Springfield man dies at guard camp

By Kathy Greenfield

As the investigation of Thomas Michael Rohroff's death at Camp Grayling on Aug. 2 continued, family and friends gathered Monday at the Springfield Township home of his parents.

Tears and smiles punctuated their memories of the young man who died five days after his 23rd birthday during a weekend drill at the National Guard camp in Crawford County.

They remembered Rohroff's spirit of adventure, his caring and the love they shared, and agonized over his untimely death.

The incident occurred at about 10 a.m. Saturday during a helo-casting exercise, which involved dropping from helicopters into Rohroff in 1982.

Howe's Lake, a 20-acre body of water at Camp Grayling, said Maj. Michael Johnson, public affairs officer, from his Lansing office.

A 1981 Clarkston High School graduate, Rohroff had served in the United States Army three years.

Following his discharge in September from the 82nd Airborne Division at Fort Bragg, N.C., he joined a National Guard unit, later transferring to the 425th Ranger Division so he could continue jumping from planes and helicopters.

"He loved it," said his father, Russell. "He was just getting ready to join the free-fall club. He loved to jump so much, he'd take pictures on the way down."

"Tom was not a careless jumper," added his mother, Mary. "He'd jumped in many places all over the world."

While Mrs. Rohroff said she worried about the activity, Mr. Rohroff felt differently.

"I never worried about him because I always knew he was good at what he did," he said.

Mrs. Rohroff described their son as "a good boy."

"Tom had a lot of dreams and he was working to fulfill those dreams himself," she said. "He was the kind of son a lot of people wish they could have."

She talked about his love of the outdoors and his

Weekend session at hotel nets tentative teacher pact

By Kathy Greenfield

A tentative three-year contract for Clarkston school district teachers was reached following a weekend of intensified bargaining at the Hyatt Regency Hotel in Flint.

The three-member team representing the district and five-member team representing the teachers' Clarkston Education Association (CEA) first met at about 1 p.m. Friday and wrapped up the session at 1:30 a.m. Monday.

"I'm very pleased they've arrived at a tentative agreement before school starts," said Milford Mason, superintendent of schools. "It serves everyone better, the staff, the students and the community."

"I'm delighted we were able to get it resolved," said CEA president Allen Bartlett. "It takes a lot of pressure off both sides."

The next step is the actual writing of the tentative contract, which must be presented in writing to the 292 CEA members at least 48 hours before a meeting can be scheduled for ratification.

Following CEA ratification, the board of education

Hines, Oaks win

Following the results of Tuesday's primary election, it appears that Ruth Ann (Hazen) Hines and Charles M. Oaks will be elected to the Springfield Township Board in November.

The two Republican candidates were selected from a field of seven. There were no Democrats running for the two two-year trustee positions.

Voters in Springfield also approved a 1-mill tax renewal for the fire department. One mill is $1 for each $1,000 of assessed property valuation.

Of the township's registered voters, 864 turned out for the election.

"It's about 15 percent, which is low," said township Clerk Calvin Walters. "You would have thought with the township trustees that a lot of people would have gone out for that, but there wasn't a lot of campaigning, either. (It's) unpredictable."

Approval of the fire department millage, 481 to 115, was expected, however, he said.

"It was a renewal, and for the fire department they normally approve that," said Walters.

The votes per candidate were: James Banes, 107; Marc Cooper, 101; Dale Elkins, 71; Gary Dove, 143; Joseph Gorka, 117; Hines, 249; and Oaks, 241.

tion must vote to approve the contract. Bartlett said he hopes the contract will be ready for a school-board vote by Aug. 18.

The current contract expires at the end of August.

Aside from the Aug. 26 starting date for teachers and Aug. 27 starting date for pupils, neither side would discuss contract details before ratification.

Bartlett did say issues included whether lunch should be served in elementary school multipurpose rooms, junior high school class sizes and the number of instruction hours required of high school teachers.

"It seems we were able to deal with most of (the issues)," he said. "I think it's a fair and equitable contract for our people. It may not be everything that we wanted, but it's within the market of today."

The intensified bargaining technique is new to the school district.

The teams were at the bargaining table about 42 hours and the CEA team met a total of about 63 hours over the weekend, Bartlett said.

"We just devoted our whole attention to bargaining," he said. "It was a rather exhausting process this weekend, but I think a fairly fruitful one."

The district team consisted of chief negotiator Conrad Bruce, Clarkston Junior High School principal Duane Lewis and financial manager William Jackson.

The CEA team consisted of Edward Meissner, the Michigan Education Association executive director assigned to Clarkston; Bartlett; Thomas Brown, CEA chief negotiator; and teachers Len Loveless, Jackie Pascoe, Holly Stephens and Paul Witek.

The district will pay expenses for its team and the CEA will cover costs for its team. Jackson estimated expenses at $1,000 to $1,200 for the district and $1,500 to $1,700 for the CEA.

"I think it was worth the expense," said Bartlett.

interests in skiing, rappelling and jumping—"not really the ordinary things," she said.

Deer hunting was another of his son's interests, said Mr. Rohroff.

"Of course, he got mad at his little brother because he got one and (Tom) didn't," said Mrs. Rohroff.

"But he cleaned it out for him," said Mr. Rohroff.

Their son's friendship with a group of young men from the Milford area was also discussed. Friends since childhood, the group was gathering at the Rohroffs' home to offer their support.

"It's the happiest I've seen him in three years. He had a good job—he liked it," said Barry Kind, who had joined the Army with Rohroff and had also served in the same airborne division until September.

Rohroff was employed as a rigger for International Industries of Pontiac.

"He had a very big heart," said Kevin Navarre.

"They don't come (any) better than Tom," said Greg Giff.

The Rohroffs also expressed their pain over losing their son.

"I want to know why. I want to know what happened," said Mrs. Rohroff.

"And so does the military. They'll find out," said Mr. Rohroff, who stressed that he loved the military, as did his son. The elder Rohroff served in the Marine Corps and Army for 17 years, beginning near the end of the Korean War.

On Tuesday morning, the investigating officer had filed an initial report after discussing the incident with the individual members of the National Guard team and air crew, said Johnson.

About 70 drops had been made Saturday morning into the lake that is 10- to 20-feet deep in most places, he said.

While the National Guard emphasizes realism with training, steps were taken to ensure safety including the presence of three boats in the water with crews watching the drops, he said.

"It was a relatively safe exercise and, of course, his death prompts us some concern," he said.

Rohroff was not immediately discovered missing because some injuries and confusion occurred at the same time, Johnson said.

His body was found the next day, Sunday, at 11 a.m. in about 7 feet of water in Howe's Lake.

Injuries are unusual during helo-casting, Johnson said. "We want to find out why so it doesn't happen again."

In addition to Mr. and Mrs. Russell Rohroff, Rohroff is survived by his mother, Mary Kay Rohroff of Anaheim, Calif.; brothers and sisters, Russell Jr. of Anaheim and Wendy, Cindy and Michael, at home; and grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Rohraff of Anaheim.

The funeral service is scheduled Thursday, Aug. 7, at 11 a.m. at the Lewis E. Wint & Son Funeral Home, Independence Township.

41-acre grant could be returned

Mall denial prompts Independence land conservancy to reconsider

By Carolyn Walker

A twist of fate could alter the course, and ultimately the look, of 41 acres now in the possession of the Independence Township Land Conservancy.

The conservancy is considering returning the acreage along I-75 and Perry Lake Road to mall developer Ron Helin, who deeded it to the conservancy last year as a part of his Northcreek mall proposal. Helin's plans for a mall fell through last month when he was denied variances by the zoning board of appeals.

While he would not comment on his plans at that time, Helin has since put a "for sale" sign up on the site off M-15 and Northview Drive.

Helin planned to build the mall on five acres adjoining the 41 acres, which run parallel to and directly behind the Cameo subdivision.

Members of the conservancy board met July 29 to discuss returning the property and agreed to seek legal council, said President Lucy Kasl.

Some members are in favor of giving the acreage back and others are not, she says.

"You see, (under) our charter we had accepted it and we're not sure our charter would allow us to return it. We spent considerable time discussing it," she says.

The recent turn of events saddens her, Kasl says, adding that if the acreage (through which the Clinton River runs) is sold by Helin a new developer might not be willing to preserve it.

"You'd lose the beauty of the approach to Clarkston," she says.

Helin donated the land quietly and did not want publicity, according to Kasl. His was the second-largest parcel to be donated to the conservancy.

"He (Helin) thought he was right to go ahead with the project. He decided it on the assumption that he was going to be able to go ahead . . .," Kasl says.

In 1985, Helin received final site plan approval and variances specifically for his proposal.

Because of recent, significant changes in the development, he was forced to return to the township last month.

Although the planning commission recommended approval of the new plans with stipulations, the ZBA denied new variances including one which would have permitted parking on a portion of the site zoned residential.

Like other parcels donated to the conservancy, Helin's property was deeded "in perpetuity," which means it can never be developed or altered.

The purpose of the land conservancy is to preserve land "in its natural state," Kasl says. "It's for the public enjoyment."

Helin could not be reached for comment.

Contract ratified

A new contract has been approved for AFSCME union members in Independence Township.

At a special meeting July 29, the township board voted 5-0 to ratify the contract approved by the union the previous week.

Once the contract is signed by both sides in the near future, it will be made retroactive to April 1 and will stay in effect until Dec. 31, 1988, according to a spokesperson in the clerk's office.

The new contract features three significant changes including an incentive program which pays $600 to union employees who drop their medical insurance coverage, the spokesperson said.

