed grounds near Greens Lake.

park, the township is looking to the future when the surrounding area is expected to be highly developed.

"That camp ought to remain a camp," he said.

Bay Court comes complete with cabins and a waterfront area, Ronk said. He anticipates that the township may make it available to organizations.

Voting to approve the resolution were Ronk, Clerk Richard Holman, Treasurer John Lutz and Trustee Carol Balzarini. Trustees William Vandermark, Daniel Travis and Dale Stuart were absent.

Springfield awaits state's OK for land buy

By Dan Vandenhemel

Springfield Township is trying to acquire 394 acres with the help of the state of Michigan.

The acreage, bordered by Davisburg and Eaton roads, is owned by Ed and Mary Barker. Mrs. Barker has owned the property for nearly 40 years.

Supervisor Collin Walls said the Barkers first proposed selling the property to the township a few years ago.

"They came to us to see if the township would want to buy the land. They didn't want to see the land chopped up into subdivisions," Walls said.

The Barkers were unavailable for comment.

The township board is trying to acquire the land through the Michigan Land Trust Fund. The land trust sets aside money for state use to purchase property.

One stipulation for use of the state funds is the land must be used for public recreational. The Springfield property is wooded and has about 150 acres of wetlands including a major portion of Long Lake.

Walls said the area is good for hunting and fishing.

Nearly 320 applications were filed asking for state help last year and that has been pared down to 60. Now the application is in the Legislature awaiting its approval, said Walls.

"It should be through the Legislature in May or maybe June," Walls said. "Then the land trust fund appraises the land and then the negotiations start with the owners."

Walls said the land trust pays 90 percent of the cost up to $520,000 and the township pays the remainder of the money. Walls said he has no idea of the cost of the property.

"If the price tag is too much, we don't have to buy it," Walls said. "The township budgeted $60,000 for the possible purchase of the land. That's a good indication of what we're willing to spend."

About 100 acres of the land are currently being used as farm land. The remainder would not be developed and the two houses on the property would be rented out, Walls said.

"Nothing will be done with the northern 300 acres," he said. "The southern 100 could be used for parks and maybe ball fields eventually."

Firefighters battle a grass fire off Maybee Road on Friday. There have been no injuries related to grass fires this year, but the potential exists when fires are not properly monitored, says Fire Marshall Gar Wilson:

Grass fires roar in Independence

Approximately 15 grass fires kept Independence Township firefighters busy Saturday and Sunday, according to Fire Marshall Gar Wilson.

Although permits had been issued in some cases, most blazes were caused by yard cleaners' fires that got out of control, Wilson said.

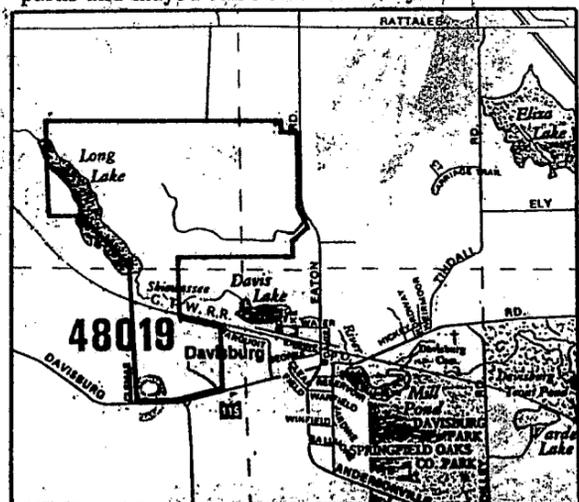

"Most of them are people that don't have permits and left their fires unattended," he said.

Independence and the Village of Clarkston require burning permits whenever a fire is started on the open ground.

People who repeatedly violate the ordinance can be ticketed and refused future permits. Permits are not issued when the wind is gusting.

Authorization for outdoor fires is given by the fire department, where a dispatcher takes the applicant's name, address and information about what is to be burned over the phone and records it in a log, Wilson said. A written permit is not issued.

To obtain permits, residents should call 625-1924.

Nearly 150 of the 400 acres are wetlands.

Memories on wheels

I feel kind of sorry for my car, a 1976 Pontiac Grand Prix.

Ten years, two children, four jobs and several vacations old, it is falling apart by bits and pieces.

It has one door that won't open; one that won't close; a leak around the window; a broken handle; a broken headlight; a broken lock; a missing knob; twisted safety belts; severe rust spots; a ding in the side, two chips in the windshield, and problems starting.

It is also a haven for litter, just ask The Perfectionist.

In short, the car is plain tired.

For six months, at least, The Perfectionist and I have been debating about whether or not to exchange it for a new model.

We've put off our decisions to buy a new car with excuses about timing, interest rates and the Pontiac's good engine.

But there is something about trading in all the memories that go with it that is more than a little difficult. I suspect that is why we can't make up our minds.

In 1973, we drove home from Biloxi, Miss., in that car—straight through from the gulf with a 3-year-old child in the back seat. The car performed.

We slept in that vehicle when we couldn't find motel or hotel rooms.

It saw us through blizzards; started on cold mornings; missed a cow in the road in Tennessee; got us safely to hospitals during emergencies; held inner tubes, air mattresses, a cooler with lunch in it and five kids for trips to the beach; and was on hand to bring our second, newborn daughter home from the hospital.

A car that dependable should exit shining.

Instead, it was treated to the ultimate insult last week when it was rear-ended on M-15 for the second time in four months.

As a result of the two encounters, the Pontiac's rear bumper couldn't be any closer to the trunk if it were to grab the fenders and say, "I want a hug."

Following impact, deputies from the Oakland County Sheriff's Department arrived. They were kind. They were polite. They got out to survey the circumstances.

The deputy in charge walked over to my car, cast his eyes upon the rust spots, tight bumper and dinged side, looked me in the eyes and asked with all sincerity, "Do you think it sustained any damages?"

Now, I ask you, what kind of a question is that to ask of a car that's just been involved in a 40-mile-per-hour-plus accident?

"Humph," I say.

The man is obviously no judge of character.

Different but the same

Sometimes it's reassuring for parents to remember their teen years.

In the '60s, we did just about everything we could not to look like our tidy parents.

Some of us who had inherited curly hair ironed it. We went on shopping sprees for blue jeans we could douse with bleach for the spotted and wornout look. I had a friend who buried his tennis shoes for a while so they'd be genuinely rotten.

I will never forget the hair ironing. Long hair was the first requirement so it could be stretched out on the ironing board. The strands had to be ironed in layers.

