'We're not Mayberry R.F.D.'

Citizens to study cop options

By Carolyn Walker

Can 25 gung-ho residents do what the layers of government could not?

Clarkston resident Frank Millard and his cohorts hope so. On July 1 Millard told the Independence Township Board that a 25-member private citizens' group would like to investigate law enforcement options for the township.

He asked that the township provide a meeting place and designate a representative to cover the group's activities, which the board voted unanimously to do.

There will be no costs to the township, he said. The group commends the six Oakland County Sheriff's deputies currently contracted to patrol the township, two men on each of three shifts.

But they don't feel that's enough manpower for 36 square miles, Millard said.

"I think the quality of the officers we have is excellent. We just don't have enough of them. We're not Mayberry, R.F.D.," he said, referring to the old television program about a two-officer, small town.

Millard, an attorney, member of the Clarkston Village Council, and former Pontiac police officer, presented a letter to the board citing several reasons for the proposed study.

In the letter, he noted that in 1986 the township allocated $1,457,234 for fire protection versus $340,000 for police protection.

'Most communities spend about the same for police as they do for fire," Millard said, mentioning

Musical note

The second free Concert in the Park this month features the Jim Morris Concert Band. The group will play show tunes and marches in the park on Depot Road in the village of Clarkston on Friday, July 12, from 7 to 9 p.m. The program includes "Beautiful Colorado" by DeLuca, "March on the Mall" by Goldman, "West Side Story" by Bernstein and the traditional children's march around the park. Once called the Clarkston Village Band, the Jim Morris Concert Band now visits other communities as well. Concerts in the Park are scheduled each Friday in July. The program is funded in half by the Music Performance Trust Fund through the Pontiac Federation of Musicians. The cost assumed by the Village Business Association is $1,450. To cover expenses, the business association accepts donations to the band concert fund. They also sell popcorn and soft drinks during the concerts. the anticipated doubling of township residents in the next 10 years. "We have to start building now."

Saying that previous police millage increases were defeated because the public had a "lack of knowledge about where the money's going to be spent and on what," Millard proposed bringing in informational speakers for public forums.

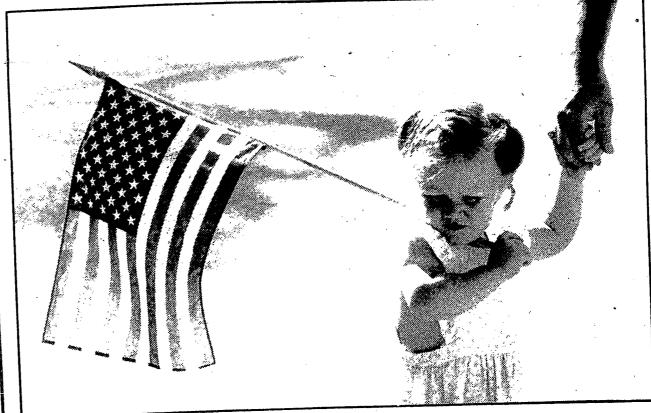

"What we propose to do is bring in experts," he said They would include speakers from the Michigan State Police, Oakland County Sheriff's Department, multi-town police departments (such as Keego Harbor and Sylvan Village share), like-size communities who have their own police forces and public safety officers.

Anticipating that the study will take a year, Millard said the group would like to make a recommendation to the board and prepare a ballot proposal in time for the 1987 police renewal.

Board members, voted unanimously to allow the group to use the township hall annex for their meetings and appointed Clerk Richard Holman as their representative.

The next stop may be Oakland County Circuit Court for Mt. Zion Temple parishioners. In a special meeting of the Independence Township Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA) Monday night, a planning commission decision to deny a special land use permit was upheld in a 4-1 vote.

The church had sought the special permit to build a 52,000-square-foot building off Maybee Road near the I-75 overpass at Clintonville Road.

Special land use permits allow churches in residential areas.

After the meeting, the Rev. Loren Covarrubias, Mt. Zion's pastor, said the congregation would probably pursue the matter in court.

He also said they would attempt to influence politics in Independence to change the "negative" treatment of religion.

The planning commission turned the church's re

No leads on suspect

The Oakland County Sheriff's Department has no leads concerning the attempted murder suspect who reportedly attacked an Independence Township boy June 21.

"We've gotten some tips, but nothing concrete," said Detective Sgt. James Manning, who is in charge of the department investigation.

According to police reports, the boy was assaulted and choked unconscious in the woods near Deer Lake Beach.

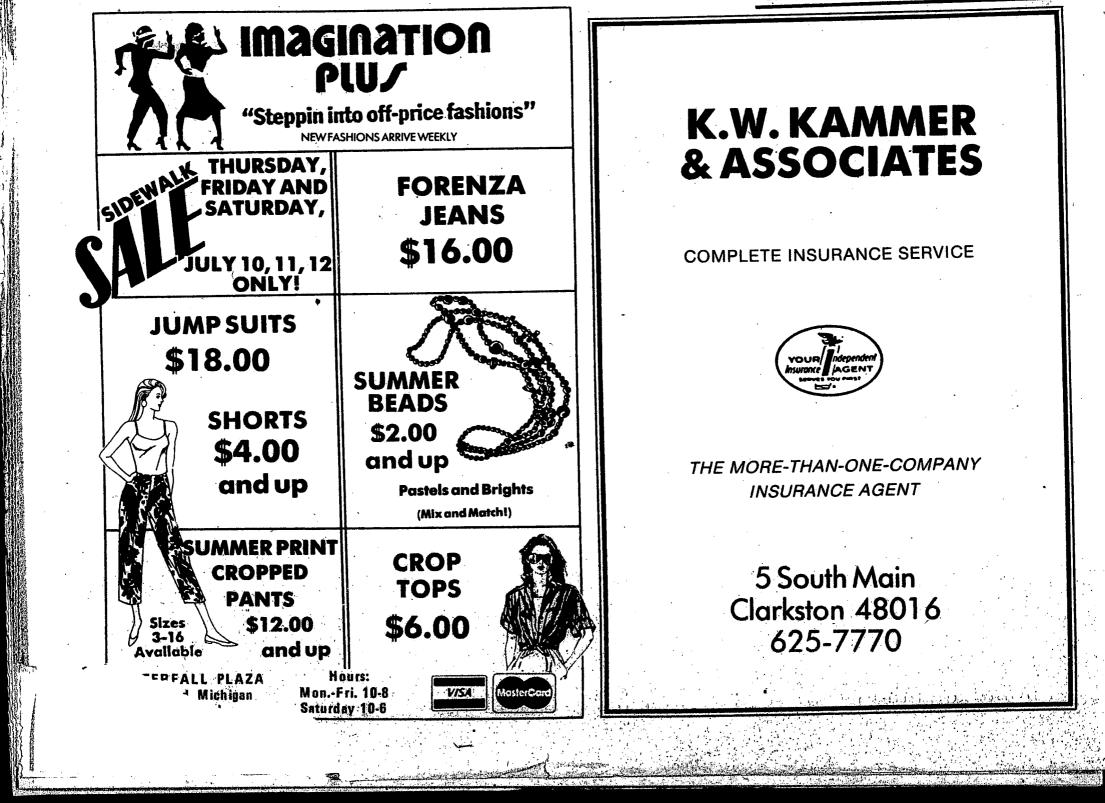

The suspect is a dark-skinned white male. possibly Mexican or Indian, 25-30 years old, 6 feet 1, 180-200 pounds with a muscular build. Outstanding characteristics are two mole-like spots on his face, one on the upper lip and the other on his lower right cheek, ' and a high-pitched voice.

911 dispatch duties go to sheriff's department

By Carolyn Walker

The Oakland County Sheriff's Department will, at least initially, answer calls for Independence Township residents when the 911 emergency system is in effect.

The Michigan State Police had offered to be the answering service for the township, but the board voted 6-1 to grant the option to the sheriff's department.

The sheriff's department has offered the service at no charge, said Supervisor Frank Ronk, who raised the matter at the July 1 meeting.

A state law prohibits the county from charging the township for the service, added Clerk Richard Holman.