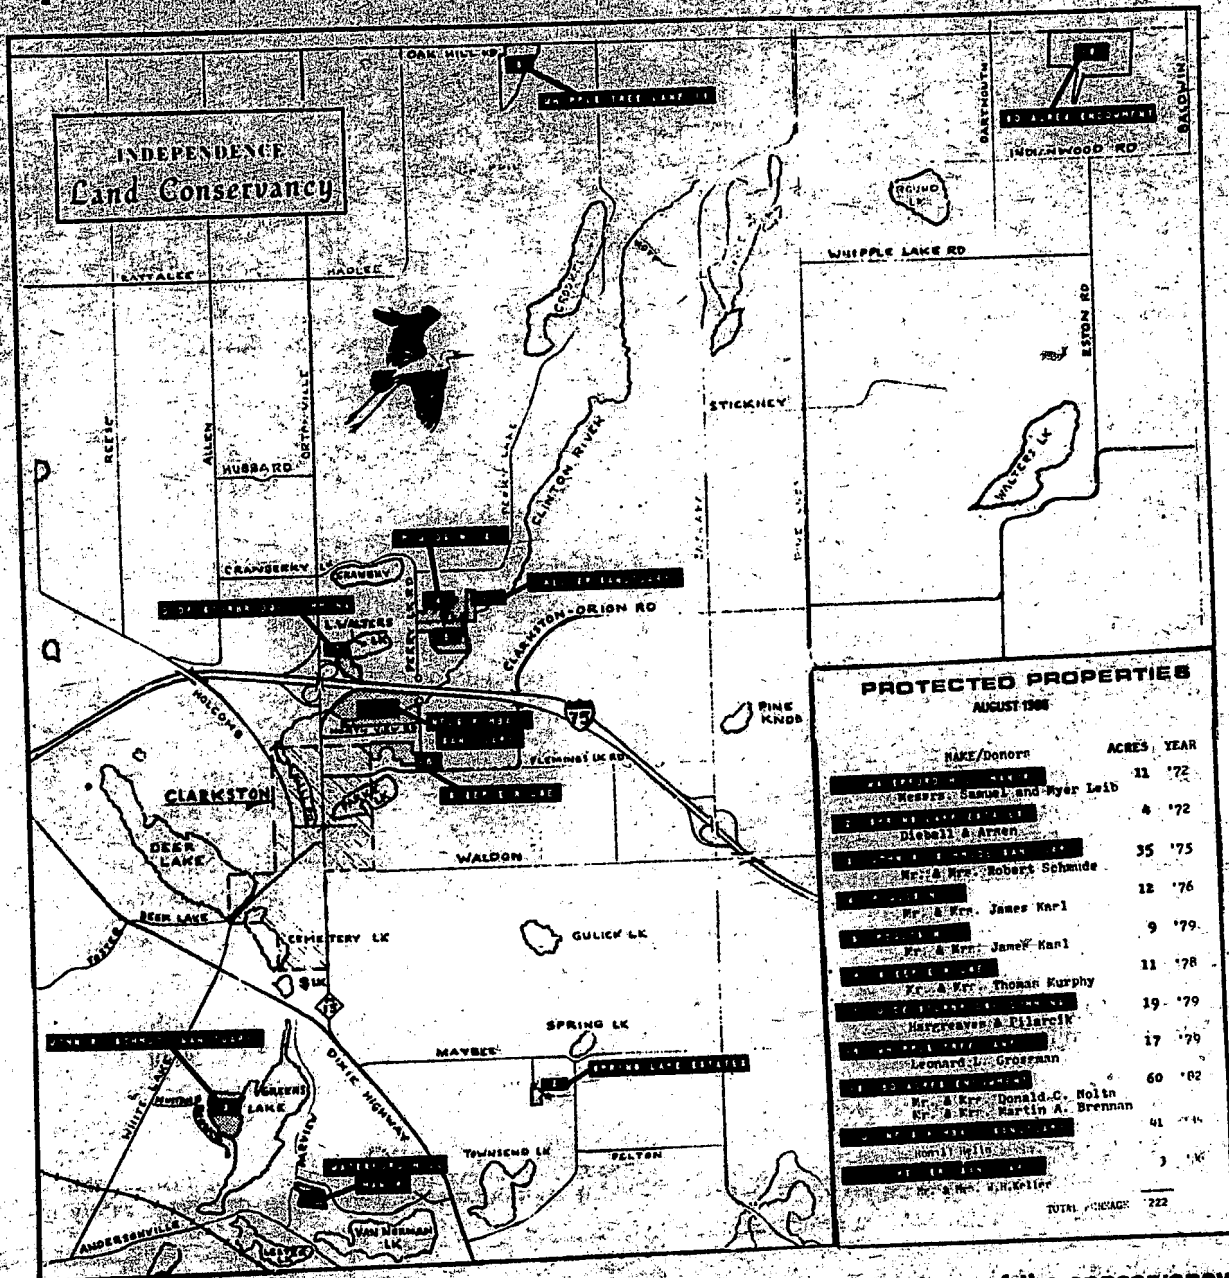

In addition, longevity pay will not be paid to new hires after Aug. 1.

Lump sum raises will stay in place for existing employees at a flat rate and will not be based on salary percentages.

Also, wages will be increased 5 percent after an employee's first year, with 3½ percent increases the second and third years.

Approximately 25 employees are AFSCME members in the township at any one time and they include staff at the department of public works, library, parks and cemetery.

Township firefighters, department deputies and management employees are not members of the AFSCME union.

This map supplied by Nelson Kimball, founder of the Independence Township Land Conservancy, shows properties currently owned by the conservancy. Members of the conservancy are considering returning 41 acres (No. 10 on the map) to developer Ron Helin.

Steepleridge condos OK'd; township PUD use challenged

By Carolyn Walker

The developers of Steeple Ridge condominiums got their way, but not until after Ted Thomson had scolded the Independence Township Board about the township's use of PUD zoning.

PUD, an acronym for Planned Unit Development, was designed for large projects which would include multiple uses on a single parcel of land. Thomson told the board.

Steeple Ridge, he said, does not fit the bill. Thomson is a Main Street, Clarkston, resident; member of the village zoning board of appeals, and former chairman of the village planning commission.

MBM Associates, the developers of the condos, plan to use a PUD zoning to put 22 units on a 15-acre site off Clarkston Road.

The developers received approval of the project during a first reading by the board on July 15. Two readings are required under the township's charter status.

After listening to Thomson's statements, the board voted 4-1 to approve the project in a special board meeting July 29. Trustee William Vandermark dissented.

"I'm very much opposed to the use of PUD for this use in this type of project," Thomson said. "It is evolving as a method of getting around zoning."

"I think it (Steeple Ridge) should be rezoned to multiple. It's obvious that it doubled the density," he said, referring to the site's former residential status.

which permitted roughly half the number of dwellings.

Thomson then suggested that the board amend and limit the PUD ordinance to reflect that for which it was originally intended: large projects.

"I would hope that before too much damage is done to your . . . master plan . . . that you would restrict its use," he said. "We must come to grips with what we're going to do if there's a lot of development north of I-75."

"We just don't have the facilities to handle a lot of multiple use," he said, referring to the village's inability to cope with increased traffic along Main Street.

"I oppose tonight's proposal only on the way it was proposed," he said, adding that he is in favor of the condos as a project.

Vandermark agreed with Thomson before casting his vote. "Our PUD ordinance is being used to circumvent our zoning," he said. "We are misusing our PUD ordinance."

Trustee Carol Balzarini took exception to Vandermark's comments. "I like to think we're responding to a need in the community," she said.

Stuart Mahler and Peter Miller, co-partners in MBM, sat through the discussion without comment.

Voting to approve the project were Supervisor Frank Ronk, Clerk Richard Holman, Trustee Dale Stuart and Balzarini. Treasurer John Lutz and Trustee Dan Travis were absent.

Harrison named campaign leader

Among United Way's new fund-raising campaign leaders is David T. Harrison of Clarkston, appointed general campaign vice chairman for the 1986 Pontiac-North Oakland campaign.

David Harrison

Harrison recently moved from Kalamazoo and was involved with the Greater Kalamazoo United Way.

The 1985 campaign vice chairman, he was scheduled to serve as the 1986 campaign chairman prior to his move to Clarkston. He will serve as the 1987 general campaign chairman for United Way of Pontiac-North Oakland.

Harrison, president of First of America Bank-Oakland Macomb, and United Way general campaign chairman Robert Perry of Pontiac have recruited 30 community leaders to assist in the planning and implementation of this year's campaign.

The group hopes to gather 3,000 volunteers to canvass the north Oakland County area this fall to raise operating funds for 58 health and human care agencies supported by United Way in the area.

Last year's United Way campaign raised more than $4.3 million.

CHS registration

Registration for new students is under way at Clarkston High School, and the new student and sophomore orientation date has been set.

Parents of new students in grades 10 through 12 can visit CHS between 7 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. Monday through Friday to receive school registration material and a scheduling appointment.

All new parents and students in grades 10 through 12 may attend the Sophomore/New Student Orientation Program at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 20.

The session is to be held in the high school gymnasium and is hosted by the high school administration.

"The agenda is to be items of interest to both parents and new students with the goal of ensuring a smooth transition to the high school," said Brent Cooley, assistant principal.

Neighbors gather round Jamie Symon's fancy lemonade stand on Main Street, Clarkston, after the Festival of Cars Parade on Saturday. The stand was named after Hugo, the part-terrier owned by the Symons, and built by Jamie's dad, Gary. The lemonade, for 25 cents a glass, was a bargain with fresh lemon slices and just-picked mint leaves.

After the sale, Jamie poses with happy Hugo, namesake of the lemonade stand. "I read a book that gave me the whole idea. They named it after their dog," says Jamie.

Arson charges

By Chris Gerhael

An Independence Township man was arrested and arraigned July 30 on arson charges in connection with a Pontiac house fire.

Willis Wears, 20, of Independence and Anthony Wayne Eady, 17, of Pontiac were charged with arson and conspiracy to commit arson, according to Det. Gary Kraft of the Pontiac Police Department.

A third man, Dean Shannon, was arrested Monday and charged with conspiracy. Shannon is the son of the owner of the house on Chandler Street in Pontiac.

According to Kraft, Shannon and the other two men allegedly planned to set the house on fire with gasoline, and Wears and Eady were to carry out the plan.

The plan went awry when a pilot light, probably on a gas stove, ignited the gas fumes which resulted in an explosion, said Kraft.

Shannon is free on $10,000 personal bond. Eady and Wears are being held in lieu of $10,000 cash bonds. Eady is in Oakland County Jail and Wears is being treated for burns at Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital, according to Kraft.

"I do not believe they are life-threatening burns," said Kraft. "There is no schedule for his release."

An examination date is pending and the exam will be at 50th District Court in Pontiac.

DDA merits meeting

Although Tuesday's regular meeting of the Independence Township Board was canceled for the primary election, a special meeting has been scheduled Thursday, Aug. 7, at 7 p.m.

The meeting topic is the proposed Downtown Development Authority along Dixie Highway between the southern boundary and Foster Road to the north.

The meeting is to be held in the township hall annex, 90 N. Main, Clarkston.

Weather or not?

Kathy Greenfield

Deep down inside, I have this irrepressible desire to trust weather reports.

I have been rained on. I have destroyed shoes in snow. I have carried umbrellas on sunny days. I have roasted in sweaters. I have shivered in light jackets.

But still, the urge persists.

The problem, I think, is that sometimes weather predictions are correct. Just when I've decided I'm going to rely totally on instinct, I make the mistake of listening to a weather report that turns out to be astonishingly accurate.

One day last week was a case in point. In the morning, it looked like it was going to be horrible. Overcast. Depressing. Rainy. Chilly. I went searching for a cotton sweater.

The weather forecaster predicted a perfect day: mostly sunny, high in the low 80s, and so on. "No way," thought I.

The prediction was correct.

My trust was won.

The next day started out the same way. The weather report said the same thing. There was concrete proof—a satellite photo complete with colored arrows.

The trouble started when my daughter looked out the window at 8 a.m., predicted a terrible day, canceled plans to go to the beach and went back to bed.

"You're crazy," said I. "I know it's going to be a wonderful day. The weather reporter just said so."

"Weather reports are never right," she said with a grumble from under the covers. "Stop bugging me."

"OK," I said. "But you're wrong, wrong, wrong. You'll be sorry you didn't go to the beach. You'll be sorry you didn't listen to Your Mother."

The day was miserable. The beach would have been a particularly bad place for people who went swimming, then stepped out into the chilling breeze.

I ate humble pie.

"Were you ever right about the weather," I said to my daughter the next day, which turned out, by the way, to be wonderful . . . just as predicted.

Jim's Jottings

What this world needs is a good preacher fight. And, one's brewing.

It's between Bishop Desmond Tutu and Dr. Jerry Falwell.

Falwell quotes Tutu of responding to Pres. Reagan's July 22 speech on South Africa, "the West, represented by President Reagan, can go to Hell as far as I am concerned."

Falwell apparently knows all about Hell, and responded, "Bishop Tutu should return his Nobel Peace Prize and apologize to President Reagan and every member of the Western World for consigning them to Hell."

"It is hard to believe a man of God . . . could wish hundreds of millions of people to go there."