I stopped the practice only after I combined a hair-straightening permanent with ironing and ended up looking deep-fried.

Some desperately serious activity with hair conditioners followed.

If anyone tried to talk me into ironing my hair today, I'd wrinkle my brow. I've been known to moan over clothes ruined, as in unwearable, after a slip of the bleach bottle. If anyone suggested burying shoes, I'd dig deeper with questions about his or her sanity.

It's been a long, long time since I thought about ironing my hair.

What happened was the mother of a friend of my daughter shared concerns about our children's hair styles.

My true confession momentarily brought the conversation around the table to a dead halt. I guess I don't look like the avant-garde hairdo type.

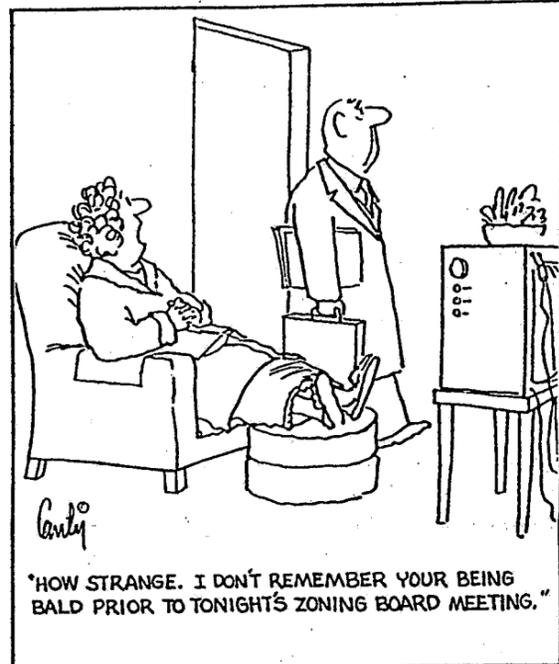

Few of my generation of parents do.

We are, after all, the ones who funded such necessities for our children as wardrobes loaded with identical-in-all-but-color shirts with little alligator symbols and designer blue jeans for toddlers to teens.

That's not even mentioning the pervasive teeth-straightening braces so the smiles of our children will be perfect.

Did I say reassuring?

Jim's Jottings

Jim Sherman

Remember the ditty - I went to the animal fair, the birds and beast were there. . . Well, the same birds and beasts were at the boxing match I went to recently.

Some flitted around the ring, some snarled. Also, some prayed before the match, and some after they won. I saw no losers pray.

Seeing a professional boxer kneel in a neutral corner, bow his head, then cross himself reminds me of columnist Jim Fitzgerald's observation of the high school free throw shooter crossing himself before the shot, "Does God really care whether he makes it?"

The main event featured Murray Sutherland and Lindell Holmes, a couple middleweights. Sutherland, they said, was the reigning United States Boxing Association champion.

He had a belt wider than the Mackinac Bridge and a buckle the size of the state of Vermont. It was too heavy for a middleweight to wear. Maybe a heavyweight could.

Boxing enthusiast Jim Downey of Lake Orion told us there are now four boxing associations. A guy has four chances to earn a belt for show purposes only. If Downey is wrong, remember I said he was an enthusiast, not an expert.

Sutherland, from Bay City, came in with 41 knockouts on a 50-11 record. Holmes won 27 bouts, lost 4 and had 26 knockouts.

He now has 27. Sutherland gave all the appearances of wanting to get rid of the belt, like it had a hex on it. Sutherland supporters had more strength behind their voices than he had in his fists that night.

The most exciting fight of the night at the Premier Center in Sterling Heights was between Steve Darnell and Jeff McCall. Darnell, being from Livonia, was the popular choice to win over McCall from Cincinnati.

The 160 pounders were going at it pretty good when the referee stopped the fight, and declared Darnell the winner by a bite. McCall bit him.

They don't give belts for that.

Who was jeered the most and who cheered the most? None of the above. The heavy jeering was aimed at the only judge who wasn't male. Her decision gave one match to a guy who hardly showed up. The fact that she got another judge to agree with her is amazing. It's not the way I saw it.

The ring girls got the most cheers. Now, there's an innovation Pabst Blue Ribbon never had on fight nights in the '50s.

Ring girls climb between the ropes between rounds and walk around the ring holding the number of the next round high above their heads.

The main purpose of the ring girls is to make you forget you just paid $16.50 for two pitchers of beer and, "Is the rest my tip, please?"

What a grand party it was—our 150th birthday! Of course, the huge success was accomplished through the efforts of so many:

Mr. Ed Adler for the donation of the restaurant area at the beautiful and historic Clarkston Mills; to the Clarkston Area Jaycees for the festive decorations, with the assistance of Boy Scout Troop 189; to the local florists who provided the lovely, red, white and blue arrangements; to the Church Street Singers for their joyous and enthusiastic program; to the Clarkston High School Jazz Band for their exceptionally fine performance; to Mr. Ken Winship for the reproduction of past era photographs and the donation of his equipment for "present" past era photos; to the clowns who so delighted the children; to American Speedy Printing for their donation; and to the wonderful volunteers who contributed their ideas, talents and time.

Our first sesquicentennial celebration would not have been so outstanding if it were not for the guests who attended.

Fantasy camp

Jim Fitzgerald

It is expected that U.S. Attorney General Edwin Meese will this summer operate a one-week fantasy camp for ordinary people who have always dreamed of being important enough to be honored by Harvard University.

Usually, fantasy camps are strictly for sports nuts. Ordinary people who always dreamed of playing big league baseball or hockey pay money to spend a few days with famous athletes such as Willie Mays or Gordie Howe.

But there is no good reason why only wishful jock fans should get the chance to hobnob with their heroes. If Al Kaline can put his arm around the shoulders of a chubby accountant and give him tips on how to play right field, why shouldn't Edwin Meese go camping with Joe Grocer and tell Joe how to borrow money from people who want jobs in his grocery store?

Last week, there were some objections voiced when it was announced that Meese will receive a public service medal from the John F. Kennedy School of Government at Harvard.

"It sounds like a joke. He does not seem to be a distinguished public servant or a distinguished attorney general," said one professor at Harvard Law School. And another Harvard law professor called the award "an absolute disgrace."

absolute disgrace."

Apparently these law professors haven't been paying close enough attention to Meese's career since he quit being a top White House aide to accept President Reagan's appointment as the nation's top law enforcement officer. Perhaps they think Meese hasn't done anything else worthwhile for our legal system in the 18 months since his stunning achievement of persuading the U.S. Office of Government Ethics that Mary Poppins' record of obeying the law shouldn't prevent her from being appointed the nation's top lawbreaker.