Ronk recommended going with the sheriff "until such time as we might want to change."

Trustee Dale Stuart, however, disagreed with Ronk. "I have a real problem with Oakland County saying they want to do this at no cost. Every year the Oakland County Sheriff's Department (contract cost for deputies who patrol the township) goes up and up and up.

"We're re-establishing the monopoly that they already have over us," Stuart said. "I don't like what the county is doing with us on police costs."

Ronk said it could cost the township $30,000 or more to use the state police if at least six

may be extended

By Carolyn Walker

Maybe Maybee's going to get longer. The Independence Township Planning Commission proposed to the township board July 1 that Maybee Road be extended. Commission Chairman Neil Wallace attended the meeting to represent the commissioners and to recommend that the township make efforts to obtain land rights for the extension.

Citing traffic safety, Wallace suggested an elongation of the road through a field at the Maybee and Dixie traffic signal to a 50-acre parcel planned for the Landcaster on the Lakes apartment complex.

While the recently proposed 300-apartment complex brought the matter to light because of access problems, it is not the sole reason for the proposal, Wallace said.

"Landcaster's is really just coincidental to pointing out a problem to us and a possible solution," he said.

As currently proposed, Landcaster residents would use the Randy Hosler driveway and nearby Maple Road if paved.

"Dixie Highway, I think, we all recognize is bad," Wallace said. "We're asking you to consider acquiring the property (through negotiations or condemnations). We'd like to see you take action as soon as possible."

municipalities don't participate in the program as needed.

The sheriff's department won't respond as rapidly to emergencies if the state police answer the 911 calls, Ronk added.

Another option would be having the fire department answer the calls, which would necessitate the hiring of six employees, he said.

In November 1985, the township adopted a resolution of intent to participate in the 911 program, which is being organized by the county.

Under the system, residents with medical or fire emergencies would dial a specified number, their addresses and phone numbers would light up on a computer and help would be dispatched immediately by the responder.

Installation of the system is to be funded by the county at an estimated cost of $3.4 million.

Ronk said it would probably be at least a year before the system is in place.

Voting to use the county sheriff's department were Ronk, Holman, Treasurer John Lutz and trustees William Vandermark, Daniel Travis and Carol Balzarini. Trustee Dale Stuart dissented.

checked for safety by members of the Flying Rhino Cycling Club and engraved for identification purposes by the Oakland County Sheriff's Department representatives. The Optimists plan to make the program an annual event in recognition of Bike Safety Week.

The exact route of the proposed road is still to be determined but it could service two car dealerships, a furniture store, a planned Hamady's grocery store and Ritter's carwash depending on its configuration.

"What we're concerned about is that it come back in there and service (those businesses)," Wallace said. "We have a chance . . . to do something special. We just aren't going to get any other traffic control devices along that section of Dixie."

Following Wallace's presentation, the board voted unanimously to pursue a fact-finding study that would include negotiations for obtaining the land rights and the creation of a special assessment district.

The special assessment district would fund the construction of the road.

Trustee William Vandermark said the expenses should not be incurred by the taxpayers but by those who would benefit from its construction, namely the businesses and apartments.

"Nor should we bear the burden of a bad traffic problem they create," added Trustee Daniel Travis. Tornado siren move is approved Strong winds aside, it took some negotiating, a unanimous board vote and some $3,600 dollars to enable Independence Township to relocate a tornado siren.

Currently located at fire station 2 at Sashabaw and Clarkston roads, the siren will stay on the site but must be moved over to permit demolition of the station.

• Fire station 2, which has been deemed inadequate by the township fire commission, is scheduled to be destroyed after a new building is constructed on the property this summer.

The siren was originally purchased in cooperation with Oakland County, said Supervisor Frank Ronk.

Although county officials have said previously it is the responsibility of municipalities to move sirens, they have agreed to split the costs with the township, he added.

The township's share will be $1,837.

Kramer heads for California

A brief request for a trip to San Francisco led to serious debate about policies and cracks about Ohio at the July 1 board meeting.

Independence Township assessor David Kramer had asked that he be allowed to attend a three-day, international conference in California in September.

He noted that he had never been to one before and that he could learn several new ideas which would be helpful to the township assessing department.

While most of the board seemed in favor of Kramer making the trip, Trustee Dale Stuart disagreed.

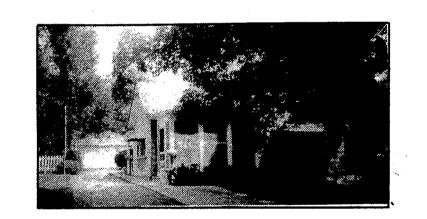

"I can't, in my mind, justify sending someone to San Francisco," Stuart said. "Some of the department heads go to conferences all over everywhere. Some go nowhere. Some are more creative in asking."

Saying that he had once been to Ohio, which was like staying in Michigan, former fire chief and current Supervisor Frank Ronk said, "All we're looking at here is the distance.'

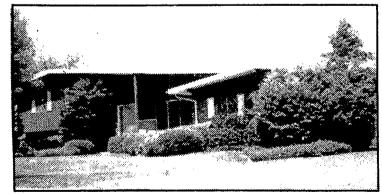

Trustee William Vandermark agreed. "I don't think we've ever been taken advantage of," he said.

The board voted 6-1 to authorize the trip, estimated to cost $1,008 including conference registration fees, air travel, meals and hotel.

Stuart cast the dissenting vote, while Ronk, Clerk Richard Holman, Treasurer John Lutz and trustees Carol Balzarini, Daniel Travis and Vandermark voted to send Kramer to the city by the bay.

quest down several weeks ago and the parishioners appealed the decision to the ZBA last month.

The ZBA has the power to decide whether or not the commission acted properly under the law.

This was the second trip before the ZBA for Mt. Zion. The first trip resulted in a request for a a written endorsement from the planning commission explaining the commission's reason for denial.

In their June 12 endorsement letter, the commissioners cited an erosion of the tax base, traffic concerns, potential burdens on public services and the size and height of the proposed structure as their reasons for denial.

Approximately 25 church members attended the ZBA meeting, which lasted over an hour. Also in the audience were Neil Wallace, chairman of the planning commission, and two commission members.

Covarrubias told the ZBA that the commission's reasoning was faulty and that the proposed facility meets township ordinance standards.

"We feel that we'll have a much better aesthetic appeal than what is there now," he said. "If you drive down Maybee all you see are washing machines. We're talking about building this church in a wasteland, really.

"We are already in the community. We're only trying to grow with the community."

Currently, Mt. Zion is located on Clintonville Road in Waterford Township near the Independence boundary line.

"None of the neighbors have even shown any interest at all . . . or expressed any dislike at all," Covarrubias said, referring to residents surrounding the 20-acre parcel.

He then went on to describe Wallace as being "belligerent" at commission meetings.

Wallace, who took exception to the remark, explained that he had always reserved his comments for last and had not influenced the decisions of other commissioners. Reiterating some of the commission's points, Wallace said, "I believe . . . you have a relatively easy decision at this time."

John Dunlop, chairman of the ZBA, then explained the functin of the planning commission.

"They do have an obligation to balance the entire community because they have to follow the master plan," he said.

members, Dunlop said, "Frankly, I'm going to have to agree with the planning commission on this one."

Dunlop said he spent hours reading and rereading the ordinance and called it a "bureaucratic maze." He then made a motion to uphold the planning commission's decision.

He also agreed with ZBA member John Lutz who suggested that the parishioners redesign their plans and return for another review.

Voting to pass the motion were Dunlop, Lutz, Brent Bair and Robert Newlin. Joan McCrary voted no without comment.

Wednesday, July 2, aluminum siding was broken on a house on Baldwin Road, Independence Township.

The above information was compiled from reports at the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

If it's a major fire or a minor oddity, we want a call at The Clarkston News. 625-3370.

Mosquitoes and watermelons have nothing in common except that they both appear in abundance in the summertime.

At my house last week, the two came together-linked forever by the key word in the sentence above, abundance.

