Needham wins; 5-mill school tax renewal passes

By Kathy Greenfield

John Needham emerged victorious in the only contested race for a Clarkston school board seat on the June 9 school election ballot.

Voters also approved the Clarkston school district's 5-mill tax renewal request, with support from 74 percent of those who voted on the question. The seven-year renewal passed, 501 to 178.

Mary Jane Chaustowich, who was running unopposed for a four-year term on the school board, received 659 votes.

Needham received 550 votes to Bruce Harlton's 312 in their bid for the two years remaining in the four-year term vacated by David Kithil when he resigned because of a job transfer.

"I appreciate the support everyone gave me. I got some super support and that was very gratifying," said Needham, who resides on Middle Lake Road in Clarkston.

"It's good these elections are contested. It gives people an opportunity to express their opinions," he added. "Certainly Bruce was a formidable opponent. I appreciate his interest in the school system."

In his post-election statement, Harlton likewise praised Needham.

"I'd like to congratulate John. He's a very highly qualified person and fully deserves the position," Harlton said.

Decision about animals expected

Athena the Siberian tiger and Cassandra the bobcat continue to await word on their fates at the 20-acre Murdoch farm on Allen Road in Independence Township.

Athena and Cassandra, pets of Douglas Murdoch who resides with his parents William and Wanda, were ordered off the farm by Oakland County Circuit Court Judge Frederick Mester in August 1985.

At the time, Mester gave the Murdochs 120 days to find new homes for the animals.

The Murdochs, however, filed an appeal of Mester's decision in the Michigan Court of Appeals and were allowed to keep the pets pending the outcome of that appeal.

Oral arguments were heard on the case in Lansing June 5 and a legal decision is anticipated by mail within 60 days, said Independence Township attorney Gerald Fisher.

Athena and Cassandra's presence in the township has been a source of contention between the Murdochs and township officials for over a year.

CHS catches flak from parent

By Chris Gerbasi

A controversy over some candy money has left a bitter taste in the mouth of a Clarkston parent.

Dianne Mazur's daughter Genny, a sophomore at the high school, was apparently told she would not be allowed to register for fall classes last week unless a $56 debt for candy was paid. Candy was sold to raise funds for the sophomore class.

According to Mrs. Mazur, both assistant principal Jan Gabier and acting principal Mel Vaara told her that the school policy was to not allow students to register if they had outstanding debts.

Mazur paid the $56 to the school on June 5, after owing it for a month because of a shortage of cash, and registration was June 6. But she contacted the State Department of Education, which informed her that the debt policy was not a state policy.

Mazur then talked to an attorney, Ann Meloche, whom she works for, and Meloche intends to pursue the matter. There is a difference of opinion as to whether Clarkston schools have an expressed policy.

"She (Gabier) told it to Mrs. Mazur and to me that that was the school's policy," said Meloche. "She

Same top three

As Clarkston voted, so voted the 28 school districts in Oakland County.

In addition to local candidates and a local millage renewal, the ballot for the June 9 Clarkston school district election included nine candidates for three six-year terms on the Oakland Community College Board of Trustees.

On Monday morning, unofficial county-wide tallies showed Judith Wiser with 7,470 votes, incumbent Margaret McTavish with 7,353 votes and Norma Ross with 6,533.

Clarkston voters selected the same top three, with a slight variation in order: McTavish, 243; Wiser, 236; and Ross, 197.

Needham wins school board seat

"The whole campaign has been rewarding to me. It has expanded my knowledge of the school system and it has allowed me to meet many people that I otherwise wouldn't have met.

"I fully support the present school board and am very supportive of what they do," he said, adding that he would be willing to serve on committees in the future.

Only about 5.7 percent of the school district's registered voters turned out for the election.

"The voter turnout really is no surprise in as much as the whole campaign was rather a non-issue type campaign," said Milford Mason, superintendent of Clarkston schools.

"Obviously I'm very pleased that the renewal was there so we can plan for the next school year," he added.

While the number of voters was low, it represented an increase of about four times over last year's election when all candidates were unopposed and only about 200 voters cast ballots, said William Jackson, district financial manager and election overseer.

"We had some interesting things happen with this election," he said. "More people voted for Needham and Harlton (862) than voted for the millage (679)."

Jackson, too, was pleased with the voters' strong approval of the 5-mill renewal.

"That's a nice statement from the electorate," he said.

The millage represents about $2 million for the 1986-87 school year in state and local funds. The district's projected budget for the 1987-87 school year is $22.4 million.

The unofficial election results were announced at the Clarkston board of education meeting Monday night. The results will become official following certification by the Oakland County Board of Canvassers.

Student debt draws controversy

was very forthright. They did corroborate it."

Gabier denied that she specifically told Mrs. Mazur that the school policy was to bar indebted students from registration.

"The mother has paid the fine and the case is closed," said Vaara. "If the mother wants to pursue it, that's up to her."

"I did not talk to (Genny)," said Vaara. "My opinion is that she would've registered anyway. Maybe not at the right time, but she would've registered by the end of the day (June 6). We won't deny anybody an education."

Superintendent of schools Milford Mason was not aware of the Mazur situation and was emphatic that there is no such policy.

"There is not a policy of that sort," he said. "Whoever said that was taking very wide license with what the rules are. The person was out of line in saying it."

Meloche is equally firm in stating her belief that such a policy is unconstitutional.

"If a debt is not paid, you sue. You don't deprive a child of an education," said Meloche. "I will be satisfied with nothing less than a public retraction of the policy."

"To withhold an education when there's a perfectly legal remedy . . . it's sad to me that educators don't know about that."

Mazur would also like a retraction of the alleged policy.

"I was stunned (when I heard it)," said Mazur. "I wasn't angry; just stunned. I'm very concerned that it could happen to somebody else. There's a lot of intimidation there (at the school). It's too late really for Genny, but maybe not for someone else."

Meloche sent a letter to Vaara asking for an acknowledgement and retraction of the policy. If Vaara does not act within two weeks, Meloche said she will pursue litigation against the school.

Principals to start July 1

Applicants numbered 56 for CHS and 76 for Andersonville

By Kathy Greenfield

New principals for Clarkston High School and Andersonville Elementary School will be on the job July 1.

CHS principal: Dr. Robert Burek

On Monday night, in separate votes, the Clarkston board of education unanimously approved the hiring of Dr. Robert Burek as the CHS principal and Sharon Devereaux as the Andersonville principal.

Burek was selected from a field of 56 applicants; Devereaux from 76.

Committees appointed by Superintendent Milford Mason screened the applications, interviewed eight candidates for the high school post and seven for the elementary post, then recommended Burek and Devereaux for the jobs.

Mason attributed the high number of applications, in part, to the good reputation of Clarkston schools.

"Oakland County is perceived to be a desirable place to live and work—that repeatedly comes out in people's applications," he said. "People repeatedly indicate, if they have the opportunity to be here, they like the look and the feel, if you will, of the Clarkston schools-community."

Burek, 45, holds a Ph.D. degree from Michigan State University, East Lansing, (1982) with a major in K-12 administration, an educational specialist degree from MSU (1972) in secondary education, and a master's degree from Central Michigan University, Mt. Pleasant, (1963) in education.

He is currently the principal of Goodrich High School, a post he has held since 1985. Previously, he was the principal of Grand Blanc High School for 12 years.

A Grand Blanc resident, he and his wife Sally are the parents of Melissa, 20, Amy, 19, and Wendy, 16.

Burek will replace CHS acting principal Mel Vaara who took over the post following the death in March of CHS Principal John Kirchgessner.

Vaara will return full time to the central office administration staff where he will be in charge of auxiliary services including transportation and grounds maintenance, a post to be vacated by retiring William Dennis.

Devereaux holds a master's degree in reading instruction from Oakland University, Rochester, (1978) and a bachelor's degree in education from Siena Heights College, Adrian (1970). She is a doctoral degree candidate at MSU and expects to complete her Ph.D. degree in 1987.

She is currently the principal of St. Benedict Elementary School, Highland Park, a position she has held since 1976. Previously, she taught primarily in the lower elementary school grades and seventh and eighth grades.

Devereaux resides in Royal Oak.

She will replace Andersonville Principal William Dennis, who is returning full time as a central office administrator in charge of K-12 education.

In addition to approving the appointments of the new principals, the school board approved their salaries.

The precise amounts will not be determined until the district teachers' union contract is negotiated because the wages agreed upon for teachers are used as an index for administrative positions.

At the current salary rates, Burek's salary would be $48,693 and Devereaux's $38,579.

A matter of density

Condo project tabled again

By Carolyn Walker

Thirty-four Clarkston Road condominiums proposed by developer Frank Walker continue to hang in limbo.

The Independence Township Board tabled action on his plans for the second time June 3 citing a desire to investigate the intensity of the development and the potential for fewer units.

The motion to table the matter superseded a prior motion made by Trustee William Vandermark to deny the rezoning request.

Walker and his partner, William Hahn, had asked that their 8.5-acre site be rezoned to single family dwelling status from rural residential.

The men intend to pursue a Planned Unit Development (PUD) zoning in the future and single family status would allow four condominium units per acre. A PUD zoning permits several uses on a single parcel of land.

During the one-and-one-half-hour discussion, some board members praised the development but expressed concerns that the project would be too intense for the site, which is across from Clintonwood Park.

Vandermark led the debate by displaying a copy of the township's master plan which currently permits two units per acre.

"Frankly, I have a problem with the density. This is not in keeping with the master land use plan," he said. "If we allow that to take place in that area . . . when the next fellow comes along it's pretty hard to say no."

"This is a major deviation."

Vandermark added that Walker and Hahn's project could lead to condominiums all along the Clarkston Road corridor.

Walker and Hahn's attorney Timothy Debolski responded, "If the next guy comes along, he too will

Condo plan up in air

have to meet those (strict PUD) requirements."
Trustee Carol Balzarini, who also sits on the township planning commission, agreed with Vandermark.

"North of I-75 we've attempted to preserve as much of the rural character as possible," she said.