That isn't exactly what Meese did, of course. But he did persuade ethics investigators and a U.S. Senate committee, that he was qualified to be attorney general even though he used his White House connections to help get a federal job for a man who earlier arranged an unsecured, interest-delayed $40,000 loan to Meese.

And at last one awed taxpayer said Edwin Meese being our top cop is similar to Mary Poppins being our top crook.

Anyway, the cranky law professors who think Meese doesn't deserve a medal from Harvard may have missed his sterling performance following the most famous eviction in the history of undesirable tenants. It was you'll recall, last May's MOVE incident in Philadelphia. Police dropped a bomb that killed four children and seven adults while destroying 61 homes and leaving 270 innocent people homeless.

According to a blue-ribbon investigating commission, the bombing was "reckless, ill-conceived and hastily approved" and the deaths of the children "appear to be unjustified homicides that should be investigated" by a grand jury.

However, according to Attorney General Meese, in a speech given to California police officials, the bloody eviction was a "good example" of proper law enforcement.

That is the Rambo type of thinking that qualifies a person to be promoted from the White House aide to U.S. attorney general. And it is the type of thinking that Meese is expected to expound at his fantasy camp for ordinary people, who always dreamed of being important enough to be honored by Harvard University.

Meese probably won't run the fantasy camp alone. Most likely he will be assisted by an experienced staff of camp counselors, each one a bona fide graduate of a lynch mob.

Onward and upward.

Condominiums proposed for Clarkston Road

Developer seeks rezoning for 'empty nester' units

By Carolyn Walker

Thirty-four condominium units are being proposed for Clarkston Road across from Independence Township's Clintonwood Park.

On March 27, developer Frank Walker appeared before a planning commission public hearing to seek rezoning of the 8.6 acres for the purpose of building one-and-two-bedroom condos.

Following some public comment, in a 4-1-1 vote, the commission voted to recommend approval of the request to rezone the property from residential/rural status to single-family dwelling.

Walker added that he plans to seek Planned Unit Development (PUD) status for the project in the near future. PUD allows for a variety of uses on a single parcel of land.

Following the meeting, Chairman Neil Wallace explained Walker's need for rezoning prior to the PUD application.

The PUD ordinance looks to existing zoning to determine the number of units to be allowed, he said. The single family dwelling status would permit Walker to build more units than the residential/rural designation.

During the meeting, three residents and some commissioners expressed mixed reactions to the condominium proposal.

Many were concerned about the expense of linking the condominiums to gravity sewers near Flemings Lake Road as required by the township department of public works.

But Walker indicated he was prepared to do so if it would enable him to go ahead with the development.

"I have no choice. If I want to do the development, I have to do what the DPW wants," he said.

Others were concerned that the units would generate increased traffic along Clarkston Road.

"It doesn't seem to me that condos are appropriate for this part of the country," said Margaret Campbell, a Clarkston Road property owner who was concerned about traffic and trespassers.

Walker responded by saying the condos are planned for "empty nesters" or couples without children.

"The units are specifically being designed for that market," he said. "We feel there's a big market for it. It's been here since 1976 and nobody's addressed it."

"They were not designed for kids," he added.

Calling the project a "quantum leap," commissioner Holly Stephens said multiple dwellings were inappropriate for that site, although she did agree there is a need for area condos.

She suggested that Walker seek out parcels already zoned multiple for his condominiums.

He responded by saying, "I don't want to go to multiple sites. They're usually in the dregs of the township."

"They're not very desirable—90 percent of them. The (Clarkston Road) attraction is . . . it's close to town."

Commissioner John Gray disagreed with Stephens.

"We have the opportunity to share in an experiment (with a developer)," he said. "It would add a different flavor."

"It's not an apartment complex. I think we should clear that up," said commissioner Joseph Figa, echoing Gray.

Voting to recommend the zoning change to the township board, which will make the ultimate decision, were Gray, Figa, Carol Balzarini and Brent Bair. Stephens voted against the motion. And Wallace abstained, citing a conflict of interest.

Raises for Springfield board

All five Springfield Township Board members received 7½ percent salary increases at the March 25 annual meeting.

In what could be the last annual meeting for the township, a voice vote by the nearly 30 residents at the meeting unanimously approved the raises.

Supervisor Collin Walls gets a pay boost from $27,000 to $29,000. Clerk J. Calvin Walters and Treasurer Patricia Kramer will make $25,800 this year, up from $24,000 last year. Trustees William Whitley and Glen Vermilye go from $750 annually plus $50 per meeting to $806 and $53.75.

Walls cited a number of salaries of supervisors in Oakland County for comparison.

"Salaries range from the teens to the mid-50s," he said. "Brandon is about the same population as Springfield and the supervisor is making $24,000. Milford is also about the same size and the supervisor is at $30,900."

"I'd be lying if I told you I didn't want to make more money," Walls said at the meeting.

Springfield Township officially became a charter township April 1 and under that system, annual meetings are not required. But a budget meeting is required to inform the residents of what is going on and to set salaries.

Residents will not have a vote under a charter system, but Walls said the township board will listen to their ideas before any decisions are made.

Salaries of two remain status quo

At the final meeting of the current administration, Clarkston Village Council members took action on the salaries of two employees.

The unanimous vote to maintain the annual pay rates of Clerk Norma Goyette at $5,900 and assessor Lillian Bauer at $50 was made with virtually no comment.

The motion followed on the heels of a December vote to raise the president's salary from $1,200 to $3,500 per year.

At the time of the president's increase, it had been proposed to decrease the salary of the clerk.

The hiring of a village manager was also discussed at that time, but no action was taken.

Goyette was re-elected to her two-year post as clerk last month. Bauer is not an elected official.

New council president Sharron Catallo and trustees Frank Millard, Eric Haven and William Basinger are to be sworn into office at the April 14 meeting.

Runners Kate Conlen and Melissa Elfes will give the Wolves a strong one-two punch in the long-distance events.

Senior Jennifer Farough's forte throughout her high school career has been the hurdles. She has placed near the top of the county competition in the events.

Seniors provide leadership

By Dan Vandenhemel

Gordy Richardson has a different type of senior crew this year on the Clarkston girls' track team.

Jennifer Farough, Shivonne DeBoer and Kecia Powell are quiet but their performances rank near the top of the competition's.

Richardson said last year's seniors were also excellent athletes but were very vocal, too.

"I think they're going to be the quiet leaders, leading by example," the coach said. "Somewhere on the team there are a couple of rah-rah types. It's important to have both types of leaders on the team."

