Mall plans quashed

By Carolyn Walker

The Northcreek mall planned for M-15 near I-75 was dealt a blow by the Independence Township Zoning Board of Appeals on July 16.

In a unanimous vote, the ZBA denied parking and setback variances requested by developer Ron Helin, a township resident with W. H. Investment Co.

The variances are necessary before the project can begin.

Helin asked the ZBA to permit parking on a portion of the property which is currently zoned residential, said ZBA Chairman John Dunlop.

The five-acre site is adjacent to the Cameo subdivision at Northview Drive.

"He wanted to use part of RIA (residential) as commercial," Dunlop said.

While Dunlop said he could not speak for the other ZBA members, he said he thought Helin's change in plans and approximately 30 residents in attendance affected the board's vote.

liability insurance for Clarkston schools from $6 million to $2 million.

Concert finale

This Friday will bring the last sounds of summer Concert in the Park music to the Depot Park in Clarkston.

Jim Joseph's Tailgate Ramblers will feature 'Dixieland and happy music," said Joan Kopietz, concert organizer.

The free show from 7 to 9 p.m. is the last of four sponsored by the Clarkston Village Business Association with help from the Pontiac Federation of Musicians' Music Performance Trust Fund.

Popcorn and pop will be sold at concert time, and donations will be accepted in the Band Aid boxes at the park.

On July 14, board of education members discussrance costs have resulted in a drop of ed the possibility of spending about $150,000 for $5 million in coverage that cost $5,300 in 1984-85 and $20,800 in 1985-86.

Business manager William Jackson proposed the reduction, which he said was also recommended by the district's insurance agent, Richard Huttenlocher.

The present policy provides $1 million for liability coverage and an additional $1 million from an umbrella policy that expands coverage. Previously, the umbrella policy was for $5 million.

'The extra $120,000 for the $4 million just doesn't seem to be a reasonable expenditure," Jackson said.

Board member Mary Jane Chaustowich asked if the reduction would put the district in a vulnerable position. "Juries seem to have no bond on what they hand out," she said.

"This district's been fortunate. . . . There's never been a settlement that's been in excess of (its) policies," responded Jackson.

If a settlement was higher than the amount of coverage, the school district could be forced to make

"There's no coverage worth $120,000—frankly, I don't think so."

—Janet Thomas, School Board President payments, he added.

"They don't put you out of business. . . . ," said board President Janet Thomas. "There's no coverage worth $120,000—frankly, I don't think so."

John Needham noted that people "seem to be suing for the amount of coverage"; and Thomas Bills said injury awards are "one area that appears to be out of control."

The insurance coverage had already been reduced because of policy expiration dates, but if the board

Insurance coverage lowered

[INSURANCE, continued from Page 1] wished to retain the higher coverage, the change could take place immediately, Jackson said.

By taking no action, the board indicated its agreement with the decision to drop $4 million in

After the meeting, Jackson said the district has faced very infrequent lawsuits. He also said his primary concern was sports injuries, which traditionally result in the most costly awards.

When insurance gets cut back, it bothers you a little bit. You become more careful, not that you weren't careful before. It's just something else you have to worry about," he said.

In addition to liability insurance that covers injuries, the district carries insurance worth $44 million on buildings and contents, fleet insurance for school buses and other vehicles, and several small policies.

The district's total cost for all insurance policies was $65,070 in 1984-85, $190,870 in 1985-86 and will be about $250,000 in 1986-87.

Fewer insurance companies have resulted in a lack of competition and an increase in insurance costs, Jackson said.

He also cited statistics provided by the Insurance Company of America, which holds policies for over 200 school districts in the nation including Clarkston Community Schools.

While the number of claims are down significantly, the awards are up, he said.

"The term used is 'astronomically higher' than they've ever been before," he said.

For the Clarkston school district, insurance costsare nearly 400 percent higher than three years ago, but Jackson said he does not believe the upward trend will continue.

"Ten years ago, there were high premiums. All of a sudden, they dropped rock bottom. Insurance companies will build their reserves and prices will drop down. . . . ," he said. "It's a lot like interest rates."

Register now for Labor Day Parade

Everybody who loves to be in a parade should take action now.

All participants must be registered for the 1986 Labor Day Parade planned Monday, Sept. 1, by its sponsors, the Clarkston Rotary Club and the Independence Township Sesquicentennial Council.

This year's theme is "Salute to Independence." Township Supervisor Frank Ronk will fufill the honorary duties of grand marshall.

Awards will be presented prior to the parade by the Rotary club, and local cable-TV coverage is planned.

Those interested in sponsoring a float, marching in the parade or participating in any other way should contact Gerald McNally, parade chairperson, at 625-4997.

dealt setback are plans

"That (the change) was probably in a lot of minds," he said, adding that many residents spoke against the project's proposed parking facilities during the one-and-one-half-hour discussion.

"This is a complete change in plans. (The change in plans) was discussed in detail," Dunlop said.

Almost two years ago, the ZBA granted several variances specifically for a 20-shop site plan that Helin had proposed.

The old plan, which received final site plan approval in February 1985, called for a single 51,000-square-foot building with a courtyard.

Helin's new plan, which includes an IGA grocery store, 10 adjacent stores in a second building and a separate video vending machine, was granted conceptual approval by the planning commission two weeks ago with several stipulations.

The new proposal is 10,000 square feet smaller than the previous plan and calls for the elimination of office spaces.

At that commission meeting, Helin was redirected to the ZBA for variances in accordance with the new plan.

During a phone interview after the meeting, Helin would not say what his next move would be, though a round in circuit court is an option.

"All of the variances were denied unanimously,"

"There was a contingent of people at the meeting whose concerns caused the ZBA to reverse three previous decisions," he said referring to residents of the village and a neighboring subdivision. "This was planned and successful."

Caller dials Clarkston from Africa

By Chris Gerbasi

Occasionally, some incident will happen which makes a person stop and think about the world in which he or she lives.

A startling, bizarre incident.

Such an occurrence happened to Mark Hood of Clarkston on Sunday morning.

While Hood was lounging in a comfortable chair, his son Ian answered the phone. A typical enough event, but the call was anything but typical.

Ian handed the phone over to Mr. Hood, who discovered that a man from South Africa was dialing numbers at random so he could speak with an

"At first, I thought the guy was a crackpot," said Hood. "Then I thought, OK, he may be calling from another country, but he's a complete nut.

"But the conversation was too intelligent, too

The odds of Hood being called at random from South Africa are staggering. There are over 250 million people in the United States, probably billions of telephones and billions of digit combinations.

But Hood, 37 and an executive with CMI Corporation, was the one. The South African man iden-. tified himself as Tinus Van Rensburg, a white policeman in Johannesburg.

"That sounded authentic to me," said Hood. "Who could make that (name) up? I don't think people pull pranks like that. The story's too real."

Van Rensburg is 22 years old and he budgeted his money for the call, which cost about $4.50 a Hood was the first person he got through to and he was a willing recipient because the two talked for 40 minutes.

"He seemed extremely lonely to talk to an American," said Hood. "He talked of America in dream-like terms. He said everyone in America has a future

"He said we don't know what America means to the rest of the world. We don't appreciate where we are and the kinds of freedoms we have."