Later in his letter, Falwell said, "I call upon Bishop Tutu to apologize and ask for the forgiveness of the many he has offended."

Seems to me Falwell could have extended the hand of friendship and invited Tutu to accompany the people of the Western World.

I wonder if the first to go under Tutu's concern was my golf game?

I'm sure somewhere in the political rhetoric of Sen. Don Reigle and Gov. James Blanchard there is a clear understanding of their statements on unemployment.

Reigle has mentioned his concern of "millions of our jobs going overseas."

Blanchard talks about the increase in number of jobs he has brought to Michigan.

Maybe Michigan is overseas.

I've been told kernels of corn make good trout bait. I tried them once. I used Green Giant brand. That day the picky trout must have been hitting on DelMonte.

The car dealer is handy, and he sold you the car, but when the third engine fails, you really can't blame the dealer. All he does is service and sell.

The dealer, in this case, is like a secretary. They're handy to yell at, but it's the boss who you'd like to get at and can't.

And these closers. It would be a better world if more people could enjoy the scenery when they have to take detours.

No man's head aches while he is comforting another.

You may discover more about a person in an hour of play than in a year of conversation.

How is it we can look through the family album and split our sides laughing--then look into a mirror and never even crack a smile?

Music! Music? Music.

Carolyn Walker

Have you ever stopped to consider what a dull, monotonous place this world would be if there was no music? No chirping birds, no singing crickets, no crooning fathers or out-of-tune mothers?

I grew up in a household filled with music—none of it especially noteworthy (pun intended), just fun.

Used to be, when we were getting ready for church, father would sit down to the piano (he was always ready ahead of the rest of us) and play.

Mother, unselfish as any mother on a Sunday, would have prepared breakfast and would have made sure that everyone had clean clothes before she attempted to get ready.

Anyway, father would begin with some soothing piece, occasionally one of his own creations, follow it with a waltz, then a polka and then a little ragtime.

Then, invariably, he would begin to play the William Tell Overture. You know the one that used to accompany the credits to the "Lone Ranger": Da, da, dum. Da, da dum. Da, da, dum, dum, dum. And so on.

Father would begin the overture slowly (I can still see him at the piano, his suit pants and white shirt on, tie resting against the keys) and build to a feverish pitch.

Faster. Faster. Faster.

Father alleges that he meant nothing by it, but mother always seemed to find herself dressing to the tempo.

First her blouse. Then her shoes. Da, da, dum, dum, dum.

Faster. Faster. Faster.

Finally, she would race by the family room door, some item of clothing in her grasp, and screech with a pant down to father, EUGENE NE.

Father would snicker under his breath without turning to face her, and ask innocently, "What?"

"Slo-o-o-ow down," she'd reply.

When we finally got to church, mother would seek her revenge. She would sing in the most incredible voice, despite our pleas that she not.

Sometimes, we found harmony among us, however.

Even though the car had a radio, we seldom used it, choosing instead to sing together. Songs like "Home on the Range," "You Are My Sunshine" and "High Hopes."

Those were the good times and they certainly have changed.

When I'm behind the wheel these days, I often see drivers mouthing the words to "Purple Rain" or "Papa Don't Preach" or some other such song being blasted for the benefit of all from their radios, windows wide open.

Prince, Madonna and the others who dominate our airwaves may have the edge on popularity and money, but they don't have the edge on fun and creativity. Or at least they shouldn't.

I've about had my fill of the Top 40 and I think people have lost their ability to entertain themselves as well.

Maybe I'm just getting old, but those individuals who force their music on you from car radios or ghetto blasters at beaches, in parking lots, in offices, over phones, at intersections, on walks, or from their backyard pools make me want to pull up along side them, stick my head out the window and yell, "Hi, ho, Silver."

"Turn that sucker down before I sick my mother and father on you. Or start to sing myself."

thanks

To the parents of the Domino Construction Mini-Miss team:

I would like to thank you all for the generous gift that I found at my doorstep. You always did know what I needed.

Your support this summer was greatly appreciated. You can be very proud of your girls, because I know I am extremely proud of them.

It may not have always seemed like it, but overall I did have a lot of fun.

I would especially like to thank my scorekeepers, Pat King, Bethany King and Kristi Smith; my first-base coaches, Paula Lytle and Justin Whittaker; also, last and definitely not least, Connie and Frank Campanaro for sponsoring our team.

All of you people were always willing to lend a hand.

Finally, I'd like to thank my 13 spunky girls for putting up with me and giving me lots of laughs this summer. I'll miss you very much. Thanks again.

Love,

The Clarkston News Letter policy

We welcome our readers' opinions. Letters to the editor must arrive at The Clarkston News office by noon Monday to be considered for publication in Wednesday's paper. We reserve the right to edit all letters for brevity and clarity and to limit the number of letters from any one individual on any one topic. We discourage copies of letters sent elsewhere, and require all letters be signed and include a phone number and address. We may withhold names on request, but will not publish unsigned letters. Address all letters to: Letters to the Editor, The Clarkston News, 5 S. Main, Clarkston, MI 48016.

'If it Fitz . . .'

Marrying into 'purple plush'

Jim Fitzgerald

Only for one second was my attention captured by the overdone media coverage given Britain's latest Royal Wedding. And even that slight spark of interest surprised me.

Blame it on my Irish Catholic background and a populist aversion to spending public money on pomp. I've always believed there's nothing dumber than the way the British revere—and reward—ordinary people for accomplishing nothing except being born to the purple plush, or marrying it.

Anglophiles often answer my snide remarks by snarling that entertainers are mindlessly idolized—and rewarded—in the United States. That's a weak argument. Granted, it may be fair to compare England's royal family with our movie and sports stars. Princess Margaret is certainly as entertaining as Prince, the U.S. singer-actor who has the artistic talent of a boulder.

But Britain also has rock idols and sports heroes; it even honors actions by giving them titles. When it comes to reacting foolishly to show business personalities, Britain and the United States are tied.

OK, the Anglophiles retort, but the United States also has royal families. The Kennedys are named most often, but the Reagans gained ground after son Ron parlayed his royal birth into a job at Playboy magazine.

Another weak argument. Historically, the Kennedy family is a mere blip compared to the never-ending line of royal generations pulling diamonds from the British trough. The Kennedy wealth was earned, not bestowed.

As for the Reagan monarchy, it's only fair to note that it really isn't young Ron Reagan working for Playboy. Actually, it's stealthy Attorney General Edwin Meese in disguise, getting to the bottom of pornography.

End of argument, which I win. If Prince Andrew had been married in my front yard, I wouldn't have looked out the window.

But still, there was that one delicious moment on TV, and I'm glad I saw it. It was Queen Elizabeth running after a tiny grandson as he chased a carriage.

The Queen of England looked like just another grandma.

Elizabeth doesn't run gracefully. She jounces more than jiggles. She looked funny. As funny as I looked a day earlier.

Six-month-old Tricia was visiting, and I was on the floor, teaching her to crawl. I'm the same age as Elizabeth, and equally adroit. I'm glad my old buddies from the Alibi Bar weren't looking as I pawed the carpet and protruded fanny first toward the ceiling. I had to regain my feet in several stages, ever watchful for something to lean on.

Talk about feeling foolish. An hour later, four-year-old Emily and I were in the park, pushing Tricia's baby buggy. After Emily departed for the monkey bars, an elderly neighbor spied me from about a block away. With the aid of a cane, she slowly struggled toward me.

"I want to see the new baby," she explained, out of breath.

There was no baby in the buggy. Under instructions from Emily, I—a grown man—was pushing Emily's doll around the park.

Queen Elizabeth might have done the same dumb thing under the astonishing influence of a grandchild.

It occurs to me that none of us can choose whether to be born to royalty or commoners. Also, there is considerable helplessness attached to falling in love. So I shouldn't be so tough on the crowned heads who must accept the footman's services.

They'd probably rather stay home and play with the kids.

It's easier for me to understand that than the charms of Prince Boulder, or why the Reagans didn't lock the door when Edwin Meese was left on their doorstep.

Apartment complex receives final approval

By Carolyn Walker

Amid controversy and compliments, the proposed Landcaster on the Lakes apartment complex received final site plan approval last week.

At a special meeting July 31, members of the Independence Township Planning Commission voted 3-2 to grant approval to the development of 276 apartments.

The lengthy motion, which was amended with a long list of stipulations, was passed after a two-hour discussion.

During the meeting, the developers displayed some changes in their proposal including a breakaway access gate for emergency vehicles at Lingor Road.

The commission had previously requested the emergency route since the project is proposed with only one access point, an easement along the side of Randy Hosler's Pontiac dealership.

Township officials are attempting to obtain a right-of-way to land at the Maybee/Dixie traffic signal so that Maybee can be extended to the apartments.

The developers also made modifications in their landscaping proposal.

"In short, I think that we've accomplished all of the requests and conditions," said Dick Fay, executive vice president of construction for Fox Associates.

Commissioner Carol Balzarini, who is also a township trustee, asked the developers if they would be willing to finance the Maybee Road extension. She said the township could not afford to do it.

"Your proposal is a great burden on Dixie Highway," she said.

"As far as us just flat out writing the... check, no," responded Fay, adding that he understood the extension would be paid through a special assessment district. "The monies just aren't available on this particular project."

Developer Bill Fox, who was also in the audience, reiterated Fay's stance. "On a fair, systematic system we would be willing to sit down (with the township board)," he said. "We see it as a benefit. We're certainly willing to sit down and work (it) out."

"I don't think it's a question of either/or," said Chairman Neil Wallace in response to the discussion, reminding Balzarini and Fox that other developers along the route would also benefit from the extension.

"There is some middle ground. And the middle ground is that a lot of people will be participating," Wallace said.

Before casting their votes, several commissioners complimented the developers but also expressed concerns about traffic from the development and the height of the proposed units.

Commissioner Brent Bair, while commending Fox's willingness to make alterations, maintained his staunch position that the project would increase traffic hazards along Dixie.

"I question how we can proceed... when we're still faced with this very serious problem," he said.

Commissioner Betty Jo Fussman also commended Fox. "I would like to compliment the developers... for their meeting the needs of the residents of the area," she said.

Changes in Fox's plans included the elimination of 24 units from the originally proposed 300 and landscaping modifications.

Wallace asked Fox exactly how tall the units would be and said the commission had previously made "representations" to the public based on information supplied by the developer.

He said he was concerned that those representations be met.

Fox could not present an exact figure and the two finally agreed that the units would not exceed a standard two-story building.

"We're not going to violate the zoning ordinance," said Fox.

The proposal was approved subject to several terms including that access be provided to Maybee Road if it is extended, that one curb cut at the Hosler drive near Dixie be eliminated and that no more than one cut be added for a total of two, and that the developers post a performance bond of a yet-to-be determined amount for landscaping and bermed areas.

After the meeting, Fay said the developers would seek a building permit on Aug. 4 and anticipated that the township would send the plans to the state for review.

Fay said he plans for the first renters to occupy the facility by February when the clubhouse and the first of 21 buildings are scheduled to be completed.

The cost of rental has not been established but Fay estimated that one-bedroom apartments on the lower level will rent for approximately $400. The biggest apartments, some 12,000 square feet in size, will rent for approximately $600, he said.

The apartments are to be furnished with refrigerators, dishwashers, air conditioning, walk-in closets, stoves and laundry hookups, according to Fay.

