KIDS IN CRISIS

'They're fighting too many battles inside' —J. Butzine

By Carolyn Walker

Some blame it on the baby-boomers. Others lay it on the Me Generation, the free-lovers and potheads of the '60s who are now parents, working mothers or the economy.

Whatever the cause, most counselors agree that children of the '80s are suffering in staggering proportions.

Statistics show that half of today's youth come from divorced or single-parent homes.

Many are the children of substance abusers or physical and sexual abusers as well.

According to six counselors in Independence Township, Clarkston is keeping up with national trends.

Children are hiding their fear by retreating to their bedrooms and seeking refuge away from home or through substance abuse, they say. Their grades drop. Their confidence fails. They give up. They run away.

"They're fighting too many battles inside," says Clarkston schools social worker Jim Butzine.

"Oakland County has one of the highest (divorce) rates across the country," he says. "Why? I'm not sure. It's just a series of continuing crises."

He estimates that in the Clarkston system, some 50 percent of the children come from broken homes and that one out of every four or five students has parents who are substance abusers.

"There's a lot of that out here," he says.

Larry Sherrill, a counselor at Clarkston Junior High agrees.

"Every year there's more and more kids coming

Township seeks more I-75 improvements

By Carolyn Walker

As the state anticipates widening I-75 between Square Lake Road and M-15, the township board has chosen to submit several suggestions for improvements in Independence.

The list was made after board members listened to recommendations by Trustee William Vandermark on April 1.

Members of the board voted to send a letter to the Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) and to the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG) outlining Vandermark's proposals.

SEMCOG is assisting in the project by seeking the opinions of affected municipalities.

The board's suggestions include wider overpasses at Sashabaw Road and M-15, a pedestrian bridge at M-15, and cloverleaf ramps at Clintonville Road and Sashabaw Road.

The township anticipates sending its recommendations to the two groups by April 18.

Last week, the state announced plans to widen I-75 to three lanes in each direction from M-24 to M-15. Between Square Lake Road and M-24, the improvements may include one or two additional lanes for a total of four each way.

According to Vandermark, the improvements are scheduled because of anticipated traffic increases that will accompany technological developments in Auburn Hills and other outlying areas.

Vandermark told the board that increased traffic demands are being made on many on- and off-ramps in Independence. He cited Sashabaw Road as being an especially difficult place to exit.

He also said cloverleafs at I-75 and Clintonville Road would be an asset to residents in that corner of the township.

Currently, there are no ramps at that location.

Voting to approve the letter of suggestions were Supervisor Frank Ronk, Clerk Richard Holman, Treasurer John Lutz and trustees Vandermark, Carol Balzarini and Dale Stuart. Trustee Daniel Travis was absent.

Historic racers seek exemption

GP/Publishing Inc., producers of historic automobile races, plans to seek an exemption from Independence Township ordinances which limit the noise levels at the Waterford Hill Race Track.

According to a news release from GP/Publishing, The Meadow Brook Historic Races, jointly produced by Waterford Hills Road Racing, Inc., is scheduled to run at the track on Aug. 1-3 and will feature vintage cars.

The sponsors plan to seek a waiver from the township's 80-decibel restriction at the April 15 meeting of the township board.

The 80-decibel rule prohibits participation by most of the rarer historic and vintage race cars because advanced exhaust systems were not standard equipment on the old cars, the news release says.

Over the years, neighbors of the race track, which is off Dixie Highway, have sought relief from the noise generated by races. In response, the township has established noise-level regulations.

The Meadow Brook Races are to be held in conjunction with the Meadow Brook Concours d'Elegance at Meadow Brook Hall, scheduled this year for Aug. 3.

It is anticipated that the races will bring people from all over the nation and other countries, the release said.

The township board meeting is to begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Independence Township Hall annex, 90 N. Main, Clarkston.

New appointee

A resident of the Village of Clarkston has been appointed to the Independence Township Planning Commission.

Betty Jo Fussman, a Glenburnie Street resident, was chosen to fill the term of vacating commissioner Robert Dieball.

Fussman was recommended by Supervisor Frank Ronk, who said he was responding to a request by Trustee Daniel Travis that a village resident be on the panel.

Dieball is leaving the commission because of business obligations.

Annual event tests your health—free

Health screening tests through Project-Health-O-Rama will be available in the Clarkston area Thursday, April 17.

This is the fifth year the Clarkston Community Women's Club has overseen the testing, said Mary Jane Chaustowich, club chairperson for the project.

Free tests for anyone over age 18 include height and weight, vision, Glaucoma and blood pressure plus a health screening appraisal and counseling and referral.

They will be offered from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Church of the Resurrection, 6490 Clarkston Rd., across from the Independence Township Library.

Also available for $8 will be a blood panel of 21 tests and for $2 a take-home colon rectal cancer screening kit.

The blood panel, which could cost as much as $80 from a private physician, checks for signs of kidney disease, liver disease, cholesterol, diabetes, bone disease, gout and more.

Those who wish to take the blood tests should not eat for at least four hours beforehand, and it's best if they arrive early after fasting the night before, said Chaustowich.

Water, plain coffee and plain tea are allowed within the fasting period and participants should continue taking all prescribed medications.

"If you have not had a regular checkup or even if you've been to a doctor and not had blood work, this will identify 21 problems not detectable with an office visit or regular examination," she said.

"You can catch something before it becomes a problem, because it will show up in your blood analysis—and you can't beat the price."

If the blood tests show a possible problem, the patient will be contacted by telephone. Within two weeks, each participant will receive a complete readout of the results, she said.

Although the Church of the Resurrection is currently being remodeled, Chaustowich stressed that the site will be open for the testing.

Elderly participants will be assisted in the entry area if necessary, she said.

Project Health-O-Rama is sponsored by WXYZ-TV Channel 7, Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Michigan, and the United Health Organization, a Torch Drive/United Way agency.

The project runs through May 2 at over 100 sites in eight counties. For information on other locations, call the hotline at 559-6120 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. weekdays.

Trash alert

Spring cleanup dates set

It took very little discussion for the Independence Township Board to agree on this year's spring cleanup.

"We're getting a lot of calls," said Supervisor Frank Ronk of the annual event during which residents of the township can bring their cast-offs and rubbish to the department of public works.

This year's cleanup is to be held May 17 and 18, although the specific hours have not been set.

Money for the project of collecting and disposing of trash is to come from the general fund and it is estimated that it will cost some $25,000.

People may be asked to present driver's licenses as proof that they are township residents, Ronk said.

The department of public works is located off Flemings Lake Road.

It won't be long before Marvin Scramlin will be sweeping an empty barn. He and his brother, L.C., sold their dairy farm to the United States

Agriculture Department in a federal program designed to reduce the dairy product surplus.

Nearby dairy to close

Program moo-ooves along

By Dan Vandenhemel

The time was right for the Scramlin brothers to get out of the dairy business.

Marvin and L.C. are taking advantage of the buyout program by the United States Agriculture Department.

"There's a surplus of milk that the government buys every year," Marvin said. "The program takes a bite of out of the surplus."

The U.S. government wants to reduce the over 12 billion pounds of milk it buys each year. Five billion of that goes into government programs and military units, the rest is dried and stored in warehouses, Marvin said.

To cut down on the extra dairy products, the government wants to take over a million cows out of the business.

"This is a volunteer program," Marvin said. "We didn't have to put in a bid. We just felt this is a good opportunity to change."

Bids were submitted according to hundredweight of milk production. The government accepted all bids under $22.50 per hundredweight. The Scramlins wouldn't say exactly what their bid was except it was near the cut-off point.

They may be going out of the dairy business but not the farming business. Marvin, 40, and L.C., 36, plan to increase the crop production that they've been building the last few years.

"Most dairy farmers grow just what they need," Marvin said. "The last two years that's gone the other way for us."

The Scramlins own 200 acres on Jossman Road in Groveland Township near the Springfield Township border. They also own a 50-acre parcel elsewhere in Groveland Township.

Under the rules of the program, the Scramlins must stay out of the dairy business for five years. The 100 cows they have must be exported to Canada or Mexico or sent to the slaughterhouse.