The call also made Hood realize that everything Americans perceive about South Africa may not be reality. As a policeman, Van Rensburg wanted to set the record straight about the political atmosphere in his country.

"I said to him, I turn on the nightly news every night and see policemen in South Africa either beating blacks with sticks, shooting them with water cannons or with rubber bullets.

"He said that white policemen today are defending blacks from blacks. That's not what we're led to believe. There are 13 tribes and they all want all the Van Rensburg impressed Hood as a sincere young man who wanted to learn about other countries and help others to learn about his country.

'He said apartheid is dead, that it died a long time ago. That there have been sweeping reforms. I said, 'Are you trying some of your propaganda on me?' He said he had nothing to win or lose.

'He was extremely logical and reasonable," said Hood. "I got the feeling that he was reporting things accurately. Our government wants us to believe only certain things, just like all governments."

Hood is going to try to stay in contact with Van Rensburg. Van Rensburg has heard of Detroit and knows that "the Cadillacs are built there."

So out of all the millions of people Van Rensburg could have called, he found someone who will help him learn about the United States.

"People aren't really that different," said Hood. "I would have rather won the Lotto, but I really think I got some value out of what happened."

It made him stop and think.

one option school is New high

By Kathy Greenfield

A new high school? New elementary school? 'A high school with a swimming pool and auditorium? The closing of the Clarkston Junior High School building for general education?

The questions are among those being pondered by the Clarkston board of education. Eventually, voters in the district will be asked to approve taxes for specific changes.

At the board's regular meeting July 14, after numerous study sessions, the board discussed the facilities study under way in the district. The study, by the architectural firm of Charles Sherman and Associates of Troy, was authorized in December 1985. So far, the district has spent about $35,000 on the study, an in-depth look at the condition of buildings and current and future needs.

Superintendent Milford Mason presented five possible options to the board. After discussion, two options were eliminated.

Still under consideration are:

•A $22 million package that would include renovation of elementary schools and Sashabaw Junior High School and renovations and additions to Clarkston High School to include a swimming pool and auditorium.

•A $10.7 million package that would include renovations to elementary schools, SIHS and CHS and a new elementary school building. The package does not include a pool or new auditiorium at the high

 A $32 million package that would include a new high school with a pool and renovations to elementary schools and SJHS. The Clarkston Junior High School building would no longer house general education and would probably be used for community education including latchkey and preschool. The current high school would house grades 6-8 and the grade organization would change to K-5 for elementary, 6-8 for middle school and 9-12 for high school.

Board members discussed separating costs of repairs and renovations that must be done from desirable changes.

"There are some things we can't wait for forever," said board President Janet Thomas

She mentioned science labs, improvements to the library and counseling facilities at the high school.

Board member Stephen Werner suggested that a ballot proposal should include money for a high school with a swimming pool and a larger auditorium.

"If we're too broke to do this, we're too broke to do something major," he said.

Discussion also included that board members intend to present plans in public forums, although the format is under debate.

"I think by the fall we should have determined as a board the best of all possible options, and then go to the public with public forums. We've got to recommend something," said Thomas.

"I don't see it that way at all," responded board member John Needham.

Instead, said Needham, the forum should include options that community members could react

"I think we should come to a conclusion so they can react to something," said Thomas. "I'm not saying we should restrict their comments in any way.'

The board could modify the plan if necessary listening to residents' comments, she said.

After directing Mason to provide information on several items, the board agreed to meet Monday, Aug. 18, for a study session to further discuss the options.

Elusive breeze Kathy Greenfield

The sun was beating down. I wished I was carrying a canteen filled with ice water. Instead, a camera hung from my sweating neck.

The place was Springfield Oaks; the event, the Hot Air Balloon Festival on Saturday. Thousands of people were there, quietly waiting. And waiting. And waiting.

At least it seemed like that. The balloons were scheduled for liftoff at 6:30 p.m. I was told by a group of balloonists that there was too much of a breeze to safely rise up at the appointed time. Maybe in a half-hour, they said.

I could have been fooled by the alleged breeze. From where I was walking, it was airless.

What to do? I had been the the day-long festival earlier in an attempt to take photographs. There were only a handful of people there then—it was just too blasted hot.

I had walked around, and then decided to return later for photos during the hot air balloon portion of the festivities. Back again, some five hours later, I was thrilled to see so many people.

At 6:30, a couple of balloons were blown up—and quickly taken down. I was supposed to be somewhere else in an hour and one-half. I decided to wait for a while.

Vans and trucks were lined up inside the roped off area for balloons. I sought shelter in the shade of a trailer and sat down on the dry, dry mowings of field grass.

Encounters of the frustrating kind followed with a hungry mosquito and a tiny but busy red

I listened to a man fight with his wife. I silently cheered her on when she started to leave—and was glad when he called her back.

I watched balloon people walk by clutching small green bottles of spring water, watched children at play and listened to a set of parents tell their older son to stop dumping arms full of dried grass on the head of their younger son.

I looked up at the tips of the trees and saw they were still dancing in the breeze that never touched ground.

I remembered the time a friend scheduled a ride in a hot air balloon and finally went up, months later, after numerous cancellations. Then I left.

Later, as we drove to our next destination, the sky over Springfield Oaks was dotted with the colorful balloons.

I was glad they had made it; sorry I hadn't seen them up close as they rose to the skies. Maybe next year . . .

Jim's Jottings

Jim Sherman

Steady Jottings readers know I'm a steady listener to J. P. McCarthy on WJR radio. Occasionally, he has readers call in on what he calls a "What's bothering you?" segment.

We'd like to see the same thing happen with this newspaper, only we'd like people to write.

Often the complaints are about as serious as the one I wrote myself this week. It has to do with tossed salads. Surely, you've noticed the slices of tomato and cucumber are put on top, probably for decorations.

What bothers me is that this arrangement of vegetables stops the dressing from seeping over the lettuce. I hate getting a bite of lettuce without dressing

What we have to do is turn all the cuke and tomato slices over and stir or toss, and spill, until at least some dressing gets on all the ingredients.

I've always faulted the cooks for making salads upside down, until I recently realized I do the same thing when making my own at the salad bar. I've seen salads served the same inverse way so long I imitate it.

One more thing about salad bars . . . notice the first item, is the lettuce, next crutons, bacon bits, cheese, alfalfa, onions, etc? All things that fall off and through the lettuce?

Then at the end of the bar is the dressing, the glue that, if placed next to the lettuce, would have kept all the smaller, tasty tidbits from falling through to the bottom of the bowl where they have to be spooned.

I'm not going to make it a crusade to change tossed salad making, but I am going to make a concerted effort to make them correctly for myself.

I have already disrupted some salad bar lines by going directly from lettuce to dressing, then taking cuts back to the bacon bits. Sprinkled just right they decorate as good as tomatoes.

Tomato slices are sort of hung over the edge of the bowl, serving more like sideboards than dressing stoppers. Cucumbers are left for others, unless they are laced with vinegar and sour cream. For those we take a separate plate, and add the color of pickled beets.