Farough is near the front of the county pack in the hurdles, while DeBoer is doing the same in the shot put and discus.

"Kecia started out with the discus, added the shot put and ended the season by running the quarter," Richardson said of her versatility.

Having only three seniors and six juniors is common when it comes to the Clarkston girls' track teams. The total of 26 athletes is a little larger than the past couple of years.

"For athletes to come out in the spring of their senior years, they have to be real dedicated," Richardson said. "If they aren't real dedicated, they don't do it."

The six juniors, Lisa Ladd, Wendy Cohoon,

Melissa Elfes, Kathleen McInnis, Karin Garwood and Jennifer Smith, give the Wolves some quality athletes.

McInnis, who qualified for the state finals the last two years, won't be available to the team until late April, maybe May, because of a stress fracture in her leg.

"For athletes to come out in the spring of their senior years, they have to be real dedicated."

—Gordy Richardson

"Actually there isn't a good time for an injury, but I guess if you're going to get hurt, you might as well do it early in the season," Richardson said. "It's nice to win all those dual meets early on, but you're going to need all your horses when it comes to the league meet, regionals and state meet."

"When looking to see if you had a good season, looking at the overall record is nice, but you really look at how you did when it counts," the coach said.

Wrestlers win

The Clarkston Wrestling Club made the trip to Ypsilanti High School for an Amateur Athletic Union meet March 23—and brought home 12 medals.

In the 8-years-old and under division, Jason Tiefenback at 50 pounds was third; Ryan Mick at 45 pounds was second; and Matt Tiefenback at 55 pounds was second.

In the 9-10-year-old class, Brett Walters at 55 pounds placed first; Corey Grant at 65 pounds was third; Jayme Mutter at 60 pounds was third; and Chad Granlund at 50 pounds was third.

For the 11-12-year-olds, Jeff DeRoseau at 65 pounds finished first; Rueben DeLosRios at 100 pounds was second; and Jerry Anderson at 75 pounds was third.

In the 13-14-year-old division, John Anderson at 100 pounds placed second.

In the 15-16-year-old class, Mike DeRoseau at 112 pounds finished first.

Benefit game

Board a bus and take in a baseball game.

The Independence Township Parks and Recreation Department is offering a trip to Tiger Stadium to watch the Detroit Tigers play the Cincinnati Reds in an exhibition game.

All proceeds from the annual game go to sandlot baseball. This year the game is April 28 starting at 7 p.m.

The cost is $9 a person and that covers the game ticket and bus transportation.

A bus will leave at 5:45 p.m. from Clarkston High School.

Tickets are limited to 150 people.

For more information, call the parks and recreation department at 625-8223.

Bicyclists to hit the road

Don't be surprised Saturday morning if you see a pack of bicyclists pedaling around Independence Township.

Vic Bilicki is hoping to have about 20 people for the 20-mile trip.

This isn't a competitive trek or one for the over-enthusiastic type, Bilicki says. It's an event for the family.

Bilicki recently moved to Independence Township and has been looking for a group interested in a low-key type of ride. There are such activities for the very serious bicycle racer but not for the casual rider.

"There isn't one for the family, so I figured I'd start one," Bilicki said.

The Saturday morning ride starts at the Depot Park in Clarkston at 9:30. Bilicki said he'd recommend anyone participating in the ride have at least a 10-speed bicycle.

A brunch stop is planned at a restaurant and the entire trip should take between two and three hours. It costs 50 cents, and that goes to the American Youth Hostels.

Bilicki is the vice president of the Bicycle Committee for the hostels. He organized a similar event in Detroit.

"The hostels are an educational group involved in outdoor activities," Bilicki said. "Safety is the big thing with the hostels. With a ride like this, people can learn the proper way to ride a bike."

Bilicki talked about riding up and down hills, the correct fit of the bike to its owner and being able to get into shape while riding a bike.

"A lot of people own bicycles and a lot of them don't know how to ride one," Bilicki said. "There should be enough interest in a ride like this. I'm planning to have the ride every Saturday morning."

Wolves set sights on state tournament

By Dan Vandenhemel

The Clarkston Wolves' baseball team is aiming to get back to the winning ways.

Not that a 16-7 overall record last year and a league championship is not successful, but coach Roy Warner would like to go farther in the state tournament.

The varsity Wolves were dropped in the first round of the tournament last year by Rochester, a team that reached the final four in the state. The four previous years, Clarkston beat the Falcons and reached the district finals.

What has kept the Wolves in the winning ways for the past five years—pitching and power—will carry the team again this year.

Warner has a strong pitching corps returning from last year in Ed Adkins and Steve Atkinson.

Adkins posted a 6-1 record with a tidy 3.06 ERA. Atkinson held a 3-2 mark that included a no-hitter.

Adding to the list of strong arms are seniors Mike Walters and Ed Whitaker.

Walters was hurt for virtually all of last season, pitching only three innings. Whitaker didn't go out for the team his junior year.

"If Wally can come back, that would be fantastic," Warner said. "Whitaker can throw smoke. He's an outstanding athlete and he'll help."

Warner doesn't sound worried at all about the team's offense led by Clarkston's version of the Doublemint twins, Tom and Jim Ruelle.

The identical twins, other than Tom's mustache, are going to college next fall on football scholarships but hope to play baseball, too.

Tom, an outfielder, is heading to Saginaw Valley State College while Jim, the third baseman, is going to Hillsdale College.

"They should be able to reach the fences, as should Whitaker and Rusty Swan," Warner said. "I think we've got the ability to put nine pretty good hitters in the lineup. We've got good balance between contact and power hitters."

Going out and trying to play every game perfectly will be the Wolves' goal this season.

Warner said if the team does that consistently, they will add to their string of successful seasons.

Coach Roy Warner talks with Tom and Jim Ruelle before a practice at CHS. Warner calls the Ruelles the Doublemint Twins. He plans for the duo to provide plenty of hits.

Stadium salute

Dan Vandenhemel

What a great weekend. I don't think there are many complaints floating around about the weather. The temperatures were in the mid-70s, it was breezy and the skies blue. On my many travels over Easter weekend, of the many sights, one stands out more than the others—Tiger Stadium.

There was some stiff competition rising up beside the stadium. The RenCen, the Ambassador Bridge, even the Zilwaukee Bridge were sights to behold. But Tiger Stadium by far looked the best.

Maybe it was all the times I've spent inside her walls.

Maybe it was all the times I fantasized about playing shortstop there with 50,000 fans cheering.