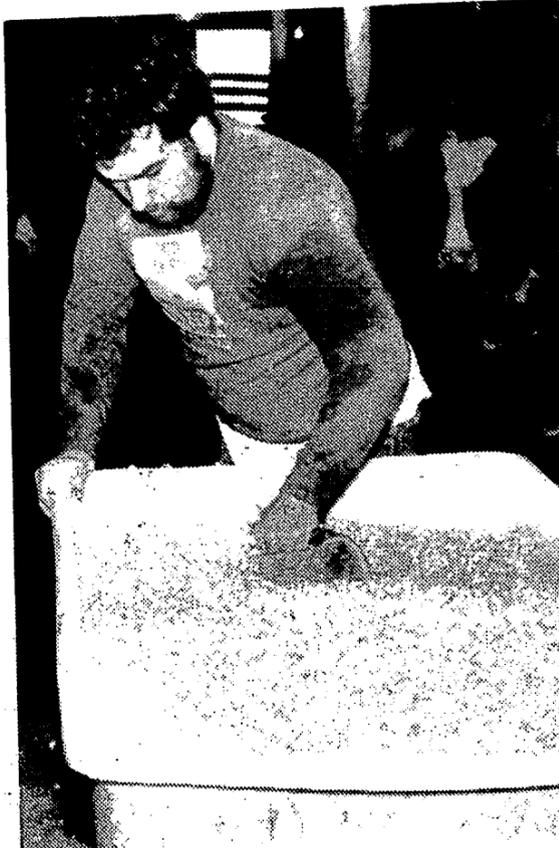

Five of the six dairy farms in Oakland County that submitted bids were bought out by the government. The Scramlins say they are the only owners of the five farms who are not near retirement age.

"The other farmers would probably be done within five years," L.C. said. "They'd sell their herd to another farmer or just sell the farm. This gives them a great opportunity to retire."

"There is a lot of pressure to keep a dairy farm going," Marvin adds. "You have to be here 365 days, night and day. We just wanted a change in life-style."

The only farm in Oakland County that wasn't accepted was the Vergin farm in Springfield Township. Lloyd Vergin has lived on the farm all of his 64 years, says his wife Helen. The program would have giving them a chance to retire.

"We were just over the cut-off," Helen said. "We're taking everything in stride. We're not really disappointed about it. But hopefully in within the next three years, we can sell it and retire."

Brian Scramlin will stay on to help his uncles as they concentrate more on raising crops than milking cows.

'Working mom'
no more

Kathy Greenfield

In a few short months, I will no longer be a working mother. Instead, I will be someone whose children got old—like their mother.

This revelation occurred when I was reading the March 31 edition of Newsweek. The magazine's lead story, "A Mother's Choice," looked at the many aspects of America's mothers who work.

On the page with charts from a poll, in tiny type, there was a note that said working mothers are defined as women who work full or part time and have children under 18.

It's not that I have any problem with the definition. In fact, I haven't felt the stresses of a working mother with young children for several years.

It's just that I have considered myself a working mother for a long time. It's another part of me I'll have to bid adieu to, officially, this year.

The other thing that's leaving is my 30s. I'm starting to laugh—for the first time—at the late Jack Benny's jokes about being 39.

In recognition of this banner year, I keep a clipping in my robe pocket that includes the names of entertainers who turn 40 this year. (I can't believe I'm doing that.)

In case you're curious, the getting-older-but-better list includes Cher, Liza Minnelli, Sylvester Stallone, Sally Field, Dolly Parton, Patty Duke and Candice Bergen.

So far, only one slightly-traumatic thing happened this year that has to do with age.

I was standing in an elementary school classroom waiting for the teacher to return when a voice rose up from the giggles in the back row: "You look just like Bobby's mother, but you're older."

Someone told me I should have asked the child how he knew.

Never!

Jim's Jottings

This week I want to talk to you about dogs and ponies, or more specifically, greyhounds and Arabians.

Our trip to the dog track in Phoenix was our first, and probably our last. I really don't like betting, particularly when losing. And, I didn't see any winners among the several thousand in attendance.

The dog track crowd was something less than Fifth Avenue reputation. Skid row, maybe, except for the number of young people... like in their 20s. Where did they (why do they) get their risk money?

I struck up a conversation with a "local," trying to learn something about dogs that chase mechanical rabbits for 550 yards, only to be cut off without a taste.

My unshaven acquaintance said greyhounds break a lot of toes on the track, and some break legs when landing wrong on a footprint from a dog ahead. That's one good reason for a dog to always be in the lead.

Out of 40 races I played only two dogs that were smart enough to know that being out front saves toes and legs.

The most interesting part of dog racing is the parade to the post. That's when uniformed dog handlers walk the dogs in front of the stands three times before locking them in a little house at the starting line.

When the parade starts there's 8 minutes left to make the wrong bet. The sole purpose of the parade is to stall for money making time. And, to give betters a chance to see dogs water down the posts... betters, then bet that dog because he's lighter and anxious.

That theory failed eight times, which is probably the usual ratio; house wins 4, better one.

Phoenix and Scottsdale, Arizona must be the Arabian raising/selling capital of the world. And it's all done under the most elegant surroundings.

There's one show-auction establishment on Bell Road that is right out of ancient Rome or Cairo. Never did know anything about architecture.

This layout is about a half mile long with many acres for spectator parking, and several more acres for some of the most elegant horse trailers ever seen. I mean spangled with silver and racing stripes.

This time of year the foals are hanging onto mother and they are displayed on lawns befitting the White House. The entrances are white arches; there are ornate lanterns, and the entrance posts have white horse heads mounted on top.

Behind this impressive entrance is a show area with glorious flowers, bleachers and numerous barns.

Oxford's Jerry and Gloria Leannais, who own saddlery shops in Rochester and Birmingham, told us of Arabians selling for $2 million each at these auctions. Obviously there is a reason for impressive surroundings.

It reminds me of the old saying, 'There's lots of money in horses. I put it there.' But, it doesn't cost anything to drive by, and I recommend that.

Back into life

It's easy to picture Harold Brinley on the receiving end of a fishing pole.

It's easy because Harold has the look of a fisherman.

He has a bald spot at the center of his head that is just right for browning in the sun.

The bald spot is surrounded by a sparse thatch of gray-colored, straw-like hair—the kind that grows on aging outdoorsmen. The remaining hair then shoots out haphazardly above a slightly wrinkled, bearded face.

And set into that face are two filmy blue eyes. Eyes that are used to observing, watching.

Harold has the patience of a fisherman.

He learned patience because his life-style demanded it.

Harold had no choice.

He spent 40-some years waiting. Waiting like a fisherman who hopes for a bite, maybe even prays for a bite, but doesn't necessarily expect to get one.

Harold was placed in the Lapeer State Home, a mental institution, when he was approximately 7 years old.

Now 64, he spent the majority of his life trapped in a partially paralyzed body. Trapped behind walls. Trapped in a system that didn't have a place for a crippled little boy.

Harold got out of that trap when the system began to change and he was moved as an adult to a group home.

Last week, I asked Harold if he had ever been fishing.

He threw his head back into his wheelchair and laughed silently. Then he rubbed his eyes with his hands.

"Once," he said. "I didn't have any luck."

That is, Harold didn't catch any fish. The people who were with him were afraid to put the worms on the hooks, he said.

If the notion struck him, Harold could probably tell those same people some hard truths about real fear.

He could tell them what it's like to be a child and be abandoned by family and friends. He could tell them what it's like to be defenseless against brutality.

He could tell them what it's like to be a victim. Forgotten.

Harold is really quite a remarkable man.

In spite of all the lost years, the lost dreams, he doesn't seem angry and full of resentment. He doesn't dwell on the injustices in his life. He's calm and has an enviable composure.

I can envision Harold on the one day he went fishing. His long fingers wrapped tightly around his pole. His eyes watching the bobber intently, waiting for it to go under.

I imagine that if Harold would have caught a fish, he would have reeled it in eagerly.

He would have watched with youthful enthusiasm as the fish lurched out of the water, convulsing on his line. He would have pulled it to him and felt it wriggling cold and slimy against his skin.

Then maybe he would have had second thoughts about keeping that fish.

Maybe as he watched it writhing, struggling for life in his hands, he would have remembered what it felt like to want mercy.

My guess is Harold would have mustered all his strength to throw that fish back into the water. Back into life.

Similarly and fortunately, Harold got a second chance when the system began to exercise compassion for the disabled.