"It's kind of an elegant hunt-club style," he said of the exteriors, which are to be constructed in earth tones and are to feature coach lamps.

Voting to approve the 276-unit apartment complex were Balzarini, John Gray and Fussman. Wallace and Bair voted no.

Man dies in accident

A 25-year-old Springfield Township man was killed when his car ran off a road and hit a tree July 30.

John Dominic Huellmantell, of 112 Davisburg Rd., was traveling southbound on Andersonville Road near Clark Road when the accident occurred at about 10:30 p.m.

According to police reports, Huellmantell was driving at a high rate of speed, lost control of his car, went off the road, and when he struck a tree his vehicle broke apart.

Village Clinic wins Midget title

A Village Clinic player takes a hefty swing during action against Oak Management last Thursday.

Village Clinic went on to win, 8-4, for the Midget league championship.

Stacy Turner and Josh Newblatt are carrying on a tradition with the Village Clinic Midget baseball team.

A couple of years ago, Turner and Newblatt played on the Clinic team which won the Midget playoffs. That group was coached by John Gilbert and Paul Tungate.

This summer the twosome, both 16, coached the team to the Midget championship, along with Scott Wilkinson, also 16.

Village Clinic won the championship game, 8-4, over Oak Management last Thursday. Clinic then got a forfeit win over a Sterling Heights team in the district playoffs Monday.

The Sterling Heights team didn't show up, so that sends the Clinic squad into the state playoffs in Dearborn next Monday.

"We're one of the smaller teams. We weren't supposed to get as far as we have," said Turner, in his first year of coaching.

"I think we have a good shot (of getting to states) if everybody's on," he said. "If we make mental mistakes, we're in trouble."

Clinic finished the regular season at 8-4 and then got by the number one team, Coach's Corner, 6-5, in the opening playoff game.

Jason Randolph picked up the win on the mound in that contest and then Keith Turner shut down Oak Management.

Turner, Newblatt and Wilkinson were handed the coaching duties after last year's team went winless. They are the youngest coaches in their division.

"In other divisions, there are teen-age coaches, but they haven't gotten as far as us," said Turner.

"It's unique because we used to play for them and we won the playoffs with the same uniforms, the same everything," he said.

Turner thinks the attitude of the coaches helped turn things around this year.

"We know a lot about baseball and we've been playing it for so long," he said. "The old coach was the father of one of the kids. I think they talk to us more than they would to an adult. If they're upset, they won't refrain from saying something to us."

In the Pony League championship game, Kosek & Ritch defeated Evans Realty, 10-4.

Sports

J.D. Williams romps through softball playoffs

J.D. Williams' softball team showed why its league is called "Mighty Miss" by pounding its way to the championship last week.

The team, coached by Georgia Lee Lovse, routed Deer Lake Collision, 18-3, in the championship game after outslugging Country Value Hardware, 29-17, in the playoff semifinals.

"Everybody was all geared up for a game and it wasn't hard at all," said Lovse of the finale. "But it was nice that way."

Williams' squad had a balanced attack to support the pitching of Lauren Caston and Lisa Manzo against Collision.

The 12- to 14-year-old team had won the regular season title with an 11-1 record, with its only loss coming in the final game of the season.

That was a narrow 21-19 defeat at the hands of J.E. Hurrell, but the division title was already in hand.

"It (losing) really didn't mean that much to us," said Lovse. "Of course, the girls were disappointed they lost a game."

Lovse had previously guided a Mini Miss team to a league championship two years ago. This year's winners received a trophy from the Independence Township Parks and Recreation Department.

Bree Michelson unwinds for the J.D. Williams team against J.E. Hurrell in Mighty Miss softball action. The Williams team suffered its only loss in this game, 21-19, but bounced back to win the Mighty Miss championship last week.

Trainer keeps athletes going

By Chris Gerbas

Athletic trainers are an often overlooked group in the sports world.

But they're the ones who keep the athletes running, jumping, skating and throwing. And they're not overlooked at Olympic Training Centers.

Michael Therriault of the Clarkston Sports Medicine Clinic recently spent two weeks as a volunteer athletic trainer at the Olympic complex in Marquette.

The center in Marquette has been in existence for just one year. It is one of three training sites in the country, along with Colorado Springs and Lake Placid.

The centers obviously attract top amateur athletes who have hopes of becoming Olympic athletes. For their needs, volunteer trainers are provided.

"It was a very interesting experience," said Therriault, who has been a trainer 15 years.

"You work with top-level athletes and stay current with the latest trends in sports medicine," he said.

Trainers are chosen for the center on a two-week, volunteer basis during the summer.

Therriault worked with one other trainer, a general physician and an orthopedic surgeon. They were responsible for 450 hockey players, 100 figure skaters, 50 judo athletes and 15 women basketball players among others.

"Those athletes are in good shape," said Therriault. "They don't get the usual lumps, bumps and bruises. They train 12 months a year. But they kept the four of us busy."

Therriault handled a wide variety of injuries and illnesses while sometimes being on 24-hour call.

Have you heard my John Wayne?

Chris Gerbas

This week's column is my best Joe Falls impersonation:

... New York hasn't been the same since they took down the Polo Grounds.

... Lorna will be missed.

... I've been swimming in the Mill Pond and I hope it's safe.

... most inflated item at last weekend's Buick Open: $2 for a Pepsi in a tiny "souvenir" cup, which I then threw away.

... favorite Detroit area stadium: Tiger Stadium, no question.

... least favorite: Joe Louis Arena.

... best high school gym: Oxford.

... least favorite high school gym: Troy.

... nothing better in the summer than steak on the grill and corn on the cob.

... is it just me or does the water in Clarkston feel like it's leaving a soapy film on your body?

... it seems like every other house in the township has a basketball hoop.

... best sandwiches so far: Main Street Deli.

... I hope they never stop making Stroh's.

... does anybody look at the Parks and Rec Softball Standings?

... if Julie LePere uses the word "cute" one more time, I'm going to be sick.

... there's nothing like the old scoreboard at Fenway, where they still put up the run totals by hand.

... I used to think Larry Osterman was a good announcer when I was a kid.

... among the best basketball games I've ever seen at any level: Clarkston over Pontiac Northern in triple overtime in the district finals this year.

... best Clarkston athletes I saw this year: Michelle Taulbee and Ed Whitaker.

... the Miller Lite Beer commercials are wearing a little thin.

... Springfield Township's Cal Walters sounds half-asleep over the phone.

... the only letter I've received about something I wrote here was very critical—and accurate.

... correction: Davisburg has a Pepsi machine and it does work.

... drove down Main Street at midnight the other night and thought the town had been evacuated for a nuclear bomb scare.

... I missed Billy Sims a long time ago.

... whatever happened to Slick Watts?

... pet peeve: people in cars who slow down for a mile and then turn without signaling.

... where have you gone Sue Lovelady?

... my friend Greg Eno said the Tigers would be in it all along.

... God, I hope the USFL folds once and for all.

... too many brawls in baseball these days.

... best assignment so far: taking photos of cheerleaders.

... worst assignment so far: I better not say, but township board meetings make the list.

... are the Goodwill Games still going on?

... isn't it a pleasure not hearing Howard Cosell's voice?

... let's see Jim McKay pack it in now.

... I think by the end of the year I will have talked to everyone in Clarkston.

... tough decision: should I buy an "I Love Clarkston" T-shirt or is that too Clarkstonish?

... who is that blonde I saw canoeing on the Mill Pond two weeks ago?

... Joe Falls writes a lot of columns about the Special Olympics, so he can't be all bad.

... I hope all the Clarkston sports teams are as good or better than last year so I have something better to write about.

Therriault goes to camp

"Athletic trainers are very versatile," he said. "We've seen everything. It's not our job to take care of a sore throat."

"But if some 12-year-old figure skater, who's nationally ranked, has a sore throat in the middle of the night, who's going to take care of it?" said Therriault. "A lot of injuries happen after everybody's closed down."

Many of the athletes at Marquette during Therriault's stay were tuning up for the Olympic Festival, which is going on in Houston.

The center also attracts top instructors, such as the highest-ranked judo athlete in the world, Keiko Fukuda. She happens to be 73 years-old and weighs 95 pounds.

"She threw me around like a sponge," Therriault said.

He has been invited to and will likely go to the World Judo Competition as a trainer next year. He will also have an opportunity to be chosen for Olympic-type events such as the Pan American Games next summer.

"They evaluate you while you're there. I don't know for certain how they make the selection," said Therriault.

Therriault said the complex has made great progress in just one year under director Gloria Chadwick and head trainer Ed Ryan.

"They've done an excellent job in only one year of putting it together," he said. "I was impressed with their operation. It's something that's been needed in this country for a long time."

BEAUTIFUL DREAM: After running at top speed to snap a photo of his all-time favorite car, John Lutz stops to take a closer look at the interior. Lutz is the Independence Township treasurer.

The red '75 308 GT-4 Ferrari, owned by Rick Schans of Allen Park, was in the Festival of Cars Parade.

IT CAN BE HARD TO GET YOUR MUFFLER REPLACED IF THERE'S A HOLE IN YOUR GUARANTEE.

With some muffler guarantees, it seems like the only thing that's guaranteed is a hassle.

Because a guarantee that's good in only a few locations is no good if you're far from those locations.

Nor will it last very long if the place you got it from is out of business in a year.

For the past 30 years, Midas has made its guarantee so solid you won't have any hassles.

If anything should ever go wrong with your Midas Gold Muffler, we'll replace it free for as long as you own your car.
At over 1500 locations. In all 50 states. Period.

So before you buy your next muffler, look at the guarantee.

And come to Midas for one that's filled with value instead of holes.

Oweki adventure

Another of the day's activities is making crafts out of sticks, Popsicle sticks and yarn, as these youngsters demonstrate.

Two youngsters collect golf balls out of the water at Camp Oweki last week. Each ball had a number on it and the event was part of an outdoor math skills program at the camp.

Derby provides smashing good time

By Chris Gerbasi

It was bang-up, smash-up, grind-up action at the raucous Demolition Derby at Springfield Oaks last Thursday.

Over 30 drivers got together to slam each other into oblivion at the Derby, which was part of the 4-H Fair. When it was all said and done, the last car moving belonged to Ron Hodges of Richmond.

Nine drivers from Clarkston were in the running, including Scott Parker. Parker represented Harrison Hoe Excavating, a first-year entry.

The Harrison station wagon started its heat with a fine red-and-white paint job and ended with its back end caved in.

But Parker was the third-to-last survivor in the heat, just missing making it to the finals. Two cars each from four heats went into the final smash-up. There were $800 and some prizes split among the finalists.

"That was a pretty tough heat," said owner Brian Harrison. "It took a pretty good banging. We were wondering if they were picking on us because our car looked so nice."

"We've said we may not win, but we'll have the nicest-looking car," said Harrison.

Harrison and his employees put a lot of work into the car aside from the paint job. They weakened parts of the car to soften impacts and removed or modified some parts.

He'll salvage the motor and transmission and put those into next year's car. This year's model was purchased for $175 at the school district auction and has 110,000 miles on it.

"We had a good time doing this," Harrison said. "It's kind of sad it's over. We want to win next year. This year we were more in it for the fun and publicity."

Dennis Francis and Chris Wyman of Clarkston fared a little better than Parker. They both finished

Penpal friendship endures 29 years

By Kathy Greenfield

They've been penpals for so many years, that Bunny Newmarch of Springfield Township and Jill Parker of England can't remember who wrote the first letter.

