Building surge adds up to students

By Kathy Greenfield

For years, enrollment projections for Clarkston Community Schools have been close to the mark, but that is likely to change this year.

"The indication is that elementary enrollment is up considerably," said Superintendent Milford Mason following the first few days of school.

Before school started on Aug. 27, Mason was predicting higher than expected enrollment in kindergarten, which is the only grade level where early registrations are actively pursued.

Last year, there were 429 kindergarten pupils in the district and the projected number for 1986-87 is 464. To accomodate the higher number of kindergartners, three sections were added.

Last year, enrollment in grades K-12 was 6,012. The projection for the 1986-87 school year was 5,858, or a decrease of 104 enrollments.

State aid to the district is based on the number of enrollments on the fourth Friday of September, and it's too early to guess what the actual numbers will be, Mason said.

While it is known, for example, that 40 more students than expected have enrolled at Clarkston Junior High School, "what becomes the unknown is how many people are leaving the system because parents have been transferred to another school district," he said.

Mason attributes the increase in enrollment to the building surge under way in Independence Township, and he expects the new-housing to continue influencing enrollment figures.

"As I view the development around, the houses are in various stages of construction and families won't be occupying until October. November, December," he said. "I expect we will get a larger number than normal after September, the fourth Friday."

According to a township building department spokesperson, 166 building permits for single family homes were issued during 1985 compared to 219 by mid-August this year. Likewise, 48 certificates of occupancy were issued in 1985 and by mid-August the number for 1986 had reached 98.

At the Sept. 8 board of education meeting, a preliminary enrollment report will be made. At that point, the district may be adding classes, especially at the elementary school level. Mason said.

Planners OK new building

The Independence Township Planning Commission voted to approve a new medical building Thursday night

In less than a half hour, the commissioners voted 6-0 to approve Clarkston Specialty Building for the southwest corner of Dixie Highway and Parview

The only comment uttered was by commissioner John Gray, who described the project and its land-scaping as "fantastic."

"It's a situation where you and us are going to be proud," Gray said.

David Katz, the petitioner and architect for the development and a former member of the commission, explained why the site plan approval went so smoothly after the meeting.

The matter had been discussed and problems ironed out in subcommittee meetings, and it had been reviewed by the township engineers and planner, he

Conceptual and final site plan approval were given pending a parking variance by the zoning board of appeals.

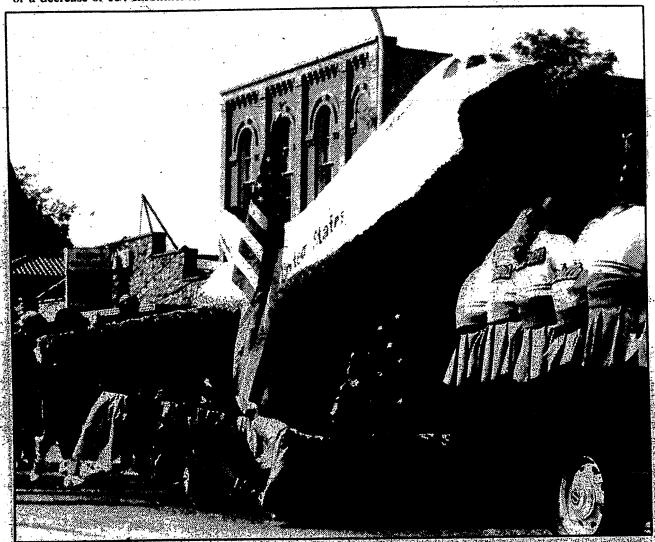

Katz must go before the ZBA for a variance to permit two-and-one-half parking spaces in the front yard setback.

The developer of the building is Dr. Mark-E. Frenchi, D.D.S., who currently has a practice on M-15.

It is proposed that the 6,800-foot building will house three suites on one floor and will be constructed of brick with wood and glass trim, Katz said.

In his motion to approve the project, Chairman Neil Wallace included a request that the ZBA give "favorable consideration" to the parking variance re-

Dixie strip wins 'downtown' status

By Carolyn Walker

It's official. The Downtown Development Authority (DDA) for Independence Township is to be established:

At a special meeting Aug. 26, the township board held its second reading to authorize the district, as mandated by the township's charter status. A first reading and vote was taken on Aug. 7.

The next step will be a search for citizens to serve on the DDA board, according to Supervisor Frank Ronk.

The DDA is to extend from the southern-most . boundary of the township on Dixie Highway north to Deer Lake Road and has been drawn to eliminate several residential areas.

According to Ronk, property at White Lake Road, now owned by Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital and proposed for a hospital, was also removed from the boundaries.

In the past, Neil Wallace, chairman of the planning commission, had said including the site in the DDA would pre-suppose the township was in favor of the hospital before site plans had been properly reviewed.

A motion to withdraw the Northcrest Condominium site on Dixie from the boundaries was withdrawn when citizens said they wanted to remain in the district to benefit their sewer system, Ronk

At a previous public hearing, some citizens had asked that Northcrest be removed from the district because they feared a tax increase.

The township has proposed the district to collect funds for the upgrading of sewers and landscaping.

In a DDA, tax assessments are captured and returned to the district for improvements.

The amount returned is based on the difference between initial state equalized valuations of businesses, which are frozen, and subsequent valuations made after the values rise.

At the meeting, several prominent businessmen explained why they were in favor of the DDA, Ronk said. They included Jim Brennan, Forrest Milzow, Lew Wint, Dr. James O'Neill and Tom Rademacher.

The businessmen were advised of the meeting personally by Treasurer John Lutz and Clerk Richard Holman, Ronk said.

We thought it was important to have both sides there." Ronk said, referring to past meetings where several citizens spoke against the DDA.

After the meeting, during a phone interview, Rademacher explained why he is in favor of the

"I think it's a very progressive move on our part," he said. "(It's an) opportunity to go and improve what really should be the business district."

The district will "clean up" the area and provide several advantages, especially the construction of sewers to correspond with the Dixie and M-15 road improvements, he said.

"Really," he said, "I'm sold on the idea."

Bridge repairs stir debate at Clarkston Council meeting

Repairs to the Pinehurst Bridge continue to be a source of debate at Clarkston Village Council

On Aug. 25, discussion covered the lack of building permits when the bridge was repaired, a request for financial help from the village and a call for an engineering analysis to ensure that the new structure is sound.

Bud Campbell, a resident of the private Pinehurst Road, asked the village to pay for half of the $3,700 repair cost.