Unlike my spouse, watermelon is low on my list of fruit favorites. Still, I try to accomodate his like of the sweet seed-filled stuff on occasion.

I was saved (or so I thought) from having two watermelons taking up all the space in our refrigerator when an alert store owner told me my husband had left her shop earlier with one of the green things.

Trouble was brewing, I knew then, because if we were shopping at the same store we probably were buying many of the same items.

We didn't duplicate the peppers (me) or the radishes (him). We had enough green grapes to feed an army, however, not to mention the cantelopes and plums.

I was soothed with thoughts of just one watermelon . . . until my parents arrived with another one.

In what can only be described as the ultimate happy ending, they took one home.

All of that was rather amusing; not so the mosquitoes.

In our joint wisdom, we decided to wash upstairs windows last weekend on one of the hottest days of the summer.

One of the windows needed to be recaulked. We kept the screen out so the putty could dry and be painted before repeating the ordeal of getting it in and out.

The missed clue was a comment from a family member about the great number of mosquitoes in our house the next night.

I didn't catch it because I had been feeding mosquitoes all day every time I approached a shaded area in our tree-filled yard.

The next night, buzzing in my year woke me up. I will never forgive mosquitoes for that annoying trick.

The next morning, the reason for the middle of the night swarm became clear when I found the screenless window wide open behind its curtain covering.

Since then, I have been surveying members of the family so I'll know who needs to be told there is no screen on the window. So far, Not Me is to blame.

ed to remain anonymous because, she said, "I know all of the mothers feel the same way. She's just a super teacher."

Several days before school started, the students each received a personal letter from Rosemary and an invitation to visit the classroom with his or her parents before school started:

"It was the beginning of something great," said one mother.

From that moment forward, the children have experienced many memorable times.-

Recently, the pupils traveled to the Toledo Zoo to meet their pen pals from Liverpool Elementary School.

"The trip was the biggest thing this year." said Rosemary. "I think the children will always remember that trip.

They have visited other places as well: Greenfield Village to see a play of the "Wizard of Oz"; Indian Springs Metropark Nature Center to complement their science unit on nature; and the Flint weather station to highlight their weather unit.

"All this isn't possible without the support of Mr. Potvin (principal) and the parents and the other teachers," she said.

Nonetheless, it was Rosemary's own motivation that brought praise from her pupils and their parents.

"I would have to say the children (are what I like most about teaching)," she said. "It's a challenge. . . . No two days are the same. The opportunity to grow is always there.'

'I totally agree

io the ed

I am writing because I totally agree with the letter in last week's paper regarding the girl from Clarkston High who was not going to be allowed to register because her candy money wasn't turned in.

I graduated from Clarkston High this year and I can tell you firsthand that one, the students were notified that their money was to be turned in by a certain date; and two, the students knew this and most had enough responsibility to turn it in by that date.

I do not think it is unfair to deny students the chance to register for classes because they have outstanding debts.

All they have to do is pay the debt and register later. (Even if it was later than the other students, that student would be allowed to register.)

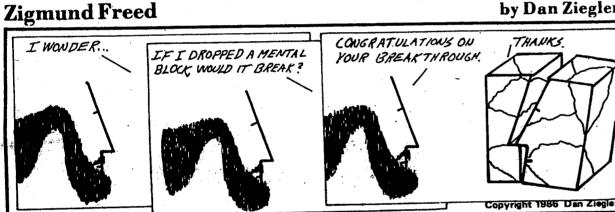

We do not receive our report cards or cap and gown if we owe money for books or library fines. Why should registration be any different?

I think the parent in this case overreacted.

Responsibility must be taught at home because it is expected of you at school.

The only thing our school system is guilty of in this case, I think, is that they are trying to teach this particular student that there are responsibilities out there in the real world and you had better start learning about them now.

I tried to restore the bread to loaf shape before my wife saw it. For the first of two times so far this year, my plus was noned. That bread was gooey, almost wet. It refused to be decompressed. Too many laws

Things should be so simple.

God, who had a quality plan, laid down 10 rules for mankind to follow which he knew would make for good, honest living.

If followed properly, the Ten Commandments as they are commonly called, would free mankind from such social plagues as murder, theft, rape, lies and envy while placing glory and praise in God's lap, right where they belong.

They mandated, as well, that we honor God and put no others before him.

Mankind, however, thought he could go God one better:

He invented the ordinance, the amendment, the vote and the lawyer and then he put a label on them: Democracy. Its goal: to make mankind free.

Freedom included the right for mankind to worship the God of his/her choice. Ironic isn't it?

Over the years, democracy and organized religion have become very complicated concepts; complicated to the point of confusion.

On Monday night, Chairman John Dunlop of the Independence Township Zoning Board of Appeals, labeled the township's ordinance governing churches a "bureaucratic maze."

He was addressing the parishioners of Mt. Zion Temple, who had come to the meeting to have a decision previously made by the planning commission overturned.

That decision denied them a special land use permit which would enable the building of a large church facility off Maybee Road.

Dunlop's statement suggests that we have wound ourselves so deep in red tape that we cannot see our way free of it.

If we have made a "bureaucratic maze" out of our own laws, we have made an even worse mess out of God's.

Somehow, we have taken one God and given him many names. We have expanded his 10 laws into thousands and have selected to follow those which are convenient to us and to ignore, or at least amend, those which are not.

Adding to these disgraces, we have created doctrines, denominations and "non-denominations" around him and built church after church for the purpose of worshipping him.

Those of us who call ourselves Christians say we worship with the same God in mind. But we do so with walls between us.

Remember the old jokes about small towns with bars or gas stations on every corner?

Sometimes I am amazed when I drive through Independence and look at all the churches devoted to the serving of the Christian God.

There is one road in Independence where two churches sit side by side. One can assume their parishioners do not.

Almost two thousand years ago, Jesus Christ attempted to condense God's Ten Commandments and make them easier for us to follow.

He said in Matthew, Chapter 22, verses 37-39: Love the lord your God with all your heart and with all your soul and with all your mind. This is the first and greatest commandment.

And the second is like it. Love your neighbor as vourself.

While God told Christians to worship together and to spread his word throughout the world, he didn't, as near as I can figure, mention doctrine. He didn't mention denominations. He didn't mention discord over buildings or special land use permits. He mentioned love.

Things should be so simple. And yet they are so difficult.

Suit filed by Kirchgessner's widow

By Julie LePere

A wrongful death lawsuit has been filed against Patrick Gorrie in connection with the March plane crash that resulted in the death of Clarkston High School principal John Kirchgessner.

Anthony Palazzola is also named in the suit, but his name may be withdrawn, said Frederick Bellamy, attorney for Kirchgessner's wife Janis.

"We may not serve Palazzola depending on how the events turn up," said Bellamy.

The lawsuit against Palazzola was based on information that was incorrect, said Bellamy.

In part, one reason they may withdraw the suit is Palazzola was not the pilot on the day of the accident, he said. The lawsuit lists him as pilot of the Cessna 172

If the Palazzola lawsuit is withdrawn, the lawsuit will also be withdrawn against The 107th Flying Club, owner of the Cessna 172, Bellamy said.

On March 2, a Cessna 152 flown by student pilot Gorrie of Ortonville crashed in midair with the Cessna 172 carrying Kirchgessner and Palazzola. The crash occurred near the Oakland-Pontiac Airport in Waterford Township.

Gorrie and Palazzola suffered serious injuries

Janis Kirchgessner filed the lawsuit on behalf of the estate of her deceased husband last week in Oakland County Circuit Court.

She is seeking $10,000 plus attorney fees and expenses from Gorrie and Tradewinds Aviation, the owner of Gorrie's plane. The suit also seeks $10,000 plus expenses from Palazzola and The 107th Flying Club.

The lawsuit names Gorrie negligent in the operation of his aircraft by:

•Flying so close to another aircraft as to create collision hazard;

•Operating aircraft in a manner that interfered with his ability to see other aircraft;

•Failure to alter course and failure to yield the right of way to the other plane while that plane was below his on the final approch to landing;

•And operating aircraft at an unsafe speed and contrary to air traffic control instructions.