Now living at a place he can call home, he recently met a brother he had never known.

As a senior citizen in the autumn of his years, Harold can finally look forward to family and experiences like those most of us have long taken for granted.

Thank God he was thrown back into life.

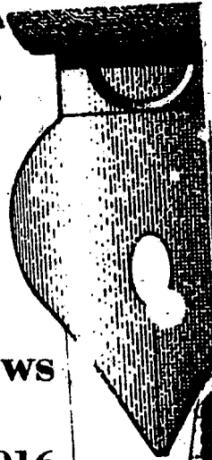

One wonders how many Harolds are still waiting.

'If it Fitz . . .'

POSSLQ and married too

Jim Fitzgerald

She gave me the wristwatch before we were married. I wore it every day until recently when, for the first time in 32 years, it quit working.

The marriage is still working. We are still POSSLQ. The first 30 years, I didn't know we were POSSLQ, but it turns out that's what we are.

I first learned about POSSLQ from a newspaper interview with a 32-year-old woman who lives with a man whose job makes him one of Detroit's more publicized personalities.

They aren't married. "I'm happy with our POSSLQ status," she said.

She is a psychologist, so she has to know what she's talking about in the realm of human behavior. Except, for me, she wasn't talking, she was being quoted in the newspaper. There was no way to tell if she spelled out POSSLQ or pronounced it as a word, such as "pos-slyque."

P, O, S, S, L and Q are the first letters of six words, the same as NLRB or NOW are the first letters of words. When saying NLRB, people always spell it out, they don't say "nalarb." But for NOW, they say "now," which makes NOW an acronym.

I don't know which methodology is used for POSSLQ, but I hope it is said as one word. I like posslyque. I think it could become such a well-known acronym that the capital letters will be dropped forever, as with snafu and radar.

P, O, S, S, L and Q stand for "People of the Opposite Sex Sharing Living quarters." It is apparently the ultimate answer to that oft-asked question: "How do I introduce my live-in companion?"

"I'd like you to meet my posslyque."

Of course, POSSLQ doesn't work for relationships. That would have to be PSSSLQ, or: "I'd like you to meet my psslyque." That doesn't have a certain ring to it.

However, POSSLQ does work for couples who, although married, are still allowed to be people of the opposite sex sharing living quarters.

I like introducing my wife as my posslyque. It's playboyish. It says that, despite his gray hair, the old devil may be living with her because he loves her, not because they're legally bound and he can't afford alimony.

The exact status of a POSSLQ relationship doesn't have to be explained to strangers met at large cocktail parties. Let them figure it out for themselves. When they see my posslyque whisper into my ear, they don't have to know she is reciting an exact count of my cocktails.

As mentioned, there was no such thing as a posslyque when my wife gave me the watch that didn't stop working for 32 years. The watch that timed her labor contractions and got us to the church on time for our daughters' weddings and our grandchildren's baptisms. It is something to think about these days when I hike up my left sleeve to get the time from a bare wrist.

In 1955, if we'd shared living quarters without getting married, our parents would have had heart attacks. As the local newspaper editor, I would have been a public disgrace. My posslyque would have quit the church choir rather than face the cold stares.

That was 30 years ago. Today an unmarried woman can declare in the newspaper that she's happy about her POSSLQ relationship with one of the best-known men in town and no one blinks. That's progress in the age of consenting adults, and I have no objections.

But I'm extremely happy that, after all these years, I need a new watch, not a new marriage.

It may not be ring-a-ding-ding devilish, but there's something to be said for sharing living quarters with your legally wedded spouse and I guess I just said it.

Candidates file for board seats

Three candidates for Clarkston board of education seats have filed petitions to appear on the June 9 school election ballot.

Running unopposed for the four-year term will be incumbent Mary Jane Chaustowich, 11060 Clark Rd., Springfield Township.

Two candidates will vie for the two years remaining in the unexpired term of board member David Kithil, who resigned because of a job transfer.

They are Bruce W. Harlton, 61 S. Holcomb, Clarkston, and incumbent John H. Needham, 6116 Middle Lake, Clarkston. Following Kithil's resignation, Needham was appointed by the school board to fill the seat until the election.

"These three candidates are all verified and will be on the ballot" unless someone withdraws from the race during the three-day period following the Monday, April 7, deadline for filing the petitions, said William Jackson, Clarkston school district business manager.

Also on the June 9 ballot will be a 5-mill tax renewal request for five years for the Clarkston school district and candidates for the Oakland County Community College Board of Trustees.

Candidates for the OCC board have until April 22 at 4 p.m. to file petitions, which are available at the George A. Bee Administration Center, 2480 Opdyke, Bloomfield Hills.

Birthday triathlon canceled

A three-day softball tournament in honor of the Independence Township sesquicentennial is scheduled for May.

But a proposed sesquicentennial triathlon that sponsors had envisioned for August has been dropped, according to Rita Burdick of the Independence Township Sesquicentennial Committee.

The decision to abandon the triathlon was made because the cost was prohibitive and hundreds of volunteers would have been needed to oversee the athletes, said Burdick.

The Sesquicentennial Softball Tourney is planned May 16, 17 and 18, according to a spokesperson for the Independence Township Parks and Recreation Department. It will be held at Clintonwood Park off Clarkston Road.

The double-elimination tournament is geared at Class B and C men's and women's teams and there is a $75 sponsor's charge.

To register for the tournament or ask questions, phone the parks and recreation department at 625-8223 or stop by the office in Independence Township Hall, 90 N. Main, Clarkston.

Sesquicentennial picnic preview

Grab those hot dogs and mustard jars! Independence Township is going to picnic in style.

A good old-fashioned picnic is scheduled on June 8 for any picnickers out there who want to pay tribute to the township's sesquicentennial.

The picnic is to feature fireworks and possibly some old-time events, such as wheelbarrow racing, said Rita Burdick, a member of the sesquicentennial committee.

The picnic is planned at the Independence Oaks

County Park located off Sashabaw Road. The park is celebrating its 10th anniversary.

In addition to the picnic, the township plans to celebrate its 150th anniversary with a special, "gigantic" Labor Day Parade called "Salute to Independence," Burdick said.

Other events to commemorate the birthday of the township are being planned by the committee but have not been finalized.

Kids facing crises in Clarkston

from single-parent homes," he says. "Now the assumption is almost, 'Do you live with your father or do you live with your mother?'"

Sashabaw Junior High School counselor Mari Ann Pace echoes Sherrill's contentions, but takes them one step further.

"I've noticed a lot of physical abuse in this district," she says. "I've noticed abuse that was really surprising to me."

She also contends that some parents who formed their value systems during the revolutionary '60s are creating problems for their children.

"From just the kids I've talked to, I've had more kids upset over their parents doing pot and drinking than the kids (admitting to it) themselves," she says.

Jim Evans of the Consortium for Human Development concurs.

"It seems that more and more people are seeking treatment for those problems," he says, mentioning repercussions from the post-60s "free love" period such as AIDS, herpes and broken homes.

"We have now discovered that there are some restraints built into the system itself," Evans says.

Society is now facing what he calls "the eternal vigil"—people coping with the ramifications of their actions for which there are no cures.

While the counselors agree that divorce and substance abuse are leading causes of children's depression, they cite other factors.

Homes with two working parents, step-families, dating parents and a lack of entertainment facilities in the community are also contributing to problems, they say.

"A lot of kids go home in the afternoon by themselves," says Sherrill. "They're home with the television. . . . It's much harder to give that quality time to the children."

More and more parents are electing to work the night shift, according to Butzine, causing conflicts where the father in the home cannot adjust to the mother's schedule.

In some instances, the mother carries a double load of household and employment duties.

"In many of those families, it's not seen as a joint responsibility anymore," Butzine says. "Many times the home is perceived as being bad. If the kid feels it is, that's a real problem."

Pace disagrees. "I don't hear about the problem, 'I come home and no one's there,'" she says. "I hear that they're bored and there's nothing to do."

Dating parents or parents who have remarried and are devoting their hours to a new spouse are perceived as problems by their children, Pace adds.

"Now my parents don't have enough time for me" is a common complaint, she says.

According to Stan Garwood, a family counselor in private practice on M-15, children in these situations protect themselves by retreating.