"The village doesn't own the bridge," said council President Sharron Catallo. Campbell countered that the bridge connects a private road with the village road, so the ownership should be divided at the halfway point on the bridge.

Several council members voiced disagreement. Trustee James Schultz asked if Campbell had a

A building permit isn't necessary, said Campbell, since he only repaired the bridge and didn't build a new one or install a culvert.

A permit is necessary for reasons of safety, said village attorney John Steckling, "The village, unfortunately, has the responsibility of the structural integrity of the bridge. But it's not the responsibility of the village to pay the cost," he

At an earlier meeting, the council had asked Campbell to seek engineering approval of the plan before construction began, said Schultz.

'I'm not spending $3,000 of people's money for a blueprint that can be drawn up in 15 minutes, said

Campbell. "You figure it out."

Steckling recommended having the village engineer assess the bridge and have Campbell pay the fees or special assess the fees to the residents of Pinehurst Road.

"I recommend we order the analysis (now) because we're liable no matter who pays for it, and then as ess the residents," said Trustee William Bas-

"I can see the village council gives the residents of the village a lot of credit and a lot of help, which is nóne," said Campbell.

me, said Campoell.

"You own your house, too," said Basinger. "If you had decided to build an addition on your house, you would have had to pull permits.'

Before discussion ended, Campbell and the council members had reached a reconciliation.

"I don't have anything personal against any of you," said Campbell. "When this village needs help and asks for help from the citizens, they will get help

First rezoning, then remodeling

By Carolyn Walker

Max Kennedy views the situation he's in as being "between a rock and a hard place."

But the Independence Township Planning Commission said it is just doing its job.

Kennedy is an employee of Clark Oil and Refining Corp., which hopes to do remodeling to its service station on Sashabaw at Oak Vista roads.

The proposed remodeling includes changing three existing pumps, which are in a triangle, to four pumps in a rectangular configuration; and the construction of a canopy over them for the protection of customers, Kennedy said.

His request for site plan remodeling was denied by the commission because of complications arising from the zoning of the site.

Currently, it is zoned C3, commercial. For improvements to be made, it must be rezoned MS, multiple service.

eans a trip before the township Rezoning m board, Kennedy said. In addition, he must petition the zoning board of appeals for a variance because the property's road frontage, at 140 feet, is 10 feet short of the township's requirements.

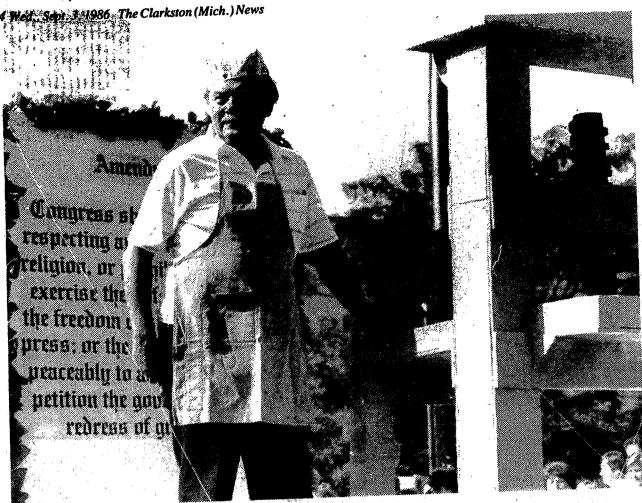

'We're offering the accomodations, supplies and services to the motorist, said Kennedy, who indicated he did not want to go before several boards if he didn't have to.

"We want to be allowed to upgrade our service station. I am not increasing the nonconforming use of this service station," he said.

Township Planner Richard Carlisle disagreed.

Expansion of the pumps expands the nonconforming use, he said, to which Chairman Neil Wallace added, "We don't have the power to make the excep-

Time to rejoice Kathy Greenfleid

The chilling call came after midnight. It was the call every parent with teens on the road

Our son was in a car accident, and he was unconscious and in serious condition.

The accident took place in Ohio and he was in a hospital in Oregon, a suburb of Toledo. It took us over an hour to get there.

What followed was a round-the-clock vigil, He spent four days in intensive care and two days in a regular room. The chunk of time was like an eternity.

We know now that he'll recover 100 percents a fact we didn't know for several days. It was the most frightening experience we, as parents, have ever faced

The accident happened when our son, the driver, fell asleep on the way home from Cedar Point. When he awoke and tried to steer the car back on the road, he lost control and was hit by a car traveling the opposite direction on the twolane highway We'll be forever thankful that his friend riding in the passenger's seat was not hurt. Likewise, we're thankful they were wearing their seat belts. One of our son's doctor told him that fact saved his life.

We have heard of two other serious accidents that happened when young people fell asleep during the drive home after a tiring day at Cedar Point.

I'm not sure I'd allow the trip knowing what I now know, but if I did, the drive home would follow a night in a motel.

We are thankful for caring friends, neighbors and coworkers whose many kindnesses and thoughts and prayers helped more than they will ever know.

And we are rejoicing at the sound of our son's voice, his laughter and his winning, as usual, at three-handed pinochle.

ALL ABOUT TOWN

Clarkston a good place to be

Editor's note: Words of inspiration were offered by Student Council President Maggie Sans during 10th-grade orientation Aug. 20 at Clarkston High School. CHS Assistant Principal Jan Gabier was so impressed that she asked us to share Maggie's speech with our readers.

By Maggie Sans

On behalf of the student body, I would like to welcome the Class of 1989 to Clarkston High School.

I'm sure all of you are excited and maybe a little nervous as everyone is when they start high school, but I want to reassure you that you have a great three years ahead of you.

In spite of any doubts you may be having about what to expect, we have a good bunch of students and staff that isn't totally unreasonable.

Clarkston High School is a good place to be-we have a faculty and student body that are proud of their school. That pride comes mainly from two things, a positive attitude and widespread participa-

The attitude, or school spirit, at Clarkston is built in a couple of different ways.

There are opportunities to become involved in school activities, remembering that supporting the band, sports, plays and clubs is as important as joining them.

TACAG commentary

Mutual respect for other classmates and staff members is another way of creating an atmosphere that allows the school to work as a whole-and most important of all is the good feeling that comes from academic achievement.

School spirit is important for several good reasons, mainly because it makes being in school fun; and it also reflects our good image to the community and to the neighboring schools.

Participation is the other way that Clarkston shows its pride. Because the high school is twice as big as the junior highs, there are twice the opportunities.