There was the time when a group of us skipped high school to attend opening day. While two of us went for hot dogs, Jason Thompson put a dent in the right field roof for the first home run of the season.

I was one of the two who had to witness the shot on television that night.

Another time, we sat in the right field bleachers on opening day with our parkas on. It was snowing.

I've spent a lot of time in Tiger Stadium. None of which I'll forget.

Last year I sat in the press box for the first time. When Clarkston native Tim Birtsas came to town with the Oakland A's to pitch against the Tigers, I was there.

Viewing a game high up in the press box is a different experience. You're there working and enjoying the game.

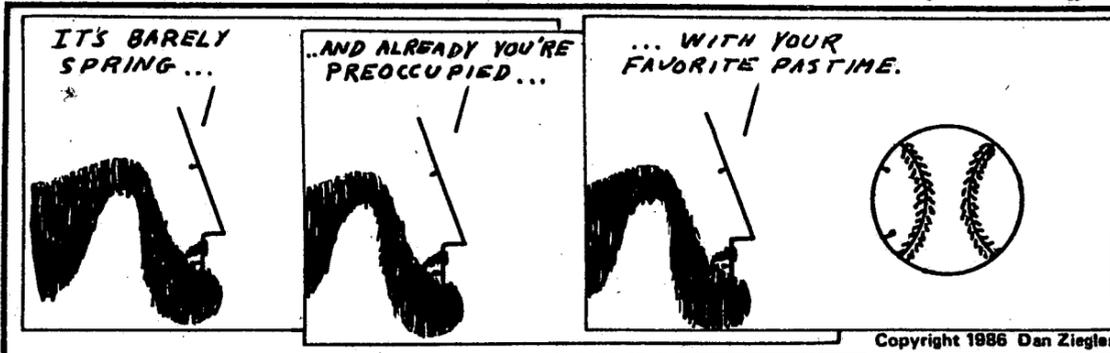

In the stands, you're cheering, yelling, eating, cheering some more and talking.

In the press box, you're watching, writing, talking, and eating.

The cheering is missing. The press box is just one more memory to be filed away about Tiger Stadium.

Memories last forever, but buildings don't. Management is talking about the need for a new park, a new place for the Tigers to play.

ZBA concurs with restaurant fire decision

The findings of building and planning director Kenneth Delbridge regarding the fire damages to Harvey's Colonial Restaurant have been upheld by the zoning board of appeals.

"As far as we could determine from the information presented to us, Mr. Delbridge was correct," said Chairman John Dunlop of the Independence Township Zoning Board of Appeals.

On March 19, the ZBA agreed with Delbridge that the restaurant had sustained damages of more than 100 percent of its state equalized valuation during a fire last May.

The decision means owner Harvey Render will have to obtain final site plan approval from the planning commission before a building permit can be issued.

Render, who plans to replace the restaurant with a clothing store, has maintained for several weeks that the damages were overestimated and that he should be issued a building permit without having to go to the planning commission.

Last month, the commission appeared ready to grant final site plan approval when Render said he would seek the ZBA decision and asked that the commission table the matter.

Following the ZBA meeting, Render's attorney Robert Rooyakker said Render is in the process of getting "working drawings" of his proposed building and will attempt to obtain a building permit.

As of Monday, Render had not applied for the building permit nor had he requested to be on the planning commission agenda, said a spokesperson for the building department.

Mark concentrates as he smears peanut butter on a piece of bread for the sandwich he is preparing for the following workday. Cooking, setting the table and cleaning are all a part of the routine at the Groveland II group home in Springfield Township.

Groveland II—a place called home

In a modern ranch house called Groveland II in Springfield Township, six developmentally disabled adults are quietly going about the business of living.

All but one are the former residents of the Lapeer State Home, a mental institution.

Because of their determination to live together as a family, they were recently honored with the Association for Retarded Citizens' Community Home Award.

This, the first in a two-part series, looks at life in Groveland II and how it is cherished and respected by the residents who call it home.

By Carolyn Walker

Mark works and struggles to get the words out. He is not fighting to hold back tears, but rather, he is fighting a tongue and lips that do not want to cooperate.

"They hum . . . They humili . . . They humiliated me so bad that I didn't dare tell my mother," the 28-year-old finally blurts out.

His roommate, Harold, agrees.

Humiliation, such as diapering or shaving heads, was sometimes the preferred method for control or punishment, he says of the former Lapeer State Home, a mental institution in Lapeer.

Later known as Oakdale, Lapeer was home to the two men for a combined total of some 46 years.

They have nothing good to say about the place, except that freedom from it finally came.

Mark entered Lapeer at 2½ years of age. Harold when he was approximately 7. Bearded and graying, he is now 64—the majority of his life behind him.

The men speak cheerfully and freely of their lives now, however. They are residents, along with four other developmentally disabled adults, at the Groveland II group home in Springfield Township.

"I really like it here," says Mark, his brown eyes shining.

On March 14, the residents were honored with the Community Home Award by the Association for Retarded Citizens of Oakland County at its 16th annual awards dinner held in Troy.

They won the glass statuette embossed with the dove of peace because they exemplify all that is good in the group home movement.

After years of being shuffled from the Lapeer home and other community placements, they united to buck a system that wanted to disperse them when their former house, Groveland I in Ortonville, developed well problems.

They were, and are, a family that wants to stay together, they successfully told the powers that be.

And so it was that they moved together nearly two

Retreat planned

The annual retreat for women is approaching at the Clarkston United Methodist Church.

Five inspirational speakers have been scheduled for the retreat planned Saturday, April 26, from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

The cost of $8 pre-registration and $9 after April 21 includes a salad lunch.

For registration information, call the church office at 625-1611.

Church hosts concert

A gospel music concert featuring Ron and Carolyn Patty is planned at the First Church of God on Sunday, April 6.

The Pattys, of Anderson, Ind., use their own vocal and instrumental arrangements in live and taped accompaniment.

Carolyn provides vocal and original piano solos and Ron presents several quartet-style numbers, singing all the parts himself.

Their music is heard regularly on the Christian Brotherhood Hour on over 400 stations worldwide.

The concert is to begin at 10:45 a.m. A free-will offering will be taken.

The church is located at 6300 Clarkston Rd., Independence Township. Call 625-1323 for more information.

Ron and Carolyn Patty. free-will offering will be taken.

Dust control set for roads

Public and private roads will once again be the recipients of dust control programs in Independence Township.

On March 18, members of the township board voted 6-0 to participate in an Oakland County Road Commission dust control program, as they have during recent years.