"They feel they can't talk to either parent," he says. "Somebody has to reach out."

According to the counselors, not all kids or families are touched by trauma. Many children are doing well, they emphasize.

For those facing problems, the community and schools are trying to help in several ways.

"So many people really want the same thing," says Pace. "I think it's good to say there's a problem. Then we can do more to help."

But help's available

A variety of programs and counselors are available in Independence Township for families and students who find themselves in crisis situations in the home.

Some are geared at specific problems, such as substance abuse, or eating disorders and others are for people seeking support for varying problems.

The organizations available include:

•SEARCH at Clarkston High School. SEARCH conducts a weekly program for students who have been identified as having substance abuse problems, according to Katie MacKay who coordinates the program with Linc Smith. The group meets for 10 weeks.

SEARCH also conducts a parents' group every other week in the evening for parents who wish to discuss their children's problems.

A concerned persons group is also conducted by SEARCH, McKay said. It is aimed at providing help to people who are concerned about a sibling, friend or parent who may be a substance abuser.

Information about SEARCH can be obtained by calling the high school, 625-0900.

•Both Clarkston Junior High and Sashabaw Junior High schools, as well as the high school, offer counselors for students who have problems in the home or with their own substance abuse.

Next year, the junior highs plan to offer Skills for Adolescence classes designed to help eighth-graders cope with any problems associated with their age group.

•Divorce mediation is available to area residents who find themselves on the verge of, or going through, divorces. A divorce mediator helps divorcing parents make the difficult decisions that come with a breakup. For more information, call Flora Newblatt at 625-5778.

•An abuse program for ages kindergarten through third grade is sponsored out of Pine Knob Elementary School and is called BABES. BABES involves a six-phase puppet presentation by trained teachers and instructs children about substance abuse, alcoholism and child abuse, says teacher Lucille Richley. Richley can be reached at 625-1583 for further information.

•The Clarkston Ambulatory Care Center sponsors a series of classes and support groups for families dealing with anorexia or other eating disorders, stop smoking clinics and stress management.

They are also planning a program for developing positive self-esteem in children to be held May 1.

For information about these classes, call 625-CARE.

•The Clarkston SPICE program, a pre-school program for children with special needs, provides a weekly support group for parents dealing with problems related to their children's needs or home situations. For information, contact Sharon Steinhelper at 674-1344.

•The Consortium for Human Development provides counseling for low-income families. They can be reached at 625-9600.

•Clinical Resources Inc. offers family and individual counseling in its offices at 5885 M-15. For information, call 625-8333.

•Oakland Family Services, a private, non-profit organization which has an office on Dixie Highway, also provides a myriad of services to families in trouble.

Among their offerings are counseling for young and old, protective services and prevention for abused children, support groups for young mothers, parent education groups and substance abuse services. For further information, call 623-6988.

Here are the facts on moped, minibike laws

Editor's note: Citing the springtime deluge of complaints regarding the misuse of mopeds and minibikes, the Oakland County Probate Court submitted the following news release to "help in educating the public about an escalating community problem."

Spring is here and out of suburban garages everywhere will come all the patiently waiting motorcycles, mopeds and minibikes.

This is the time when many kids will begin a serious campaign to convince their parents that they "need" such a vehicle in order to really enjoy their summer vacation.

While there is no doubt that these vehicles can provide a lot of healthy outdoor recreation for kids, there are also laws that govern their use to ensure they are ridden safely and do not become a nuisance to other community members.

In many areas, the illegal operation of these vehicles has become a nuisance and a danger, as local police and the Oakland County Probate Court can attest to.

Last year, the Probate Court-Juvenile Traffic Division heard 1,224 complaints regarding misuse of mopeds and minibikes.

Wayne Callihan, juvenile court traffic referee, says, "Most parents who accompany their kids to juvenile traffic court on a moped violation seem to be unaware that there are restrictions governing the use of these vehicles."

The following laws are the ones most violated in the operation of these vehicles:

1. Youngsters under 15 years of age cannot ride motorcycles, mopeds or minibikes on public roadways or areas open to the public.

2. If a youngster is 15 years old, he can obtain a moped license through the Secretary of State which will allow operation on public roadways as long as traffic laws are observed.

3. Motorcycles, mopeds or minibikes may not be ridden on sidewalks or bike paths.

4. Passengers may not be carried on a moped—even if extra seating space is provided.

5. Minibikes and go-carts are not considered motorcycles or mopeds. They cannot be licensed and are not permitted on public roads.

Because of the increasing number of serious accidents, police have begun to impound illegally operated vehicles and, in some cases, are issuing citations to parents for allowing youths to ride illegally.

Youths under 16 do not always realize moped violations can hurt their future driving records.

The court sometimes sends a record of the violation to Lansing so the youngster will have two points on his license upon issuance.

It is also possible a moped violation would result in the youth being restricted from obtaining his driver's license until age 17.

The laws governing the operation of mopeds, minibikes and motorcycles are available in brochures obtainable at any Secretary of State's office or the Oakland County Probate Court.

Firefighters get new tool

New Hurst hydraulic cutting shears are on order for the Independence Township Fire Department.

The mechanical jaw-like shears are used for removing people trapped in vehicles after accidents.

The Independence Township Board voted 6-0 to authorize the purchase of the shears and a hydraulic dump valve for running them after a request by fire Chief Dale Bailey.

The estimated cost of the tools is $2,180, Bailey said, and includes a $300 rebate from Hale Fire Company, the current owners of Hurst Performance.

According to Bailey, the old cutters are being recalled because they have been deemed unsafe. Hurst is not replacing the recalled items, he added.

"They will not build the cutters like this again," Bailey said of the old pair, which are approximately 11 years old.

According to a memo Bailey sent to the board, if any nicks were made in the cutting edges, the old shears could shatter during use.

Bailey said he has ordered the new tools but does not know when they will arrive. The new shears are to be stored at the fire station on Church Street.

A second pair of shears is owned by the township and is currently maintained at the fire station on Sashabaw Road.

Dave and Patty Simko form the only brother-sister racing family on the major stock car level. They grew up around the race tracks of the Detroit area while their father, Al, raced.

The siblings are members of the Automobile Race Club of America (ARCA).

Siblings hitting stride on race track

By Dan Vandenhemel

The race track rivalry between Dave and Patty Simko isn't fierce, just funny.

They are the first brother-sister tandem racing stock cars through the Automobile Race Club of America (ARCA).

"He's just another driver," Patty said.

"It's no big deal," Dave said. "As long as she doesn't beat me."

There aren't many women race car drivers and Patty has been behind the wheel for five years. Dave's been a driver for 11 years.

The two manage their father's business, Mound Steel in Auburn Heights. The racing interest began when their dad, Al, raced around the Detroit area.

With Mound Steel and the Tom Door Company of Detroit sponsoring the drivers, they're able to be competitive in some major events. Some of their trips have taken the pair to Atlanta, Daytona and Alabama.

Last year, Dave, 31, was Rookie of the Year for ARCA. Though he never won a race, he finished second twice, third twice and sixth six times.

Patty, 26, just moved up to ARCA this year and is hoping to follow her brother as the top rookie in the club.

"Three years ago, I was in a local powder puff division and was the Rookie of the Year," the Waterford Township resident said. "I moved up to the men's division and was the Rookie of the Year in 1984."

"Right now racing is a hobby," Patty said. "I'd like to do it as a profession."

"It's every driver's dream to race professionally," Dave said.

The time involved in competing on a major race level makes it hard, especially for Dave. He lives on M-15, Independence Township, with his wife, Sherri and children Chris, Kelli, Michael and Lindsay.

"We go to 25 or 30 shows a year," Dave said.

"For a Saturday race, we leave on Tuesday." There is a lot more to being a race car driver than just sitting behind the wheel and driving fast.

Patty said after working at Mound Steel, they start working on the cars and usually work all day Saturday, too.

The cars are so well built, they can bounce off a wall at 190 mph and have the drivers walk away from the wreck.

"It's hard physically," Patty said. "You have to be pretty strong."

"You need the arms to hold up to the constant turning," Dave said. "Your arms have to be strong."

New soccer director takes helm

There's a simple philosophy that Andy Caldwell plans to follow as soccer director for Independence Township Parks and Recreation—get everyone involved.

In February, Caldwell started organizing the program that included over 350 players last year.