You'll find that there is a greater variety of academic courses, a sports program designed to cover a wide range of interests, and enough boys-I mean new faces-to expand your social life dramatically, and that is important, too.

The key to having thee successful years is to follow the old rule that "the more you put into something, the more you get out of it."

You can have some of the greatest times of your life by becoming involved with some of the possibilities that high school offers.

Also, I want to remind you that student council is the organization of the school whose purpose is to represent the entire student body.

We revolve around your ideas, compliments and complaints, so if you ever have any of the three, be sure to being them to our attention.

I wish you the best of luck and many great experiences throughout your high school years.

Clarkston High School has a lot to offer, and this is your chance to make the best of it!

Extra sister

Terrible Jean, my by-far-the-oldest sister, has spent most of her long, long life mak from out of town so she can stay in their homes whenever she happens to be spending a month passing through their front door. She thinks a room clerk is the K mart employe who makes space for more merchandise to be displayed

Anyway, the four sisters have alsways picked on me unmercifully. When we were children, the three youngest took advantage of the fact that I was raised to believe boys never hit girls no matter how cruel the provocation. Terrible Jean took advantage of the fact that she played both right and left end on the neighborhood football team; at the same time. I couldn't even watch the games from the bleachers because I was so skinny I kept slipping between the cracks and falling to the ground where dogs buried me So I've certainly never felt the need for an extra sister. to fill in when one of the real sisters was unable to be present at a family beat-up-on-lim gathering. However, Suzy Moons often performed that function with great animation during our adult years, never tiring of describing the time I was a 10-year-old cowboy who rode into her front yard on a garden rake. I soon rode out backward "He backed all the way home and it was three blocks;" she howled — because the rake ripped the seat out of my pants.

Suzy and I were the same age and thrown together at infancy — whether we liked it or not because our parents were best friends. Parents always want their children to marry the children of their best friends. When the parents of the bride and groom belong to the same dance and bridge clubs, they have the same friends, and this cuts down tremendously on the number of people you. have to invite to the wedding.

It never worked out that way, although I was certainly willing. Suzy was the prettiest girl in Port. Huron, but I wasn't the only boy to notice it I was, though, the only boy Suzy knew who had good reason to worry about being buried by a dog under the bleachers

Suzanne Reid-married Bob Moons and they had six gorgeous daughters. Those daughters were grown and mostly scattered, when, several months ago, it became apparent their mother was losing a long fight against cancer Suzy didn't want to die in a hospital; So all six daughters came home to care for her and make it possible for her to die at home.

By just hanging around, I've become a member of the oldest surviving generation of my family. I've reached the age in which I made a mental list of the people I love whose funerals I don't want to attend. Selfishly, I want to go first: Suzy was on that list:

But like our parents plan for our marriage, it didn't work out that way. During Suzy s Junei suddenly occurred to me that she was my oldest friend. That is, when Suzy died, she'd known me longer than any other friend alive had. (Not counting Terrible Jean, of course; who has known the whole world longer than anyone else has.)

It was a fine Irish wake Dozens of Suzy's friends drove from a Birmingham church to attend graveside services in Emmett, the Ireland of Michigan. At the afterglow, countless Suzy stories were told; most of them concerning her sense of humor (her favorite activity was water fights). She kept laughing until the very last. When she could barely see, speak, hear or move, she was still making jokes to make things easier on her family.

The only time I cried was when everyone sang "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling." But I will probably cry again when headed for the next family gathering, I remember there's no chance at all that my extra sister will

Danger. Cook di work

The never ending adventures in the continuing saga of our heroine Carolyn Walker: Installment Five.

Readers, beware. This column could give you indigestion.

Early this spring, after badgering The Perfectionist about the hundreds-of-radishes-only garden that he planted last year, I decided to start my own. My first.

I spent Memorial Day selecting and planting a variety of vegetable plants and seeds, looking forward to the time when we would enjoy fresh greens on our kitchen table.

I even made secret plans to bake lots of delicious zucchini bread.

Friday, the time arrived to grind those zukes and set to baking.

With The Teenager off to school, I had free reign of the radio and kitchen. I turned on my favorite station and began to work, Elvis accompanying me in the background with, "The Wonder of You."

Right off the bat(ter) I had trouble. The food processor wouldn't cut up the zucchinies. I tried my blender next and they got stuck on the blades.

After laboring for quite some time over the blender, I managed to grind them up.

It was then time to collect the other ingredients. I opened the upper cupboard and had to duck a flying box of fig newtons.

Regaining my composure after the cookie attack, I decided to make a double batch of batter. That meant six cups of flour.

I tossed it into the batter, turned on the beaters, and found myself surrounded by a white flour cloud, gasping for air.

When the fog settled, I poured the batter into two bread pans, thinking that it wouldn't rise too much.

So much for thinking

The pans hadn't been in the oven 10 minutes when a thick black smoke filled the air.

Time for a peek, I thought.

I opened the oven door and was greeted by zucchini batter running over the pans, down the racks and onto the oven floor, where a mound, in its infant stages, was pulsing, rising and cooking.

Hmmm,

I decided to remove the pans and racks and clean up the mess before completing the baking process. Naturally, I burned myself.

Some two hours later, the zucchini bread with crisp brown tops, bulging sides and swayed middles, was still not done.

I then took one pan out of the oven, banged the bread out of the well-greased-and-floured pan for a test, cut it in two and found mush at its core.

Needs more baking, I thought (this on a recipe that called for one hour).

I then piled the two halves, on end, back in the pan and gave them another 20 minutes.

Fortunately, I completed my task before The Teenager and The Perfectionist arrived home for the day.

A hint of cinnamon in the air, they turned eagerly to the kitchen and eyed the loaves.

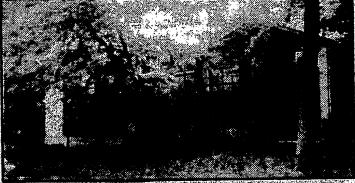

"What went wrong?" asked The Perfectionist.

What didn't?

Clarkston trucker helps haul hay to dry south

By Chris Gerbasi

General Motors truckers from the Pontiac area shipped tons of hay to the South to help droughtridden farmers two weekends ago.

The Chevrolet-Pontiac-Canada Group of General Motors delivered 141 tons and that ain't chicken feed, that's 5,600 bales of hav.

John Ketvirtis of Clarkston was among the 22 volunteer drivers who made the trip to Atlanta and its hay distribution center.

"It was a terrific trip," said Ketvirtis. "It was all volunteer. We left Friday night and got there Saturday afternoon at about 2:30. Then we left at 6 the next morning and got home at 11:30 (p.m.)."