I am not a great salad builder. No trophys adorn my desk for having created the ultimate mixture of greens, orange, red, and white for looks, size or taste.

I'm no authority except on my own tastes. But, let's pass along a dressing combination presented to us at the long-gone-out-of-business Rathskeller in Detroit. The waitress said, "Let me put your dressing on for you."

With our permission, she put equal parts of Russian and ranch dressing over our tossed salads. It was terrific then, and it still is. Whenever I have a choice of red and white dressings, I mix 'em.

Try it, but put it on before the cukes and tomatoes

Letters to the editor

Denial upsetting

This letter is in response to the meeting I attended and observed closely on 7-7-86 between the Independence Township Zoning Board of Appeals and Mt. Zion Temple.

I must say that the ZBA along with planning commission Chairman Neil Wallace and two commission members attending the meeting were genuine examples of why our country is slowly going down the tubes; another major insult to our Constitution.

To those who are not aware of what took place, Mt. Zion Temple was refused a building permit after making two trips to the planning commission and two trips before the ZBA.

This entire mess reminds me of Carolyn Walker's article, "Too many laws," published on 7-9-86 in The Clarkston News.

She stated that if the Ten Commandments were followed properly, mankind would be free of immorality, crime and other social plagues. The article went on to say that we should honor God and put no others before Him.

However, the most significant piece was that mankind thought he could go God one better. Man invented the ordinance...

This is the premise on which Neil Wallace and the ZBA based their dealings with Mt. Zion Temple—"the ordinance." Concerning these things and the statement made previously, "Mankind thought he could go God one better," how well Mr. Wallace fits this description.

I can understand why Pastor Covarrubias of Mt. Zion Temple described Wallace as being "belligerent" at commission meetings.

The chairman of the ZBA would ask if anyone had any comments and there was Mr. Wallace time after time giving his own appeal to the ZBA on why the church should not be constructed. He must have stood up at least four times to give his opinions.

I have never seen a man so determined to get his way as was demonstrated by his jumping up and down and outs of his chair several times throughout the

It reminded me of one of the old Perry Mason shows. I believe Mr. Wallace must have thought at times that he was in court.

Many times a planning commission will make statements that look very convincing on paper and sound very impressive before the public.

But in actuality, this is only legal rhetoric used to disguise the real issue, which is usually money. They do not want a church built on Clintonville and Maybee roads.

Isn't it strange, though, that when Pine Knob wanted building access, that was a different story. Traffic being a problem on Sashabaw really doesn't pose a problem because the dollar has priority.

We are told, however, that if Mt. Zion Temple is built it could pose a problem due to traffic concerns.

Yes, Wallace, I have listened to your statements about the erosion of the tax base, traffic concerns and the church having poor aesthetic value. Well listen carefully, Mr. Wallace, I am very disturbed.

With one final point, I will close. The first amendment has been distorted with the cliche, "separation of church and state."

Because of this distortion, we are witnessing further erosion of our civil and religious liberties. Refusing Mt. Zion Temple a building permit is only one example of this.

The first amendment was meant to protect the churches from the encroachment of the federal government, specifically the Congress. In no way was there any implication that the church was to stay out of government affairs or the influencing of the state.

In fact, our founding fathers presupposed that influence as the moral foundation for all government action. George Washington said: "True religion offers the government its surest support."

To the planning commission and ZBA, I leave you with these very important words, "The principles of all genuine liberty and of wise laws and administrations are to be drawn from the Bible and sustained by its authority. The man therefore who weakens or destroys the divine authority of that book may be accessory to all the public disorders which society is doomed to suffer."—Noah Webster.

William J. Wagner

Column comment

Dear Carolyn Walker:

Your essay on churches and laws was interesting and challenging.

Generally, I believe the diversity of Christian denominations is good because it offers different approaches for different people.

sches for different people.

Nowhere in the world is there as many different religions as in the United States. That is a result of our unprecedented, unparalleled freedom.

However, our rights and freedoms are not without limits.

We cannot be free to infringe on the rights of others where they would not be free. So we need rules. Without rules and laws, there would be chaos, anarchy, and ultimately no freedom.

It is a common and easy criticism that we have too many laws. But the more people we have and the more complex our society, the greater the need for laws to balance their freedoms and limitations.

Our system is not perfect, it must be constantly monitored and adjusted.

But freedom doesn't just happen. It is a result of laws and people who administer those laws with the public trust and the common good as their foremost considerations.

Through experience and common sense, we have learned some valuable lessons.

Locally, we have established governments that exist to supply services and they must have money to pay for them.

To do this efficiently, there must be a balance between the production of income and the demand for services.

The guidelines that regulate this balance necessarily limit someone's freedom . . . for the common good.

Laughing with the Wings

Jim Fitzgerald

It will be recalled that last fall, for reasons of convenience and laughter, I decided to become — for the first time — a Detroit Red Wings fan.

The convenience was that the Wings play hockey in Joe Louis Arena, an easy walk from my home. Walking is important because Petr Klima says I shouldn't be allowed to drive after 5 p.m.

For laughs, the Wings had just hired a new coach—Harry Neale—who was reputed to be funnier than Bob Hope. And from Czechoslovakia they'd just imported a player—Klima—whose arrival prompted the funniest statement ever issued by a U.S. Federal official.

The Klima story should serve as a good lesson for all Mexican aliens who don't have sense enough to wear ice skates while picking potatoes.

According to federal law, in order to be admitted to the United States as a refugee, an applicant must demonstrate a "well-founded fear" that he would be persecuted in his home country because of religion, race or political opinions. As a highly respected member of the Czech national hockey team traveling throughout Europe, and obviously unshackled enough to walk easily into the Red Wings camp, Klima had none of these fears.

But he did have U.S. Attorney General Edwin Meese, who put in a powerful word for Klima's defection, even though Klima never lent money to Meese. Klima also had Max Fisher, famous Detroit financier and friend of presidents, who helped persuade Washington officials to move swiftly on Klima's application to seek refuge in a Red Wing Uniform.

"All I know is we need a successful hockey team to bring people downtown," Fisher told a reporter. Certainly. Grosse Pointers were tired of driving all the way to Prague to see Klima play.

Prague to see Klima play.

A fence post could see that extraordinary favoritism from high places got Klima into the United States ahead of thousands of non-hockey playing Arabs and Salvadorans, to name just two groups who've been waiting a lot longer. But the Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) insisted that Klima was just another immigrant.

An INS Spokesman really and truly told the press that — try to control your hysterical laughter — "Klima received no preferential treatment."

Also just another ordinary immigrant was Klima's 19-year-old girlfriend, who defected right behind him. She was obviously fleeing Czechoslovakia in a well-rounded fear of living there without Klima and his fat salary.

The great laughter occasioned by the Klima situation more than made up for the fact that new coach Neale was fired before he had time to say anything funny. He was replaced by Brad Park who was quickly fired for, among other reasons, indiscriminate fanny-patting.

"I do not believe in patting players on the rump after we've lost a hockey game," explained Wings General Manager Jimmy Devellano, who owns $500,000 worth of stock in the rival Toronto Maple Leafs organization, so he can pat himself on the rump no matter which team wins a Red Wings-Maple Leafs game.