Andy Caldwell takes over as soccer director for Independence Township Parks and Recreation.

"There's a lot of interest in the community," said the 23-year-old Lake Orion resident. "I think the recreation program would be better if the parents get involved. That way they can get to know the game and find out how much fun it is."

Caldwell was the captain of his soccer team at Spring Arbor College for two years. His high school playing days were spent at Flint Christian High School.

"There's a lot of interest in the community."

"We didn't have a football team, so I had to do something," Caldwell said.

His enthusiasm for the game has grown tenfold. Before attending college, Caldwell spent a month in Italy doing little more than playing soccer.

"They had some real high quality teams over there," he said.

Caldwell hopes to continue building a quality program in Independence Township. One way of doing that is by keeping people active.

"We've got spring and fall seasons. In between that runs into conflict with the baseball season," said.

"Sometime in August, when the baseball season is over, I'd like to do a lot of clinics and some with the parents, too. That way they can kick the ball and see why the kids like it."

Doctor finds a new challenge in racing

By Cami Buchholz

In the shed behind Dr. Bob Aranosian's Clarkston area home, a Pontiac Fiero is being overhauled.

The sports car is getting ready for another race on the Pro Rally race circuit.

Aranosian is entering his fourth season as a rally driver.

Pro Rallies are not your typical car races. They cover between 250 and 750 miles on closed sections of public roads throughout the country.

There are a driver and a co-driver, referred to as a navigator, and the race is against the clock, not other drivers.

The race involves scheduled pit maintenance stops and the course is a combination of rock and rut roads and highways, which are navigated by use of a map to travel an assigned route.

"Racing is very much of a challenge," Aranosian said. "Medicine is a challenge and my livelihood, but each race is something foreign to me, and it's a whole new challenge."

In May, Aranosian will try something new. He is entering the Cannonball Run "One Lap of America." The race covers 8,250 miles in eight days.

"I'm driving an ambulance in the race, a new Fleet ambulance," he said. "It's a good vehicle. It's durable, fast and handles well."

His sponsors for the race are Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital, Fleet and Versacom Inc.

His patients may or may not be aware of his racing ties; he says he rarely discusses the challenges and stamina associated with off road racing.

"It's fun, it's different. You have to learn how to control your car. Keep it between the ditches," he said.

Of the 14 races he's entered, Aranosian crossed the finish line six times and he's never won a race. The important factor, he said, is the "... satisfaction of competing in a challenging sport and being able to compete is the fun of it."

The racing doctor will be competing in Michigan. In July, he's entered in a Battle Creek race and in November, it's the grueling 750-mile Press On Regardless in the upper peninsula.

Dr. Robert Aranosian and his overhauled Pontiac Fiero are ready for this year's Pro Rally off road races. In May, he's driving an ambulance in the One Lap of America race.

A year of experience helps soccer team

By Dan Vandenhemel
 There's more mileage being piled up by the girls' soccer team at Clarkston High School than ever before.
 Coach Hana Olsen is hoping the extra road work will help in the long run.

 The 18-member team is putting in between three and five miles of running a day before they get to touch a soccer ball.
 "We were pooped at the end of the season,"

Olsen said. "I think we can have success through conditioning. We're looking for a lot more endurance, a lot more team play."

This is the second year of the program at the high school. Olsen has 11 players returning from last year's squad.

With a year's experience under their belts, Olsen said she can concentrate on different parts of the game.

"I think the girls did a pretty good job their first year, especially that some of the girls had never played soccer before," Olsen said. "Last year it was just the basics."

Injuries to two of the 11 returning players might slow the Wolves' progress but Olsen is expecting them back quickly.

Suzy Learmont hurt her knee while skiing this winter and is expected back shortly after the Wolves' first game on April 14 against Lake Orion. Laurie Brandt twisted her ankle while running prior to a practice and should be back around the same time.

Other returning players are Sue Kithil, Joann Beck, Ruth Webb, Sandy Bentley, Kim Bender, Cindy Merritt, Nan Stingley, Maggie Sans and Nancy Ward.

"I can see a lot of improvement in the girls that played last year," Olsen said. "The new girls are getting on the ball. We've got a lot of enthusiasm. We need that positive attitude."

Up My Alley

Warm and sunny

Dan Vandenhemel

My season is starting—the outdoor season. The sun is shining, the temperature is climbing and the heavy coats are being tossed aside. I love the summer months.

Summer means beaches, bicycle rides, walks, more beaches, camping, more bike rides.

This will be the first summer in quite some time when I'll be able to enjoy the weather.

Last year, in a heavy push to graduate from college, I overloaded my schedule.

With full-time school and working full time, I barely had time to drive everywhere I had to be.

Eating in the car, running here, there. I was ready to go crazy. I know, it would be a short trip.

This year will be different.

No more worries about a term paper, no more worries about final exams.

But to tell you the truth, I miss college—just a little.

I was never the stereotypical college student. I didn't live on campus, take part in any campus activity or even attend one—not one dorm party.

I'm not complaining about what I missed while I was there. I'm talking about what I'm missing not being there. There were the friends on the newspaper staff, the student center, just the people in general.

It was easier graduating from college than it was from high school.

At college, you were lucky to see the same people semester after semester. Students were different ages and had different class standings. They came and went very often.

In high school, you graduated with the hundreds of other people you started high school with.

After the people are gone, after the hustle and bustle of hectic days, all that is left is spare time. Some of that time can be the longest ever spent.

Warm temperatures and sunny days can only help.

Hectic start

By Dan Vandenhemel

The first couple of meetings for new Michigan Recreation and Park Association president Tim Doyle were a little hectic.

Doyle, the Independence Township Parks and Recreation director, was installed at the helm at the February meeting.

"At the first board meeting, Channel 7 news was there because we were discussing the Dearborn Park situation," Doyle said. "I'm not used to press conferences. We went on record opposing the boycott of Dearborn businesses."

"Then the March meeting was at Michigan State University and there was a big turnout because it was a general membership meeting."

Since being sworn in as president, Doyle has traveled to Washington, D.C., to address the Legislature concerning the parks and recreation departments and he's been selected to chair the study on health and fitness.

"In March, I went to Colorado Springs to find out more about the State Games," Doyle said.

The State Games are fashioned after the International Olympic Games and are held within the state. So far 18 states hold such events with the total going to 30 by the end of the year.

Doyle said he's drafting a proposal to begin the State Games here in Michigan.

"I knew there was a lot of involvement to being president," Doyle said. "But all this makes life a little more exciting."

Self-defense is the theme of a workshop scheduled at the Independence Township Senior Citizen Center on Wednesday, April 23.

The workshop for all ages is to begin at 8 a.m. with a breakfast. Cost for the breakfast and workshop is $5; and the workshop alone $3.

Jaye Spiro will lead the class in the senior center carriage house.

The holder of a black belt in Ai Mute Shotokan Karate, Spiro is the founder and director of Meijishi Karate Dojo, the Lioness School of Self-Defense. Her booklet "Women's Self-Defense: 22 Commonly Asked Questions" is in its third printing.

Breakfast will be served at the senior center before the workshop and will include smokey links, hash browns, eggs, pancakes and coffee.

The workshop is open to all interested parties of all ages. Reservations must be made by Friday, April 18. For details, call the center at 625-8231 weekdays between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m.

George and Harold, brothers again

Last July, Harold Brinley was reunited with his half-brother George, whom he had never met when mutual friends put them in contact.

The brothers are attempting to make up for lost time and establish a closeness that they were deprived of in their youth.

What follows is their story, a story of hope.

It is the second in a two-part series stemming from life at Groveland II.

By Carolyn Walker

Consider the things that fathers and sons and brothers do: Arm-wrestling skirmishes at kitchen tables; fishing trips with cane poles, bobbers and worms; arguments where they make up with hugs and affection.

Harold Brinley missed out on all of those experiences and more.

For reasons that are shrouded in mystery and confusion, Harold Brinley's father chose to confine him to the Lapeer State Home, a mental institution, when he was approximately seven years of age.

"They just put me in there and said that was where I was going to live," Harold says, recalling the day his father, Porter, dropped him off. "I don't know if it was because he couldn't take care of me or what. I was too young to know what was going on."