Their friendship built primarily through letters has endured 29 years—through their teens, marriages, children and changes in addresses.

It began when Bunny was 11; Jill, 13. A girlfriend of Bunny's was writing to a cousin in England. Jill was a friend of the cousin.

Over the years, they've managed three visits. The first was the occasion of Bunny's marriage 20 years ago when Jill came to Waterford Township.

She remembers her arrival at Metropolitan Airport in Detroit, and her reaction: "You're just as I imagined."

"We felt as if we knew each other," said Jill.

The second visit was 16 years ago when Bunny's husband was stationed in Germany with the armed forces and the Newmarches visited England.

The third visit began in July, again at Metropolitan Airport.

"Different people said, 'Are you going to recognize her?'" said Bunny. "As we were standing there wondering what each of us would look like, the minute I saw her I knew it was her."

While the women agree that a penpal relationship spanning 29 years is unusual, they attribute the longevity to having a great deal in common.

They both like to cook and sew, enjoy American music, have served as scout leaders for their children and enjoy country living.

Bunny's home is on a dirt road in rural Springfield and Jill's from New Addington, a town about 20 miles south of London that she describes as a "dormitory town," a term equivalent to the "bedroom community" label used for Springfield and Independence townships.

Bunny has two children and Jill has one, but they both have 14-year-olds, Amy Newmarch and Martin Parker.

And Amy and Martin are penpals.

They started writing to each other about a year ago, at roughly the same ages as their mothers when they began swapping letters.

Amy wanted a penpal "most of all because my mom wrote to Jill, and I just thought it would be interesting to write to somebody not from the U.S.," she said.

"I thought it would be good to have another friend," said Martin.

Their mothers are good examples of how nice such a friendship can be.

Penpals for 29 years, Bunny Newmarch and Jill Parker have established an enduring friendship. Jill and her son Martin [at left], of England, pose with Bunny and her daughter Amy in the Newmarches' Springfield Township home.

Great American Circus is coming

The Great American Circus, sponsored by the Oakland County Sheriff's Association, is coming to Springfield Oaks County Park on Thursday, Sept. 4.

The old-fashioned, three-ring circus in a 3,000-seat "Big Top" tent is scheduled at 5 and 8 p.m.

Each show is to last over 90 minutes with a ringmaster, clowns, exotic animals, bareback-riding and more. The circus has a company of 90 to 100 members who perform in 580 shows in 18 states annually.

Springfield Oaks is located on Andersonville Road at Hall Road in Springfield Township.

Proceeds will be used by the sheriff's association for community projects and programs. The association is comprised of Oakland County Sheriff's Department road patrol, arson, marine, corrections and jail deputies.

Tickets are available on a family, couple or individual basis. They may be obtained by calling the association at 557-0708.

If it's a major fire, or a minor oddity, we want a call at The Clarkston News. . . . . 625-3370

Why We Played A Supporting Role In The Restoration Of A Community Opera House.

Near the turn of the century, two-bits and a little bit of luck put you near the front of the standing room only crowds that were the hallmark of this opera house.

Mary Pickford, at the time just a blossoming star, graced its stage.

As did Annie Oakley's traveling show of six-guns and other assorted shootin' irons.

In fact, over the years, what with all the stars of vaudeville and theatre who performed here, you would have thought it was Broadway in New York.

Not a small midwest town's main street opera house.

Even talking movies couldn't do to the grand old place what a major fire, many years of neglect and then a condemnation notice would finally do.

Close its doors. Seemingly for good. But to the townspeople, the show just had to go on.

So when private citizens and business people got together to restore this priceless landmark, a lot of our people asked what part they could play.

You see, we're not just bankers.

We're part of the community.

So we believe that sometimes it's just as important to lend a hand as it is to lend someone money.

At First of America Bank, we're proud we were part of the impressive community cast of characters that raised the money it took to bring the opera house back to life.

And we applaud the entire town's contribution to the performing arts.

Party costumes reflect 'roots'

Sixty youngsters dressed for the occasion at the Ancestor Costume Party for members of the Independence Township Library's Summer Reading Club on July 30.

The pupils had done research on their family trees and some created their costumes on the findings, while others opted for outfits resembling their favorite historical figures.

Prize winners in the first and second grade were Adriane Heim, Indian, and Jeremy Brown, copper country miner. Holly Herne and Matt Gifford took second-place awards.

Amy Bosse as Jenny Lind and Josh Gillette as a Viking placed first in the third- and fourth-grade section. Second-place honors went to Angela Hackbardt as Eve with a costume of real grape leaves and Greg Johnson dressed as an Indian.

Katy Gillette as a Viking and Robert Allison as an Indian won first-place honors among the fifth- and sixth-graders. Second-place prizes went to Melissa O'Dea as Betsy Ross and Jeremy Reddick as an Indian.

A special mention prize went to Holly Zorka, who wore a complete Hungarian costume that has been in her family for three generations.

4-H program brings 3 to Clarkston

By Chris Gerhart

Japan has been brought a little closer for three Clarkston-area families.

The Conlens, Schneiders and Treses are each entertaining a child from Japan this month as part of a 4-H exchange program.

Tomoyuki Saito is the guest of Shane Trese, Nobuko Onuki is staying with Kate Conlen and Noriko Shiomi is visiting Jennifer Schneider.

What they've found is that kids the same age aren't very different no matter where they're from.

A conversation among the six of them brings out pocket-size dictionaries, hand signals and some guesswork.

Tomoyuki, who celebrated his 13th birthday last Saturday, comes from northern Japan where the climate is much like that of Michigan. He speaks virtually no English.

"We use sign language and the dictionary," said Trese, 12.

Shane is one of 18, yes, 18 children and he was preceded by five sisters, so he's glad to do things with a boy his age.

They plan to go to a Boy Scout camp for a week and Trese hopes to go to Japan next summer.

Schneider went to Japan last year and met Noriko, so they're old, international friends. Both like to go shopping and both like the music of Bryan Adams.

"I liked the people," said Schneider of Japan. "There was a lot of hospitality; they were really nice. I learned a lot about their culture."

Noriko said, with some help from her dictionary, that she came to this country because she wanted to learn new things and that she likes big countries.

Nobuko probably understands the most English of the three.

"We understand each other pretty well," said Conlen.

Nobuko said she likes America because the people are friendly. She and Conlen plan to go up north to Mackinac Island and next year Conlen is going to Japan.

Tomoyuki Saito, Shane Trese, Nobuko Onuki, Kate Conlen, Jennifer Schneider and Noriko Shiomi pose at the 4-H Fair at Springfield Oaks

English is taught in Japanese schools, but Conlen will have to learn a few more Japanese words than she knows now. She knows the words for "good morning" and "pig."

The farm animals at the 4-H fair last week were popular with Nobuko since she doesn't see many where she lives near Tokyo.

This is the 15th year for the exchange program and there are 10 other foreign kids visiting Oakland County this summer. Anyone interested in becoming part of the program can contact the county 4-H office at 858-0889.

CPR learning sessions available

Ongoing CPR training is available at no charge through Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital and the Community Health Care Center in Oxford.

One-class training sessions for the life-saving technique are held at both facilities. Class sizes are limited and registration is required.

The class is offered the second Tuesday of each month at POH, 50 N. Perry, Pontiac, at 7 p.m. Call 338-5385 to register.

At the center in Oxford, at 385 N. Lapeer Rd., the class is held the third Wednesday of each month at 7 p.m. Call 628-3000 to register.

Nearly 50 children went to the Independence Township Library on July 23 for a taste of some parachute games. Here, the children practice billowing out the parachute. The idea is to "play hard, play fair—and nobody hurt," says Colette Gilewics, who taught the games.

Parachute fun

Sarah Crosby, Jessica Hearn and Janae Cooley [starting second from left] are members of the Summer Reading Club that meets weekly at the library. The girls enjoyed the games.

Trip pitfalls

Michelle Blomberg

Recently my family and I took a trip. We drove to Florida and then up to South Carolina and finally up to Washington, D.C.

By that time, nearly two weeks had passed and we returned home.

I had fun. But there were a few things about the trip I detested. One, spending nights in motels; two, packing and unpacking; and three, riding in a cramped car.

The first couple nights in motel rooms were fine—they were welcomed after long hours spent riding in a car.

But after about four nights of unfamiliar rooms with only two beds to share among four people, staying in motels became tiresome.

I hated sharing a bed. I slept with my mom while my 10-year-old brother slept with my dad.

Every night, my mom and I had to put up with each other's kicking and garbled sleep talk.

My mom especially had trouble sleeping next to me. I got her up a few times during early morning hours with questions of "Where am I?" and other sleep statements.

We also fought over the sheets quite often. It was frustrating to play tug-of-war while trying to get some sleep.

Another thing I hated was loading and unloading our car every day and night.

Our trunk was overflowing with bags and suitcases, and every night we had to drag each and every one of them from the car to our motel room. The same routine, only in reverse, had to be done in the mornings.

It was especially bothersome whenever our room was on a floor other than the first. We once had a room on the fifth floor, and the choice of using either the elevator or five flights of stairs.

Of course, we chose the elevator, but that was sometimes a pain.

We usually had to wait and wait for the elevator to finally arrive at our floor, and when it did, the descent to the ground floor was often interrupted by stops at every floor.

Standing in an elevator with loads of weight pulling at your arms while people cram into the space around you isn't fun.

Last but not least, riding in a cramped car was the worst. I sat in the back seat most of the time with a cooler on the floor between my feet.

Empty pop cans, magazines, books, maps and brochures, not to mention my brother, were beside me in the back seat. It was cramped and uncomfortable.

Luckily I didn't have to put up with the heat—the air conditioner had me shivering a lot of the time.

Other than those few bothersome details, family trips can be fun. Nevertheless, I don't think my family will go on another one for a while.

Bunches of blue balloons lighten the steps of Tammy McNabb (left) and Kathy Schornberg. The girls, both Waterford residents, passed out the balloons before the Festival of Cars Parade in Clarkston on Saturday. The balloons carry the name of United States Congressman Bob Carr, who is running for re-election this year.

Eric Schornberg and his little brother Brian find entertainment at the edge of the village parking lot at Main and Washington streets. They're balloon-bunch-carrier Kathy's brothers.

Exploring: 'Something for everyone'

By Rita K. Wiley

Exploring, a division of the Boy Scouts of America, is a program for young adults, both male and female.

It is one of the best organizations a youth between the ages of 14 and 20 can be a part of. Exploring has the largest membership of any youth organization in the United States.

The members belong to youth-run posts, most of which specialize in a certain career interest.

Some of the specialties of posts in Oakland County include: computers, fire fighting, veterinary medicine, medical careers, broadcasting, law enforcement, communications, word processing, aviation, snow skiing, engineering and a new post called "Safe Rides," which is sponsored by Students Against Driving Drunk (SADD).

Many Explorers in our area have dances, lock-ins and camping, and help with charity groups and Boy Scouting events.

Exploring also gives members a chance at many leadership positions. Each post has elections for officers; a cabinet is voted in once a year on the council level (our council covers Oakland and Macomb counties), and at the Explorer Presidents Association Congress we vote for a youth Exploring president to preside over the whole United States.

In Clarkston, we have a very strong Career Awareness Program—students in the junior highs in Clarkston have the opportunity to participate in Career Day, in which the students hear professionals of all kinds talk about their careers.