And the laughs promise to continue. The new Wings coach is Jacques Demers, who last season, as coach of the St. Louis Blues, admitted throwing pennies on the ice to slow down a game against the Minnesota North Stars. Anyone who's hit a coin while ice skating full speed will realize what a funny guy Demers must be.

So next season, on cold winter nights, I will continue to walk to Red Wings home games. I wouldn't dare drive. Refugee Petr Klima drives his black Chevrolet Camaro IROC and white Chrysler laser very fast and hates getting stuck in slow traffic.

"Drivers here are bad," he said in a recent interview, "especially the older people. There should be hours, like nine to five, when they can drive. After that, get them off the road."

Laugh, I though I'd start saving half-dollars to throw in front of Klima.

He who waits

Carolyn Walker

He has been there every night now for a week, lurking in the dark.

I cannot see him clearly.

He hides in the shadows, sometimes on the sidewalk by our tree, sometimes near the porch, with only portions of his face showing. The protruding eyes. The short, tapered nose. Wet lips shining a grin in the moonlight.

He does not speak. He does not come forward. He merely stands, motionless, quietly watching me.

At first he alarmed me. Yes, even frightened

At 10 o'clock at night, what could he want? As households slept, did he seek a place to rest? Was he hungry? Lost? Would he attack?

Seeing him alone, I, alone, exited my car before shutting off the headlights, seeking security in their brightness.

Still clutching the car door, I looked about me. There was comfort in the familiarity of my neighborhood and the homes that burned their lights deep into the night.

Yet I knew I must cross in front of him if I was to enter my house. If I hurried, perhaps he would leave me alone. Perhaps if I closed my eyes as I ran, I would fade, invisible.

Mustering my courage, I stopped and shuddered before passing, the first time and every time since. He did not back away.

Walking by him, our eyes met for a moment. The uncomfortable feeling that comes when strangers look into each other's souls seized us. He did not divert his eyes, I diverted mine.

I could see his sides move evenly in and out with each breath, like an accordian that has lost its sound.

It was I who spoke, suppressing a screech: Don't touch me. Don't even come near.

I clutched my arms protectively close to my sides and raced by, taking long strides. My heart was pounding hard. My mind thinking ugly. frightening thoughts.

Under the porch light, now, I pulled open the screen and fumbled a key into the keyhole.

Feeling the doorknob turn in my hands, I relaxed. Halfway into my home, I could dare to turn and face him.

Looking back, I saw that he remained standing in his spot, his sides moving in and out, in

Who are you, night intruder, I thought. Why are you here? What business have you watching me? What do you intend?

And where do you go when the sun comes up?

You scare me. I wish you would leave.

I turn my face to the sky and laugh the guttural laugh of a person teetering on the edge.

I speak again: You, sir, may be a prince to someone, handsome and young for all I know.

To me, you are just another cussed frog. Ribbit!!

Downtown Development authority put on hold

By Carolyn Walker

Comments from concerned citizens led to the tabling of the proposed Independence Township Downtown Development Authority (DDA) last week.

At a two-hour public hearing conducted by the township board July 15, approximately eight citizens made comments about the plan after a slide presentation by Clerk Richard Holman.

There were over 20 residents and business owners present, many of whom said they feared a 2-mill tax increase, which is permissible under a DDA.

Several months ago, the board proposed a DDA for Dixie Highway and a portion of M-15 south of the Village of Clarkston limits.

The proposed boundaries begin at the southern end of Dixie and extend to Foster Road. The DDA would exist for 10 years.

"This is the area where development is in its most (active) state," said Holman, calling the area the township's principle business district.

Holman explained that a DDA is a district in which tax assessments are captured and returned to the district for improvements.

The amount returned is based on the difference between initial state equalized values of businesses, which are frozen, and subsequent valuations made after property values rise.

Holman estimated that $500,000 in tax revenue could be generated by a DDA in 1987.

The most frequent concerns cited by members of the audience included a dread of the 2-mill increase and that residential property would be rezoned to commercial.

Several residents asked why their properties, including the Northcrest condominiums, are being included in the DDA boundaries.

Martha Newsted, a resident of the proposed district, accused the board of rushing the project and said, "We're being included with no benefit to us. Over the long run, it's going to increase everybody's and attempted to sum up the thoughts of the audience. "Right now, I'm confused and I think everybody here is," he said. "It's not being put together professionally."

Frederick Ritter, developer of a carwash along Dixie, asked the board how the Clarkston school district reacted to the plan, referring to taxes that would be kept within the DDA and not given to the Bill Jackson, the district's financial manager, explained that in accordance with 1979 legislation, state aid would make up the lost money to the schools.

Jackson said he was satisfied with the plan as long as a school representative sits on the DDA board.

In addition to the residents, Neil Wallace, chairman of the township planning commission, questioned the board's decision to include acreage owned by Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital at Dixie and White Lake roads. The site is currently zoned residential.

Including it in the DDA might suggest to POH that a proposed hospital is acceptible before its site plan has been reviewed by the planning commission, Wallace said.

It could be difficult for the commission to deny POH under those circumstances, he added, asking that the site be removed from the plan.

Wallace also suggested that the board consider a special assessment district for improvements as an alternative to the DDA.

Among the improvements a DDA could provide are updated water systems, storm drains, safety paths and landscaping.

According to Holman, the DDA would be made up of a nine- to 13-member board. The board would include, by law, the township supervisor, business owners and residents and school representatives.

Its powers would include recommending zoning and ordinance changes within the district to the township planning commission.

The authority could also buy, sell or lease property and buildings within the district as well as renovate and repair them.

In addition to the DDA board, a nine-member citizens advisory council of residents of the district would be established.

During the meeting, several board members attempted to quell citizen worries that the 2-mill increase would be levied.

Holman explained to the audience that the township board could amend the ordinance to require a vote of the people of the district before the 2-mill increase could be instituted.

After hearing the citizens' comments, the board voted 6-0 to table the issue and seek the advice of township planner Richard Carlisle about residences in the district.

Following the meeting, several board members expressed disappointment at the citizens' reactions, saying a 2-mill increase was unlikely and that because of their fears of it, the benefits of the DDA could be

Dan Fife's only baseball card, from 1974 with the Minnesota Twins. Fife today, at right, relaxing at Spring Lake Country Club, which he owns and operates. The closest he gets to baseball these days is coaching his three sons in Little League.

Fife recalls his days in the big leagues

By Chris Gerbasi

Baseball cards are a little piece of immortality for players.

Their careers live on for the young and young-at-heart who collect and save the pieces of cardboard.

Dan Fife's career was a brief one, but he is known to anyone who possesses his 1974 Topps baseball card.

"I must get 100 cards a year sent to me to sign," said Fife, 36, a Clarkston graduate. "I don't have any, but my Mom and Dad have some."

The card was issued after his '73 season with the Minnesota Twins when he went 3-2 with a 4.15 earned run average late in the year.

He had spent the first three years of his career in the Detroit organization after graduating from the University of Michigan.

Out of college he was drafted by the NBA Milwaukee Bucks in the 10th round and by the ABA Carolina Cougars. He also got free agent football offers from the Detroit Lions and Dallas Cowboys.