For 40-odd years Harold, who is a paraplegic, lived his life among strangers, where he says beatings were more common than hugs and where walls and hallways formed an entire world.

Now 64, he celebrated his first conventional birthday with cake and presents and family last February.

The host of the party was his brother, George, whom he had never known.

The two were reunited last July, after 45 years of separation, by friends and a staff member of the Groveland II group home in Springfield Township where Harold now lives.

"I felt kind of remorseful that it took this long to meet each other. What do you say to somebody you've been related to all your life and never knew?"

—George Brinley

Those responsible saw the name George Brinley on the sign of the Sterling Heights church where George is a pastor. Following a hunch, they made the connection.

Harold and George are now trying to make up for the lost years. But it is not easy.

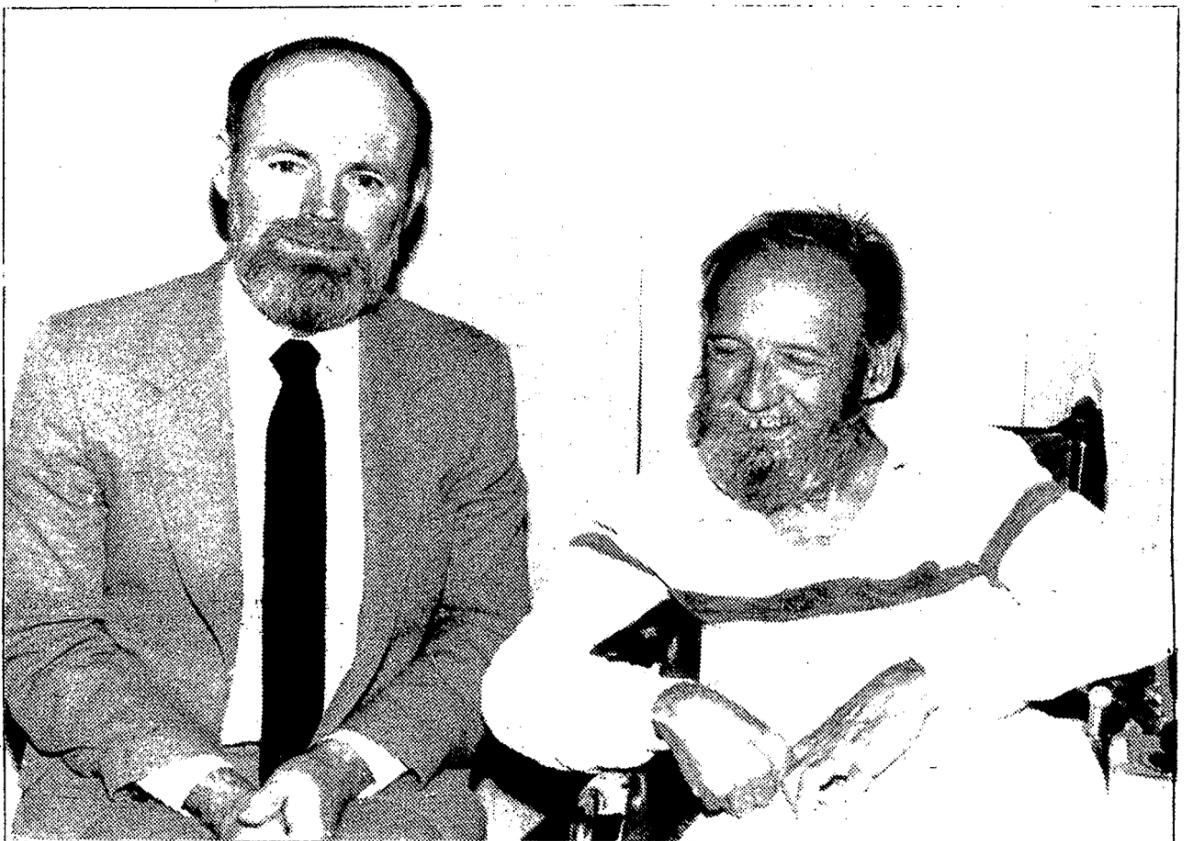

"It's really a hard thing to discover this person who is my brother," George says.

George recalls that he knew he had a brother by the time he was about 14. He had heard mention of Harold between his parents at home.

"My mom and dad told me I had a brother in a state institution," George says, adding that he assumed Harold was retarded. "I didn't know whether he was alive or dead.

"Subsequently, I found out I was wrong," he says, looking at Harold proudly. "The guy is really sharp."

In trying to acquaint themselves with one another, the brothers have discussed the events that

George and Harold Brinley have discovered that they share some family traits such as beards and touchy stomachs, says George who poses here with Harold. The two recently met each other for the first time. They meet regularly and attempt to learn and share their family history.

led to their separation.

Harold's natural mother died when he was about five years old, leaving two other children, who are now deceased as well. He never knew them.

Porter, his father, subsequently remarried and fathered George and another daughter.

Over the years, Harold was told he became a paraplegic because he had been dropped as an infant and had his back broken.

But George was told Harold had spina bifida, a birth defect in which portions of the spine are not closed properly.

Regardless of the cause, operations did not work and Harold was left without the use of his legs.

During his years of institutionalization, Harold saw his parents only once. "I even remember the year," he says, recalling it as if it were yesterday. "1945."

At Christmas time, his stepmother would remember him with a present through the mail.

"In those days, they didn't have a lot of compassion or a lot of understanding how to treat these children," interjects George trying to explain the type of man his father was before his death when George was 17.

He was a good family man, who enjoyed fishing and gardening, and was a good disciplinarian, George says.

He surmises that his father may have placed Harold in Lapeer because he was following the advice of professionals. His father did not strike him as a neglectful parent, he says.

While at the Lapeer home, Harold was housed with other male youths and attended three years of school, he says.

"They were pretty mean, too, some of them.

They were really rough," he says. "I used to stick up for some of the other residents. I used to watch them get beat up. I used to turn them in (violent residents and staff members). I ended up getting black eyes.

"I had lots of friends. But then, I had lots of enemies too. I wouldn't let them get away with beating the people."

Harold is calm and does not seem bitter as he reflects on his years at Lapeer. "You always remember it, even after so many years," he says.

With the worst times behind them, Harold and George plan to expand their relationship and form a loving, brotherly bond.

Harold is all smiles as he expresses his gratitude at finding a loving brother. "I felt pretty good (about the meeting)," he says. "He has been the only relative that's been out to see me."

George is equally enthusiastic, though he expresses some regrets.

"I think one of the things I felt was fear and trepidation," he says of their first introduction. "(I was) disappointed that I was the first family member that had seen Harold over his 63 years of life.

"I felt kind of remorseful that it took this long to meet each other. What do you say to somebody you've been related to all your life and never knew?"

"... We can never make up the lost time," George adds, casting his eyes to the ground in consideration of the empty years and emotional scars. "I'm hoping we can pick up a relationship that never was and make it something that is."

Harold looks to his brother as he says these things. With a fondness that literally shines from his eyes, Harold dares to hope out loud: "I would like that too."

Donations wanted

Donations of cash or gift items are wanted for the second annual after-prom breakfast at the Clarkston Big Boy.

The donations will be used as door prizes for the Clarkston High School prom-goers who attend the party.

The prom is planned May 23 in Warren and students who attend will be able to purchase tickets for the midnight to 2:30 a.m. breakfast to follow at the eatery in their home town.

The owners of the Clarkston Big Boy have agreed to close their doors to the public for the private party for the second year in a row, said Karel Howse, and tickets are expected to be about $5 a couple.

Howse and Mary Beth Huttenlocher are co-chairpersons of the prom party sponsored by a committee of the Clarkston Area Chemical People, an organization devoted to the prevention of substance abuse among the community's young people.

Members of the CHS student council will also be soliciting door prize donations from local merchants.

To make a donation or volunteer to help, call Howse at 625-7279 or Huttenlocher at 625-1627.

Star talk planned for parents, kids

If the night is clear, parents and children who attend an astronomy presentation will be able to view the skies through telescopes.

The program on Wednesday, April 16, at 7:30 p.m. in the Bailey Lake Elementary School multipurpose room is open to the public. Admission is free.

Featured astronomers, Lawrence Sabbath and Don Rosenfield, will guide the audience in an exploration of space using a slide presentation and the telescope viewings, weather permitting.