Last month, the planning commission voted to recommend the zoning change to the board.

According to Craig Smith, architect for the project, the condominiums are geared at "empty-nesters"—couples who do not have children and no longer want to care for a house.

"This is one of the largest needs in the housing market," he told the board. "This type of development is allowed under your PUD ordinance.

"We feel this is an ideal location for this type of use."

The plans call for the preservation of a "landmark" oak tree, gazebos, courtyards, walkways and a stream with waterfalls, Smith said.

The units would include attached garages and aesthetic features such as lanterns, picket fences, high ceilings and bay windows in the "Newport, Rhode Island" style, he added.

"The PUD allows us to design and develop a unique, one-of-a-kind development fitting the image of Clarkston," Smith said.

"To make it work we need the density that we need," Hahn added. "I live here. I'm going to make sure that it's all followed through.

"All we would like to do is build you a very good project. If we don't do it, someone else is going to do it. When they're done, they leave.

"This is what Clarkston deserves."

The vote to table the matter was unanimous. Trustee Daniel Travis was absent.

Opinions

Flower power

Kathy Greenfield

My better half says there are two kinds of people in the world: thinkers and doers.

He usually says that when he realizes I've been thinking about doing something or other for a disproportionate period of time.

A case in point involves daisies.

They are one of my favorite varieties of flowers, admired for their simplicity, longevity and uncomplicated beauty.

For a long time, roughly a decade, I've thought about planting daisies in my yard. One year, I tried transplanting clumps of daisies from another yard. They didn't survive.

Thus, the highlight of my 1986 spring gardening: I purchased two types of daisies, found suitable sunny spots and plunked them into the gravel-ridden flower beds with great hope for the future.

"I planted some daisies," I've been telling my friends with the same sort of enthusiasm that someone else might conjure up over orchids, exotic roses or rare varieties of lilies.

They look at me with what could only be described as incredulity. "So what?" their eyes say. "That's nice," their lips say.

Which brings me to one of my favorite comic strips, Cathy by Cathy Guisewite.

In this particular strip, Cathy is wildly enthusiastic over a just-popped batch of microwave popcorn. She tells her friend Andrea that it's taken her a year, but she's finally succeeded in popping every kernal in an entire bag.

Her friend Andrea notes that during the same year, she met her husband and now they're blissfully happy and expecting their first child.

In the final panel, Cathy is dumping the bowl of popcorn in the trash can.

It made me laugh, but deep inside I wanted her to react differently. She should have sat down and enjoyed every bit of that perfect batch of snack food.

Success can be enjoyed at many levels.

When my daisies flourish and bloom, I'll adore every one of them. Maybe in years to come, I'll have bunches of daisies in every room. Maybe I'll end up with a single daisy in a bud vase.

"Look what I grew!" I'll say. My friends will have to put up with me.

Teacher praise

As school comes to a close, we'd like to take this time to express our feelings about the staff at Clarkston Elementary.

Our son Derek will be leaving to go to the junior high, and over the years he has had the privilege of being taught by Clarkston's finest.

We must say that Derek's years at Clarkston Elementary will never be forgotten.

In September of 1985, Derek started his last year of elementary school with Mrs. Barbara Glover as his teacher. He was a little apprehensive of sixth grade.

Looking back over the year for us, we feel that if you were to ask Derek to tell you something about his experience at Clarkston Elementary, we're sure that Mrs. Glover's name would be the first to come to his lips.

We never saw a boy mature and grow as he did this year.

Derek was seriously injured this winter and Mrs. Glover was most concerned and accomodating. She never misses a chance to tell her class what special people they are and to always believe in themselves.

To all of the staff at Clarkston Elementary, we say THANK YOU for giving our son Derek and our other children Corey and Megan such a great start.

To you Mrs. Glover, words can not express just how much we appreciate your preparing Derek for junior high school.

Bill and Nancy Bildstein

Thanks and appreciation

My sincere thanks and appreciation go out to so many friends and relatives.

The Clarkston and Ortonville seniors, the Rev. Stewart and church friends, and to all who sent me flowers, fruit, cards, visits, phone calls and above all their prayers since my accident, thank you so much to everyone.

You helped me so much more than you know.

Jim's Jottings

Jim Sherman

One evening of our 8 days in Scotland, as we prepared for an evening feast, I mentioned to fellow traveler Mary Brower that I thought the Scots were scotch on their drinks.

She said, "They aren't really scotch."

"Oh, yeah," I sez, "what about the teaspoons?"

Of course, we never saw a full size teaspoon in England, Scotland or Ireland. Spoons were either half size or soup size.

After that intelligent exchange with Mary, I started keeping track of what I consider a closeness of money, at least compared to the United States' customs.

Even in the fancy-dan lounge at Turnberry the waitress put unused knives back in the dining room drawer without benefit of passing through the kitchen. This happened in many restaurants, and with unused side plates, also.

Drinks at every bar we were in were measured exactly. One and a half ounce. No more. Most had dispensers on their upside down bottles. In America bartenders tend to spill over the top of shot glasses.

At historic and recently renovated Rusack's Marine Hotel across the 18th fairway of The Old Course, hot water is shut off at night. We had only luke warm water to wash for our 6:40 a.m. tee time.

Also at Rusack's, when they brought ice to our room it was in a soup bowl with a tablespoon.

None of the hotels or restaurants we were in gave matches. There were none in the rooms for us souvenir hunters.

Every golf course we ever played in America gives pencils and score cards to each player. The Scots' charge for pencils. If you want a good score card with distances, you also have to buy them.

Otherwise, the card you get is on paper with throw away quality printing.

Not to knock, though. We have a man with Scottish ancestry working for us, Stu McTeer, and he makes jokes of their thrift. He also has a couple stories of their relationship with the English, which hardly relate to friendship.

Gambling is legal in Scotland and all of England. They bet on about anything. Some guy won $100,000 playing snooker and was a 150-1 shot. All pubs have slot machines. There's a 3 pound limit in public rooms, 100 pound limit in private clubs.

In many ways the Scots are very generous. Certainly, their hospitality is generous. We asked for help many times, for directions, eating places, how to, etc. and were always responded to graciously.

And, you can't call having two hot water bottles in your room at Rusack's not being generous.

British broadcasting is really down on American's cancelling trips to their country. One show talked about eight murders in Baltimore and the safe streets of Glasgow. On the other hand, we were told not to leave anything in our locked cars in St. Andrews.

They probably fear the tourists.

Letters to the editor

Appalling motto

I am appalled to discover that the Clarkston High School Class of 1986 has selected as a class motto: "Violence is American as cherry pie."

It is both a sad commentary on the present nihilistic attitude of the young adults of our community and raises the question of who is in charge at Clarkston High School.

Did the students put this in the yearbook without ANY adult seeing it beforehand? Where were the class advisers? The yearbook adviser?

Was this an attempt by a disgruntled employee to embarrass the school administration, the board of education and the community of Clarkston?

These questions must be answered and the appropriate steps taken to ensure that future students understand that the purpose of a class motto is inspiration and not as a forum for a social statement.

Fortunately, acting principal Mel Vaara vetoed the use of this motto in graduation ceremonies, but his disclaimer that he does not know how this motto got to be The Motto is inadequate.

I would like to address a few remarks to the Class of '86 itself: You may claim that you never voted on this, or that it doesn't reflect the majority of students' opinions—the fact remains that it has been issued by your peers in the name of your class and you have allowed these people to speak in your name.

You have sold your integrity because you didn't want to rock the boat or call attention to yourselves.

I would like to ask the persons responsible for this disgusting motto—what violence have you endured as a class? Violence on TV, movies, rock concerts? Violence you encourage because of your patronage.

What violence did my class of '70 endure during its high school years of 1967-1970? The Detroit riots, the assassinations of Martin Luther King and Robert F. Kennedy, and the Vietnam War stained those years for us.

What did we do about it? Open your history books and read them.

If the Class of 1986 is really concerned about violence, then instead of making sarcastic remarks about it, get out and find a root cause of violence—ignorance, poverty, hunger, child abuse—and do something about it!

Focus: Hope, H.A.V.E.N., Clarkston Area Youth Assistance and Baldwin Avenue United Methodist Church will be glad for your help.

Let me close with a quotation from my husband's yearbook, the Grosse Pointe Viewpoint, 1969. "The value of a school depends on the values of the individuals within."

I would like to recommend it to the Clarkston High School Class of 1987.

Major contributor

I would like to give special "thanks" to William Bildstein who has assisted in coaching the Clarkston Varsity Baseball team for the second season.

Our team enjoyed a lot of "wins" this year due to their hard work and the help of someone, like Bill, who was willing to give more than just his time.

Thanks Bill, from me and the team.

Support lacking

In the past two weeks, we have been fortunate enough to attend different events at Clarkston High School.

However, we were very disappointed in the lack of attendance at these events.

The production "Vaudeville, Rewritten, Rehearsed and Reedited!" was wonderful, as was the annual Mime Show.

Hanging around monkey bars

Jim Fitzgerald

On Memorial Day morning, in the park next to my home, a grown man sat at the top of the kiddie slide. He wasn't preparing to slide down. He was drinking out of a wine cooler bottle.

It was the first park visit of the season for Emily and me. I was measuring her against the hardware and feeling sad. Last year she had to ride the little swings with the chain across the front to keep her from falling out. This year she rides "the big kids" swings, with no fail-safe feature, and insists I push her higher.

It seems like only yesterday (it's cliché time, folks) that I had to climb monkey bars with her, keeping one arm around her waist and wondering if Blue Cross covers foolish fallen grandfathers. This time she climbed to the top solo and insisted I stand several feet away so on-lookers would realize she is now four years old and no longer needs me.

No longer do I have to hold her up to the nearby pay phone while she talks to her friend Annie. Now, not only can Emily reach the receiver without help, she has learned to cradle it between her shoulder and chin, just like her mother and grandmother, leaving both hands free to flip calendar pages and count the passing weeks without ever hanging up.