Under owner's liability statute, the suit also names Tradewinds.

The lawsuit makes similar charges against Palazzola and The 107th Flying Club.

A family member, speaking for Palazzola, declined comment.

The jury trial was assigned to Judge David F. Breck. A court date will not be assigned for several months, said a court spokesperson.

Party store fined

Dixie Party Store was fined $125. at a Michigan Liquor Control Commission hearing June 4.

The store, located at 8774 Dixie Highway, was charged with selling alcohol to a person under 21 years of age on Nov. 21, 1985.

Commissioner Alex Laggis levied the fine, which has been paid.

The store has been licensed at its present location since June 1985 and the infraction was a first offense.

Township wants to sell acreage to county

By Carolyn Walker

Having diverted a mining operation with the purchase of 40 acres off Sashabaw Road, Independence Township is now ready to sell 20 of those acres to Oakland County.

The 40 acres were obtained for $3,300 per acre, from the Edward C. Levy Mining Co. in 1985, according to Supervisor Frank Ronk.

Levy had planned to mine gravel at the site and the township's purchase came after five years of negotiations with the company.

When the acreage was bought it was anticipated that the back 20 acres would be turned over to the county for addition to the Independence Oaks County Park, which adjoins the parcel.

The county has offered the township $2,375 per acre, Ronk said.

Township attorney Gerald Fisher suggested that the board seek more money per acre from the county since the land was purchased with the county in mind.

But board members expressed fears that the deal would fall through if they pressed the county for more money.

Also suggested was the possible sale in the future of the remaining 20 acres, which front on Sashabaw, in two or three separate parcels. They took no action on that proposal.

In a 6-0-1 vote, the board agreed to sell the property to the county at the offered price.

Voting to approve the sale were Ronk, Clerk Richard Holman, Treasurer John Lutz and trustees Carol Balzarini, Dale Stuart and William Vandermark. Trustee Daniel Travis, a trustee on the Oakland Parks Foundation, abstained.

Drugs in Clarkston:

By Chris Gerbasi

In a span of two weeks:

•Maryland basketball star and pro pick Len Bias died of a cocaine-induced heart attack.

•Cleveland Browns football player Don Rogers died of a cocaine-induced heart attack.

•Detroiter David Braxton was stripped of his North American Boxing Federation title when he admitted to using cocaine the day of a fight.

•Detroit Red Wing Bob Probert was arrested at a bar after a scuffle with police. Probert had been drinking and it was not his first brush with the law. He will enter rehabilitation for his drinking problem.

Just four incidents, but in just 14 days. Four athletes who had reached a goal-the professional ranks. Athletes in peak physical condition. Athletes who used drugs.

It's no secret drugs are everywhere in American society. Where the problem will end is as difficult to answer as where it began. But it will continue and it will continue in sports, where athletes were once thought to be above abusing their bodies. And it will continue in Clarkston.

> "Sometimes students make wrong decisions. Because of that, they jeopardize their athletic career."

Coach Walt Wyniemko

Studies at the University of Michigan show that 93 percent of teenagers will at least experiment with alcohol by the time they graduate and two-thirds will experiment with marijuana.

"I don't think there's any more or any less (use) here than in any community in this country," said Linc Smith, one of the coordinators of SEARCH, Support Education Awareness Resources for Chemically-free Health.

SEARCH has counseled many students, as well as adults, since its inception at the high school last September. Some have problems, some are just looking for information. Some of those students have been athletes.

"I don't think they're any better or any worse (off)," said Smith, He also said that athletes are "absolutely not" less susceptible to drug use.

> "Most people in Clarkston are respectable. Some people like to go out and party, but they don't get crazy." -Athlete Michelle Taulbee

Some people believe otherwise. The demands on an athlete's time, aside from the physical requirements, might indicate that they simply don't have time for drugs at the high school level. Training, practice and games run virtually year-round.

"Athletes are expected not to do it," said Clarkston football and track coach Walt Wyniemko. "When something happens, you're surprised. We have a number of athletes here who work hard to get their body in shape and they're very prone not to take drugs.'

"There are a lot of kids into sports at Clarkston," said basketball and volleyball player Michelle Taulbee, an '86 grad.

"They'd rather be in sports than do drugs," she said. "We're busy at practice, we have something to do, we have goals. Maybe some who don't have anything to do might hang around with the wrong crowd.'

Still, Wyniemko has had to discipline some athletes for drug and alcohol use. The high school policy is to suspend anyone caught with alcohol or drugs for the remainder of the season. At the junior high level, a first offense brings a two-week suspension, for a second offense the athlete is kicked off the team.

"Sometimes students make wrong decisions," said Wyniemko. "Because of that, they jeopardize their athletic career."

"Mainly the suspensions are because of alcohol," said athletic director Paul Tungate. "I don't think it's a major problem (at the junior highs). From an athletic standpoint, if we get to the bottom of the alcohol problem, the drug problem is pretty well in hand at the high school level, with athletes anyway. I can't speak for the student body."

"It's mostly alcohol," said track athlete Keith Krupp. "I know a few (athletes) who drink, not many who are into other drugs. I don't see it as a problem.'

"Most people in Clarkston are respectable," Taulbee said. "Some people like to go out and party, but they don't get crazy."

Wyniemko is a firm believer in expelling players from teams and he hopes the rule serves as a deterrent to drugs for athletes. SEARCH has increased drug awareness through presentations to the entire high school. Next school year, Tungate hopes to crack down harder on drug users.

> "Sometimes you hear rumors and you pass them off as rumors. Now if we hear rumors, we're going to check into them more and try to get to the bottom of them."

-Paul Tungate Athletic Director

"Sometimes you hear rumors and you pass them off as rumors," he said. "Now if we hear rumors, we're going to check into them more and try to get to the bottom of them.

"The public is demanding that we do something and who better to start with than the high school athlete."

in preparation for a race, as does Steve Himburg.

Himburg travels 60 to 70 miles a week through the streets of Clarkston when he's in training for a long-distance wheelchair race.

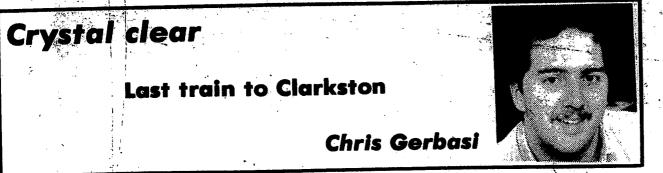

Himburg has participated in wheelchair events the past four years and he raced to five second-place finishes at the recent regional qualifying games in Troy. He qualified for the national meet in the 1500-, 800- and 400-meter pushes along with the 100M and 200M dashes, but Himburg considers himself a distance racer.

He got into the sport while living in California before moving back to Clarkston last year. He had previously taught in Clarkston for 10 years.

"It's a good way to stay in shape," he said. "It's a good, competitive sport and you meet a lot of nice people. I got involved, enjoyed it and I've been doing it ever since."

[See HIMBURG, Page 16]

My namesake, St. Christopher, is the patron saint of travelers and my travelog has brought me to Clarkston.

I come by way of the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor, where the streets are paved with gold for lawyers, doctors and engineers. But not always for sportswriters.

I don't want to badmouth the school's communication department, because there have been some famous communicators to come out of U of M. But one of my journalism teachers was Diane Hofsess.

She's gone on to fame and fortune as the Yours Truly columnist for The Detroit News, the second saddest excuse for journalism I've ever seen. It was worse when Matt Beer wrote it.

I'm not worried about libel here because the courts would back me up. When the school publicizes its more successful graduates, does Hofsess make the list? Right there between Mike Wallace and Eli Zaret?

Anyway, I persevered and now I fill up the tank each day in Livonia and trek up Telegraph.

Here's a guide to the Gerbasi World of Sports and Travel:

BASEBALL: A great game to watch on television when you're out of the room. You can leave the room with the count 1 and 1, grab a snack, take care of phone calls, nature calls, write a novel and get back in time for the 2-2 pitch.