But he decided to stick with baseball, because he thought he had a better chance of becoming a better player.

"It was a good year ('73)," he said.
"I went to spring training with the Tigers. Billy Martin was the manager and he was always good to me, but he liked veteran pitchers."

So in the spring Fife was traded to the Twins straight up for seasoned veteran Jim Perry.

Fife's first start in the majors was at Tiger Stadium before family and friends and against the team that had traded him away. He did not disappoint his fans as he pitched most of the way and picked up a 5-2 victory.

But just as his career was starting to rise, it came crashing down.

In the fall of '73, he hurt the shoulder on his pitching arm throwing a football in a pick-up game. A few months later, he hurt it again making a court-length pass in a basketball game.

He pitched just five more innings with the Twins in 1974 and was sent to the Triple-A level at Tacoma.

Criple-A level at Facolia.
"I didn't pitch very well there,"

Fife said. "My arm wasn't as good as it should have been."

He spent most of the season on the disabled list and the Twins spent two years trying to find out what was wrong with Fife's arm.

"I had never had any major injuries," he said. "They sent me to dentists, they thought that maybe an abscess was affecting my arm. They gave me cortisone shots each week for about two months. Then they put me on the Double-A roster. It was two years of frustration."

During 1975, an assistant basketball coach's job opened up at U of M. Not knowing if his arm would ever be the same, Fife took the job.

"It was difficult in my mind to accept that I couldn't compete," he said. "It still bothers me. It's a part of my life that's so frustrating and so hard to deal with mentally."

"I knew I could pitch in the big leagues if my arm was right. To make it to the bigs was a dream come true. They say only 7 percent ever make it that try."

After retiring from baseball, Fife had to wake up from the dream.

"It's hard for players to realize sometimes that now, you're just like everyone else," he said. "I had to set new goals. It was tough on me. To think that from the furthest point you can remember, all you wanted was to play professional sports and then all of a sudden you no longer can do that, it's hard.

"I think the discipline and the strong background I had helped me survive."

The back of Fife's only card says that the Southern League championship in 1972 was his biggest thrill. That was surpassed by his call to the majors and everything was surpassed by the birth of his three children.

Now he has carved out another lifestyle of running Spring Lake Country Club, coaching basketball at Clarkston High School and his kids in Little League and still playing plenty of pickup basketball.

"I like it where I'm at," Fife said.
"I've had a lot of excitement in my life."

Clarkston Merchants A-team pitcher Bob Waddell tosses batting practice at a recent workout for A- and B-team members. Both senior teams, for players 55 and older, got off to 6-0 starts this season.

Seniors swing into softball

By Chris Gerbasi

They're getting older and they're getting better.

Clarkston's senior citizen softball teams are showing that age is a state of mind and body.

The seniors leagues are for men and women 55 years old and up. The A-team, in the most competitive league, got off to a 6-0 start this summer, as did the B-team. The B-team finally lost to Novi two weeks ago, 12-11 in 10 innings.

Both teams are called the Merchants because each player is sponsored by a different Clarkston business.

Last week, Clarkston's co-ed team swept a doubleheader from Oak Park to move into a first-place tie with them at 8-2. Oak Park had not lost the last two seasons.

Five years ago. Clarkston had just the co-ed team, but the seniors program has grown and improved rapidly.

"Five years ago, when I retired, I saw an ad in the paper for a seniors team," said John Thomas, manager of the A-team. "When I got here, there were men and women and I wouldn't play with that.

"I'm too competitive," he said. "It's the same with these guys. They're competitive and spirited. They play for blood. I've had to break up fights."

Some of the players have played all their lives and love the game, while others started playing as a post-retirement activity.

"I don't even think about (age)," said George Messinger, 68, and the oldest member of the A-téam. "I think about the game. I'll play the game as long as I can. If I'm 92, I'll play."

Messinger has competed for 60 years in baseball and softball and plays four games a week during the winter in Florida. He worked for 38 years at Ford.

"I retired 10 years ago just so I could play ball," he said. "I told my wife, 'I'm going to play as much ball as I can.'

On the other side of the story is Mike Miszczak, 71, who got back into softball about 10 years ago after a long layoff. Miszczak is the oldest player on the

"When I started I couldn't hardly throw the ball from second to first," he said. But Miszczak got in shape and was part of the A-team last year.

"It's having something to do and being able to do it, of course," he said. "It's something to look forward to, I don't go down south. This is the fun for me."

The three senior teams have about 40 players total and Thomas said he has turned away players who wanted to join his team.

If the A-team can win its last two games, they'll clinch their division, and Thomas is already looking ahead to next year.

"I wouldn't say we're the best team," he said. "We're one or two players away from being absolutely as good as anyone.

Thomas said he has already recruited a couple players for next year, and the A and B teams expect to compete in the annual Seniors World Series in Mount Clemens.

Sports or academics?

Chris Gerbasi

It seems whenever grades are mentioned in the same breath with college athletes, a scandal is involv-

But now the National Collegiate Athletic Association is trying to do something positive for studentathletes.

False transcripts, low graduation rates and other sad comments about college sports programs prompted the NCAA to adopt Proposal 48 a few years back.

The effects of that rule are being seen this year, its first year of enforcement.

Proposal 48 basically states that incoming college athletes must score a minimum of 700 on the Standardized Aptitude Test (SAT) or a 15 on the American College Test (ACT). Those requirements fluctuate depending on the student's grade point average.

It sounds like a decent idea to make sure athletes will be able to reasonably handle their academic

But the rule has its detractors. Those athletes who do not meet the requirements must sit out a season, not practice with the team and lose a year of

The lost year of eligibility is what some coaches hate about the rule. They recruit a player thinking he'll be able to play for four years and then suddenly an entire season is taken away.

'They should not have the year of ineligibility," said Clarkston basketball coach Dan Fife. "That's the wrongness of the rule. Not playing a year is OK, but they shouldn't lose the year."

Fife's top player last season, Ed Whitaker, will not be able to play at Toledo this year.

"I don't think it's fair, to tell you the truth," said

Whitaker has heard that perhaps 90 percent of freshman athletes will be ineligible this year.

"Just because people pass the test doesn't mean they're going to do good in school," he said. "They're going to have to change it pretty soon or do something. Maybe make it where no freshman can play and have a freshman team.'

Having a freshman team would defeat the purpose of the rule, which is to give the players as much time as possible to concentrate on their studies.

Practicing with the team while sitting out the season would also require a large amount of time.

The rule gets down to a question of what's more important, sports or academics?

"All I wanted was to play pro ball," said Fife.

"Education was secondary.

"I don't think it's going to make that much difference," said Whitaker. "When you're playing, you have more incentive to do better with your work.

"We can go to school in the summer to raise our grades, if that's what they're worried about.'

The NCAA is trying to tip the scales toward education after years of sports outweighing all other considerations for student-athletes. The rule is a good one and should only be altered to allow four years of

"It's going to be tough to deal with," said Whitaker.

That's the whole idea.

Nordic ski patrol receives award

Oakland County Parks officials were thinking snow last week.

The Independence Oaks Nordic Ski Patrol received a Friends of Parks and Recreation Award July 13 at a national banquet in Las Vegas.