Under the proposal the township will pay 12 cents per square foot for dust control on county roads and citizens will pay 18 cents per square foot.

The county does not pay any money toward the dust control, but does oversee the program, said township Clerk Richard Holman.

The township's portion for public roads is to come from tax credit rebates to the township from Oakland County; while for private roads, the money is to come from the township's general fund, Holman said.

Win a Garfield

In celebration of National Library Week, the Springfield Township Library is giving away a Garfield stuffed animal.

A visit to the library during library week, from April 6-12, is required. While there, an entry blank must be filled out, with only one entry allowed per person.

Free Garfield bookmarks will also be available.

The drawing will be held on Monday, April 14, at the library located at 10900 Andersonville Rd. Call 625-0595 for more information.

Dear Cat Paw:
Are any types of drugs off the street good for you?
Want to Know

Dear Want to Know:
No.

Dear Cat Paw:
What does heroin actually do to your body when you take it?
Debating

Dear Debating:
Chronic use and abuse results in a tolerance to the drug and a vicious addiction. As the effects diminish, the addicts begin to itch, perspire heavily, their noses and eyes begin to run and they yawn involuntarily.

Their pupils dilate and they begin to experience severe cramps and body aches. They then experience acute depression along with diarrhea, fever and tremors. These effects are relieved only temporarily by further use of the drug.

Heroin causes little physiological harm to the body. The devastation its use causes is not a result of the drug itself but of its diluters and the life-style adopted by the addict.

The danger of the inadvertent overdose is ever present. The user rarely knows the strength of the drug or the nature of the foreign substances used to dilute it.

Diseases from infections and foreign particles in the bloodstream are commonplace. Serum hepatitis, abscesses and tetanus, ailments common to the addict, are transmitted by communal use of hypodermic needles.

Continued abuse often results in chronic bronchitis or pneumonia as the drug deadens the cough reflex.

Heroin addicts frequently suffer from malnutrition due to the appetite depressing effects of the drug and their preoccupation with obtaining it.

Mark: 'Just a normal-type family'

years ago to the spacious ranch house they call home. Harold and Mark share their residence with Bill, 23; Alfredo, 38; Rose, 59; Virginia, 59; and Grizzabella the Siamese cat. All but Bill and Grizzabella were residents of the Lapeer home.

They spend their days much as the members of other families do; working, going to school, cooking and cleaning, vacationing, and settling their problems.

"Just a normal-type family. We all have our disagreements," says Mark, who whirrs about the home in a motorized wheelchair with a WLLZ sticker plastered to its back.

"Nobody's perfect," echoes Harold, who is also wheelchair-bound.

As Virginia and Alfredo explain that they enjoy the challenges of cooking and housework, Rose digs deep into her purse, preparing for a trip to the bank.

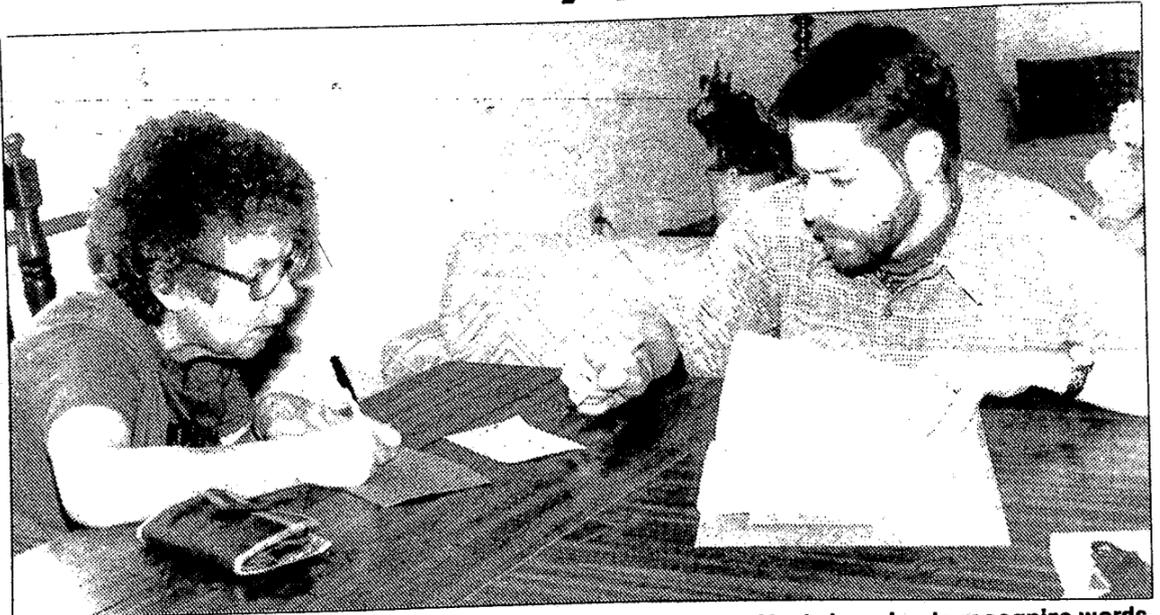

Slipping into her coat, she then plops a hat onto her head and Mark, like a typical brother, makes a joke. "It looks like the Three Stooges," he quips with a laugh. Rose grins, but goes about her business, comfortable and unfazed by the remark.

Mentioning that Bill is across Michigan participating in a Special Olympics basketball game, Mark and Harold agree to give their visitor a tour of the house.

Spotless and orderly, the home features a cozy living room, where Grizzly (as the cat is called for short) is sunning herself in a chair, a kitchen and dining room, family room and bedrooms that house two residents each along with their stereos, televisions and personal belongings.

In Mark and Harold's room, the walls are decorated with a few posters and family pictures.

The wall over Harold's bed boasts an 8-by-10 [See VIRGINIA, Page 29]

Steve Moore, an employee of the Groveland II group home, helps Virginia with her spelling and reading. She is learning to recognize words like "push" and "pull."

"I couldn't believe my eyes!"

Mrs Julia Foster of Oxford talks about her cataract surgery and the Lapeer Eye Clinic.

"I get so mad at myself when I think how long I went around half-blind from a cataract because I was scared of surgery. But finally things got so bad I made an appointment at the Lapeer Eye Clinic.

"Smartest thing I ever did!

"First off they picked me up in a nice new van. No charge. Courtesy of the clinic. Then when Dr Sole and his people talked to me, they made me feel easy about the operation. I got the feeling they really cared about me.

"The day of the operation — well, Dr Sole was so kind — and it all went so quick. The cataract was gone and the implant in place in about 25 minutes. Hardly felt a thing. And the van had me home in time for lunch.