FOOTBALL: For some reason, the Lions are my favorite Detroit sports team. I live and die with them. Unfortunately, there's a very real possibility that they will not play in a Super Bowl during my lifetime.

HOCKEY: See BOXING. Every time the puck goes into a corner, a fight breaks out:

GOLF: The most frustrating sport because you have no one to blame but yourself. I gave it up three years ago and I'm a saner man for it.

COLLEGE BASKETBALL: The college playoff tourney is the most exciting sports event around. No other series of games produces as many dramatic confrontations time after time.

PRO WRESTLING: As long as there is a breath in me and I have some say in the matter, there will not be a pro wrestling story on the sports page.

BOWLING: What can be said about people who hang around alleys and rent shoes?

BOXING: When the most famous people in the game have a shaved head and a fright wig, the sport is in trouble. I get the feeling the same people who run pro wrestling also run boxing.

JOE FALLS: I won't say anything because I may be asking him for a job someday.

CLARKSTON SPORTS: An amazing program which has produced a large number of fine professional, college and high school athletes for the size of the district. Somebody's doing something right.

DAVISBURG: A small town. Davisburg has a post office and a Coke machine. The Coke machine's broken

CLARKSTON: One of those Mayberry-type towns. I keep expecting a kid named Opie to run into the office and say Goober's blocking traffic on Main Street. That's not a putdown because I could also expect Aunt Bea to drop in with lunch or to shoot the breeze with Floyd the Barber. Not a bad spot to get a tuneup for the long haul.

Himburg

And doing it well. At 41, Himburg is the oldest. competitor in his class, but far from the least competitive.

Athletes are classified according to their disability and Himburg is in the quadraplegic class. He broke his neck 12 years ago diving into a swimming pool. He has about 20 percent use in his right hand and 80 percent in his left hand.

"I've never won a marathon, but I've won some 10K races," he said. "I'm probably average to aboveaverage in my class."

Himburg's best finish in the national event was fifth in both the 800- and 1500-meter pushes. This year's nationals will be staged at the University of Illinois in the fall, but Himburg will bypass them to concentrate on the Detroit Marathon.

He trains in the quieter subdivisions of town in a lightweight racing chair with racing wheels. The equipment is a $2,000 investment, plus the cost for the stickum he applies to his gloves.

"Remember the stuff (pro football player) Lester Hayes used to use? This is the same stuff," Himburg said.

The Detroit Marathon starts in Windsor and ends on Belle Isle. Through the tunnel Himburg will reach speeds of 30 miles per hour.

"In the Boston Marathon guys come down the hills at about 45 miles per hour. That's suicide," he said.

Himburg will compete in two or three marathons and about 10 other events in a year.

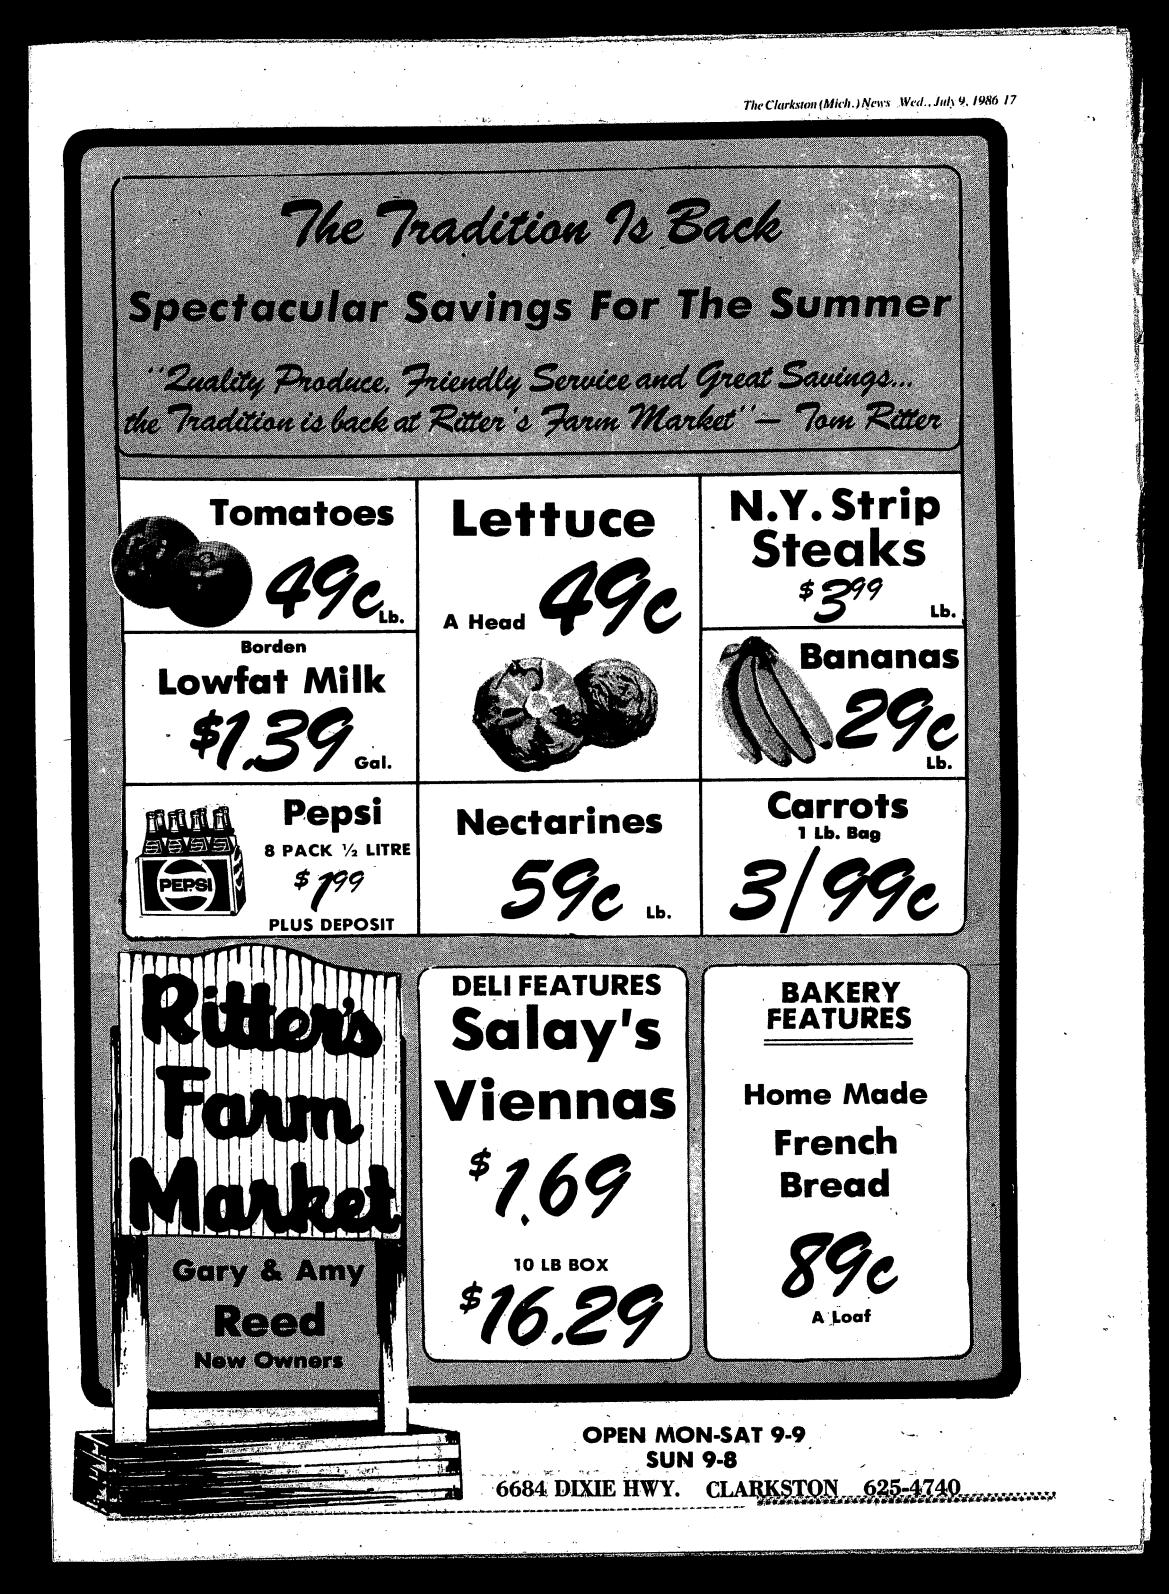

He moved back to Clarkston because it's a "better place" than California to raise his two sons. He does volunteer work at Clarkston Junior High and in the fall will coach the football team.