All lodging and food for the drivers was also donated for the cause.

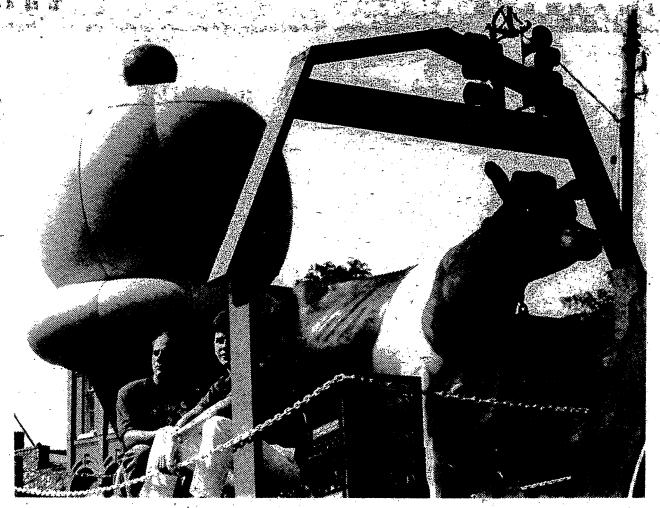

In all, there were 10 semis and 12 pick-up trucks involved in the trip. The drivers were from C-P-C and suppliers such as Jones Transfer, Highway Garage, Customer First and Commodore Cartage.

"It was worthwhile, the farmers are out of hay," said Ketvirtis. "Next they're going to haul hay up north. They've got an awful drought up there."

The C-P-C Group plans to provide hay this month to farmers in northern Michigan who are also experiencing drought problems.

According to Mary Elliott of General Motors, the excursion was the idea of an employee, Tim Peterson, who lined up the suppliers and transportation.

The hay came from farmers in Lapeer and Livingston Counties and 47 people all together volunteered their services.

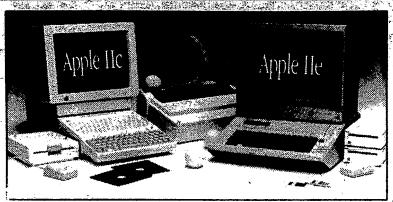

FROM MOO TO YOU: That was the slogan for the Cook's Farm Dairy float entry, as it was out of the cow and into the ice cream cone. The giant-size didn't melt, but unfortunately, it wasn't real.

Girls win opening CC meet

The first fall sports event of the season was a success for Clarkston's Kathleen McInnis last week.

The all-stater opened up the cross country schedule with a victory in the Second Annual Rochester Adams Invitational at Oakland University.

McInnis ran the 3.1 mile course in 20 minutes, 19 seconds, ahead of Cheryl Leitch of Oxford, who ran

The Wolves' Melissa Elfes was third (21:08) and Kate Conlen was sixth (22:14) as Clarkston had the best team

The Wolves had 36 points, based on their top five runners, Lake Orion had 53 points, Oxford had 67 and Adams had 42 with just four runners. Avondale had dropped out of the meet.

Clarkston's boys squad did not fare as well, trailing behind Adams, Oxford and Lake Orion. Brian Baert ran 13th for the Wolves.

"We approached this meet as a scrimmage or preliminary meet," said Clarkston co-coach Mike Kaul.

"We didn't expect 110 percent," he said. "Some runners were not ready because they haven't practiced enough. Obviously, some of our girl were ready for the race."

"I took it as more than just a scrimmage," said McInnis, who also won he event last year with the exact same time. "I thought my main competition would be my own team. I felt really good, I didn't get tired at all real-

Elfes worked hard this summer including two weeks at a camp conducted by former Birmingham Seaholm track coach Kermit Ambrose.

"I felt really strong," Elfes said of the race. "It was pretty good for the first meet. I was surprised at my time."

Conlen, a transfer student from Oxford, was running against her old teammates for the first time.

"It kind of brought back old memories," she said. "I didn't feel like I needed to go out and beat them. I was friends with a lot of them and it was just good, friendly competition.'

Ifinior Amy Rice was 11th for Clarkston (23:42) and sophomores Nichole Chinavare (25:08) and Emili Winfield (25:15) ran 15th and 16th, respectively.

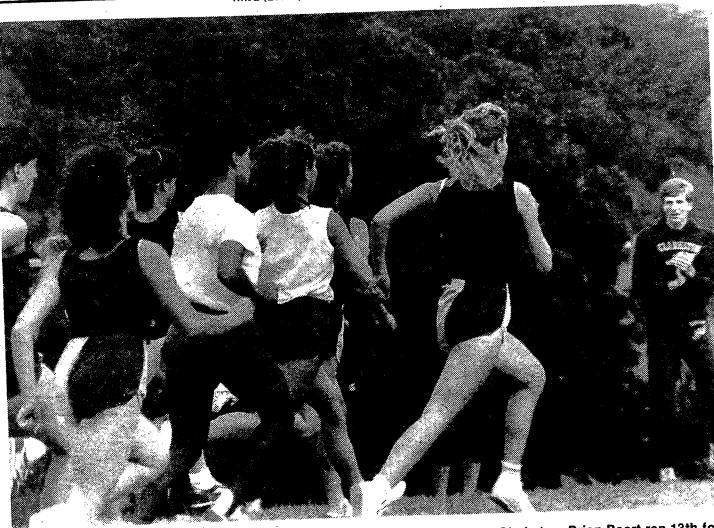

. "That was an excellent time for her (Rice)," Kaul said. "And the two sophomores did a very nice job. We're very encouraged."

Baert finished the boys race in 18:52, good for 13th. Lake Orion's Cliff Dwelle won the race, setting a new course record.

The Wolves' Dan Reed improved 10 spots over last year's race. He was 22nd this time around with a 20:06

Baert we expected to run well," said Kaul. "Dan did a good job. I thought he did well for not running that much (this summer)."

Rounding out the boys results were Jim. Hotary at 28th, Rod Swanson, 29th, Scott Graham, 30th, Kevin Baert. 32nd and Kent Hansen, 33rd.

Crystal clear

Lem was a gem

I had nothing better to do last Friday night than watch the Lions-Bengals exhibition football game. It was a good game for an exhibition, but that's not what this column is about. Broadcasting the game was Lem Barney, one of the Lions' all-time greats. The fact that he's not in the Hall of Fame is an insult and I take it personally because Lem is one of my all-time favorite athletes.