No one has ever seen Emily's friend Annie, but I have the sinking feeling that Annie is also growing up way too fast. The end of the friendship is nearing. Emily will soon be playing in the park with real friends, Annie will be forgotten, and my presence will be needed less and less.

Life is not fair, but you have to take the bitter with the sweet, and my sinking feeling will surface again (end of clichés). The sweet is Emily's little sister—next summer I will start all over with Tricia on the chained swings—and whatever other bonuses my offspring provide during their fertile years. I gain great joy from my ambition to become the first great-grandfather in the neighborhood to fall off the monkey bars.

There was a special attraction in the park on Memorial Day. I don't mean the imbibor on the slide; I mean the five workmen putting up a carnival-size tent to house a holiday event. I told Emily it would be exciting to watch them pound dozens of steel stakes into the ground with a sledgehammer. I recalled watching similar scenes when I was little, when the circus came to town, and gasping at how the free-swinging little guy always pounded the stake smack on the head instead of maiming the hand of the big guy holding it straight.

Forget it. Three workmen pressed a roaring jackhammer against the head of each stake. The fourth worker tended the gasoline can from which the jackhammer was fueled. And, probably because a week's rain had left the ground so soft, the fifth worker crouched and watched the descending stakes closely, poised to holler "STOP!" just in time to avoid the China syndrome.

Finally, to make this column environmentally relevant, it should be noted that the wine drinker politely made way for Emily when she wanted to use the slide. But he dropped his empty wine cooler bottle on the lawn.

Unlike beer and pop bottles, there is no anti-litter deposit required on wine coolers, and legislative lobbyists for the wine interests are determined to keep it that way. Their position is patently absurd, and I was surprised and disappointed to read that Rep. Colleen Engler (R-Mt. Pleasant) agrees with them.

A candidate for the GOP gubernatorial nomination, Engler said she was against treating wine coolers the same as beer and pop bottles because "it's an added burden on women. We're the ones who have to take them back."

She therewith lost the vote of my wife the feminist. In our home, I take the bottles back. It is stereotypical to say it's a job for women only.

It is as outdated as saying only grandmothers have the burden of hugging grandchildren so tight they can't grow up and climb the monkey bars alone.

Town home tour set to benefit SCAMP kids

Tickets for the Fourth Annual Clarkston SCAMP Home Tour are on sale now.

The walking and shuttle van tour on Saturday and Sunday, June 21 and 22, will feature five historic homes and a garden in the Village of Clarkston.

The tour includes the Lynn residence at 71 N. Main that was once occupied by Nelson W. Clark, the restored Green farmhouse moved to Main Street from Dixie Highway in 1984 by the Radcliffs, the former Methodist Church on Buffalo Street that is now the residence of the Catallos, the Methodist parsonage owned by the Stern family on Church Street, the Spelbrings' 20th century Tudor Revival home on Wampole and the Basinger garden with a gazebo on Washington Street.

Proceeds from the tour will go to Clarkston SCAMP, a five-week summer camp program for handicapped children and youth from the northern Oakland County area.

Saturday's tour begins at 7 p.m. and will run until 9 p.m. Registration will begin at 7 in the village parking lot at Main and Washington streets. A patrons' reception will follow at the Catallos' home on Buffalo Street. Tickets are $50 a person.

Sunday's tour begins at 1 p.m. and will run until 4 p.m. The $15-a-person tickets include a light lunch at the Clarkston Cafe on Main Street.

Transportation will be available for those who have difficulty walking.

To purchase tickets, call Donna Kolisnyk at 625-8456 or SCAMP Home Tour at 625-3330.

Built circa 1855-57, this Main Street home was once occupied by Nelson W. Clark, owner of the Clarkston Carding Mills. It was also the home of township Supervisor Washington Irish.

This 20th century Tudor Revival style home is located on Wampole Drive.

Now a private residence, this home was once the Methodist parsonage. The Greek Revival-Gothic Revival home was built circa 1855.

'The Walk of Life'

Carolyn Walker

It strikes me as ironic that now, when she faces a major and significant challenge in her young life, my little daughter should favor Dire Straights' song "The Walk of Life."

She comes happily home from school each afternoon, hunts for Ethel the Cabbage Patch doll, requests that I put the record on the player and asks Ethel to dance.

Ethel never refuses.

My daughter then removes her leg brace, sometimes cursing it, positions herself cross-legged on the living room floor and takes Ethel into her arms to dance in a sitting position.

When the song begins, she bounces Ethel up and down on her cloth feet, following the rhythm of the music.

They dance best when they have an audience. "Look, Momma," my daughter usually says, delighted at Ethel's ability. "She's dancing."

My daughter learned her moves from me.

When she was tiny, long before she could walk, I used to dance with her in a similar fashion.

I'd put a record on the stereo, hold her tight and pretend that we were waltzing cheek to cheek.

Later, when she could walk, we'd hold hands and boogaloo enthusiastically around the family room, the way mothers and daughters do when no one is looking.

My daughter and I loved those times.

Now the doctors tell me she needs an operation on her leg.

If she doesn't have it, she'll never walk again, they say. If she does have it . . . Of course they're offering no guarantees.

After much soul searching and many medical consultations, my husband and I feel we must try.

We look into her eyes and find courage. We look to our God and find faith. We look to our doctors and find hope.

Next week, should you search for this column, you will not find it. Instead of writing, I will be sitting with my husband in a hospital praying.

We will be praying that our child will walk again. And mustering our strength to face the music, so to speak:

*And after all the violence and double-talk,
There's just a song in all the trouble and the strife.*

*You do the walk.
You do the walk of life.*

Pastor responds

told our plans would not be approved until these issues were settled.

We believe, as the Bible says, we should submit to the ordinances of men and government God has put there for our good. We sought to correct every problem.

Our engineers spent several months dealing with the issues based on the consultation of the building department and the township engineers, Hubble, Roth and Clark.

We recently went back to the township planning commission with corrected plans. Having spent many hours and thousands of dollars in the process, in good faith we expected to be treated fairly for our efforts.

With very little concern about the efforts we had made, a vote was taken and our project turned down. The official reason, as listed in the township minutes, was our church would cause an "erosion" of the tax base of the township.

Neil Wallace expressed his irritation at the number of churches in the township and the number of additions to the ones presently located here.

This week, we went to the zoning board of appeals to appeal the decision at the planning commission. The ZBA refused to decide on our issue. The reason? The only listed concern of the planning commission was erosion of the tax base.

The ZBA did not consider this to be a sufficient reason and wants clarification of the planning commission's refusal to deal with the issues. How can Neil Wallace expect the public to know something the ZBA doesn't know?

Neil Wallace says something must be done to maintain a balance on the growth of churches in the community. He says we certainly wouldn't object to that. I'm sure most pastors certainly would.

Our desire is to reach as many people as we can. I'm sure most of the congregations want to expand their influence in the community. This is what Jesus Christ has commissioned us to do.

Jesus said don't hide your light but let it shine for all to see. I pray for the day when once again the local churches have a prominent place in the community.

Mr. Wallace says the churches should not be exempt from township planning. I agree. We should flow with the best interests of the community and follow legitimate ordinances and laws of the land.

However, we must stand against all laws and people who feel they need to "balance" our influence in the community.

No, Mr. Wallace, we don't feel you have every right to legislate our function and influence the community. You are not the one to decide what is the proper balance between church and community.

Board seeks cash for Dixie

By Carolyn Walker

A downtown development authority (DDA) may be just down the road, specifically Dixie Highway, for Independence Township.

The township board voted 6-0 on June 3 to sign a resolution of intent to establish the DDA.

"The purpose of the resolution of intent is to put all participants on notice that this is happening," said Clerk Richard Holman.

The proposed boundaries from the southern tip of the township on Dixie to Foster Road would be officially established following a planned public hearing July 15.

A DDA is a district in which tax assessments are captured and returned to the district for improvements within the district.

The amount returned to the DDA is based on the difference between state equalized values of businesses, which are frozen and redetermined after property values rise.

After the re-evaluations, the difference between the frozen valuations and the improved valuations is multiplied by the millage rate to determine the tax amount to be returned to the DDA.

Several steps must be completed before the DDA is established. The public hearing must be held and an ordinance establishing the DDA must be adopted by the township board.

Members of the public may attend the July hearing at township hall on Main Street to ask questions and express their concerns.

The vote to sign the resolution was unanimous. Trustee Daniel Travis was absent.

School public hearing

Curious Clarkston school district residents or those who wish to comment on the proposed $22.4 million budget for 1986-87 may attend a public hearing next week.

The special meeting is scheduled Monday, June 16, at 7:30 p.m. in the district's administration office, 6389 Clarkston Rd., Independence Township.

Copies of the proposed budget are available for inspection at the administration office from 8 a.m. until 3:30 p.m. weekdays.

Claire Needham was slaving away over an advanced English placement test when word came down that she was a finalist in the Focus: Hope Journalism Olympics.

She missed the press conference in which she was named third place winner May 14 during a ceremony at the Detroit Press Club.

Claire won a bronze medal for her report on food for senior citizens at the event held near Highland Park.

Claire, a senior at Clarkston High School, and sophomore Missy Nelson were selected to attend the competition by teacher Linda Denstaedt because of their interest in journalism.

The two competed with more than 100 high school students.

"I was really, really surprised," Claire says of her victory and the award which was donated by WXYZ television newscaster Bill Bonds. "I was shocked."

Claire, the daughter of John and Roz Needham of Middle Lake Road, Clarkston, intends to study photo journalism at the University of Michigan.

Kids need equipment

The Oakland County Children's Village is seeking contributions of recreational and athletic equipment.

The Village is also trying to develop an athletic complex which would include two softball diamonds, a cinder running track and soccer and football fields.

The Village provides treatment care services for children of Oakland County whom the Court has determined need "out of home care." It also has a Shelter Care Unit for abused and neglected children.

Equipment and financial contributions can be made at the Village, located at 1200 North Telegraph Rd., or call 858-1135.