The Independence patrol was a unanimous selection for its volunteer work and skiing services.

"It's great because it's a national award and its our first national award," said Jim Meloche, who has been director of the patrol for four years.

The patrol has a membership of 40 and was the first organized patrol in the state, beginning in 1978. The group has previously received a citation from the state Legislature and last year was voted the outstanding ski patrol in southeastern Michigan.

Among the patrol's services are skier education and safety, search and rescue assistance and special

Next year, the Independence patrol will set up satellite patrols in Addison Oaks County Park and Springfield Oaks County Park.

Volleyball tourney looking for teams

Independence Township Parks and Recreation will host an outdoor volleyball tournament for Class B teams Aug. 23-24.

Men's, women's and co-rec teams will compete at Clintonwood Park. The men and women will play triples on Saturday, followed by co-rec quads on Sunday. Starting times will be 9:30 a.m.

Developers move closer to rezoning approval

By Carolyn Walker

The developers of 22 condominiums for Clarkston Road have hurdled the last obstacle in seeking approval for their Steeple Ridge project.

On July 15, the Independence Township Board voted 6-0 to approve the first reading for rezoning the project's 15-acre site to Planned Unit Development (PUD). A second reading and vote, scheduled at the next board meeting, are required before the rezoning becomes official.

A PUD zoning is more flexible than traditional zonings and permits various uses on a single parcel of land, according to Independence Township attorney

During the meeting Stuart Mahler, a partner in the project's developers MBM Associates, exchanged strong words with planning commission Chairman Neil Wallace, who voiced concerns about the proposal.

Wallace urged the board to take into consideration the comments of several citizens made at a public

At that meeting, many residents voiced worries over drainage problems, increased traffic and the encouraging of multiple developments in residential

Wallace also said that permitting the project set a bad precedent for building multiple units under the "guise" of a PUD.

The project is planned in two sections, one with 16 units in a horseshoe shape, the with six units along Perry Lake Road.

Mahler referred to Wallace as "biased" and ask-Column comment

Separating and balancing land uses is an integral part of this process.

Planning and administering our local laws through the exercise of discretion is not always easy.

Yet, the Mt. Zion project was not so difficult. As proposed, it is an inappropriate development, out of balance with our established planning principles.

There really is no discord over this issue. Only the petitioner's unfounded insistence that he freedom of religion is so absolute that proper comnunity planning and balance must stand aside.

It simply isn't so. The freedom of religion is imortant, but it is not absolute. If it was, chaos and the oss of all freedom would be the ultimate result.

From the many private, positive comments I have ad, I know that our community recognizes this and apports the planning commission's decision as with o issue since the hotel or the gravel pit.

Keep up the good work.

Neil E. Wallace

ed that he be made to abstain from any further action regarding the development.

"We don't see how we could possibly work with (Wallace)," Mahler said. "It (the development) takes a hand-in-hand effort with the planning commission.'

In return, Wallace said Mahler was using his comments to divert the board's attention from the real

After the meeting, he explained. "As I stated to the board, his comments were not germane because the planning commission would not be dealing with that project any more.

He was told more than a month ago by Gerald Fisher that there was no conflict of interest. When I have had a conflict of interest, I have voluntarily abstained," Wallace said. "He hasn't confronted me with this publicly or privately before."

Concerns over the development were also voiced by Robert Parke, a resident of Clarkston Road. Referring to the possibility of water draining onto his property, he asked, "Where's the water going to go?"

Trustee Carol Balzarini, who said work on the site would improve drainage conditions for the entire area, made a motion to approve the rezoning request with some stipulations.

They included that the project be bound to include all brick, siding and other graphics displayed by the developers and that the project be subject to state Department of Natural Resources approval.

The units are Cape Cod/New England in style and are to be constructed of single board siding with wood trim.

According to Peter Miller, also a partner with MBM, they intend to begin construction in August with the first residents taking occupancy in

He estimated that the condos would sell for at least $100,000 per unit.

Voting to approve the PUD rezoning were Supervisor Frank Ronk, Treasurer John Lutz, Clerk Richard Holman, Balzarini and trustees Dale Stuart and Daniel Travis. Trustee William Vandermark was absent.

Board douses service station-carwash request

By Carolyn Walker

Traffic concerns resulted in denial of a rezoning request for a service station-carwash at Maybee and Sashabaw roads.

Boron Oil Co., which owns three adjoining parcels at the corner including a vacant gas station building, requested the rezoning from commercial to multiple service at the July 15 Independence Township Board meeting.

In May, the township planning commission voted against recommending the rezoning to the board, which has the final say.

One parcel is currently zoned for multiple service, but the other two would have to be rezoned to bring the site into the township's 150-foot-frontage requirement to allow the addition of a carwash.

"It's an assembly to create something nice rather than the eyesore that's there," said Robert Hermann, Boron's site developer.

Boron proposed putting a "gas and go" station at the site, with some foods such as caudy and pop, and a carwash.

David Nelson, attorney for Boron, explained the proposal to the board.

"Boron has a legal right to reopen that station," he said. "It gives Boron a chance to create a structure that is an (asset) to the community.

"The fact of the matter is under Michigan law you simply cannot deny or penalize Boron for any traffic (increases)," he said, adding that the board cannot impose a burden upon the last person on a corner to develop.

"Service stations do not generate additional traffic," he said.

Trustee Daniel Travis disagreed with Nelson, saying a carwash would create a demand and increase traffic flow.

Neil Wallace, chairman of the planning commission, related some of the concerns expressed previously by the commission.

"They are drawing cars in and out of the roadway (in a short span)," Wallace said, adding that rezoning is discretionary and not a "right."

He then suggested to the board that they deny the proposal because of safety factors and the size of the project.

Voting to deny the project were Supervisor Frank

Ronk, Treasurer John Lutz, Clerk Richard Holman and trustees Daniel Travis and Carol Balzarini. Trustee Dale Stuart voted against denial and Trustee William Vandermark was absent.

After the meeting, Hermann said he did not know what Boron would do with the property. Taking the issue to Oakland County Circuit Court is an option, he said, but added that such action would have to be discussed with his peers and attorneys.

Thomas elected for seventh year

By Kathy Greenfield

For the seventh consecutive year, Janet Thomas has been elected president of the Clarkston board of education by her fellow board members.

In a 5-0 vote, the entire slate of officers was reelected during the board's annual organizational meeting on July 14.

Board member Stephen Werner made the motion after thanking the four officers for serving during the 1985-86 school year. He cited the many hours officers spend "behind the scenes" and said, "I'm very grateful for the job you do and I commend you."

Thomas, a 12-year board member, previously served one year as vice president and three years as treasurer.

"It's always good to have the support of the other board members. I appreciate that," she said after the

Also re-elected were Carolyn Place as vice president for the second year, Elaine Schultz as treasurer for the third year and Mary Jane Chaustowich as secretary for the eighth year.