I always had mixed emotions about this time of year. I hated going back to school with a capital "H". Make that all caps. But I didn't mind putting away the bat and glove and bringing out the football.

We'd go down and play four-on-four or whatever on the Rosedale Elementary lawn or one of the fields in back of it. On offense, I'd be maybe Charlie Sanders or Fred Bilentnokoff. But on defense I would become Lem Barney.

Nothing in sports has ever been more exciting than watching Barney return a punt or an intercep-

A run by him could last 10 minutes. He was not unlike a playground player in that regard, zigzagging across the field, changing direction, twisting, turning, running circles around the opposition. He was sleck and slick, quick and graceful.

And I would try to emulate him at Rosedale. On a kickoff or a rare punt (you'd always go for it in a pick-up game because chances were you'd make the first down) I'd catch the ball and take off to one side of the field. If that side was blocked off, I'd cut back to the for side, always just one step ahead of would-be tacklers, just like Lem. In my mind, anyway.

A pass play in a pick-up game could go on forever if you didn't have enough players to rush the quarterback. So the receivers would just run around in circles and the quarterback would wait until one of the defenders got too tired to keep up. Of course, 8-yearolds never get too tired.

defense; I'd lull the quarterback into thinking my man was open and then with a burst of speed, I'd jump in front of the pass and begin my Barney routine again. Just like Lem.

As Lem, I would wait for the opportune time on

Chris Gerbasi

I've said it before that the Lions are my favo ite Detroit team, even though they're also the most

But when I first started following sports in 1970, the Lions had their best season of the last 25 years.

In those days, it was hard to get into the playoffs. A team actually had to be very good and the Lions

The Lions had to win their last six games, against tough teams, to make the playoffs. And they did.

The names come back easily: Landry, Munson. Taylor, Farr, Sanders, McCullough, Naumoff, Lucci, Walker, LeBeau, Weger and, of course, Barney.

Some of the pictures are as vivid as yesterday: Sanders crashing into the goalpost, but catching a pass for a touchdown in a Thanksgiving Day win over Oakland; Greg Landry pulling off a 76-yard quarterback sneak against the Packers; and Barney and Mike Weger leaping high to try to deflect a pass from the 49ers' Gene Washington.

That last picture is a classic and hangs in the Hall of Fame. Now all they need is a bust of Barney.

Wyckoff winds down track

career at Saginaw Valley

By Chris Gerbasi

Steve Wyckoff has had enough of track. Well, almost.

Wyckoff wrapped up his track career at Saginaw Valley State College this year and he's through with serious competition as a high jumper and javelin thrower. And although he wants to get into coaching, he will not miss competing.

"I haven't yet," said Wyckoff. "I'll miss the people more than anything.

High jumping is hard on the body, not many people know that," he said. "It's consistent pounding. Just to stay flexible is a chore in itself. You have to bend over backwards, hyperextend your back, drive off the knee.

The 1981 Clarkston grad originally went to Saginaw Valley on a football scholarship. But after two seasons, he wasn't playing that much.

"The football team was about 2-8 and the track team were national champs my freshman year," Wyckoff said. "I said, 'I want to be on that team' and I dedicated myself to track.

The Cards were NAIA Division I indoor champs in 1981 and 1982. Wyckoff made it to the outdoor nationals as a freshman in the high jump.

Eventually he hurt his back and was red-shirted and then he hurt his heel as a junior. Wyckoff told his coach he hurt the heel jumping, but actually he hurt it falling off a goalpost after the Michigan-Ohio State football game.

Wyckoff said this season was his best ever. In the Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference meet, javelin with a throw of 170-31/2.

At the district meet, Wyckoff leapt 6-8 for second and threw the javelin 165-6 for fourth.

In the indoor nationals, he missed All-America status by one position because of one miss in the high jump. He finished seventh with a jump of 6-8.

But now Wyckoff is content to be building a house in Clarkston for his father and to start teaching. "I've been doing it since seventh grade and I just don't want to be that competitive anymore," he said. A'It's time to be moving on and start a career. If you can't put the time into it to be as good as you can be. then why do it?

"That's the problem with some athletes," he said. "They want to keep competing, but it's not doing them any good. If they're not getting paid for it, they're wasting their time.'

Wyckoff will soon begin a 12-week student teaching program in Saginaw. He majored in physical education and minored in history at Saginaw Valley.

After that program, he'll try to substitute and also find a track team to coach. And he's not completely through as an athlete. He'll compete in some open meets in the javelin.

"I don't want to sit around watching my weight," Wyckoff said. "But with the javelin, you just need a few warmups. You go out there and scream a little and it usually flies.

Through coaching Wyckoff wants to help others, since people took the time to help him in track.

'It got me through college," he said. "I don't think I would have stayed too long if I didn't have Steve Wyckoff now leaps onto tall buildings in a single bound after closing his career as a high jumper and javelin thrower at Saginaw Valley. Wyckoff plans to go into teaching and coaching.

Two years ago, a knee linjury ended Connie Head's competitive figure skating career

No problem since she wanted to go into teaching skating anyway

Now, at 19, she might be considered over the hill as a skater, but she's just beginning as a teacher.

Head, of Waterford Township, is going to start as an assistant teacher this month at the Birmingham.

Ice Skating Arena under her coach Jill Jenkins.
"It's what I've always wanted to do," said Head.
"It's a lot of fun and I get a lot out of it. You teach youngsters what you've learned and maybe they'll pass

She has plenty to pass on. She's been skating since she was seven and has won three medals and many ribbons as a competitor. -

She tore ligaments in her knee while skating and aggravated the injury in Powder Puff football her senior year at Clarkston High:

'I don't miss (competing) that much;" said Head. "I liked competing. It was fun and you got to meet different people, but it was awfully expensive."

hours a day, four days a week. Any more than that could cause knee problems:

To prepare for teaching, Head recently spent two weeks at the Olympic Training Center in Marquette:

"You teach voungsters what you've learned and maybe they ll pass it on." _Connie Head

She not only trained herself, but also learned about

"We did ballet for about an hour and a half, then gymnastics for two and a half hours, then we had a nutritional speech on how to eat right and then we skated from about 4:30 to 8:30," she said. "It helped me understand skating a little better.!"

In Birmingham, Head will observe Jenkins and help with skaters ages 9 to 15. She must work with Jenkins for a year before she can qualify to teach under the U.S. Figure Skating Program.

She's also taking recreational management classes at Oakland Community College so she can one day have her own skating school.