They will also discuss Halley's comet and problems involved in viewing it this spring.

Sabbath is participating in an astronomy program for children at Oakland University, Rochester, this summer. He has given numerous workshops for teachers and astronomy presentations since 1968. In addition, he is an instructor at Wayne State University, Detroit, in the College of Lifelong Learning.

Rosenfield has taught astronomy at Oakland University and is presently writing a book on astronomy for children.

The program is sponsored by the Parents of Academically Talented Students organization in recognition of Gifted Child Week as declared by Gov. James Blanchard from April 17-May 3.

London, England, is a long way from Clarkston, but Karen Barna is willing to make the trip.

The senior at Clarkston High School will be attending Harlaxton University, just north of London, next fall. The school is part of the University of Evansville, Ind.

Her decision to attend the school was finalized when the brochure for the British school came in the mail.

"Just look at that place," the 18-year-old Barna said. "I'm going to school in a Gothic manor. I can't wait to get over there."

Besides her studies that will lead to a major in communications, Barna is looking forward to modeling all over Europe.

She started working with John Casablanca's Modeling Agency in Troy a month ago. The agency has offices in Europe that Barna can work through.

"There is a lot of things I have to learn yet," said Barna, a Clarkston Road, Independence Township, resident. "Things like makeup, clothes. I've always wanted to be a model; now I have chance."

Barna, 5-foot-6 and 117 pounds, said she doesn't look like the typical model and that creates a little trouble.

"I've got about four more pounds to lose," she said. "But I'm not pencil-thin like most of the models. They can wear any style of clothes. I have to be finicky about what I wear."

The time spent across the Atlantic is to be well-enjoyed. Barna said if she can find her nitch, she may not come back.

"I like changes, that's why I'm going," she said. "I know if I return, I'll appreciate America that much more. I hope I come back with a thick accent."

Karen Barna is on her way to college in England. She hopes to do some modeling along the way.

Dance debut

Athletic Boosters sponsor event for both junior highs

For the first time ever, all students from Clarkston and Sashabaw junior high schools can attend a dance together.

Spring Break is planned Friday, April 11, in the gymnasium at Clarkston High School from 7 to 10 p.m.

Tickets, which must be purchased in advance, will be sold Thursday and Friday at the junior high schools.

The sock hop is being sponsored by the Clarkston Athletic Boosters. Its purpose goes beyond that of a fund raiser.

"It was an idea to get the junior high school kids together, all the kids, and a way for us to do something for the community," said club member Karel Howse. "We had the blessings from both the principals and thought we'd give it a try."

If everything goes well, the booster club hopes to make the dance an annual event, she said.

Explore NWOVEC

An Awareness Session for all 10th- and 11th-graders and their parents is planned Wednesday, April 16, at the Northwest Oakland Vocational Education Center.

The session's purpose is to make students of Waterford, Clarkston, Brandon, Holly and Our Lady of the Lakes schools aware of the 17 vocational-technical programs offered at the center.

Among the benefits of NWOVEC programs are entry-level job skills and advanced college placement.

The session is to be held from 6 to 9 p.m. at NWOVEC, 8211 Big Lake Rd. (I-75 and Dixie Highway), Springfield Township.

Nine principals later . . .

by Barbara Glover

Pat Johnson, kindergarten teacher at Clarkston Elementary School, was born and raised in Michigan's Upper Peninsula.

A native of the little town of Rock, Pat was one of only 19 students who made up her graduating class at Rock High School.

Following graduation, Pat entered Northern Michigan University, in Marquette, from which she received a bachelor's degree in music.

Next came marriage to Ed, her high school sweetheart. And several years of teaching in the towns of Garden and Perkins.

But the lights of the "big city" beckoned, so Pat and Ed left the piney forests of the UP and made the move to Clarkston in 1959.

Since that time, Pat has taught kindergarten in all elementary buildings here with the exception of North Sashabaw.

She has worked for nine principals. This record in itself makes her an exceptional person.

Pat and Ed have two grown children, Terry and Michelle, and two delightful granddaughters who are the joy of their lives.

Among their many pleasures are summer weekends at Leisure Lake and travel. Both are avid bridge players.

Pat and Ed's Finnish heritage means a great deal to them.

An exchange student from Finland joined their family during the 1978-79 school year. The Johnsons have kept in touch with their "adopted" Finnish son and in July 1982, they visited his family in Turku, Finland.

Pat Johnson "is a warm-hearted person who gets great pleasure from guiding her little students along the road to independence."

Pat is presently teaching two kindergarten classes, one a developmental class.

She is a warm-hearted person who gets great pleasure from guiding her little students along the road to independence.

Her goal is to "help the children develop self-confidence and the ability to think for themselves."

An Apple for the Teacher is provided through a committee for the Clarkston Education Association. This week's author is Barbara Glover, a sixth-grade teacher at Clarkston Elementary School.

How many people die from smoking every year?

Dear Cat Paw:

How many times does an ordinary person in everyday life think about suicide?

Wondering

Dear Wondering:

An ordinary person probably never thinks of it. Please go talk to your doctor or your parents if you have suicide on your mind. Help is available for the asking.

Dear Cat Paw:

How many people die from smoking every year and why is it costing us money if we don't smoke?

Not Fair

Dear Not Fair:

You're absolutely right—it isn't fair!

Every year, 350,000 Americans die prematurely from diseases caused by cigarette smoking.

A recent study claims that smoking's adverse effects on health cost the United States at least $38 billion and as much as $95 billion a year in increased medical bills, premature death and lost time from work.

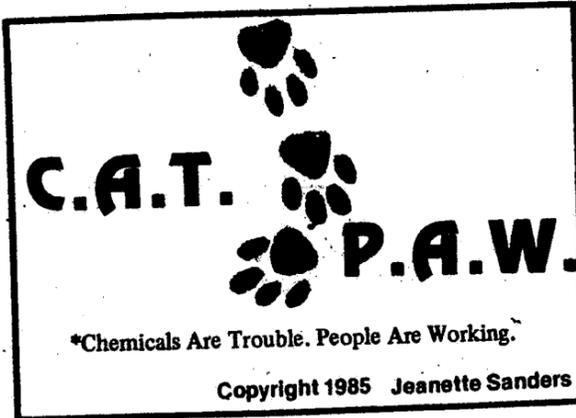

Now that nonsmokers know how seriously they are affected by nearby smokers, they are fighting back.

I know many people who no longer permit smoking in their homes, and amazingly enough they still have many friends.

Dear Cat Paw:

How long does it take a person to get lip cancer from chewing tobacco?

Chewer

Dear Chewer:

I don't know how long. It would depend on how much how often you chewed tobacco.

Approximately 40,000 persons will develop oral cancer this year and the survival rate is one of the poorest for any form of cancer. Using alcohol in conjunction with the tobacco increases the risk.

Why take the risk when you know the consequences?

Dear Cat Paw:

Does smoking pot decrease the amount of brain cells?

Dummy

Dear Dummy:

Yes, marijuana kills brain cells.

Dear Cat Paw:

What is PCP (Angel Dust)?

Student

Dear Student:

PCP or Angel Dust is phencyclidine, a tranquilizer for animals. It is usually mixed with marijuana or other hallucinogens and smoked, inhaled or swallowed.

More talented people

When I wrote my last column, it was the third day after we came back from spring break and I had a deadline to meet.

I came up with the topic of talents at the last minute. In the process, I omitted some people. Here, then, is Part II.

Curt has a valuable talent. When you are down on yourself, go talk to him. He will make your problem seem very manageable and get you laughing at something in a short period of time. I don't remember him getting down about anything—even rejection letters.

Tracey has a couple of special talents. She is the only person I know who can put over 600 miles on a new car in a week. She is also a great dancer and loves to get out on the dance floor.

Jacqui is our encourager. If you want to do something new or different but are a little scared, she will provide just the right push to go for it. She can also sit and talk about big-time wrestling for hours.

If you are looking for a listener, try Tony. He doesn't say much, but he is always ready to lend an ear.

A person with good fashion sense is Mary. She can wear any combination and make it look fabulous. And everything she wears shouts, "Mary has a unique personality."

There is a lot of talent everywhere. The ones I mentioned—and the ones I didn't—combine to make University of Detroit-Clarkston a hopping place.