ACTING MELODRAMATIC: Vera Johnson-Djurdjev's role covers the gamut from sultry to spunky in the latest production by the Clarkston Village Players. The melodrama "Love Rides the Rails or Will the Mail Train Run Tonight" wraps up this weekend with performances Friday and Saturday, June 13 and 14, at 8 p.m. Tickets are $10 with the proceeds to go toward remodeling at the Players' Depot Theatre on White Lake Road. The price includes a complimentary hors d'oeuvres reception before the plays. Tickets may be purchased at Tierra Arts and Design on Main Street, Clarkston, or by calling Marlene Sewick at 363-0188 after 5 p.m.

MT. ZION TEMPLE

"Building A City of Refuge"

In 1978 a small group of less than 30, including children, gathered in the home of Bill Covarrubias. It was a group of people who were sensing a divine call upon them. The group had come together as a Bible study group taught by Jean Covarrubias, Bill's wife. The adults had completed a course called "Understanding God". Many in the group were walking in new spiritual directions and not sure what to do next.

My name is Loren Covarrubias. I had in 1978 just completed Minister Candidate School at Bethesda Temple in Detroit, Michigan. As we pondered our course of action, we knew God was speaking to us. This may sound unusual to some people but we are convinced God speaks to His people today. God never changes. The God who called His people in days of old is still calling today.

The group God brought together was a diverse group of people. They came from different social, economic, and religious backgrounds. Yet God had brought the group together and instilled a sense of unity and purpose.

The direction we received was to start a church. It had to be different than anything we experienced before. Different because what we experienced before had not met the needs of its people. God wanted a city of refuge. A place where people could come for help. A place where all people would be accepted. No matter who you were or what you were. God wanted a place where you could go to receive help. A place where you could meet God and be accepted by the people of God.

At Mt. Zion Temple there is no group of people that will be excluded. There are no racial barriers. God is no respecter of persons so neither can His church be. There are no untouchables. If Jesus could receive the most unwanted people of His day, certainly, His church is called to do the same. There was no sin too great Jesus could not forgive and no people so low He could not lift up. Can His church which the Bible says is His body and extended hand be any different?

So many times church has been an environment only the strong could endure. People aware of people but not in a positive sense. This is not God's desire for a church. It must be a place of support. A place expecting the best and believing the best. A place where we find support when we fail, strength when we are weak, comfort when we are alone, and understanding when we are wrong.

Our goals are noble. The ability to attain them has been a learning process. Yet we are striving ahead. The group we started with has grown. Our congregation now numbers around 500. Those who live around the church building have seen the constant expansion of our facilities. We have been constantly moving and expanding ourselves. 90% of the churches in America have fewer than 300 people yet we surpassed that goal by our 4th year of ministry.

In January of this year we celebrated our 7th Anniversary of ministry in our present location. Now we are planning our most ambitious undertaking yet. We are relocating on 52 acres of land next to I-75. We are building a barn-like structure to house the harvest of souls we know God will send us. It will be the beginning of our City of Refuge. Our church will be multifaceted ministry to meet your needs.

We are not concerned about numbers. We are concerned about people. We are concerned about you. We know there is never a shortage of people needing help only a shortage of people willing to help. We want to help you. If you need someone to care, please call. God says, "Whosoever will, let him come."

Dorene Melvin a bad momma in karate

Dorene Melvin is a mother, GM employee and karate trophy winner. She and her sons have participated in the Clarkston Community Education karate class since February.

By Julie LePere

Dorene Melvin is a study in contrasts. In one part of her life, she lovingly mothers her two elementary school-age sons and works at General Motors Truck and Bus.

In another part of her life, she's hardly recognizable from the above description.

She's a small woman, about 5-2, with strawberry blond hair and a ready smile on her round face.

Gentle would be a good word to describe her.

But dressed in her standard white karate uniform, Melvin creates a formidable presence.

In the 11th annual Tri-State Tae Kwon Do Karate Championships in April, the Waterford resident placed second in white belt fighting and third in white belt forms for women.

"When you spar, you're not out for blood," said the soft-spoken woman about her fighting trophy. "It's just a sport. It's more of a touch technique."

She joined the Clarkston Community Education karate class in February with her two sons, Terry and Joshua. They go to class two to three times a week.

"I'm here mainly for the exercise, and I would like to learn self-defense," said Melvin. "I quit smoking, and this is good for your cardiovascular system."

The contrasts between her activities seem to diminish a little when she mentions her children. She blends her motherhood with karate.

"Karate is something I can do with my boys," she said. "With all the things that have been happening, kidnapping and all, I'd just like my boys to be able to get away."

"And since my boys are here, I might as well be. A lot of the parents and the kids join up together."

"It's different. I felt a little funny at first, but I really like it now. I'm the oldest woman here."

Not only does Melvin enjoy the exercise, but she respects her instructor, Joe Sanders.

"He really cares about teaching. . . . He teaches the kids about respect," she said. "He asks them about their schoolwork, and he increases their attention span. He teaches the kids politeness and a lot of self-control."

Melvin plans to continue with the sport for a good deal longer.

"I plan to compete a little bit more, but I'm here more for the exercise. But I like the form and the self-defense," she said.

"When I first learned to do the forward roll, I couldn't do it without getting up dizzy. . . . It built my coordination. . . . The front breakfall (is the hardest). It's all a lot of work. I have a lot of trouble with my kicks at my age. But it's really good exercise. It really loosens you up."

Burnette and bikes part of family affair

By Chris Gerbasi

Kelly Burnette may be retiring from teaching, but he's not going to stop working.

Burnette is finishing up his 30th and last year as a teacher at Sashabaw Junior High. Then he'll get away from the rat race and jump into bike races.

Burnette has been a part of BMX dirt bike races at the Waterford Oaks County Park track for 11 years. That's when his son, then 11, started racing and Burnette joined in. His son is now a pro and only a broken collarbone sent Burnette into racing retirement last June.

"It's really a family sport," said Burnette, 56. "Some people will bring a picnic basket here to watch the races. We have one family here where the son races, the daughter races and the father races."

The track holds beginner races on Wednesdays and full-scale events on Saturdays, sanctioned by one of three leagues. The leagues have a wide range of age and ability divisions.

Before he retired, Burnette was the oldest racer at the track. He competed in the cruiser division and was at one time ranked 36th nationally.

At the other end of the spectrum is five-year old Shevona McKenzie of Warren. She started when she was three and is now a hardened veteran of national races across the country. She was the youngest person to ever race nationally.

She is one of only two girls her age who race, so they compete against boys her age and she more than holds her own. She is ranked number one in the state and 12th nationally.

A protege of Burnette's is Tammy Spaven. Spaven, a 17-year-old student at Clarkston High School, found out about BMX racing from Burnette when she had him as a teacher in junior high.

"He told me about BMX and I didn't know what it was," said Spaven.

She's well-acquainted with the sport now. After being ranked 15th her first year of competition, Spaven moved up to seventh the following year and grabbed the number one spot in her age group last season.

In April, Spaven turned pro. The girls professional division is relatively new and there are few substantial purses, but Spaven has reaped the rewards of a sponsorship deal with the Circle Craft factory.

"When I got the number one, they called me up after the race and asked me to ride on their team," said Spaven. "They pay entry fees, they gave me bikes, uniforms. It does help me out a lot."

Spaven will travel around the country this summer with Burnette, who is an official, and she wants to now make her mark as a pro.

"I hope to win a lot of money," she said. "I'd like to finish in the top three nationally. You get a lot of recognition and a lot of people watch you. It's really neat."

Kelly Burnette will now spend most of his time at the BMX dirt bike track at Waterford Oaks County Park. Burnette has helped organize races at the track for 11 years.

Women's team tops soccer league

By Chris Gerbasi

They play in a recreational league, but Clarkston's 30-and-over women's soccer team does not lack a competitive edge.

The team is 4-0-1 entering this week's action, sitting at the top of its six-team division.

Clarkston plays an eight-game schedule against two teams from Waterford, two from Milford and one Pontiac team. Its home base is at Bailey Lake Elementary School and the high school.

The nickname-less squad has yet to play Guinn Construction of Waterford, which may stand in the way of winning the division.

"We have some super players and some who come out just to play," said coach Haydn Cook, who played professionally in his native England.

"If they have a good hour and a half, who cares (if we win)?" he said. "But I have trouble with some of the ladies because they like to win, too."

When the team started three years ago, only midfielder Hana Olsen had ever played the sport before at any level. Olsen and Cook have had a hand, or foot, in developing soccer leagues in the Clarkston area and Olsen coaches at the high school.

Olsen is not shy about assessing her own talents, but she's received help this season from some newcomers.

Denise Zavasky has taken over in goal and Ann Becker and Marilyn Allyn have joined Olsen to solidify the midfield position. Cook views Becker as the team's field general.

Striker Marcia Meyer is the team's leading scorer, followed by Olsen.

"When you have a midfielder who assists so well, you can't go wrong," said the modest Olsen.

Cook is satisfied with the offensive attack and ball control, but the defense needs some work.

The team's lone blemish on its record came against a Waterford team on a game-tying goal with seconds left to play. Clarkston couldn't get the ball out of its own end.

"It was pure panic," said Cook, who has used videotapes of the ongoing World Cup matches as a training tool.

Win or lose, after the summer league winds down, the women will get ready to do it all again during the fall season.

Kubani keen on Kent St. court

By Julie LePere

In the beginning, the transition from high school to college was a tough one for basketball player Ray Kubani.

Although he's learned to value his family more, he still remembers his rough freshman year.

"I'd never been away for a long period of time," said the 6-foot-7 forward. "I'd call home in the middle of the night. I was homesick."

"My second year, I went out more. I'd stay up late and study and eat pizza. It was better that year."

Now the Kent State senior only gets homesick on holidays.

Ray Kubani, a 1983 CHS graduate, averaged 10 points and six rebounds for Kent State last year. The senior will have a major in physical education and a minor in coaching when he graduates.

"We got three days off at Christmas," he said. "I came home, but I had to go back Christmas day."