"When I-turned 16, I decided where I'd like to go and I decided to go into teaching," Head said. "I thought I'd be good at it because of all the stuff I've learned from pros.

"My goal is to just get kids under my belt and get them going in competing and testing.

Sibling Simkos are unique

on race circuit

By Chris Gerbasi

Maybe the family that races together, stays

Dave and Patty Simko are the only brother and sister racing team on the Automobile Racing Club of America (ARCA) circuit and Patty is the only woman on the circuit.

Those two facts might call for some kidding or verbal abuse from fellow stock car drivers.

"I get more help than anything else," said Patty, 26. "These are more professional-type drivers."

"Until she starts beating them," said Dave, 31. "Then they'll quit helping her."

Patty's best finish this year was 16th at the Flat Rock Speedway. Dave ran his best race ever last month at the Talladega 500 in Alabama. He sat on the pole position with a speed of 201.464 miles per hour in his '86 Monte Carlo and then finished second in the Patty drives an '86 LeSabre. She smashed up another car earlier this year, but despite the speeds, she said stock car racing is relatively safe.

"I crashed at 180 miles per hour and walked away from the car," she said.

Neither Dave nor Patty have competed in all the ARCA races this year because of time and expenses. Despite that, Dave was still ninth in the ARCA point standings with 1,190 going into this past weekend's Southern Illinois 200.

Their father's company, Mound Steel & Supplies, sponsors them, but expenses for a year can approach $100,000.

That's a lot of money, but it's still a far cry from the Winston Cup stock car drivers, the Richard Pettys and Darrell Waltrips.

They spend over a million dollars annually on their cars and that's the difference in the quality of cars on the ARCA circuit compared to the Winston circuit.

The Simkos naturally hope to one day attract a major sponsor and race on the larger circuit.

They spent part of their growing years in Clarkston and Dave still lives in the township.

They got into racing because their Dad had raced

VB tourney held

Independence Township Parks and Recreation held the First Annual Clintonwood Sun Volleyball Tournament on Aug. 23 and 24 at Clintonwood Park.

The men's triples tourney was held on Saturday and 12 teams participated. The winning team was made up of Jim White, Dave Clark and Ron Stelpflug. They were challenged in the finals by Bill Binder, Alan Burns and Bill Mathis.

The co-rec tournament played on Sunday was won by the team of Pam Reed, Dave Oliwek, Tami Blau and T. Mesco. Their opponents in the finals were Kathy Miller, Dayna Gray, Jim White, Dave Clark and Ron Stelpflug.

Plans are being formulated for next year's tournaments. If you would like your name on the mailing list, call 625-8223.

12 IN COLLEGE!

Treses talk about how they're raising their 17 children

By Julie Campe

In modern times, large families are few and far between. The days of six and seven children in one bunch are rare enough, but nestled in a rambling farmhouse in Brandon Township live the Treses.

Laone and Tom Trese have 17 children, ages 7 to 33. None are adopted. All belong to Tom and Laone.

First came Lynette, then Tamara, Art, Greg, Noelle, Phillip, Brennan, Todd, Joe, Chuck, Dolores, Peggy, Angela, Colleen, Christianne, Shane and Shereen.

But more amazing than the biological fact of 17 children are last year's statistics: 12 attended college.

Some were just beginning. Some were working on masters' degrees, some on doctorates. Some went just for fun.

Fortunately, all have had academic scholarships. "We've been lucky with that," said Tom. "They were hard workers. They went to school knowing they had to work, and they're all very bright. We've never had to check anybody on homework."

The Treses don't have a master plan for raising smart children. When they were young, Laone didn't do anything special. She didn't try infant tutoring or any such new-fangled techniques.

"I read to them an awful lot," she said. "I don't believe in pushing them when they're little at all, academically. That's a very limited way to push kids—reading, writing, math—there's so much more."

Many of the Trese kids have been runners on Brandon High School's track or cross country teams. One played tennis. Some have played musical instruments: piano, flute, drums. And all have had jobs on the side such as baby-sitting.

The Treses don't have definitive answers to raising a happy, productive family. Each family is different, just as each child is different, they said.

"The expectation (to do well) was there," said Tom. "They've all got good common-sense, and they've used it. We've never had anybody screw up badly. Of course, we stopped them before they

They've loved their large family, even through the difficult parts, although there really haven't been too many, said Laone.

"Transportation. That's the hardest part," she

As for the cost, imagine 17 pairs of shoes, 17 hamburgers, 17 toothbrushes. But the cost hasn't been a problem, either, they said.

The major expenses have been food, clothing and housing, and they've handled them all fairly easily.

After a certain age, the children would begin taking care of their own clothing.

"Even the boys have learned to sew," said Laone.
For special occasions, the girls would buy a pattern and material and make their own dresses.

For food, they bake their own bread, belong to a food co-op and have a vegetable garden.

"Desserts were for real celebrations, birthdays, or something special," said Laone.

And with 17 birthdays, the children have never felt deprived.

One year, they had dessert just about every week. It began when the boys ran track or cross country. Each time one of them set a new record, they celebrated with ice cream. One year, a new record was set nearly every week and the celebrations came just as

"I've never bought a bag of potato chips or a bottle of pop," said Laone. "We serve good, healthy

Dolores, Shereen, Terry [a friend of the family], Angela, Laone and Tom. The cat, Tabby, sits in front of the group.

Greg, 29 elaborated.

"Every morning she'd make us eat hot oatmeal," he said. "For lunch, we'd have a peanut butter sandwich on homemade bread. For dinner, we ate potatoes, a vegetable from the garden and maybe chicken. Lots of chicken."

Luckily, all of the children have been healthy. They've only had rare trips to the doctor in the case of a cut or a sprain.

"She used to feed us a spoonful of cod liver oil every light when we were young," said Greg.

It's worked, he said. He's healthy. He's 29 and has never had a cavity.

The children also have helped with all of the chores around the house. They have helped roof the barn and build the kitchen and cook dinner and bake bread.

"Sometimes, I might have five little helpers with their hands in the bread dough," said Laone.

It has been good for them to be involved, she said. It has given them confidence and ability.

For fun, they would entertain each other. They would go for walks or play baseball, basketball or football in the back yard. With 17 children, they've had plenty of players.

They also have a pond out back.

"When you're working hard in the summer, the encouragement is when you're done, you can go for a swim," said Laone.

The Treses emphasized that no precise guides exist for raising a family, and Tom expressed the important aspects for his family.