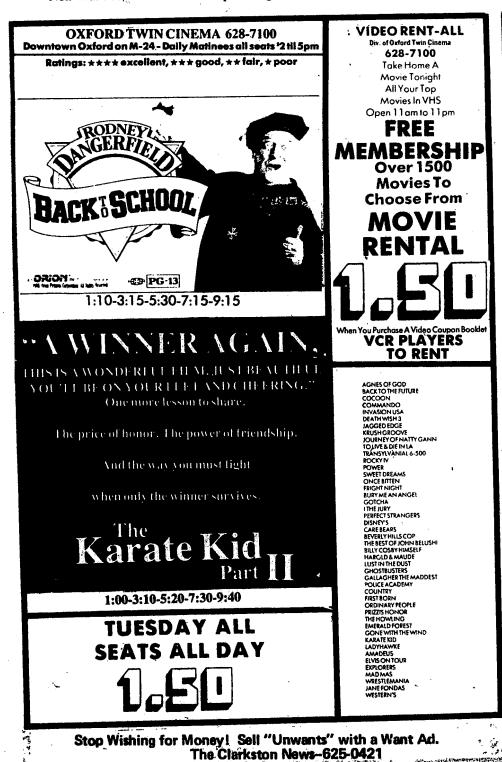

During the organizational meeting, which is required by state law, the following actions also occur-

•Appointments of board member John Needham as Oakland Schools Designate, Jean Thompson as assistant secretary to the board, board member Thomas Bills to the Oakland School Boards Legislative Committee, and district business manager William Jackson as school elections administrator.

•Establishment of regular meetings on the second Monday of each month at 8 p.m. at the district administration office, 6489 Clarkston Rd., Independence Township—the same as last year.

•Establishment of board salaries at $30 a meeting with a limit of 52 meetings a year if necessary—the same as last year. The board usually meets once or twice a month.

•Approval of membership fees of $2,706 for the Michigan Association of School Boards, $750 for the National School Boards Association, $1.622 for the Metropolitan Bureau of School Studies Inc. and $2,500 for the Michigan School Investment Association.

Russell herds sheep, hopes for ribbons

By Julie LePere

Hidden in a shady forest of trees, shrubs and even "deadly nightshade" lives a modern-day

The 18-year-old Clarkston High School graduate has cared for his sheep for the past three years, between working, studying, skiing, golfing and caring for his family's other animals.

Ethan Russell keeps his 38 Suffolk sheep in a pasture at his mother's Springfield Township farm. He raises them for meat and for whatever rewards he might receive through 4-H.

'It tastes better than the meat you buy," he said. "Kids raise them. They're fed only grain, and they never get a muttony taste."

His ram, Duke, has become his favorite wooly

"He's very friendly," he said. "If you go up to him, he'll put his feet up on the fence. He's our favorite sheep." His love and knowledge of animals comes naturally. His mother has raised Siberian huskies for 25 years, and Ethan is accustomed to having at least

His competition with animals began with the dogs. He started racing with a one-dog sled when he was 5 years old. "I used to win all the time." he said. "We had this one dog, and nobody could beat her." His mother now keeps 35 dogs in her Karnovanda Kennels and sells the pups. The dogs have their own pasture, as well as a basement.

This is a typical basement for us, full of puppies," said Ethan, pointing to three fenced areas contained three different-aged puppies and their

Between racing dogs and raising sheep, Ethan raised pigs for 10 years. Two years ago, he raised the Grand Champion Market Hog for the Oakland County 4-H Fair. "That was my biggest accomplishment in 4-H, having a grand championship hog," he said.

He switched to sheep for a change of pace, and because many of his friends in 4-H raise sheep.

A member of Seymour Lake 4-H, he's looking forward to this year's fair, as always. After a brief stint showing horses, he appreciates the livestock

"I had a lot more fun at the fair with the livestock people," he said, noting he didn't have to spend every minute with his sheep as he did with his horse.

In his 10-year 4-H career, he's also raised chinchilla rabbits, grown and shown vegetables and flowers, and competed in archery. "The thing I most like about 4-H is it gives me something to do with my time, and it gives me a little profit, and it gives me something to do with the animals," he said.

"You meet new friends. . . . It gives you a lot of good experience as far as leadership goes, and just enjoyment, I guess.'

Besides preparing for the 4-H fair, Ethan builds decks, additions, fences and barns. He also mows lawns. His summer work will help with college expenses this fall. He plans to attend Marquette University in Milwaukee. Wisc., to study engineering.

His mother will take care of his sheep while he's gone. Next summer, Ethan at age 19 will have reached

How A Small Community Came To See The Light At The End Of The Tunnel.

A few years back, the roof practically caved in on the people who lived in this small mining community.

The mine had been shut down.

Putting half the town out of work.
And taking away a livelihood that had been a way of life here for decades.

Considering that miners all across

Considering that miners all across America were struggling with all the same kind of problems, there did not seem to be even the slightest ray of hope left to the town.
Problem was, just like the miners could not afford to go much longer without work, the company could not afford to reopen the mine. Much less run it profitably enough to keep it up and running, as it had before. But when the State of Michigan got the

So when they figured out a way to reopen the mine, we pitched in to help figure out a way to finance it.

Today, the mine is open again.

The miners have gone back and reclaimed their jobs.

And even though there's still some hard work ahead for everyone concerned, the entire town is beginning to see a much brighter future for itself.

At First of America Bank, we all take special pride in what this small community achieved just by digging deep inside themselves for answers.

Not just because we're bankers. But because, more importantly every part of the community, two

CHS junior joins teen

Terri Engel likes to meet people and that's part of the reason she's looking forward to competing in the Miss Teen of Michigan pageant.

"It's really a neat thing, because no one I know has ever been in anything like this," says the Clarkston High School junior.

Terri found out about the contest when she received a letter at home. The letter indicated she had been nominated as a candidate by someone in the community.

While she doesn't know who that person is, Terri's pleased she'll be in the pageant finals at the Saginaw Civic Center Heritage Theater on July 27. Her sponsor for the contest is Century 21 of Independence Township.

"The whole hubbub of being around all those people and being in the rush of things" will be fun,

The contest involves an interview and an appearance in a formal gown. Judging is also based on service and achievement in the school and community, scholastic record, personal development and a written general awareness test.

At CHS, Terri is a member of the Choralaires singing group and a member of the track team. She is active in her church youth group at Calvary Lutheran.

In the future, she would like to work with youth, "possibly in ministry," she says.

Jim Lowery enjoys Pine Knob Pharmacy.

People are the key ingredient

By Julie LePere

Jim Lowery of Pine Knob Pharmacy loves his field of work, but it's the people that make the job of pharmacist fun, he said.

"I like the people, I really do," he said. "I've met an awfully lot of neat people. I actually feel I provide a service that I can help them with."

He can be found filling prescriptions or helping customers at his two locations: 3526 Sashabaw Road, Waterford Township, and 5905 South M-15 at The Clarkston Village Clinic and the Clarkston Ambulatory Care Center, Independence Township.

He attended the University of Michigan and followed his father into the field of medicine.

"My dad was a doctor, and I really didn't like his life." Jim said. "He was a general practitioner, and he was called all day and all night and holidays. I liked the medical field, though."

So for 22 years, Jim has worked in the area. His wife, Karla, is also involved in medicine as an R.N.; and of his four children, two have also chosen some field of medicine.