"I can't stand that part of it. Every time I ask myself, 'Why am I doing this?' But I figure after this year, I'll have more Christmases than I can handle."

He doesn't get to come home to Independence Township at all for the other holidays.

"It's really hard on freshmen," he said. "I'm going out with a girl who lives in Kent, and I spend holidays with them."

But Ray still isn't completely comfortable in Ohio.

"I like Michigan better," he said. "Ohio is terrible. I don't know, Michigan people tend to be friendlier. I went down there with an open mind, but people in Ohio have a totally negative attitude about people in Michigan. I went down there not knowing what to expect, and I found out it was terrible."

He's found one positive aspect of his experience.

"You value your family more when you don't see them as much. I think that's one real valuable thing," he said. "If I haven't learned anything else, I've learned that."

Even through all the demands, Ray still loves basketball as much as ever. At Kent, he averaged 10 points and six rebounds per game.

"Personally, the season was OK, but as a team, we didn't do too well," he said.

"Last year, we did well at NIT (National Invitational Tournament). This year, we just didn't do as well as people expected us to."

"The community there is a lot like Clarkston. It's small. It's very supportive."

The sport will probably always have a spot in Ray's future, he said.

"My ambition is to be a college basketball coach. When I first went down there, I went to play just because I like to play . . . Now, I like studying it—learning it."

"I used to be in business (major), but I got out and went to phys. ed. with a coaching minor. I hope to get a teaching certificate, too."

During the summer, he plans to take the first month off from working out. Then, he'll begin playing and running and lifting weights again.

"I like to run around Clarkston," he said. "It's nice and quiet."

Tee off for charity

Golfers can get in some free golf and help lung disease research at the same time thanks to the American Lung Association of Southeastern Michigan (ALASEM).

With Father's Day coming up, ALASEM is offering a golf privilege card which entitles its holders to free golf at 20 southeastern Michigan clubs.

Among the clubs participating are the Clarkston Golf Club on North Eston Road and the Spring Lake Country Club on Maybee Road, both in Independence Township.

The card can be obtained for a $20 tax-deductible donation to ALASEM. It's good for one free round of golf at each of the participating courses during the entire 1986 season.

The donations will go toward research of such lung diseases as emphysema and lung cancer and will help support more than 40 free community lung health services.

For more information, call ALASEM at 961-1697. To order the card, send a $20 check or money order payable to the American Lung Association of Southeastern Michigan, 28 W. Adams, Detroit, MI 48226. Be sure to enclose the name and address of the person to whom the card should be sent.

Bonds would spell cash for Independence

By Carolyn Walker

Summer school tax bills will go out July 1 in the traditional fashion, but a new method of paying the schools their money may soon be implemented.

Independence Township Treasurer John Lutz collects school taxes for the school districts of Clarkston, Oakland County Intermediate Schools and Oakland Community College.

In the past, the money collected has been invested for interest up to 28 days and then has been turned over to the districts, Lutz says.

A recent Grand Rapids lawsuit challenged the right of municipalities to keep school tax money for the purpose of collecting interest.

The new proposal, outlined June 3 at the township board meeting, would permit the township to sell consolidated tax anticipation notes (CTANs) and pay the schools their due in one fell swoop.

"This is the way quite a few communities have solved that interest problem. But it wasn't established for that," said Lutz after the meeting.

Currently, only communities of 50,000 residents or more may use the system. But Gov. James Blanchard is expected to sign legislation permitting smaller communities to do so on June 9.

Under the proposed system, the township would sell the notes, which are similar to bonds, pay the schools their tax money at the outset; and as taxes are paid by residents, have a trustee invest the money.

That money would be used to pay back the notes which come due after one year. The interest on the invested money would then be returned to the township minus the trustee's expenses.

Using last year's figures, Lutz estimated the new system would have earned the township an additional $46,000.

"We would be much further ahead than the way we were before," he said. "Everybody that's concerned comes out the winner. It assists the school districts because they get (their money) substantially earlier."

At the meeting, the board voted unanimously to sign a preliminary resolution of intent, stating the desire to participate in the plan.

Pending Blanchard's signing of legislation, the board must make a final decision on the matter by June 26, Lutz said.

'Friendly lawsuit' seeks decision

By Carolyn Walker

A "friendly lawsuit" is soon to be filed by Independence Township to facilitate the conversion of Thendara Park roads to public status, according to Clerk Richard Holman.

Residents have been attempting to convert the roads from private to public status for over one year.

Ultimately, the decision lies within the jurisdiction of Oakland County Circuit Court, so the township board voted June 3 to authorize attorney Gerald Fisher to file suit for an early decision, Holman said.

By doing so, the township is asking the court whether or not it will permit the conversion of the roads before some $60,000 in project estimates and engineering costs have been paid, he said.

"Before we even spend a dime of that $60,000 we want to go to circuit court and see if they have any problems," Holman said. "We need to know where we stand before we start spending the big bucks."

That money would be "fronted" by the township and possibly paid back by a special assessment, he added.

Total costs for the proposed project, to be specially assessed, are estimated at $1.5 million and include drainage and curbing costs.

A segment of the suit will also address the legitimacy of citizen petitions requesting the road conversions, Holman said.

Paul and Jean Frechette, owners of Clarkston

Summer taxes are due by Sept. 14, he added.

In addition to the preliminary resolution, the board voted unanimously to engage the firm of Miller, Canfield, Paddock and Stone of Detroit as its representative.

Golf Course which passes along Algonquin Road, have said previously at public meetings that the petitions are invalid, Holman said.

Oakland County road conversion rules dictate that 51 percent of the total property owners and 51 percent of the owners abutting the roads sign petitions requesting conversion.

The Frechettes contend that 51 percent of the abutting Algonquin residents in Thendara but not Sunny Beach subdivisions have signed the petition.

During a phone interview, Jean Frechette explained their position, saying they have not been well enough informed about the potential costs.

"I'm opposed to anything where I don't know what it's going to cost me. They have no concrete way of figuring it out," she said.

"They should get more of a price out of the county. It's going to be an assessment of a considerable amount to us with no benefit to us."

"We never use the road, but our property abuts it. We're kind of innocent bystanders. We don't need it."

They are also concerned, she said, that the county may want Algonquin widened, which could interfere with some golf course greens and trees.

Holman disagrees with the Frechettes' contentions.

"We don't believe he has a legitimate basis for the objection," said Holman. "(But it) will be decided in court."

Tots on trikes taught safety

The Clarkston Christian School and Day Care Center recently conducted bike safety lessons to encourage safe riding behavior and raise money to fight childhood cancer.

The program, designed for 2-, 3- and 4-year-olds, was sponsored by St. Jude Children's Research Hospital. The course was held on a national scale May 5-9.

The school presented basic safety rules through the week of May 19 and concluded with a "Bring a Bike Day Trike-A-Thon" on May 23. The children drove their bikes or Big Wheels through an obstacle course to show their knowledge of the rules.

According to the National Safety Council, there are an estimated 1,000 fatal accidents and 500,000 injuries a year involving bicycles.

"Bicycle accidents are a major problem with American children," said Mark Krontz, director of the center.

"Bring a Bike Day aims at making children aware of bike safety at an early age, which we hope will save our children from harm," he said.

The school also sent pledge sheets to the parents of 100 children to raise money for the hospital, which is the leading center for the study of childhood cancer.

Auditions set for Wizard of Oz

Tryouts are scheduled Wednesday, June 18, for the Clarkston Village Players' Summer Youth Theatre production of "The Wizard of Oz."

Children ages 7 through 18 may audition for the roles at noon at the Depot Theatre on White Lake Road in Independence Township.

The rehearsals have been tentatively set for Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays from 9 to 11 a.m. Tentative production dates are July 25 and 26.

For more information, call director Charlie Haskins at 625-3953 or producer Marlene Sewick at 363-0188.

Temple bid bounces back to planners

By Carolyn Walker

On Thursday evening, under a cool, June sky, parishioners of the Mt. Zion Temple gathered in prayer outside township hall.

Inside, members of the Independence Township Zoning Board of Appeals were weighing their request for a special land use permit.

The congregation, over 200 strong, was at the meeting to appeal a May 8 permit rejection by the Independence Township Planning Commission.

It took only a short while for the ZBA to unanimously decide to return the matter to the planning commission, said member and township Treasurer John Lutz.

The commission, he said, will be asked to give some "concrete reasons" why the church should not build a 52,000-square-foot building on Clintonville Road near Maybee Road.

"Chairman John Dunlop explained that we couldn't really act on what was presented," said Lutz.

When they rejected the request in a 4-2 vote, planning commission Chairman Neil Wallace cited "too significant an erosion of the tax base" as a primary reason.

Some commissioners also expressed concerns at that time that the facility's proposed 1,200 parking spaces, height and large building would not be appropriate for the residential neighborhood surrounding the 20-acre site.

The township zoning ordinance permits churches to be built in residential settings with the issuance of a special land use permit.

After the ZBA meeting, the Rev. Loren Covarrubias said the congregation intends to exhaust every avenue to see that their church is built.

"Now they have to come up with some legitimate reasons," Covarrubias said. "We were somewhat encouraged (by the ZBA's actions). We're going to follow every possible means."

The issue will be returned to the planning commission and, pending that outcome, could be appealed a second time to the ZBA, he said.

If things go unfavorably for the church, they will consider an appeal in court, he added.

Man bound over

A man charged with an attempted break-in and possession of burglar tools was bound over in 52nd District Court last Monday.

Timothy Tate Henry, 19, was freed on $1,500 bond per charge. He is scheduled to appear before Circuit Court Judge Frederick Ziem on June 20.

Henry was arrested in January while allegedly trying to break into a residence in Independence Township.

Local doctor retires after 27 years

By Julie LePere

Hospital rounds, delivering babies, and suturing summer mishaps are all a part of Dr. Alfred S. Hamilton's memories.

He has spent 27 years of his life with the people in Clarkston and the surrounding area, helping them, laughing with them, even golfing with them. But the time has finally come for him to retire.