"Security in your own position as parent," he said. "To see each child as an individual, you have to have a sense of their personality so you see them not as just a child. So when you look at them, you really see them. . . . And you influence their behavior to benefit the child, not so that it would necessarily benefit the parents or family."

"One thing I think is important is the family comes first with dad," said Greg. "He doesn't have a lot of hobbies... and he's deeply religious. He has faith that everything will turn out all right."

The Treses have provided the examples for their children. With eight children at home, Tom went to school nights while working as a carpenter. He eventually received his master's degree and now works as a social worker in the Royal Oak school system.

Laone has been attending school for years in the evenings. She has several associates' degrees—in landscaping, social work and general health.

One long-term goal is to open their own family counseling center, where they could put their experience to practical use.

WATCHING AND WAITING: Some onlookers had a popcorn breakfast instead of pancakes as they waited for the entourage to make its way around the Church and Main intersection.

Wed., Sept. 3, 1986. The Clarksion (Mich.) News Wilson wins recognition for 25 years in water works

It's been almost 26 years that Bill Wilson has worked in Independence Township's water department, and it's been a challenge.

"Since I've been working here, it's been a challenge every day," he says.

He remembers when it was just a one man operation. Now, as supervisor of the department, he erains the other employees as well as performing his regular duties. They include the installation of new equipment and services, the maintenance of the equipment, the sampling of water and the flushing of hydrants.

For his service to the profession for more than 25 years, he will receive the Edward Dunbar Rich Service Award from the American Water Works Association.

'I've worked for so many different supervisors, clerks and treasurers, and boy there's a flock of them," he says.

But through all the changes, his work hasn't gone unnoticed. His devotion to the job when not officially on duty is what impresses a lot of people, says Resemany Howey, township deputy clerk.

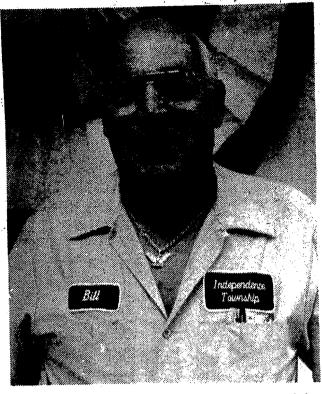

"Many times, people call him in the middle of the night (with water problems), and he's gone out and doesn't charge the township for his time. . . . This goes way back. . . . I would say it's complete dedication to the job.

"He sets up our voting machines for us, too," she says, about the extra chore he's handled for 20 years. Besides the challenge of the job, Bill likes the people he meets. "There's such a thing as how many nice people I've met. . . . people recognize me as the water man," he said. "They wave and say hello. "In any given subdivision that has water, how many kids I've seen who've grown up."

In his spare time, Bill cares for his lawn.

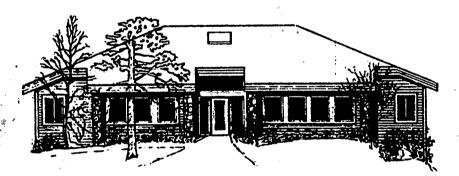

Bill Wilson will receive the Edward Dunbar Rich Service Award for his more than 25 years of work in the water department.

"People accuse me of spending too much time on my yard at home," he says. "My neighbor and I don't run a contest, but we've probably got the nicest lawns on Northview."

He also golfs, and he served as a volunteer firefighter for 25 years.

Reeta is 90

By Julie Campe

On Saturday, Aug. 30, Reeta Maynard turned 90, but her rosy complexion and sharp mind belie her new age.
"I feel really good," she said. "I don't feel like 90."

She celebrated last Thursday with the Young At Heart Senior Citizens in Springfield Township. They baked her a cake and gave her roses and good conver-

"The people here are so nice and friendly, you'd think you'd known them for years," she said.

One wonders how she came to live so long and so apparently happily.

"I don't smoke or drink or anything." she said. My husband didn't either."

And every day, she takes two walks-about three blocks in the morning and again in the afternoon-with her dog.

Born in Canada in 1895, she moved to Michigan in 1922 and became a U.S. citizen a year later. For more than 40 years, she and her husband owned and operated a farm on Big Lake Road.

"She was also a nurse in her younger years," said Irene Sroka, her friend from Young at Heart.

Reeta now lives in Independence Township, and on Saturday, she celebrated her birthday again at Frankenmuth with some friends.

Sylvie Helie can't wait to get home with her Jello. Eating the American dish will be a treat for the preschoolers she feaches in Paris, and Jello is for children, she says.

"It's very funny for us. Jello is funny," she says in her lilting French accent.

As a Parisian in America, Sylvie visited Chicago, Milwaukee-and Clarkston-and planned to go to New York. She also scheduled trips to Toronto and Quebec during her five-week holiday.

Cook up after-sence sneeks

Belly Woone

Possibly the long, lazy days of summer provided a good opportunity for kids to practice cooking skills. Now that school has started, after-school snacks will be easy to prepare.

The microwave oven offers a safe and quick way for children to prepare tasty and nutritious treats. Here are several rules to follow for maximum safety.

•Use microwave-safe glass, paper or plastic containers and coverings.

Avoid twist ties and foil-lined wrappers.

• Remove coverings away from you to prevent steam burns.

•Let high sugar and/or fat foods cool slightly before tasting to prevent burning in your mouth

Michael Schweitzer helped his aunt Thayer Wilson Wine fix some quick snacks during their appearance on the Microwave Plus cable TV show on Channel 11 at 7 p.m.

Place one tortilla at a time on a large microsafe plate. Microwave at 50 percent (medium) power for 11/2 to 2 minutes or until cheese melts.

To serve, spread 1 teaspoon taco sauce, if desired, on each tortilla and roll up to eat.

While society is only just beginning to get used to the idea of female doctors and lawyers and electricians, Jenni McGee is preparing for still another male dominated field.

The Holly resident is studying mortuary science. "It's such an interesting field, I don't know why everyone doesn't want to do this," she said.

She began college in pre-veterinary studies at Michigan State University, East Lansing, but then changed her mind.

She loved anatomy and chemistry, and she also liked to draw. She wanted to choose a field that combined art with science. Her mother suggested mortuary science, and after investigating it, Jenni switch-

"It's got psychology, art, cosmetology, business, anatomy," she said "It's got everything in one."

This summer, she worked as an apprentice at the Lewis E. Wint & Son Funeral Home on M-15, Independence Township, where she learned about the odd hours a mortician keeps and about the entire lifestyle of the profession.

"To own your own funeral home, it's your life," she said. "It's not a job. It's not a career. It's your life."