His family is his favorite hobby. With them, he attends fall football games at U of M. And every Easter, they all go to Florida.

"And I like to fish, I like to play golf, and I like the Tigers," he said.

Do you know someone who works in a Clarkston area business and deserves recognition for a job well done? We'd like to share your praise. Call The Clarskton News at 625-3370 weekdays from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. or drop us a line at 5 S. Main, Clarkston, MI 48016.

Charcoal taste in record time

Betty Wagner

Summertime and barbecue time seem to be synonymous, but many of us backyard cooks would rather relax and play than slave over a hot grill.

By precooking meats in the microwave oven and then popping them on the grill at the last minute, we can obtain a charcoal taste in record time.

Here are some old favorites adopted for microgrilling.

HAMBURGER STEAK WITH PONCHO SAUCE

- 2 pounds lean ground beef
- 1 medium onion, chopped
- 2 cloves garlic, minced
- 1 tablespoon chopped parsley
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 1 tablespoon soft butter
- 1/4 cup Roquefort cheese
- 1 tablespoon brandy

Saute chopped onion and garlic in Pyrex bowl at high for 11/2 minutes or until soft. Add beef, egg, salt and parsley.

In a small Pyrex bowl, microwave butter and cheese at 30 percent power for 10 to 15 seconds until soft but not melted. Stir in brandy.

Divide ground beef into eight to 10 balls, depending on size preferred. Make an indentation in the center of each beef ball and add some cheese mixture; close beef around cheese, sealing well.

Slightly flatten beef balls into steaks. Refrigerate for at least 30 minutes. Place beef steaks in a circle and microwave 4 to 5 at a time at high power for 3 to 4 minutes, turning after 2 minutes.

Place steaks on preheated grill for about 5

Note: The serving size has been reduced to correspond with new dietary guidelines. If you prefer larger but fewer burgers, allow a little more cooking time in the microwave oven.

- PONCHO SAUCE
- 1/4 cup chili sauce
- ½ cup catsup 1 tablespoon red wine vinegar
- 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
- ¼ teaspoon ginger
- 1/2 tablespoon dry mustard
- 1/4 cup mayonnaise
- 1/2 teaspoon horseradish
- 1 tablespoon pineapple juice
- 1 to 2 drops red pepper sauce

Mix ingredients together and serve over hamburger steaks.

LISA'S STUFFED OUARTER POUND BURGERS

1 pound lean ground beef

4 red onion slices (1/8 to 1/4 inch thick)

Pepper or other herbs or spices

Place onion slices in microwave oven and cook at high for 20 to 30 seconds.

Divide ground beef into 4 portions. Divide each portion in half. Make 8 patties about 1/4-inch larger than onion slices. Place an onion slice on 4 patties and sprinkle with pepper or other herbs or spices.

Top each with a patty and seal the edges. Refrigerate about one hour.

Place stuffed burgers in a circle on a microsafe rack placed on a microsafe dish, or use a microsafe bacon rack. Microwave at high for 4 to 5 minutes, turning after 2 minutes.

Finish on preheated grill for 5 minutes or until burgers have reached desired degree of doneness.

Note: Precooking burgers in microwave renders out fat and seals patties together.

Dear Cat Paw:

Dear User:

Smoking is the fastest way of getting any drug to the brain (seven seconds). When people use smokeless tobacco, the absorption into the bloodstream is via the mucous membranes in the mouth.

The path the drug has to follow is a little more lengthy so it doesn't reach the brain as quickly.

Individuals using smokeless tobacco can have very large amounts of nicotine in their bloodstream just like cigarette smokers. There might be less of an initial jolt as the drug takes effect, but a large amount of the drug can be ingested in that way.

The amount of nicotine in the blood might be most related to how difficult people find it to stop using tobacco.

Shepherd looks to 4-H Fair

the age limit for 4-H fair participants, and it will be his last year in a 4-H show.

The knowledge he has gained from 4-H activities includes learning about plants native to the area. He and his mother, with help from fellow shepherd Gloria Bellairs, recently solved a mystery.

A poisonous plant, dangerous to humans and animals, grows on their property and it killed a lamb last year. The lamb was raised by people rather than its mother, which may have made a difference in its eating habits, Ethan said.

"Deadly nightshade" has a white star-shaped flower with green berries and grows like a weed in shady areas.

"Indians used to use it on their arrows as a poison," said Ethan.

The sheep don't like the taste of it, so they rarely eat it. It's the only weed still standing, which means it could return in greater abundance next year.

Uprooting it is yet another task for the modernday shepherd and his family.

Co-op student hiring

Caution is being exercised by the Independence Township Board as they examine a request to hire a Clarkston High School co-op student for the cable public access studio.

The request is being made by the Independence Township Cablecasting Board.

On July 15, the board seemed ready to approve the hiring when Trustee Dale Stuart and Clerk Richard Holman began expressing second thoughts.

The co-op student would be an employee of the township and would be paid $1,675 for work done at the studio 10 hours a week, 50 weeks a year.

Holman said the expense would add a burden to the already strained township general fund.

Stuart expressed similar concerns, asking who would liable for the employee in the case of injury.

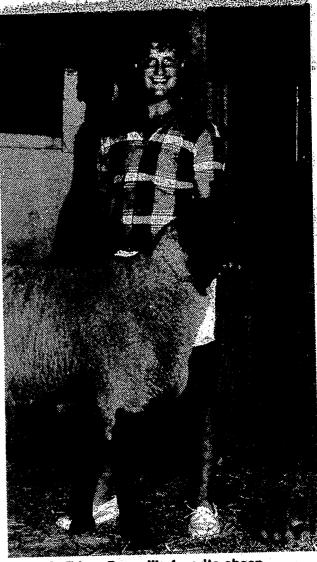

"The cable company, rather than absorbing the cost for an additional employee they need (is asking the township to do it)," he said. "I think that's wrong.

Stuart added that the cable company should pay for the position out of its gross proceeds.

Trustee Carol Balzarini disagreed, saying that a 2 percent franchise fee collected by the township should he used in such cases.

Stuart then moved to table the matter to a future board meeting so the board could investigate the costs and responsibilities of each party.

The motion was approved in a 6-0 vote.

Duke is Ethan Russell's favorite sheep.

William Neff watches while resting on an item up for bids.

A low-key attitude pays off for Brian Harrlson [right], who wins his bid for the 1977 station wagon for $175. The owner of Harrison Hoe Excavating of Clarkston, he plans to enter the vehicle in his company's name in the Demolition Derby at the Oakland County 4-H Fair in Springfield Township next week. Harrison's friend Mark Steiner [center] also resides in Independence Township.

School desks, what better place to sit during the auction of excess school equipment? The desks and the buses behind the fence were among items auctioned off Saturday at Clarkston High School and at the district's bus garage. The sale grossed over $14,000. After expenses are paid, the cash will be placed in the district's general fund, said William Jackson, financial manager for Clarkston schools.

Going once, going twice, Sold!

With auction watchers keeping a close eye on the happenings, auctioneer Gary Berry of Rochester, Mich., keeps things moving as he accepts bids from people elsewhere in the crowd.