"It's a retirement based on medical disability," said the osteopathic physician during an interview at his Grand Blanc home.

The co-founder of the Clarkston Village Clinic, which also houses the Clarkston Ambulatory Care Center, suffered an aneurysm about eight weeks ago. He was told by his own doctors that he should not return to work.

Dennis Lynch, doctor of internal medicine, "said the rigors and stresses of acute general practice were too much," Hamilton said.

Dressed in a yellow golf shirt, Hamilton's white hair and dark tan belie his illness.

"For the most part, it was 27 years of being happy to get up and go to work."

He got his tan, he said, because he had never liked just sitting. As soon as he was able, he rode in his golf cart around Warwick Hills Golf Course, the 18th hole of which provides the back yard to his condominium.

Mentioning the golf course brought back the memory of that fateful afternoon nearly two months ago.

"I played golf in the afternoon—I made 76—and felt well," said Hamilton. "I went in to have a Coke with the guys afterward. I took one sip and went home. I went to the office, and Dr. (Tarika) Dhabuwala at the Ambulatory Care Center sent me to the hospital. They made the diagnosis, and I had emergency surgery that night."

He was in the hospital six or seven days. For the next six weeks, he was not allowed to do much more than walk from room to room.

For Hamilton, being confined to his home was the worst part.

"I'm a guy that didn't miss work in 27 years, and I get one sickness and it knocks you down for the count," he said.

Born in Teaneck, N.J., he graduated from Englewood High School, New Jersey; Rockhurst College in Kansas City, Mo.; and Kansas City College of Osteopathy.

"My dad died when I was 12, and my mother was working and was transferred to Missouri. So after the service, I went to Kansas City to be with her," he said.

"I was a lab tech in Japan for a couple of years, and I was called back for the Korean War. I started the lab in Ft. Leonardwood, Mo."

After medical school, he and his partner, Dr. Ronald LePere, opened their practice in Clarkston where they were later joined by Dr. Theodore Engelmann.

"Ron and I spent 32 years together, including four years of med-school and one year internship," he said. "We built our first office in town, the gray brick building where (dentist) Gary Ushman is now."

At the time of its construction, township officials told him it was the first new commercial building in town for 40 years, he said.

"After five years, we moved to the present building on M-15," he said. "It was kind of interesting starting. We had zero patients. Of course,

Dr. Alfred Hamilton is retiring due to a medical disability, but he still plans to be active in medicine. "I'm very excited about the new plans for the (Clarkston) Surgical Center," he said. He plans to work with the developers in the design of the building.

now we have a large practice

"We started at 7:30 a.m. in the hospital doing tonsils and other surgery, and we stayed open until 9 every night.

"Of course, we had the precursor to the Ambulatory Care Center. We hired doctors to work until 10 or 11 at night.

"For the most part, it was 27 years of being happy to get up and go to work. I enjoyed working. . . . It was fun delivering several babies that grew up, and I delivered their babies.

". . . I like taking care of people. . . . I'd go on vacation, and after a week, I'd be ready to go back to work. I looked forward to going on vacation, but I was in my element at the office."

Over the years, he kept busy in several activities: past chief of staff at Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital, past president of Clarkston Rotary Club, past president of Warwick Hills Country Club, assistant tournament director at the Buick Open Golf Tournament.

"I was a member of the (Clarkston) Jaycees in the early years," he said. "I'd cook the chicken dinner for them."

He and his family lived on Overlook Drive and on Middle Lake Road in Clarkston before moving to Grand Blanc two years ago.

"The idea was not to leave Clarkston, but at that point, there were no condominiums developing there," he said. ". . . Rather than drive out here every day to golf, I moved here."

Hamilton plans to spend time with his family: his wife of 34 years, Vicci, and daughters, Linda and Kim Hux. And he mentioned his 3-year-old granddaughter, Corie.

"I've lived in a household of women all my life. I even have a female dog," he said. "I had two sisters, two daughters, even a female grandchild. That's why I have to get out and play golf with the boys."

Road face-lifts for township

The dog days of summer will also mean a bog down of traffic in Independence Township.

The resurfacing of 41 miles of county roads in 16 communities has been scheduled and August has been slated for three locations in the township.

Waldon Road will be resurfaced from the village limits to Sashabaw Road on Aug. 4-8; White Lake Road will be worked on from Dixie Highway to M-15 on Aug. 7-13; and Clarkston Road will be repaved from Flemings Lake Road to Clintonville on Aug.

13-18.

The schedule will be followed as closely as possible. Traffic will be allowed throughout construction, but will be limited to a single lane for alternating use.

Motorists are advised to seek alternate routes, said road commission Chairman John R. Gnau Jr. in a press release.

The project is being conducted under a single bond-financed $4 million contract to Holloway Construction Co. of Wixom.

Hassle-free open house

Betty Wagner

Plan an open house in spring or early summer for the graduate, a June wedding anniversary celebration or to greet friends and neighbors you have not seen during the winter months.

Set the buffet table for ease of serving with plates first, followed by the main entree, hot vegetables, salads and then silverware.

Serve breads and rolls last unless needed for sandwiches. In that case, serve next to the sandwich fillings.

Allow space for guests to rest their plates for serving ease. You may need a separate table to accommodate beverages and dessert.

Let the microwave oven help to keep food preparation quick and simple. Then you can be fresh and unhassled and enjoy your own party.

Menu

8-ounce bottle Real Lemon
1 64-ounce bottle cranberry juice
2 33.8-ounce bottles gingerale
2-3 sprigs fresh mint

Combine sugar and water in a 6 to 8 cup measure; cover and cook on high for 7 to 8 minutes, or until boiling. Boil, uncovered, for 3 minutes. Set aside to cool.

Pour in punch bowl and add juices and gingerale.

Garnish with fresh mint, if desired.

Cover; microwave at high for 5 to 7 minutes or until vegetables are just tender enough to easily insert a cocktail fork.

Refrigerate. Stir 2 to 3 times to coat. Serve as an appetizer with toothpicks or cocktail forks.

Tip: Save clean-up time and energy! Choose casserole dishes attractive enough for the buffet table so you can cook in and serve from the same dishes. Fine china may be used if it does not have rings or decorations of silver, gold or platinum.

Place onion, green pepper and butter in 5-quart casserole. Microwave at high 4-7 minutes or until vegetables are tender-crisp.

Stir in remaining ingredients except lettuce and grapes. Microwave at high 6 to 13 minutes or until heated, stirring once. Mix in lettuce and grapes.

1/4 cup butter or margarine
3 tablespoons chopped onion
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper

Pen pals meet at Toledo Zoo

By Julie LePere

After writing to their pen pals for nearly the whole year, Rosemary Lewis' second grade class finally met their Ohio friends.

Last Friday, the Clarkston Elementary pupils, accompanied by their teacher, eight volunteer mothers and their principal, William Potvin, traveled to the Toledo Zoo.

There they met their pen pals from Liverpool Elementary School, Buckeye School District.

"The kids were just so good," said Lewis. "I think they learned an awful lot. It's just a super experience."

The children exchanged pens, pencils and bookmarks. They also filled out their memory books, which included pages for autographs and spaces for names for such categories as longest hair.

Stephanie Sage, a second-grader from Clarkston Elementary, designed a button that was given to all of children involved.

The pupils raised money for the trip by participating in a read-a-thon. They found sponsors who gave them money for each book they read. They also had one large garage sale to raise money.

What to do about friend's drinking

Dear Cat Paw:

I have a good friend who is always drinking. He says he's nicer that way and he can stop if he wants to. I don't really believe him. What should I do or say?

Confused

Dear Confused:

The best defense against the emotional impact of alcoholism is gaining knowledge and achieving the emotional maturity and courage needed to put it into effect.

Al-Anon is designed for this purpose. Become involved and learn all you can.

If your friend is an alcoholic, learn to accept the fact that he is sick with an illness he cannot control.

Avoid arguing and nagging. Be willing to cooperate with his efforts to get and maintain sobriety, but do not interfere or advise.

The alcoholic has a better chance of success when the family and his friends leave him free to work out his own problems.

Your friend could use AA and you need Al-Anon. Look in the phone book for the nearest meeting. Good luck to you both!

Dear Cat Paw:

What happens if you take insulin and anti-histamines and drink a lot?

Student with a Cold

Dear Student:

The interaction of alcohol and either insulin or oral antidiabetic agents may be severe and unpredictable. The interaction may induce hypoglycemia or hyperglycemia.

The interaction of alcohol and antihistamines enhances central nervous system depression.

The best and safest rule to follow is to never mix alcohol with another drug. Check with your doctor for details.

Dear Cat Paw:

What is Antabuse? What's it used for?

Curious

Dear Curious:

Disulfiram, or Antabuse, alters the metabolism of alcohol by blocking out an enzyme necessary for the breakdown of acetaldehyde, an intermediate product of alcohol metabolism.

The adverse physical reaction is characterized by throbbing in the head and neck, flushing, breathing difficulty, nausea, vomiting, sweating, rapid heart-beat, weakness and vertigo.

The intensity of the reaction can vary from person to person and varies also with the amount of disulfiram present and the amount of alcohol taken in.

Antabuse, the trade name for disulfiram, is excreted slowly from the body, so the possibility of a reaction is present for four to five days after the last dose and in some cases longer.

Because of this reaction, Antabuse has been widely used in the treatment of alcoholism.

Send letters to Cat Paw in care of The Clarkston News, 5 S. Main, Clarkston, MI 48016.

Cat Paw author Jeanette Sanders, a Springfield Township resident, is a state certified drug abuse counselor and a member of the Clarkston Area Chemical People.