"Just a few days later I couldn't believe my eyes! Everything was so clear. It was like a miracle.

"My Medicare took care of the whole thing except for a few dollars, and they even filled out the forms."

Gary Sole, MD, founder and director of the Lapeer Eye Clinic specializes in cataract removal and lens implant surgery. That's why Mrs. Foster's experience was such a happy one. Her experience is typical.

You'll get the same warm, personal care whether you need a pair of reading glasses or contact lenses . . . treatment for glaucoma or cosmetic eye surgery or any other eye care. Because the Lapeer Eye Clinic is a complete eye clinic participating fully with Medicare and other major medical plans.

Call for an appointment today at the clinic that cares. 1-800-533-9300 or (313) 664-9945

Virginia: 'We go all over'

Alfredo enjoys holding Grizzly the cat. The cat contributes to the home-like atmosphere of Groveland II.

photo of his parents and pictures of his brother, George, with whom he was reunited just four months ago.

A youthful Harold looks out from a series of pictures on the dresser. They were taken over the years while he was at the Lapeer home.

His dark eyes seem to belie the pain he felt on separation from his parents, who, according to Harold, put him in the home without explanation.

"Nobody told me why," he says. "Nobody told George where I was. We haven't known each other for 43 years."

Harold pauses and his eyes look off into the distance. For a moment, it seems, by concentrating, he can see into the family events that were lost to him over the years.

With a wisdom that comes from age and compassion, Harold changes the topic and explains that he defers to Mark when it comes time to play their stereos. He laughs at the thought of conflicting stations blaring from across the room.

"We tried to do it at the same time," he says. "No dice."

Back in the kitchen, as the residents discuss their cooking chores, Harold announces with a twinkle in his eye, that he prefers dining in a restaurant.

Program co-ordinator Linda Nelson comes to his defense as the other residents razz him about his dislike for cooking. "He's our dessert specialist," she says.

Seated around their dining room table, the residents discuss their jobs.

Virginia explains proudly that she works mornings at New Horizons, a sheltered workshop in Pontiac, and then goes to school afternoons.

"I just love it there," she says, smiling.

Rose is also employed at New Horizons, while Alfredo works at the Lahser Pre-vocational School in Ortonville. Bill attends the Waterford Training Institute.

Harold and Mark work at Buckingham Community Services, where they contract to sort volumes of hangers for large businesses such as Hudson's.

Following talk of their jobs, the residents turn the conversation to the pleasures of summer vacations.

Most years, they take breaks and journey to such places as Niagara Falls, Mackinac Island, Traverse City and Sea World.

"We go all over," says Virginia, delighting in the freedom that comes with her present life-style.

With that, the residents grow quiet and eye one another, perhaps drawing comparisons in their minds between the experiences they knew in institutions and the lives they now lead.

Home at last, they've come a long, long way.

Healthy food trends

32 Wed., April 2, 1986 The Clarkston (Mich.) News

Betty Wagner

Fresh, light and wholesome are the words used repeatedly to describe the trends in today's American cuisine.

We, the people who buy, prepare and serve the family's meals, are intent on providing our families with quality food; meals that are well-balanced, nutrient dense, and also attractive and tasty.

The microwave oven is a natural assistant to the family cook in achieving these goals.

The speed of microwave cooking helps retain nutrients often lost during longer periods of cooking required by other methods. Taste is often enhanced during microwave cooking.

And many foods may be deliciously prepared without the addition of fat.

POACHED CHICKEN BREAST WITH CARROT NOODLES

1 chicken breast, split and skinned
1/2 teaspoon dried tarragon
2 tablespoons dry white wine

Place the chicken breasts in a microsafe baking dish. Pour wine over them. Sprinkle with dried tarragon. Cover with plastic wrap, venting one edge.

Microwave at high power 5 minutes. Turn the dish. Microwave at high power 4 to 5 more minutes, or until chicken is done. The juices will run clear and the internal temperature of the chicken will be 170 degrees when the chicken is done. Serves 2.

CARROT NOODLES

This edible garnish adds color to the chicken breasts.
1 large carrot 1/2 tablespoon dry white wine

Peel one large carrot. Make thick slices with a peeler. Place the slices in a small microsafe bowl.

Cover and microwave at high power 1 1/2 minutes or until carrots are tender-crisp. Serve over Poached Tarragon Chicken Breasts.

FRESH ASPARAGUS

This nutritious and tasty bargain ushers in spring. The recipe is from "Microwaving Fruits and Vegetables," Microwave Cooking Library, P. 21; reprinted with permission of Cy De Cosse Inc., publisher.

1 pound fresh asparagus

Wash asparagus in cold water just before cooking. Hold each stalk firmly near butt. Gently bend spear until tough end snaps off.

Place spears in 12-by-8-inch Pyrex baking dish with buds toward center. Cover with plastic wrap, venting one corner.

Microwave at high power 6 to 8 minutes per pound. After half the time, rearrange the spears from the outside to the middle of the dish, keeping the buds in the center.

RICE

A new trend in healthy eating is away from the high protein-high fat diet and back to more complex carbohydrates—rice, pastas, grains and starchy vegetables.

1 cup water 1/2 cup long grain rice
1 packet low sodium chicken bouillon

Mix bouillon with the water in a 1-quart microsafe casserole. Microwave at high power 3 minutes. Stir in the rice and reduce power to 50 percent; microwave 10 minutes. Let stand 5 minutes.

HOT BLUEBERRY SAUCE

1/2 cup frozen blueberries 1 teaspoon lemon juice
1/2 tablespoon cornstarch

Place blueberries in 1 cup Pyrex measure. Defrost at 30 percent power for 1 to 2 minutes. Add enough water to the defrosted blueberries to make 1 cup.

Drain off liquid. Stir into the liquid the cornstarch and lemon juice. Microwave at high power for 1 minute, or until thick, stirring after 30 seconds.

Fold in the blueberries. Microwave at high power 45 seconds. Serve over low-fat vanilla yogurt or vanilla ice cream.

Home economist Betty Wagner, an Independence Township resident, is a graduate of West Virginia University. She teaches microwave cooking classes at Sears at the Oakland Mall and through the Clarkston Community Education Department.

Developmental kindergarten, a new approach

Children have extra time to grow—and achieve success

By Kathy Greenfield

Kindergarten has become a two-year class for many children attending Clarkston Community Schools.

This year, one out of every four of the 427 kindergartners enrolled in the district is beginning with developmental kindergarten, following kindergarten screening, teachers' recommendations and parental approval.