Kay Ellis is a freshman at the University of Detroit's Clarkston Campus at the Colomblere Center in Springfield Township. She resides in Lake Orion.

The whole world is her home

By Julie LePere

She had visited many countries in this world before she came to the United States.

Born in Zurich, Switzerland, Silvia von Krannichfeldt met her husband, Thomas, in Basel where she attended school. They moved to Michigan for Thomas' work in the fall of 1985.

His engineering job at Union Carbide brought them to Independence Township where they plan to stay for three years.

Fluent in several languages, Silvia speaks the German that is native to Basel, as well as French, Italian, English and some Spanish.

According to Silvia, Europe is conducive to learning and remembering other languages.

"In Europe, you travel and you go to all these countries that speak different languages," she said.

Since the U.S. is so big, people don't get a chance to practice their language skills, she added.

This is Silvia's second visit to the U.S. She first came with her parents at age 13.

She says she is enjoying her stay.

"On one part, it's a little bit similar to Europe, but life is different here. What I miss here are there are no old cities. I don't see people on the streets.

"What I prefer here is it is so wide, so big. In Europe, everything is narrow.

"People are friendly here, friendlier than in Europe," she said. "Maybe they needed each other more in the beginning. I think it's also because it's so big and open.

Silvia has noticed some negative things here.

"What I don't like here is money is important here. Some people do everything for money," she said.

According to Silvia, money is good in that it allows you to do the things you want to do, but that is all.

"It is more important that you're nice and intelligent and interesting," she said, adding her dismay at the disinterest Americans have in politics.

"In Europe, everyone is interested in politics. . . . In Europe, the newspapers carry more about other countries. Here, the young people don't even read the newspapers.

"I was also very impressed that the people are so religious here, much more than in Europe," she said. "In Europe, people would not pray at the table."

"I miss culture here. I like country, but I like also museums and culture."

Silvia has visited the Detroit Institute of Arts three times in the five months she's been here. She and her husband are planning trips to Chicago and New York for more culture.

Also, Silvia and Thomas would like to travel "up north" where they've heard it is very beautiful; and they would like to go to Arizona in the fall.

Already, they have traveled through most of Europe as well as to Africa and some Eastern countries.

They traveled to East Germany to see the castles of her husband's ancestors.

Thomas' written family history dates back to 1140, when the first von Krannichfeldts built castles near a field (feldt) of cranes (krannich). Cranes are birds that may also be found in the U.S.

Now the castles lie in disrepair, said Silvia, who adds that East Germany has so many castles and so little money that they don't bother to maintain them all.

Silvia and her husband have visited several communist countries and say they are startled by the differences, especially in the Soviet Union, where Thomas visited as a student.

"I think that even East Germany is so different than West Germany," Silvia said.

"It's like time stood still. Everyone is poor, and there are no cars or only a few.

"The people don't know this, but when you go to East Germany, you can't bring any books with you."

Next, the von Krannichfeldts would like to visit China.

For the present, they are absorbing all they can of the United States.

Silvia is enrolled in a U.S. history class and a short-story class in Clarkston's adult education program. She hopes to go to a university in the fall.

After the U.S., the von Krannichfeldts plan to move to Frankfurt, Germany, again for Thomas' work.

Born in Switzerland, Silvia von Krannichfeldt and her husband will be living in Clarkston for two-and-a-half more years. They plan to visit other parts of the country as well.

Plants, brunch—a double feature

Now's the time to circle Wednesday, May 14, on your calendar.

The date is the opening day of the annual Greenhouse Plant Sale at the Northwest Oakland Vocational Education Center, where high school students enrolled in the landscape/greenhouse program have been nurturing annuals, perennials and herbs.

Government books

Hundreds of books are available for order from the United States Government.

A free catalog lists the publications for sale by the government printing office. The catalog includes illustrations and a special section with books for under $3.

Other selections range in price up to $142 for the clothbound eight-volume "Dictionary of American Naval Fighting Ships."

Most publications, however, are under $10 and among the choices are posters and decals.

Topics include agriculture, business, careers, children and families, computers, nutrition, education, energy, environment, government, health and physical fitness, history, hobbies, housing, international, law, military, science, senior citizens, space exploration, transportation, and vacation and travel.

For a copy of U.S. Government Books, Catalog No. Y-6, write to Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.

Selections will include a wide variety of geraniums, impatiens, marigolds and more.

Plant sale hours at the greenhouse are 8 to 10:30 a.m. and 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m.

In conjunction with the plant sale, a brunch for $4.25 a person is also planned May 14 at the vocational center's Northwest Inn, staffed by students in the food service program. Hours are 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. and no reservations are required.

The vocational center is located at 8211 Big Lake Rd., Springfield Township. For more information, call 625-5202.

Singer to be on TV

A gospel music special on WGPR-TV Channel 62 features the voice and songs of Independence Township resident Joel Burnell.

Air time is 9 p.m. for the Joel Burnell Music Special "Inspiration!" on Saturday, April 12.

"This is our first half-hour special," said Burnell. "It has all the musicians I've worked with over the past several years. Mainly it's music that I've written."

Films of Michigan scenery from the state travel department add a visual backdrop for the songs, he said.

In addition to Burnell, music will be provided by seven instrumentalists and singers including Bruce Collins of Clarkston and by the group The Voices of Praise of Detroit.

Trustee advice for seniors

Clarkston Village Council Trustee Fontie Ap-Madoc has some advice for her fellow seniors that makes obtaining social security easier.

The secret came for ApMadoc when a friend shared a tip that would save her having to wait in long lines at the social security office.

The simple solution? Make an appointment.

Faced with what she thought would be mounds of paper work and repeated waits at the social security office, ApMadoc was pleased to become easily eligible for social security by phone after following her friend's advice.

And that after wading through history on her birth name, baptismal name, adoptive name and two married names.

"If somebody hadn't told me about making an appointment, I'd have been down there (waiting) she said, jubilantly. "Every bit of it was done by phone, which I think is just marvelous."

"The thing I really want people to know is how easy it is."

-Reunion-

Music to fill air

Music is going to fill the air on Tuesday, April 15, as the Clarkston school district instrumental music department presents the Third Annual District Wide Band Concert.

Planned for 7:30 p.m. in the Clarkston High School auditorium, the evening will feature students representing all levels of study from sixth grade to 12th grade.

They will play under the direction of faculty members Lois Richardson, Julie Mathews, Doug Doty and Clifford Chapman.

Performing ensembles will include the combined sixth-grade band numbering 160 students from each of Clarkston's five elementary schools, the Clarkston Junior High Symphonic Band, Sashabaw Junior High Wind Ensemble, Clarkston High School Concert Band and the Jazz Ensemble.

The program is free and open to the public.

Madrigal reunion

Voices are going to be raised in splendor as the Clarkston High School Madrigal Singers meet for a 15-year reunion.

The event is scheduled May 30 at the Deer Lake Racquet Club and the singers are still seeking some members, according to Grayce Warren, director.

If you know addresses or phone numbers for any of the following people, contact Warren at the high school, 625-0900, and leave a message concerning their whereabouts.

Wanted are: Angie (Kraud) Aiken, Melissa Dell, Douglas Dennis, Kathy Fletcher, Mary Gravella, Christopher Jacks, Michael Jacks, Kitty (Motsinger) Lester, Buffie (MacFarland) Dumas, Debbie Merkel, Charles Miller, Joseph O'Brien, Kirk Peters, Todd Pettit, Lorrie Rice, Caroline Sanborne, Doug Stevens, Debbie Thompson and Vickie Waltz.

FISHING WHENEVER THEY CAN: All through spring break from school, Mike Hervan and David Scharrer went fishing in Clarkston's Mill Pond. Mike's new boat prompted the frequent trips from the boys' homes in the Woodglen Estates subdivision off Waldon Road. They caught crappies, bluegills, perch and even a rock bass during the week—and threw them all back.

Finally!!! Outdoor fun

Balmy spring temperatures and a relaxing Sunday morning entice 3-year-old Caitlin Hofmann to come to the village park off Depot Road with her family. Despite the fun she's having, she isn't too happy about having her picture taken.

These four friends play in the village park in Friday's sunshine. Heather Brown slides down the pole while her twin brother Andy and their friend Matthew Bemister try to pull Amy Bemister down from her perch.