ON STAGE IN "CAROUSEL": A major role in the musical "Carousel" belongs to Independence Township resident Kevin Dennis. He provides comic intervention to the musical story of a young couple's ill-fated love. The play opens Friday, June 13, for an eight-performance run in Varner Recital Hall at Oakland University, Rochester. Dennis graduated from Clarkston High School in 1979 and from Ferris State College in 1984. He is presently studying at OU toward a graduate-level degree in vocal performance. Scotland, where golf began

By Jim Sherman, publisher

The opening and closing hole at The Old Course, St. Andrews. The small building far left is the starter shack by number 1. The starter really runs the course. The next large building is the Men's Club, or the Royal and Ancient Clubhouse. It's private, ties only, no women allowed. To the right is the pro shop and caddy shack. This view is over the 18th green. The railing, lower right, separates the 18th fairway from the street and is usually lined with visitors.

We were told, "If you want to play golf in Scotland, you have to expect to play in the rain."

Yeah, but that much, and with that much wind?

Not to complain, though. It was a great trip, golfing on some of the great courses of the world . . . scenic, historical golf courses with outstanding greens, outlandish bunkers and brogued caddies.

We split this 16-day trip in two. The first half was arranged by International Golf, a Montreal-based touring operator with 15 years experience.

In the eight days we would play four courses, Turnberry (twice), St. Andrews, Carnoustie and Gleneagles. We would stay in three hotels. Breakfast and dinner would be included in the $1,700 package along with green fees, a car and round trip air fare from Boston to Prestwick.

Caddies, drinks, and getting to Boston were not included.

Since our 4-couple group opted to extend a second eight days (when you're there, why not see more?) there were alternatives galore.

Hazel and I took four of those days to go to London. Two others in our Michigan party, Bill and Shannon Brower of Harbor Springs, took a couple days to try to find some of Shannon's ancestors in Dublin.

The other four opted for golf, with one exception. Jerry and Marsha Olrich, of Oxford, both golf just about whenever they can. So does Bucky Brower, however, his wife, Mary, doesn't play golf. She filled her days shopping and talking Bucky into going castling.

Bucky owned Brower's Dept Store in Oxford until 15 or so years ago and now manages and develops property in the Harbor Springs-Petoskey area. Bill, his son, has insurance agencies in those towns.

The Olriches own Oxford Lumber Co. in Oxford.

We all got back together in Kilmoney, Ireland, for the final four days, playing golf at Ballybunion and Lahinch. But Scotland was the magnet. Scotland, where golf was born, and St. Andrews Old Course, started in 1411 and host of the British Open 23 times. Golfers dream of, and yearn to go to, the home of golf, not because the courses are known for their outstanding playing conditions, but just because golf began there.

I'd say most golf courses in Michigan have better fairways than any we played in the United Kingdom. They've had lots of rain this year, and still the fairways are far from lush. Of course, they don't water fairways as a rule.

Carnoustie put in sprinklers two years ago and haven't turned them on since the trial run. It has rained that much. Scotland averages nearly 39 inches of rain a year, 2.4 inches in May. By comparison, Michigan averages 29 inches a year.

We played eleven rounds of golf in Scotland and Ireland, nine with rain gear; however, sometimes it was only for wind and cold.

Cancelling the trip because of terrorists and radiation scares was never seriously considered. Many people have cancelled overseas vacations, and in England the press is outspokenly critical of Americans who are avoiding them. They cite England's support of the US in Libya.

We took off from Boston's Logan airport on Northwest Orient Airlines at 8:20 p.m. and arrived in Prestwick 12 hours later. It's actually a 6 hour flight with an hour lay over in Shannon, Ireland, and 5 hour difference in time.

Each couple was given a Ford car for the week. Seatbelts are mandatory in Scotland and sweaty hands are immediate. The cars are not automatic, at least under the tour plan.

The steering wheel is on the right hand side of the car, the gear shift in the middle, and, thank goodness, the clutch is still operated by the left foot.

But, wow, is driving this very unfamiliar way scary. Streets are narrow and cars are parked facing either direction on both sides of many streets. I found it difficult just getting out of Prestwick, and when I finally did head south toward Turnberry it was by accident.

Hazel and I were also constantly getting into the wrong side of the car.

It was raining as we got to Culzean Castle, the first castle we were to see. If we hadn't made several wrong turns we would have missed it. We stopped for a tour.

General Eisenhower lived in Culzean (the 'z' is silent) Castle during WWII, and a special area on the second floor displays mementos of his life.

Before we finished the half hour drive, we were already surprised at the number of mobile home parks in Scotland. Too, individual trailers had set up house-keeping on roadsides.

Turnberry looms large and impressive as you near it. It's a 135-room Edwardianstyle hotel on a high ridge,

See "Four courses" next page

Turnberry, high on a ridge, overlooking two 18-hole courses and a par three in the foreground. It's a year around golf resort, and hosts the British Open in July.

It was built in 1906 by the Glasgow and South Western Railway. It's a very comfortable resort, unhurried.

Four courses on eight day tour offering a panoramic view of its two courses, Arran and Ailsa, which run along the Firth of Clyde. They boast of this hotel being the first one in the world built for golf. They built it in 1906.

During both world wars the hotel was taken over by the government and used as a hospital, and the courses converted into landing strips. An errant shot on number 12 of the Ailsa course could hit a runway today.

Another thing that comes into view quickly are numerous bleachers being set up for the British Open in mid-July. They are planning for 40,000 people a day, with 30,000 in seats. A tent city is also going in with underground communication and sewers.

This is 2 months prior to the open. It struck us that in America it would take maybe two weeks to do all the work.

We were scheduled to play the Ailsa course twice, but Jerry Olrich and I got on it three times. The Olriches and Bucky Brower also played the Arran as soon as they got to Turnberry.

A large rock is sometimes visible off the coast. When the tour guide was asked about the rock he said, "If you can see the rock, it's going to rain. If you can't see the rock, it is raining."

When the tour was over, I asked the golfers to rate the courses. Ailsa was number two or three for four people.

It was windy and rainy with temperatures in the mid 50's at our 10:00 a.m. tee time. Number 1, 3 and 7 were particularly bad weather-wise, and when we remarked about it to our caddy, he said, "Wait 'til we get to 10 and 11."

Regardless of the amount of rain, very seldom was there water standing. We never had water on the greens.

Turnberry, like all Scottish courses, should be played in less than 3 and a half hours, which we did. But, when the two of us played we did it in under three hours.

It's up to caddies to keep play moving. They do it by talking to each other. Another Turnberry ploy is to only allow twosomes off the first hour of the day. They set the pace.

Our second round was played under ideal conditions. No wind or rain and very few other golfers. We had a chance to look at the scenery: the waves from the Irish sea splashing on beaches and rocks, seeing Turnberry's trademark, the lighthouse between number 9 and 10, and looking back up the hill at the long, white lodge.

Turnberry is a very comfortable golf resort. Heated towel racks in the bathrooms added more comfort.

The schedule called for leaving Turnberry Monday morning and driving across Scotland to St. Andrews, 3 and a half hours. Hazel and I decided to take in Edinburgh and its castle enroute.

Finding the castle is no problem. Just look up and drive toward it. Tourists park in the heart of town and opt for various tours, but frankly, don't expect much help in Edinburgh's new tourist center. The 17-year-old counter girls act like they are bored with the whole thing.

We bought tickets for a 3-hour bus ride to the castle by way of The Royal Mile, a stretch of street that was a slum 40 years ago until some promoters got involved.

The tour guide filled us so full of myth and legend it's impossible to sort out the facts. He lied to us about witnessing a knighting in St. Giles Church, which made us skeptical of his other statements.

Nevertheless, and overlooking his considerable chiding of the English, we enjoyed the tour and Edinburgh Castle . . . particularly the view of the city from way up there. The Castle reeks of Scotland history, particularly relating to Mary, Queen of Scots.

Edinburgh is having its trouble these days with drugs. The guide said the city has the highest drug abuse in the country.

Getting out of Edinburgh isn't easy. Streets are not signed and there are very few directions to the Forth Road Bridge, which leads north to St. Andrews. We just stopped often and asked directions, taking advantage of the Scottish friendliness.

Rusack's Marine Hotel would be our base in St. Andrews. It's an old inn of 50 remodeled rooms, across a narrow street from the 18th fairway of the Old Course. Incidentally, the New Course is 60 years old.

Our tee time at the Old Course was 6:40 a.m. Frankly, we prefer early starting times.

We did not prefer the weather. The years of anticipating playing the Old Course vanished with the 50-55 mph gale. The first hole played into the wind and the next 16 had cross winds.

It was just too windy and cold to enjoy anything about it. Later Hazel and I agreed we would never play golf again under such circumstances. I could have walked off the course any time and never regretted the decision.

We had great caddies, who could probably read greens well. But, the wind moved the ball, the putter and the puttee. The wind flopped our billowed rain suits loud enough to scare the sea gulls, which were walking.

The universal cost of class A caddies in Great Britain is 10 pounds, about $16. They give one pound to the caddymaster, and they also get a tip. Our tips varied from two and a half to five pounds. A class C caddy gets 6 pounds. Caddies call this class 'bag carriers.'

The Old Course, though rich in history, is not a tough course without the wind. Late the next day we played in calm and mild conditions. We shot an 87, down 20 strokes from the prior day's play.

There is heather, and gorse, and pot bunkers for trouble, but it is not a long course, and the greens are big. Between 35,000 and 40,000 rounds are played on the Old Course each year . . . and it's closed 2 weeks in November and March and Sundays, when residents use it for a park.

Those who watched Tommy Watson lose the British Open there a couple years ago may remember his second shot on 17. Remember the drive has to go over a shed. Our 4-some played that hole with remarkable ease the second day.

That hole, and that course, like others the world over, placing the shot in the fairway does wonders for a person's game.

We feel particularly good that Jerry Olrich was able to get us on the Old Course the second time. As Bucky Brower said, "It would have been a shame to have playing in 55 mph winds be your lasting impression of St. Andrews."

His son loved the Old Course. Bill said, "This course is so great, with the different pin placements, I could play it every day."

It was just too windy and cold to enjoy anything about it. Later Hazel and I agreed we would never play golf again under such circumstances. I could have walked off the course any time and never regretted the decision.