After a year of half-days in the developmental class, they attend a year of half-days in kindergarten before advancing to first grade.

"Developmental kindergarten is like kindergarten as in the past, when we attended," said Bailey Lake Elementary School kindergarten teacher Cindy Omans, comparing the program to adults' "best memories of kindergarten."

"It's a very active program. We do not do worksheets and workbooks. The focus is on the child doing, being actively involved, discovering things for themselves, being on the move."

Four years ago, the program was "born out of kindergarten teachers feeling that such a program was necessary," said William Neff, principal of Andersonville Elementary and director of the district's elementary school program.

To Neff's knowledge, no pupil who has attended developmental kindergarten has been retained in a later grade. The district is beginning to collect data on the program, although it is too soon to determine long-range effects.

Neff said he knows there has been a reduction in the number of children being retained in early elementary grades and he believes the number of pupils requiring remedial reading classes will also decrease.

"I think it's successful. It's better understood by parents now," he said. "Unfortunately what we're still seeing is most if not all of the students whose parents refuse them admission to (developmental kindergarten) are ending up as a recommended retention in kindergarten, first grade or second grade."

The biggest problem parents have with approving placement is the worry that their children will be considered "slow," said Neff.

"The youngsters in developmental kindergarten are not slow students," he said. "There is nothing wrong with their intelligence. They can be kids, down the road, who will be straight-A students."

That assessment concurs with the opinions of Omans and Sharon Thomas, who team-teach developmental kindergarten and kindergarten. Both have taught kindergarten at Bailey Lake 16 years.

Children who are recommended for placement in the developmental program range from the very shy to the very active, they said. Many times they have late-in-the-year birthdays.

"This accommodates youngsters who are of average or above-average ability," Omans said. "This is not for slow kids or kids with any difficulty."

Instead, the program is for children who need more time to be ready for sit-down learning, a process the teachers say is much the same as being ready for walking and talking.

"What we find with these kids is when they're ready and able to do these things, it just comes, it naturally comes," said Thomas.

Over the years, kindergarten has evolved into a program much different from what parents remember. A stack of workbooks must be completed during the school year and the kindergartners spend time daily sitting at their tables and completing assignments.

Children who are not ready for the regular classroom setting they face in kindergarten react with stress, the teachers said.

They don't want to go to school, said Omans, and they make more mistakes on assigned worksheets and workbooks. They put a great deal of pressure on themselves.

"Kids know they should be right and should be perfect," she said. "I hate to see what happens to them sometimes."

Some of the children recommended for developmental kindergarten whose parents rejected the idea have been observed in later years lying on the cot in the school hallway with stomach aches or staying inside for recess trying to get their work done.

"When you're in over your head and you're still not cutting it, you're upset," Omans said. "They want to please. They want to be good. When you work and work and work, and still can not be successful..."

The teachers agree that a year of developmental kindergarten is effective in eliminating that situation.

"They don't have to have failure. They can come here and be successful and go on to kindergarten next year," said Omans. "You really have to be a strong little soul to survive kindergarten these days."

Show-and-tell is an everyday event in the developmental kindergarten class. Teacher Sharon Thomas assists Eileen Hart, who shares photos taken when she was a baby.

Praise from parents, too

"I think there's a hesitancy when you think of holding children back, but very often it's the best decision," says Marcia Sailor.

Her son Aaron completed developmental kindergarten last year and is in kindergarten this year at Bailey Lake Elementary.

Sailor has no doubt that Aaron's extra year in kindergarten was beneficial.

"Especially now that he's in regular kindergarten and I look at the change that went on last year," she says. "He did so much growing. There's a world of difference."

Aaron is the youngest of the Sailors' three children. While Sailor said she knew Aaron would have been able to cope with kindergarten intellectually last year, she was concerned about his shyness.

When Aaron began developmental kindergarten, he was hesitant about going into the classroom. All that has changed.

"That year just gave him some time to have some self-confidence," she said. Now, "I drop him off and he just goes in and goes about his business. This year he seems to be much more confident. He's really enjoying it this year."

Sailor sums up her attitude about developmental kindergarten with, "I'm an advocate."

"I think it's a great thing. I don't think it hurts them to be a little older when they get into school and out of school," she says.

Sheri Griffith, the mother of Brandon, also has three children. Brandon is the oldest.

Like Aaron, Brandon was born in June and he had attended nursery school.

And like Aaron, Brandon's shyness is what prompted Griffith's concern and what led to his placement in developmental kindergarten this year.

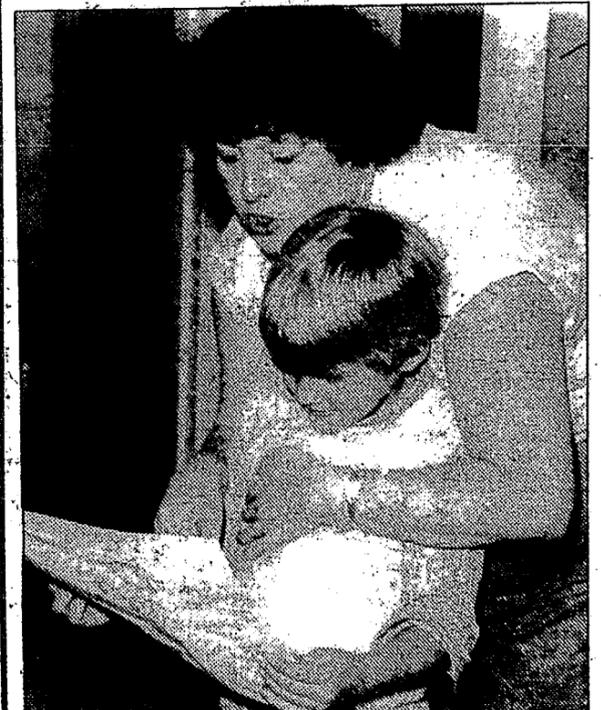

"I was all for it," she says. "They have 13 years of school, so I figure anything I can do to help them out to a good start, I will do."

"I'm really, really happy with it," she adds. "I'm so glad I put my son in it. I think if he would have gone right into kindergarten, he would have missed out on growing socially."

Griffith says every parent she's talked to with children in the program has expressed a positive attitude.

Of her other children, she expects the one with the October birthday to participate in developmental kindergarten as well. Her child born in January, however, will probably begin with the regular kindergarten class.

"I wish they could all have the experience. I think it's really good for them," she says.

Teacher Cindy Omans provides a hug of praise for the just-completed painting by Jeremy Parrott.