Because of the odd hours, she never knew when she would be working, but it was a "satisfying" experience, she said.

In order to become a licensed mortician, she has to obtain an associate's degree and a certificate of mortuary science, and she has to serve a year as an ap-

To reach the goals, she's attending Oakland Community College in Auburn Hills and will then attend Wayne State University, Detroit, which is Michigan's only mortuary school, she said. Her studies will continue for about three more years.

She has already begun her apprenticeship at Wint's. She plans to return next summer for more ex-

Although the career choice seemed natural to Jenni, some people were surprised and even shocked at her decision to become a funeral director.

"I don't know if they're scared of it or if they don't know anything about it, or what. I don't think I'm that unusual," she said.

"My mom is a fire chief over in Groveland Township. I think that had an influence. I never ruled out any male job.

"Things are just now breaking through for the women's movement," she said.

Illiteracy rate 20% in county

BY KAMI BUCHHOLZ

Oxford Leader Editor
Communication poses great hurdles for many non-readers.

In Oakland County alone, 138,000 people—20 percent of the adult population—are classified as illiterate, yet less than 2 percent of those people are receiving help.

The numbers, provided by the director of the Oakland County Literacy Project, underscore the problem. Non-readers struggle to fill out job applications, read a newspaper, even write a letter.

A tutor with the county says that many of the area's non-readers stopped the learning process because of illness, or they quit school for financial reasons. Others lost sight of learning to read due to frequent moves that resulted in changes of schools.

"In more cases than not, the fact that they can't read is outside of their control," Jack Gillard, tutor with the Gillard has been tutoring a student for two months. The pupil, in his 20s, works for a family-owned retail business.

Reading is difficult for the student. He especially has trouble with phonetics. But, he wants to be able to read so that he can attend college.

Although he did complete high school, he is now learning to write letters of inquiry and read a newspaper.

"This isn't a quick fix solution, but I think people will make more rapid success with a tutor than under a school program because you're working one-on-one," Gillard says.

The OCLP is entirely volunteer and there is no cost to Persons in the program cross all social and economic levels and range from 19-86, says Cathryn Weiss, program director.

"People become a little bit complacent if they already have a job, but it affects them personally, too," Weiss says.

Area adult and community education directors report that only a few individuals with reading difficulties seek help.

"We get people that come into our office and say

"We get people that come into our office and say they can't read. We usually get half a dozen a year, but I know there's more out there.

"It's not that they can't read anything, but they can't look at a page of words and decode it," Karen Eckert, adult and community education director for Oxford Schools, says.

Auburn Hills Avondale School Adult Education program also reaches less than a half dozen non-readers:

"Sometimes they feel they're not good enough to come to school... If someone in their family has done it, it gives some validity to it," says Ellen Nash, Adult Learning Center Coordinator.

Many non-readers lack complete reading skills; the progression of skills used in reading wasn't learned.

"Take the apostrophe;" says Nash. "Something as simple as that, that people take for granted, was something this person had never learned."

Clarkston's Community Education program helped about 20 non-readers last year.

"Most of the ones we've seen in the last year are functioning between 2nd and 4th grade reading," says Marilyn Allyn, Adult Outreach Supervisor for Clarkston's Community Education.

"But we've also seen some that don't know their alphabet, or know the alphabet but can't put it in order," she says

In Lake Orion, the number of non-readers is considered non-representative of those that need help.

"The numbers really are staggering, but there are so many more out there. It's just minute (the number being served) when you're talking about the (overall) problem," says Maryanne Thorndycraft, Adult Basic Education Supervisor for Lake Orion schools.

Last year 30 students were enrolled in classes aimed at persons reading below at 8th grade level, says Thorndycraft.

Most area adult and/or community education programs report that students usually improve by at least one grade level in reading after completing a few weeks of instruction.

Television, newspapers, radio and magazines are pushing campaigns to bring about awareness of the problem.

The American Newspaper Publishers Association Foundation recently launched "Press to Read."

The program, which will coincide with Literacy Month in September, will link the efforts of literacy education with individual communities.

The computer age is already having an effect on

"One woman was offered a promotion at GMAC. It involved more reading, and she can't read real well,"

In the business world, persons continue to turn down promotions because the upward move requires reading ability.

In Oakland County 158,328 persons, age 18 and above, have completed schooling through the 8th grade.

The Oakland County Literacy Project estimates that 138,000 Oakland County residents are illiterate.

Although lack of a high school diploma does not mean someone is illiterate, many persons who did not complete high school have difficulty reading.

The 1980 census breakdown on the number of persons age 18 and older who completed schooling through grade 8 follows:

Prevent Colds & Infections With Vitamin C

With Tanya Luchkovitz-Weeder

Vitamin C can help defend us against viruses and bacteria, plus reduce the symptoms and duration of any infection. Some animals produce Vitamin C internally, in the liver or kidneys although humans do not. The amount of Vitamin C found in the average diet is nowhere near the amount we require for optional health. If we attempted to quickly consume enough calories to make us obese.

Dr. Pauling recommends that all adults take a preventive dose of 10 grams (10,000 miligrams) of Vitamin C daily. In his research, Dr. Pauling has discovered that high doses of C could destroy harmful microbes. Vitamin C comes in tablets, capsules, crystals and liquid form. We carry all kinds. Natural sources of Vitamin C are, tomatoes, citrus fruits, rose hips, corn, broccoli, etc.

Sheila Moore sorts dittos a whole week before school starts. She will be student teaching at Clarkston Elementary School this fall in Audrey Shupe's first grade class.

In the beginning

Jeremy Doty, 12, [left] and Stephen Locher, 11, help Barb Glover prepare for the first day of school. The boys are sixth graders at Clarkston Elementary School.

Teacher Barb Glover examines the calendar before class begins. She went to school the week before it started, hoping to find all of her bulletin board letters.

On the second day of school, the new kindergarten pupils still need a little help in finding their rooms. Sixth-grade safety volunteers provide the guidance.

Parade-goers are on the edge of their seats, or curbs, as they line up on Main Street, Clarkston, in anticipation of the Labor Day Parade. People were lined up as much as fourdeep along some parts of the parade route on Monday, Sept. 1.

On both sides

The Davison Shrine Club members squeezed into their tiny, old-fashioned cars and zigzagged throughout the parade route.

Even President Reagan joined in the festivities, although he wasn't looking his best.

This Springfield Christian cheerleader is just plain happy about being in the parade and she let's everybody know it.