We had great caddies, who could probably read greens well. But, the wind moved the ball, the putter and the puttee. The wind flopped our billowed rain suits loud enough to scare the sea gulls, which were walking.

Still, take away the history, and the Old Course is just another oceanside golf course . . . scenic and weathered.

The trademark of Turnberry is the lighthouse between nine and ten. Asked if the lighthouse worked, the caddy said, "Only at night" . . . a very old response to a tired question. The light is on the foundation of the fort of Scotland's first king.

While still staying at Rusack's, we drove 40 minutes to Carnoustie. The golf course is Carnoustie for all intent and purposes. It sits in the wilderness, with an out-of-place blocky clubhouse looking like an outpost in a flat field.

The British Open has been played there 3 times. Our caddy claims Jack Nicholas said the last three holes are the greatest three closing holes in the world. They ARE interesting and challenging.

If the course were in Michigan, it would not get a lot of play. Most of our courses are better. And not many of ours have an Army shooting range along side, as does Carnoustie. A burp gun does wonders on a back swing.

See "Haste ye back" next page

The clubhouse at Carnoustie doesn't look very Scottish, does it? No one showed for work before 8:00 and then it wasn't very organized. The first tee is to the left of the block fence. We wondered how it could ever host the British Open, but it did in 1953 (Hogan won), 1968 (Gary Player), and 1975 (Tom Watson).

"Haste ye back" the Scottish say

Three nights at Rusack's and on to Gleneagles for two nights. We were told over and over Gleneagles was expensive. It is, too. It was built in 1924 as a resort complex. It has 254 rooms with swimming, saunas, tennis, jogging paths, shooting school, 4 golf courses, sun and exercise rooms, as well as stores.

Signs say ties and jackets are required after 7:00. It's not enforced. However, we saw an ambulance driver put his tie on before bringing a stretcher into the hotel.

The hotel has 50 chefs and 500 employees. Goose liver pate is $40. We splurged on a gourmet dinner, and like any French dinner I've ever had all you could taste was the sauce. For two it cost $105 . . . without drinks. Our tour-paid dinner was $24 each.

We were assigned the Kings course, probably the most popular at Gleneagles. It's inland and very much like Michigan courses: hilly, green, some blind holes and very scenic. We also played it on the best day we had in Scotland for golf.

It was in Gleneagles that I made the note: Pinch me to see if this country boy was really in a place like this; gourmet dining, waiters all over the place, non-understandable menus with the English translations in italic print and kilt-clad doormen, beautiful landscaping, roving piper, and dark wood paneling. The place reeked of atmosphere.

I plan to write more about Scotland and London next week, and devote this article to the purpose of the trip, golf. So, we'll skip ahead from May 17 to May 21, the day we joined the others from Michigan in Kilarney, Ireland at Dumloe Castle, which isn't a castle but a modern looking 3-story motel.

We flew from Manchester, England to Dublin and changed planes to Shannon. About the time it took us to drive to Kilarney, my suitcase arrived at Kennedy airport in New York. I wouldn't see it for four days.

The other luggage and golf clubs came through ok. We dined that night at Foley's Seafood and Steak restaurant, then partied at Laurel's Bar . . . a singalong Irish pub. The joint was packed and the Irish tenor sang almost constantly for three hours.

The next day we drove to Ballybunion, a small town with a great links (seaside) golf course. Bill Brower rated Ballybunion the best he played and Marsha Olrich put it in a tie with Lahinch as best.

The first hole at Ballybunion is interesting. A graveyard comes in to play. Yes, it's out of bounds.

This is an old course, and we played in rather strong winds that affected our game both good and bad. However, it made the rolling sea beautiful as it washed onto the sands and rocks. Ballybunion is gaining a lot of attention in golf circles, especially since Tom Watson played it. It's a fine layout, with fine greens and not too tough rough. There's a great picture post card scene from more than half the holes.

Incidentally, Watson played Ballybunion twice and all our four caddies say they caddied for him. Same in Carnoustie. Too, the caddies all said the strong winds and Gleneagles Hotel is called the most famous of Britain's country hotels. Its 254 rooms (with two doors, one for a sound barrier) are on 610 acres of "unspoiled countryside." Being a resort hotel, there's a mixture of holidayers, business-golf sessions, shooters and weekenders. Tee times at Gleneagles are 10 minutes apart. At Carnoustie it's every 8 minutes and every 5 minutes at Turnberry.

The proshop, left, and the starter shack at Gleneagles, with the first tee of the King's Course, lower left. The starter shack was sort of copied at Indianwood in Lake Orion.

Medieval Culzean Castle, built as a fortified house rather than for comfort. It has been continually updated since 1777. There was a moat in front and the back drops off 150 feet to the sea. The first room, an armory, has 720 pistols on the wall. It's a county park now, and costs about $4 to go through.

The first tee at Ballybunion . . . cemetery to the right and the village in the distance. The village has about 2,500 people and very few shops. It's a low-key area, gaining publicity because Tom Watson played it.

rain were unusual. "We've never had winds so strong," they said, and you get the idea they say it often.

Two years ago a Robert Trent Jones course opened at Ballybunion. We played 14 holes before the cold rain and slow play got to us. It's tough. The walk from green to tee seems like a day's trip. It's hilly and the greens are really undulating.

Too, the sand has blown onto the course so much tees and fairways are being rebuilt already. The rough is very bad.

We drove to Ennis and stayed at the Old Ground Hotel that night, and were ready for Lahinch and our last day of golf.

We teed off at Lahinch in a fine rain, and right behind a busload of golfers from California. Many didn't take caddies, and of all the courses we played, caddies were more of a must at Lahinch than any other.

I believe half the holes are blind. There's absolutely no way of knowing where the par 3 sixth hole is without a caddy. It's blind and between two hills. Thus, the play was very slow. Later a Californian told us they played to the wrong hole once.

Lahinch is a fun course, except twice you have to tee off over another fairway. That's a little dangerous. It was designed in 1892 by Alex MacKenzie, a Scotsman who also designed Cypress Point in California as well as Crystal Downs in Frankfurt, Mich.

I closed-out play in Great Britain the way I started, in rain gear and stocking hat.

Flying back I asked myself if I'd do it again. The answer is no; however, I won't discourage anyone from going, and in fact, encourage golfers to play these courses.

I also encourage them to not wait 60 years. Bill Brower is about the right age at 35. He may have felt like a kid in a crowd of ancients, but has less aches and pains and will enjoy the memories longer.

The main reason I won't return is a matter of priorities. There are fine courses 10 miles away I haven't played. I've played only three of the outstanding courses in northwest Michigan.

It was great seeing and doing things we've heard about, and finding them all to be exactly as we'd learned was reassuring and fun. We certainly could have done without the wind and rain, but in retrospect even that was ok.

But we've never seen the rocky coast of Maine, the shop. Not pretentious buildings, but a great links golf course.

top third of the United States, New England, and very little of Canada. That's what I mean by priorities, in which category I include work. I enjoy that too.

Here's how the golfers in our Michigan group rated the top three courses: Bucky Brower, 1. Royal Dornoch, 2. Ailsa at Turnberry, 3. The Old Course.

Bill Brower, 1. Ballybunion, 2. Old Course, 3. Ailsa.

Marsha Olrich, Ballybunion and Lahinch tied for first, 3. Gleneagles.

Jerry Olrich, 1. Royal Dornoch, 2. Lahinch and Ailsa, 4. Ballybunion.

RIGHT: We had a corner window on the second floor of Old Ground Hotel in Ennis, Ireland. The view gives an idea of the width of the streets. Ennis is about half way between Lahinch golf course and Shannon Air Port, 30 minutes each way. One night in Ennis we took in a "traditional Irish dinner" at Bunratty Castle. For about $33 we were served wine, Irish stew, bread, potatoes and cake. It was a fun night with Irish jigs, music and narration. Bunratty also features a medieval dinner; however, early reservations paid in advance are about the only way to get in.

Looking down at the mixture of new and old architecture of Edinburgh. Far below, even below the street level, is a huge golf putting green. Barely visible is a brand new, underground shopping center in the middle of the picture. Queen Margaret's chapel within the walls of the castle date to the 11th century. The crown jewels are in the Castle along with many uniforms, medals, a dog cemetery, a dungeon, and, yes, a souvenir store. There's a half million people in the city of Edinburgh and from the castle you can see them all.

Budding writers were discovered in the Springfield Township Essay Contest, which announced its winners May 22.

The contest involved second- through eighth-grade pupils writing about the township.

First place in the senior division, for sixth-through eighth-graders, went to Kim Flowers. The runner-up was Lisa Freese. Both girls attend Springfield Christian Academy.

Their topic was "What it means to be a good Springfield Township citizen."

Hollie Foss, a Davisburg Elementary fifth-grader, won the intermediate division writing on "Springfield Township, Past, Present and Future." The second-place finisher was Holly Barber, a fourth-grader at Davisburg.

In the second- and third-grade division, Kevin Studebaker took first-place honors and second-grader Adam Cowdrey was runner-up. Both attend

First-place students were awarded trophies and reference books, while runners-up received reference books.

Flowers find niche in Clarkston

Students from the Northwest Oakland Vocational Education Center dug in and planted flowers around Clarkston last week as part of an annual class project.

About 20 members of Donna Papatheodoropoulos' greenhouse and floral design class put in new flowers in barrels throughout the town, in the park and around the tribute to Rudy Schwarze in the park.

The money for the project was taken from the village beautification fund.

Laszek Waliszewski of Utica doesn't mind this bundle. He and his children, Jacek, 4 and Agata, 6, spent Sunday afternoon at Independence Oaks during the "Good Old Summertime Family Day."

Dad's Day June 15,

... but every Sunday is dad's day for these kids

Bill Ferguson of Independence Township and his son, Lee, 2, pass through the carnival tent.

Sunday's party even brings bagpipes to the beach, and George Jantzen and Cate, 3, of Independence Township listen.

daughter Elizabeth, 2, so Mom can take a picture on Crooked Lake.