We also have a general interest post and a communications post.

As you can see, Exploring offers something for everyone! To find out more about Exploring, call the Clinton Valley Council Exploring Division at 338-2066.

A Clarkston High School senior, Rita Wiley is a member of Explorer Post 675, an aquatics post. She also serves as Oakland vice chairperson of the Exploring Officers Association of Oakland County.

Earn cash at festival

Civic groups that want to sell a service during the 1986 Crafts and Cider Festival should contact the Clarkston Community Historical Society.

Applications are now being accepted from groups interested in providing food or entertainment during the festival planned Sept. 19, 20 and 21 at Depot Park in Clarkston.

The society will furnish ideas and information to interested groups. Call Jennifer Radcliff at 625-8181 for information.

What are signs of someone using cocaine?

Dear Cat Paw:

How many people really die with cancer from smoking cigarettes?

Don't Want to Quit

Dear Don't:

The use of tobacco for smoking or chewing is related to one-third of all cancers globally, reports the World Health Organization.

The report goes on to say that smoking is responsible for 90 percent of all cases of lung cancer, 75 percent of all cases of bronchitis and emphysema and 25 percent of ischemic heart disease.

Other types of cancer, pregnancy complications and respiratory diseases are also mentioned in the report. One million deaths worldwide each year can be attributed to tobacco use.

Is it that you don't want to quit or that you can't?

Dear Cat Paw:

Could you explain why people suddenly die from using cocaine even if they've used it before?

A Little Worried

Dear Worried:

There are a couple of likely mechanisms for cocaine deaths. The first is the powerful and often unpredictable effect of cocaine on the heart.

Among all cocaine users, there is an increase in heart rate and blood pressure, which is more intense the more cocaine is used.

For some users at some times, however, cocaine use even at relatively moderate doses produces a sudden, extreme increase in the heart rate, leading to the heart literally quivering rather than beating. When this happens, blood is no longer pumped and the user dies if he does not receive instantaneous medical assistance.

Cocaine used repeatedly, even at low doses, produces a progressively increasing risk of epileptic seizures.

Because cocaine commonly is taken repeatedly over a relatively short period of time, this process builds through a mechanism known as kindling. Cocaine reduces the seizure threshold, sometimes producing epileptic seizures.

This along with the heart rhythm problem may explain the increasingly common experience of sudden death by cocaine users, even when the dose of cocaine is not unusual for them.

Death comes without warning in both cases.

Dear Cat Paw:

What are the signs of someone using cocaine?

Worried Mother

Dear Worried Mother:

The user may begin complaining of headaches or insomnia. He may manifest constant and chronic nasal congestion over a long period of time.

He can become irritable or depressed in conjunction with some of the other signs—weight loss and chronic lack of energy, loss of normal motivation, suspiciousness and paranoia, neglect of personal hygiene.

He may vacillate between an inability to sleep at all to sleeping round the clock for days.

Cat Paw author Jeanette Sanders, a Springfield Township resident, is a state certified drug abuse counselor and a member of the Chemical People of Clarkston.

A convertible is perfect for a sunny Saturday morning cruise down Main Street during the Festival of Cars Parade. The parade was a special event this year, planned in conjunction with the Meadow Brook Concours d'Elegance, the annual Meadow Brook Historic Races at the Waterford Hills Race Course and the Independence Township Sesquicentennial Celebration. The crowd of parade watchers was smaller than usual for Clarkston, but an Oakland County Road Commission truck provided an unusual perch for a crew working on installing "walk-don't walk" signs at the corner of Main and Washington streets. Helium-filled balloons attached to the truck during pre-parade festivities stayed during the rest of the work-day, adding a festive touch to the rig.

Cars, cars and more cars

Bob Jones of Clarkston drives his green 1931 Ford Model A to herald the arrival of the 150th birthday float built by the Independence Township Sesquicentennial Council. The float also appeared in the July 4 parade in downtown Clarkston.

A Volkswagen Beetle, now a classic, is among the parade of cars.

Appropriately, a trio of horseback riding members of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department Mounted Division lead off the parade of cars. Horses, after all, came first.

The golden ages of medicine

By Julie LePere

Dr. Rockwood Bullard Jr. says he's been lucky, because he practiced surgery during what he calls the golden age of medicine.

"It's sad to see the end of medicine as I know it," says the retired medical doctor. "The golden ages of medicine for the physician were probably between 1955 and 1975."

The world of medicine has changed in the past 40 years, but most drastically in the past five years, he says.

A doctor used to spend time with a patient during an office visit instead of spending time with a patient's lawyer during a deposition.

And he used to do it all: Deliver babies, give general care, perform surgery. Even specialists such as Bullard treated everything.

Now a doctor is limited to what he can perform by the amount of liability insurance he can afford.

"The way medicine has gone in the past five years, I am very happy to no longer be a part of it," he says. "I miss the people, the relationship with the people, but not the mechanics of practice."

"It's become hazardous to your welfare. The liability situation in everything as well as malpractice is totally out of hand, and there will have to be a correction. Otherwise, I'm afraid we are headed toward some type of government medicine."

"I know of very few physicians who at the age of 45 don't wish they were out of medicine. And people who I've seen from my school, Harvard, don't wish their children or grandchildren to enter the medical world as it is now."

Bullard never had such regrets.

"The way medicine has gone in the past five years, I am very happy to no longer be a part of it. I miss the people, the relationship with the people, but not the mechanics of practice."

Born January 24, 1918, in Minnesota, he graduated from Cranbrook School in Bloomfield Hills. "Future physician" is printed by his high school yearbook photo.

From there, he went to Amherst College and Harvard Medical School. He met his wife, Maryetta, in Chicago during his surgical residency at the Presbyterian Hospital.

He worked with Dr. Howard Baker in Pontiac, and, within a year, he opened his own surgical practice in downtown Clarkston.

He occupied three rooms in the Terrace Building, that now houses Aura Fine Art, the Village Bookstore and the dental office of Dr. Gary Symons.

Only two physicians lived in town at that time. Dr. Miller, 80, was retired and Dr. Harry Yo was partially retired and saw patients in his home.

With only two obstetricians in the entire Pontiac area, Bullard delivered over 500 babies before an associate joined him.

"I didn't lose one. No (Caesarean) sections, no problems. I did have one little girl who had polio," he says.

His career was a positive experience.

"I enjoyed the relationship with the people as individuals and the return of affection for the small things that I was able to do for them," says Bullard. "I enjoyed the techniques of surgery."

In 1951, he was joined by Dr. John Naz. They stayed in the Terrace Building, eventually occupying all of the lower part with the exception of a barber shop and shoe store.

In 1957, he moved to the south end of town.

"My father built a building for me, which I purchased, at the present site of the Clarkston Medical Center," he says.

He was next joined by Dr. Robert Buehrig, who had intended to join him from the beginning but instead served in the Army.

"Buehrig returned from Japan as a colonel and decided to get out of the Army," says Bullard.

Dr. Kurt Baier, now deceased, joined him next.

In 1963, Dr. James O'Neill joined the team.

"He started for the first few months working in our hall, since that was the only room available. We built an addition within one year. He remained there for approximately 10 years, when he built his own building at its present site."

During his career, Bullard was chief of surgery at 161 Station Hospital, Sapporo, Japan, and at Pontiac General and Wheelock Memorial hospitals.

He was chief of staff at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, Pontiac; Pontiac General Hospital; and Wheelock Memorial Hospital.

After 33 years of a busy, thriving practice, Bullard retired in 1982.

One of his hobbies is travel. He and wife have visited countries in Africa, South America, Central America and Europe.

The Scandinavian countries and Iceland are tied with Egypt for his favorite trip, he says. "But the United States still looks better than any of the others every time you return to it."

His oldest son, Rockwood III, and his daughter, Blair Schweitzer, live in the area. His son Thomas is working on geology in Costa Rica, where the Bullards visited him on their last trip.

Bullard also works in his vegetable gardens and he swims, skis, golfs and fishes.

Licensed as a physician in Michigan and Illinois, he is also a consultant to Clinton Valley, Pontiac.

"It's been a very satisfying life," he says.

The truth about pesky, proliferous earwigs

A rash of phone calls about earwigs, about 20 a day, are being received by the Oakland County Cooperative Extension Service.

Residents are alarmed because they think the earwigs are cockroaches, or that the earwigs bite—they don't.

Earwigs are ugly, creepy insects and they can be a nuisance. But there is no reason to panic if one is spotted in a kitchen cupboard or a dark corner.

To alleviate public confusion, here is some information about earwigs taken from the extension's "Earwig Factsheet" which is available to the public.

First, contrary to popular belief, earwigs do not enter the ears of sleeping persons and bore into the brain. This is based on an unfounded European superstition. Earwigs do take refuge in dark nooks and crannies, but never in anyone's ear.

The earwig is a medium-sized insect, one-quarter to one-and-one-quarter inches in length. It is identified by its reddish-brown color, short wings, long antennae and prominent forcep-like pincers at the tip of the abdomen.

It won't bite people, but may pinch in self-defense. Young earwigs (nymphs) are grayish-brown in color.

Earwigs are nuisance pests. They crawl around at night and take shelter during the day. This could mean indoors as well, especially during hot, dry spells.

They rarely fly and are unable to crawl for long distances. They get around by "hitch-hiking," being transported in newspapers, pants cuffs, on children's toys, cut flowers, produce, luggage and even the mail.

Anything that is carried can be a vehicle for an earwig. Therefore, earwig infestation is directly related to human activity. The more mobile people are, the greater the spread of earwigs.

When the earwig was introduced into the United States from Europe, it had no natural enemies, one of the reasons for the over-abundant earwig population.

Now, two tachinid fly parasites, a roundworm parasite and a fungal disease combat earwigs. Ear-

Earwigs are ugly, creepy insects and they can be a nuisance. But there is no reason to panic if one is spotted in a kitchen cupboard or a dark corner.

wigs still outnumber their natural enemies, so to benefit from these enemies, it is best to avoid using insecticides in the early summer when the adult parasites are active.

Earwigs feed on algae, fungi, mosses, pollen, insects, spiders and mites. Plant material constitutes the bulk of their diet, however.

Therefore, earwigs can damage flowers, shrubs, vegetables and foliage of ornamental trees. The damage they do is much less than would be expected by the actual concentration of earwigs present.

Earwigs only breed outside in early spring and again in late spring. They do not repopulate throughout the year.

Earwigs can be controlled by trapping and insecticides, as well as natural enemies. Controlling the earwigs outdoors can help prevent them from coming inside.

Before doing anything else, remove all debris, boards, stones, paper, etc., from the area. Use mortar or caulking to seal all cracks and crevices in the outside of the house to keep earwigs from sneaking in.

Earwigs are attracted to light. It may be beneficial to reduce the lighting around doors or to use non-attractive (yellow) bulbs.

One way to reduce the earwig population is to set out rolls of newspaper in shrubbery, mulch, tree crotches or similar areas. The earwigs will congregate there, so burn or destroy the papers daily.

Make a box trap by punching holes in the sides of a cardboard box near the bottom with a pencil. Bait the trap with bran or oatmeal and set it in infected areas.

Set out pieces of heavy burlap, canvas or newspaper. Each morning, pick up the burlap and quickly spray with one of the suggested outdoor insecticides.

For earwig infestations, malathion, diazinon or sevin may be used to treat foundations near entrances, mulch, lawns and other exterior areas.