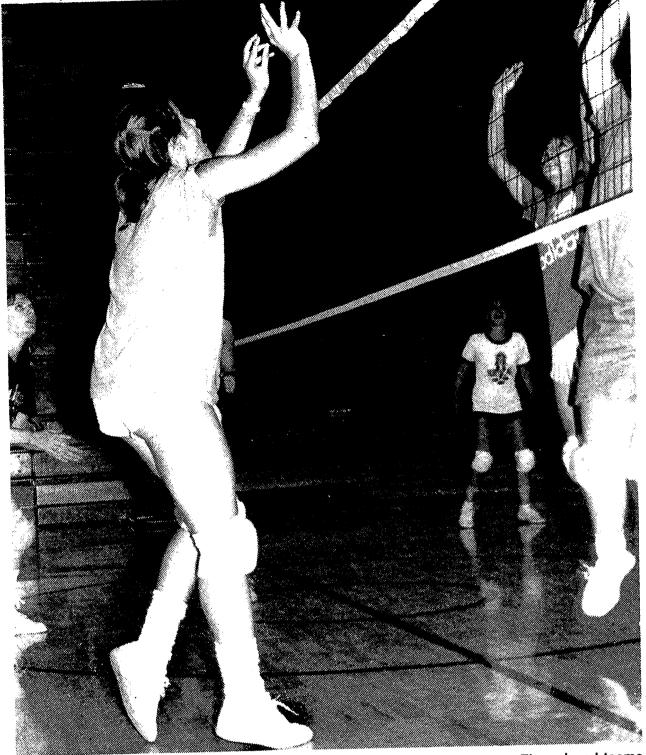

"I was worried about that (the kids' reaction to the wheelchair)," said Himburg. "But the kids know me from school. We've had some meetings and training. There's some curiosity, of course, and we've talked about it.

"I think after a while, people forget about it. The wheelchair fades into the woodwork.

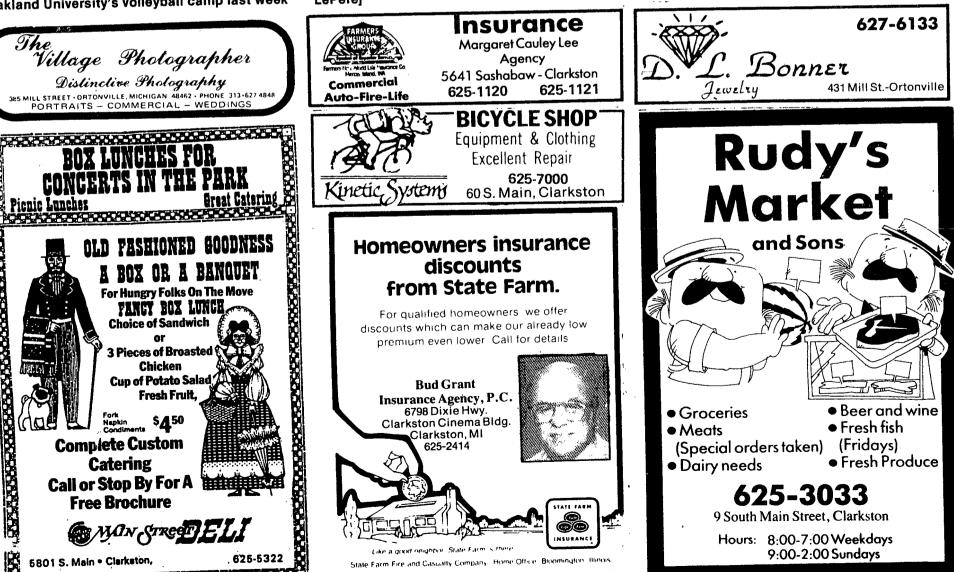

SUMMER VOLLEYBALL: Wendy Cohoon is a setter for the Clarkston High School volleyball team. Some of the team members went to Oakland University's volleyball camp last week

Taulbee helps AAU volleyball team to 18th at nationals

By Chris Gerbasi-

Michelle Taulbee juggled basketball and volleyball pretty well during her career at Clarkston. She made numerous post-season all-star teams in both sports, but with her graduation this year came the question of where to play next.

'I did have my mind made up for Wayne (State for basketball)," she said. "Then I heard Ferris (State) was looking at me for volleyball. I have a brother at Lake Superior State and my mom thought I might want to go there.'

So now it's up in the air, like one of her 20-foot set shots or spike kills.

Taulbee didn't play a spring sport at Clarkston, so she joined an AAU volleyball team. The team was composed of some of the finest players in the area, such as all-staters Karen Marshall of Birmingham Seaholm and Debbie Bryant of Pontiac Catholic, and was guided by Oakland University coach Bob Hurdle.

"This is a very strong club," said Hurdle. They showed their strength in four tournaments by finishing first, second and third twice.

'We're expected to go pretty far in the nationals," said Taulbee before last week's national tournament in Chicago.

The team lived up to expectations with an 18thplace showing out of 68 teams in their age group.

"There were a lot of tough teams," Taulbee said. "A team from California was about the top team there, but they've been playing for a long time. We're just starting out and they were surprised we did so well. There were a lot of college coaches interested in our whole team."

The coaches couldn't talk directly with the players and Taulbee is still weighing her options.

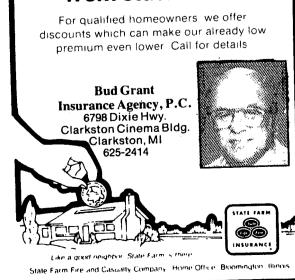

She may get a volleyball offer from South Carolina and Macomb Community College offered her a full ride, but she wants to go to a four-year college. Oakland CC wanted her badly for basketball, but most of the other basketball opportunities were out-of-state.

One factor which could influence her is the school's art program, since she is interested in commercial and studio art.

Lobbyist Kammer likes fast pace

By Julie LePere

Last week was the wrap-up week for the state Legislature. It was the week before summer break, a week of long meetings and end-of-the-year sessions that sometimes lasted until 2 a.m.

It was the kind of week that found lobbyist Kerry Kammer rushing from meeting to meeting, from his home in Springfield Township to Lansing to his family's Clarkston insurance business, still loving every minute of it.

"These last few months, it has been pretty intense up in Lansing," he said after a breakfast meeting and before a lunch meeting. "Most of the activity takes place behind the scenes."

A typical day for Kammer during the "busy season" begins at 7:30 a.m. when he leaves his house for the more-than-an-hour drive to Lansing.

While there, he may stop at the office of a particular legislator, then visit a committee chairperson to see how a project is going. He may attend a committee meeting, hoping to find any possible amendments to bills concerning his clients.

He also has to round up votes for amendments and bills. If he still has the time or the need, he might sit in on the Senate session at 10 a.m. or the House session at 2 p.m.

"Five p.m. is the end of the Legislature, but it's the beginning of fund raisers," he said.

Sometimes he attends the fund raisers.

"After that, I head home," he said.

He seems an old pro at the workings of government. His interest in the system began a long time ago, he said.

"My family's always had a strong interest in . . . government. Because of that, I've probably developed my interest," he said.

With a major in English and a minor in political science, Kammer managed the campaign of a congressional candidate when he was fresh out of college. So began his political career.

Working with his family in their insurance business during college and afterward, he was voted clerk for the city of Pontiac in 1972.

In 1974, he was elected to the state Senate, beating a 24-year incumbent. In 1982, he ran for governor, and, losing, turned to the private sector, where he's been ever since.