Indoor invasions are only temporary and may be controlled by applying a household crawling insect spray containing diazinon or baygon. Always follow the directions on the label carefully.

Earwig factsheets can be picked up at the Extension office at no charge to the public. To receive an order blank by phone, call 858-0902 or 858-0880. Factsheets are 20 cents by mail plus 50 cents postage and handling.

Trip essentials

Wherever your travels take you, play it safe.

Crittendon Hospital of Rochester recommends that you add the following items to your suitcase:

- Health insurance identification cards.
- An extra supply of medicines you take regularly and copies of the prescriptions. If traveling by plane, keep half the supply in your carry-on bag and half in your suitcase in case your luggage gets lost.
- Your physician's phone number.
- An extra pair of eyeglasses or contact lenses.
- A family medical record card. The card, available free from the hospital, provides a permanent record of immunizations, major illnesses or injuries, family medical history, X-rays and more. You can request a card for each family member. Call 652-5100.
- An emergency handbook/directory. Also available free from the hospital, the directory includes procedures for emergencies such as cuts, sprains and insect bites. To order a copy, call 652-5100.

Ten weeks of early morning workouts brought together members of the Independence Township Senior Citizen Center. The Body Recall classes were led by Carol Lippincott, township resident and former physical education teacher. The whole idea, she said, was to "get that circulation going." The course stressed progression rather than aerobics and participants were urged to progress at their own paces. Body Recall has the endorsement of the Michigan Department of Health and Michigan Services for the Aging, said Lippincott. Another session is to be offered in September.

Sports medicine not just for pros

By Chris Gerbas

With the steady increase of people participating in sports comes an increase in the need for sports medicine.

The phrase "sports medicine" may conjure up thoughts of professional team doctors and trainers. But the recreational athlete can also benefit from the techniques of sports medicine.

Three years ago, Gail Selvala injured her knee skiing. She was told by one orthopedic doctor to stop doing anything that aggravated the knee. Recently, she went to the offices of Dr. Daniel Bielak, a sports medicine doctor.

"She had a torn cartilage," said Bielak. "He (the other doctor) chose not to remove it. Through strength exercises and a brace, we'll have her doing what she wants within two weeks."

Bielak and his staff have worked with 20 area high schools for the past six years helping high school athletes. Word of his work has apparently spread.

"I heard his name a lot," said Selvala. "I knew he'd be sympathetic to me wanting to go out and run and exercise again. I went to another orthopedic doctor and he pooh-poohed all that."

The exercise boom of recent years is still going on, according to Bielak.

"It's more a mental attitude," he said. "People are interested in improving their general health and preventing illnesses."

Athletic medicine has changed in recent years and Bielak treats all his patients as athletes.

Treatment of a back injury, for example, would have been bed rest and a heating pad five or six years ago, according to Bielak.

"Now we use early mobilization," he said. "Getting up and stretching the muscles and working to restrengthen them."

Most of the injuries Bielak sees are knee or ankle injuries and many of his patients are the area high school athletes.

"My biggest concern is what some people call overuse injuries and what I call misuse injuries," he said. "That's when someone tries to do too much, too soon, too fast, too young. The intensity of competition is severe."

Not only are more people getting into sports, but more people are getting into sports medicine. Clarkston has a student athletic trainer program at the high school.

The sports medicine field includes physicians, therapists, paramedics, psychiatrists and psychologists among others.

"A lot of young people in high school who know they're not going to be able to continue in college athletics are seeking more information about sports medicine," Bielak said.

Athletic medicine has become a field all its own. "I've taken the last six years and focused in one direction," said Bielak. "I'm confident in dealing with these types of injuries. On the other hand, I'm not delivering babies or taking care of heart attacks anymore."

Dr. Daniel Bielak checks patient Gail Selvala's knee, which she injured three years ago skiing.

The use of exercises and a knee brace will quickly solve her problem, he says.

We're here, with doctors, round-the-clock

When you or someone in your family has an emergency—whether it's chest pain or an injured leg or a bad cut—the last thing you have time to do is stop and wonder if an emergency care facility is open, has a doctor available, or can handle the situation if it's serious.

That's why Wheelock Memorial Hospital's NEW Emergency Department is your choice in an emergency!

We're always open . . . 24 hours a day, every day of the year.

We always have doctors for you . . . round-the-clock. You don't have to wait until a doctor is called in.

All the services of a modern, acute care hospital . . . if what seemed like a minor problem turns out to be something serious. X-ray, laboratory, surgery, therapy, and referral to specialists if it's needed—you don't need to worry about an ambulance ride from a minor emergency facility to a hospital because Wheelock's Emergency Department is part of a full-service hospital.

New, modern, attractive and convenient facilities . . . our NEW Emergency Department has its own entrance, plus special facilities for heart or critically injured patients. And if your Emergency Department doctor determines you need unusually specialized care, we can make the process simple for you through our affiliate, St. Joseph Hospital in Flint.

When you stop and think about all those things, it's obvious why so many residents in the communities of southeast Genesee County and northern Oakland County rely on Wheelock Memorial Hospital for emergency care.

Women and nutrition: Following mom's advice

It seems women are being bombarded these days with advice about ways they should change their diets to live longer, have more energy or prevent disease.

Because it is true that women have special nutritional needs, it is important that they be able to tell fact from fad.

According to St. Joseph Mercy Hospital nutritionist Katie Bullock, the guidelines given by reputable nutrition experts and physicians are in keeping with good, old-fashioned common-sense advice.

Mother wasn't just nagging when she said, "eat your vegetables" and "drink your milk."

Bullock's advice points up a number of nutritional concerns of which women need to be aware. Among them are:

The need for calcium

Calcium is a nutrient that has received much attention lately. Nutritionists suggest that women increase consumption of milk and other dairy products to prevent osteoporosis, a condition in which bone mass decreases, causing bones to be more susceptible to fractures.

Post-menopausal, underweight, white females are at the greatest risk for osteoporosis. When estrogen levels fall during and after menopause, calcium is drawn from the bones, leaving them brittle.

The best approach, as always, is prevention of calcium deficiency, beginning as early as possible. Women should:

- Consume 1,000 to 1,500 milligrams of calcium daily. Higher amounts may increase the incidence of kidney stones.

- Consult your physician about calcium supplementation if your intake is below the recommended amount.

- Participate in exercises such as walking or jogging to increase bone mass.

- Take estrogen replacement as prescribed by your physician, if post-menopausal.

Mother wasn't just nagging when she said, "eat your vegetables" and "drink your milk."

- Avoid excessive use of tobacco, alcohol or caffeine—all interfere with the absorption of calcium.

- Avoid crash diets. Very low calorie diets exclude many precious nutrients.

- The best source of calcium is milk, as it also contains vitamin D and lactose, which both improve absorption of calcium. If you have a lactose intolerance, talk to your physician about adequate calcium intake.

The iron requirement

Women of child-bearing age are particularly susceptible to iron-deficiency anemia due to blood loss from menstruation and the fact that, in general, they eat less food than men.

Symptoms of anemia include chronic fatigue, headaches and pallor. Anemia can result in decreased physical and mental performance.

The type of iron, as well as other foods included in a meal, will affect how well iron is absorbed by the body. Iron from meat sources (meat, fish, poultry) is much better absorbed than iron from nuts, beans, grains or vegetables.

Vitamin C, found in citrus fruits, aids iron absorption, while tea (tannic acid) can interfere with absorption.

The recommended dietary allowance for iron is 18 milligrams a day. Iron supplementation should be determined by a physician because, as with any other nutrient, excess amounts can cause serious health problems.

The link with cancer

Another serious dietary concern for women is the recently publicized link between diet and cancer.

Reports from various studies indicate that people whose diets are low in fat show significantly lower rates of breast, colon and other cancers.

While these studies are not yet conclusive, most experts agree on the following guidelines:

- Reduce the amount of fat—both saturated and unsaturated—to a maximum of 30 percent of total daily calories.

- Eat more fruits, vegetables and whole-grain cereals.

- Cut down on the use of salt-cured, smoked and charcoal-broiled foods.

- Don't drink alcoholic beverages, or drink only in moderation.

Not only will following these guidelines reduce the risk of developing cancer, it will also help protect against heart disease.

While women do need to be mindful of special nutritional requirements, proper selection of foods is really a matter of common sense.

Tips for dedicated sunbathers

Sun worshipping is one of the great American pastimes.

To many sun enthusiasts, the quest for a perfect golden-bronze tan is a serious summertime activity. Others are simply determined to spend every possible minute soaking up the short-lived summer sunshine.

Yes, these sun junkies have heard that there is a correlation between years of exposure to blazing sunlight and the development of skin cancer—to say nothing of the aging effects of prolonged sunlight.

For those whose summer tanning is an all-absorbing rite of the season, however, the arguments against too much sunbathing are futile.

OK, then, for those who must, for reasons of vanity or necessity, expose themselves frequently to the effects of the sun's ultraviolet rays, the following guidelines are offered:

- Use a protective sunscreen. There are a variety of lotions and creams that will allow maximum tanning without sunburn. Apply sunscreen frequently while in the sun. The most effective sunscreens are products with an SPF number greater than seven.

- Start slowly and use moderation. Don't mislead yourself into believing you must first burn to a crisp in order to tan. Gradual exposure is safer.

- Protect your eyes and scalp. Even your hair can be damaged from the sun's harmful rays. Wear good sunglasses and a hat or protective hair gel.

- Don't be fooled by your environment. You can get just as burned on an overcast or breezy day as a sunny one. Remember, too, that the reflection of sunlight off water, sand and aluminum intensifies the sun's rays.

If, despite the precautions, you end up burned after all, Thomas Petinga Jr., D.O., director of St. Joseph Mercy Hospital's Emergency Center, offers this advice:

- Apply cool compresses to burned areas.
- Take aspirin or Tylenol for pain.

- If blisters occur, apply clean, bulky dressings to the blistered areas. Do not break the blisters; it may cause infection. Seek medical attention for this type of burn injury.

- If exposure to heat or sun is accompanied by high fever, delirium, fatigue, weakness or loss of consciousness, this can be a medical emergency and one should seek immediate medical attention.

The above article and artwork were reprinted, with permission, from the summer 1986 issue of "Together," a publication of St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, Pontiac.

Those who insist on sunbathing should apply sunscreen frequently while in the sun. The most effective sunscreens are products with an SPF number greater than seven.

Careful food handling essential in summertime

When it comes to the topic of food safety, what you don't know can hurt you, especially with the hot humid weather of summer.

By following some basic rules, provided by the Oakland County Cooperative Extension Service, you can keep your food safe this summer:

1. Keep food at the proper temperature. Spoilage organisms grow most rapidly between the temperatures of 40 degrees to 140 degrees. Foods should not be in this temperature range for more than two to three hours. Prompt refrigeration will keep foods out of the danger zone.

2. Keep your food preparation area clean. Clean hands and work surfaces can stop the spread of food contamination. It's especially important to wash hands and surfaces after contact with raw meat or poultry.

3. Don't use food from damaged containers. Always check cans and glass jars for dents, cracks or bulging lids. Paper products should be checked for leaks and stains.

4. Check your appliances to make sure they are working properly. Refrigerators should register at 40 degrees or lower. Freezers and freezing compartments should be set a zero degrees or lower.

For additional information on food safety, call the Food Preservation Hotline at 858-0904 or Teletip at 858-0200, messages 384 and 386.

Ways to ease spouse's fears of facing doctor

I have a question which I am reluctant to discuss with my doctor. I have cancer of the prostate gland. It was treated with radiation, but my doctor says there's a good chance it will come back.

My concern is for my wife. I am afraid to have sex with her for fear of giving her cancer. Am I being too cautious?

I am sorry you feel embarrassed about asking your own doctor about personal matters such as this. Your physician should be quite sympathetic about your worries.

I am sure he would reassure you about having sexual relations with your wife. She has no chance of "catching" the cancer, because cancer is not a communicable disease.

At what time during the menstrual cycle should a woman perform her monthly breast examination?

Right after the menstrual period would be the best time for an examination, because the breasts are less sensitive to touch and less likely to feel lumpy or engorged due to hormonal changes.

When a woman has passed through her menopause and is no longer having periods, it would be best to pick the same day each month (e.g. the first day of every month) to get in the habit of breast self-examination.

My wife has a lump in her breast, but she's afraid to see a doctor. What should I do?

Many women who discover a lump immediately fear the worst—that cancer is present. You can reassure her that most lumps or changes in the breast are not cancer, although only her doctor can say for sure.

You can help her most by continuing to express your love and concern for her. She can then trust that you will stand by her through this problem.

You can help her express her specific fears, and also express your own concerns for her well-being—that your fear is she will wait too long.

Early detection can mean cure for many cancers, thus it is urgent for her to see her doctor immediately. You should offer to go with her for the appointment.

My breasts have a bloody discharge and my doctor wants to do a biopsy even though he cannot feel a lump. What do you think?

Your doctor is right to recommend a biopsy. Even if the breast is free of lumps and a breast X-ray (mammogram) is normal, there still could be an early breast cancer.

An immediate biopsy is indicated for anyone with a persistently bleeding nipple.

Questions may be directed to The Cancer Information Service, The Cleveland Clinic Foundation, 9500 Euclid Ave., Cleveland, OH 44106. All questions will be answered by mail.

Bike selection pointers

Pedal your way to more healthy condition

When done safely and properly, biking can be good exercise.

Because a biker's weight is supported on a bike, there is little strain on the joints, making cycling a good choice for someone with minor joint problems.

Linda Heller-Burgess, R.N., coordinator of cardiac rehabilitation for St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, offers some tips for choosing a bicycle that will allow you to gain maximum cardiovascular benefit.

Resistance: Purchase a bicycle with a minimum of three speeds. Changing gears should be easily accomplished. Without a gear speed choice, you must learn to pedal faster or slower to achieve the desired cardiovascular benefit.

Seat post: The seat post should be adjustable with height indicators. Make sure that the adjustable seat will not wear or "strip" with use (or you may find yourself sitting on your toes one afternoon).

Seats: Comfort is a must. Find the bike you like and replace the seat, if it is uncomfortable. Make sure the seat is adjusted to a comfortable angle for riding.

Pedals: The pedals should be wide, flat and have straps for your feet.

Brakes: Brakes should grip on both sides of the wheel and should be applied with both hands. Be sure that the brakes aren't too "touchy" or too difficult to engage.

Size: Make sure you find a bicycle that "fits." A good rule is that you have one to two inches of clearance from the crossbar when your feet are flat on the ground. (On models without a crossbar, use an imaginary line to determine the proper size.)

It is important when choosing a bicycle, or any exercise equipment, to select something that will last. Regular maintenance will help ensure you can enjoy your bicycle for many years.

And remember not to overdo it; you should be having fun. After all, good health is a lifetime commitment.

Are DRGs working?

Hospital administrators, doctors respond to the query

By Carolyn Walker

If someone you love has been hospitalized lately, you may have found his or her stay to be a whirlwind experience—a sort of "Here's your hat. What's your hurry?" approach to recovery.

The speed with which your loved one (especially if he or she was elderly) was discharged from the hospital may have been due in part to the relatively new Diagnostic Related Groups insurance payment system.

Called DRGs for short, the plan was first implemented in 1983 by the federally funded Medicare program as a way of cutting hospitalization costs.

"The federal government knew they were going to have a future problem," says Phil Wojtowicz, director of development and community relations at Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital, explaining the reason for DRGs.

"It puts pressure on you to send the patient home before you really feel good about sending the patient home. Just about all physicians are feeling that pressure."

Dr. Anthony Aenlle

Their purpose was to change the system of reimbursement, he says.

Medicaid adopted the system in late 1983 and Blue Cross/Blue Shield followed suit with its traditional plan in 1985. Other insurance groups will be following the trend in the future, say representatives of three area hospitals.

Under the DRGs, patient diagnoses are categorized, a specified number of days are allowed for recovery and hospitals are paid a flat rate for anyone falling into each category.

Local hospitals are touting the DRGs as a successful cost-cutting program with built-in checks and balances that prevent some patients from being discharged too early.

But doctors aren't so sure.

"The whole goal of the DRG system is to contain costs," says Pat Sheeran, director of quality assurance at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Pontiac. "It's a payment system. It's easy to use. And it's been a success in terms of cutting hospital costs."

"If a patient stays here two days or 10 days, we're going to get paid a flat amount of money. It's kind of a law of averages."

Janice Simmons, assistant vice president of marketing and public relations at Pontiac General Hospital, agrees, explaining that there are 470 DRG categories.

"It's not going to go backward. It's going to go forward," she says of the program. "I think that there are better mechanisms built into the system that protect the system."

Anthony Aenlle, M.D., a Clarkston internist, sees things differently.

He strongly disapproves of DRGs, although he agrees that the program probably is cost-effective.

"The reason I have strong feelings is that what they've done with the DRGs is taken out a lot of human factors," he says.

"They don't give the physician the ability to listen to their intuitions. Medicine isn't an exact science. They force you into getting a diagnosis. You can't categorize patients into numbers."

Aenlle cites the plight of one of his patients as an example. The elderly patient lived alone and had a history of chronic obstructive lung disease and heart problems.

She developed shingles—a miserable, blistering viral infection of the skin related to chicken pox.

"I hospitalized her because I had no choice. She had no family to help her," he says.

Shingles did not qualify as a diagnosis requiring hospitalization, thus her stay was not covered by Medicare.

"It puts pressure on you to send the patient home before you really feel good about sending the patient home," Aenlle says. "Just about all physicians are feeling that pressure."

According to Aenlle, when a patient has more than one ailment, hospitals encourage doctors to use the diagnosis that brings in the most money.

"Certain diagnoses have more (monetary) weight," he says, citing an example where a patient might have dehydration and bleeding as diagnoses. Bleeding would take precedence.

He adds that costs are based on the price of equipment and treatment used in caring for patients.

"It's working as far as saving money," he says. "But what are we paying back for it?"

In addition, Aenlle says, hospitals monitor the number of patients doctors admit and how long each patient stays.

Doctors must document their patients' progress and give reasons on charts for patients' continuing hospitalizations. Review boards then examine the charts.

"The whole goal of the DRG system is to contain costs. It's a payment system. It's easy to use. And it's been a success in terms of cutting hospital costs."

—Pat Sheeran

"It's a little scary," Aenlle says. "They keep battling averages on physicians. They leave it in the hands of people who really don't know the patient. It's too bad."

Michael Baker, M.D., also a Clarkston internist, feels a little differently about the system, but he agrees that diagnoses must be carefully weighed.

"As a rule, I don't think we discharge people before they're ready," Baker says. "I don't think anybody wants to put themselves out on a limb . . .

just because of DRGs (in light of the medical liability climate).

"We're more careful these days about making the diagnosis. It has to be documented. In the old days, you might just put down 'chest pain.' Now, you have to be more specific."

"It's further defined the role of the acute care hospital. I think the whole system has changed."

Those changes, Baker contends, have contributed to a rise in post-hospital programs such as foster care homes, nursing homes and at home nursing services.

John Naz, M.D., a Clarkston gynecologist, agrees with Baker, but finds frustration in the timetables associated with DRGs.

Admitting diagnoses don't always agree with final diagnoses, he says, and time-consuming tests, studies and consultations are sometimes needed.

"Hospitals would like to have you limit the days that they're (patients) there. For the most part, things can be done according to schedule."

"(But) there are a lot of situations (DRGs) make worse. Some people can handle things and some people can't."

Simmons, Sheeran and Wojtowicz recoil at suggestions that hospitals force the discharging of patients who are not well enough to go home.

"We certainly don't boot people out of the hospital," says Sheeran, agreeing with Baker that there is a trend toward what she calls post-hospital "transitional care."

Wojtowicz agrees. "I don't think we're going to release anybody unless they're ready," he says.

Insect bites and stings: How to treat them

Ah, summertime! We love to spend every possible minute outside, soaking up the sunshine and enjoying warm summer breezes.

Unfortunately, we must share the great outdoors during these months with a variety of other life forms, some of which don't welcome human intrusion.

Insect bites and stings are a regular seasonal hazard, and everyone should be prepared for the possibility of being victimized by an unfriendly hornet or bee.

A poisonous bite or sting will cause immediate pain, swelling and redness at the site, notes Thomas Petinga Jr., D.O.

The elderly and children can react more severely to such bites, as well as persons with serious illnesses such as diabetes and heart disease. Those with known

HOUSE CALL:

Biting insects and AIDS

By Dr. James Harrison

Because AIDS is spread by blood-to-blood contact, many people assume that mosquitos and other biting insects can spread the disease.

However, nearly all physicians and public health scientists think otherwise.

The strongest evidence comes from our own national surveillance system for AIDS. State and local health departments across the country do a special in-person follow-up interview for all AIDS cases that deny belonging to one of the well-known high-risk groups for AIDS.

No state or local health department in any part of the country has found any direct evidence for transmission of the AIDS virus by mosquitos, ticks, lice, bed bugs or any other insect.

Another reason the experts don't feel biting insects are likely to be able to transmit AIDS is the small volume of blood that biting insects can mechanically carry from one person to the next.

Studies of health-care workers who stuck themselves with needles used to give shots or start intravenous lines don't seem to result in infection with the AIDS virus very often.

Careful follow up of hundreds of such exposures have uncovered only a couple of cases where infections occurred. These tended to involve deep injections and relatively large amounts of blood.

When you think about the size of a mosquito's "needle" you can see why transmission from mosquitos doesn't seem likely.

One of the entomologists from the State Health Department has calculated that it would take two million blood meals for a bed bug to ingest one infectious dose from an AIDS carrier. Bed bugs just don't live that long!

To sum it up, even though the question of insect-carried AIDS has been before the medical and public health scientists for some time, transmission by insects has not been shown to occur.

It just doesn't fit with the pattern of AIDS illness. Insects probably aren't able to transfer blood effectively enough from one person to another to pose any risk.

Dr. James Harrison is the Michigan Department of Public Health deputy director for programs.

allergies to insect bites should take precautions when outdoors.

First aid to treat insect stings:

•First, remove any remaining stinger parts by scraping the skin with a blunt object such as a teaspoon or butter knife.

•If the sting is on an arm or leg, use cold water or an ice pack to reduce pain and swelling. One can also create a paste by mixing together meat tenderizer and water. This can be applied to the affected area to help reduce pain and swelling. Avoid the areas around the eyes with this mixture.

•Use aspirin or Tylenol for pain, and one may take Benadryl orally for itching. (Check instructions for proper dosage.)

•If the victim has any signs of difficulty breathing, marked swelling or appearance of hives, seek medical attention immediately.