As a lobbyist, he handles the business of five K-12 school districts, Oakland Community College, Oakland County Parks and Recreation, Calvin County Board of Commissioners, and a few private sector companies.

When he's not in Lansing during the busy season, he meets with his clients. He has no future political aspirations at the present, he said.

"I'm enjoying what I'm doing," he said. "In terms of our businesses, we'd like to see them grow and prosper, and I hope the economy stays helathy."

Through all of the hustle and bustle of hard work, Kammer seems contented with his life.

"It's very comfortable working in the Clarkston community," he said. "It's a very fine place to live. I'm near my friends, my family. My kids go to Clarkston Elementary School. It's just a nice situation."

At home are his wife, Carole, and their children: Shea, 11; Claire, 8; and Nora, 6.

He spends time with them, and he likes to fish, hunt and golf.

He was the state bass champion in 1982, and last February, he was appointed to the state's National Resources Commission.

Kerry Kammer, Springfield Township resident and lobbyist, enjoys his involvement in state politics as well as his hobbies of fishing, hunting and golf.

Rezoning paves way for condo project on Clarkston Road

By Carolyn Walker

Trustee William Vandermark maintained his staunch opposition to the Hahn/Walker[®] condominiums, but the board voted 4-3 to approve a rezoning request for them in a second reading July 1.

Two readings are required under the township's charter status when zoning changes are made. A first reading and 4-3 approval was conducted in June.

The approval changes the 8.5-acre site from rural residential to single family dwelling status, which will permit more units per acre.

At the June meeting, developer Frank Walker and his partner William Hahn agreed to decrease the number of proposed condos from 34 to 28.

The density of the project, which is proposed for Clarkston Road across from Clintonwood Park, had been a source of contention with the township.

Walker and Hahn intend to return to the township planning commission where they will request further rezoning for a Planned Unit Development (PUD.)

A PUD permits varied uses on a single parcel of land.

New ramps are to replace the steps at Robertson Court and Clarkston Road in the village.

The village council's approval of the change followed the Independence Township Board's decision to construct a bike path connecting village sidewalks with an existing path east of the township library.

The village will pay about $4,200 of the cost, estimated at $6,200.

The ramps will be built by village employees with $3,600 from the Tri-Party Fund, which includes $1,200 each from Oakland County Road Commission, the Village of Clarkston and Oakland County Board of Commissioners.

The additional cost will be covered by the village from an approximate $3,000 county tax rebate.

MATS CLARKSTON MUND Burek pins hopes on (ston

By Kathy Greenfield

As he begins his new position as Clarkston High School's principal, Dr. Robert Burek keeps memories of the past nearby.

Two days after starting the job on July 1, much of his memorabilia is in place.

A button collection, the pin-on kind, takes up a permanent corner of his desk; the walls are filled with everything from framed philosophical quotations to a Central Michigan University shield; and groupings of photographs display his family (wife Sally and their daughters, Melissa, Amy and Wendy), friends and former co-workers.

"I'm a great person for nostalgia and tradition," he says. "I guess that's part of (the reason for) the button collection."

The buttons have been gathered during his years as an educator. Each one carries memories, and he shares a few.

The "Care Bear" button symbolizes a program called "Our Community Cares" at Grand Blanc High School when parents, educators and community members worked to address problems of substance abuse.

One button was fashioned by hand to emphasize point during a Michigan State-University of Michigan rivalry debate.

Another says "Celebrate '84," an aftergraduation party at Grand Blanc High School that was a resounding success.

Many of the memories revolve around Grand Blanc High for good reason.

A resident of the Flint suburb since age 5, Burek graduated from the high school, went on to Central Michigan University for bachelor's and master's degrees and returned to Grand Blanc to teach.

During his 21 years on the school staff, he was a teacher and coach, an assistant principal and principal from 1972 to 1984.

In 1972, he received his educational specialist degree from Michigan State University; and in 1982, he received his doctorate degree from MSU.

Two years later, he left Grand Blanc to become superintendent of Linden Community Schools, a post he held for a year. After a year's time, I really decided I wanted to get back into the high school arena," he says. "I came back mainly because I missed teenagers.

He accepted a high school principal's position at Goodrich High School, and stayed a year before accepting the Clarkston High School post.

"I wanted to return to the big high school situation," he says.

Clarkston's school population of about 1,600 is smaller than Grand Blanc's 2,100, but Grand Blanc houses ninth-graders and Clarkston begins with 10th grade.

The similarities appear to be many, says Burek. The beginnings of new memories scattered

On Dr. Robert Burek's desk are buttons, photographs and a nameplate dated 7-1-72, the year he first became principal of Grand Blanc among the old in his office speak to that theory.

Flower arrangements were gifts from the women in the office, the CHS teaching staff and the district's curriculum director, and many people have sent personal notes.

"I'm really pleased with the way people have gone out of their way to extend a note of welcome," says Burek

He's also found Clarkston, like Grand Blanc, to be a "community positive about education" and "an attractive area to live."

"In the two or three areas I applied, this one was certainly the most attractive," he says. "I was very impressed with the interviewing team . . . everyone was so enthusiastic about the school system and the high school, and that was attractive.'

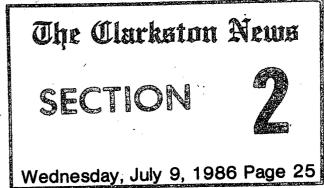

It's too soon to have developed plans for the future at CHS, Burek says, but he's willing to talk about his philosophies.

Academics come first, with student activities close behind. A strong extracurricular program gives students "a purpose and a motivation," he says.

High School. Exactly 12 years later, on 7-1-86, he became principal of Clarkston High School.

Students should be involved in decision-making at their high school, he says, because: "It's their house.'

And "our purpose in education is to provide for the full and total development of young people to prepare them for the society in which they enter-so academically, socially and intellectually they are prepared for the world they face."

Devereaux on job at Andersonville as the elementary school's principal Andersonville's new principal is Sharon K. Devereaux. She replaces William Neff, who will be a full-time central office administrator in charge of K-12 education.

cipal began her official duties last week with a smile and a look of determination on her face.

"I'm very enthusiastic about education," she said. "I think it's a natural love for me."

An elementary principal for 10 years, she has also taught grades one through eight and nursery school, directed nursery school and worked as a reading therapist.

After receiving her bachelor's from Siena Heights College, Adrian, she received her master's degree from Oakland University, Rochester, in reading instruction.

Currently, she is a Ph.D. degree candidate in educational administration at Michigan State University, East Lansing, and expects to graduate in June 1987.

When Devereaux talks about her career, it's apparent that she enjoys her work.

"I love elementary education," she said. "That's can help a child be successful in the cognitive, that will affect their self-esteem."

Born and raised in Detroit, she now lives in Royal

Oak. The 40-minute drive to work is no problem.

"It's a pleasant drive, the country roads in com-parison to the city roads," she said.

That country atmosphere also makes the school more attractive.

"I think Andersonville has one of the most beautiful playgrounds I've ever seen. That must be nice for the children," she said.

After meeting the staff briefly during the last week of school, and having met a few parents and all of the administrators, she is full of anticipation. "Everyone is warm and friendly," she said. "It's very nice for a new person coming in. . . . I really feel as if the people have extended themselves to me.

"I'll be most anxious in the last part of August to meet the children."

Our Compliments To The Chef. And All The Staff Who Keep Meals On Wheels Rolling.

About two decades ago, a group of some very enterprising people first opened the doors to what has ever since been a favorite local eatery.

In that time, not a whole lot has changed in the way they run things. The menu's simple. But the food is always hot, fresh and wholesome. A lot of the staff works for free. And most provide their own cars and gasoline so the operators can still offer home delivery.

And, as it's always been over the years, they've never once made a red cent to show for it all. But they did manage to make firm believers out of us. They're Meals on Wheels, after all So while it is not surprising that they are not in business to make a profit, they still have to pay their bills like everyone else to stay in business. Otherwise, hundreds of homebound senior citizens and hundreds more lessfortunate people might go hungry every day. So when they fed us the facts on their cash-flow problem, we gave them the line of credit they needed to keep things rolling. Not just because we're bankers. But because, more importantly, we're part of the community. You see, at First of America Bank we think non-profit organizations like Meals on Wheels, who make sure that those in need do not go hungry, are something everyone will eventually profit from some day.

Were Community Banks First.

Walk Michigan

Walkers, runners or hikers have a chance to participate in the Walk Michigan on July 12 at Clintonwood Park. A pancake breakfast and scavenger hunt are also planned for the day.

The $3 all-you-can-eat breakfast includes pancakes, eggs, hash browns, sausage, juice and coffee. Sponsored by the Independence Township Senior Citizens, it starts at 9 a.m.

The walk and scavenger hunt begin at 10:15 a.m. and are free. A grand prize drawing of all the entrants will determine the winner of a free three-day trip for two to the Mackinac Hotel on Mackinac Island. The winner will spend three days, two nights beginning Sunday, Aug. 31, and ending with the Bridge Walk on Labor Day.

Designed to promote good health and spotlight Michigan recreational opportunities, the program is sponsored by Blue Cross Blue Shield and the Michigan Recreation and Park Association.

The park is located on Clarkston Road. For more information or to register, call 625-8223.

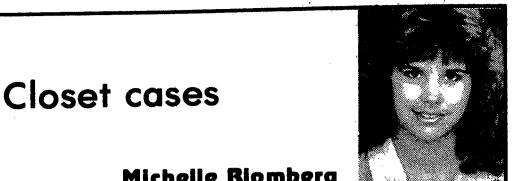

Sign up for soccer

Young soccer lovers have now to July 18 to sign up for fall/spring soccer leagues.

The fall season begins the week of Aug. 18 on Mondays and Wednesdays for the four leagues for those under age 14. The under 16 and under 18 leagues will play on weekends.

All games are scheduled at Bailey Lake Elementary School and Sashabaw Plains Park, and the teams will be registered with the Michigan State Youth Soccer Association.

The cost is $35 for one child, $25 for a second child and $15 for each additional child. The under 8 program alone costs $15 because it is an instructional/scrimmage league. For more information, call 625-8223.

Clothes shopping is fun! I like buying tons of clothes for myself. I like it even better when my mom picks up the tab.

But it seems whenever I make a buy, I'm never fully satisfied with it.

I might spend hours trying on dresses and jeans and tops. But when I bring them home, I always feel as though I could have made a better choice.

There are different reasons for this.

One is it seems I always find something wrong with a piece of clothing after I've brought it home.

I might notice a seam coming apart, or a button missing, or even a permanent stain in a noticeable spot. It never fails.

I always seem to overlook these little imperfections until after I've dished out the money.

I'm usually able to fix whatever is wrong. But if not, the shirt or whatever it may be just remains in the back of the closet, never to be touched again.

Sometimes I don't bother trying on clothes at the store. This always turns out to be a mistake.

Whenever I don't try something on in the store, I usually discover later that the color of the shirt makes me look ill or else the shirt is way too tight. This I end up taking back the next day.

Another problem is fashion. Sometimes I'll go into the store thinking I'm someone much more daring than I really am.

I pick out one of the most radical styles thinking I'd look really cool in it. But as soon as I get it home and try it on in front of my mirror, I realize I'd never wear it in public.

A low-cut purple sequined blouse? Never.

Last, but not least, are varying prices.

I don't use my head when I shop. I walk into one store and I spend all my money on clothes without looking around for bargains.

I'll leave the store satisified and I'll walk into another one just to look around.

And what do I see? I see the same pair of jeans I just bought, only these are $7 cheaper. That really annoys me.

I've learned from my mistakes. Maybe one day I'll become a successful shopper.

Minister leaves for missionary work in Brazil

By Julie LePere

After 15 years of ministerial service in the Independence Township area, the Rev. Clancy Thompson is leaving for Brazil.

The move isn't completely new for him, though. Before coming to Drayton Heights Free Methodist Church, he and his wife Doris and their children spent 13 years in the South American country.

"We have friends there," he said. "So it's not like we're going some place entirely new."

They initially went to Brazil because, "We felt that's what God wanted," he said.

In their first trip, the Thompsons took language classes to learn Portuguese, and they still speak, read and write fluently.

He officially leaves his post as minister of the church on Maybee and Winell roads at the end of July, and he's looking forward to the move.

"It's beautiful there," he said.

The Thompsons and their 15-yearold son Steven will leave for Sao Paulo, population 15 million, on Aug. 21.

Thompson has accepted a 10-year missionary appointment. The family doesn't expect to return to the United States for three years, when they plan to bring Steven back for college.

The Thompsons' older children, Brian and Mark, and their families have tentative plans to visit them in Sao Paulo for Christmas 1987.

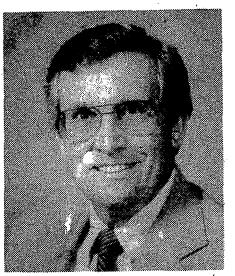

In Brazil, Thompson will be responsible for evangelism, discipleship and young pastors.

While in Michigan, Thompson was a member of the Independence Township Ministerial Association and the sex education committee for Clarkston Community Schools, and he served on the Chemical People Advisory Council.

He also played softball, racquetball and tennis.

The newly designated pastor at Drayton Heights Free Methodist Church is Dr. H. Frank Van Valin of Greenville, Ill., a college center where he's served nine years as pastor.

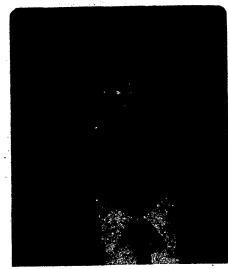

A graduate of Greenville College, Asbury Theological Seminary and Pittsburg Seminary, he received an honorary doctorate from Greenville College.

The Rev. Clancy Thompson is bound for Brazil, where he will do missionary work. Dr. H. Frank Van

He and his wife, Joyce, have also served churches in Pittsburgh, Pa., and Dearborn. He will assume pastoral responsibilities at Drayton Heights on Aug. 2.

Drayton Heights youth pastor Greg Sanders is also leaving.

Valin will assume the pastorship of Drayton Heights Free Methodist Church in August.

He's resigning to pursue his doctorate degree in sociology at Western Michigan University in September. Sanders and his wife, Karen, and their three children plan to move to Kalamazoo this month.

How much cocaine will kill a person?

Dear User:

You just can't predict because the biochemistry of everybody is so different.

No one understands why a relatively small dose will kill one person, while other people can survive using much greater quantities.

One thing is certain-cocaine kills! It has killed many famous people and it can kill you.

Dear Cat Paw:

Do you know how many people use cocaine every day? Please find out.

Dear Curious Student: Most estimates say there are 24 million daily cocaine users in the United States.

Dear Cat Paw:

Why do teenagers use alcohol?

Dear Mom:

Teenagers use alcohol because of peer pressure, because they are imitating role models and because they are able to get it.

Dear Cat Paw:

We have a drug user in the family. Should I get professional help or keep it in the family and try to fix it alone? Sick of It

Dear Sick of It:

There are at least four situations in which I think professional treatment should be considered.

1) When a school counselor or law enforcement official or other authority recommends it.

2) When drug use is causing other problems such as falling grades, truancy, withdrawal from family life, poor health or other troubling changes.

3) When family relationships are strained or broken. 4) When you have doubt about your own ability to handle your child's drug use.

Drug counselors stress the importance of getting help early. Drug problems are easier to treat before they're out of hand.

At the July 4th parade

Υ.

But seriously, this clown seems to be having fun as he participates in the July 4 parade. The Oaklowns, a group connected with the Oakland County Parks and Recreation Department, supplied a variety of different types of clowns for the march down Main Street.

A wonderful muppet-type cow marches alongside the Cook's Farm Dairy float.

A gusty wind could bowl over this clown carrying clusters of balloons for Cherry Hill Lanes. The Clarkston High School Marching Band brings music to the parade.

Appropriately for the Fourth, flags are everywhere including the the hands of this float-rider.
